Available If Defense Budget Is Cut...

Fewer Troops, Less Ammo

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fewer American troops with smaller supplies of ammunition would be available for crises in the oil-rich Persian Gulf under military spending cuts being considered by President Reagan, Pentagon officials say.

The number of U.S. ground units available for quick reinforcement in Western Europe also would be reduced and combat supplies for both air and sea forces would have to be cut sharply, said the officials, who asked not to be identified.

The cuts in troop and equipment levels were cited in analyses that Deputy Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci reportedly gave to presidential counselor Edwin Meese III at a meeting Thursday on proposed defense cuts expected to be decided next week.

White House officials have said Reagan is prepared to reduce projected defense spending by as much as $30 billion in fiscal 1983 and 1984 as part of a new drive to balance the federal budget by 1984.

Until now, the defense budget has been immune from administration pruning, and Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger is resisting any major cutbacks in a projected $1.6 trillion five-year program that constitutes the largest military buildup in U.S. history.

The Office of Management and Budget proposed spending reductions for fiscal 1983 of about $4 billion to about $10 billion and from $8.5 billion to $17.2 billion in fiscal 1984. Such reductions would have consequences in future years as various weapons and other programs gathered momentum.

The Pentagon analyses indicated that major budget rollbacks would affect both near-term readiness and future modernization and strengthening of U.S. forces.

The OMB budget-cutting proposals likely would reduce to four the number of brigades that could be deployed to Southwest Asia, including the Persian Gulf, within the first 30 days of a crisis, the Pentagon says. The original Reagan budget contemplates that nine brigades could respond.

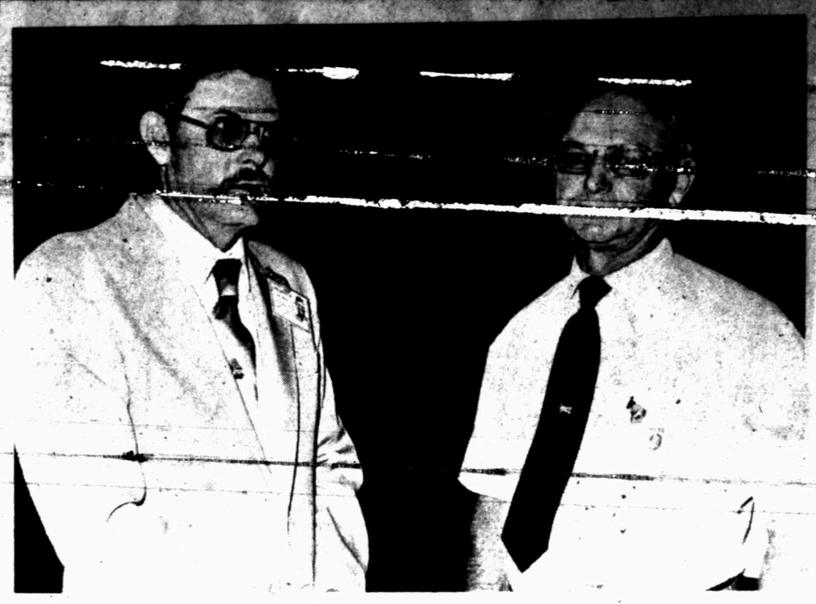

The amount of ammunition that would be stocked to sustain the Rapid Deployment ground force would be slashed from 120 days to 60, which was the same level planned by the Carter administration, the Pentagon analysts said.

The OMB proposals, the analysts said, would trim Air Force ammunition for sustained combat from 60 days to 45 days and Navy war reserve spares from 60 days to fewer than 25 days.

The number of brigades that could be deployed to NATO after the first 10 days of a war would have to be cut from 15 to nine, according to the analysts.

The overall number of what are called "maneuver battalions" in the U.S. armed forces would be reduced from 207 as contemplated by the current Reagan budget to 188.

The Pentagon, passing on the views of the individual armed services, warned that proposed rollbacks in defense spending boosts could lead to elimination of one Army division; retirement of 18 warships, presumably older vessels; and pare as many as 144 Air Force jet fighters and all 80 remaining B-52D bombers, oldest in the strategic air fleet.

Absolves DIs Of Blame

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A Marine recruit whose letter of criticism triggered an investigation into the drowning of a fellow recruit says the Marine instructors were not at fault.

But, the recruit, Pvt. Greg Washington, 18, of Dallas, Tex., said he believes the death during swimming tests "could have been prevented."

Appearing at a press conference, Washington said, "I did not see any abuse, or lack of caring or carelessness on the part of the instructors."

The victim, Pvt. Randall Christian, 18, a high school friend of Washington's, drowned Aug. 27 during a water qualification test at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot pool.

A day after the drowning, Washington wrote his family and girlfriend criticizing the Marines for allowing Christian to drown.

Closing Date Pushed Back

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Federal officials have pushed back the date for closing the Fort Chaffee Cuban refugee relocation center.

In February, officials said they hoped to have the remaining refugees resettled in six months or August. On Thursday, Reagan administration officials said Chaffee might be closed before winter.

The refugee population was to drop to about 625 today with the transfer of some refugees to group living projects in other states. There were 641 refugees Thursday. At its peak, Chaffee housed about 19,000. The base opened in May 1980 to handle some of the Cubans from the Freedom Flotilla.

Barbara Pardue, Gov. Frank White's press aide, said Thursday that White is satisfied with the progress in closing Chaffee. Miss Pardue said in July that White wanted the refugees out by the end of August.

Lufkin News Fails

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — The Lufkin News does not have the right to attend pretrial hearings in a lawsuit between the Texas National Bank here and some minority stockholders, a judge has ruled.

Visiting State District Judge Marcus Vascocu refused to allow the newspaper into a hearing Aug. 3, saying that the general public would not understand the case anyway.

The News had also sought to obtain a copy of the transcript of the Aug. 3 hearing, but the judge refused to let them have it.

"I don't think the news media has any standing in this case," Vascocu said Thursday. He said he did not think the First Amendment principles on freedom of the press would apply.

The main trial would be more interesting to the public than the pretrial hearings, the judge said.

Woman Who Called Sought

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Bexar County investigators are trying to find a woman who telephoned twice to report that an automobile dealer had been shot to death.

Kenneth Nelson Jackson, 42, was found early Thursday in his bed. He had been shot once in the forehead with a small caliber weapon, investigators reported.

Jackson was the owner of a used car lot and auto parts store.

Sheriff's Lt. Kenneth Bilhartz said the woman phoned twice about 1:30 a.m., reporting a man had been shot in the front yard of the house.

However, Bilhartz said Jackson was found nude in his bed, covered with a sheet and bedspread and no one else was at the house when officers arrived. He said a television set was on, indicating Jackson was shot while watching a program.

LosAngeles Hit By Earthquake

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A strong earthquake rolled through the Los Angeles area today, shaking the downtown area for about 15 seconds. There were no immediate reports of damage or injury.

The earthquake was felt as far away as Santa Barbara, 90 miles northwest of Los Angeles, and in San Diego, 125 miles south of Los Angeles.

A Santa Barbara resident, Jerry Renkin, said the quake was "very strong. It's the strongest we've felt in at least three years."

The National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., said a preliminary reading showed a qauke of magnitude of 5.8 on the Richter scale hit at 8:51 a.m. PDT. It was centered in the San Pedro Channel off Long Beach, geophysicist Waverly Person said.

It was the strongest earthquake to hit Los Angeles since a quake that registered 6.4 in killed 65 people in February 1981.

Vacation Is Over...

Reagan Ready To Begin Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, back at the White House after a month-long California vacation, is ready to move "on a fast freight" and make tough decisions on defense and domestic spending, his aides say.

Reagan, who left town on a triumphant note after getting his budget and tax cuts through Congress, returns to find more cuts needed to keep persistent high interest rates from wrecking his goal of balancing the budget by 1984.

The president's work list also will include next week's visit by Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, Senate confirmation hearings for Supreme Court nominee Sandra D. Connor and the fight for congressional approval to sell sophisticated radar planes to Saudi Arabia.

"We'll be on a fast freight, beginning next week," deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes told reporters on the return trip Thursday aboard Air Force One.

Questions about Reagan's work habits broke into the open during his vacation, with a Newsweek magazine report that he spends only a few hours a day on the job, neglects his homework and exhibits a short attention span on some issues. White House aides dismissed the criticism as coming from a few disenchanted staff members.

