Tapes Release Barred

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court today barred the public from listening to the 30 White House tape recordings played at the Watergate coverup trial of aides to former President Richard M. Nixon.

The court's 7-2 decision reversed a 1976 ruling by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that would have made the tapes available to the three commercial television networks, public television and a recording company planning to sell copies of the tapes for home use.

Two Votes Important

WASHINGTON (AP) - Supporters and foes of the Panama Canal treaties opened late-hour drives for a handful of wavering votes today as the agreements appeared to be within two votes of final approval or rejection.

President Carter met with one undecided senator early today and another announced he would vote against the treaty turning over the canal to Panama in the year 2000.

An Associated Press count showed 65 firm votes for approval, 32 against and three undecided.

Hopes Put On Vance

LONDON (AP) - U.S. officials are hoping that Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance's trip to Africa will head off a wider conflict in Rhodesia.

"The stakes are too high to permit ourselves to be discouraged," said one as he flew to London today with Vance after meetings with the leaders of all Rhodesian factions.

Shreveport Hit

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) - A tornado swept this town Monday night, injuring at least nine persons, knocking down a number of homes, starting several fires and leaving 1,000 homes without electricity, authorities said.

There were no reports of death, but search crews aided by generator-powered searchlights continued work through the night.

Most heavily hit was the Mooretown section of Shreveport, police said.

The SDN Column

It began as another "pretty day" in West Texas, but by mid-morning, seasoned observers began to suspect that a spring blow was on the way. By 10:30 a.m., the suspicions were confirmed. The wind had shifted to the west, and the tell-tale red was beginning to kick up on the western horizon.

That was the situation Monday morning in Snyder, nothing unusual for this time of year, but a bit disheartening to those who hoped that a new cool front might stir up some rain showers.

Milton Stephens had the most philosophical statement we heard on the situation. When advised that dirt from the west was descending on his farm, he said, "Maybe it's coming from Dawson County and maybe it already has Treflan in it."

We've had scissortail reports now in Scurry as well as Borden County. According to the scissortail legend, Borden County welcomed spring several days ahead of Scurry, but they are all in. Sarah Goebel reported seeing a scissortail flycatcher in Towle Memorial Park and also several at Hermleigh. She was the first to report them to us for the second year in a row. Ruth Weathers had reported scissortails some 10 days earlier in Borden County. Hub Evans says he has seen several around Snyder, also, and on Sunday afternoon, we saw one on U.S 84 north of town.

Now that they have confirmed that spring is here, we only hope none of them decides to stop overnight near our house. Scissortails are among the noisiest birds the whole night through.

If you doubt that our highway system is important, take a look at these figures for 1977 from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

A total of 19,076,000 out-of-state visitors came to Texas via automobile, which is 82.2 per cent of the total for the year. They spent over $3½ billion while visiting in the state.

Kidnappers Say In Message...

Moro Executed, Body In Lake

CORVARO, Italy (AP) - A message purportedly from the terrorist kidnappers of Aldo Moro announced today that the former premier was executed and his body dumped in a mountain lake near here. Divers flown to the scene began a search but turned up nothing immediately.

"I broke the thin ice and looked for about one hour but I couldn't find anything or anyone there," said Gianni Limiti, one of the frogmen searching Lake Duchessa, 72 miles northeast of Rome and three miles from the hamlet of Corvaro. The lake is less than one-quarter mile long and in places its water is only knee deep.

The message, bearing the signature of the Red Brigades, said the 61-year-old president of the ruling Christian Democratic Party was executed "by suicide," apparently a mocking reference to the disputed deaths in prison of German terrorists.

Moro, five times a premier and probable next president of the republic, was abducted and his five bodyguards were killed by the Brigades, Italy's most feared urban guerrilla gang, in a Rome street ambush March 16. The kidnappers announced three days ago that he had been convicted in a "people's trial" and sentenced to die.

Police could not immediately confirm that today's communique, found in Rome, was authentic. Christian Democrat officials said it appeared to be, but they did not exclude the possibility of a ruse to shock the nation.

Frogmen, soldiers and police flew in helicopters to the lake - virtually inaccessible to ground vehicles - and began looking for the body. Long lines of military jeeps and trucks arrived at lower elevation. Reporters were barred from the search site and confined to Corvaro.

A colonel who asked not to be identified said the shallow lake was frozen, apparently by cold overnight temperatures.

"We saw no trace of anybody or anything. I didn't even see footprints," he said.

But residents said it had snowed heavily overnight - some drifts were 12 feet deep - and footprints could have been obliterated. Fog also hampered search efforts.

In Rome, Giuseppe Pisanu, a Christian Democrat member of parliament and a top party leader, said "We have seen the message that, according to experts, seems authentic. We are going through hours of anguish."

Another party official, Flaminio Piccoli, said: "There are indications which confirm the presence of persons in the area of Lake Duchessa at least up to yesterday Monday morning."

Party leaders went to Moro's house in Rome to inform his wife Eleonora. At party headquarters, grim-faced officials gathered to award word, secretaries wept in the corridors and Community Party chief Enrico Berlinguer arrived for consultation.

Market Rally Ends

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices today halted their dramatic upward charge of the past three sessions as many investors sold issues that have jumped sharply in price during the rally that began Thursday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks at noon had lost 1.91 points to 808.21. But that closely watched index had been down more than four points earlier in the session.

Declining issues outnumbered those that gained by about a 3-to-1 margin in very active trading.

The rally began Thursday, when the Dow climbed 8.92 points. It continued Friday and Monday with record-breaking volume, which pushed the Dow up nearly another 35 points, was fueled by foreign investors and large institutions such as insurance companies and pension plans.

Absentee Voting Triple-Header

The absentee voting menu in the Scurry County Clerk's office offers three selections, as of today.

The absentee balloting for the primary elections scheduled for May 6 began Monday, while absentee ballots were available beginning today for the liquor election set for May 8.

Voters who live in the City of Snyder may cast two ballots. They may vote in either the Democratic Party or Republic Party primary and also in the liquor election.

Those who live outside the city are limited to one ballot. They may vote in either of the primary elections, but not in both.

Personnel in the clerk's office were taking extra precautions to make certain that ballots were going into the proper boxes, especially for those voting in a primary election and also in the liquor election.

"We are trying to have each absentee voter cast one ballot at a time and deposit one in the proper box before marking the other one," said County Clerk Beverly Ainsworth.

Absentee voting got off to a busy start Monday when nine primary election ballots were cast. The pace was continuing today as the liquor election ballot became available to absentee voters who live inside the city limits.

Some of those who cast absentee ballots Monday in elections indicated they would be back later to vote in the liquor election.

The Democratic Party ballot is a long one, with contested races for Governor of Texas, U.S. Senate, Congress and several other state offices as well as county offices. The Republican Party ballot of the primary has no local candidates and only one for Congress.

Hermleigh Lions Award Pin To Charter Member

HERMLEIGH - The Hermleigh Lion's Club celebrated its 30th anniversary last night in the Hermleigh Community Center. Joining the banquet were representatives from three other Lion's Clubs. A charter member was on hand to receive his 30 year pin and the district governor delivered a speech. Rounding out the program was Snyder's foreign exchange student who presented a slide show illustrating her home abroad.

G.E. Chorn, a charter member, was honored for 30 years of continuous service. Tom E. Shelburne also received a 30 year pin, and a 15 year pin went to W.H. (Bill) Hairston.

The governor of District 2-T-2, Art Cook, congratulated the Hermleigh Lions for three decades of community service and spoke about the latest challenge undertaken by Lions. Cook said a flying hospital that would carry 15 doctors and go to all parts of the free world was already on the drawing board. He said that funds for the plane and volunteer physicians had already been found.

The district Lion's Club lt. governor, Howard Harrington from Snyder, was also in attendance and conveyed his appreciation to the Hermleigh Lions for their civic responsibility.

Liri Lestari, foreign exchange student, presented a slide show of her native country, Indonesia. Miss Lestari is spending the year with the Marshall Parham family of Snyder.

Several Ira Lions were present at the celebration, including president of that club, I.E. (Red) Maupin.

Hermleigh Lion's Club president and emcee of last night's program, Donald Tate, also recognized Earl Kerr of Lubbock as a special guest. Kerr, a former Hermleigh Lion, taught in the Hermleigh School from 1925 to 1935.

dancers pay fiddler

At its regular session last year our Texas Legislature spent considerable time trying to agree on legislation which would accomplish the dual purpose of easing the tax burden on real estate while providing money needed to meet rising cost of operating the public schools. That it was a tough assignment goes without saying, and the result was only partially acceptable.

