POLAR RESCUE SHIP SAVES SIX MEN

Kentucky Governor Seals Fate Of Seven Condemned Men

Indifference—
Revised Opinion of
Mrs. Cunningham—
Not "Cracking"—

Attendance at county political rallies since the opening of the campaign early this month has been distressingly small, if you take the attendance as an indication of public interest in the races for various offices. Issues are clean cut in a number of the local contests and in several instances voters will be called upon to exercise critical judgment in selecting officials for the next two years. Wichitans might give more thought to the campaign here. Selection of capable officers is more vital to this county than any state or national race.

◆ ◆ ◆

State candidates seem to view Wichita county as a distinctly desirable area, judging from the number who have brought their platforms and policies here. As for the senatorial candidates, it seems to this writer Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham has delivered the best and most logical address of any candidate here. Women have not made any great success in the halls of congress, but then one must revise previous ideas of "women senators" after hearing Mrs. Cunningham.

◆ ◆ ◆

Friends of prohibition, many of them opposed to Al Smith, should ponder on Mrs. Cunningham's indictment of the Republican administration for its indifference to enforcement of liquor laws. It seems illogical to hope for better enforcement under another Republican administration.

◆ ◆ ◆

Most of us can recall the early days of prohibition, days when federal liquor agents swarmed over this and other states, when many of the most capable officers in Texas led the fight to halt liquor sales. There were many raids, many convictions, bootlegging was a hazardous occupation and liquor was harder to secure. It's different now.

"Why do you make 'cracks' at prohibition?" a Wichita Falls business man asked this writer. This newspaper isn't "cracking" at prohibition. We have prohibition laws but no prohibition. Any person with the desire can get about as much liquor in Wichita Falls as he wishes, when, how and where he pleases. Liquor cases seldom end in state convictions, and officers know it. Beer cases practically never come into district court. In this writer's opinion, so-called "prohibitionists" should do less talking about the menace of Al Smith, Jim Reed, et al, and more about the things that are taking place in every "home town" in this state, and doubtless this nation.

Cost of operating the city of Wichita Falls is not only decreasing, but is showing a larger decrease each month, according to city reports released for the last three months. Approximately $5,000 for April, $8,000 for May and $10,000 for June are the savings made to the tax payers of this city under the manager plan for the last three months. —H. C. F.

Doomed Murderers Must Pay Lives for Long List of Crimes

GOVERNOR REFUSES

One of Condemned Men Has Eleventh Hour Chance Left

EDDYVILLE, Ky., July 12. (AP)—Seven condemned murderers saw what probably was their last sunset through the bars of their death cells in the state penitentiary here tonight.

In the small morning hours of Friday the 13th, will begin the procession to the electric chair that will mark the state's punishment to seven who took the lives of others.

Clemency Refused

Governor Flem D. Sampson this afternoon refused to grant clemency to any of the men. His action left only an eleventh hour habeas corpus suit in behalf of Orlando "Red" Seymour, one of the condemned men, standing in the way of the state's plans for a septuple execution.

Seymour, who is 21, was convicted of the murder of William Schanzenbachen, coal yard operator.

Others scheduled to die are:

Rascue Dockery, 21, convicted of the slaying of Mrs. Bradley Howard in Harlan county.

Sets Record

James Howard, negro, convicted in Jefferson county for killing Lucy Buckner, negro woman.

Clarence McQueen, negro, convicted in Harrison county for killing George Craig, negro.

William Moore, negro, convicted in Jefferson county for slaying Cora Crosby, negro woman.

Prison authorities say a record will be established with the execution of the seven men, as far as the state of Kentucky is concerned.

BISHOP MOORE JOINS BOLTERS

40-Year Democrat Casts Vote for Hoover

DALLAS, Texas, July 12. (AP)—Impetus to the fight to carry Texas into the Republican camp in November for the first time since the civil war, was added today by announcement of Bishop John M. Moore of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, that he would vote for Herbert Hoover for president.

Bishop Moore declared that although he had been a Democrat for 40 years his views with regard to prohibition would not allow him to support Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York. He added, however, that he had no thought of deserting the Democratic party.

"I will vote for Mr. Hoover," Bishop Moore said, "To avert a moral disaster to this country and to save the Democratic party from the powers that are despoiling it."

Bishop Moore said he had come in contact recently with church leaders in Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Kentucky, and despite the fact that most had been Democrats all their lives without exception they had declared themselves "against Governor Smith and usually for Mr. Hoover."

Meanwhile, activities of leaders of the anti-Smith Democrats were held up for the time being while action of the court of civil appeals at San Antonio was had on a mandamus proceeding brought by Thomas B. Love, candidate for lieutenant governor, to determine whether county executive committees have the authority to bar the name of certain candidates on Democratic primary tickets. The court's decision is expected tomorrow or Saturday.

Completed Federal Jury to Hear Of Appointment of Southern Marshal

BILOXI, Miss., July 12. (AP)—Organization of a federal grand jury of 18 men was completed in southern district court here today and Judge E. R. Holmes began delving into distribution of federal patronage in Mississippi, with the nominal head of the Republican party in the state included in the investigation.

Shortly after the grand jury had retired to begin interrogation of witnesses, it became known from the minute books of the district attorney's office that witnesses had been summoned to testify as to events leading up to the appointment last summer of A. P. Russell Magee as United States marshal for the southern district. The witnesses were instructed to present any correspondence they had with Perry W. Howard, negro assistant United States attorney general and national committeeman from Mississippi. Howard is regarded as the Republican leader in the state.

MEXICAN ACE TAKES OFF ON HOP HOMEWARD

Leaves On Attempt To Make Non-Stop Flight

STARTS IN RAIN

Good Will Flier Gains Air and Turns Southward

ROOSEVELT FIELD, L. I., July 12. (UP)—Captain Emilio Carranza, Mexican good will flier, left here shortly after 7 p. m., on an attempted non-stop flight to Mexico City. He took off unexpectedly, just before a heavy rain started.

Carranza arrived at the field less than half an hour before his departure.

Carranza climbed into the cockpit and a few minutes later the craft roared down the runway and lifted into the air. It appeared to observers that Carranza was having trouble gaining altitude but he pointed the plane southward and continued.

The severe rain which broke shortly after his takeoff gave rise to the speculation that he would be forced to return but several rumors that he had landed at nearby fields proved false.

Teller was sent to Leavenworth after he had been convicted of peonage charges in federal court.

The celebration welcoming home the former sheriff rivaled that of his night of departure for the penitentiary. Among those to greet him were many former overseas comrades. A new automobile purchased by 200 friends, was presented him.

DRYS OFFERED ALFRED SMITH

One-Man Parade Follows "Nomination"

CHICAGO, July 12. (AP)—William F. Varney, Rockville Center, N. Y., was tonight nominated by the Prohibition party as its candidate for the presidency.

Varney was declared nominated on the second ballot with 66 votes out of 121 cast. Hoover was second in a field of six with 45 votes.

Varney's nomination was declared unanimous by a majority vote of the delegates, despite a demonstration by the minority.

On the first ballot, in which Varney received 53 votes, lacking seven of a majority for nomination, and Hoover 42, Governor Alfred E. Smith received two.

The Democratic candidate's nomination and his subsequent poll of votes precipitated a one-man parade by Delegate Clinton N. Howard, Rochester, N. Y. Howard marched up and down for four minutes in front of the speaker's platform, shouting, "this is a burlesque! Such actions as this make our party the laughing stock of the nation!"

His activity delayed the balloting until a storm of protests from the delegates forced him to sit down. Smith received no votes on the second ballot.

James A. Edgerton of Alexandria, Va., was nominated for vice-president with 68 votes. Other votes were for F. S. Regan of Rockford, Ill., 29; Dr. B. E. Prugh, Harrisburg, Pa., chairman of the convention, 2; J. R. Buck, Norris, Wis., one and Jesse Jones of Houston, Texas, 2.

Texas Millionaire Shocks Broadway With Queer Theatrical Venture

NEW YORK, July 12. (UP)—The world's champion "angel" and the world's champion unsuccessful play, which the angel has been backing for nearly two years, have resumed their journey toward the poorhouse.

Before the shocked gaze of Broadway, Edgar B. Davis, a cheerful oil plutocrat from Texas, announced he had sunk $1,100,000 in "The Ladder" and was prepared to shoot the works with the rest of his fortune. He is supposed to have about $7,000,000 left.

A little sadly today, Davis read the comments of the critics on the revised version of the reincarnation play. "The Ladder" was presented in its re-written form at its 662nd performance Wednesday night.

For the past eight months admission has been free, but Davis had faith in the new version and chargged regular theater prices for seats.

The "opening" was freely advertised. Twenty-two paying customers showed up, paid $65 into the Cort theater box office, applauded the play, and stared curiously at the critics present.

The critics planned the new "Ladder" gently or acridly according to the condition of their respective livers.

Davis made no comment today except to have a sign put up in the lobby announcing "seats selling eight weeks in advance." He also added a line to his newspaper advertising which shocked several worthy persons including Lee and J. J. Shubert, Florenz Ziegfeld, and Miss Texas Guinan.

The line said: "Money refunded if not satisfied with play."

Broadway laughed at Davis at first but now its habitues are beginning to regard him with something like awe. Maybe it is awe. It is certainly an awful spectacle to see a retiring, well-fed, cheerful gentleman begin shoveling a second million into the mid-town gutters.

What sticks in the Broadway gullet is that its very wisest ones are unable to figure out whether Davis really means it when he says he is confident of "The Ladder's" ultimate success. When "The Ladder" opened on Oct. 21, 1926, and then continued to run although it was a failure from the start, doping "Angel" Davis was a cinch for Broadway.

"Sucker," said Broadway.

It was then given out that Davis continued to pour hundreds of thousands of dollars into the production because the play taught the theory of reincarnation, in which he was a believer.

"Nut," said Broadway.

But as version after version of "The Ladder" appeared, the reincar-

RASKOB STARTS BOLD TASK OF ELECTING AL

New Chairman to Direct Energies On Quieting Minority

DISSENSION IN SOUTH

Campaign to Center On Smith Speeches In "Key" Cities

NEW YORK, July 12. (UP)—John J. Raskob today went about his business of electing Alfred E. Smith president of the United States.

Unmindful of the speculation which followed his selection as chairman of the Democratic national committee, Raskob turned his attention to the creation of a national organization, the raising of $2,000,000 which Col. Herbert H. Lehman indicated would be necessary, the mapping of campaign strategy, and the selection of at least ten "key" cities where Governor Smith will speak.

Ripples of Protest

With the Democratic leaders—east, south and west—the campaign apparently hinges upon the hope of quieting ripples of protest and swinging the rebellious minority in line with the bold policy which Smith and Raskob have undertaken.

In the east, Raskob's selection as chairman and director of the campaign met with enthusiasm which was outspoken and sincere. The importance of Raskob's connection with the party as a means of counteracting the Republican "prosperity" plea was quickly recognized.

In the south there were reports of dissension, both on account of Raskob's connection with big business and because of his wet views. There was also some opposition voiced to the proposed establishment of Democratic headquarters below the Mason-Dixon line, where Senator Joseph T. Robinson, vice presidential candidate, warned the party a campaign is necessary to hold the "solid south" in line.

South Believed Solid

Walter Moore of Alabama told the committee members the south would support the ticket without an intensive drive.

In the west the sentiment was similar in regard to the prohibition, religious and big business issues, according to committee talk but the general impression was that Governor Smith had put through a brilliant and probably decisive stroke.

The rapid manner in which developments followed Raskob's first acts as campaign director indicated the financier would present an impressive and probably bewildering drive on Republican strongholds.

Speeches By Smith

It was indicated the campaign would center around the 10 or 12 speeches Governor Smith will make throughout the country in the effort to "put across the Smith personality." There was no definite or official word concerning these speeches but it was pointed out by political observers that the governor probably would make addresses over a radio hook-up at such "strategic points as Chicago, St. Louis, Denver, Minneapolis, and probably a city in one of the southern border states. In addition, there would be one or two eastern cities on the route, it was believed.

Mrs. Ross Leads Women

Lehman's refusal to set a definite figure as to the fund needed for the campaign caused some speculation, but the finance director intimated it would be approximately $2,000,000 and that his plan for raising the fund would be evolved within the next week or ten days.

Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, former governor of Wyoming, was named chairman of the woman's division of the national committee and Mrs. Florence Farley of Kansas was named vice-chairman.

RESERVE BANK IN ELECTIONS

No Action Taken On Charge Against Talley

DALLAS, Texas, July 12. (AP)—Gus F. Taylor of Tyler was elected chairman and Stanley A. Longmoore of Dallas was named secretary of the advisory board of the Federal Reserve bank of Dallas at the second annual meeting of stockholders here today.

