CRACK BRITISH SUBMARINE LOST IN COLLISION

Cloudburst Sweeps Away Crops Of 300 Families In Hall And Briscoe Counties

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

A mother sees her three small children swept away into the night on a roaring flood that descended like a wall down the usually peaceful valley of Kemp creek near Quitaque Monday night. The mother is rescued half dead from exposure and exhaustion from the tree top to which she clung the following morning.

Who of us, except those who have gone through similar experiences, can have any sense of the anguish in that mother's heart as the long hours of the night dragged through. Anguish beyond a certain point brings a numbness we are told, which, we hope, was merciful to this suffering mother.

How paltry our own troubles must seem in comparison with those of this family whose home was swept away and three of whose members lost their lives in the flood! When we think of the troubles of some of our fellows, it almost makes us ashamed that we give a second thought to our own paltry trials.

How much better it is to be concerned about other peoples' troubles than our own anyway! Half of our troubles are in thinking about them and many of the problems that seem so momentuous and troublesome today will probably cure themselves tomorrow or the day after if we can stop worrying about them. Time is, indeed, the great physician.

Talker himself lost two cousins several weeks ago in the wreck of the Sea Fox out of New York. It had been his good fortune to visit with these relatives and to meet several others of the group who lost their lives at the same time. Most of them were psychologists and educators. They were all young, under 30. They were eager, courageous students of life. Life to them, it seemed to him, was a quest which they lived as a glorious adventure.

Even if one dies young, living has not been in vain if it has been made a quest.

DAMAGE IS HEAVY

Bridges and Crops Washed Away; Rail Repairs Incomplete

MEMPHIS, Texas, June 9. (AP)—Emergency relief for farmers whose crops were swept away by a cloudburst Monday night in the vicinity of Turkey and Quitaque, 40 miles southwest of Memphis, has been asked of Red Cross headquarters in St. Louis.

Petition for relief was filed by J. Claude Wells of Memphis, chairman of the Hall county chapter of the Red Cross, who made a visit to the devastated area today. He estimated that 66,000 acres of row crops in Hall and Briscoe counties were destroyed by the torrential rains that fell within three hours, averaging from 6 to 10 inches over a wide area.

Seed for New Crops

Wells estimated that approximately 300 families would need aid, especially in getting seed to replant their crops.

Several families lost everything—household goods, clothing, farm equipment, livestock and feed. Wells said he found at least five such families in Hall county, and believed there were others in Briscoe county.

After making a survey of the area, Wells said 28,000 acres of cotton in Briscoe county was a total loss. He estimated that 18,000 bushels of seed were needed to replant the acreage. The loss in grain sorghum was estimated at 23,000 acres, and he said Briscoe would need 33,000 pounds of maize and 60,000 pounds of kafir and hegari.

Third Disaster

The loss was lighter in Hall county, with a total of 15,000 acres swept by the flood waters. This acreage, he said, was equally divided between cotton and grain sorghums. He said Hall county would need 3,750 bushels of cotton seed and about 28,000 pounds of grain sorghum seed to take care of the emergency.

Some of the farmers have a small amount of seed, but not enough to replant their fields, Wells said.

Residents of the area swept by the flood waters have suffered crop losses the two past years from drouth and hail. He said conditions resulting from the present disaster coupled with the two preceding years demanded immediate relief.

TURKEY, Texas, June 9.—Apparently held beneath the surface of flood waters by the branches of a tree since Monday night, the body of Kelsey Fuston, 13, third victim of a cloudburst tragedy, was found about 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon approximately one and a half miles from the Fuston home.

Bodies of Cleon Fuston, 11, and Reon Fuston, 9, were found by searchers Tuesday morning. All three of the children were drowned Monday night when sudden rains sent the waters of Kent creek far beyond its banks. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Rass Fuston, who live about four miles southwest of Turkey. The body of Cleon had been carried about three miles from the home.

Night in Tree

With their mother, the children fled the house about 8:30 o'clock Monday night when flood waters inundated the floors. Threatened by increasingly deep water after going a short distance, they endeavored to return, but were caught up by the swirling current and swept down stream. Lodging in the branches of a tree, the mother pulled herself above the flood, and from that position saw the bodies of her three children floating past the tree and into the darkness. She spent the entire night in the tree-top, being rescued Tuesday morning.

Mr. Fuston and a fourth child were in Turkey when the storm came up, and did not learn of the tragedy until Tuesday morning. All three bodies are being held at undertaking parlors in Turkey, and

Hearing On New State Proration Figure Set In Austin On June 22

AUSTIN, June 9. (AP)—The railroad commission today called a hearing Monday, June 22, for consideration of the state's oil proration figure for the period beginning July 1. The present proration order expires July 1.

The present allowable production of Texas is 771,981 barrels daily. The East Texas field has been over-running its quota of 160,000 by 150,000 or 200,000 barrels daily as a result of many injunctions against the railroad commission and widespread non-observance of the commission's order. A large number of operators and lease and royalty owners probably will come to Austin for the hearing.

STERLING HEARS PLANS THURSDAY

DALLAS, June 9. (AP)—W. L. Todd, chairman of the Texas oil emergency committee, announced today that the members will confer with Gov. Ross Sterling in Austin Thursday and formally ask the governor for a special session of the legislature to enact stronger oil conservation laws. After a conference in Fort Worth today with Ed A. Landreth, secretary, and other members of the committee, Todd sent telegrams to all 55 of the members.

Todd said the committee, besides discussing matters with the governor, would work out a detailed plan of organization and plan an educational campaign to interest Texas citizens in oil conservation.

CRANFILL HAS OTHER IDEAS

FORT WORTH, June 9. (AP)—Leaders of two dissenting factions among Texas independent oil producers conferred here today, without either moving the other to accept its proposed method of solving conditions harrassing the Texas oil industry. On the one hand was a committee of the Texas oil emergency committee formed at Dallas Monday, who were arranging a date for the entire executive committee of 55 to confer with Governor Sterling to call a special session of the legislature to pass emergency legislation governing the oil industry. This is in conformity with instructions voted almost to a man by the conference of independent producers in Dallas, which drew several hundred.

The other side in Tuesday's conference was taken by Tom E. Cranfill of Dallas, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of Texas, and one of the operators who has obtained temporary injunction restraining proration in East Texas. He was accompanied by Clint Murchison of Dallas, also declared to be exceeding proration allotments and by George Sawtelle of Houston, who was described as a mediator between the two groups. Cranfill told the other men that he had held conferences with practically all of the violators of proration in East Texas, and had worked out a solution which he felt would be satisfactory, and would obviate the necessity of a legislative session. He refused to give the other group details of his plan but asked them to hold up all activities. This they refused to do. Cranfill said that he planned another conference with East Texas violators.

The committee representing the Texas oil emergency committee included W. L. Todd of Dallas, named chairman at the organization; Frank P. Zoch of San Antonio, vice chairman; E. A. Landreth of Fort Worth, secretary-treasurer; Charles F. Roeser of Fort Worth; J. D. Collett of Fort Worth, and E. L. Smith of Mexia.

GOODWIN DEATH SET AUGUST 10

Farmer to Die for Murder Of Ranchman

BOSTON, Bowie County, Texas, June 9. (AP)—District Judge George W. Johnson this afternoon sentenced Dave Goodwin, 45, tenant farmer, to die Monday, Aug. 10, for the murder of Lloyd Elliott, 23, Bowie county hog rancher.

Goodwin was returned secretly from Dallas, where he had been held for safekeeping since early this year. He was brought to Boston by Sheriff Henry Brooks and a deputy.

Goodwin's fight to escape the death penalty had lasted for nearly a year. Pale and haggard from his long confinement, Goodwin appeared unmoved when the execution date was announced. He immediately was sent to the county jail here, where he will be held until his removal to the penitentiary is ordered.

The big farmer, who taught himself to read and write while in jail, wrote a ballad reciting his misfortunes, while confined in Titus county jail at Mount Pleasant, several months ago.

GIRL ASSESSED DEATH PENALTY FOR SLAYING

KILLED FOR 'LOVE'

Woman Admits Shooting Wife of Paramour In Ohio

JEFFERSON, Ohio, June 9. (AP)—The verdict of a jury of 12 meen doomed Mrs. Julia Maude Lowther, 23-year-old West Virginia hill girl, to death in the electric chair for the murder of Mrs. Clara Smith, mother of two children and wife of her paramour, on May 29, 1930.

Returning a verdict of first degree murder, without recommendation of mercy, the jury made mandatory sentence to electrocution at Ohio penitentiary, where Tilby Smith, 27, husband of the slain woman, awaits execution Aug. 17. The jury deliberated almost two hours.

The black haired, dark eyed and dark complexioned girl of Indian ancestry blanched under her prison pallor but continued her methodical gum chewing as the verdict was read and jurors individually confirmed the first death sentence by electrocution ever incurred by a woman in Ohio.

The courtroom was jammed by more than 600 persons, among them the defendant's father and grandfather, who came here from West Virginia.

Mrs. Lowther was helped back to her cell from the courtroom after the jury was discharged.

Mrs. Lowther told the jury that she killed Clara because "I loved Tilby." "He told me I would not have to work again, that he would take care of me and my boy and that he would go to Florida after this thing blew over."

She confessed she shot Mrs. Smith as she sat in the cab of her husband's small truck, holding her year-old son in her lap, on a lonely road near Astabula.

She said she met Smith in an Astabula motion picture theater 10 days before the killing, that love blossomed in frequent trysts and they finally decided to "go away together."

Ardmore Officers Go To Court Today While Mass Honors Victims

ARDMORE, Okla., June 9. (AP)—Oklahoma's forces of justice converged in the courts here today to determine if two deputy sheriffs are responsible to the law for the killing of two Mexican college students from families high in the social scale of the southern republic.

Charged today with the murder of Emilio Cortes Rubio, cousin of President Ortiz Rubio of Mexico and Manuel Gomez, whose homeward vacation trip from American colleges ended in death early yesterday, the officers, Bill Guess and Cecil Crosy, awaited a preliminary examination in the county court of Charles N. Champion.

Meanwhile messages of sympathy were sent to President Rubio from President Hoover and other high officials.

Gov. W. H. Murray of Oklahoma, who urged a minute investigation of the slayings at the instance of Secretary of State Stimson, made plans to convey the bodies to Mexico under the escort of Charles Clowe, Ardmore, his personal representative.

Funeral mass was planned at St. Mary's church here at 9 a. m. tomorrow, with the Rt. Rev. A. F. Monnot, Oklahoma City, representing the bishop of Oklahoma, as officiant.

County Prosecutor Marvin Shilling planned to present evidence at the hearing, aided by Assistant Attorney General Frank Dudley and Claude Weaver, special prosecutor for Governor Murray.

Senor H. Valdez, Mexican consul at Oklahoma City, also represented his government in the inquiry.

The officers, who said Guess fired after the boys, parked alongside a main highway, drew guns, had asked that the murder charges be filed. The prosecutor said they might be granted bail pending trial probably in June.

Mexico City newspapers today carried dispatches from Morelia, home of the boys, expressing fear of anti-American demonstrations when the bodies arrive and editorially characterized the slayings as "barbarous" and "assassinations."

At the request of M. C. Gonzales, attorney for the Mexican consul general at San Antonio, preliminary hearing for Guess and Crosy was postponed late today until tomorrow morning.

Anti-Hoover Drive Linked With Campaign

By ARTHUR HACHTEN

WASHINGTON, June 9. (US)—A nation-wide campaign for payment of the soldiers' bonus in full will be launched at a meeting of war veterans in Chicago Friday and Saturday, members of congress learned today.

Leaders in the battle at the last session of congress, when the loan value of the adjusted compensation certificates were increased, will assemble in Chicago to map the new campaign.

Representative Wright Patman, Democrat of Texas, one of the leaders in the "pay-in-full" movement, is to address the assemblage. Patman will deliver a broadside at President Hoover for vetoing the loan-increase bill and at Secretary of the Treasury Mellon for opposing the measure.

The Chicago gathering also was understood here to have as its purpose the launching of a drive of "progressive Republicans" against renomination of Mr. Hoover for the presidency. While Patman said he would have no part in that phase of the meeting, his address was designed to furnish the veterans ammunition for the anti-Hoover campaign.

The war veterans were also said to be moving toward cooperation with western senators who are seeking nomination of a progressive for the presidency.

James E. White, of Chicago, a member of the American Legion Education of War Orphans committee, is chairman of the arrangements committee for the Chicago meeting, which is to be followed by similar rallies in other sections of the country this summer and fall.

