MULESHOE AT LITTLEFIELD TUESDAY

County Seeking Support Paying Coyote Bounty

Lamb County Commissioners' need to pay a bounty on coyotes in Lamb County, providing the county will join in the approach to predatory control of the coyote menace in several interested local counties. The end-of-the-month meeting of the commissioners, those attending because of the proposed bounty system, McCoy, Albert Findley, B. L. Ted Long, Art Folley, and Javelle. The court agreed to Hale, Castro and Bailey and see if they could get the counties to join Lamb and counties in offering bounties on coyotes. The proposed bounty was set at $4 per acre. Tahoka and Hockley Counties already established bounties to control coyotes.

In other pre-holiday action, the Court received and accepted a bid for two motor graders for Precinct 1 from West Texas Equipment Company for a total price of $50,000 with trade-ins. The commissioners appointed Mrs. Beulah Newton at Earth as justice of peace for that precinct. Her appointment is effective until the next general election, which means she will have to have her name on the ballot in 1976 then run again two years later. Her appointment fills the vacancy created when Ted Borum resigned recently. General Telephone was given permission to bury underground cable across county right-of-way in precinct 3. The Texas Agriculture Extension Service district agent met with the court Wednesday morning for approval for a food nutrition program to be conducted through the TAES without cost to the county. The next regular meeting of the Court is set for Dec. 8.

Chilly Weather Heralds Open Season For Chili

Fall affects us all differently. Some folks are content to rake leaves and build fires and watch football. Texans, however, mysteriously begin to smell chili in the air. And Texans, being the braggarts that they are, would hardly be content just to cook and eat chili; they make a game of it. You can find a chili cook-off this time of year in just about any town in Texas that has any degree of hometown pride and social consciousness. From Odessa to Luckenbach, if you've got $5 and can beg, borrow or steal a Coleman stove, you have a chance to become a chili champ. Chili cooking in Texas is a very strange phenomenon. I don't guess there's a true-blooded Texan around that would stand up and admit that he didn't know how to make chili. Few would ever divulge the true secret ingredients that make their chili best.

There's no doubt that Texans are the best chili cooks around. But, friends and neighbors, there are some really rank bowls being passed off as chili. The original Texas-style chili doesn't contain any vegetables except chili peppers, the burning capiscums and a few other spices derived from the plant kingdom. The "original" is simply bite-size or coarsely ground (half-inch-diameter plate holes is the grinder setting recommended) beef or other mature meats (never, never veal) cooked slowly and for a long time in boon companionship with the pulp of chili peppers, crushed powder from the curly leaves of oregano, ground cumin seeds (comino in Spanish and sometimes so labeled) and chopped garlic cloves. The first and worst share of chili making, according to the original formula, is preparing the peppers. Ask for sun-dried anchos or a similar type developed by the Japanese, styled "Jap peppers." You'll be surprised how easy it is to get these peppers in stores. For chili with a very "elevated" flavor use four pepper pods for each pound of beef. For mild chili try half as many pods. If you can't get the pepper pods, chili powder will do handsomely, although it doesn't impart the same delicate sting as the pepper pods. A heaping tablespoon of chili powder has about the same "power rating" as one average-size chili pepper. If possible, pick pods of a reddish hue to give the chili its approved coloration. Paprika will make the mixture more rosy and won't affect the taste. Wash the peppers and remove the stems and seeds. (Don't touch your eyes during this operation and wash your hands thoroughly afterward.) Boil the pods in a little water for thirty minutes, or until the skins can be removed easily. Then grind, chop, or run through a colander the now skinless, seedless, stemless pods. Save the peppery water in which the pods were boiled. Use it for cooking the chili and for adding water if necessary. Be as conservative as possible on the water unless you want the chili to be soupy. For this "original" recipe, three pounds of lean beef is the main vehicle. Stewing meat is excellent if it's fat-free, but never, never use prime beef, for it will turn into mush. The old directions call for an eighth of a pound of rendered beef kidney suet. For this recipe we will make it optional. If you like greasy chili and are under no diet inhibitions, go ahead with the suet. It does add flavor, and the grease can be skimmed off in the final stages of cooking. Sear the three pounds of beef until it is lightly browned. Perhaps you will need a little cooking oil for this operation on the face of the skillet. A big iron skillet, holding at least four quarts, can be used for the whole process except the searing. Or else you can have ready a pot, preferably an iron one. Into this pot (or the skillet) drop the beef, the optional rendered suet, the pepper pods, and as much of the peppery liquid as you think you'll need to keep the meat from burning. About two inches of water rising above the beef is usually right. Bring this to a boil and then turn down the heat and simmer for thirty minutes. Take the pot (or skillet) off the stove. Add 1 level tablespoon of oregano powder (or the curly leaves of oregano), 1 level tablespoon of crushed cumin seeds, 1 level tablespoon of salt, 1 level tablespoon of powdered cayenne pepper, 1 tablespoon of Tabasco sauce, and chopped garlic pods to suit your taste, but at least 2. If you want to be adventurous and to add more red color — although this wasn't in the original — pour in 3 level tablespoons of chili powder. Put the mixture back on the stove and bring it to a boil again, lower the heat, and simmer for 45 minutes, keeping the lid on as much as possible. Stir when necessary, but too much stirring will tear up the meat, especially if the meat is too tender. Add the peppery water only if you think the mixture will burn otherwise. Take the pot off the stove again. Next, mix in 2 heaping tablespoons of Masa Harina. This is Mexican corn meal, made in the ancient Indian way, for tortillas and tamales. You can get instant Masa Harina now in most stores. Masa Harina will not only add a subtle, tamales-like taste, but it will thicken or "tighten" the chili. If Masa Harina isn't available, use corn meal or wheat flour. Cook, actually simmer most of the way, for another thirty minutes, or until the meat is done. During this last thirty minutes, do a lot of tasting to see if the seasoning suits you. If it's not peppery enough although it certainly should be for most folks toss in three more chili pods. These final pods have the seeds, stems and skins removed but are not chopped up. If you're making chili for the first time or if you're a tender-mouthed type, you'd better start off with the mild, two-pods-to-a-pound version on the peppers and don't get reckless and throw in those three whole pods during the last thirty minutes of cooking.