Others elected members of the advisory board were: W. W. Woodson, Waco; Nathan Adams, Dallas; John F. Yantis, Brownwood; H. L. Baker, Paris; E. H. Schmidt, Eagle Pass; Arthur F. Jones, Portales, N. M.; S. W. Stone, Durant, Okla.; A. M. Gallaspie, Nogales, Ariz.; J. Melton Oakes, Homer, La., and W. M. Massie, Fort Worth.

This board will meet in Dallas in September to name a committee for the study of problems relating to federal banks and their operations. The committee will report to the 1929 meeting of stockholders.

The stockholders took no action on charges made last year by J. P. Williams of Mineral Wells against the administration of Gov. Lynn P. Talley, with reference to management and policies. Mr. Williams said that he had not receded from his former position but would leave the matter with the board of directors. He said that so far as he was concerned the fight was over. The directors recently re-elected Mr. Talley and approved his administration.

"The last six months period of 1928 represents so far as I can recall the smoothest and most satisfactory operation of the bank in its history," Governor Talley said.

Norris Refuses Nomination Tendered Him by Farmer-Labor Convention

WASHINGTON, July 12. (UP)—Senator George Norris, independent Republican of Nebraska, declined today to accept the presidential nomination tendered him Wednesday by the Farmer-Labor party in Chicago.

In a statement Norris said although he would not accept the nomination he was not unsympathetic to those who "are opposed to the platforms and presidential nominees of the major political parties."

Norris pointed out that it was virtually impossible for the people to elect a presidential candidate not nominated by one of the major political parties. Only when the electoral college is done away with and the people have a direct "voice and vote" in the election of a president, can an independent hope to reach the office of chief magistrate of the nation, he said.

CHICAGO, July 12. (UP)—Senator George W. Norris will be regarded as the Farmer-Labor candidate for president until he sends his refusal direct to the party leaders, it was announced here today.

SECOND PARTY TAKEN OFF ICE BY 'KRASSIN'

Marooned Rescuers Seen By Crew of Russian Ice Breaker

LONDON, July 12. (UP) — The daring attempts of brave men of the north to rescue their comrades in distress apparently have been highly successful during the past 24 hours and six lives given up as lost have been saved, with the chances excellent that others will yet be rescued.

Dispatches received here tonight from Virgo bay and from Rome indicated that four members of the Italia crew who have been in desperate need of help were rescued tonight by the Russian relief ship Krassin and that three other men—apparently members of a dogsled expedition to rescue the Italia crew—have been sighted.

Successful Day

This news, coupled with the news from Moscow earlier today that two Italians had been rescued after 48 days of wandering on Arctic ice and the body of another had been recovered, constituted the most successful day of rescue operations since the dirigible Italia crashed May 25 after a flight over the North Pole.

Battling her way through a desert of broken ice cakes, the Krassin pushed her nose to the point far off Northeast Land where a tiny tent painted red marked the camp of four members of the crew of the wrecked polar dirigible Italia. The starved, frantic men who had battled starvation and freezing temperature since May 25 were taken aboard, it was announced in advices from Rome.

Second Victory

A second great victory over the north was scored by the Krassin when she sighted another party of marooned men just a few hours before the rescue of the group under command of Alfredo Viglieri. The second group was believed to be the daring men who set out by dogsled to aid the stranded Italia crew and were lost. It was believed this latter party was that commanded by Captain Sora, an explorer, who set out with two companions.

Today was probably the outstanding of the rescue efforts which had enlisted the agencies of five nations and had lasted for nearly 48 days, and Captain Samoyolovich of the ice breaker Krassin, with his fellow countryman Chukhnovsky, the pilot who sighted three figures on the ice Tuesday night, was the outstanding figure in heroic rescue work.

Two are Rescued

Early today the Krassin found and took aboard Capt. Adalberto Mariano and Capt. Filippo Zappi of the Italia, who with Capt. Finn Malmgren, Swedish meteorologist, had attempted to walk from the red-tent camp to land. Malmgren died a month ago.

The two survivors were exhausted and had been without food for 13 days, but were in good spirits. Zappi, however, was under the care of physicians tonight.

The Krassin ploughed her way to

SCHOOL HELD FREE TO BUILD

Batts Thinks University Can Borrow Money

AUSTIN, July 12. (AP)—Regent R. L. Batts expressed belief Thursday that the University of Texas is at liberty now to borrow money for its building program from the state permanent school fund, which has a large uninvested surplus.

On this point he disagreed with President H. Y. Benedict, who said yesterday that he believed the university would wait until the legislature amends the law on investment school funds and expressed some pessimism as to how soon the legislators would take such action.

The university is allowed to borrow from its building fund under a ruling by Attorney General Pollard that the interest in the university permanent fund can be pledged for a debt.

"I think we should borrow from the permanent school fund," Mr. Batts said. "By this plan that fund would get the benefit of interest paid by the university.

"I believe that this could be done under the law as it stands. If I am wrong about this law, the policy is so manifestly right that I have no doubt the legislature will make any needed change."

56 Plums Carried On 18-Inch Branch of Tree Owned by Wichitan

Prize pickings of the early summer are beginning to come in, and among them are plums from the trees in the back yard of A. M. Winters at 1510 Tenth street.

For many years, Mr. Winters was in the furniture business here, and he takes an active interest in the life of the city. Several days ago he heard of some remarkable plums being grown, and Thursday was telling a neighbor about his plum trees. The neighbor brought one branch to The Record News office.

This branch is 18 inches long and carries 56 plums. One cluster of plums numbers 39.

On being questioned about his plums, Mr. Winters said they were wild plums that are tart and make the "best jelly in the world." They are bearing so heavily that the branches in some instances are touching the ground, he said.

Ancient Pistol And Watch Found In Haskell Yard

HASKELL, Texas, July 12.—E. H. Breedeen, living south of the crossing of the Wichita Valley on the Haskell and Stamford highway, was exhibiting in the city a few days ago a pistol, watch and razor which his children dug up in his yard at a depth of about one foot. The pistol was an old make, rusty and out of commission. The watch was an old keywinder, in a silverine case, very badly corroded. The razor was only a rusty blade with the handle all decayed and crumbled. These articles had been placed in a Dixie Queen tobacco box of heavy tin when buried and seemingly must have been wrapped in a handkerchief and it was all gone but a small bit that contained a laundry mark "B. H. D." which was very legible.

The place where they were found is an old settled place and many have lived in the building since they were buried.

LOCOMOTIVE ON WILD RAMPAGE

Fireman Dares Hissing Steam—Saves Train

PLAINFIELD, N. J., July 12. (AP)—While two broken driving rods were tearing up the roadbed, a fireman of a Baltimore and Ohio locomotive today climbed to the top of the engine and released the exhaust valves to prevent an explosion should the careening locomotive leave the rails.

The west-bound express was traveling more than 40 miles an hour when the rods snapped near the Plainfield station. Engineer Mark S. Goodright applied air-brakes, but they did not function, he said later.

A bushing flunk from the crippled engine struck the upright of a small passenger shelter and caused it to collapse. Edgar Smith, Plainfield, who was sitting in the shelter, was unhurt.

Arthur Bien, fireman of the engine, finding the engine continued to run madly on under its momentum, feared that the boiler would explode if it left the rails. He climbed to the top of the locomotive and clung there amid clouds of steam while he emptied the boiler through the valves. Half a mile from where the rods broke the train stopped. It was only then that passengers learned what had happened.

Several railroads announced that they would run excursions for the event.

JURY BALKS IN STREAM CASE

Pollution Suit To Be Retried

Special to The Record News.

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, July 12. (Sp)—The first alleged stream pollution case of the kind ever tried before a jury in this section of the state resulted in a divided jury at Graham in the case of the State of Texas versus Charles Atkinson when the trial was conducted early this week. After the the jury had been dismissed it was learned that the body stood for acquittal with one exception, one member of the jury holding out for verdict other than acquittal.

In the case, the state claimed that the waters of the Clear Fork had been polluted by virtue of claim that the defendant, a member of the firm of Sandefer-Atkinson-Daniel Oil corporation of Breckenridge, interested in a well on the Boozer lease, had caused salt water to escape and run into Clear Fork. The testimony showed that the oil company had used ordinary diligence, backed by an ordinary expenditure, to take care of the salt water. It developed, however, that during a heavy rain in the latter part of June, the dyke broke and permitted the water to run into the stream.

The prosecution in the case was at the instance of the fish, game and oyster department of Texas, while the prosecution was in direct charge of County Attorney Penix of Young county.

Heretofore a number of similar cases against other firms or individuals have been filed in Young, Stephens and Eastland counties.

The fact that the jury failed to agree means that the case will be retried, probably during the early part of August.

TEXANS labor under a disadvantage. The state is so big.

Last evening when Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham was telling of her campaign journey, she told it something like this—"I have been down as far as Brownsville, over as far as El Paso and up as far as Amarillo." State's too big, we can't even use customary directions and give anything like a descriptive idea of location.

But Texans are certainly a loyal cult. Witness this as told by the clever speaker of Wednesday evening at the dinner complimenting her at the Woman's Forum:

A Texas man attending the Democratic convention in Houston recently, yelled after a rapidly climbing elevator, demanding a lift on that particular journey, and as the elevator proved obdurate, the Texan fired four shots into the various apertures of the retreating car.

"Mercy! How crude these Texas people are!" remarked a New York woman to another of her state. Then a Texas woman came to the rescue. She walked boldly up to the offending New Yorkers and shouted "That is not a Texas man, it is a New Yorker drunk on Tammany whiskey!" And the speaker concluded that the Texas woman in her loyal support, got away with it.

MRS. CUNNINGHAM was well received in Wichita Falls in her two speeches here. Remarks heard from men in her audience at Bellevue park, Wednesday evening, were complimentary and augur well for her present campaign as Democratic candidate for United States senator from Texas.

Mrs. Cunningham has been a pioneer in political work and has edged a way for women in their pursuit for a fuller political life. As she is the daughter of Walker county pioneers so is she a pioneer in her fight for political freedom for her sex, the fight dating back to pioneer days in suffrage.

To quote Mrs. Cunningham: "It is easy to come in when people have stopped laughing at you—it is easy to gather up the laurels of the despair and struggles of another. It is the pioneering work in suffrage that was hard—made more difficult because of the heartless jeers of the crowds."

Mrs. Cunningham was evidently one of the few who have not let the jeers and jibes of the crowd hinder her from her goal of aiding woman to a fuller life and a merited freedom.

Mrs. Ben G. Oneal, president of the Woman's Forum, has recently received a letter of inquiry concerning the Woman's Forum here from an instructor in one of the Alabama colleges who is living on Riverside Drive, New York.

The young lady and her mother, both of whom make their home in New York, are eager to learn all they can of the organization of the forum of which they first read in the "Woman Citizen" which is edited by Carrie Chapman Catt and which includes among a long list of contributors, Dorothy Canfield. The writer of the letter is interested in club work and seeks to locate in Texas, preferably in a town which has a fully organized and working association of women, as the Woman's Forum.

Four Wheeled Brakes Can't Keep Modern Girl From Love, Says Dix

"Marriage Is Still Career to Which Every Woman Looks Forward, and It Is Difficult to Believe That Modern Girl Is Unresponsive When Petting Has Become the National Sport," Observes Dorothy Dix.

Is the modern woman less lovable and less capable of loving than the woman of the past? Has the emancipation of women atrophied her heart? Count Herman Keyserling, the German philosopher, who has been observing American women with a view of writing a book about them, is convinced that love in this romantic country is on its deathbed. He finds that the American woman produces an effect of coldness, hardness, soullessness, and that she is far more cynical and matter-of-fact than the most rational man. Also he has discovered that love between man and woman "is no longer fashionable."

They say that the outsider always sees more of the game than the participants. Certainly traveling foreigners always purport to find the American woman a rara avis with strange weird habits and characteristics that her own countrymen here never observed or even suspected her of possessing. Nevertheless, it is news to us to learn that the girls of today are any less attractive to men than their grandmothers were or that women are any less prone to acute heart attacks or are less preoccupied with the state of their affections or that they are any more averse to matrimony.

The situation, as seen from the inside, appears to be just what it has always been since the beginning of time. Whatever else has been modernized, women's hearts have not altered. No new safety devices have been put on them to keep them from skidding. No four-wheel brakes added that enable them to clamp down in time to prevent them from going to smash over the wrong man.

Whether a girl vamps every man in sight or has never a date to bless herself with still depends on the come-hither look in her eye and not on whether she has the right to vote or not. Nor does her having a job and earning her own living abate by one jot or tittle her desire to love and be loved and her settled determination not to be an old maid if she can help it. Marriage is still the career to which every woman looks forward, and it is difficult to believe that women have grown cold and hard and unresponsive to affection when petting has become the national sport.