Townley has only a handful of his old supporters in his new drive for political leadership. Few of the men who worked with him more than a decade ago to win control of the North Dakota state government, with a public ownership program have joined with him in a drive for membership among farmers and small town business men.

Brief Dispatch Tells of Fatal Crash With Merchant Ship

SCORE ARE MISSING

Two Men Die From Hurts After Rescue From Raging Seas

LONDON, June 9. (AP)—Two men are dead and more than a score are missing as a result of a collision today which sank the Poseidon, one of Great Britain's largest and finest submarines, near Weihaiwei, on the north shore of the Shantung peninsula in China.

News of the catastrophe was conveyed to England by an admiralty announcement which said that the Poseidon was sunk in a collision with a merchant vessel about 21 miles north of Weihaiwei. Five officers and 26 men of the ship's crew were saved but two of those who were rescued died later. Eighteen were still missing tonight.

Details Missing

Three ships were on the scene of the collision tonight. They are the aircraft carrier Hermes and the fast modern cruisers Berwick and Cumberland.

Just how the Poseidon sank to her doom, the laconic admiralty communique does not disclose. Even the name of the merchant vessel which collided with her has not been made public.

The names of the dead and missing were given, however, and the publication of the list cast Portsmouth into mourning. Most of the crew came from there and nearby dockyard towns.

King George V, in a note sent tonight to the commanders in chief at Portsmouth and Plymouth, conveyed his "deep sympathy" and that of the queen for the families of the dead and missing.

Apart from the grief of Britons at the loss of the men, the disaster to the Poseidon is a serious blow to the British navy.

She was built in 1929, and with her sister ships Perseus, Pandora and Proteus, represented practically the last word in submarine construction technique.

SHIPS MEET ON SURFACE

SHANGHAI, June 9. (AP)—The disaster to the British submarine Poseidon today was due to a collision with the small Chinese coaster Yuta.

Details received here of the sinking of the submarine were meager, but it was believed the ship was exercising on the surface during misty weather when the collision occurred.

Father-In-Law Charged In Death Of Farm Woman Near Dimmitt

DIMMITT, Texas, June 9. (AP)—J. F. Barrett, about 45, Castro county farmer, is in the Deaf Smith county jail at Hereford facing a formal charge of murder filed this afternoon shortly after he had signed a statement in which officers said he admitted shooting to death his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Nora Barrett, 20, Monday morning.

The shooting climaxed a disagreement between Barrett and his daughter-in-law that began about six months ago, officers said. Until that time, Barrett said, his association with the young woman had been intimate during nearly three years she had been married to his son.

The statement was made to County Attorney Charles Dean who questioned Barrett at Hereford, where the alleged slayer was placed in jail soon after his arrest near House, N. M., late Monday. Barrett finished his statement about 12:30 p. m. and Sheriff John Flanagin returned to Dimmitt immediately to sign the murder complaint.

After reading the statement, the sheriff and county attorney both expressed the belief that the case was not bailable and said they

Bellevue Coroner Fails to Determine Cause Crash; Rites for Orman Today

As funeral arrangements for J. W. (Bill) Orman, 35, were being made here Tuesday, the cause of the fatal auto-truck collision, which took his and five other lives near Bellevue on the Fort Worth pike Sunday, still was unsolved.

Judge Gus Matthews, Bellevue justice of the peace who conducted an investigation following the crash to determine its cause, said that no eye-witnesses had been located. He held a coroner's inquest over the bodies of the five men who were instantly killed.

His verdict, he said, was that death was "by accident, cause unknown."

Funeral services for Orman will be held at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon from the chapel of the Dalton-Powell Funeral home. The Rev. Harold Diggs, pastor of the North Side Baptist church, will officiate. Burial will be in Rosemont.

Pallbearers will be selected Wednesday by Chief J. L. McClure from members of the fire department, of which Orman was a former member.

FLOOD SWEEPS FARM HOMES

Heavy Damage to Bridges And Railroad

funeral arrangements will be made as soon as communication with relatives has been established, it was said.

Rail service, interrupted since Monday night because of numerous breaks in the track between Turkey and Quitaque, and west of Quitaque, was expected to be resumed Wednesday morning. Approximately three-quarters of a mile of track was washed out in five separate breaks east of Quitaque, while to the west of that town one washout took about 1,500 feet of track away.

Crews of the South Plains division of the Fort Worth & Denver City railway began work early Tuesday on the line, and officials declared that all repairs could be completed more quickly than trains could be detoured through other routes.

With the exception of a small area west of Turkey damaged by hail Monday evening, crop destruction from the rain in this section was limited largely to about 10 square miles of farm land along Kent creek. Washing out of crops was extensive in that zone, and some farmers estimated their losses at half their crops.

Flood waters had receded Tuesday, and the Fuston house was being returned to its original location. The waters had carried it several yards from its foundation. Mrs. Fuston, suffering from exposure from the night, spent in a tree beside Kent creek, was recovering rapidly Tuesday, it was said.

BRIDGE OF QUITAQUE RIVER WASHED AWAY

Planes and Posse Search in Vain For Thwarted Lawton Hijacker

Special to The Record News.

LAWTON, Okla., June 9.—Although a pilot and Sheriff Neal Christian, armed with long range rifles and field glasses, searched by airplane for more than an hour, covering an estimated 165 miles, and posses in automobiles gave hot chase, no trace was discovered of the lone bandit who this morning attempted to hijack the C. W. Clifford jewelry store on C avenue.

The Wright plane searched in widening circles over the country surrounding Fletcher, Elgin, Sterling and Richards Spur, it having been determined that the bandit car had headed east.

Clifford was alone in the store when the well dressed young man entered and asked to see some watches. Two trays had been taken from the vault when the hijacker produced his gun and attempted the robbery. Clifford pinned the bandit's arms to his sides and forced him to the door, calling for help. The bandit succeeded in wresting himself loose and escaped in his car. Bystanders on the street did not attempt to intercept the bandit as he held his gun in his hand and entered his car smiling.

Two trays of watches, knocked to the floor during the scuffle, resulted in eight watches being trampled upon and damaged. Investigation of the car tag number of the bandit showed that the tag had been stolen from a Studebaker car at Tulsa.

Conciliatory Exchanges Clear Way for Rome-Vatican Peace

By KENNETH CLARK

ROME, June 9. (US)—The way to settlement of the Italo-Vatican controversy over alleged political activities of church youth organizations was believed cleared today with the government's answer to three formal notes sent by the vatican to the quirinal.

The response, reported on good authority to have been of a conciliatory tone, is confidently expected to be followed shortly by an official declaration by Pope Pius XI, which undoubtedly will also be of a pacific nature.

This interchange of courtesies and definite statements of future attitude on the part of both parties to the quarrel may result, it is said, in a reorganization of the Catholic action and other societies so that members who have been prone to engage in politics will be excluded, and that bishops will have complete charge of the societies' activities.

With the government's first official recognition of the Holy See's three notes came the openeng of formal negotiations on which the settlement of the dispute will turn.

Count De Vecchi, Italian ambassador to the Holy See, who carried the government's note to the vatican, met later with Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, and Msgr. Borgongini-Duca, papal nuncio to the quirinal, who has never been officially received by Premier Mussolini.

The government's note and the conversations in Vatican City are taken as indications of the Fascist government's anxiety to restore harmonious relations, since public feeling has been acute and sentiment against the diplomatic break which at times was reported near.

For the first time since the dispute was brought out into the open two weeks ago, government officials tonight described the situation as "optimistic."

Although the terms of the note were not immediately available, it is believed that although it was couched in conciliatory language, the government maintained its stand that education and control of the younger generation in Italy should be vested in Fascism, and that church lay organizations must deal only with religious training.

This was the attitude expressed forcibly by Premier Mussolini in an article we wrote for the Fascist magazine of which his son, Vittorio, is editor. The premier insisted that the younger generation "belongs to the state," and that the state would tolerate no interference by the church.

The pontiff was informed of the delivery of the government's note by Cardinal Pacello, who held a long conversation with his holiness. The pope later declared to a group of women and missionaries:

"Every day there is a cross upon our road, but let us hope for better days. God can produce good from evil."

would fight any effort to make bond.

Officers said Barrett went to his son's home, about half a mile from his own residence, around 10 o'clock Monday morning. The son, Everett Barrett, had ridden off into a pasture to round up some livestock. The disagreement between the elder Barrett and his daughter-in-law was renewed, resulting finally in the shooting.

Three shots were fired from a 16-gauge shotgun which Barrett found in his son's home. The single-action gun had to be reloaded after each shot. Only two shots took effect, one in the left arm and the other below the heart, but Sheriff Flanagin said he picked up three empty shells.

Leaving the body of the young woman lying in the yard where she fled from his attack, Barrett took her 10-months-old baby to his own home, then went to the residence of George Keller, two miles away, and asked Keller and his wife to accompany him to his son's home. It was about 11:30 a. m. when Barrett and the Kellers returned to the scene of the shooting.

When Keller went to telephone to officers, Barrett fled on foot and without a hat. He was arrested at the home of a son-in-law across the New Mexico line late in the afternoon when Sheriff Flanagin and a posse surrounded the house.

Barrett waived extradition. He will be held at Hereford for safekeeping, Sheriff Flanagin said.

THREE JAILED AS SUSPECTS IN BANK ROBBERY

LAWTON, Okla., June 9.—Three men were being held in the county jail here Tuesday night as suspected robbers of a Santa Rosa, N. M., bank recently. They were arrested at Medicine Park, near here, with a woman and a 4-year-old boy by Sheriff Neal Christian and his deputies late Tuesday afternoon.

Officers were lying in wait as the three suspects drove up to their cabin in a large automobile. They were seen to remove revolvers and leave them in the automobile, after which they were taken into custody. The woman and child were found in the cabin. They were said to be the wife and son of one of the suspects.

Taken to jail at Lawton, all refused to talk, with the exception of a man who declared that he had escaped from the penitentiary at Huntsville, Texas, 14 months ago.

One of the men is wanted on a felony charge at Amarillo, Texas. Under-Sheriff Simpson in communicating with Amarillo officers was advised that all three of the men being held were desperate characters. A close guard was being kept over the Commanche county jail Tuesday night.

TEXAS FARMER FOUND DEAD

Body Found on Floor Of Parked Car

TAHOKA, June 9. (AP)—Fred Chase, farmer of the Gordon community, 15 miles northeast of Tahoka, was found dead late this afternoon in his automobile about one mile from his home, with a bullet wound in his head.

Officers from Tahoka and Garza county left for the scene of the shooting late this afternoon and were investigating the affair tonight.

Chase evidently had been dead since some time Monday night. The bullet entered his head at the right ear and came out above and to the left of his left ear. Death is thought to have been instantaneous.

Chase was found lying on the floor of the machine, between the front seat and dash board, the farmer told officers.

The man probably was wounded while the automobile was moving, officers believed tonight. An investigation revealed that the machine left the road about 50 yards above the fence post upon which the front bumper was resting. A .38 caliber automatic was found on the floor beside Chase's body. Another gun, a .32 automatic was found in one of the door pockets.

Powder burns were found on the right side of Chase's head, leading officers to believe that the shot was fired at close range.

Like tobacco ... the best Gasoline is Blended

THERE are as many kinds of tobacco as there are soils and climate in which the plant is grown. Every smoker knows that no single tobacco makes a pleasant smoke. You may prefer Burley with a touch of Turkish or a mixture which includes Perique. Whatever the preference, every good smoke is blended. The popularity of your favorite brand rests entirely on the adeptness of the blender.

There are various types of gasoline. No one of them contains all the properties you want in a motor fuel. The proper ones in proper balance do contain them. That's why CONOCO refiners developed their balanced-blend, triple-test gasoline. Three types of gasoline are used: Natural Gasoline, for quick starting; Straight-run Gasoline, for power and long mileage; Cracked Gasoline, for its anti-knock properties.

As expertly as the tobacco leaves are mellowed and combined, these three elements are produced and blended in balanced proportions to make CONOCO Gasoline. CONOCO refiners are masters of the art of blending.

You will find this better gasoline wherever you see the CONOCO Red Triangle. Try it today.

countless pictures, and some of them are good and some of them are bad, but all of them reflect a wholesome reaching out for something finer."

"Don't be afraid of your taste in art," she says. "If you like a picture—if it means something to you—it's more genuinely beautiful to your eyes than a 'masterpiece' which leaves you cold. Be yourself is a safe rule even in worlds that are strange."

Talker likes homes in which pictures are hung, whether they are original paintings or lithographic reproductions. He confesses to a prejudice for people who like pictures and he is likely to spend money that ought to go for something else to buy a painting.

