ALL NORWAY REJOICES AS HAakon IS CROWNED KING

Coronation of New Monarch Is Marked With Pomp

SCENE IS IMPOSING

Representatives From All Nations Extend Friendship and Best Wishes

By Associated Press. TRONDHJEM, June 22.—The day opened with a glowing but cold sun shining. In the early morning splatters of rain fell and a chill wind came off the fjord, making it necessary to wear overcoats and winter clothing. The normal temperature in the cathedral previous to the ceremony was under fifty degrees. The city was alive at an early hour and by 8 o'clock the streets reaching to the cathedral were filled with straggling lines of people making for choicest points of vantage from which to see members of the royal family and distinguished guests enter the cathedral.

Bishops First Arrive
The doors of the latter opened at 10 a. m. and soon afterward three bishops robed in black and white drove up. The majority of women wearing evening costumes and many of the men in light uniforms and wearing orders. The effect was imposing in spite of the fact that the cathedral interior was half lighted interior of the old cathedral. The arriving of the bishops was followed by the appearance of a number of priests, all robed in white, they entered the north sanctuary and formed a semi-circle about the altar and with bent heads offered up prayers for the king and queen.

Soldiers and Sailors Form Line
Lines of soldiers and sailors from a specially constructed landing place flanked the palace to the cathedral square and formed a line to the cathedral entrance. Royal and special emissaries soon afterward began arriving. Among the first was the special Russian envoy, Charles H. Graves, minister to Sweden, and Mrs. Graves, Lieutenant Commander John H. Gibbons, naval attaché of the United States at London, and Mrs. Gibbons and Major William Gibson, American military attaché at St. Petersburg, who was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. William J. Brown.

Crowd Cheers Royalist
The crowd watched the party with interest. The king and queen, who were cheered as they drove along the line of troops and a band of soldiers opposite the cathedral portal, the heads of the new king and queen, respectively of each country, followed by the arriving emissaries of the king and queen, and the king and queen, after a brief delay in assigning carriages and cavalry escort, started for the cathedral procession. A great cheer announced the departure of the royal party.

The king and queen, who rode in a closed coach, both wore ermine robes and were escorted by a large force of troops. The cathedral their majesties faced half a dozen photographing machines and a score of cameras.

The Coronation
After entering the cathedral a hush fell upon the great assembly. The king and queen proceeded to the altar and knelt before the bishops and priests and as the presiding bishop pronounced the words making Haakon king of Norway and placing crowns on the heads of the new king and queen, a great cheer arose, taken up by the large crowd without.

Guns Announce Crowning
The completion of the crowning of King Haakon was communicated by two army signals wiggling across the sky from the cathedral to the hill of batteries. The first gun announcing the tidings boomed forth instantly and then there was a roar of guns from the ships and land batteries and bells of all the churches began ringing. Their sounds carried the tidings over the city and harbor and the echoes of the guns and bells were heard in the distance. The crowning of Queen Maud commenced immediately afterward.

This is the result of the disclosure of the investigation by the commerce commission.

Former General Manager of Mutual to Join Father in Europe

By Associated Press. NEW YORK, June 22.—The Tribune today says: Robert H. McCurdy, former general manager of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, will sail for Europe within a day or two. He goes to join Richard A. McCurdy, his father, who just after he resigned as president of the company went abroad. At the time his father sailed, Robert McCurdy declared that he would remain to face the storm that has already begun to rage around the heads of the former officers of the company. He was here during the investigation of the insurance grand jury, but was not called as a witness. Since that body completed its work, which resulted in the indictments of former Vice Presidents Gillette and Grannis, it is understood that the elder Mr. McCurdy has expressed a desire to hear in detail about the revelations.

Richard Ivans Hanged for Murder of Bessie Hollister

PUBLIC AROUSED

Confesses Crime to Police, Said to Be Most Brutal Committed in Chicago

By Associated Press. CHICAGO, Ill., June 22.—Richard C. Ivans was hanged here today for the murder of Mrs. Bessie Hollister.

The murder occurred on the evening of Jan. 12. Mrs. Bessie Hollister was the wife of Franklin C. Hollister, head of a large printing establishment, Hollister Brothers. She was a handsome woman and prominent in church social circles. She left home the morning of July 12, with the intention of carrying some flowers to the funeral of a friend. She purchased the flowers and performed some errands near her home, but did not appear at the funeral nor again was she seen alive by anybody. On the morning of July 13, Richard Ivans, who lived in the vicinity of the woman's home, told his father the body of a woman was lying in a tub in the rear of their barn. The clothing of the victim was torn and disarranged and she evidently had made a desperate fight before being overpowered.

Strangled to Death
Around her neck was twisted a copper wire and marks of pressure were visible about the neck. She had evidently been strangled to death after being maltreated. Her body was found in a most vicious manner. The conduct of Ivans aroused the suspicion of the police and he was arrested. Three hours after the body was found, Ivans confessed he later repeated at the inquest.

Public Indignant
He went into shocking details in a cold-blooded fashion that aroused intense popular indignation. At the trial Ivans denied his guilt and said he had been forced to confess by the police. His defense was an alibi and the claim he made the confession under hypnotic suggestion. Application to the supreme court and to the governor, and the board of pardons for a stay of proceedings was in vain.

Presentation of Portrait to Art Institute Criticized

By Associated Press. NEW YORK, June 22.—To demonstrate to the German emperor that there is no personal animosity in criticism of his portrait presented recently to the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences and hung in the Eastern Parkway Museum, trustees of the institute have started a movement to raise by popular subscription a large sum with which to pay for a painting of President Roosevelt to be sent to the emperor on behalf of citizens of Brooklyn.

Pronounce Picture Worthless
Franklin W. Hooper, director of the institute, who has characterized the emperor's portrait as "worthless and a white elephant," announced yesterday that the trustees of the institute had started the movement to send the President's portrait to the emperor. Professor Hooper said he was confident that the plan would be carried out and that the best artist in the country would be asked to paint the President's portrait.

Bitter feeling has resulted from the emperor's presentation to the Brooklyn Institute of the portrait of himself. Professor Hooper's criticism was made in a letter in the course of which he criticized the portrait because it was a copy of the Corcoran picture of "no value" as a work of art.

By Associated Press. NEW YORK, June 22.—After more than twenty-four hours of pumping and digging, the bodies of the two men trapped by a blowout in one of the Pennsylvania Company's East river tunnels were recovered yesterday. Instead of being blown out into the river through the break at the base of the shield, as had been supposed, they were caught by the inrush of soft mud and water in the lower chamber after the air pressure had found vent, and were there found in positions indicating that they had strangled by inches.

Strangled by Inches

Kellett Jr., former clerk of the First circuit court, pleaded guilty yesterday to one of nine indictments against him for embezzlement of court funds, gross cheating and forgery and was sentenced by Judge Lindsay to one year's imprisonment at hard labor. In commenting upon pleas for leniency based upon the fact that the defendant's shortage had been made good, Judge Lindsay made reference to the remarkable prevalence of embezzlements here and said that it was probably due in part to the custom of the courts of overlooking embezzlements when they were made good. He declined to follow such a precedent and inflicted merely nominal punishment.

POLICIES CANCELED

Insurance Covering $20,000,000 Worth of Stock Declared Null

By Associated Press. NEW YORK, June 22.—Fire underwriters have canceled every policy covering the $20,000,000 worth of merchandise in the American Dock and Trust Company's stores at Tompkinsville, S. I. Three fires within three weeks destroyed $1,000,000 worth of cotton, hemp and jute.

The American Dock and Trust Company is one of the oldest and best-known stores in this port. Fire underwriters, cotton exchange members and representatives of warehouse companies had a long conference yesterday to discuss steps necessary to insure the return at New York of normal conditions representing cotton insurance rates.

To Make Changes
At the meeting the entire subject was very thoroughly discussed and it was determined that the underwriters should suggest such changes in the warehouse as were considered absolutely essential to a return to normal conditions.

The handicaps that have been placed on cotton warehousing at New York have had the effect of renewing the agitation of a part of the cotton exchange membership in favor of the proposition to deal in certificates representing cotton stored in southern warehouses that have been licensed by the exchange.

BIG DITCH OPENED

Irrigation Way, Fourteen Miles Long, Constructed in Hawaii

By Associated Press. HONOLULU, June 15.—The Kohala ditch, the biggest irrigation enterprise of the kind here, was opened last Monday with ceremonies in which Secretary Atkinson, the temporarily acting governor, took part. The ditch at present runs fourteen miles, of which nine are mountain tunnels, and it will eventually be twenty-one miles long and will supply 70,000,000 gallons of water per day to numerous plantations and to large areas of land which are now uncultivated because of the lack of water. The ditches as at present constructed cost $500,000.

Aid From President

In his address at the opening of the ditch Secretary Atkinson quoted a letter from President Roosevelt in which the latter pledges his support to efforts to settle the lands of Hawaii. The President in his letter, which was addressed to Atkinson while the latter was acting governor, says that he will do all in his power to assist in the matter.

PENSION BILL SIDE TRACKED

Provided Beneficiary for Volunteer Generals of War

MEASURE FOUGHT

Effort Made to Get Bill Before Congress, But Stayed With Committees

By Associated Press. WASHINGTON, June 22.—The senate committee on pensions decided not to hold any more meetings this session of congress and this side tracked until the next session the bill create a volunteers' retired list for the surviving generals of the volunteer army of the civil war. The bill which was introduced in the senate by Senator Nelson and in the house by Representative Mann of Illinois, proposed to give to twenty-two surviving generals of the civil war over age of 80 years, $100 per month in lieu of the amount they are now receiving.

Opposition to Bill
Several efforts were made to bring the bills out of the pension committee of the two houses but opposition developed on the ground it would create a precedent that might result in payment to every surviving army of a like pension as soon as he would reach the age of 80 years. In the event it is desired to specially reward the names in the bill the pension committees argued it would be better to pass individual measures. The senate bill has been considered by the committee on military affairs but no action was taken toward recommending its passage.

Sends Special Message to Council Urging Advertisement

TO END DEADLOCK

Believed Council Will Agree That Sprinkling Privilege Be Put on Market

Advertisement for bids for sale of the city's sprinkling outfit and for a contract to sprinkle the streets of Fort Worth, to be made through the daily newspapers of the city was the recommendation made by Mayor W. D. Harris in a communication addressed to the city council and filed in the office of the city secretary Friday. The message to the council covers the sprinkling question from its youth up. It reviews the circumstances under which the deadlock in the city council was made wider by the sudden departure of Aldermen Ward, Waggonman, Lehane and Armstrong at the last regular meeting. The message concludes with the assumption that a majority of the aldermen are today in favor of advertising for bids, so that the city may get the benefit of rival bidders. The text of the message is as follows:

Text of Message
FORT WORTH, Texas, June 22, 1906.—To the City Council of the City of Fort Worth, Gentlemen: As the mayor is authorized by the charter to communicate such information and make such recommendation to the city council as may tend to the good government of the city, and as there is pending some controversy over the question as to whether the city should make a contract with Messrs. Ballard & Humphreys for the sale of its sprinkling outfit, coupled with a contract to sprinkle the streets, I therefore, as a matter of information, wish to say:

First—Since it was the opinion of Aldermen Maddox, Cook, Lydon and Harrold, at the time the committee reported the bid for one year, made by the Fort Worth Sprinkling Company, that said bid should not be accepted, because there had been no advertisements for bids, but which view of it was not at that time concurred in by the other aldermen, and since the report of the committee recommending the said bid of the Fort Worth Sprinkling Company was adopted by a vote of five to four, Aldermen Ward, Waggonman, Lehane, Armstrong and Zurn voting in the affirmative and carrying the measure over a vote in the negative by Aldermen Cook, Lydon, Maddox, Harrold and, since at said time, to-wit, May 1, the following resolution, introduced by Aldermen Cook and Harrold and passed by the same vote, as just mentioned, to-wit:

"Be it Resolved, That the mayor appoint a special committee of three members of the city council to advertise for bids for doing the sprinkling of the principal streets of Fort Worth and that said advertisement be inserted in the daily papers of the city for ten consecutive days and that the terms to be bid on shall be from three to five years. All bids shall be sealed and none of them opened until 4 p. m. on the last day of publication, when all biddings shall be declared closed by said committee. The city shall reserve the right to reject all bids, the general form for the character of the contract to be bid on shall be drafted by the city attorney and approved by the mayor and filed with the city secretary for the inspection of the bidders."

