Foster is new city manager

Buddy Foster of Pecos has been chosen as the new city manager of Colorado City.

On Monday night, members of the City Council of Colorado City met to make the final determination, and voted unanimously to ask Buddy Foster to accept the position of city manager.

The final vote came when members of the council reconvened after going into an executive session to discuss the salary they would offer Foster.

Mayor Jim Baum advised Foster by telephone of the offer, and then informed those present that Foster had said he would discuss the offer with his wife, Chris, that night, and that he expected to call on Tuesday and accept it.

Foster called Interim City Manager Glenna Garrett at approximately 1:30 p.m. Tuesday afternoon to accept the position.

Reached at his home later for comment, Foster said he was looking forward to coming to Colorado City.

"Colorado City has a good city council," he said. "The members all want to do a good job for the city, and I hope I can do a good job for them."

The salary offered Foster is $37,880 per year, plus insurance. He will also be paid a one-time moving expense.

Foster currently serves as city controller and finance officer of Pecos, and has had management experience in business as well as in the U.S. Army.

He has acted as city manager during that official's absence, and has been involved in all aspects of city management, including maintaining two multi-user computer systems. He has also developed and produced the annual budget.

Throughout his career in the Army, Foster held, at various times, the positions of automation plans and operations officer, brigade motor officer, company commander, and battalion supply officer.

Before joining the Army, he was a college math instructor at Western Texas College, and was a small business manager of a cassette tape publishing company.

Foster earned a Bachelor of Arts Degree from Texas Tech University in 1972 with a major in mathematics.

He expects to be ready to begin his career as city manager of Colorado City on or about March 18.

According to Baum, the council was impressed by Foster's strength

County Big Loser!

Interim City Manager Glenna Garrett announced on Tuesday that, according to a recent edition of the Post-Census Local Review of the 1990 Decennial Census, the population of Colorado City is 4,719.

1980 census figures for Colorado City were 5,405.

Mitchell County, whose 1990 population was shown to be 8,051, is one of six West Texas counties which lost more than 10 percent of their population between 1980 and 1990.

Mitchell County lost 11.8 percent of its population in those ten years.

Other West Texas counties showing more than a 10 percent loss were Winkler, with a 13.3 percent loss; San Saba, with a 12.9 percent loss; Terrell, with an 11.6 percent loss, and Crockett, with an 11.5 percent loss.

Private donations top $1000

Gary Parker, president of the Colorado City Industrial Team, announced Tuesday that over $1,000 has been raised thus far in donations for a new business prospect.

Recently the Colorado City Industrial Team was instrumental in the relocating here of Ed Lee's Service, a business from Sweetwater which will handle truck parts and service, among other things, and which is expected to employ up to 10 employees.

Donations are being accepted at First National Bank or City National Bank.

Donations above $100 will be made public unless donors request anonymity.

Auditions will be held again on Sunday, February 24, at 2 p.m. for those who can't make it on Friday, so there is no excuse.

Want to be on stage? Just do it.

Area teams in district playoffs

Westbrook

The 1990-91 basketball District Champions for district 26-A are the Westbrook Wildcats, and tonight, the Wildcats will go "toe to toe" with the district 25-A Runner-Up, Ira, in the Bi-District clash at 7:30 p.m. in Highland.

As the Wildcats prepared for the stiff competition, Westbrook had a couple of practice games, and on Saturday, February 16, the 'Cats earned a 90-84 victory over Odonnell.

Although playing well, Coach Jimmy Hill wants more on the defensive end of the court. In the two practice games, Westbrook has given up 157 points which is close to 79 points a contest. "We'll have to get our press going on defense," commented Coach Hill.

Hill added that the Bulldogs were not too big but extremely quick with key outside shooters. "They are pretty tough if they can win without the big kid," said Hill. The big kid that Hill refers to is 6'7" James Sturdevant who has not been able to play due to House Bill 72 - no pass, no play.

Tonight, Coach Hill is taking his 18-10 ball club to face 15-8 Ira in hopes of clinching a victory with the showing of a great team effort.

Loraine

The Loraine Bulldogs, the District 26-A Runner-Up, will face the District 25-A Champions, Roby. The two will meet in round one of the state basketball play-offs on Friday, February 22, at the Snyder High School gym at 7 p.m.

