Question Of The Week

Should U.S. Let Red Students Go Home?

By T. D. ELLIS
Quizzing Cameraman

"Do you believe the United States is justified in refusing to let American-educated Chinese leave this country?"

For the first time since this feature began, all persons quizzed were in agreement.

This week's question rose out of the Communist hint that they might swap 11 American airmen for 35 Chinese students detained in America.

The comments:

Dwain Higgins, 517 N. Faulkner, sales clerk: "I believe the U. S. is justified in keeping them here if they have gained knowledge that the Communists could use against us. It would be foolish to educate them and return them to our enemy.'

Bertha Riley, Brunow Apts., clerk: "I think if they have acquired their education here in the United States they should put it to use here. I think they should be required to stay here in this country as long as there is apossibility of war."

Everette Harper, 330 N. Davis, machinest: "Yes, I do. I think we have pampered Red China and Russia long enough. We can go halfway and stop and make friends. You can't make friends by going more than half way, and it seems to me that we have gone entirely too far. It seems to me that the top men of the nation just don't know how to say, I won't.' "

Mrs. Jeanette Williams 411 Oklahoma, presser: "I feel those persons, who have gained scientific information, should be kept here. If they were permitted to go back to China they would immediately turn that information over to the Communists."

Eugene McKenzie, 720 S. Gray, porter: "Yes, I feel the United States is justified in detaining those Chinese students. They are here and got their education here. I say let them stay here. If we let them go they could give Russia a great deal of information she could use against us in case of war."

Wanda Imke, 1206 E. Francis, PBX operator: "I feel that if they have a knowledge of any of our implements of war and could educate the Chinese Communists we should keep them here, otherwise we have no right."

Mrs. Tom Barker, 431 Roberta, housewife: "If I were Chinese, over here for an education, I would probably want to go home sometime, but I feel that if those people have gained a scientific education here in the United States they should be kept here until all danger of war with Communist China is past."

Johnny Weeks, 735 N. Nelson, salesman: "The only way I would let American-educated Chinese return to Red China would be that they agree to teach nothing but Christianity. I don't believe in letting them go back and teach war and turn secret information over to Russia."

Francis Greer, 112 N. Faulkner, clerk: "Yes, I feel that the United States is justified in keeping those

Mercury Hits 23 Low Today

A light snow fell in Pampa Thursday afternoon but high afternoon and evening winds swept most of it away by early morning.

It began snowing at 1:45 p.m., following a dust blow which swept into Pampa about 10:30 a.m.

The wind reached a velocity of 48 miles per hour at Perry LeFors Field. Snow stopped falling about 5 p.m. leaving .13 inches of precipitation in Pampa, and a total of 13.51 inches for the year.

Saturday's snow, sleet and rain left .23 inches of moisture in the area. An inch of snow was measured Thursday.

A cold front moved in from the Pacific Northwest Thursday and plummeted temperatures to a low of 23 this morning. The temperature climbed to 30 degrees by midmorning. The high today was not expected to send the mercury reading above 41, Thursday's high was 44 at 4 p.m.

The weatherman says Saturday should be a bit warmer with temperatures rising no higher than the low 50s, with generally fair skies.

Texas Oil Quota Hiked

AUSTIN, Dec. 17—UP—The Texas Railroad Commission Friday boosted the state's oil allowable a whopping 257,307 barrels a day, setting January permissive production at 3,216,123 barrels daily.

The increase was the third straight for Texas and one of the largest boosts in the allowable in recent years.

The action was announced following a state-wide oil proration hearing.

The number of state-wide producing days was upped to 18, an increase of two days over December. The East Texas field also drew a two-day boost in producing days to 18 for January.

The Pantex Field was placed on 16 days, the Pickton Field to a full 31 days, and Sandusky-Oil Creek, 13.

Red Boss Accepts UN Note

Chou Will Meet UN's Hammarskjold

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 17—UP—Red China's Premier Chou En-Lai Friday invited UN Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold to Red China, presumably to discuss the case of 11 U.S. airmen imprisoned there as spies.

Hammarskjold announced he will go to Peiping as soon as he returns to the United States from Stockholm, where he will accept his late father's seat in the Swedish Academy. He will leave New York at 6 o'clock Friday night and return Tuesday or Wednesday.

Chou sent two cables to Hammarskjold in which he bitterly attacked the United Nations for condemning the imprisonment and giving Hammarskjold a mandate to seek an audience in Peiping. But he extended the secretary general a cordial welcome to visit Peiping.

The wording of Chou's inflammatory cable indicated he would say "no" to Hammarskjold efforts to win freedom for the airmen.

At the same time Chou apparently left the door open for discussions of four other U.S. airmen and several hundred UN personnel still held as war prisoners who were not tried by Red courts.

A Red Chinese "peoples court" convicted the 11 Americans on spy charges after the prosecutors claimed they were shot down in China and not in North Korea as the United States charged.

Jury Deciding Sheppard Fate

CLEVELAND, Dec. 17 —UP— Five housewives and seven husbands Friday began deliberating the fate of Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, accused of the bludgeon murder of his wife. A verdict of guilty as charged can send him to the electric chair.

The murder trial jury retired to its beige - walled deliberation room on the third floor of the criminal courts building at 9:13 a.m. cst.

Dr. Sheppard, 30, accused of the bludgeon - murder of his pregnant wife, Marilyn, 31, last July 4, stood up from his chair at the counsel table and watched the jurors file out.

Thus, the case of the sports - loving Dr. Sam which has excited the nation was nearing its climax. He was accused by the state of beating his wife to death after quarreling with her about his affairs with pert Susan Hayes, 24, and other women.

Coloring Champ Wins Big Doll

Pampa's coloring queen, little Miss Wanda Rogers, 10, has been declared one of 50 top prize winners in the Little People Coloring contest.

In national competition against 277 other contestants, Miss Rogers won a walking doll as one of the top 50. A Texas girl from Houston won the top prize.

Pictures and story may be found on page 7.

The coloring contest was sponsored by The News locally and more than 200 children took part in the contest.

Bay Area Tremor Is Not Intense

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 17 -- UP -- A jarring earthquake rocked the San Francisco Bay area Thursday night with an up and down motion that rattled dishes and wakened thousands from sleep.

The quake, centered in southern Alameda county on the eastern shore of San Francisco bay, was felt at 11:09 p. m. (PST). It was followed five minutes later by a second shock. No major damage was reported.

W. C. Marion, assistant seismologist at the University of California, said it was probably centered on the old Hayward fault near San Lorenzo. He said it was probably not connected with the quake that shook Nevada, California and three other western states early Thursday.

3.8 on Richter Scale

Marion estimated the quake had a force of 3.8 on the Richter scale of 10. Thursday's quake measured between 6.75 and 7.

Don Sperry, who works in the 114-foot-tall control tower at Oakland airport, said the tower "seemed to bounce up and down" in the temblor.

The switchboard operator at Oakland city hall said she thought the building was "going to fall down." She said she received 75 calls within minutes after the quake.

The temblor was felt as far south as San Jose and as far north as Hamilton Field and Vallejo. An Alameda housewife said the violent shaking was preceded by a rumbling noise, as if a bomb went off beneath her house.

Expects More Temblors

Meanwhile, in Fallon, Nev., a Navy geologist warned residents that they probably can expect more temblors for some time to come. The Fallon area has been jolted three times this year by quakes, the last one being Thursday's.

The geologist, Gladstone Marchand of San Bruno, Calif., said the appearance of the region around Fallon "indicates a long history of faulting."

"It's reasonable to assume that we can expect movement along these faults in future years," he said.

The latest series of shocks began at 3:09 a.m. pst Thursday, shaking California, Nevada and parts of Oregon, Idaho and Utah.

NATO Okays A-Defense Of Europe

PARIS, Dec. 17 —UP— The foreign ministers of the 14 member nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) agreed Friday to defend West Europe with American atomic weapons.

The decision to base Europe's defenses on the U.S. atomic arsenal was rushed through Friday's restricted meeting after a review of world conditions convinced the ministers that the Soviet threat to the continent is as great as ever.

The ministers approved a report by top generals of the NATO nations recomending that the defenses of Europe against possible Red aggression be planned "along new-look atomic lines."

The United States already has equipped one NATO division in Europe with tactical atomic weapons.

Warning from Dulles

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles delivered a stern warning on the Soviet threat to Western Europe to the meeting of NATO foreign, defense and finance ministers, as a prelude to the decision for atomic defense.

French Premier Pierre Mendes-France grimly pledged to the other 13 nations that mounting Russian threats against France "will not modify in any way the determination of the French government to obtain ratification (of the German rearmament plan) as speedily as possible."

"The Russians do not know the French if they think that by threats they can persuade France to modify her policy," he said.

Trouble On Tuesday

Ousted Professor Predicts Quakes

CHICAGO, Dec. 17—UP—The world is in for earthquakes, tidal waves and volcanic eruptions next Tuesday, ousted college physician Charles Laughead said. But it won't exactly come to an end.

Laughead, who was fired from his post with Michigan State College on grounds that he was predicting the end of the world, made this reassuring forecast here Thursday as he consulted with a fellow believer in imminent doom.

Next Tuesday, he said, will be merely a "turning point toward catastrophe in this part of the world." Chicago will be hit by a tidal wave, the ground from Hudson's Bay to the Gulf of Mexico may rise and the legendary continents of Atlantis and Mu may emerge from the seas, Laughead said.

Upheavals on Seaboards

He warned that the eastern and western seaboards should also be on the lookout for "cataclysmic" upheavals.

But things won't get really bad until 1955, the tall, ascetic-looking physician said.

By that time, he said, it's quite likely that all the land masses as they now exist will sink beneath the oceans and be replaced by new continents. Men from other planets may rescue a few of the earthlings in space ships, he said.

Laughead refused to say whether he's going to stick it out in Chicago next Tuesday or go to some drier city.

"I myself expect to be in the world in the shape I now represent on Dec. 22," he said. "But what changes I am making in my life as a result of this prophecy are matters of my own personal conviction—not for public explanation."

Friends from Outer Space

Laughead, 44, and his wife received newsmen in the home of Mrs. Dorothy E. Martin of suburban Oak Park. He gave Mrs. Martin full credit for the predictions and said she had received the news from friends in outer space.

Mrs. Martin agreed that last

Women Jurors To Be Schooled

There will be a mock courtroom trial the night of Jan. 10 in 31st District Courtroom.

The purpose is to instruct Gray County women, who are now required to serve on juries by an approved amendment to the Texas Constitution, in how juries are selected and how a trial is conducted, according to County Judge-Elect Bruce Parker.

"It'll probably be a criminal case," Parker said with a smile to a question about whether a civil or criminal case would be tried. "That's what I think they'd rather have."

Tentative plans call for Bill Waters, outgoing county attorney and incoming district attorney, to be defense attorney and Don Cain, incoming county attorney, to be prosecuter, Parker said. The mock trial is being sponsored by the Pampa League of Women Voters, Mrs. Finis Jordan, the county's first women jury commissioner, said today.

The mock trial with all the formalities will be nothing new for Parker. He used to do the same thing for the sixth grade and the Pampa Junior High School. Three hundred students with their teachers used to attend, he said.

"We used to put the kids behind bars, when convicted," he added. He did not mention what would happen if one of the gals was "convicted."

West Coast Pilot Is Grounded Here

Bud Miller, a Long Beach, Calif., salesman for the Cessna Aircraft Co. who was ferrying a new plane from Wichita, Kans., to the West Coast, was grounded in Pampa today with a damaged ship.

Crashed On Takeoff

Miller, caught in the sudden snow storm which hit this area about 2 p.m. yesterday, made a forced landing after circling the area for nearly an hour. He landed in a field about two miles from Pampa on the Miami Highway. After a delay of approximately two hours, the pilot attempted to take off again. The plane apparently hit a soft spot in the field and flipped over on its back.

Visible damage to the craft included a badly bent propeller, bent wings and nose and tail assembly.