It is true that the modern girl does not pine away in a green-and-yellow melancholy if she is the victim of unrequitted love. Nor does she die of a broken heart if some faithless lover kisses and rides away or some true lover is slain or perishes of a lingering malady. In olden times every community had some sweet, gentle, melancholy old maid who had "never gotten over" losing her sweetheart and who had spent 30 or 40 years reading yellow old letters and weeping over a faded rosebud. But there are no such women now.

That doesn't prove, however, that the women of that day loved more deeply than they do now. It only shows that they followed the fashions of their time. They pined because it was considered an elegant ladylike thing to pine.

They wept because women were all human tear jugs, just as now they hide their grief because we have a contempt for women who haven't enough backbone to bear their troubles in silence. Moreover, women in grandma's day had so little to do and so little to interest them that they could get a morbid kick out of dwelling on their sorrows, whereas now life is so full of thrills that it keeps us from holding unwholesome post-mortems over what might have been.

Undoubtedly women are less trusting than they used to be. Perhaps no man is a little tin god to a woman nowadays that the hero of her girlish dreams was to grandma. No woman can work shoulder to shoulder with men day after day and not get wise to all their tricks and manners.

No girl can take the dictation of a flirtatious employer who asks her out to dinner or listen to the married Ananiases calling up their wives on the phone about 5 o'clock and telling them that they won't be home to dinner because they are going to an important conference or a buyer from Oshkosh has come to town, without knowing just how far husbands are to be trusted and what is likely to happen to her when she gets married.

There are no more unsophisticated maidens who believe that a Prince Charming will come riding along on a milk-wagon and bear them off to live in Fairy Land.

Yet girls fall just as much in love with men whose faults and weaknesses they know, as girls used to fall in love with men whom they believed models or impossible perfection. And that, it seems to me, shows that the modern woman loves not less than grandmother did, but more. She answers the little boy's definition of a friend, as a person who knew all about you and liked you still.

In reality this present generation of women is the first in the whole history of womankind that has ever been able to be honest about love, because it is the first one that has been able to give itself to love, that has not had to sell its kisses and exchange its protestations of affection for a meal ticket.

Virtually every girl now can make her own living. She is free financially. She does not have to marry for a home. On the contrary, marriage frequently means the sacrificing of an easy life for a hard one, the doing without things that she could have if she stayed single.

Yet every day you see women giving up careers and ambitions to get married to men who will never understand or appreciate what they have done and counting the world well lost for love.

Women no longer love! Come again, Mr. Philosopher, and take another look. Look at these young girls gloating over their engagement rings. Look at these girls marrying, with fear in their souls, men they know to be unworthy of them, men who drink, who are brutal, who are lazy and trifling, but on who, for heavens knows what reason, they have set their hearts.

Look at these toil-worn, patient wives, working and scrimping and saving to help their husbands along. Look at these wives waiting outside the doors of prisons to welcome back the men who have shamed them and whose only refuge in the wide world is in their arms. Look at these wives with unfaithful husbands, clinging hopelessly to men who are weary of them.

Women no longer love! Stuff and nonsense! The modern woman hard and cold. Why, she is as soft as mush and as warm as a seething volcano!—DOROTHY DIX.

FREDERICK, Okla., July 12.—In order that Tillman county citizens can learn first hand what hard surfaced roads are costing and what they are doing for Wilbarger county, just across the river in Texas, it was suggested at a meeting of the directors of the chamber of commerce Tuesday night that A. Robert Evans Milstead is almost too plump for comfort these days, therefore the rather aggrieved expression on his face. Don't you think he looks rather disillusioned for a young man just starting out in life.

Maybe it is the dress—Robert Evans isn't used to that much apparel these days—he usually wears a more conventional summertime garb, approved by style experts for the very young.

Anyway, we are glad that we are not as plump as Robert Evans. Mother thinks his weight is just right, though, she said so.

Bus Line Hearing Opens Here Today

Whether Wichita Falls will be served by a bus line running to Mineral Wells through Jacksboro, or by a line running just as far as Jacksboro, will be discussed before the Texas State railroad commission at a special hearing in the 78th district court room at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

The hearing is the continuation of one started at Jacksboro several days ago which was halted as R. M. Bowen, one of the attorneys received a message that his son had been drowned. The hearing was then transferred to Wichita Falls from Jacksboro.

There are two lines, each seeking the approval of the state. One would stop at Jacksboro and one would run through that city to Mineral Wells. Wichita Falls men are understood to favor the Mineral Wells line as it would increase the distance of direct service from this city.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK, July 12.—"I was hurrying home through City Hall park the other evening," said the aspiring young author, "with an air of well-being and importance that was, I assure you, entirely assumed. One of those old street beggars sidled out from nowhere and fell into step beside me.

"He went into his routine: 'Mister, help an old man to the price of a cuppa coffee?'

"Most times I just reach inside my coat pocket and I give them a dime. But this evening it happened I had only five pennies in my pocket, or any place else for that matter. I had found them that morning in my upper desk drawer.

"So I spun on my heel and fixed the old chap with a look.

"'My good man,' I began, as he shifted uneasily, 'I have heard your story and now you shall hear mine. What would you say if I told you that I have just five cents in my pocket—five cents between me and a long walk home, and no breakfast, perhaps, if no check's in my mail?'

"My good man said nothing. I went on:

"'You don't know, I suppose, what it is to be an aspiring young author? No, I thought not. Well, you eat one day and then some days you don't. You approach me for money because, no doubt, I wear a neat suit of clothes. Well, it won't be mine for six payments yet.

"'Now, reflect, my good man, how much more fortunate you are than I! You can wear just any old thing. Perhaps the older the better, for your line. But for me, what kind of a figure would I cut, think you, going up to a magazine editor in shabby old clothes?'

"I saw he was growing a little bit bored. 'And,' I persisted, 'I suppose you have a wife and five or six kids?'

"He nodded his head. 'Well, again you see how much more fortunate you are. You have a purpose in living—an incentive to work. Lucky old chap! I, for example, have no one at all, hence no reason whatever for working.

"'Hence, some weeks I'm flush, some weeks I'm flat. It all depends upon what the postman brings me. Sometimes I think that the postman is God. Imagine that, my good man, God blowing a whistle, and you leaping out of bed to feel of the envelope!'

"I saw he was touched. Now was the time for the punch.

"'So you see,' I concluded, 'just how well off you are. You in your rags and tatters can go up to a man and ask him for alms. But, voyezvous, how ridiculous that would look if I did it! They'd send me to Bellevue!'

"The old gentleman sighed, seemed to choke with emotion. From his tattered coat pocket he took a $5 bill, slipped it to me, and silently shuffled away."

"There was something vaguely familiar about her gestures," began the man who walks at noon in City Hall park. "She was feeding the pigeons.

"A rather drab and bent old lady, she was. Dressed in black sateen, or maybe it was percale, I'm never sure about those things, with a little ruff of lace at the neck. She had a big paper bag tucked under one arm, and with the other she was feeding the birds.

"What attracted my attention was the way she drew the handfuls of bread scraps—with a sweep that scattered them in a wide semi-circle. The way she held that bag under her arm—the way she threw the morsels. Finally I got it, from out of the mists of my childhood. That was the way farm women fed the chickens!

"I mustered up courage to speak to her. She was quite timid at first, not at all sure that I was not an official of some kind about to stop her. Little by little I got her story. She had been on a farm all her life, up-state, and there she had reared her children. They were affluent now and moved her into town with them. She longed for the green fields and the barnyard, and feeding the chickens at dusk. But where, she asked me pitiably, can you find such things in a New York apartment?

"It is the high point of her otherwise baffled days, this daily pilgrimage to City Hall park to feed the pigeons. For a few happy minutes it takes her back home!"

The commuter, as a rule, doesn't take any of the children to New York with him. But, being good natured, sometimes he occasionally breaks the rule and always regrets it.

Recently he brought his little son along with him and, as usual, sat in the smoker and watched the gang play pinochle. The boy also watched. He knew nothing of pinochle, but he had seen many bridge games.

After looking on for a while he turned to the commuter and remarked rather excitedly in a loud stage whisper:

"Pop, that's a funny deck of cards. The man has got seven kings. We only have four in our deck. Where did he get the others from?"

And the commuter hastily left the car, taking his family with him.

BOY WINS $10,000 FOR ATTACK BY MONKEY

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., July 12. (UP)—A monkey bite on the nose is worth $10,000, a jury in district court decided in awarding that amount to Malcolm McConnell, 15, who brought suit against the Broadmoor Hotel company after "Kolo", pet monkey in the hotel zoo, bit him.

One-Minute Sermon

The preparations of the heart in man, and the answer of the tongue is from the Lord.

All the ways of man are clean in his own eyes; but the Lord weigheth the spirits.

Where Women Battle

IN THE great open spaces of the west, according to the movies, "men are men"—which means that they are virile and husky, ready to fight at the drop of the hat.

Now comes news from Missoula, Mont., which indicates that in the open spaces women, too, may be spirited and aggressive.

Two girls, one 16 and the other 17, quarrelled over the attentions of a man. They walked down the road in the darkness to "settle it" with their fists. They fought for a while, then one girl drew a revolver and shot the other dead.

There is something for psychologists and sociologists to ponder on. A fight over love is usually an affair between men. What are we to say when two young girls do it? Is the hardiness of the old west more than a mere tradition, after all?

The New Holiday Hazard

AFTER years of campaigning, this country finally managed to reduce the menace of Fourth of July fireworks. Some lives were lost this last Fourth by this means, but the toll was much lower than it used to be.

But a new compaign seems to be needed. Automobile traffic took the lives that were saved from the fireworks hazard. Independence Day brought unusually heavy traffic. In the streams of cars were many motorists who were too inexperienced to cope with the situation. The result: a perfectly staggering list of fatal accidents.

It is high time that something drastic be done about traffic fatalities. When every national holiday means that from 100 to 200 Americans will be killed by automobiles, the situation has reached the unbearable stage. It is time to act.

A New War Over Oil?

THE ostrich is, in many ways, an admirable bird. He has a fine physique, is easily tamed, can run very fast and has beautiful tail feathers. Yet, on the whole, he is hardly so fine that we should adopt him as our national bird in place of the eagle.

In other words, it is not a good plan for us to copy his famous habit of seeking security by burying the head in the sand and shutting out all unpleasant sights. For when the ostrich's head is thus buried his posterior is elevated, tempting the fates to apply a ringing swat with a barrel stave or boot.

Not long ago Rear Admiral Plunkett made a speech in which he said that this country and Great Britain were drifting toward war. Instantly a cry went up; "Unthinkable!" The admiral was called many names, of which "jingo" was the mildest, and we all assured each other that since war with England would be unspeakably tragic it was, ipso facto, impossible.

It would be a tragedy, surely. But is it really "unthinkable"?

It is not. Ludwell Denny, a level-headed Washington correspondent who is no more a jingo than William Howard Taft, can think of it, for one. His recent book, "We Fight for Oil," ought to be read by all of us who have been putting our heads in the sand. For Mr. Denny thinks war highly probable.

The United States and Great Britain are engaged now in a great struggle for world oil reserves. Denny points out the spheres of conflict: Russia, the Near East, Mexico, Colombia, Venezuela. Standard Oil is doing the fighting for the United States, while Royal Dutch Shell carries on for the Empire. The struggle is getting more complicated, more acute.

Neither nation could function without oil. The world's oil supply is limited. Each nation, from diplomats and financiers down to the perennial "man in the street," is determined to have an adequate, unchecked supply. Floods of propaganda are pouring from each side.

Is war, in such circumstances, "unthinkable"? Obviously it is not. Obviously we are both drifting toward the brink. Obviously a minor squabble over some concession in Colombia or Armenia could touch off a world conflagration.

Such a war would be a great catastrophe. It must be avoided, and it can be, if both sides make an intelligent effort to reach an amicable compromise. Some method surely can be found whereby the struggle can be abated.

But here is the point: if we bury our heads in the sand and keep crying "Unthinkable!" no such compromise will be reached. We will keep on drifting until we drift squarely into war. The only sensible course is to face the facts and see what can be done about it.

Copying the ostrich can bring only disaster. We must get together now, before it is too late.

COTTON RAISING COSTS GIVEN

The departmenet of agriculture has revealed some interesting figures which will interest every cotton grower. These figures, taken from 1000 farmers in the South, were analyzed to show the actual cost of producing a pound of lint.

The results are amazing, and in a way, leave the farmer no nearer the solution of the cotton cost than before. The department found that the production cost ranged from 5 cents to 59 cents a pound of lint. Somewhere between these extremes is the average cost of growing cotton.