In preparing for the Lions, the feisty Bulldogs dropped a close match to Throckmorton in a practice game on Monday night, February 18, 57-49.

After obtaining an 11 point lead at the end of the first half, the Bulldog's defense became rather sloppy as Throckmorton came back to out score the Bulldogs relatively heavily in the fourth period for the victory.

Since dropping the practice game, Coach Rob Loy is concerned with Friday's match up with Roby, "We're going to have to play four quarters of basketball. We usually play a good solid half, but we won't be able to do that with Roby."

Sizing up, the Lions have two inside threats that have 6'3" and 6'2" athletic "frames," but Coach Loy feels that if Anthony Williams and Ruben Vasquez can start a spark or two, then the other Bulldogs will be able to work more comfortably to get the flame burning bright.

In finals comments about the game, Coach Loy is hoping for a huge team effort, "We have the capabilities to win; we just have to be consistent."

KEEP YOUR EYE ON THE BALL - Wolf, Robbie Smith, polishes his fundamentals for the 1991 spring baseball season for Colorado High. The Wolves will have their first intersquad scrimmage on Saturday, February 23, and as a special treat, the Baseball Booster Club will sponsor a Hamburger Lunch before the scrimmage beginning at 11:30 a.m. at the Baseball Field near Wolf Stadium.

Nedra and Ed Lee.

Truck repair business now open in C-City

Ed and Nedra Lee have recently arrived in Colorado City, bringing a new business into the area.

Ed Lee's Service offers truck and trailer parts and repair, as well as Federal Department of Transportation inspections. The business is located on Highway 208 South, next to the Mitchell County Veterinary Clinic, in the building which formerly housed offices of Sun Oil.

Lee has been in the business of truck repair since 1973, and prior to that time, was a self-employed truck owner-operator.

The Lees say they hope, in the future, to expand their current business to a major truck dealer service center, and future government legislation, Lee says, will probably authorize yet another expansion of the new business.

The service of state inspection is expected soon to be combined with the service of Federal D.O.T. inspection which the business now provides.

The Lees, whose business was formerly located in Sweetwater, have lived there for the past 18 years.

Two sons and their families still live there, and Mrs. Lee still retains her employment there, but the couple is looking forward eventually to being settled in Colorado City.

They look forward to being a part of this community, and they give credit to the Colorado City Industrial Team for all of the help that organization gave in facilitating their relocation.

City workers demolish residence on Hickory

City workers in Colorado City on Monday afternoon demolished a condemned house located between 4th and 5th Streets, on Hickory, across from Fuller Foods.

James Owens, city street supervisor, along with Felix Granado, who operated the loader; Bill Stinson, who operated the dump truck; and Kenneth Acuff, who operated the dozer, demolished the house as part of an ongoing city clean-up project.

The house, which has been condemned for approximately two years, was demolished along with another, smaller condemned structure on the rear of the property.

Mack Martin of Colorado City, who recently purchased the property, along with several other structures on the block, has plans to construct an apartment complex on the land once occupied by the larger of the demolished buildings.

Martin, whose property in that block includes a two-story house which is a home for eight veterans, including himself, hopes to make another veterans' home of the apartment complex.

Only two of the veterans who live in the home, he said, are originally from Colorado City.

Martin said he will be looking for an architect and a construction company in the future to discuss plans for the apartment complex, and is looking forward to enhancing the appearance of the area.

He also hopes to add some recreational equipment to the back yard of the two-story house, and says he will begin work on that project very soon.

Friday, February 15 was L.B. Elliott day throughout the land of Colorado City. Mayor Jim Baum, who made the proclamation, is shown here holding the plaque he presented to Elliott in honor of the day. The proclamation and the presentation took place at the meeting of the Noon Lions' Club in the Civic Center. Left to right are Dianne and Gary Parker, Elliott, Baum, Lovess and Tandy Curlee.

in financial matters, his spirit of cooperation, and the fact that he was well-liked throughout the entire city of Pecos.

Council members also admired his knowledge of municipal legalities, his decisiveness, and his record for making good decisions.

Foster, according to council members, looks on the position he has been offered as an advancement, and is looking forward to living in Colorado City.