His favorite is a small painting of a group of trees with a mesquite in the foreground. The foliage is of that delicate green that can often be seen on mesquites in the early summer. There is an air of wistfulness and joy about the scene and it makes you think of courage and aspiration.

And somehow I cannot look at that picture without thinking of the brave hearted little woman who painted it; who turned defeat into victory and who wistfully aspires to a place in the sun as bright as a June morning.

I would advise anybody to go without a few meals, if necessary, to buy any picture he liked.

Demand for Wickersham Findings On Beer Stirs Prohi Cauldron

Wets Want to Know What Authorized Sale Would Do to Business Depression in United States

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

WASHINGTON, June 9. (INS)—The prohibition cauldron boiled anew today as wets and drys awaited a reply from the Wickersham commission to the request of Senator Davis, Republican, of Pennsylvania, for a report on its inquiry into the economic effects of permitting the sale of four per cent beer.

Joining with Davis in demanding that results of the inquiry be made public, Representative Dyer, Republican, of Missouri, house wet leader, announced he had been informed the commission's data was "highly favorable" to the sale of beer. He said he had been informed the commission's inquiry showed that a modification of the 18th amendment, to permit four per cent beer, would go far toward ending the current depression.

Data Available

"I feel the commission's findings should be made public," said Dyer. "According to my information, the commission went into the subject quite extensively. It must have much data. I take it the commission hasn't made that data public because it is favorable to permitting the manufacture of either 3.75 or 4 per cent beer. I imagine it must have been favorable or it would be made public to support the commission in its rather remarkable prohibition report some months ago."

Dyer meanwhile called on the new congress to consider legislation permitting the sale of light wines and beer as a means of ending the current depression.

Business Boost

"The sale of beer and wines would relieve unemployment and tend to end the depression," he said. "It would put thousands of men to work in the cities in the brewing, bottling and allied industries. It would furnish new markets for the farmer's grain and increase their purchasing power. It would start a mighty economic force at work for the restoration of prosperity and relieve the government of much of its huge expenditures for prohibition enforcement. It would mean renewed industrial and agricultural activity throughout the country and great economy for the government, with a tremendous increase in its revenues from the excise taxes."

There was much discussion here over the probable reply of the commission to Davis' letter of inquiry. Some dry leaders expected the commission would deny having investigated four per cent beer and that all the data it could make public had been sent to the senate last spring. On the other hand, wets report definite information corroborating the statement of a former Pennsylvania brewer, who wrote Davis he had received a questionnaire from the commission asking him to report his requirements if four per cent beer were made legal.

Debate Reported

It was suggested that possibly the inquiry was conducted by members of the commission, acting as individuals and not in behalf of the entire body. Such an inquiry, though, would be as official as any other, since it would be conducted under the authority invested in the whole commission by congress.

From another source, it was learned the commission debated the four per cent beer question at some length prior to filing its prohibition report with President Hoover. The nature of the debate—whether some members were urging the commission to recommend four per cent beer—was not revealed, but in its official report to the president, no mention was made of the subject.

Arkansas Appeals For Rail Merger

WASHINGTON, June 9. (AP)—The Arkansas railroad commission and the Little Rock Chamber of Commerce today urged the Interstate Commerce commission to overrule Examiner Sullivan and permit the Southern Pacific railroad to acquire control of the St. Louis Southwestern.

The two organizations held that testimony given by Arkansas witnesses to the effect that public interest would be best served by permitting inclusion of the St. Louis Southwestern in the Southern Pacific's system had been ignored by the examiner.

Their brief added that the Missouri Pacific and the St. Louis, San Francisco and Rock Island systems were well able to take care of themselves but apparently felt some fear of competition if the St. Louis Southwestern once more were made a strong line.

Local Labor to Harvest Record Grain Crop in Wichita Section

Available labor for the harvest of what is expected to be a record crop of grain in this section is far in excess of the demand as harvesting gets under way, it was determined Tuesday when a number of county farm agents and chamber of commerce officials met here with W. A. Winfrey, district manager of the federal employment bureau here.

No outside labor will be needed in any of the counties represented at the meeting, it was indicated. Local labor will be given preference and work will be unavailable for transients.

Harvesting of oats is now well under way, it was learned, and the harvesting of wheat has commenced and probably will get into full swing by next week.

It was the consensus of opinion of all present that the current grain crop will exceed any other in the history of this section. The production of cotton also is expected to be high, it was said, in spite of material reductions in acreage over last season. The acre yield, it was explained, probably will be well over normal.

Estimated yield of grain expectd in the several counties represented at the conference are as follows: Archer, 17,000 acres, yield, 340,000 bushels; Baylor, 56,000 acres, yield, 1,000,000 bushels; Clay 65,000 acres, yield, 1,600,000 bushels; Knox, 15,000 acres, yield, 225,000 bushels; Wichita, 60,000 acres, yield, 1,200,000 bushels.

The necessity for starting early to poison grasshoppers was stressed by G. C. McGown, Wichita county farm agent, who urged that other farm agents start campaigns toward this end.

A luncheon was served those attending the conference by the chamber of commerce here at the Wichita club.

Those present at the conference were W. E. Jones, Knox county farm agent, Benjamin; V. O. McCoy, farm agent, and Judge J. P. Williams, chamber of commerce president, of Henrietta; G. R. McNeil, Archer City farm agent; P. O. McGown, Wichita county farm agent; M. B. Oates, agricultural agent of the Fort Worth and Denver; J. L. Jackson Jr., president of the chamber of commerce, J. N. Sherrill, chairman of the agricultural committee of the chamber, Dudley B. Foy, manager of the traffic department, and Fred L. Haskel, all of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce.

Cordell said the crop is the largest in five years.

Warning Against Meat Brings Livestock Howl

WASHINGTON, June 9. (UP)—Secretary of Treasury Mellon has imposed a censorship on the public health service as an outgrowth of a recent radio broadcast in which it was suggested that less meat be eaten in the summer.

The advice brought wholesale protests from livestock associations and meat packers.

Acting Secretary of Treasury Ogden L. Mills has instructed the public health service, which is under the treasury department, to submit radio broadcasts and press releases to his offices hereafter to be approved before being issued.

Estranged Spouse Held For Attack on Wife

DURANT, Okla., June 9. (UP)—Mary Dearmond, 32, was in a hospital suffering from severe injuries and A. T. Dearmond, 36, her estranged husband, was in the county jail today as a result of Desrmond's alleged attempt to kill his wife and himself.

He told officers his wife aggravated him. He missed when he shot at her with a shotgun, he said. He failed in an attempt to shoot himself.

Then he beat his wife with the butt of the gun and surrendered to county oficfers. The couple had been separated since February.

U. S. Cotton Farmer Held World's Peer

WASHINGTON, June 9. (UP)—A reference to the increasing production of Russian cotton for export has brought from Carl Williams, member of the federal farm board for cotton, the assertion that the American cotton farmer can compete with any in the world.

A result of the present painful period of readjustment, Williams said in discussing the cotton situation, will be to cheapen the cost of producing American cotton and put the grower in a better position for world competition later.

"This year's crop," he said, "will be produced two to three cents cheaper per pound than last year's. The cost will be even less next year when the grower gets the benefit of food crops now in the ground."

STUDY OF RINGWORM SHOWS WAY TO STOP "ATHLETE'S FOOT"

Perhaps you are one of the ten million people in America today who are victims of the infection commonly called "Athlete's Foot"—and don't know what ails you!

Known by several different names, this vexing disease is an insidious form of ringworm. When first contracted it produces a general itching condition. The toes blister, the skin between them turns red or sometimes white. It may become moist and thick or develop a scaly dryness.

If you notice any of these symptoms, take no chances of serious infection. Apply ABSORBINE JR. at once and freely, as recommended by specialists.

For after careful tests of this strange disease, a famous New York laboratory found that this mild, soothing, yet powerful, antiseptic is especially deadly to the tinea trichophyton germs which cause "Athlete's Foot."

It is wise to use ABSORBINE JR. after every exposure to wet surfaces—in public places and even in your own bathroom. For the tiny parasites breed and lurk simply everywhere, and are always ready to attack. At all drug stores, $1.25. W. F. Young, Inc., Springfield, Mass.

Texas Facts

By BILL EDWARDS

Texas' manufactured products increased in value 45 per cent in the decade 1919-29. Output of Texas industrial establishments in 1899 had a value of $999,995,796. This in 1929 had grown to $1,488,801,916. They employed 107,522 wage-earners in 1919 and 131,503 in 1929 while wages paid climbed from $116,403,800 to $147,888,053. Texas industrial establishments in 1929 (latest year for which accurate census bureau figurres are available) took raw materials, most of them Texas-grown or produced, and through manufacturing processes added to their value the huge sum of $451,869,640, or more than the value of Texas' agricultural products for 1930.

HELPING BUILD TEXAS

Development of the mineral resources of Texas goes ahead in spite of handicaps and hindrances. . . . Fredericksburg is watching with interest development of a 3,000-acre tract nearby beneath which asbestos, of long fibre and excellent quality, has been found. Chicago and Kerrville men have acquired mineral leases on the tract and plan to build a mill for getting it into marketable condition. . . . A Houston company is undertaking the development of a tremendous area of salt it has located near Hockley, in Harris county. The deposits blocked out by its engineers are said to cover an area four miles wide by six miles long and with an indicated thickness of 16,000 feet—more than three miles. Ambitious plans for machinery and other equipment include the expenditure of $150,000 for employes' and officials' homes. . . . Two miles west of Belton has been found a rich deposit of caliche, widely used in the surfacing and topping of highways, and preliminary excavations for its development have been begun.

Murray Gives State Aid to Prosecution In Murder of Girls

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 9. (UP)—Gov. W. H. Murray today issued an executive order to J. Berry King, attorney general, to assist in the prosecution of Earl Quinn, charged with murder in the slaying of Jessie and Zexia Griffith.

Murray said that state aid had been asked by Bruce Potter, Kay county attorney. J. Berry King termed the slaying of the sisters while en route from their home near Ponca City to Oklahoma City as one of "the most hideous crimes in the annals of the state."

"I rejoice in the opportunity to place the attorney general's office vigorously behind prosecution to the end that the law may be vindicated," King said.

King had not named the assistant attorney general.

Like Meat—Yet Isn't

BOSTON.—A Boston scientist has developed a new condiment, which when spread over other meatless dishes in the form of powder, imparts the flavor of red meat. The condiment is prepared by boiling gluten from wheat flour with strong hydrochloric acid, then neutralizing with soda and allowing the resulting salt to crystalize. This is then pulverized.

Recognition at Last

IT IS highly probable, says Sir James Jeans, that life is a rare phenomenon in the universe.

The sky is bright with hundreds of thousands of stars, but the chances are that few of them are inhabited. Most of them swing through the heavens without any passengers. And Sir James remarks dryly:

"I leave it to you to be pleased or not at a large fraction of the life of the universe being concentrated on our planet."

Planets, Sir James believes, were formed by the close approach to the sun of another star, which, by tidal action, pulled out from the sun a great streamer of blazing gas which eventually condensed, like drops of steam from a locomotive's whistle, into planets.

But the stars are widely separated. Those closest together are relatively as far apart as two or three grains of dust in a large room. Hence, since life can exist only on just the right kind of planets formed by the close passing-together of stars, life must be rare indeed.

All of this, to a race whose utter insignificance in the general scheme of things has been emphasized by science for more than a century, is somehow, rather irrationally, comforting.

Perhaps there is no good reason why it should be. Those who despair of the universe are usually led to do so by an examination of the follies, cruelties and stupidities of their fellow men, and not by contemplating the empty heavens. There is more despondency to be gained by studying a city slum than in all the books of physical science ever written.

Yet there is comfort in this assertion, nevertheless. We are not exactly rational, and the simple fact that life may have been reserved exclusively for our own little corner of the cosmos makes us feel that our bright dreams of our own importance may, after all, be justified. Science, which has told us for so many years that we are less than the dust, suddenly turns about and finds that we are very rare phenomena.

To be sure, we knew it all the time—or, at any rate, we suspected it. The finest minds that the earth has produced have always said so; more, they have, by their mere existence, proved it. They have told us that we do not owe our existence to accident, but that we are here miraculously, with all of creation as a back-drop for our slow climb upward. We do not really need a scientist to tell us that life is not a common or an insignificant thing in the universe.

But it is comforting to have one say so, just the same.

Attacking a Woman Judge

IT USED to be supposed that women law-breakers would get much more fair and lenient consideration if they were arraigned before judges of their own sex instead of before men. But now New York's famous Samuel Seabury, who has been inquiring into this and that on Manhattan island, has filed a report declaring Magistrate Jean Norris unfit and urging her removal.