DAVID THOMPSON announced his intentions last week to become a candidate for commissioner of Precinct 3. In making his announcement, he named himself as campaign chairman and said he will file on the Democratic ticket in January. Jack Peel is the commissioner whose term is expiring. Peel announced on Wednesday of this week that he does not plan to seek another term.

Tax Meeting Slated Here

How to increase profit by reducing taxes is the theme of an income tax management meeting for area producers and other interested citizens at the Lamb County Electric Co-op on Highway 84 loop - South of Littlefield, on Monday, Dec. 1, at 7:30 p.m. Sponsored by Lamb County Program Building Committee the session will include topics on changes in tax laws, how to handle depreciable assets, investment credit, capital gains, deferred payment contracts, advance purchases and other tax management methods. Marvin O. Sartin, area farm management economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Lubbock, will lead discussions. Tax conscious producers and businessmen considering year-end income and expense shifts could benefit from this latest information. This will be an excellent session for those who want to know more about shifting income and expenditures to reduce their taxes. This is a "how to" session, open to the public and there is no admission charge. The county-wide income tax management meeting is one of a series of such meetings being held in several counties on the South Plains.

2.8 Miles Pavement Slated On FM 168

Road construction in Lamb County is included in the 1975 Farm to Market Road and Off-Federal System Programs approved recently by the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission. District Engineer, Mr. George C. Wall, Jr., of Lubbock, Texas, said the program includes: From FM 168, 5.0 miles south of US 70, east to end of proposed FM Road at Hale County Line, a length of 2.8 miles, to provide relocation assistance and construction, grading, structures and surface. Estimated cost of $169,300.00. Statewide, the program provides $38.1 million for the development of 582.5 miles of secondary roads.

Funds Needed For Program

The organizational meeting of the Advisory Board of the Littlefield Satellite Program of Lubbock State School was held October 1968 and the school was established soon after.

The local community was to be responsible for location, refreshments, volunteer workers, transportation and some recreational and educational supplies.

A drive was made for money to provide some of these items. The community responded generously.

Since that time several churches, organizations and individuals have donated on a monthly or yearly basis to provide housing, utilities, athletic and educational supplies.

The original fund has been exhausted and the monthly contributions do not meet the monthly and emergency needs.

We hope the community will respond generously as they did in the past to our appeal for funds and the program can continue for these children who need our help.

Contributions can be given or sent to Anna Lee Neale, secretary-treasurer, 600 E. 16th, Littlefield.

Emblem Contest Deadline

The deadline for entries in the emblem contest has been extended to Monday according to Dr. Howard Head DVM, committee chairman.

Head said that not many entries have been received in the school age divisions—particularly elementary and junior high, but many entries have been received in the adult division. "One lady sent in 20 entries," Head commented.

Head said the extension is only to cover the weekend, and that all entries must be received no later than Monday morning's mail. Entries may be addressed to the Chamber-BCD, P. O. Box 507, Littlefield. Offices in City Hall will be closed through the holiday weekend. Head pointed out the contest is an emblem contest, not a slogan contest. Entries will be judged upon originality and concept rather than artistic merit. The contest is open to anyone, and prizes will be awarded to elementary, junior high, high school, and adult divisions.

The $400 in prizes for the contest are being donated by Carlisle-Oldham Ford, ACG Textile Mill, Littlefield Seed and Delinting, Littlefield Farmers Coop Gin, Ware's, Littlefield Pay & Save, and Lamb County Leader-News.