"I think we are very, very fortunate to find him," said Baum. "I think the citizens of Colorado City will be proud of him and his family."

Foster and his wife have two children, Jared, 9, and Rachel, 11.

Foster also has a twin brother, Ricky Foster, who lives in Sweetwater, where he is the director of that city's branch of the Texas Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services.

In other business on Monday night, the council agreed to reimburse three other candidates for city manager a total of $504.39 for the expenses involved in their travels to Colorado City for interviews.

Members authorized Victor Huff, city water department supervisor, to purchase 2,500 feet of 2-inch pipe for necessary repairs, and to arrange for the servicing of the city's "ditch witch" in Odessa.

Huff will use his discretion as far as the costs which will be incurred, and will request further authorization should the costs be higher than he feels appropriate.

Council members tabled discussion on action and repair of potholes until such time as work begins on the new city budget. It was agreed that the new city manager should have input into the matter.

James Owens, city streets supervisor, presented a list of items he feels are necessary for his department, and which he wishes to have included in budget discussions.

Owens cited the need for two dump trucks, new or used; repairs on a truck for use by the water department; a new loader; a tractor and shredder; extra workers, part-time or full-time; and a storage building at the cemetery for the storage of equipment which is used exclusively at that location.

He also informed council members that the repairs on a city-owned truck were being delayed because the amount originally approved for those repairs was $250 lower than what was needed.

The council voted to approve the extra $250 expenditure.

Action on repair of the Dowell-Schlumberger yard was postponed until such a time as estimates can be obtained.

In the matter of the reimbursement request made by Woody Crabtree for work on the airport lounge, councilmembers Rex Thackerson, Brian Bassham and Gary Redwine agreed to discuss that claim further with Crabtree.

No action was taken in the council's executive session of the Police Committee earlier on Monday afternoon.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

At a time when the men and women in our armed forces are facing their greatest test, we at home are facing a test as well. Our test is to maintain our unity and resolve, as our troops are doing in the Persian Gulf.

We don't want Saddam Hussein to take this country's tolerance for anti-war demonstrators as a signal he would wait out our resolve in a long and bloody war.

I'm outraged at the brutal treatment of our POW's. And I'm saddened to see the media give so much attention to the small number of anti-war protesters who have sprung into action. It seems that every time a few protesters pick up their signs, the cameras swarm around them, and they end up on the news.

Our soldiers have said that they have a job to do and are going to get it done. I feel I have a job to do, too. And that's to stand up in strong support of our troops.

I want them to know that I and the American people are very proud of them. We are all inspired by their bravery.

I hope that you'll print my letter, and others like it, in the days ahead. Thousands of local American newspapers are reaching our men and women in uniform every day. Your newspaper may be one of them. I want the troops to know that we hold them in our thoughts and prayers every day.

Sincerely,
E.D. Kemp

Dear Editor:

I am a concerned citizen and parent of the Loraine Independent School District. The purpose of this letter is to state my opinion and observations about some of the recent actions of the Loraine School Board. On two separate occasions the Board has taken action concerning our school Principal, Doug Foshee. The first incident involved disciplinary action that Mr. Foshee instigated as an alternative after other disciplinary actions failed to yield any results. I have neither the time nor space to list details and specifics, but the outcome of the action taken by the Board resulted in total devastation for Mr. Foshee. Mr. Foshee had the situation controlled, and the parents were completely appeased. But, our Board took the opportunity to slap a formal reprimand in his file, his first reprimand in 19 years of being in school systems. He has been an assistant principal for one year, a principal for eight years, five of which have been at Loraine. He has a Bachelors degree, a Masters degree and has a Principal and Superintendent certification. He has many accomplishments at school and in the community, and I will go as far as to say that he even spent twenty days of his vacation last summer, without pay, searching the countryside for teachers, above and beyond the call of duty! He is involved in the community as a Volunteer Fireman, a Lions Club member and he rarely misses a school function. He participates in clubs and activities not with merely attendance, but with a lot of hard work. Nowhere in his contract does it require him to attend extra curricular activities. He has great rapport with the kids, and he knows the business. I need make no mention of Clara, Mr. Foshee's wife. Anyone that knows her knows what a kind and talented person she is. These two people are super people in every way. In no way does he deserve the kind of treatment he received from our school board.

