Clements Asks Out-Of-State Nuclear Waste Ban

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Friday nuclear waste from California might be entering Texas and — if true — he is going to put a stop to it.

He said California's low-level radioactive waste was California Gov. Jerry Brown's lookout, not his.

"There is some information...that here recently we have received some low-level waste from California. That's nonsense. Gov. Brown can look after his own waste, period," Clements said at his weekly news conference.

He said he had assigned Doug Brown, a member of his staff, to get the facts of the situation from the State Health Department and Todd Research and Technical Development Co., which reportedly received the radioactive material.

A Todd executive told the Senate Natural Resources Committee on Thursday his firm has 11,000 barrels of low-level nuclear waste stored in the open on Pelican Island.

Clements said he wants to know how much of the waste stored by Todd is interstate and how much comes only from within Texas.

"I am in favor of stopping out-of-state interstate shipments," Clements replied. "One way is to stop it and let somebody else find out what the law is."

Clements has said in the past he believes Texas should take care of its own nuclear waste but has no obligation to store that from other states.

The governor said "I disagree vigorously" with Sen. A.R. Schwartz' criticism of Coast Guard handling of the Nov. 1 collision of the tanker Burmah Agate and the freighter Mimosa near Galveston.

Schwartz, chairman of the Senate Natural Resources committee, said fires aboard the tanker could have been quenched the first day if the Coast Guard had acted more quickly and with the right equipment.

"I think most of that is political rhetoric," Clements said. He said the Coast Guard "has done an admirable job...I think they did all they could under the circumstances."

Clements was asked if the criticism could apply to the testimony of Dr. Roy Hann, a Texas A&M expert on oil spills, who said Coast Guard response was "less than adequate."

The governor replied that Hann had made incorrect predictions of wildlife and fish losses during the Mexican spill.

"I've discussed this with the administration of Teas A&M, that I would like statements coming out of there to be accurate," Clements said.

Schwartz responded to Clements' remarks by saying, "In a word, the governor is not adequately informed."

He said Hann's "qualifications are impeccable" and added that he has "no peers" when it comes to the subject of oil spills, their effects and control.

The Coast Guard deserves criticism, Schwartz said, because it took 57 hours to respond to the Burmah Agate fire and oil leakage.

"I do not believe the governor has the same degree of anxiety about the Texas coast as the people who live on the coast have every day. ... God willing, the governor and I will always disagree as long as he lives and I live," he said.

FBI May Be Called Into New Mexico Thefts, Fraud Case

By KIMBERLY PALMER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

NEW MEXICO law officials say they may ask the FBI to help investigate the former head of two Texas mental health centers being held in Clovis, N.M., on charges of possession of stolen property and fraud.

Clovis District Attorney Bill Bonham said the investigation of Ronald V. Whittington, currently a special education counselor for the Hobbs municipal school district, "is far from being over." Bonham said his office is asking for FBI involvement because of possible interstate transportation of stolen property.

Law enforcement officials from Clovis and Hobbs have recovered more than $200,000 worth of property from Whittington's residences in both those cities.

Police had been searching for property reported stolen in Waco and Austin.

Among the items recovered by police were rare books and documents, reportedly totaling $125,000 in value, including the only remaining copy of James Fenimore Cooper's "The Spy," an 1803 memo from President Thomas Jefferson announcing the Louisiana Purchase, a copy of the Emancipation Proclamation and a Porfirio Salinas masterpiece, "Cactus of Texas," worth about $15,000, that was reported stolen from the Student Union at Baylor University in 1976.

Additional Property Recovered

On Friday, additional property that had been reported missing turned up when an unidentified man brought a box to the Hobbs police station he said Whittington had given him for safekeeping, said Hobbs police chief Robert Cheney.

John White, criminal investigator with the Hobbs police department, said items in the box included: first edition copies of Mark Twain's "Tom Sawyer," "Huck Finn," "Life on the Mississippi," and "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court"; a copy of the Journal of Congress, volume 1, from September 1774 to January 1776; Abraham Lincoln's copy of Washington's Handbook printed in 1861; a 1787 copy of the Constitution for 16 states; and a sketch of John F. Kennedy, drawn from life by Louis Lapas.

Whittington, who was director of Lubbock's Regional Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center from August 1977 to 1978, was arrested Tuesday on a Curry County charge of possession of stolen property in excess of $2,500 and a Lea County charge of fraud in excess of $2,500.

Bond Set At $25,000

Whittington was in custody Friday night in the Lea County Jail in lieu of $25,000 bond.

The Lea County District Attorney's office filed the fraud charges against Whittington after a search of his Hobbs residence turned up items police said the psychologist reported stolen in an Aug. 8 burglary. Reports indicate Whittington had filed insurance claims in Hobbs totaling between $4,000 and $5,000.

Bonham said five insurance companies have become involved in Whittington's case.

Some Items Pawned

Clovis police said they became suspicious when several of the items Whittington had reported stolen turned up in local pawn shops, apparently pawned by Whittington.

Among items recovered shortly after Whittington's arrest were a first printing of the U.S. Constitution and an original oil landscape by Robert Wood according to Corpus Christi Det. Lt. Joe Rodriguez.

ACLU Suit Answered By School District

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE LUBBOCK public schools' policy on religion does not deny its students freedom of sppech, nor does the Constitution prohibit religious expression in the schools, school officials contend in their answer to an American Civil Liberties Union lawsuit.

In addition to the answer filed Friday in U.S. District Court, the school district filed a motion claiming the ACLU should not be allowed to collect any monetary damages in the suit.

The school district's action is in response to an ACLU civil rights suit filed Sept. 27 that seeks a ban on all forms of religious exercises in Lubbock public schools.

CAROLYN JORDAN
Announcement Expected Wednesday

In answer to ACLU charges, the district says in the document that the school board has established a freedom of religion policy, but it adds that religious exercises in the schools do not violate the Constitution or its amendments.

Speech Freedoms Provided

The district also contends that the policy permits students freedom of speech as guaranteed by the First Amendment, and that if the policy violates other provisions of the Constitution, "...then such provisions are in conflict with and are and should be overriden by the First Amendment guarantee of freedom of speech."

The policy at issue, which was adopted by the school board on Jan. 25, states, "Insofar as religion is concerned, the Lubbock Independent School District adheres to the principle of freedom of religion as expressed in the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of Texas."

In defense of the trustees' policy, officials state that "the history of this nation and this culture are steeped in Christian background and heritage. Acknowledgement of and prayers to Deity have not been removed from the United States White House, Congress, the judicial system, the literature, the art or the music of this country and its people."

Participation Not Compelled

The statement continues that some Lubbock public school students acknowledge God in anthems, history reading and singing and that "those students who do not wish to make this acknowledgment or recognize God in these activites will not be compelled to do so."

"The Constitution does not and should not proscribe those activities and

Shah Asks Help For Sanctuary

NEW YORK (AP) — Unexpectedly barred from his Mexican haven-in-exile, the deposed Shah of Iran said Friday that he has asked President Carter's help in leaving the United States for a new sanctuary. He did not say where he wanted to go or what he expected of Carter.

The shah "wishes to reiterate his intention to leave the United States as well as his request to the administration for assistance in so doing," said a statement issued by a spokesman for Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

There was no comment from Washington on the request.

The 60-year-old former monarch was nearly ready to check out of New York Hospital when Mexico announced Thursday night that he would not be welcome to return, his spokesman said. The shah flew to New York Oct. 22 from Cuernavaca for gall bladder surgery and treatment of a long-standing cancer of the lymph glands.

At the hospital, the shah was in a position to leave on a moment's notice, should he decide on a new destination. His physicians have given him medical clearance to leave whenever he wishes.

Most of his personal belongings were removed from his 17th-floor hospital room during the night. And on Friday morning, doctors removed a tube into the shah's abdomen, which had been used in the removal of a gall stone over-

Speculation Rife Some In Prison

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States demanded Friday that Iran allow all 50 American hostages to be seen, acknowledging that it can account for only some of those held captive in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran for 27 days.

"We have no way of telling what the condition is of the great majority of these people," Hodding Carter, the State Department spokesman, said.

Iran's new foreign minister, Sadegh Ghotzbadeh, gave assurances Thursday in a television interview that all the hostages are well-treated and well-fed.

Some Reported In Prison

However, reports persisted that some of the hostages had been moved from the embassy to an Iranian prison once used by the secret police of the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

"If the government of Iran is so certain that they are being well treated," spokesman Carter said, "then let the government observe the minimal decencies and meet the minimal requirements in the handling of all kinds of prisoners...

"Let us and the rest of the world know how each and every one of those hostages are," he said. "We have no way of knowing."

Few Outsiders Allowed

Only a handful of outsiders have been allowed into the embassy since it was seized on Nov. 4 by Moslem militants demanding that the exiled shah be returned to Iran.

The United States has refused to extradite the shah, who has been hospitalized in New York.

Those who have been inside the embassy since the seizure are an American congressman, Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho; the ambassadors of Algeria, France, Sweden and Syria; a representative of the Vatican and officials of the Red Cross.

None has seen more than a few of the American hostages, some of whom were reported bound and blindfolded. According to the State Department, many of the captives have not been seen at all.

'Magic Time' Produced By Goodfellows

"SOMETIMES the food and money runs out before the month does, but they are just like any other 5-year-olds, and Christmas is a magic time for them, too."

Chief Goodfellow likes to keep the magic in Christmas for 5-year-olds, and for all Lubbock children up to 14 who depend on him for Christmas magic-making.

He's been doing it — with the help of volunteers and assistance with money from the Lubbock community — for 44 years now and is gathering names for his 45th list.

Letters about little ones, who "know there won't be a lot of toys" but would "be happy to know someone thinks they are special," make Chief Goodfellow sad for a moment.

Then, he brightens with the thought that he and his anonymous band are the answer to magic Christmas for about 10,000 this year.

Those wishing to help with the magic should put names of any children they know about on the coupon in today's Avalanche-Journal, Page 10, Sec. C, and mail it to Chief Goodfellow, P.O. Box 491, Lubbock, Texas 79401.

Contributions to make the magic happen may be mailed to the same address.

For all those who help make magic for Lubbock's unfortunate children, Chief Goodfellow passes along laurels coming his way with almost every letter:

"May God Bless You, Goodfellow."

Carolyn Jordan May Make House Race

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

CAROLYN Jordan, Lubbock's senior city council member, is expected to announce Wednesday that she will seek the District 75-A House of Representatives seat now held by Nolan "Buzz" Robnett and already the race is tinged with controversy.

Mrs. Jordan, an attorney, was in Austin Friday to attend a Texas State Bar Association meeting and met with House Speaker Bill Clayton to inform him of her plans to run for the Legislature.

Ironically, Democrat Clayton will be in Lubbock Monday to attend a fund-raising reception for Robnett who is a Republican.

Mrs. Jordan, who will run as a Democrat, said Robnett will not officially have an opponent when the reception is held, adding, "I understand the speaker goes to all incumbent's receptions."

But Lubbock County Democratic Chairman Madison Sowder said Clayton ought to stick with those in his own party. "I don't think Clayton ought to be at the fund-raiser," Sowder said.

Although a letter of invitation to the event states it will be nonpartisan, Sowder said the event is clearly political.

Asked if it isn't unusual for a Democratic officeholder to appear as special guest at a function for a Republican, Robnett replied, "I don't think he (Clayton) knows the difference and neither do I."

The reception for the one-term legislator will be held from 5:30 to 7 p.m. at the University City Club.

Sowder said he thinks Mrs. Jordan has a good chance of defeating Robnett because she is "an experienced campaigner and knows lots of people."

"I have no doubt she'll run him a strong race," Sowder said, adding that Mrs. Jordan is a political moderate and should draw the support of most Democrats in the west Lubbock district.

First Woman On Council

The first and only woman to serve on the City Council, Mrs. Jordan was elected to her first four-year term in 1972 and now is the senior council member.

She squeaked by challenger Roy Middleton by 75 votes to win a second term in 1976.

Florida Sets Record Low; New York Digs Out Of Heavy Snow

By The Associated Press

A snowstorm in the Great Lakes area brought snow accumulations in western New York state to three feet Friday, while a cold snap chilled parts of the Deep South with sub-freezing temperatures.

Accumulations of two to three feet closed a 30-mile section of the New York state Thruway south of Buffalo.

"Send snow plows," said David Bell, a meteriologist in Erie, Pa., a Lake Erie shore community blanketed by 25 inches of snow. "The roads up here are pretty bad. They're really slick."

He said the heavy snow was caused by 24-degree air moving across the 49-degree lake.

Northern Florida and the Panhandle had temperatures in the 20s Friday after Tallahassee reported a record low of 22 early in the morning. The previous record for Nov. 30 was 24 set in 1959.

Some frost was reported in central Florida, but it was not cold enough to worry citrus farmers. Highs in southern Florida reached the 50s and temperatures in the 60s were reported in the Keys.

The central and western portions of the Great Lakes area did not get as much snow as the eastern edge of the lakes region.

Snow was 6 to 12 inches deep in extreme northeastern Ohio and snow was expected across the state Saturday.

Areas of northern Wisconsin along Lake Superior had up to 12 inches of lake-effect snow left from the storm that passed through Thursday, but the rest of the state had only flurries.

The storm hitting western New York state spoiled the warmest November in Buffalo in 31 years. Temperatures that had averaged around 44 degrees all month plunged to 26 as seven inches of snow fell Friday, bringing the city's total to more than two feet in two days.

Temperatures were in the 20s and 30s in the northern and central Plateau, the northern and central Rockies, the northern half of the Plains, the mid-Mississippi valley, the Ohio Valley, the Great Lakes and New England.

Temperatures reached the low 70s in southern Texas, southern Arizona and central and southern California. The rest of the nation had readings in the 40s and 50s.

Following were some early afternoon weather conditions in some key cities around the nation:

Central U.S. — Bismarck 28 cloudy; Chicago 25 cloudy; Denver 29 fair; Des Moines 30 cloudy; Fort Worth 43 fair; Kansas City not available; Mpls-St. Paul 27 snow; New Orleans 43 fair; St. Louis 32 fair.

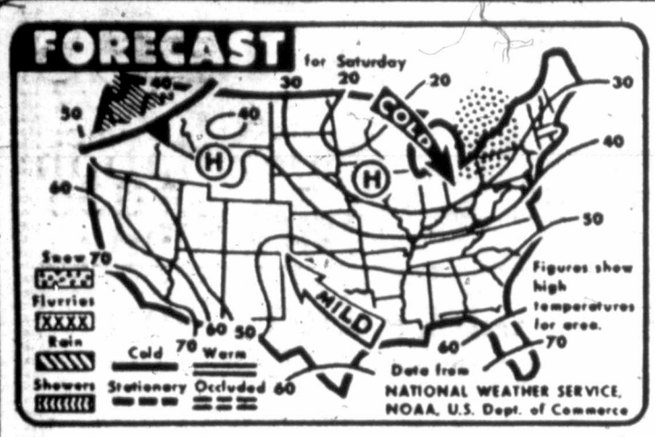

Western U.S. — Los Angeles 71 fair; Phoenix 60 fair; Salt Lake City 26 smoke; San Diego 71 fair; San Francisco 56 partly cloudy; Seattle 41 cloudy.

Canada — Montreal 32 fair; Toronto 30 windy.

Although Europe is about the same size as Canada, its population is greater than North and South America combined, according to National Georgraphic.

WINTER RETURNS — Tow trucks and stalled cars, two hallmarks of winter in western New York, were in evidence Friday as Buffalo got its first major snowfall of the season. Up to 30 inches fell south of the city and eight inches in a few hours downtown. (AP Laserphoto)

Fair Skies, Slightly Warmer Weekend Temperatures Predicted

Fair skies and slightly warmer temperatures are predicted for the South Plains this weekend.

The high temperatures today and Sunday should be nearly 10 degrees warmer than Lubbock's high of 46 on Friday. The National Weather Service predicts highs this weekend in the middle 50s, with lows in the middle 20s. No precipitation is expected in the area through Sunday.

The extended forecast calls for a warming trend Monday through Wednesday with temperatures expected to reach into the middle 60s during the afternoons and drop to the 30s at night.

Across Texas, clear but cool weather dominated the weather. Temperatures were mostly in the 40s and 50s statewide Friday afternoon.

The northern half of the state should continue to experience fair weather, with a chance of rain predicted through today for extreme South Texas.

Nationally, moderate to locally heavy snow continued over portions of the lower Great Lakes. At Buffalo, N.Y., 6 inches of snow fell between 6 a.m. and 12 p.m. Snowfall finally began to let up at Erie, Pa., where 20 inches of snow already covers the ground.

GEORGIA SHOOTINGS

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Three persons were shot to death and two others were wounded Friday night on a highway in Hall County, the State Patrol said. Trooper Dan Smith said the shootings occurred on U.S. 129 about eight miles north of this small Georgia community at about 6 p.m. The area is northeast of Atlanta.

Volunteer Of Year Named At Annual Big Brother/Big Sister Banquet

Bruce Greuling was named Volunteer of the Year at the second annual Big Brother/Big Sister recognition banquet Friday.

"Bruce is the epitome of what a Big Brother should be," said organization president Ben Handley in making the presentation.

When Greuling became a Big Brother in February 1975, he was an instructor pilot at Reese Air Force Base. Now he is a supervisor at Texas Instruments, where Handley said, he sometimes works 14-hour days, "but he still finds time to share with his little brother."

Children ages 6 to 16, from single-parent homes, are eligible for the program which matches the children with adult volunteers who share similar interests and hobbies.

The group has 185 matches of Big Brothers and Sisters with Little Brothers and Sisters, but a member noted, "We have a continual need for volunteers." Almost 40 children, mostly boys, are on the waiting list to be matched with adult volunteers.

The organization requires a commitment of at least one year when adults become volunteers. Greuling has been matched with the same Little Brother during the almost four years of his participation in the program.

Also honored was Capt. Jim Roper of Cannon Air Force Base in Clovis, N.M., who has been driving 200 miles round trip between Clovis and Lubbock every two weeks to visit his Little Brother. Roper has recently been on temporary assignment in Korea and Australia but has maintained weekly correspondence with his Little Brother. In addition, he has worked toward establishing a Big Brother/Big Sister group in Clovis.

Jim Douglass, who has served as executive director of the Lubbock organization since 1974, was given a plaque in recognition of his service. He is leaving the organization to work with the Ex-Students Association at Texas Tech University.

J.Q. Warnick Jr., judge in County Court At Law No. 2, was principal speaker at the banquet. Judge Warnick is a member of the board of directors of the Big Brother/Big Sister organization.

Officers installed at the banquet were Ben Handley, re-elected as president; Mackie Bobo, vice president; Noelia Garza, secretary; and Gus Jones, treasurer.

AN EDITORIAL:

SALT Is Servant Of Soviets

DESPITE THE administration's insistence that SALT II be considered in isolation, i.e., "on its own merits," the process of strategic arms limitation can not and should not be divorced from the total foreign policy picture.

As former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has made very clear in his memoirs, particular agreements are less important than is the commitment to a willingness to cooperate.

In and of itself, SALT can neither terminate nor even severely constrain the pace of super-power arms competition.

The SALT process is only one part of a broad foreign policy canvass. Consequently, Soviet misbehavior in foreign policy in the SALT era (November 1969 to present day) should not have taken the administration by surprise.

"IF TECHNICAL defense analysis has any meaning for political behavior," deduce analysts in the current issue of National Security Record, "it is reasonable to claim that (the U.S.) should not survive another decade which continued the trends of the decade of SALT thus far."

Of course, professional military calculation is nowhere near the be all and end all of foreign policy analysis. Nonetheless, America today confronts a near-term future wherein the Soviet Union is coming up very fast from an overall condition of marginal military inferiority to a condition of modest superiority.

SALT-sellers insist, fairly, it is not the fault of the SALT process that the USSR is moving from way-behind in long-distance force projection capability.

Anti-SALT-sellers can insist, no less fairly, that the SALT process has accomplished nothing worthy of note so far that would interdict that Soviet drive towards all-military level superiority.

They conclude:

"Like Imperial Germany prior to August 1914, the Soviet Union of 1979 is marching towards its place in the sun.

"Soviet leaders cannot be persuaded to change direction and assist in the building of a more cooperatively based international order. They have exploited American expectations for SALT."

The bottom line during the SALT decade, therefore, is that Russian geopolitical behavior should be considered an element of the SALT ratification process.

For the Soviets, unlike their American counterparts, SALT is the servant, not the master, of their foreign policy.

AN EDITORIAL:

JFK Death Site On Exhibit?

DALLAS IS going great guns toward achieving its goal of creating a museum, tentatively called "Tragedy at Dealy Plaza," at the site of the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

An estimated 150,000 persons a year would pay to see the exhibit on the sixth floor of the former Texas School Book Depository, the Dallas Historical Commission says.

In presenting its plans to the Dallas County Commissioners Court for restoration of the building, the DHC said a federal grant could be obtained to help underwrite the cost of the exhibit.

"WE NEED TO MAKE this a community effort," C. Judson Shook Jr., Dallas County director of public works, said in recommending a fund-raising drive for the estimated $500,000 needed for architectural modifications to the building.

The alternative would be to use local taxes.

Actual costs of putting together and exhibiting the assassination memorabilia can be underwritten by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Historical Commission said.

Chairman Conover Hunt-Jones declined to predict that admission fees would pay for the yearly maintenance and operation of the museum exhibit.

Dallas County owns the former depository and will be responsible for any tourist attraction at the site.

MAKING THE assassination site into a tourist attraction is certain to be controversial but, given people's natural curiosity which already attracts them to the plaza by the score, it's not a bad idea.

The Historical Commission has pledged that the exhibit will represent only the findings of official investigations into Kennedy's death, which will make it authentic.

That precaution nonetheless leaves plenty of room for periodic changes in the exhibit: Already, the Warren Commission report of 1964 lists Lee Harvey Oswald as the lone assassin while the House Select Committee on Assassinations concluded more recently that more than one person may have been involved.

Maybe Dallas could have a revolving exhibit based on both theories?

M. STANTON EVANS:

Blood Of Cambodians Also Soils Our Hands

WASHINGTON—The acknowledged facts about the Cambodian holocaust are these:

1—After the fall of Indochina to the Communists in April 1975, and the takeover of Cambodia by the Khmer Rouge government of Pol Pot, something like three million human beings were exterminated.

This incredible toll of death and suffering was deliberately incurred, in obedience to Khmer Rouge-Chinese Communist theories about rebuilding society from the ground up.

2—In the past year, Communist Cambodia has been invaded by 180,000 Communist troops from neighboring Vietnam. A puppet government has been established in Phnom Penh that owes its allegiance to Hanoi.

3—AS A RESULT of this continuous warfare and the deliberate destruction of crops by the Khmer Rouge, famine is abroad in the land. It is estimated that 2.25 million Cambodians could perish of starvation—on top of those who have already died.

The situation has been aggravated by efforts of the Vietnam Communists to impede or block delivery of outside food supplies.

4—In the meantime, in a tragedy that is immense in itself but dwarfed by the death tolls in Cambodia, something like 800,000 Vietnamese have fled their homeland, which has become a rigid police state.

As many as half a million of those are the pathetic "boat people," untold numbers of whom have perished at sea, while thousands of others roam the earth as homeless refugees.

RECAPITULATING ALL this in chronological order, we have (a) Communist takeover in Indochina, (b) incredible genocide in Communist Cambodia, (c) police-state repression in Communist Vietnam, (d) the pitiful spectacle of the boat people fleeing from Hanoi's control, (e) bloody warfare between Communist Cambodia and Communist Vietnam, and (f) further unspeakable misery as the war between these Communist factions induces mass starvation.

Viewing this panorama of death and carnage, what is the conclusion of our self-appointed moralizers?

The answer, believe it or not, is that this appalling saga of Communist-inflicted misery is the responsibility of the United States—a result, specifically, of the American effort to forestall the Communist conquest of Indochina.

SUCH, IN any event, is the argument being offered by British journalist William Shawcross and other spokesmen in the media.

This thesis is so grotesque that it is virtually self-refuting. It argues that American bombing of North Vietnamese forces in Cambodia in 1970 and thereafter, and U.S. backing of the anti-Communist Lon Nol regime, somehow "created" and dehumanized the Khmer Rouge, and is thus to blame for its atrocities.

According to this logic, the best way to have prevented the terrors of Communist takeover would have been to avoid resisting it.

Suffice it to say in rebuttal of this absurdity that genocide and bloodbaths have marked the rule of Communism throughout this century—in the Soviet Union, Communist China, North Vietnam—irrespective of whether the Communist takeover met with much resistance or little.

THE COMMON feature is not American bombing beforehand, but the fact that helpless people have been submitted to the rule of a demonic ideology, as predicted by resisters.

It was denied by those who said we should stop resisting, undercut the "corrupt" anti-Communist governments in Phnom Penh and Saigon, and leave the region to its fate. On the historical record, those who counseled resistance were absolutely right, those who counseled bailing out were wrong.

Primary responsibility for the terrible misery in Cambodia today rests with the Communists who are inflicting it, but the secondary responsibility goes to those in Congress, the media, and the academy, who did everything in their power to undermine resistance to the Communist aggression.

Some portion of that Cambodian blood is on their hands—and they should not be permitted to forget it.

'See--There's Nothing Up My Sleeve'

GEORGE WILL:

Bush Taking Root

WASHINGTON—David Keene, cherubic at age 34, is political director of George Bush's campaign ("Mr. Keene, tracer of lost delegates"?), and was, in 1976, Ronald Reagan's southern coordinator.

Shortly before the recent face-off of Republicans in Florida, Keene was chatting with a former sidekick who still serves on Reagan's staff.

Keene mentioned that he and another of Bush's senior aides were going deer-hunting that weekend.

The Reagan man said: That's the difference between our two campaigns; while you play, we Reagan folks will be in Florida working.

Keene, thinking of the reports of strife within Reagan's staff, replied: No, the difference is that two Bush aides can go to a field together with rifles and both emerge alive.

Both Reagan and Bush emerged alive from Florida's straw vote.

But again (as in Iowa and Maine tests) it was Bush who did better than was expected by the press, the only people paying attention. Low expectations by the press can be a candidate's best friend.

Although just three weeks ago Reagan aides were saying that Reagan would beat Connally two-to-one, and although 20 percent of the voting delegates were picked by Florida party officials who are, by and large, adamantly Reaganite, Reagan aides were chipper because Connally put a lot of eggs—a quarter of a million dollars worth—in the Florida basket and didn't win or almost win.

AFTER FLORIDA, as before, Connally insisted that the Republican race is a two-man race between him and Reagan, because only he can beat Reagan.

My hunch is that the race may be, indeed, closer than most people think to becoming a two-man race, but that the two men are Reagan and Bush.

When Fred Harris, the former senator from Oklahoma, did not do absolutely disastrously in the 1976 New Hampshire primary, he bravely proclaimed that the winnowing-out process had begun and he had been "winnowed-in."

Let the record show that Harris contributed an amusing phrase to the public stock of harmless pleasure, which is more than many candidates contribute to the public.

Today Bush is being "winnowed-in" to the thick of things, fast. At this stage that means he is winning, if not the hearts and minds of the press, certainly the attention of the press.

THE PRESS is not half as powerful as it is pleased to think it is, but it is apparently powerful early in the nominating process, when a crowd of candidates competes in small constituencies (e.g., Florida straw votes, Iowa caucuses) and produces ambiguous results.

Then the press can manipulate the meaning of the results.

But wait. Is the press really exercising power? Who is manipulating whom or what?

A few Saturdays ago, in a small test in Maine, Bush beat, among others, Howard Baker by 20 votes out of 912 votes cast for the two of them. It is safe to say that this was not the largest event in the world that Saturday.

But because Baker was supposed to win, those 20 votes won for Bush the lead headline—page one, column six—in the Sunday New York Times.

The press has the power to do pretty much what it wants, but candidates, and the state party organizations that schedule small events like the one in Maine, seem able to play off the reflexes of the press.

All Bush needs to do now is keep rising, something his low standing in polls has given him plenty of room to do.

RECENTLY I mentioned to David Keene that a friend of mine wanted to contribute money to Bush's campaign. Within hours, my friend was contacted by one of Bush's brothers.

When I complimented Keene on this lightning response, he said cheerfully: Shucks, when you have only 3 percent support, you can organize it quickly, and every supporter gets organized by a member of the family.

Actually, all the "3 percent" jokes are now in Bush's past, casualties of the candidate's success. It is a pity, but when Bush really begins to roll, Keene probably won't be funny anymore.

He'll probably become grave and grand as befits, or is thought to befit, a Maker of History and Shaper of Destiny.

Vote For John Doe

WASHINGTON—One prediction can be made fearlessly about the state of the Democratic Party: If the party's Presidential convention were held tomorrow, it would be a ruddy mess.

This eventuality was assured when the left wing of the party gathered in Washington—1,500 delegates strong—and reminded Jimmy Carter and Ted Kennedy that it will have one-third of the delegates at next summer's hog pickin'.

The reminder was valid. At the Democrats' off-year convention last year, the leftists—calling themselves the Democratic Agenda—pushed through rules changes giving a 50 percent share of the 1980 delegates to women and eliminating winner-take-all systems from the party primaries.

VALID, TOO, were the facts of the 1976 election as submitted by Jerry Wurf, president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes.

Democratic candidates know, he said, that only 28 percent of the voters elected Jimmy Carter. "That means they don't have to make it with 72 percent of us," he said. "It was the oppressors who went to the polls in 1976, not the oppressed."

Harrington had the folks on their feet and yelling when he called for price controls on the products of Big Business. "Not wage controls," he said. "Corporate monopoly price-fixing is at the root of inflation."

That was yummy stuff for millions of working stiffs who wouldn't think of attending a Democratic Agenda shindig. Because there are fewer board chairmen than blue collar types, cursing Big Business is very big out there on the hustings.

HARRINGTON & CO. called for mandatory bank credit for housing construction. They called for comprehensive national health insurance. They called for controls on home heating oil prices, and a publicly-owned gas and oil corporation.

Right. Whew! The list of demands is politically unrealistic. But as Carter and Kennedy fight it out, that list will hang over their heads like Damocles'—or Henry Wallace's—sword. It is another sign of the divisions within the Democratic Party.

Those divisions were frighteningly sharp in a recent nationwide Washington Post poll of 1,820 self-described registerd voters.

AMONG THOSE interviewed who identified themselves as Democrats, one-third of the Kennedy supporters said they would not vote for Carter against a Republican, and one-third of those who support Carter said they would not vote for Kennedy against a Republican.

In short, the Democratic situation is not normal. It is not merely all fouled up. As if the natural enmity between Carter and Kennedy was not enough to guarantee a year's blood-letting, the Socialists of the Harrington and Wurf persuasion are on the march.

Given that state of affairs, the temptation is strong to bet my bucks that the Democrats will wind up nominating a dark horse named John Doe.

Timely Quotes...

The weatherman is still wondering about the little old lady who called during a storm that dropped a few power lines as well as the temperature.

"Our power is off and it's cold in the house," she cried. "So until you fix it, I'm going to bed and get under my electric blanket."

Film At Eleven

DALLAS—By this time next year, it will all be over and we'll know who the next President will be. But already, with 12 hectic months to go, folks are beginning to yawn.

At a press meeting in New York, columnist Mary McGory declared a "moratorium" on political candidates. She's not going to write another word about any one of them until after Christmas.

Columnist William Buckley, seated next to her, nodded with an I-won't-if-you-won't gleam in his eye. He didn't come right out and say that went for Teddy Kennedy, too, but he agreed that the campaign circus is beginning to peak too early.

This was too much for Walter Cronkite, who grabbed the microphone for a grandfatherly reminder that presidential candidates are "news," and that to wipe them off the 6-o'clock shows for even a short breathing spell would be a "dereliction of duty."

STILL, WITH all due respect to Walter, there's plenty of evidence around that voters are beginning to dread the long, terrible months ahead. Now that everybody who's going to run has owned up to it, a lot of the suspense has gone out of the race.

All that's left is the grim certainty that, for the next 345 days, we'll have to listen to lots of bleary-eyed politicians tell us how they plan to save our world.

Ho-hum.

What makes it even more depressing is that it's already been going on for a long time. Even before the 1978 elections, we had candidates jockeying into position for 1980.

Jimmy Carter's been running for re-election for at least a year, and not too gracefully, either. Who can forget his threat that, in a race against Sen. Kennedy, he would whip his you-know-what?

RONALD REAGAN, of course, has been running ever since he lost out to Jerry Ford in a squeaker for the 1976 festivities. Now he's back on the tube with a routine that's as familiar as an old Fred Astaire rerun.

Teddy will spend hours not telling us what really happened at Chappaquiddick; Jimmy will go on about inflation and the energy crisis; and Baker, Connally, Bush, Anderson, Crane, Dole, etc., etc., etc. (there are 12 candidates altogether) will talk about leadership and confidence, motherhood and apple pie.

It's a little harder, at times, to figure out exactly what it is Jerry Brown's talking about, but you can be sure of one thing: He'll talk about it every chance he gets.

FOR MONTHS now, the papers and the news shows have been full of campaign hijinks. We sat on the edge of our seats to see who won in Florida, and it didn't mean a thing.

George Bush surprised everybody with a big victory in Maine—in a straw poll, yet. Rosalynn logged tens of thousands of miles pushing Jimmy for a second term before he'd even said he wanted one.

And Roger Mudd, in that now-famous interview, pinned Kennedy to the wall with questions about the kind of First Lady Joan Kennedy would make before we even knew for sure whether Joan's husband was going to give her a shot at it.

They do it better in England, you know. Three weeks of intense campaigning and it's all over. In Canada, they limit it to a couple of months.

But we stretch it out to a year of fancy footwork, plus another year of man-killing whistlestops that are guaranteed to ruin a candidate's digestion, mangle the bones in his right hand, turn him googly eyed from lack of sleep, and wash him up in November looking as old as the Democrats say Reagan would if he didn't have some secret youth formula.

ELECTION WATCHERS are already taking note of the unprecedented acceleration of this year's campaign as "the earliest and hottest ever," and they wonder if this is the best way to elect the finest possible candidate.

Can, as they say in the soaps, an exhausted hand-shaker find happiness with a nation blitzed into boredom from a year of campaign commercials, supermarket confrontations and curb-side baby-kissing?

Maybe the best advice comes from newsman Jim Wright of Dallas who, two months ago, warned readers that this campaign will not only be long, but dirty, and urged them to pace themselves throughout the name calling, lest they waste a lot of good "mad" before election day.

A lot of voters have already bought that. They're not mad; they're bored. And we haven't even slogged through the snows of New Hampshire yet.

Q. Why do the makers cut those little slits in the end of each paper sugar cube wrapper?

A. You must be a Seasoned Citizen. Mostly, those paper-wrapped cubes have been replaced with loose sugar packets. The slits in those cube wraps prevented the paper from tightening up, rippling and sticking to the sugar. Understand the sugar people had been throwing out cubes by the millions. Then some inventive soul wrote to them, saying the could save them a fortune with a simple notion. They listened. He demonstrated with a penknife. It worked. His reward is not in the record at hand.

A. Not the very first. Those were told to answer the phone by saying, "Ahoy! Ahoy!" But later subscribers used hello.

New Anti-American Violence Hits Embassies

By United Press International

Bombs rocked the U.S. Embassy in Thailand Friday and mobs of angry Moslems were beaten back from the embassies in Kuwait and the Philippines in another wave of anti-American violence sparked by the worsening crisis in Iran.

In Moscow, a group of Iranian students also planned to march on the U.S. Embassy but Soviet authorities doubled security around the yellow-stucco compound and "neutralized" the protest, a diplomatic source said.

Three Moslem demonstrators were reportedly injured in the Philippines but there were no American casualties in any of the protests, staged on the 10th day of Moharram, one of the holiest days of the Moslem Shiite calendar.

As the siege at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran dragged into its 27th day, the anti-American sentiment stirred by Iran's Islamic leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini spread to three countries largely untouched by the crisis until now — Thailand, Kuwait and the Philippines.

In India, the scene of violent anti-American rioting two weeks ago, some 50 Iranian students burned an effigy of President Carter in front of the U. S. Consulate in Calcutta. The students were dispersed by police.

In Bangkok, between two and four bombs exploded inside the compound of the American Embassy at dusk, breaking the retaining wall of a fish pond but causing no injuries, officials said.

Tai police rushed to the scene and sharpshooters in camouflage uniforms were posted around the compound in a speedy attempt to protect the embassy from further violence.

An American marine on duty at the time said he heard "about four explosions." But William Lenderking, the embassy press attache, said he heard only two. "Everything's kind of foggy, but they have investigators here. I heard two loud noises," Lenderking said.

