Police Get Pay Increase

By Pat Blair

Rockport's City Council approved a $100 across-the-board pay raise, effective immediately, for city police and set August 6 as the date for a budget workshop during a busy session Monday night.

The pay raise requested was not what city police asked for in Monday night's session.

The City Council voted an increase of $100 per month plus overtime pay for all police positions below that of a chief. The chief of police was given a $200 per month increase with no pay for overtime.

All increases were effective as of midnight, Tuesday, July 24.

Members of the police force appearing before the Council Monday requested $1,200 a month base pay for the top patrolman's position, effective immediately. They specified they were asking only for that increase in base pay and were not asking for overtime pay, holiday pay or payment for court appearances - even though the police in other area cities receive these benefits.

The top patrolman's position in Rockport until Monday night paid $888 a month without overtime, holiday pay or pay for court appearances.

Lt. Joe Hinojosa speaking for the officers, told the Council that in Port Aransas, the top patrolman's position pays $921 a month plus overtime. In Portland, top pay is $1,028 per month plus overtime and 5 % of the annual salary as a Christmas bonus. Ingleside police are paid $875 a month, top pay, plus overtime, court time and holidays.

"We aren't asking overtime and court time," Lt. Hinojosa said. "All we're asking is $1,200 a month base pay."

Told that the Council was considering a pay hike for the police in the 1979-80 budget, Hinojosa and others present restated their request that the Council act on the proposed increase Monday night.

Monthly salaries for city police Tuesday, after the pay raise went into effect, included: $1,425 for the chief of police, $988 for top patrolman and $876 starting salary.

Article On City Elections Guided By State Election Code

By Pat Blair

In drafting Article V -- "Nominations and Elections" -- to Rockport's proposed City Charter, members of the charter commission were "essentially guided by the election code and statutes of Texas," said Commission member Ed Armstrong.

Under this article, the regular city election will be held each year on the first Saturday in April. The City Council is responsible for specifying the polling places.

The article also sets down the Council's right to call special elections "for purposes consistent with this Charter and the laws of the State of Texas" and provides for a certified list of voter registrants to be "maintained current" (kept up to date) by the city secretary.

The City Council will "appoint or approve" officials for municipal elections, and "all municipal elections shall be published in a manner consistent with the requirements of the present and all future amended editions of the Texas Election Code."

Section 2 of Article V deals with a candidate's eligibility to file for office, and requires that the candidate must be a qualified voter of the city and a resident of the city for 12 months prior to the filing deadline.

A resident may not file for candidacy if he or she is delinquent in payment of taxes "or any other liabilities" to the city. A candidate cannot file for more than one office or place position in the same election and a city employee

Apartments Hold Groundbreaking

Construction on the Wind Wood Apartments, a 40-unit complex at Young and Bay Street, got underway July 17 with groundbreaking ceremonies at the construction site.

Wielding shovels were Bob Morgan, developer of the complex, and J.P. Gonzales, contractor.

The apartments will be single story duplexes, ranging in size from one to four bedrooms. Each apartment will have individual central air and hearing systems.

Construction is expected to be completed by December, with occupancy scheduled for January, 1980.

Robert S. Morgan is the developer for the apartments, with Charlie L. Bellah doing the architectural work.

Minority Contractor Assistance Project (MCAP), stationed in Washington, D.C., is a non-profit corporation to provide financial and technical assistance to minority contractors.

BID, Inc. obtained bonding for J.P. Gonzales, of J.G. Builders in Victoria, through the aid of MCAP. Total bond was $740,000, largest ever granted to a minority group in the area by MCAP.

Voluntary Hold On Business

For the first time in history, shrimpers and fish houses in the Rockport area have voluntarily stopped shrimping, says J.C. Harlan, president of the Seafood Producers Association.

Harlan said the approximately three-week halt to business -- extending from July 15 until August 1 -- is to give the shrimp in the bays a chance to grow up.

About the first of August, he added, "we'll go out and make tests in the bay. If the shrimp are legal size -- 40 to 50 count or better - we'll withdraw the voluntary stop."

He added that the shrimpers asked the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to assist in the effort by ticketing bay shrimpers who go out during the July 15-August 1 period.

"Any shrimper who goes out will be found guilty of some violation -- improper lights, something," Harlan explained.

He added that this voluntary restriction period does not apply to gulf shrimpers or bait stand operators.

"This is something everybody said would never happen," Harlan said. "We've been trying to do it for years and years.

"If we stay off these small shrimp now, then shrimp that are 70 or 80 count now will make 40 or 50 or better in just two weeks.

"In the long run," he added, "it (the voluntary action) means more profit for the shrimper."

County Reports No Fatal June Accidents

Aransas County recorded no traffic fatalities for the month of June, 1979, and traffic deaths for the year to date were well below the number recorded for the first six months of 1978.

The figures were released recently by Capt. Charles Gunn, Region III Texas Highway Patrol in Corpus Christi.

Eleven of the 21 counties that comprise the Corpus Christi District reported no fatalities for the month of June. In the remaining 10 counties, 16 fatal accidents took 19 lives during the month.

DPS officers investigated 10 traffic accidents in Aransas County during June, bringing the total number of accidents to 81 for the first six months of 1979. This was an increase over the 70 recorded for the same period in 1978.

But Aransas County recorded only three fatal accidents -- resulting in three deaths -- during that period this year. Last year, the County reported four fatal

Seafood Producers Set Annual Dinner

Rockport area residents can put a big circle around Sunday, August 12, on their calendars -- that's the date of the annual Seafood Dinner put on by the Seafood Producers Association.

Several dignitaries either have been or will be invited to this year's dinner, says J.C. Harlan, president of the Association. Among the invited guests will be Rockport Mayor Walter S. Falk, officials from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, Marine Extension Agent Jeff Messinger and "several senators and representatives."

The dinner will be at the Paws and Taws Building on the Fulton Beach Road. Serving starts at noon, Harlan said.

Tickets to the affair are $3.75 for adults and $1.75 for children. Pre-sale tickets will be sold at reduced costs and will be ayailable at various locations in Rockport, Ingleside, Aransas Pass, Corpus Christi and Portland.

Harlan said there will be live music and speeches. "We're planning an enjoyable occasion for all concerned," he added.

Sorenson Swept Into Banking By Hurricane Of 1945

By Pat Blair

Ask James H. Sorenson, Jr., how he got into banking, and he smiles and answers, "A hurricane."

The Rockport area native had just come home on terminal leave from the Army Air Corps -- the year was 1945 -- and the hurricane of 1945 "had just blown through," he said.

"Mr. Glass (A.C. Glass, then cashier with First National Bank) came up to me, with a stubble of beard on his face, and siad, 'Jimmy, come help us with the insurance claims.' I did, and I've been here ever since."

With academic credits in commerce, finance, accounting and economics from St. Mary's University in San Antonio and the University of Texas, Sorenson was suited educationally for work in insurance or banking.

He's involved in both. Besides being president of the First National -- a position he has held since 1966 -- he is a partner in the insurance firm of Glass, Sorenson and McDavid.

He hadn't planned on getting into either profession. "I thought I wanted to raise cattle," he explained. But, he added, he has no regrets about the way things turned out.