The contest judges will start judging entries Tuesday, and members of the Chamber-BCD Denim Promotional Committee are: Head, Jerry Roberts, Mickey Brewer, Phelps Blume, Tina Wicker, Carlton Tanner, and Joe Carlisle.

7 County Youths Participating In District Food Show Saturday

Seven Lamb County youths, by virtue of winning top honors in county competition Nov. 15, will match their skills and knowledge in food preparation against those of youths from 20 other counties Saturday, Dec. 6 in Lubbock.

The occasion is the annual District 24-H Food Show to be held at Texas Tech University.

About 150 youths are expected. Theme of this year's show is "Heritage Foods."

Three seniors and four juniors from Lamb County are competing, says County Extension Agent Dorothy Powell. The seniors are: Dina Jo Hampton, Belinda Hampton and Dawn Branscum, all of the Springlake-Earth 4-H Club.

Juniors from Lamb County include Kelli Smith and Melissa McFadden, Olton 4-H Club; Cindy Ham, Sudan 4-H and Arlie Ellis, Springlake-Earth 4-H.

Competing in four food classes, the seniors will be vying for the right to represent the 20-county Extension District 2 in the State 4-H Food Show in June at Texas A&M University. There is no further competition for junior winners beyond the district level, Dorothy Powell said.

According to District Extension Agent Catherine B. Crawford, judging will begin at 10:30 a.m.

STAR-SPANGLED HISTORY

HISTORICAL DRAWINGS BY JOSEPH BOGGS BEALE (1841-1926)

"GENERAL WOLFE CLIMBING THE HEIGHTS OF ABRAHAM"

The battle of Quebec was the turning point in favor of the British in the French and Indian War. On September 12, 1759, General Wolfe sailed flatboats down the St. Lawrence River. During the night, 5,000 British troops scaled the unguarded cliffs along the river. Both General Wolfe and the French commander were killed in the first 15 minutes of the battle. The French were never able to recapture Quebec, and the British went on to conquer the rest of Canada. From the collection of American National Insurance Company, Galveston, Texas.

THE ABUNDANT LIFE

Good Attitudes

By BOB WILLIAMS

ALL ESSENTIAL WORK is important work, and it is long past the time of engaging in the unjustified and hurtful practice of making some essential work more important than other essential work. In fact, we have actually classified some work as prestigious and exalted it above other work that is much more essential to our well-being. This is a mistake.

WE EVEN RATE PEOPLE according to the work they do. What is the justification for doing this? Hopefully, we are beginning to realize that there is no good reason for doing so. Have you ever tried to assess all of the damage we have suffered and are still suffering because of this faulty practice? All of us know that we have hurt ourselves, and greatly weakened the structure of our social order. Much of the strife in our society is derived from the deep sense of this injustice so keenly felt by so many people.

A CONSIDERABLE PART of the unhappiness and weakness so widespread among us comes from the distortion of vocations, in making some important and others unimportant. Certainly, they differ; they do not command the same pay, they do not require the same abilities, and they will differ in other ways. Nevertheless, we make a mistake; when we make it appear that one kind of essential work is important and another essential work is unimportant.

MANY SPLENDID PEOPLE spend their days as second rate persons or less; because their essential work is generally considered of value. This tragic loss for them, and for the community. The condition has worsened to the extent that there are not enough people who are prepared to do the "essential" commonplace work. This essential work should not be so downgraded. We must, at least, see and appreciate it for the value.

YOUNG PEOPLE are often misused in life, because they are pushed in directions that are wrong for them. Unfortunately that more of them are permitted to learn and do the work they are capable of doing and want to do. They would be so much better because they would do so much better with their personal life conduct. The whole social fabric would be stronger, too.

WE SHOULD NEVER have academic achievement to seem more important and desirable than vocational accomplishments. We are entirely too inter-dependent on each other. We need each other and will be forever dependent upon another for so many of the things essential to our well-being. Even if we accept the notion that some work is more important than some other work, we must never downgrade necessary work, or the workers.

LIFE WILL BE MUCH better for us, if we do our best in the honest work we do; and forget about the tificial job classifications.

A Woman's View

By PEARL BRANDON

THIS WEEK I have talked with several of my friends who have different types of illness.

One woman said, "I am like my old car, everytime I get something fixed something else breaks down." Paul said in Second Corinthians, "How weary we grow of our present bodies. That is why we look forward eagerly to the day when we shall have heavenly bodies which we shall put on like new clothes."

In another place Paul said, "Though our bodies are dying, our inner strength in the Lord is growing every day. These troubles and suffering of ours are, after all, quite small and won't last very long. Yet this short time of distress will result in God's richest blessings upon us forever and ever... The troubles will soon be over, but the joys to come will last forever."

AN OLD ADAGE I used to repeat to myself when I was in trouble was, "This, too, will pass,"—and it does.

