Summer Sports Held in Wintry Setting

Summertime sports against a snowy background featured the Jaffrey Outing Club's annual Winter Carnival at East Jaffrey, N. H. Racing cars, above, threw up icy spray instead of dust as they skidded around turns flooded by churned up snow. There was also swimming, diving and a trotting horse race.

DRY'S LEAD IN ELECTION INCREASES

Unofficial returns from the remaining unreported boxes were received Monday morning, increasing the dry lead in Saturday's beer election to 118. The dry total is now 2,661 and the wet is 2,543, it was reported. Commissioners court plan to canvass the returns and declare the result at a session Thursday. It was pointed out that it is possible for mistakes to have been made in receiving returns thus far and the total vote may vary after the returns are canvassed by the commissioners court. Following are the returns from the boxes which were lacking Saturday night:

'Leg Art' for Campus Show

(NEA Telephoto)

Determined to hit the highest professional level in the production of their traditional Leap Year "Big C Circus," Sigma Nu's University of California chapter at Berkeley has engaged Alyssa, queen of the nudists, to handle the burlesque concession. The show will be held under a big top at Edwards Athletic Field on the campus.

BURGLARS ROB THREE RANGER FIRMS; BREAK INTO THE POST OFFICE

Burglars apparently tried to make a clean sweep of Ranger business houses Saturday night or early Sunday morning, when they broke into four buildings, broke open two safes, knocked the knobs off two others, stole $108 in cash and a number of tools. During the one-night crime wave, the burglars, apparently the same gang, broke into the Ranger Machine Shop, the Ranger post office, Anderson-Pruet, Inc., and the Sinclair wholesale agency owned and operated by J. E. McRoney and attempted to break into the office of J. E. Matthews. According to evidence uncovered by Ranger police, the sheriff's department from Eastland, postal inspectors from Fort Worth and the State Safety Department at Austin, the burglars apparently made the rounds in the order given above. According to information of the police department at Ranger tools were taken from the Ranger Machine Shop on East Main street. Some of these tools were left in the Ranger post office, which the burglars entered by a rear window. Two knobs were knocked off safes in the post office building, but apparently nothing was taken. Postal inspectors were notified immediately after the attempted burglary was discovered. The burglars went through the main floor of the post office building, and also through the basement, seeking loot. Tools taken from the post office were found in the Anderson-Pruet building, Chief of Police Guy Pledger of Ranger stated Monday, indicating that it was robbed after the post office. A ladder was used to reach the roof of the building and entrance was gained through a skylight. The knob was knocked off one safe and $108 in cash taken. The knob was knocked off another safe, but apparently the burglars did not get this one open. This robbery was discovered when a customer had an employe open the building so he could get a part for an automobile. It was believed by officers that the Sinclair wholesale agency was the last stop made during the night of burglaries, and they left town after this "job." Forty cases of oil were taken there, a checkup revealed. Recently the same agency was robbed and 60 cases of oil were taken at that time. Officers today did not report finding any clues to the four burglaries.

Man Is Captured In Ranger After Shots Fired In A Chase

Following a night of burglaries in Ranger, an Olden man, wanted for non-payment of an old fine, was captured Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock, after a long chase in which several shots were fired, it was reported today by Chief of Police Guy Pledger of Ranger. Johnny Boyd, patrolman, was reporting for work about that time when Monk McMinn of Olden, who police said was wanted for not paying an old fine, was sighted and apprehended. When he got into an automobile he broke for freedom and eluded Boyd for some time. Boyd circled the park on Strawn Road, seeking McMinn, he stated this morning, and was told by some children that the man had entered the deer house, inside a high wire fence. After being caught a second time McMinn was placed in the Ranger city jail.

Ranger Boy Joins 'Rats' Football Team At John Tarleton

Earnest Green of Ranger is taking an active part in the intramural sports program at John Tarleton College where he is a student. After a series of try-outs he was elected as a member of the Rats, a touch football team. There are seven such teams at Tarleton competing for the championship of the campus. In a short time the intra-mural game will be basketball instead of football. This is in keeping with the plan of W. J. Wisdom, athletic director at Tarleton, to keep as many boys as possible playing on the campus in the afternoons. Wisdom believes that school-wide participation in sports is conducive to good scholarship as well as good health.