State aid was increased by something like $1 billion annually. An attempt was made to impose a ceiling on local spending. One proposal was to allot increased State aid only where corresponding cuts had been made in amounts collected from local taxes. That was unacceptable for obvious reasons. Denying people the right to raise their own taxes for an enriched school program was branded as a violation of the time-honored principle of local self-government.

As in most situations where consensus cannot be achieved a compromise was reached. After all, the Legislature couldn't stay in session indefinitely.

After a year's experience with the revised program an opportunity has been provided to study results. Local taxes were reduced in 161 districts, 60 districts reported no change and taxes were increased in 857 districts.

What happened, of course, is that infusion of new State money was pretty well offset by rising costs from inflation and an increase in basic pay of teachers and administrative personnel.

Most of us like to have the best education available for our youngsters. That is one basic. The other is none of us likes to pay ad valorem taxes. We don't complain about higher sales taxes. Gasoline is a striking example. Hikes in Social Security and Federal income taxes are not particularly welcome but we accept increases with little outward display of resentment.

But a few dollars annually added to the tax on any type of property is almost a fighting matter. Inconsistent? Obviously. But that's the way we are. The second point of no-compromise is local control of public education. What happens, however, is that every increase in outside help is accompanied by a diminution in local control. The old saying that those who dance must help pay the fiddler comes to mind.

one bug neutralized

Call it Montezuma's Revenge, Delhi Belly, La Turista or any number of more pointedly colorful names you aren't likely to encounter in a family newspaper, it translates as misery in any language.

But suddenly there is hope. Researchers report that tests of an antibiotic called doxycycline on Peace Crops volunteers in Kenya indicate it can protect most people from the ravages of simple traveler's diarrhea, caused by a microscopic organism called Escherichia coli, for as long as one month.

There are, of course, many more pressing medical challenges facing mankind. But this development comes as welcome news indeed to the traveling population, 50 to 60 percent of which is susceptible to the bug and generations of whom have come to know all too intimately what it is capable of doing to an otherwise hale and hearty human organism.

April is over half gone and so far has produced only one shower in our area. Area ranchers and farmers are keeping a watchful eye on the sky as they will need lots of showers to be able to plant this year. There is very little underground moisture in our area this year.

But it can't be without a cloud and clouds have a tendency to bring thoughts of tornadoes.

Although tornadoes can strike any time April through June is generally considered the tornado season. Last year 111 tornadoes slashed across the state causing extensive property damage but only one death was attributed to the tornadoes. That fatality came last December when a funnel cloud gouged a 25-mile wide path of destruction in northeast Houston.

Better warning systems have to receive the credit for keeping the fatality count low.

There are two phrases used to alert residents to possible dangers: "Tornado watch" and "tornado warning." These should not be ignored or confused. A watch is used to warn residents in the path of a storm that conditions are present that make tornadoes possible. A warning indicates a tornado has been spotted and residents of an area may have only minutes to take shelter. Monahans residents had six minutes last April from the time the warning was issued until it struck. Residents had time to seek shelter but the damage was $2.9 million.

Most deaths associated with tornadoes are caused by flying debris and most injuries are to the head and chest. Therefore persons caught in a tornado should stay low and protect their head and chest.

Small rooms, such as a bathroom or closet in the central part of a structure offer the best protection. If such a hideout is unavailable, taking cover under heavy furniture such as an over-turned upholstered couch is advised.

Mobile homes or buildings with wide, free-span roofs are not considered desirable shelters. If persons don't have time to seek suitable shelter, they should lie flat in the nearest depression, such as a ditch or ravine. Tornadoes can demolish solid buildings, make missiles out of straw, uproot giant trees or hurl people hundreds of yards while leaving something nearby standing.

So keep a watchful eye on the sky and heed any tornado warning or watch and hope for rain.

"Weren't we lucky to find all this extra lumber to fix the roof."

relieving stress

Of all life's experiences what would you think most depletes the survivor?

Of all the distressful situations that may arise in a lifetime, which would you figure takes the most out of you?

Going to jail? No.

Going to war? No.

Fired from your job? No.

Pregnancy? No.

There is an enormous literature on the subject of "stress," but the intellectual fountainhead of this research since World War II is Dr. Hans Selye of McGill, University, Montreal.

He has defined in physiological terms "What stress is."

His two volumes on the subject are highly respected texts through largely nontechnical: "The Stress Of Life" and "Stress Without Distress."

Selye has been able to articulate in lay language the scientific basis of all conventional wisdom we now have on the subject of stress.

Harvard's Prof. Herbert Benson, taking up where Selye leaves off, prescribes the now generally accepted stress response: self-induced relaxation.

Though some narrow cults have emerged from Benson's "General Adaptation Syndrome," the self-induced relaxation he recommends need not be nearly so complicated as some of the practitioners are trying to make it.

These two scholars, in their exhaustive stress related research, reached similar conclusions about which problems are hardest for us to face up to.

Just knowing this can be important in preparing a response that might save your sanity or your life.

A scale has since been prepared by Holmes and Rabe which they call "the social readjustment scale."

They have made a list of those "life events" that really "wring you out" emotionally - the worst first.

What happens to us under stress - the cardiac speed-up that floods our muscles with extra hemoglobin - was a lifesaver in the days when men needed that "fight-or-flight response" to a marauding saber-toothed tiger or a hostile neighbor.

But today's stressful situations - usually social, economic or professional - cannot be resolved with either "fight or flight" and so our blood pressure and catecholamine levels are left chronically elevated and unrelieved, creating a deleterious strain on the heart.

So learning to relax - not with booze or pills but with exercise and a warm bath - can relieve crisis situations.

Now - what of all life's experiences puts us under the greatest sustained strain? Number one is the death of a spouse. Ten times more widows and widowers die during the first year following the death of a spouse.

The second most difficult stress experience? Divorce.

in washington

martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON - (NEA) - In the files of the Internal Revenue Service lies the tale of a fascinating contract between two recent former presidents, both of whom left Washington under circumstances they considered less than ideal.

One is Lyndon B. Johnson, who wanted a second full term in the White House but was forced to abandon that goal because his pursuit of a military victory in the Vietnam war became a major political liability.

Johnson had a wheeler-dealer reputation, and questions were repeatedly asked (but never fully answered) about his family's ability to amass a $14 million fortune during his three decades on the public payroll.

Nobody ever nominated Johnson for sainthood, but he left Washington with his reputation essentially intact. The same cannot be said for Richard M. Nixon, the first president ever to resign under the threat of impeachment.

Both men established foundations in their names, presumably hoping to perpetuate the memory of greatness each saw in himself. Johnson succeeded, but Nixon has failed thus far.

Federal law allows public examination of the annual tax returns filed by charitable trusts, and the documents submitted by the LBJ Family Foundation picture a thriving philanthropic operation.

Johnson's foundation was established in 1956, and its assets topped $1 million for the first time in 1971. They have been growing steadily, and last year the figure approached the $1.3 million mark, with common stock representing about 60 percent of the total portfolio.

In recent years, the LBJ Family Foundation has made contributions averaging more than $55,000 annually, donating hundreds - and, in many cases, thousands - of dollars to a wide range of religious, educational, cultural, medical and civic organizations.

No such generosity has been displayed by the Richard M. Nixon Irrevocable Literary Trust because it simply doesn't have any funds to distribute. Unlike the Johnson family, Nixon either does not have the money to contribute to a foundation or has chosen not to make such donations.

"The purpose of the trust," says a statement filed with the IRS, "is to hold books, papers, letters, photostatic and sound reproductions, memorabilia and other like items from the official or personal life of Richard M. Nixon or his wife, Patricia R. Nixon, and which have historical significance."

The most valuable materials obviously are those from Nixon's presidential years - but they remain in federal custody because of protracted and still unresolved litigation over whether they belong to Nixon or the government.

Two other foundations have been established in Nixon's name, although he does not control them. One is the Nixon Birthplace Foundation, operated by the residents of Yorba Linda, Calif., who are anxious to preserve the former president's birthplace in their community.

The local school district long held the title to the Nixon family house, however, and the foundation negotiated for almost a decade before the school district recently agreed to relinquish its hold on the property.

But the foundation now must raise at least $125,000 to buy the house, a considerable undertaking for an organization that never previously had even $10,000 in assets.