Born in a house on Old Oak Shore -- "it's no longer there," he added -- between Rockport and Fulton, Sorenson is the third generation of his family in this area. His great-uncle Simon D. Sorenson came into the area more than 100 years ago -- "1875 or thereabouts" -- and his grandfather, Andrew, came in "a few years later."

He attended schools in Rockport, San Antonio and Corpus Christi -- where his parents kept an apartment -- and was a 1936 graduate of high school in Corpus Christi.

Sorenson enlisted in the Army Air Corps in 1942 and was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Corps after finishing officer candidate school in Miami Beach. He served overseas and was discharged in 1945 with the rank of Major.

Shortly after Sorenson joined First National Bank, he was promoted to assistant cashier. In 1948, he was promoted to cashier, succeeding Glass. In February, 1951, he became executive vice-president and cashier, then president in 1966.

Since he joined the bank, he said, it has grown from deposits of approximately $1 million to more than $28 million—from three employees -- including himself -- in 1945 to 25 employees today.

Sorenson's involvement in community affairs began shortly after his return to Rockport in 1945, when he was asked to head the Aransas County War Chest fund drive.

Since then, he has served as president and director of the Rockport Chamber of Commerce, director of the United Fund, vice-president of the Aransas County - Rockport Centennial Corporation and chairman of the planning committee that set up the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District. He has served as financial advisor to many other local civic organizations.

Sorenson has been active in the local real estate development of West Terrace, Little Bay Shores and Harbor Oaks.

The Rockport banker is a long-time member of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, has served twice as senior warden and has been a member of the Executive Board of the Episcopal Diocese of West Texas.

Other activities include service as director of the

Senator Lloyd Bentsen
Watching Washington

Good timing often means the difference between a successful enterprise and a fiasco.

Farmers and businessmen know the importance of timing. Take wheat farmers, for example. They have learned that it makes no sense for them to sell their wheat to a middleman as soon as it's harvested only to have him store it, then sit back and wait for the price to go up before he sells.

Modern day farmers have greatly increased their storage capacity so they can hold onto their own wheat and wait for the right time to sell.

Over the past several months, though, a growing rail car shortage in this country has thrown out of kilter the timing of farmers and businessmen and anyone else truing to transport goods to the marketplace.

How bad is the rail car shortage? It's very bad and expected to get worse, at least for the next couple of years.

The Senate Agriculture Committee heard testimony last year about a survey of 30 warehouses in West Texas and Oklahoma. The survey showed that while 4,900 boxcars were ordered over a four week period, less than 1,700 were provided.

On a single day during the spring of 1978 cotton compresses and warehouses in the Amarillo area ordered 241 rail cars but only 39 were furnished.

The American Railcar Institute reported a domestic rail car manufacturing backlog of over 96,000 units as of this past January 1st - an increase of 20,000 units since last year. Domestic producers are scheduled to deliver approximately 84,000 units during 1979, which would result in a carryover backlog of 12,000 units at the end of the year.

When you consider that the number of new rail cars ordered from domestic manufacturers has more than tripled since 1976, it doesn't take a genius to figure that new car orders this year added to the carryover backlog equal a continuing shortage at least through next year.

Again this year I have proposed legislation that would ease this shortage of railroad cars by suspending for two years an 18 percent tarriff on cars imported from Mexico. The Bentsen bill is being cosponsored by four of my colleagues.

A similar bill that I proposed last year was approved by the Senate but failed to gain approval in the House of Representatives. The prospects for passage look brighter this year, though, since the economic impact of the shortage is being felt more widely and since we have gained some important new allies, including the Association of American Railroads.

The problem is this: under U.S. tarriff laws, Mexico is allowed to export rail cars to this country without paying any duty, so long as their shipments don't exceed 50 percent of all rail cars imported by the U.S.

Early last year Canada stopped exporting rail cars to us when a shortage developed in that country. So, as of March 1, 1978 Mexico exceeded the 50 percent limitation and the prohibitive 18 percent tarriff was imposed.

In addition to easing a troublesome transportation bottleneck in this country, there is a second significant aspect to my legislation which pertains to our relations to Mexico.

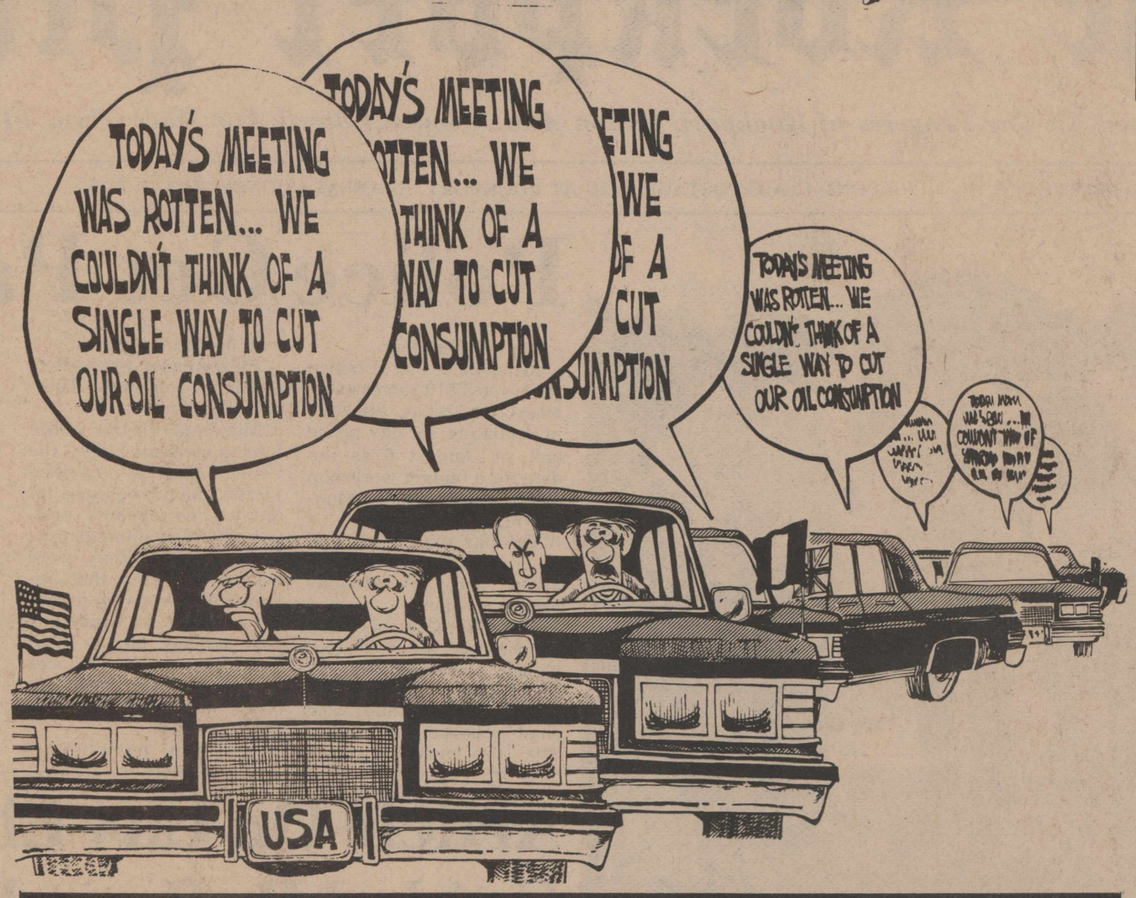

Mexico is not only our closest neighbor to the south but our fifth largest trading partner in the world.