"I think next week's schedule will show he is working hard," Speakes said Thursday.

Electric Co-Op Picks Directors

Midwest Electric Cooperative held its annual barbecue and business meeting Thursday night at Scurry County Coliseum with some 1800 people attending, including 548 registered members.

The barbecue meal was catered by an Abilene restaurant and entertainment was provided by Cindy Hataway who sang several modern tunes and the Fisher County Share The Fun 4-H group who sang a medley of country and western tunes.

Several prizes were given away throughout the evening and two board members were elected for another term. They are Mike Herron of Sylvester and Carl Williams of Hermleigh. Other members of the board include James Beaver of Fluvanna, president; Joe Falls of Ira; Melvin Clements of Rotan; James Nettleton of Hermleigh and James Cave of Roby.

Dan Cotton of Snyder serves as the attorney for the Coop and Parker Wetzel of Roby is the manager.

Wetzel presented a brief message updating members on the accomplishments of he Coop during he past year. Beaver also spoke for a few minutes telling the crowd it was important for them to stay politically up on what was going on around them.

According to a 1980 income and expense statement provided by the Coop its total liabilities and net worth is listed at $8,557,031. In 1980 the company has laid some 2,483 miles of line.

Two winners of the 1981 Cooperative sponsored Government-In-Action Youth Tour also spoke briefly to the audience thanking them for making the trip possible and asking them to continue to support the project so that other youths may also take advantage of it. They were Tisa Lovett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Lovett of Roby and Kerry Gardner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ray Gardner of Ira.

Ask Us

Q-Why do the traffic lights downtown and on highways start blinking by 7 p.m. but then go back on regular schedule by 3 a.m. or so?

A.—Highway department officials advise that state regulations require traffic signals to revert to blinking during any four-hour period in which the traffic volume falls below 50 percent of the number required to meet the warrants for a stop-and-go signal. In Snyder this occurs in late afternoon or early evening and continues for several hours.

Keeping tab on our neighbors:

We don't hear many good Aggie jokes these days, but one finally came along the past week and it is attributed to an Aggie. Phil Riddle of the Colorado City Record says he got it from Wes Burnett of the Balllinger Ledger, who is a graduate of Texas A&M. It goes like this:

Three men were traveling by car in a foreign country when their vehicle hit a citizen and killed him. Irate countrymen quickly tried and convicted the three, sentencing them to death in the electric chair. The first one was marched to the chair and asked if he had any last words. He said, "I am a graduate of the University of Texas Law School and this is the worst possible travesty of justice."

The executioner pulled the switch but nothing happened. The superstitious authorities then conferred, and finally decided to release the Texas lawyer.

The second man then was afforded the same opportunity to speak. "I am a graduate of the Baylor University Divinity School and I will forgive you of this foul act, even as God forgives you." Once again, the switch was thrown to no avail and once again they decided to release the American.

The third man was brought forward for his final words.

"I am a graduate of the Texas A&M School of Engineering and if you'll connect that white wire over there to the red one, this gizmo will work 100 per cent better."

Craig Nieman of the Littlefield Leader-News says it was tough finding people to predict football scores in his paper this fall.

"Rounding up a panel of people who will admit to whom they think will win is not the easiest around," said Nieman. "Seems a lot of people around here prefer hindsight."

Well, it must be getting tough all over to find people willing to put their predictions out there where all can see them, which may explain why Bill McClellan collared fellow staff members for the SDN's football panel this time. We knew the situation was serious when he drafted yours truly out of forecasting retirement.

Redistricting Schedule Has 3 Weeks Less

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Legislative Redistricting Board has chopped three weeks off its already tight timetable for redrawing state House and Senate districts by scheduling four days of hearings to begin Sept. 23.

Board members have until Oct. 28 to finish their work, and they aren't scheduled to meet again until the hearings, which will be held in Austin.

Comptroller Bob Bullock, who dominated Thursday's meeting with political banter, suggested hearings weren't necessary because both the House and the Senate had conducted hours — even days-of hearings on redistricting already.

But Attorney General Mark White said three of the five board members were not part of the House or Senate and had not been part of the hearings.

White Buffalo Days Discussed

Eight organizations were represented Thursday evening at a planning session for the White Buffalo Days celebration scheduled by the women's division of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

The event has been scheduled as a major activity calling attention to the anniversary date of the killing of the White Buffalo by J. Wright Mooar, which is Oct. 7. On that date, there will be ceremonies and on the following Saturday, Oct. 10, a full schedule of activities is being planned.

All clubs and civic organizations here are being encouraged to participate, and several already have selected activities which they will sponsor, chamber officials said.

Representatives of organizations attending the meeting Thursday include Pat Rice, American Business Women's Association; Pete Glass, Golden K Kiwanis Club; Harry Krenek, Historic Scurry County; JoAnn Nunley, Cosmorama Study Club; Hattie Gatlin and Clara Mae Noah, Art Guild Study Club; Maria Patterson and Phyllis Haley, Amitie Study Club; Vera Holsinger and Nona Morrison, Alpha Study Club; and Nelda Gilbreth, Newcomers Club.

Others attending included Brenda Hedges, Polly Underwood, Margaret Birdwell, Elizabeth Potts and Billie Smith of the chamber's women's division, and Bill Warner, manager, and Jamie Westbrook, secretary, of the chamber staff.

Hearty Biker Rides Bike To California

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — When Jim Hayes had a heart transplant five years ago, he vowed to ride a bicycle 3,000 miles to his fifth annual checkup.

He is fulfilling his promise today.

The 29-year-old Knoxville resident and his 18-year-old brother, Dewayne, plan to ride 60 miles a day so they can keep an Oct. 26 appointment with doctors at Stanford University Hospital in Palo Alto, Calif., where he had the operation.

The trip also will be a fund-raiser for the eastern Tennesseee chapter of the American Heart Association. Several individuals and companies already have made donations in honor of the trip.

Maintains He Is Innocent...

Mike Martin Has Given Himself Up

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — State Rep. Mike Martin, who is accused of lying to a grand jury when he denied he staged his own shooting, has surrendered to authorities while maintaining his innocence and predicting his case would never go to trial.

The Republican legislator, a shooting victim who at various times said he was the target of unknown assailants, satanic hit men and political enemies, was indicted Thursday in Austin for aggravated perjury.

"I will probably ask the court to assign me an attorney because I do not have the funds to hire one myself. I just hope they will give me a thoroughly good criminal lawyer," Martin said just before he surrendered to a Gregg County constable Thursday night.

Martin, who faces a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine if convicted, was taken before Justice of the Peace Robert Malcolm Thursday night and then released on $5,000 bond.

The Longview lawmaker said he would plead innocent and predicted if his case went to court it would take two years with "mistrials, hung juries and appeals." But he added that he doubted he would ever be tried.

"Every attorney I've talked to has said it won't go to court," said Martin.

"If the district attorney wants to spend another quarter of a million dollars to have the horrible preacher Mike Martin put in jail or fined remains to be seen," said Martin. "I would think they would come to me and ask me to resign. It seems the practical thing to do rather than spend all that money on a trial.

Travis County District Attorney Ronald Earle said he has no intention now of asking for Martin's resignation in a plea bargain. But he added, "Things change."

Martin, 29, was wounded in the left arm by shotgun fire in the early morning hours of July 31 near the camper-trailer where he lived in Austin during the special legislative session.

When he was released from the hospital after a 30-hour stay he said he had no idea who shot him or why. Later he told of being the target of the Guardian Angels of the Underworld, a satanic cult he said he had information about.

That story was undercut by Charles Goff, Martin's cousin, who said Martin plotted the shooting in order to gain publicity. Goff said Martin paid him and offered him a job to fire the shotgun in a "controlled hit."

Assistant District Attorney Allen Hill said in Austin that Travis County grand jurors alleged Martin lied to them on Aug. 25 when he said he "did not plan and stage the shooting and wounding of himself."

Earle said, "For reasons known best to himself, we have alleged he arranged his own shooting. ... Because of the allegations he made and the position of public faith he occupied, there is an enormous amount of public interest in what happened to him.

"Since he told conflicting stories, he was taken before the grand jury so the public's right to know what happened would be satisfied. ... We have alleged that in that appearance before the grand jury, he lied. ... The thing that typifies the entire episode is he lied. ... His mistake was telling a lie," said Earle.