Therefore, action upon the part of said Aldermen Cook, Lydon, Harrold and Maddox shows that, at that time, their judgment favored free advertisement, rather than accepting the bid offered by the Fort Worth Sprinkling Company, without said advertisement.

The Mayor's Veto
Second—In vetoing that action of the city council, accepting said contract, the message of the mayor made it clear that it was his opinion that such contracts ought to be made only if there was competitive bids. He stated, in giving the first reason for the veto:

"I understand that the chairman of the committee stated to parties inquiring that nothing would be done until the new administration, and that, by reason of that statement, the bid was at that time, withheld. The committee afterward concluded to make a report on April 2, but, in its report, does not claim to have in any

Men Hunt Lost Diamond by Lantern Light

By Associated Press. HEMPSTEAD, L. I., June 22.—Because they found a diamond ring by systematic search through grass with lanterns, four men here will receive a reward of $10,000. The ring belongs to Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney and was given her on the occasion of her marriage by the late William C. Whitney.

Found by Rays
She lost it on Saturday. When it did not appear from any quarter and after the Whitney lawn had been gone over many times by daylight, the four men hit upon the lantern method. They procured a diamond ring and experimented with it in the grass and found that with a bright lantern it would cast rays that were easily seen when the light was ten feet away. The lawn was laid out into squares, the light was worked from each corner of each square last night and the ring, valued at $20,000, was soon recovered.

NORTH FT. WORTH BUYS JAIL LOT

Site of City Prison Changed to West of Pumping Station

North Fort Worth and Marine Office of The Telegram, 1417 Rusk street, W.
G. Holland, circulator. Classified advertisements and subscriptions received there.

As the result of a conference between the public improvements committee and Mayor Davis of North Fort Worth it was decided Thursday that the city buy the lot lying immediately west of the pumping station at the corner of Twenty-first and Rusk streets on which to erect the city jail. In accordance with the instructions from Mayor Davis the lot was purchased Thursday from the North Fort Worth Township company at a cost of $300.

The city already owned five lots in Calhoun street numbering south from Twenty-first street and it was decided by the committee to erect the jail building on one of these. The city pumping station and reservoir are already located on this property and though it was first thought that all three might be located in these adjacent lots, thus not taking the city treasury to the extent of purchase price of more ground, it was decided after further investigation that after all it would be advisable to do so.

The lot on which work on the jail foundation had been started last Monday is low and marshy, making it a very undesirable location. Mayor Davis insisted that the jail should not be built in any but a healthful place and was the result of this position taken by the mayor that final action was taken.

It is announced that work of erecting the jail building in the new location will be started at once. It will be remembered that the building when completed will have two rooms, the room caged for men and the room in the rear of the building will be used for women. The building will be of concrete, construction and one story high. J. E. Strain of North Fort Worth has the building contract. The cost will be $375.

the Territories, where they have been on a ten days' hunting trip. They report a most delightful trip and Mr.

good convention and that the meetings were beneficial to all who attended.

GLENWOOD

Perry and Bethel, children of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McAnear, 801 Willie street, Glenwood, were bitten Wednesday afternoon by a dog, which it is supposed had the rabies.

While the children were playing in the yard of the house with the dog, which was a family pet, the dog made a lunge at the little boy, sprang upon the child and lacerated the right arm.
Then made for the little girl, snapping at her shoulder, but failed to break the skin. Thursday the little fellow remained at 1014 Burnett street with a madstone applied to the bite.

Wednesday night Perry was taken by his father to Austin, where he will receive treatment in the Pasteur Institute.

The dog was killed before it reached other children who were nearby.

WIRE RECORD BROKEN

Message Sent From New York to Fort Worth in Seven Minutes

What is believed to be the quickest time ever made between New York and Fort Worth was made by the Western Union Telegraph Company Friday morning.

A message addressed to Knoop, Ferrich & Co., cotton brokers of this city, was handed in at the Exchange Place office in New York at 9:58 a. m. and then bathed the irritated spots with the Antiseptic mixed with an equal part of warm water. Should this be to strong, more water may be added to good advantage.

Apply once or twice daily, increasing the amount of Antiseptic each time. The first or second application will give you relief, and a few more times will so toughen the skin that you will be free from the trouble.

Should this application smart, bathe the parts with immediately and the soothing oiliness felt then is the result of the medicine being applied. If you have not tried this, it is certainly worth while doing so, and you will be gratified with the results.

All Druggists 25c and 50c.

LABOR CLUBS

FOR CAMPBELL

Union Men View Movement
With Misgiving

Special to The Telegram.

AUSTIN, Texas, June 22.—There is much significance attached to the fact that union labor organizations in different towns in the state have organized political clubs the last few days.
It is stated that this political movement has just begun and that it is to be extended to the labor unions throughout the state. A meeting of union labor men was held here last night and a political club was organized. D. S. Harper was elected president and John M. Durst secretary.
It is understood that the labor unions of the state have gone into politics at the instigation of certain leaders who are assiduously working to bring about the nomination of Colonel Tom Campbell for governor and to secure control of the next legislature, or at least to elect as many members of that body as possible with view of exercising a dominating influence in legislation.

The more conservative members of the labor union organizations of Austin, as well as elsewhere in the state, deplore this departure. They claim that the action of the leaders will lead to the disruption of the unions, or at least impair their usefulness.

Commerce Commission Takes Testimony in Coal Rate Probe

Special to The Telegram.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 22.—
When the interstate commerce commission met yesterday to continue the inquiry into the coal and oil traffic of several railroads, Chairman Knapp announced that today's session primarily was to allow eastern bituminous roads which have been under investigation opportunity to make any statement or submit any testimony which they might wish to do. John Thayer, fourth vice president of the Pennsylvania road, under the questioning by Thomas Patterson, general counsel of the Pennsylvania, explained the methods of coal supply and distribution of that road.

System Explained
"The basic principle of distribution," said Mr. Thayer, "is to take ratings of mines as one factor; their commercial capacity, another; and the individual cars which have been under investigation, to arrive at the proper percentage, and then in the distribution of the coal, the individual car and the car which is furnished for fuel for the railway company is counted against that capacity. That is the method which we partially put in effect in November last in some of the regions on our road."

Employment Agent Gerow is bombarded with telegrams from Pratt, Kingman, Rice, Wilson, Ellsworth and other counties of Kansas calling for harvest hands. Gerow says 8,000 more men than the original estimate of 21,000 are needed. He says the only solution to the problem will be an extension by the railroads of low rates to Illinois and Mississippi river points.

Gerow is experiencing the usual absorption of hands by farmers along the route. Of the hundred and twenty shipped to Pratt, twenty only got

Reported Cuban City of 13,000 Flood-

Special to The Telegram.

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 22.—Cablegrams reporting the destruction of Sagua La Grande, a town of about 13,000 inhabitants in Santa Clara province, Cuba, have been received here by Stauffer, Eschelman & Co.
Two messages were received, the first announcing that the town had been flooded and the second saying that it had been entirely destroyed by fire.
The messages came from the firm's representative at Havana last night, but no additional information has been received here today.

COLQUITT'S LICENSE RECORD

People of Southwest Texas Are Interested

Special to The Telegram.
KANSAS CITY, Texas, June 22.—A matter which is causing more comment than anything else in this section, which is not meeting with the approval of the legislature, is the proposal of Mr. Colquitt with reference to an occupation tax which he proposed to levy on the sale of beer.

While he was a member of the state tax commission in 1908 Mr. Colquitt advocated a uniform license and the doing away with the license granted to the exclusive dealers in malt liquors.
Colquitt favored increasing the tax on beer dealers to the same amount as was levied on retail liquor dealers; that is, $300 to state, $150 to county and a like amount to city, should one be so located.

He was overruled on this proposition by Governor Sayers and Comptroller Finley.

These facts are becoming well known in this section. Though they have not been discovered until recently, they are disclosed by the report of the tax commission and are found on page 33 of the report.

Had Mr. Colquitt's idea prevailed, every existing retailer would have been out of business, for they could not have stood the graft to the tune of $600 yearly license.

CITY PROPERTY SHOWS ADVANCE

Big Real Estate Deals Indicate Continued Activity

There has been a renewal of activity in a degree, in real estate, and among the more important sales lately made may be enumerated these:

W. H. (Buck) Smith has sold his home place, on East Weatherford street, to Mrs. E. Tirascher for the sum of $4,000. Mr. Smith has bought of L. R. Millette the lot 75x207 at the intersection of Morphy and Hemphill streets. There is a good five-room cottage on the lot and Mr. Smith will most likely live there during the summer. If he finds it is an acceptable place of residence, from his standpoint, he will further improve the lot by building a fine residence thereon and move the cottage back. Mr. Smith gives possession of the Weatherford street home on July 1.

$15,000 Deal

George Simson has sold to Ben O. Smith a lot 25x35 on Houston street, between Ninth and Tenth streets, for the sum of $15,000. It is stated that Mr. Simson bought the same lot for the sum of $13,000 one week ago. In this trade Ben O. Smith put in his home place at the corner of Tenth street and Pennsylvania avenue for the sum of $10,000 as a part of the consideration.

Oscar Lenglet has sold the lot and improvements at the northeast corner of Main and First streets for the sum of $25,000, the purchaser being O. Lofton of Tyler, Texas. There is now a two-story brick on the lot, which is 50x100. Mr. Lenglet has owned the property since last November and has made $4,000 by the sale.

Mr. Lofton bought for the investment there is in the transaction and will hold the property, which is bringing a satisfactory revenue. The price paid is considered the average for the improved property in the vicinity.

Fisher Residence Sold

W. J. Fisher on Tuesday sold to J. I. Dickinson the residence property at the corner of Fifth and Cannon avenues, the consideration being $5,500. There is a large brick cottage residence on the lot and good barns. The house was one of the first built in the district south of Pennsylvania and west of Henderson.

Building Contract Let

T. B. Ellison has let a contract for the erection of a three-story brick building on the southeast corner of Main and Weatherford streets to cost $29,500. The building will front 50 feet north on Weatherford street and will run back 100 feet to the alley, running east from Main to Rusk streets. Work will begin July 10 tearing down the old concrete building on the corner occupied for years by Jones as a grocery and the wooden buildings between it and the alley. The new building will be an up-to-date structure and an ornament to upper Main street.