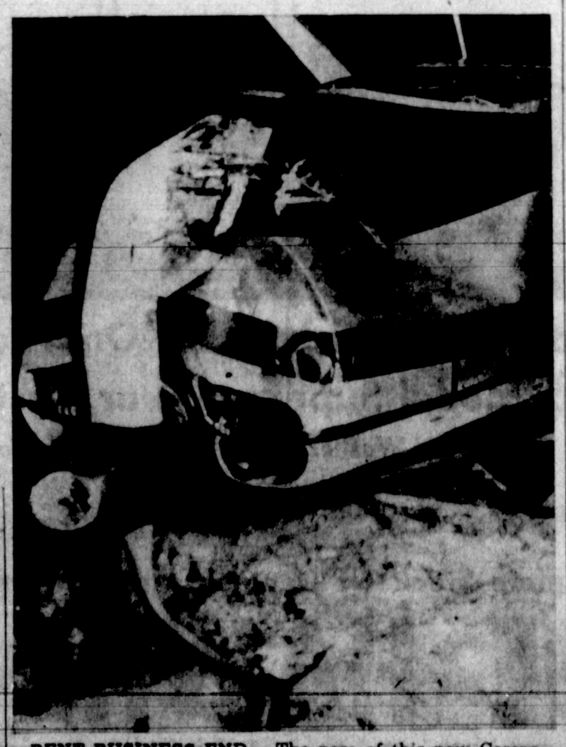

An insurance adjuster was to examine the plane sometime today and decide whether to disassemble the craft for shipment back to Wichita or to have repairs made at a shop nearer Pampa.

Pilot "In Good Shape"

Miller said this morning it would probably be two or three days before repairs could be completed.

Miller said he was in good shape

250 Attend C of C Irrigation Meeting

Bob Thurmond, irrigation specialist with the Agricultural Extension Service, Lubbock, addressed an overflow crowd of 250 at the opening session of the irrigation clinic in the Palm Room of City Hall.

Thurmond, whose talk was supplemented by pictures, outlined three basic considerations which must be kept in mind in undertaking well irrigation.

Related picture on page two.

"Before you get started," he pointed out, "the first step is to consider land suitability."

Thurmond said all land in the High Plains is not as level as many are led to believe.

In the second place, he said, the wisest thing to do to protect an investment which might run near $17,000, is to run a test hole to determine sand and gravel formations.

"You need good equipment when drilling," according to Thurmond, "and don't look to save on the expenses of drilling at the expense of getting a good well."

Referring to types of irrigation, he said the commonly used forms are row irrigation, surface or sprinkle irrigation and the sprinkle system. Taumond said the most expensive is the sprinkle system, and "if there is anything cheap about it, it's the rainbow seen through the spray."

The rest of the morning session was taken up with talks by other area specialists: Charlie Richter, service water facilities specialist with the Farm Home Administration, Dallas; Swede Swanson, irrigation engineer, Amarillo; W. L. Broadhurst, hydrologic engineer, High Plains Water District, Lubbock, and Milton Erigland, head of the agriculture department, Panhandle A&M College, Goodwell, Okla.

Others in attendance, who were to take part in the afternoon question and answer session, were representatives of well drilling firms, bankers and equipment salesmen, who were to answer questions along with the panel of speakers.

Quentin Williams, chairman of the Agriculture Committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, was in charge of the clinic. Floyd Watson, president of the C of C welcomed the guests.

The clinic is sponsored by the Agriculture Extension Service, the chamber of commerce, and the Soil Conservation Service.

Amarillo Fire Set By Airman

AMARILLO, Dec 17—UP—A 28-year-old Paris, Tex, airman told police he accidentally set the fire which routed guests from the 12th floor of the Amarillo hotel Thursday.

The airman, who was not identified by authorities, said he set the mattress on fire by accident but thought he had put the fire out before he checked out.

The fire was discovered soon after he left. Six fire companies answered the alarm.

Furniture in the room was destroyed, smoke damaged the entire floor, carpets were ruined by water and there was damage to the hallway. Hotel authorities set the total loss at about $15,000.

personally "except for damaged pride."

Miller gave a few Pampans some anxious moments yesterday afternoon. His craft was first spotted about 2 p.m. when the snowstorm began to get severe. The plane was seen flying low in the vicinity of Woodrow Wilson School. Miller was obviously looking for a place to land to escape the weather which had cut visibility to less than a mile.

News Alerts Airport

The Pampa News alerted the Perry LeFors Airfield personnel who tried to make contact with the ship by radio. The News then alerted the CAA in Amarillo which reported that a plane, answering the description of the one spotted over Pampa, was overdue at the Amarillo airport at that time.

However, moments later, Miller phoned the CAA from Pampa to report he had landed safely.

After the delay and Miller's attempted take-off, two ambulances from Duenkel-Carmichael and a sheriff's car were rushed to the scene. Only slightly jarred, Miller "hitched" a ride back to town with sheriff's deputy Shirley Nichols and spent the night in the Adams Hotel.

Some Pampa Regular Mail Going To Air

Central Airlines, which used to operate in Pampa and now operates in Borger, Thursday began its annual carrying of some of the Post Office Department's first-class Christmas mail.

One of the three American airlines which pioneered in the practice, Central carries the non-air-mail-stamped mail on a "space available" basis, according to Bill Kramer and Ray Marney, Central associates in Borger.

Central is one of the 14 "local service" airlines in the United States and takes the holiday mail to all its stations, Kramer and Marney said today, adding their company now does first-class-mail hauling during the year on an "experimental basis."

The Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington, D. C., sets the rate the airlines get paid for this service, based on the per-ton mile. B. E. McCaskill, Fort Worth, general superintendent for the postal transportation service, sent Central a letter authorizing the continuance of the practice this Christmas season.

Attack Story Admitted False

DALLAS, Dec. 17—UP—A 15-year-old white divorcee and her 19-year-old step-sister confessed they lied when they told police a Negro tried to rape them.

The women said they made up the story with the hope it would impress their boy friends and help effect a reconciliation.

Borger Irked With Amarillo City Board

BORGER, Tex., Dec. 17—UP—The Borger Chamber of Commerce urged businessmen Friday to try a letter-writing campaign before they go all-out in boycotting Amarillo firms and wholesale houses.

Borger merchants are annoyed because the Amarillo city commission decided not to submit the proposed $73 million Canadian River project to a vote of Amarillo residents.

The chamber urged Borger businessmen to take it easy on their boycott plans until they see if letters and telephone calls can get the Amarillo commission to change its mind.

Borger leaders believe Amarillo residents would approve participation in the huge water project if it were submitted to a vote. Amarillo is the key city of the proposed water plan.

Angry Borger residents were told by Chamber of Commerce Manager Dave Moore that a boycott "might cause damage that might never be undone."

City Manager Fritz Thompson told the citizens to be level-headed about the controversy.

Amarillo's backing out of the plan at the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority meeting Monday in Plainview came as a surprise.

Amarillo city commissioners said they could not afford to go into the project because of a $5 million bond issue being negotiated now for a temporary water supply.

City To See Nativity Lights

Pampans tonight will watch the annual lighting of the Nativity scenes in Central Park.

The program will begin at 7 p.m. and will feature the choirs and choruses of the Pampa High and Junior High Schools and the high school speech department.

Following the lighting ceremony, Christmas carols will be played nightly during the holidays, according to Mrs. Lynn Boyd, publicity chairman. Tonight's program will be carried over a public address system and over the radio.

The Nativity scenes will be filmed for the Humble Oil Company's "Texas in Review" television program. But, as it is quite difficult to film such scenes at night, they will be presented over the weekly TV show only if "they come out good," Mrs Boyd said.

Safety Group To Reelect

A new president of the Pampa Citizens Safety Commission will be elected at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday in Johnson's Cafe, less than a week since a new one had been selected.

Jack Vaughn, outgoing commission president, today said he had received a letter from J. N. McKean, who was elected Wednesday morning as the new president, saying that he would not be able to serve. Vaughn called the special meeting.

McKean's letter to Vaughn said that ". . . in all fairness to the organization I must decline" and ". . . I personally have not been active in the organization, plans or affairs of the commission . . ."

Other officers elected with McKean were Mrs. Finis Jordan, vice president, and Joe Fischer, secretary-treasurer. The new officers take over Jan. 1.

Equipment Bids Opened

Two Amarillo firms submitted bids today to the Gray County Commissioners' Court on new and used bucket-type dirt loaders.

The court intends to buy two new ones, for Pcts. 1 and 4, and a used one for Pct. 2. Pct. 3 is already provided with one.

Plains Machinery Co. bid $8,700 on a new crawler-type loader, $6,390 on a new rubber-tire loader and $2,900 on a used one. M&K Equipment Co. bid $6,910, a trade-in price, on a new loader. The last includes $3,500 on a trade-in.

The full court was on hand and so were Commissioners-Elect G. L. Lunsford and Jim McCracken. The meeting today should be the last court, County Judge J. B. Maguire, one of the year for the present Jr., said previously.

Vice Ring Members Found Guilty

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Dec. 17—UP—A federal jury dealt a death blow to a three-state prostitution ring here Thursday by returning guilty verdicts against four persons.

Three men and one woman were accused of taking part in the shipment of women across state lines of Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas for prostitution purposes.

Federal Judge Eugene Rice set sentencing for Dec. 30 after the jury returned a verdict after 40 minutes deliberation.

It found David Lee Best, 24, Muskogee, guilty of conspiracy to violate the Mann act and of violating the act, that is, transporting women across state lines for prostitution purposes.

Welsey L. Carmack, Muskogee, 24, was found guilty of conspiracy to violate the Mann act, and Bobo Johnson, former Oklahoma City nightclub bouncer, of conspiracy to violate the act.

The jury listened to testimony of Benny Walleah Tidball, 26, Muskogee, and Evelyn Clevenger, Muskogee, who described trips to Fort Smith, Ark.; Temple, Tex., and Ardmore and McAlester, Okla., in which one or several women stayed at hotels as call girls and shared the profits with the men.

Voluptua New Star For TV Viewers

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 17 —UP— The latest gift to local television viewers is a buxom blonde in a negligee who kisses the TV screen and murmurs, "welcome to my boudoir. . . our special hideaway."

This bosomy beauty, called Voluptua, is a new star on the local ABC TV station that already has given the world Vampira.

The famed Vampira is an apparition in tatters, long fingernails and stringy black hair who sits on a tombstone, strokes skunks and spiders and introduces old horror movies. Now the station has added Voluptua, who figures to do for love what Vampira does for ghouls.

To introduce the romantic movies, Voluptua enters through gauzy curtains and lounges on a six-foot round couch. While Vampira fondles a skull and drinks witches' brew on her show, Voluptua chats langorously on a jewel-studded gold telephone trimmed in mink. The telephone "rings" with a voice that sighs, "Voluptu—a-a-a."

Originally the ring was to be a moan. The station advertised to audition moaners (20 women showed up), but that inspiration was discarded.

After the movie, Voluptua, trailing her negligee over a white bearskin rug, undresses behind a lip-shaped screen. She emerges wearing only a man's pajama top. She kisses the viewers good-night, right into the camera, and waves at a statue of Venus and a heart-shaped cage of lovebirds.

Upon investigation Voluptua turned out to be an ex-show girl, Gloria Pall, 25, 5 feet, 9 inches, 39-24-37. I have followed Gloria's career with interest. Once she turned up at a party for Marilyn Monroe wearing a low-cut dress that defied the laws of nature and gravity. Nobody looked at Marilyn. Later she was a showgirl in Las Vegas and then a comedienne in a burlesque theater in the gambling city. Recently she landed small roles in movies and on 50 TV shows.

"I'm from Brooklyn. I was Miss Flatbush of 1947 and after that it was hard to keep me down on the farm," said Gloria.

"I came to Hollywood in 1951 but I was too tall for leading lady roles. Producers said nobody would take me seriously so I played dumb blondes. I'm going to show them I'm not so dumb. . .This show was my own idea."

She describes the program as the female version of "The Continental," a male who drooped his eyelids on TV a few years back.

Gloria is going all out to be Voluptia. She plans to startle the citizens by shopping in her gold-sequined, extra-deep-cut negligee. Today, however, she looked like a valentine in a white leather suit and red sweater. She has painted red hearts on her glasses, fountain pen and scrapbook, and even sports a heart-shaped beauty mark on her left cheek. She gives lace handkerchiefs to lady fans and tiny yo-yos to men "for idle hands."