"I'm innocent until proven guilty or at least that is the way is is supposed to be in America, but it appears politicians are guilty until proven innocent," Martin said Thursday night.

The prosecutor said there was no felony committed at the trailer park; it is not illegal to have yourself shot. Martin, who ignored one subpoena and avoided another before testifying, became a felony defendant when he allegedly lied to the grand jurors, Earle said.

If Martin had told them he planned the shooting, he would have faced only a misdemeanor charge — perhaps for making a false report to police, Earle said. Pleading the Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination also could have saved Martin from a perjury charge, the prosecutor said.

Market Soaring...

Black Rhinos Are Priceless

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — In the market, Black rhinos are soaring like gorillas, but two Markhors can get you six Plains visachas, a Bennet wallaby and more, says Gerald Aquilina, curator of mammals at the Buffalo Zoo.

With a limited budget for new animals, Aquilina trades and borrows from other zoos. And, he says, zoo supply is a trendy business, where the impact of supply and demand is especially severe.

Gorillas, for example, are "one of the biggest draws a zoo has," the curator said. But they're in short supply today due to diminished populations, export restrictions and because "captive breeding hasn't worked as well as it should."

"I think it's safe to say that a breeding-age gorilla would average up to $75,000, but I don't know of any recently offered for sale," Aquilina said.

Similarly, he said, the Black rhinoceros "has gone up incredibly. There hasn't been one sold for so long now that it's probably priceless.

"On the other hand," Aquilina continued, "take the Siberian tiger. Twenty-five years ago, you couldn't buy one if you had all the money in the world. Then they started breeding them, and now Siberian tigers are worthless. I've got two and I can't give them away."

Besides loans and breeding arrangements with other zoos — wherein the offspring is shared by the owners of the male and female — Aquilina sometimes arranges trades through independent dealers. In a recent exhange for two surplus Markhors (Russian goats), for example, the Buffalo Zoo recently obtained three pairs of Plains visachas (a South American rodent), the wallaby — and a leftover credit of $1,000.

The deals are always professionally sanctioned, and animals are never sold to pet stores or private individuals, he said.

"We make sure we know where the animal is going to end up," Aquilina said. "If we were to sell to the private sector, we'd have a multimillion-dollar business here....(But) we have a firm stand against it. We don't approve of exotic animals as pets."

Nor will the zoo accept such animals from distraught owners, he added.

"We get a hundred calls a year from people whose pets are either biting them, eating them out of house and home, squawking, tearing the place apart or smelling," Aquilina said.

"Monkeys. Lions. Pumas. Leopards. Ocelots. Birds. Crocodiles. We had a person the other day with a pair of Bengal tigers.

"But we don't take them for a couple of reasons," he said.

"They don't act like their species is supposed to act. They're brought up on the wrong diet. They have physical problems. They're not socialized with their own species.

"They're a bummer. They're wipeouts. They're useless," he said.

"My problem is I'm still not used to having a president who takes a tough stand, but then doesn't back down!"

When the Salvation Army disassociated itself from the World Council of Churches in mid-August it sent a shock wave through pulpits and pews around the world.

Many churches in the United States support the World Council, notably United Methodist, United Presbyterian, Christian Church Disciples, Episcopal Church and the American Lutheran Church.

Our nation's largest protestant denomination, Southern Baptists, do not support the World Council—for the same reason that the Salvation Army has pulled out.

Churches are divided as never before between heaven and earth, between here and hereafter, between a spiritual gospel and a social gospel.

Simplistically, the World Council of Churches is dedicated to social reform. Or, as the Salvation Army says, "to putting politics above the Gospel."

The Salvation Army was one of the founders of the World Council in 1948. It was after the state-controlled Russian Orthodox Church was admitted to membership that critics said the WWC became "a left wing political activist organization operating from behind a facade of religion."

This year the WWC Central Committee met in Communist East Germany, issued a resolution demanding a halt to the production of neutron weapons.

A WWC team in Australia embarrassed that government with a scathing 91-page report charging that aborigines there are victims of massive deprivation and injustice.

In Africa, the World Council of Churches actually finances revolutionaries.

The WWC gave $85,000 to African guerrillas waging war against the government of Zimbabwe and has pledged aid to guerrillas seeking to overthrow South-West Africa.

The pattern clearly aligns the World Council with Marxists and Communists in many countries.

Two to three million dollars of the World Council's $45 million annual budget is siphoned from the collection plates in American churches, members of which may imagine that their tithes and gifts are going to spread the gospel and feed the hungry.

World Council spokespersons will insist that the organization supports only "humanitarian work."

There is no organization which has been more selflessly dedicated to "humanitarian work" that the Salvation Army.

For the Army, painfully and at the risk of alienating some of its own supporters, to withdraw from the World Council clearly defines the line between do-gooders and good-doers.

The Salvation Army is not a timid Army.

I've seen Salvationists standing at the back door of hell with the Gospel in one hand and a cup of cold water in the other.

But no guns.

Sick Lioness Is Problem For Officials

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — "Whiskers," a sick lioness which acted as a watchlion for a drug suspect, is causing a dilemma for city officials.

It began four months ago when a man was arrested on drug charges and the lioness was found tied to a tree, guarding the back yard.

Cecil Ruben Curren went to jail and the lioness — after quite a tussle — went to the San Antonio Zoo, with the aid of a tranquilizer gun.

Curren was released on bail, but quickly disappeared, leaving the city in charge of the lioness, which was quarantined at the zoo because of poor health.

This week, authorities discovered Curren has been re-arrested and now is being held in lieu of $35,000 bond on three narcotics charges.

"When a man who owns a lion illegally is in jail, we're in the worst position ever," city prosecutor Luis Garcia said. "The man's not out to exercise his rights. We can't put the lion in the pound and we can't dispose of it.

"Everything that comes to mind sounds absurd. Someone said we could auction her off like we do abandoned bicycles, but she's not abandoned."

Beta Sigma Phi Receives 3-Star Rating

Twenty-one members of Snyder's Beta Sigma Phi Chapter were present Tuesday, September 1 at 7 p.m. at the Martha Ann Woman's Club to hear Wanda Early, president, announce that the chapter has been notified by the International Beta Sigma Phi office in Kansas City, Missouri, that it has been given a 3-star rating. A 3-[illegible] is given only to Beta Sigma Phi chapters around the world that have made outstanding social, cultural, and service contributions to their communities and exemplify the aims and purposes of the sorority.

In other business, Mrs. Early informed members that the chapter has been asked to participate in the upcoming Heritage Celebration planned by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce. Donna Fowler introduced a guest, Jackie Bucklynn. She is a member of Theta Sigma chapter in Abilene and has recently moved to Snyder with her husband. Laura Greene updated members on plans for the September Stomp Western Dance to be held September 29 at the National Guard Armory from 9 p.m. until midnight. Members were also reminded that the West Texas Area Beta Sigma Phi Convention will be October 2-4 in Midland. The chapter's yearbook and scrapbook will be entered in competition at the convention, as well as the Outstanding Chapter competition. In final business, the chapter decided that secret sisters will not buy corsages during the 1981-82 year. Others making reports included Judy Smith, Carolyn House and Nancy Ballinger. Hostesses for the evening were Judy Smith and Dena Ellis.

The program leader for the evening was Cyndee Gayle, who introduced the topic of foster care. Foster care is defined as a program designed to provide a substitute family experience for a child in an agency-approved household. Foster children need care for a temporary or extended period of time. During that time, the child's biological family is either non-existent or dysfunctional. The primary goal of foster care is to reunite families or to insure the child will leave foster care for permanent placement. Foster care is founded on the premise that all children have a right to physical care, and educational and emotional nurturance. Foster parenting is not a lifetime commitment to a child, but a commitment to be meaningful during the child's lifetime. Mrs. Gayle introduced Diane Price, a Snyder resident who has been active in the foster care program with her husband in New Mexico and Texas for about six years. She related some of her experiences since she started keeping foster children and answered questions from the group.