Insurance Companies in Frisco Refuse to Grant Time to Policy Holders

By Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—Eleven of the fire insurance companies whose licenses do business in California are open to cancellation because of their refusal to either furnish or file with the state a list of policy holders. The insurance commissioner with a complete list of policies or sign a stipulation granting the additional sixty days to the policy holders to file with the state yesterday declared their companies would stay in California and settle losses until they are driven out.

The Companies

These companies are American Boston, American Philadelphia, Concordia, Delaware, Dutch and Globe and Rutgers, Germania, Girard, New York, Spying Garden and Westchester Fire. The American Boston and American Philadelphia will, it is said, settle as best they can and retire from the insurance business.

BELL GAINS IN BEXAR COUNTY

Campaign Managers Report Gratifying Indications

Special to The Telegram.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, June 22.—The Bell campaign managers in San Antonio report steady gains for their candidate in this city and Bexar county. The campaign committee is busy distributing buttons and literature and every prospect is pleasing.

"Every prospect is pleasing," said J. O. Terrell, local campaign manager, "and we have every reason to believe that Judge Bell is the choice of a decided majority of the San Antonio voters."

The growth of the Bell campaign brings out the fact that he has supporters among the central and conditional people. Not only one of the most prominent bankers, but one of the most expert bricklayers in the city, is a Bell man. Laboring men and small shopkeepers, men who are generally included in the term "the masses of the people," see in Judge Bell a champion of just and pleasing rights to all, and enrolling themselves among his supporters.

T. C. Davis, a night watchman for the Bell campaign, is an ardent Bell supporter and is active in his behalf. He has known Judge Bell for many years and regards him as one of the best men in the city. Several labor union men were found that are Bell supporters, but declined to be quoted lest it complicate their standing in the local courts.

Italian Vote for Bell

A prominent Italian fruit merchant, when approached on the subject of Judge Bell's candidacy, said: "We don't want to mix up in politics. I don't want to be quoted in the newspapers, but I can tell you that most of the Italian vote in this city will go to Judge Bell. There are in the neighborhood of three hundred Italian voters here, I think, and while Judge Bell may not get all of them, he will come near to it."

"I am a Bell man most emphatically," said Joe Wright. "He is not only the best, but the only man in this race. It is a mistake to suppose that Judge Bell's support is drawn only from the rich and influential classes. I know personally of a number of union laboring men here who are going to vote for him."

He numbers his supporters among all classes of the people, and in that he is the most truly representative candidate of them all. Certainly there is nothing in his record that is opposed to the interests of the laboring man; no single act can be pointed, as can be in the case of Colquitt and Campbell, in which he opposed a measure that was put forward by the laboring men."

"Campbell men and Bell men tore their coats and Bell buttons from the floor. 'I was for Campbell,' said some, explaining their action, 'but Colquitt's speech was so good that I changed my mind.' 'Colquitt, and I'm going to work for his election.' 'I was for Bell,' said others, 'but I can't vote for a man who is proved to be a liar and a cheat.' LONG EFFORT REWARDED

Captain Kyle First Started Investigation of $400,000 Claim

Special to The Telegram.

SAN MARCOS, Texas, June 20.—A few days ago there appeared a special from Austin to the effect that Texas stands a fair chance to recover from the federal government about $400,000 to reimburse her for the protection the state gave the frontier in the early days. It is no reflection on any one now connected with the recovery of that sum to say that the honor of beginning the investigation of the claim and collecting the evidence lies with the late Captain Kyle of this county, who for several terms represented this district in the lower house at Austin.

Only a few weeks before the captain's death he received the matter, giving the details of his labor in going through the duty files in the basement of the capital at Austin and collecting the old vouchers which had been kept by the state. Captain Kyle very modestly referred to his part in the work and he gave great credit to our congressmen and senators who worked for the claim in congress.

OKLAHOMA WILL GO DEMOCRATIC

Twenty Thousand Majority Is Predicted at First Election

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 23.—"In my opinion the democrats will elect the legislature, United States senators and governor and state officials at the next state election in Oklahoma," said Sam Powell of Wagoner, I. T., last night. Mr. Powell has been looking after the interests of the Indian Territory in congress for many years.

"The republicans cannot elect the senators," he continued. "If they could, Bird McGuire and Dennis Flynn would loom up prominently, and I do not doubt that at this minute both are candidates. Congress has sowed the dragon's teeth and now they will spring up everywhere. The man who will be chosen from Indian Territory will probably be Nath Gibson, a brilliant lawyer of Muskogee."

Democratic Majority 20,000

"The democrats will elect their governor by at least 20,000 majority, and the man they will elect will be Robert Williams, now national committeeman. Opposed to him will probably be Tams Bixby. Oklahoma territory may give a close vote, but Indian Territory will be democratic by a large margin. One of the main issues will be home rule, that is, to clean out all the federal officeholders who have been parasites on our people so long. It is unnecessary to add that most of them are republicans."

A TALK ON BILLIARDS BY "STUDENT" SLOSSON

GEORGE SLOSSON AT PLAY.

"Form in billiards," says George Slosson, "is as variable as the wind. Form is the basis of confidence. Form is having everything you should have and knowing that you have it. When your touch, execution and position—insight are working at their best and in unison—that's form. One may naturally possess two qualities and acquire a third, but the third being an acquired accomplishment, is unreliable. When it fails to work properly it not only mars a player's game, but provokes a worse game unless he be one of great self-control and iron nerve."

The truth of these observations no one knows better than Slosson, for there is no expert living whose play is more affected by the mental condition in which he finds himself than that of the man who has won and lost championships more than once.

And missing such chances never added to Slosson's peace of mind, for he is temperamentally incapable of sustaining a nerve-racking game if he is the least off in "form." The player who has not an intuitive knowledge of cushions and angles can never hope to become a real top-notch in the billiard world. Constant practice will overcome many defects, but it will not make the perfect player unless he was "born to the cue," as it were.

Possibly Slosson at his best never possessed greater information regarding angles and cushion shots than Slosson, but there have been times when "the wizard" could make the shots and Slosson could not. The nerve wires in "the student's" physical layout would become crossed and he would miss chances after Mr. Nixon leaves the state, until another president is elected, unless that shall have been, in the meantime, another election.

Thornwell Fay, vice president and general manager of the Houston and Texas Central, should succeed, for it has been the rule for the two interests, the Santa Fe and the Central, to alternate in the presidency of the depot company, and Mr. Fay would have gone in at the last election but he took time by the forelock and nominated Mr. Nixon, who was elected.

Chicago "Refrigerator" Companies Fear Interstate Commission

A sweeping investigation is being made in Chicago to determine if the refrigerator car lines and the Standard Oil have been rebating.

The knowledge being made public that the interstate commerce commission is after the refrigerator car lines, has led to almost frantic efforts on the part of the car line people to sell out.

The Armour have offered, it is currently reported, $800,000 to the American Refrigerator Company and the latter is trying to sell to the Shippers' Refrigerator Car Company.

Surplus Over $3,000,000

Pennsylvania Road's Credit Fairly Good in Europe

The loan of the Pennsylvania Company offered in France was eagerly subscribed and all of the $500,000 was taken in three days' time, the Credit Lyonnais, the Bank of Netherlands and the Bank of Paris subscribing the loan. The loan is traceable to the bad condition of Russian finances and the desire of the French capitalist to get a safe outlet for their capital. The bonds will be listed on the Bourse in a few days.

Personal Mention

Jeff Miller, the general manager of the Brownsville road, one of the Frisco enterprises in Texas, is due in Fort Worth Friday afternoon at 5:10 on the arrival of the Denver. He will leave on the Houston and Texas Central as soon as possible for the south.

Gabe Fillet, traveling passenger agent of the Southern Pacific steamship line, headquartered at New Orleans, passed through Fort Worth today en route to Denver.

Nixon's Promotion Makes Vacancy in Union Depot Co.

Plain Blouse Waist With Peplum—5382.
The plain blouse waist fills so many needs in the modern wardrobe that it is really a first necessity. This one is absolutely simple especially designed for all-over lace and other materials that are seen to best advantage when made without tucks or gathers, and is finished with a smooth fitting peplum over the hips. This last feature does away with all fullness at that point, and is in every way desirable. The elbow sleeves are exceedingly becoming and exceedingly fashionable. Just now, but no one style suits all figures and long ones are included so that there is choice allowed each individual. As illustrated, all-over Valenciennes lace is trimmed with little frills of the same, but the heavier laces are greatly in vogue this season and make exceedingly elegant waists while again there are almost numberless embroidered fabrics that are eminently attractive and eminently fashionable, while the list of pretty flowered and figured materials is limitless. Plain materials also are quite correct and some figures look better in a plain waist than any other, no matter of what it may be made, but as a safe general rule the design is especially well adapted to the all-overs already mentioned.

The waist consists of the front and the back and is simply drawn down in gathers at the waist line and joined to the peplum. A stock collar finishes the neck and the sleeves are moderately full and can be finished with cuffs that extend to the wrists, or made in elbow length.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is 3½ yards of material 36 or 42 inches wide, with 4 yards of lace edging to trim as illustrated. The pattern 5382 is cut in sizes for a 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42-inch bust measure.

SHUN SOUP, SAYS DR. OSLER

Famous Physician Says It Is Positive-ly Dangerous

From the New York Press.

"Dr. Osler certainly set the country by the ears when he advocated chloroform for those who had passed the fortieth milestone, but I heard him considered fully as startling," said a New York merchant at luncheon the other day. "Several years ago my wife was a wreck from nervous dyspepsia. Several prominent physicians here had treated her without success, and finally I was asked to take her to Baltimore to see Dr. Osler."

"He inquired carefully about her habits, and particularly her diet. We described it without going into details, but this did not satisfy the great physician."

"Tell me what you have for dinner, describing the nature of the courses, their number, and so on," he insisted.

"Well, usually we start with some good, nourishing soup," I began.

"Stop right there," interrupted Dr. Osler. "Soup must go. There is a popular fallacy that soup is nourishing. That is a mistake. It is one of the most harmful things one can eat. It is worse than lobster. Of course, there are times when a simple beef or mutton broth is not to be condemned. But as a rule soup is positively dangerous. It dilutes the gastric juices and it ferments too rapidly to permit it to be easily digested. It is the greatest cause of dyspepsia and nervous disorders. Vegetable soup should be thrown into the garbage pail, where it belongs, instead of being poured into a delicate stomach. Half the nervous wrecks among society folk who live well are caused by eating soup."

Dr. Osler gave some other advice, which was followed by my wife in addition to giving up soup. My wife is never served at our table and has not been for four years. My wife is well and strong today, and she owes it to anything on the menu except soup."

Children's Dresses

Every mother who has a little tot to dress takes keen an interest in juvenile modes as she does in fashions for herself.

All mothers like to feel that their children are well dressed, and to obtain that result at as easily digested, patience, time and good taste are entailed.

To be well dressed is always to be appropriately clad. It isn't essential to have so many suits in number as it is to have them suitable for various occasions.

A child can never be unattractive in a freshly washed frock, no matter what its material, and all suits should be made with a view to frequent washing.

This year the eyelet embroidery, done entirely by hand, is engaging the attention of enterprising mothers, and the result, either on China silk, fine handkerchief linen or coarse weaves, is equally effective.

This is particularly a white year, and colorless frocks are always refreshing and dainty. They are the most economical, too, because they wash better than colored fabrics.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

"THE RABBIT"

(A Story of Two Boys—and a Pa)

"Claude," said Mr. Tyrell, sternly, to his 10-year-old son, "you must not play with that boy, whom I've heard is called 'The Rabbit.' He's a child from the gutter, wears ragged clothes, and is not one to associate with."