Thai Prime Minister Kriangsak Chomanan, in a statement released shortly after the incident, indicated the bombs may have been planted by a Thai Moslem separatist group that distributed leaflets around Bangkok last week threatening attacks on U.S. targets.

Officials said leaflets were signed by the Pattani National Liberation Organization and warned of attacks against "Rockefellar, Yankee imperialism and Western powers infiltrating Iran."

In the tiny Persian Gulf sheikdom of Kuwait, a mob of several thousand chanting Moslems marched on the U.S. Embassy but was driven off by tear gas fired by national guardsmen who rushed to the scene in armored cars.

Witnesses said the protestors were mostly Iranian students and workers demonstrating in support of Iran's demand for the extradition of the shah.

Embassy spokesman Kevin Honan said the demonstration began in the morning and by noon the crowd had grown to several thousand.

"Kuwaiti security personnel used tear gas when one group came to within 300 yards of the embassy," Honan said, adding that the crowd eventually dispersed.

Riot police in the Philippines used water cannons to break up a mob of about 200 Moslems who tried to turn an antiAmerican demonstration in Manila into a march on the embassy.

In the pandemonium, three explosions shook the crowd but they were apparently large firecrackers and caused no serious injury, witnesses said.

Police turned on the water canons and arrested 179 of the demonstrators when they tried to march on the embassy, chanting "Return Satan Shah," and "Down with Carter peanut politics," officials said.

In Moscow, official sources said the Soviet Union alerted embassy personnel Friday morning that Iranian students planned to march on the U.S. Compound.

Extra Soviet militiamen were sent to stand guard in front of the embassy and dependants of embassy personnel were told to stay away.

The march did not take place and an official source said, "The Soviets used more effective means to neutralize the possibility of such a demonstration."

The latest anti-American pro tests came a day after Khomeini issued another of his sharp attacks on the United States — this time demanding that President Carter and his two predecessors — Richard Nixon and the late Lyndon Johnson — also stand trial as "accomplices" of the shah.

It was a similarly harsh attack by Khomeini that led to Anti-American riots throughout the Islamic world earlier this month and the burning of the U. S. Embassy in Pakistan in which two U. S. military personnel were killed.

Business Index Predicts More Economy Woes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government index designed to forecast business activity signaled Friday that the nation's economy is in for more trouble.

The Commerce Department's Index of Leading Indicators fell 0.9 percent in October after rising a weak 0.2 percent in September. The October decline was the largest since a 2.4 percent drop in April.

"The index is heading south in earnest and signaling the emerging weakness in the economy," said Theodore Torda, a senior economist at Commerce Department. "The recession is at hand."

There has been considerable debate since spring over whether the nation's economy actually has fallen into a recession.

The gross national product, the value of all the nation's goods and services, fell a sharp 2.3 percent in the second quarter this year, then rebounded a strong 3.5 percent in the third quarter. A recession generally is defined as two consecutive quarters of decline in the GNP.

Although some, like Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, contend a recession began in April and that the third-quarter figure was "a false signal," others believe the recession has yet to begin.

The October decline, Torda said, "is not particularly large or alarming itself." He added, "Looking at the trend of the index over the past year, it is signaling weakness ahead."

Torda said he did not expect the downturn to be severe as the 1974-75 recession, when the nation's unemployment rose above 9 percent. But Torda did not rule out some declines in the leading-indicators index that would match the 2 percent or greater declines of the last recession.

The nation's unemployment rate currently is in the range of 6 percent.

The index of economic indicators in October stood at 138.8, down sharply from its peak of 143.6 in October 1978. The current figure means the index is 38.8 percent higher than its base of 100 in 1967.

More than half the decline in October was due to a sharp drop in permits for home construction, said Commerce Department analyst Adren Cooper.

Six other components of the index also contributed to the decline: the number of companies reporting slower deliveries, liquid assets, contracts and orders for plant and equipment, stock prices, money supply and new orders.

Two components, the layoff rate and sensitive prices, rose. The average workweek was unchanged.

In other economic news Friday, Citibank in New York and a number of other major banks reduced their prime lending rate to 15.5 percent from a record 15.75 percent. The prime rate is the one charged to banks' most credit-worthy corporate customers.

The banks chose not to match the lower rate of 15.25 percent set earlier this week by Chase Manhattan Bank in New York.

Many analysts believe the actions signal the first break in interest rates since they began soaring to record levels earlier this year.

BOY DIES

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A 2-year-old boy dropped from second story of a burning apartment by his frightened mother has died of head injuries. Authorities said the mother, Carolyn Lawrence, 23, apparently panicked when flames spread across her living room. She kicked open a bedroom window, dropped the baby to the ground 14 feet below, and then jumped after him.

Southwestern Bell Workers To Transfer

About 100 Lubbock employees of the Comptroller Operations Department of Southwestern Bell will be transferred to other cities, to another department of the company here, or retired due to an economy move of comptroller operations to San Antonio.

District Manager Bob McNamara said the total number of employees with Southwestern Bell in Lubbock would not change because of transfers here of Business Service Center personnel.

Billing operations now carried out by the local office will be consolidated into San Antonio during the second quarter of 1980, and other accounting and computer operations will be moving during the third quarter, according to McNamara.

All permanent employees affected by the comptroller consolidation will be interviewed to determine if they wish to move to San Antonio, transfer to another department in Lubbock, accept a position in another city, or take retirement, McNamara said.

The Lubbock business office will continue to handle billing questions from customers, according to McNamara.

McNamara said employees have been hired on a temporary basis for the past several months to keep the number of transfers required by the consolidation to a minimum.

Comptrollers operations in Austin also are affected by the consolidation.

"We have a responsibility to our customers to operate our business as efficiently as possible," said McNamara. "Through this consolidation, we can continue to provide good service at a lower cost."

The consolidation of comptroller operations follows extensive studies and was authorized after it was determined that considerable savings could be realized from centralizing computer and accounting operations, McNamara said.

Carter Postpones Fundraising Trip To Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — President Carter postponed his Dec. 8 Texas fundraising trip Friday until the Iranian crisis cools off.

Lowell Lebermann of Austin, director of Texas events in the Carter re-election campaign, said ticket sales for a $50-per-person luncheon in Municipal Auditorium here would continue on a raincheck basis.

"The president has Texas high on his agenda when he is able to get back on the political hustings once again," Lebermann said at a news conference.

One event on Carter's original schedule will go forward but without the president, Lebermann said.

Guests at a $1,000-per-person brunch at 11 a.m. Dec. 8 will visit, however, with Carter campaign chairman Robert Strauss and Secretary of Energy Charles Duncan, he said.

Their $1,000 ticket, however, also will be good for a visit with Carter when he reschedules his Texas tour.

Lebermann said the $1,000-a-person event has raised $70,000 so far, with $150,000 anticipated.

When Lebermann originally announced Carter's plans Monday, he said the president would come to Texas Dec. 8 barring some "catastrophic" new development in the Iranian crisis.

"Yes, I would have to say the situation has worsened," Lebermann said Friday when asked about that statement in the light of Carter's decision to postpone the Texas trip.

He cited the decision of Iran's new foreign minister not to appear before the United Nations and an intensification of anti-American demonstrations.

Step 1 — Year of birth. Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Judge Rules Against Abolishing Office

FORT WORTH (AP) — Tarrant County Treasurer Howard Green worked for months to get voters to abolish his $25,000-a-year job, but now a judge says he must stay in his post. Green says he will keep fighting.

"We will carry this all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court," said Green, who was elected last year on a promise to scrap the office of county treasurer, which he says is an "antiquated example of continual featherbedding."

"We have lost the first skirmish, but not the war," he said.

County voters on Nov. 6 voted 3-1 to abolish Green's job, but state District Judge Arthur Tipps of Wichita Falls ruled Thursday that the voters might not have known what they were doing.

Besides, the judge said, it was a violation of the state constitution to do away with a county office.

"The voters knew what they were voting on," Green contends. "What's at stake here is whether the voters have a right to a better, more representative, streamlined county government."

Green said when he was elected he would eliminate the office and have its duties transferred to the county auditor's office. He maintains the office is waste of the taxpayers' money, gouging residents for $75,000 a year to sign checks and make trips to the bank.

He pushed a bill through the Legislature allowing voters to decide the question. And on Nov. 6 they did just that.

Tarrant County Commissioners then agreed to find jobs for the department's three employees.

But Tipps said, "I don't care about a bunch of witnesses coming up and saying what they understood.

"The wording of the proposition itself is proof. Nowhere does it use the word 'abolish' and I am not sure the voters knew they were abolishing a position."

The proposition on the ballot read: "Consolidation of the offices of County Auditor and County reasurer n this county."

Tipps ruling grew out of a suit filed by former Tarrant County treasurer W.B. "Bill" Gurley, 82. He maintained voters and legislators could not abolish an office created by the state constitution.

The jurist agreed that jobs established in the constitution could not be abolished by either the legislature or county voters.

Buck Wood, Gurley's lawyer, called the judge's ruling "gutsy." He said the county's interpretation of the enabling legislation could lead to wholesale abolition of all county offices if taken literally.

"If they want to abolish a county office, then they need to pass a constitutional amendment saying counties have the right to home rule government," he said.

Election Code Revision Decision Released

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislators trying to rewrite Texas' election laws decided Friday that an official recount could be made of any portion of an election, without recounting all ballots cast.

The decision, which will not be final until a February meeting of the Election Code Study Committee, was a rollback on findings of the Election Code Revision Commission of 1977-78 which was headed by former Secretary of State Steven Oaks.

Larry Murdoch, Dallas County clerk, said he thought election officials should be allowed to recheck a precinct's results without recounting the entire county.

"There is no use tying up the whole procedure, not to mention the cost it would be," Murdoch said.

The Oaks commission had recommended that any recount of votes "require a recount of all votes cast within the territorial unit for which the recount is made," including all paper, machine or electronic ballots.

The election study committee, headed by Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, reworded the recommendation to call for a recount when there is "a request for any unit of an election on any method of voting."

The final decision will be made by the 1981 Legislature.

Another 1977-78 recommendation, which was not acted on by the 1979 Legislature, would call for a district judge to automatically dismiss the appeal of an election contest if its timing conflicts with runoffs for other offices. Ogg's committee decided Friday that the judge should allow an appeal but set a separate runoff election for those involved in the contest.

If a candidate involved in an election contest should die, the contest could be carried on by his friends, the Ogg committee said.

Undersecretary Wants More Cooperation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nathan J. Stark, new undersecretary of health, education and welfare, said Friday he will work to foster "a little more cooperation and a little less suspicion" between government and business.

Stark, 59, formerly vice-chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh's health schools and once a top executive of Hallmark Cards, was officially sworn into the no. 2 HEW post at a ceremony attended by 300 persons.

"I hope to strengthen the partnership between government and the private sector because I believe we serve people best when we cooperate," he said.

HEW Secretary Patricia Roberts Harris commented: "Few, if any, programs in this department could not be improved by closer cooperation with their counterparts outside government."

Stark, a lawyer, has served on national advisory panels dealing with health issues. He helped create a major medical complex in Kansas City, Mo., but this is the first time he has taken a job inside government.

Missing from the ceremony were his former university colleagues, whose chartered plane was snowbound in Pittsburgh.

Mayor Uses $11,000 To Write Bus Riders

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Dianne Feinstein insists politics was not the reason she sent messages to 65,000 city transit riders at a cost of at least $11,000 in public funds.

"I think a mayor has a right to be a mayor whether there is a campaign going on or not," said Mrs. Feinstein, who is facing a runoff on Dec. 11. "After all, I am the mayor, not the challenger ... This is not a political message."

Packets containing a letter from the mayor and six unstamped postcards for the transit riders to use to register their complaints or compliments were printed under an "emergency" order from Richard Sklar, general manager of the office of public utilities.

The 65,000 packets were to accompany Municipal Railway "fast passes," monthly cards that entitle riders to discounted fares.

Sklar said there has been a recent flood of rider complaints. A Municipal Railway spokesman blamed a shortage of bus drivers and maintenance problems.

A deputy city attorney said that using public money to print the material was not illegal, but added: "It may not have been the wisest thing to do."

Supervisor Quentin Kopp, who trailed the mayor by two percentage points in the Nov. 6 election, called it a misuse of public money.

But Sklar said, "Transit systems all over the country use these.

"Mayor Ed Koch (of New York) writes his riders the same way."

Forbes Purchases Historic Glasses

NEW YORK (AP) — Forbes magazine paid $24,000 for a pair of black enameled opera glasses used by Abraham Lincoln the night he was assassinated at Ford's Theater, a spokeswoman for Sotheby Parke Bernet auction firm says.

The spokeswoman, Peggy Shannon, said the glasses would be put on display in the lobby of the business magazine's Manhattan office building.

Prices For Raw Products Rise In November

By DON KENDALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices that farmers get for raw products entering the consumer pipeline rose 0.5 percent in November, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said higher prices for broilers, eggs, oranges, tomatoes and milk accounted for most of the increase.

However, it said, lower prices for cattle, corn, wheat, grapefruit and lemons helped dampen the gains for the other commodities.

Compared with a year ago, the November average price of farm products was up 10 percent, the report said.

According to the preliminary November figures, the index of prices at the farm for meat animals dropped 1 percent from October due to the lower cattle prices. Hog prices rose during the month, however.

Prices paid by farmers to meet expenses, including living costs, were unchanged from October but averaged 14 percent higher than in November of last year.

The report said prices of poultry and eggs as a group jumped 13 percent from October. Even so, the index was down 1 percent from a year earlier, it said.

Farm prices of vegetables in November were up 9 percent from October, including gains for tomatoes, watermelons and green peppers. The index was up 12 percent from a year ago.

Retail food prices are expected to average 11 percent higher than in 1978 when they gained 10 percent, on the average. Agriculture Department economists say a further increase of 8 percent is likely in 1980, but the gain could range between 7 percent and 11 percent.

The economists do not consider changes in the farm price index for a single month to be reliable indicators of future trends at grocery stores. For example, farm prices this year now have increased in six months, dropped in four and remained unchanged in one.

However, a steady upward trend in farm prices over a longer period can have an impact. Inflation and the rising costs of transporting, processing and merchandizing food after it leaves the farm has had a greater impact in recent years, however.

More than 60 cents of each dollar paid by consumers for food goes toward paying those middleman expenses.

Farm prices in November averaged 237 percent of a 1967 base price average used for comparison. The index was 236 percent in October.

The November parity ratio for farm commodities was 68 percent, the same as in October. In November of last year, it was 71 percent.

At 100 percent, the indicator would mean, theoretically, that farmers have the same buying power they had in 1910-14.

For example, the average actual price of wheat in November was $3.90 a bushel. That was 64 percent of the November parity price for wheat of $6.10 a bushel.

The report also said:

— Cattle averaged $64.20 per 100 pounds of live weight nationally in November, compared to $65.10 in October and $51.90 in November 1978. Those are averages for all types of cattle sold as beef.

— Hogs averaged $34.40 per 100 pounds, compared to $34.00 in October and $47.30 a year ago.

— Corn was $2.31 a bushel, compared to $2.41 in October and $2.02 a year ago.

— Wheat prices at the farm, according to the preliminary figures, averaged $3.90 a bushel against $3.98 in October and $3.04 a year ago.

— Rice averaged $10.50 per 100 pounds, compared to $10.30 in October and the year-earlier average of $7.76.

— Soybeans were $6.26 a bushel against $6.35 in October and $6.41 in November of last year.

— Upland cotton was 61.7 cents a pound on a national average, compared to 61.3 in October and 61.1 a year ago.

— Eggs were 57.4 cents a dozen, compared to 52.2 in October and 58.0 in November last year.

— Broiler chickens were 24.6 cents a pound against 21.1 in October and 24.5 a year ago.

Comparing November parity values with the preliminary average prices received by farmers in November and October, in dollars, the report included:

November — October — Parity

Wheat, bu., 3.90 — 3.98 — 6.10
Rice, 100 lbs., 10.50 — 10.30 — 17.40

TEXTILE MILL SOURCES EXPECT DOMESTIC cotton consumption, which in October was above the year-earlier level for the seventh consecutive month, to start leveling off in the November report.

Daily cotton consumption for October was reported by the Census Bureau this week at 24,998 running bales, up 3 percent from the 24,117 bales consumed in September and up 4 percent from the 24,089 used in the corresponding period a year ago.

The daily consumption rate in November is expected by some mill sources to be at least equal to, if not higher than, the October level. Domestic mills have been operating at capacity for the past several months, it is noted, and demand continues to be strong for denim, corduroy and velour through the first quarter of 1980.

Mills are becoming more and more cautious about how long consumption can remain healthy. Reflecting that caution, mills continued to reduce cotton stocks during October.

STOCKS AT MILLS AT THE END OF OCTOBER were about 647,000 running bales, compared with 749,117 a year earlier. High interest rates also are a big factor in the lower level of mill stocks.

Cotton consumption for the remainder of calendar 1979 may level off and possibly decline from a year earlier, some mill sources say, if recessionary pressure begins to affect textile sales.

Stocks in public storage in October rose to 3.7 million running bales, compared with about 2 million in September. The increase reflected expansion in harvesting activity.

Meanwhile, the Census Bureau reported that exports of raw cotton totaled 390,209 bales last month, down from 428,080 in September but up from 283,114 a year earlier. Exports for the first three months of the current marketing season were 1,280,841 bales, up from 1,195,205 in the corresponding period a year ago.

THE HOUSE THIS WEEK VOTED TO GIVE Congress veto power over Environmental Proection Agency regulations banning chemical pesticides deemed unsafe by the agency.

It was the second time in two days the House has voted to limit the powers of a federal agency. Earlier, the House approved an amendment allowing Congress to veto rulings of the Federal Trade Commission.

The votes on pesticides came during action on a one-year $66.2-million extension of the federal pesticide programs. The bill now goes to the Senate.

By a 278-121 vote, the House adopted an amendment providing that a proposed EPA rule or regulation could be blocked if both the House and Senate adopt a resolution of disapproval within 90 days or if one chamber adopts a resolution within 60 days and the other does not disapprove within 30 days.

AUTHORIZATION PERMITTING CORN to be taken from the grain reserve has been withdrawn as the national average market price is $2.31 per bushel or 19 cents below the $2.50 release level, the USDA announced Friday.

The USDA said barley remains in call status and the release authorization for wheat and oats will continue through Dec. 31, when the national average market price will be reviewed to determine the reserve status of these commodities.

The reserve status decisions were made following a review of an agricultural prices report released Friday.

The national average market prices for commodities remaining in the reserve with the reserve release levels in parentheses include: oats $1.32 per bushel ($1.29) and wheat $3.90 per bushel (3.29).

Sorghum was removed from release status on Oct. 31.

COTTON FUTURES SURGED HIGHER on afternoon commission house buying to close up 111 to 63 points in nearbys Friday.

Spot December gained 111 points and closed at 67.52, March advanced 76 points and settled at 70.38, and May rose 63 points and finished at 71.77. Estimated volume was 12,050 lots.

Floor brokers said technical market strength and trade expectations of more export orders to the Far East prompted buying. Thirteen December delivery notices — believed to be part of the original 100 on Monday — were issued. An earlier report on notices issued Thursday was revised to a corrected number of 84.

There have been reports that the classing office at Austin, which handles certification of cotton for Galveston and Houston deliveries, has had a rising number of requests recently for certification.

ABOUT 2,200 BALES ARE SAID to have been presented to the office for certification during the past week. It is said that 2,351 samples already had been forwarded to Memphis for approval. Another 800 were awaiting classing at the Austin office.

Cotton from the High Plains goes to Galveston, Austin or Memphis in the certification process. On a computer run of 111,000 bales at Lubbock this week, only 56 bales would have been tenderable cotton.

Spot purchases reported at Lubbock Friday were at the high of the season at 69,460 bales, far outdistancing the next largest market volume of 18,500 bales at Memphis. U. S. spot purchases of 135,789 bales Friday also were the largest daily total of the season.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures rose Friday on speculative buying based in part on higher silver prices and the Iranian situation.

Wheat futures led the rally with gains of up to 13 cents a bushel as commission-house buying overrode commercial selling throughout the session.

"I think people are worried about Iran. It could blow up at any time," said one broker. Traders often buy commodities in times of international political tension or dollar weakness.

Cattle Futures Close Higher

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 85 points higher to 25 lower on sales of 28,895 cars Friday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

April led the advance at the day's high with only October lower. Demand continued from Thursday and was mostly technical after sharp declines to one-month lows earlier in the week.

The upturn in beef at noon added support. Although some traders felt deliveries may not be as heavy as expected, there were 230 reported for Monday.

Wholesale beef was up 1 3/4 to 2 cents at 102 to 103 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. The six markets expect 16,100 head Monday.

Cash cattle were up $1 to off 50 cents, with the best top at $68.50 at Illinois direct. Slaughter totaled 111,000 head.

Feeder cattle futures closed 10 to 150 points higher with October at the limit advance. Sales totaled 1,951 cars.

Higher beef at noon and projections for higher cash feeder cattle prices this winter and next summer attracted buying in an extension of Thursday's recovery.

Deliveries total 401 thus far. The six markets expect 1,500 head Monday. Cash feeder cattle were steady, with the best top at $97 at Jefferson City.

Hog futures closed 42 points higher to 40 lower on sales of 7,950 cars. Distant February was up with most with July weakest.

December continued under liquidation ahead of possibly heavy deliveries as futures remained well over cash. Selling also was induced by heavy hog runs and lower prices coupled with weakness in cash hams.

First Student Deported Vows To Join Protest

DALLAS (UPI) — Ali Aminian, the first Iranian student deported from the United States against his will, left Friday evening for Tehran, where he said he would "join my people in their protest."

Aminian, 25, who had been studying computer science at Central State University in Edmond, Okla., was arrested by Immigration and Naturalization Service officials Monday for violations of his student visa.

His deportation was stayed until Friday so he could finish his degree requirements, but university officials said they were not sure the delay was enough for him to complete work in two courses.

"I'm happy I'm leaving but I don't think it's very nice, the way they are treating me," Aminian said just before he boarded a flight to New York Friday. From there, he was to fly to Frankfurt, Germany, and then Tehran.

The deportation, which cost the federal government $871 in airfare, was the first involuntary expulsion since President Carter ordered immigration officials to begin checking student visas. Other Iranian students who have been found in violation of their visas have left voluntarily and at their own expense.

"I have stayed in school, and still they are going to deport me," Aminian said. "But I am proud to be the first to go. It will get more attention for our cause when I return as the first Iranian deported and I join my people in their protest.

"I will call attention to myself to the media, pointing out who I am so they will tell the American people we stand united against the American government."

Aminian originally had been ordered deported two years ago, when he left school for a time and lost his student visa privileges, but he was allowed to stay after he married an American woman. Although they divorced a short time later, INS officials had not caught up with him until Carter's order spurred new checks of visas.

In the days before his deportation, Aminian continually reaffirmed his support of the taking of the American hostages at the U.S. Embassy and the Ayatollah Khomeini's demands for the return of the deposed shah.

"The shah is a good price for those people (hostages)," he said. "They (hostages) have been spying. They should be tried and punished."

Aminian said his brother, during almost daily telephone calls, had asked him about possible military intervention from the United States.

"I tell him I am going back home and defend my country. I would die for it."

Deportation Aimed At Soothing Americans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's program to deport Iranian students who are in the United States illegally is aimed at soothing an American public angered over the seizure of the U.S. embassy in Tehran, Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti said in a court document filed Friday.

The deportation of Iranian students who are violating their visas "will reduce the potential for domestic violence that would adversely affect delicate international negotiations and threaten the lives of hostages" at the embassy, Civiletti said.

"The potential for violent actions by Americans against Iranians should be reduced by the knowledge that the United States government is taking all necessary actions to remove individuals who reside here in violation of our laws."

The attorney general added that the deportation policy is also a fitting "element of the language of diplomacy by which international courtesies are granted or withdrawn in response to actions by foreign countries."

Civiletti offered the defense of the program in a declaration attached to a Justice Department legal brief filed before a U.S. district court here. The brief is in response to a suit filed by Iranian students who contend the deportation policy violates the Constitution by singling out Iranian students.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service has interviewed more than 26,000 of an estimated 50,500 Iranian students in this country and has found approximately 3,600 are violating their visas because they are not fulltime students and are subject to deportation.

President Carter ordered the screening of Iranian students after the U.S. embassy was seized in Tehran on Nov. 4.

Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, in an affidavit accompanying the legal brief, said the situation in Iran was even more explosive now than when the hostages were taken because the Moslem holy month of Muharram is underway.

"Emotions run very high during this period. This year the presence of the American hostages in Tehran is likely to add a potentially dangerous element to an already highly charged atmosphere," Christopher said.

Mid-East On Disorder's Edge, Says Congressman

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressman, just returned from the Middle East, said Friday that the oil-rich region is on the "knife's edge" of political disorder that could be touched off by U.S. military reprisals against Iran.

Rep. Richard A. Gephardt, D-Mo., said leaders of Saudi Arabia and two other moderate Arab states urged restraint by the United States in its response to the Iranian crisis.

Gephardt said at a news conference that U.S. military action that might result from any harm to the 50 American hostages in Tehran could spark uprisings in nearby Moslem states and disrupt world oil supplies.

"People here have to decide whether they want to have retribution in the short term or potential economic chaos in the long term," Gephardt said.

Gephardt, however, said he felt the United States would have little alternative but to take some sort of military action against Iran if the hostages were harmed.

Gephardt visited Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates as part of a delegation headed by Treasury Secretary G. William Miller.

At a London news conference Thursday, Miller said he did not believe Arab oil nations would cut off oil supplies to the United States if American troops go into Iran.

However, like Gephardt, he said Arab leaders feared that U.S. military reprisals against Iran could set off a "chain reaction" of anti-American sentiment in their own countries.

Iran's revolutionary leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, has urged Moslem oil-producing states to use their oil as a weapon against the United States.

However, Gephardt said the leaders of the three major oil-producing states agreed to maintain their production at high levels "to keep the world economy on an even keel."

Gephardt also said the leaders were "unanimous" in thinking that Khomeini lacked control over the Iranian students who seized the U.S. Embassy on Nov. 4 and took its personnel hostage.

On a related topic, Gephardt said Saudi Arabian leaders felt they were showing restraint in holding the price of their oil at $18 a barrel but were disturbed that their relatively low price was not being reflected in U.S. gasoline prices.

"They're concerned that Aramco companies haven't passed the savings onto consumers," Gephardt said. "They sense that the oil is finding its way into the European market" — where prices are higher.

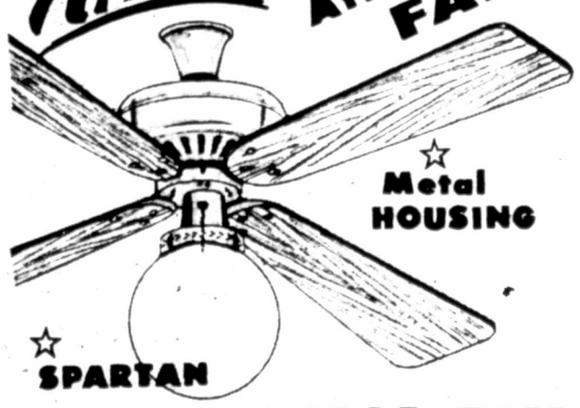

The congressman said Saudi Arabia's concern made him feel that more consideration should be given to a proposal that the government create a national corporation to buy Saudi Arabian oil.

Aramco — Arabian American Oil Co. — is a consortium of multinational U.S. oil companies that buys oil from Saudi Arabia. Those companies are Mobil, Exxon, Texaco and Standard Oil of California.

Admitting Shah 'Not In Best Interest' Of Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico's unexpected jerking of the welcome mat from under the deposed Shah of Iran appeared Friday to be a move to protect its position as an emerging Third World leader.

Foreign Minister Jorge Castaneda, who announced the decision Thursday night, said the renewal of the shah's six-month tourist visa, which expires Dec. 9, "would be contrary to the best interests of the country," but did not elaborate.

The shah has been undergoing treatment for gallstones and cancer in New York City where he went from Mexico Oct. 22.

A State Department spokesman in Washington said Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance was notified by telephone shortly before the announcement, but there was no indication that Washington was counsulted in advance over the move.

An editorial, which made no direct reference to the decision, said, "...a country rising to importance among underdeveloped nations cannot exercise the politics of an ostrich..."

The editorial said, "It is clear that Foreign Minister Jorge Castaneda has had to activate a series of actions intended to control Mexico's foreign relations, these being at times very progressive and marking patterns for the defense of liberties."

The statement noted that Mexico has, traditionally extended asylum to exiles but that the shah himself was a central figure in the current Iranian crisis in which American Embassy staffers are being held hostage in Tehran.

"In light of this new situation the Mexican government has had to ponder all essential factors, being aware of its duty to protect above all the vital interests of the country.

"We have arrived at the conclusion that it would be contrary to these interests to renew the tourist visa of the ex-shah," the statement said.

The Iranians holding the American hostage have demanded the shah's return to Iran as a price for freeing them.

Mexico, which closed its Iranian embassy and withdrew its staffers shortly after the Nov. 4 takeover of the American mission, faces no similar threat.

And a country with one of the world's larger petroleum reserves, it is not subject to pressures for its oil supply.

Mexican officials would not elaborate Friday on why the decision, apparently sudden, was made. As recently as Wednesday they had indicated the visa of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi would be renewed.

Mexico has good relations with the Moslem World and in 1976 voted with the Arab bloc in a United Nations resolution condemning Zionism as a form of racism.

The vote inspired a boycott of Mexican tourism led by American Jewish groups.

Mexico's new oil wealth and industrial potential, plus its increasing independence from American influence, has increased its prestige in the third world, many of whose members view the shah as a criminal and a plunderer.

"It is self-evident that on this occasion Mexico could only confirm its position on the side of the nations in development," said an editorial in the left-of-center Uno Mas Uno.

The man at window was saying, "The most we can do is giftwrap him for you."

A column in the consevative El Heraldo, written before the decision barring the shah's return was announced, said Mexican authorties could not ignore the risks that the shah's presence in Mexico caused. "It would be lamentable ...if there should arrive in Mexico the consequences of a conflict that neither affects nor iterests u," it said.

Public reaction to the decision was varied. The shah's presence in Mexico "is not good because of the things he did and because of the problems he could cause our country," said Maria de Reynoso, 65, a housewife.

A 24-year-old secretary, Patricia Hernandez, said that while Mexico could suffer because of the shah's presence, "...because of his illness it would be good if Mexico would give him political asylum."

Mexico has a tradition of giving political asylum to those who seek it. The most famous probably was Leon Trotsky, a leader of the Russian revolution who was forced into exile in 1928 by Josef Stalin. Trotsky lived in Mexico from 1938 until his murder in 1940.

There had been periodic rumors of Moslem "hit squads" being sent to Mexico to kill the shah, although there was no hard evidence that any attempt was made on the shah, who lived in a heavily guarded rented villa in the resort town of Cuernavaca.

Carter's Mother's Comment Defended

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Gov. Hugh Gallen, head of President Carter's re-election campaign in New Hampshire, defended the president's mother on Friday for saying that if she had $1 million she would hire an assassin for Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Lillian Carter made the comment to cheers and applause Thursday night during a question and answer session at the Bow Men's Club.

"We find people listening to Lillian Carter and enjoying her very much," Gallen said Friday.

But he added, "In the course of a long day — and she is an older person — sometimes we say the wrong thing."

SADAT INVITES SHAH — President Anwar Sadat, left, tells reporters in Cairo Friday after prayers that he is ready to receive the homeless Shah of Iran immediately. Egyptian officials said he made the offer for humanitarian reasons and did not anticipate opposition from Egypt's Moslem majority or retaliation by Iran's revolutionary regime. (AP Laserphoto)

Iran Defies U.N., To Boycott Meet

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A defiant Iranian government, boosted by a second day of huge anti-American protests, announced Friday it would boycott a U.N. Security Council meeting on the American Embassy takeover. But a top official hinted that the shah's departure from the United States could ease the crisis.

When and where the shah might go remained uncertain, however.

Mexico said it would not allow him to return to his exile home there, but President Anwar Sadat offered him asylum in Egypt. A spokesman for the deposed monarch said he still intends to leave the United States.

Trial Threat Renewed

The Moslem militants who have occupied the U.S. Embassy since Nov. 4 say that if the United States lets Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi go anywhere but back to Iran — to face charges of mass murder and corruption — a trial of their 50 American hostages as "spies" will become "inevitable."

But acting Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, at a news conference announcing Iran's boycott of the U.N. meeting, refrained from making such firm threats.

Asked what would happen if deposed Iranian monarch went to Egypt, he replied, "We'll cross that bridge when we come to it.

"Certainly the crisis will not be totally defused at that time.... If the shah goes, definitely the hostages will not be released immediately."

Million Demonstrators

An estimated one million demonstrators jammed Tehran's streets Friday, the second of two Islamic days of mourning, in a mixture of prayer and anti-American protest.

Many rallied in front of the U.S. Embassy, their backs to the building, praying toward the Moslem holy city of Mecca.

The chanting of rows of seated and kneeling women, clad in head-to-toe chadors, and the serried ranks of men, carrying symbolic wood-handled chain whips, echoed through the city as its people pledged their willingness to die for Islam.

The Security Council plans to meet today at the urgent request of U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

U.N. Called U.S. Tool

It had been thought Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime might send a top representative to the debate, which some viewed as a crucial opportunity for behind-the-scenes negotiations with U.S. officials. But Ghotbzadeh Friday denounced the Council as a tool of the United States, said Iran would not take part and declared that any decision the Council makes "is not binding and we don't accept it."

Although he remained adamant that Pahlavi must be handed over to Iran and said at one point, "I don't think the question of compromise arises," Ghotbzadeh left the door open to negotiation.

He said Iran would maintain its contacts with the Security Council and he put forward two proposals — essentially restatements of previous Iranian ideas — that he said would make it "easy" for the United States to hand over the shah.

Alternatives Cited

— Under one plan, the United States would accept that the shah "could be a criminal," agree to an Iranian-directed international inquiry of the shah's 37-year regime and accept its findings.

— Under an alternative, the Security Council would launch an international investigation of the shah whose judgments would be binding on Washington.

"But nevertheless we must have the shah," he said.

He left unclear at what point the hostages would be freed during this process.

"Our past experience shows we cannot trust the United States. We would have to actually see this working out," he said.

The Carter administration, which has unequivocally refused to extradite the shah to Iran, wants the Security Council to adopt a resolution calling on Iran to free the hostages.

The International Court of Justice on Friday set Dec. 10 for a hearing on a U.S. request for a judgment that Iran has violated international law and must free the embassy hostages. Such a ruling would bolster the U.S. hand if it seeks sanctions from the Security Council — which could order anything from economic reprisals to military action against Iran.

In other developments, Ghotbzadeh said the U.S. charge d'affaires in Tehran, L. Bruce Laingen, and two other U.S. diplomats detained at the Foreign Ministry here would not be put on trial and were "free to leave," but he noted it would be difficult to provide security for their departure.

He said, too, he believed that Laingen, a key liaison between Washington and Tehran during the crisis, preferred to stay.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said in Washington the Iranians should observe "minimal decencies" and allow the 50 hostages to be seen publicly. "We have no way of telling what the condition is of the great majority of these people," he said.

There were various reports and rumors that some of the hostages had been transferred from the embassy to a prison, or even that one had been tried for espionage and sentenced to death or executed. But the embassy militants denied both and Ghotbzadeh said all the hostages were unharmed.

U.S. embassies around the world were the targets of new protests.

In Kuwait, several thousand Kuwaiti and Iranian demonstrators staged an anti-American protest in front of the embassy and were dispersed by Kuwaiti security forces firing tear gas. Four explosive devices blew up on the grounds of the embassy in Bangkok, Thailand, causing slight damage and no injuries.

Sadat Says Jet Ready To Fly Shah To Egypt

However, the plans were upset by the surprise refusal of Mexico to renew the shah's visa, which expires Dec. 9.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat promptly invited the shah to return to Egypt, where the ex-monarch stayed briefly after he was overthrown earlier this year. There also has been speculation that the shah might seek a haven in Switzerland, Morocco, Argentina or the Bahamas.

The shah's medical sojourn in the United States led to the seizure of the American Embassy in Tehran by followers of the ruling Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. Currently, 50 Americans were being held hostage there.

Khomeini has threatened to try the hostages as spies unless the shah is returned to Iran to stand trial for atrocities he is accused of committing against former subjects. Carter has refused to send the shah to Iran.

The State Department earlier had said it was up to the shah to decide on his travel plans "both as to time and destination."