To the extent that we are able to encourage increased freight car imports from Mexico - at a time when we really need more freight cars - we create additional employment opportunities in that country. And we demonstrate to our friends there that the United States of America is willing to pursue new areas of cooperative endeavor with its neighbors.

I want to stress that my bill does not seek to abolish the import quota entirely, rather to suspend it for two years.

I am convinced that, ultimately, American manufacturers will be able to rise to the occasion and produce enough rail cars to meet the transportation needs of our farmers and businessmen.

But for now, given the existing backlog of orders, the continuing demand for new cars and the fact that the domestic industry is producing at capacity, the only way to ease the immediate shortage is to import more freight cars from Mexico.

Philosophical Thoughts

By Bob Keepers

Man is a peculiar creature, who feels that he is the only worthwhile object in a vast universe, even though he is born of the same male, female process as everything else.

He leans toward many teachers, such as Socrates, Buddha, Confucius, Jesus, the Pope, Mao, Dow Jones, Charles Darwin, and Madalyn O'Hare, but spends very little time searching for the one true author of the universe, that no man has ever seen.

His attitude seems to be, if you can't see it, "It aint."

His strength and beauty are as nothing compared with some other forms of life.

His tender skin causes him to cringe from every fang, claw and stinger on earth. He dresses his character with personality as he dresses his body with clothes each day.

He says he has free will, and imagines he is as free as the wind, but he just can't figure out why he has to work most of his life just to make a living. The freedom that comes with the five o'clock whistle sometimes causes him a lot of trouble.

He claims to love truth, but tells lies all day about things he has never studied at all. He contends he may not always be right, but that he is never wrong.

He says he hates war, but if he set out to put a stop to wars, he would declare war on all who opposed him.

He contends his nature is much higher and more humane than other creatures, and has much to say on the sanity of life "His own" while evading the fact that practically everything he has eaten all his life had to be killed, not counting what he kills on his highways, what he kills for sport or what he kills for out and out profit.

He says his intentions are good, but with his free will he has managed to overpopulate a paradise, overproduce it and overpollute it.

He proudly proclaims to be the ideal physical specimen U.S.D.A. choice, and tries hard to hide his many afflicitions.

He has dry scalp, shingles, bursitis, warts and ingrown toenails. He gets headaches, backaches and bellyaches. Athletes foot, arthritis, post nasal drip and carbuncles. The common cold, rectal itch, the heartbreak of psoriasis and hemmorrhoids. Pyorrhea, diarrhea and gonrrhea, what a mess, his hair falls out, his teeth fall out, he can't see without glasses, can't hear thunder without a hearing aid, and can never remember what he was sent to the store for.

In spite of everything he claims to be special on earth, like maybe a big shark feels about the ocean.

His final indignity comes when he dies like everything else, but before he goes he wants his name carved on a rock so that he will be remembered, but he doesn't say why.

Oilmen Need Earnings For Production Effort

By H.B. [Hank] Harkins, President,
Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association

Federal controls on domestic crude oil prices began in August of 1971. Since then, these controls have continued under congressional authority and have resulted in keeping the wellhead prices of most U.S. oil below the world market level.

Example: In March, 1979, the Department of Energy's composite price for U.S. crude was $9.83 per barrel. The world market price then was $14.54. The average price for oil from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries jumped to $20 following their recent meeting in Geneva.

Under existing law, the gradual, two-year process of phasing out these federal price controls has begun. All controls on domestic oil prices are to be lifted by September 30, 1981.

With true decontrol, U.S. oil wold be priced at market value. Thus, oil and gas producers could begin to recoup some of the $5-billion—authorized under present law—which the federal government's pricing policies have denied them. But, there is a downside:

President Carter has proposed a "windfall profits" tax to accompany decontrol of U.S. oil. Taking his lead, the House of Representatives has adopted an extremely complex tax proposal designed to take most of the extra revenue which oil producers might realize through decontrol. The House proposal contains no provisions for exemption if the money is plowed back into exploration and production efforts.

These earnings represent capital that oil and gas producers in Texas and throughout the nation need to find and produce more domestic oil. Only in this way can we make any headway against this nation's energy shortfall. Every dollar taken from the oil industry for the purpose of funding federal spending programs is one less dollar available for investment in exploration and production.

The citizens of this country need and deserve an end to federal price controls on domestic oil, an action which will help restore confidence and generate an adequate level of investment. The distortions such controls have produced have benefitted no American in the long run. They have encouraged unbridled consumption and waste. And, by continuing to reduce production incentives, the Congress has invited the exporting countries to continue with their price hikes and production limits.

Decontrol of domestic oil prices is inevitable and necessary. But, decontrol tied to a confiscatory excise tax which would take most of these new revenues that U.S. oil producers need to expand their operations is not "true" decontrol.

Austin At Wharf

MORE THAN 20 YEARS HAVE PASSED. TIME WAS when still extant Harper's Magazine was and had been for 100 years one of the world's most respected publications. Bernard DeVoto was the editor and his monthly column "The Easy Chair" brought joy to literate America. A versatile scribe, erudite, his verbage was often rhythmic It could flow like the water over a cool pebbly brook or i need be, boom like a cannon.

Well, Harper's still exists and may perhaps still be on of the "better" magazines. I don't know. I gave up i despair not long after the passing of DeVoto. That wa perhaps an ungentlemanly thing on my part. After a Harper's struggled by then to compete against the inane mind-destroying capabilities of the boob tube. Started, could discourse at length on the state of world literature but that is not my intent.

INSTEAD I HAVE MENTIONED DEAR OL Harpers because of a recollection that only one dedicate to the craft of producing a newspaper would recall. In th early 1950s there appeared in the magazine an analysis o Texas' daily newspapers.

I suppose the writer's principal premise was to point out that they were terribly insular, Dallas, Houston, San Antonio particularly. The best were—and the writer whose name I have forgotten, carefully delineated—the Beaumont Enterprise and the Corpus Christi Caller.

The analysis surprised me not at all. To one who was then a sort of "new Texan," the contention was obvious. More, I was delighted. Bob Akers, who later joined the State Department in a capacity which I have forgotten, was editor-in-chief of the Enterprise.

His daily column was relished by men and women of all degree over a vast area of East Texas and western Louisiana. Although a man who might well be called an intellectual, he had the rare capability to select subjects and write in a manner that appealed to everyone, regardless of education and cultural background.

The late Bob Jackson and Bob McCrackin were, respectively, editor and managing editor of the Caller. In time we became friends, but when I first arrived in South Texas their newspaper somehow didn't match up to the Enterprise. Like most, I was and am a creature of habit. I haven't seen a copy of the Beaumont Enterprise in many years. It may still be a fine newspaper, despite the departure of Bob Akers.

On the other hand, the Caller, which I know now far more intimately, has seen what I may call its ups and downs. Especially I, among many of you, must recall the horror of a few years ago when an editor was imported from Florida. That influence is past, but well-remembered by readers and veteran reporters. Never mind. For a year now the Caller has been guided by Bob Rhodes, a Texas import who, in my view, represents genuinely worthy journalism.