"He's a nice boy," said Claude resentfully. "He's not ragged, because he sews up all the holes in his clothes himself, and he's not from the gutter, because he lives at the very top of a house. Bunny Ford is all right."

"Well, you must tell him to find some boys of his own class to play with."

Claude was disconcerted. Of all his companions he thought most of Bunny Ford—The Rabbit. A warm attachment had sprung up between the two lads. Moreover, he had loaned Bunny his box of fancy tin soldiers and had promised to call for them on Saturday evening and share supper with Bunny. Bunny lived in "bachelor quarters," which he easily maintained by his energetic sale of newspapers and the generosity of his landlady, who treated him as might a mother.

Claude made up his mind. He would call for his tin soldiers but would not stop to tea. Some kind of a verbal garment he must piece together to make it appear that the poor, slain friendship had died naturally.

Claude's father returned home unusually early that Saturday and caught a glimpse of his boy in on a street car. Mr. Tyrell suspected where the boy was going, and he followed him, a quarter of an hour behind. He knew where to go—indeed, it was seeing an envelope with a weird address in Claude's handwriting which had first opened his eyes.

Claude found his friend's door locked. He concluded to take a stroll around and return later. Meanwhile Mr. Tyrell approached from the opposite direction. Men and women are commonly considered grown-up children. Not quite correct, for the child is still there, just as it was twenty, forty or sixty years ago. So Mr. Tyrell stopped when he saw a fine-looking, athletic boy, kicking an empty tomato can with splendid precision. The more he watched the more Tyrell wanted to take a kick himself, and he finally did so. The contest was on, and Tyrell finally won by scoring a goal against a post. He was flushed with elation.

Literary Twelve

Miss Mildred Pollock had a reunion of the Literary Twelve Thursday morning. This is a club of girls that will rival any set that has been in Fort Worth for their beauty and accomplishments. The club was organized six years ago. All the girls have been off to school, and really truly "young ladies," although they have not yet finished their education. Though they don't play cards, they have splendid times together "doing nothing."

Miss Pollock's morning was a great success. A delicious luncheon was served at noon. The guests were Misses Mary Louise Thompson, Mabel Spencer, Daisy Kern, Maude Stewart, Jess Blinny, Madge Hosmer, Bea Wombwell, Anne Newlin, Moore of Houston and Misses of San Angelo.

Elwell Bridge Club

The Elwell Bridge Club played with Mrs. J. C. McCabe Thursday evening, meeting at 9:30 and playing until noon.

At Fresno Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. John Bartels were the guests of honor at a delightful at fresco dinner Thursday evening, given by Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Robertson.

Covers were laid for twelve on a long table in the ball room. The table was ornamented with four plateau bouquets of pink and white sweetpeas. A delightful dinner was served the following: Mr. and Mrs. John Bartels, Mr. and Mrs. John Huff, Mrs. Hosmer, Misses Madge Hosmer, Helen Murdoch, Anne Newlin and Irma Hosmer, and Messrs. Joseph Lea, Aaron Gernsbacher, Jake Gernsbacher and Sam Smith.

Social Events

Mrs. Shahan was hostess Wednesday afternoon at her home, 510 Kentucky avenue, three tables playing. Mesdames E. H. Anderson, A. J. Anderson and J. R. Cromer, being the lucky players, cut for club prize, a set of beautiful silver ice cream spoons. Mrs. Cromer was the fortunate one. Miss Payne won the guests' prize, a set of glasses. Mrs. Robert Andrews won consolation, a piece of candy.

A delicious (two-course) luncheon was served to the following members and guests: Mesdames E. H. Anderson, A. J. Anderson, J. R. Cromer, Coker, Andrews, Hutsell, Dickson, Little, Murzbach, Bachelor, A. B. Horner, M. W. Cox, Misses Payne and Reed.

The Young Ladies' Building Society of the First Methodist church gave an elaborate garden party on the lawn of the O'Keefe home Thursday evening.

Music was heard from accomplished local musicians and there were numerous tables with home-made candy, sandwiches, ice cream, fruit, cake and cream.

C. I. Dickinson is the president of the society and the delightful evenings with its additions to the building fund was tribute to her good taste in preparing for the evening.

There will be a private skating party at the Fort Worth rink tonight.

"I can beat you at other games," said the boy. "Come to the room where I live and I'll show you." Tyrell would not be bluffed. He forgot his dignity, his errand. He had gone back thirty years in his life. "I'll just go you," he said.

The boy led him into the garret of a nearby house. In the corner was a deal table covered with tin soldiers. "They don't fight like that," said Tyrell. "Extend them in open order on the floor, or put them into a fort."

"I've got some pasteboard bricks," replied the boy, "and pea-shooters and peas."

The forts were built, the soldiers placed, and the battle begun. The Rabbit—for, of course, that is who the boy was—depended on rapidity of fire. Tyrell tried to get a high angle of velocity and a low trajectory. Beneath his bombardment walls bulged and parapets went crashing down upon the soldiers behind them. He claimed victory.

"Not yet, general," shrieked the boy. "I'll not go on with such foolishness," he said. "That man of yours has been dead for a week."

The door opened and Claude entered. His father was playing and quarreling upon equal terms with a child from the streets—a mere ragamuffin!

"I will take my soldiers," he said, idly, and then: "Mr. Bunny Ford, that was my father you were playing with."

"Don't you want me to play with him?" asked Bunny.

"No, sir. You must find some friends in your own class to play with."

"Perhaps you don't think me good enough to play with your father?"

"I do not."

Tyrell came to. He tried to laugh, but the thrusts of his boy had hit hard.

"Come, lads," he said, "we mustn't quarrel. I'll take you both out for an elegant supper and a good time at the park."

And in later life when Tyrell retired from business, he left in his stead the thriving partners—Claude Tyrell and Bernard Ford.

Mrs. Olive Edgington Scott won the trophy, a hand-painted game plaque. The guests were Mesdames H. C. Edgington, E. E. Fowler, John Phelan, John Wray, Winfield Scott, Nebbett, Charles Ware, H. L. Warwick, Sam Canby and William Mitchell.

Worth High Five

Mrs. Andrews was hostess Friday afternoon. Her new home was tastefully decorated with flowers. The chandeliers were twined with vines and festoons of pretty blossoms, extended to different parts of the room.

Vases were filled with fragrant cut flowers. Mesdames Coker, Cromer and Craggs, having highest score, cut for the club prize, a pretty painted cake plate. Mrs. Craggs was the fortunate one.

Mrs. Clarence Jerome Wares won the guests' prize, a piece of bric-a-brac, while Mrs. Hutsell was consoling with a pretty pin cushion. A delicious two-course luncheon, consisting of tomato soup, mayonnaise dressing, stuffed olives, sandwiches, ice tea, cream and cake was served to the following members and guests: Mesdames E. H. Anderson, A. J. Anderson, J. R. Cromer, Coker, Bowles, Shahan, Craggs, Hutsell, Ames, Walla, Walla, Wash., Clarence Jerome Wares, Burk Estes and L. J. Robinson.

Boy Burned by Electricity and Death Is Expected

Special to The Telegram.

TULSA, L. T., June 22.—Morris Carleton, 10 years old, yesterday got against a guard rail in front of the First National Bank building which was charged heavily with electricity to prevent looters from congregating there, and was burned so severely that he may be injured for life. His thumb was fairly cooked and may have to be amputated. The shock was severe to the boy that it required the assistance of a policeman to rescue him. A portion of the flesh from the hand was left on the rail when the boy was pulled away. An investigation may be made in order to fix the responsibility for the affair.

THE POST AND JUDGE PARKER.

The Fort Worth Telegram, alluding to the suggestion of the Post that the state convention declare for William J. Bryan as the Democratic presidential candidate in 1908, says:

"But the Post in the last national campaign lent its influence to the so-called 'conservative' wing of the national democracy. It was the chief fagman and extraordinary hornblower for the crowd that perpetrated the Parker fiasco and treated William J. Bryan with such scant courtesy at the St. Louis convention. When the voice of Bryan was raised in many protest against the outrage that was perpetrated upon the party, the Post was calmly assuring its readers that under the leadership of the lockjawed one and the dictation of Peasants Hill and the Belmont crowd of eastern party wreckers, democracy was to win one of the greatest victories in the history of the party."

The Telegram has on numerous occasions alluded to the Post's support of Judge Parker in 1904, when the race was between Judge Parker and Mr. William Randolph Hearst. The fact that Judge Parker was the choice of Texas Democrats ought to dispose of any criticism of the Post's position. But to say that Judge Parker was a candidate forced upon the party by dangerous elements is altogether untrue. More responsible for his nomination than any other influence were the southern states, nearly every one of which was friendly to his candidacy from the beginning, and among the southern states in which Democratic sentiment was overwhelmingly for Judge Parker was Texas, and were a contest between Parker and Hearst again submitted to the people of Texas their choice would be the same as it was in 1904.

It is possible the Post is mistaken, but it recalls no indignation protest against the nomination of Parker from the Telegram. Its indignation for the most part seems to have followed Judge Parker's defeat. Who was the Telegram's candidate in that contest, anyhow?

This talk of outrage being perpetrated upon the party is a kind of bluff that does little credit to the Telegram. The Post supported Judge Parker because it regarded him the best and most available candidate in the race. So did the great majority of Texas Democrats. That he was defeated in now discredits the judgment of the Post or the views of the Democrats of Texas who met in convention and instructed for Judge Parker.

Judge Parker was greatly criticised by many for not coming out prior to the convention and declaring his views. Such a thing has never been required of a Democratic candidate for the presidency, and such a course did not appear to be proper for Judge Parker's standpoint. After his nomination he spoke frequently and nothing he said was inconsistent with the best standards of Democracy and his personal character was never successfully assailed by anybody. Perhaps The Telegram thinks that Mr. Hearst would have obtained more votes. Possibly he would have, but it is to be seriously doubted. But whether he would have or not, no reasonable man holds that the nominee of 1904 was not a pure and upright gentleman or that he was not in all respects worthy of the office to which he had been nominated.

The fact that Judge Parker was not the choice of Texas Democrats is amply attested that more than 200,000 of them remained away from the polls on election day. It was made to appear before the national convention that Texas Democrats were for Parker, through the fact that the so-called 'conservatism' were in control of the political situation, and were suffered to have things their own way. But when the Post says that in a choice between Hearst and Parker the Democrats of this state would rally to the Parker standard, it only discloses how little it really knows of Democratic sentiment in this state.

And the Post well knows that Parker was not the choice of the Democrats of the south. The southern Democrats are men, however, who always don the party collar, and to scratch a Democratic ticket in a southern state is regarded as such a heinous crime it is never forgotten. The same game was worked in other southern states by the 'conservatism' as was worked right here in Texas. The people were made to believe that Parker was very strong in the eastern states and for the sake of electing a man who called himself a Democrat, southern Democrats laid aside the knowledge they possessed as to the undesirability of the candidate and took their medicine. And when it was developed that Parker had not carried one single eastern state they realized how completely they had been deceived.