The department refused to deal with questions of whether the shah might be allowed to remain in the United States, beyond saying that it sill was the administration's understanding that he planned to leave when his medical treatment was completed.

In Cairo, Egyptian officials said Sadat made the offer to the shah for humanitarian reasons and did not anticipate opposition from Egypt's Moslem majority or retaliation by Iran's revolutionary regime.

Sadat was quick to reiterate his offer to the shah after the Mexican government said late Thursday it would not let him return there because of turmoil in the Moslem world.

A spokesman said Sadat's personal Boeing 707 "is standing by at Cairo airport for takeoff at any moment" to fly the shah to Egypt.

"Our position remains as it was," Sadat said after attending noon prayers on the Moslem sabbath. "We are ready to receive him immediately but we didn't receive anything officially."

Sadat told reporters outside a small mosque 15 miles north of Cairo he had not received a response to his invitation, sent to the U.S. government and the shah, who is in a New York hospital. He said he was indebted to the former Iranian ruler for financial aid and shipments of oil in past years.

The shah spent five days on a Nile River island in south Egypt immediately after leaving Iran in January. Sadat spent time with him there before the shah left for Morocco.

Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil said in a telephone interview, "We are doing it for humanitarian reasons only. We are not interfering in Iran's politics, internal or external." But he added "it is possible" Iran might feel otherwise and retaliate against Egyptian diplomats abroad.

Iran's revolutionary cleric Khomeini has demanded the shah be sent to Iran to stand trial for alleged crimes aganst the people.

President Carter has refused and used diplomatic and economic tactics in an effort to secure the early release of the hostages, hinting at military retaliation if they are harmed.

The shah's doctors have said he can leave when he wishes following the successful removal of a gallstone this week. Until the Mexican announcement he was expected to return to the rented home he had occupied there before arriving in New York Oct. 22.

"Naturally, the shah is quite distressed with regard to the decision ... by the government of Mexico. But he wishes to reiterate his intention to leave the United States as well as his request to the administration for assistance in doing so," said the shah's New York spokeswoman Chris Godek.

Sadat's offer could have domestic repercussions for Egypt, which is the most populous Arab ally of the United States. Observers, citing a growing Islamic fundamentalism on Egyptian university campuses, feel Moslem militants might protest the presence of the shah.

A few Egyptian clergymen have voiced support for Khomeini's Islamic republic.

Check Of Hostages Demanded By U.S.

hostages were complicated, meanwhile, by Mexico's decision not to allow the shah to return to his home near Cuernavaca after he completes cancer treatment in New York.

Spokesman Carter and other U.S. officials made it clear the ex-ruler still is expected to leave the United States. They gave no deadline, saying that was up to the shah and his doctors, but they also avoided any suggestion he would be permitted to stay in the country.

In New York, the shah said through a spokesman that he still intends to go elsewhere and had asked President Carter to help him do so.

After Mexico's announcement Thursday, which caught the Carter administration largely by surprise, President Anwar Sadat of Egypt offered the shah haven in his country.

Areas Speculated

There was speculation also that the shah and Empress Farah might wind up in the Bahamas, Argentina, Switzerland or Morocco.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance was notified by Mexico about the decision not to renew the shah's visa shortly before it was made public.

Despite the surprise and the complication the Mexican decision created, there was no public criticism of Mexico by officials here.

"The vast majority of all nations have been cooperating," spokesman Carter said.

In New York, the president's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, said, "We are hopeful that appropriate arrangements that are satisfactory to all parties will be made" for the shah's departure from the United States.

"International Decency"

"The challenge is not just to the United States, but it is to international decency and international order as a whole," he said.

And during an address to the opening session of the Jewish Labor Committee convention in Manhattan, Brzezinski said, "Islam is not our enemy and the contest is not with Islamic countries. What we're witnessing in Iran is an aberration."

Elsewhere, the International Court of Justice in The Hague, Netherlands, agreed to a United States request for a hearing on the Iranian crisis, scheduling the session for Dec. 10. U.S. officials on Thursday asked the court, which is the legal arm of the United Nations, to order the Iranians to release the American hostages.

U.N. Meets Today

And United Nations officials said the Security Council still will hold a meeting today on the Iranian stalemate, even though the Tehran government now says it will boycott the session.

Gotzbadeh, echoing the contention of Iran's revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, told a news conference that the Security Council is a tool of the United States and any decision the council makes "is not binding and we don't accept it."

Spokesman Carter said the United States would participate in spite of the Iranian boycott and said he expects a unanimous resolution to emerge calling for the release of the hostages.

Donald McHenry, the U.S. representative to the United Nations, met during the day with Vance to discuss the Security Council debate.

At midday, about 350 people, most of them Iranians, marched through downtown Washington streets to a park near the State Department, chanting their support for Khomeini.

Some American protesters shouted "deport, deport, deport," and "go back to Iran." Several hundred police kept the demonstrators isolated.

Later, White House press secretary Jody Powell said the administration had asked for "clarification" of a statement made by Ghotzbadeh in which the Iranian official said U.S. diplomats who have been at the Iranian foreign ministry since the embassy takeover are "free to leave."

Several Americans, including Bruce Laingen, the U.S. charge d'affaires in Tehran, have been at the foreign ministry trying to negotiate with Iranian officials since the crisis began.

Powell said of Ghotzbadeh's statement: "We would naturally be pleased if three or four of our people are allowed to leave Iran." He said the president would like to have Laingen return to Washington.

At his news conference, Ghotzbadeh said he believed Laingen preferred to remain in Tehran. He also said it would be difficult to provide protection for the American diplomats if they decide to leave the foreign ministry.

ACLU Suit Answered By School District

studies simply because some do not believe in the existence of a Deity or because of differing concepts of God," the statement says. "For this Court to remove and prohibit all religious expressions in the schools would be tantamount to encouraging a religion of secularism."

In a separate document, the school district asks the court to deny plaintiffs $35,000 in compensatory damages asked from the trustees and the superintendent as a body and $10,001 in exemplary damages asked from each defendant.

Lawyers for the school district contend the ACLU does not have the standing to recover such damages because no individual plaintiff is named in the suit, only the ACLU, and "no specific damages are alleged relative to any member of the plaintiff."

School attorneys cite principles laid down in Warth V. Seldin, saying the suit "alleges no monetary injury to Lubbock Civil Liberties Union, nor does it allege any assignment of the damage claims of any of its members."

ACLU Officials Mum

ACLU attorney Thomas Griffith would not comment Friday on the schools' allegations concerning monetary damages and said he does not know whether he will name members of the ACLU in response to the schools' contentions.

School officials further state in their answer to the lawsuit that defendants have not intentionally or maliciously deprived any students of their Constitutional rights and have not "acted in bad faith" to cause injury or damages to any person.

In response to specific ACLU charges, the school district denies that individual teachers and visitors have been permitted to conduct and organize religious exercises through the years. Defendants do admit, however, that prior to and after Jan. 25, some religious activities were carried on without the approval of board members.

Defendants also admit that complaints about religious exercises have been registered with school officials, but that all complaints "not consistent with official school policy" that were made since Jan. 25 have caused the offending practices to be halted.

Bible Distribution Halted

School officials contend that any instances of teachers reciting audible prayers ending in "amen" were done without their approval. They also say they "have taken measures to discontinue distribution of Gideon Bibles."

The ACLU originally aired its complaints concerning religion in Lubbock public schools at a school board meeting in December 1978, saying that church and state should remain separate.

Rather than ban religious exercises, however, the board adopted its policy and also approved guidelines for its implementation that allows student-directed and initated religious activities.

U.S. Imposes Penalties Against Chile

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States announced on Friday a reduction of U.S. economic, military and diplomatic ties with Chile in response to Chile's refusal to investigate fully the 1976 murder of Socialist leader Orlando Letelier.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter, accusing Chile of "deplorable conduct," said the United States will cut down the size of the U.S. diplomatic and military missions in Chile, terminate $6.6 million in military sales and suspend U.S. Export-Import Bank financing.

No new guarantees for U.S. private investment activities in Chile will be approved, Carter added. The small U.S. economic and humanitarian aid programs for Chile will not be affected.

The measures, which were personally approved by President Carter, followed a rejection by the Chilean Supreme Court two months ago of a U.S. request for the extradition of three Chilean security offices wanted by the United States.

Immediately after the court decision, U.S. Ambassador George Landau was recalled to Washington to participate in a review of U.S.-Chilean relations. Carter said Landau will return to Chile shortly.

Letelier was a top aide to the late Chilean President Salvador Allende. An outspoken opponent of Chile's military junta, he was killed when a bomb blew up his car in the fashionable Embassy Row section of Washington on Sept. 21, 1976. A colleague, Ronni Moffitt, also was killed.

Spokesman Carter made it clear that the U.S. actions were in response to the Chilean government's refusal to vigorously investigate the Letelier case and not to the Chilean Supreme Court's decision.

Shotgun Wielder Hits Store Here

A Mexican-American man wielding a sawed-off shotgun robbed the Town and Country convenience store about 10 p.m. Friday.

The robber, who was wearing green Army pants and a plaid coat, escaped with an undetermined amount of money from the 24-hour store at 2025 Clovis Road. The store is equipped with a Crime Eye camera.

He was last seen running west from the store. He was described in his early 20s, 5-feet-8, weighing about 140 pounds.

Lubbock Service Station Robbed

The manager of a Lubbock service station told police that burglars stole a car, 120 quarts of transmission oil, 15 gallons of motor oil and several guns from his business.

Willie Anderson told investigating officers someone burglarized his firm between 6:20 p.m. Thursday and 7 a.m. Friday.

Police reports indicate entry to the south Lubbock service station may have been gained through a window on the north side of the building.

Anderson said a 1965 Chevrolet, belonging to a customer from Hobbs, N.M., was missing from a service bay inside the station.

In a separate incident, police said two men were arrested shortly after 4 p.m. Thursday after they were clocked traveling 103 mph in the 2400-block of Northeast Loop 289.

Following the high-speed chase, the men allegedly fought with arresting officers before they were detained and taken to the county jail.

A 16-year-old boy also was taken into custody after he reportedly interfered with the arrests at a residence in the 1100-block of East Ursuline Street.

The names of the two men, ages 17 and 18, had not been released early today and formal charges had not been filed.

The pursuit began after officers Rick Offutt and John Strange, who were operating a speed radar on the loop, clocked the suspects traveling 103 mph in a 1972 brown Grand Prix, reports state.

The officers said they began following in their patrol car with the emergency lights and siren going, but the suspects refused to pull over.

Reports indicate the men continued at a high speed, exited at Municipal Drive and turned north on Quirt Avenue. Strange and Offutt reported they were able to get within a half block of the suspects in the 2000-block of Quirt Avenue and that speeds were peaking at more than 80 mph.

The men turned west on Ursuline Street and stopped at a residence in the 1100 block. After pulling up next to the suspects' vehicle, Offutt, wielding a shotgun, ran up to the passenger side of the Pontiac.

The younger suspect reportedly swung the car door into Offutt, knocking the officer to the ground. Offutt said he grabbed the teen-ager's leg as the suspect attempted to run.

The 17-year-old, who reportedly was swinging his arms and kicking wildly, was finally handcuffed and placed in the patrol car, according to police.

Before the other man was handcuffed, he reportedly struggled with Strange and was knocked to the ground by the officer.

The youth was taken into custody after he allegedly refused to comply with the officers' orders to stay away from the suspects and attempted to take the key to the Pontiac.

Reports indicate the 18-year-old agreed to take a breathalyzer test to determine if he was intoxicated. However, when officers told him to blow into the test tube, police said the suspect instead sucked in.

Both men reportedly refused to answer officers' questions.

Noted Photographer Dies

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Photographer Laura Gilpin, whose studies of Navajos spanned 40 years, died early Friday at St. Vincent Hospital. She was 88.

A spokesman for the hospital said Miss Gilpin was admitted Thursday after going to the emergency room and that she died at 4:52 a.m. Friday. The cause of death was not released immediately.

Miss Gilpin was a contemporary of such noted photographers as Ansel Adams, Paul Strand, Imogene Cunningham and Edward Weston.

Adams, writing for a 1974 "Laura Gilpin Retrospective" show for the Museum of New Mexico, called her "one of the important photographers of our time."

She was born April 22, 1891, in Colorado and grew up on a ranch near Colorado Springs. She got her first camera, a Kodak "Brownie," on her 12th birthday.

She originally decided on a musical career, but changed course in 1916 and attended the Clarence H. White School of Photography in New York, where she learned the platinum printing process for which she later became famous.

She made her first trip to New Mexico and the Southwest in 1920.

The best known of her five works, "The Enduring Navajo," was published in 1969. When she died, she was working on a book on Canyon de Chelly on the Navajo Reservation.

A memorial service was set for 2 p.m. Sunday at the School for American Research in Santa Fe.

Federal Appeals Court Rules President May Terminate Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal appeals court overruled a lower court Friday and said President Carter has the authority to unilaterally terminate the mutual defense treaty between the United States and Taiwan.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia said the issue it was asked to decide was "solely and simply ... whether the president in these precise circumstances is, on behalf of the United States, empowered to terminate the treaty in accordance with its terms.

"It is our view that he is," the court said.

The eight-judge panel decided that the limitations the lower court judge saw in Carter's authority "have no foundation in the Constitution."

Seven judges voted in favor of the ruling, while an eighth judge dissented in part.

The suit was brought by Sen. Barry Goldwater and 23 other members of Congress after Carter ended the treaty with Taiwan as part of the process of normalizing relations with mainland China.

Lawyers for Goldwater said they would appeal to the Supreme Court next week.

The appellate court overturned the decision of U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch, who ruled Oct. 17 that Carter acted improperly in ending the mutual defense treaty.

Gasch said that his reading of the Constitution indicated a treaty could be ended only if two-thirds of the Senate or a majority of the House concurred.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said, "We are obviously very pleased by the decision."

Daniel Popeo, an attorney for Goldwater, said, "We expect to file with the Supreme Court Monday morning ... we intend to fight this all the way."

He added that the ruling was not unexpected, saying the appeals court is "a difficult forum." But he declined to elaborate.

"We're ready to go all the way," he said.

The appeals court majority said that if it ruled a treaty could be terminated by a legislative vote, "we would be locking the United States into all of its international obligations, even if the president and two-thirds of the Senate minus one firmly believed that the proper course ... was to terminate a treaty."

The court said several treaties in force carry "potentially dangerous obligations" and the president may have to take immediate action to terminate them.

"The creation of a constitutionally obligatory role in all cases for a two-thirds consent by the Senate would give to one-third-plus-one of the Senate the power to deny the president the authority necessary to conduct our foreign policy in a rational and effective manner."

The appeals court said that the Senate's right to ratify treaties by a two-thirds vote is a power "not lightly to be extended in instances not set forth in the Constitution."

BUY GOLD FOR CHRISTMAS? — According to a gold industry spokesman, a lot of gold will be glittering under Christmas trees this year. So far, the rising price of the precious metal has not discouraged buyers. (AP Laserphoto)

Gold Sales Bright Despite High Prices

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A lot of gold will be glittering under Christmas trees, according to an industry spokesman who says the rising price of the precious metal has not discouraged buyers.

"The prices only seem to reinforce the conviction that it (gold) must be valuable," said Morton Sarett, president of the Jewelry Industry Council.

About 40 percent to 45 percent of all jewelry is sold at Christmas, Sarett said. As for gold, "there's no question that it's practically up at the top," he added. "There is a fabulous demand everywhere."

Despite the demand, many stores are having sales on gold in advance of the holiday season. Why? "To move more of it," said Sarett. "To keep traffic up high."

Some consumers, meanwhile, are trading down, buying smaller pieces with less gold or selecting costume jewelry instead of the real thing. "That is happening and that will keep happening," Sarett said, as gold prices continue to rise.

The price of an ounce of gold on world trading exchanges has doubled in five years — from just under $200 at the end of 1974 to around the $400 mark today. Jewelry costs reflect this increase.

Retail prices, however, do not exactly mirror the ups and downs of the bullion market. A large part of the cost of jewelry is workmanship. A designer signature also adds to the price. The cost of the gold itself, therefore, may account for a relatively small proportion of the price of the finished product.

Sarett said many buyers are confused by the different types of gold jewelry available. The words "gold filled," for example, do not mean that an item is filled with gold on the inside. Here is a look at some of the basic terms:

B / DIMENSIONS
Saturday, Dec. 1, 1979

•Karat. The word karat refers to the proportion of gold. Something which is 24 karat gold is considered to be pure gold. Twenty-four out of 24 parts are gold. Something that's marked "14 karat" or "14K" has 14 parts of gold to every 10 parts of a strengthening alloy.

NOTE: The word "karat" should not be confused with "carat," which is a measurement of weight used for precious stones, especially diamonds. One carat equals about 200 milligrams.

•Gold jewelry. By law, anything that is marked "gold" in the United States must be at least 10 karats or about 42 percent gold. Other countries have different standards; in England, for example, 9 karat jewelry can be sold as gold.

•Gold filled. This type of jewelry, sometimes called gold overlay, is made by mechanically bonding a layer or layers of gold to a base metal, usually copper. The outer layer or layers must be at least one-twentieth of the metal's total weight. The fineness of the gold that is used must be at least 10 karats; it may be more, which is why you often see things marked "14K Gold Filled" or simply "14K G.F." Sarett describes gold-filled jewelry as a sort of "middle ground" and says it is becoming more and more popular.

•Rolled gold plate. This is a term used to describe high-quality costume jewelry. It's made the same way as gold-filled jewelry but the gold layer is less than one-twentieth of the total weight. Markings on individual items will tell you the ratio of gold used.

•Gold electroplate. This is the marking you will see on costume jewelry that has been electrolytically coated with at least seven one-millionths of an inch of gold. If the gold coating is thinner, the item may be marked, "gold washed" or "gold flashed." If it is at least 100 one-millionths of an inch thick, the item can be labeled "heavy gold electroplate."

No matter what type of jewelry you select, it is a good idea to know who you are dealing with. Shop around and compare prices. Look for the markings that tell you what you are getting. If you want gold jewelry, do not settle for a piece without the karat stamp, no matter what the salesman tells you.

Navy Veteran Decks Home With Ship Relics

By TERRY GREENBERG

REDLANDS, CALIF. (NEA) — Seasickness might easily strike landlubbers visiting the home of Dave and Robin Maupin. The house itself is firmly anchored on the reddish soil characteristic of this town located some 50 miles from the Southern California coast.

But with the exception of a rocking chair, a step ladder, a television, walls, ceiling and floor, everything in the couple's living room is on permanent leave from ships.

IN AMERICA

• The magazine rack is a fire bucket.

• Two ship's wheels make a lamp table. The lamps upon it are made of block and tackle.

• The framework for a couch, a chair and an end table are constructed from deck grating.

• The coffee table is made from an old ship's hatch cover supported by wheel chocks from the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Princeton.

• Naval flags have been sewn together and stuffed to make throw pillows.

• Working ship's lamps hang from the ceiling.

• Ship's clocks tick everywhere.

• On their way to the kitchen, visitors encounter an assortment of metal plates reading "Captain's Bath," "Storage" and "Wardroom — Knock Before Entering."

• Barometers, sextants and Navy recruiting posters from World War I adorn the cedar-paneled walls to complete the scene.

The only items missing are wet seaweed on the floor, waves rolling in from the kitchen and Humphrey Bogart as Captain Queeg from "The Caine Mutiny" playing with his little steel balls.

The other Maupin bathroom features an assortment of whistles — boatswain's, siren, tugboat and lifeboat fog horn — presumably for bored toilet sitters.

It's rumored that Jaws III is slated for spring production in the Maupin's second tub.

How did the Maupin's "landship" begin?

"I bought him (Maupin) two lamps for Christmas in 1970 and that started everything," reports Mrs. Maupin.

Maupin was then in the Navy, teaching in the ROTC program at Stanford University. He then began to spend his spare time combing maritime salvage yards for disguised bargains from the deep.

"We'd find these things in a salvage yard just covered with Navy gray paint," he recalls. "I used to keep a barrel of caustic soda lye in the back yard and put them in the solution. Then I'd hose it down and polish and polish and polish . . ."

Maupin's favorite piece is a sextant given them by friends of his wife's family.

"It's the sextant of Captain Ramsey," he says, extricating the silver and brass navigational tool from its wooden case. "He was the captain of Her Majesty's Ship Glory of the Seas. When I got it, it was all green. I did some checking and believe it was built between 1795 and 1815."

Maupin, who grew up a "Navy brat," left the service in 1974 after Stanford dropped its ROTC program. That was not until he had been spat upon and his office fire-bombed by anti-war demonstrators.

"When my teaching was finished, the Navy wanted to send me on a ship for six months," he reports. "That's when I decided I didn't work for other people very well."

Chimes in his wife, "He couldn't wait to get his own business so he could be poor." The two run a small business-counseling service out of their home, which they share with daughter Kara and son Joel.

Whatever their current bank account, their maritime treasures may someday be worth a fortune.

"I've been reading that nautical antiques are becoming a very popular fad," says Maupin. "I'm glad we got in early."

1979 Hurricanes May Be Deadliest, Costliest In History

MIAMI (AP) — The 1979 Atlantic tropical storm season officially ended Friday after producing what may have been the worst hurricane of the century in the central Caribbean and the costliest hurricane in U.S. history.

The two were hurricanes David and Frederic, which followed each other across the Atlantic about a week apart in late August and early September.

The National Hurricane Center in Miami said David might have been the worst hurricane of the century in the central Caribbean with winds estimated at 165 mph south of Puerto Rico. David caused 56 deaths on the tiny island of Dominica before sweeping ashore in Santo Domingo in the Dominican Republic, leaving an estimated 1,200 people dead.

Frederic followed David across the Caribbean and seemed all but dead as it stalled over Cuba and fell far below hurricane strength. But the storm sprang to life as it moved over water and grew into the worst hurricane to hit Mobile, Ala., and Pascagoula, Miss., this century. It swept ashore Sept. 13.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Twelve years ago I wrote to you expressing my feelings about being an adopted child. Now that I have completed my master's degree, I am writing again, and I hope you will publish this letter to my "natural" mother.

"Dear 'Mom': I now have completed my master's degree in education, and I'm not sure where the future will take me — but I do know that I will make it in this world.

"Twenty-four years ago you had the strength and courage to put yourself out of my life. You gave me the opportunity to grow up with a wonderful, loving family. How lucky I was to be placed in that particular home. I have been reared with discipline, love and understanding.

"With every birthday, I know you are out there somewhere wondering if I'm happy, if I'm safe and what kind of a person I became. Mom, I'm just fine. My life is great. I have met so many loving people. As a teacher, I have been blessed with some wonderful experiences. I think that being an adopted child gave me special insight into the emotional needs of all humans.

"There is a recent craze for adopted children to seek out their natural parents and confront them. Please don't worry about me doing such a thing. Your secret is safe. I wonder if these children realize how much heartache they can cause.

"You are a wonderful person for having given me the chance to have such a beautiful start in life, Mom.

"When you are walking down the street and happen to glance at a brown-haired young woman who looks a little like you — or maybe my father, whoever he may be — just smile, knowing that I am truly happy and that you have a special place in my heart." — Your Daughter

Dear Daughter: What a lovely tribute to every mother who gave up her child for adoption. Bless you for writing that beautiful letter.

Dear Ann Landers: Once again the season of "worthy causes" is upon us and I am deluged with stuff I did not order, cannot use and do not want.

I have received key chains, neckties, boxes of stationery, religious articles, paperweights, and personalized items (with my initials). You would not believe the junk that has come to this house. Some of the merchandise carries a price tag. Other items have come with a note saying, "Send what you can afford."

I've been told that once you get on a sucker list you can never get off because one outfit sells its list of names to another. It's endless.

I am tired of paying postage to send back items I did not order. A woman I work with says I am under no obligation to return anything. What about it, Ann? —Super Yokel

• • •

Dear S.Y.: You are under no obligation to return merchandise you did not order. Throw it out.

Dear Ann Landers: A friend is getting married in the fall. Her grandmother passed away recently, and her fiance's father is also deceased. They are buried in the same cemetery. She wants the members of the wedding party, plus other friends and relatives, to go visit the graves immediately after the ceremony.

Would it be proper to end such a joyous occasion in this manner? — In Rogers Park

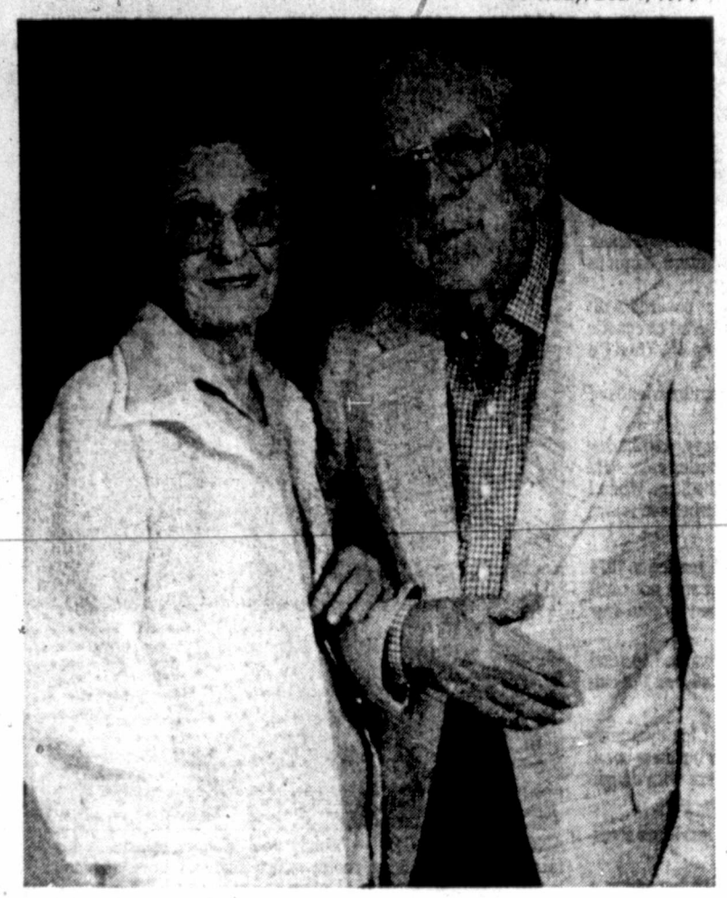

Dear Wondering: In my opinion, to take a wedding party to a cemetery after the ceremony would be a real downer. If the bride and groom wish to pay their respects to their deceased relatives, they should go alone.

GIFT ITEMS — Men's accessories make perfect Christmas gifts to add to an existing fashion look. Make this year's gifts useful as well as attractive.

VELOUR KIMONO — This long hooded velour kimono has white ribbed fleece trim on the sleeve, facing, and pocket. It is available in wine, navy and rust.

Gift Ideas Change Through Years

NEW YORK (Special) — Holiday gifts often used to run the gamut from the ridiculous to the sublime. Today, they're more apt to dwell on the practical, comfortable and stylish.

According to Paul Rogers, national fashion director for Sears Men's apparel, a man is most likely to receive a Christmas gift that he needs. "Holiday gift-giving is no longer a whimsical: the purchases are planned on the basis of what a person can use whether it is a box of handkerchiefs or a lambskin jacket. Each is functional and is generally of a higher price and quality."

With lower thermostats, that gift could well be an acrylic knit cardigan or pullover sweater providing warmth as well as fashion. Velour longwear and wool-blend shirtings are other possibilities with their comfortable feel and stylish appearance. For the out of doors, suburban coats and leather jackets, with pile linings and plush pile collars, provide insutlation against the cold.

Smaller but equally important items are those that are often found in attractive gift packages. These accessories include wallets, handkerchiefs, hosiery, gloves, mufflers, tie and pocket square sets and umbrellas.

SUNDAY TREAT

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

The wall on the north side of my house has been mildewing. Each winter it seems to get worse.

Please let me know what is causing this and how it can be prevented. Thanks. — Louisiana

I'm not sure if you're referring to an inside or outside wall, but the cause is the same.

Here's what the U.S. Deprtment of Agriculture has to say about mildew and its causes: "'Mildew thrives in hot, humid weather. High moisture causes the mold spores, which are always present in the air, to settle and grow on shoes, clothing, furniture and books.

"The best protection against mildew is in its prevention. And to prevent mildew, you must remove its cause — dampness. Because cool air holds less moisture than warm air, air conditioners are helpful. Dehumidifiers are useful where moisture is a problem."

But since your problem is more prevalent in winter, perhaps the mildew is caused by inadequate insulation which is causing walls to sweat excessively. A dehumidifier will help.

If the mildew is on an outside wall, perhaps it's because the wall doesn't get enough sun to dry it out. If you have shrubs planted close to the house, they can block the sunshine and prevent air circulation.

Should this be the case, better get your shears and thin them out rather than risk damage to your house.

Hope this clears up the problem. — Heloise

• • •

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a warm solution to a winter problem children have:

To keep mittens on "little people" in winter, put a tube sock over the mittens. The sock comes high up on the arm to keep it warmer too.

Cotton or wool could be used, depending on how cold it is. For extra protection on windy days, put a plastic bag over the mittens first, then the sock. — Lois Houghton

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

As a bachelor, I find your column especially helpful to my primary aim in life — that aim being to remain single! — R.S.

• • •

DEAR HELOISE:

My youngest son has fractured his right collar bone three different times.

Any mother with this experience knows how their child's armpits, back of neck and across the shoulders can become raw and irritated.

We've tried tons of powder, but to no avail. The rawness was my son's biggest complaint.

About mid-stream through his second fracture, it dawned on me to put one of his t-shirts on first, then his shoulder strap.

No more raw and irritated skin. I mentioned this to his pediatrician and he thanked me, as in all his years he had never thought of this. — Carolyn

• • •

DEAR HELOISE:

I would like to give everyone a new idea about Christmas gifts.

My Aunt Jo started this idea a few years ago and it has been very successful and a lot of fun for everyone.

All you have to do is look around the house, attic or basement for things that are unusual, practical or funny that someone else could use.

For instance, I gave a single spool of yarn to my aunt who knits as I had no further use for it.

Other things can be given, like hair rollers, a baking dish, empty flower pots, wallpaper glue, or a used calendar with pretty pictures that children might enjoy framing.

If you look around, you can come up with a little gift for everyone on your list. The best part is that it doesn't cost you anything. Jo Ann Cue

Now that's what I call an inflation fighter! Besides, we all know it's the thought that counts..

Thanks for sharing and give your Aunt Jo a big hug for me. — Heloise

To Your Good Health

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband and I have one child, age seven, and we are both in our late 20s. Our problem is that we are unable to conceive another child, which we really want. The problem is with my husband. His sperm count is so low that he is almost sterile. Is there some way we could conceive another child? I've been checked by my doctor and there is nothing wrong with me. — M.K.G.

First, your husband should have a thorough physical to see if there is a treatable cause of his low sperm count. Sometimes, low thyroid production can cause it. If no such problem can be found, you can try a couple of simple techniques to help increase fertility odds. Ovulation occurs 11 to 14 days before menstruation. The woman's body temperature drops on the day of ovulation and rises in the days after.

If your husband abstains from sex until ovulation has occurred his sperm count might be higher and your odds of conception increased somewhat. There are other ways of telling just when ovulation has occurred — testing of the vaginal secretions, for example. Your doctor can be specific.

If all this fails, a trial with drugs is sometimes tried to improve sperm count. You can learn more about all this at a local fertility clinic. Most metropolitan areas have them, and your county medical society can help direct you to one.

You sound like a couple who would make fine parents. Have you considered adoption?

• • •

Dear Dr. Donohue: My doctor has had thyroid scans done and says I have two cold nodules on it. He prefers not to operate. I am in my late 70s. But I have been reading about this and how dangerous it can be. A surgeon tells me they remove these all the time. What is your opinion? — Mrs. B.B.

A "cold" thyroid nodule is one that does not absorb the iodine used for the test. A hot one will. A single cold nodule is viewed with suspicion, but multiple cold nodules are almost never malignant. There is a technique for testing a cold nodule now being used called needle biopsy. Small portions of a nodule are removed with a needle and can be examined under a microscope. This determines if they are cancerous. See the booklet, "How Your Thyroid Works for You." For a copy send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

• • •

Dear Dr. Donohue: Just recently I heard about a health food called "Brewer's yeast." My source claims this is the best all around health building super food around. My friend suggests that this food supplement is far superior to high protein muscle-building powder. Just what exactly is brewer's yeast? Is it really that healthful? — J.S.S.

Brewer's yeast has been around a longtime, even before there were brewers, so there's no need to distinguish it with capital letters. It has a lot of B vitamins, minerals, and some protein. That's it. Nothing wrong with it, but it's not a "super" food.

There are many healthful foods. If you eat a balanced diet you will get enough protein and vitamins. The yeast won't hurt you. It won't turn you into Charles Atlas, though. (I wonder how many people remember Charles Atlas.) If it does let me know. I'll start on it.

• • •

Dear Dr. Donohue: My dermatologist tells me I have Fordyce condition, which has to do with oil glands. What's the best treatment? — S.T.

Fordyce disease is the unusual location of oil glands (on the lips and inside the mouth) where they don't belong. They appear as small yellowish spots. There is no treatment. The problem does not progress — spread or get worse.

• • •

Dear Dr. Donohue: What is the comparative nutritional value of sweet potatoes versus white potatoes? — L.S.C.

A sweet potato (yam to my southern readers) has more calories and carbohydrates than a white potato. (I know of no nickname for the white potato.) But the white potato has more vitamin C, potassium and calcium than the yam does.

They are equal in the amounts of fiber and certain B vitamins and iron.

To find out what causes high blood pressure and what can be done to treat it, send for a copy of "Controlling Your Blood Pressure (Hypertension)." Write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

South's six-spade bid was optimistic to say the least. He seldom opened a spade with less than five cards in the suit and had only 13 high card points.

Still as he explained later on, he did think that the ace-king-queen at the top made his spades the equivalent of a five-carder. He also explained that he was sure his partner was void of hearts in the manner of a cat that has just eaten the canary.

If West had led a club, we fear that South would not have been gloating.

Instead, he would have been explaining that there was no reason to set his opponents when he could go down at a contract of his own.

West did open the king of hearts. South ruffed in dummy and noted that if trumps broke he would take all the tricks. Then he stopped to see if he could handle a 4-1 break and saw that he could.

He led a trump from dummy at trick two and played his six. West was in with his eight and could do nothing to ruin South's parade.

He did lead another heart. South ruffed with dummy's next to last trump, drew trumps and eventually got to discard his last two hearts and his two small clubs on dummy's diamonds.

FILMETER

FILMETER is compiled by Dick Kleiner in Hollywood and the N.E.A. staff in both Hollywood and New York.

'Apocalypse,' 'Breaking Away' Top Film Picks

General Release

APOCALYPSE NOW (R) — Martin Sheen, Marlon Brando, Robert Duvall. (Drama) This is Francis Coppola's long-awaited and very expensive epic — and worth the wait and the cost. It is a study of the madness of war, and Coppola has created a procession of insane images of Vietnam and that terrible war to make his point. It is long and flawed, but must be rated an American classic. GRADE: A-plus

AVALANCHE EXPRESS (PG) — Lee Marvin, Robert Shaw, Linda Evans. (Spy thriller) A confusing mess, about (perhaps) a defecting Russian leader who is placed on a train (why?) and the attempts of the bad guys to stop the train. Some exciting moments, but mostly a lot of shooting and dreadful acting and lines that are silly. GRADE: C-minus

BREAKING AWAY (PG) — Dennis Christopher, Dennis Quaid, Daniel Stern, Jackie Earle Haley. (Romantic comedy) This American film is the kind of thing the French do so well: warm, funny, a little romantic, tied up just right. It's set in Bloomington, Ind., a college town, the summer the local boys finally realize they don't mind being "townies." Briefly, it's the "Rocky" of bicycle racing — but so much better. A fine job by these four young actors. GRADE: A

LUNA (R) — Jill Clayburgh, Matthew Barry. (Drama) This is the story of a sensuous widow, an opera star, who becomes physically involved with her adolescent son. The acting is excellent — Clayburgh shatters her "nice girl" mold — but the film moves fitfully and is too long. Ads discreetly warn that parts of the film may be too intense for some viewers. It's true, incest is uncomfortable viewing. GRADE: B-minus

METEOR (PG) — Sean Connery, Natalie Wood, Brian Keith. (Adventure) This is the latest disaster movie, and the problem now is a huge chunk of meteor, zooming towards us and there's no way to stop it. But wait! Maybe the Russian and American scientists, working together, can blast it out of the sky. Good special effects and some exciting moments — as well as some pretty dumb ones. GRADE: B

NATURAL ENEMIES (R) — Hal Holbrook. (Drama) Intended to be a profound portrait of the last day of a man who plans to kill his wife (because she is frigid), his three kids (because they watch too much TV), and himself (because he finds his job unfulfilling). We learn nothing about the kind of man who would commit such an act, as Holbrook pontificates about the meaninglessness of life, except that he doesn't need a gun — he could bore them all to death. GRADE: F

QUADROPHENIA (R) — Phil Daniels, Leslie Ash. (Drama) Teen alienation in mid-'60s British mod garb, but a good treatment of an old and troubling theme. Taking its cue from a powerful concept and score by the Who, the film portrays a youth wrestling with his sense of identity. Cast and crew of relative unknowns turn in a movie which is exciting, turbulent, yet touching. GRADE: A-minus

ROSE, THE (R) — Bette Midler, Alan Bates, Frederic Forrest. (Drama with music) This story of the tragic decline of a Janis Joplin-like singer is ugly and unpleasant, but tremendously effective and moving. Midler's performance is truly outstanding, and you'll find yourself aching with her, as booze, drugs and men destroy her. Caution: Gutter language. GRADE: A

RUNNER STUMBLES, THE (PG) — Dick Van Dyke, Kathleen Quinlan, Maureen Stapleton. (Drama) Producer-director Stanley Kramer always aims high, and does so again with this film version of a play about a priest, a nun, a romance (after a fashion) and a murder. The trouble is it sounds more exciting than it is, and the film is very slow going. The runner may stumble, but the film falls down. GRADE: B-minus.