The next incident occurred at the February Board meeting. Mr. Foshee's contract was up for extension. He's always been given a two-year contract in the past. There were two board members out of town, and their absence could not be avoided. I understand the Board was asked by one Board member to re-schedule the meeting until the other two members could be present, but the request was ignored. Unfortunately, voting that night ended with our Principal's contract not being extended. They chose (with two members absent) not to give him his regular two-year contract, but to wait until his current contract had expired and then they would act upon it. Isn't a man's contract important enough to warrant having all Board members present? Our school is small, and meeting dates can be flexible. Why, all of a sudden, did the Board choose to go from a two-year contract to a one-year contract? Why couldn't the meeting be re-scheduled? What has Mr. Foshee done to warrant this kind of action? Are there personality conflicts? Are there personal vendettas? Why didn't the board go into executive session to consider Mr. Foshee's contract? Are Board members going to board meetings with open minds or do they have them made up before the meeting? Does an administrator have the time in one year to instigate objectives, see those objectives completed, and then still have the time to re-evalute those objectives? Do one year contracts give administrators less power and board members more power? I would like for every parent and citizen to consider these questions.

I feel that Loraine has been taking school board elections too lightly. I urge everyone to know who is running, and then to please get out and vote. I feel that a lack of voter turn out is the reason why the last school board President, President for 22 years, was defeated in the last election. I am concerned about the survival of our school if actions such as these made at the last two meetings continue. Our school is a great asset to our town and community, and we do not want to lose it. Again, this letter is a statement of my opinion and observations. I have in no way been asked to write, coaxed into writing, or told what to say in writing this letter.

Retired teachers meet

The Retired Teachers Association of Mitchell County met on Tuesday, February 12 at noon, for a Dutch treat luncheon at the Villa Inn.

After the invocation by Carolyn Weaver, Peggy Ratliff introduced Lucy Thomas and Minnie Lee Moore, who presented a program on "Momilies," or, "as my mother used to say."

Members also discussed memorials to Stillwell Retirement Center.

Earline Sellier gave a legislative update, and discussed the possible effects of the pharmaceutical bill.

Frances Godwin gave a health report, and showed some exercises which can be done each day.

Volunteer hours were submitted.

Minnie Lee Moore read the minutes and the treasury report.

Those in attendance at Tuesday's meeting were Mamie Lou New, Nadine Gordon, Fannie Fay Feaster, Alma Smith, Marian Craddock, Florence Bodine, Lonie Pruitt, Carolyn Weaver, Betsy Aycock, Mable Merritt, Eddie Barclay, Earline Sellier, Lucy Thomas, T.C. Moore, Minnie Lee Moore, Peggy Ratliff, Fern Coon, Dawn Shaw, Frances Cooper, Frances Godwin, and P.T. Fowler.

CHIEF LONE WOLF

Time was when Oak Street was the main drag in early day Colorado City. The train depot was located on Main Street and three blocks to the north was the courthouse. In those first days of our community, there was a town square. The handwritten city council minutes refer to situating a city hall "on the square."

Of course, that first courthouse was torn down when it was discovered it had been built in the middle of the street. The second Mitchell County courthouse was erected where our current courthouse stands. And that probably spelled the end of Colorado City's square.

Travelers to Mitchell County back in the early 1880's had a variety of hotels to patronize. The late Lee Jones, Jr, in a paper written for the Permian Basin Historical Society, says the O.K. Wagon Yard was probably the town's first "hotel." Jones reasoned that a hotel is defined as "a commercial establishment offering lodging to transients, therefore the O.K. Wagon Yard easily qualifies as Colorado City's first hotel."

Jones notes that Colorado City had twenty-one hotels in the town's early years. Perhaps the best remembered, or at least the hotel mentioned the most frequently, is the St. James. It opened at 2nd and Walnut in 1885.

The magnificent three-story building was considered the "first great hotel in west Texas," (according to Jones), and it had 75 rooms, a large lobby, a banquet hall, a ballroom, barber shop and several other rooms.

The St. James also had a bar, which was known as the Arc-Light Saloon. In the spring of 1885 the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association met in Colorado City. Here's how Jones described the affair;

"Red carpeting was laid from the Frenkel Building, one block away (where Perrys is now), to the entrance of the St. James, so that ladies would not soil their finery on the way over. The ball, as well as the midnight supper, were literally fantastic.