Despite her new title as the goddess of love on TV, Gloria confessed she actually is man-less.

"I was married last year for three months. When it didn't work out I decided to concentrate on work," she said. "I hardly ever date."

Newsroom Noise Brings Protest From Next Door

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17—UP—What's new in Washington:

Reporters in the press room of the State Department building were jarred by a pounding in the room next door.

A newsman went to investigate. Turned out State Department officers were disturbed by the clicking of typewriters in the press room. So the room next door was being sound-proofed.

Who says that a woman takes "forever" to get dressed. That is not true of Mrs. Mary Jane McCaffree, Mrs. Eisenhower's secretary.

Mrs. McCaffree sneaked into a side door of the White House a few minutes before a formal White House reception. She was wobbling under the weight of Christmas presents. She was in a plain business suit and tweed coat. There remained 15 minutes to spare. Mrs. McC dashed up to her apartment, bathed, got formal and, right on the dot, appeared at the reception in a sweeping green evening gown.

The world trade information service at the Department of Commerce has this intelligence: In Argentina, the law says you have to have life insurance to attend a sporting event. But nobody bothers about it. The insurance is included in the price of admission.

Officials in the government have tried to cut down on the loss of time because of "coffee breaks." Time out for java, that is. But the breaks go on. The other day at the Department of Interior, there was a long line for a coffee pick-up. Some nosey person stopped one of the girls and asked her what she was up to. What she was up to, she told him, was to get some with cream and sugar for her boss.

Stripes And Stripes

In spite of loud squawks from all sides, the Bureau of Internal Revenue is going to use the colored stripes on income tax return form envelopes — and what it will lead to is anybody's guess.

Under this new deal if your income report showed $10,000 or more the envelope coming to your house will wear a loud yellow stripe. If your 1953 income was less than 10 grand, your tax mail will bear a red stripe. Maybe, if you were down in the less than $5,000 class the bad news will come in a plain envelope.

One of the big (and erroneous) sales points for a graduated income tax has been that the amount of income declared was a big secret. In absolute confidence, was the way the bureaucrats in Washington liked to put it. There really is no invasion of privacy, they loved to tell us, and are still telling us even when the mail arrives with a conspicuous stripe on the envelope.

There is enough love of gossip and just plain curiosity in most of us that it would be all but impossible to watch the delivery of a neighbor's letter without making some speculation on the color scheme and what it means.

We have been preaching, in season and out, that the income tax is "the root of all evil," as Frank Chodorov put it and that the passing of this law marked the downfall of American freedoms. We were warned at the time that the tax then proposed would be expanded and expanded and would set up special classes of citizens with some paying more and on an unproportionate basis. Burke Cochran sounded the warning in his famous speech in Congress on the subject.

Now the machinery has been set up whereby 100 per cent of our incomes is taken from our citizens and we are given back that portion of the income the government thinks we ought to have in order to get along. While it is true that the income tax is not a 100 per cent tax at the moment, there is no reason for thinking that it will not become that proportion at some future date.

The stripes on the envelope only serve to show as an object lesson that we need only to fear the worst from "our enemy, the State" and that those fears probably will be realized. Just where the next wallop at our liberties will come from can't be predicted at the moment but it is a sure bet that there will be more and more blows at liberty and that the fight against the encroachmen of government at every level is a never ending one if we are to preserve any of the traditional freedoms that ought to be ours.

Accident Injury Inflicts 'Corset' Wearing On Hank

By HENRY McLEMORE

"Honey, would you please come here and lace up my corset?"

For the life of me I can't get used to making that request of Mary, but I have to several times a day. It makes me feel like a plain fool, a sort of balding Scarlett O'Hara, but a corset-like contraption was ordered for me by my doctor soon after the automobile accident that banged up my ribs and chest.

I never thought I'd become a Cassard pin-up boy. But here I am looking like one as I peck away at this typewriter. Up until I started wearing this dreadful garment my highest admiration had always been reserved for winners of the Congressional Medal of Honor. But from now on those brave men will have to share my respect with those women who go through life wearing foundation garments. What heroines!

For the benefit of men who have never had to wear a corset, I'll try to describe the sensation. It must be quite like squirming into a short length of sewer pipe that is too tight for you, and then having an elephant sit down on you.

No, that doesn't sound sufficiently unpleasant. It could be a light elephant that sat on you, and that wouldn't make your eyes pop — and one of the first principles of a really worthwhile corset is that when you're really laced into it your eyes should pike out like the headlights of the old Pierce Arrow automobile.

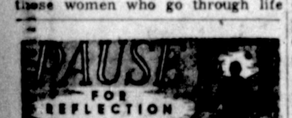

You're cheating on the lacing up, too, unless the tip of your tongue protrudes like that of an English bulldog. As for breathing, it's purely touch and go. When properly encased you gasp and give off the sound of a mackerel asleep on a rug.

Wearing a corset provides a dozen minor irritations, one of them being itching. There is simply no way for the corset wearer to give himself a little scratch. This results in a mad look in the eyes, and an almost constant wiggling of the body, giving an overall impression of a lunatic trying to squeeze through a non-existent transom.

True, you could get unlaced every time a spot in the small of your back, or around your wishbone, decided to act up, but this would call for the hiring of a professional unlacer, lacer upper, and scratcher, and where do you find such a specialist? I doubt if any newspaper would take an ad seeking the services of such a man, and there aren't any listed in the Yellow Book because I've looked.

A corset does have a few advantages, however. It certainly improves the figure. This is especially true of men blessed with builds like mine, which is roughly like that of a squash. I look positively trim. And I am thinking of wearing it next summer when swimming time comes around. Of course, I'll have to wear a rather old-fashioned bathing suit to hide it.

Either that, or write to Mama and ask her if she has any old corset covers left. They'd be just the thing if she has. Of course, I wouldn't like to see her face when my letter asking for one reaches her, even if I explained that we were short of dust cloths.

...with JAMES C. INGEBRETSEN
President, Spiritual Mobilization

"You get out of life only what you put into it." So runs the old saw. But, like some other proverbs, it is not quite 100 per cent true.

Actually we all get back much, much more than we give. Ever think of it that way?

Start out some morning and try to evaluate the amount of effort and skill furnished by others that has gone into the bed you have slept in, the house you live in, the running water you enjoy, the thousand other comforts that are yours, the transportation that takes you to work, the tools you work with, the art, music, and literature that have come down to you through thousands of years. And this is to say nothing of the air you breathe, the sunshine and rain that warm and cool and invigorate the earth, and all the beauties of nature that God provides free.

No, we don't get out of life only what we put into it. We get out so much more that there is no real way of computing it. And practically all the purchasable part of it has been provided by the brains and brawn of free men working freely together. Let's try to never forget that. And let's also try to leave something more for those who are to follow us in gratitude for what has come to us from those who have gone before.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

Bureaucrats Now Control Beauty

Some 20 years ago a friend of mine told me how rapidly the government was going to encroach on our liberty. I could not believe it. He was right and I was wrong.

As another instance as to how we are losing our rights in private property and approaching a communistic state, look at the unanimous decision made last month by the Supreme Court of the United States. It was a decision giving Congress the right to buy property in Washington, including business property, in order to beautify the territory.

The suit was Berman vs. Parker. Berman complained that his property was used as a store and not as a dwelling and that his building was sound and sanitary. For this reason he contended that the land clearance commission was not fulfilling its purpose of attacking slums when it condemned his property. His contention was that the Fifth Amendment forbid Congress to deprive persons of property without due process of law.

Now, listen to what the eight Judges unanimously declared. (There were only eight judges at that time). The decision was written by Justice Douglas:

"It is within the power of the legislature to determine that the community should be beautiful as well as healthy, spacious as well as clean, well-balanced as well as carefully patroled."

Now the police power gives the bureaucrats the power to standardize beauty and to plan how each community shall be built from an "artistic eye." If the planning commission in each community has the final say as to the beauty of the buildings and whether they fit in with what the neighbors and bureaucrats regard as beautiful, we certainly are departing from the original concept of the police power of our government — that its purpose was to protect men's rights in property. We have completely discarded the spiritual side of man and adopted a purely materialistic view so that the beaucrats can save owners of property from loss of material value because someone builds a house or other building that they think will reduce the value of their property. Liberty seems to mean nothing to the bureaucrats. We are coming to worship the Golden Calf rather than principles and liberty.

The decision, also declared:

"Public safety, public health, morality, peace and quiet, law and order — these are some of the more conspicuous examples of the traditional application of the police power to municipal affairs. Yet they merely illustrate the scope of the power and do not delimit it. . . .

"We do not sit to determine whether a particular housing project is or is not desirable. The concept of the public welfare is broad and inclusive. . . . The values it represents are spiritual as well as physical, aesthetic as well as monetary. . . . If those who govern the District of Columbia decide that the nation's capital should be beautiful as well as sanitary, there is nothing in the Fifth Amendment that stands in the way."

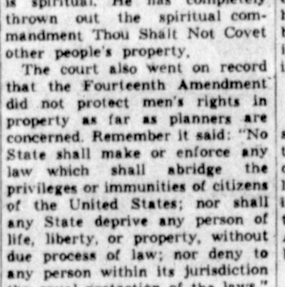

It is hard to conceive how this Supreme Court Judge can contend that taking a man's property is spiritual. He has completely thrown out the spiritual commandment Thou Shalt Not Covet other people's property.

The court also went on record that the Fourteenth Amendment did not protect men's rights in property as far as planners are concerned. Remember it said: "No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."

The Supreme Court covered the question by the following:

"The power of Congress over the District of Columbia includes all the legislative powers which a state may exercise over its affairs. We deal in other words with what traditionally has been known as the police power. . . . Subject to specific constitutional limitations, when the legislature has spoken the public interest has been declared in terms well nigh conclusive. In such cases, the legislature, not the judiciary, is the main guardian of the public needs to be served by social legislation, whether it be Congress legislating concerning the District of Columbia or the states legislating concerning local affairs. This principle admits of no exceptions merely because the power of eminent domain is involved."

It seems foolish to be so excited about what they are doing in Europe and Asia while we are day by day, and step by step, making ourselves the servant of the state rather than the state being the citizens' servant.

Dems Will Give Only Token Support To Budget Efforts

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Congressional Democrats will give only feeble support to the Eisenhower-Humphrey attempt to balance the budget and thereby win a reputation as prudent managers of the nation's economy. The opposition, which will control both House and Senate, will be lavish in handing out Federal funds to various groups of voters.

The Secretary of the Treasury now concedes that he cannot make both ends meet in this fiscal year, which winds up on June 30, and he sees little likelihood that he can lift the Government out of the red in the fiscal period that closes on June 30, 1956. Thus, the Administration which had promised to improve on the Truman-Roosevelt spending record, will enter the 1956 Presidential campaign with this pledge unfulfilled.

It will be a blow to the GOP's standing contention that businessmen can handle Federal affairs and finances more wisely and efficiently than the politicians. Neither F.D.R. nor Harry S. Truman had enjoyed the experience or background that most of Ike's cabinet members brought to Washington.

The first money battle will be staged over possible deferment of the date when corporate and excise taxes are due to expire. These levies, which were imposed to help in financing the Korean "police action," will end automatically on April 1, unless they are continued by Congressional act.

The corporation tax would fall from 52 to 47 per cent, and the extra taxes on liquor, cigarettes, gasoline, etc., would be removed. It is estimated that the loss to the Treasury will amount to about $2.3 billion annually. Such a heavy cut in revenue would result in 1955 and 1956 deficits ranging from $5 billion to 18 billion a year.

In view of Dulles-Stassen plans for increasing foreign aid to Asia, it ask that these taxes be retained, possibly permanently. With the exception of a few Southern Conservatives, Ike need look for scant support from the Democrats.

The Democrats will probably renew their bid for the mass vote by demanding a $100 increase in exemptions for taxpayers in the lower brackets. Even such a noted Conservative as Senator Walter F. George of Georgia favors this grant, agreeing with the more liberal Humphrey Lehman faction that the 1954 reduction gave preferential treatment to the higher bracketeers.