Life goes on, we overcome one obstacle after another until we wake up some morning and realize we are getting close to the end of the road.

We need to realize when we are nearing the sunset of life here, it is near sunrise over there and a brand new day. Except this time the day will never end. We will not have to rush to finish our work before the end comes, for we will have all eternity to get things done.

We need not fear hardships of any kind for there will be no more tears, or sickness, or dying. It will be serene and beautiful forever.

I know to some of you this doesn't make sense at all if you haven't experienced the love of God in your lives and the fellowship of His Holy Spirit.

This need not be so. You hold the key in yourself to unlock your heart and let Him come in. Then you will know peace and contentment which you never knew existed, even though your bodies are breaking down and old age is creeping up.

WHEN WE ARE young we can't conceive of this ever happening to us. We see the troublesome things happening to other people but can't see them happening to us—but they do.

Almost before you know it life is almost gone. Indeed this is just a training place for that other life to come and we need to take advantage of it.

Every day counts. Revelation 3:20 says, "Some people feel that God has locked them out. Not so. They have locked God out. Look!

I have been standing at the door and I am constantly knocking. If anyone hears me calling him and opens the door, I will come in and fellowship with him, and he with me."

Why not take advantage of this wonderful fellowship with the Lord? If you don't know Him, you don't know what you are missing.

All this scripture today is from the new "Love" translation of the Bible.

U.S. Post Office Possible Source Of Christmas Gifts

Christmas shoppers might keep the Post Office in mind as a source of gifts.

Several varieties of inexpensive philatelic items suitable for gifts are on sale at the Littlefield Post Office as well as by mail order from the Philatelic Sales Division in Washington.

The products are key items in Postal Service efforts to create new interest in the world's largest hobby, stamp collecting. They include Stamp Collecting Kits, the 1975 edition of Stamps & Stories, Souvenir Mint Sets, panels in the American Commemorative Series and Bicentennial Philatelic Passports.

The topical Stamp Collecting Kits, priced at $2 each, have subjects ranging from space to sports, and each kit contains enough stamps to start a collection. Also included in the kit is a small album, mounting hinges, insert sheets for additional stamps, and a 32-page booklet entitled "The ABC's of Stamp Collecting." "Stamps and Stories" is the popular pocket-size book which tells the stories of more than 2,000 stamps with illustrations and other information such as current catalog values. It also sells for $2.00.

Souvenir Mint Sets are offered for sale annually by the Postal Service and contain all the special, memorial, and commemorative stamps issued during the year. Space is provided for the mounting of stamps, and a brief description of each issue is included.

The 1974 Mint Set is available and sells for $3.50 each. The 1975 Mint Set should be available for purchase in late November or early December.

Panels in the American Commemorative series are on sale now for $2 each. The series began with the Wildlife Conservation issue of 1972. The 8 1/2 inch by 11 1/2 inch panels have a mint block of 4 stamps (except for issues of more than 4 stamps) mounted adjacent to background information about the stamp or stamps. Each panel, featuring three engraved stamp-theme illustrations from the archives of the American Bank Note Company, is suitable for framing.

Earlier panels in the series, as well as all the other philatelic products not on sale at the Littlefield Post Office, are available by mail order at the quoted prices plus a 50-cent handling charge per order.

Turn Row COMMENTS

By EMIL MACH

TO START THIS COLUMN, I thought I'd pass on a little food for thought. The following is an excerpt from one of the local church bulletins, "Women will not be equal to men until they can have a large bald spot on top of their heads and still think they are handsome." Bet ole Cornball will have to think twice to beat that one.

AND NOW TO PASS on to you readers a follow up to a hand slapping that I received from one of our local accountants. If you recall a few issues back, a general report was given in this column about the cost of food and what percent each handler was able to keep of the food dollar. If you remember it was remarked that the grocer got 32 cents out of each food dollar. That is when my hand got slapped. Apparently this particular accountant does some book work for a grocery chain and he stated that the 32 cents figure was a national average and did not apply to the grocery stores in this non-union area. He states that a store in this area is lucky to maintain a 17 cent figure and out of the 17 cents the grocer gives the customer 2 cents back with trading stamps.

I'm thrilled to make the price adjustment to you readers, and another thing that thrills me is that a man with the training and professional ability of an accountant takes time out to read this lowly dirt farmer's comments.

NOW FOR A FEW COMMENTS, as promised, on the dope crisis. Everyone has their opinion as to why the dope problem is as great as it seems. Noticed that in one of the suburban newspapers a known couple in that community spends $400 a day just to satisfy their narcotic needs.

I guess drugs were here since the beginning of time in some form or fashion. Population has grown, so more people are using drugs, although in some instances the percentages have not changed. We are more aware of the problem today than yesterday because of the expansion of the news media and its almost immediate means to inform.