The significant part of the report concerned the large producers of cotton, who averaged yields of 141 to 300 pounds of lint to the acre. More than half of the farmers reporting costs belonged to this group, which had an average cost of about 13 cents a pound. During an average year, it is likely that this figure is about right for the farmer who has a large acreage and manages it scientifically, but this does not take into consideration the small farmer who has not yet found the economical way of raising his crops. With many cotton buyers predicting that cotton this year will stay around 20 cents, there will be many farmers who will lose money at this price, while others will make a reasonable profit. Like any other business, all other things being equal, the scientific farmer will prosper and supersede the farmer who is not so careful with his expenses.

ANGELO WANTS C-C CHANGES

Bourland and Local Body Get Support

SAN ANGELO, July 12.—A resolution suggesting sweeping changes in the administration of the affairs of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, designed to meet with the request of President Andy Bourland, of Vernon, for suggestions that might lead to betterment of the organization, was adopted by unanimous vote of the members of the board of directors of the San Angelo Board of City Development.

The elimination of duplication of effort of local chambers of commerce and that of the regional organization, and the fusion of the activities of the larger organization with that of the local ones, with the larger body left with the responsibilities larger than those of the smaller organizations, are recommended in the resolution, the adoption of which was moved by John Burnsides and which was seconded by J. Miles O'Daniel, with the unanimous vote made by the board.

The resolution as adopted here follows:

Whereas, President Bourland of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce has invited suggestions for improvement of that organization, and

Whereas, the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce has seen fit to publicly make some excellent observations as to an improved setup, and

Whereas, it is our desire to improve our regional organization to which we liberally contribute financial and other support;

Congratulations

It is therefore resolved:

1. That we endorse the action of Mr. Bourland in announcing plans for a more economical and efficient administration, and further that we congratulate the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce in taking the lead in making so many practical suggestions along the same line.

2. That it is our opinion that the West Texas Chamber of Commerce should be an association of local commercial organizations in West Texas and not an organization independent of them as at present; that most towns in West Texas now have chambers of commerce, or similar organizations, backed by the leading business men, which can and should take care of local problems; that these organizations by properly associating themselves together can more efficiently handle the regional matters than an organization acting without their control; that these local organizations should elect the directors to the association, or regional body, on some carefully planned quota basis; that these directors should be selected prior to the annual meeting, so that they could attend; that they in turn should elect a chairman of their body, who thereby would become president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

3. That the association activities should be confined to those regional matters that cannot well be handled by local chambers of commerce.

National Publicity

4. That a strong publicity department be created to work out a national publicity program; that the most competent management and technical advice be secured for this work.

5. That the organization be operated on a budget basis, so that at the beginning of the year all organizations contributing thereto would know what their money was being spent for, and so that everyone concerned would know that each activity is properly financed.

6. That the financing of these activities be done on a quota basis, and that the raising of the quota be left with each local organization.

We believe that this plan will be more democratic, more efficient, and more economical than the present one.

We make these suggestions for the good of the organization, and of West Texas, and pledge our continued support.

"Say, boss," said he, "the performing seal wants a little extra business brought into her act."

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

She was out of his arms in one lightning-quick movement. "Oh, Niel," she cried frantically; "you're making me forget."

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Virginia Brewster, upon the sudden death of her father, goes to live with a friend, Clarissa Dean, and her father. Her fiance, Nathaniel Dann, objects to this for he mistrusts Dean's motives. Upon phoning Niel's studio late one night, Virginia is surprised when his model, Chiri, answers. This causes a quarrel which is later mended.

Hoping to get Niel away, Dean arranges to have him offered a position in San Francisco. Niel begs Virginia to marry him and go west, but she refuses to let him sacrifice his art.

Clarissa becomes jealous of Virginia, and the latter resolves to leave but Dean opposes her departure and asks her to marry him. When she refuses, he threatens to reveal the fact that her father cheated him out of $100,000. Recklessly, Virginia pledges to marry him if she fails to earn the money to repay him in one year's time. She then leaves and seeks a quiet, respectable hotel in which to live, after learning that her bank balance is overdrawn and pawning one of her rings. She goes to Niel's studio for tea and to tell him of her departure from the Deans'. Part of her happiness at seeing him is spoiled by the presence of his model, Chiri, who shows no haste in departing.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER XX

Nathaniel's ardent pleading came to a whispered end. Virginia remained quiet, his cheek touching hers, his heart filled with victory.

Exquisite release from pain, from doubt and haunting fear. She was tired and his embrace was a restful haven, soothing her with a sense of peace and security. They did not count the moments as they passed, the moments of bliss, but one came at last that broke the spell for Virginia. It brought the reckoning of this sweet surrender crashing through the forgetfulness Nathaniel had lulled into her mind.

She was out of his arms in one lightning-quick movement. "Oh, Niel," she cried frantically; "you're making me forget."

Nathaniel gasped. "Virginia . . ."

"Don't touch me, please," she begged tearfully. "You don't understand."

Nathaniel stood back from her, worried and not a little frightened. Had her troubles affected her mind? "Sit down, please," he said with gentle command. "I promise not to touch you. Shall I get you a glass of water?"

The commonplace question seemed to restore Virginia to a degree of calmness that permitted her to appreciate the strangeness of her outburst.

"Oh, Niel," she sobbed, sinking suddenly into her chair, "I love you with all my heart but you mustn't talk to me about marriage."

He knelt beside her in stricken silence. He was afraid to speak to her lest he arouse her to further irresponsible declarations.

Presently she lifted her head from her arms and put a hand on his. "Your hand's like ice," she exclaimed in surprise.

"Will you talk to me?" he said, ignoring the condition of his hands. "If you will promise not to make love to me as you did."

"My God, Virginia! I'm on fire for you. I want to take care of you. What kind of man would I be to let you live alone now, when you need someone to comfort you more than you ever will again?"

"You've no idea how much the thought of your love comforts me, Niel, darling. But I've made up my mind not to lose myself in happiness until . . . until . . . it's so soon since father's death, you know," she ended haltingly.

"I don't want to throw you into hysterics again," Nathaniel told her, "but it seems to me you aren't giving much consideration to my feelings. Aside from that I know your father would not want you to live alone. He'd be the first to advise you to listen to me."

"You must let me be the judge of that, Niel. In spite of the liberty he allowed me, father was a most conventional person. He often said our modern speed was in very bad taste. And to marry in haste—"

"But Virginia, I just want you to name a day. It needn't be for a few weeks if you insist, but you owe me something. If you loved me as much as I do you, I wouldn't have to urge our wedding so strongly."

"You have no right to say that, Niel. No one can understand just how another person feels about things. If you knew . . if you were in my place—"

"I wouldn't know so much about love, I'm afraid," Nathaniel put in passionately.

Virginia shrank back from him as if he had struck her.

"If you feel like that . . ." she cried, and leaped to her feet. Nathaniel caught her. "Virginia," he said with instant contrition, "we're perilously near our first quarrel. I'd apologize a thousand times before I'd have that happen. Please, dear, let's kiss and make up."

Virginia could not resist him, but even as their lips met, her mind registered a conviction that this was not to be the end of their hot words. Nathaniel's doubt of her love would grow stronger as time went on and she continued to turn a deaf ear to his pleas. Doubting her, he would lose faith, and if at last he really believed that she did not love him would he not turn away from her? Virginia clung to him fiercely as this thought went through her mind, and for that moment at least Nathaniel did not question the depth of her love. He was a little surprised by the force of her passion but not at all loath to accept it.

"Don't ever say such things again," she entreated him. "Promise you won't doubt me, no matter what I do. Promise, Niel! Promise you'll believe in me until I tell you I don't love you any more!"

Nathaniel laughed happily. He had not Virginia's reasons for knowing the test his faith would be put to and her insistence seemed a trifle dramatic, but he liked to have her this way, palpitating and flushed with emotion, with love for him.

"You darling!" he cried. "I'll promise anything you like if you'll promise to give me a fair break."

Virginia hesitated. "I'll be fair," she said at last, but there was a change from her fervor of a moment before. She knew that promises made on ignorance were not binding, and Nathaniel must remain in ignorance until their fate was settled. Nathaniel noticed the change but he was intelligent enough to know that the rapture of a moment gone cannot be recaptured at will. But there would be other moments! The sweetness of Virginia, her sweet, fine mind and loveliness assured him of that.

"And now we will have dinner together," he remarked joyously. "Gosh, Virginia, I'm glad to have you to myself. I'd never have seen much of you if you'd remained with the Deans. A couple of high-hat bums, those two. There isn't enough soul between them for a worm. Where'll we eat?"

"Let's stay down here in the village."

"All right. I'll get this paint off my hands and then we'll scout around. Just a moment."

While he was gone Virginia carried the tea tray to the kitchenet and washed the cups and saucers. She had to be moving, doing something. To sit in idleness was tormenting. Already she had formulated a vague plan for the beginning of her struggle with fortune, but she could do nothing about it until she had some money, even a little money. She did not want to think any more until she heard from Mr. Gardiner.

Nathaniel hurried and rejoined her soon. He looked tremendously handsome in his slouchy gray tweeds, but Virginia laughed at the way he had brushed his hair. Just like a small boy who thought he'd be late for the circus.

"I'm afraid you will be cold," he said, noticing that Virginia had no wrap. "Shall we taxi up to your hotel and get a coat?"

"You have a Spanish shawl; can't I take that?"

Nathaniel rummaged in the Italian chest under the window and brought up a beautiful black silk shawl embroidered with white roses.

"Have to hide it from Chiri," he remarked casually. "A friend sent it from Spain, so I shouldn't like to part with it. Chiri is crazy about it."

Virginia let him wrap it around her shoulders and drape it artistically.

"See what a handy man around the house I'll be," he boasted.

"I'm not so useless myself," Virginia retorted and gave his hair a few deft touches.

"It's rooted in my stubborn streak," Nathaniel apologized, grinning at the face she made over his unruly locks.

"Well, then, rumple it good and really look like an artist," she suggested, and further disarranged the sorrel mop. "Now you look like Will Rogers would look if he had your face," she teased.

She felt as one feels who has reached terra firma after skating on thin ice. If she could keep Nathaniel in a light mood, keep him entertained, make him forget serious matters, it might be possible to lead him gradually into accepting her changed status without thinking he must do something about it. When he saw that she was not so helpless as people thought her—that she could do what other girls were doing and—though he would not know this—much, much more, he would grow to respect her independence, to admire her for refusing to come to him as one who is too weak to weather a storm seeks shelter. "He will see that I think he is something more than a refuge," she encouraged her new hope. "And he will be proud of me if I can make him think I want to do this for my self respect," she told herself as they went, laughing, down the stairs to the street.

"Any place in particular?" Nathaniel asked.

"Let's prowl. I love these streets. My shawl won't be conspicuous, will it?"

"In the village! I've seen such things as a girl with stockingless legs on a hunt in January, but walking on Seventh avenue. She wasn't in costume, either."

"Well, her legs are her own affair, aren't they?" Virginia remarked with hidden guile.

"Of course they are."

Virginia smiled. "That's one of the things I like in you, Niel. You believe, really believe, in freedom. Most people who say they do, just flatter themselves."

"You mean their theories. I don't suppose anyone would deny he believed in the individual's right to do as he pleases within the written and unwritten law, but the application of a theory often puts it in a different [illegible]."

"But if you have the real spirit of liberty, you'd always put it first in importance, above your own personal wishes in the matter, wouldn't you?"

"I'd want to do that."

Virginia smiled again and tucked the statement away in her memory for future use.

A little later, when they walked into an obscure little grotto, she was doubly glad that she had trapped Nathaniel into making it.

IF I KNEW YOU

If you knew me and I knew you,
And each explained the things to do;
If each of us should bare his heart,
It's every phase, and every part,
We wouldn't differ as we do,
We'd have an understanding true—
A greater sense of friendliness,
And in all things, we'd differ less.

Life has so many hidden woes;
If you and I would just disclose
The thorns we've bourne for every rose,
We'd strike a friendship strong and true—
If you knew me, and I knew you!

Texas Mother Praises Nurse

There isn't a mother living who won't agree that no half-sick child should be the subject for an experiment with medicines of uncertain merit. When your child is bilious, headachy, half-sick, feverish, restless, with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy, you know that nine times out of ten it's a sign his little stomach and bowels need purging. And when you know that for over fifty years leading physicians have endorsed one preparation for this condition, there doesn't seem to be any reason for "trying" things.

Rich, fruity California Fig Syrup clears the little stomach and bowels gently, harmlessly and in a hurry. It regulates the bowels, gives tone and strength to them and to the stomach; and helps to give your child new strength, energy and vitality. Thousands of Texas mothers praise it. Mrs. Valerie Adams, [illegible] Castro St., San Antonio, says: "I'll never forget the nurse who got me to give my baby boy, John, California Fig Syrup. Nothing else seemed to help his bowels, which were left weak after an attack of measles. That was when he was just eighteen months old. He suffered for many months before I gave him Fig Syrup, but it stopped his trouble quick. I have used it with him for colds and little upset spells ever since. I consider him a Fig Syrup baby."