AND IT IS A COLUMN WRITTEN BY RHODES inspires all the foregoing. The column, as many of you know, and so I shall be brief, described a young woman from a nice family, outstanding in her scholastic career who became a prostitute and was murdered in Washington, D.C., a thousand and more miles from her hometown.

Rhodes asked his readers: Should the hometown newspaper publish the story of the young woman's demise in gory detail or not? I suspect that Editor Rhodes will be deluged with replies. Here is my answer. No, I wouldn't.

That is, of course, a contradiction to many concepts of modern journalism which seems to dictate that a reporter should report anything and everything no matter what. It is an attitude which, I fear, has jeopardized public confidence in the press—one which, I confess with horror, already threatens the precious right which we call "freedom of the press."

The newspaper craft is a second career for me, although one which I commenced now 30 years ago. Early on, I was frequently faced with questions which posed the dilemma of the editor of the newspaper in the town from which the young woman came. And here, perhaps I should add, a rather small city in the mid-west.

But to my stance. Early on, in my own thinking (or coming from someone else I don't recall), I established a principle which I have at least tried to follow: Posed with publishing a story of a controversial nature, I have always tried to ask myself the question, will the story serve the best interests of the community and the people. Usually, acting on that, the answer comes easily.

Like other members of this craft, I have often spent long and tedious hours in meetings—school board, city council, commissioner's court—and have come away with little more than a few tedious paragraphs which were perhaps read only by a few. Usually it takes fireworks to stir people to interest in public affairs.

I might better have hung around police headquarters waiting, hopeful that a neighbor be brought in on a drunk cuarge, chasing ambulances, snooping into the private lives of others. An Australian, a chap named Murdock, I believe, has made millions with that sort of thing, and he is not alone.

Sadly, increasingly large segments of the public delight in muck, until, of course, a close friend or member of their own family becomes involved.

I am wondering. There are readers who will pin a rose on me for by concepts, others who will charge timid journalism. The thought amuses me. Over the years, I have been involved in some pretty nasty controversies, once knockedd flat on my prat by an ignorant member of a school board.

But whether I was right or wrong in that instance matters little today. It was a thing of public concern, not the case of a private family whose daughter elected the primrose path.

Letters From Our Readers

Letter to Editor:

This letter is in regard to an urgent need in our area for speculative VA built homes. Aransas County is currently under Section 1804E(A) Title 38 USC which states that all speculative homes be built with city utilities unless it is a custom built home. The outlying areas of this county do not meet these specifications because they do not have all city utilities and there will be none available for at least another 10 years. This penalizes the veteran from having immediate availability of a home because he has to wait at least 6 months to have a VA home built. My request is to enlist the help and cooperation of all local veterans to obtain an exemption from Section 1804E(A) Title 38 USC so that speculative VA houses can be constructed in the outlying area subdivisions where lots are available. We would appreciate any veterans wanting to help exempt Aransas County to write to both Senator Lloyd Bentsen and Senator John Tower at U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510 and tell them of our urgent need. Please feel free to contact me at 729-2124 for any further information on this matter.

Outdoorsmen Should Be On Look Out For Rabid Animals

AUSTIN -- Outdoorsmen should be especially alert this year to the danger of rabies, warns the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. Confirmed cases of rabid animals in this state are increasing alarmingly, especially those involving wild species.

Among these, rabies is most prevalent in skunks, Dr. Keith Clark of the Texas Department of Health informed the TP&WD. Bats, foxes, raccoons and coyotes are other likely carriers in the wild, but all mammals can contract the disease. Cases affecting domestic animals include reports of rabid dogs all along the U.S.-Mexican border.

Since the disease is spreading at about twice the rate it was last year, the threat to humans is serious, according to the health department. The Parks and Wildlife Department is very concerned about the danger to trappers, hunters and others who handle furs and is enclosing a printed warning with all renewals of trapping licenses.

Exposure may result from bites, or from direct contact between cuts or scrapes on hands and infected animal parts. The use of waterproof gloves would be prudent when handling furbearers or their pelts, and preventive immunization should be considered.

It is imperative to have domestic cats and dogs -- especially hunting dogs -- vaccinated, so they do not pass on the disease to humans. Also, people should not place out feed in residential areas for wild animals. Not only are such animals likely to become pests and damage property, but this practice encourages possible contact with rabid animals.

Rabies virus localizes in the nervous system and salivary glands of an infected animal. There also is a dumb or paralytic form, but this is less easily transmitted. Any change in behavior of a wild animal is a suspicious sign; for example, if it should seem unnaturally tame, stuporous or wander around in daylight. With skunks a big giveaway is if they are unable to spray.

Dr. Clark said Texas always has a high incidence of rabies, but this year it it the highest since 1961. During 1978 there were 556 confirmed cases, with about 7½ percent of heads submitted to the health department found positive. In only the first 5½ months of 1979 there have been 538 confirmed cases, with 11 percent of heads tested positive. Some 80 heads a day are being submitted for tests.

Wild animals are not recommended as pets. This applies particuarly to skunks because of their tendency to long lasting incubation of rabies. They can harbor the virus from six months to 1½ years before symptoms are noticeable.

Effective Sept. 1, a new state law prohibits sale of skunks and armadillos as pets, although individuals still are allowed to keep them. Another law, effective next Jan. 1, will provide for statewide standards of vaccination of dogs and cats and quarantine of infected animals.

A short series of three or four shots before exposure will adequately protect humans. Anyone who does get bitten or otherwise exposed to rabies should scrub the wound with soap and water and get medical attention immediately. A series of 23 anti-rabies shots then will be vital. It is almost a certain death sentence for humans if the disease progresses to appearance of symptoms.

For more information, write the Bureau of Veterinary Public Health, Texas Department of Health, 1100 West 49th St., Austin, Texas 78756 or phone 512/458-7229.

Police Report

Rockport police were called to investigate three reports of criminal mischief, and a Hattiesburg, Mississippi, man was put under bond for driving while intoxicated during this past week.

Police were called to the residence of Alex Canchola, 109 East Cornwall, Tuesday, July 17, after witnesses reported men in a black car fired three bullets into the front of the house.

The incident occurred between noon and 5 p.m. Witnesses told police a black car--possibly a 1978 Monte Carlo--parked in front of the house. The driver of the car reportedly got out and walked around the house peering in windows.

Police reported the driver then got back into the car and "backed out onto the street" and a passenger in the right front fired three shots toward the house from a handgun. The car then drove away east on Cornwall.

Both front windows were struck once by bullets and a third bullet struck a column supporting the roof over the porch.

Don Stone called police to his rental house at 1232 South Live Oak Monday, July 16, to report a complaint of criminal mischief over $200.

Sometime during Sunday, July 15, or early Monday, July 16, vandals damaged several walls in the house, made a hole in the kitchen ceiling, damaged light fixtures throughout the dwelling and wrote on the inside front porch. The house was unoccupied at the time the vandalism occured, police said.

Sometime between 5 p.m. Monday, July 16, and 10 a.m. Tuesday, July 17, vandals broke a sliding glass door and turned on the valve into the swimming pool at a residence at 2402 Lakeview Drive, Harbor Oak Subdivision.

The vandalism was reported by Jim Thiel, caretaker of the residence. The house was unoccupied at the time.