What causes this desire to get hooked or to even try to experiment with drugs? I believe that pressures that have been distributed to each of us through advance technology created since our society has gotten into the space age is beginning to take its toll on many of our people. It is no longer reading, writing and arithmetic in our schools. A student is now frustrated with the computer age, vocational training, pressures of prestige without having a chance to be a kid and grow up. Now most of this pressure, standards or guideline is handed down to our local educational authorities who must meet these standards or lose state and federal funding. Of course pressure is put on them by society in general.

Many of our young people are not out of diapers and are already going to some type of head start program. This program is good but I think it pushes individual too much and they are ready for this type of responsibility. Next, they are pushed again into another type of program, just when they are beginning to grasp the original will be one push to another and due to frustration, people begin to defy authority? Want independence where they can do what they want, not realizing that this independence not give them the satisfaction they want. Then as a grasping resort to cope with the pressures that have been put on their environment. A crutch is usually temporary, gained through bottle or pill.

All people do not have this problem. Each person is made up of a different chemistry, thus some can withstand pressures of life while others cannot have a crutch.

I'm not picking on our local school local young people. I'm just mentioning on the general path our society is forcing the younger generation take. Of course, if the figure was revealed there is probably one person that nips the bottle behind closed door as compared to a single of drugs. Many of the older people not cope with the demands require them during their time and want a crutch.

Maybe the old song "Stop the World and Let Me Off" may have had meaning than it was given credit for the world turn a few revolutions give us a chance to catch up and some of the worldly pressures can be relieved.

NOTICED THE "SATURN SCHOOL" is having trouble getting funds to operate. If we want this to continue helping some of our handicapped children we all are going to have to pitch in.

Day Stain Removal Hints

...y dinners, the seem "doomed" are treated while ally they can be Janice Carberry, rce management ... for treating com- type stains depend stain is," she said. rry is with the tural Extension he Texas A&M stem. al hints are:

-Test any stain remover on a corner of fabric first.

-Do not add chlorine bleach to an enzyme pre-soak product.

-When blotting stains, blot from the outside toward the center of the stain to prevent it from spreading further.

-Treat stains from the back of the fabric. Place the spot downward on some paper towels so that the stain will come off the fabric instead of going through it.

Turning to specific stains, the specialist said for fruit, where boiling water can be used, pour it through the cloth. If stain remains, sponge with lemon juice solution or hydrogen peroxide.

"If boiling water cannot be used, sponge well in cool water. Work glycerine into stain. Let stand several hours, then add a few drops of white vinegar and rinse thoroughly. Launder."

For gravy or milk, use an enzyme pre-soak with cool water or make a paste of detergent and water and work that into the stain. Then launder. If the stain remains, use a dry cleaning solvent.

"Sponge wine or soft drink stains immediately with cool water, then glycerine and water. Rinse with vinegar water followed by a clear rinse. Launder."

"Some drink stains are invisible after they dry but turn yellow with aging or heating. And this yellow stain is impossible to remove," the specialist said.

For coffee or tea stains, if safe for fabric, stretch cloth and pour boiling water through. Launder, using bleach or an enzyme pre-soak.

When candle wax has dripped on the tablecloth, scrape off as much as possible, then place the stain between paper towels and press with a warm iron. Next, place fabric stain side down on paper towels and sponge the back with a dry cleaning solvent. Let dry, then launder. If stain remains, launder again with an oxygen bleach.

FOUR PERSONS were injured in these two vehicles Saturday evening just before sundown. The freak accident involved Jim Claunch of Bula and his hired hand and family. Claunch's farm hand, Felix Reynoldo, 21, his wife Martha, 21, 3-year-old daughter Elisa, and 3-month old daughter Erma were returning home after an afternoon of shopping in Littlefield. According to DPS trooper Joel Miles, Claunch was driving south on a dirt road a mile west of Bula and failed to yield right of way as he came onto FM 54 and Claunch's pickup collided with the car driven by Reynoldo. All of the occupants were brought to Littlefield by ambulance. Claunch received neck injuries, Reynoldo had head injuries and lacerations, Mrs. Reynoldo had neck injuries, and the 3-month old girl had a leg injury. (Photo by Joel Miles)

Planning Ahead Insures Fashion

A few steps to gain "wardrobe wisdom" will help consumers stay fashionable when styles and seasons change, Margaret Ann Vanderpoorten, a clothing specialist, says.

She's with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Start by looking at fashion magazines, TV, newspaper ads and in the stores to see what's new. Now, back to reality - stop and think."

"Can you see yourself in the current fashions? Are you tall enough or petite enough for the look you like? Will new items and your current wardrobe work together?"

She suggested taking a critical look in the closet and sorting clothing into "okay," "needs help" and "won't wear" piles. Give away the "won't wears," she advised.

"Try mixing and matching existing clothes - add a scarf or belt to tie colors together. Then notice what colors show up most often in the wardrobe. Consider this the 'basic' color and plan around it."