Insist on the genuine article. See that the carton bears the word "California." Over four million bottles used a year.—Adv.

Russian Boat Speeds Rescue

the Vigilieri group in a sensational climax to the day's work. Five kilometers from her goal she radioed to Virgo bay that she had sighted a group of men, waving frantically. (Probably the Sora group.)

The Russian ship at the time was passing nearly the exact spot where the Italia crashed on May 25, killing one of her crew, injuring two seriously, and drifting away in a stiff wind with six men aboard.

The survivors in the Vigilieri group who were rescued today were believed to be: Lieut. Vigilieri, Italian navy navigator; Giuseppi Biagi, radio operator, who had kept the group in touch with the world; Filippo Troiani, engineer, and Professor F. Behounek, meteorologist.

General Umberto Nobile, commander of the Italia, was rescued by airplane on June 23 and is now seriously ill aboard the Citta di Milano, mother ship of the Italia.

Roald Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole, and five companions in a French seaplane, were lost while searching for Nobile and his companions. They have not been reported and are believed to have perished.

MOSCOW, July 12. (US)—Heeding faint, despondent cries for help, the Russian ice breaker Krassin was ploughing eastward tonight through a labyrinth of ice to rescue the five survivors of the dirigible Italia who have been marooned for 48 days on a drifting ice floe of the eastern coast of Northeast Land.

Two exhausted, miserable men, Captain Alberto Mariano, pilot of the Italia, and Captain Filippo Zappi, the navigator, were in the Krassin's hospital room, and the body of a third, Dr. Finn Malmgren, lay on the ship's deck. They were rescued by the Krassin at 8:40 a. m. Greenwich time, (3:40 a. m. Wichita Falls time) and the ship immediately turned its nose eastward towards the red tent camp where Lieutenant Vigilieri and four companions are waging a heroic battle against death.

37 Miles Distant

The red tent camp lies approximately three degrees east of the spot where the two Italians and the Swedish scientist's body were picked up by the Krassin this morning. The distance is approximately 37 miles. That the Krassin was making steady progress through the ice fields was evidenced by a wireless message from the ship this afternoon reporting it was within 14 miles of its goal.

In turning to the east to aid the five Italians, the Krassin turned its back on five Russians, the crew of the Fokker plane piloted by Chuchnovsky. After locating the Malmgren party, computing their position and radioing directions to the Krassin, Chuchnovsky damaged the ship in landing on the ice of Northeast Land. He urged the Krassin's commander to have no concern for him and his companions but to go to the aid of the Nobile men as quickly as possible.

Provisions Aplenty

"We have just shot a polar bear and have sufficient provisions for three weeks," said Chuchnovsky's radio message. He added that the men at the red tent camp "were probably starving" and that they could not likely survive the delay the Krassin would undergo if it turned back to rescue the Russian fliers.

Early tonight the captain of the Krassin radioed Moscow that he expected to cover the 14 miles to the Vigilieri group within 10 hours. The rescuers were encouraged in their work by the resumption of radio communications with the Vigilieri group today. For nearly a week there has been no word from Giuseppi Biagi, the wireless operator, and the silence was interpreted as ominous. The various rescue groups feared that the men had succumbed to exposure and disease, or were so near death from exhaustion that they did not have energy enough to plead for help.

Rescued Men Weak

Mariano and Zappi were in a critical condition when rescued. They had been without food for 13 days, and were so weak from exposure that they were scarcely able to move about sufficiently to avoid freezing to death. Dr. Malmgren, they revealed, died a month ago. This strengthened their belief that they owed their lives to a miracle, for they did not expect to outlast the hardy Norseman who was a veteran Arctic explorer.

When Mariano and Zappi were carried aboard the ice-ship they fell upon their knees before Captain Samoyolovich, master of the vessel, sobbing with joy and calling upon heaven to bless the Russian seamen.

Both survivors were given medical treatment. Mariano is in a dangerous condition. His legs are frozen and gangrene is likely to develop. Malmgren's body was left on deck, exposed to the icy temperature, to preserve it for burial in his native land.

Only a scanty outline of the terrible experiences of the Malmgren party was received here from Captain Samoyolovich. After remaining with the Nobile group five days, they left their companions on May 30 and set out on foot with 40 pounds of provisions. They hoped to cross the loose ice between them and Northeast Land and reach some settlement within a week or 10 days.

Trapped On Floe

But almost immediately they were trapped on a small floe which has caught in cross currents and drifted this way and that. Realizing their situation, they reduced their rations, and this reduced their strength and resistance. They husbanded their strength carefully, moving about only enough to keep their blood circulating against freezing. Mariano's legs were frozen, apparently, while in exhausted sleep.

Doctor at 83 Found People Preferred His Prescription

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, billiousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. If grown people want to use them no one can deny them the privilege, but they should never be given to children.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs? All drug stores have the generous bottles.

W. B. Caldwell, M.D.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.—Adv.

nation theme faded until now the play is an appeal for a belief in the goodness of God and for tolerance toward miserable sinners.

"Reformer," said Broadway.

Davis, however, is a gentleman and besides he is paying his own reform scheme, ramming it down nobody's throat.

And so another explanation of the strange behavior of the backer of the antithesis of "Abie's Irish Rose" is going the rounds.

"Davis went down to his last nickel backing an oil well once after his friends had pulled out on him," goes this story. "Then—whooey! in she came, a gusher that almost drowned the state of Texas. He just thinks that if you back a loser long enough you'll win."

There are in fact only 60 people interested in theatrical New York who have not wasted time trying to figure Davis out. They are the actors, actresses, and stagehands of "The Ladder," who have had regular jobs and a sure pay check every Saturday night for nearly two years now.

PARK PROGRAM DRAWS 4500

One of the most appreciative crowds of the season, estimated by park officials at 4500, attended the free vaudeville program in Bellevue park Thursday evening.

The Lions club boys' band gave a concert under the direction of Leo Underwood and was well received as was the I. S. Thompson string quartet. This latter group is composed of Mr. Thompson and his pupils and has become one of the favorites of the programs.

Holland, reading; Miss Jean Fisg, Miss Lorene Tucker and Miss Frances Phillips, vocal trio; Marion Reesby, the bird song whistler; Mrs. J. S. Pitman and Miss Eleanor Pitman, songs and monologs; Miss Marjorie F. Hoenscheidt, songs and dances, and Guy Rogers, Jr., the boy harmonica king.

Swift Employes In Birthday Celebration

CHICAGO, July 12.—Forty-three thousand employes of Swift & company in all parts of the world are celebrating the 21st birthday of the Employes Benefit association of that company. A total of 135 million dollars' worth of insurance is carried on the lives of these employes. Workers at every packing plant, branch house, produce plant, oil mill, and refinery are members of the E. B. A. which was organized in July, 1907, with 20 members.

At that time the company agreed to pay the operating expenses of the organization, and guaranteed any deficits that might arise. At the end of the first month, it had 2,538 members. Now more than 80 per cent of the employes of the company are members.

During the 21 years in which the organization has been growing to voting age, it has paid out nearly $7,000,000 in sickness and accident and death benefits.

The E. B. A. plan, as it is known, pays to employes, in return for a small weekly contribution, from $3 to $18 a week sick benefit, and from $400 to $2000 death benefit. Two years ago, in order to make more protection available to its members, the association took on a group insurance plan, allowing members who wished to take out additional insurance in amounts of from $2000 to $20,000. One hundred million worth of insurance was added by this plan, 35,000 members subscribing.

JUNIOR CHAMP GAME BOOKED

Boy Baseball Team Goes To Sweetwater

The Longhorns, champions of the Wichita Falls junior league, will journey to Sweetwater Friday to play the Sweetwater city champions Saturday, it was decided Thursday night in a long distance telephone conversation between city officials of the two cities.

The game is one of the district elimination games which will precede the state championship games, and is being sponsored nationally by the American Legion. The final game for the national championship will be played in San Antonio in October at the time of the American Legion convention.

The American and National baseball leagues have donated $50,000 to stand the expenses of the state and national eliminations, but the games in the cities must be paid for by the boys or their friends if there are any expenses.

Wichita Cooler After Rainfall

A promise of a good rain early Thursday morning dwindled out of reach by nightfall, when the skies had cleared, and a pleasant coolness, appreciated after many heat-ridden days, set in. The early morning shower, which totaled .07 inches, followed a diminutive sand storm about 4 a. m.

Foot Pains Ended Overnight Says Local Barber

Tells how Coolene banished all burning and aching immediately

TAKE MR. M. A. DEES' word for it—nothing knocks a man out so quickly as foot tortures. Mr. Dees, who is a barber at Lone Star Barber Shop recently began to be bothered with burning, aching feet. So much standing made them sore and sensitive. Still he had to be on the job—smiling in spite of the pain. You can't give haircuts and shaves from a wheel-chair, and Mr. Dees knew that unless he ended his foot troubles, they would interfere with his job. One day he read about Coolene, and he decided to try it. Here's what happened in his own words:

> "Nothing can make a man lose his good humor as quickly as burning, aching feet. When my feet first became sore and calloused I knew that unless I found relief at once it would interfere with my job. A barber can't afford to be cranky, but can anyone smile when every step is torture? One day I read how Coolene cools and heals burning, sore feet, and I decided to try it. It worked like magic—made me feel like a two-year old. It ended my foot troubles overnight. Today I'm on my feet as much as ever, but I haven't had any trouble since I first used Coolene. It makes my feet feel cool and peppy all day."

Now you, too, can enjoy instant relief from tired, aching, burning feet. Coolene, a marvelous new ivory-white soothing cream, contains rare oils—and frankincense and myrrh—used by the ancients for centuries to heal foot tortures caused by hot desert sands.

It penetrates at once to the inflamed nerves—soothes and cools them—relieves congestion in the tiny veins. Almost instantly all foot miseries vanish and your aching feet feel new and refreshed.

No need now for messy foot-baths, powders or plasters that irritate the skin. Coolene is greaseless, vanishes instantly, cannot stain. Satisfaction guaranteed or small cost refunded. Sold and recommend by good druggists everywhere such as: Spoonts Pharmacy, Allison Drug Store, Renfro Drug Co., Brook & Eighth Pharmacy.

Coolene is securing these remarkable results not only in this city but everywhere. Mr. V. F. Geiser another popular barber who must be on his feet many hours a day, says, "Coolene ended my foot troubles almost at once."

Favorite Jokes of Famous People

As Told by Them to
FRANK ERNEST NICHOLSON

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD

JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD

James Oliver Curwood won wide fame through his writings of the wide open spaces of the great north woods where men are men and ice is cold, and women are even more so.

He was distinguished as the only American ever employed by the Canadian government as an exploratory and descriptive writer. His explorations took him as far north as the Arctic coast. Well, maybe Doctor Cook got that far, too.

Through Mr. Curwood's recent death the public has lost not only a great writer—one who did much for literature—but a man who has also benefited mankind.

The following story, given me shortly before his fatal illness, is one he said that never ceased to amuse him.

"A cockney music hall performer was describing to a congenial group of performers in London what had happened the night before to a brother actor whom he spoke of affectionately as "Arry.'

"'Poor old 'Arry, 'e 'ad a most awful time. They wouldn't let 'im finish. Before 'e was 'arf through with the first verse of 'is opening song they began giving 'im the rarsberry proper.

"'And w'en 'e quit, them blokes in the gallery 'issed 'im right off the stage. They 'issed and 'issed and kept right on 'issing even after 'e was out of sight. Right after 'im I 'ad to go on.'

"'How did your act go?' inquired one of the listeners.

"'Ow, I got over fine, you know,' said the modest vaudevillean. 'But right in the middle of my act they starts 'issing 'Arry again.'"

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

Health Before Matrimony

A local humorous column states that if the ordinances to suppress gambling are fully complied with, it will be hard on those who are contemplating matrimony. Almost every one who is about to enter this holy state wonders whether or not he or she is making a mistake, and, judging from the number of divorces, it would seem that in many cases they actually do!

It seems that some type of marriage between male and female is a natural and wholesome occurrence, and leads to a contented frame of mind. We know that ascetics are usually a bit "queer," and that pronounced bachelors or confirmed "bachelor maids" are likely to become eccentric.