Wednesday, July 18, police arrested Doyle K. Brukhalter, 34, of Hattiesburg, Mississippi, for driving while intoxicated. Brukhalter was subsequently placed under $500 bond on the charge. He was stopped on Highway 35 Sou[illegible] out 1:24 a.m. after police observed his vehicle weaving on the road.

ARANSAS COUNTY DEMOCRATS!

A vacancy has opened up on the State Democratic Executive Committee of the Texas Democratic Party, to be filled from our 17th District. I am making a bid for that seat!

Those of us in the southern end of the 17th District have had little input into our representation on the policy-making level of our State Democratic Party because year after year we have been out-voted, on so many issues, by the heavily populated areas of Harris, Galveston, and Brazoria counties.

The SDEC will appoint someone from the 17th District on Saturday, July 28th, at a meeting in Corpus Christi.

Please help me be your representative and spokesman, so that all of your loyal, hard-working democrats will have a direct line of communication to the Texas Democratic Party and its Policy-making procedures.

July 27th is the deadline. Time is short! Do yourself and your fellow democrats a favor. Call and recommend me to the SDEC.

CALL NOW!!!!

Mr. and Mrs. David A. Reedy

McLain-Reedy Exchange Vows

Miss Patricia Kay McLain and Mr. David Alan Reedy exchanged wedding vows in the First Baptist Church of Blooming Grove, Texas on Saturday, July 7, 1979. The Reverend David Fortner performed the ceremony uniting the couple. Mrs. David Fortner sang "Take My Hand and Walk With Me" and the "Wedding Prayer" accompanied by Mrs. Norman McLead, organist.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Del. P. McLain of Rockport, Texas and she is a graduate of Rockport-Fulton High School. Mr. and Mrs. Earl "Skinner" McLain and Mrs. Pauline North and the late Cleo North, all of Blooming Grove, Texas are her grandparents. The groom is the son of Ms. Carman Callahan of Moro Bay, California, and Mr. Theodore J. Reedy of California. His maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Claude Stroupe of Santa Cruz, California.

The church was decorated with an arch of greenery flanked by standing candlelabra twined with greenery and accented with white satin ribbon bows. White satin bows with pink crepe myrtle and baby's breath marked the pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white organza, with lace appliques cascading down the front of the gown and the length of the train. A wide band of lace edged the dress and train, and beaded lace appliques trimmed the scoop neck of the gown and the cap sleeves. She wore a picture hat of white organza, edged in lace, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations, daisies and pink rose buds, tied with white satin streamers.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Paula McLain of Houston, who served as her maid of honor, her aunt, Ms. Carol Glen, and cousin, Miss Wendy Glen, who served as bridesmaids, both of Corsicana, Texas. They wore gowns of American Beauty chiffon designed with a scooped neckline and flared skirt. A cape-collar trimmed the neckline, and extended down the back of the dress. They each carried a single pink rosebud with white and pink satin streamers.

The groom's best man was Mr. James Blackwell of Hamilton, Texas and his groomsmen were Mr. Bill Hill of Blooming Grove and the bride's brother, Mr. John McLain of Rockport, Texas.

Alicia North and Stephanie Hill of Blooming Grove served as the bride's flower girl and train bearer and Rusty Glen of Corsicana was her ring bearer. All are cousins of the bride.

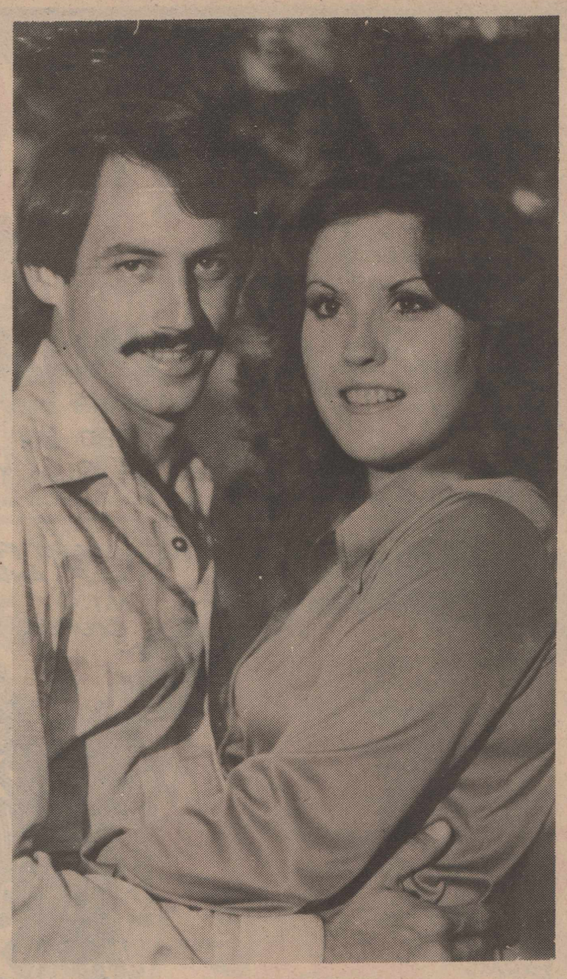

The bride's mother wore a dress of shadow printed turquoise qiana featuring a gathered bodice with full sleeves. The groom's mother chose a dress of peach qiana knit featuring a banded neckline and full sleeves. Their corsages were of white daisies and carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Church Fellowship Hall. The bride's table was laid with a white chiffon gathered flounce over a white cloth. An arrangement of pink and white carnations, daisies, baby carnations and fern centered the table, with antique crystal candle holders and white candles on either side. The punch bowl was at one end of the table and the bride's three-tiered cake, frosted in white with pink roses was at the other end.

The groom's table was laid with a brown, beige and white plaid cloth, topped with a dark brown cloth edged in lace. An arrangement of pink and white carnations, daisies and baby carnations in an amber glass compote centered the table flanked by silver candle holders. The dark chocolate groom's cake and the silver coffee service were at either end of the table.

Serving in the house-party were Mrs. Bill Hill, Mrs. Lloyd Gowan and Mrs. Bill Gillen of Blooming Grove, Miss Laurie Horton and Miss Bunny Sanders, Mrs. C. E. McElveen, Mrs. Norman McLead, Mrs. M. D. McNorton and Mrs. Eugene Horton, all of Rockport, Texas.

For traveling the bride wore a two-piece dress of berry colored chenille knit. After a short wedding trip, including a stop in Rockport, the couple will make their home in Moro Bay, California, where the groom will attend San Luis Obispo College.

Oriental Foods Offer Short-Cut To Balanced Meals

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. -- Spending long hours preparing everyday meals or special treats for entertaining is a luxury not available to the 24 million working couples in the United States, but there are short cuts to achieving the same results.

Cooking well-balanced, attractive meals does not have to be a time-consuming chore. Tasty, nutritious Oriental meals can be prepared quickly, and the cook can have fun doing it.

"The quality of meals doesn't necessarily suffer because less time is spent slaving over a stove," says Anne Byrd, a consultant for Chun King Oriental foods. "The actual cooking time for most Oriental recipes is only about 10 minutes."

Oriental cooking, by its very nature, is time-saving, says Ms. Byrd. It employs three main principles that add speed. First, you are using meat and vegetables that are cut into small pieces that naturally cook faster. Then the ingredients are exposed to a lot of cookware surface, especially if a wok is being used. And, finally, Oriental foods are cooked at high heat.