Texas Farmers to Receive More Cash Authority Predicts

AUSTIN, Tex.—Texas farmers will have more cash to jingle in their pockets this year than last, Dr. F. A. Buechel, University of Texas agricultural authority, predicts. Despite a 10 per cent drop from January, 1939, farm cash income for the first month of 1940 points to better finance during the remainder of the year, the Bureau of Business Research statistician believes. The slump was due entirely to a sharp falling off in live stock shipments, which he expects to boom later in the season. The number of animals on Texas farms and ranches on January 1, 1940, was approximately the same as a year earlier, from which he deduces that shipments in succeeding months will at least balance those of 1939. Actual receipts from livestock and farm products in January totaled $16,878,000 or 72.1 per cent of the average January income for the period 1928-32.

In consolation between San Marcos and Ranger, San Marcos won 30 to 30. Woodlake defeated Canyon in the finals 30 to 23.

Professor Tells How He Got Autographs

WACO, Tex.—Autograph seekers might take a hint from the childhood artistry of Dr. A. J. Armstrong, head of the Baylor University English department and the world's foremost authority on Browning. The scholar's secret was barefaced today in a student-prepared biographical sketch. It seems that the lad Armstrong adopted the unique system of addressing black-bordered mournful appearing envelopes to his would-be signers, reasoning that private secretaries would not open such pathetic looking communications. The plan worked like a charm and autographs flooded in, Dr. Armstrong testifies. The first one was by Rutherford B. Hayes, later president of the United States.

NUMBER OF BENEFICIARIES IN 1940

How many persons in Texas will receive payments of old-age and survivors insurance benefits in 1940? This question has been asked by many. No one knows the exact answer to that question because no one knows just how many insured workers will die, or how many widows and children will be left to claim survivors benefits. Neither does anyone know how many insured workers will retire next year or how many aged wives or dependent children of such annuitants there will be to claim payments of old-age insurance.

Book Can Receive Library Pension

AUSTIN, Tex.—Books as well as men may be pensioned it was learned last week at the University of Texas where a concordance of the Bible—the first book ever bought by the University library—went off active duty. Bearing the accession number, "1," the bulky volume was well worn by over fifty years' use by University students. It was an 1882 printing of Robert Young's "Analytical Concordance to the Bible, Student's Edition: Designed for the Simplest Reader of the English Bible." One among the more than 610,000 volumes of the library, the concordance was "pensioned" with honor.

Finns Still Hold Out at Vuopuri In A Gallant Stand

Finland still hung on at Vuopuri in spite of continued Russian pressure, and hand-to-hand fighting through the streets of the ruined city. It was reported that Finnish soldiers were retreating to fortifications about three miles northwest of the city, but that they still held on to the main portions of the town. Conflicting reports said that Finnish forces had encircled the Russian advanced troops and from Moscow it was reported that the city had been completely encircled by Soviet forces. It was considered unlikely that the fortifications could hold out much longer in the face of increased Russian pressure. The streets of Vuopuri were reported today to be filled with furniture from ruined buildings, with defenders making stands behind the piles of debris that fill the streets. Much of the town has been burned by fleeing Finns.

SHENANDOAH, Pa., March 4.—Four residential blocks of Shenandoah caved in today, with 250 homes being effected and property damage estimated at $100,000. The portion of the city where the cave-in occurred is located over an abandoned coal mine. Rumbblings in the abandoned mine were heard before the cave-in occurred, and police were able to get all residents out. More than 1,000 people were believed to have been moved to places of safety. All water and gas mains in the section were broken and power and communication lines tumbled into the abandoned mine.

Wells To Rest On His Way To Paris

BASIL, Switzerland, March 4.—Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles of the United States arrived here at noon today, en route to Lausanne, where he will spend a few days resting before going to Paris to confer with Premier Daladier. Welles arrived in Switzerland on a special train, furnished by the German government, which went through the territory bounded by the Siegfried Line. At Paris it is expected that Welles will be told that there can be no peace in Europe until Hitler has been removed from power in Germany.