Her unfitness, he asserts, is shown "by her severity, her unjudicial conduct and her callous disregard of the rights of defendants in the women's court."

Bearing in mind the fact that this is simply an accusation and that the truth or falsity of it has not yet been demonstrated, one is nevertheless moved to admit that the sex of an officeholder, by itself, is not very important, after all. To get a kindly, tolerant and capable judge one must give the job to a kindly, tolerant and capable person; whether it be a man or a woman makes little difference.

A University Hurts Itself

IN DISMISSING from its faculty Dr. Herbert A. Miller, professor of sociology, Ohio State university has done itself a good deal more damage than it has done Dr. Miller.

Dr. Miller happens to be one of America's foremost sociologists, a man with a truly international reputation. His presence on the faculty gave to Ohio State a distinction, a cause for pride, of the sort that is worth a great deal to any university.

But because this man opposed compulsory military training for the university's students, and because he had said something a year ago, in a speech in far-off India, Ohio State has got rid of him.

In the long run this will do Dr. Miller no harm at all. But it probably will be a long time before the university recovers from it.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

WINSTON-SALEM—Although 250 miles from the sea, and not on a navigable river, Winston-Salem is a port of entry. It was so designated by the treasury department, upon authority from congress, that Winston-Salem importers might import their goods direct to that city and pay duty there rather than clearing such shipments at port of arrival and trans-shipping under bond. The $6,000,000 customs charges paid annually in Winston-Salem gives it the rank of ninth port of entry.

NICK ALTROCK BATTED 1.000 TWO YEARS—In 1924 Altrock was at bat once (Sept. 30) and made a three-base hit. On Oct. 6, the only time he was at bat during the season of 1929, he singled. In each of these years therefore, his batting average was 1.000. Reference Al Munro Elias baseball bureau, New York City.

BEANS GREW IN A CONCRETE SLAB—A manufacturer of concrete products made claim against the Southern Pacific railroad declaring "that navy beans had been mixed with rock aggregate while the aggregate was in transit, and when mixed and poured into forms for pipe the beans sprouted within 16 hours and the pipe was unsalable." To check the claim a test was made in the railroad company's testing laboratory in San Francisco, and the sprouting beans grew readily, cracking the concrete.

$20 A WEEK

by ROB EDEN

THE STORY THUS FAR

Sally Blair, with a talent for getting ahead in the world, has secured her promotion from a $20 a week typist in the sales department of the Davidson Insurance company to a $55 a week position in the executive offices. Sally means to have the things she wants out of life and after she has gone as far as possible in business she aims at a millionaire husband. The only prospect in her mind is Harvey T. Davidson, millionaire widower, who is the big boss. However, Sally's ambitions didn't keep her from falling in love with Peter Douglas, an attractive young insurance salesman. She would have married Peter except his mother estranged them. Linda Davidson has a crush on Peter and Mrs. Douglas approves the match.

CHAPTER XVIII

Sally's official title was assistant to Erma Brown, who was assistant to Miss Crowder. However, in Miss Crowder's absence, Erma became Kent Roper's confidential secretary, transacting the more intimate things in his business, and Sally took his letters and dictation.

She liked the work. All the nervous strain she had felt with Warner was gone. Roper's office ran easily. Hhe was cheerful, kind alleasily. He was cheerful, kind employes. Roper never rang for anyone unless he wanted him whereas Warner's buzzer was busy all day.

The first morning, when the office was so quiet, when everything was so well regulated, Sally could not believe her good luck. Those two weeks with Warner had been horrible. This was heaven compared to them. This wasn't work. This was play.

"You'll find Mr. Roper very nice," Erma said after she had told the girl what her duties were to be. "Everybody likes him. It's Harvey Davidson who scares us to death. Not that he has a temper or anything, but he's such a hard man to get to know. Sometimes he says good morning, and more often he doesn't. Just looks through you as you didn't exist. I shudder when I have to take dictation from him—and I have to sometimes, when his secretary is out. Miss Crowder doesn't mind him, she likes him, but then she knows him better than I do. She's worked here a long time." Erma was about 30, rather dashing looking with her jet black hair, and big dark eyes. She took a fancy at once to Sally.

Talk of Mr. Davidson

"Nice to have somebody young around. I get tired of Miss Crowder's platitudes. She's all right but she's awfully proper. I don't know why she keeps on working anyway. She has lots of money. She told me once Mr. Roper had given her some good tips on the market, and she'd cleaned up. You can, you know, if you have any kind of a stake.

"Yes, Alice Crowder is very canny with her money. She saved it, and then she invested it—wisely. She's great on making budgets. Made one for me once."

Sally led Erma back to the subject of Davidson as gently as she could.

"You say Mr. Davidson is hard to know?"

"Yes—you'll see what I mean when you bump into him. One of these formal sort of men. You can't break through the shell he's built up about himself. Oh, he thaws out for Mr. Roper, and for his daughter—but that's about all. Of course he might thaw out for his social acquaintances and relatives—I don't know anything about that. I only know him as I see him in the office."

"Do you see him much?"

"A couple of times a day when he's in town. I always speak to him, of course, but he never acts as if he knows who I am, although I've taken dictation from him a half dozen times. Never looks at you when you go into his office. Just dictates his letters as quickly as he can, without taking his eyes off his notes—he makes notes of everything—and when he's through, dismisses you. Mr. Roper will chat awhile. He's very affable. Another thing about Mr. Roper, if he likes you he'll do anything in the world for you."

"He—he doesn't expect you to go out with him, does he?" Sally hated to ask the question, but from her experience with John Warner she thought she ought to know.

"Gracious, no," and Erma laughed. "You needn't worry about anything like that."

Sally inwardly heaved a sigh of relief. At least that was something. The certainty of knowing. She was not quite through questioning Erma yet.

"Mr. Davidson's daughter—what's she like?" She knew what Linda Davidson looked like but that wasn't enough. She wanted to know more.

"You'll see her. She comes in every now and then. Never used to, but she has a crush on some boy in the sales department, so she comes a lot now. Mad about him I guess. She and her father just got home from a trip around the world. I heard Mr. Davidson took her to break up some affair, and as soon as she gets back she jumps into another. The last one was with some pseudo count around town. Mr. Davidson didn't like it at all, but he couldn't say anything, so he took her away."

Erma Likes Linda

Erma answered the phone which was ringing, then continued with her description of Linda.

"Pretty as a picture. Auburn hair, and kind of yellowish brown eyes. Young, too, about 21. One of these young things with a lot of time on her hands. Dresses like a million dollars and makes you envious as the very devil. Nice, though. She's always pleasant when she comes in. I like her. You will, too. You'll see her soon."

Sally didn't think she'd like Linda, but made no more comments on the matter. Even at the mention of her name a surge of jealousy shot through her. How casually Erma had said that Linda

Q.—How long did Ambassador Herrick survive his friend, Marshal Foch?—R. L.

A.—But 11 days elapsed. Marshal Foch died on March 20 and Ambassador Herrick on March 31, 1929.

Q.—What did Thomas Edison say concerning the advantages of being hard of hearing?—O. C.

A.—He said: "This deafness has been of great advantage to me in various ways. When in a telegraph office I could only hear the instrument directly on the table at which I sat, and unlike the other operators, I was not bothered by the other instruments. Again, in experimenting on the telephone, I had to improve the transmitter so I could hear. This made the telephone commercial, as the magneto telephone receiver of Bell was too weak to be used as a transmitter commercially. It was the same with the phonograph. The great defect of that instrument was the rendering of the overtones in music, and this hissing consonants in speech. I worked over one year, 20 hours a day, Sunday and all, to get the word 'specie' perfectly recorded and reproduced on the phonograph. When this was done I knew that everything else could be done—which was a fact. Again, my nerves have been preserved intact. Broadway is as quiet to me as a country village is to a person with normal hearing."

Q.—Why were entertainments called masques?—T.

A.—They were a kind of private theatrical, popular in the 17th century in the East and Europe proper. The name is said to have originated from the use of the head masque representing romantic, historical, or allegorical types on occasions of festivity or solemnity.

Q.—Do blue eyes or brown predominate in the United States? Is the average American woman tall, short, or of medium height?—M. K.

A.—The public health service says that blue eyes predominate in the United States, and that the average American woman is of medium height.

Q.—Who invented the machine for attaching soles to shoes automatically?—H. L. T.

A.—John Ernest Matzeliger, a negro, who was born in Dutch Guiana, in 1852, and who died in Lynn, Mass., 1889, invented the first machine that performed automatically all the operations involved in attaching soles to shoes.

Q.—What are oyster shells used for?—G. C.

A.—Shells are used for five purposes: "Shelling," chicken shell, fertilizer, lime, and road building. By far the most important use is for shelling. By this is meant the planting of them in oyster beds, in order that the spat may fasten on them.

Q.—How much rent can retail stores afford to pay?—T. H.

A.—The department of commerce says that percentages of gross sales which mercantile establishments can afford to pay as rent in accordance with sound business practice include the following: Stationery and office supplies, 3.8 to 5; automobile accessories, including tires, 4.8 to 5.7; department stores, 3.6 to 5.1; all drug stores, 3.65 to 4.85; furniture, 4.1; grocery stores, chain, 1.1 to 2; hardware stores, 1.13 to 2.68; all jewelry stores, 4.2 to 5.5; men's clothing, 3.22 to 4.03; all shoe stores, 2.8 to 4.8. A range of figures is given as percentages vary in accordance with geography and also with volume of business transacted.

Q.—Are there some paved streets in Venice, Italy?—A. M. S.

A.—The city is built on a group of islands at the head of the Adriatic sea. Some of the streets are paved streets such as exist in other cities, but the majority are canals with the houses built right at the water edge so that the gondolas or other boats can pull up right at the doors.

Q.—Why is graham flour so called?—W. T.

A.—It bears the name of Dr. Sylvester Graham who lectured in this country extensively from 1830 to 1840. He recommended using entire meal, calling attention to the benefits derived from so doing.

The Record News Offers A New Official Road Map

The digest of motor vehicle laws of all the states and the District of Columbia would alone add unusual value to this map, but it also carries a great deal of other informative data—a mileage distance chart, a list of U. S. numbered routes, customs regulations that must be observed by motorists entering Canada, Mexico, or Cuba, Red Cross first aid instructions, courtesy and safety rules, and how to plan a tour.

The map itself, in colors, 28 by 42 inches in size, is the only one of its kind now available to tourists and it can be procured only through the Record News Washington bureau. It shows highways, all marked with their numbers and with information as to kinds of pavement or other improvement, and the major resort areas and national touring objectives. You can plan any kind of a trip and motor anywhere in the United States with it as your guide.

Amplifiers Swell Baby's Cry To Reach Gadding Mama's Ears

CHICAGO, June 9. (AP)—The baby alarm system seems to be growing.

Louis M. Strauss, president of an electric company, reported today that there were at least a dozen sound amplifying systems in use by Chicago fathers and mothers to enable them to go out to play bridge or shop and keep tab on what the baby is doing at home at the same time.

One couple, he said, had a microphone and loud speaker device connected up with the home of a woman neighbor so arranged that she can hear the baby whenever the child cries. Each time she hears the child cry she goes to see what is the matter, and is understood by Strauss to be paid on a "per cry" basis.

"Another man," said Strauss, "has attached a microphone to the baby's crib and set up a loudspeaker by the telephone. He also has an automatic receiver-lifting device on his telephone so that it goes up every time it rings.

When both he and his wife go out and the baby is alone, they call up frequently and the receiver goes up. They listen to baby for a minute and if he is all right they go on with their shopping or bridge."

Chicago Leads in Business Revival

WASHINGTON, June 9. (US)—Chicago led the rest of the nation in the revival of business last week, the president's emergency committee for employment reported today.

Improvement was also reported from some other cities and from many foreign countries. The report from Chicago said:

"Business in Chicago during the past week continued ahead of the same period a year ago. Orders for future delivery continued in good volume."

The greatest degree of optimism is shown in the rural districts. The report continues:

"Indications that the farmer is optimistic regarding 1931 is shown in the attitude of his merchants and bankers. The only real pessimism is found around larger metropolitan centers, especially those where factories occupy the limelight. Small town retailers seem to feel that the farmer purchases this year will show a pronounced pick-up."

Plans for 375 new buildings to cost $9,445,125 were filed last week in New York where it was reported employment picked up slightly.

Improved conditions were reported from Kansas City, Memphis, Nashville, Houston, Dallas, Seattle and Portland, Ore.