The Telegram supported Parker after he was the Democratic nominee, for the simple reason that The Telegram is a Democratic newspaper. But the records do not establish the fact that The Telegram went into hysterics over the Democratic offering before the 'conservatism' were permitted to have their way and nominate the man who was so clearly destined to lead the party to the most disastrous defeat in all its history. Who was The Telegram's candidate? asks the Post. The same man who is its candidate today—the man the Post has lately evinced such a frantic desire to have again lead the people—William Jennings Bryan, the true and tried friend of the masses.

No one questions the fact that Judge Parker is a pure and upright gentleman. All the Telegram has ever contended is that his nomination was a great mistake for the party, and the result is an eloquent reminder of the truth of the allegation.

PLANS OF WILLIAM J. BRYAN

Information comes from Lincoln, Neb., the home town of William J. Bryan, at the instance of a very close friend, that the great commoner already has his plans matured for the next campaign. While Colonel Bryan is spending much time abroad and was apparently so greatly surprised at the remarkable sentiment that has developed throughout the country, this Nebraska friend says his chief is absolutely confident of the Democratic Presidential nomination.

"Mr. Bryan," the friend said, "is endowed with the passion for hard work. He has outlined plans for a Presidential campaign, the most determined, resolute and, at the same time, the most dignified in the history of the nation. He has no doubt of his nomination. At his home at Fairview, Mr. Bryan will receive delegations from all parts of the country. Speeches will be made, but they will be quiet, dignified addresses."

"In the life of Bryan nothing has come by chance. When he planned to champion a Democratic convention with his oratory he worked on his effort for a year in advance. When he planned to capture the following Democratic nomination by acclamation he went about in the same manner. After his St. Louis convention episode he participated in the campaign enough to show his good will. Then he outlined a globe-trotting tour which attracted the attention of the world."

"Soon after Mr. Bryan's return, Fairview will be remodeled and a large porch will be added. Landscape gardeners will transform the rolling lawn into a garden, where 10,000 persons may hear a political speech."

"Mr. Bryan will not rush around the country in special trains. He will make but two trips. He will deliver one masterpiece, an oration which will be carefully prepared and will contain some matchless Bryannic paragraphs. As for the remainder of the speeches, they will be full of dignity. Just before the campaign closes Mr. Bryan will make another supreme appeal."

"Mr. Bryan will not join in the hue and cry against corporations. His speeches will be opposed to extreme and radical ideas like those of Mr. La Follette, and he will be moderate in his expressions, as compared with Mr. Roosevelt. Instead of scaring capital he will reassure. Trusts he will urge, should be curbed, but curbed with no injustice to capitalist or investor."

"Mr. Bryan will not interfere with the sentiments of his party. He will act in an indifferent manner toward insouciance and urge the claims of anyone who should aspire to the nomination. At the same time the insouciance will come with such frequency that it will be extremely discouraging for the opposing candidates."

"Mr. Hearst will be honored and Mr. Parker will be ignored. During the months after his return to Lincoln Mr. Bryan will make public his ideas of the political systems of foreign countries. All the while he will be directing the views of the national Democratic organization in a safe and sane channel."

It is all rank foolishness to assert that Bryan is really surprised at the political developments of the present, for those developments are in strict accordance with the carefully matured plans of that gentleman. He did not begin the great work of rehabilitating the Democratic party just after the last national election for any other purpose but that of maintaining his grasp on the situation. The Telegram will not say that Bryan was actuated by purely selfish motives in that work, for his pride and his love for the masses were both important factors. He felt that he had been run over and grossly mistreated by the Eastern wing of the party, which had precipitated the great catastrophe. He desired to show to the world his ability to snatch victory from the very jaws of that crushing defeat, re-establish his prestige as the great leader of his party, and at the same time give to the masses those reforms for which they have so long been clamorous.

The trip abroad was made for the very purpose that has been so easily accomplished—to convince the people of his broadening tendencies. He is determined to appear before them in the next campaign as a candidate who has studied conditions in all foreign lands, and ripe with the experience thus gained, he will be in position to demonstrate a broader statesmanship than this country has hitherto been accustomed to. Colonel Bryan does not intend to make a very active campaign when the campaign is formally opened, for the very simple reason that he has been conducting his campaign steadily ever since the polls closed in the last election. And it has been a winning campaign. There is nothing now left for the great leader to do but come home and get his speech of acceptance in shape for the impending nomination.

The Bryan plans have been well laid, and they are working out to a nicety.

There may be a big hole in the general revenue of the state, but it is gratifying to note it does not reach the public school fund. There is now in the state treasury more than $1,000,000 of the children's money that has not been invested. And that school fund is the pride of every progressive citizen of Texas. It is a heritage left by the fathers grander than that of any other state in the union. The Texas public school endowment is one of the biggest and grandest things on earth.

A big bunch of sacred bulls has just been imported from India by a South Texas cattleman, and it is claimed the animals are entirely immune from tick fever. That claim may be entirely correct, but according to the view of many cattlemen the only bull that is really immune from this dreaded disease is the Irish bull.

The rate expert of the state railroad commission resigned to accept work with a railway, and the commission immediately retaliated by inducing a valuable railway man to accept the position thus vacated. So far honors appear to be about even.

The sweet girl graduates should not be permitted to claim all the attention, for there are also some real sweet boy graduates. In fact, some of these latter are too sweet for anything.

And the Post makes bold to say that however the distribution of the vote may go, the time will come in the convention when the supporters of Campbell, Colquitt and Brooks will be found practically united against the gentleman in whose behalf Judge Terrell has launched his remarkable statement.—Houston Post.

And that is the idea of all the opponents of Judge Bell—to combine the field against the man the people of Texas want for their next governor. But it is a combination that will fall far short of its unholy purpose.

And the country might as well make up its mind for a protracted wait. The question was an impertinent one, and doubtless inspired by a desire for cheap notoriety.

The Fort Worth Telegram had the packing houses in that city inspected from center to circumference last week, and in Sunday's issue gave them a clean bill of health.—Sherman Register.

The Fort Worth Telegram substitutes for its Monday editorial the thirty-four reasons, prepared by one of Houston's Southern Pacific attorneys, why Bell should be nominated for governor.—Houston Post.

And every one of those reasons was a spike driven into the political casket of Oscar B. Colquitt, former attorney for the Pullman Palace Car Company.

State Treasurer Robbins stated yesterday that as yet he could not say definitely how much the amount of the deficit in the state treasury would be by the time the state begins to get revenue, the one thing he was certain, it will be about the middle of next February, of the first of next March before the state again is on a cash basis. It is not thought, however, that the deficit will be over $1,000,000.—Austin Statesman.

And that will be a plenty. A deficit that reaches the sum of $1,000,000 is an enduring monument to legislative stupidity.

REASON FOR SINGLE STATEHOOD

Democratic senators should have voted down the joint statehood bill.—Dallas Times Herald.

Two states will be made out of the new state of Oklahoma in due time. The Republican party cannot always continue in position to wrong those good people, and there will be two states and four more Democratic United States senators.—Fort Worth Telegram.

No, the jig is up. To insure four Republican senators the politicians of the East divided Dakota, carving out two states. To make it impossible for the Indian Territory and Oklahoma to come into the union as two states and elect four Democrats to the United States senate the Eastern plotters arranged for 'single statehood,' and Southern Democrats voted with them. 'The jig is up' now. There can be no division in the future.—Dallas Times Herald.

STANDING UP FOR FORT WORTH

The state Democratic convention goes to Dallas. The Telegram made a losing fight, probably because it was unaided. But The Telegram at least had the consciousness of duty well performed. It stood and is still standing up for Fort Worth.—Fort Worth Telegram.

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Senator Burrows was asked for advice recently by a newspaper correspondent. He gave the advice, but afterward, smiling and shaking his head, he said:

"Advice is a thing I am always chary about extending. It is, you know, so cheap, so easy."

"A boy the other day was pushing a heavy pushcart up a hill. The hill was steep, the boy thin. He bent forward at the work till he was almost horizontal. 'Hi! boy,' called an old man, 'push the cart up the hill zigzag, from side to side, and you'll find it will go easier.'"

"The boy snarled back: 'Not so much o' yer darn advice. Give us a shove.'"

Senator Tillman, the eat-em-alive statesman from South Carolina, and former Senator William E. Chandler of New Hampshire are close friends. When Chandler was in the senate he had a habit of jumping in when Tillman was speaking, goading him to fury. For Chandler has a waspish way with him—and then sitting down and watching Tillman perform.

Tillman took it all in good part, and now they are bosom companions. After Tillman had been put in charge of the railroad rate bill in the senate he consulted Chandler about his report. Chandler took the manuscript and read it carefully. He came to a sentence which concluded: "Men so rich they do not know within a score of millions how much they own or, more properly speaking, how much they have stolen from the people."

"I think, Tillman," said Chandler, "that I would change that word 'stolen' to 'seized.'"

"You would do what?" asked Tillman in amazement.

"Change that word 'stolen' to 'seized.'"

Senator Tillman took the report and studied the sentence a long time. Then he sighed and said:

"All right; I'll change it, but 'seized' is almighty conservative for me."

Representative John Sharp Williams tells a tale of the days when he was counsel for a railway in one of the southern states.

It appears that at one point on its line the company had stationed an old negro watchman, whose duties consisted in warning travelers down a highway crossing the tracks when a train approached. One night a wagon belonging to a farmer was struck, resulting in a bad accident. The company, was, of course, sued for damages, and at the trial the old dandy was the principal witness for his employers. He replied to the questions put to him in a clear, direct fashion. Among these questions was one as to whether he was sure that he had swung his lantern across the road when he perceived the train approach. The negro replied:

"I shorley did, sah."

The trial resulted in a verdict for the company, and Mr. Williams, as counsel, took early occasion to compliment the aged negro on his excellent testimony. To which the latter replied:

"Thankee, Mars John, but I was shorley skeered when dat lawyer man begin to ask me about de lantern. I was afeared for a minute dat he was goin' to ask me if it was lit or not. De oil done give out some time befo' de accident."

OPPORTUNITY

It was time that somebody took a fall out of John J. Ingalls' poem, "Opportunity," as President James of the University of Illinois has now done. In this age when opportunities are lying around so thick that a man almost steps on them, it seems strange that a poem bemoaning the alleged fact that there was but one opportunity for each man and that it sometimes came when he was asleep should have had such popularity. Take the case of Mr. Bryan. Opportunity has been chasing him ever since he broke the news to the startled democratic convention of 1896 that he was on earth. Although he is traveling in foreign lands by telegraph, cable and wireless. There are opportunities every day, but it is not every man who knows them when he sees them.—Chicago News.

"Too many influences spoil the British" might be adopted as a proverb. Within the last quarter of a century the American woman has considerably altered the character of her British sister; the American business man has greatly changed that of his equivalent in England; the French have accustomed us to an attitude of mind which would have horrified our parents, and the Germans have introduced their military spirit into a country which has always before been opposed to a large standing army.—London Graphic.

Don't you worry, graduates, about those gibes and flings. Every fellow who is making 'em would give nearly all to have to commence over at commencement once more. And probably do things differently.—Indianapolis News.