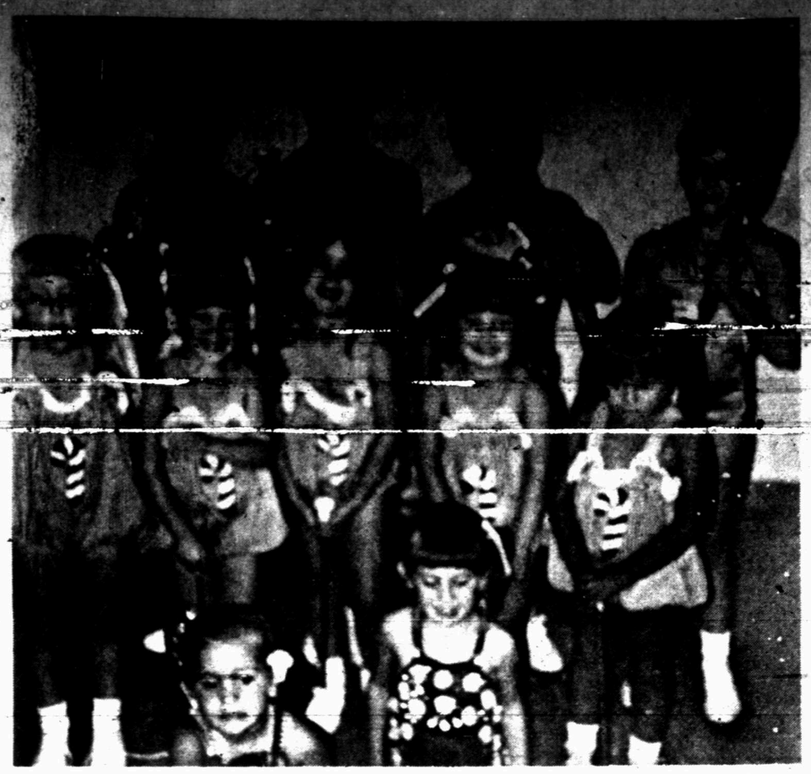

Hostesses for the September 15 meeting will be Mary Lou Scott and Laura Greene. Barbara Hamlett will give the program.

The author of "The Mexican Contract" has used several of the great classic hands of all-time in his book. The real bridge afficionado should enjoy them if he does not know them already. In particular he shows the famous "Vaniva" problem composed by Sidney Lenz some 50 years ago.

Today's hand shows Mexican tournament play at its best and worst. East and South were experts trying to outguess each other and their ordinary partners.

Hence South's one notrump overcall with that singleton queen of spades. North tried Stayman and South contracted for the notrump game.

West opened the three of hearts. He was suspicious of his partner's club.

South won with the ace over East's queen and played the ace of clubs and a club to dummy's king. West dropped the five of diamonds. The ace and deuce of diamonds came next. Expert East took his king and put down his king of spades.

South dropped the queen and West the six. Could South be false-carding?

Finally, East decided that South had bid notrump with a singleton. He led his four of spades to West's jack. West led the suit back and South was down one.

Over Hughes Estate...

Bitter Heirs Fight Ending

HOUSTON (AP) — A bitter courtroom feud over shares of Howard Hughes' financial empire "will end soon with a whimper," one attorney predicts after a lawyer for the last of about 500 distant relatives rested his case without calling a witness.

The distant relatives and five Hughes' paternal first cousins have haggled for 10 days over which group is entitled to share half the estate estimated to be worth as much as $2 billion when the tycoon died in April 1976.

Lawyers predicted the five-year-old litigation could finally go to a six-member jury today after a court-appointed attorney for unknown heirs wraps up his case with two more witnesses.

"This is all going to end soon with a whimper," said attorney George Dean, who represents one of the first cousins.

Ted Dinkins, appointed to represent possible undiscovered heirs, opened his case Thursday by introducing additional wills, certificates of birth, marriage and death and census records of Hughes' aunts, uncles, grandparents and great grandparents.

Dinkins told jurors he was "not for anybody and technically against everybody," but his evidence served to reinforce the claims of the first cousins who have been forced to defend their bloodline to the Hughes' family.

Distant cousins have argued that Elspeth Lapp Hughes was not the true daughter of Hughes' uncle Rupert and could not provide the first cousins with the bloodline that would entitle them to a share of the fortune.

However, one of Dinkins' assistants and Mary Fay, a certified Houston genealogist, testified Thursday that a five-year search of legal documents, visits to cemeteries and studies of photographs and letters failed to uncover any evidence to support the claims of distant cousins.

The trial to determine the paternal heirs was ordered by Probate Judge Pat Gregory, who ruled earlier this year that Hughes left no valid will and no immediate survivors when he died in April 1976. Gregory awarded half the estate to 16 maternal cousins last month.

In their effort to overturn the claims of first cousins, the 500 second, third and fourth cousins have offered two different versions of the identity of Elspeth, the mother of three first cousins and the stepsister of the other two.

About 400 distant cousins, relying on family stories passed from generation to generation, contend that Hughes' uncle, Rupert, was sterile and that Elspeth was the issue of an illicit love affair.

The other 100 relatives argue that Rupert's biological daughter drowned in as a child in a swimming pool and Elspeth was his stepchild. However, their attorneys said, evidence to prove their claims was placed in a family steamer trunk that burned 35 years before the eccentric recluse died.

Extradition Sought For Mom Killers

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Authorities have said they will seek extradition of a couple from Texas on charges stemming from the 1974 hammer-knife slaying of the man's 64-year-old mother.

Assistant District Attorney Jerry Truster said first-degree murder charges were filed last week against Robert Joseph Zani, 37, and his wife, Irma Serrano Zani, 34, in the death of Gladys E. Zani.

The pair is being held in San Antonio on a variety of charges, including a murder count in the 1979 shooting death of real estate dealer Julian Dess, 73, whose decomposed body was found buried on Padre Island. Dess's body was found in a shallow grave uncovered by coyotes four days after his disappearance.

Tulsa police detectives said they received information the mother's body was dismembered and "scattered between Tulsa and Eureka Springs, Ark." When authorities were contacted in 1974 about the woman's disappearance, they learned her Social Security checks were still being cashed and the case was closed.

The case was re-opened in May after Tulsa police were contacted by Texas authorities who had arrested the Zanis in connection with the Dess slaying.

Friends of Zani's mother apparently became worried when the woman was reported missing six years ago shortly before a scheduled vacation trip to Alaska.

Truster said he would contact Texas authorities to find out whether the couple could be brought to Oklahoma before the Texas cases are finished.

A tape-recorded statement by Irma Zani, introduced in a pre-trial hearing at Floresville, Texas, said her husband butchered his mother with a saw and stuffed the pieces in suitcases. The wife said Zani then forced her to scatter the pieces one at a time along a highway.

The woman said her husband forced her to stick a knife in his mother, whom he had knocked to the floor with a hammer.

Earlier this year, Zani was sentenced to 99 years in prison for murder in the 1967 shooting death of Austin resident George Vizard.

Jaycees Plan Rest Stop

The Jaycees plan to serve free coffee, cokes and cookies to weary travelers Friday through Monday during the National Jaycees Labor Day Rest Stop campaign. The group will have a concession trailer set up near a filling station near Hermleigh as they have in the past.

The annual coffee giveaway is aimed at getting tired drivers off the road long enough to refresh them, break up the monotony of traveling and wake them up a little to try to cut down on the holiday death toll.

Lynn Smith, Snyder Jaycee, says an official with the Department of Public Safety in Austin has credited the Texas Jaycees with preventing several traffic deaths with the rest stop campaign in years past.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Aid isn't always answer

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know about fluid in the ears. I began to be deaf after a cold and cough three months ago from which I have recovered.

My ear doctor says I have fluid in the middle ear. He has inserted tubes which so far have not helped. He tells me I will hear again. How long should it take? Is there a possibility of permanent deafness? Also, would a hearing aid help?

DEAR READER — Hearing can be affected by anything wrong in the ear canal before you get to the ear drum to the points where the brain receives and understands sound. Not all hearing problems can be or should be solved with a hearing aid. If a person has an ear canal filled with wax the proper treatment is the removal of the wax, not a hearing aid. That is why an ear examination is important before anyone is fitted with a hearing aid.

When the ear drum is affected or there is fluid in the middle ear, these conditions should be corrected. They usually can be in time. If the drum is relaxed or fluid is in the middle ear the sound waves will not be transmitted normally to the inner ear and hearing is affected.