Finally, there is the Richard M. Nixon Educational Trust, established by the Pomona First Federal Savings & Loan Association, which contributed money earmarked for scholarship awards to deserving students from high schools in the Pomona-Yorba Linda area.

But that effort has just been abandoned. "We shut it down," says William F. Montgomery of the savings and loan association, "because we just weren't getting any response. It wasn't an effective thing."

economic cycles

NEW YORK (AP)-The economy enters this month the fourth year of an expansion that arose from the ashes of the 1974-75 recession, the worst since the Great Depression of the 1930s.

In observance of that anniversary, you might not appreciate what some economists are now looking for: another recession. The reason: Three years is a long time in the life of an economic cycle.

It doesn't matter that the stock market might be forecasting a difference story. Economists and investors often have different points of view, even if they work for the same outfit.

At the moment, economists are highly concerned about old age. The economy runs in cycles, they believe, and the current one has been around a very long time, as cycles go.

Investors, in contrast, sometimes look beyond a valley of bad news and examine the mountain beyond. They discount negatives if they believe they'll be followed closely by a cycle of the opposite variety.

The National Bureau of Economic Research, a prestigious economic study group, examined 23 peacetime business expansions since 1854 and found only one that reached its fourth birthday.

That sole exception also comes with an asterisk, the fine print explaining it occurred during a general depression, from March 1933 through May 1937, ending two months after its fourth year.

Since World War Two, the longest of four peacetime expansions lasted 39 months, from 1954 into 1957. Our current upswing is only two months short of that record. And forecasters are becoming uneasy.

"Will it keep going, perhaps into a beyond the spring of 1979," asks Merrill Lynch Economics, a research and consulting arm of the world's biggest broker. Rhetorical question; it's mind is made up.

"Our answer to that question is not reassuring," it replies. "We believe that, at best, a sharp economic slowdown is likely by early next year or late this year."

A recession, perhaps? "At worst, in our opinion, an outright recession, of relatively moderate depth and duration, could be in the offing." The odds, it believes, are about 50-50.

The economic unit figures real growth will sink to a 3.4 percent rate by this year's final quarter, and then plunge to a 1.1 percent rate, or perhaps into an actual decline, in 1979's first quarter.

Now the good news: If a recession develops, says Merrill Lynch Economics, it isn't likely to be as long or as deep in 1974-75. We aren't likely to be that vulnerable, it says, underlining "that."

Not all economists foresee a recession, of course. While economists swim in schools for much of the time, they often disperse when a major economic turning point is believed to be just ahead.

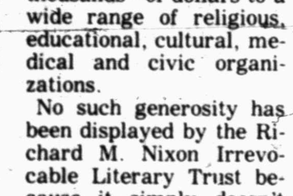

Fear not, therefore, that there is total agreement on the matter of an economic downturn. It might come, it might not, but a growing number of professional economists are agreeing on the former possibility.

Panel Adopts One Tax Reform

WASHINGTON (AP)- Congressional taxwriters are plowing ahead with a review of the Carter administration's tax proposals after adopting one presidential "reform" and rejecting two others.

The House Ways and Means Committee decided tentatively Monday to repeal the deduction that taxpayers claim for state and local gasoline taxes. The repeal would cost taxpayers $1.15 billion when returns are filed in 1980.

At the same time, the committee went against Carter's wishes, voting tentatively to permit taxpayers to continue claiming deductions for state and local sales taxes and for personal property taxes.

The committee arranged to discuss proposed changes in the current system for medical and casualty expense deduction today as it continues work on a new tax bill.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., the committee chairman, said he hoped to have work completed on the measure by the first week in June.

Middle-income Americans, millions of whom benefit by itemizing deductions, were clearly on the minds of committee members.

"Rate reduction is terribly important," Ullman said. "We must give the middle class some tax relief."

Carter's proposed $23.9 billion net tax cut proposal includes an estimated $33.9 billion in tax cuts partially offset by $10 billion in revenue raising "reforms."

Many of the revisions, which the administration advocates to simplify the income tax system, would be costly to taxpayers who itemize their deductions. The more deductions Congress eliminates, the fewer taxpayers are able to itemize their returns.

Carter contends his proposed reductions would offset the elimination of deductions, thus giving the vast majority of taxpayers a break.

DEAR ABBY: How dare you perpetuate the myth that men prefer women with big breasts? In a recent column in which you offer men tips on how to make themselves more "lovable," you said, "If she's flat-chested and a 38-D walks by, pretend not to notice."

Abby, there are men who prefer women with small breasts ("flat-chested," according to your 38-D standards) —my husband among them. He doesn't have to "pretend not to notice."

If you had done a little research, you would have known that men who prefer women with small breasts are more mature, intelligent and less chauvinistic than the big-breast worshipers.

Please stop trying to make me, and others like me, feel that we are inferior and unattractive, and that any man will slobber himself into a stupor over a 38-D!

SMALL AND SEXY

DEAR S AND S: My apologies. But in most surveys I've seen in which men were asked to describe their "ideal woman," the 38-D's were way out in front.

DEAR ABBY: My grandson, who is 33 and a physician, is quite religious. Every Friday night he serves his two sons, ages 3 and 5, wine with dinner, and they say a prayer.

I wasn't too concerned about this until the 5-year-old visited us and asked if he could have some wine. Of course we didn't give it to him, but I started to worry that the children could be developing a taste for wine at an early age and eventually become alcoholic. I read somewhere that this could happen.

Is there some way I can convey this message to my grandson without offending him? (P.S. He's a Scorpio and doesn't take criticism very well.)

GREAT-GRANDMOTHER

DEAR GRANDMOTHER: Tell him in a loving, non-critical way that his son asked for wine in your home. As a physician he should know the dangers of giving a child too much wine too often. (P.S. Scorpios are also quick learners.)

DEAR ABBY: We hear so much these days about whether to "become involved" when we see a stranger being attacked or abused by another stranger.

I'm reminded of an experience I had back in 1936 while waiting for one of those long, yellow streetcars in Minneapolis.

Along came a couple. The man proceeded to give the woman a very loud tongue-lashing. She looked so hurt and defenseless. I finally said, "Look, fellow, you are showing very bad manners in talking to a lady that way, and I suggest that you stop it!"

He seemed amazed that a stranger would interfere, but he stopped momentarily. Then suddenly the woman swatted me alongside the head with her umbrella and said angrily, "You mind your own business! He's MY husband and he can talk to me any way he wants to!"

I was young, gallant and naive. I also learned a lesson. Now if I decide to intefere, I stand back a few paces.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "TRYING HARD" IN DENVER: Try harder. If I could recommend a revision of the marriage vows, I would suggest, "LOVE, HONOR AND FORGIVE," instead of "OBEY." I think forgiveness is far more important to a marriage than obedience.

Key Factors In Marital Satisfaction

COLLEGE STATION--Effective two-way communication, flexibility, enough maturity to give-and-take healthily and willingness to adapt are key factors to marital satisfaction.

Strong marriages are made of people who can tolerate each other's weaknesses and enjoy seeing each other as individuals, says Jenny Reinhardt, a family life education specialist.

Ms. Reinhardt is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

In a male-female relationship, it is naive for one to think that the other person can give him happiness, she continues.

However, two people who are personally maintaining their own inner happiness and growing as individuals can do a lot to enhance each other's happiness.

This is not the case when one has a childish view that life together should be full of ecstasy.

Too often a marriage partner may, perhaps unconsciously, feel that marriage gives one the right to boss, to tell the mate what to do, or to "straighten her out" or "make him over."

"Aces were made to take kings," remarked West as he played his ace of trumps on South's king at trick two.

"South said nothing as he went about the business of making six spades doubled. The procedure was simple and effective. He ruffed the heart that West led at trick three, cashed his ace of diamonds, ruffed a diamond in dummy and led a trump to his queen. Noting that East played the nine, he ruffed a second low diamond to set up the rest of the suit, came to his hand with a club, pulled the last trump and claimed because all his diamonds were now good.

If West had just let South hold the first trump he would not have had a chance to make that fatuous remark, but he would have been well rewarded when South went down at his slam.

South would have had two ways to play on. He could have led a second trump. This time West would take his ace and lead a third trump to make it impossible for South to ruff two diamonds in dummy.

His other way would have been to leave trumps alone and try to ruff two diamonds. This plan would have failed because East would have been able to overruff the second diamond with the nine.