10 (R) — Julie Andrews, Dudley Moore, Bo Derek. (Romantic comedy) You've heard about guys who rate girls on a scale of one to 10? Well, this is about a girl who is a 10, and how that assessment mightily affects a songwriter, as well as the girl and her new bridegroom. Nothing weighty here, just good clean fun — and some of it isn't so clean. GRADE: B-plus

YANKS (R) — Richard Gere, Vanessa Redgrave, William Devane, Lisa Eichorn. (Drama) Story of American GIs stationed in a small English village in 1942, and of the local women they become involved with. Slow, richly textured and splendid to look at, but the romances ultimately sink into a state of fuzzy dispassion. So does the movie. Caution: Some strong subject matter, language. GRADE: B

Settlement Announced In Shoe Tape Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department announced on Friday the proposed settlement of a year-old civil antitrust suit that accused the two major producers of shoe reinforcement tape of price-fixing.

The proposed decree is subject to approval of U.S. District Court in Boston.

The defendants, Chelsea Industries Inc. of Boston and Avon Tape Inc. of Avon, Mass., were accused last year of fixing prices on tape products sold to the shoe industry between 1967 and April 1, 1978. The tape is a fabric-type material treated with adhesive to reinforce shoes at stress points.

The companies pleaded no contest Feb. 1 to companion criminal charges and were fined a total of $255,000.

The proposed civil settlement for 10 years would bar the companies from price-fixing or from communicating price information with any other manufacturer of the products. The companies also would be required to publish new domestic prices within 60 days after the court order is approved.

Oil Prices Worry Chemical Companies

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Don't count on aspirin to ease your inflation headaches — even the pain reliever has been hit by rising oil prices.

It may seem an odd connection, oil and aspirin, but the link applies to thousands of common consumer goods. It starts in the chemical industry.

"We're an industry built on a barrel of oil," said Rob Lamkin, energy manager for Monsanto Co., the nation's fourth-largest chemical company and maker of bulk aspirin.

Dramatic increases this year in world oil prices have sent a ripple of fear through the American chemical industry, analysts say, and the uncertainty is likely to result in higher prices for a wide variety of consumer goods.

"There is hardly a single thing that you touch in a day that doesn't have an oil-based chemical in it," said Don Center, an oil specialist for Union Carbide, the second-largest U.S. chemical company.

About 90 percent of Monsanto's product line, which includes plastics, drugs, textiles, resins and industrial and agricultural chemicals, is made from various derivatives of crude oil, company spokesman Gary Barton said.

One of those raw materials, benzene, has doubled in price in the last year, from 80 cents a gallon to $1.60 a gallon.

The price of ethylene, another major oil derivative used in the chemical industry, has jumped 27 percent since 1978. "An increase in oil costs ultimately results in the increased cost of ethylene, and those increases ultimately move through the manufacturing and distribution chain to the consumer," said Barton.

Oil is a building block for a surprisingly wide variety of goods, including door mats, luggage, furniture, rope, refrigerators, telephones, toilet seats, tires, artificial turf and processed food.

Although some oil-based products are more immune to changes in crude oil prices than others, almost all chemical products can be expected to jump in price in coming months, analysts say.

What chemical companies say they fear most — even more than the recent cutoff of oil imports from Iran — is the double-barrel effect of another jump in the prices charged by the oil-exporting countries and the onset of a recession in the U.S. economy.

"Chemical profits are very good now," Lamkin said, "primarily because of strong volume. But if we have a recession, a stiff one especially, our volume will obviously be hurt." That would make it more difficult for Monsanto to compensate for itsincreasedraw materials costs, Lamkin said.

The symptoms of a recession, including a slowdown in new housing starts, a sluggish automobile industry and a dip in retail clothing sales, bode ill for the entire U.S. chemical industry, analysts say.

Monsanto, for example, counted on the auto industry for 16 percent of its business last year. The St. Louis-based chemical company produces plastics products used to make dashboard panels, gas tanks, bumper guards and other auto parts.

It has not escaped Monsanto's attention that new car sales fell an average of 5.7 percent in each of the last three business quarters, and the auto industry has cut back its production schedule for the final three months of the year by 20 percent because the 1980 models aren't selling well.

Fewer housing starts would also hurt Monsanto, which makes elements ofcarpeting, draperies, upholstery fabrics and other textiles used in home furnishings and building.

If agriculture lags, sales of Monsanto's herbicides and insecticides will lag, too, Barton said.

"Monsanto's economists are predicting strong recessionary pressures," Lamkin said. "But we don't see a deep recession, we see a flat period ahead for the first half of next year."

For the first nine months of 1979, the chemical industry generally enjoyed increased profits and high sales, industry analysts say, due in part to some customers' inventory building in anticipation of higher oil prices.

Third quarter sales at Monsanto jumped 26 percent over the same period a year ago and net profit was up about the same amount, excluding the benefits of a one-time change in tax laws in the United Kingdom, John Hanley, company board chairman, said.

"... We anticipate that our fourth-quarter results will be impacted by the recessionary factors now observable in the United States," Hanley told company officials in late October.

The threat of a recession, coupled with the instability of prices and supplies of imported oil, has spurred some American chemical companies to bolster their own supplies of petrochemicals and to slow down investments in new markets.

Monsanto and Continental Oil Co., for example, are working together at Monsanto's oil refinery at Chocolate Bayou, Texas to double the plant's production of benzene, ethylene and other oil derivatives.

The purpose of the project, Hanley said, is to link Conoco's crude oil reserves with Monsanto's chemical processing knowhow, allowing Conoco to share in the plant's output and Monsanto to attain a guaranteed supply of certain oil products from Conoco.

Union Carbide, on the other hand, has taken a different tack.

"We have elected to put our dollars into an effort to find ways to get more chemicals from a barrel of crude oil," Center said in a telephone interview. "We are concentrating on alternative processes for making more raw materials from our crude."

Proposed Northern Tier Pipeline Gains Approval

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — The North Dakota Public Service Commission approved on Friday the proposed Northern Tier Pipeline's west-to-east route through the state.

The three commissioners voted unanimously to grant siting approval to the pipeline's 344-mile segment through nine northern counties.

Commissioner Bruce Hagen said he believes North Dakota is the first state to give final approval to the $1.2 billion proposal. The 40-inch pipeline would also cross the states of Washington, Idaho, Montana and Minnesota.

In its order, the PSC required the Northern Tier Pipeline Co., based in Billings, Mont., to serve the Amoco refinery at Mandan, N.D., and other North Dakota refineries.

The order also requires the company to reclaim all rangelands, river banks, roads, croplands and wooded areas damaged during construction. The line is to be buried at least three feet, and farming can be resumed when the topsoil is replaced.

Commission President Richard Elkin said the line's North Dakota section conforms to environmental guidelines and "brings energy to the Midwest that would not otherwise be available."

Pending approval by other states, the company expects to begin construction in February 1981, with crude oil beginning to flow in November 1982.

Hagen said the pipeline will initially carry 700,000 barrels of crude oil daily, with a maximum capacity of 930,000 barrels daily.

Unusual California Farmer Maintains 'King Of Chives' Title

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

MILPITAS, Calif. (NEA) — A checked shirt open almost to the navel exposes a gold cross dangling across his chest. His silver coiffure had to be shaped by someone out of Vidal Sassoon. His tailored blue jeans are tight to the belly.

William J. Armanino is actually a farmer.

Not, of course, your everyday dirt tiller. His spread is 600 rich acres in California's San Jose area — split between the lush bottomland of Milpitas and the sun-baked Sunol ridge. The land is worth, conservatively, $15 million.

On it, Armanino grows the most exotic row-crop produce this side of Borneo. Mustard greens, China mustard, leek, shallots, parsley, dill, basil, tarragon, curly mustard, chard, spinach and all kinds of broad-leaf lettuce — these and more come out of his fields.

But Armanino Farms are known principally for chives, those little specks of green in your cottage cheese and cream cheese and in a lot of your spices.

Armanino, 51, is the King of Chives. he claims his domain produces 85 percent of the world's supply. Some 4 million pounds of that slender offshoot of the onion family go annually to markets in America, Europe and Asia.

So here he is in his air-conditioned office on the ranch — er, farm — with his staff gathered before him in straight-backed chairs that look like they came off a Shakespearian set.

TODAY'S FARMER
Not your everday dirt tiller

He is holding a conference with Joe, who is his ranch manager; Andriano, who is in charge of the chives; Rich, who oversees the parsley acreage; Bill, who controls production; Mary, responsible for the shallot crop, and John, a young law graduate who is an agrarian version of Hamilton Jordon in Armanino's operation.

The talk centers on allotting acreage to different crops, keeping 7 rocky acres in the Pemberton plot out of shallots (a small onion used for flavoring), and rotating the lettuce fields.

"I just made a decision," says Bill, firmly, after hearing all arguments — including those about chards (a kind of beet). "Get 20 acres of chards, Rich. I don't care how you do it. We got just five days. And we'll have 65 acres of parsley and 50 acres of shallots.

"Joe," he turns to his ranch boss, "by Monday I want it all in. I don't want to excuses.

"We got 20 Vietnamese and Thais on hand. I want to put 'em in the fields. If they work out, next year we want to bring in 50; I don't know how they work. Try 'em in thinning and weeding."

He explains that he's been in touch with the State Department to accept refugees from Vietnam and Thailand, that he'll take them, men or women, from ages 18 to 60, and that each group of 20 will have an interpreter.

"I want the older ones to work for me," says Joe.

"Don't worry about age," says Armanino. "They're not going to be Hong Kong (street) types. These people come from agrarian backgrounds."

Next Armanino turns his attention to bread-and-butter matters. "How come," he asks brusquely, "we got such a yellowing burn on the leek fields? We got a big order from England. Why don't we get iron and sulfate of ammonia up there and get it greened up?" (Leek is an onion-like vegetable used in soups and sauces.)

"There's tremendous technology," says Bill, "in raising fine French purple shallots." With a rapturous look on his swarthy face, he holds up a little bulb that looks like a reduced onion.

The Armanino clan took root in northern California when his father, Guglielmo, now 82, came over in 1921 from Liguria in northern Italy. The senior Armanino sensed a need for cultivation of herbs and spices and immediately began plowing some ground on the southern edge of the city.

Twenty years ago, the Armaninos began expanding their operations into the San Jose basin, becoming one of the world's leading cultivators of herbs. They also produce 30 percent of the world's crop of shallots.

They bring in produce from farms in France, Holland and Mexico for their own processing facility in San Francisco, where the plants are frozen or freeze-dried, packed and shipped.

An armada of 30 vehicles keeps the local operation moving, and Bill rotates between his plant office on Carroll Street in San Francisco and the farm, which looks out on the Calaveras range, in Milpitas. Foreign buyers from England and Japan are frequent visitors to both.

After his farm conference, he jumps into a pickup truck and barks into a radio intercom, "Mr. Armanino will be running around in Mobile II for the next hour."

"Andriano says he needs to talk to you," the voice on the speaker tells him.

Armanino, by now steering his truck onto Highway 680 in the direction of the Sunol acreage, answers, "If you got anything heavy, lay it on me right away."

Massive Weather Research Concluding

WASHINGTON (AP) — The most massive study of the Earth's weather in history is winding up, and scientists from 147 nations now turn their attention to studying what they found and learning ways to use this new information.

The Global Weather Experiment officially concludes Friday, ending a year in which scientists collected the most complete worldwide weather records ever assembled.

Now they will use this information to try and learn the practical limits of weather forecasting and to design a system to reach these limits.

But this grand experiment, first expected to provide only long-term research results, is already paving the way for improved forecasts and providing other benefits.

"Real-time benefits were never expected, however, Australia has come up with some," said Rex J. Flemming of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The intensive use of drifting buoys and satellites in the experiment provided unexpected new details to Australian meteorologists, helping them improve their local forecast.

"Opinions from meteorologsts are that the buoy data have considerably improved the analyses over the oceanic areas and led to improved predictions" James Rasmussen of the World Meteorological Organization said of the Australian experience.

In addition, these ocean measurements are showing the way to better forecasts in the United States and even saving fuel for airlines.

Weather developing over oceans affects many countries, including the United States, and any additional information about what is happening in these areas helps forecasters.

The aviation benefits, on the other hand, come from weather information automatically taken by equipment installed on some wide-bodied jets and radioed back via satellite.

The measurements are taken eight times each hour, and officials at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration say that frequenty this can be relayed to later flights allowing them to take advantage of favorable winds or to avoid storms.

But, as originally intended, the most important benefits of the experiment should surface in future years, as the millions of details of the weather are analyzed and used to help scientists better understand how weather works and what it is likely to do in the future.

The experiment used five satellites, dozens of aircraft and ships and a network of hundreds of buoys drifting in the oceans, balloons launched from ships and aircraft and other instruments around the world.

"We are immensely pleased with the operational phase of the experiment," Flemming said.

But, he added, "the real advantages will show themselves a few years down the road. When the scientists have analyzed all this mass of data, and everything we have learned is incorporated into global ocean and weather prediction models, wewill soonsee two important advances — better weather forecasting and a start on global climate simulation. That will be the payoff of the Global Weather Experiment."

WOMEN TOPIC OF FILM

ROME (AP) — Italian movie director Federico Fellini has completed filming his latest movie, "La Citta delle Donne (The City of Women)," described as a fantasy about the changing image of women. The long-delayed film stars Marcello Mastroianni and the late Ettore Manni and features a cast of hundreds of women, ranging from feminists to tramps. Shooting at Rome's Cinecitta studios was suspended for several weeks last summer following the death of Manni. Police said he accidentally shot himself while handling a gun in his home.

Transfer Possibility May Affect Patients

By the Editors of Psychology Today

A federal Medicaid regulation tries to save government money by shifting nursing-home patients into less intensive care as their health improves. Yet the rule may actually be encouraging some patients to stay sick, as an unconsious way to avoid being moved.

In New York State, for example, the status of Medicaid patients is reviewed every three months. Afterward, patients who seem to have improved are often slated for transfer to another home. The patients often view the transfer almost as punishment for getting better, because it means leaving friends and a familiar place.

As part of an investigation of how patients' objections are handled, Legal Serices for the Elderly Poor (LSEP), a nonprofit agency in New York City asked social workers in various nursing homes to describe status reviews they had helped supervise. The workers returned questionaires on 200 patients.

Roughly 60 percent of the 120 who were recommended for tranfer to another home objected. Seven percent of them were moved anyway and a few died.

But for most, by the time the review committee met, the patients' medical condition had worsened.

The changes in patients' health could have happened anyway, which would mean that initial status-review decisions are often wrong. However, according to Jerrold Mirotznik, a sociologist analyzing the responses, another possibility is that the chance of a transfer triggers a complex of symptoms that social scientists have known since the 1960s as "transfer trauma."

Previous studies have found a worsening of symptoms when a hospital closing leaves no choice but to move patients. The new study's finding is the first to suggest that the symptoms are an unconscious weapon for bucking a decision that can be reversed.

Eliminating transfers is not the way to head off trauma, since that would contribute even further to the rigidity that keeps many patients in nursing homes who could live outside. Instead, LSEP attorney Philip Gassel has used the new data to argue for more diversified nursing homes. In them, several levels of care can be provided in the same institution. If a patient improves, a transfer would mean moving only to a different floor or ward.

Responding to a lawsuit brought by LSEP, the New York State Department of Health, which licenses the homes, is taking a lesser step: It is promising simply to stop making transfers when patients object. LSEP hopes the change will set a precedent for other states that have similar procedures.

People who say they feel pressure at work nontheless do not think their stress is a sufficient reason to switch jobs, according to a new survey sponsored by the American Academy of Family Physicians.

The Academy asked a New York research firm to contact people through the membership rolls of unions or professional organizations including family physicians, farmers, garment workers, secretaries, teachers and business executives.

Five of these six middle-class groups cited various sources of workplace tensions. But the factors that would make them switch, they said, were not job pressures, but a feeling that their jobs did not offer enough pay or self-fulfillment.

Mint Pondering Changing Color Of Coin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Mint is considering changing the color of the Susan B. Anthony dollar to try to make the coin more acceptable to the public, a Mint official said Friday.

"What we are doing now is strictly exploratory research and development work," said the official, who asked not to be identified. "It's likely to be several months before we come up with something."

The coin, which Mint officials had hoped would begin replacing the paper $1 note, has been in trouble with the public and Congress since it was introduced July 2.

Critics say the Anthony dollar is too easily confused with the quarter and that it is competing with the public's preference for paper currency.

The Mint is testing alloys of copper and zinc and copper, aluminum and nickel, the Mint official said. Each combination would produce a bronze or brass look.

"Some of the original testing that we did (on alloys) showed that they would tarnish to an antique-type finish like a bronze doorknob," the official said. "That is one of the reasons we rejected them originally. But we're re-thinking the whole color question as a result of all the negative reaction."

Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., a frequent critic of the coin, is skeptical about the color change.

"I don't think even changing the color is going to get it accepted," he said. "The basic problem is that it's too small and too similar to the size of the quarter."

Annunzio added, however, that "I'm willing to give it a try" in an effort to protect the millions of dollars the government already has invested in developing and promoting the coin.

In recent testimony before Congress, Treasury Undersecretary Bette B. Anderson said "it would be unwise at this time to alter the Anthony dollar coin in any way."

She argued that the size already has been accommodated in thousands of vending machines across the nation and added, "acceptance of any new coin introduced in the nation's coinage and currency does not occur over night."

The Mint has produced more than 700 million of the silver-colored Anthony dollars, with about 450 million shipped to regional Federal Reserve banks for distribution. The Mint continues to produce about 30 million of the coins per month, the Mint official said.

Treasury officials estimate the government could save $50 million a year if the coin begins to replace the dollar bill.

"The dollar bill costs nearly 2 cents to produce and lasts only 18 months in circulation," Treasury literature says. "The new dollar coin will cost 3 cents to produce and will last 15 years or more in good condition."

Treasury officials also estimate a savings of at least $4.5 million a year because the Anthony coin is less expensive to produce than the Eisenhower dollar, which it replaced.

And increasing public acceptance of the coin is central to long-range government plans for the nation's currency system.

European Banking Differs From U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — Europeans will be using more consumer credit in the future, but, unlike Americans, they will get most of it through their bank accounts rather than through retailers or credit cards, according to a recent study.

The survey of consumer credit practices in Western Europe indicates that Europeans and Americans have basically the same services available to them, but consumer preferences and slight differences in banking methods in Europe have emphasized arranging for credit at banks.

The most popular European version of a checking account is called a current account, but it can provide several services that are uncommon in the United States. One of these services makes the accounts especially convenient vehicles for extending consumer credit — automatic revolving credit lines to cover overdrafts. The accounts frequently also allow for automatic and direct depositing of paychecks and for paying bills automatically by charging them against the accounts.

Another bank service far more popular in Europe than in the United States are guaranteed checks, which retailers readily accept for purchases because the bank, not the consumer, guarantees payment.

"Overdraft arrangements combined with guaranteed checks, such as the Eurocheque, have proven to be adequate substitutes for credit cards in many of these countries," the study said.

The report was prepared by Touche Ross International, a major management consulting and accounting firm, and Payment Systems Inc., an independent research and consulting subsidiary of American Express Co.

The Eurocheque system stems from 1967, when West German banks started a uniform check guarantee system which was standardized later throughout Europe. Under the plan, banks provide depositors with Eurocheques, guaranteed for a certain amount, and a Eurocheque identification card. Eurocheques are drawn against the depositor's current account, which is usually backed by a credit arrangement for overdrafts.

By the end of 1977, more than 27 million Eurocheque cards had been issued. This compares with about 4 million bank credit cards, usually affiliated with the Interbank system, called Master Charge in the United States, or the Visa International system. The Interbank and Visa cards are concentrated in Great Britain and Ireland, with the rest in France, Sweden, Italy and Spain, the study reported.

There are about 5 million more bank credit cards with a check guarantee function, but do not provide revolving credit.

According to the survey, consumers in some Continental nations, the Netherlands and West Germany for example, are reluctant to buy on credit. Britons, however, use credit cards issued by banks and retailers much as Americans do.

"Cash will continue to be the most widely used payment method," the study said of Western Europe.

Retailers are not eager to extend consumer credit and "are not persuaded that credit services are essential to increasing sales and customer loyalty," the report added.

Banks, however, are competing to attract consumers who will open current accounts, many of which pay interest of about 4 percent on the deposits. Rather than start up separate credit card systems to attract customers, the survey by Touche Ross International and Payment Systems indicates that banks will concentrate on providing overdraft credit and Eurocheques with current accounts.

Britain, Ireland and Scandanavian countries will probably have an expansion of bank credit cards, and the cards are likely to become popular in Italy and Spain, where current accounts are uncommon, the survey said.

Intercourse, Premature Birth Hazard Studied

BOSTON (AP) — A doctor who found that sexual intercourse during pregnancy may endanger the unborn child says he is trying to determine whether couples can avoid this complication without giving up sex.

Dr. Richard L. Naeye, who found a link between intercourse and premature birth, said the hazard may be eliminated if couples use condoms and are careful to keep their genitals clean.

Naeye's study, based on the records of 26,886 pregnancies, examined only whether women had intercourse during the last month before birth. In some cases, however, the sexually active women gave birth four months early, and Naeye said that the danger of infection seemed to be greatest midway through pregnancy.

Naeye's report did not examine whether intercourse in the first three months of pregnancy has damaging effects.

In the study published Thursday in the New England Journal of Medicine, Naeye revealed that infections of the amniotic fluid that surrounds the fetus are more common when women have intercourse during pregnancy.

The infection can cause premature birth, as well as respiratory problems and other disorders in the newborn. The infant death rate from this infection was two to three times greater when the mother had been sexually active during pregnancy.

"It may be that fastidious perineal (genital) cleansing by the coital partners or the use of condoms can reduce the frequency and improve the outcome of the infections," Naeye wrote, "but advice on these matters will have to await the results of clinical trials."

Naeye, a pathologist at the M.S. Hershey Medical Center in Hershey, Pa., is currently conducting these studies.

Naeye noted that infections of the amniotic fluid can also occur when pregnant women abstain from sex.

But he wrote, "At every gestational age, the proportion of fetuses and neonates (newborns) who died after being infected was greater when coitus had occurred than when it had not, because infections were more severe when coitus had taken place."

NATURAL WARMTH

Iceland's capital city, Reykjavik, is the most northerly capital in the world. Yet thanks to the Gulf Stream the city is warmer in winter than New York. Reykjavik means "smoky bay" in the Icelandic language. The "smoke" seen by 9th century settlers was steam rising from hot springs. That natural steam and hot water is now piped in to heat all the homes of Reykjavik, making it a clean and smokeless city.

Convict Plans Own Pardon If Elected President

By TOM TIEDE

MARION, Ill. (NEA) — Garrett Trapnell, No. 72021-158, has wanted to break out of the formidable U.S. penitentiary here ever since arriving, nine long years ago.

He's serving a life sentence for air piracy.

Prison authorities say he's tried to escape on several occasions. One time a girlfriend hijacked a helicopter to snatch him from the yard. Last year the girlfriend's daughter commandeered a light plane, apparently for the same reason.

Now Trapnell, 41, is working on a new plan for freedom. No. 72021-158 is running for president of the United States.

Really.

"When I'm elected," he says, from the other side of a visitor's booth, "the first thing I'll do is pardon myself."

Well, never underestimate a man doing life. Trapnell admits that as a convicted felon he can't vote in the next election, nor is he allowed to hold public office. But the Constitution guarantees any native born citizen over 35 the right to be a candidate for the White House, no exceptions.

Hence No. 72021-158 is a bona fide contestant. He has registered with the Federal Elections Commission (his number there is P00000265), and he's receiving government position papers and correspondence briefings. In the eyes of the election laws, he's the equal of Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan.

True, this equality is something of a technicality. An FEC spokesman says Trapnell is one of nearly 100 marginal candidates who have filed for the 1980 election. The spokesman says the marginals are entitled to run, even if they are a bureaucratic nuisance, "but of course they have no chance."

Don't tell that to No. 72021-158. He says he is most serious about the election. He's now writing his platform, soliciting campaign workers and hoping to raise enough earnest money ($5000 in each of 20 states) to qualify for federal funding. Yes, he could receive tax gifts for financing.

Trapnell has also formed his own political unit, the "Nationalists Christian Democratic Party." He says it's a bit to the right of the Democrats and the left of the GOP. The party members are mostly federal convicts, he adds, and they stand for blood, sweat, compassion, equality and prison reform.

Naturally, prison reform. Trapnell says jails are the first step on the footpath to national rehabilitation. If prisoners can't be helped, he feels, then no one can be helped.

Accordingly, No. 72021-158 says the second thing he'd do as president (after his own pardon), is "to bring every government official into a federal lockup for at least 24 hours."

The officials would see shameful degradation, Trapnell thinks. More, they would see astonishing waste. No. 72021-158 says it costs about $15,000 a year to keep him at the Marion facility; for that he could be put in Harvard Law School and placed in the direction of a productive existence.

Trapnell says he has not in nine years known a prison officer who has helped move an inmate toward productive existence. But he has known officers who've beaten and killed prisoners. And that's why No. 72021-158 is running for president; he wants to fight the "terrible injustice" that he's witnessed.

By the way, Trapnell claims he's now a personal victim of the injustice. He says Marion administrators are destroying his mail, and discouraging interviews, in an attempt to stall his presidential campaign. "What they're doing is blocking my access to the electorate," he grumps, "and that's illegal."

If equal protection means anything, No. 72021-158 insists he must be able to run his campaign unhindered. That is, he must be given office space in the prison, plus telephones. He would also like to use the prison facilities for mass mailing, and, perhaps, have his own letterhead printed.

Trapnell has taken the demands to a U.S. District Court. His argument is that Title 18 of the U.S. Code (595) prohibits federal officers from using their positions to interfere with nominations or elections. In other words, he wants the court to take the ball and chain from his presidential dream.

So far the court has not responded to the suit. Trapnell says his campaign suffers as a result. He hasn't been able to hire a single state chairman, for instance, or raise a dollar in his behalf. And meantime all the candidates who aren't behind bars are not required to undergo bedchecks every night.

But No. 72021-158 says there is still time. For a man serving life there is always still time. Besides, Trapnell has at least one more thing going for him: "Many of the great leaders of history have been criminals," he observes, which may or may not say something about the quality of his opponents.

Chrysler Wage Freeze May Not Solve Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — A wage freeze proposed by the Senate Banking Committee may be too high a price for Chrysler Corp. employees to pay to keep their floundering employer afloat, a United Auto Workers union spokesman said Friday.

"If the price of preserving the company and their jobs is not to feed their families and to give up their homes, it may not be worth paying," Howard Paster, legislative director of the UAW, told a reporter.

The committee approved by a 10-4 vote Thursday a bill calling for $1.25 billion in federal loan guarantees, but requiring $2.75 billion worth of matching effort from other sources. This would include Chrysler Corp.'s workers acceptance of a wage freeze for at least two years.

The freeze would require the union to renegotiate its newly signed three-year contract with Chrysler, meaning it would have to relinquish wage increases already won at the bargaining table.

Paster described this as "ludicrous."

On the other hand, Richard Muller of the Washington public affairs office of Chrysler described the committee's approval of the bill as "an important move on the way to having the issue resolved by the two houses of Congress."

The House Banking Committee has approved a widely different loan guarantee bill — one which does not call for a wage freeze. This measure is expected to come up on the House floor the week after next.

Assuming both houses approve some form of aid to Chrysler, the issue eventually would be negotiated by a committee of House and Senate conferees.

In addition to the wage freeze for hourly workers, the Senate bill calls for a freeze on the total amount of compensation for white-collar employees.

Muller said management salaries already have been frozen by Chrysler, and that and executives took pay cuts of 2 percent to 10 percent, effective Sept. 1.

Chrysler expects to lose $1 billion this year and says it will face bankruptcy without government aid.

DISTRICT COURTS

The basis of the U.S. judicial system is the District Court. There are 94 of these federal courts, at least one in each state, the District of Columbia and certain territories. Called courts of general jurisdiction, they have the power to pass judgment in criminal cases involving violations of federal law, in civil cases where the contending parties reside in different states, and in other types of cases such as bankruptcy, patents, trademarks, copyrights, and matters involving navigational waters.

Prime Rate Beginning To Decline

NEW YORK (AP) — Major banks lowered their prime lending rates to 15½ percent Friday, deciding on a moderate reduction instead of the larger cut announced earlier in the week by Chase Manhattan Bank.

Citibank of New York, the nation's second-largest bank, was the first to move to 15½ percent on Friday, and was quickly followed by nearly every major bank, including Bank of America, the nation's largest. Their rates had been 15¾ percent.

The cut reflected both weak loan demand and a continuing decline in the cost of funds for banks, but indicated uncertainty about whether the reductions will continue.

Chase Manhattan, the third-largest bank, on Tuesday lowered its prime rate 15¼ percent, but no other major bank h matched that rate.

think we're going to see declining rates ut they're going to come gradually." D d Jones, an economist with Aubrey G anston & Co., said Friday. "There's s a great deal of uncertainty, over energy ices and the Mideast situation in particu."

Citibank's p lished formula called for a rate between 15¼ percent and 15½ percent, giving the bank a choice between the two figure. The selection of the higher figure helped to depress money markets and short-ter interest rates moved higher Friday.

The prime rate is the rate anks chage their mostcredit-wothy corporate customers. Other industrial and commercial customers pay higher rates.

The rate does not directly affect consumer or mortgage loan rates, but is widely watched as an indicator of short-term interest rates.

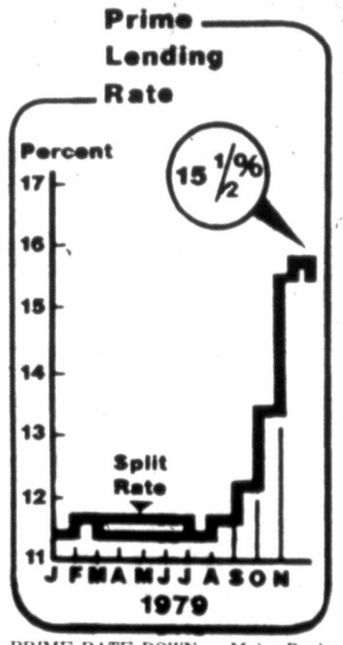

The 15¾ percent prime was a record high for the rate, which had never been above 12 percent until late August. It rose rapidly after that as the Federal Reserve Board tightened credit in an effort to fight inflation.

The Federal Reserve's efforts have been at least partially successful. The growth of the money supply has virtually halted since Oct. 6, when the most severe tightening measures were imposed, and demand for loans has been dropping for several weeks.

In addition, the economy is clearly slowing, indicating that loan demand is likely to remain weak. The auto industry has been laying off large numbers of workers and U.S. Steel this week announced plans to close 15 plants. The government on Friday reported a sharp drop in the index of leading economic indicators, forecasting a likely slowdown.

On the other side, however, are fears about the dollar, which dropped on Friday to near its historic low against the West German mark. A continuing slide in the dollar could lead the Federal Reserve to tighten credit again in an effort to raise interest rates and defend the currency.

A large hike in oil prices by the Organization of Petrolem Exporting Countries, while it would likely slow the economy, could also prompt a boost in interest rates by hurting the dollar and prompting another round of inflation.

More than 90 percent of the U.S. working population is now covered by Social Security, up from less than 60 percent in 1940.

Senate Ratifies Extradition Treaties

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted 91-0 on Friday to ratify a treaty that would permit Americans sentenced for crimes in Turkey to serve their sentences in American jails.

Turkish prisoners held in the United States also would be given the right to request repatriation to serve their prison terms in Turkish jails.

By the same 91-0 margin the Senate also approved extradition treaties with Japan, Mexico and Norway and a prisoner transfer treaty with Panama.

Senate sources said there are signs that Turkey may take up to a year to ratify the treaty, using it in the meantime to apply leverage to obtain substantial U.S. economic and military aid.

Similar treaties are already in effect between the United States and Mexico, Canada and Bolivia.

All of the pacts provide that a prisoner give his "informed consent" to the return to his native land.

"This treaty is intended to relieve the special hardships that fall upon prisoners incarcerated far from home and to make their rehabilitation more feasible," Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said in a letter attached to the report on the treaty by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

"It is also designed to relieve diplomatic and law enforcement relations between the two countries of the strains that arise from the imprisonment of each country's nationals in the institutions of the other," he said. "It constitutes part of an ongoing effort to improve relations between the two countries."

Expert Optimistic About Conference To Save Sea Turtles

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leading expert on the biology of the sea turtle said Friday he is optimistic that an international conference on the creature will lead to coordinated efforts to help save the turtle from extinction.

David Ehrenfeld of Rutgers University said the week-long meeting of scientists from some 40 nations established new ties in the international community and already is yielding solid results.

He cited Nicaragua's decision to attempt to establish a marine sanctuary off its eastern coast and possible agreement between Nicaragua and Costa Rica concerning turtle herds that migrate between the two countries.

A representative of the Philippine government said he hopes to reach similar agreements covering turtles in the Pacific. And Israeli scientists are meeting with officials from otherwise-hostile Middle East nations in an effort to preserve the turtle in the eastern Mediterranean Sea, Ehrenfeld said.

"This conference has transcended national politics," he said in an interview.

The world conference was called in the face of commercial exploitation that has decimated turtle populations throughout the world.

The sea turtle was once so abundant that Spanish navigators claimed they could find their way to the Cayman Islands in fog simply by following the splashing sound of passing turtle herds.

But that was before commercial hunters discovered the bounty in the turtle's body. Its shell makes jewelry; its skin makes leather; its meat is rich in protein; its oil is used in cosmetics; its cartilage is rendered for soup; its eggs are considered in some parts of the world to be aphrodisiacs.

Now, scientists say, six of the seven species of sea turtle have been hunted close to extinction, and the seventh is not much safer.

The week-long conference, which was held at the State Department, was devoted principally to hearing and discussing papers written by scientists from around the world.

On Friday, the conferenoe concluded by adopting a strategy paper that can be followed in helping governments and interested people around the world to preserve individual groups, or populations, of sea turtles.

The strategy paper calls for the international effort to be monitored by the World Wildlife Fund and the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources.

"The best we can do is to concentrate on the protection of existing wild populations, using the simplest and least risky techniques of conservation," said Ehrenfeld. "Fortunately, the techniques with the lowest risk and greatest promise are also those with the lowest cost and requiring the least elaborate technology."

Suggested conservation techniques include protection of beach nesting areas; eggs and emerging hatchlings; and of the areas at sea where turtles migrate and those which serve as principal feeding and hibernating areas.

The conference also called for strict enforcement of international conventions barring commercial use of the turtle and its products. To prevent the accidental drowning of turtles in nets set for other species, the conference also called for restricted fishing zones in areas of high turtle population.

Radioactive Iridium-192 Recovered After Fall From Truck

PENNSAUKEN, N.J. (AP) — As edgy authorities searched for a missing lump of Iridium-192 on Friday, two men remembered that they tossed the container with the radioactive element into the bed of their truck the night before.

The men, who were not immediately identified, didn't know the 50-pound container they found about 8:45 p.m. Thursday stored radioactive material.