This and other aspects of hearing are discussed more fully in The Health Letter number 16-8, Your Vital Hearing, which I am sending you.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I don't know how long it will take for your ear to recover. It depends upon what is causing the fluid. But you are on the right track and should follow your ear doctor's recommendations. If you have scarring of [illegible] because of an infection you might require surgery but you should recover and have normal hearing without the need for a hearing aid, if you have no other problems with your ear besides the fluid and its complications.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I gave up using an artificial dessert spread and a coffee cream substitute because they contain coconut oil and I thought you said they contained more cholesterol than natural cream. Then I read in one of your books that sweetened coconut contained no cholesterol. I would rather use cream than these artificial substitutes. Or should I use one of the soybean products?

DEAR READER — First, let's clarify the problem about coconut oil. It does not contain cholesterol. BUT it is almost 90 percent saturated fat.

The saturated fat, as opposed to polyunsaturated fat, is thought to increase your body's own tendency to form cholesterol. That is why coconut oil is not recommended by most heart specialists.

Since cream contains less saturated fat than coconut oil you are probably better off using natural cream than you are products made with coconut oil.

And you can use one of the milk substitutes, such as a soybean product, but check the ingredients on the label. If the manufacturer has started adding coconut oil or "vegetable oil" that is not identified, don't use it. Find a different product.

Slowly Rising Prices Kept Inflation Level

WASHINGTON (AP) — Slowly rising food prices kept inflation at the wholesale level in August to an annual rate of 3.6 percent, the smallest increase since May, the government announced today.

At the same time, the government reported unemployment edged up to 7.2 percent in August after declining to 7 percent in July. The increase was attributed largely to a surge in the number of black teen-agers out of work.

The Labor Department said its measure of wholesale prices — the Producer Price Index for finished goods — rose a small 0.3 percent in August after seasonal adjustment. The increase was less than July's 0.4 percent rise and June's 0.6 percent advance and the lowest since May's 0.1 percent, which was revised from the 0.4 percent reported earlier.

Since last August, wholesale prices have risen only 7.9 percent, a sharp departure from the 11.8 percent for all of last year.

Inflation at the wholesale level is running at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 8.3 percent for the first eight months of this year, Labor Department officials said.

If inflation increased at August's rate for 12 straight months, the rate for that year would be 3.6 percent, the officials said.

The Labor Department report said consumer food prices inched up 0.2 percent in August, much less than the 1.5 percent rise in July.

Prices for finished energy goods dropped 0.7 percent, the third decline in the last four months. July's decrease was 1 percent.

Much of the easing of food prices in August was due to declines in beef and veal prices, which were off 2.1 percent after increasing 3.8 percent in July, the report said. Pork prices were unchanged after rising 10.1 percent in July.

Falling prices also were reported for eggs, fresh fruits and fish.

Gasoline prices continued falling in August, declining 1.6 percent, the fourth straight monthly drop, the report said. Prices for home heating oil were down 0.7 percent after a 2 percent drop in July.

The government's index for finished consumer goods other than food and energy rose 0.5 percent last month, up from July's 0.2 percent gain.

Capital equipment prices advanced 0.6 percent in August, a little less than the average monthly increase of 0.8 percent in the previous six months, the government said.

All the increases are adjusted for normal seasonal variations.

In all, the unadjusted Producer Price Index stood at 271.2 in August, meaning that goods costing $10 at wholesale in 1967 would have cost $27.12.

In a companion report, the Labor Department said unemployment edged up to 7.2 percent in August. July's 7 percent jobless rate was the lowest level since April 1980. The rate had been 7.3 percent in June, 7.6 percent in May and 7.3 percent in the previous three months.

Total employment in August fell by 18 million out of a total civilian labor force of 106.6 million. Total employment rose 570,000 in July, the largest monthly gain in more than three years.

Woman Denies Poisoning Her Husband

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A District Court jury was scheduled to begin deliberations today to decide whether Natividad Campos tried to kill her husband by slipping small doses of cyanide into his coffee and food.

Mrs. Campos denied the attempted murder charge Thursday when she testified in her own defense, saying her husband, Enrique Campos, lied when testifying against her Wednesday.

Mrs. Campos said her husband lied when he told jurors she wrapped leftovers from his plate in paper and threw them out, while feeding the leftovers from their five children to the family dog, the Fabens woman said.

She and three of the couple's children testified that she always waited until the family finished eating and then ate her husband's leftovers herself.

Private detective Jay J. Armes said Wednesday that when a sheriff's deputy told Mrs. Campos Sept. 2, 1980 that she was under arrest for attempted murder, she immediately said "I wasn't trying to poison Enrique" before either poison or her husband were mentioned.

But Mrs. Campos said that was her response because she remembered another Fabens woman had recently been arrested for poisoning her husband.

Her husband was also lying when he testified she told him a small dish of white powder in the bathroom was rat poison, she said.

Mrs. Campos, her 18-year-old son Carlos, and daughters Amelda, 17, and Leticia, 15, all said there was no rat poison in the house, only insecticides.

And Armes and Miguel Alba were lying when they testified Wednesday that she and Alba were having an affair in 1980, she said.

Joe Chagra...

Protests Evidence

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Attorney Joe Chagra says if the FBI did find parts of a high-powered rifle near Dallas as reported, the evidence could be inadmissible in court as part of the government's case in the slaying of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

Chagra, who has said he is a "target" of the San Antonio federal grand jury's investigation of Wood's killing, said Thursday that he had not been contacted by his client, convicted hired killer Charles V. Harrelson, or the FBI about the purported find.

Chagra contended attorney-client privilege could be invoked to prevent introduction of the alleged gun parts as evidence in the case.

Four daily newspapers in San Antonio and Austin reported Thursday that their sources said FBI agents found pieces of the rifle believed to have been used to kill Wood in San Antonio on May 29, 1979.

The rifle parts reportedly were discovered three weeks ago in an area where FBI agents searched unsuccessfully last March, based on an map allegedly copied by Chagra during a visit with Harrelson at the Harris County Jail in Houston. The map allegedly was found during a February search of Chagra's El Paso home.

FBI Agent-in-Charge Jack Lawn of San Antonio would neither confirm nor deny the reports Thursday.

Chagra said reports of the finding "could very well be true, but I don't know about it."

The attorney agreed to discuss the matter by "talking toally in hypotheticals."

"I've never said they found a map in my house," Chagra said. "I'm highly incensed that they came into my house and seized communications with my client. That's privileged information.

"If they did find a map in my house — and I'm not saying they did — the map would have been an attorney-client communication and was illegally obtained. Any evidence derived from that seizure would also be illegally obtained and would be inadmissible in court."

The reports that the gun parts were found came two days after Harrelson's wife was arrested and charged with using a fictitious name to purchase such a weapon at a Dallas gun shop 12 days before Wood was shot in the back.

Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, 41, was jailed in lieu of $500,000 bond on a charge she used the name "Fay L. King of Greenville" to purchase a Weatherby Mark V hunting rifle at the Hunter Buckle Co. of Dallas.

A spokesman for the rifle's manufacturer, Weatherby Inc. of California, said the gun was capable of firing a .243-caliber bullet, similar to the slug the FBI said killed Wood.

Federal agents have identified Harrelson, his wife and his stepdaughter, Teresa Starr Jasper, as targets of the investigation, along with Joe Chagra, his imprisoned brother Jimmy, and Jimmy's wife, Elizabeth.

Justice Department attorneys, through their questioning of grand jury witnesses in the two-year $7 million investigation, have revealed they suspect that Jimmy Chagra hired Harrelson to kill Wood.

Wood was to have presided over Jimmy Chagra's narcotics trafficking trial in which he later was convicted and sentenced to 30 years imprisonment without parole.

Harrelson has been jailed without bond since Sept. 1, 1980, on three unrelated state charges, and his stepdaughter has been incarcerated since March 27 when she refused to answer grand jury questions about her parents.

Dear Abby

Girl's New Curves Bring New Problem

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I don't know if you remember me or not. I wrote to you a year ago about my weight problem, and you gave me some really good advice. I went to Overeaters Anonymous. So far I've lost 55 pounds, and I'm still losing. But now I have another problem.

Since I've got a pretty good figure, guys have started noticing me, and Abby, I can't handle it. I'm 18 and never dated before because I was such a mess, but with guys paying attention to me all of a sudden, I'm a wreck! I hated being fat and ignored, but at least I wasn't hassled by dudes trying to get me into bed. All the guys I know are after only one thing.