MAKING JUNE ROSES LAST LONGER

How can we make the June roses last longer? how keep the young flower shooting and growing so bravely after the first grand overture of bloom is past? Is a question that is in the mind of nearly every home florist these days. It is very sensibly answered by L. Greenlee, who says: "Vigorous cutting back is one of the secrets of really 'perpetual' roses; good mulching with manure not too fresh is another; fighting insect pests is a third. I do not wait for the first crop of flowers to fade before cutting back my bushes, but cut the flowers for friends and for vases with long stems. If a single branch, or strong shoot from the root, is out of bloom before the others, it is cut back to within a foot of the ground. Often fresh shoots will have started from it before the flowers on other shoots have faded. Rose bugs have to be picked off by hand; so also the disgusting caterpillars that eat the leaves. All other insects that molest the rose may be sprayed off either with tobacco water, hellebore or strong soapuds. Only the rose bugs have been very troublesome in my garden, and where rose bushes grow healthy and naturally I think this is generally the case. 'Cover' plants for rose beds are apt to rob the roses. The only ones that I have found satisfactory were Potentilla and Verbena. Fancies make a good spring cover, but they dwindle away under the heat and full sun of midsummer. If June is a hot, dry month the roses will need water every day.

THE WASHING MACHINE

But the invention and absolute perfection of the washing machine has almost entirely done away with the toil and risk of health of the housewife in keeping the clothing of the family clean. No longer is it necessary for her to bend over a tub full of dirty clothes and rub them on a wash board until her hands are sore and her finger tips are bleeding. No more does she have to inhale the choking fumes of lye or soda. The modern washing machine is a thing of beauty and a joy to the eye. It is covered with the distilled fluff from the tub before her; that was "the good old way," but the modern machine has been given a better method of laundering than that and can do the work by machinery in a manner absolutely clean, quick and easy. If the ground there are many different kinds of washing machines, some of them well nigh perfect—others not so good, but the poorest of them all is a thousand fold better than washing in "the good old way." A washing machine of ordinary make will do the work of a woman's time is worth anything that alone is an immense saving in a year. —Epitomist.

THAT EVER-BLOOMING ROSE FOR THE FARM

Many of our farmers have the idea that the beautiful, ever-blooming roses are too delicate to grow on the farm. This is a mistake; their home is on the farm, where they can have plenty of fresh air and sunshine. A bed should be placed of rich soil, mellow and fertile; old decomposed soil is the best; it should be well fertilized with fine, well decomposed stable manure. If the ground be dry when planted water thoroughly, so as to soak the earth down to the roots of the plants; after this very little water is required unless the weather is dry. Plants will not thrive if kept too wet. Melow the ground thoroughly, and mix a little well rotted manure in. Make holes in the soil about ten inches apart, arrange the roots in their natural positions, cover with fine earth, pressing it down firmly upon them and in round the stems, then water freely. The soil around the plants should be kept loose and free from weeds and grass to insure their vigorous growth. For green fly use tobacco water or dust on in dry form. When winter fairly sets in the bed should be covered with leaves or straw and removed in the spring as soon as the buds start. Beautify the farm home by planting a bed of the ever-blooming roses. Visiting a lovely farm home recently, we found a beautiful bed of ever-blooming roses, extending the entire length of the porch, which was nine feet long, and the bed was four feet wide. Next to the porch, which for nished support, were five climbing ever-blooming roses: Marechal Niel, Empress of China, Climbing Meteor, Mary Washington, and the Queen of Peary; colors being deep sulphur yellow, beautiful red, purest white and ivory white; the other three rows contained six plants in a row and were the Queen Victoria variety. This bed will be beautiful until heavy frost comes, and a great source of pleasure to the people on the farm. Use rose cuttings cut in the spring as soon as the buds start. MODERN METHODS OF LAUNDERING

Washing clothing by hand in "the good old way" is very laborious and none but a robust person can continue to slave over the wash tub from week to week, inhaling the sickening odor of steam from clothes containing the excretions of human bodies laden with disease germs, without risking health and even life. It is indeed a wonder that any woman should continue to do so where there are not only more healthful, but far easier, more rapid and economical methods for doing that indispensable part of household work. The use of washing fluids and powders that are not injurious to clothing, but operate as a solvent and destroyer of the gummy substance that comes from the body in the perspiration is now very general, and is much more efficacious than the ordinary laundry soap which is made from the fat of animals, especially when used in connection with soap made from vegetable oils. The old way of soaking the clothes over night and boiling them in a strong

A SMALL COUNTRY PLACE

In our country there is a general oversight of small country places, and it is a matter of regret that there is so general an indifference of means by which the homes are made beautiful. It is in the taste and wisdom of the played in the laying out of the pretty grounds surrounding the house that much of the pleasure of farm life depends. In arranging the grounds we first consider the roads and walks. The house is usually built before we get the place, and if we cannot remodel it to suit us, we must accept it as it is and arrange the surrounding ground from the home point of view. If it can be afforded the best method of making a permanent road or walk is to clove out a bed eight inches deep, fill this in with fine broken stone, add a thick layer of clay; roll it over and over until perfectly compact. Then an inch depth of gravel is rolled again, and you have a perfect and lasting road. If this is impossible, let the walks and roads be laid out so that he draining away of heavy rains will not drown them. These walks and roads should not be made all over the grounds. The cheapest and quickest way to secure a nice lawn is to have a good ground laid out and plowed, harrowed, well manured and sowed with lawn grass seed. It should be mowed and rolled once a week until about two or three weeks before frost, when it should be left to grow long to keep the roots warm during the winter. If shade trees are to be planted it is best to choose those that are native to the locality. These will grow most quickly and will prove the hardiest. Stone walls are beautiful, but are not always to be had. The hedge is next in desirability. The hedge is often a failure that we have become distrustful of it, but he fault is not in the hedge, but in our ignorance and carelessness. To have a beautiful hedge it is necessary to take a little pains at first, but once grown it is a permanent beauty for a life time. In our hurry we usually stick a few plants into the soil, give them no more attention and anticipate a beautiful growth. We find after a method of this kind that the hedge is a failure. Before planting a hedge we should dig a trench two feet deep and two feet wide; the soil should be light and rich. If the climate is dry and hot and the soil sandy the best plan is to plant the hedge in the spring. Hardy hedges make a good hedge and will grow rapidly from seed. Whatever we may select for a hedge we should soak their roots in water an hour or two before planting. Spread the roots out, fill in the trench lightly with earth, pressing firmly around the plants. Then the fall it should be given a thick mulch to protect the roots from cold in winter. To make an inexpensive flower garden we should plant vines and plants that will need no renewing from year

HELPERS FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER

Every housewife should cultivate the habit of five minute naps. After working hard a few hours a woman is apt to feel sleepy or "dragged out" and imagines that it is only that ordinary in, faint, laziness. But if she gives in to feeling drowsy and rests for one on a comfortable lounge she will feel wonderfully refreshed and will do better and quicker work than if she had foregone her cat nap. A kitchen convenience which is not present in every household, is a pair of sharp scissors. Scissors are used to trim lampshades, remove excess of hair from the neck and face, and to cut papers and strings—but seldom for trimming bacon and ham rinds, skinning parts of fowls which need skinning, and trimming salads. These are proper uses for scissors in the kitchen and such use of them saves much labor. Green beans are almost indispensable to canary birds, but if lettuce is scarce a good substitute may be had by planting a little of their favorite seed in flower pots and allowing it to grow. The birds like it better if they are allowed to pick the little green leaves themselves. Kerosene oil may be used with very satisfactory results in taking out wagon grease or tar spots, if used while the grease is fresh. Then wash out in cold soft water, using no soap. The newest idea in pastry boards is thick clear sheets of felt. A great many kitchen conveniences are now made of glass. Rolling pins and washboards are familiar, but glass rollers for rolling out dough, and glass washboards for roasting pork, sour apples are sometimes baked with the meat like potatoes. They should be placed in a fire and browned in it on each side, and the fat. The apples are served with the roast and take the place of apple sauce. To keep a spoon in position when cooking, drop a piece of wire into the pot, and requiring both hands to hold the bottle and cork, place the handle between the leaves of a closed book lying flat on the table. In cooking macaroni or spaghetti it will be found an improvement to melt the butter and cheese together and add them to the spaghetti, instead of sprinkling them as usual, between layers of the macaroni. Browned butter is a delicious accompaniment of potatoes and nearly all other vegetables. Cauliflower is delicious with this sauce and so are turnips, Brussels sprouts and asparagus. To make it, place some butter in a frying pan and brown it on each side. If you have some butter which is thick and good, it is not quite good enough to serve on the table, you can save it for this purpose. Any slightly unpleasant flavor is quickly dissipated when the butter is browned in this way. To many persons the contact of wooden with the face is unpleasant. To obviate this, a piece of silk, known as both sides to the depth of six or eight inches with thin China silk—Exchange.

HOW TO STARCH THIN WAISTS

In these days of thin shirt waists and delicate neckwear it is sometimes a problem for the housewife to know how to treat the waists and laces so that they will not be too stiff. The following rule is an excellent one: Dissolve a tablespoonful of gum arabic in about three quarts of water and dip the articles to be starched into this liquid, says the Louisville Post. Wring them out and dry them where they will not be soiled by the sun or wind. The gum arabic will not stick to the iron and it gives to the muslins and laces only the amount of stiffness that is found in good goods. Once tried you will not use starch in your delicate fabrics again. The gum arabic can be bought for 35 cents per pound and much cheaper at the wholesale druggists. An inferior grade is as good for this purpose as a high-priced quality.—Journal of Agriculture.

MAKING JUNE ROSES LAST LONGER

How can we make the June roses last longer? how keep the young flower shooting and growing so bravely after the first grand overture of bloom is past? Is a question that is in the mind of nearly every home florist these days. It is very sensibly answered by L. Greenlee, who says: "Vigorous cutting back is one of the secrets of really 'perpetual' roses; good mulching with manure not too fresh is another; fighting insect pests is a third. I do not wait for the first crop of flowers to fade before cutting back my bushes, but cut the flowers for friends and for vases with long stems. If a single branch, or strong shoot from the root, is out of bloom before the others, it is cut back to within a foot of the ground. Often fresh shoots will have started from it before the flowers on other shoots have faded. Rose bugs have to be picked off by hand; so also the disgusting caterpillars that eat the leaves. All other insects that molest the rose may be sprayed off either with tobacco water, hellebore or strong soapuds. Only the rose bugs have been very troublesome in my garden, and where rose bushes grow healthy and naturally I think this is generally the case. 'Cover' plants for rose beds are apt to rob the roses. The only ones that I have found satisfactory were Potentilla and Verbena. Fancies make a good spring cover, but they dwindle away under the heat and full sun of midsummer. If June is a hot, dry month the roses will need water every day.