Hopkins Urges Sorority Members To Further Education

Lambda Kappa Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met recently at the Martha Ann Woman's Club. The president, Susan Chesser, called the meeting to order and the opening ritual was repeated.

The group voted to present a $150 scholarship again this year to a girl who will attend Western Texas College. A donation of $100 will be given to the Texas Rehabilitation Center to purchase toys. A silver coffee urn was purchased and presented to Martha Ann Woman's Club for participating organizations use.

Carolyn Fortune, chairman of the 'Woman of the Year' award, reported to the group on nominations made for this award. The group voted by secret ballot and the results will not be known until Founder's Day, April 29.

Laura Greene introduced Rex Hopkins, director of continuing education at WTC. Hopkins spoke to the group about continuing their education throughout their entire life.

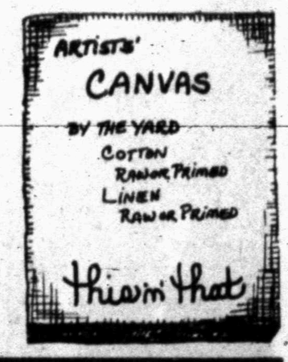

He informed members that each individual is the only one concerned about himself and must plan for the future. Hopkins stated that adults expect too little from themselves. He challenged each club member to be educated people, to stride out on new roads and not let life pass by. He concluded with a request for each to develop a philisophy of life.

The members stood to repeat the closing ritual and the Mizpah. Hostesses for the evening were Kathy Roberts and Peggy Wilson.

A "HARD LIQUOR" ELECTION

The May 8th wet-dry election is not just an attempt to legalize beer in stores, it is an effort to open Snyder up to hard liquor, as well.

We're voting on liquor stores, rum, gin, whiskey - the whole "off premises" bit, with all of the undesirable side effects which our families and our tax dollars would have to pay for.

Don't be snowed by liquor industry "facts" - a very few individuals would profit financially. The rest of us would have to foot the bill.

And all of us would be placing our safety and well-being in jeopardy.

LET'S ALL PULL TOGETHER TO KEEP SNYDER CLEAN, PROUD, AND DRY....

Marijuana Mailed To Student

Almost four ounces of Colombian marijuana were seized from a Western Texas College student Monday after the substance was delivered to him through the mail, police reported.

Police Lt. Jim Saunders said the package was mailed from Virginia April 11 and was addressed to the 22-year-old student at the WTC dormitory. The package, said Saunders, contained a fraction less than four ounces of marijuana, the legal threshold between misdemeanor and felony possession, and a bottle of wine.

A more serious charge, that of possible criminal conspiracy involved in the mailing, has not been filed. Police reported that postal authorities as well as authorities in Virginia have been notified, however.

The suspect was booked at the police station on a charge of misdemeanor possession of marijuana and was released after a $750 bond.

Colombian marijuana, reported officers, retails for $40 to $35 an ounce.

CRAWLEY, England (AP)-Britain's largest air cargo company has been fined $3,515 because 28 pregnant cows died on one of its planes last October from lack of oxygen and the heat.

International Aviation Services pleaded guilty to nine charges of failing to provide adequate pens and ventilation for the animals, which were being shipped from Britain to Kuwait. Forty-seven cows survived.

TSTA Scholarship To Rotan Student

Future teacher, Melody Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Walker of Rotan, is the winner of the District XIV Texas State Teachers $500 scholarship.

According to Roger Huber of Anson, chairman of the district public relations committee, Miss Walker's application was rated highest of the 22 submitted.

The Rotan senior is near the top of her class scholastically. She is band drum major and she participates in the activities of future teachers, future homemakers and in the school's athletic program. She is a member of the Student Congress, helps to publish the school annual, and teaches in Bible School.

Miss Walker lives with her family on a ranch which accounts for her interest in rodeos and horse shows. She has qualified several years as a member of the Association of Junior Rodeos in America.

She will major in elementary education at Texas Tech in Lubbock.

Applications for the TSTA scholarship were submitted from seniors from Abilene, Snyder, Sweetwater, Roby, Hobbs, Blackwell, Rising Star, Hamlin, Anson, Rotan and Wylie.

Pantex To Work On Weapons

AMARILLO (AP)-Employees of the Pantex nuclear assembly plant here will continue work on two weapons targeted to carry neutron warheads so the weapons would be ready should President Carter order production of the controversial warheads.

An administration spokesman told the Amarillo Globe-News that work will proceed on a modified Lance missile and an eight-inch artillery shell.

Neutron warheads, sometimes called enhanced radiation warheads, would also be assembled at the plant, the nation's final assembly point for nuclear weapons.

"It will take about 14 months to add different safety features to the Lance and equip it to handle a neutron warhead," the spokesman said. He said the eight-inch artillery shell is 30 months away from production.

Neutron warheads would kill through massive doses of quickly dissipating radiation.

Texas Colder And Drier

By The Associated Press

Slightly cooler and drier weather was on tap for Texas today after a cool front moved eastward out of the state.

The front barely missed triggering violent weather in Texas as it stirred up severe weather just over the state lines in Arkansas and Louisiana. Tornadoes were reported near the airport at Shreveport, Louisiana and at two separate locations in Arkansas as the weather system moved eastward.

Forecasters predicted slightly cooler temperatures for Texas for the next two days and said no rainfall was expected. Highs were expected to be mostly in the 70s and 80s with a few readings expected to reach the 90s in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas.

Early today, some light drizzle was being reported from near College Station to Houston and fog was noted along the coast. Early morning temperatures covered a wide range from the upper 30s to the lower 70s. Extremes ranged from a chilly 35 at Dalhart in the Panhandle to a warm 75 at Brownsville in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Some early morning temperature readings included 37 at Amarillo, 43 at Wichita Falls, 57 at Texarkana, 50 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 65 at Austin, 71 at Lufkin and Houston, 75 at Corpus Christi, 62, at Del Rio, 57 at San Angelo, 43 at El Paso and 38 at Lubbock.

Rep. Passman To Ill To Appear

WASHINGTON (AP)-Former Rep. Otto Passman is suffering from "significant depression, lapses of memory and an inability to concentrate and think clearly," his lawyer says.

Attorney James Hamilton told U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker on Monday that Passman is too ill to be arraigned on influence-peddling charges. He asked for at least another month before proceeding with the case.

There are more than 200 breeds of sheep worldwide.

You can do it!

Weatherstripping and caulking around doors and windows stop energy leaks.

In time, even tiny air cracks can add up to large heating and cooling losses. But sealing those energy-robbing cracks isn't all that hard. You can do it yourself with Texas Electric's free booklets on caulking and weatherstripping. They're part of a series we're offering to energy-conscious homeowners who want to make their homes energy efficient. Using basic tools and readily available materials, even unhandy people can caulk and weatherstrip their own homes to keep energy costs down.

Other booklets in the series cover insulation, storm windows, ductwork, and general maintenance. Just call us, or ask for the booklets on the comments section of your electric bill. See how easy it is to make your home energy efficient.

Awards Presented At WTC Banquet

The presentation of several awards and the handing out of letter certificates highlighted the 1977-78 Western Texas College Athletic Banquet held in the WTC student center last night.

Those receiving special recognition and mention were Westerner basketball players Jon Moorehead and Julio Gallardo and Duster player Cindy Luttrull.

Gallardo, a sophomore from El Paso was awarded a plaque in honor of being chosen "Most Valuable Player" by his teammates. Moorehead, also a sophomore from El Paso, was given an award by Coach Nolan Richardson. The award was presented in honor of Moorehead's "one hundered percent effort every single day...giving to the team:..enthusiasum and unselfishness."

Miss Luttrull was recognized for the efforts which gained her All-American status. The Laverne, Okal. native was also named all-conference and all-region. She was recognized by Duster Coach and WTC Athletic Director, Dr. Sid Simpson.

A number of other players from both the women's and men's teams were recognized for all-conference status and for receiving letters.

Others receiving recognition include the Rodeo Team, under direction of Van Rigby. Especially noted was Rode Walker of Abilene, who may qualify for the upcoming national event by being one of the two top contestants in the region.

Also recognized were Coach Bob O'Day's Westerners golf team, which currently holds the lead in conference play. Especially noted were the four sophomores, Chris Brown of Midland, Terry Kendrick of Perryton, Ronald Koerth of Ozona and Miller Scott of Clyde. In current Western Conference standings, Scott is first with a 71.4 average, followed by Brown, 2nd, 72.6; Koerth, 3rd, 72.7; and Kendrick, 5th, 73.8.