My girlfriends say if I don't put out on the first date, I shouldn't expect a second date. Please help me.

HASSLED IN ST. PAUL

DEAR HASSLED: Your girlfriends are wrong. Hang on to your high standards and say goodbye to the dudes who try to rush you into bed. There's something worse than being ignored — it's too much attention from guys who are after only one thing.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have a very ticklish problem I don't know how to handle. Last week I invited some women with whom I had previously worked to my home for dinner. I prepared a special dinner, using my best china and silver, and my favorite lace placemats with matching dinner napkins.

During the dinner, one of my guests commented on how exquisite the lace dinner napkins were. She examined her napkin carefully and fingered it admiringly. After my guests left, I was one napkin short! I searched all over, and finally came to the conclusion that the guest who had admired it must have taken it.

I am very upset over losing that napkin, but more disappointed in the woman I suspect took it. I am torn between calling her or just forgetting about it. If I do decide to call, I don't really know how to ask her without insulting her. Please help.

ANXIOUS IN MASS.

DEAR ANXIOUS: Call her and ask if she inadvertently carried off the dinner napkin, thinking it was her handkerchief. (It's possible, and it's certainly worth a try.)

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more story about ministers asking those present at a wedding if anyone objects?

I am a pastor at the First United Methodist Church, and for years it's been my practice to ask the couple beforehand if they want that question omitted or included in the marriage ceremony. About half the couples have said, "Leave it in. If we leave it out, someone is going to think we're chicken."

One day, an hour before the wedding, a woman called to warn me that she would attend and object to the marriage. I immediately phoned the bride, who identified the caller as the bridegroom's former fiancee who had tried everything to scuttle the marriage.

I later learned that the woman came to the church, but since that question was omitted, no fuss was made.

On another occasion, the bridegroom was warned that his ex-wife was planning to come to his wedding and disrupt it. He hired a plainclothes policeman to stand at the door and keep her out.

RALPH LORD ROY, PASTOR,
MERIDEN, CONN.

Slowly Rising Prices Kept Inflation Level

WASHINGTON (AP) — Slowly rising food prices kept inflation at the wholesale level in August to an annual rate of 3.6 percent, the smallest increase since May, the government announced today.

At the same time, the government reported unemployment edged up to 7.2 percent in August after declining to 7 percent in July. The increase was attributed largely to a surge in the number of black teen-agers out of work.

The Labor Department said its measure of wholesale prices — the Producer Price Index for finished goods — rose a small 0.3 percent in August after seasonal adjustment. The increase was less than July's 0.4 percent rise and June's 0.6 percent advance and the lowest since May's 0.1 percent, which was revised from the 0.4 percent reported earlier.

Since last August, wholesale prices have risen only 7.9 percent, a sharp departure from the 11.8 percent for all of last year.

Inflation at the wholesale level is running at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 8.3 percent for the first eight months of this year, Labor Department officials said.

If inflation increased at August's rate for 12 straight months, the rate for that year would be 3.6 percent, the officials said.

The Labor Department report said consumer food prices inched up 0.2 percent in August, much less than the 1.5 percent rise in July.

Prices for finished energy goods dropped 0.7 percent, the third decline in the last four months. July's decrease was 1 percent.

Much of the easing of food prices in August was due to declines in beef and veal prices, which were off 2.1 percent after increasing 3.8 percent in July, the report said. Pork prices were unchanged after rising 10.1 percent in July.

Falling prices also were reported for eggs, fresh fruits and fish.

Gasoline prices continued falling in August, declining 1.6 percent, the fourth straight monthly drop, the report said. Prices for home heating oil were down 0.7 percent after a 2 percent drop in July.

The government's index for finished consumer goods other than food and energy rose 0.5 percent last month, up from July's 0.2 percent gain.

Capital equipment prices advanced 0.6 percent in August, a little less than the average monthly increase of 0.8 percent in the previous six months, the government said.

All the increases are adjusted for normal seasonal variations.

In all, the unadjusted Producer Price Index stood at 271.2 in August, meaning that goods costing $10 at wholesale in 1967 would have cost $27.12.

In a companion report, the Labor Department said unemployment edged up to 7.2 percent in August. July's 7 percent jobless rate was the lowest level since April 1980. The rate had been 7.3 percent in June, 7.6 percent in May and 7.3 percent in the previous three months.

Total employment in August fell by 18 million out of a total civilian labor force of 106.6 million. Total employment rose 570,000 in July, the largest monthly gain in more than three years.

Woman Denies Poisoning Her Husband

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A District Court jury was scheduled to begin deliberations today to decide whether Natividad Campos tried to kill her husband by slipping small doses of cyanide into his coffee and food.

Mrs. Campos denied the attempted murder charge Thursday when she testified in her own defense, saying her husband, Enrique Campos, lied when testifying against her Wednesday.

Mrs. Campos said her husband lied when he told jurors she wrapped leftovers from his plate in paper and threw them out, while feeding the leftovers from their five children to the family dog, the Fabens woman said.

She and three of the couple's children testified that she always waited until the family finished eating and then ate her husband's leftovers herself.

Private detective Jay J. Armes said Wednesday that when a sheriff's deputy told Mrs. Campos Sept. 2, 1980 that she was under arrest for attempted murder, she immediately said "I wasn't trying to poison Enrique" before either poison or her husband were mentioned.

But Mrs. Campos said that was her response because she remembered another Fabens woman had recently been arrested for poisoning her husband.

Her husband was also lying when he testified she told him a small dish of white powder in the bathroom was rat poison, she said.

Mrs. Campos, her 18-year-old son Carlos, and daughters Amelda, 17, and Leticia, 15, all said there was no rat poison in the house, only insecticides.

And Armes and Miguel Alba were lying when they testified Wednesday that she and Alba were having an affair in 1980, she said.

Joe Chagra...

Protests Evidence

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Attorney Joe Chagra says if the FBI did find parts of a high-powered rifle near Dallas as reported, the evidence could be inadmissible in court as part of the government's case in the slaying of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

Chagra, who has said he is a "target" of the San Antonio federal grand jury's investigation of Wood's killing, said Thursday that he had not been contacted by his client, convicted hired killer Charles V. Harrelson, or the FBI about the purported find.

Chagra contended attorney-client privilege could be invoked to prevent introduction of the alleged gun parts as evidence in the case.

Four daily newspapers in San Antonio and Austin reported Thursday that their sources said FBI agents found pieces of the rifle believed to have been used to kill Wood in San Antonio on May 29, 1979.

The rifle parts reportedly were discovered three weeks ago in an area where FBI agents searched unsuccessfully last March, based on an map allegedly copied by Chagra during a visit with Harrelson at the Harris County Jail in Houston. The map allegedly was found during a February search of Chagra's El Paso home.

FBI Agent-in-Charge Jack Lawn of San Antonio would neither confirm nor deny the reports Thursday.

Chagra said reports of the finding "could very well be true, but I don't know about it."

The attorney agreed to discuss the matter by "talking toally in hypotheticals."

"I've never said they found a map in my house," Chagra said. "I'm highly incensed that they came into my house and seized communications with my client. That's privileged information.

"If they did find a map in my house — and I'm not saying they did — the map would have been an attorney-client communication and was illegally obtained. Any evidence derived from that seizure would also be illegally obtained and would be inadmissible in court."

The reports that the gun parts were found came two days after Harrelson's wife was arrested and charged with using a fictitious name to purchase such a weapon at a Dallas gun shop 12 days before Wood was shot in the back.

Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, 41, was jailed in lieu of $500,000 bond on a charge she used the name "Fay L. King of Greenville" to purchase a Weatherby Mark V hunting rifle at the Hunter Bradlee Co. of Dallas.

A spokesman for the rifle's manufacturer, Weatherby Inc. of California, said the gun was capable of firing a .243-caliber bullet, similar to the slug the FBI said killed Wood.

Federal agents have identified Harrelson, his wife and his stepdaughter, Teresa Starr Jasper, as targets of the investigation, along with Joe Chagra, his imprisoned brother Jimmy, and Jimmy's wife, Elizabeth.

Justice Department attorneys, through their questioning of grand jury witnesses in the two-year $7 million investigation, have revealed they suspect that Jimmy Chagra hired Harrelson to kill Wood.

Wood was to have presided over Jimmy Chagra's narcotics trafficking trial in which he later was convicted and sentenced to 30 years imprisonment without parole.