The canister, lost in transit between 8 and 8:30 p.m. Thursday when it apparently fell of a truck, contained 55 Curies of Iridium. Abraham said the substance would have been "extremely dangerous" if container had been opened.

"A couple of men in a little truck driving in Camden found it lying at the intersection of Fairview and Broadway," Abraham said.

"They thought it was part of a hydraulic jack and threw it in back of their truck. In the morning, these two guys heard the news about the missing radiation source and took another look at it and realized what they had.

"They finished their shift at work, then drove to the owner, Eastern Testing and Inspection Inc., and turned it in."

The radioactive material was fully locked inside the container, which had been dented from the fall, Abraham said.

Eastegn Testing, a local firm, reported to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's Philadelphia Regional office in King of Prussia, Pa., that the X-ray source, which was contained in a heavily shielded radiography device, was lost from one of its trucks between Camden and Pennsauken on Thursday night, the NRC said.

There would be no appreciable health hazard as long as the container remained closed unless a person spent many hours in direct contact with the device, the NRC said.

WHAT'S UP?

HEADS ARE ROLLING. With the holidays approaching, doll making is in full swing at the Ideal Toy Corp. plant in Queens, N.Y. The principal product at the plant is the new My Bottle Baby, a doll that sucks on a bottle and makes drinking sounds while its head moves up and down. At the plant recently, a worker checked doll heads that were drying on a rack after being molded from liquid plastic.

What's up in bananas?

As American as apple pie? Perhaps as American as banana-cream pie would be more accurate.

The banana is the nation's favorite fruit, asserts Alex Abella, whose new book, "The Total Banana," notes that Americans consumed close to 5 billion pounds of bananas in 1977.

—In Council Bluffs, Iowa, it's against the law to sell bananas without warning the buyer of the dangers of casting the peels on the sidewalk.

—So you think bananas are grown only in the tropics? Greenhouse-grown bananas are the third leading export of Iceland.

—The longest banana split was 1 mile, 99 yards long. Used to concoct it were 11,333 bananas, 34,000 scoops of ice cream, 260 imperial gallons of topping, 160 pounds of chopped nuts and 100 gallons of whipped cream.

—The first — and so far only — registered use of bananas as a political weapon took place in May 1977 at Coacalco, Mexico. Enraged over the shooting of a workman, some 4,000 citizens captured the town mayor and forced him to eat 12 pounds of bananas as punishment.

—Italians have a favorite phrase to indicate the impossible: "Má va a drizzar banane." It means: "Go straighten out bananas."

Catholics honor Helen Hayes

Hundreds of artists from the stage, screen and television will gather on Dec. 3 to honor Helen Hayes when she receives the 1979 Hoey Award from the Catholic Interracial Council of New York.

Miss Hayes, who recently participated in the papal mass with Pope John Paul II before 80,000 worshipers at Yankee Stadium, will share the honors with Felisa Rincon de Gautier, former mayor of San Juan, Puerto Rico, and Cecil E. Ward, noted labor leader.

The 37th annual Hoey awards are named after James J. Hoey, the first president of the council, and his sister Jane, a renowned social worker, and have been presented annually since 1942 to distinguished Catholics in recognition of their contributions to furthering social justice.

Miss Hayes, who has received 40 honorary degrees from colleges and universities throughout the country, has had a career in theater spanning nearly 70 years.

Actor Admits Wedding Plans

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Erik Estrada, the motorcycle-riding hero of "CHiPs" who had vehemently denied taking out a marriage license this week, now admits he did get married.

Estrada's written denial was released Thursday afternoon by MGM spokesman Bill Barron. But Estrada had second thoughts and Thursday evening he announced personally that he lied because he wanted privacy.

A marriage license clerk in Las Vegas, Nev., had identified the 30-year-old star and his 39-year-old bride, Joyce Miller of Beverly Hills, as the couple who had taken out a license Sunday.

Thursday afternoon Estrada said: "Some clerk thinks she saw me at the marriage license bureau. Well, at least a dozen people really saw me sitting in a Studio City deli at the time I was supposed to be in Las Vegas. I didn't apply for a marriage license in Las Vegas or anywhere else."

He said, "The big flap about Las Vegas and a marriage license was such a ridiculous hoax I honestly didn't think it deserved a denial."

But a few hours later, Estrada admitted he had lied.

"I wanted to be left alone; I wanted a private home life. But the information leaked out," he said. "So then I thought I would deny it. But my phone was still ringing off the wall so I figured I'd better go public."

He explained: "I quickly got fed up with not being able to walk down the street with my wife, and I was really fed up with the phone ringing all the time. I hope this settles it."

Attorney General Loses Coat

MIAMI (AP) — Case number 351469-Z was just another lost-and-found. Dade County police insist. But the gray hat and a tan coat found Friday belonged to Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti.

FBI agents called to report that Civiletti had left the hat and coat in a telephone booth near the Eastern Airlines counter at Miami International Airport, said Lt. Sam Duncan. Airline employees found it about an hour later, he said.

The attorney general's wife, Gale, reached at her hotel in downtown Miami, said her husband had lost a raincoat. She would not say why they were in the city.

When asked if his officers gave the request any special priority, the lieutenant said, "We do that kind of stuff ... I've looked all over the terminal for just a regular person's stuff. We try to help anybody."

In fact, Duncan noted, the police report said the hat and coat belonged to "Attorney General Capelleti."

Guthrie Still Missed By Widow

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — "You know, I still miss him," says Marjorie Guthrie, wife of balladeer Woody Guthrie, who died 12 years ago of a dibilitating inherited disease.

In 1942, the former Marjorie Mazie Greenblatt was a dancer in New York City and Guthrie was a Dust Bowl troubadour from Okemah, Okla. They met at a labor-union fundraiser in New York and were married a short time later in Atlantic City, N.J.

"I said to myself when I stopped at a union committee meeting today, 'Woody, now I'm with your people, too,'" Mrs. Guthrie said Thursday at a meeting of the Oklahoma AFL-CIO.

A year after Guthrie died of Huntington's disease on Oct. 3, 1967, Mrs. Guthrie began an international crusade to help victims of the illness. She is also active in efforts to help people with other chronic illnesses.

Mrs. Guthrie's folk-singing son, Arlo, is scheduled to perform in Tulsa next week.

"Whenever Arlo comes home (to New York), I still make him take out the garbage. I don't believe in stars," she said.

Japan Wants To Trade Water

TOKYO (AP) — Oil and water don't mix, but a Japanese company thinks it has found a way to partially offset Japan's huge oil import bills. It wants to sell fresh water to the water-poor Arab oil producers.

"Japan imports 250 million tons of oil — mostly from the Persian Gulf — but we can supply water in excess of that amount from just one tiny island alone," Yoshiro Akiyama, shipping manager of Mitsui Trading, said Friday.

"Government agencies in Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, and the United Arab Emirates have shown interest in the deal," Akiyama said.

Mitsui plans to load water from Yakushima Island, south of Japan's southernmost main island of Kyushu. The island has nearly 400 inches of rain annually in mountainous areas.

The deal won't, however, offset Japan's huge oil bills, which this year are expected to surpass $30 billion, because while oil costs between $18 and $45 a barrel, "The water will come to about three cents per barrel," Akiyama said.

Osmonds Set Utah Concert

PROVO, Utah (AP) — The Osmond family has been a big hit on the musical scene for years but they are about to stage a first — a public concert in their home state of Utah.

The Osmonds, who moved from Ogden to Provo in 1971, have performed all over the world, but never publicly in Utah.

The concert is to be at Brigham Young University on Jan. 25, with proceeds to go to the Mormon school.

They own an apartment complex across the street from the university, and they have built a television recording studio and film center in neighboring Orem.

Three of the Osmonds, Donny, Marie and Jay, have taken classes at Brigham Young. A family spokesman, Ron Clark, said the benefit concert is the Osmonds' way of saying thanks.

The Osmonds have produced 25 gold records and sold more than 100 million records worldwide. They also are unofficial representatives for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, or Mormons.

Widow Shoots At Burglar

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP) — A pistol-toting, 71-year-old widow who traded shots with a burglar and sent him running from her home says she would do the same thing again if she had to.

"I'll be ready for them if they come back again, like I was ready for them last night," Nancy Spicuzza said Thursday.

Mrs. Spicuzza said she had just gone to bed when she heard a knock on the front door. Talking through the door, a man asked to use her telephone to call a taxi.

She refused to admit him but walked to her kitchen, in the back of the house, to call a taxi service. As she was on the phone, she heard another man breaking into her back porch, she said.

Mrs. Spicuzza said she realized the man at the front was a decoy. After calling police, she ran to her bedroom to get a .38-caliber revolver.

The man on her back porch forced open a sliding door to the kitchen, poked his arm around and opened fire, she said.

"I didn't fire until he started shooting. I didn't aim for him to just break in and kill me," she said.

Paycheck 44 Years Late

Davis last worked for the state Department of Highways in December 1935. But he never got paid for his last day of work.

Earlier this year he decided it was time to square accounts. So he wrote to Lt. Gov. Thelma Stovall and enclosed a petition signed by some 50 people asking that Davis be paid for work performed.

The debt was canceled Thursday when Davis, 75, got a check and a letter from Calvin Grayson, secretary of the Department of Highways, who said he felt "obligated to do everything in my power to relieve this burden from you."

"I'm not going to cash it," the retired farmer said. "I'm having it framed."

Senator Warns Against Tough Windfall Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The acting Senate Republican leader cautioned Friday that "there just might not be a windfall profits tax" at all if senators insist on making the tax as tough as President Carter wants.

Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, whose state ranks third, behind Texas and Louisiana, in domestic oil production, said failure of the tax on oil industry profits "wouldn't hurt my feelings at all."

If a majority of the Senate insists on gradually making the tax tougher, Stevens added, "more of us will join those who say there will be no bill" and launch a filibuster that could kill chances of passing the measure this year.

Action on the tax bill is being blocked already by oil state senators in protest of a pending amendment that would increase the tax by $25 billion.

Stevens' statement contrasted with the optimism of Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd and Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., a leader of the oil state bloc, who said progress was being made toward breaking that stalemate.

"There is no agreement," said Stevens, adding he doesn't expect one until next week.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Energy Committee and a leader of those trying to toughen the tax, agreed that no end to the impasse is in sight.

Senators from the oil producing states are delaying because a test vote earlier in the week made clear the $22½ billion amendment would be adopted if it came to a final vote.

Carter insists that the tax bill being considered by the Senate, which would cost the oil industry an estimated $129 billion in additional taxes over the next decade, is too weak. He prefers the $277 billion version passed by the House.

The Senate voted earlier in the week to cut the bill $10 billion below that recommended by the Finance Committee, allowing an exemption from the tax for virtually all oil produced by independent operators.

Sens. John Chafee, R-R.I., and Bill Bradley, D-N.J., urged approval of their amendment, increasing the tax by $22½ billion, to make up the revenue lost in aiding the independents. The Chafee-Bradley proposal would make the tax fall most heavily on the major oil companies.

Some members of the oil state bloc have said they could accept that amendment if other senators would drop several other proposals for increasing the tax.

Stevens, noting that virtually all the oil production in his home state is done by the major companies, is not ready to accept that bargain. He said he is "totally confused that while the nation is screaming for more oil and gas" many in Congress seem intent to taxing away money needed for energy production.

Committee Does Nothing But Answer Star Trek Questions

HATFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Shirley Maiewski heads an exclusive international committee of 150 people that does nothing but answer questions about Star Trek.

So far, she says, the "Trekkies" have answered about 50,000 queries from fans around the world since the famous science fiction TV series first appeared in 1967.

"Everything from the name of an episode to what are the actors doing now," she said. "We donate all our services. Donate our money. We call it a job, not a fan club."

The committee has members in England, Germany, Canada, Australia, and Japan.

"The main question for many years was when is it coming back," she said. That question is now answered.

Mrs. Maiewski has been invited by Paramount Pictures to the opening of the premiere of "Star Trek: The Motion Picture" next Thursday at the National Space Club in Washington. A reception will follow at the Smithsonian Institution.

"It's been 10 years we've waited for it," she said.

"Star Trek was ahead of its time," said Mrs. Maiewski, a cashier at the University of Massachusetts. "It has a great deal to say about getting along with each other. It showed us just because someone is different, they're not necessarily evil and that's very unusual for TV."

"You know it was the first show to have a continuing role by a black woman," she said.

Mrs. Maiewski, who has a house full of Star Trek memorabilia, including scripts, pictures, and artwork by fans, has traveled all over the country to attend Star Trek conventions.

She always sports a "Star Trek Lives" pin.

"I wear my little button and I find a lot of closet Star Trek fans," said Mrs. Maiewski.

KANSAS CITY

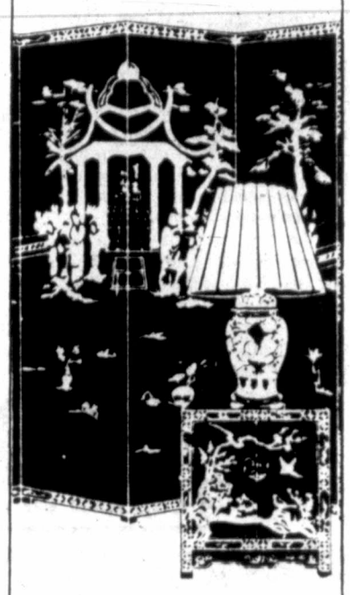

The beginnings of Kansas City, Mo., can be traced to a trading post of fur trappers in about 1826. It became an important trade and transportation center as the overland routes of the Oregon and Santa Fe trails spread westward.

Poll Says Americans Against Revenge Attack

C/ NEWS

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
Saturday, Dec. 1, 1979

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans say they would not like to see the United States launch a revenge attack on Iran if the U.S. citizens now held hostage in Tehran are released unharmed, an Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

But if the hostages are harmed — or even put on trial as Iranian militants have threatened — the public strongly backs a U.S. military attack, despite their deep worry that war could result from this crisis.

President Carter got high marks from Americans for his handling of the hostage situation, with more than three times as many approving his actions as disapproving. They think he is doing all he can to get the hostages freed and they agree that the deposed Shah of Iran should not be exchanged for the hostages, as the Iranian militants have demanded.

The poll was taken Tuesday and Wednesday, in the fourth week of the Iranian crisis. It was completed before Carter's news conference on Wednesday night.

Fifty Americans are still held hostage by Iranian militants in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. The militants have said the hostages would be freed if the United States sent the shah, currently in New York City for medical treatment, back to Iran to be tried for alleged war crimes.

The seizure of the embassy and the Americans there, coupled with the threats against the hostages, has made quite an impression on the public. Ninety-eight percent of the public said they had heard or read of the hostage situation — a very high level of public awareness.

Eighty-one percent of those who said they knew about the crisis were "personally angered" by the taking of hostages. Sixteen percent said they were not angry. Three percent of the 1,381 adults interviewed across the country by telephone were not sure.

For example, if the hostages are released unharmed, 79 percent would oppose a retaliatory U.S. attack on Iran. Only 14 percent would support such revenge and 7 percent of those who had heard of the crisis were not sure.

But if the hostages are harmed or put on trial, American sentiment is quite different.

Sixty-six percent of those who have heard about the Iranian crisis said they would support a U.S. military attack against Iran if the hostages were tried or even put on trial. Twenty-one percent said they would not support a military strike under such circumstances and 13 percent were not sure.

The dangers inherent in the Iranian crisis are clearly apparent to Americans.

In just a year, the number of Americans who say a war involving the United States is "very likely" has tripled. Thirty-two percent of those interviewed this week said such a war was "very likely" within the next three years.

One year ago, only 10 percent of the public foresaw a war.

This month, 39 percent said war is somewhat likely and 26 percent said war is not likely. Three percent were not sure. In the November 1978 AP-NBC News poll, 26 percent said war was somewhat likely; 60 percent said it was not likely and four percent were not sure.

Carter's handling of the delicate situation drew applause from the public.

Sixty-seven percent said they approved of Carter's handling of the crisis and only 21 percent disapproved. Twelve percent had not heard of the crisis or were not sure.

This favorable rating is in sharp contrast to the opinion of Americans of his work overall in recent months. The September AP-NBC News poll found that public opinion of Carter was at the lowest point for any president in more than two decades.

A critical element in the positive rating of Carter's handling of the crisis is that the president is seen as trying just about as hard as he can to get the Americans freed. Seventy-one percent said Carter is doing all he can in the situation, while 23 percent said he is not making the maximum effort. Six percent were not sure.

Carter has firmly rejected exchanging the shah for the hostages as contrary to the basic principles of America, a stand that finds strong support among the public.

More than two-thirds — 68 percent — said they agree with U.S. policy on not extraditing the shah. Twenty-three percent said they disagree and 9 percent of those who had heard of the crisis were not sure.

As with every sample survey, the results of the AP-NBC News poll can vary from the opinions of all those with telephones across the country because of chance variations in the sample.

For polls with 1,381 interviews, the results should vary no more than 3 percentage points either way simply because of sample error. That is, if one could talk to all adults in the country, there is only one chance out of 20 that the results would vary from the findings of this poll by more than 3 percentage points.

Of course, these results could vary from other polls because of differences in question wording, when the poll was taken and the method of interviewing used.

Questions On News Poll Conducted By AP-NBC Listed

NEW YORK (AP) — Here are some of the questions asked on the AP-NBC News poll.

1. 1. Do you agree with the United States government's refusal to send the deposed shah back to Iran in exchange for the release of the American hostages, or do you disagree with this position?

2. Would you say you are personally angry about Americans being held hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Iran?

3. If the American hostages are freed unharmed, do you think the United States should launch a limited military attack on Iran?

Land Swindle Results In Multimillion Loss

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — More than 100 investors have lost between $10,000 and $1 million each in a multimillion-dollar land investment swindle, a newspaper said Friday, but authorities refused to comment on the report.

Hampden County District Attorney Matthew J. Ryan Jr. refused even to say if his office is investigating such a scheme.

"I'm not interested in talking about any investigation," he said.

The Morning Union of Springfield said police were seeking Longmeadow businessman Philip R. Cohn in connection with the alleged pyramid-style deal, in which investors were promised a 30 percent return on their money in 90 days.

The newspaper quoted unidentified sources as saying businesssmen and lawyers "from western Massachusetts and other states" invested an estimated $14 million to $18 million during the alleged scheme's four years of operation.

Longmeadow police Sgt. John Donaldson said Thursday that police were told by Ryan's office that Cohn was wanted for questioning. Donaldson said he understood Cohn was sought in connection with an investigation into "some missing money and a land deal."

The Morning Union quoted one attorney — who said he was asked to invest in the plan but declined — as saying:

"He (the deal's organizer) would ask for an amount of money, say $25,000, which he said he would invest in land and promise a 30 percent return in 90 days. From what I understand he would then give the person $32,000 in 90 days and almost invariably the person would reinvest the money and add more money to it."

According to Springfield Detective Capt. James F. Williams, in a classic pyramid scheme the money for that first payment would come from the initial fee paid by a second investor.

As new investors enter the pyramid, the person running the deal is able to keep money floating until the amount of the 90-day payoffs exceeds available money, Williams said.

Senator, FTC Member Quarrel Over Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senator and a member of the Federal Trade Commission disagreed Friday over whether Congress has given the agency the power to order breakups of businesses involved in antitrust cases.

The difference came over a proposal by Sen. Howell Heflin that would make it clear to the FTC that it has no power to order divestitures under the section of law which established the commission.

Divestitures occur when companies are ordered to sell operations they obtain through what is determined to be monopoly power.

"Congress never intended that the FTC would have the remedy of divestiture of monopolies," Heflin, D-Ala., said at a hearing on his proposal.

"Congress never conferred authority upon the FTC to dismember industries or to break up companies because of monopolization," he said. Heflin said exercise of this authority usurps the will of Congress expressed as long ago as 1914.

"The law has been authoritatively interpreted by the courts to grant the FTC power to impose structural relief (order divestitures). It is untenable to contend that this is a power that the current commission usurped by an overreaching interpretation of its statute," Pitofsky said.

He cited Supreme Court approval of this power in a 1966 case and said several FTC divestiture orders have been appealed through federal courts, with the commission action upheld.

Pitofsky said the Heflin amendment "has enormous implications" for antitrust enforcement. It "would assure by law that in many monopoly cases effective remedies would not be imposed — at least not by the FTC," he said.

Although Heflin would allow the commission to issue orders against monopolistic conduct, his ban on divestiture orders would remove a major sanction, the FTC member said.

"Purely conduct remedies may be absolutely futile in a situation where a monopolist has illegally driven out of business all remaining competitors," he said.

The amendment is one of a series of congressional moves aimed at stripping the FTC of some of its powers. In one such move, the House voted this week to end the agency's antitrust jurisdiction over agricultural cooperatives, which would mean the end of a 3-year-old case against Sunkist, a huge marketer of citrus fruit products.

Possibility Of Discrimination In Colleges Studied In Ohio

WASHINGTON (AP) — HEW's Office for Civil Rights said Friday it has begun a statewide review of public colleges and universities in Ohio to see if the system discriminates against minorities.

Ohio is one of eight states that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare targeted for review nearly two years ago because they once segregated their colleges by law.

In six Southern states, HEW has reached agreements on plans to eliminate vestiges of segregation in public colleges, but it is locked in a court fight with North Carolina over a desegregation plan.

HEW spokesman Lou Mathis said 10 Ohio campuses will be visited by Ofice for Civil Rights investigators.

"Ohio has only one predominantly black college in its system. The question is why?" he said. The lone predominantly black school is Central State University.

The investigators began their review at Southern State University in Cincinnati earlier this week, he said. They plan to visit a second Southern State campus as well as Central State; Miami University; Wright State University; three campuses of the Cayahoga Community Colleges; Hocking Technical Institute and Columbus Technical Institute.

The Civil Rights Office said in February 1978 that in the next two years it would scrutinize the college systems in Ohio, Texas, South Carolina, Alabama, Kentucky, Delaware, Missouri and West Virginia. The Ohio investigation is one of the last to get under way, Mathis said. No actions have been taken against the states.

HEW was under a federal court order to obtain desegregation plans from North Carolina, Virginia, Georgia, Florida, Oklahoma and Arkansas, all of which also once segregated their colleges by law.

In those states, HEW demanded elimation of what it called unnecessary program duplication between nearby black and white colleges, and checked recruitment practices for students and faculty.

Hospital Strike Divides West Virginia Town

DIVISIVE STRIKE — Workers at Wetzel County Hospital in the Ohio River community of New Martinsville have been on strike for four months seeking recognition of their union. Lillie Midcap, a striker, sits on a picket line. (AP Laserphoto)

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W.Va. (AP) — Six months ago, when neighbors in this Ohio River town of 7,000 were still on speaking terms, the ribbon-cutting for the new hospital seemed like the best thing that had happened in years.

Officials predicted that the Wetzel County Hospital would solve long-standing health care problems for area coal miners and chemical workers and their families.

Instead, the town has split into bitter factions over a 4-month-old strike by about 100 of the hospital's 185 employees.

The county prosecutor and a union organizer have traded punches. Tires have been slashed, windows broken and eggs thrown.

Some residents believe there has been permanent damage.

"This town has never experienced anything like this before," said Richard Arruda, the hospital's chief financial officer. "Families have been affected. There have been splits in friendships ... even in the churches."

"My sister and I are completely divided on this," said one striker, who asked not to be identified. "Even when this ends, I know our relationship will never be the same again."

The strikers want the county-owned hospital to recognize their union. They also seek better wages and working conditions.

They are supported by some of the local industrial unions, including the United Steelworkers. Union locals held a parade and rally of 300 persons earlier this month and are now boycotting New Martinsville stores in hopes of putting public pressure on the hospital trustees.

Under state law, public employees have no right to collective bargaining, although public institutions may bargain collectively with their workers if they choose.

Although organized labor is a potent force in state politics, annual attempts to win collective bargaining rights from the Legislature have failed repeatedly.

Today's FOCUS

"This isn't like a steelworkers strike," says Barry Smith, an organizer for Local 1199 of the National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees, which represents the strikers. "If they have a strike, it's a contract strike, and they're protected by law. This is different."

Despite the state law, the strikers say the hospital has a moral obligation to deal with them.

The hospital says a union would disrupt its operations. It points to public employee strikes in other states.

The situation has hardened over the months: The hospital board of trustees says it will not bargain voluntarily with the strikers; the strikers say they will not work until their union is recognized.

And the situation is aggravated by the hospital's hiring permanent replacements for the strikers, 25 to 30 so far.

"It's difficult anticipating some of them ever being back," said Bob Sorenson, a labor relations expert hired by the hospital early in te strike."It's all a matter of practicality. We can't say we've got 88 jobs for them because we don't."

Arruda said that if the strikers ever come back to work, "there will be animosity" between those who struck and those who didn't.

"It would be very difficult to force some people to work together," Arruda said.

Striker Edna Booher, a nurse's aide, said she believes strikers are eager to go back to work.

But, she added, "I think we all want to work in twos for a while."

An ironic aspect of the walkout has been an increase in wages paid to entice new employees and to keep those who did not join the walkout on Aug. 1.

"If they didn't have the money to pay you in July, how come they have the money now?" asked Lorna Clegg, one of the strikers.

"I was making $2.92 an hour a year ago," said a striking nurse. "I have friends I went to nursing school with who are making a dollar more an hour working at nursing homes — and they usually don't pay as much as hospitals."

The hospital contends the strikers have made threats against those who work and have committed acts of vandalism.

Smith, the organizer, and Wetzel County prosecutor William Lemon got into a fistfight Oct. 23 after a county commission meeting attended by a number of the strikers.

Another organizer, Dan Stewart, was jailed for 10 days after strikers marched onto hospital property. A court order forbids most types of picketing, so the union has set up a picket line down the road from the hospital.

Two trustees met informally with two strikers last Wednesday night without union officials present the firs such meeting since the strike began, but neither side sees a quick end to the stalemate.

Mrs. Booher said the strikers are getting ready for a winter picket line. "We've already put up our Christmas tree," she said.

Rheumatic Fever Vaccine May Follow Discovery

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — University of Tennessee scientists have isolated a segment of the germ that causes rheumatic fever, a development they say opens the way for a vaccine against the dangerous disease.

"We have not produced a vaccine that is ready for the public (but) ... we have cracked the problem," said Dr. Gene H. Stollerman, chairman of the department of medicine at UT's Center for Health Sciences in Memphis.

Stollerman said the impact of the discovery will be felt most in developing nations where lower standards of living have contributed to periodic epidemics of rheumatic fever.

The researchers were to announce their findings at a news conference in Memphis Thursday.

Rheumatic fever is usually treated with antibiotics, but if not controlled it can leave the victim with a severely damaged heart. During the draft years, rheumatic fever was responsible for about half the rejections from U.S. military service for cardiovascular reasons.

Stollerman said the discovery shows that a vaccine is possible in principle. But it could be several years before a workable vaccine is ready for general use, he said.

The work follows a 10-year collaboration by Stollerman, 58; Dr. Edwin Beachey, 45, of the Veterans Administration Hospital in Memphis; and Dr. Alan L. Bisno, 43, chief of the UT infectious disease division.

What they did was to strip the outer cover from the streptococcus bacteria that causes the common sore throat, purify it, then prove that it could be used to grow antibodies to protect the human body from specific strep infections.

Seventy separate types of strep infections have been identified, but only a few cause rheumatic fever.

Scientists have known for years that the strep germs were coated with proteins called M proteins — they look a little like a coating of hairs under the microscope — and that the protein for each type of strep infection is unique.

"Five years ago, we felt there was no way of separating the type-specific M protein from the bacteria. We thought it was all one molecule," Stollerman said.

But Beachey, a lab expert, suggested using a mild pepsin solution, similar to digestive juices in the stomach, to wash the germs.

"We gave the strep a shampoo instead of a haircut," Stollerman said. "Then we decided to look at what we washed off. Through a series of chemical maneuvers, we got a type-specific protein and to our delight, we hadn't killed it."

The M protein solution was tested in mice and later in human volunteers, including Stollerman. The first confirmation that the humans were growing antibodies to the germ came in September, just hours before Stollerman was to read a paper on the subject for an international conference in England.

"We were able to tell the world conference that the stuff works in man," Stollerman said.

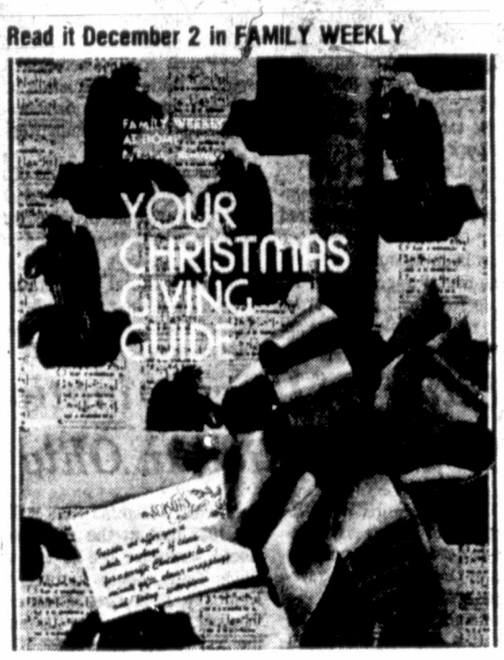

He said his team has applied for a license from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to develop a vaccine, and will go ahead with more tests when that is approved.

VISTA May Receive Two-Year Extension

WASHINGTON (AP) — Volunteers in Service to America — better known as VISTA — is surviving for at least two more years.

The House voted 214-152 this week for a compromise authorization bill now headed to President Carter for his signature. VISTA, a federal program designed to help the poor better their living conditions, has been criticized by several legislators concerned about allegations VISTA volunteers take part in lobbying and other political activity. Rep. Karl Kramer, R-Colo., complained that the bill would encourage VISTA's parent agency, ACTION, "in a trend toward its continuing political activism" and efforts to change

Surgeon Says FDR May Have Suffered Cancer

QUESTION OF CANCER — Franklin Delano Roosevelt may have been suffering from cancer when he died of a stroke in 1945, says a Dartmouth surgeon in a soon-to-be-published article in a medical journal. Dr. Harry Goldsmith, who has spent years studying FDR's health, says old photos suggest Roosevelt had a pigmented lesion removed from his left temple in the 1940's, which may have been a tumor. The lesion purportedly first appeared in photos from the 1920's, enlarging in the 1930's, and was replaced by what might be a scar after 1943. Photos here show Roosevelt in, left to right, 1920, 1937 and 1944. (AP Laserphoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — Franklin Delano Roosevelt may have been secretly suffering from cancer when he died of a stroke in 1945, says a Dartmouth Medical School surgeon who has made a life-long study of FDR's health.

In an article to be published in a medical journal Friday, Dr. Harry S. Goldsmith says it is possible the former president knew he had terminal cancer when he decided to run for an unprecedented fourth term in office.

Rumors flew during the 1944 campaign that the president was ill, but Roosevelt's physician insisted both before and after the president's death on April 12, 1945, that Roosevelt had been in generally good health.

The physician, the late Vice Adm. Ross T. McIntire, also said the only surgery Roosevelt had during his White House years was a tooth extraction.

But Goldsmith says old photographs suggest Roosevelt had a "pigmented lesion" removed from his left temple in the early 1940s and that this might have been a malignant melanoma, a form of skin cancer.

"What I'm saying is there's an excellent chance that the reason the president's health failed during the last 18 month of his life was a malignancy," Goldsmith said in an interview.

"A good case can be made that a melanoma might have been the primary tumor and that it metastatized (spread) to the abdomen and led to his weight loss, loss of appetite and other symptoms suggestive of a tumor."

The mystery of Roosevelt's decline is compounded by the fact that his medical charts and records have disappeared, Goldsmith said in an article in December's Surgery, Gynecoogy and ostetrics, the scientific journal of the American College of Surgeons.

Despite McIntire's contention that Roosevelt was healthy, revelations by a Navy cardiologist have shown Roosevelt was critically ill in 1944, Goldsmith said.

Dr. Harold G. Bruenn said in a 1970 medical article that he treated the president for congestive heart failure and high blood pressure that soared as high as 240 over 130 during the campaign, despite the fact that Roosevelt was taking the heart drug digitalis. A pressure of 140 over 90 is considered normal.

The high blood pressure explains why Roosevelt had a stroke, Goldsmith said. But he said that made it hard to explain why the president suffered abdominal pains, stopped eating and lost 30 pounds in the closing year of his life, which has been described by his associates and family members. Most high blood pressure patients tend to be overweight, not underweight.

"Roosevelt and McIntire must have made the decision by late 1943 or early 1944 that FDR would run for a fourth term in spite of the fact that the president was obviously ill," Goldsmith said. "After their decision ... it would have become politically important that any unfavorable aspects of FDR's health be kept secret."

The pigmented lesion first appeared in photographs of Roosevelt in the late 1920s. By the late 1930s, it had enlarged and spread to his left eyebrow. Once the war began, most official pictures were taken from Roosevelt's right profile and many were retouched. But the lesion disappeared in photographs after 1943 and was replaced by what could be a scar.

"Maybe it was just a mole. But moles usually don't grow like this. Everybody knows that one of the danger signals for cancer is a pigmented area which is changing in size," Goldsmith said.

"If this was melanoma, a likely place for it to spread would be the abdomen. Liver metastases are extremely common," he said.

In addition, Goldsmith said, Dr. George T. Pack used to tell his students in a class on disease and history that the eminent surgeon Dr. Frank H. Lahey of Boston told Roosevelt in 1944 that he had cancer and would not survive a fourth term in office.

But Pack, Lahey, McIntire and most other principals in the drama are dead, Goldsmith said, and their memoirs and papers do not shed light on the question. No autopsy was done on Roosevelt. His medical charts disappeared from Bethesda Naval Hospital shortly after his death.

Since the article was written, Goldsmith said, the FBI has offered to have a secretary go through its 28,000-page file on Roosevelt to help clear the mystery. But Goldsmith said he is asking that he or some other person with medical training be allowed to do the search.

FDR's Old Resort May Close Down

ATLANTA (AP) — Despite its historic significance as the vacation home of Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Warm Springs hospital complex may be closed down because of declining use and outdated facilities, according to state officials.

Patients today use only about 20 percent of Warm Springs Hospital, where Roosevelt sought relief from crippling polio, said Tom Perdue, executive assistant to Gov. George Busbee.

The springs themselves are capped, and the three pools where thousands of polio victims once bathed are cracked and empty.

Perdue said a special state task force is trying to decide what to do with the complex, which draws about $1.5 million a year from the state budget.

The Warm Springs complex in southwest Georgia, which includes Roosevelt's "Little White House," was given to the state in 1974. Under an agreement signed by then-Gov. Jimmy Carter, the property must be operated as a hospital through 1984.

But the Georgia Office of Planning and Budget recommended to the task force Tuesday that the hospital, with its 260 employees, be "consolidated" with its companion rehabilitation center. The task force is to make its own recommendation to Busbee on Dec. 15.

Such a consolidation would have to be approved by the Warm Springs Foundation, which turned the property over to the state.

Perdue said the rehabilitation center, which operates independently and treats about 700 patients a year, "runs well and serves a defined need."

But he said the hospital, which treats about 45 patients per year, is in need of "extensive renovations."

"It would take about $15 million, according to conservative estimates, to bring the hospital back up to the first-class facility it once was," Perdue said recently.

"That would be fine, assuming we had the money, but no one can document that it would be used," he said. "Over the years, it has suffered from a declining patient load because of the Salk vaccine and because it is in competition with modern hospitals in convenient, urban areas."

Nevertheless, Perdue said there is strong sentiment among some foundation members to keep the complex as it was when Roosevelt died there on April 12, 1945.

"It's just a really complicated issue and a highly emotional issue because the whole grounds have so much historical significance and heritage," he said.

Archaeologists Look For Soldiers' Graves

OKTAHA, Okla. (AP) — Archaeologists have been hired to search for a mass grave of Confederate soldiers killed in Oklahoma's only major Civil War battle.

About 100 dead soldiers — many of them Cherokee Indians who fought for the South — were buried in a trench after the Union victory at the Battle of Honey Springs in 1863.

The bodies of several Union soldiers buried with the Confederate dead were dug up about 10 years later and hauled by wagon to the U.S. National Cemetery at Fort Gibson.

But the others were covered with earth and the exact site of the mass grave is not known.

The Honey Springs Battlefield Commission is funding the $8,000 search, scheduled to begin next spring under direction of the University of Oklahoma Archaeological Survey. The United Daughters of the Confederacy hope to place a monument over the site.

About 180 Confederates and 75 Union soldiers died in the fighting, said Q.B. Boydstun of Fort Gibson, chairman of the battlefield commission.