Here are some additional tips that will have you eating well and out of the kitchen in short order.

•Cut meats and vegetables used in Oriental foods in advance. Wrap them securely and place them in the refrigerator to preserve taste, texture and crunchiness.

•Keep ample supplies of canned and packaged ingredients on hand. "This cuts out a lot of last-minute trips to the market," Ms. Byrd points out.

•Use leftover meat by cutting it into small cubes or slices. Stir-fry the other ingredients first and add the already-cooked meat just before serving. The meat needs only to be heated thoroughly. Flavor can be added by marinating the pieces of meat in soy sauce beforehand.

•Use a food processor for vegetables and meats if you are in a big hurry. This is not the classic Oriental way of chopping, but it cuts off minutes.

•Cut meats and vegetables into small bits before freezing. Small pieces thaw more quickly, saving additional time.

Ms. Byrd suggests another time-saver that can add entertainment to your meal. Cook the meat and vegetables prepared in advance in an electric wok at the table with your guests watching.

In addition to being quick and easy, stir-frying has practical and healthful benefits as well. "Because Oriental dishes are cooked quickly, not as much energy is used. And, the rapid cooking of small pieces of ingredients in a little amount of oil seals in vitamins, moisture and flavor that often are boiled away in American cuisine," she says.

Chun King Oriental foods are produced by RJR Foods, Inc., a subsidiary of R.J. Reynolds Industries, Inc.

Most Often-Asked Questions On Nutrition

Q. My family and I love yogurt so IO decided to start making my own. Well, I got a yogurt maker and tried it. I used good, Fresh, Whole milk, followed directions very carefully and still it "flopped"! What do you suppose I did wrong?

A. Don't fret, and don't give up. It was probably the milk you used. Yogurt made with fresh milk is often unsuccessful because cows are often given penicillin, some of which appears in their milk and will kill the yogurt bacteria, thereby caus ing your nice homemade yougurt to "flop". Use instead canned or powdered milk in which the antibiotic has been destroyed.

Good luck! Your family is fortunate that you prepare homade yogurt (one of the most nutritious, health-giving foods available).

Q. Please give me some information on kelp.

A. Gladly!

Kelp is a seaweed or sea plant. It is rich in B-complex vites; vitamins D, E and K; calcium and magnesium (in fact all necessary minerals and trace minerals). Kelp is considered one of the best natural sources of iodine! It is also used as a salt substitute and is available in dried, powdered and tablet forms.

Untill next week, Folks, stay happy and healthy! It's a beautiful world!

NO.....

This little two letter word means that it can't or won't be done. It is one of the hardest words to say. Adam and Eve couldn't say no to the devil(Gen. 2:3). Ananias and Sapphira couldn't say no to pride (Acts 5). Men need to learn to say no today, to the devil, to the world. Young people to bad company. Don't be afraid to say "no" to the world but "Yes" to God...Don't be afraid to do that which is right.

DREDGING CONTINUES IN FULTON HARBOR

Two officers Monday night told the Council they had taken cuts in salary, leaving police departments in other cities, in order to come to work in Rockport because they like the city.

The CIty Council called a budget workshop for 7 p.m. Monday, August 6, at City Hall, and held a public hearing for reallocation of Revenue Sharing expenditures for the 9th and 10th Entitlement Periods.

The city had $7,867.02 in Revenue Sharing funds from the entitlement periods covering Oct. 1, 1977 through September 30, 1979. After Monday night's hearing, the Council voted to apply these funds toward purchase of a new garbage truck for the city.

The Council also held a public hearing on proposed allocation of $35,901 in Revenue Sharing funds for the 11th Entitlement Period, October 1, 1979 through September 30, 1980.

The city is proposing to spend $25,000 of these funds on purchase of another new garbage truck, and the remaining $10,901 to purchase two new patrol cars. These proposals will be considered again in a workshop.

The Council discussed a proposed new dog ordinance for the city. Council members Dan Ward and Dr. J. Martin Shaw who had worked on the ordinance as a committee were asked to meet with City Attorney Allen C. Lee to prepare an ordinance for the Council to consider.

In Monday's session, Ward and Dr. Shaw discussed measures they would like to see in a new ordinance, including a provision that all animals must be kept enclosed in a fenced yard, kept on a leash or be at heel when walking with their owner.

Their proposals would place animal control under a uniformed officer of the police department and would give officers the right to give on-spot citations to owners of animals violating the ordinance.

Dogs and cats would have to be tagged under the proposed ordinance, and any animal - licensed or unlicensed - who is running loose and causing a disturbance could be picked up as a public nuisnace.

must resign his position after he files for an elective office.

Section 3, "Official Ballots" sets down the procedure for placing names on the election ballot and the wording of ballots for ordinances, bond issues and charter amendments. Names of the candidates on a ballot are determined by lot in a public drawing under supervision of the City Secretary.

Section 3 also specifies that if two or more candidates have the same surname, their residence address will be printed with their names on the ballot.

Section 4 of Article V sets down the requirements for canvassing an election.

Election judges must give the city secretary the returns of an election within 12 hours after the polls close. An extra copy of the returns are to be given to the mayor within the same time. The City Council must canvass the returns "not later than the time provided for in the current edition of the Texas election laws" and the returns must be recorded in the nimutes of the City Council.

Section 5 states that a candidate must have a majority of votes cast to win an election, and Section 6 provides for a run-off election -- not less than 14 nor more than 21 days from the date of the preceding election -- in the event no candidate receives a majority of votes.

Section 7 provides that if any provision of Article V is in conflict with the Texas Election Code, or if any requirements of the Code are omitted in this article, "those provisions of the Texas Election Code then existing shall prevail."

accidents that resulted i 11 deaths.

Aransas County record ed five personal injury ac cidents and five involvin property damage for Jun 1979, bringing the t personal injury accident 27 and property damage t 51 for the year to date.

In 1978, there were 30 accidents involving personal injury recorded and 36 involving property damage.

On a District-wide basis, the first half of 1979 saw 115 persons killed throughout the 21-county area. During the same period last year, 113 persons were killed in fatal accidents.

Program To Be Held To Control Highway Speeds

Aransas is one of 19 counties included under an intensive program that began Monday, July 16, to help control highway speeds.

Captain Charles Gunn, Department of Public Safety (DPS) District Commander in Corpus Christi, announced the program and said it would involve up to 100 DPS troopers and sergeants. He said the program was started with the assistance of the Texas Office of Traffic Safety (TOTS).

Capt. Gunn said DPS troopers will concentrate on time periods and highway stretches which DPS statistics show to be particularly hazardous. Among these are State Highway 35.

Other highways being covered are U.S. Highways 59, 77, 83, 87 and 281; State Highway 44; and Farm to Market Road 665.

Other counties covered under the program are Nueces, Refugio, San Patricio, Brooks, Calhoun, Cameron, DeWitt, Duval, Goliad, Jackson, Jim Wells, Kenedy, Kleberg, Lavaca, Starr, Victoria, Willacy and Zapata.

"In 1976 there were 185 traffic deaths in this district," Capt. Gunn said. "In 1977 the number of deaths rose to 198, and last year it increased again to 221. Through June of 1979 deaths seem to be running even higher. Obviously, we must control the number of accidents, deaths and injuries on our highways. We hope this program will contribute to that control."