"When shopping for new clothes, take along snips of fabric from the seams of garments you hope to match or coordinate."

She suggested buying or making one really new trend-setting item - and decide how it can be combined with things you already have.

NOISE LEVELS
Noise levels that cause an annoyance are more serious than just another nuisance in our daily lives. Sustained exposure to sound levels exceeding 85 decibels can cause permanent hearing losses.

TEMPORARY DEAFNESS
Temporary deafness can be caused by exposure of even a short duration to a noise level between 100 and 125 decibels. The figure is an imperative need for meaningful noise pollution control mechanisms.

Insulation Cuts Heating Costs

"Covering screens with plastic can provide a temporary means of reducing heat loss through windows. When constructing a new home, consider using insulating or double glazed windows," advises the engineer.

"Remember, things you save on heating this winter also aid in reducing cooling costs and will make your home more comfortable," Stewart.

With inflation continuing to out-pace Social Security benefits, it seems nearly everyone would have included in a private pension plan. How extensive is this involvement?

An estimated 30 million persons, nearly one-half of the nonagricultural labor force in the U.S., were enrolled in private pension plans having total assets of approximately $100 billion as of 1972. With the rate of increase continuing, by 1980, the total will be: 42 million people, 500,000 plans and $225 billion in assets. HR-10 and IRA plans are particularly applicable to self-employed individuals, with or without employees. Prime examples: professional men, service-oriented businessmen and farmers/ranchers.

What are your rights as a citizen of the United States? ★ There are many. These amendments, known as the "Bill of Rights," guarantee explicitly the most important personal privileges you may enjoy as an American citizen living within the jurisdiction of our federal government. ★ The Bill of Rights protects you against persecution and against infringement of personal liberties. ★ The Bill of Rights was written by our forefathers to make crystal clear the Constitution's intended safeguarding of justice for every citizen. ★ This is YOUR Bill of Rights.

This is the second in a series of articles on Americanism and the American flag. Presented by V.F.W. Ladies Auxiliary Post 4854 Littlefield.

Don't let the high cost of heating a home put you out in the cold this winter. Those high heating bills can be cut way down with a little insulation in the right places, says Dr. Bill Stewart, an agricultural engineer for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"A home that is completely insulated can cost 20 to 50 per cent less to heat than an uninsulated one," Stewart points out. "And with a little time, work and initiative, you can do the insulating yourself."

Insulating all ceilings, walls and floors in the home provides the best, most complete protection from cold, says the agricultural engineer with the Texas A&M University System. However, if funds are limited or temperatures don't get extremely cold, the most important thing to insulate is the attic floor of your home.

"This is because warm air rises and the greatest heat loss usually occurs through the ceiling."

If you plan to do the insulating yourself, Stewart recommends using batt type insulation for ease of installation. Loose fill insulation such as mineral wool is difficult to apply uniformly by hand; it should be blown in by machine.

Ceilings of homes in Texas should receive at least six inches of insulation or the equivalent to an "R" value of 22. Walls should be insulated to an "R" value of 13. Additional insulation above these amounts will not be justified unless the home is tightly weatherstripped and storm windows are installed.

"Insulating an existing home should start with the attic," points out the engineer. "Purchase batt type insulation of the proper width. Most ceiling joists are spaced 16 inches apart so you will need 15-inch wide batts. Check your attic first because some homes are built with a 24-inch ceiling joist spacing, in which case the batts need to be 23 inches wide."

Use several 1-inch by 12-inch boards to work on to help prevent putting your foot through a gypsum board ceiling. Place the batts all the way to the outside wall line. However, if there are ventilation openings under the overhang, be sure to leave space for air to move into the attic at the wall line.

In an existing home, there is no need to buy insulation with a vapor barrier on one side, since

Give Blood... Give Life...

A fluid no one can manufacture can save someone's life. Blood is this precious fluid, says the Texas Medical Association. Nearly 13,000 pints of blood are needed daily. And the need is growing.

It is natural to be nervous about giving blood. Blood often is strongly identified with vital life force. But often persons also identify blood with personal injury because that is the only time we see it.

Giving blood can mean the difference between life and death for someone. And blood collection agencies have made donation painless and safe.

Blood is taken under medical supervision by a medical technician or nurse. The blood is withdrawn from a vein in the donor's arm and placed in a bottle or bag. Only about 10 minutes are required to actually take the blood. The entire procedure takes about 30 minutes, including getting a brief medical history from the donor.

Serious blood loss can occur from injury or some diseases such as hemophilia. Transfusions sometimes are used to combat shock and increasingly in surgery. Some infants are victims of hemolytic disease, where the newborn's and mother's blood are incompatible. The baby's blood is replaced, a little at a time, with compatible donor blood.

The average person has between 10 and 13 pints of blood, depending mainly on body size. Donations of one pint per visit are recommended a maximum of every two to six months.