The opposition will also make a play for the influential vote of the army of Federal employees, especially Post Office workers. Eisenhower pocket-vetoed a higher salary bill last summer on the ground that it failed to provide additional revenue to finance the increases. He has said that he will approve a 5 per cent boost, but only if postal rates are raised to furnish the extra money.

The Democrats will fight for a 7 or 10 per cent boost, with or without a provision for financing it. In their opinion, their Congressional gains last month resulted largely from the so-called "Federal vote," which resented Ike's veto.

Numerous measures restoring farm supports to 90 per cent have already been framed, and will be dropped into the legislative boxes on the opening day of the session, Jan. 5. The Democrats feel that they would have won larger majorities in both chambers in the recent election, if they had made a greater effort on behalf of the farmers during the last session.

The continued absence of Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts emphasizes the importance of Senator Wayne L. Morse's defection from the GOP. Without lineup will be 47 Republicans and 47 Democrats, making the Oregonian's ballot decisive on organization of the Senate.

Incidentally, although Morse classifies himself as an "Independent," he is still registered as a Republican. He has not burned all his political bridges.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

Readers of this column are constantly asking for a discussion of low blood pressure. But it hardly seems wise to answer these questions as often as readers want since ordinarily what they consider low blood pressure is a matter of little concern from the health standpoint.

One paper on this subject which I have clipped is headed "Low Blood Pressure: Fortune or Affliction?" This paper, together with every other source of information on the subject of which I am aware, points out that low blood pressure alone, unless associated with symptoms or definitely tied to some physical abnormality—and this is the exception—is likely to be accompanied with long life and compatible with radiant health.

THERE ARE ONLY a few exceptions: One condition known as Addison's disease is characterized among other symptoms by a low blood pressure. This is a rare disease. There is another condition in which low blood pressure comes periodically known as carotid sinus syndrome. Sudden pressure on the neck or sudden motion of the head may bring on an attack of low blood pressure together with other symptoms but this is not the type of low blood pressure in which most correspondents are interested.

Occasionally, a person will have a fall in blood pressure when moving from a lying or sitting position to a standing one, and this may require some attention. This goes under the tongue-twisting name of chronic orthostatic hypotension.

IT IS HARD to say whether there are or are not any symptoms which can be laid at the door of low blood pressure and nothing else. Some people who have low blood pressure also complain of lack of pep or some other vague symptoms but this is just as likely to arise in the mind as it is from the blood pressure.

Worker Has Been Betrayed To Extortion By Unions

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The revelation of colossal thievery by union racketeers and some insurance companies and their agents is only a new detail in a mounting disaster to the ill-starred sisterhood of these republics. "Welfare," of course, is a dishonest term. It is falsely supposed to include unemployment "relief"; disability "relief" for illness and accidental injuries; strike "benefits" and burial bounties. Actually, certain insurance companies are knowing and culpable accomplices in the swindle. Actually, the several state governments are guilty of submissive connivance through their elective political officers who grovel at the thrones of rogues so known to all who know them at all. And the national government is the guiltiest rascal of all because it has fought on the side of this devouring corruption and against the people ever since 1933.

The "welfare" graft is a realtively recent development. To be sure, the idea is old, but the actual collection of billions of dollars by this method of extortion did not flourish until the war years. The Worker was betrayed into the hands of the extortioners by the Labor Relations Board, the War Labor Board, and the United States Employment Service, which latter flatly decreed that an applicant for work in the "war effort" should be or become a member of the union racket on the job subject to any method or degree of extortion which unidentified predators should impose.

As of today the worker has no enforceable financial interest in the "welfare" fund of his local.

During the war I visited Kansas City, Kan., and exposed in minute detail a system of extortion on behalf of the Franklins, father and son, of the boilermakers' union. This racket had a blanket insurance contract with a California company whereby a million or more Americans employed at shipbuilding must join the union on its own terms and permit the union to deduct from each pay envelope a premium on an insurance policy. If the worker protested he was fired, however great the need of his skill.

Franklin, Pere, was president of this racket, under charter from the labor relations and war labor board and the U.S.E.S. did not bother to deny anything. And the People of the United States, in the doubtful case that they had the intelligence to understand what this meant to their Freedom, lacked either the gumption or the political means to protest.

Henry Kaiser made a closed shop contract with this racket, knowing every detail of the conditions to which he was arbitrarily committing multitudes of workers months before they ever applied to him for work. He glibly signed away their rights. He regarded them as "labor" in the New Deal sense. They were in the nature of the deal faceless nonentities in human form but without human personality or dignity. To the boss unioneers who lived the more abundant life at public expense with the help of the Roosevelt government these workers actually were sub-human.

In one classical instance, a typical professional union racketeer indignantly excluded from a luxurious club which the executives had built for their exclusive delight, the very toilers whose tribute paid for the edifice. He referred to multitudes of uncouth and, in many cases, not quite house-broke, drifters from Oklahoma, Arkansas and Montana as "them Okies and Arkies and Sheepers." Many of these people did have B.O.; their mating habits were impromptu; they depreciated neighborhood wherever they settled. They were, in Roosevelt's shrewd concept, "Labuh." And not one in a thousand of them to this very day could understand the degradation to which they were thus condemned by the very people who professed to have their cause at heart.

Most of us believe in a headweary, ignorant way that the Taft-Hartly Law changed all this. That belief only emphasizes the menace of our own ignorance to our own Freedom. Taft-Hartley doesn't forbid the closed shop. Taft-Hartley provides only that the victim shall have 30 days on a job in which to join the prevailing union. To the union racketeer this means, at very worst, the loss of a theoretical 30 days' dues. This can be recouped, and ten-fold more, by a fine for "un-union-like conduct."

James P. Mitchell, Eisenhower's second and current secretary of labor, recently condemned the open-shop laws, some of them backed by Constitutional amendments. Now in force in 17 states. This man's "background" suggests the psychology which prompted him to his conclusion. He was "labor relations" boss of two great Roosevelt bureaus which dealt with human beings as a trader in the stockyards deals with brutes. He had two private jobs with great department stores which, like the automobile firms, had been terribly beset by union harassment. He obviously learned, as motors, rubber and steel did, that it was easier and cheaper to deal with the bosses of the brutes in terms of thousands of head than with the individual critter who, on close acquaintance, would prove to be a person, not an animal.

Not one person has been sent to jail, indicted or even insulted in the expose of extortion through union "welfare" which amounts to a tax on the payrolls of many industries with millions of head. One underworld figure went to prison for contempt. That is all.

And now, David Dubinsky, Eisenhower's Socialist accomplice, who was heartily welcomed into European carpetbag politics by General Beedle Smith and Ike and the CIA, is proposing that the national government set up a bureau to "supervise" union "welfare" billions. When that happens the official government of the nation approves by national law the proposition that unions are not mere "bargaining" agents freely chosen by the workers. They will then be executive trustees with established legal right to manage and manipulate the workers in collusion with the party in power.

Clearing House:

Since Amarillo has called "time out" to consider further joining the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority, it behooves Pampa to take advantage of this delay to consider whether or not it wishes to join this undertaking.

Guess it is somewhat selfishness, but I feel like the people of this area, the people who live in the counties adjacent to the Canadian River or nearby are entitled to this water, if any, rather than sending it to people some 200 or 300 miles away. The peoples of Dumas, Stinnett, Gruver, Spearman, Perryton, Miami, Dalhart, Panhandle, and other towns and cities up here, on whose land this water falls and runs into the Canadian River should be entitled to the use of this water whether they are members of the CRMWA or not. Lubbock and those towns of the south plains have the Pecos, Colorado and other streams down there in which they could form water authorities now or in the future. It seems they are using our water from up here when they should be using what nature alloted them in their secter.

If we must have or build a water authority project, why not appropriate another few thousand dollars and have a survey made to determine the feasibility of building a dam on the North Fork of Red River, below the mouth of McClellan Creek, in West Wheeler County? One Million Dollars would build a whale of a dam down there, probably impounding 250,000 acre feet of flood water. If such a project should be a feasible one, then Pampa, for less money could own a lake of its own, closer to Pampa than the Canadian River Lake, and not only have water for its own use but many acre feet to sell for irrigation or other purposes.

I do not know the flow in acre feet per year of the combined streams of North Fork of Red River and McClellan Creek, but do know that the water behind the dam would be the flood waters from our own land and owned entirely by us. The water impounded by the Canadian River Dam is on a river flowing interstate and one-third of it is owned by Oklahoma and one-third by New Mexico. The one-third flow owned by the Canadian River Authority of 144,000 acre feet may not equal or exceed the combined flow of the North Fork of Red River and McClellan Creek.

Every property owner and water user in Pampa should weigh carefully his or her obligation in this Canadian River Dam undertaking and how it is going to affect the price of the water they use and the taxes to be paid, directly or indirectly, and how it is going to affect the future of Pampa. Under the contract, our water revenues are mortgaged for the life of the mortgage, some fifty years. We pay 22 cents per 1000 gallons for 4 millions gallons of water per day, when we use less than 2 million gallons per day for about 8 months out of the year. When our daily consumption passes the 4 million gallons per day in the summer time, we've got to get this additional water from another source, presumably from our present wells. Such arrangement as this reminds me of what the late Charles L. Thomas said when I asked him why he didn't raise show stock from his registered herd. He replied to do this he would have to buy each calf a "nurse cow," and the cost of keeping two cows to raise one calf was not profitable.

Yours truly,
Ivey E. Duncan

Spinal Injury Puts Pet Dog On Wheels

COLUMBUS, O. — UP — Dogs with three legs are no novelty, and a number of unfortunate pets go through life with two front legs and two wheels.

But Duke, a little German shepherd dog, had four legs and two wheels after being struck by a car in Cincinnati.

He was sent to the veterinary clinic at Ohio State University here, where it was determined he had suffered a fractured vertebra, putting pressure on the spinal cord which paralyzed his hind legs.

Duke's hind legs were put in a cast with wheels attached enabling him to get around while the injury healed.

Comic Book Menace Scraps Paper Drive

EL RENO, Okla. — (UP) — A Red Cross official here asked citizens to burn all cast-off comic books instead of donating them to a scrap paper drive.

The reason: children who pick up scrap paper bundles tear open the stacks and stop all collections if they spot "even a hint" of a comic book.

"Burn all cast-off comic books," a spokesman said. "They may be amusin' but they're certainly confusin' on a paper drive."

Ranchers Say They Cannot Recall 'Act'

GEORGETOWN, Tex., Dec. 17—UP—Two Brady, Tex., ranchers testified Thursday they were so drunk they didn't remember anything about what happened during the time they allegedly emasculated a Fort Hood soldier.

They were Roy Barton, 58, and David Dutton, 46, charged with emasculating Sgt. Clyde Bennett last July 4 when they found him and another soldier at the home of a widow.

The defense rested, after they testified, and prosecutor W. H. Davis began calling rebuttal witnesses. The case was expected to go to the jury Friday.

Barton and Dutton said they began drinking about 9 or 10 o'clock on July 4, and drank three or four bottles of Scotch whisky.

Barton said he couldn't remember anything clearly after they drove through Richland Springs, en route to the home of Mrs. Arlie Daugherty, where Bennett was emasculated.

He said he had "faint recollections" of carrying a bottle of liquor into Mrs. Daugherty's house, and also recalled "very faintly" that he saw Bessie Hosek there.

Barton said he remembered seeing someone fighting with Dutt but had no recollection of seeing anything "bad" happen.

Dutton also said he could remember nothing because he was drunk.

Bennett, who testified Wednesday, said he was asleep when he was attacked. He said one of the men held his head and arms while the other took out a knife. The sergeant said he was cut on the leg during a struggle and then was knocked unconscious.

Bermuda Residents Want To Hear Rain Patter On Roofs

By CLAIRE COX.
United Press Staff Correspondent

HAMILTON, Bermuda — UP — Rain on the roof is music to the ears of Bermuda's 40,000 residents.

They never are happier than when their basements are full of rainwater.

Each drop of rain means more drinking water for the inhabitants of this Atlantic island cluster, where nature requires that every home be a miniature waterworks and storm clouds bring good cheer.

There is hardly a building here of any kind, in fact, that isn't equipped with a white-ribbed roof, especially designed for catching rain, and a reservoir in the cellar. Such construction is required by law and has produced a style of architecture Bermudians believe to be unique.