Italy Has Trouble With Allies Today

Italy's troubles with the Allies mounted today as five Italian ships left Holland, loaded with German coal, which the British had prohibited being transported. Meantime British colonial troops concentrated in Africa, along the Italian-Ethiopian frontier. Little hope was seen for the peace mission of Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles of the United States, who stopped off today in Switzerland before going to Paris. Eleven warplanes were shot down over the week-end, six of them being German, and two small British boats were sunk and a Swedish steamer was mined.

When War Intrudes

You are getting along nicely at your factory job, or you are bending over a sheaf of papers in your office when the memoranda meemes. I says tersely, as if you are expected to understand: "Effective immediately, working hours will be extended to 60 each week and wages for hours worked above 40 will be subject to a 40 per cent levy."

Or maybe it isn't a memorandum. Perhaps it's an official government envelope that tells you where to report for military service that will net you anywhere from 2 cents to $1 a day, depending on what army you're in.

However it hits you, you know that it has come. The war that you knew your country was in his, at last, come right up to your own front door.

For a while you say to yourself, "That's all right. I've got to do my part. I've got to help my country fight dictatorship, or Communism, or imperialism, or mesmerism or something, whatever it is." And you kick in. You fight and get wounded or you work yourself to death and get under-paid.

After you've begun to get a little tired of feeding your family one pound of meat a week, cutting down on smokes when you need them most, dragging your tired frame home each night through blacked-out streets, you begin to wonder what it's all about—what are you doing it for, anyway?

So you get together with some other people who feel the same way and you ask please couldn't your hours be cut before you're not good for anything and couldn't you have just a little more pay to meet the prices that are shooting too high. And somebody pats your forehead and says with a kind of pious sigh, "C'est le guerre," or "England expects every man to do his duty," or "My country, right or wrong."

That's the way it works, no matter what side you're on. When war is vague, the slogans and the band music sound good, but when it hits you right in the middle—that's different. That's why French labor is asking for better pay, shorter hours. That's why British women are uneasy about their rights. That's why German workers are beginning to grumble a little, if they thing no one's listening.

It takes a lot of hating to keep up a successful front at home.

When asked about G.O.P. candidates, Mayor La Guardia of New York said, simply, "phooey," which is a boiled down version of what all the Democrats have been saying about the Republicans and vice versa.

Russia is making a habit of denying everything. Maybe Stalin will claim, one of these days, that Czar Nicholas and family were not shot but have been safely stowed away for a rainy day.

State Employees To Be Kept Out of Political Issues

By United Press

AUSTIN, Texas—State employees will be well hedged in to prevent political activity in this summer's campaign.

Workers in all departments are limited politically by riders on the acts of the legislature which appropriated the money to pay employees.

Those working for social security agencies of the state have additional regulations restricting them.

A "merit system" plan submitted by the public welfare board to the Federal Social Security Board for approval contains this provision:

"No employee of the department shall use his official authority or influence for the purpose of interfering with an election or affecting the results thereof. While retaining the right to vote as they please and to express privately their opinions on all political subjects, they shall take no active part in political management or in political campaigns."

Along with the section designed to prevent employees dabbling in politics go two sections to assure the political freedom of an employee or applicant for employment.

There is a provision that no question asked in any application form shall be framed so as to elicit information concerning the political or religious opinions or affiliations of any applicant for a position. All such disclosures are discontinued and there is a declaration against any discrimination, threatened or promised, because of political or religious opinions or connections.

There is also a provision that no recommendation of an applicant shall be considered or filed by the department if it involves disclosure of his political or religious opinions or affiliations. Riders on the appropriation acts say that it shall be unlawful for any person authorized to use a state-owned automobile in connection with any campaign in which the institution is directly interested, or in behalf of the camaign for re-election of the head of any department.

Heads of all state departments are required to circulate among the employees a copy of the provisions against political activity and procure a signed statement from each employee that the regulations have been read.

A disobeying employee if liable to removal and if he is removed cannot be reinstated for a year.

Charges of political activity may be filed against an employee by ten voters in any county where the activity takes place. They file the charge with the district court asking for the employee's removal, citing both the employee and the

Lock Jaw Takes a Heavy Toll In the State Every Year

AUSTIN, Tex.—Texas had 129 deaths from tetanus (lock-jaw) in 1934, according to vital statistics records of the State Department of Health. The number of deaths from tetanus year by year for the past decade has shown no appreciable decrease or increase, the mean average being about 130 for each year of the decade. Peak of the decade was the 151 recorded deaths in 1934.