Many of our farmers have the idea that the beautiful, ever-blooming roses are too delicate to grow on the farm. This is a mistake; their home is on the farm, where they can have plenty of fresh air and sunshine. A bed should be placed of rich soil, mellow and fertile; old decomposed soil is the best; it should be well fertilized with fine, well decomposed stable manure. If the ground be dry when planted water thoroughly, so as to soak the earth down to the roots of the plants; after this very little water is required unless the weather is dry. Plants will not thrive if kept too wet. Melow the ground thoroughly, and mix a little well rotted manure in. Make holes in the soil about ten inches apart, arrange the roots in their natural positions, cover with fine earth, pressing it down firmly upon them and in round the stems, then water freely. The soil around the plants should be kept loose and free from weeds and grass to insure their vigorous growth. For green fly use tobacco water or dust on in dry form. When winter fairly sets in the bed should be covered with leaves or straw and removed in the spring as soon as the buds start. Beautify the farm home by planting a bed of the ever-blooming roses. Visiting a lovely farm home recently, we found a beautiful bed of ever-blooming roses, extending the entire length of the porch, which was nine feet long, and the bed was four feet wide. Next to the porch, which for nished support, were five climbing ever-blooming roses: Marechal Niel, Empress of China, Climbing Meteor, Mary Washington, and the Queen of Peary; colors being deep sulphur yellow, beautiful red, purest white and ivory white; the other three rows contained six plants in a row and were the Queen Victoria variety. This bed will be beautiful until heavy frost comes, and a great source of pleasure to the people on the farm. Use rose cuttings cut in the spring as soon as the buds start. MODERN METHODS OF LAUNDERING

Washing clothing by hand in "the good old way" is very laborious and none but a robust person can continue to slave over the wash tub from week to week, inhaling the sickening odor of steam from clothes containing the excretions of human bodies laden with disease germs, without risking health and even life. It is indeed a wonder that any woman should continue to do so where there are not only more healthful, but far easier, more rapid and economical methods for doing that indispensable part of household work. The use of washing fluids and powders that are not injurious to clothing, but operate as a solvent and destroyer of the gummy substance that comes from the body in the perspiration is now very general, and is much more efficacious than the ordinary laundry soap which is made from the fat of animals, especially when used in connection with soap made from vegetable oils. The old way of soaking the clothes over night and boiling them in a strong

In our country there is a general oversight of small country places, and it is a matter of regret that there is so general an indifference of means by which the homes are made beautiful. It is in the taste and wisdom of the played in the laying out of the pretty grounds surrounding the house that much of the pleasure of farm life depends. In arranging the grounds we first consider the roads and walks. The house is usually built before we get the place, and if we cannot remodel it to suit us, we must accept it as it is and arrange the surrounding ground from the home point of view. If it can be afforded the best method of making a permanent road or walk is to clove out a bed eight inches deep, fill this in with fine broken stone, add a thick layer of clay; roll it over and over until perfectly compact. Then an inch depth of gravel is rolled again, and you have a perfect and lasting road. If this is impossible, let the walks and roads be laid out so that he draining away of heavy rains will not drown them. These walks and roads should not be made all over the grounds. The cheapest and quickest way to secure a nice lawn is to have a good ground laid out and plowed, harrowed, well manured and sowed with lawn grass seed. It should be mowed and rolled once a week until about two or three weeks before frost, when it should be left to grow long to keep the roots warm during the winter. If shade trees are to be planted it is best to choose those that are native to the locality. These will grow most quickly and will prove the hardiest. Stone walls are beautiful, but are not always to be had. The hedge is next in desirability. The hedge is often a failure that we have become distrustful of it, but he fault is not in the hedge, but in our ignorance and carelessness. To have a beautiful hedge it is necessary to take a little pains at first, but once grown it is a permanent beauty for a life time. In our hurry we usually stick a few plants into the soil, give them no more attention and anticipate a beautiful growth. We find after a method of this kind that the hedge is a failure. Before planting a hedge we should dig a trench two feet deep and two feet wide; the soil should be light and rich. If the climate is dry and hot and the soil sandy the best plan is to plant the hedge in the spring. Hardy hedges make a good hedge and will grow rapidly from seed. Whatever we may select for a hedge we should soak their roots in water an hour or two before planting. Spread the roots out, fill in the trench lightly with earth

CONFEREES AGREE ON RATE MEASURE

House Will Take Final Action
on Bill Saturday

Special to The Telegram.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—An understanding was reached by the conferees on the railroad rate bill last night, which it is predicted will result in a complete agreement being reached Friday. The conferees met at 10 a. m. to draw up the agreement. It is the purpose to have it presented to the house Friday, that it may be printed in the Record, as required by the rules, that it may be called up for action Saturday.

There are yet three points which will receive discussion, but even on these the conferees know the position of their number so well that the result may be predicted with reasonable certainty.

Of the three points the first is the sleeping car amendment. The prediction is that sleeping cars will be included as "common carriers" in the bill. The second is the much-debated pipe line amendment. This is to be settled by changing the words "common carriers" to "railroads" in that portion of the bill relating to the ownership of commodities. The effect of this change will be to exclude pipe lines from the operation of the law forbidding "railroads" from owning industrial properties. The senate amendment, which included lumber in the list of commodities forbidden to be owned by common carriers, will be retained in the bill. There has been no discussion of this amendment, but so far without action.

The third point for further discussion is the question of the five days' notice required to be given before the issuance of an injunction or other order making effective the decree of the commission.

Anti-Pass Limitations
The pass provision, as tentatively agreed on, will prohibit the issuance of passes to persons to officers of the national government, officers of state governments, of municipalities, counties and townships. This is the entire prohibition, the railroads being left to use their discretion as to the issuance of passes to persons not included in the above enumeration. Members of congress are included as officers of the national government. Express companies are to be regulated as common carriers. The much-discussed words, "in its judgment" and "fairly remunerative," are left out of the bill.

It is said that little if any discussion is expected on the conference report in the house, as all of the senate amendments to which mention was directed in the house as being desirable additions to the measure have been accepted by the conferees.

THE MEXICAN COTTON TREE

Mexico presents so many and varied vegetable and plant products that are so entirely beyond what the average American is accustomed to seeing that when any of these strange growths are explained and he is asked to believe that he shakes his head and refuses because it is not within the purview of what he has heard and seen in his life. He is similar to the old lady whose son went to sea and became a midshipman. After the voyage he returned on a visit to his mother and related the wonders of the sea as they had unfolded in his mind. He told her of other things he told her that he had seen fish with wings that had blown or flown aboard the vessel. His mother said she did not believe it, because it was not in the bible. After relating many other things that the old lady doubted he told her that they anchored in the Red sea, and that when the anchor was raised a wheel of Pharaoh's chariot was hanging upon one of its flukes. The old lady said she believed that for the bible plainly said that the king of Egypt and his army were drowned in his chariot in the Red sea.

A discussion arose in the Live Stock Exchange over the assertion that cotton grows in trees thirty feet high in Mexico and lived to at least thirty years. One present would believe such a thing, but the representative of The Telegram, and he asserted he had seen such a tree in Mexico. He was laughed to scorn and challenged to produce the evidence to prove it. The following description of the cotton tree, as reported by J. J. Fitzgerald and Santiago Carter, American citizens, and of Don Hilario Cuevas, a well-known authority on such subjects in Mexico, and received as such by the world at large. Only such parts of the reports are embodied here as well prove the existence of a cotton tree, its size and other peculiarities of the plant and the reports of the United States department of agriculture on the value of samples sent of the staple of the product of the cotton tree, as compared with the cotton produced in the southern states.

Letter of J. J. Fitzgerald

I desire to call your attention and the attention of the government and people of the United States to the cotton tree, which grows wild and cultivated in the southern states in Mexico. I feel confident that investigation will show the cotton tree to be immune from the boll weevil, its staple to be the equal in every respect to the staple produced by the cotton plant of the southern states, and its culture to be a commercial success.

There are several varieties of tree cotton, producing different lengths and grades of staple, as well as different shades, from pure white to a maroon. One variety, growing on the isthmus of Tehuantepec, under proper tropical climatic conditions, produces the staple continuously. Other varieties, under certain conditions of climate, produce one and two crops annually. On the highlands of the northern states of Mexico the tree withstands the frosts and cold weather successfully, putting forth leaves in the spring time, and producing an annual crop of cotton. The seed and staple of the cotton tree are similar to those of the common plant. The tree grows from fifteen to twenty feet high and its trunk from six to twelve inches in diameter, and it may be described as a gigantic cotton plant. It is hardy, withstands droughts and floods and grows successfully on rocky, barren soil in valleys and on the hills and mountain sides, as well as in the rich valleys and table lands of vegetable humus of the tropics of Mexico.

To obviate the difficulty of gathering cotton from large trees the tree is kept trimmed back, like the coffee tree, so the product can be gathered by picking the bolls from the branches. Tests have been made in tropical Mexico in planting the trees twelve feet apart each way. After the first year the shade destroyed the undergrowth, while the tree itself grew to a height of from ten to twelve feet and was very prolific of cotton. A sample of the staple, marked No. 1, of the enclosed sample, was sent to the secretary of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange for examination and was by him referred to the chairman of the arbitration committee, who reported:

"This appears to be extra staple cotton, which runs from 1 5-16 to 1 1-2 inches in length of fiber. It seems to be a good, strong staple cotton, is superior to the average of ordinary growth in the United States and should bring from 1 to 2 cents per pound more if properly prepared for market."

I enclose you a translation of the report on the cultivation of the cotton tree made by Mr. Cuevas. This gentleman is a public-spirited citizen, who has distributed numbers of the cotton seeds throughout the republic, with a view of the general introduction of the plant.

Letter of Santiago Carter

The cotton tree grows more or less over the entire slopes of the Mexican tablelands, from both Gulf and Pacific sides, from 3,000 feet above the sea level down to the coast, south of an east and west line running north of the state of Jalisco, except where the soil is too poor or the rainfall scarce. The best specimens I know are growing at the ranches of the Lacandon Indians on the Lacanja river, an affluent of the Lacumant, which flows into the Umacinto in the Chilton district, state of Chiapas, at an elevation of some 2,000 feet above the Gulf of Mexico, on a deep forest loam over clay subsoil, ridged by limestone rocks. The next best are on the tablelands of Jalisco at about the same elevation.

The tree is perennial, attaining a height of thirty feet. The leaf, form of growth, blossom, boll and cotton are exactly like those of the cotton plant of our southern states. The only apparent difference is in size and length of life. The plant is quite hardy. I have seen specimens which have been sold were thirty years old. It makes a very durable cloth and many Indians in the distant parts of Mexico pin and weave their clothing from it. It takes simple dyes well and resists rot. It does best in a temperate climate; the Tabasco damp heat dwarfs it, apparently, but it bears there. It is not affected at all by boll weevil, nor does it appear to have any insect enemies at all here. I believe that this tree planted fifteen feet apart would produce a bale or more to the acre on good soil. There are two colors—one white and the other slightly yellow.

I know of four other kinds of so-called cotton trees—the well-known cotton bombax, the pochote, a short brown staple; the agara, a very short glistening silky staple, and one other, a shrub, but none resemble the cotton tree referred to at all.

Report of Don Hilario Cuevas

The cotton tree of Mexico can be profitably cultivated on the same class of lands that produce the Maquey de Tequila, and can be grown with equal success on plains, dales, hills and mountain sides. I have just seen great quantities of the tree growing on the Rancho la Confradia, near the town of Tuzueca, state of Jalisco. The ground consists entirely of rocks and sand, covered with vegetation of only a few inches in depth. The cotton tree occupies about the same space as the maquey plant and can be planted between two crops per annum. The expense of planting is no greater than the expense of planting corn.

The cotton tree is able to stand droughts eight months of the year. It is not attacked by the boll weevil, the great enemy of the ordinary cotton plant, which causes so much damage among the plantations of the northern part of the republic. It is planted once in twenty-five or thirty years. A short time ago a tree was cut down because it was in the way that had been planted at the time of Maximilian's reign. It never failed in its production nor was it attacked by any insect nor had it suffered any other accident. The seed is planted in the beginning of the rainy season; at four months it is about four feet high and begins to blossom, and at the age of two years it is about ten feet high and the harvest then begins to be remunerative. During the rigors of the dry season its foliage is always deep green, even where it is grown in very dry lands. It is not attacked by any insect, nor taken the crop obtained would be considerably increased. Completely abandoned, without cultivation or irrigation, and without any care, I have seen trees that produce annually one-half arroba (one arroba equals twenty-five pounds), not taking into account what is carried away by birds and by the wind. If planted in fertile soil, the proper distance apart, at the end of the third year, and sometimes before, the tree begins to bear. The tree is simple and economical, practically the only expense during the life of the tree being the harvesting of the crop, an expense that may be figured at about 1 cent per pound, owing to the cheap labor employed in the country.