Mickey Baird presented certificates to cheerleaders Diann Scurlark of Stanton, Elida DeLoera of Loraine, Stacy Hoover and Patricia Edwards of Spur, and Teresa Sterling of Ira.

Dr. Simpson also presented two other "special" awards. These included plaques to Dennis Ball tor his continual aid and support of WTC athletics, and to Bill McClellan of The Snyder Daily News for sports coverage during the year.

Master of Ceremonies was Dr. Gil Fleer. Guy Sullivan, booster club president, added his appreciation to the board members and banquet organizers.

Invocation was given by Dr. Robert Clinton, WTC president. Dr. Ben Brock gave the benediction.

Rodgers Wins 'Boston' Again

BOSTON (AP) - Bill Rodgers put another trophy on display in his local sporting goods store today after winning the Boston Marathon in the closest finish of the classic's 82-year history.

"What was unique about this race was that I had a guy on my tail right to the finish line," the 30-year-old former school teacher said Monday after winning the Boston Marathon in 2 hours, 10 minutes, 13 seconds, only 18 seconds off the course record he set in 1975.

Rodgers wasn't kidding. He was actually chased to the finish line by unheralded Jeff Wells, a 23-year-old seminary student from Dallas. Wells charged home in 2:10.15.

"I'm grateful to God, but I should have pushed more," Wells said without disappointment over his vain bid to overtake Rodgers. "I can't be disappointed. In fact, I'm just grateful that I finished second."

Rodgers, winner of four marathons last year, although he was forced to drop out after 18 miles in Boston, wore down his chief rivals in the field of 4,210 starters in the 26-mile, 385-yard Hopkinton-to-Boston run.

The victory gave Rodgers victories in the three most important world marathons in the past seven months. He previously won the New York City Marathon last October and he won at Fukuka, Japan in December.

Frank Shorter, the 1972 Olympic marathon champion and the 1976 runner-up in Montreal, was the first to wilt Monday, falling back halfway through the race, finally settling for a 23rd place finish in 2:18.15.

Barron Women's 1st Place Finisher

BOSTON (AP) - A television sportscaster from Atlanta, who says she'd never won anything in her life, walked off with a Boston Marathon laurel wreath as the first woman finisher in the 82nd annual event.

Gayle Barron, 33, captured the prize with a time of 2 hours, 44 minutes, 52 seconds Monday, slightly more than two minutes off the record set in 1975.

"I feel great," she said. "It was just my day to go fast."

Barron, who has been running for more than 10 years, said this is her 12th marathon and her fifth race since September.

"I was just so rested," she said. "I didn't run for a couple of days because I had a sore ankle."

Barron passed this year's favorite in the women's division, Kim Merritt of Racine, Wis., about six miles from the finish. Merritt finished fourth at 2:47.52.

Waits Burns Rangers With Two-Hitter, 6-0

CLEVELAND (AP) - Cleveland Indians' lefthander Rick Waits is hoping to be something of a Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde this year as he gets his first chance to be in the regular starting rotation.

After firing a two-hitter at the Texas Rangers in Monday night's 6-0 Indians victory, the usually easy going redhead said, "I want to be cockier, be aggressive against other teams.

"I want to overpower them instead of waiting to see what happens. It's something I've worked on all winter. And, tonight, I just decided I'd go out there and at least for three innings I'd just rear back and try to strike out everybody."

Texas Manager Billy Hunter, whose team has now lost six straight ames, was upset by an interference call that took the Rangers out of a scoring situation.

"At first, plate umpire Bill Haller said that Zisk did not get out of the way of the catcher. And I said he didn't have to. Then, in the fourth, Haller said Zisk was standing on homeplate and he interfered with the throw. There's no sense filing a protest if he's in the batter's box," Hunter said with a resigned shrug.

"We're making the little mistakes and little mistakes are magnified 1,000 times when you're not hitting."

Pruitt, who's a relative novice behind the plate, said, "I just thought Zisk was called out because the ball hit the bat. It had never happened to me before and I thought that was the ruling. I don't know where he was standing."

The Indians, who broke a four-game losing string, came up with all six runs - five of them unearned - off Texas starter Jon Matlack, 1-2, in the sixth inning.

The Bullets are hopeful the return of 6-foot-6 forward Bobby Dandridge to their lineup can improve the team's outside shooting and its bench strength.

Dandridge, who suffered a pinched nerve in his neck last week in a first-round playoff game against Atlanta, worked out here Monday afternoon and said he fully expects to be back in action tonight.

The Spurs grabbed a 1-0 edge in the series Sunday by whipping the Bullets 114-103 off the hot shooting of Gervin, who canned 35 points, including 25 in the second half.

The Spurs, second in the NBA in scoring, hit 51 percent of their field goal attempts while the Bullets, missing frequently from outside, struggled to put 39 percent of their shots in the hoop.

Cincy's Reds In Front; Plan To Stay There

By The Associated Press

The Cincinnati Reds admit to being a bunch of front-runners.

As a matter of fact, they like it that way.

"We're in front in the West Division and we plan on staying in front the rest of the way," Joe Morgan said Monday night after pounding three doubles to help the Reds beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-2 in the season's first confrontation between the powerful National League West rivals.

"When we're in front, we're tough to catch," noted Morgan. "And I know some people have been saying this first series doesn't mean much. But this game tonight is every bit as important as the games we'll play against the Dodgers in September.

Bill Bonham, who has taken the play away from Tom Seaver as the big winner on the Cincinnati staff, pitched eight innings of five-hit ball for his third victory of the season.

Phillies 6, Pirates 2

Jim Lonborg and Tug McGraw combined on a seven-hitter to lead Philadelphia over Pittsburgh. Along with his strong pitching performance, Lonborg drove in two runs, Greg Luzinski added a homer for Philadelphia off losing pitcher John Candelaria.

Lonborg's two-run double highlighted a three-run second inning for the Phillies. The Philadelphia starter later needed ninth-inning relief help from McGraw.

Mets 6, Cardinals 2

Doug Flynn smashed a tie-breaking single in the fourth inning and contributed another run-scoring hit in the sixth to lead New York over St. Louis in a contest delayed two hours and 22 minutes by three rain delays.

Flynn's hits backed the strong pitching of right-hander Nino Espinosa and pinned the defeat on Cardinal left-hander Pete Falcone. Espinosa boosted his lifetime record to 3-0 against the cards with relief help over the final two innings from Skip Lockwood.

Giants 5, Braves 1

Willie McCovey's two-run triple capped a three-run, fifth-inning rally that led Vida Blue and San Francisco over Atlanta. The victory was Blue's first in the National League and squared his record at 1-1. The left-hander went seven innings, allowing five hits and one earned run.

Tigers 10, White Sox 9

The Tigers rallied for four runs in the bottom of the ninth to beat Chicago. Ron LeFlore belted a two-run double, Lou Whitaker drove home the tying run with a single and the game-winner scored on a throwing error by White Sox right fielder Bobby Bonds.

Royals 3, Blue Jays 1

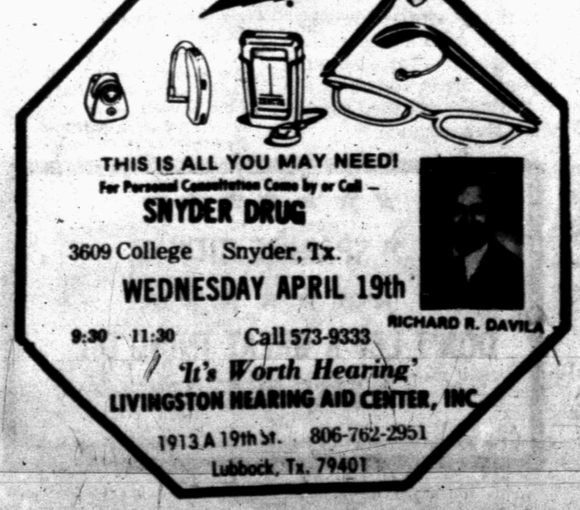

Kansas City won its seventh in a row on George Brett's two-run homer in the eighth inning. Winning pitcher Larry Gura, 1-0, limited the Blue Jays to three hits over seven innings.

Orioles 6, Yankees 1

Doug DeCinces smashed a two-run homer in the fifth inning and Baltimore went on to beat New York.

Only One Dropout...

Fundamental School Is Successful In Dallas

DALLAS (AP)-Some of the rules at David W. Carter Fundamental High School would have many high school students across the country thinking their lives had dropped 30 years into the past.