There have been many attempts to form rules for recognizing and picking out one's life partner, but so far the results have not proven highly satisfactory. A few years ago some woman received a lot of publicity by saying blondes should marry brunettes, or vice versa. Others have said that they should look alike, but if one examines the personal appearance of the apparently happy couples that he knows, he will notice in some of the cases, a remarkable discrepancy with every rule which was ever invented. One of the happiest couples that I know, the man is six feet three, and weighs 210 pounds, and his wife is a pretty, dimunitive thing of five feet one, and weighs 90 pounds with her fur coat on.

Age undoubtedly has some bearing on the situation in the majority of cases, but I know of one happy couple where the husband is more than 25 years older than his wife, and I know of another where the wife is about 10 years older than her husband.

Nationality, too, must play its part, and yet I know of a white woman who is very happily married to a Chinaman, and a Scotchman who is happily married to a Hawaiian woman.

Religion might also be important, but then there is the Jewish boy who is married to a Roman Catholic girl. On Saturday they go to the synagogue, and on Sunday they go to mass.

It is said that close relatives should not marry, but I know of several instances where exceedingly close relatives were married and produced healthy offspring. It is probably true that a stronger child will be produced from parents of different stock, but I have not seen any bad results in marriage in the same stock where both parents were in good condition, and sound mentally.

I believe that this is the keynote: parents should not have children until they have made themselves well. Happy couples are usually healthy ones and, of course, it is important that they have a training that will make them decent and honest toward one another.

Some day we may reach the belief that children should be taught that marriage is a happy responsibility. There will be fewer mistakes when they know of some of the problems and pitfalls of the venture into which they are engaging. This task must be tactfully handled, principally by the mothers and fathers, but the schools are now doing a very important work by educating the children in physiology classes and training them to have more wholesome bodies through the corrective exercise classes.

Questions and Answers

Question: Anxious writes: "I have a girl of 11 who has had a loose cough for about four years. The doctors say it is not her lungs. I would like to know what it comes from, and what would cure it."

Answer: There is such a thing as a "habit" cough, but if your daughter has been troubled for four years there is doubtless some other deepseated cause which could be discovered upon examination. I would suggest that you take her to one doctor after another if necessary until you find someone who understands diagnosing well enough to find the cause of her trouble.

Question: W. E. asks: "May one who has catarrh eat wholewheat bread and muffins in which there is no sugar?"

Answer: Wholewheat bread and muffins are wholesome foods, but all starches should be discontinued by the catarrhal patient until the excess amount of mucus has subsided. After that, these foods may be used in moderation with good results.

Question: H. P. T. asks: "What is the best method of preventing the return of cancer once removed by operation? Does exposing the part to the sun help?"

Answer: The best method I know of for preventing cancer is to live on a careful diet, exercise vigorously each day, and adopt the right mental attitude. It is a noticeable fact that cancer rarely, if ever, develops with those who continue to live a vigorous physical culture life. The congestion of cancer cells to any one part of the body cannot occur if the circulation of blood does not become sluggish. Sunbaths are helpful because of the ultra-violet effect on the blood. Nude sunbaths should be taken, exposing the entire body, as the effect of the sun's rays are no more helpful over a certain diseased part than upon other parts of the body. The main object of these sunbaths is to absorb all the ultra-violet rays possible, and the effect is general upon the blood and not specific to any one part.

Robinson Pleased With Demo Committee Meet

WASHINGTON, July 12. (AP)—Satisfaction with the meeting of the Democratic national committee in New York was expressed today by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic vice presidential nominee, upon arriving in Washington after his visit with Governor Smith.

"I have not the slightest doubt that every part of the country, including those southern states in which movements have been started against the Democratic national ticket, will be given proper attention, and that long before the election it will not only be made apparent that our strength in certain states normally Democratic is maintained, but surprising gains may be anticipated in other states."

Germany Plans to Coax Russia Into Peace Plan

BERLIN, July 12. (UP)—Germany is planning to assume the role of intermediary to persuade the Russian government to accept the United States anti-war treaty, it was learned today.

German officials, it is understood, are sounding out the governments of the United States and Russia regarding the possibility of Russia's adherence, which would strengthen the treaty immensely.

Airplanes to "Attack" National Guard Camp

GALVESTON, July 12. (AP)—Members of the Texas national guard who are holding their summer encampment at Palacios will be attacked from the air tomorrow, when 18 planes from the eighth and ninetieth attack squadrons will simulate a raid on the camp. The aviators will "bomb" the doughboys for 30 minutes.

JENKINS' HOMERS IN 9TH AND 11TH TIE AND BEAT BUFFS, 3-2

WATKINS AND LAPAN BATTLE

Brilliant Fielding, Pitching Also Mark Game

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Hail Tom Jenkins! Grand ol' King Tut, Dynamite, TNT and any other descriptive adjectives to denote power—and drive—and victory. The mighty mace of the swarthy outfielder was wielded with potent and direful effect yesterday and as a direct result our Spudders defeated the Houston Buffaloes to even the two-game series out at the orchard.

Two home runs by Jenkins, the first in the ninth inning, drove home a comrade ahead of him and enabled the Spudders to tie the score at 2-all, and another circuit drive, in the eleventh inning, won the game, 3 to 2.

It was the most exciting and turbulent game played here this season. The dramatic batting of Jenkins alone was enough to make it a noteworthy contest. But the pastime was further marked by sensational fielding brilliant pitching, and a fistic encounter between Pete Lapan of the Spudders and Watty Watkins of the Buffs.

Fight In Eleventh

The battle of the Spudder catcher and Buff center fielder occurred in the eleventh inning when Watkins went to the plate to bat and was the climax of an afternoon of players bickering with players and umpires. The melee was remarkable in that it was staged at home plate, with the fans convenient ringsiders, and with little or no effort by players and umpires to separate the combatants. Indeed, it was police who finally subdued the gladiators.

When Watkins came strolling up to the plate, he and Lapan passed words. Watty advanced toward Pete and the catcher considerately tossed off his mask and advanced toward Watty. I don't know who had the first word or struck the first punch. I guess it was mutual. Anyhow, they soon became locked in an embrace that would be envied by Alec Ross' grapplers. They went to the ground and Watkins rolled on Pete. Watty hammered Pete around the face and body, and Pete, hampered by his chest protector and underneath, couldn't do much about it. The Buffs gathered quickly to the scene and then the Spudders ran in from their positions and the dugout. The umpires were making no effort to halt hostilities.

Well, as noted above, the gendarmes rushed to the scene as quickly as they could get there and pulled Mr. Watkins off Mr. Lapan. I saw both principals of "the battle of the home plate" after the encounter and our Mr. Lapan was unmarked while Houston's Mr. Watkins had a lip that was cracked, and not from laughing, either.

Boys Will Be Boys

However, I hasten to add that I don't particularly blame Mr. Watkins. Ballplayers are going to pass some words to each other and probably Lapan said about as much to Watkins as Watkins said to him. I don't approve of such tactics but it at least shows those boys are out there with their heart in the game and trying to win. But it does seem to me that the Buffs might have taken some quicker action to stop the affair, though maybe they saw Pete wasn't getting hurt and didn't want to mix in it. As for the umpires, whose duty it is to act promptly in such cases, they chose to employ discretion by staying away.

The battlers were removed from the game by the umpires and Benton went behind the plate as Doc Smith had pinch hit earlier in the game and Rabbit was all that was available. Roetz went to shortstop. Peel batted for Watkins and played center field. It had no effect on the game as Benton didn't catch a ball; both pitchers were batted for outs.

The encounter yesterday was the second of the season between Wichita Falls and Houston players. Outfielder Howard Fitzgerald of the Spudders and Second Baseman Carey Selph of the Buffs engaged in a fistic melee several weeks ago at Houston.

But enough of "the battle of the home plate." And more about the ball game.

Bill Shores and Ken Penner engaged in a superb pitchers' battle until the Spudder right-hander was removed in the eighth inning to permit Mike Cvengros to bat for him. Both Buff runs were scored off Shores, but one was aided by his own error. Bill allowed only five hits and struck out four, in his display of excellent chucking.

Payne Takes Up Work

Penner was as effective. Only three blows were made off Ken for the first nine innings, but a trio of hits, two of which figured in the run-getting in the ninth and including Jenkins' homer, tied the score. There wasn't another Spudder hit until Jenkins' clincher in the eleventh.

George Won Payne finished the game and took up the great pitching where Shores left off. George gave up only one hit, an infield scratch, in the three rounds he toiled and except for that blow retired the enemy in order. Payne is credited with the victory.

Jenkins, though, was the real hero of the day. He had singled in the second inning and showed some glittering fielding, one catch robbing Watkins of a hit. Then that hair-raising ninth. Fitzgerald, first up, singled to left. Jenkins smote the ball over the center field wall and Howard trotted home ahead of him. Swenson followed with a single to left but the next three batters went out.

It looked as if we might win in the tenth. Turgeon walked after two were out and stole second. Pete went down the base line flying and beat Snyder's fine peg. Fitzgerald was purposely passed; they respect that boy and justly so. Lamb banged a harsh grounder to Schuble but Heinie made a fast play and saved the game temporarily.

Tom Wins It

Jenkins was first up in the eleventh. The Buff outfielders moved back. The infielders shifted nervously. And wham—another smash over the center field barrier, and the uproar in the ninth when he hit his first homer became pandemonium. The crowd hurled cushions, some in the general direction of the Buff dugout, but there was no demonstration other than that of joy.

Of glittering fielding there was an abundance. Jenkins, Swenson, Stanton, Turgeon, Hock and Schuble flashed sparkling defensive plays that cut off hits and possible runs and Stanton showed some nifty work around the initial sack.

The victory enabled the Spudders to go to third place, ahead of Dallas, only one game behind the Buffs, who are half a game in the van of San Antonio.

Buffs Score in Second

Houston tallied in the second inning. Watkins, first up, singled to center. Shores threw fast and perhaps a bit hasty to second on Schuble's bunt; Benton failed to reach the bag in time, and Watkins continued to third. Watkins scored while Turgeon was tossing out Walker.

The Buffs scored their second run in the eighth. Penner led off with a single to center. Hock sacrificed, Shores to Turgeon. Swenson took Selph's lift. Worthington banged a single to center, Penner scoring.

Notes of the Game

Steengrafe or Kiefer will oppose the Beaumont Exporters today in the first of a three-day stand.

Swenson made a corking snatch of Powell's liner in the second inning yesterday.

Selph was painfully hurt when hit by a pitched ball and some fans applauded. That isn't good sportsmanship. But when Carey ran to first other fans made it even by cheering him.

We lost a chance to score in the third inning. With the bases full and two out, the ball hit Fitzgerald's bat when Howard was pulling away from a pitch, and bounced to Penner for an easy out.

Jenkins made a long run for Watkins' drive in the fourth.

Pete Lapan had several teeth extracted the other day and the little catcher isn't feeling his best. But with Smith nursing an injured thumb the receiving burden devolves upon Peter, and he, willing and courageous worker that he is, is doing his best when not in condition.

Swenson handled seven chances in an excellent display of fine work at third base.

Runyon Regretfully Writes Gene Will Jab Tom Silly With Lefts

Heeney Won't Be Knocked Out, However, and Damon Gives Him Chance to Body Punch Way to Victory

By DAMON RUNYON
Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service

FAIRHAVEN, N. J., July 12.—There is an atmosphere of bluff hospitality to Thomas Heeney's training camp at Mike Jacobsville that sends one away with an uneasy feeling that one must violate the ethics of good taste if one is to do one's duty by one's public, if any.

I mean to say, it makes a bloke feel low down and mean to have to tell the truth about Thomas Heeney after having basked in the warm welcome that greets the wayfarer down here. They're such lovely people.

Take Thomas Heeney, for example—good old Tom! A cheery 'ello. A big, hearty handclasp. An inquiry as to one's health, and comfort, and all that sort of thing. And Charley Harvey—good old Charley! A sincere greeting. A lot of friendly chatter. And John Mortimer—good old John! 'Ow are you? 'Ow's hall the folks? 'Ave some tea? Trey Wignall's coming. So's Tawm Webster. They hasked about you.

And Eddie Harvey—good old Eddie! Can I do anything for you? Can Charley do anything for you? Wait over for dinner. Did you ever taste any Jersey applejack? What's the good word? Sit down. I'll get you a hammock.

Why, a man goes slinking out of that atmosphere feeling that he is no better than Mr. Judas, or Mr. Benedict Arnold, in carrying away with him the thought that Thomas Heeney's training efforts for his impending bout with Mister Gene Tunney merely confirm the impression that he is rather made to order for Mr. Tunney. One wishes that he might be able to truthfully and honestly say that Thomas Heeney's efforts indicate that he is going to knock Mister Tunney bow-legged.

But in this workday old world, things are not always as we'd like them to be.

Difference in Camps

In contrast to the comraderie of Thomas Heeney's camp, with its air of the latchstring ever hanging on the outside, comes the harrowing tales from the hardy correspondents who have visited Mister Tunney's camp up there in the wilds of the Adirondacks, telling that Mister Tunney has become more exclusive than ever, and hard to get at.