Bermuda, the oldest self-governing British colony, consists of 150 coral islands nearly 600 miles east of North Carolina. It has almost no underground fresh water. The drilling of wells has brought up large quantities of slightly salty water, used by many for laundering and bathing, but water for cooking and drinking comes from the sky.

Some persons run out of water after three dry months and have to pay dearly for water brought in by ship. The U. S. Air Force base here converts ocean water to drinking water, but just about everyone else depends on the rain.

One resident with a 32,000-gallon tank under his three-bedroom home said he could go for a year without rain. But the average home tank holds only 11,000 gallons, so Bermudians hope for a continuation of the 58-inch annual average rainfall recorded during the last 50 years.

When it rains in Bermuda, it usually rains hard, but the storms last only a few minutes, so both the inhabitants, who need the water, and the tourists, who want sunshine, are kept happy.

Under rigid regulations developed over the past 300 years, every building in Bermuda has an almost identical roof, constructed of limestone or coral slates coated with plaster and then covered with purifying white limewash. Four-fifths of every roof must be designed to catch rain.

The roofs slope gently above pastel-tinted coral-brick and plaster walls and have a corrugated appearance. Water trickles down the white limestone terraced roofs into gutters and then through pipes to the basement tanks, ranging from 5,000 gallons for small cottages to 100,000 gallons for mansions.

Hotels catering to nearly 100,000 tourists a year have catchments on hillsides as well as on roofs. Huge white patches of lime-washed rock or cement that look like snowfields catch rainfall and drain it into pipes to underground reservoirs.

Water is considered to be pure after it has run over the lime coating, but if stagnation is discovered, the water is freshened with chlorinated lime.

Mosquitoes are not much of a problem in Bermuda, but the health department requires that all the conservationists keep their tanks from becoming potential insect breeding grounds.

Problems Confront New Seaway

CHICAGO — UP — The American Society of Planning Officials says the St. Lawrence Seaway will create major problems in some communities even before completion of the first part of the project in 1960.

The society cited Iroquois, Ont., as a case in point. The community of 1,100 population will be immersed completedly by reservoir water needed for power development.

Residents already have picked a spot for a new town 7½ miles downstream. The society said a city of 40,000 is envisioned on a 5,000-acre tract.

At Waddington in northern New York state, some residents will have to abandon their farms, offices, churches, schools and homes because the river level will be raised.

The society said communities like Massena and Ogdensburg, N. Y., where initial work on the seaway will be done, can expect a 50 per cent increase in population.

Workers and their families may number 30,000, the society said, and new industry may bring in 20,000 more. The New York State Power Authority is reported negotiating with private concerns for construction of permanent housing for the increased population, as well as for temporary dwellings.

By JANE KADINGO

Pampa News Women's Editor

TWO THINGS ARE TYPICAL of the Christmas season . . . shopping and baking. And today I will deal with both. For you men, if you're looking for something different in the jewelry line to give to your wife or the woman in your life, here are some suggestions.

NOTHING EMBELLISHES country tweeds or city casual shirts or sweaters and skirts like the new leather jewelry. Pigskin, capeskin, piqué calf and suede are used in a series of bracelets, earrings and necklaces that are the perfect final touch to this type of dress. Jewelry counters and specialty shops are stocked with a diversified stock of leather jewelry in brilliant shock colors as well as pastels. These are available from $3.50 to $10.00.

If she loves her home above and beyond her personal vanity, leather again plays an important role. Leather chairs, hassocks and desk accessories that mellow with age look better as they grow older.

In addition to desk accessories there are a number of novel leather accessories for the bar, interesting lamps and ashtrays for the den or living room, and soft, cuddly shearling lambskin rugs that can be used for dressing room or bedroom in pastels and white or in darker shades for throw rugs in the living room, dining room or study.

FOR THE BABY — There was a time when being born with a silver spoon in your mouth was the height of good fortune. But apparently today the really lucky youngster is born with both a silver spoon and a fork in his mouth, so to speak. Giving some timely advice to shoppers who have little tots on their Christmas list, the Jewelry Industry Council says two piece sets of baby spoon and fork are the most popular silver items sold for babies today.

The second most popular choice is the feeding spoon and interestingly enough, this too has undergone a change in recent years. The bent-handle spoon which has been a favorite for so long is declining in popularity and the long-handle feeding spoon is replacing it more and more.

There are two apparent reasons for this. One is the fact that child psychologists are against training a child to hold a bent-handle spoon and then having to re-train him to hold a straight spoon later on.

The other important reason undoubtedly is the fact that so many mothers now feed children directly from the jars in which prepared baby foods are sold and the long-handle straight spoon is more suitable for this.

The next most popular silver gift for small fry is the old standby, the baby cup. The larger sizes for milk, and in addition sales figures indicate an increasing interest in the smaller sized ones which are made for holding fruit juices.

If the baby on your gift list already has been supplied with these silver accessories, your problem may be answered by giving him silver for use a little later on. The child-sized knife, fork and spoon set are ideal and will come in handy during that in-between stage when he is still too small to handle grown-up silver, but is old enough to be learning how to use knife, fork and spoon for himself.

THIS IS ON baking, but is also an idea for a gift. Here are two cooky recipes. After you make them, you could fill the plastic (the transparent kind) refrigerator bowls with them, tie a big red bow around them, and present them as gifts to some of your friends.

CINGIES

1 cup coarsely chopped filberts (nuts)
3-4 cup soft shortening
1 cup sugar
¼ cup dark molasses
1 egg
2 cups all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon ground cloves
1 teaspoon ground ginger

Cream together the shortening and sugar; add molasses and egg. Sift together dry ingredients and combine with cramed mixture. Form into small balls. Roll in the chopped filberts. Place 2 inches apart on a greased cookie sheet. Bake at 375 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 4 dozen gingies.

GEMS

2 3-ounce packages cream cheese
1 cup margarine (1-2 pound)
2 cups flour

Filbert Filling:

1 cup chopped toasted filberts (nuts)
3-4 cup sugar
6 tablespoons margarine (1-4 cup plus 2 tablespoons)
4½ tablespoons cream or top milk
2 tablespoons flour

Cream the cheese and margarine well; add flour and mix thoroughly. Drop a scant tablespoon of dough into tea size muffin tins and press into the bottom and sides of pan to form shells. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes or until golden brown

While shells are baking, mix together the filling ingredients and cook, stirring constantly over medium heat until mixture boils. Fill baked shells with the nut mixture and cool from 3 to 5 minutes and remove from the pan. Yield: 3 dozen gems.

Left-Handed Boys Outnumber Girls Who Are Left-Handed

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17—UP—It may interest you to know that there are twice as many left-handed little boys as there are left-handed little girls.

That is according to Miss Jerlyn Madison, a hand-writing expert, who has been running around the country and writing letters to school teachers looking into the question of who is port-sided and who isn't.

Jerlyn, who works for a pen company, learned what everybody else knew before the pen people spent all of that money on research—nobody knows what makes a person left-handed!

"But," she added, "if you have a left-handed child you have nothing to worry about. Point the kids up to a hero. Leonardo da Vinci and Michelangelo, two of the greatest painters of all times, were left-handed. And how about Babe Ruth and Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove."

But, Miss Madison said, a left-handed child does have a mild problem...he lives in a world where an awful lot of things are designed with only right-handers in mind.

In the old days, school-masters even gave a lefty the ruler-cure over the knuckles. They don't do that any more.

Now if a kid writes with his left hand, they let him. And the pen people are trying to help. Out comes now a left-handed fountain pen. The point is slanted the other way for the southpaws who write straight up and down. There is another complicated point for those who practically stand on their heads when they sign their names.

Some children when they get to high school have trouble with short hand if they are left-handed. Some seem to get along fine. One of the old-time stenographers in Congress who refused to learn how to use the new-fangled mechanical stenotype machines, still uses a dip pen and does right good at it with his left-hand short-hand.

If your young'un is left-handed, Miss Madison has a few little suggestions.

"He has to learn an entirely different technique," she told me. "When he is very young leave him alone. If he picks his spoon with the left hand, it's all right. But give all the help you can."

And when he goes to school talk with the teacher and let her know his problem.

"There is no reason why he can't live a fine normal life," she said.

After all, as my pen pal points out:

"Maybe he will grow up to be president. President Garfield was a lefty."

U. S. Believes Reds Have Price For Some 57 Jailed Americans

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Foreign Analyst

The week's good and bad news on the international balance sheet:

Good News

1. There seemed reason to hope that regardless of immediate developments, the United States might get the Chinese Communists to free not only 11 Air Force men imprisoned on Red spy charges but 46 other Americans as well. The 46 include four other Air Force men held in violation of the Korean armistice, 28 civilians in jail, three under House arrest and 11 denied exit permits. The feeling is that the Reds have a price for freeing the Americans, and that the first thing to do is to find out what the price is. The state department is now talking of the possibility that as part of any agreement, the United States might send home to Red China 35 Chinese students who have been denied permission to leave this country because they learned defense secrets in course of their studies.

2. It was indicated that Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, sentenced to life imprisonment by the Hungarian Communists as part of their campaign against the Christian religion, would soon be free if he is not already. A Roman Catholic news service in Austria reported that Mindszenty already had been permitted to return to his archdiocese at Esztergom. The report was not confirmed. But it has been long known that the Reds realize they blundered in making Mindszenty a martyr, and that they would welcome a chance to let him go.

3. Soviet Russia was given a humiliating defeat in the United Nations on its complaint that the Chinese Nationalists were guilty of "piracy" by seizing ships taking oil and other strategic cargoes to Red China and that the United States was responsible. Faced by certain and overwhelming defeat, the Soviet delegation did not even press its complaint to a vote in the UN Special Political Committee. The Soviet complaint was referred to the UN International Law Commission, which means that it has been shelved.

Bad News

1. West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer faced a fight in parliament which could delay ratification of the treaties for arming the Bonn republic. Adenauer is expected to override Socialist opposition to the treaties without difficulty. But some members of parliament bitterly criticized the German-French agreement on the future of the Saar coal region which is an essential part of the arms "package."

2 Angry anti-American riots broke out in Greece because the United States refused to support a Greek demand in the UN that Great Britain grant the right of "self-determination" to the people of Cyprus. Greece is certain that the people would choose union with it. The Greek delegation in the UN accepted a compromise which would delay consideration of its demand for at least one year. But

3. The situation in south Viet Nam in Indo-China remained serious. The government of premier Ngo Dinh Diem was shaky. Arms units fought Guerrillas and mutinous troops in two areas. Unless firm government can be restored, there is danger that the entire state may fall into the hands of the Communists who now hold north Viet Nam.

Second Century

FALLS CITY, Neb. — UP—Mrs. Martha Jane Woodring embarked on her second century of life confident that the worst was over. She recalled that as a young woman she had survived droughts, Indian raids and homesteading hardships. She also said she had married at 16 to escape the drudgery of being an unpaid "hired girl."

Confession Of Murder Withdrawn

RENO, Nev., Dec. 17—UP—Charles O. Peterson of Eureka, Calif., who said he killed an elderly Tulsa policeman in 1949, admitted his confession was false Thursday after Oklahoma authorities found evidence that placed him in California at the time of the killing.

The 42-year-old lumber mill worker, who has served prison terms in Missouri, Oklahoma and California, told authorities Wednesday he shot and killed 76-year-old Jim Peters, a veteran Tulsa policeman, when the officer surprised him during a lumber yard burglary on April 14, 1949.

After a murder warrant was issued against Peterson, Tulsa Sheriff William W. Field and Reno Police Chief L. R. Greeson reported that Eureka authorities had established that Peterson was working in a Scotia, Calif., lumber mill at the time Peters was killed.

Field said that when Peterson was confronted with the new information Thursday, he admitted his confession was false—but offered no explanation of his action.

"But what bothers us is that he definitely has information about the murder and the burglary which he only could have gotten first hand or from someone who was there," the sheriff added. "The man's a chronic liar but he still knows too much about the murder. We haven't got that figured out yet."

Peterson was to be returned to Eureka, however, to face a charge of forging a $184 payroll check belonging to a friend.