An eligible donor is generally someone between 18 and 59 years old, weighing at least 110 pounds and in good health.

B Anton Boys All-District

ANTON—Anton High School placed eight Bulldogs on the All-District, South Zone, 2-B football squad.

Greg Couch, senior end; Matt Grace, junior center; and Rex Jones, junior back, were selected for the first team of defense.

Trinidad Rendon, senior, was chosen both second team of defensive linemen, and defense linebacker.

Schools in 3B South Zone are Anton, Wilson, Whiteface, Ropes, Meadow, Sundown, and New Home.

USE EAR PLUGS

The high noise levels found in many occupational situations require the use of properly-fitted ear plugs or protective earmuffs, or a combination of both.

If your blankets are badly worn, you can cut out the bad spots and combine what's left to make one big blanket, which can now be used for the warm interlining of a quilt cover.

SCORE Helps Small Businesses Manage

Known as SCORE, the Service Corps of Retired Executives is a pool of nearly 7,000 volunteers among retired and semi-retired business men and women across the nation making their managerial skills and experience available FREE of charge to small businesses through a businessperson-to-businessperson advisory relationship. There are no systems or procedures—just management help on a level the businessperson can understand. The SCORE volunteer seeks to make the small business owner or manager more efficient by helping him acquire a balanced approach to the management of his business. The great range and variety of proven management ability among SCORE volunteers make it possible to match individual skills with management problems in manufacturing, retailing, wholesaling and the service trades. SCORE chapters have been organized in many areas to help administer and coordinate the volunteer counseling program, with chapter officers working closely with the U.S. Small Business Administration. The SBA is helping to organize other chapters wherever there is need for and interest in them.

The SCORE counselors are helpful in assisting people who come to SBA or write asking for management advice. In addition, they act as lecturers and coordinators in management courses and in workshops which SBA conducts or co-sponsors for small businessmen, usually in cooperation with schools and colleges, local chambers of commerce and trade associations.

Small businessmen who want to make use of the SCORE counselor's services can obtain full details about SCORE from the nearest SBA office, which will provide a form called "Counseling Request from Small Business Firm." After the businessman has signed the form, returned it to SBA and the Agency has approved it, SBA or the local SCORE Chapter will then assign a SCORE volunteer to the business at NO COST to the owner/manager.

For further information, contact: U.S. Small Business Administration, 1205 Texas Avenue, Room 712, Lubbock, Texas 79401, Telephone (806) 762-7462.

Keep Holiday Meals Safe

Food can carry food bacteria - but simple steps can prevent food from ruining holidays, a food specialist says. You need the right amount of time, temperature to grow. Remain between 40 and 140 degrees F. for three or four hours. Bacteria grow and food unsafe to eat. Only way to kill the bacteria is to heat food to 170 degrees F. Freezing doesn't kill it simply slows it down, the specialist said. With the Texas Extension Service, A&M University specific food safety specialist said to thaw the turkey in the refrigerator. Fresh or freshly-thawed turkey should be cooked and used within 24 hours.

Preparing the turkey, if done throughout - the internal temperature of the bird should be 180 degrees F. And if it is to be cooked until just before the bird is in the oven to roasting.

Let Children Be Holiday Helpers

Read the holiday story, consider an extra source of holiday fun for children. Mrs. Ilene family life education says. Children won't feel so left out during the holidays if they're involved in the preparations. And if given the opportunity they can be a big help in small jobs.

After the job is complete, let the child know his help is appreciated. Being involved gives little children a sense of pride and accomplishment. And doing a job teaches a small child responsibility for his actions and promotes independence, Mrs. Miller reminded.

METRIC MEASUREMENTS
By 1985, the U.S. will most likely be using metric measurements for length, temperature, weight and volume.

Wilt-Tolerant Cotton Varieties Evaluated

"Cotton varieties are being developed that are increasingly tolerant to Verticillium wilt. Increased usage of these varieties will reduce losses from this disease which amount to millions of dollars annually."

This conclusion from results of 1974 cotton variety evaluation studies comes from Dr. Earl Minton, plant pathologist for the USDA Agricultural Research Service here.

If true, it means cotton producers can expect increasingly better performance from commercial cotton varieties in terms of tolerating Verticillium wilt, a fungus that lives in the soil which attacks and kills cotton plants each season. It also means more dollars for producers and the cotton industry as a whole.

Plant pathologists generally agree that about half of the cotton producers on the South Plains have to combat Verticillium wilt each year. While varieties are available that can withstand to some degree the effects of wilt, they have limiting characteristics such as loose bolls and require a long growing season.

The disease is more generally found on medium to fine textured soils and will vary from field to field, Minton says. One area may have a very high infection while an adjacent field will have only scattering, wilted plants. Some areas of a field may be relatively free of wilt while other areas may have essentially 100 percent plant kill. "Vert" fungus is spread from one area to the next by wind, farm equipment, plant material, and by other contamination methods. Anywhere conditions are favorable, it will likely be present. Properly treated acid delinted seed will not carry the fungus, but gin trash may spread it.