Harrelson has been jailed without bond since Sept. 1, 1980, on three unrelated state charges, and his stepdaughter has been incarcerated since March 27 when she refused to answer grand jury questions about her parents.

Dear Abby

Girl's New Curves Bring New Problem

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I don't know if you remember me or not. I wrote to you a year ago about my weight problem, and you gave me some really good advice. I went to Overeaters Anonymous. So far I've lost 55 pounds, and I'm still losing. But now I have another problem.

Since I've got a pretty good figure, guys have started noticing me, and Abby, I can't handle it. I'm 18 and never dated before because I was such a mess, but with guys paying attention to me all of a sudden, I'm a wreck! I hated being fat and ignored, but at least I wasn't hassled by dudes trying to get me into bed. All the guys I know are after only one thing.

My girlfriends say if I don't put out on the first date, I shouldn't expect a second date. Please help me.

HASSLED IN ST. PAUL

DEAR HASSLED: Your girlfriends are wrong. Hang on to your high standards and say goodbye to the dudes who try to rush you into bed. There's something worse than being ignored — it's too much attention from guys who are after only one thing.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have a very ticklish problem I don't know how to handle. Last week I invited some women with whom I had previously worked to my home for dinner. I prepared a special dinner, using my best china and silver, and my favorite lace placemats with matching dinner napkins.

During the dinner, one of my guests commented on how exquisite the lace dinner napkins were. She examined her napkin carefully and fingered it admiringly. After my guests left, I was one napkin short! I searched all over, and finally came to the conclusion that the guest who had admired it must have taken it.

I am very upset over losing that napkin, but more disappointed in the woman I suspect took it. I am torn between calling her or just forgetting about it. If I do decide to call, I don't really know how to ask her without insulting her. Please help.

ANXIOUS IN MASS.

DEAR ANXIOUS: Call her and ask if she inadvertently carried off the dinner napkin, thinking it was her handkerchief. (It's possible, and it's certainly worth a try.)

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more story about ministers asking those present at a wedding if anyone objects?

I am a pastor at the First United Methodist Church, and for years it's been my practice to ask the couple beforehand if they want that question omitted or included in the marriage ceremony. About half the couples have said, "Leave it in. If we leave it out, someone is going to think we're chicken."

One day, an hour before the wedding, a woman called to warn me that she would attend and object to the marriage. I immediately phoned the bride, who identified the caller as the bridegroom's former fiancee who had tried everything to scuttle the marriage.

I later learned that the woman came to the church, but since that question was omitted, no fuss was made.

On another occasion, the bridegroom was warned that his ex-wife was planning to come to his wedding and disrupt it. He hired a plainclothes policeman to stand at the door and keep her out.

RALPH LORD ROY, PASTOR,
MERIDEN, CONN.

Unidentified Gunmen Ambush French Ambassador In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — French Ambassador Louis Delamare was ambushed by unidentified gunmen today and a doctor at Barbir Hospital said the ambassador died of his wounds shortly after arriving there.

No one made any immediate claim of responsibility for the ambush.

Lebanese police and the French Embassy said the ambassador was shot in the head, chest and stomach.

A police statement broadcast by Lebanon's state radio said unknown gunmen opened fire at the ambassador as he was being driven back to his official residence close to the green line that divides Beirut into Moslem and Christian sectors.

The statement said the 59-year-old Delamare, a career diplomat and father of five children, was shot at 2:10 p.m. — 8:10 a.m. EDT. The doctor, who did not want to be quoted by name, said the ambassador was pronounced dead about 15 minutes after he was brought into the hospital of "multiple gunshot wounds in the head, chest and abdomen."

The privately owned "Voice of Lebanon" radio station said four gunmen riding in a white German-made BMW car shot the ambassador after trailing his metallic blue Peugeot 604 four-door sedan and then sped away. The police statement said Delamare's driver immediately turned the car around and raced to the emergency ward of Barbir Hospital, a few dozen yards from the scene of the shooting in mostly Moslem west Beirut.

The police statement did not give any details of the assailants but said a team of senior Lebanese officers moved to the scene and began an investigation.

Delamare's residence, a mid-city mansion known as "Residence des Pins," was in the mostly Moslem western sector of Beirut.

The ambassador had been assigned to Beirut in that post since Aug. 28, 1979.

Tax Repeal Help Sought

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)— Texas' congressmen have been asked by the state's major energy advisory group to help repeal the windfall profits tax.

The action of the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council came Thursday after shouting match between Gov. Bill Clements and Attorney General Mark White with bipartisan tinges.

Clements claimed White had been dragging his feet in opposing the new levy and White said Texas' efforts to file a challenge had been hampered by President Reagan's administration.

"You have been very, very slow, dilly-dallying around for 18 months after this body made it clear it wanted action," Clements told White during a quarterly session of TENRAC.

"We've done everthing possible," White shouted back. "I've tried to explain this to you several times."

There were several other loud exchanges between the two, who sat at opposite ends of a long table in the Senate chamber.

The outbursts in the usually staid meetings of TENRAC came after White, considered a possible Democratic candidate for governor in 1982, proposed a resolution urging Congress to repeal the windfall profits tax. He said Texas has joined with Wyoming and other states in challenging the levy on oil and gas production.

Houston oil millionnaire Michel T. Halbouty, a good friend and political associate of the Republican governor, spoke up and said the council passed a similar resolution in June 1980.

"We called on you to file suit against the U.S. government and you didn't do it," he said. "I don't want to leave an impression that we haven't done anything. We would like to see you get a little action in this."

Snyder Whips Abilene Cooper

SAN ANGELO – Snyder warmed up for today's Angelo State Volleyball Tournament of Champions last night, whipping [illegible] with ease, 15-7 and 15-6.

The Tigers, who arrived here yesterday to play Cooper, received a first-round bye in the two-day, 23-team tournament. They were to play a winner between Water Valley and Plains at 2 this afternoon.

"There's not a lot to talk about," Coach Joyce Elrod said this morning, concerning the match with Cooper. "They (Abilene) went three games against Monahans in the finals of the Monahans Tournament last week so I was expecting this to be a good match. I don't know what happened, but it wasn't what we expected."

Snyder raced to big leads in both games of the match before "piddling around and letting them get a point here and there", said Elrod. "We played consistantly for the most point," she said. "We would get a lead and just sort of play around out there. It was hard for the girls to concentrate when there was no challenge."

Elrod cited Kathy Northcott as performing well on frontline defense for the Tigers. She also served for 8 points, while Becky Harrell had 8, Sherri Rich 6, Shana Koonsman and Toni Elrod 3 each and Sabrina Robinson 2.

Other teams in today's tournament included 3-AAAA members Monahans, Lake View, Fort Stockton, Andrews, Odessa Ector, Pecos and Lamesa. Also entered are San Angelo Central, Denver City, Kermit, Bronte, Seminole, Miles, Lubbock High, Big Spring, Lubbock Dunbar, Irion County, Bangs, Odessa High and Crane, as well as Water Valley and Plains.

Seale Wins Golf Title

Finnie Seale turned in a 79 and a pair of 80s to win the Snyder Women's Golf Association Ladies Club Championship by 15 strokes yesterday.

Seale carded a total 239 in the three-day tournament to win the Championship Flight. Second was Anita Talbott with an 84 and two 85s for a 254. She finished four strokes ahead of Carolyn Greene, who concluded strong with an 81 and an 82, but shot a 95 the first day (258 total).

Lu Wolf shot a 91, a 93 and a 107 to win First Flight honors with a 291. Second was Kaye Cypert, five strokes back at 296. She shot a 100, a 95 and a 101. Gertrude League, shooting a 99, a 98 and a 101, finished third with a 298.

Second Flight champion was Suzy Reed, who edged Lanell Hogan in the final round, 318 to 319 for the spot. Reed carded a 104, a 111 and a 103. Hogan had a 104, a 109 and a 106. Third was Chris Jordan with a 105, 110 and a 108; a total of 323.

Tigers To Shoot It Out With Big Spring At 8

BIG SPRING – A long-time rivalry resumes here tonight as Big Spring High School hosts the Tigers of Snyder High in their 29th meeting on the gridiron.

The Harris Rating System has projected Big Spring as a 15-point favorite, but West Texas football followers are more likely to consider the annual battle a tossup. With the exception of two years when Snyder won 28-6 and 25-6, the teams played within six points of each other during the past eight seasons - the winning margin being an average of 3½ points.