Field said Tulsa authorities had placed a hold on Peterson with Eureka police so he can be held for further investigation in the event he is not convicted on the forgery charge.

Peterson, also known as James O. Brock, was arrested here last week on a vagrancy charge after police received an anonymous telephone tip that he had boasted about the Tulsa murder.

Stinkers Have Field Day Down East

KINGSTON, N. H. — UP — Phew!! This one is a bit "smelly," but it's factual.

Som 150 "Stinkers" — that's their title — attended the annual field day here of the Deodorized Order of the Skunk. They represented Maine, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey and New Hampshire.

A special guest was Imperial Grand Stinker Carter D. Keezer, founder of the order.

An award was given to Stinkers who came the longest distance for the field day. It went to a delegation from Rhinebeck, N Y., who are winter members of the "Sunshine Aroma" in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Kitten Has Rough Time Finding Home

SYRACUSE, N. Y. — (UP) — Sandy and Cindy Smith, aged 10 and five years, respectively, pulled a fast one on the family cat, Fluffy.

Fluffy, well-known for an aversion to playing mother, deserted a new-born offspring on the porch. Father Smith, thinking the infant dead, buried it in the backyard.

Several hours later, Sandy and Cindy dug up the "cprose" and found the kitten to be very much alive. It was dusted off and rushed to Fluffy, who finally agreed to admit the kitten was hers.

The Light of the World

THAT was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world. And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we only beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth.

Church News

THE FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH will sponsor a radio program from 5:30 to 5:45 p.m. each Sunday over station KPDN. It is entitled, "Words and Music," with Mrs. John Gill providing the music and Rev. Dick Crews the words. The program will feature great hymns of the faith and classical religious music. The words used are taken primarily from the Bible and some from the writings of great poets and philosophers.

The film of the TCU-Oklahoma football game will be shown at the February meeting of the men's brotherhood.

Officers for the Christian Men's Fellowship were elected at a recent meeting. They are Fred Tinsley, president; Bob Rasmussen, vice-president; and Jim Bossay, secretary-treasurer.

Coming events at THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH include a Christmas music program at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, preceded by a Christmas pageant by the elementary training union departments at 6:45 p.m. The 7:30 p.m. service Dec. 26 will be student night at Christmas

The Lottie Moon offering for foreign missions is being received by the church during the month of December. The entire offering goes to support the cause of foreign missions around the world.

In the lesson-sermon which will be read in CRRISTIAN SCIENCE churches this Sunday on the subject "Is the Universe Including Man Evolved by Atomic Force?" it will be brought out that only through spiritually understanding God and man can a logical explanation of creation be found. The Golden Text is from Hebrews (11:3): "Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear."

The following passages from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook by Mary Baker Eddy will be read:

"Lo, this only have I found, that God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions" (Eccl. 7:29).

"Human belief has sought out many inventions, but not one of them can solve the problem of being without the divine Principal of divine Science. Deductions from material hypotheses are not scientific. They differ from real Science because they are not based on the divine law" (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, page 273).

THE FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH will begin its Christmas activities at the 11 a.m. service Sunday. The sermon will be entitled "The Stewardship of Christmas," and the choir will present a Christmas anthem.

A service of carols by the choir will be presented at 7 p.m. The Christ story from the prophets and from Matthew and Luke, along with the story of some of the great Christmas carols will be used. Soloists will be Mrs. Willard Chapman, Mrs. Don Bissell, Miss Betty Lou Hogsett and Mrs. Lewis Meers.

A Christmas offering will be taken at the Sunday services for the Juliette Fowler Homes for children and the aged.

The Sunday School will sponsor the annual Christmas party for children at 7 p.m. Tuesday. The men of the church are providing the tree, and members of the CYF asked to meet in the church basement at 2:30 p.m Sunday to sack Christmas candy.

Abner Conway is in charge of Tuesday's program for the party. Each Sunday School department, from the age-4 group through the junior department, will participate. Each family is asked to bring canned goods to be used later to fill cheer baskets to take to needy families.

Members of the CYF will meet in the church basement immediately after the evening service Sunday to go caroling. R. E. Dauer is providing the truck the young people will use. They plan to sing to many of the shutins of the church and will return for hot chocolate and cookies in the church.

A candlelight communion service will be held at 11:30 p.m. Dec. 31.

The annual Christmas party for the WSCS of ST. PAUL METHODIST CHURCH will be held at 8 p.m. today in the home of Mrs. Harvey Graham, 621 N. Cuyler, following the annual Christmas lighting ceremony in Central Park at 7 p.m. Each member is to bring a gift for exchange.

Mrs. Y. E. Turnbo, teacher for the Primary Class, entertained her group in the parsonage Thursday evening.

The Friendship class party will be held Dec. 31. Officers will be elected at that time. The event will be held in Fellowship Hall.

A communion service will be held at 11 p.m. Dec. 31.

"The Greatest Gift" will be the sermon topic discussed by Rev. Woodrow Adcock at the FIRST METHODIST CHURCH at the two morning services Sunday at 8:45 and 10:55 a.m. The Wesley and Carol Junior Choirs will sing for the 8:45 service. They will sing "God Rest Ye Merry." At the 10:55 service the Sanctuary Singers will present the anthem, "The Shepherd's Story," with David Shoup as tenor soloist. A ladies trio, Mrs. Harold Wright, Mrs. Loyd Wilson, and Mrs. G. L. Hallenbeck, will sing "The Nativity Song" for the offertory.

At 7:00 p.m. Sunday the Sanctuary Singers, Vesper Singers, Carol, Wesley, and Cherub Choirs will combine to present "The Story of Christmas," a cantata-pageant by H. R. Evans.

The entire action suggested by the Biblical text will be portrayed at the altar in pantomime and silhouette. The Cherub Choir and the following Intermediate Department pupils will take part in the drama: Marvin Cooper, Bill Fraser, James Wilson, Karl Kitto, Winton Edd Rowntree, Wanda Goodnight, Richard Newberry, Jere Teed, Nancy Goodnight, Linda Steele, Karla Cox and James Lee Byars. The pageant is being directed by Mrs. R. T. Coley, Bob Curry, Malcolm Denson, H. R. Thompson Sr., W. C. Jones, and E. S. Williams assisting. Mmes. Price Dosier Jr., and W. B. Oler are the choir mothers in charge of the primary Cherub Choir and Mmes. Chester Thompson and Joe Wells are the choir mothers in charge of the juniors.

Choir soloists will be Mrs. Loyd Wilson, soprano; Mrs. G. L. Hallenbeck, contralto, G. F. Branson, Waldon Moore and David Shoup, tenors, Jim Edminster, baritone. Mrs. Roy Johnson will be at the organ, and Roy Johnson will direct.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH will include the Christmas Sunday service at 11 a.m. Sunday; the Christmas program of the Sunday Church School at 7:30 p.m. Monday; and the midnight candlelight Christmas Eve Service Friday.

For the Christmas program Monday, families are asked to bring gifts or offerings for the children of the Presbyterian Home in Amarillo.

THE MARQUEE

BY DICK KLEINER

TV STAGE RADIO RECORDS PEOPLE

Never be afraid to ask. That's the moral of this story.

The staff of Ed Murrow's "Person to Person" wanted Bing Crosby on the show, but they figured he was too busy and would turn them down, so they never asked him. Then a CBS official talked to Bing about something else and, in the causes of the conversation, Bing said, "Say, how do you get on 'Person to Person? "Gee, I'd love to be on that show." His wish, needless to say, was granted.

After her first tour in America, Elizabeth Schwarzkopf, the famous German soprano, is all excited about our lampshades.

"Your lampshades here are beautiful," says the striking blonde "Queen of Lieder." "And I m going to take many of them home."

Home is in England where her husband, Walter Legge, is organizer of the Philharmonia Orchestra. "Be sure you get that spelled correctly," says Miss Schwarzkopf. "It's Philharmonia, not Philharmonic."

Schwarzkopf

Russell Arms

In her 24 concerts, including two in New York sponsored by the Concert Society of New York, there was something besides lampshades which intrigued her.

"American audiences are surprising," she said. "I'm actually amazed. I sang at some universities, and I learned that they had actually prepared for my concert. They studied lieder so they would know what I was singing. And the audiences all over America are so courteous. I've enjoyed it."

She's enjoyed everything but one feature of life in the U.S. — central heating. She can't sleep because the rooms in the hotels are kept so warm.

"I don't see how your singers can stand the heat," she says. "If I stayed here much longer I'm sure my voice would go. It's too hot."

But she's happy. The excess heat is canceled out by the lampshades.

The newest Miami Beach hotel — the Balmoral — has just about cornered the top talent for its first three shows. It'll lead off with Hildegarde and Jack Whiting, then Kay Thompson, then Patti Page. And that's a pretty fast pace, even for Miami Beach.

The phrase, "by popular demand," generally is pretty meaningless. Popular demand can be trumped up too easily. But in Russell Arms' case, it's the difference between being a supporting singer and a star. That's his present status on the NBC-TV "Your Hit Parade."

Arms is a good looking fellow with a pleasant voice which he never knew he had. After a stint in Hollywood — he quit because all he could get after a while was parts in Westerns — he invaded New York as an actor. Nothing. Then there was a call for a singing audition and, although he'd never sung, he answered it and got the job — his own radio show on a local station.

One thing led to another and he found himself one of the supporting singers on the Hit Parade show. A few years ago they gave him one song to do by himself on the last show of the season.

"The next season," Russ says, "they gave me a song every once in a while. And they kept getting mail. So did I. And I'd send back a mimeographed form telling the listeners to write to the producer. It was very flattering. And they must have kept writing, because this year I'm doing two songs a week, and just a few weeks ago I sang the number one song for the first time."

The show is only supposed to have three stars — Gisele MacKenzie, Dorothy Collins and Snooky Lanson — but now it has four stars. By popular demand.

And now Russell Arms is making records — his first, "The Touch," is on the Epic label. He thinks his future lies in records and, maybe, musical comedies. All depends on how many letters people write. If the future is as kind as the past, there'll be no farewell to Arms.

A-Powered Craft Seen By Builders

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 —UP— Plane-maker Donald W. Douglas Thursday forecast giant atom-powered air freighters "able to reach out to the limits of the world without refueling."

Douglas, founder and head of Douglas Aircraft Co., addressed some 600 military, government and industry representatives at an air logistics conference sponsored by the Air Force Association.

He said nuclear-powered air freighters of the future will be "capable of supplying military forces anywhere on earth in a single, giant stride."

Meanwhile, Douglas said, the air craft industry is ready now to produce huge conventionally propelled aerial transports which over a period of time could "do the work of 600 trucks or 100 railroad boxcars."

Women In The Church

A larger number of the Christmas cards you receive this year may be more Christian in text and in art than those you have been receiving lately — there will be more sentiment of peace and goodwill and of the meaning of the birth of Jesus, and less of bunnies and reindeer and rollicking Santa Claus and inane "poetry." For this you may thank the church leaders — both of the National Council of the Churches and of various denominations — who are pressing their campaign to "Keep Christ in Christmas," or put him back there. So insistent have been the churches that the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers, which includes most of the larger manufacturers in this field, decided to make the Christmas 1954 cards closely related to the religious theme of the season.

"Life grows by outreach: the first basic obligation of the home is to be a place where all individuals find outreach — whether to their physical or to their human environment — a rewarding and confident experience," Dr. Harry A. Overstreet, psychologist and counsellor, recently told a group of church leaders. "Life grows by individuation: the home must be a place where each individual has a chance to become a structured self; that is, a human being who becomes what it is in him to be. Life grows by participation: the home, therefore, should be a center where each person experiences the give and take of shared hope and effort. Life grows by appreciation: there are always more things in the environment than can be responded to, or should be responded to. One aspect of growing up, therefore, is that of learning what is important and admirable. Life grows by creation: every new person who comes into the world is potentially a bringer of the new. The home must be a place that embodies the attitude of 'Let there be' — something better than was there before. Life grows by adjustment to limitations: at each stage of life there is the need to live understandingly with that which has not been chosen or wanted but which has come to pass. Life grows by upreach: the home must be a place where all members of the family experience the up-pull of that which is immeasurably greater than themselves."