A significant factor in tetanus prevalence is that the disease develops usually from a trivial wound or injury which too often is neglected until complications set in.

"In the course of the disease convulsions may be frequent and set off by any slight stimulation to the central nervous system. Stiffening of the muscles of the jaw is one of the first symptoms of tetanus, a characteristic which gives the disease its name.

"Puncture wounds, such as those from sticking a nail or thorn in the foot or hand, prove the most dangerous. This is explained by the tetanus characteristic whereby the germs thrive only in a closed wound or in the presence of other germs that use up the air present. Tetanus germs cannot live in open air," stated Dr. George W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"Preventive technique against department head. A department employee using a state automobile politically may be fined from $50 to $200. If the department head knowingly permits such use, he, too, may be fined $200.

The section prohibiting employees of state departments from taking part in campaigns affecting the office or the election or reelection of the head of the department specifically prohibits such acts as sending out circulars or hand bills, posting pictures, handing out cards or making speeches. Departments are prohibited from using any of their funds either directly or indirectly for sending out campaign material. No stenographer or other employee who is paid by the state may be used or employed in preparing, mailing or handling campaign literature. Such work is prohibited in the state capitol or in the rooms of any state building.

lockjaw should include proper care of all minor injuries and wounds. Closed wounds should be made open wounds and kept thoroughly clean. Anti-tetanus serum should be given after a puncture wound. Gunpowder wounds are also frequently followed by lock-jaw. The period of incubation for the disease to develop in man is usually from six to fourteen days, according to the degree of infection. When the incubation period is brief, six days or less, tetanus is almost always fatal. With a longer period for the disease to develop, it becomes milder, and the chances for recovery consequently greater."

Many Requests For Information Are Received by Library

AUSTIN, Tex.—Booming talk of industrialization for Texas is sharpening Texan industrial curiosity, the University of Texas Package Loan Library reported here today.

Librarians, who mailed out a record high of more than 5,000 "information packages" for January, attributed part of the increase to numerous requests for information on Texas industries. An increase of 300 over January, 1934, was recorded, Miss LeNoir Dimmitt, director, said.

Coping with the demand for material on almost any subject, the loan library takes a large number of daily and weekly papers, magazine pamphlets, and periodicals. Clippings on each subject from these are filed in packages ready for mailing to the questioner.

The January quota consisted of 191 books, 280 study outlines, 6,805 plays, and 44,022 pamphlets and periodical clippings. Literature led the field with 952 packages. Fine arts, plays, and political, economic and social topics were also in great demand, Miss Dimmitt said.

Florabelle shows Ann her glittering, well-furnished rooms, explains that a former fiance bought her furniture. Ann can have nice things, Florabelle says, if she wants them. Knows how to manage. Ann ponders her advice.

CHAPTER XI ANN had gone to bed when Clara came in. "Have a good time?" she asked.

"Pretty good. We saw a keen picture but we couldn't get anything to eat because Sam was broke. I don't think I'll go out with him any more," she said, getting out of her clothes.

"Why? Don't you like him?" Ann remembered the kiss on the stairs.

"Yeah—I like him all right, but he has to support his old lady." Clara dabbed cold cream on her face.

"What difference does that make?" "I'm not hitching up with any guy who's got to share his pay check."

There it was again, every girl searching for a husband. Ann reasoned, "But you don't have to marry a man just because you go to a movie with him."

"Say, I'm not wasting my time." Clara turned out the light and climbed into bed. "Gee, I wish I could get a guy like Paul Hayden."

"What's so wonderful about him?" Ann asked.

"He's class, that's what he is. All the girls in the store, even some of the married ones, are making a play for him."

Ann thought this over. Perhaps Paul had reason for his wariness. "Listen, Clara," she asked, "why do you and all the other girls want to get married?"

"What else is there for us to do?" "Don't you want something better than this, Clara?"

"What in the world is the matter with this?"

Ann tried to explain. "Some people live pleasantly. The men earn a good living, the women keep house. They have children, nice clean little kids—they use thick white towels and linen napkins—they have Christmas trees and presents—if they get sick a nurse comes to take care of them. Don't you see what I mean, Clara?"