Little Rock, Ark., reported: "The wholesale and retail business is much improved."

Many Texas Wild Flowers Worthy Of Garden Space

By BERTHA M'KEE DOBIE

The wild flowers of Texas so caught the notice of earliest travelers and immigrants that in many an old book mention is made of them. Joutel, the French chronicler of La Salle's mistaken landing on the Texas coast in 1685, wrote of them: "Nothing is more beautiful to behold than those vast plains when the blossoms appear; a thousand sorts of different colors, whereof many have an agreeable scent, adorn those fields." Long afterward, when Texas, the republic and then the state, was encouraging the settlement of Americans and Europeans, books written for the information of emigrants praise the flora of the prairies. A book printed anonymously but accredited to a Mr. Stille, "Texas in 1840," contains this sentence, "At any time from March to November almost the whole country exhibits all the brilliancy, delicacy and fragrance of a carefully cultivated flower garden. In April and May the prairies constitute a paradise of flowers." Viktor Bracht, in "Texas in 1848," makes the following statement: ". . . the flora of this country offers so much that is beautiful and admirable that the transplanting of these indigenes into gardens and flower pots is becoming more general and promises to become fashionable."

Land of Flowers

The promise has been long in fulfillment. What was to be had without price was not greatly to be prized. It has been so in Texas; it has been so in other states. A recent magazine writer complains that . . . "the native California plants remained unnoticed and unheralded. They were things to be taken out, apparently only for the reason that they were already there. They had gotten there first and were therefore weeds. 'Out with them. Why, they grow wild.'" I am reminded of a remark made in disgust by a Texas woman: "I planted petunias and they came up phlox. Who wants phlox? It looks right pretty in the woods, but I don't want it in my garden."

Yet, when House and Garden, in 1928, asked Mrs. John A. Stewart Jr., then president of the Garden Clubs of America, to make a list of 10 favorite annuals, she put Phlox drummondii in her list. Perhaps eastern catalogs do us an injustice when they give the secondary name of this flower as Texas Pride. Another Texas wild flower—a perennial, however, with us—in Mrs. Stewart's carefully selected list is Salvia farinacea, or blue sage. We have all heard stories of Texans who have ordered by its botanical name some flower highly praised in a catalog, only to find when their treasure bloomed that its counterparts blossomed along the road. I can see yet after a dozen years the sparkle in the eyes of a dainty old lady as she told this joke on herself: "I ordered coreopsis out of Hastings' catalog and when it bloomed it was nothing but black-eyed Susans." Not long ago a man who is fond of gardening ordered, among seeds of many hardy plants, a packet of Callirrhoe involucrata. Nothing was wrong with the order; Callirrhoe involucrata is worthy a place in the perennial border; but when my friend made the order he did not know that he was buying wine-cups.

The number of our Texas species on the lists of eastern and southern seedsmen would probably surprise many Texans. Among these are the bluebonnet, now sold in all regions where the climate permits it to come to flower; Dodecatheon meadia (shooting star), unfortunate not common; Salvia pitcheri, S. azurea, and S. farinacea, all species of blue sage; the red and yellow columbine native to most of eastern North America; butterfly bush, which grows in the sandy parts of East Texas; blazing star in several species; spider lily; Lobelia cardinalis, the flaming cardinal flower that chooses moist places; the evening primrose with yellow blooms five inches across; Pentstemon barbatus, red foxglove or beard tongue; Tradescantia virginiana, one of the numerous spiderworts and Physostegia, virginiana, or false dragonhead. A last winter's issue of the New York Herald Tribune contained an article entitled "Indoor Garden May Have Rare Flowering Bulbs." In this article an entire paragraph is devoted to a flower so familiar that we scarcely give it a glance. "Many delightful bulbous subjects are found in our southwestern states and in Mexico," the article reads. "Cooperia, variously called the rain lily, the white fairy lily, and the prairie lily, is a fragrant, waxy white flower. . . . It is said to spring up and bloom in three days after rain, a rare occurrence in its native home."

Most of these species bloom elsewhere also, with the striking exception of Phlox drummondii. We have in Texas and on the plains to the north some species more beautiful, perhaps, than any of these, which horticulturists from abroad have not learned to exploit. Chief among them are three members of the gentian family, each as lovely as the fringed gentian that the poet Bryant made known at least by name to all Americans—

"Blue—blue—as if the sky let fall
A flower from its cerulean wall."

Out three best—known gentians are the Texas bluebell, the meadow pink, and the mountain pink. We have two exceptionally good wood sorrels, Ionoxalis violacea and I. drummondii, certainly worthy of a place in gardens. Standing cypress (Gilia rubra) will soon be blooming, and a fine show its tall red spikes make, whether in an open woods or in a garden. Abronia belongs to the 4 o'clock family. It is called sand verbena from its heads of rosy flowers; the name illustrates the inaccuracy of common names. Another common name, Lasater's Pride, may be more potent to secure to the late Mr. Ed Lasater a long memory than his ownership of the largest and finest jersey herd in Texas.

RAIL FINANCE PLAN MAPPED

Childress to Provide Right Of Way Funds

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Texas, June 9.—A plan for financing the purchase of right of way through Childress county for the new Burlington railroad, the Denver and Northern from Childress and Pampa, has been worked out by the committee appointed by the board of city development with J. M. Crews, banker, chairman.

The plan is to borrow from a Fort Worth bank $15,000, which will meet the cost of right of way. Fifteen business men of Childress will endorse the note for $1,000 each.

The note is to be paid over a period of five years from funds received by the board of city development, which organization's funds come from taxation. This plan means a fair and impartial one for every property owner in the city, and the parent road, the Fort Worth and Denver City railway, even pays its proportionate part of the expense.

It is expected that the right of way will be paid for in a few days and deeds delivered to the Denver and Northern officials. Grading has been done on the line for about three miles and Denver road officials are anxious to get active grading under way before July 1.

Grading and building of bridges will give employment to several hundred men. Denver road officials have notified the chambers of commerce at Childress, Wellington, Shamrock and Pampa that local labor will be favored in employment.

Reno 'Customers' Driven to Tents

RENO, Nev., June 9. (UP)—Scores of tents sprung up on vacant lots throughout Reno today when the established divorce colony found itself unable to care for the influx of six-week residents.

More than 70 colonists, their newly issued decrees wrapped in bright blue ribbons, left today for permanent homes in other states, but so many others arrived to take their places that the city council was compelled to revoke an old law to meet the situation.

The divorce applicants won the decrees at another "wash day" session in Washoe county's two superior courts. A total of 88 filed suit, but 15 cases were on the docket when court closed and were put over until today.

Most of the divorces followed the time honored Reno custom of kissing a courthouse pillar, throwing their outmoded wedding rings into the nearby Truckee river and then hurriedly leaving town—despite the fact they had just testified that Reno was their permanent residence and they intended to remain here.

Officer Admits Delay Prevented Ship Rescue

LOS ANGELES, June 9. (AP)—Second Officer John P. McVicar, by his own testimony, could have saved the coastwise liner Harvard from destruction off Point Arguello May 30, had he acted immediately after he received a radio report that the ship was in danger.

McVicar testified before the federal steamboat inspection board yesterday he waited 10 minutes to verify radio compass bearings from shore before calling Capt. Lyle B. Hillsinger at 3:10 a. m.

"In those 10 minutes before you called Captain Hillsinger and after you found the ship 17 degrees off course shoreward could you have saved the Harvard?" asked J. A. Moody, federal inspector.

"Yes, I could have held her up. Stopped the ship."

Ancient Man Groaned With All Modern Diseases

PHILADELPHIA, June 9. (UP)—Some of the things that afflict the modern also plagued the stone age man, according to Dr. Frank B. Young, Gehring, Neb., paleontologist, who gave exhibits to the American Medical association convention to show that pyorrhea, halitosis, arthritis and cancer were known back in the dark ages of the stone age.

His exhibits tended to show that there are no new diseases, but that they are new names for old ills.

NEW TRUCK PERMITS DUE

State Moves to Enforce Recent Law

AUSTIN, June 9. (AP)—Mark Marshall, director of the motor transportation division of the railroad commission, today requested all owners of trucks and other than class A vehicles who wished to continue to operate common or contract carriers to write him for application blanks.

Marshall explained that under the new law, which became effective Saturday, new certificates would be issued automatically to class A operators. All others must file applications by July 8, he pointed out.

Some 2,500 class B trucks, which are common carriers without fixed routes or schedules, must show a necessity for their service if they are to continue as common carriers. A hearing will be held in each instance, and railroads or anyone else will have a right to protest, Marshall said.

Marshall estimated it would take several months for all hearings to be held and certificates to be granted under the new law. He said many truck operators would not know whether they wanted to continue in business until Governor Sterling had acted on the companion bill, the proposal to limit the pay load of trucks to 7,000 pounds. The governor will have to sign or veto that bill by Friday midnight.

Wichita Youth Attends Life-Saving School

Maynard Creighton, son of Scout Executive Frank B. Creighton, and active in scout work here for several years, left Tuesday morning for Kerrville, where he will attend the Red Cross life saving school.

The special training now being taken by young Creighton will extend over a 10-day period, it was said. At its completion, he will return as a qualified Red Cross life-saving examiner. With the opening of the annual summer camp for scouts of this area at Camp Ephraim Griffin at Diversion dam on June 22, he will be in charge of waterfront activities of the campers. Creighton will be assisted in that assignment by five older scouts who have been certified by the Red Cross organization for life-saving duties, and by a counsellor who is also qualified as a life-saving expert, it was announced.

Registrations for the first period of the camp, which will run from June 22 to June 29, are being received now at scout headquarters.

Men and women whose work keeps them indoors, without sufficient exercise, often find it difficult to keep the bowels regular. Thedford's Black-Draught, (purely vegetable), taken at bedtime or a pinch after meals, has helped thousands. "I have found Thedford's Black-Draught of great benefit to my health," writes Mr. D. H. Reed, of Princeton, W. Va. "For several years, my occupation has not given the exercise my body required. I have suffered consequently from constipation, headache and biliousness. I have found that Black-Draught helps to keep my system well regulated. I have frequently recommended it because I feel the medicine has really done me good." NC-10

Tics or Habit Spasms

Perhaps you have seen someone whose eyes suddenly blink, or eyebrow lifts, or face twitches entirely against his will. Such a person is suffering from a tic or habit spasm, which means making nervous movements without desiring to. These spasms or tics may become habitual and the victim can then no more stop the tic than he can stop being humiliated and embarrassed by it.

In some cases the habit spasm may take the form of clearing the throat or coughing, which a person may do to the annoyance of others without being aware of it himself.

In general, a habit spasm denotes some disorder of the nervous reflexes, but in nervous persons it may simply be a habit. Children of a thin nervous type are most likely to develop tics. The child is unable to control the movements and it is wrong for the parent to harp on the subject. While the majority of grown up patients with tics are of an unsettled, irritable type and inclined to nervousness, there are some patients with habit spasms who have apparently strong mental habits and steady nerves.

Some of our most brilliant men have had these tics. Almost everyone has had such a twitch at some time, usually when overtired or enervated. Haven't you ever had an eyelid suddenly jump, or a muscle in the face twitch? The first spasm follows a strain and is a reflex movement, being an attempt to relieve some unnatural tension.

A temporary tic may occur during a nervous breakdown, mental illness, fatigue, extreme worry or shock, and tics of this type usually go away as soon as the strain is removed and the health is back to normal. Such a tic is likely to become chronic if it is combined with intestinal toxemia, worms, pyorrhea, infected tonsils, abscessed teeth, or if it develops during anemia or neurasthenia. If the tic has been present for some time good results will usually be had with an orange or tomato juice fast to help the body get rid of any accumulated toxins which may be irritating the nervous reflexes. During this diet treatment enemas should be used and every effort made to encourage the elimination of toxins through all of the eliminative organs. Patients should also have an examination to find out whether there is a pus pocket or focal infection in the body which is throwing poisons into the system.

The fast should be followed with an effort to improve the general health through plenty of sleep, outdoor exercise and fresh air, good mental attitude and through a daily cleansing. All of these measures will help the patient gain health and strength and also tend to stabilize the nerves as well. Patient shoud also use facial contours, which I will be glad to send in return for a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope. If you also wish the cleansing diet add an extra two-cent stamp and it will be sent to you. Practice the facial exercises morning and evening and do them in front of a mirror. In this way you will be able to gain control over the embarrassing tic is always worth an effort.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Dietetic Crisis

Question: Mrs. H. Asks—"What would cause cramps from the knees down, on the second day of an orange fast which was taken to overcome indigestion?"