I hope and trust that none of Mister Tunney's following will deem the repetition of these tales as any part of the dire plot to discredit the Tunney-Heeney match, but I am told that up in Speculator, wherever that may be, that they speak in low, reverent tones of Mister Tunney as "the king."

It is a sure thing that Mister Tunney would frown upon the informality that prevails around Thomas Heeney's training camp. Why, a man walked in on Thomas Heeney today when he was dressing, and escaped without as much as a reprimand. It's really too bad that a friendly, hail-fellow like the old Rock of Down Under takes all those left-hand jabs in the kisser, or face, as we say at the club.

That strikes me as Thomas Heeney's weakness, considering him as an opponent for Mister Tunney. Working with comparative tyros, such as Phil Mercurio, Paul Swiderski and James J. Lawless, the Rock of Down Under appears to always have his rugged pan in the way of those left jabs.

Now, Mister Tunney is a superior left-jabber. That's his best hand. He can split a hair with that left. Thomas Heeney seems to be developing no defense against a left jab, Merely taking it, and trying to walk past it to get in close enough for infighting.

The left jabs that Mercurio, Swiderski and Lawless peg at him did not keep him off for any length of time when I saw him work against them, but Tunney's left jab is an entirely different proposition. It is a stiff, cutting jab.

Jack Target for Jabs

Jack Dempsey couldn't keep his rubber bugle out of the way of Mister Tunney's reaching, searching left, and I don't see how Thomas Heeney is going to do it, unless, as sometimes happens, the processes of time have dulled Mister Tunney's left to a mere dab, instead of a jab.

I expect to see Thomas Heeney look very, very bad against Mister Tunney's left during the early rounds of their battle. I doubt that Mister Tunney's right hand smash to the body is going to bother the rock-ribbed man from Down Under half as much as the jab.

It is after those early rounds that Thomas Heeney will have his best chance. It is conceivable that Mister Tunney's lack of fighting edge may destroy his left, and then Thomas Heeney may get close enough to him to let those little short arms start chugging to Mister Tunney's pale body.

One thing is a sure thing. Thomas Heeney will always be wading in. He knows no other way of fighting. He isn't so easy to hit with a right hand, but he is a pipe for a left. But he has one punch of his own that you rarely see in a heavyweight that may bother Mister Tunney no little. It is a damaging little left uppercut. I haven't seen one since falling Fred Fulton's day, and Fredward was naturally a left-handed fellow.

Tom's Uppercut Neat

Thomas Heeney also uses a right hand uppercut quite a bit, but it was the left hand uppercut that beat John Risko out in Detroit, and put Thomas Heeney on the way to the championship match.

Heeney is a good body puncher, once he lays 'longside a man. He isn't what you would call a heavy puncher, but he is a punishing puncher. He jars a man with his blows. He can punch very rapidly with those short arms. And he seems to take a punch about as well as any man I've ever seen.

I doubt if Mister Tunney can knock him out. He may cut him up so much the bout will have to be stopped, or if Mister Tunney can carry his strength for 15 rounds his left hand would seem calculated to win the decision for him.

But against Mister Tunney's lack of fighting edge, we have here at Fairhaven, a solid, sincere gladiator who seems to be able to go on, and on, and on, gathering strength with every round. It behooves "the king" to guard himself well against the possibility of fatigue, or his equerry, Mr. Steve Hannigan, will be around trying to trade the royal robes for a good first class portable typewriter, or what have you.

IRISH—HUSKERS STILL AT OUTS

Settlement of Controversy Fails in Conference

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 12. (UP)—The University of Notre Dame is not prepared at this time to commit itself on the proposal to resume athletic relations with the University of Nebraska, Rev. P. J. Carroll, chairman of the athletic board, said today.

When advised that Coach Knute Rockne had announced he hoped for a resumption of the annual football game between the two schools, Father Carroll said the situation had been debated by the athletic board, but no decision reached.

LOMSKI TO FIGHT

NEW YORK, July 12. (UP)—Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, Wash., assassin, has signed for a 10-round bout with George Smith, Ridgewood, N. J., light-heavyweight, at Dexter park stadium Monday night. Lomski accepted the bout as a tune-up match for his title bout with Tommy Loughran, 175-pound champion, at Ebbets field, Brooklyn, August 8.

DAILY DOPE

By Larry Dailey

AFTER THE STORM, the calm. The tension felt by players and fans over the series with the Buffs will subside today when the Beaumont Exporters invade this fair city. And the result is viewed with more or less alarm, as the man said. The reaction following an important series usually effects the athletes and a let-down in the three games starting today might result. Depend upon Jim Galloway to keep his athletes in there hustling, however. And they will need to play at top speed.

◆ ◆ ◆

The day when opposing clubs could count on capturing an easy series when playing the Exporters, has passed. That club is very formidable now. Recent reinforcements have added attacking strength. Bill Bagwell and Kirkham, a pair of experienced, hard-hitting outfielders, join Petrie, a mighty nice looking young ball player, and Gene Bailey, to form a most capable quartet of gardeners. The Exporter infield, with Dutch Schliebner, the dependable veteran, and Marshall, the promising rookie, aided by Ezzell and Odom, the new additions, is all that is to be desired. The catching seems to be satisfactory, too.

◆ ◆ ◆

BEAUMONT OFFERS one of the best pitchers in the league, and in the humble opinion of this writer, the greatest flinger in the loop, in Hubbell, the southpaw. Holzhauser, who pitched some good ball in hard luck and some indifferent ball in the first half, seems to have a new lease of life. No doubt better support has aided him. Anyhow, Ad is chucking nice ball and he is a most capable right-hander.

◆ ◆ ◆

CONTROL IS THE REAL secret of Hubbell's success. Until this season he was merely a pitcher of possibilities. In previous minor league campaigns and major league trials he failed to show impressively. He had curves, speed and a change of pace—all the attributes necessary to successful pitching. EXCEPT control, the most essential requisite to hurling effectiveness. Well, he has that control now—and the result is that opposing clubs, whether they are the hard-hitting Buffs or Spudders or second division clubs, look alike to him.

◆ ◆ ◆

THERE HAVE BEEN many rumors concerning the "purchase" of Hubbell from Beaumont by other Texas loop clubs. Houston fans "heard" they were to acquire Hubbell a couple of months ago and only recently some friends of mine were all excited here because they "were told" the Spudders were to make a deal for the fellow. This rumor started probably with the taking over of the management by Jim Galloway, who formerly was president of the Beaumont club.

◆ ◆ ◆

We might give a couple of oil wells and a deed to the courthouse and thus acquire Hubbell. It would take about that much to get the young man.

◆ ◆ ◆

THE EXPORTERS have sold Hubbell. But of course not to a Texas league club. He goes to the New York Giants for a pitcher named Johnson, a cash consideration and two players to be delivered next spring, a press dispatch says after this column had been written. He will stick with the Giants. I wouldn't be surprised if he doesn't go up there and pitch winning ball. He is that sort of a chucker.

Texas Electrics Play Panhandle

Twilight Loop Leaders To Clash Sunday

The Twilight leading Texas Electrics will engage the Panhandle Longhorns, winners of the first half, Sunday at Katy park.

This game was scheduled for Friday afternoon but it has been moved to Sunday in order to take up a vacancy left when the Continental Conocos withdrew from the race.

Sunday's contest completes the Longhorn's schedule unless there are play-off games at the end of the season.

Bonner and Norton Play For Golf Crown Sunday

Stayton Bonner, the defending champion, and Morris Norton, 1924 runnerup and also tied for second low medal honors this year, will meet Sunday in the titular round of the all-city golf tournament. This was announced yesterday by Bill Strachan, professional of Golf and Country club, scene of the tournament.

E. W. Marriott and Charles Keirsey will play their second flight championship match today. It will be for 18 holes.

FIGHT POSTPONED AGAIN

NEW YORK, July 12. (UP)—The Tod Morgan-Eddie (Cannonball) Martin junior lightweight title bout was postponed for the fifth time today. Because of a conflict with three other boxing shows, Promoter Humbert Fugazy moved the match from Friday to Saturday night. Rain prevented it from being held last night.

STALLINGS SERIOUSLY ILL

MACON, Ga., July 12. (UP)—George Stallings, former manager of the Boston Braves and owner of the Montreal club of the International league, was reported seriously ill in a hospital here today.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, July 12. (AP)—More favorable reports as to crop progress in some parts of the South and relatively easy Liverpool cables seemed responsible for declines of about $2 a bale in the cotton market today. October contracts, after selling off to 21.86 early, rallied to 22.18, but broke to 21.91 in late trading and closed at that figure. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 33 to 42 points.

The opening was easy at declines of 20 to 27 points in response to lower cables. Some buying on reports of further showers in the eastern belt and absence of moisture in sections of Texas which have been complaining of dry weather, was supplied on bulges of a few points, and the market eased off during mid-day.

July sold down to 21.75, and December to 21.78, net declines of about 30 to 35 points, but these prices seemed to bring in considerable covering combined with local and Wall street buying. Demand became slightly more active after publication of the detailed weather reports showing somewhat more rain than expected in eastern belt sections and the market recovered a good part of its earlier losses.

July sold up to 21.94 and December to 22.01, but demand appeared to have been well supplied on this upturn and prices weakened again later under a renewal of realizing or liquidation which was said to be coupled with some New Orleans and southern buying.

July broke to 21.68 and December to 21.73 in the late trading and closing prices were the lowest of the day.

Private cables reported realizing in the Liverpool market with trading quiet pending further crop developments.

Port receipts today 3,693 bales. U. S. port stocks 768,822. Exports 22,145, making 7,608,808 so far this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, July 12. (AP)—The cotton market was quiet today except for a spurt of activity in final trading when unconfirmed reports of rains in the western drought section brought out selling and some liquidation which carried October down to 21.35 compared with 21.61, the day's high, and 21.67 at yesterday's close. The delivery closed 1 point above the low with the general market steady at net losses of 31 to 32 points.

Liverpool cables were 12 to 14 penny points lower than due and the market here opened easier in sympathy. First trades showed losses of 12 to 13 points and prices continued to ease after the start on favorable weather in the western belt until October traded at 21.41 and December at 21.38, or 26 points under the previous close.

In the second half of the morning the market strengthened under buying induced by an official forecast for rain in the eastern portion of the belt where moisture is not needed. October advanced to 21.61 and December 21.58, or 20 points up from the lows.

These prices proved to be the highs of the day, however, as the market turned weak after mid-session when longs liquidated and traders sold on unconfirmed reports that the western drought had been broken. The selling lasted until the end and all months made new lows with October at 21.35 and December 21.31, or 32 to 33 points below the previous close. The close was at or near the bottom.

MARKET REVIEW

R. O. Harvey & Co., rooms 630-34 Harvey-Snider building, received the following Thursday on cotton, grain and stocks from their New York and Chicago connections, E. A. Pierce & Co.:

NEW YORK, July 12.—Prospects for more favorable reports from the belt resulted in an easier market today. The penalty, however, that those bearishly inclined generally pay at this season of the year is again evident namely scarcity of contracts. Speculative long interest is concentrated and still intact and it will take more of a decline than that of today to dislodge it. We favor the long side on recessions.

Stocks

NEW YORK, July 12.—The heaviest selling today converged upon General Motors which lost six more points. Other active industrials changed only fractionally on the day with as many fractional gains perhaps as fractional losses. Call money renewed at 7 per cent but the banks around midday withdrew $15,000,000 and the loaning rate went to 8 per cent. Money was described as not in large supply at this higher figure although there was enough to take care of the day's needs. So long as volume pressure was concentrated on General Motors, the whole market remained nervous and it seemed to be the prevailing opinion among traders that temporarily at least the action of the active list was quite dependent upon the action of General Motors. When late in the day pressure was relieved from the leader a small recovery occurred all through the list. This improvement was not particularly enthusiastic nor sweeping but it did indicate that general selling was not able to make headway and another factor was the apparent absence of concentrated heavy selling supplied generally to a diversified number of issues. The close, while irregular, showed many stocks up from the lows of the day.

Grain

CHICAGO, July 12.—Wheat showed stubborn resistance to pressure from the start with a material let-up in hedging pressure from Southwest while houses that usually act for cash interests and mills were persistent buyers of futures and an oversold condition was disclosed and prices advanced rather rapidly, although there was considerable opposition at times from houses with eastern connections. Rains overnight in Kansas were expected to delay harvest operations for a day or so, but the movement there continues heavy with the four leading markets receiving 1663 cars. There was some exchanging of futures here for seaboard, reported 200,000 to 300,000 bushels sold in all positions and there were also claims that Russia took 1,000,000 bushels No. 3 Manitobas. Crop comments from Canadian Northwest were generally favorable, although confirmation was secured of leaf rust in Saskatchewan and Cromwell's report from Fargo, N. D., indicated possibility of rust damage in that state.