Clara settled herself comfortably. Ann's words had not awakened one spark in her consciousness. "That may be fine for some folks," she said sleepily. "Us girls in the 10-cent store don't want kids, clean or any other kind." She stirred restlessly. "Gee, I wish Paul Hayden would give me a break." She was asleep.

ANN arose early the following morning. Clara, accustomed to standing at the stove while she drank a cup of muddy coffee, was amazed, even faintly displeased, to find a table neatly set. She ate in her bathrobe, grumbling meanwhile.

Riding to the city on the El, they discussed the girls on the third floor. Neddly and Teddy piloted elevators up and down in the Sampson building. They danced every night of the week. They were the most popular girls in the West Side tavern set.

"Does Myrtle have dates, too?" Ann asked, remembering the forlorn little person.

"No. Myrtle is married to Mrs. Follet's son. He's in the pen."

"Do you mean the penitentiary?" "Sure he's in the penitentiary," Clara was saying. "He winged a cop in a hold-up. Myrtle was going to have a baby and they needed money." She spoke quite calmly.

"Where is Myrtle's baby?" "It was born dead when he got pinched."

"Oh, the poor kids." "Yeah—too bad. That's why I wish Paul Hayden would fall for me. He isn't the kind to get mixed up with the cops or come home roaring drunk every Saturday night. He'd be square, Paul Hayden would."

"Clara—I've got a date to go to the movies with Paul Hayden."

"Well, I'll be darned. All us girls have been treating him like the king of Sheba. You come along and give him a tongue lashing. And he takes you to a movie. I'll be darned."

Ann changed the subject. "Tell me about Florabelle. She showed me her apartment last night."

"Swell dump. I don't see why she doesn't marry one of her swell friends."

"She must have a good job," Ann suggested.

"Saleslady at the Dressy Shoppe."

"But she has lovely things, Clara—a telephone and radio—how does she do it?"

Clara shrugged her plump shoulders. "She gets a commission on sales—she says. She has first choice when they mark clothes down—she says. Most of her duds have been returned or have something the matter with them—she says."

"Oh, then, 'She's all right, isn't she?" "Far as I know. Smarter than the rest of us, that's all." Clara giggled. "I know one of her boy friends. He's our postman—simply gaga over Florabelle. He never gets anything but an icy stare but he keeps coming, week after week. Sometimes Florabelle lets him in and sometimes she don't." Clara laughed merrily.

THE girls parted at the corner of State and Dearborn. Ann's heart sang. It was fun to live with Clara, to gossip on the trip to the city. She had a date to go to the movies with Paul Hayden. It was a beautiful world.

Paul called in the afternoon. Mrs. Pringle raised her eyebrows as she handed the telephone to Ann. "It's a man," she mouthed slyly.

Ann said, a bit breathlessly, "Hello."

"Ann?" "Yes."

"Paul."

"Ah—the ambassador of the elves. What's new in fairyland?" His answering chuckle was deep and satisfying. "I've got inside information that Mickey Mouse is staging a riot at the Garfield."

"That's out our way. I'll call for you 'bout 7 if satisfactory."

"Uh-huh—perfect. I'll have time to change."

"Be seeing you."

THE remainder of the day had rose-colored frills. Ann sang at her work, she chatted and laughed with Mrs. Pringle.

"Who is it, Ann?" the older woman asked.

"Paul Hayden—stock man at the 10-cent store."

"Your kind?" It was a subtle compliment.

"He's nice—I like him."

"Don't fall in love with him, Ann."

"A lot of good it would do me," she laughed.

"What do you mean?" "He's a woman hater."

"He won't hate you. Listen, Ann—"

Mrs. Pringle was not clever. Life had slapped her until she was the mere shell of a woman. She groped from her store of experience to find advice for the girl. "You're meant for better things. You're not like us."

She spread her hands in a comprehensive gesture. "Don't spoil your chances by falling in love with a man who will pull you down to his level and keep you there."

"I won't, Mrs. Pringle." Ann told her seriously. "I'm going on. Just how I'll get there, I don't know. But there must be a way and I've got to find it."