Answer—These cramps were probably due to a "dietetic crisis." Such symptoms are fully described in an article of that title which I shall be glad to send upon your request accompanied by a large self-addressed stamped envelope. Perhaps you may have some inflammation in your stomach, in which case a milk diet would be beneficial After a few days on the milk diet you could then again try the orange fast and I believe you will experience no difficulty.

Orange-Milk for Breakfast

Question: J. G. Writes—"I enjoy an orange milkshake for breakfast; it tastes especially good with graham crackers. Is the combination okay?"

Answer—Orange-milk, made with the addition of only pure orange juice to sweet milk, is a good food for breakfast or to be taken in place of any other meal of the day, but graham crackers or other starchy foods should not be used at the same time.

Reducing Upper Arms

Question: Mrs. B. B. Asks—"Will you kindly tell me how to reduce the upper arms?"

Answer—Any kind of arm exercises will reduce the fat on your arms. The best ones to take are those requiring a reasonable amount of muscular tension and, at the same time, these exercises should be used rapidly and with vigor. Probably the best plan would be to purchase one of the "chest weight exercisers" which you can secure from any sporting goods store. It is attached to the wall, and exercises by ropes running over pulleys.

Rothstein Murder 'Confession' Meets Official Question

LOS ANGELES, June 9. (UP)—A story told by Matthew Guidera, 22, that he shot and killed Arnold Rothstein, New York gambler, was being checked with eastern authorities today.

Rothstein was shot in November, 1928, at the Park Central hotel, New York, and died without revealing the identity of his assailant.

Guidera, serving a three-year sentence in the county jail here for stabbing a woman, handed a letter to Capt. William Bright, of the sheriff's homicide squad, in which he said he shot Rothstein because the gambler failed to produce money on a $100,000 note given him in April, 1928, for services in running narcotics between New York and Chicago.

The officer said Guidera told him he wanted to "get the rotten mess over and let the law take its course."

Road Designation Adds Oklahoma City Outlet

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 9. (UP)—Oklahoma City today gained its 10th federal highway outlet with the official designation of a northwest extension through Geary, Watonga and Woodward to Forgan.

It intersects with U. S. 64 at Forgan for a direct route to Denver via U. S. 64 to Raton, N. M., and thence north over U. S. 85.

Announcement of the designation was made from Chicago by R. A. Singletary, manager of the chamber of commerce good roads division.

SPUDDERS WIN OPENER WITH GALVESTON PIRATES, 9 TO 3

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

We had formed a picture of Bud Hungling—an aged old fellow, probably with a long beard, who walked from the dugout to behind the plate with a pair of crutches, and whose bones squeaked as he squatted down in receiving position.

But a guy who can crack out a home run and a double against Fort Worth's once-feared Texas league entry must be pretty spry, and his coming to the Spudders can be no less than a blessing if he continues to bat with such punch.

However, let's not wax too enthusiastic. Our old ball club is going so good that I'm afraid to say anything, lest something crack. Remember, Ted Gullic came down with a great flourish, knocked out four home runs in two days—and then plumped down in the big middle of a batting slump. Now let's keep silent, and hope and pray that Buddie Hungling won't do that, and also hope that Gullic continues to snap out of his slump—for he's doing it gradually.

As aforesaid, my chest is heaving with hope for the Spuds on the present road trip. We look for them to win every doggone series and be the most feared bunch of ball players in the circuit before the end of the first half. We're in Galveston now. Another jinx outfit. We've had hard luck against those anemic Pirates so far. But we look for a series decision this time. We're out to crack up these jinx fellows on this trip. We polished off the first jinx Monday in battering Mr. McCabe. Now for the Pirates!

A club with spirit, such as Williams' Spudders, is invariably subject to a terrific let-down on a successful road trip. Well, the Spudders have already had their let-down on the present tour, and though it was a terrific one, they pulled out with only minor losses in the standings column. The let-down, of course, was in the first game of the double-header with Dallas Sunday, when the Spudders booted everything that came along, making eight errors.

Probably that was the best thing that could have happened. The boys got all those errors out of their systems at once, and up to Tuesday night's game, at least, showed signs of having entirely regained their equilibrium. There will be boots, of course, but the boys hardly will boot away another game.

Better Wed Now

The marriage of Hon. Dean of Houston and Miss Patricia Nash, scheduled to take place this week at some Texas league park, has been postponed, according to an announcement from Miss Nash, "until after the Dixie championship is won."

"Sure Dizzy is going to win more than 20 games and he'll pitch Houston to some wins in the Dixie series," said the trusting gal who has selected Mr. Dean above all other men.

The announcement is not quite clear. Does she mean that if the Houston Buffs do not win the Texas league flag, thus preventing Dizzy from winning some games in the Dixie series, that the marriage is all off?

If that's true, then you'd better get busy, Mr. Dean, and hire a minister. The Spudders are not afraid of you now, after bouncing McCabe, who has a better Texas league record than yours to date.

Petyon Thurmon of the Vernon All-Stars proposes a game with the Chillicothe Cubs at Athletic park in Wichita Falls, the proceeds to go to The Times-Record News Milk and Ice fund. His proposition follows:

"Dear Rambler:

"Looks as though you did have one comeback at my recent letter, regarding the Chillicothe Cubs and the Vernon All-Stars. My forecast of an overwhelming Vernon victory was pidgeonholed as Vernon took the short end of a 3-0 score.

"Beginning to look as though Growling Cub knew his okra when he made known the fact that he and his club desired an encounter with Vernon, on a neutral field, having neutral umpires call the game.

"Have this thought in mind that it will leave the responsibility for part of the work to you and your staff. On the other hand believe that you will be able to swing the deal for us under the following conditions, as The Record News Milk fund can always use additional donations.

"The Wichita Falls Spudders will be away from Wichita Falls on June 14, and if you will secure the use of Spudder park for us on that date, I feel sure that Chillicothe will be more than glad to play us, and at the same time donate all proceeds from ticket sales to The Record News Milk and Ice fund. We are willing to play the game under those conditions and feel that a good exhibition of amateur baseball could be given to the public. Do not know that an exhibition of this kind would draw a very large crowd, but it could be made to do so if ticket sales were handled through some of the Wichita Falls clubs. Will not complete the arrangements for the game with Chillicothe until you let me know definitely that the Wichita Falls Baseball club will allow us the use of the park. However, I believe that Mr. Huff will see the advantages to Wichita Falls and feel that he will cooperate with you in making the arrangements.

"Other than securing the use of the park and turning the matter of ticket sales over to some responsible party, there will be only one other request. See that two of the best umpires obtainable are on hand to officiate.

"Trusting that you will be able to see your way clear to help all of us out, I am

Yours very truly,
PEYTON THURMON,
Vernon, Texas."

The suggestion is a good one, but we fear it will not meet with the desired success. In the first place, it is not the policy of the Spudder club to grant the use of their park to amateur teams. There are several reasons for this, according to President Huff. In the first place, it costs money to put the field back in condition after a game has been played. Next, the Spudder outfield at this time of the year is in bad condition. Little or no grass grows there, on account of the poor soil. Men are at work now grooming the field, and the only chance to improve the park is when the Spudders are away.

I talked to Prexy Huff about it long and earnestly, for I'd like to see the Vernon and Chillicothe teams play here. But the club would have to make a charge for the park in order to meet the expenses, and doubtless that charge would be prohibitive to the two clubs.

HUNGLING GETS FOUR BINGLES

Les White Twirls Team To Night Victory

Special to The Record News.

GALVESTON, June 9. — With Bernard Hungling leading the attack with four hits, the Wichita Falls Spudders tonight handed the Buccaneers their 23rd defeat of the past 25 games, 9-3. Ed Carroll was ineffective, while White held the Bucs in check.

Spuds Score in First

Wichita Falls got off to an early lead in the first when Carroll had difficulty in locating the plate. The tall right-hander walked Garms, and fanned Allday but Stanton doubled and scored Garms. Euller and Fuss walked, but Gullic had fanned and Scharein made an infield out.

In the second Hungling singled but was forced at second by White, the latter going to second on Molesworth's boot of Allday's grounder. White scored but Allday was out at the plate on Stanton's long drive.

In the third Fuss, Scharein, Hungling and White on successive safeties, interspersed by Carroll's error, scored four runs. Hungling and White both got doubles. In the meanwhile the Bucs were being held well in bound by White.

In the first half of the fourth, Stanton drew life on Carroll's error, but Gullic hit into a double play. Euller's sharp single to center was followed by Fuss' pop up to first base.

Bounce Carroll Out

In the fifth the Spudders improved upon their lead and incidentally sent Carroll to the showers. Scharein, the first up, was out, but Hungling drove out a terrific triple. Garms walked and both counted on Allday's double down the right field line. Preacher Thurman went in to the box and forced Stanton to pop up. The Spuds were out in order in the sixth, while the Bucs were helpless until their half of the sixth, when with one down they rallied and tallied three times. Bell's hard one off White's glove was a safety and the bases were full when Rosenthal walked and Speer got a single to short center. Speer's single scored Bell and Rosenthal. Stuvengen was caught in a chase. Speer counted on Molesworth's single, but Borreani ended things with an infield out.

Hungling's Fourth Hit

In the seventh Scharein singled, stole second and scored on Hungling's second double and fourth hit for the night. The catcher was left stranded. White walked Bell in the last of the seventh, but forced the Bucs to fly out. Wichita Falls was out in order in the eighth and the Bucs did manage to get one man on but to no avail.

Fuss opened the ninth with a hard drive to the left field fence, but was out when he attempted to stretch the hit into a triple. Scharein singled and Hungling walked, but White then fanned. Garms flew out to center. Three finished hitters failed to put the locals in the scoring column in the ninth.

Malones-Banks Play-Off Ends in 13-13 Tie

The Malones Beauty Shop-Banks play off game Tuesday afternoon on Debus field ended in a wild 13 to 13 deadlock. Slim Rook was the hero of the afternoon, tying the score in the last inning with a terrific smash over the center field fence for a home run shortly after Doc Allen had lined a long triple to the same field. Rook's drive was the longest drive hit this season on Debus field. Geyer was hammered hard and often, but ran his list of strikeouts up to 111 for the first half. Score:

KING TO BE IN TRAPSHOOT

Wichitan on Texas Team For Grand National

R. A. King Sr. of Wichita Falls was named on the Texas first team to compete in the Grand American National trapshoot at Vandalia, Ohio, late in August, according to Associated Press dispatches Tuesday night from Galveston, where the state championship trapshoot was held, and where the state team to participate in the national contest was selected.

Mr. King's son, Rufus Alfred King Jr., won the grand national title last year, defeating some of America's finest shots in a sensational upset. Rufus will defend his grand national title this year.

Other members of the state team were named as follows: E. F. Woodward, Houston; H. E. Woodward, Houston; A. C. Finn Jr., Houston; and Shirley Forsgard Jr., Galveston.

In the finals of the state meet at Galveston Tuesday E. E. Woodward added two more titles and a world's record to his collection by winning the singles and doubles championship, the former with a perfect 200 score, which gave him the title for the second year in succession. By being the only man to win the title two successive years by perfect scores he established a world's record. His victorious doubles score was 97.

Shirley Forsgard Jr., Galveston, national junior champion, won the state junior title after a 25-target shoot-off with Tobe Parks of Houston. Parks broke his last 75 straight to tie Forsgard with a score of 195.

Another state champion of 1930 retained her laurels. Mrs. Norman V. Pillot of Houston bested the field with a score of 191.

Rain Delays Tennis Meet

By BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

MEADOWMERE COUNTRY club, Fort Worth, June 9.—Second round matches in the third annual Texas District Lawn Tennis association state tournament here today were defeated by an overhead game, a stady rain that started falling at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon and forced a postponement of several matches.

The Wilmer Allison and Johnny Maddox combat, ranked as the feature of the day, was caught in the rain and halted after Allison, third ranking player in the United States Lawn Tennis association and 1929 and 1930 member of the American Davis cup team, had won the first set, 6-0, and was leading the second set, 3-1. It will be completed tomorrow.

The first round, incomplete yesterday, was completed today, and two of the 16 seeded players went out of the men's singles. Lucien La Coste, University of Texas star and seeded ten, was eliminated in the second round by Charles Ewell, Fort Worth, 0-6, 6-3, 6-3. Ted Hackney, Fort Worth, seeded 13th, faded out in the completion of the first round today by losing to Allen Gwynn, Fort Worth, 6-0, 2-6, 4-6.