"The ladies were dressed in their finest gowns and some of the gentlemen had filed $50 gold pieces into rowels for their spurs....1800 bottles of champagne and hundreds of pounds of food, fit for a true gourmet, were consumed."

So were a few bottles of beverages, other than champagne. In time, the empire of those Texas cattlemen declined, and with it, the St. James Hotel. By 1901 the ownership of the historic hotel had passed to A.R. Earnest and he still called it the "Cattlemen's Hotel," but, as Jones noted, few cattle barons were left.

Then on June 24, 1924, the coup de grace was given to the once proud St. James. Fire brought to an end an era and the existence of what had been the finest hotel between Ft. Worth and El Paso.

Only 22 action packed years had elapsed from when the O.K. Wagon Yard had opened its doors, to when the St. James caught fire. Two years later Colorado City would bounce back, as it always has, with the ultra modern "Hotel Colorado." (The Baker).

The hotel industry was a big one for years in Colorado City.

Superintendent's Report

By Don Nimmo
CISD Superintendent

If there's one thing you can count on, it's that sooner or later, almost every student asks, "Why do I have to study math?" Students often say they don't see the relevance of math to "real life." Ironically, today's students are living in a time when a knowledge of math concepts has become more important and "real" than ever.

Many more jobs now require that workers have some ability in math and science. Existing and emerging technologies are changing at a dizzying pace and workers and managers have to keep up. Moreover, increased global competition, especially from high-tech producers like Japan and the united European market, means that graduating students with a good grounding in mathematics has become critical for our national economic health.

Educators have also long known that the intellectual skills associated with mathematics have application far beyond the classroom. Schools and colleges as well as employers often use some form of mathematics as a yardstick to measure pure and applied reasoning ability. It's rare to find any standardized test of general ability that does not include a mathematics section.

Unfortunately, some students seem to take almost a pride in expressing their distaste or ineptitude in mathematics. Researchers speculate that math phobia is encouraged by our society and passed on by parents who grew up hating math. But the cycle can be broken and we are certainly doing everything we can in the classroom to promote positive feelings toward math, beginning in the earliest grades right on through high school. There is no reason for any student not to do well in the subject on some level.

Parents can help in many ways. Be careful not to pass on any negative feelings you may have toward math. Boost confidence in your child by approaching the subject as though you assume he or she will do well. Don't shrug off poor math grades as inevitable. If your child is having a problem, see the teacher and get at the root of it. Some extra help might make all the difference.

Show younger children that math is all around them. Let them divide recipe ingredients for you, measure windows for new curtains, count change at the grocery store or calculate what a 20 percent-off sale means in terms of the bike he wants. There are a thousand ways to let your child see that numbers are important in a practical, every day way.

Another important role you can play with younger students is to make sure they know the arithmetic tables. School time is spent laying the groundwork and reinforcing number facts, but to know them "cold" your child will have to take some time at home to memorize and review.

Older students should be made aware that almost any career path-technical, banking, military, clerical, managerial, health or trade-requires at least some, and maybe a great deal, of math ability. Job opportunities in science, technology and business-which rely heavily on an understanding of algebra, geometry or statistics-are growing rapidly and pay well. Encourage your high schooler to be serious about math right through his or her senior year.

Studying math adds up: a better attitude toward math will boost overall self-esteem and equip your child to face the challenges of the future.

To Anthonys Treasured Customers It's Business As Usual.

"You'll see the same friendly, personal service Anthonys has long been known for. Our promise is, it's business as usual.

Our hope is that you'll always be an Anthonys customer. Today ... and for years to come."

-John J. Wiesner
Chairman, Chief Executive Officer

The news that Anthonys has filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code should not be met with concern or alarm.

This action is as much a reflection of the nation's sensitive banking climate as it is of a tough retailing environment and Anthonys itself. It in no way dims the bright future that we see ahead for our company.

The fact is, a group of our banking partners have, for reasons of their own, chosen to no longer accommodate our needs for the short-term credit every retailer needs to run its business. Prior to this notification, we'd never missed an interest payment to a lender, made all payrolls, paid all of our suppliers and remained current on all our leases and taxes.