Safety Hints of Oil Belt Safety Council Officers

MOTORISTS—Keep your distance when you're driving on icy streets. The Oil Belt Safety Council points out that you can't stop suddenly on slippery pavement when the driver ahead does something unexpected. Stay well behind the car in front of you—and be ready for anything!

Where are the light fuses located on your car?

You don't know? Well, suppose you're driving on a rural road, miles from nowhere, and a fuse burns out. Would you try to limp into the next service station, risking a collision with another driver who didn't see your unlighted car? Or would you leave it parked without lights while you went for help? That, too, is dangerous.

A strained back is painful and it can result in permanent injury.

The Oil Belt Safety Council offers this advice: Never stoop over and lift a heavy object with the strain on your back. Bend your knees and lift with your legs, keeping your back as perpendicular as possible.

stepping, especially going up and down stairs. You may be able to take it all in one trip—but it will be the kind of trip that sends you tumbling to a bad fall.

MOTORISTS—

Many automobiles now have the headlamps mounted in the fenders. A minor collision which dents a front fender often throws the headlamp out of line, the Oil Belt Safety Council says.

If the headlamp beam is too low, you are not getting a maximum view of the road ahead. If it is too high, your lights blind approaching drivers.

Check the adjustment of your lights after even a slight fender bump.

AN EIGHT-YEAR OLD girl was killed the other day when a broom with which she was sweeping struck a shotgun standing against a cabinet.

The Oil Belt Safety Council points out that the life of this little girl would not have been lost if two simple rules of firearm safety had been observed:

Never keep a gun loaded when not in use, and—

Never leave a gun where it can be knocked down or tampered with by children.

MOTORISTS—Public opinion has condemned the use of third degree methods by police. But one of the third degree tortures—a bright light flashed in the eyes—is still in vogue, the Oil Belt Safety Council says.

This third degree torture is still used on the highway! Every night motorists are blinded by improperly used headlights.

Whether your car is equipped with the brand new types of head-

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

BY BRUCE CATTON NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Under the surface, a stormy situation is developing within the high command of the C. I. O.

At the C. I. O. convention last fall, John L. Lewis averted a threatened split by promising Sidney Hillman, influential head of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, that he would:

- 1—Eliminate Communist influence in the C. I. O.
2—Make a real effort for peace with the A. F. L.
3—Support the New Deal.

None of these things has been done. A gesture toward eliminating the Communists was made: Harry Bridges' wings were clipped, left-winger Joe Curran Allan Haywood, stout foe of Communists, was made director of organization. Beyond that, nothing happened.

PARALLELS FARTY "LINE"

BEGINNING with his Labor Day speech in Ogden, Utah, Lewis has been conforming to a clear pattern in his public statements. He has been demanding isolation from the war; he has been asserting that the administration is neglecting domestic problems and taking an undue interest in the war; he has been attacking the New Deal for "retreating."

It came to a crescendo in his speech before the United Mine Workers convention, in which he predicted that President Roosevelt would be beaten if he ran for a third term.

In all of this there is a remarkable similarity to the Communist Party line, as revised since the Hitler-Stalin treaty.

SPEECH LIKE BROWDER'S NOTE these things, too. The official C. I. O. News which used to plug manfully for collective security, has since September been calling for isolation.

Addressing the National Youth Congress, Lewis emphasized that the U. M. W. convention had voted against military aid for Finland—neglecting to add that it had also passed a resolution of sympathy for the Finns and had heard John Brophy denounce Russia.

Lewis' U. M. W. attack on Roosevelt came a fortnight after the executive board of the National Maritime Union, in which Communist influence is strong, passed a sharp anti-Roosevelt resolution. The Lewis speech was not wholly dissimilar to Earl Browder's Madison Square Garden speech, which assailed F. D. R. for turning on labor after accepting its aid.

COMMUNISTS STILL ON THE JOB

NO one on the inside thinks that Lewis is or ever has been a Communist. He has not even been especially sympathetic to Communism. Yet somehow the party line has had pretty good adherence from him during the last four and one-half months. The reputed Communist leaders of various C. I. O. unions are still on the job.

Hillman is known to be extremely indignant over this turn of affairs. The situation is bound to come to a head sooner or later; when it does, there is likely to be quite a ruction.