DPS statistics show that over the same three-year period, speed has been the largest single factor contributing to accidents. "For that reason we're going to concentrate on enforcing the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit," Capt. Gunn said. "However, troopers certainly have not been instructed to ignore other traffic offenses."

Lou Villagomez, Traffic Safety Coordinator for OTS in Corpus Christi, said, "Under this program DPS will supply the troopers to work high-risk areas on an overtime basis. OTS FURNISHES $145,000 TO PAY TROOPERS FOR THEIR OVERTIME."

The Office of Traffic Safety has helped start Selective Traffic Enforcement Programs, or STEPs, in local areas such as cities and counties to reduce traffic accidents in the past. "As far as I know, this is the first time such a wide-ranging program has been tried in South Texas," Villagomez said. "We certainly feel that by pooling the resources of DPS and OTS we can cut down on deaths and injuries on our area highways."

Rockport Aces Take First In Gonzales

The Rockport Aces took first at the Gonzales Tournament with ten players making the July 21-22 trip. The Aces lost their first game to a Victoria team, but started sizzling and went on to win the next seven games, making their record 52-9 for the season.

All-Tourney players from the Aces lineup were Richard Ballou, Joe Brooks, Louis Caknippa, John Pina, and Charles McLead.

Due to an oversight, the Aces will not go on to the State Qualifying Tourney in Victoria. Unknown to the players, the state qualifying meet was held the same day they were playing the Gonzales tourney.

Jeff Dietz was voted the Most Valuable Player of the tourney, and Joe Brooks won a trophy in the Home-Run Hitting Contest.

Senate Report

By A.R. SCHWARTZ
State Senator

Many service stations in Texas, and in my Senatorial District, may not be getting the full amount of gasoline to which they are entitled, according to information I received in Washington last Monday.

This, and other gasoline shortage matters, will be studied by my Senate Natural Resources Committee when it meets in Austin July 14.

It is apparent that the allocation formula the Department of Energy uses allows enough gasoline for Texas as a state. That formula includes a provision for growth and I found out that the extra growth allocation is not being applied for in many cases, or at least it is certainly not being obtained by suppliers and operators to people in the growth areas.

It appears to me that many service station operators and wholesale suppliers are not aware of the growth factor which entitles them to more gasoline. The 12-month period on which current allocations are based ended Oct. 31, 1978. If the growth in an area exceeded 10 percent during the following five months - November through May - the average for the five months is compared to the base year average. If the five-month volume was more than 10 percent over the base year average, an increase is permitted in the allocation.

The service station owner may apply to his supplier for the increase if he is entitled to it. If the supplier doesn't comply, the station Owner or operator may ask for a review by the Department of Energy. It may take a little time in the review process, because when I was in Washington, the DOE was 800 cases behind for the Texas area, but they are trying to catch up.

In the July 14 meeting of the Natural Resources Committee, we will establish what the growth has been in the various areas of the state. We can get the figures from the state comptroller on the amount of gasoline taxes collected for the five-month period and compare that to the base year average. I'm certain that we will find that the counties in my district - and in other growth areas of the state - are entitled to larger allocations. There is no reason that I know of to keep them from getting more gasoline.

The Natural Resources Committee - which is the energy committee of the Senate - will hear testimony from Ed Vetter of the Governor's office, or another designee of the Governor. We have also asked Ed Barrie of the Dallas regional office of the DOE to testify. And, of course, we'll have the gasoline tax figures.

There should be some easing in the supply problem in the growth areas. Governor Clements has two options: First he has the set-aside control of five percent of the state's fuel allocation. In addition, he has the authority to shift allocations from rural areas that may have surpluses at this time, to the rapid growth areas and tourist-impacted areas that need more gasoline.

In a substantial number of states, the agricultural use of fuel declines this time of year, giving the rural areas a surplus. The urban areas ran short just as the spring and summer travel season got underway. The Governor needs no further authority from the federal government to shift these allocations.

The second most important ingredient of the Governor's authority is that in the event of a hurricane threat along the coast, he can rellocate fuel on very short notice. I'm fully confident that if the need arises, the Governor will respond quickly. I had asked Gov. Clements to work out an emergency plan, and the Natural Resources Committee as well as the Texas Coastal Marine Council will work with the Governor on ways in which the plan can be expeditiously implemented.

We will do all that we can to help ease the gasoline situation, and when the Governor's Texas Energy and Natural Resources Council begins full operation in September, we will supply the council with the information we have gathered in the meantime.

During Mark Twain's days as a newspaperman, he was editor of a small Missouri paper. One day he received a letter from a subscriber, stating that he had found a spider in his paper, and asked if this was an omen of good or bad luck.

Twain replied: "Finding a spider in your paper is neither good nor bad luck. The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which merchant was not advertising so that he could go to that store, spin his web across the door, and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever afterward."

Eat Yourself Slim

By SHIRLEY BRIGHT BOODY
Registered Dietitian
Copley News Service

The numbers of people turning to vegetarian diets, especially among young adults, is on the increase. Estimates are now around six million Americans, and the movement is still growing.

Once dismissed as "crackpots," more recent professional dietetic attitudes are changing, especially on college campuses. Many university food services now cater to students preferring a meatless diet.

The motivation for change is strong today, not only in the way we eat, but in virtually every area of our lives. The challenge of change touches all of us, and like it or not, it is the only way to grow. Many influences can be detected in changing attitudes toward food. Some people cite religious, ethical and ecological convictions as reasons for adherence to vegetarianism. Others are fearful of the uses of antibiotics, hormones, pesticides and nitrites in our food supply. Still others are practicing vegetarians, strictly as a matter of economy, not involving moral issues.

Whatever the individual's motivation for using a vegetarian diet, it is still important that the irrevocable principles of nutrition be understood and practiced. Extreme, bizarre vegetarian diets, such as the Zen Macrobiotic diet are dangerous to health and even life, and should not be confused with a balanced vegetarian program.

The Americn Dietetic Association, of which I am a life member, suggests the following guidelines in changing from a non-vegetarian diet — to a lacto-ovo-vegetarian diet — which includes milk and eggs.

a. Reduce substantially all empty calorie foods (sugary junk foods).

b. Increase intake of all four food groups to adequate caloric levels — milk and milk products, cereals and breads, fruits and vegetables. Delete meat and increase legumes (peas and beans), nuts — especially peanuts, almonds and cashews. Use meat analogs or soybean alternates.

c. Increase intake of especially whole-grain breads and cereals, which supply B vitamins and iron to the diet.

d. Increase the intake of non-fat milk and milk products such as cottage cheese. It should be noted that milk products help replace part of the protein and vitamin B12, which is reduced when meat is omitted from the diet.

Since there is no adequate source of the important vitamin B12 in plant products, a supplement of B12 may be necessary to prevent pernicious anemia. Fortified soybean milk can be used by people who cannot tolerate cow's milk.

An easy way to increase the iron content of any diet is the use of old-time cast-iron cooking utensils. Nutritional iron is improved when they are used on a regular basis.

If you are considering becoming a vegetarian, arm yourself beforehand with sound nutritional information to escape the possibilities of physical depletion that can result from an inadequate diet. Cobalamin, riboflavin and calcium are nutrients most apt to be missing from an all vegetarian diet. These can be replaced by adding milk and milk products.