New lenders are now ready, willing and able to extend us the financing we need to go forward with our operations. Recognizing its responsibilities, the leadership of the company has acted in the best interests of our customers and 5,300 employees.

Continued Progress.

Since being purchased in 1987 by private investors, Anthonys has expanded, relocated or remodeled over one-third of the stores' square footage. And we've assembled an experienced, enthusiastic management team that's ready to lead us forward.

Reorganization means we'll continue to look for ways to operate more efficiently and perform more effectively in a manner that makes Anthonys stronger and stronger.

Spring Shipments Arriving Daily.

As an Anthonys customer, you can expect us to be in stock on your favorite basics and exciting new Spring and Summer fashions, expanded advertising and promotional programs with some added new sales events.

Our Spring '91 merchandise has just started arriving and may well be our most exciting ever — with more quality, more brand names and more fashion for every member of the family.

This past week we lost two young men in death on the same day. It was a shock even though they were both ill. Our hearts go out to those two guys. They lived a good life in our community. We would also like to tell you about a young man who grew up in our town, went to school here and then went to Colorado City, got married, has a family and we all love him over here. We would like for all his friends to join us in prayer for this young man and his family who still lives over here. He is real sick and they need our prayers now more than ever that he will soon be well again, it is God's will.

I saw the get well card in the paper from his co-workers. It seemed to say it all. We are real fond of Ikie and Etta in Loraine. Get well, Cleon.

We hope Marcie Brantley's health will soon be better. She has been under the weather this winter.

Did you ever hear a statement you just had to repeat. Here is one, the mother-in-law of one of the guys we lost this week said, "he thought my daughter could do no wrong." Nice! And here is one I got off the war news outlet. These guys were loading all kinds of equipment to move to the front lines. One said "are you frightened", some said yes, some no. This one guy helping said there is no need to be scared just get a hold of God and take him with you everywhere you go. Just like at home, he said live with him all the time and he will be there. He really believed what he said and I do too, he always hears.

County Agriculture

NOTES

by BRYAN LIMMER
County Extension Agent-Ag

February is time to apply a dormant oil spray to deciduous fruit, nut and certain landscape trees and shrubs. Dormant oil is an effective treatment against scale insects and other overwintering insects and eggs.

The most serious target pest is scale. Scale are tiny sucking insects that attach themselves to tree limbs and branches with smooth, tender bark. They suck sap from the plant and a serious infestation of scale insects can weaken and kill branches or entire trees. Each scale insect encloses itself with a protective covering that makes the scale difficult to affect with most pesticides.

Most fruit trees including peaches, plums, apricots, nectarines, apples and pears are subject to scale infestation. Pecans also benefit from an oil spray, although phylloxera insects are more of a problem than scale on pecan trees. Numerous species of ornamental trees and shrubs are also subject to scale infestation and can benefit from a dormant oil spray, but this spray should not be used on evergreen plants as injury may occur.

In February, shortly before bloom or leafing is the best time to apply oil. Scale insects grow weaker through the winter and are more vulnerable to the suffocating oil film if it is applied late. Do not apply dormant oil after trees have begun to bloom or leaf out.

Mix dormant oil at a rate of 1.5 to 2 gallons per 100 gallons of water or 3 to 4 oz. per gallon of water. The effectiveness of control will be improved if an insecticide is added to the oil. Labeled insecticides include Lorsban 4E (0.5-1 pt./100 gal.), Diazinon 50WP (1 lb./100 gal.), or Supracide 2E (1-2 pt./100 gal.).

Oil kills insects by covering them with a suffocating film. It will work best if applied when the temperature is above 55 degrees F. Do not use oils when temperatures are below 32 degree F. or above 90 degrees F.

Good spray coverage is critical for effective control. Air sprayers, commonly used by commercial orchardists, are often marginal in spray volume and coverage for effective scale control. Higher volume handguns provide better oil coverage and should be used to spray trees known to have serious scale infestations.

Trees with severe scale infestations may require two oil sprays. If a second application is needed, wait at least 3 weeks between sprays.

Notes from Mitchell County Library

The Mitchell County Library has thousands of books, and every month more and more books arrive to swell the shelves.