Meanwhile, Communist membership in certain C. I. O. unions is increasing. They have been getting recruits. One inside story has it that in some United Auto Workers locals the non-party leaders are today afraid to call elections, for fear that Communist tickets would be voted into power.

Sunrise Services Planned At Scenic Point For Easter

At a meeting of the Ranger Ministerial Association this morning, definite plans were worked out for the annual Easter Sunrise Service, which is held each year at Scenic Point.

This beautiful spot, just a few miles east of Ranger on the Fort Worth Highway, affords an ideal place for this service. From its lofty heights, one may look for many miles across hills and valleys, to where the sun makes its appearance in the east.

As heretofore, all surrounding communities are asked to cooperate in making this one of the outstanding events of the year, and those having part on the program will be drawn from some of these towns, as well as from Ranger.

A number of changes have been planned for this year, which are designed to make this service even more impressive than in previous years. The complete program will be published in the near future.

U. S. Starts $277,000,000 Job Building Second Set Of Locks Waterway Is To Be Insured Against Bombers by New Construction Program

By JOHN RICE NEA Service Special Correspondent

BALBOA, C. Z.—Every morning at 8 o'clock a booted, khaki-clad, business-like man strides into a bare little office in the new construction town of Diabolo.

He is Col. Thomas B. Larkin, army engineer, energetic center-point of $277,000,000 worth of construction work on the third set of locks which will bring the Panama Canal up to date.

The new locks, larger than the old, will be single instead of in twin sets like the present ones and will be located a half-mile to a mile away from them. They will provide for boats too large for the present locks, and reduce the danger of air raids damaging the locks and thus blocking the canal.

Three hundred families and 500 single men live and eat in the new quarters which make up Diabolo. They are the advance guard of the horde of 20,000 workers who will descend on the Canal Zone in 1941-44 to dig 85,000,000 cubic yards of dirt.

PLAN NEW TOWNS ON TWO OCEANS Colonel Larkin, who built Fort Peck dam in Montana, is directing preliminary work. Crews of diamond drillers are testing foundations for new locks and bypass channels.

Diabolo is headquarters of the job. Later two more towns must be built, Agua Clara on the Atlantic side and Cooli on the Pacific. These with preliminary surveys and plans, will occupy Colonel Larkin and his engineers for the rest of this year. It will also use up most of the $15,000,000 appropriated. The remainder of the job has been ordered done by Congress, but the money has not yet been appropriated.

Most of the labor will have to be brought in, largely from Jamaica, for American laborers can't stand the sun of the Canal Zone, and Panama can only furnish about 7500 of the needed 20,000. Engineers, skilled mechanics, construction bosses, and technicians will be brought from the United States.

Blue-Eyed tanned vigorous Colonel Larkin has been handling big engineering jobs for the army ever since graduating from West

Propose To Safeguard Vulnerable Dam

There are details, though which are not yet settled. What to do for instance, with the vast bulk of earth dug out? Undoubtedly part of it will be used to relocate tracks of the Panama Railroad, which now crosses ground which will be dug up.

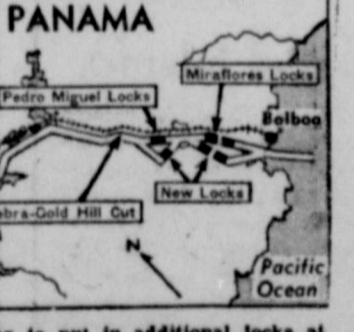

Henry G. Martin, chief geologist of the Canal Zone, has an idea for some of the rest. He would divide the unnavigable parts of Gatun Lake into sections by earth dams. Gatun Lake is regarded as the most vulnerable part of the whole canal system. If Gatun Dam were destroyed at present, water needed for navigation and operation of the locks would be lacking. With the lake chambered off, water would be retained even if the main dam were hit, and it would be harder to cripple the canal.

But the new locks suggest that still greater water supplies than are provided by Gatun and Madden dams might be needed in future. So plans are being studied for another lake reservoir in the Chagres river above Gamboa. It is things like this which Colonel Larkin must figure out before actual large-scale construction work starts next year.

Also the present locks are side-by-side. A single lucky air-raid might put the whole thing out of commission. So the new locks, 1200 feet long by 135 feet wide will be built from a half-mile to a mile away. It complicates the problem of attack. In general the