After completion of the first round matches, several second round tilts were played before rain interfered. In these matches, seeded players such as Earl Taylor, Jake Hess, J. B. Adoue Sr., Donald Longcope and "Doc" Bar were victorious.

A few matches were played today in the junior singles, but the first round was incomplete when it started raining.

The American trick-shotter posted a 74, one under par, for his morning round and then went out and collected a dazzling 71 in the afternoon. Lafitte turned in rounds of 73-72 to gain a tie for the leadership.

One stroke back of the pace setters at the end of the first day were Marcel Dellemagne of St. Germain and Andre Boyer of Nice, each with 146. Tomas Genta, Argentine professional, and Percy Allias of Berlin were next with 148's.

Kirkwood was the lone American to qualify. The entry of Willie Hunter, American professional, was scratched and J. H. Forsman of Mamaroneck, N. Y., automatically was eliminated when he had disastrous rounds of 88-85—173 today. Scores of 170 or better qualified for the final rounds.

ORCUTT WINS FIRST MATCH

American Girl in Fore of British Championship

PORTMARNOCK, Ireland, June 9. (AP)—Led by Miss Maureen Orcutt, of Englewood, N. J., who took only 14 holes to win her first round match, all favorites advanced today in the British women's golf championship.

Miss Orcutt, playing a steady game on the soggy fairways and inundated greens, disposed of Mrs. Donald Soulby, five and four. The American girl was never behind after the first hole, which she lost, squaring the match on the second hole and the winning two more to give her a lead she held through the first nine.

Keeping step with the American girl were Miss Diana Fishwick, the defending champion—who gained her title last year with a surprising victory over the United States champion, Glenna Collett—Enid Wilson, the English champion, and Molly Gourlay.

Miss Fishwick, who was expected to have considerable trouble with Miss Rhoma Rabbidge, champion of Middlesex, gave her supporters something to cheer about with a clean cut five and three victory.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, June 9. (AP)—After showing considerable strength during the early trading today cotton prices broke when the stock market weakened, reaching the lowest levels of the day in the late trading.

October contracts, which sold up to 8.89 early on trade buying and covering, declined to 8.55 and closed at 8.56. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 15@20 points.

The opening was steady, to 3 points higher in spite of the relatively easy showing of Liverpool. This was attributed to reports of a somewhat better spot demand, trade buying and covering with the latter becoming more active when the stock market stiffened up. Talk of rather cool nights in some parts of the South and of poor cotton stands in Alabama may have contributed to the advance but there appeared to be no general criticism of the weather news and trading became comparatively quiet on the upturn.

The market weakened during the afternoon under liquidation or reselling by recent and early buyers who appeared to be influenced by the decline in wheat and the renewed weakness in the stock market.

Two private crop reports were issued during the morning, both which pointed to a decrease of 10.2 per cent in the acreage. One of these reports placed the condition of the crop at 67.7 against 69.1 last year. The figures were without any apparent effect on the market and traders seemed to be watching the stock market for their inspiration.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 9. (AP)—Cotton was only moderately active here today, but an easing tendecy after early gains of 12@14 points carried prices down to net losses for the day of 19@21 points at the close.

The early advance occurred in sympathy with stocks' early strength, but reaction in stocks and profit-taking coupled with rather liberal selling by ring traders and some July liquidation caused the sharp decline.

The weakness persisted in the afternoon when prices made new lows right at the end 32@33 points under the highs, reaching levels within a few points of the season's lows.

Port receipts 1,795; for week 8,227; for season 8,767,767; last season 8,612,030. Exports 13,501; for week 20,082; for season 6,279,039; last season 6,370,939. In unfinished goods markets business was steady in moderate volume, but at irregular prices. Burlap cables were unchanged in price and local markets were dull. Rayon was in fair demand with acetate yarns in best request. Wool goods were being sought on duplicate orders for fall. Dress goods were more active. Silk showed no special change.

Bank Flurry and Profit Taking Send Stocks Moderately Lower

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, June 9. (US)—Stocks finished lower in price today but the reaction was limited to moderate proportion in the majority of issues. Continued wholesale closing of Chicago banks exerted some influence on sentiment, yet it was more readily recognized that this situation is rapidly being cleaned up in a fashion which might have been accomplished, with comparable satisfaction to the general situation, months ago. That additional such developments may be anticipated is a logical thought, yet there is no disposition in responsible quarters to look with alarm on this revived bank-closing movement. Rather, these closing are accepted as part and parcel of the inevitable adjustments which represent possibly the final period of a long-drawn out and belated correction. In the great majority of instances, the latest frozen banking affairs reflect conditions prevalent in real estate rather than in the securities market.

There was no great haste to sell stocks today, rather a normal profit-taking period following the sizeable recoveries in prices the previous day. As it was, many stocks had extended their gains somewhat before the reaction set in. Volume of trading continued below two million shares.

There is a widespread tendency currently to accept a single day's price trend as evidencing complete change in the entire market. The best-informed interests still look upon the market as a trading affair, with perhaps increasing evidence of a revival in buying on price setbacks.

Nevertheless, there is distinct and noticeable tendency in important quarters to accept moderate profits on the upside whenever they are available. This was plainly evident in the market today. American Can, for example, and Steel Common were subjected to considerable selling of this nature, yet there was no unusual pressure against these stocks.

New York Central furnished a demonstration of strength, closing up fractionally in the face of general market softness. The Central directors meet for dividend action shortly after the market opens tomorrow may maintain the $6 rate at least until a decision is reached on the railroad plea for higher freight rates. What such action would mean for Central is evident from the fact that a 5 per cent increase in gross carried to net income would add about $3.80 a share to the stock's earnings.

Regular dividend by Central might reasonably furnish basis for renewed strength in the market, since it undoubtedly would stimulate short covering.

The story spread today that the most aggressive and outspoken bear on the stock exchange had turned to a bullish position, but this was completely at variance with the facts. It is understood that this bear still maintains his attitude toward Case Threshing, Westinghouse and other issues with the single exception of Alaska Juneau, about which he is vociferously bullish.

Railroad stocks as a group were only fractionally lower, the concurrence of the southern systems to the rate increase application strengthening the opinion that a formal application to the Interstate Commerce commission can hardly be long delayed.

In connection with the table published in this column Monday, disclosing the additional earnings per share which would become to the railroads if a 5 per cent increase in gross revenues were allowed and carried to net, it is worthwhile remembering that nearly as great a benefit would accrue from a 10 per cent reduction in wages.

The most disturbing weakness today was in federal water service and affiliated issues. Federal water stock broke 6 points to a new low price which plainly suggests danger to the dividend; the 5½ per cent bonds broke 11½ points. Tri-Utilities, associated with the federal water service, suffered similar sharp declines, the stock selling down 2½ points and the bonds selling at 14. Impending maturities occasioned the heavy selling. Tri-Utilities ended 1930 with a working capital of $736,650, while notes payable totalled over $12,000,000.

Reduction in the Western Electric's dividend from a $4 to $3 annual basis had immediate repercussion on American Telephone & Telegraph, whose annual income is reduced almost $6,000,000 by this action. Western Union, however, maintained its regular dividend.

Tomorrow's market will be called upon to absorb a probably unfavorable steel tonnage report, but this has been fully discounted. Car loadings during the past week are comparatively cheerful in that they are below the usual seasonal decline.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 9. (AP)—Influenced by suspension of 13 neighborhood banks in Chicago and by rains in central and northern Alberta province, Canada, wheat prices tended mainly downward today. A crop authority asserted that the Alberta rains would tide most of that section over for another week or so against moisture shortage effects. Meanwhile weather predictions were for more substantial relief, including likelihood of a general break up of drouth.

Wheat closed irregular at 1 cent decline to ½c advance, corn unchanged to ⅜@⅝c down, oats ⅛c off and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10 cents.

Corn and oats weakened with wheat and on selling of 350,000 bushels of corn into store here.

Provisions went lower as a result of selling ascribed to foreigners, but rallied on packers' buying.

Closing indemnities—Wheat: July 56¼c, 58⅝@½c; Sept. 56½@⅝c, 58½@⅝c; Dec. 60¼@⅜c. 62⅜c.

Sinclair to Omit Quarterly Dividend

NEW YORK, June 9. (AP)—The Sinclair Oil corporation will omit the 25-cent quarterly dividend on the common stock due July 15, it was announced today.

The regular monthly meeting of the board scheduled for Wednesday—the last at which the common dividend for the quarter could be declared—has been postponed on account of a lack of a quorum.

"A canvass of the board, however, has shown," said a statement, "that it was the opinion of its members that a common dividend should not be declared at this time owing to prevailing conditions in the oil industry."

The company, a leading oil producer and distributor, paid 25 cents on the common stock on Jan. 15 and April 15. This marked a 50 per cent reduction from the $2 annual dividend rate that was in effect from resumption of payments on April 15, 1929, to this year.

Mob Leaders Sought After Spanish Lynching

MADRID, June 8. (AP)—Members of a mob who lynched the retiring mayor of the town of Solana at his home were being sought by police today.

Mayor Fernando Petardo, a monarchist, who was defeated for reelection in the last elections, refused to turn over his office to a republican mayor-elect when the latter appeared at city hall. "I am a better republican than those elected," he said.

Enraged by his statement, a crowd followed him back to his residence and hanged him.

TEXAS LEADS IN FLOWERS

Native Varieties Fill Many Of Nation's Gardens

are asters, which English growers took from our woods and roadsides and improved; gaillardia, our old acquaintance the Indian blanket or firewheel comes back to us in the Portola hybrids. The grandiflora strain of coreopsis lanceolata pushes from our flower beds the species sorts, though I have yet to see any horticultural coreopsis as beautiful as the species named for the river along which it grows—Coreopsis nuecensis. The prickly poppy of southwestern Texas and Mexico has been hybridized and offered to gardeners. It is to be hoped that plant breeders will exert their skill upon others of our wild flowers.

Those who urge the satisfactions of wild flowers in gardens do so with no thought of displacing the splendid creations of the hybridizer's art. The flowers that try our skill are the flowers that bring greatest joy. We grow roses, iris, lilies—though, in truth, in very few instances has man been able to improve this superb flower of the field—tulips, daffedils, dahlias, chrysanthemums and even zinnias for perfection in the single flower. Wild flowers belong with those humbler horticultural varieties that give color or fragrance in return for little care. Their virtue is that, once established in congenial soil with the right exposure to sun or shade, they look after themselves.

A friend and I were once expatiating upon the difficulties of gardening in Central Texas. "The sun," we said, "the dry weather." We were answering with excuses our companion's challenge that our gardens have few flowers in comparison with those in his native Philadelphia. But he did not let us off so easily. "Why don't you grow these?" he demanded, holding out the blue Texas stars (Amsonia texana) in his hand. "You have the most varied and beautiful native flora in America, and the emptiest gardens." Wild flowers can help to fill these empty gardens. Some people collect native species as other people collect coins or first editions. Others admit a wild flower only if it is beautiful; then its being native is an added pleasure. Except in the rock garden where a single plant or small clump shows well, wild flowers are most effective when planted in masses.

Though wild flowers thrive in gardens when once they are established, getting them established is not always easy. It is usually a waste of precious material to take them up when they are in bloom. Young plants may be dug, but no one should be a glutton. The best plan is to mark the place where a desired flower grows and return later to gather the ripe seed. Seed of the earliest bloomers are ripening now. Having been gathered, the seed should be sown at once in boxes where they can be cared for. Many gardeners have tried without success to germinate the tiny seed of the blue gentian or Texas bluebell. A Dallas woman secures a high percentage of germination by duplicating the conditions under which the seed grow in nature. She sows the seed in small pots and sets the pots in a pan of water, so that the soil is at all times wet. Seeds of all other plants growing in marshy places should be treated in the same manner.

Wild flowers are fastidious enough about having their natural conditions of growth provided. Flowers accustomed to growing in damp leaf mold will not thrive on a bald limestone hill, nor will those that prefer sand be at home in black gum. The gardener who takes plants or seeds from the wild must observe and supply the conditions natural to their growth.

What to Grow

There follows a suggestive list of plants growing in various positions. Vines and shrubs are not included for the reason that they have been the subjects of other articles in this series.

In low, wet places, marshes: Blue gentian, cardinal flower, Persicaria pennsylvanica (a smartwood having spikes of delicate pink flowers), physostegia, meadow pinks and spider lily.

In water: Nama ovatum, which grows on margins of lakes and ditches in shallow water and bears blue flowers in July; water hyacinth, which grows only too well; pickerel weed; yellow pond lily; white water lily, American lotus, and a beautiful connection of the gentians, Limmanthemum equaticum or floating heart.