Once in the soil, this live organism will always be there, spreading to plants each season. The disease builds up or intensifies with continual cotton production. As it attacks, plant leaves become necrotic or deadened, with leaf spots, burned edges and other symptoms similar to those of a hard freeze or defoliation. The disease is readily apparent when the plant is loaded with bolls.

So far, researchers have found that some limited control can be obtained with proper cultural practices such as rotation, thick cotton stands, lighter watering, nitrogen fertilization, and effective weed control. Weeds are alternate hosts for the fungus. Minton says that the best single way farmers are able to deal with wilt is through use of wilt-tolerant varieties.

Of 26 commercial and experimental varieties tested under field conditions in 1974 at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center, nine performed particularly well. All of these had a long history of selection for resistance to wilt, Minton says.

"This suggests the level of tolerance can be increased, and offers some hope that Verticillium wilt will one day be economically insignificant," he explains.

The nine varieties, which had 27 to 45 percent diseased plants, are CA 614-68-1, CA 1056-70-70A, New Mexico B8040, Paymaster 266-999, Paymaster 348D, Paymaster 4624, Paymaster 303, Paymaster 909, and Acala B3080. The last three are commercially available, while the other six are experimental. The last three are commercially available, while the other six are experimental. The Acala and New Mexico varieties are open boll types, which would probably have high ground losses some years.

Minton reports five varieties were "intermediate" in tolerance, with percentage of diseased plants ranging from 49 to 55 percent. These are DPL 6431-515-66, DPL 6434-58-61, Tamcot SP-23, Tamcot 788 and Tamcot SP-21. The Tamcot varieties are commercially available.

"These varieties," he suggested, "probably would be satisfactory under moderate disease conditions and with cultural practices known to reduce disease losses."

The seven other varieties included in the study were all susceptible, with 58 to 64 percent diseased plants. They should not be grown where Verticillium wilt is serious, Minton says, even though they are more tolerant than some other cotton varieties grown in the area. He says their level of tolerance probably can be increased by selection in screening nurseries heavily infested with the causal fungus under environmental conditions favorable to its growth.

In general, plots with fewer diseased plants had higher lint yields, Minton reports. However, some exceptions were noted.

"Both a high level of wilt resistance and environmental adaptation are essential for top yields where severe Verticillium wilt occurs," he says. "Also, high-uniform plant populations, shallow cultivation during the growing season, crop rotation, adequate but not excessive nitrogen and soil moisture and high soil temperatures help reduce the losses from this disease."

Grain Price Will Affect Cattle Prices

Grain prices will have a big influence on the livestock outlook for this fall and next year, contends a livestock marketing specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Dr. Ed Uvacek points out that whether grain prices go up or down will affect both fed and feeder cattle prices.

"If grain prices stay high, the number of cattle placed in feedlots this fall will probably not be high enough to cause supply problems next spring and summer," says Uvacek. "That could mean higher fed cattle prices next year."

"On the other hand, if grain prices ease down somewhat as the harvest season moves forward, placements will be large and fed cattle marketings by next spring and summer could be burdensome. This would, however, in the short run provide more strength for feeder cattle prices than if grain prices stay high."

Uvacek says that early fall sales of feeder cattle were much higher than summer levels and that even though fed cattle marketing will not be large, they will be up from recent levels. Many nonfed cattle will also be slaughtered during the next three months, and this could lower fed cattle prices, says the specialist with the Texas A&M University System.

"The proportion of fed beef to nonfed beef, then, for next year will depend greatly upon the price of feedgrains," contends Uvacek.

Protect Window Units During 'Off' Season

Save energy now—and next summer too—by simply removing or covering the window air conditioner unit, advises Mrs. Dorothy Powell, county extension agent.

"Removing it, or blocking off the flow of icy outdoor air through it, will save fuel and cut wintertime heating costs," she said.

Mrs. Powell is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Doing this at summer's end can also help reduce the cost of cooling the home next summer, because it may prevent expensive repairs on the unit and eliminate complaints that the unit isn't performing properly," she noted.

She said that many complaints are caused because dirt, moisture and rust were permitted to accumulate in units. And storing room air conditioners in a clean, dry place during the winter will prevent this.

"Be sure each unit is clean and dry before it's put away. Room air conditioners which cannot be removed from windows or walls should be covered by a heavy-duty wrap of the right size and shape to protect the unit and to keep heat from leaking out of the room," she advised.

It's a good idea to clean the unit's condenser at both the end of one cooling season and the beginning of the next. Use the hose attachment on the vacuum cleaner for this job. Additional cleaning and service may be needed in the spring if the unit was subject to excessive dust and moisture during the winter, she said.