Imagine rules restricting dress and requiring large amounts of homework.

But the dropout rate in the fundamental school has been only one out of the 460 pupils who signed "contracts" last fall to attend the institution that is actually an entity within the 1,900-student Carter High.

In the fundamental school, grades are given for achievement, not effort, say school officials.

The school promises to "provide a quality education for every student in a safe and secure environment, respect the rights and responsibilities of all individuals...and keep parents informed of the academic progress and conduct of their sons-daughters."

Parents don't get off the hook, either. They're required to confer with teachers and to spend at least two hours each quarter at the school in some kind of volunteer work.

"I thought that putting more work on the kids would make 'em run," said associate principal Leonard Trapp. "But since we began in September, only one has asked to get out.

"In the past, sometimes, if a student showed up and went through the motions he was given a grade." The fundamental school students must pass minimum requirements in each subject taken before moving on to the next level.

Courses at the school-within-a-school are no different, but classes are more structured and more tests are given.

The dress code prohibits going without proper "undergarments," unbuttoned shirts, hair rollers, sunglasses, thongs, see-through or tank tops, and "suggestive" patches on clothing.

Anyone from the Dallas Independent School District may apply to the school, and entrance is structured along racial and ethnic guidelines. Presently, the ratios are 44 percent black, 44 percent Anglo and 12 percent Mexican-American.

Carter High's student body is approximately 70 percent black.

Superintendent Nolan Estes said the fundamental school concept is good for those who need a rigid, more sequenced approach to education. "But others need flexibility and different options," he said. "It's an approach of the 1930s and 40s, and still one good approach. But it is not the only approach."

Trapp said he looks forward to the month of May, when he will administer standardized tests to the Fundamental School students to measure progress against tests given last fall.

Guidance counselor Betty Hale likes the results so far. "I've been at Carter for 10 years and can see all the difference in the world in these kids," she said. "They're thinking of long-range goals and have self-discipline."

US Sells More Wheat To China

WASHINGTON (AP)-An additional 400,000 metric tons of U.S. wheat has been sold to China, the second sale announced within a week.

The Agriculture Department said Monday that the grain will be delivered through mid-1979, including 100,000 tons by this June 30.

Just a week earlier the department announced the sale of 600,000 tons of wheat to China, the first U.S. grain it has bought since 1974. There has been speculation that more will be purchased to help meet China's requirements.

However, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said that "we have no way of knowing the extent to which they'll be in the U.S. grain market because they're not signalling anything in advance. "But we have more than adequate stocks on hand to meet anything they may need," Bergland said Monday in an interview.

By comparison, the Soviet Union has bought about 14.7 million tons of U.S. grain, including 3.4 million tons of wheat and 9.3 million tons of corn, for delivery this year.

A metric ton is 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat. Thus, the one million tons sold to China total about 36.7 million bushels.

Stenholm Breakfast Tomorrow

Backers of Charles Stenholm, candidate for 17th District Congressman, will honor their candidate Wednesday morning with a $10 per plate fund-raising breakfast at the Spanish Inn.

Breakfast will be served at 7 a.m., and Stenholm will address the group.

Tickets will be available at the door, or they may be obtained in advance from Sonny Lee, Stenholm's Scurry County coordinator at 573-7430, or by calling Don West at 573-3555 or Dan Cotton at 573-8558.

The state of Delaware is named for Lord De La Warr, an early governor of Maryland. The name was first applied to the river, then to the Indian tribe, also called Lenni-Lenape, and later to the state.

Bell Fighting Fish To Complete Dam

By JAMES PHILLIPS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-Attorney General Griffin B. Bell, the most powerful federal prosecutor, is taking on a three-inch fish in the government's battle to finish building a dam in eastern Tennessee.

Bell, set to argue the matter before the Supreme Court today, will ask the nine justices for an order giving the Tennessee Valley Authority permission to complete the $119 million Tellico Dam. Environmentalists say the project threatens the existence of the tiny small darter.

Last year, the U.S. Court of Appeals agreed with arguments in behalf of the fish and stopped work on the dam, which is 90 percent complete. The darter is classified as an endangered species.

At issue is the Endangered Species Act which prohibits federal agencies from acting to harm the habitat of a threatened or endangered species.

Bell, in a rare court appearance, is expected to argue that the TVA is not violating the law because construction of the dam began in 1967, six years before the Endangered Species Act became law.

The snail darter was not discovered until 1973 and not classified as endangered until two years later.

The only known habitat of the tiny fish is the Little Tennessee River which flows about 40 miles southwest of Knoxville. The fish spawn above the nearly completed dam and grow to maturity below.

Biologists argue that completing the dam and closing its gates would inundate the spawning grounds. The structure already has stopped the snail darter from migrating upstream to spawn, the Department of Interior says. To overcome that problem, biologists trap the fish below the dam and carry them upstream to spawn in the shallows.

The case is viewed by environmentalists as a cause of the first order. A reversal by the Supreme Court, they say, could weaken the Endangered Species Act.

There are no estimates of the number of snail darters surviving in the Little Tennessee, but the Interior Department thinks about 1,000 still live in the waterway. Another 600 have been transplanted to the nearby Hiwasse River and have spawned.

District Attorney Suspended

PALESTINE (AP)-A state judge has ordered disbarred District Attorney Bill Green of Palestine suspended from office pending the trial of a removal petition filed against the East Texas prosecutor.

State District Judge Donald Carroll ordered the suspension Monday.

Green is appealing both his public lewdness conviction and an ensuing disbarment, but said he would begin removing personal belongings from his office within the next few days.

Anderson County Attorney Alex Namer filed the removal petition against Green.

Green said he thought Carroll's order would ultimately be overturned.

Carroll also said he would confer with State Bar of Texas members concerning a request that a temporary replacement be named for Green.

Green's district includes Anderson, Henderson and Houston counties.

Problem with gas

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been having a problem with gas. I have been watching my diet carefully. Milk and milk products caused much stomach upset and loose stools. I have totally avoided these products for the last six months but it has not eliminated gas.

My physician suggested yogurt for a 10-day period. This seemed to help. Do you think I should continue this on a daily basis? Is there anything in wine related to this problem?

I have avoided vegetables for months at a time. Please send me your pamphlet on gas and any information you can regarding this.

DEAR READER — Milk will cause gas and diarrhea and cramps in people who are intolerant to milk sugar (lactose). If that really is your problem you must be very careful about which yogurt product you use. Many commercial yogurt products are thickened with dry milk powder and contain excess amounts of lactose. They are worse than ordinary milk. Be sure and get a naturally fermented yogurt product. It has a chance of having less lactose in it than ordinary milk. However, I don't think it is likely to correct your gas problem.

Keep in mind that many people have gas problems because they swallow air. This is discussed more fully in The Health Letter number 6-8, Controlling Gaseousness, that you requested. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. In these instances it doesn't make any difference what foods you eat — it is stopping swallowing excess air that counts.

Then I'd like to emphasize again that everyone swallows some air. The gas pains occur in the person who has poor colon function to begin with. The spasms of the colon trap the gas and that causes the pain. Improved colon function may help your problem. I'm also sending you The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable and Spastic Colon, to give you some helpful hints on how to improve your colon function.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you comment on brain tumors, especially the early symptoms of them. At times I feel as though there is a heavy object inside my head over my right eye. A recent stroke left my mind in bad shape. I am 83 years old but very active.

DEAR READER — There are no specific symptoms for brain tumors. Remember that the brain is the main switchboard for all of your body functions. You can have a tumor that affects your walking, another that affects your hearing, another that affects vision, another that causes pressure and headaches and even tumors located in relatively silent areas of the brain that cause no symptoms at all.

The symptoms from any type of brain damage depends entirely where the brain damage is located. That damage can be from a tumor, injury, inflammation or even damaged cells from a stroke. That is why one person has a stroke and can't speak and another may have trouble with one leg.

Also, vomiting, which can be a symptom of brain tumor can be caused by many other things, including nervousness and food poisoning. So the only way the diagnosis can be made with certainty is by a careful medical examination.

A strengthening of family bonds will bring added happiness and joy to you this coming year. You could even make a big residence change or redecorate the homestead in some lovely manner.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You will not be giving your full attention to your work today. Therefore, you should attempt less, but try to do it well. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Catering to your whims is likely to be your major goal today. You might have fun, but overindulgence is likely if you're not careful.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're apt to seek out people today who will tell you what you want to hear, rather than the truth. You're only kidding yourself.