Many of the dead "were buried where they fell" in the battle area of about 3,000 acres which is now a state park, he said. But most were buried together.

Some residents of this community oppose the project, saying the dig could disturb nearby burial grounds. A slave cemetery and graves thought to be dug by travelers along the early Texas Road are believed to be in the area.

"The old-timers say that on the Texas Road you could see people camped at night and the next morning see 'em burying somebody alongside the road," said resident and historian Warren Ray.

"There are six cemeteries within three miles," said Ray. "Unless they found something with them — cartridge belts or canteens — there's no telling who they are," he said.

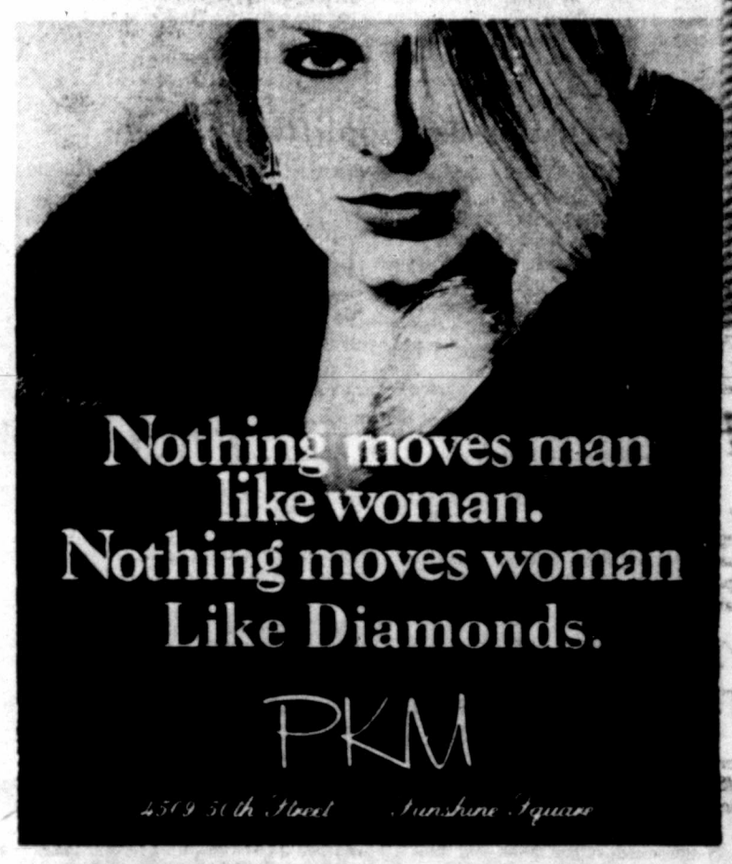

GAS HIKE TEMPERED

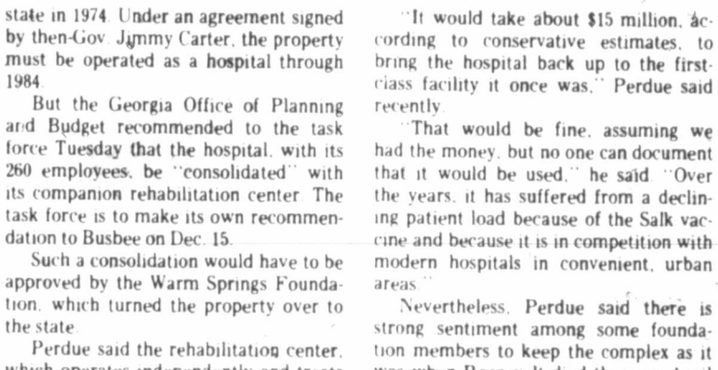

PARIS (AP) — The decline of the U.S. dollar on the world market has tempered the latest gasoline price hike in France. The Economics Ministry said Friday the price for high grade gasoline will increase slightly to $2.91 and that of regular to $2.71 starting Dec. 1, representing an overall 15 percent increase this year. A ministry spokesman said the price of home heating oil and diesel fuel will also increase next month according to the government policy of passing on to consumers any increase in the cost of crude oil, calculated in dollars. The hikes are milder than expected because the dollar has fallen against the French franc.

Army Offers Bonuses To Attract Recruits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is offering educational bonuses of up to $6,000 to high school graduates and other qualified volunteers who enlist for combat duty or certain other categories.

The new program goes into effect next week and would allow a soldier to accumulate up to $14,000 in educational funds during a four-year enlistment. That would include the $6,000 bonus plus $8,000 under an existing program in which the Army matches, 2-for-1, money a soldier saves toward future schooling. The educational bonus plan outlined this week is part of a wide-ranging effort to increase enlistments to make up for a deficit of 16,000 volunteers last year.

Justice Dismisses Shoplifting Charge

CARIBOU, Maine (AP) — A Superior Court justice has dismissed a shoplifting complaint against the president of the University of Maine at Fort Kent.

Richard Spath, 56, had pleaded innocent last April to a charge of theft by unauthorized taking. He was accused of stealing a can of crabmeat and a can of cheese valued at $3.8 from Paradis' IGA at Fort Kent.

Justice Elmer H. Violette approved last week a prosecution motion that the charge be dismissed. The action came to light Friday.

In his motion, District Attorney John McElwee wrote that the "offense appears to have been the product of a psychiatric disorder for which the defendant has undergone diagnosis and counseling. No further prosecution is warranted."

Spath, a former president of St. Francis College in Biddeford, is presently on medical leave from the university.

Consumer Office Offers Tips

Install a flow controller in your shower.

Available at any hardare store, this little plastic plug fits between the shower head and the pipe coming out of the wall. It reduces the flow of water, although there is still enough for an effective shower.

A daily five-minute shower takes 25 to 30 gallons of water from a standard showerhead, about 40 percent of it hot. That costs $38 to $50 a year if your water heater is electric and $15 to $20 if it is gas.

The flow controller can save up to 2,000 gallons of water a year, resulting in a saving of about $20 for electric heaters and $8 for gas ones. Multiply that by the number of shower-takers in your family and that's your return for the investment of about $1 and a few minutes work.

Convicted Murderer Gets Long Sentence

WATERBURY, Conn. (AP) — Construction worker Lorne J. Acquin was sentenced to 105 years to life in prison Friday for the slayings of his foster brother's wife and eight children.

He will be eligible for parole in about 50 years.

Despite an impassioned 35-minute prosecutor's plea, Superior Court Judge Walter M. Pickett Jr. decided against a maximum of 225 years to life, which would have prevented Acquin from ever being paroled.

Acquin, 29, was convicted Oct. 19 after a 13-week jury trial of bludgeoning or stabbing Cheryl Beaudoin, her seven children and a visiting youngster early July 22, 1977. He then allegedly set fire to the Beaudoins' home in Prospect.

The judge ordered consecutive terms of 25 years to life for Mrs. Beaudoin's death, and 10-years-to-life terms for each of the eight children. A 10-to 20-year arson sentence will be served concurrently.

Pickett described Acquin as beyond rehabilitation and told the defendant he was fortunate that murder no longer was punishable by death in Connecticut.

But the judge also said that regardless of the "unthinkable" horror of the crime, he did not believe the intent behind the current murder law was for a sentence without a chance of parole. He said Acquin would become eligible for parole in 50 to 55 years. That would make him 79 or older.

Acquin showed little emotion during the proceedings.

Asked before sentencing if he wished to say anything, Acquin told the judge, "I maintain my innocence and I will be back."

Special Public Defender John Williams is appealing the conviction on 32 grounds, including the claim that a confession which Acquin later repudiated was obtained unconstitutionally by state police.

Assistant State's Attorney Walter Scanlon told the judge no punishment short of execution was suitable for "this brutal slaughter."

He said Acquin, through his lack of remorse, showed himself to be "an anti-social man" and described the crime as a "monument to human horror."

"This is not the work of an animal, for they only kill for self sustenance. Only a human being is capable of such abject cruelty," Scanlon said.

Acquin, whose record of burglary and larceny goes back to 1966, was convicted Oct. 19 in Waterbury Superior Court in the third day of jury deliberation.

The 12-member jury apparently gave much weight to a confession made to state police by the slight, dark-haired suspect. But Acquin later denied he committed the crimes.

Williams said after the trial that he and Acquin were not surprised by the harshness of the verdict but were convinced the appeal would show the alleged confession was obtained through coercion. He also contends Acquin asked for a lawyer but was refused during 22 hours of questioning.

"I think that he is going to win a new trial on appeal and that he will be acquitted," he said.

Teen-Ager Convicted In School Killings To Undergo Testing

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Brenda Spencer, the teen-age sniper who killed two people when she opened fire on an elementary school because she "didn't like Mondays," was ordered on Friday to undergo 90 days of diagnostic study before sentencing.

Orange County Superior Court Judge Byron McMillan ordered the 17-year-old San Diego girl to the California Youth Authority facility in Ventura. A court official said a sentencing date would be set during the 90 days.

Miss Spencer pleaded guilty Oct. 1 to killing the school principal and custodian at Cleveland Elementary School in La Mesa last Jan. 29. Eight schoolchildren and a police officer were wounded in the attack.

After the diagnostic study she faces what prosecutors say will be a 25-year to life sentence and will be eligible for parole in 16 years.

Her court-appointed attorney, Michael McGlinn, asked that after she is sentenced Miss Spencer not be sent to a women's prison.

"We received word after the offense was committed that she would be endangered if placed in the local women's facility in San Diego, the holding facility," said McGlinn. "So I assume those same feelings would exist if she was right now housed with older women."

McGlinn expressed hope the legislature would approve a law permitting under-age girls, tried as adults, to be handled in a youth authority facility until they are mature, as is the case with under-age boys.

Killed in the 6½-hour siege were principal Burton Wragg, 53, and custodian Mike Suchar, 56, who was shot to death while trying to drag Wragg to safety.

Described by friends as a tomboy who loved guns, Miss Spencer barricaded herself in her home and began shooting into the crowded schoolyard moments before classes were have to begun.

She fired 30 rounds from the front door during a 15-minute fusillade, vowing to police that she would "come out shooting."

Explaining the sniping to police by telephone that morning, she said: "I don't like Mondays. This livens up the day."

She added: "I have to go now. I shot a pig (policeman), I think, and I want to shoot more."

Then 16, Miss Spencer first pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to two counts of murder, nine of attempted murder, eight of assault with a deadly weapon and one of assault on a police officer. But in October she changed the murder plea to guilty.

Lockeed To Make More U-2 Planes

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — A $42 million contract has been awarded to Lockheed for production of the old U-2 spy plane for the Air Force and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Ben Rich, vice president of Lockheed-California Co., said Thursday the contract calls for two TR-1A single-seat reconnaissance planes for the Air Force and an ER-2 "earth resources aircraft" for NASA.

Lockheed spokesman Jim Ragsdale said both are the same as the U-2, which gained attention when pilot Francis Gary Powers was shot down over the Soviet Union in 1960.

Prosecutor Opens Fire On Would-Be Robbers

PROSECUTOR OUTSHOOTS THUGS — Mary Ann Willin, the deputy state's attorney, foiled an apparent robbery attempt when she opened fire on three men who accosted her and retired judge Avrum K. Rifman while they were crossing a parking lot Thursday night. Neither Miss Willin or Judge Riffman were injured, and the three bandits got away. (AP Laserphoto)

As the armed trio tried to rob her and a 74-year-old retired judge on a dark parking lot, the city's deputy prosecutor pulled a .38-caliber revolver from her purse and opened fire.

"It was like high noon at Dodge City," said Avrum K. Rifman, the retired Juvenile Court judge.

"Mary Ann said to me, 'Judge, step aside,'" Rifman said. As one of the robbers attempted to pull a gun, Miss Willin opened fire, the judge said. Though they exchanged shots at close range, apparently neither was wounded.

"They couldn't have been 12 feet from each other, both of them holding guns. I couldn't believe it," the judge said.

Miss Willin, 38, said she began carrying the pistol after she and another member of the state's attorney's office were threatened during an investigation about a year ago. She has a permit for the revolver and trained to use it at a city police firing range.

The prosecutor told police she thought she wounded one of the robbers, last seen running away from the shooting site. But police said they could find no trace of blood on the parking lot where the incident occurred and area hospitals did not report any unaccounted-for shooting victims.

"I'm amazed if I missed at that distance," Miss Willin said.

She said she and Rifman were crossing the parking lot near the state office building complex just north of downtown about 6 p.m. when she "heard footsteps ... several footsteps." She said she saw one person approaching, took the revolver from her purse and placed it in her coat pocket.

"I knew there were more. I saw one coming up fast," she said.

As the heavy-set man overtook the pair, Miss Willin said, "I saw a snub-nosed revolver. He got 'Give' out of his mouth."

Rifman said his companion told the gunman to "drop it. He did not drop it. They both stood transfixed. I was paralyzed. I couldn't move.

"I almost saw a repetition of 'High Noon' at 6 p.m. on the streets of Baltimore with traffic whizzing by. I was mesmerized by the sight of these two human beings facing each other, 12 feet apart, both confident, well-composed, firing at each other.

"I was petrified."

Miss Willin said she turned and started chasing two men behind her. "I shouted to halt ... they didn't," she said. As they escaped, Miss Willin fired a shot at them.

She returned to the man who shot at her, but spotted him crawling, then running across the lot toward a construction project. Police said they could find no weapon the man might have dropped but believe he fired at least four shots at Miss Willin and Rifman.

Miss Willin said the impact of the confrontation did not strike her until hours later.

"I don't think it hit me until I got home and was in bed," she said, "and thought what could have happened."

Former John Wayne Yacht To Be Evicted

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The "Wild Goose," a 136-foot yacht sold by actor John Wayne shortly before he died, is being evicted from Newport Harbor, the boat's new owner says.

Lynn Hutchins, a Santa Monica attorney who bought the yacht from Wayne last June, said Thursday he had been told to leave by Saturday and had no place to go.

"So far, I don't have a place to park it," he said. "Most marinas can't take a boat this big. The law says I can anchor it in the harbor for 10 days, so I guess I'll anchor it in the harbor."

Hutchins said he was told to move the yacht by Lido Yacht Anchorage because he was running a charter service and renting the vessel to groups at rates in excess of $2,000 a day.

He said there had been continuing conflicts with the anchorage's management, even before he started the charter service in July.

Mary Jane Iseli, manager of the anchorage, refused comment on the eviction, saying it was private company business.

Condemned Man Takes Appeal To Federal Court

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — James Dupree Henry, condemned to die in Florida's electric chair next week for murdering a black community leader in 1974, took his appeal to a federal court Friday.

Henry, 29, who on Thursday is scheduled to become the second man to die in the state's electric chair this year, asked the U.S. District Court for a stay of execution. His lawyers contended that:

•Henry was coerced and made involuntary incriminating statements to police following his arrest. The statements were made after police made an "implied promise of leniency."

•Florida's death penalty is "imposed in an arbitrary, capricious and irrational manner" and is unconstitutional.

•The death penalty is imposed more often in Orange County than anywhere else in the state.

•The execution would be "grossly disproportionate and excessive" since his actions had nothing to do with the "deliberate taking of human life."

Similar arguments were rejected by the Florida Supreme Court on Tuesday, but Henry and his attorney, Craig Barnard, said they believed a stay of execution would come from a federal court.

Barnard, assistant public defender at West Palm Beach, said he long ago prepared the legal papers asking U.S. District Judge John Reed to overturn the death sentence. They were filed in Orlando on Tuesday, while the state's high court heard oral arguments in Tallahassee.

Federal judges have temporarily blocked four other executions in Florida since May to examine the claims that their convictions and death sentences violated the Constitution.

But one convicted murderer, John A. Spenkelink, was electrocuted May 25 after losing last-minute attempts to have federal courts delay his execution.

Henry was convicted of killing Zellie L. Riley, an 81-year-old leader of Orlando's black community. Henry confessed to ransacking his home, "knocking the victim out, gagging him and slitting his throat," according to assistant State Attorney Ray Dvorak.

Gov. Bob Graham signed the death warrant on Nov. 8, despite an appeal from Riley's son, William A. Riley, who contends that his father would not have wanted Henry put to death.

City Offers To Tow Car Away For Penny

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The city is offering a penny for your car.

Preparing for winter snows, city officials have offered to tow away unwanted cars for a penny and the title.

"We're trying to remove as many cars now as we possibly can, rather than waiting until the middle of winter and having to remove the same car," said Louis Miller, superintendent of the Bureau of Municipal Equipment.

Couple Plans To Live In U. S. After Years In Soviet Prisons

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A Ukrainian dissident couple who left the Soviet Union this week after spending a total of 34 years in Soviet prisons plan to settle in the United States, said an Amnesty International spokesman.

Svastoslav Karavanski, 59, and his wife Nina Strokata Karavanska arrived here aboard a Soviet Aeroflot jet en route to London, where they have been invited by Amnesty and the the British Pen club, an international writers' organization. The spokesman said the couple told him they never want to return home.

Amnesty, a London-based human rights organization and the Pen writers' group are assisting the Karavanskis' emigration, the spokesman said. He said Amnesty was surprised they had been released from the Soviet Union, but did not yet know if they would be able to obtain a U.S. entry visa.

Before his arrest in 1944, Karavanski was a writer and Shakespearean translator. He was imprisoned for joining a Ukrainian youth organization opposed to both Soviet leader Joseph Stalin and Germany's Adolf Hitler.

Karavanski was sentenced to a 25 years in prison, was released in 1960 but sent back to prison in October 1965 for criticizing Soviet attempts to strengthen Russian domination over the Ukraine. Although Ukrainians are linguistically and ethnically related to Russians, they have traditionally resisted Russian political and cultural control.

Tech Professors Expected To Testify For LISD

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Three Texas Tech University professors are expected to testify as expert witnesses for the Lubbock Independent School District when the schools' integration case goes back to the courts in January, according to documents filed in U.S. District Court.

Dr. Robert L. Rouse, professor of economics; Dr. James E. Jonish, chairman of the economics department; and Dr. Karl Lynn Guntermann, associate professor of finance, may be called to testify concerning population shifts and housing patterns in Lubbock.

Both Rouse and Jonish testified during the 1977 trial that resulted in U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward's order for desegregation in nine minority schools.

Also expected to be called as witnesses in the trial are Ed Irons, superintendent of Lubbock public schools, and Dr. E.C. Leslie, assistant superintendent for administration.

Testimony during the Jan. 28 trial will pertain to specific findings concerning the effects, if any, of intentionally discriminatory acts by the school board on Lubbock housing patterns.

The trial was ordered by Woodward after the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals remanded the case in August to the district court for additional findings.

The documents, which were prepared by the schools to answer questions posed by the Justice Department, states the substance of each of the witness' testimony.

According to the documents, Rouse's testimony concerns the economics relating to school board decisions and acts. Rouse contends that the acquisition of school sites and construction of schools by the district has not always caused population shifts to the areas surrounding those sites.

As examples, he cites land acquired at Quirt and Erskine in 1962 by the schools and at Avenue P and Kent in 1965. He states that little population growth has occurred in those areas and there has been no need to develop those sites.

In addition, he states that residential development has not fully occurred in the vicinity of Wright and Hunt elementary schools and Estacado High School.

The document states that Rouse instead contends that "shifts of population within LISD which have resulted in changing racial balances are the result and function of the income level of home purchasers and the price of available homes.

Jonish is expected to testify concerning the socio-economic patterns of residential housing in the Lubbock area.

Similarly, Guntermann's findings will relate to the income of minorities in the Lubbock school district that in turn influences the location of their homes.

The document states that Guntermann has found that "home purchases are determined largely by the relative income level of the home purchaser and the price of homes. Minorities in the LISD earn less income than Anglos and therefore acquire homes which cost less."

The statement continues that "shifts in population within LISD which have resulted in changing racial balances are the result and function of the income level of home purchasers and the price of available homes."

He adds that school board decisions or actions "that are significant in terms of causing people to purchase homes in an area will be reflected in increased prices." But he claims that the 1971 school bond issue to finance Williams Elementary and the subsequent construction of the school did not cause prices of homes in that attendance area to rise.

Both Irons and Leslie are expected to testify concerning the historical development and current status of the 13 racially identifiable schools not included in Woodward's 1978 order.

The Fifth Circuit heard oral arguments in the Lubbock case this past April after the Justice Department appealed Woodward's decision. The Justice Department wants a systemwide remedy, claiming Woodward's order did not go far enough.

In his opinion, appeals court Judge Charles Clark wrote the district court should find "whether it is significant that the minority schools affected by the desegregation order are in close proximity to schools at which intentional segregation was found and whether the location of the schools in question in areas near the original de jure (by law) segregated schools indicated that such segregation contributed to the current segregative condition."

He continued, "On remand, the school board continues to bear the burden to show that its intentional segregative acts did not contribute to the current segregation of those schools."

Home Builders Boost Funds For Crime Line

Crime Line, Inc., received its largest single donation yet Friday when the West Texas Home Builders Association gave $6,000 to the reward fund.

Sam Reyes, president of the association, said the builders "decided to become involved because of the tremendous theft and vandalism on our construction sites."

Presenting Crime Line president Charley Pope with 60 checks from builders, Reyes said association members "are dedicated to making Lubbock a safer place to live."

"We feel this might encourage other people to donate to Crime Line," Reyes said, adding, "We know when a reward is paid, another criminal is stopped."

"You can expect more money," Jennings said. "We know theft and vandalism will continue and we've got to put a stop to it."

When association members voted in September to support Crime Line they set a goal of $7,500 in donations.

Mayor Dirk West, the driving force behind the organization of Crime Line, said the contributions from the home builders "typifies the tremendous endorsement and support the citizens of Lubbock have given Crime Line since its inception."

Seven months after the program began, West said telephone tips to Crime Line have resulted in police clearing 100 felony cases.

"That is success far beyond our expectations," he said.

A tip to Crime Line led to the robber's arrest, West said, and the conviction and stiff sentence primarily was the result of photographs taken by "Crime Eye" cameras installed in the store.

"It's a powerful program," West said, adding more than $203,000 in stolen merchandise has been recovered because of information coming to police through Crime Line.

Organized in March 1979, Crime Line offers rewards and anonymity to citizens who furnish information leading to the arrest and grand jury indictment of felony suspects and to the capture of felony fugitives.

Urban metropolitan areas in the United States are expanding at a rate of 1,000 square miles a year, equivalent to adding a new Boston or Washington, D.C. annually.

COUNTRY CLUB OFFICERS — Officers for Lubbock Country Club for 1980 will include Paul Godwin, president, seated, Bill Moss, treasurer, standing left, and John Scoggin, vice president. Emma N. Neal will serve as secretary. Other board members to serve during the upcoming year will be William Linn, Jesse K. Mattox Jr., Henry Patton, Don Tusha and George Wilson. Senator Suggests West Texas Area As Nuclear Waste Site

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Sparsely populated areas of West Texas are the most logical places for establishment of low-level nuclear waste sites in Texas, the chairman of the Senate Natural Committee says.

Sen. A. R. Schwartz, Galveston, at the conclusion of hearing on nuclear and toxic waste disposal matters, says he feels creation of such a site within the state is necessary and inevitable, if Texas is to continue using nuclear technology in industry research and medicine.

Schwartz led opposition in the Senate earlier this year to legislation by Sen. Feyton McKnight, Tyler, to allow for establishment of such sites, under licensing by the state.

Schwartz now appears to have changed his position on low-level wastes, although he argued during the debates in the final hours of the legislative session in May that "there ain't no such thing as low-level death."

He remains opposed, however, to storage of high-level wastes, such as those produced by nuclear power plants, within Texas, he indicated.

Todd Shipyard Corp., Galveston, operates the largest processing and storage site for low-level wastes in Texas at its facilities on Pelican Island.

At the hearing, Schwartz expressed concern over what would happen to the wastes in the event of a severe storm.

In the past, the wastes at Pelican Island have been shipped to disposal sites outside Texas, but the closing of sites in Nevada, Washington and South Carolina have resulted in an accumulation of wastes at the site.

State Department of Health officials at the hearing argued for provision for the state to take title to sites used for low-level waste storage, with creation of a "perpetual care fund" for maintenance and monitoring of the site.

Similar provisions in McKnight's legislation, SB 910, were attacked by Schwartz on the grounds they would lead to underminable but potentially great liability for taxpayer, in the event of accidents, or if the funds for maintenance of the sites proved inadequate.

Protests Against Iranian Situation Growing Here

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Iranian student arrested in Lubbock for visa violations was quietly transferred Thursday night to Dallas without incident, but protests against the holding of hostages in Tehran appeared to be growing stronger here.

Border Patrol Agent Billy Rowe did not make public the transfer of the Iranian student, fearing local residents might seize the occasion to vent their frustration over the impasse in Iran.

Nader Jahromi Sabet, 18, was arrested Thursday after he skipped a deportation hearing scheduled for Tuesday in Dallas. One of the first Iranian students in the state to be arrested for possible deportation, Sabet said he did not attend the hearing because "I knew that if I went they would throw me in jail."

Sabet must now appear before an immigration judge if he does not choose to leave the country voluntarily.

Sabet claims that prejudice against Iranians in this country is running so high that he would almost surely have been arrested.

"I'm still not satisfied," Rowe said this morning of Sabet's explanation. Sabet is accused of entering the United States in 1976 with a visitor's visa, but never obtaining a student visa. He was enrolled as an engineering student at Texas Tech.

Sabet does not protest his arrest, but says he should have been arrested a year ago instead of in the backlash of the crisis in Iran.

At least one Lubbock group wants to voice its protest to the holding of the hostages in Tehran. Radio Station KLLL had been advertising an Iranian flag-burning scheduled for Saturday, but called it off at the last minute.

"There was no sponsor pressure," station manager John Frankhouser insists. The pressure to drop the flag-burning came instead from "community leaders," he said, who feared that a flag-burning would reflect badly on Lubbock.

"Originally, we stuck to our guns," Frankhouser said. "Our purpose was to unite people, not polarize them."

But monitoring calls to the station, Frankhouser said that about 70 percent were in favor of the flag-burning and about 30 percent were against it. The 30 percent was a large enough group to convince him to cancel it, he said.

KLLL-radio still plans a patriotic rally at the Lubbock Speedway at 5 p.m. Saturday. Patriotic singing and speaking, sans flag-burning, will be included on the program. Frankhouser has invited U.S. Rep. Kent Hance to send a telegram to be read to the group and says any area political figures who wish to speak will be allowed to do so.

"We expect to show our government we're behind them 100 percent," Frankhouser said.

President Carter has asked people to show their concern for the hostages by ringing church bells every day at noon until the hostages are freed. Very few churches are built with bells any more, and the few contacted in Lubbock appeared unaware of the President's request.

"Our church just has one problem," Jess White, minister at Faith Assembly of God said. "We don't have any bells. If we did, we certainly would (ring them)" he said.

Of several churches surveyed, only St. Elizabeth's Catholic Church and St. Christopher's Episcopal Church have any bells to ring. But ministers at both churches were unaware of Carter's request, though they seemed interested in the idea.

"I sure wasn't aware of that," the Rev. Bob Ibe of St. Elizabeth's said. "But I'd sure like to do something."

Brown Berets and members of the GI Forum reportedly were scheduled to begin a march at noon today around the federal building to protest the holding of the hostages.

Waste Company Accused Of Several Violations

J&G Waste Systems Inc. of Lubbock has been accused by the Texas Attorney General's Office of violating conditions of the Solid Waste Disposal Act, the Municipal Solid Waste Management Regulations of the Texas Department of Health and provisions of the company's operation permit.

State authorities are asking 72nd District Court Judge to hold hearings on the charges and issue temporary and permanent injunctions against the firm to ensure the violations are halted.

J&G Waste Systems Inc. operators are accused of five separate violations, including failure to properly protect the disposal site north of the city from flooding. The petition alleges that the lack of proper flood prevention has allowed surface water into the caliche pit where solid waste is deposited and the water has become contaminated.

The petition also alleges that operators of the business do not provide a daily six-inch cover of earthen material "not previously mixed with garbage" for the solid waste and do not have a "suitable means to confine windblown materials to the smallest area practical."

Additionally, the waste disposal company is accused of "impeding the efficient use and management" of its 58.27-acre disposal site by depositing waste materials over large areas and not confining unloading to the smallest practical area.

The company also is accused of violating provisions of its operating permit by not providing the state health department with a certificate from a registered professional engineer that soil layers of the caliche pit have been tested and the pit has received lining where deemed necessary by such an engineering inspection.

State officials allege the violations "have persisted from Dec. 28, 1978."

Tower Renews Attack On Windfall Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Tower renewed his attack on the windfall profits tax by releasing Friday a study he says is proof that oil companies are not getting a fair shake from the Carter Administration.

The Texas Republican said the Department of Energy study demonstrates that oil companies should not be subjected to the proposed windfall profits tax because their profitability, or return on investment, is generally the same as it is for other industries.

Tower said the study "exposes the Carter tax proposal for what it is and always has been — a punitive, politically inspired tax designed to cripple private industries' energy development efforts while raising hundreds of billions in additional taxes to expand an already bloated federal government."

Tower received a copy of the study — clearly marked "draft" — after he threatened to file a complaint against DOE in federal court to obtain the material under the Freedom of Information Act.

The study was reported to be the voluntary work of a DOE financial analyst.

Tower said the study also shows that in recent years the oil companies' net income and cash flow increases have run parallel to increased capital and exploratory expenditures.

For the past three years oil companies' profits have decreased progressively compared with the non-oil manufacturing group, he said.

Fred Appel, a DOE spokesman, said the paper could not be considered even a "draft study."

"It's just one guy's assembling of facts related to financial structure in the oil industry," Appel said. "It's nothing; it was just one guy's submission that didn't add up to anything."

He said the DOE financial analyst presented the paper to his supervisor, who said it represented no new information or insights and returned it.

Tower earlier in the week introduced a potentially troublesome amendment for the windfall profits tax debate.

The amendment would define "excess profits" and impose a tax to retrieve those profits from all industries, not only from oil companies.

"Let's just say that I expect this to provide a talking point," Tower replied when asked if he expected his amendment would be a useful tool for a filibuster.

The senator said he objected to singling out the oil industry as a scapegoat for the nation's energy problems.

"Additional federal taxes on the petroleum or any other industry are totally unjustified," Tower said. "The president's tax -which does not tax profits at all, but rather imposes an excise tax on oil production -is an attack on the profit motive itself, a fact which should distress anyone who takes pride in the success of our capitalistic economic system."

The windfall profits tax is designed to retrieve some of the funds that will be flowing to oil companies as a result of President Carter's decision to remove price controls from domestic oil production.

Tower said he expected the debate on the Senate floor would last through next week and possibly continue into the following week.

THEY'RE ALL GONE NOW — Zeppo Marx, top left, the last of the Marx Brothers, died early Friday in Palm Springs, Calif., a hospital spokeswoman said. He was 78. The four brothers are shown as the they appeared in "Duck Soup" in 1933, one of the few films to star all four brothers. Zeppo dropped out of the team leaving, from lower left, Harpo, Chico and Groucho to go on making their zany comedies. (AP Laserphoto)

Last Of Marx Brothers Dies In California

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The epoch of the mad, mad Marx Brothers ended Friday with the death of Zeppo, the youngest and least funny of the comedy team.

Zeppo Marx, 78, died at Eisenhower Medical Center in Palm Springs after a longterm, undisclosed illness. Retired in Palm Springs for many years, he entered the hospital Nov. 25. A memorial service is to be held Sunday at Wiefels and Sons mortuary in Palm Springs.

Zeppo was the last of the famed brothers.

Chico, the Italian-accented pianist of the act, died in 1961. Harpo, the mute, fright-wigged blonde chaser, followed in 1964. Gummo, who left the team early to manage the Marx careers, died in 1977. Groucho, the tart-tongued leader of the Marxes, succumbed the same year.

Show business never produced a comedy team quite like the Marxes. They were wild, irreverent and seemingly chaotic, yet their madness was shrewdly devised. In their vaudeville act, in Broadway shows and movies, they relied on the best comedy writers in America, among them S.J. Perelman and George S. Kaufman.

The Marxes were devoutly anti-Establishment long before the term was prevalent. Pomposity, especially in the dowager figure of Margaret Dumont, was their favorite target. Although the brothers made their last film together in 1950, their iconoclasm makes them favorites with today's generation.

Their uniqueness extended to their names, acquired early in their careers. Julius became Groucho and Adolph became Harpo for obvious reasons. Gummo (Milton) was a habitual gum-chewer as was Chico (Leonard), which the family pronouced Chicko.

The naming of Zeppo (Herbert) was more obscure.

The legend is that Minnie, the matriarch of the Marxes, wanted to keep her boys out of the army during World War I. She installed the family on a farm near La Grange, Ill., since farming would exempt young men from service. Chico one day passed Herbert and said, "Howdy, Zeke." His brother replied, "Howdy, Zeb." He soon became Zeppo forevermore.

Minnie was the driving force behind the team, as Groucho often stated in later years. When he learned that he had been voted a special Oscar at the age of 83, he remarked: "I only wish that Harpo and Chico could be here to share it." Then he added reflectively, "No, if only Minnie were here."

Minnie Marx insisted her youngest be included in the family act, even though he displayed no noticeable talent. Integrating him into the Broadway shows and the early movies presented problems. He was relegated to playing secretary-straight man for Groucho and carrying the minor romantic plot.

Zeppo suffered under his reputation as the do-nothing brother, and rumors persisted as early as 1929 that he was leaving the act. That was when the name of the team was changed from the Four Marx Brothers to simply the Marx Brothers. Zeppo finally left in 1934, after the Marxes had been dropped by Paramount and picked up by Irving Thalberg at MGM.

They were. Thalberg reasoned that they needed a stronger plot line than the amalgam of gags that marked their earlier films. At MGM they made their best movies, "A Night at the Opera" and "A Day at the Races."

Zeppo, who became a talent agent, retained a sense of humor. Once he tried to persuade Thalberg to sign an actor-client. "If you don't say yes," Zeppo warned, "I'll go back to the Marx Brothers."

Oil Spill Efforts Receive Criticism

AUSTIN (AP) — A University of Texas marine scientist Friday said the federal government is not prepared to battle large oil spills that threaten the gulf coast.

"The commitment simply has not been heavy enough in terms of money and drive," Dr. Pat Parker said.

Parker told the Texas Coastal and Marine Council the state was fortunate it did not suffer more extensive damage when oil from a blownout Mexican well coated some South Texas beaches.

"I can report to you we got out real lucky," he said.

Council Chairman Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, questioned Parker about Coast Guard efforts in recent spills. Parker agreed with Schwartz the effort was not sufficient.

"This country does not have the equipment needed. I saw no gear that could have stopped the oil from coming into Aransas Pass," Parker said of the Mexican spill.

He added if changes in current did not stop the northerly flow, the oil would have come through Aransas Pass "pretty hot and heavy" and "you'd be scraping oil off your yachts in Corpus Christi."

Parker said little research has been done on oil currently flowing from a burning tanker five miles off Galveston. The Burmah Agate has been ablaze since a Nov. 1 collision with a freighter.

The scientist from the UT lab at Port Aransas said the oil from the tanker is fresher than the Mexican oil. The Mexican crude had weathered in the weeks it took to flow north.

"It would be like being close to the Ixtoc well itself," Parker said of the oil near Galveston. However, he also said the latest spill occurred at a time when animals are not reproducing.

"Probably some of it has found its way into the estuaries. How much, we don't know," he said.

Parker said toxicity tests on the Mexican oil showed it dangerous only to immature organisms. He said that oil still could have an impact off the Texas coast, although it has stopped flowing to the north.

"The gulf is a large coupled system. We may eventually feel the effects of that," he said.

He said the oil "may somehow be reflected" in fish caught off the Texas coast.

"I look for this oil — from both of these spills — to show up for the next 24 months," he said.

Election To Abolish County Treasurer Position Nullified

FORT WORTH (AP) — Tarrant County Treasurer Howard Green has worked for months to get his $25,000-a-year job abolished, but now a state district judge has ordered him to stay in office.

Judge Arthur Tipps of Wichita Falls has nullified a Nov. 6 that scrapped the office, saying voters may not have known what they were doing when they pulled the lever.

Green was elected to the post last year on the promise that he would eliminate the office and have its duties transferred to the county auditor's office.

He maintains the office is waste of taxpayer money, gouging residents for $75,000 a year to sign checks and "make trips to the bank."

Green then pushed a bill through the Texas Legislature allowing voters to decide the question. And on Nov. 6, they did just that, voting 3-1 to dissolve the office.

Tarrant County Commissioners then agreed to find jobs for the department's three employees.