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

REV. L. B. DAVIS
Progressive Baptist Church
Pampa, Texas

"CHRIST IS KING"

Scripture. Matt. 27:37. And set up over head his accusation written, This is Jesus the King of the Jews.

1. Prophecy Foretelling His Coming. Isa. 9:6.7. Other prophets also predicted His coming. All Israel prayed for the restoration of the kingdom. Every generation hoped He would appear in their lifetime.

1. He was to Be Born. Unto us a child is born, predicted by what means He was to appear in the world by birth rather than descending from heaven.

2. He Was to Establish a Kingdom. He would set upon the throne of David. He would establish justice. He would have governing authority. His endurance was everlasting, His kingdom forever.

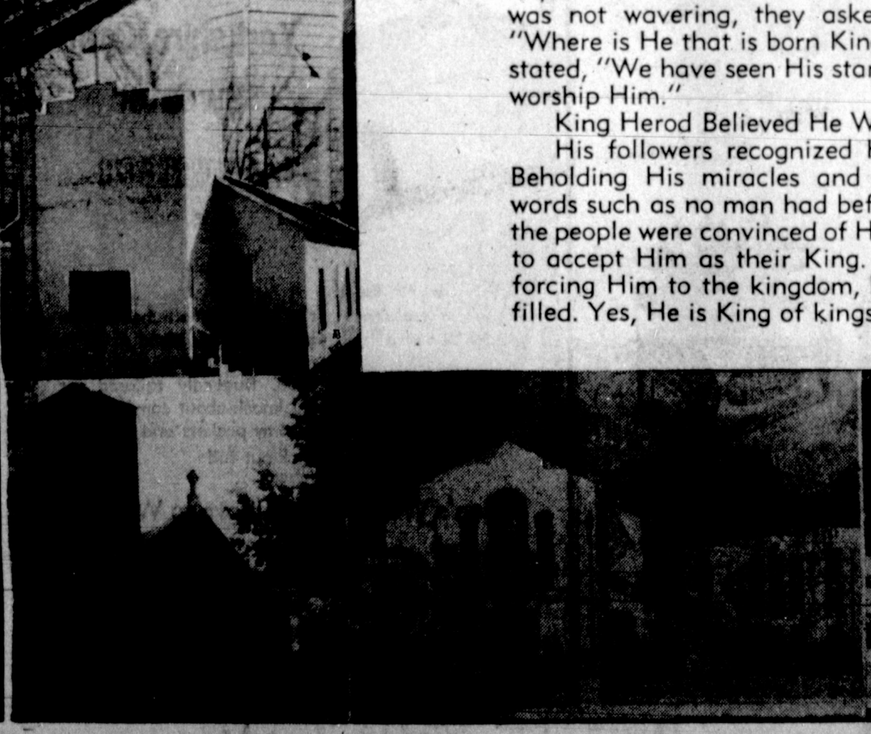

3. The Prince of Peace. "Prince" is a title referring to one of highest rank, a title often given the son of a sovereign. This king to come was to be the Son of the Sovereign God. During the time of the Israelites kingdom there had been much war. People in general have always loved peace. The coming King was to be the "Prince of Peace."

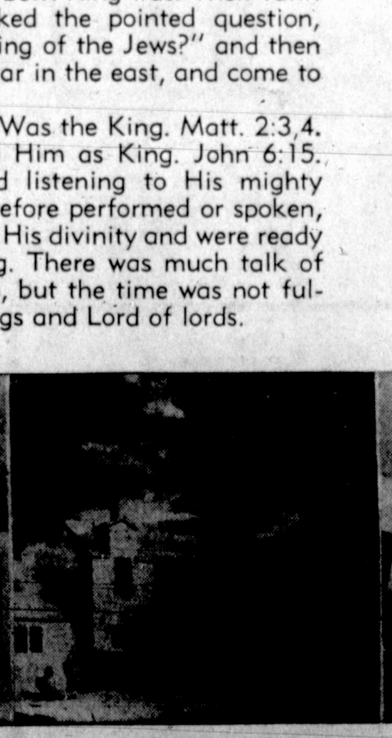

II. Identifying Him as the King.

The Wise Men recognized Him. They had seen His star and immediately understood that the King had been born. They were bold to come into the capital city and inquire about where the new-born King was. Their faith was not wavering, they asked the pointed question, "Where is He that is born King of the Jews?" and then stated, "We have seen His star in the east, and come to worship Him."

King Herod Believed He Was the King. Matt. 2:3,4.

His followers recognized Him as King. John 6:15. Beholding His miracles and listening to His mighty words such as no man had before performed or spoken, the people were convinced of His divinity and were ready to accept Him as their King. There was much talk of forcing Him to the kingdom, but the time was not fulfilled. Yes, He is King of kings and Lord of lords.

THAT WAS A FINE GESTURE on the part of Mr. and Mrs. Doug Mills to lease the Pampa Oilers for the next two years at $1 per year.

The Mills' main interest is to see organized baseball remain in Pampa, thus the reason they elected to lease the Oilers to a community organization here.

Hal Sayles, West Texas - New Mexico League president, in a conference with Dr. Malcolm Brown, temporary chairman of the Pampa Oiler Community Baseball Association, said yesterday that Mills' offer to the local baseball fans is the most generous offer he had ever heard made by anyone connected with the operation of a ball club.

Sayles offered his services in helping to work out any details which might be necessary from time to time from the standpoint of the League.

It's up to the fans of the city now to keep professional baseball in Pampa.

And the part the fans need to play in financing the project isn't much.

The first step that must be taken is to raise the $4,600 escrow which is due Jan. 1.

This shouldn't be difficult to raise if enough business men and fans take part.

Guess the Pampa-Borger merger plan is definitely out since Borger seems to be passing up their chance.

So, if Pampa is to have professional baseball next year, then we must carry the load alone.

And with the club being handed to our community virtually free, then we can't see how we can miss in making a go of it this coming season.

TOMORROW IS A CRUCIAL day in two classes of the Texas High School football races, Classes 4A and 3A.

The state championship games will be at stake in these two classes, Abilene of our own district going against Austin of Houston for the 4A title at Houston and Breckenridge meeting Port Neches for the 3A crown.

Abilene, in our books, will emerge as the state champ in the state's top bracket. The Eagles, of course, will be at a distinct disadvantage in having to play at Houston. The difference of the climate will hinder the Eagles.

But through it all, I don't believe Austin of Houston could tame the Eagles if they played in the middle of the Pacific Ocean.

We'll say Abilene by 28-14.

In Class 3A it looks like Port Neches will repeat as the state champs.

Breckenridge will have the home field advantage here since the game will be played in Buckaroo Stadium but the Buckies will be playing without the services of its starting quarterback.

And it is reported that the Buckie offensive machine won't go without him.

So it looks like Port Neches, 20-14.

In two of the lower classification games, we'll take Paducah over Albany in Class A and Terrell over Phillips in Class AA, both semi-final games.

Phillips will go into the game against Terrell with three of its starting backs sidelined with injuries, thus the reason we're picking them to lose.

Trotters, Bevo Please Cage Fans

Despite inclement weather, about 1,000 fans turned out last night for the appearance of the Harlem Globetrotters at Harvester Fieldhouse.

The Trotters mixed a lot of fun with some sensational basketball much to approval of the big crowd.

Post man Robert Hall of the Trotters kept the fans in an uproar throughout the festivities with his ball handling and shooting.

Hall dunked in 22 points for scoring honors.

Bevo Francis of the Trotter opponents, Boston Whirlwinds, lived up to expectation with some brilliant shooting.

Bevo, playing only in the first half, bucketed 12 points.

Final score of the Trotter-Whirlwind game favored the Trotters, 64-61.

In two preliminary games, the Whirlwinds defeated Celanese, 38-11, and the Trotters won over the locals, 27-10. Both games were abbreviated affairs.

Dickie Mauldin paced the Shocker scorers with 20 points. Barren Bischel was high for White Deer with 19 points.

Ronnie Rice led Lefors scorers with 17 points while Leon Anglin bucketed 21 points for Groom.

Play continues Friday and Saturday in the tournament. Finals will be played Saturday night.

Perryton will be allowed to advance into the consolation bracket.

Tech's Johnson Is Busy Man

LUBBOCK, Tex., Dec. 17—UP—Jerry Johnson has no time to waste these days.

Johnson was co-captain and quarterback of the 1954 Texas Tech football team, and was picked to play in two post-season all-star games: The Blue-Gray game at Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 25, and the Salad Bowl between the Border and Mountain States conference all-star elevens at Phoenix, Jan. 1.

In addition, Johnson is a member of the Tech basketball team. He wasn't a cager in his first three years at Texas Tech, but went out when the varsity squad dropped to nine men.

ANOTHER LAZZERI—Fans who remember the late Tony Lazzeri will perhaps wax nostalgic and prophetic simultaneously learning that his six-foot-two, 22-year-old son, Tony, Jr., is a basketball guard at Santa Clara. Pop played considerable second base while hitting the long ball for the Yankees in the late 1920's and the '30's. (NEA)

Abilene Favored To Win 4A Crown

By UNITED PRESS

High-scoring Paducah and the Freer Buckaroos drew the favorites' role in Friday night's two Texas schoolboy football playoff games.

Paducah, which has swept to 13 straight victories by scoring 711 points, meets the once-beaten Lions from Albany in a Class A semi-final at Wichita Falls at 7:30 p.m.

Freer, beaten once but conqueror last week of mighty Nederland, is matched with Killeen in an 8 p.m. game at San Marcos that will pick one Class AA finalist.

Four games Saturday—at Houston, Breckenridge, Vernon and Mason—will determine the Class AAAA and AAA champions, and complete the final round for the Christmas weekend playoffs in Classes AA and A.

Abilene's Eagles were favored over Houston S. F. Austin in the Bayou City battle for the AAAA gonfalon, while Port Neches ruled a slight favorite to gain its second straight AAA crown over Breckenridge's always stout Buckaroos at Breckenridge.

Both title tilts were scheduled Saturday night.

In an afternoon game, the Terrell Tigers meet Phillips at Vernon in a Class AA semi-final, while Deer Park takes on Mason in Mason in an arc-lighter for the right to oppose the Paducah-Albany winner in the Class A championship game.

State champions will be determined Saturday between Abilene and Houston S. F. Austin in Class AAAA and Breckenridge and Port Neches in AAA. Class AA and A state championships will be settled next week.

Last year, 895 high schools fielded football teams. The University Interscholastic League sponsors only high school football, but "the stimuli from this program bring other boys into the picture," Williams says.

"Whenever I give these figures," he says, "I like to make the point that by far and large the conduct on the part of students, coaches and fans is on a high level." During the entire 1953 football season, Williams said, there were only four cases of misconduct called to the attention of the league. "Only one which we investigated was of such gravity as to require a penalty."

"People oftentimes use isolated cases of misconduct to condemn the entire athletic program," Williams said. "In my opinion the records as stated above clearly indicate that in a program with so many schools participating, games being played and spectators watching, and only four cases of misconduct reported, is an excellent record."

"Our program," says Williams, "isn't geared to turn out professional athletes." Only about 750 of 45,000 boys playing on varsity high school teams each year will go to college, he says.

"But there's no doubt about it," Williams concedes, "we do turn out from our high schools some of the best athletes in the nation."

The Southwest Conference sends four of its basketball teams on the road Friday night and the unlikely event of a clean sweep would put the loop's quintets all even against outside competition.

Oklahoma City University sneaked through to a 63 to 44 decision over Texas Christian Thursday night at Fort Worth as the Horned Frogs' marksmanship was off once again. It was the only game involving an SWC team.

Baylor meets Brigham Young at Provo, Utah, Friday night, while Rice is at Lawrence to play Kansas. Both are the openers of two game engagements. Texas meets Alabama in the first round of the two-day Birmingham, Ala., tournament, while Arkansas is at its "home away from home," Little Rock, to play Mississippi.

Texas Christian could do little right against the OCU Indians, who used a largely sophomore lineup to avenge the 68 to 63 whipping TCU handed them in Oklahoma City two weeks ago.

The Frogs netted only 18 of their 67 shots from the field, and a miserable eight of 23 from the free throw line. OCU, on the other hand, didn't get as many tries, but converted 19 of the 42 fielders and 25 of 37 charity tosses.