In sand, with a sunny exposure: Phlox, coreopsis nuecensis, butterfly bush, winecups, Lasater's pride (abronia), standing cypress, physostegia and blazing star.

On cliffs and limestone hills: Dodecatheon meadia, mountain pink, white rock daisy, Ionoxalis drummondii, blazing star and the giant yellow evening primrose.

On gravelly slopes: Blue, Texas star, celestials, phacelia, blazing star, white rock daisy, asters and beardtongue or foxglove.

In black dirt, with exposure to the sun: Bluebonnet, standing cypress, celestials, physostegia, phacelia, blue sage, blazing star, asters and wild petunias.

In moist shade: Bird's foot violet, true buttercup, malvaviscus, baby blue eyes, spiderwort, columbine and phacelia.

In dry woods: Asters in several species.

NORMAN CLASS HEARS NEFF

Oklahoma Graduates Get Diplomas

NORMAN, Okla., June 9. (AP)—Accumulation of money is not the real standard of success, former Gov. Pat Neff of Texas told nearly 900 seniors at the University commencement today.

"Moneyless millions," Neff called the graduates, because of their youth and opportunities. "Integrity of character," said the speaker, "is the most valuable thing in the world. You need to make enough money to obtain the comforts and conveniences of life but that is not the only standard of success.

"I urge you to remember," he said, "that a man's success in life consists not in things he possesses, but what he is."

A crowd of more than 4,000 attended the commencement.

Business Normality Predicted for 1932

ST. LOUIS, June 9. (UP)—The nation's business will reach normal by 1932 and continue its progress until 1933 finds a new era of prosperity in full swing, was the opinion of Dr. David Friday, economist and advisor to the treasury department, in an address to 500 St. Louis business executives.

"By December of this year the volume of industrial output should be 25 per cent larger than it was in December, 1930," Dr. Friday said. The economist said the retail volume of trade in physical units, although not in cash turnover, due to lower commodity prices, was now as large as in 1929.

"The fact that employment once more is picking up will make people more ready to buy goods and will accelerate the recovery when once it is started." Dr. Friday said.

HOUSE DROPS HORTON CHARGE

Tennessee Impeachment Counts Quashed

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 9. (UP)—Gov. Henry Horton was cleared of all impeachment charges today when the Tennessee house of representatives voted to quash the remaining seven articles of eight returned by an investigating committee.

The first, charging he conspired with Col. Luke Lea, newspaper publisher, and Rogers Caldwell, financier, to defraud the state and to perpetuate himself in office, was defeated last week.

The remaining articles were grouped and voted on together. Fifty-six votes were cast in favor of dismissal and 40 for the articles. There are 99 members of the house, and a majority vote was necessary for impeachment. Three legislators did not vote.

Horton had been under fire in connection with tieup of millions of state funds in banks controlled by Caldwell that failed last fall.

had a crush on "some boy" in the sales department! As if it didn't matter who it was. "Some boy." When the boy was Peter Douglas!

"She's awfully generous, and sweet. Once when she came in I admired a necklace she had on, and she gave it to me," Erma continued. "Said she was tired of it anyway. Another time I said I'd like to see a certain show, forgotten now what it was, and she sent over some tickets. You don't forget people when they're like that. As different from her father as night and day. Did you know Peter Douglas in the sales department?"

"Yes—"

"Is he nice?"

"Yes—" saying Peter was nice, when she still loved him so. Pretending he was a mere acquaintance. Sally hoped Erma wouldn't see the flush that was mounting on her face. She knew it was there, because she could feel her cheeks burning.

Linda Visits the Office

"Well, that's the boy. Mr. Roper asked me Saturday if I had ever seen him. Said he fas the latest flame of Linda's."

The whole office gossiping about Peter and Linda. Everyone interested.

"She picks out the queerest people to fall in love with. First, the count who wasn't a count at all. Danced in a night club. Then this salesman person who is nobody at all."

No use telling Erma that she was wrong. That Peter was charming, and lovable. Not a mere nobody, as she thought. Indeed, Sally couldn't help admiring Linda's taste, even if she was going around with Peter. Perhaps, the count, too, had been interesting.

Late in the afternoon, Linda came in, hatless, stunning in a blue crepe dress, with five sables caught together into a neckpiece over one arm. She flung them on Erma's desk, as if they were nothing at all, and reached for the phone, smiling a greeting at both the girls.

"Can I use your phone? Daddy has a board meeting, and there's a delegation in his secretary's office."

Sally watched her covertly. Linda was really very pretty, a freshness about her, a charm about the uplifted nose, the freckles, the clear tan of her complexion, the hair like dull copper. She saw the eyes that Erma said were yellowish brown. They were. Little flecks of gold in the irises. Then there was Harvey Davidson's chin which she had inherited. A stubborn chin, small but recognizable from the larger cast of Davidson's.

Sally Is Jealous

The two girls couldn't help hearing the conversation. Linda made no effort to lower her voice.

Sally, sat looking at the girl, her hands limp on the desk. Linda had asked for "Peter Douglas in the sales department."

Then when she got him, her face softened, and her thin lips smiled into the receiver.

"It's all fixed, Peter. Yes, all fixed. We'll leave Friday about four, and we'll be back Monday morning. Just a small party, and I'll have daddy fix it with Mr. Warner so you can get off. You needn't worry about anything. And Peter—I'm upstairs now. I'll meet you at five-thirty at the usual place. Bye—" and the receiver clicked on its hook.

Peter and Linda were week-ending some place. A whole week-end. Friday until Monday morning . . .

Sally's hands were trembling as she clasped them together.

"Forgot your furs, Miss Davidson," Erma called after Linda as she started for the door.

"So I have—" She took the furs Erma handed her, and went out.

"Swell week-end ahead of Peter Douglas," Erma commented thoughtfully. "I didn't hear him turn it down. Lucky devil. And the Merlin is a beautiful yacht."

"How do you know they're going on the Merlin?" Sally asked quickly.

"Mr. Roper told me this morning Mr. Davidson was going on a cruise this week-end—"

Linda and Peter on the Merlin. Walking the decks in the moonlight together . . . Three nights. Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Hard for Sally. The man she loves going on a week-end cruise with another girl—a girl who has everything.

C.-C. SEEKING GRAIN EXHIBITS

Farmers Asked to Prepare Displays

Farmers who expect to compete for prizes offered by the retail merchants division of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce harvest festival to be held in Wichita Falls June 18-20 should start now getting their exhibits prepared, according to Jack Barnard, chairman of the committee.

According to G. C. McGown, county agent of Wichita county, the exhibits of bundle grain should be selected from bundles that have the brightest straw and best filled heads. In preparing the bundle all leaves should be removed from the straw and tie up in a bundle that is not less than three inches or more than five inches in diameter. Three ties should be placed about the bundle, one near the bottom, another in the middle and the third under the heads.

Agent McGown also announced that instead of showing a peck of threshed grain that a gallon would be sufficient. Farmers should select the grain with care and remove all foreign grain or substances from it. The work can be done by hand within a few minutes.

The harvest festival display of grain will be held in the J. C. Penney company building, Eighth street between Indiana and Ohio. Exhibits are expected from a number of counties and prizes are open to any county in the Wichita Falls area, Texas or Oklahoma. Entries close Thursday morning, June 18, 9 o'clock.

Testimony Ends In $45,000 Suit

Introduction of testimony in the $45,000 damage suit of Mrs. Pearl Tedford against the Wichita Falls Traction company and Albert Leimkuehler was completed before Judge W. W. Cook in the 78th district court late Tuesday afternoon, and the case will be given to the jury before noon Wednesday, it was indicated.

Preparation of the court's charge was completed about 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, it was said, and the jury will receive its instructions at 9 a. m. Wednesday.

The plaintiff's suit is based upon allegedly permanent injuries said to have been received when she, as a passenger in an ambulance belonging to the Albert's Funeral home, was thrown to the pavement at Thirteenth and Holliday streets last July 6 when the vehicle collided with a street car.

In an earlier trial before Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court, the plaintiff won a verdict and a considerable award. Upon defense motion for a new trial, the verdict was set aside.

Features of Thursday night's program previously announced include a song-guitar number by Miss Delores Myler of radio station KGKO, and several numbers by Jess Smith's orchestra.

Wednesday Last Day To Qualify as Notary

Approximately 530 Wichita county residents had qualified as notary publics for the ensuing two years at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, according to Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk.

Exception will be taken in case of such designated persons who may have been ill, or absent from the county during the first 10 days of June. Texas-Okla. Editors Named Honor Guests for Legion's July 4 Party

A dinner and complimentary tickets to newspaper men of Northwest Texas and Southwestern Oklahoma will be tendered by Pat Carrigan post of the American Legion for the Fourth of July celebration to be held in Wichita Falls, according to Milt Gaines, general chairman of the celebration committees.

"We are especially anxious for the editors to be the guests of Pat Carrigan post for the celebration," said Chairman Gaines. "Wichita Falls is seeking the 1932 state convention and we feel that every newspaper editor in the Wichita Falls area is just as anxious for our post to be awarded the convention as if it was sought by their own city and legion post.

"The newspaper men have been friends of the American Legion and we want them to come to Wichita Falls and be the guests of Pat Carrigan post. They will be furnished an abundance of complimentary tickets which will admit them to every event of the day.

"The dinner will be tendered in the evening and when concluded the editors will be conveyed to Fair park, where special seats in a choice section of the grandstand will be reserved for them. The entertainment of the editors will be in charge of Fred L. Haskett.

"We have received letters from a number of post commanders in both Texas and Oklahoma. They are supporting the celebration to be held in Wichita Falls, also our city for the state convention to be held in 1932. If we win the convention, and which we have confidence in doing, it will mean the greatest convention ever entertained in this city.

"Oklahoma ex-service men, most of whom fought with Texas boys, are also anxious for Wichita Falls to win the convention as they want to come here and meet their buddies."

Charter members of the chapter are 25 representatives of business firms here. Application for a charter was forwarded to national headquarters in Washington, D. C., Tuesday, under the title of the Aero Club of Wichita Falls.

The association, as a national organization, is pledged to the development and advancement of aviation. Its slogan embodies the purpose to make America foremost in aeronautics.

Col. Ed C. Wilson Tells of Reunion

He Has Attended 41 Confederate Meets

Col. Ed C. Wilson of Electra was in Wichita Falls Tuesday afternoon telling some of the old soldiers about the convention that ended in Montgomery, Ala., last week.

"There were more than 3,000 old Confederate soldiers in attendance and the citizenship of Montgomery would not let us spend one penny," said Colonel Wilson, who is a colonel, aide de camp and sergeant at arms of the national organization.

"This convention makes the 41st that I have attended and I was one of the organizers of the United Confederate Veterans in New Orleans in 1889," said Colonel Wilson. "I am now 89 years old and I have never had a better time than at the convention we held last week.

"Next year we go to Richmond, Va., and the attendance, no doubt, will be less than this year because our ranks are fast disappearing. Some wanted to make this our last convention but so long as there are only a few of us left we will meet and tell about the days we spent in the War Between the States."

Colonel Wilson holds membership in Camp Joe E. Johnston, No. 259, at Childress, Texas, where he resided before moving to Electra 21 years ago.

JUDGE UPHOLDS KIRKLAND TERM

Effort to Boost Assault Sentence Fails

VALPARAISO, Ind., June 9. (UP)—Judge Grant Crumpacker refused today to increase the one to 10-year sentence imposed when Virgil Kirkland was convicted on a criminal attack charge growing out of the death of his sweetheart, Arlene Draves, at a Gary drinking party.

The court's decision, which terminated a hearing at which the prosecution sought to have Kirkland resentenced to a term of five to 21 years, was based on the judge's conclusion that he had given Kirkland the maximum penalty permitted by the law.

Attorneys Confer on Verner Donohoe Trial

John Myers, district attorney at Vernon, and R. R. Donaghey, county attorney of Wilbarger county, conferred Tuesday afternoon with George Anderson and Mike Anglin, assistant district attorneys here, relative to the trial of Verner Donohoe in the 89th district court here on June 22.

Donohoe is charged with the killing of Herman Walden in a pasture near Grayback crossing, south of Vernon, in February, 1930. In his first trial, the jury convicted him and assessed a penalty of 25 years imprisonment. The case was reversed and remanded by the court of criminal appeals, however, and again was tried in Vernon. A hung jury resulted in the second trial. It was then transferred to Wichita county, and assigned to be heard by Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court.

The Wilbarger county attorneys will have the assistance of the local district attorney's staff, it was indicated, in prosecuting the case.