But Thursday, Tipps ruled the election unconstitutional and the wording of the Nov. 6 proposition faulty.

"I don't care about a bunch of witnesses coming up and saying what they understood," Tipps said. "The wording of the proposition itself is proof. Nowhere does it use the word 'abolish' and I am not sure the voters knew they were abolishing a position."

Tipps ruling grew out of a suit filed by former Tarrant County treasurer W. B. "Bill" Gurley, 82. He maintained voters and legislators could not abolish an office created by the state constitution.

The jurist agreed that jobs set up in the constitution could not be abolished by either legislatures or county voters.

"We will carry this all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court," Green said.

"We have lost the first skirmish, but not the war."

SANTA SURVIVES

NEW YORK (AP)— Santa Claus is still for real, at least for most children up to 7 years old. An informal poll here of youngsters from 2 to 12 (some via their parents) by a Christmas card manufacturer showed that the cut-off age for belief in St. Nick starts at about age 7. More than 90 percent of the 6-and-under group clung to their faith in the existence of Santa.

Reese AFB Seeking Ownership Of Land

In its continuing effort to acquire land for use as a 3,000-foot "clear zone" at the end of Reese Air Force Base runways, the U.S. government has filed another federal court lawsuit against landowners.

The U.S. Attorney's Office in Fort Worth, in its latest suit on behalf of the Air Force, is seeking ownership of six tracts of land south of the base in the Hurlwood area.

Owners of five of the tracts are listed in the petition as Jimmie Crisp of 5501 20th St. and Hurlwood Gin Co., the Lubbock County Tax-Assessor Collector and Frenship Independent School District Tax-Assessor Collector. A fourth owner, Idalou resident L.W. Baker, is named in connection with the sixth tract of land.

American, Iranian Tension Growing

By The Associated Press

Several hundred protesters blocked a rally by Iranian students Friday in Columbus, Ohio, and about 350 pro-Iranian students in Washington, D.C., drew jeers from spectators as tension remained high over the taking of U.S. hostages in Tehran.

In New Jersey, 59 Manchester High School students have been suspended for three days for refusing to return to class after burning an Iranian flag, principal Richard F. Fosko said Friday.

"We're not trying to be anti-American," Fosko said. "As a matter of fact, I'm in full sympathy with them."

A sophomore, who asked not to be identified, said the students burned the flag to show support for the American hostages in Iran.

"We wanted to show Iran how it would feel if the situation were reversed. Iran burned our flag and we were insulted. So we burned theirs in return," she said.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall told a Portland, Ore., news conference Friday that he will not discourage US. dock wrkers from refusing to handle shipments bound for Iran. He said the Portland dock workers' refusal to load goods bound for Iran was "in the tradition of the American labor movement."

Marshall added, however, that it would be "a danger" if everybody concerned about the Iranian crisis tried to do something about it on their own. "In an emergency you need someone in charge and that person is the president," Marshall said.

Two persons were arrested in Columbus for disorderly conduct as chanting Ohio State University students kept about 10 Iranians from holding a campus rally in support of the takeover of the U.S. Embassy. There was no physical violence although banners carried by the Iranians were torn away. The Iranians were taken from the scene in police cars for protection.

There were also two arrests for disorderly conduct in Washington. Two pro-Iranian demonstrators were charged when they refused to leave the area near the State Department.

Several hundred policemen kept the Iranians and spectators apart as the demonstrators marched from Dupont Circle to the State Department. There were no serious incidents, although someone threw an egg at the demonstrators, hitting a placard.

Meanwhile, retired Gen. William Westmoreland said in Spokane, Wash., that the time for military intervention has not yet arrived.

"It seems to me our strategy should be to isolate (Iran) from the civilized countries in the world of nations," he said Thursday night. "The forum of the United Nations is a legitimate place to make that case."

A city official in Albany, N.Y., has angered Mayor Erastus Corning II by writing a letter on city stationery seeking an autographed photo of the deposed Shah of Iran. Corning said it was "outrageous."

City Clerk T. Garry Burns said he asked for the photo because "of the adverse publicity the shah has gotten. The shah hasn't had a chance to defend himself." He added that in the future he wouldn't use official stationery for such things "if I knew there would be this kind of reaction."

In other developments:

•The Rev. William Sloane Coffin, senior minister of New York City's Riverside Church, urged the former shah to "confess" sins of torture and repression and called for an international tribunal to review such charges against Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

He also urged President Carter to continue to explore non-military solutions to the Iranian crisis and asked that an international body supervise what has become a "dangerous impasse."

Earlier in the day, several U.N. officials were among 600 persons at a multilingual and multi-denominational prayer service for peace in Iran at the Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine.

•In a series of Seattle campaign appearances, Republican presidential contender Ronald Reagan said he believes the United States would not further endanger the U.S. hostages in Iran if it grants permanent political asylum to the deposed shah of Iran. Reagan described the shah as "a great ally" who should be able to stay in this country if he wants.

The shah was admitted to the United State only for medical treatment but has been denied permission to return to Mexico, where he fled after the overthrow of his government.

•Nine more Iranian students living in the state of Washington have been ordered to show cause why they should not be deported, federal officials said. They are among 83 Iranians in western Washington alleged to be in violation of immigration laws.

•The first Iranian student in Oklahoma to be deported since the embassy takeover in Tehran left Friday to return to Iran. Immigration officials in Illinois said about 8 percent of the Iranian students interviewed so far in that state are violating their status as students or non-workers.

•Scores of demonstrators staged a short march at the University of Oklahoma campus in Norman in support of a peaceful resolution of the Iranian crisis.

•A judge in Huntsville, Ala., ruled that the city had not proven its charges that Ku Klux Klan Imperial Wizard Bill Wilkinson, of Denham Springs, La., had intertered with police during a Nov. 11 anti-Iran rally. The city had complained that Wilkinson's group did not have a parade permit.

•The Pentagon said there are 259 Iranian navy midshipmen studying at U.S. universities, nearly half of them taking Reserve Officer Training Corps courses.

President Among 600 Mourners At Serviceman's Funeral Mass

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first American serviceman to die in hostile action since Jimmy Carter became president was buried Friday, a grim-faced Carter among the mourners.

The president joined some 600 others at the funeral of Steven J. Crowley in a standing round of applause for the Marine, who would have been 21 years old next March.

The moment was unusual and emotional. It came after the mourners heard a letter in which a young man told Crowley's mother that when he read of the Marine's death: "I actually started to cry. ... All I could think of was, 'My God, he's just a kid.'"

Crowley, from Port Jefferson, N.Y., was shot to death last week when a mob stormed the U.S. embassy at Islamabad, Pakistan. The incident, coming in the most crisis-filled month in Carter's presidency, put an end to one of his fondest boasts — that not one drop of blood had been spilled by a U.S. serviceman or woman in battle during his administration.

Crowley's widowed mother sat next to the president during the funeral mass, said in the chapel at Ft. Myer, Va. Her seven surviving children were there. So were the secretary of state, the secretary of defense, the commandant of the Marine Corps, two senators, and 13 congressmen.

"Let's for a moment imagine the scene when Cpl. Steven J. Crowley, United States Marine Corps, reported to the pearl gates," said a Navy chaplain, Lt. Lawrence J. Finegan, in the homily.

"Can we imagine him in the best Marine Corps tradition saying, Cpl. Steven J. Crowley reporting for duty, sir.

"Can we imagine him further being asked by the Lord to contine his guard duties there. ... Let us hope and pray today that that's what Steve is doing now. That he is guarding well and faithfully those pearly gates."

Addressing Mrs. Crowley, the chaplain said, "I hope you realize that ... when you get there, you've got it made."

The mourners included 500 State Department employees and former members of the U.S. Embassy staff in Pakistan. There were also 100 members of the Marine Security Guard Battalion from Quantico, Va., where Crowley trained just a few months ago.

Mrs. Georgene Crowley, the Marine's mother, was escorted to the service by the president, who several times put his arm around her. She, in turn, kissed him on the cheek at one point. The president did not go to Arlington National Cemetery, where Crowley was buried with full military honors.

The president was represented there by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, who presented Mrs. Crowley with a citation lauding Crowley for providing "defensive cover until he was struck down and fatally wounded."

The commandant of the Marine Corps, Gen. Robert Barrow, presented her with Crowley's Purple Heart and Bronze Star Medal, awarded posthumously.

During the chapel service Rep. William Carney, R-N.Y., read a letter written by a 22-year-old man whom Carney did not identify.

The author said he envied Crowley's clean-cut life.

"I've done my share of drugs, and yet deep inside, I've always wanted to be straight," the young man wrote. "He was just a kid but more of a man that I could ever hope to be."

Angry Crowd Jeers Iranian Demonstration

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 350 persons, most of them Iranians, faced angry spectators Friday as they marched through downtown Washington in support of the Iranian regime of Ayathollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

"Go home, get out!" shouted some passersby. Other chanted "deport, deport, deport," as the march wound under heavy police protection along two miles of streets crowded with workers on their lunch hour.

There were no serious incidents as several hundred police on motorcycles and horseback and on foot kept opposing sides apart. Two of the demonstrators were arrested near the State Department, however, when they broke through police lines after a heckler spat on the protesters, police said.

The two men, charged with disorderly conduct, were identified as Steve Pritchett, 29, and Jimmie McEachen, 29, both of Washington. They were among about a dozen blacks in the demonstration.

As the protestors marched four abreast they chanted "Long Live Immam Khomeini" in support of the Iranian leader. Many carried placards and banners and about a dozen held pictures of Khomeini.

The four-hour march wound from Dupont Circle in downtown Washington about a mile to a park near the State Department and then back to where it began. The protesters dispersed under police protection. The last 50 had to be escorted through a line of policemen to waiting cars as angry bystanders shouted curses at them.

"Go home, get out, Khomeini is a pig," shouted a 29-year-old carpenter who would identify himself only as Don. "Go back to Iran," others shouted as motorists honked their horns to show their displeasure with the Iranians.

Bahram Hanidian, a Georgetown rug merchant said to have close ties with the Iranian Embassy, said the demonstrations were to show support to Khomeini and protest "tyranny, inhumanity, injustice."

"Nobody is demonstrating against the United States people," said Nahidian, a former Iranian student who has been in the United States for 20 years and is now a prosperous businessman. He said the target is the U.S. government and the deposed shah.

Woman Receives Nine Years For Hot Checks

DALLAS (AP) — Jacqueline Taylor said she started writing hot checks in 1971, when her husband went to work in Vietnam and she didn't have the money to support her six children.

She got caught up in the habit, she said, and during the next eight years, court records show, she wrote at least 150 checks totalling more than $5,000 on banks in four cities.

County Criminal Court Judge Tom Price said he tried for two years to work out rehabilitation programs for Mrs. Taylor, but she just wouldn't cooperate. So Thursday, he handed her the stiffest possible sentence: nine years in the Dallas County jail.

And the judge said he said he will never approve work release for the 41-year-old Carrollton woman.

"I did what I did because I want her in jail," he said.

"Good Lord," said O'Byrne Cox, assistant director of detentions at Dallas County jail. "I've never heard of that (long a sentence in a county jail.) The last thing I remember like that was 20 years ago. And, as I recall, I think that case was just two, 2-year sentences.

"It's definitely not usual."

If the sentences are not overturned on appeal, Mrs. Taylor could be out on good behavior in eight years.

"You get sucked into it and before you know it, it's over your head," the sobbing woman told a county jury. "And you think that some time, something will happen to clear it all up. But it just doesn't happen that way."

Mrs. Taylor first was arrested in Dallas County on hot check charges in May of 1977. She already had been placed on probation for writing bad checks in Collin County, north of Dallas.

Eight cases subsequently were filed with the Dallas County district attorney's office and Price said he then became determined to "work with the woman" to make restitution.

A trust account was set up to collect restitution money. But Price said she kept making excuses about why she couldn't make payments.

He said she then agreed one year ago to plead guilty to one of the charges in exchange for probation.

"The theory was that she would do better if she had to make restitution through her probation officer," Price said. "But she never paid a thing, she was doing the same thing to me — lying and conning me just like she did the merchants and the probation officer."

After 10 months with 18 new hot checks and not a cent of retribution, misdemeanor prosecutors filed a motion asking Price to revoke the probation.

This week, Mrs. Taylor pleaded guilty to the nine charges, each with a maximum one year sentence, and asked a jury to assess punishment.

They did, and gave her the maximum for each charge.

Prosecutors then filed a routine motion asking Price to set the sentences one after the other instead of concurrently.

And Price, saying Mrs. Taylor has cost merchants, banks and Dallas County thousands of dollars, granted the motion.

Ex-Efficiency Expert Sentenced To Prison

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — A 39-year-old former efficiency expert was sentenced Friday to six years in prison for the "Gentleman Bandit" holdups with which a Roman Catholic priest originally had been charged.

"When I came forward in August and admitted to these crimes, I knew I would have to pay for it for the rest of my life. I've accepted that," said Ronald Clouser of Brookhaven, Pa., who also was placed on probation for six years.

Clouser confessed to the crimes in August when the Rev. Bernard Pagano was in the middle of a trial in connection with a series of stickups by a mild-mannered, well-dressed robber dubbed the "Gentleman Bandit."

Clouser, 39, subsequently pleaded guilty to three counts of second-degree robbery, which carries a maximum 10-year prison sentence on each charge.

Clouser, a graduate of the prestigious Wharton School of Business at the University of Pennsylvania, was employed as an industrial engineer coordinator at the time of robberies.

All charges against Pagano subsequently were dropped, and Delaware Attorney General Richard S. Gebelein apologized in court to the priest. Pagano was not available for comment on the sentencing.

Clouser still faces sentencing on four robbery charges in Pennsylvania. Pagano had been charged with one of the stickups, but that charge was also dropped.

Clouser's attorney, Saul Seegan of Philadelphia, pleaded before Superior Court Judge Andrew Christie Friday that, because of the extraordinary circumstances, his client should be allowed to go free.

He reminded Christie that until Clouser's divorce last year, his client had been "an absolutely law-abiding citizen."

Seegan proposed that instead of a prison sentence, Clouser be allowed to remain free in exchange for restitution and community work. Clouser has been free since he entered his guilty plea.

In handing down the sentences, Christie said there had been months of publicity on the case, and that Clouser had ample opportunity to confess before Pagano actually came to trial.

"A great deal of private agony and public expense could have been saved if you'd come forward sooner," the judge said.

He also mentioned "the victims' terrible experiences and the tremendous community fear" caused by the robberies.

"In view of all the circumstances, I find it my unpleasant duty to impose substantial sentences, although they are less than what the state recommended," he said.

American Governors Tour Soviet Plant

MOSCOW (AP) — A delegation of six American governors visited World War II memorials and toured a truck plant Friday in Soviet Byelorussia, Tass reported.

The official news agency said the group, headed by Gov. Robert D. Ray of Iowa, viewed exhibits at a war museum in Minsk, capital of Byelorussia, and laid flowers at an eternal flame monument at the Khatyn memorial complex.

Excitement Shown By Jury Member

A sense of elation generally is expected from the defendant in a criminal trial when a jury returns an innocent verdict.

But following the acquittal of Erskin LaVernon Thover Allen Jr., it was one of the jury members who displayed the most excitement.

The six-man, six-woman panel had deliberated 70 minutes Thursday evening before deciding that Allen, of 1819 E. Colgate St., was not the man who entered a 21st Street apartment the night of June 13 with the intent to commit theft.

After 99th District Court Judge Thomas L. Clinton read the innocent verdict, one of the male jurors leaped over the jury box rail, rushed to the 30-year-old defendant and embraced him.

Estacado Advances In Playoff Action

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

SAN ANGELO — Kelvin White's grin stretched from one ear to the other. He had an explanation for everything.

"I just wasn't running the first half," said the Estacado junior, "but I knew what I had to do. I had to get outside."

And get outside White did; he didn't wait a second too long, either. The big Estacado tailback led a 14-point fourth quarter explosion here Friday night and the Matadors raced away with a 21-7 come-from-behind victory over San Angelo Lake View in Class AAA quarter-final action.

The Mats, now 11-1 on the year, will play McKinney in semifinal action next week at a site not yet determined. Lake View finishes its season with a 10-2 mark.

Midway through the fourth quarter, White took a straight handoff at the EHS 47, floated along the line of scrimmage, got a key block and turned the corner, racing 53 yards along the sidelines to paydirt.

But for a long, long, time it looked like the Mats were in trouble Friday night. In the first half, Estacado could gain only 22 total yards and one first down and that came via the penalty route. Meanwhile, the Chieftains capitalized on an Estacado fumble to go ahead 7-0.

But then the Matadors got a break — or, rather, they made a break. Quarterback Jerry Gray took the kickoff following the Lake View touchdown, sprinted towards the sidelines, picked up a wall of blocking and went the distance untouched. White's extra point tied the game 7-7 and the Mats had new life at intermission.

"That play really helped us," said Estacado coach Louis Kelley of Gray's run. "We just put that sideline play in this week. But if we'd come out in the second half behind 7-0, it would have been an uphill battle all the way."

The Mats still had an uphill battle in the second half, but for the second straight week, the Estacado defense towed the line. The Mats yielded only 140 total yards and completely dominated the second half. And finally, in the fourth period, the Matador offense exploded.

"We knew we had to break it eventually," explained Kelley. "The key was the blocking, they'd been containing our sweep, but we knew we could break it.

"We just told the kids at the half that we had a good game plan and we were going to stick with it."

And, with 7:14 remaining in the contest, that game plan started to work. Taking the ball at their own 20, Matador Preston Davis took an inside reverse, broke a tackle and burst 27 yards on the Mats' first play. On the next play, White made his long run and that was the ball game.

The totals: two plays, 80 yards, 34 seconds elapsed time.

"We've been talking about this since two-a-days," explained lineman Greg Evans. "We knew we were still in there and we knew what we had to do.

"We're going all the way to state," added wingback Davis.

"You've got to hand it to Lake View," said Kelly. "They just flat outplayed us in the first half. They deserve all the credit in the world.

"But our kids came back when they had to. We really did the job in the the fourth quarter and it was a great win for us."

Raiders, WT Renew Rivalry

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The Texas Tech-West Texas State basketball rivalry had been one of the fiercest in Tech's cage history before it was discontinued in 1958.

But when the two schools get together tonight at 7:30 in the Municipal Coliseum for the Red Raiders season-opener it looks like things will pick up just where they were left off 21 years ago — bitterly.

Yes sir, from all appearances, things are ready to get heated up again.

"All we here about up here is the Southwest Conference," said West Texas coach Ken Edwards, "so our fans are probably more excited about this game then our kids are.

"It's just that the media situation is different here (in the Missouri Valley Conference)," added Edwards. "We've got nine teams in eight states (in the MVC) so we can't get the kind of coverage that the Southwest conference does in Texas."

"Until the last three or four years the SWC had one of the worst won-loss records (against other conferences) of any conference in the nation," said the WT coach.

"But," he added, "Eddie Sutton at Arkansas and Abe Lemons at Texas have probably done a lot to change that."

"Everybody's got their own opinion," said Texas Tech coach Gerald Myers. "I always thought we played pretty good basketball in the Southwest Conference."

Both Edwards and Myers agreed that from a fan's standpoint the contest should be a beauty.

"There's been a lot of interest up north and in the Panhandle," said Myers, "and it's really good to see that kind of interest. I think it'll be a good, exciting basketball game."

"We haven't played Tech in awhile," said Edwards, "and I know we worked hard to get them back on our schedule. So we're looking forward to re-establishing what could be a great rivalry."

And that "great rivalry" ought to get off to a good start tonight. Both teams match up well even though Tech is coming off a 19-11, third place SWC finish and the Buffaloes are trying to rebound from an 8-19 mark a year ago.

The two teams will also present a remarkable contrast. The Buffaloes are a run-and-gun ballclub — the kind of team

Plainsmen To Unleash Johnson On Coronado

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Right in the middle of his back, Don Brooks has this itch that needs a good scratching. And to make matters even worse, it's been there since 1976.

That's the year Brooks, then an assistant coach at El Paso Coronado under Jack Quarles, stood on the sideline and watched as Monterey eeked out a last-second, 10-8 win over the Thunderbirds in a Class AAAA regional playoff contest.

The irritation still lingers.

So looking for some calamine lotion to help ease the pain, Brooks went to his former teacher for eight years, Quarles, and sought a little advice about the Plainsmen, the El Pasoans' regional opponent today at Jones Stadium. Kickoff is set for 2 p.m.

"I asked him (Quarles) what we needed to do to stop Monterey," said the third-year head coach.

And?

"Well, he said we needed to stop their tailback (Willie Johnson) and block well. Those were the two main things," added Brooks.

Monterey's eleven opponents this year have all had their hands full with Johnson. So Brooks knows Quarles advice is going to be easier said than done. The Monterey senior has carried the ball for 1,599 yards in 11 outings, including 215 yards on 32 tries in last week's 23-7 bi-district victory over Amarillo High. Against the Sandies, Johnson scored all three of MHS' touchdowns as the Plainsmen rallied from a 7-3 first-half deficit to post the win.

All those numbers mean Johnson has been harder to stop than a Peterbilt on I-20.

Like Monterey, Coronado is also coming off an unimpressive bi-district win. While the Plainsmen were rallying to defeat Amarillo, the Thunderbirds were also battling for their playoff lives. The 'Birds had to fight off a strong Bel Air crew for a 13-6 win and the right to advance in the Class AAAA playoffs for the first time since, well, 1976.

Obviously neither coach stood on the nearest goal post and crowed over their team's first-round performances. Both coaches agreed, wholeheartedly, it will take a much stronger showing to win Sat-

Childress Puts Mule Mania To Rest 20-0

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

CANYON — Mule Mania ran headlong into Bobcat Berserkness and the result, well, wasn't a pretty sight.

Perry Morren passed for three second half touchdowns — two to end Roger Hughes and the other to end Clifton Cornish — to lead the top-ranked Bobcats to a 20-0 Class AA regional playoff win over Muleshoe at Kimbrough Stadium Friday night. Childress now faces either El Paso Fabens or Stamford in the third round of the state high school playoffs.

It appeared Muleshoe was ready to pull the upset special of the year when it managed to hold Childress to a 0-0 halftime score. The Mules constantly played in Childress's end of the field during the opening 24 minutes of the cold, blustery night, but could not score. But, oh, Mania did have its chances.

Take, for instance, late in the first quarter Muleshoe moved down to the CHS 10, but Sam Whalin's 17-yard field goal attempt came to rest between Dave Tucker's eyes instead of the uprights.

Then, after Jim Norman intercepted a Morren pass on the Muleshoe 37 and returned it to the 22, it appeared MHS was about to go in for the game's first TD. Quarterback Mike Northcutt hit split end Cam Hawkins on a perfect strike that moved the ball down to the 10. However, on the following play, Northcutt's pitch to Charles Walker was fumbled and Timmy Dean hopped on the loose ball.

That would be the closest Muleshoe would come to sniffing the end zone for the rest of the night because from there on out, Childress's defense, paced by 230-pound tackle Dave Tucker, got nothing short of nasty.

Childress, which defeated Muleshoe 24-0 in last year's regional contest on its way to a semifinal berth against Wylie, never really threatened in the first half. In fact Muleshoe held a 2-0 penetration advantage. And the way the game was going, getting inside the 20 was almost as good as a touchdown.

Childress's coach Charlie Johnston must have put a burr under the Bobcats' shoulder pads during the second half. It was obvious that he did something besides just change a couple of realignments.

On the 'Cats' second possession of the second half, they took the ball at their own 23 and crammed it down the Mules. It took Childress only eight plays to move 77 yards before it scored what would be the only touchdown it needed to defeat the Mules. On second and eight from the 13, Morren found Hughes wide open in the end zone after the CHS split end had turned Mule defensive back Jim Norman completely around on a post pattern. Morren laid the ball in perfectly and with 5:31 left in the period, CHS had a 6-0 lead. Morren added the two points on a run around left end upping the count to 8-0.

Berserkness was now in full swing.

Dean, one of Childress's many all-state candidates, intercepted a Northcutt pass intended for Hawkins on Muleshoe's ensuing possession after CHS's first TD. Dean returned the ball to the MHS nine after picking it off at the 21.

From the nine, Rodger Hughes picked up one yard. Then on second and goal from the eight Morren, who had enough protection to spot any one of three receivers open in the end zone, hit Cornish over the middle for the score. Morren's PAT kick was blocked but Childress still owned a commanding 14-0 lead with 3:30 left in the third period.

Thanks to a 70-yard run by back Donald Simms, Childress was able to move into scoring position for its final TD. This one came on a two-yard pass from Morren to Hughes and capped a five-play, 75-yard march. Again, Morren failed on the kick, but still 20 points was too much of an obstacle for Muleshoe to overcome with 3:54 left in the game.

Childress's defense, which didn't allow a second half first down until midway through the fourth quarter, allowed only 27 yards rushing and 43 yards passing during the final two periods.

Childress, ranked No. 1 in both wire service polls, now stands 12-0 for the year. Muleshoe, a team which few figured would even win its district, ended the year with a 9-2-1 mark.

New Deal Overwhelms Stratford 47-16

By ERIC GALE
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

BORGER — A member of the New Deal High School football team tripped as he ran through the banner held by cheerleaders before the opening kickoff of the Class A regional football contest against Stratford here Friday night.

It was the last time the Lions broke stride as they overwhelmed the Elks 47-16 and revenged a 24-9 defeat at the hands of Stratford in the the state schoolboy playoffs one year ago.

The respective offenses treated one other's defense with complete disrespect in a seesaw first half that found Stratford gaining exactly 250 yards in total offense and New Deal 183.

There was only one punt in that first half, and six possessions in a row by both teams resulted in points.

The scoring parade began when Stratford, on its first possession of the game, moved 81 yards in seven running plays, climaxed by quarterback Matt Vincent's 1-yard run with 7:22 left in the opening period. Kyle Ingham's extra point made it 7-0 but the scorig drive proved costly to the Elks as star running back Ruben Rendon, who had carries of 35 and 29 yards in the scoring drive, injured his ankle and did not play in the remainder of the game.

Rendon, according to Stratford coach Jackie Needham, represents the Elks' only size and speed in the backfield. His absence forced Stratford to go to a passing game and relinquish its preferred option-style offense.

New Deal tied the score on its next possession as halfback Tony Howell scored on a 3-yard run with 5:01 left in the opening quarter. Martin Adams slammed the extra point.

Stratford rebounded to take a 10-7 lead on Ingham's 22-yard field goal early in the second quarter. The points were set up by Ingham's outstanding fingertip catch of a Vincent pass on a fourth-and-six at the New Deal 15.

New Deal, however, regained the lead shortly thereafter when Howell took a swing pass from quarterback Ricky Smith to complete a 25-yard scoring play. Adams again kicked the extra point to make it 14-10.

The balance of power swung in Stratford's direction for the final time on its next possession as Ingham made a diving catch of a Vincent toss in the end zone for a 30-yard touchdown with 4:55 remaining in the first half. The PAT kick was no good, but the Elks were in 16-14.

The complexion of the contest changed radically as Adams returned the subsequent Stratford kickoff 88 yards for the go-ahead touchdown. He escaped numerous defenders and rush-hour traffic on three occasions during the return and this ignited the Lions.

"That was the time we finally scored and went ahead for good," said B.J. Smith, the New Deal coach. " All of a sudden, in just five seconds, the ball was across the goal line and we had the points. This had to demoralize Stratford, but it really put us up."

The New Deal defense was much more successful in all phases of its game in the final 24 minutes.

Stratford, which had completed six of 10 passes in the first half, was only six for 17 in the second half and with much less yardage. The Lion defense also intercepted two Elks' passes after intermission.

The rout was underway with 8:23 showing in the thrid quarter as Howell darted 12 yards for the touchdown that gave New Deal a 27-16 lead. The Lions had driven the 68 yards in only eight running plays, an average of 8.5 yards per carry.

Two possessions later, with 11:47 to play, Smith carried 5 yards for a touchdown and five minutes later ran 9 yards for a score as the lead ballooned to 40-16.

The scoring ended when L.C. Bradley rushed 13 yards for a TD with 1:45 left.

The last two New Deal touchdown drives, each of 47 yards, were accomplished in a total of eight plays.

"They are the most physical football team I have ever seen against us," Needham said of the Lions. "I didn't think anybody could run over us like that," and he repeated the same words a minute later.

Lake View Falls To Estacado

utes after White had scored his go-ahead touchdown. It was the Estacado defense which came up with Lake View's first fumble of the night back on the Chief 33.

On third down, quarterback Gray connected with split end Warren Lyons with a 31-yard strike to move the ball to the Lake View two. On the next play, White powered over from there for his second TD and went on to kick his third PAT to make the final score 21-7.

White, who gained zero yards on five carries in the first half finished the game with 114 yards on 16 carries — all of that in the second half.

"I guess I wasn't running that hard in the first half," said a jubilant White. "But when I started the corner, I knew I could go."

And when White started going — so did the Matadors.

Lakeview's only score came after the Chiefs snatched up a Kenneth Cade muffed punt back at the Estacado 27. Lake View drove the distance in six plays before quarterback Ron Bly went over from the three for the the Chiefs' short-lived lead.

Gray's kickoff return on the next play was the Matadors first of the year.

The Mats waited until the fourth quarter, before they put this one away, but there wasn't any lack of confidence expressed in the delirious locker room after the game.

"We knew we were in there all along," explained Evans, "but we were just sort of figuring them out in the first half."

Seagraves Shuts Out Haskell In Regional Action 21-0

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

SNYDER — Seagraves coach Jim Eddins said that Friday night's 21-0 pasting of Haskell probably wasn't the best his Eagles have played this year.

But don't expect anyone who saw the Class A regional championship game here to believe it.

Seagraves could simply do nothing wrong. The Eagles' domination of the Indians was complete and total, leaving no room for question or doubt.

Consider these sample statistics. Seagraves ran 78 plays to the Indians' 35. The Eagles outrushed Haskell 369-73 and 307-26 through the first three quarters. The Eagles completed four of five passes, including one for a touchdown, while holding the Indians to only one completion out of 11 attempts. By the way, Seagraves picked off three Haskell passes.

"It's hard to say whether this was our best game," said Eddins, whose Seagraves team has yet to be defeated this year. "I thought our kids played exceptionally well on defense.

"I don't know about our offense. But you have to give Haskell credit too. They had a good ballclub. They had two or three kids we just couldn't block."

The year before last, Seagraves advanced as far as the state finals. How does Eddins compare this year's squad with that one?

"It's real hard to compare teams," said Eddins, "I think we were stronger in some areas two years ago, but we're stronger in other areas this year."

Pressed for particulars, Eddins again praised his defense. "I think our defense is playing about as well as it can, but I'm still not satisfied with our offense. On the other hand, I sure didn't guess we'd score 21 points on 'em. They haven't been giving up points like that."

Seagraves almost scored on their first drive of the game, as the Eagles moved the ball yards on seven plays before the Haskell defense finally held for three straight plays at the their own eight yard line.

On fourth down, and lacking four yards, Seagraves sent Johnny Castro right on a sweep but Haskell's Monnie Hise stopped him after a gain of only two.

Haskell could do nothing with the ball and kicked. The Indians stopped Seagraves for no gain after two carries, but on third down, Ronnie Griffin picked up nine yards to the Haskell 45. Again on fourth down, the Eagles gambled. And again they lost. Griffin tried the middle but gained nothing.

This time, Haskell mounted a drive. Quarterback Jim Harris gained six yards on first down. On second down, he found Joseph Browning in the flat on a completed pass. But the play wasn't over. Browning flipped the ball to Hise, coming up quick behind him. Hise raced past the startled defenders before finally being caught from behind at the Seagraves 10.

But Haskell's threat was short-lived. Two plays later, Hise fumbled the ball after a pitch and Seagraves' Ted Ward fell on it at the 23.

On first down, Griffin broke a sweep wide open for 43 yards. Two plays later Scotty Middleton, substituting for the injured Castro, dodged his way for another 32 yards on a sweep to the Haskell one. He dove across for the touchdown on the next play and Seagraves was off and running.

On their next possession, the Eagles drove 58 yards on 11 plays before quarterback Dale Welch found Alfredo Sena open on a hook pattern in the end zone for a 7-yard touchdown pass.

The Eagles got their remaining touchdown on a dive by Davis Morgan from two yards out after Ward intercepted a Haskell pass and returned it to the two.

Morgan was the game's leading rusher with 99 yards on 30 carries. Griffin tried 18 times for 84 yards, Castro got 54 on eight and Middleton got 33 on twocarries.

Those figures are all more than Haskell's leading rusher, Hise. The sturdy running back carried the ball on 17 of Haskell's 35 offensive snaps, but gained only 24 yards.

Seagraves will meet New Deal at a date and site as yet undetermined.

Raider Women Host Sooners

The Texas Tech women's basketball team, 5-2 and riding a three-game winning streak, will host the University of Oklahoma today at 5 p.m. prior to the Tech men's game in the Municipal Coliseum.

The Raiders are fresh off a 77-61 victory over Howard College as freshman forward Gwen McCray paced the Raiders with 26 points and 15 rebounds. Miss McCray is averaging 13.7 and 8.3 rebounds per outing and, along with fellow freshman sensation Pam Stone, is providing most of the Raider scoring.

Miss Stone has been averaging 15.5 points and 10 rebounds an outing through Tech's first seven tilts. Miss Stone will start at the post position with Nodia Vaughn and Louise Davis at the guard spots. The other forward will be Christie Newman.

Oklahoma is also 5-2 and fresh off a victory over North Texas. The Sooners are primarily a freshman group but are taller than the Raiders.

"They have super talent in all areas even though they're young," says Tech coach Gay Benson. "Up to this point they're the best team we've faced."

Today's Grid Games Should Settle Bowl Picture

By The Associated Press

In a situation that would make any professional league envious, it has taken until the final pressure-packed weekend of the regular college football season to settle the playoff picture.

College football's "playoffs" are the bowl games and four pairings still are not decided. However, three of Saturday's games will take care of all that — top-rated Alabama vs. No.14 Auburn in Birmingham, No.6 Texas at Texas A&M and No.10 Houston at Rice.

Another top-notch match takes place at State College, Pa., where No.19 Penn State plays host to No.11 Pittsburgh. The rest of a slim schedule finds Army vs. Navy in Philadelphia, Vanderbilt at Tennessee and Boston College at Holy Cross, plus two night games — Florida at Miami, Fla., and Arizona State at Hawaii.

The Texas-Texas A&M clash will decide three bowl games. If Texas wins, the Longhorns go to the Sugar Bowl, Arkansas to the Cotton against Nebraska and Houston to the Sun Bowl against Washington.

If Texas loses — and provided Houston wins — it's Houston in the Cotton Bowl and Arkansas probably in the Sugar, with Texas in the Sun.

Alabama must beat or tie Auburn to go to the Sugar Bowl. An Auburn victory would back Georgia into the Sugar and send 'Bama to the Fiesta against Pitt.

Alabama knows it must keep winning — and probably keep winning big — to have a shot at a second consecutive national championship since No.2 Southern California meets No.3 Ohio State in the Rose Bowl.

"The team, I think, feels as I do," says quarterback Steadman Shealy. "We've got to beat Auburn. If we don't, the Rose Bowl won't matter."

Alabama-Auburn won't be televised because Auburn is on probation and ineligible for (1) TV, (2) a bowl game and (3) the Southeastern Conference championship. Pitt-Penn State will be the first half of a national TV doubleheader (ABC-TV, 11:30 a.m. CST), followed by the traditional Army-Navy staple.

"I've often said that I'd rather beat Pittsburgh than go to a bowl game or anything else," says Joe Paterno, whose Liberty Bowl-bound Nittany Lions could do both. "This game will decide the Eastern championship, so the Pittsburgh game is a big one for us. It's Pitt and Penn State, and that's the big game, as far as we're concerned."

Auburn's Tigers find themselves in the unique position of having the Sugar Bowl people rooting hard against them although they did the folks in New Orleans a large favor by beating Georgia two weeks ago and preventing the Bulldogs from gaining a Sugar Bowl berth.

Although a two-touchdown underdog, Auburn is banking on the running tandem of James Brooks and Joe Cribbs, the first thousand-yard teammates in SEC history.

LSU Selects Rein As Mentor

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Bo Rein of North Carolina State, heralded as one of the nation's top young coaches, was hired Friday as head football coach at Louisiana State University to succeed Charlie McClendon, who was phased out after 18 seasons.

Athletic Director Paul Dietzel, saying Rein has "as fine an offensive concept as anybody in the nation," said Rein accepted the $50,000-a-year, four-year contract for the job.

Rein was not at the meeting of the LSU Board of Supervisors until after his hiring was approved unanimously.