CANCER (June 28-July 22) Ignoring responsibilities for the sake of a good time today will make tasks more difficult tomorrow. Organize. You might be able to achieve both.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) To satisfy a personal desire today you may spend a little more than you intend to. So what? You're entitled to pamper yourself occasionally.

VIRGO (Aug. 21-Sept. 22) Don't be self-conscious about being demonstrative today. It's important to show someone hwo is fond of you that you are equally as fond of her.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Performance is what really matters today. Be a producer, not a pretender, and you will gain the admiration you seek.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't let your inhibitions deprive you of pleasurable experiences today. In social situations, let your hair down and have fun.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Go where you'll get the best bargain, rather than feeling obligated to do business with your usual source. Sentiment isn't good sense today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're likely to make decisions today based upon that which is easiest, rather than that which is the wisest, thus denying yourself the best outcome.

Bridge For Sale In Pieces

WENATCHEE, Wash. (AP) - FOR SALE: One do-it-yourself steel bridge, 216 feet long, slightly used but suitable for small creeks, $15,000 minimum.

Show up here at the Chelan County surplus equipment auction May 13 and it could be yours. County Engineer Lloyd Berry says it's a steal.

The steel truss bridge, built in 1911, is in pieces now. But Berry says, they're all numbered and coded for easy re-assembly.

However, Berry warns, prospective buyers must supply their own wooden decking for the span, which is 24 feet wide and has a 14-foot height clearance.

The bridge originally carried traffic over the Spokane River near the Idaho border, but in 1950, Chelan County bought it from Spokane County and placed it about four miles up the Entiat River.

The structure was replaced in 1974 because the county got a federal grant for a wider, concrete span, Berry said.

The Lithuanian statesman and scholar Jonas Basanavicus, born in 1851 in the province of Suwalki, practiced as a physician in Bulgaria for several years. He is known as the "Patriarch of the Lithuanian Renaissance."

Letter Protest Is Urged On Tuition Tax Credit

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Statewide education leaders have urged Texans to deluge congressmen and senators with mail opposing income tax credits for private school tuition.

"This is the biggest single threat the public schools have faced at the congressional level at any time since Congress became involved in public school legislation," said Austin school board member Will Davis, immediate past president of the National School Boards Association.

Appearing with Davis at a news conference were Carolyn Harrell, president of the Texas State Teachers Association; Tess Norris, president of the Texas Association of School Boards; Mrs. G. Kent Rider, president of the Texas Council of Parents and Teachers; and Charles Mathews, executive director of the Texas Association of School Administrators.

They said there is a real threat Congress will pass the tax credit bill, which Davis asserted would resegregate schools and financially injure public schools.

A credit is a straight reduction of one's income tax payment, and Davis called the bill "a grant program for private education."

He said the bill would help private schools established in both the South and the North as a way for students to avoid racial integration.

"Private schools would receive these federal monies without any of the civil rights limitations we have applicable to us in the public schools," Davis said.

He added the credits would shift federal dollars from public schools to private ones and erode parent and voter support for school district budgets.

Mrs. Rider said the tuition tax credit "would help a select category of students rather than the average."

"Private schools are extremely discriminatory. Public schools would become a refuse or trash heap for children who cannot afford to go to private school," Mrs. Norris said.

Matthews said President Carter might not be able to live up to his threat of a veto if Congress attaches the tax credit as an amendment to "legislation this administration must have."

A bill approved by the Senate Finance Committee provides a $500 tax credit for tuition at private elementary and secondary school or colleges.

The House Ways and Means Committee eliminated the credit for elementary and secondary schools but approved a $250 credit for private college tuition.

"We know that on the floor of the House of Representatives a major concentrated effort will be made to put back in the credit for elementary and secondary schools," Davis said.

Dutch Want Drug Law Amended

UNITED NATIONS (AP)-A representative of the Netherlands told the U.N. Economic and Social Council that his government wants the 1961 international Convention on Narcotic Drugs amended so that the Dutch can use and keep marijuana.

The convention requires all signers to prohibit possession and use of marijuana, also known as cannabis. Dutch delegate E.J. Brouwers said each country should be allowed to write its own rules concerning domestic consumption so long as it banned export of the drug.

Inquirer And Coburn Win Pulitzer Prizes

NEW YORK (AP)-The Philadelphia Inquirer, one of the nation's oldest newspapers collecting its fourth award in four years, and Donald Coburn, a fledgling dramatist who has written but one play, have won 1978 Pulitzer Prizes.

The New York Times, in a triple honor unprecedented in the 61-year history of the awards, captured Pulitzers Monday for commentary, criticism and international reporting.

Coburn, a 39-year-old advertising and marketing man, won the prize for drama for "The Gin Game," a Broadway hit starring husband and-wife actors Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy who portray two elderly patients playing cards in a nursing home.

The Inquirer received the Meritorious Public Service award for a series of articles by court reporters Jonathan Neumann and William K. Marimow on police brutality in the City of Brotherly Love.

Awards to the Times went to theater critic Walter Kerr; Henry Kamm for his stories on the "Boat People," Vietnamese refugees; and William Safire, for his columns on the Bert Lance affair.

In the field of arts and literature, E.B. White, whose collected essays and letters have been best-sellers in the past year, won a special citation for the full body of his work, including such children's classics as "Charlotte's Web" and "Stuart Little."

James Alan McPherson's "Elbow Room," a collection of short stories on the black experience in America, was the fiction award winner. Walter Jackson Bate won his second Pulitzer prize for biography with "Samuel Johnson." He had won in 1964 for a biography of John Keats.

The Pulitzer prizes in journalism and the arts were established in 1917 by the late Joseph Pulitzer, publisher of the old New York World. They are awarded each year by the trustees of Columbia University upon recommendation of an advisory board.

Other journalism awards went to:

-Jeffrey MacNelly, 30, editorial cartoonist for the Richmond News Leader, who also won a Pulitzer in 1972.

-Anthony Dolan of the Stamford Conn. Advocate, who was honored for special local reporting for an investigation of corruption in Stamford's police, fire, public works and communications departments.

-J. Ross Baughman of The Associated Press won the prize for feature photography for pictures of guerrilla areas of Rhodesia.

-Richard L. Strout, 80, who received a special award for his Washington correspondence for the Christian Science Monitor and the New Republic.

Close Eye Kept On Trash

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) - Police here are keeping a close eye on the local garbage, making sure that the trash that's being collected for bounty actually comes from Kalamazoo and not from elsewhere.

Last week, the township announced plans to pay residents $2 for each bag of trash picked up from local streets and delivered to one of four fire stations.

"We've had people call from Vicksburg, Richland and other areas, wondering if they could collect the money, too," township Treasurer Leonard VandenBerg said. "We tell them that if they want to come to our township to pick up trash, we'll be glad to pay them. I don't know how many are doing that."

By Monday, 1,400 trash bags had been handed out to people who said they wanted to pitch in.

But VandenBerg acknowledged that it's difficult to determine with certainty whether the trash being brought in actually comes for township streets.

"We've had our police officers keep their eyes open and they report they (local streets) are looking cleaner," he said.

Argentina Meat Shipments Banned

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Agriculture Department says it won't allow any more shipments from an Argentina meat packing plant into the United States until the packer can "assure sterility" of its products.

The government ordered a "precautionary recall" of canned beef from the plant Monday because of possible spoilage and a threat of food poisoning. Officials said the recall involves canned beef products bearing various labels, but with the identifying number 1964 stamped on the lids of the cans and possibly on labels.

There are 6,400 miles of streets in New York City.

Educators To Salute Aikin

AUSTIN (AP) - A group of educators announced today that retiring Sen. A.M. Aikin, D-Paris, will be honored July 18 at a dinner in the Special Events Center at the University of Texas in Austin.

The announcement said the educators' salute to Aikin was sponsored by 18 professional education associations and friends of public education across the state.

Aikin, dean of the Senate, will retire at the end of his current term, having served in the Texas Legislature for 46 tears. He was instrumental in passage in 1949 of the Gilmer-Aikin laws which completely revised the public school system.

Steering committee members for the dinner are Alton O. Bowen, Texas Education Agency; L.D. Haskew, University of Texas; Orbry Holden, Texas Association of School Boards; Charles F. Mathews, Texas Association of School Administrators; Tom Prather, Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers; Callie Smith, Texas State Teachers Association and Leonard Prewitt, Texas Teacher Retirement System.