Dear Shirley: What is the RDA for zinc in adults? — D.V.

Dear D.V.: The current recommended dietary allowance for zinc is 15 mg. Eat a well-balanced diet, and you will have it.

Dear Shirley: What is a textured vegetable protein?— W.K.

Dear W.K.: Textured vegetable proteins are made from plants such as soybean, peanuts, sesame and sunflower seeds. They have a texture to the finished products that simulate meat.

For Shirley's facts on vitamins and minerals and information on Shirley's home weight-reduction program, send $1 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Shirley Bright Boody, P.O. Box 1038, Rancho Mirage, Calif. 92270.

Apricot Molds

CLIP 'N' COOK
Copley News Service

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1 (10-oz.) bottle apple-apricot juice
1 (7¾-oz.) jar babyfood apricots with tapioca
¼ cup sugar
Dash of salt
½ pint vanilla ice cream, partly melted
Apricot liqueur, if desired

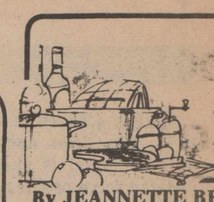

In a medium bowl sprinkle gelatin over ½ cup of apple-apricot juice and let soften about 5 minutes. Heat remaining apple-apricot juice until about to boil; add to gelatin mixture; stir until gelatin melts. Stir in sugar and salt. Turn into 6-ounce custard cups or ½-cup molds. Chill to set; cover. At serving time, unmold and serve with the ice cream as a sauce. Pass the liqueur, if used. Makes 4 servings.

Strawberry Fluff

CLIP 'N' COOK
Copley News Service

1 (10-oz.) pkg. frozen halved strawberries in syrup.
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¾ cup cold water
¼ cup sugar
Dash salt

Thaw the strawberries according to package directions; puree in an electric blender. In a 1-quart saucepan sprinkle the gelatin over the cold water and let soften for several minutes; heat gently, stirring with a rubber spatula — especially around the sides of the pan — until the gelatin is dissolved; add to the starwberry puree in the bledner; add the sugar and the salt; whirl until frothy. (Makes about 2½ cups.) Pour into glass serving dishes, sherbet glasses or punch cups. Chill to set. Desserts will be frothy on top and clear at the bottom. Makes 5 servings.

The cost of canned salmon looks high until we consider that there is no waste, because the liquid, skin and bones are all edible and supply important nutrients. Salmon is a complete protein, and contains calcium, iodine, vitamins D and A, niacin and riboflavin.

Advice on handling of medicine

By JOHN T. WATTS
Copley News Service

Dear John: After reading your column I decided to write to you. A letter is printed from H.J. asking for advice to help guard a forgetful person against accidentally overdosing himself with his prescribed medicine.

Your answer dealt with the storage and the shelf life of medicine, the deliberate changing of the amount prescribed, the potency of the modern medicine, and the danger of storing medicine within access of young children.

I think you completely ignored the question the writer asked in the first place. I am enclosing the letter and your answer to make it easier for you to refresh your memory. One simple solution to the problem is to remove the entire day's dosage from the pescription container at the beginning of each day. With one day's medication separated from the whole bottle, you can tell at a glance what and how much you have taken and still need to take.

I'm sure you can think of complications that could arise from this practice and there are probaly some better answers to the question, but this is one solution, especially if a person is taking more than one type of pill. I am not quite a senior yet (although my 11-year-old sons thinks that at 32 I'm on the brink), but I have done this myself when one of my family has had to take different medications.

I have also found it helpful to keep a small notebook (or just a piece of paper) and a pen with the medicine to jot down the times the different pills are taken so there can be no doubt as to when you took it or when you need it.

I think this is more the kind of answer the writer was looking for. — Nancy B.

Dear Nancy: This sounds like a good idea. I can't think of any drawback, unless it would be some extra-forgetful person who might forget to take his day's ration of pills out in the first place.

Dear John: I am fed up with reading and hearing so much about older people being poor drivers. It doesn't seem to me the facts bear this out. As we get older we get more cautious.

Anyway, most of the stories I see in the paper about auto accidents seem to have young persons involved in them. — Joe. B.

Dear Joe: I think you are right. And the National Safety Council says that older drivers are involved in fewer than 20 percent of all reported accidents, although they make up nearly 20 percent of all drivers.

But they drive fewer miles and avoid rush hours and high speeds.

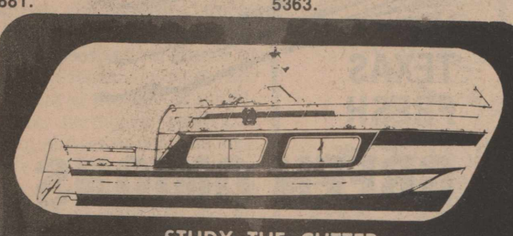

In this connection, there are some safety tips for senior citizen motorists:

Don't try to drive great distances in one day. Limit each day's drive to five or six hours and no more than 250 to 300 miles and take frequent rest breaks.

Avoid super highways and constant high speeds. Secondry roads have lighter traffic and often offer a more scenic trip.

Don't drive at dusk when light is poor and long shadows are deceiving. And certainly cut down on night driving.

Use special caution at unregulated intersections.

Alfred Edge Reps Crane Hear

Congressman Philip M. Crane will deliver the keynote address at the Ninth Annual RELO/Inter-City Relocation Service Mid-Year Conference in Washington D.C. to be attended by representatives of Alfred Edge Co.

Crane, an Illinois Republican in his sixth House term, addressed more than 1,000 real estate professionals from across the nation on July 18 at the Washington Hilton Hotel.

Founded in 1960, RELO membership includes 1,200 real estate firms that serve more than 10,000 communities in every section of the United States.

Alfred Edge said Alfred Edge Company has been a member of RELO for the past 19 years. He noted that RELO is a not-for-profit service organization composed of independent real estate firms.

Edge noted that "Congressman Crane has a reputation for 'telling it like it is.' I am certain we can expect some tough talk from him in Washington."

"And tough talk is needed because we all tend to take for granted the right to own private property and the freedom to buy and sell real estate. A myriad of regulations, taxation and other problems have certainly complicated the real estate scene."

"Congressman Crane's insights certainly gave us a better picture of the real estate outlook from the Washington perspective, enabling us to better serve our clients," said Edge.

Crane made his first bid for elective office in 1969, winning a special election to the House of Representatives. He has been re-elected in succeeding years, capturing 80 percent of the vote in 1978.

The congressman, who represents Illinois' 12th District, is the ranking Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee. The committee has jurisdiction on energy, taxes, national health insurance, welfare reform and social security.

Edge said the Mid-Year Conference has been designed as an educational experience for participants. The conference ran from July 18 through 20.

"As an organization of truly independent real estate firms, we designed the conference to sharpen our members' skills and provide them with the tools to better compete against the franchises while providing the public with unequaled service," said Edge.

"Special educational sessions were planned for real estate brokers, salespersons and RELO coordinators."

As a member of RELO, Alfred Edge Co. offeres clients a unique relocation service for people moving across town or across the country. Edge said there are no extra charges for the RELO service.

In addition, Alfred Edge Co. provides a full range of real estate services for local clients.