There are four varieties of the cotton tree grown here. One variety, yields from ten to twelve arrobas per acre, which begins to mature in October and is harvested in December, while the other blossoms in the spring and ripens in May.

To the haciendas of the tablelands and the hill lands of Mexico the cultivation of the cotton tree is a very tempting proposition. Two or three-year-old trees grown to a height of about ten feet and have a diameter of about eight inches at the ground. The foliage covers a space of ninety square feet. The tree is a shade for the coffee tree, one coffee tree being planted between every four cotton trees. The cotton trees are usually planted about nine feet apart, in rows each way. In very fertile lands about twelve feet apart. The seed should be planted deeper than ordinary cotton seed, but in a similar manner. The seed should be planted in a hole, and the hole should be filled with soil, and the rows should be "listed" with one ordinary crop furrow. If the young trees are planted at the beginning of the rainy season and cultivated in the ordinary manner by October they will be three to four feet high, and at the end of the third year they will form a forest that will completely shade the ground.

The report of the department of agriculture on the samples of cotton sent by Consul General Parsons was as follows: Nos. 1 and 2 being alone given, as these were sufficient for present use in this article.

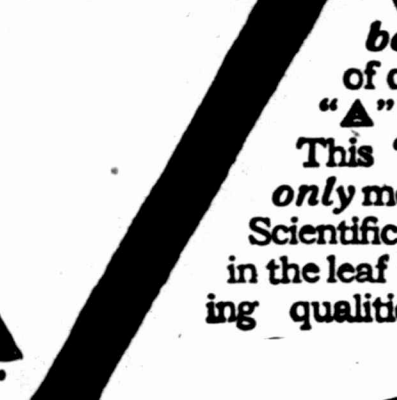

Sample No. 1—Staple 1 1/4 inches in length, somewhat variable, but sufficiently uniform for the loss in manufacture not to be very great. A fairly good, fine staple, which seems to possess good spinning qualities. Would probably command from 1 to 3 cents a pound more than American cotton.

Sample No. 2—Staple 1 to 1 1/4 inches in length; strong, rather silky, with good spinning qualities, though too variable in length, as well as scanty of seed. Would probably sell for about 1 cent per pound more than ordinary cotton.

BEST CROPS TO GROW IN THE ORCHARD

My experience and observation is that the best crop to grow in the orchard is cow peas; next best is tobacco, and my third choice would be clover. The latter only where the trees are over six years old, for young trees, potatoes and similar crops are best. Cow peas supply the needed nitrogen and potash, draw moisture to the roots in dry weather and for young trees from the trees better than clover. The cow peas endure more shade than anything I know of and their culture will cause the tree roots to run deeper than other crops. Another advantage is that cow peas are soon as harvested leave the ground in the best condition to sow to rice, and all that is needed is to harrow it in. It will make a good pasture in late fall and during winter and early spring for poultry, pigs, calves and sheep. In the orchard soil should be plowed under, allowed to remain a few weeks, the ground harrowed and planted to cow peas and cultivated as deemed necessary for the trees.

No vegetable will so enrich the soil as cow peas. It is the only crop I want in my orchard. I believe a crop of cow peas on this land is worth as much as a crop of corn. It is a fertilizer $5 per acre for the crops following. Cow peas will grow on land too poor to grow clover. I believe as soon as farmers learn the value of cow peas they will be planted to one now. To plant, prepare the ground as for planting corn, drill in rows fifteen to twenty inches apart, cultivate twice, or until vines cover the ground. The seed should be planted in a hole, and the hole should be filled with soil, and the rows should be "listed" with one ordinary crop furrow. If the young trees are planted at the beginning of the rainy season and cultivated in the ordinary manner by October they will be three to four feet high, and at the end of the third year they will form a forest that will completely shade the ground.

BEST CROPS TO GROW IN THE ORCHARD

My experience and observation is that the best crop to grow in the orchard is cow peas; next best is tobacco, and my third choice would be clover. The latter only where the trees are over six years old, for young trees, potatoes and similar crops are best. Cow peas supply the needed nitrogen and potash, draw moisture to the roots in dry weather and for young trees from the trees better than clover. The cow peas endure more shade than anything I know of and their culture will cause the tree roots to run deeper than other crops. Another advantage is that cow peas are soon as harvested leave the ground in the best condition to sow to rice, and all that is needed is to harrow it in. It will make a good pasture in late fall and during winter and early spring for poultry, pigs, calves and sheep. In the orchard soil should be plowed under, allowed to remain a few weeks, the ground harrowed and planted to cow peas and cultivated as deemed necessary for the trees.

No vegetable will so enrich the soil as cow peas. It is the only crop I want in my orchard. I believe a crop of cow peas on this land is worth as much as a crop of corn. It is a fertilizer $5 per acre for the crops following. Cow peas will grow on land too poor to grow clover. I believe as soon as farmers learn the value of cow peas they will be planted to one now. To plant, prepare the ground as for planting corn, drill in rows fifteen to twenty inches apart, cultivate twice, or until vines cover the ground. The seed should be planted in a hole, and the hole should be filled with soil, and the rows should be "listed" with one ordinary crop furrow. If the young trees are planted at the beginning of the rainy season and cultivated in the ordinary manner by October they will be three to four feet high, and at the end of the third year they will form a forest that will completely shade the ground.

The report of the department of agriculture on the samples of cotton sent by Consul General Parsons was as follows: Nos. 1 and 2 being alone given, as these were sufficient for present use in this article.

Sample No. 1—Staple 1 1/4 inches in length, somewhat variable, but sufficiently uniform for the loss in manufacture not to be very great. A fairly good, fine staple, which seems to possess good spinning qualities. Would probably command from 1 to 3 cents a pound more than American cotton.

Sample No. 2—Staple 1 to 1 1/4 inches in length; strong, rather silky, with good spinning qualities, though too variable in length, as well as scanty of seed. Would probably sell for about 1 cent per pound more than ordinary cotton.

The passage of the Curtis bill provides that all children born between the time the roll first closed and prior to March 4, 1906, shall be enrolled.

BIG MEMBERSHIP CANVASS FOR Y. M. C. A. IN PROGRESS

Committees Over City Working to Secure 1,000 Names

300 NAMES IN TWO HOURS

Sixteen Committees and Many Individual Workers Engaged in Hunt for Names and Break Record

At fifteen minutes past nine Friday morning the Y. M. C. A. membership clock started to move and at the first tick the hand moved one-sixteenth of the distance around the dial. One hundred names had been turned in at 9:15, 200 at 10 o'clock and by 10:45 the hand showed that 300 of the names necessary to complete the list of 1,000 in a day had been reported at the headquarters of the association, the Board of Trade rooms. The committees which made the first reports with the number reported by each are as follows: Committee B. M. J. Dowlin, chairman, 20; committee E. A. H. Johnson, chairman, 1; committee O. H. Brogden, chairman, 14; committee H. J. Oscar White, chairman, 1; committee I. W. O. Davis, chairman, 1; committee J. Jay Astell, chairman, 44; business men's committee, 19. Some young men are striving to bring in large numbers of members independently of committee work. One of these is A. H. Wheeler, who started out this morning intent on handing in 100 names before night. At 10:30 he had reported 56 names and had good prospects of reaching the 100 in the afternoon. The junior list is certain to be filled to the limit, 250, before the day is over. At 11 o'clock 88 juniors had been reported.

The workers in the canvass are asked to meet at the Board of Trade rooms at 8 o'clock Friday night to spend two hours in a telephone canvass to close the day's work. The results of the canvass are made known to the public by the hands of a clock with a four-foot face, which hangs on the side of the Farmers and Mechanics' National Bank building. The hour hand is fixed, pointing to the hour of 12, above which is the number 1,000. The minute hand is moved up every fifteen minutes and the dial is so arranged that the hand can indicate the number of names secured in groups of twenty-five. Henry Lusher turns the clock hands as the numbers are reported from the office of the Board of Trade. Two telephones have been kept busy since the first name was phoned in at 9 o'clock Friday morning. The telephone numbers are 778 and 977.

Tonight a large stereopticon will be placed beside the bank building and on a screen hung against the Burton-Peel dry goods store will be thrown pictures and the closing reports of the workers. The canvass is to close promptly at 10 o'clock tonight.

Secretary L. E. Jones has been as busy as a bee all day, overseeing the work at the office, and when opportunity was given personally soliciting members. In the office H. L. Stokes records the reports of the committees as they come in, tabulating the number reported for each committee every fifteen minutes. J. H. French answers telephone calls and helps record the committees' reports.

No exclusive assignments of territories were made to the committees and each man has been working wherever he saw a possible member. In appointing the workers it was sought to place a live worker in each of the large places of business in the city, so that possible members might be approached by an acquaintance rather than by strangers. This plan is working well, as reports from committee men show.

S. A. Kincaide, state secretary of the Y. M. C. A., has been an active worker all day. He has proven a great help to Secretary Jones. The committees which have been carrying on the campaign are known by letters and each consists of sixteen men. The chairmen are:

A—James Liston; B—M. J. Dowlin; C—G. C. Block; D—Robert Fender; E—A. H. Johnson; F—O. H. Brogden; G—George Angell; H—J. Oscar White; I—W. O. Davis; J—Jay Astell.

CELEBRATE STATEHOOD

Contests Will Mark Big Jollification
at Tulsa July 4

Special to The Telegram.
TULSA, I. T., June 22.—All committees in charge of the statehood celebration on July 4 are meeting with extraordinary success and a great demonstration is assured. A large fund is being arranged which will go toward buying a series of prizes for various contests, purchasing fireworks and such other expenses as may come up.

The contests in question will include egg, wheelbarrow, pony races, etc., fiddlers' contest, oldest married couple, prettiest baby and the usual run of such affairs. During the Old Settlers' Association meeting last summer, Judge Bell was here and delivered an address along the lines of the association's purposes. He had a wonderful fund of information in local history and traditions of this section and captured his audience completely, making many friends.

BELL TO SPEAK

Candidate for Governor is Looked for at Georgetown

Special to The Telegram.
GEORGETOWN, W. N., June 22.—It is given out by one of C. K. Bell's strong supporters that he will be in Georgetown and deliver an address Monday, July 9. During the Old Settlers' Association meeting last summer, Judge Bell was here and delivered an address along the lines of the association's purposes. He had a wonderful fund of information in local history and traditions of this section and captured his audience completely, making many friends.

BETWEEN BELL AND CAMPBELL

Caldwell County is About Evenly Divided in Governor's Race

Special to The Telegram.
LOCKHART, Texas, June 22.—Olenthus Ellis has announced for county chairman of the democratic party of this county, making three candidates for the office. The present incumbent, J. B. Martindale, and W. F. Carl are the other two. It is hard to tell who has the lead here for governor, Bell or Campbell, it seems so evenly divided. At L. J. Storey lived in this county for years, in fact it was his home, he will doubtless carry this county.

The trouble with the fellow who demands fair play is that he always wants to be the judge.
A man must have a queer financial sense to lead a double life with two families.