GRIVET Kits Ready For Market

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) - Versatile Electromechanical Tool. Not exactly a household word, but if John K. Gallaber Jr. has his way, there'll be a GRIVET in every home.

The GRIVET is a two-foot, two-armed robot on wheels capable, says Gallaber, of pouring coffee, walking the dog or sweeping the floor.

Six Gallaber Research Inc. employees at a factory in Forsyth County are putting the first GRIVET together. And by June 1, Gallaber says he believes he'll be ready to market GRIVET kits - at $800 apiece. The customer will have to assemble the robot.

Gallaber, who founded GRI about a year ago to sell software and programming for business computers, says his machine is powered by a 12-volt battery. In addition to performing menial chores, the GRIVET's internal computer can be programmed to balance checkbooks and regulate heating systems, among other things.

Three Mishaps Are Reported

Three minor traffic accidents were investigated Monday by city police.

The city's first mishap took place at 9 a.m. in the 3700 block of College Ave. when a 1973 Chevrolet driven by George Cleveland Isbell was in collision with a 1978 Ford driven by Robert Joseph Bradberry of Colorado City.

The next mishap was at the intersection of 25th St. and Ave. T. Involved in it were a 1974 Plymouth driven by Tracy Dennis and a 1977 Ford driven by Jose Chaidez. The collision took place about 5:30 p.m.

The final mishap was at 41st St. and College Ave. at 9:30 p.m. Involved in the collision were a 1978 Chevrolet driven by Charles Bethel and a 1968 Ford driven by David Duthridge.

Gov. Briscoe Reminds...

Texans Don't Pay State Income Tax

By The Associated Press

Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe has reminded Texans as the federal income tax filing deadline came and passed that they are luckier than many other Americans who must also pay a state income tax.

The reminder from the governor came as many Texans filed their tax returns at the last possible moment and others prepared to cast their absentee ballots on the opening day of absentee voting.

Three weeks remain for what observers are calling one of the hottest gubernatorial races in recent history, in both the Democratic and Republican primaries. There are also races for Democrats for the U.S. Senate and 10 other statewide contests. Both parties will also have a non-binding referendum concerning horse race betting.

"Even a great many citizens with low to moderate incomes are having to dig up extra money to pay their income taxes," Briscoe said in San Antonio while there for the Alamo pilgrimage ceremony.

"Federal taxes have gone out of sight because too many politicians tried to buy votes with promises of big spending for special groups. The same thing will happen on the state level if enough voters favor Attorney General John Hill's idea that high-spending, pie-in-the-sky promises can be fulfilled without costing them any money," Briscoe said.

Hill, in Washington to argue a natural gas case before the U.S. Supreme Court, met with Texas congressmen Monday to urge them to rally support for hard-pressed farmers. He also sent President Carter a telegram asking him to consider an administrative order to increase target prices and loan rates.

The attorney general said "Even though Congress turned down the emergency farm bill last week, that fact still does not change the seriousness of the problems facing our farmers."

"The president's opposition is based on fears of inflationary pressures. But our farmers are suffering from inflation's impact on everything they buy to produce their crops, and the president's position forces the farmers to be the fall guy in the whole process," Hill said.

Rep. Joe Hubenak, D-Rosenberg, a Democratic candidate for agriculture commissioner, claims that his main opponent, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown, apparently has misused his state-owned airplane.

"This 30-year bureaucrat has reported the lowest travel expense of any statewide candidate just $1,100 in this campaign," Hubenak said at an Austin news conference. "I have spent more than $14,000 for travel in this campaign. In addition, the temporary incumbent, Reagan Brown, has reported spending only $800 for telephone expense - I have spent $3,350.

"I think the people have a right to know if their tax money is being used to pay for Brown's political campaign," Hubenak said.

His House Agriculture Committee has held meetings throughout the state, but Hubenak said he had asked for state repayment of travel expenses only when there were public hearings - at Pasadena, Brownsville and Temple.

O'Hair Suit Is Dismissed

AUSTIN (AP) - Federal District Judge Jack Roberts says the "In God We Trust" motto on currency does not violate the First Amendment guarantees of free speech and free exercise of religion.

Roberts dismissed the suit Monday that had been filed Sept. 2 by Madalyn Murray O'Hair, widely known leader of atheism. He said in a written order that she had not raised any arguments on which he could declare unconstitutional the 1955 law that mandates the slogan.

The judge pointed out that cases decided by the U.S. Supreme Court and the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals have already established that use of the motto on currency does not violate the separation of church state doctrine. He said a 1970 ruling by the circuit court held that the motto had nothing to do with the establishment of religion, that it's use was "of a patriotic or ceremonial character."

Mrs. O'Hair said the dismissal would be appealed.

'Drys' Hold Session Here

Another organizational rally of the Citizens for a Better Community was held last night in preparation for the wet-dry election May 8.

The principal action taken by the Citizens for a Better Community, the "drys," was to agree to have the executive committee direct the group's advertising campaign.

At issue in the May 8 election is the off-premises consumption of alcohol inside the city limits of Snyder. The wet-dry question was brought to the forefront earlier this month when a petition circulated by the "wets," the Snyder Upward group, that called for election, was submitted to the county clerk and the county commissioners.

In other action last night, the Citizens for a Better Community adopted the 1601 Ave. T address of George White, one of its members, as its mailing address.

The meeting last night was held at West Elementary and lasted approximately one hour. About 75 persons attended.

Water Delivery Rate Drops Off

The effects of curtailed deliveries to oil companies is having a substantial effect on the operating revenues of the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Revenues of $1,555,286 were only $11,000 above a year ago despite adjusted rates to the oil companies. Delivery of water had dropped off by 313,000,000 gallons for the period.

Revenue from the sale of 10 percent more water to the cities was up by $93,000, but those from sale of 20 percent less to the oil companies was down by $119,000. During the first quarter cities took 2,360,000,000 gallons and oil and industrial users 1,215,000,000.

As of Nov. 1, 1977, CRMWD reduced the amount of surface water to oil companies by one half as a conservation measure to preserve the reserves in Lake J.B. Thomas. Directors have given notice that if there is not a sizeable runoff into the lake prior to May 1 then all deliveries from the lake to oil companies will be suspended, a development which likely would pull revenues below a year ago.

Small Doses About Health

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

NEW YORK (AP)-The three-martini lunch makes the drinker function below par for the next three hours, says Dr. William R. Cunnick Jr.

That estimate is based on a standard 1½-ounce drink, but the usual martini may be double that amount, says Cunnick, president of the New York affiliate of the National Council on Alcoholism.

If drinking continues into the evening, he says, the person may "drift into dependence on the drug alcohol without realizing it. Damage to the liver, brain and other vital organs is so insidious that it may not be noticeable for a period of years."

Healthier Teeth

A combination of five preventive methods given children reduced their tooth decay by 77 percent compared with kids given only instructions in oral hygiene, reports Dr. Robert A. Bagramian of Ann Arbor, Mich.

The five steps, he told the International Association for Dental Research, were: Cleaning the teeth, coating the chewing surfaced with a plastic sealant, applying a flouride gel, supervising the children first and sixth graders in good oral hygiene practices, and filling all decayed teeth.

The 77 percent benefit, he adds, was on top of about a 60 percent reduction in tooth decay because the children lived in communities with fluoridated water.

Smokers Addicted

Cigarette smokers are addicted to nicotine physiologically, and they smoke to prevent withdrawal symptoms, not because smoking is psychologically gratifying, says Dr. Stanley Schacter, a Columbia University psychologist.

When they switch to low-nicotine brands, they smoke more cigarettes or puff them more to get the amount of nicotine they are accustomed to, he says.

Some evidence indicates heavy smokers of low-nicotine cigarettes run higher health risks than light smokers of high-nicotine cigarettes, Dr. Schacter writes in the Annals of Internal Medicine.

The fission of one pound of Uranium-235 releases approximately the same amount of energy as the burning of 10,000 tons of coal.

Movie Stunt Pilot Killed

EL TORO, Calif. (AP)-A movie stunt pilot was killed when his light plane crashed into a mountain peak near here as he was returning from scouting a film location, officials said.

Orange County Sheriff's Lt. Charles Conaway said Frank Tallman was alone in his plane when it crashed Saturday. Tallman, 59, had recently completed some stunt work for the television series "Black Sheep Squadron," based on the exploits of World War II flying ace Gregory "Pappy" Boyington.

Robert Bunsen, inventor of the burner that bears his name, was born in March 1811.