One recent arrival which will be of interest to those of us who loved Danny Thomas is his autobiography, "Make Room for Danny," written with Bill Davidson.

Robin Cook has written another medical thriller, "Vital Signs." This one involves an in vitro fertilization clinic at which all is not as it appears, and it features a returning heroine, Marissa Blumenthal, from a previous Cook work, "Outbreak."

The Record recently published an article about the library in which were listed several works by authors from Colorado City, among them Sharon Harlow Gillenwater. The library now has added her latest novel, "Heather Moon," to its shelves.

Judy Blume is a very popular children's writer. The Mitchell County Library has many of her works, and has just added her newest, "Fudge-a-mania." Makes me hungry just to type the name!

Toward the end of the school year, students are sometimes given reports to research in the library. Of course, sometimes the students were assigned those reports earlier in the year, but are only now feeling the urgency to get them done.

While we are certain that the latter case does not apply to any of the students in the triplet city area, perhaps it would be helpful for students to see a partial list of some of the new books in the library which cover subjects frequently required in reports.

Who knows? Perhaps some industrious students will utilize the upcoming summer vacation to get busy on a report they know will be required next year.

Some new books on the environment, which are added to the selection currently available are: "Land Use and Abuse," by D.J. Herda; and "Water Pollution," by Kathlyn Gay.

For a report on the nation's drug problem, several new books are available: "Should Drugs by Legalized," by S. Terkel; "America's War on Drugs," by Joan Johnson; "The Pressure to Take Drugs," by J. Condon; and "Alcoholism," by Herma Silverstein.

One topic on many people's minds now is the April 15 tax return deadline. Perhaps there is help in Julian Block's 1991 edition of "Year-Round Tax Strategies for the $40,000-plus Household."

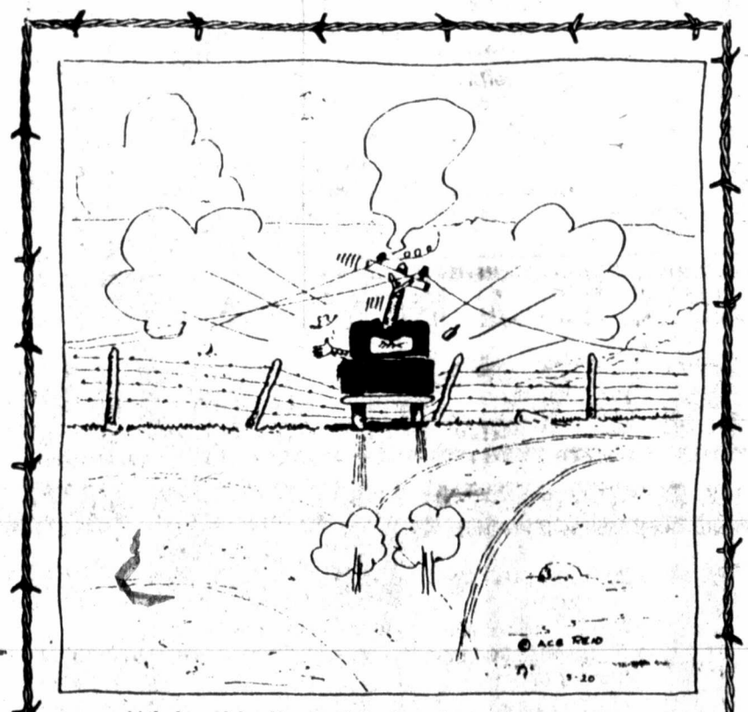

The 1991 edition contains planning tips for 1991, as well as filing tips for 1990.

Mystery lovers all know Erle Stanley Gardner as the author of all those Perry Mason novels, but they may not be acquainted with the Ed Jenkins novels.

Now is their chance. The Mitchell County Library has received "The Blonde in Lower Six." This volume contains a full-length novel by that name, as well as three other short novels featuring Ed Jenkins, and will present readers who have read all of Gardner's Perry Mason novels the chance to curl up with something different by their favorite author.

During the last month, at least 66 new volumes were added to the shelves of the library. At that rate you will have to read two or three every day for a month to catch up.

What a wonderful prospect! Better get over to the Mitchell County Library right now.