The teams have met 28 times, dating back to 1929, when the Steers overcame the Tigers 28-7. Snyder, which owns the series by a scant 15-13, had defeated tonight's hosts eight straight times until last year, when Big Spring edged out a 14-13 victory.

Tonight's contest is a key one for both teams, who would like to get off to a good start in 1981. Big Spring went 4-6 last year, winning as many games that year as it had in the previous three. Snyder, meanwhile, toppled from a higher pedestal to 2-8.

The Tigers are under first-year head football coach George Byerly, who came to Snyder two years ago and as head basketball coach brought the Black and Gold to back-to-back district titles. Steer coach Ralph Harris is in his second year at Big Spring.

Snyder coaches have indicated they must stop Big Spring's two heralded ball carriers, Bobby Earl Williams and Richard Evans, to shut down the Steers. Williams was the leading rusher when the two teams met last year, picking up 72 yards on 12 carries. Williams also scored one of the two Big Spring touchdowns - a 49-yard pass from returning quarterback Tracy Spence. Evans scored the other TD on a 1-yard run.

Snyder returns running back Mark Shaw, who ran for 40 yards in seven carries, but graduated tailback Keith McClain and quarterback Mike Roemisch, who teamed for most of the Tiger yardage in the game a year ago.

Big Spring utilizes a split-back Veer offense and a 27 defense. Snyder will perform out of the 'T' while using the Veer on occassion, and will defend from an even-man front.

Tickets for the game are $4 for adults and $2 for students at the gate.

Cats Clobber Steers In 2nd Half Sprint, 36-8

It's one down and one to go as Snyder junior varsity opened the season with a solid 36-8 victory over Big Spring here Thursday, setting the theme for tonight's varsity clash in Steerland.

Snyder's Cats scored first in the game as Norman Malone crossed over from two yards out on fourth down with 7:53 left in the first quarter. But Big Spring came back in style, marching the length of the field to go ahead 8-6 on a five-yard quarterback run and a successful conversion.

"I was a little worried at that point," recalled head JV coach Robert Crawford. Indeed, the Steers looked unstopable until Chad Peterson ripped off a pair of Steer passes at the Cat goalline. Neither team was able to mount a scoring drive for the remainder of the half.

Snyder ended the half near the Steer scoring stripe as Peterson connected with Malone on two pass plays. Time ran out before the hosts could take advantage, however.

"I think after those passes they (Big Spring) were worried about what we could do," said Crawford. "And they saw us jogging back on the field after the half with a little zip left and they didn't have any. We had told our players all week that conditioning would help us and there was no doubt that our kids were in better condition last night."

With 7:17 left in the third period, Malone got his second of three TDs on the night as he broke three tackles to score from 23 yards out. He also carried in the conversion, giving Snyder a 14-8 lead.

Still later in the quarter, Malone got good blocking to return a Big Spring punt to the Steer 28. A 17-yard run by the back but Snyder on the 9, and three plays later Peterson sprinted around his right end for the touchdown. With 3:57 left, Malone carried for the two-point conversion, giving Snyder a 22-8 lead.

The Cat defense sent Big Spring back for three straight losses on the Steer's next possession, leading to Snyder's next touchdown. On fourth down, a bobbled snap gave the locals the ball and a pass from Peterson to Malone put Snyder in front 28-8 with 1:19 left in the third quarter. The conversion run by Malone made it 30-8.

Snyder continued to do a good job both offensively and defensively. When Big Spring got deep in Cat territory later in the game Kenneth Breedlove was on hand to recover a fumble and stop the drive. The Cats continued to thwart the Steers all night long.

Snyder's final score came with 7:21 left in the fourth quarter as Terrance Dennis crashed over from three yards out. The conversion attempt failed.

"We're very appreciative of the way the kids played," said Crawford. "I think we were a little bit scared of them early in the game and we weren't blocking (or hitting) well, but we came on and did what we were capable of doing."

The coached praised the effort of all of the team and pointed out Breedlove and Duane Williamson as defensive standouts; Peterson and Malone as offensive standouts.

Snyder did not come out of the game unscathed as Jeff Fowler suffered an apparent broken finger. The lineman is expected to be able to play when the Tigers return to action Sept. 17 against Andrews here. The Sept. 10 game with Midland Lee has been cancelled.

Metallic skis were used for the first time in the Olympics in the 160 Winter Games at Squaw Valley, Calif.

Six-Man Squads Open On The Road Tonight

Area 2A six-man teams hit the starter tonight, hoping to take the checkered flag when the season ends in 11 weeks.

Tough opposition is the byword this evening as Hermleigh, Borden County and Ira all board the buses for out-of-town contests.

Hermleigh returns six offensive and defensive starters - eight returning regulars in all - to a team that finished 1-9 (sixth place) in the district last year. Experience is the factor that Coach Clarence Spieker hopes will get his Cardinals off to a quick start when they trek to Dawson at 8.

Dawson brings back three offensive starters and five defensive starters from a 5-5 team out of District 1A. Both squads are picked third in their respective districts this time around.

Borden County, experiencing only its second year in the six-man ranks, hopes 1980 will be the basis to build on this year. The Coyotes, under Coach Randy Roemisch, finished 6-4 (tied for third) in the loop last year. One of those losses came at the work of powerful Cotton Center, ranked second in District 1A this year.

Center brings back two offensive and two defensive starters from a squad which won its conference last season (10-1).

Game time for the Coyotes is also 8 p.m.

Ira, which hosts homecoming next week, also takes to the asphalt this evening, hoping to find a victory at Divide. Coach Tom Pierson's Bulldogs were 6-4 last year (tied for third) and bring back three two-way starters for 1981.

Divide, 1-9 in District 4A last year, brings back five two-way players.

Game time is also 8 p.m.

Boosters Schedule Two-Day Special

The Western Texas College Booster Club has announced a "Two-Day Special" to acquaint fans with the 1981-82 Dusters and Westerners and to focus attention on the booster organization's membership campaign.

The first event is scheduled for Monday night. Open workouts have been scheduled by the Dusters from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m. and by the Westerners from 8 p. m. to 10 p. m. in the WTC gym, with a special invitation to the public to be on hand.

This will give fans an opportunity to see both squads in action, said Ernest Sears, Booster Club president. These will not be scrimmage sessions, but they will be serious drills for the teams.

The second event is a watermelon feast scheduled for 7:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Towle Memorial Park Pavilion. Teams and coaches will be on hand and fans will have an opportunity to visit with them.

The WTC Booster Club is in the midst of its annual drive for funds for athletic scholarships. The goal is $15,000 to take care of tuition and fees for athletes at WTC.

There are four categories of Booster Club memberships. Topping the list is the "Corporate Club" membership, which costs $500. It entitles the purchaser to a full page ad in the game programs and 10 sets of tickets. (A set is one season ticket to games and one gym pass)

A "$200 Club" membership entitles the puchaser to four sets of tickets and mention in the game programs.

A "$100 Club" membership entitles the purchaser to two sets of tickets and mention in the game program.

A "$50 Club" membership is good for two season tickets to games and mention in the game programs.

The Booster Club also takes orders for ads in the game programs at $100 per page, $50 for half a page, $35 for a sixth of a page and $25 for a signature line.

Sears said the Booster Club hopes to reach its goal quickly, and he urged Westerner and Duster fans to turn out for the workouts Monday evening and the watermelon feed Tuesday evening.

Baseball Roundup

Houston 2, Montreal 1

Jose Cruz' two-run shot was the difference in the Astros' decision over Montreal. His 12th homer of the season in the sixth inning was enough to carry the streaking Astros to their eighth straight victory.

It overcame a solo shot by Montreal's Larry Parrish as Vern Ruhle and Dave Smith combined for a six-hitter.

Tigers 8, Rangers

Kirk Gibson's long home run and very efficient relief work by Kevin Saucier helped Detroit solidify its hold on first place in the AL East. Gibson's two-run shot into a 20-mph wind sailed deep into the center-field bleachers of Arlington Stadium.

Saucier, meanwhile, threw just one pitch - and it produced a game-ending double play to save starter Jack Morris' 11th victory of the season. It was the Tigers' fifth victory in a row and seventh in nine games, while the Rangers lost their fifth game in the last six.