Roger Holloway, six-foot, six-inch sophomore, led OCU's scoring with 20 points, while Dick O'Neal was high for Texas Christian with 15, his lowest production of the year.

DOUBLE BLESSING

Except Trip To Rose

UCLA Hogged All In 1954

By STEVE SNIDER
United Press Sports Writer

UCLA's single wing fury captured all the top collegiate football honors this season except a richly-deserved date in the Rose Bowl against Ohio State.

Unbeaten in nine games, the mighty Bruins swept their conference and the national championship and their coach, Henry (Red) Sanders, was elected by his fellow mentors as 1954's "coach of the year."

But a clause in the Rose Bowl agreement prevented UCLA from returning to bowl after last year's unsuccessful stand against Michigan State and thereby was blasted the "dream game" of the year between the nation's No. 1 and No. 2 powerhouses.

UCLA reached the top by a mere seven points over Ohio State in the final ratings by the United Press board of coaches. Ohio State (9-0) made the big bowl as Big Ten representative but instead of UCLA the Buckeyes will be playing Southern California, a second place team in the Pacific Coast Conference that blew down before UCLA 34 to 0.

Oklahoma Out, Too

Oklahoma, unbeaten in 10 games and Big Seven champion for the eighth straight time in Bud Wilkinson's eighth season as a coach, also was shut out of a bowl game on a "no-repeat" rule. Nebraska, thrice-beaten runnerup to Oklahoma, got the Orange Bowl bid over the Sooners who played there a year ago. The Cornhuskers meet Duke on New Year's Day.

Arkansas was the Cinderella team of the year, making it into the Cotton Bowl against Georgia Tech on a wave of upsets with a team regarded as still in the rebuilding stage. Individual star of 1954 was Alan (The Horse) Ameche of Wisconsin, who completed his fourth varsity season with an all-time ball carrying career record of 3,212 yards. Ameche won the Heisman trophy and was named player of the year by the United Press.

Only three teams — UCLA, Ohio State, and Oklahoma — survived through a list of major foes with an unbeaten record and they were ranked just that way in the final ratings of the United Press board of coaches.

Notre Dame, beaten only once in its first season under youthful Coach Terry Brennan was ranked fourth followed in order by Navy, Mississippi, Army, Arkansas, Miami and Wisconsin.

Sugar Bowl Best Coup

While the Rose Bowl and Orange Bowl had to settle for at least one runnerup instead of a champion, the Sugar Bowl executed the year's best coup by luring Navy into the New Year's Day show at New Orleans against Mississippi's Southeastern Conference kings.

Yale and late-blooming Cornell tied for the Ivy League Title; Duke, losing only to Army and Navy and tying Purdue, won the Atlantic Coast Conference Crown and earned the Orange Bowl bid against Nebraska.

Mississippi was unbeaten against its natural rivals in the Southeastern Conference but it was determined that Mississippi's game against Arkansas of the Southwest Conference would count in the Southeastern standings in order to give Ole Miss enough "conference" games to be eligible for a bowl bid. Arkansas won 6 to 0 but Mississippi still carried off the crown from twice-beaten Georgia Tech.

Georgia Tech to Play Arkansas

Georgia Tech, its offense re-jigered after the mid-year suspension of star halfback Billy Teas, accepted a Cotton Bowl bid from Arkansas, champion of Southwest. Southern Methodist, only conference team to defeat Arkansas, was tied by pre-season favorite Texas and thereby lost a chance for the the Cotton Bowl role. Baylor, tied for third, accepted an invitation to play Auburn of the Southeastern Conference in the Gator Bowl game.

West Virginia, led by Freddy Wyant, won the Southern Conference championship, Wichita came through surprisingly in the Missouri Valley with Texas Tech winning the Border Conference, Denver in the Skyline and Colorado Western State in the Rocky Mountain.

In total offense for the year, high geared Army led the nation. Purdue, led by Len Dawson, led in passing. In total defense, Mississippi wound up as national leader, while UCLA led in rushing defense and Alabama topped them all in pass defense.

Lineup for the leading college post-season football games:

Bannister Is Named '54's Top Sportsman

LONDON, Dec. 17—UP—Europe's top sports editors elected Roger Bannister of Britain as their "sportsman of the year" Friday in a final salute to the man who has bowed out of competitive athletics in the year during which he became the first man to shatter the four-minute mile.

Votes were polled from 24 editors who acclaimed the 25-year-old Bannister with 210 points—58 more than the 152 they handed Leningrad Marine Vladimir Kuts for second place.

On a basis of 10 points for a first place nomination; nine for second; eight for third and so on, John Landy of Australia, present mile record holder, placed third with 94 points. He received 14 more than American shot-putting star Parry O'Brien, of Los Angeles, who polled 80.

Chris Chataway of Britain, who later revenged Kuts' victory in the European 5,000 meters championships in Berne, received 78 votes for fifth place.

Heinz Futterer, the German springer from Karlsruhe, placed sixth with 70 followed by American weightlifter Norbert Schemansky of Detroit with 68; cycle racing ace Louison Bobet of France with 64; Emil Zatopek of Czechoslovakia with 62 and Nikolai Bogdanov of Russia, who ran away with a hatful of gold medals at the recent world shooting championships in Caracas, with 35.

Bannister's choice was a foregone conclusion. Last week he announced his retirement from competitive athletics so he could get on with the job of being a doctor. But no matter how many future mile records are broken, a place in athletics history must always be found for him and his mile first in 3:59.4 and later in 3:58.8.

Then Bannister went on to take the 1,500 meters event of the European Games in Berne in 3:43.8—a new record—after a brilliantly-judged race in which he let the rest of the field fight out the first three quarters, and then whipped away to head off Dane Nielsen.

North Team Chooses Two

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 17—UP—Bob Heydenfeldt and Bob Long, senior ends from UCLA, have been named to the North team to complete the roster for the annual North-South All-Star football game here Christmas night. Players and coaches for the Shrine-sponsored game are scheduled to start practice Saturday.

East Texas State Bows In NAIA Tilt

By UNITED PRESS

Holiday tournament time in college basketball starts picking up speed Friday with a pair of top tourneys in Alabama—the Blue-Gray Classic at Montgomery and the Birmingham Classic at Birmingham.

The NAIA tournament, featuring smaller college teams, got underway in Kansas City Thursday night and is slated for semi-final games Friday night.

In the Blue Gray, Tennessee faces Miami (Fla.) in the opening game on the program and Auburn plays Washington and Lee in the nightcap. The winners will meet in the final round Saturday.

From Different Conferences

The Birmingham Classic features four teams from different conferences with Wake Forest, a strong combine built around potential All-America Dick Hemric, favored to win the title. Wake Forest (Atlantic Coast Conference) meets West Virginia (Southern) in the first game and Alabama (Southeastern), regarded as the second choice, meeting Texas (Southwest) in the second. Again winners meet Saturday.

Three nationally-ranked teams are scheduled for action Friday night in other non-tournament games. UCLA ((No. 6) meets Santa Clara as basketball returns to San Francisco's big Cow Palace after a year's absence; Iowa (No. 10) visits Pennsylvania in a big intersectional; and Holy Cross (No. 16) meets Providence.

Niagara, ranked 10th nationally, came through with an impressive 99-74 victory over Syracuse Thursday night. It was the fifth win in six starts for the Purple Eagles, who have lost only to national leader La Salle by a single point in overtime and must be regarded as one of the East's strongest teams.

The opening round NAIA games saw upsets in all but one game. Gustavus Adolphus beat East Texas State 59-51, Tennessee A&I beat Southwest Missouri State 77-57, Arkansas Tech downed St. Benedict's 87-59, and Rockhurst downed Western Illinois 72-65 The semi-finals Friday night are Arkansas Tech-Tennessee A&I and Rockhorst-Gustavus Adolphus.

In other leading games Thursday night: Fordham ended a two-game losing streak in a 55-51 win over Colgate; Temple upset St. John's 77-69, Western Kentucky beat Colorado State 75-67, Florida downed Miami (Fla.) 70-61 and Oklahoma City trounced Texas Christian 83-44.

Other leading games include: Michigan State-Princeton, Colorado A&M-Arizona, Mississippi-Arkansas, Baylor-Brigham Young, Denver - Iowa State, Houston-Detroit, Maryland-Duke, Texas Tech-Furman, Rice-Kansas, Southwestern (Kan.)-Tulsa.

Cigar Bowl Game Tonight

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 17—UP—Lots of touchdowns were promised for some 11,000 fans here Friday night as the University of Tampa meets Morris Harvey of Charleston, W.Va., in the first of four Florida post season football bowl games.

The Tampa Spartans and the Harvey Golden Eagles kick off in the Cigar Bowl with perfect post season records. Tampa has won its only two bowl appearances in previous years and Morris Harvey has emerged on top in three bowl trips.

The two T-formation clubs emerged as real power teams in the small college football world this season. Tampa won seven and lost two while scoring 284 points. Morris Harvey hammered out 257 points in nine games, winning the West Virginia intercollegiate conference title.

Texas Grid Program Is Best Organized

DALLAS, Dec. 17—UP The football that many Texans like best did not end with the college season and, instead, is rushing toward its Christmas climax.

It is high school football, a $3.5 million industry in gate receipts alone, in a state that has chronic football fever.

Add to the list of Texas brags: The largest high school athletic program in the nation, from standpoint of number of teams fielded and students participating, in every major sport but baseball.

Best estimates are that 90,000 boys play junior high and high school football on varsity and scrub teams.

There are some 2,500 senior high coaches.

High school football games fill the stadiums right up to Christmas. The Cotton Bowl can't rival the post-season playoffs in four divisions for statewide interest.

Almost a half-million persons—440,440 is the exact figure—saw the 126 games of the playoffs last year.

The University of Texas Interscholastic League, which administers and supervises the state high school athletic program, estimates that seven million persons saw the approximately 4,500 games of last year's regular season.

That figure represents almost the total population of the state. Dr. Rhea Williams, League athletic director, says although not every person in Texas saw a game, "many people saw from five to 25 games."

On basis of those attendance figures and the 50 cents per person admission fee, Williams estimates that the high school football program took in $3.5 million last year.

Slingin' Sammy Baugh, one of the schoolboy football program's star alumni, says "We undoubtedly have the best organized high school football program in the country."

The football program, particularly, has produced an abundance of Texas-reared stars like Baugh, Davey O'Brien, Bobby Layne, Doak Walker, Kyle Rote.

The Interscholastic League also is a unique organization in that it administers not only high school athletics, but a huge program of state competition in everything from spelling and essay writing to forensics, dramatics and music.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17—UP—Clarence Rowland, former president of the Pacific Coast League, has been elected executive vice-president of th Chicago Cubs. Owner Philip K. Wrigley has been re-elected president and his son-in-law, William H. Hagenah Jr, treasurer.

1-AAA Admits Amarillo's Palo Duro

LUBBOCK, Tex., Dec. 16—UP—District One Class AAA will be a nine-member football league next year with Palo Duro of Amarillo and Monterey of Lubbock the new high schools participating.

Palo Duro was voted into the district at a meeting Thursday of school representatives. Breckenridge recently was dropped from the district because of its small school enrollment.

The district now will be composed of Monterey of Lubbock, Sweetwater, Lamesa, Plainview, Levelland, Snyder, Big Spring, Vernon and Palo Duro of Amarillo.

The district voted in Monterey recently and yesterday's action completed the setup. The two new schools were granted places on the 1955 football schedules drawn at the meeting.

Vernon representatives gave notice they would move after the 1955 season to divide the district because of its present size and distances between some schools. A motion along this line that would have affected the 1955 season was re-worded so that Vernon could reintroduce it next year.

Cubs of the New England black bear usually are twins born in January or February.

Indian Moundsmen The 'Stingiest'

CHICAGO, Dec. 17 — UP—The Cleveland Indians' pitching staff was credited officially Tuesday with being the most efficient in American League history.

Official figures revealed that Manager Al Lopez's magnificent staff had compiled a 2.78 earned run average — a figure more glittering even than those compiled in the dead ball era. Earned run averages became part of baseball's official statistics in 1913 when Walter Johnson led with a 1.14 mark.