Corn acted somewhat oversold and with local sentiment more friendly to buying side and lessened pressure, prices advanced readily with selling against offers a factor in checking the upturn. Weather and crop reports remain favorable but technical position was regarded as strong and it took but relatively little buying to start market upward.

Corn was firm to half cent higher compared with futures.

Oats were firm in sympathy with corn.

Late Rally Regains Part of Ground Lost in Tottering Stock Session

By BROADAN WALL

Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, July 12.—A closing rally made up part of the losses sustained in another weak stock market today, in which General Motors lost 6 points but other standard industrials displayed better resistance to selling.

Advance in the call rate to 8 per cent from a renewal of 7 per cent caused some further liquidation but its effect was offset in part by the short covering of the final moments of trading.

Admission of Secretary Mellon that tight money might be felt by business temporarily enhanced bearish sentiment but its major effect was to keep trading to a comparatively light volume. Rails held better as a result of bullish car loading report.

Wheat led the grain market on receipt of crop damage reports but realizing continued in cotton and all options closed lower.

It was near 5 o'clock when the reserve bank directors here came out of meeting and announced an advance in the rediscount rate to 5 per cent. There was a very lively discussion during the two-hour session which was the longest on record. A majority of the directors, however, are in sympathy with the reserve system's campaign to reduce borrowings on securities and believing the quickest way to complete it would be to follow the action of the Chicago rate at the higher charge in effect here.

Unexpected decline in brokers' loans takes a little of the edge off the higher rediscount rate but professionals who hurried to cover after 2 o'clock rather regret their action, as the main influence to such buying was the rather widespread belief that no advance would be made here so long as the market correction appeared to be progressing satisfactorily.

General Motors remained the "market" to most traders and was the subject of active trading throughout the day. It was weakest in the earliest hours because of a report that Durant brokers had been big sellers in Wednesday afternoon's decline.

However, General Motors has more than one friend of importance insofar as the stock market is concerned, for there is a highly favorable earnings report immediately ahead and a month from now a stock dividend is expected. When it reacts as sharply as it did, scale buying appears from those expecting such developments.

Grain

By THOMAS TEMPLE MOYNE

Universal Service

CHICAGO, July 12.—All the grains were strong today and advanced easily from the opening. There was not a great deal of buying, but the markets were oversold and responded easily to a little short covering.

At the close wheat was up 1⅝c to 2c; corn was up ⅝c to 2¼c; oats were up ⅝c to 2c; rye was up ¼c to 1⅜c.

Wheat and rye looked stronger at the end than corn. The latter grain market is difficult to guage because of the situation in the July future. No ordinary trader ought to take a chance in that because it seems to be in a position where it might do anything—work much higher, or collapse—without indicating anything concerning the influential factors in the new crop situation.

There is no bullish prospect on the new corn crop at the present time. If the December future advances much from the present level that will probably be due almost entirely to short covering; it may happen.

Much depends on how the July deal works out. Undoubtedly the country will attempt to market all the old corn it can scrape together at these prices. Undoubtedly, also, consumers of corn will hold their buying down to the lowest limit on the theory that after July corn will be cheaper.

Wheat showed that it was heavily oversold at the opening. It met with more selling on the way up and at the end acted as if profit-taking by the few longs who bought wheat early had left the market strong.

Wheat at the opening today had not a friend in the world. It will have to advance some distance before present bears will change their opinion. This is a situation that can keep the market strong on the upgrade.

Rye looked better today than it has for some days. Strength in wheat, if it develops to a marked degree within the next couple of weeks, will be reflected in rye.

In the cash market wheat was unchanged; corn was unchanged to 1½c up; oats were unchanged; rye was quiet; barley was steady.

Oklahoma Royalty Men Form First Organization With Tulsa as Base

TULSA, Okla., July 12.—The royalty business, the youngest and yet one of the most promising of offsprings of petroleum, has at last decided to become organized like refining, natural gasoline, marketing and other branches of the world's most essential industry.

And like the others it has chosen Tulsa, the world's accepted oil capital, as the place for its organization meeting, and also its executive-headquarters.

This organization meeting of royalty owners from over the Mid-Continent took place Friday night and resolved itself into the Mid-Continent Royalty Owners' association. More than 150 of the Mid-Continent leading royalty owners attended the initial meeting in the Tulsa Club rooms. It was estimated that a royalty investment of approximately $150,000,000 of the $350,000,000 invested in oil and gas royalties was present.

Following talks on the necessity for organizing so as to protect the interests of the royalty owners from attacks by jack leg lawyers and professional title jumpers; endorsing the conservation movement now being waged by the oil operators all over the Mid-Continent; approving a fight against an increased gross production tax at the next session of the Oklahoma legislature, the task of organizing was tackled.

First of all a temporary executive committee of 15 was selected, and nine of them were present and at the conclusion of the general session they ballotted and elected Willard Foster, financier and royalty owner of Tulsa, as president; J. R. Simpson, royalty owner, also of Tulsa, was made secretary-treasurer, and the following vice presidents were then chosen in order named:

Dr. W. E. Grisso, Seminole; Wade H. James, Tulsa; Frank H. Reed, Neosho, Mo.; W. G. Johnston, Oklahoma City, and Carl R. Blackman, Tulsa.

A permanent executive committee was named, composed of the president and secretary and Messrs. James, Blackman and P. N. Wiggins, the later being vice president of Peerless Oil and Gas company of Tulsa.

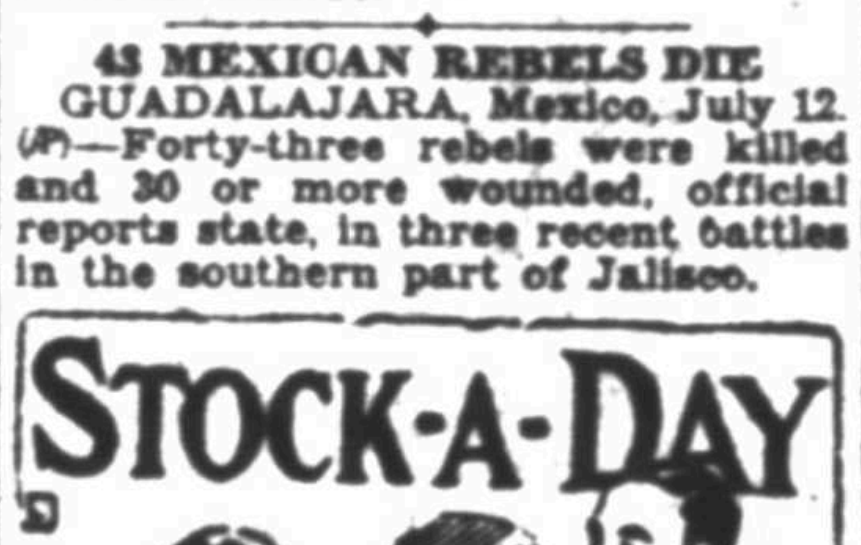
MAGMA COPPER COMPANY



Five-Year Record

The Magma Copper company's activities involve the mining and marketing of copper, gold and silver. The concern is one of the lowest cost producers of copper in the United States.

The company owns 536 acres of patented mining claims; 1862 acres of unpatented claims; 418 acres of millsites, and 360 acres of patented farm lands in Arizona. The mine is developed by five shafts and the company has several subsidiaries. Its smelter has a monthly capacity of 3,000,000 pounds of copper. The Magma-Arizona Railroad running from Magma to Superior, Ariz., is owned by the company.

The ore reserves estimated in the property are placed at about one and a half million tons, running about 5½ per cent copper, 3 ounces of silver, and .025 ounces of gold per ton. The property produced 28,502,000 pounds of copper; 989,000 ounces of silver, and 8528 ounces of gold in 1927. Operations were practically suspended throughout 1921, 1922 and 1923, but in the last four years they have been fairly steady.

Net income in 1927, after depreciation was $825,045, or equal to $2.02 a share as compared with $1,210,520 in 1926. Earnings over the last ten years have varied greatly with losses in 1921, 1922 and 1923. The cost of producing a pound of copper in 1927 was 8.61c.

There is no funded debt. Capital stock outstanding consists of 408,155 shares of no par value.

Dividends have been paid since 1915 with some lapses. In 1925, $1.50 was paid; in 1926 and 1927, $3 was paid, and payments have been at the latter rate so far this year.

For the first quarter of 1928, net income was $440,970.

As of January 1, 1928, current assets were $3,465,617; current liabilities $727,671; net working capital $2,737,946, and book value applicable to the capital stock amounted to $18.02 a share.

MATURED BONDS CAUSE LOSSES

Mellon Appeals to Holders To "Cash In"

WASHINGTON, July 12. (UP)—Carelessness or oversight is causing thousands of holders of government securities to lose nearly $2,000,000 annually, a recapitulation of the national debt made public today showed.

There are outstanding $45,335,000 in treasury securities which have matured and no longer draw interest. Holders of these securities are losing more than $1,800,000 a year in interest.

The treasury would like to get possession of the bonds for retirement so the proceeds could be used toward debt reduction, but there is no way to locate the holders.

Officials pointed out that of the second liberty loan called a year ago there is still outstanding $32,747,000, which draws no interest. Third liberties are being called for September 15 and it is expected many investors will neglect to turn their bonds in for cash or refund them into new securities.

To Broadcast Appeal

Secretary of Treasury Mellon has authorized the use of radio to advertise that outstanding bonds which mature soon or will be called in soon will not be subject to interest after an advertised date.

Mellon said he could not see why investors were willing to lose nearly $2,000,000 a year in interest unless they had put the securities away somewhere and forgotten about them.

Authorities said there was no doubt that some of the outstanding bonds have been lost or destroyed and that they will never get back into the treasury. Others, they believe, are hidden away in safe deposit boxes or other safe storage places with consequent loss to their owners.

Today { At the Theaters

STRAND: "The Girl from Chicago," a vitaphone feature with Conrad Nagel and Myrna Loy. Two vitaphone short features. Pathe news.

MAJESTIC: "The Street of Sin." Inkwell Imp cartoon. Paramount news. Novelty.

MISSION: Mary Astor in "The Chinese Parrot." Comedy.

GARDEN: "Made to Order Hero." Serial. Comedy.

GEM: "Arizona Cyclone." Serial. Comedy.

All motion pictures can't be good, and there is one at the Majestic called "The Street of Sin" in which Emil Jannings is starred, that is the absolute limit.

How Paramount, the world's greatest producing organization, could ever release such a picture is a perfect marvel. It starts out in a London fog with a girl and a man in Salvation Army uniforms making their way through the dangerous and ugly streets of the ill famed Limehouse district. From there, the action starts. But what action it is!

Worthy of the animal life and elemental crudeness of a man of the stripe of Jannings, the picture is in strange contrast with its brilliant little leading lady Fay Wray whose acting is the outstanding feature of the play.

The Cherry sisters made a fortune on the legitimate stage due to the fact their act, intended to be serious drama, was so rotten that the crowds screamed with laughter and the producers continued to bill them in the same act under the title of burlesque comedy.

Those who like their rough stuff plenty rough may like this picture. The funny part of it is that good sized crowds are watching it most of the time. That's a travesty on the dear public which is continually "demanding" pictures of the "better class."

◆ ◆ ◆

At that, "The Street of Sin" is preferable to politix. And, after all, is there such a great big difference?

◆ ◆ ◆

And along comes "The Girl from Chicago." She is due to breeze into the Strand Friday to the tune of vitaphone music. Myrna Loy is playing the leading role opposite Conrad Nagel who is seen in a number of vitaphone features. It is a romance of daring and danger.

◆ ◆ ◆

There have been few comedians who rank with George Sidney. When it comes to Jooish comedy, George means "gevelt," which is the English way of phoenetically spelling the Jewish word "gold." As the star of "Welcome Stranger" he continued earlier triumphs in "Potash and Perlmutter" and other great comedies. Everything he has done has been a financial success. When shows are financial successes, they generally are popular with the public for it is the public that pays. Hooked up with Sidney is a comedy artist of distinctly different type, and one who is just about as good. He is Charlie Murray. The name of their play is "Lost at the Front." It is now playing at the Olympic.

◆ ◆ ◆

"The Chinese Parrot" is in its last day Friday at the Mission.

◆ ◆ ◆

Ken Maynard in "The Canyon of Adventure" is opening at the Mission Saturday. That boy is one of the most popular actors in tales of the great open spaces when men were men, etc., as can be found in any theater.

Weeks Returns Here to Draft First Plans for Colonization