The meeting room was packed. When he came in to be introduced, he was greated by standing applause. The crowd broke into cheers when he put on a purple, white and yellow LSU hat.

Rein told the board he was enthusiastic about coming to a university with such a strong and diverse academic program and one "rich in football traditions — not so much in wins and losses as in its heroes."

Rein said, "I can promise you if hard work and dedication mean anything, we'll be successful."

At a press conference later, Rein said he will begin immediately putting together a staff and will start recruiting. Under South Eastern Conference rules, first recruits can be signed at the end of next week.

Rein said he heard his first LSU game on the radio when he was in the seventh grade and "it raised the hair on the back of my head."

Rein said he considered LSU one of only a handfull of jobs he would have left North Carolina for.

"Here I will get a chance to tee it up against the great teams in the country," Rein said.

He was reminded that McClendon spent 18 years at LSU and was asked if he would like to do the same.

He answered very quickly, "Yes."

Before the announcement, Dietzel outlined a long list of 22 "LSU criteria" that had been applied — ranging from having "class" to being a super recruiter with absolute loyalty.

The litany led one member of the board, Camille Gravel, to ask that the appointment be considered in secret, saying he wanted to hear more about the man who appeared to be a "combination of St. Paul and Knute Rockne."

Dietzel said, "No possible choice will please everybody." He said the five-member selection committee started with a list of 25 coaches and gradually trimmed it down.

He said the concensus of everybody he talked to was that LSU was one of the top "coaching plums" in the nation.

Rein compliled a 27-18-1 record during his four years at North Carolina State, including bowl victories over Iowa State and Pittsburgh the past two seasons.

Oklahoma State's Johnson Named Big Eight Coach Of Year

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Jimmy Johnson, who amazed football observers this year by leading downtrodden Oklahoma State to a 7-4 record, is a near-unanimous choice as Big Eight Coach of the Year.

The 36-year-old Johnson was named on all but two ballots received from a panel of sportswirters and sportscasters who regularly cover the Big Eight.

Most experts were predicting the Cowboys would win two, and possibly three games this year. Except for two or three standout players, the program seemed almost devoid of talent. Worse yet, it was burdened with a two-year NCAA probation for recruiting violations of the previous staff and another scandal had just erupted amid charges of a player slush fund.

Johnson, a former assistant at Arkansas, Oklahoma and Pittsburgh, leaped at the opportunity for a head job. He spoke optimistically about the team's chances, always tempering his remarks with the thought that his team had very little depth and injuries could be catastrophic.

The first thing that happened was a catastrophic run of injuries. But the Cowboys kept winning anyway, held together by a rag-tag collection of walk-ons, former walk-ons, freshmen and sophomores. Perhaps most indicative of Johnson's powers of organization and leadership, they came from behind in five of their seven victories. The four teams that beat them — Nebraska, Oklahoma, Arkansas and South Carolina, have a combined record of 38-6 and are all headed for bowls. So is Missouri, which finished in fourth place in the Big Eight, two games behind Oklahoma State.

The future looks rosy for the Cowboys, provided further penalties will not be assessed for the sins of the previous coaching staff.

"Maybe I'm just an optimistic person," says Johnson. "But I really don't anticipate further penalties for one simple reason — this is a completely new staff and players from when they had problems with the NCAA.

"We have suffered the penalties for one year and I can't imagine they could make us suffer another year. We could have gone to a bowl and been on TV if we hadn't been paying for the wrongdoings of someone else. Everybody in this program, the coaching staff, the players we recruited, are new. Thirteen of the top two units this year were freshmen. So it's a young team, a whole new coaching staff, and we have already suffered for the wrongs of somebody else. I just don't believe we'll be made to suffer more."

The current probation expires Jan. 8. And Johnson, who didn't believe the Cowboys would be nearly so bad as everyone predicted, can only hope he's right once again.

Kush Must Face Charges At ASU Faculty Hearing

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Ousted football coach Frank Kush will be faced with charges of hitting players, lying and serious personal misconduct at a faculty hearing Dec. 13 at Arizona State University.

"I have no comment whatsoever," Kush said Friday as the charges were outlined by the Phoenix Gazette in a copyright story. Kush has said he would not attend the hearing.

Fred Miller, athletic director at the suburban Tempe university, suspended Kush on Oct. 13, accusing him of pressuring players and assistant coaches to lie about an alleged assault on former Sun Devil punter Kevin Rutledge.

The newspaper said Kush would be accused of:

— Striking Rutledge after he made a poor kick in Arizona State's 41-7 loss to Washington on Oct. 28, 1978;

— Lying about the alleged punch and trying to coerce players and coaches into suppressing information concerning Rutledge's pending $1 million suit against the coach, even if it meant committing perjury;

— Engaging in a pattern of physical assault and harassment of players, which resulted in injury to some;

— Knowing that some players enrolled in an extension class from Rocky Mountain College in Montana would receive academic credit without completing the course, yet publicly denying it. (Eight players were suspended in the extension course scandal and Arizona State had to forfeit five football victories.)

Witnesses include Kush's personal secretary Norma Sullivan and his successor, Coach Bob Owens; Rutledge and John Rehfield, who resigned as academic adviser to the team in the wake of the extension-course mess.

Dickey, Cooper Added To Tilt

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Curtis Dickey, Texas A&M's outstanding running back, was among seven offensive players named Thursday to the West squad for the 55th Shrine East-West Game.

The versatile Dickey, with an average of 101 yards per game and five yards per carry this football season, also is the NCAA indoor 60-yard dash champion.

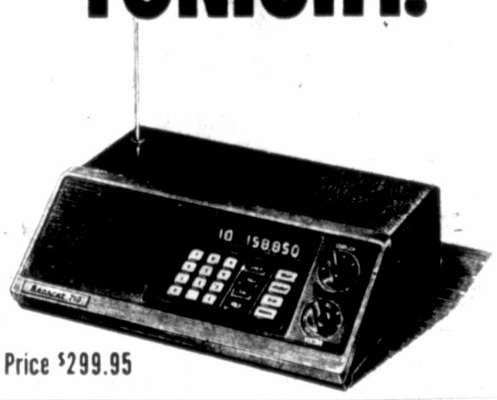

Another star from the Southwest Conference, Earl Cooper of Rice, was among the players added to the West team for the game Jan. 5 at Stanford. Cooper, a running back, led the SWC in pass receiving with 46 catches.

The other new West selections are receivers Tim Smith of Nebraska, Steve Cosby of Oregon State, Danny Pittman of Wyoming and Eddy Whitley of Kansas State, along with placekicker Peter Boermeester of UCLA.

Red Raiders, West Texas Renew Cage Rivalry

But the Buffs have come up with some replacements to fill some key holes of a year ago. All five starters return from last year's team but not all five will start tonight for WT.

The post will be manned by junior college transfer John Olsen — a 6-9 junior. Olsen should give the Buffs much-needed help in the rebounding department. And WT has another JUCO player, 6-6 Steve Ornalez, who should give help inside. Although Ornalez won't be starting tonight, he'll be on of the first men off the bench for the Buffaloes.

Both Olsen and Ornalez averaged 20-plus points an outing in the JUCO ranks a year ago.

Another replacement for WT is 5-9 point guard Terry Adolph who was ineligible last year after transferring from Portland State where he had been a two-year starter for Edwards.

"Terry is my quarterback," said Edwards, "and our floor leader. But he can also shoot the ball.

"Last year we didn't have a point guard to run our team," said Edwards, "so we were in trouble all year. We also shot 42 percent as a team and got outrebounded by about 10 a game."

But, says Edwards, the above mentioned players should do much to correct that situation. The Buffs other starters will be 6-5 George Sims and 6-7 Carl Johnson at the forwards and either Dan Elmer or Eddie Harris at the other guard spot. All four of those players averaged over 10 points a game as starters last year.

Although Edwards may have gotten what WT needed most — Tech's Myers wasn't quite as fortunate. The Raiders failed to nab a dominating big man and the lineup for tonight's opener will look a lot like the Raiders of a year ago.

Only Geoff Huston, now playing with the New York Knicks, will be missing from the same lineup that finished last season for Tech.

Ralph Brewster (6-8, Jr.) will be at the post with Ben Hill (6-6, Jr.) and David Little (6-6, Soph.) in the wings. Senior Kent Williams (6-5) and 6-4 sophomore Jeff Taylor will start at the guard positions.

Although neither team is overly big, the two appear to be almost even on paper. But Edwards doesn't think so.

"Tech likes to lead you on like that (that they're a small team)," said the WT coach, "but because of their guard situation they're not what I'd consider a small team."

"He (Edwards) is definitely a running coach," said Myers, "and he's got some good transfers to help his program. I expect them to run and press a lot on defense."

Monterey, 'Birds To Clash

"I know we've got to play better if we hope to stay up with Monterey," said Brooks. "And I feel our kids will."

James Odom, the head man at MHS, seconded the motion: "Looking at the films on them, I can tell they are a much stronger team than I thought they were earlier. We're going to have get down and play well... real well."

While Brooks is concerned about putting the skids to only one back, Johnson, Odom faces an even greater dilemna. He must figure out how the Monterey defense will corral six backs. But it didn't take long for the long-time coach to get his game-plan in working order.

"Well," replied Odom, "they can only run one back at a time. If all six of them could carry it, then I guess we'd be in trouble. But they can't."

Mike Jarvis and Forrest Rich hold down the starting halfback spots. Steve Nichols goes at fullback and Brad Robalin operates at quarterback. Jarvis has rushed for 519 yards on 76 carries. Rich 482 on 70 tries and Nichols 420 yards on 58 totes.

Kelly Boren, who backs up both Jarvis and Rich, is the second-leading ballcarrier on the team with 503 yards on 85 carries. However, he will not start.

"I think that's been our strength all year," said Brooks. "We've got six kids that can carry the ball. I'm not scared to use any of them."

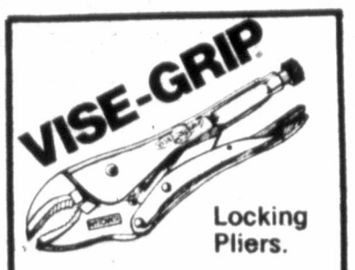

What worries Brooks is Coronado's lack of size, in comparrison to Monterey's bulk. The 'Birds are not blessed with an abundance of big men, according to Brooks. Only guard Oscar Maldonado tops the 200-pound mark. On the other hand, Kelly Grammer, MHS' all-state candidate at both offensive and defensive tackle, weighs in at 240 pounds.

But Brooks does like to point out how quick, not fast, the Thunderbirds are. "We're not big at all," said Brooks. "But I guess we're better off than any Coronado team in a long time. But we can't match up man-for-man with Monterey. We have a lot of quickness, though. That's to our advantage. But we don't have any blazing speed. About 10.2 or 10.4 are our best times in the 100 (yard dash). If there are any faster than that, I haven't seen them."

This will be Coronado's first trip to the state playoffs since Brooks took over after Quarles left for Fabens. The 'Birds tied for the conference title in both 1977 and 1978, but lost a coin flip to Andress both times.

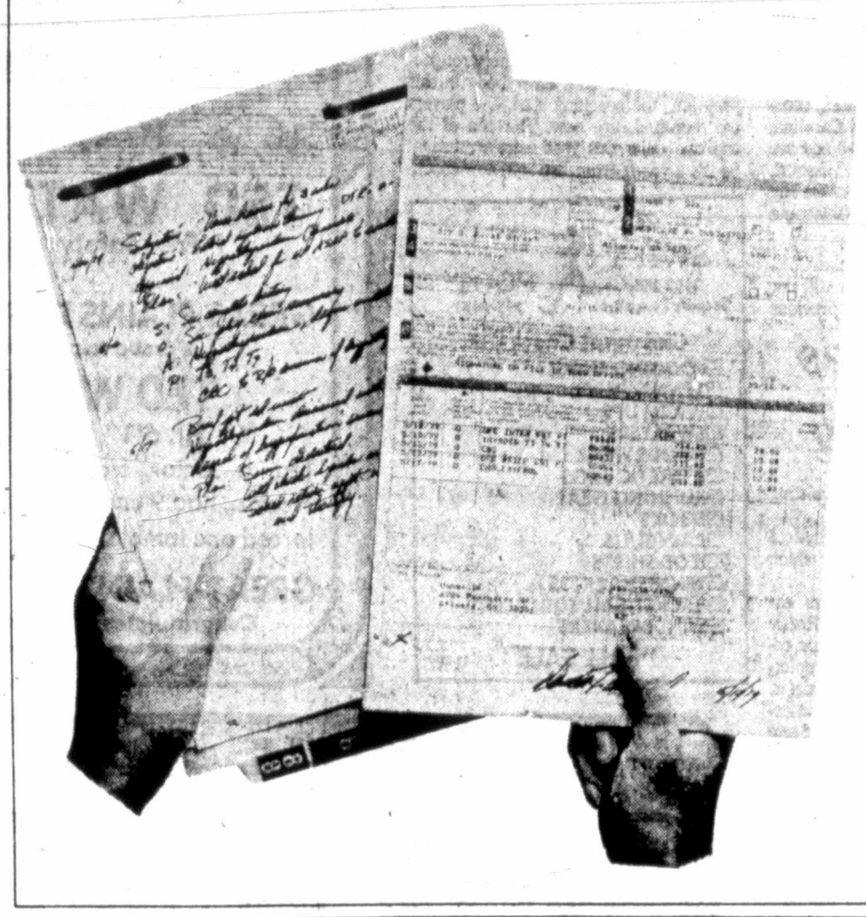

Still Coronado has one of the most impressive winning traditions in the state. Under Quarles and Brooks, CHS has won the District 1-AAAA title for 15 of the last 16 years. However, only once did the El Paso school advance in the playoffs further than the regional round. That came in 1975 when they met Odessa Permian in the quarterfinals but lost on penetrations after the game ended in a 14-14 tie.

Both teams enter the game with 10-1 season records.

If medical insurance forms are a major bottleneck in your practice, IBM may have precisely the cure you're looking for. It's the new IBM 5110 Doctors Office Management System, developed for physicians confronted with increasing office costs and workloads. One of a family of IBM systems for the medical community, it's ideal for offices with one to three doctors. The system can handle up to 120 patient visits a day, and it runs on our smallest computing system, the IBM 5110. The total investment is less than $23,000.

We call it painless because standard insurance forms are a by-product of regular patient billing information. Charges are entered into the 5110 from patients' records and the claims forms are prepared by the system's printer. But the 5110 can do more than help with insurance forms. You can have patients' bills ready before they leave the office. Answer questions on their accounts over the phone. Develop reports for practice analysis. And track patients for follow-up visits and periodic examinations.

Faster completion of claims forms often means faster payment and improved cash flow. And by getting a record of past-due accounts whenever you ask for it, chances are you'll speed the collection of accounts receivable.

The 5110 can handle many routine, repetitive clerican tasks. And someone in your office can usually learn to operate it in just a few days.

The IBM 5110 can help halt spiraling office costs. And give you more time for patient care and keeping up with developments in your field. Which is the best medicine of all.

On Tuesday, December 4, 1979, the Lubbock IBM General Systems Division office will conduct a seminar on the IBM 5110 Doctors Office Management System.

If you'd like to attend this free IBM seminar, call Ronna Davis to reserve a seat. (Because of a limited number of seats, reservations are required.)

Southwest Conference Campaigns Come To End

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Texas and Houston were favored today to give Arkansas an all expenses paid trip to the Cotton Bowl.

But all that's missing in one of the wildest Southwest Conference campaigns on record is a final bizarre twist which could be produced by a Texas A&M Aggie upset of the Longhorns or a shocking Rice victory over the Cougars.

The crippled Longhorns are six-point favorites over the Texas Aggies at Kyle Field in their traditional joust while Houston was a 26-point pick over the Rice Owls, who will be playing in their 70,000-seat stadium.

Arkansas players, coaches and fans get to sit back and relax while the two games decide whether they will be in Dallas or New Orleans New Year's Day.

Both Houston and Texas have a chance to tie Arkansas for the SWC Title. The Razorbacks finished with just one loss — to Houston.

Houston lost to Texas which lost to Arkansas.

If both Houston and Texas win or lose, Arkansas will be in the Cotton Bowl against guest Nebraska. In the case of multiple ties, Arkansas gets the Cotton Bowl bid because Texas and Houston have last appeared in the classic.

Should Texas lose and Houston win, the Cougars will play in the Cotton Bowl for the third time in four years, Arkansas will go to the Sugar Bowl and Texas will play in the Sun Bowl.

Texas goes to the Sugar Bowl if the Longhorns win and Houston goes to the Sun Bowl.

The Aggies are 5-5 overall and 3-4 in the SWC race, beating Rice, Southern Methodist and Texas Christian in league battles.

Texas is 9-1 overall and 6-1 in the SWC while A&M is 5-5 and 3-4 and trying to salvage the season.

The Longhorns have a five-game winning string going into the game. Although Texas leads the series 60-20-5 the Longhorns possess only a 17-13-2 edge in Kyle Field.

Texas is coming off a 13-0 victory over Baylor in which its defense permitted only two first downs. The offense featured Rick McIvor's 270 yards passing and Johnny "Lam" Jones' 198 yards receiving on eight catches.

The 'Horns will be without running backs Johnny "Jam" Jones and Rodney Tate, injured in the Baylor game.

Houston's Terald Clark needs only 30 more yards to join Texas Tech's James Hadnot as a 1,000-yard gainer.

The SWC will have four teams in bowls.

Baylor, which finished the season 7-4, will meet Clemson Dec. 31 in the nationally televised Peach Bowl.

The SWC made some $3 milllion in television appearances this year and the league also stands to cash another $3 million in the bowls.

Lou Holtz UPI Coach Of Year

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — Arkansas football coach Lou Holtz, who took an inexperienced, injury-marred fleet of Razorbacks on an incredible journey to a share of the Southwest Conference championship, was named United Press International's SWC Coach of the Year today.

Although youthful, the Razorbacks were talented and Holtz molded them into a solid unit.

"This was the only 10-1 team in the country in which the losing teams always thought they should have won," Holtz said. "We are not impressive on film, but this team knows something about winning."

In his three years at Arkansas, Holtz has compiled a 30-4-1 record. He is the only Razorbacks coach in history to win that many games in three consecutive seasons and they still have one game to go, either in the Cotton or Sugar Bowl.

"I think naturally in coaching you love to receive that honor, just like an athlete making all-conference," Holtz said. "So many times, maybe the older you get, coach of the year is a disservice to the players we had at Arkansas this year.

"This was the easiest group in the world you'd want to coach. Anybody could have coached them and anybody could have won the championship with them. The seniors should receive coach of the year."

Holtz said the Arkansas was a team without stars.

"That was the theme we went with most of the year," he said. "We weren't going to worry about individual honors. I'd gladly exchange this award for some individual awards for our athletes. It's a great honor but by the same token our athletes are the ones who did it. Our assistant coaches did a great job.

"There were a lot of great coaching jobs done in the conference this year. Not everyone was fortunate as we were to win some close games this year."

Many of the same writers and broadcasters who voted Holtz Coach of the Year were the same ones who picked the Razorbacks to finish sixth or seventh in the conference this year.

Asked what he thought that showed, Holtz said, "In selection of coach of the year, they know as much about that as they did about the pre-season picks."

A&M Extends Wilson's Pact

COLLEGE STATION (UPI) — The contract of Texas A&M football coach Tom Wilson was extended to Jan. 1, 1983, at the A&M board of regents' Friday meeting.

Regent John Blocker of Houston formally made the recommendation, which was unanimously approved.

"Coach Wilson has demonstrated personal qualities of leadership, character and integrity that reflect credit upon Texas A&M University," Blocker said in his motion.

"He has also displayed those professional skills which should provide Texas A&M future success in its football program."

Norm Ellenberger Suspended At UNM

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — University of New Mexico basketball coach Norm Ellenberger was suspended Friday at his own request in the wake of a federal investigation involving grades of junior college transfers.

Also suspended was Ellenberger's chief recruiter, Manny Goldstein, according to Tony Hillerman, assistant to University President William E. Davis.

Davis met at length with Ellenberger Friday, Hillerman said, and Ellenberger asked Davis that he be suspended immediately from coaching duties. Davis said Ellenberger told him a suspension would be better for the university and the basketball team, Hillerman said.

Davis issued the suspension and then also suspended Goldstein, pending resolution of the FBI investgation.

Ellenberger, 50, who was to begin his eighth season as head coach Saturday night when the Lobos meet Colorado, was not immediately available for comment.

Hillerman said the university had not been able to reach Goldstein.

Ellenberger sports one of the top won-loss records among coaches across the country. His overall record at New Mexico in seven seasons is 134-62, and his teams won Western Athletic Conference titles in 1974 and 1978.

Last season's team finished with a 19-10 overall record and took part in the National Invitation Tournament, losing to Texas A&M in the first round. In seven years at New Mexico, Ellenberger has guided the Lobos to four post-season invitations.

Ellenberger took over from Bob King as head coach in 1972 and instituted a free-wheeling offense that made the Lobos one of the top scoring teams in the country.

Goldstein is in his second year as a full-time assistant, coming to UNM from Southwestern Louisiana University where he was an assistant coach.

Harrison, 29, was an assistant at Oklahoma last season, and before that was in charge of player personnel for the Buffalo Braves of the National Basketball Association.

Police recorded a conversation between Ellenberger and Goldstein about obtaining a junior college degree illegally for a Lobo player, according to a sworn affidavit by FBI Agent Jack D. Blair.

An affidavit was filed as part of an FBI investigation of alleged mail fraud and bribery in the handling of academic records of athletes recruited by UNM.

The affidavit alleged that Goldstein had caused a false transcript to be sent from a New Jersey school to a California school to give a player enough credits to make him eligible to play at UNM.

The affidavit said that the case involved Lobo player Craig Gilbert, who came to UNM from Oxnard Junior College in California.

It told of alleged contacts between Goldstein and two Oxnard officials about helping Gilbert become eligible to play at UNM.

Lobos Decide On New AD

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — University of New Mexico President William E. Davis announced Friday that Florida State University Athletic Director John Bridgers will be UNM's new athletic director.

Davis said Bridgers has been hired under a five-year contract at $45,000 a year.

The announcement came at the end of a news conference Friday called by Davis to announce the suspensions of UNM basketball coach Norm Ellenberger and Ellenberger's chief recruiting assistant, Manny Goldstein. The suspensions came in the midst of a federal investigation into possible mail fraud and bribery involving grades of junior college transfers.

Bridgers, 57, replaces Lavon McDonald, who resigned Oct. 9. McDonald, who was assigned to another position within the university, had been the school's athletic director since Jan. 1, 1974.

Leonard Takes Welterweight Title From Benitez

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard felt he had the fight won after 14 rounds. Then he went out and made sure Friday night, battering Wilfred Benitez into submission and winning the World Boxing Council welterweight championship.

The 21-year-old Benitez, a two-time world champion, said he injured his left hand in the third round. But he did not use the injury as an excuse.

"I don't have any question about the fight," said the Puerto Rican. "He's a tremendous champion and he won the fight."

"It was like being close to death," said Leonard, echoing Muhammad Ali's sentiments about his third fight with Joe Frazier in Manilla. "It was one of the toughest fights I ever experienced. He proved he had the determination of a champion. He hit me with some dynamite shots. He rocked me in the seventh or eighth round. My condition paid off."

Leonard said would be happy to give a rematch to the previously unbeaten Benitez. But Benitez probably would have to wait for some time, since Leonard's victory in the richest non-heavyweight fight ever, paved the way for lucrative matches against Pipino Cuevas — the World Boxing Association welterweight champion — and Roberto Duran, the former lightweight champion.

The men went toe-to-toe for most of the final three minutes. Then, with the clock winding down, Leonard crashed home a left hook to the jaw that dropped Benitez in a corner. He got up quickly but obviously was hurt.

Referee Carlos Padilla asked Benitez if he was all right and the Puerto Rican nodded yes. Padilla then waved Leonard to the attack, and after three or four shots to the head, the fight was halted.

The 26th victory in Leonard's unbeaten pro career came a little more than three years after he won a gold medal at the Montreal Olympics, and it set up a "dream" fight between Leonard and former lightweight champion Roberto Duran.

Also at Caesar's Palace, undisputed middleweight champion Vito Antuofermo kept the title on a draw against Marvin Hagler. At the New Orleans Superdome, Marvin Johnson — the former WBC light-heavyweight champ — won the World Boxing Association title by knocking out Victor Galindez in the 11th round.

Leonard was a strong favorite to win the title, and he didn't disappoint his growing following of fans in his 21st television appearance and 26th fight.

Mixing his attack deftly between the body and head, Leonard, 146, of Palmer Park, Md., was in firm control when the end came.

Leonard knocked down Benitez, 144½, of Puerto Rico with a short left hook that caught the previously unbeaten defending champion going backwards in the third round. Leonard appeared to step on Benitez' foot as the punch landed.

In the sixth round, the men banged heads and Benitez was cut high on the middle of his forehead. The cut was a bloody one but did not affect Benitez' performance.

Through the first 10 rounds, Leonard — who has magnificent hand speed — mixed his attack while Benitez scored mostly with left jabs and occasional left hooks. Then, in the final minute of the 11th round, Leonard buckled Benitez with a hook to the jaw.

In the final few rounds, Leonard began finding the range with short right hands to the head. In the early part of the fight, Benitez had him missing with rights to the head. But Sugar Ray did use that hand effectively to the body.

The loss to the 23-year-old Leonard was Benitez' first against 37 victories and a draw.

SOUTH PLAINS 57, McMURRY 54

Linda Vaughn pumped in 17 points to lead South Plains College to a 57-54 win over McMurry Friday night. Sandra Whiteside had 23 for McMurry. The win raised South Plains' season record to 4-4, while McMurry fell to 3-4.

Eldorado Nips Clovis 21-20

Clovis had led 20-11 in the fourth quarter but Eldorado came back on a 2-yard run by John Kane to cut the lead to 20-18. Then Eldorado recovered an onside kick with 3:04 left to play and marched to the 14 for Jorgensen's winning boot.

ENMU Cagers Play Tonight

ALVA, Okla. (Special) — The Eastern New Mexico Greyhounds will battle Northwestern Oklahoma State University here tonight at 7:30.

The Greyhounds are seeking to break a three-game losing streak. ENMU is off to its poorest start since 1974 and currently own a 0-3 record. Coach Larry Riley says that the 2-2 Northwestern club won't be an easy win.

"Northwestern has a quality club even though they're young," says Riley. "Their losses have come from two top teams. In order for us to be successful against them we must hit our free throws, cut down on our turnovers and get back better on defense."

The Greyhounds obviously have their work cut out for them. Eastern is hitting only 52 percent of its free throws and 42 percent from the field.

Nineteen NFL Squads Still In Playoff Race

By The Associated Press

"If ifs and buts
Were candy and nuts,
We'd all have a Merry Christmas."
---Don Meredith

It's getting to that point in the National Football League season. With three weekends remaining, 19 of the league's 28 teams still are in the running for a spot in the Super Bowl.

Some of course, have a better chance than others for a playoff berth — several can clinch them on Sunday — but the mathematical combinations and permutations are still mind-boggling.

— If Houston, tied with Pittsburgh at 10-3 for first place in the American Conference's Central Division, beats Cleveland, the Oilers will clinch their second straight playoff berth, since the worst they could then do would be 11-5 and only four other teams would be able to match that mark. The Oilers, behind Earl Campbell's three short-yardage touchdowns, knocked Cleveland from the unbeaten ranks with a 31-10 romp over the Browns on Sept. 30.

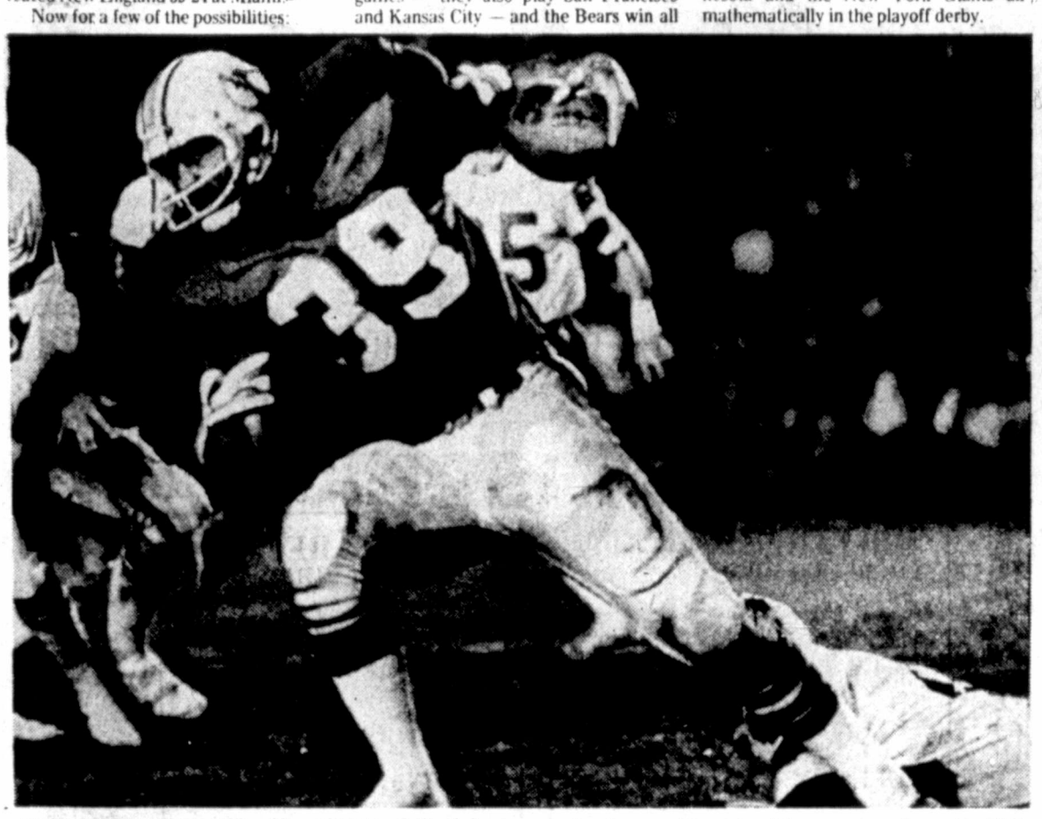

— If the Steelers beat Cincinnati (and the Bengals are winless in nine games in Pittsburgh) and the Oilers defeat the Browns, Pittsburgh will clinch its eighth straight playoff berth, tying the 1966-73 Dallas Cowboys' NFL record. The Steelers, routed 34-10 in Cincinnati earlier this year, nearly are invincible at Three Rivers Stadium, winning 12 straight against all foes and 22 of 24 against AFC Central challengers.

— If Tampa Bay beats Chicago, the Bucs win the National Conference Central title, just four years after their winless debut in the NFL. In fact, if the Bucs win just one of their remaining three games — they also play San Francisco and Kansas City — and the Bears win all three, Tampa Bay would take the crown since, despite matching 10-6 overall records, the Bucs would be 6-2 within the division while the Bears would be 5-3. Tampa Bay beat the Bears 17-13 in Chicago on Sept. 30.

— If San Diego defeats Atlanta, it will not only remain ahead of Denver in the AFC West, but it will chalk up its fifth successive victory, something the Chargers haven't done since 1964. And if both the Chargers and Oilers win, San Diego locks up at least a wild-card playoff berth. Dan Fouts is gunning for a sixth 300-yard game this year to tie Joe Namath's 1965 NFL record.

— If Philadelphia beats Detroit for its 10th victory of the year (the Eagles haven't done that since 1961), it'll clinch no worse than an NFC wild-card slot since it would assure the Eagles of no worse than a 9-3 conference record, something only two other teams (Dallas and Washington) could achieve.

Beyond that, things get really muddled, what with Los Angeles, New Orleans, Denver, Miami, Buffalo, New England, Cleveland, Oakland, Seattle, Minnesota and the New York Giants all mathematically in the playoff derby.

CSONKA GETS HIS YARDS — Miami Dolphins fullback Larry Csonka (39) runs past a New England Patriots defender as he works his way toward the goal line during Thursday night's NFL contest between the two AFC Eastern Division contenders. Csonka scored three touchdowns and went over the 8,000-yard career rushing mark to lead the Dolphins to a 39-24 victory and into first place in the division, one full game over New England. Browns, 'Pokes Picked To Rebound Sunday

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

There's probably nothing quite so frustrating in the National Football League as being a member of the Cleveland Browns — because that means living in the same neighborhood as the Pittsburgh Steelers and Houston Oilers.

The Browns begin the season dreaming of playoffs and championships, only to be left chewing dust while the Steelers and Oilers battle it out for supremacy in the American Conference's Central Division.

Cleveland, burned by Pittsburgh in overtime for the second successive season last Sunday, will take out its frustrations on the Oilers this Sunday, pulling off a mild upset and giving the Steelers a red-carpet chance to close in on yet another title.

Last week's 8-6 mark put the season record at 114-66, .633.

The Picks:

CLEVELAND 24, HOUSTON 20: The Oilers' biggest problem may be their game against Pittsburgh on Dec. 10. Teams have been known to look ahead, forgetting the game at hand. Besides, we think Brian Sipe can get to the goal line quicker and more often than Earl Campbell.

PITTSBURGH 31, CINCINNATI 21: The Steelers, embarrassed by the Bengals seven games ago, will be out to set the record straight.

NEW ORLEANS 28, OAKLAND 24: (Monday night): ... and this one will allow New Orleans to bolt into first place in the NFC West.

SAN DIEGO 35, ATLANTA 13: The Chargers, with a one-game edge in the AFC West, smell paydirt. The Falcons smell period.

BUFFALO 19, DENVER 17: Another upset. The Bills are also in the playoff derby and Joe Ferguson will keep them there.

TAMPA BAY 24, CHICAGO 23: The Bucs' kicking game kicks Chicago in the teeth and gives Tampa Bay's fans that elusive first title.

DALLAS 27, N.Y. GIANTS 17: The Cowboys finally wake up, but it may be a little too late ...

PHILADELPHIA 20, DETROIT 14: ... because the Eagles are beginning to believe that they really are where they belong ...

WASHINGTON 26, GREEN BAY 10: ... and the Redskins realize that they should be there, too.

SEATTLE 30, KANSAS CITY 20: Watching Efren Herrera is almost as much fun as watching Jim Zorn.

ST. LOUIS 33, SAN FRANCISCO 24: The 49ers move one step closer to the No.1 draft pick.

Broncos Must Defeat Hot Bills To Remain Alive In AFC West

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The Denver Broncos, despite playing well most of the season, still need a victory Sunday against the Buffalo Bills to keep their playoff hopes alive.

The Bills, 7-6, have a three-game winning streak going, however, and with their own faint hopes of a playoff berth shape up as spoilers in the National Football League collision.

For Buffalo to win the American Conference East title, Miami would have to lose its next two games while the Bills won. Even less likely circumstances would be necessary for the Bills to claim a wild-card spot.

The Broncos have won nine of 13, but trail San Diego by a full game in the AFC West after a 14-10 loss to Oakland in their last try.

"We know we have our work cut out for us, but it still comes down to one game at a time," said Denver Coach Red Miller. "There's no way we're going to look past any game from here on out."

He said his team, which had a four-game winning streak until the Oakland game, played "exceptionally well" against the Raiders — but not well enough.

Coach Chuck Knox of the Bills also sings the one-at-a-time refrain, but he sees a bright 1980 season — not this year's playoffs — beyond the next opponent.

"We are a young football team. We're getting better, but we still have a long way to go," he said.

Given their recent history, the Bills should be loose and dangerous against the favored Broncos, who last played here in 1975. The weather is expected to be cold in the wake of a two-day snowstorm which dropped more than a foot of snow on suburban Orchard Park.

The Bills, with quarterback Joe Ferguson just shy of 3,000 yards passing, feature an explosive offense and a youthful defense which jelled midway through the campaign.

However, Buffalo running backs Terry Miller, Curtis Brown and Roland Hooks have been bogged in a slump.

Miller had logged back-to-back games of 81 and 91 yards rushing before the Bills stopped New England 16-13 last weekend. But he got only 18 yards in 11 carries against the Patriots.

Tied to the fact that the Broncos, with ends Brison Manor and Barney Chavous leading the way, are the AFC's third-stingiest team against the run, Buffalo's failure to develop a ground attack could be the Bills' undoing.

The modest victory string coincides with Knox's decision to let Ferguson call his own plays.

Denver, relying on a strong secondary rather than a strong rush, will have to contain Ferguson's slant passes to rookie-of-the-year candidate Jerry Butler, Lou Piccone and Dan Fulton.

Denver quarterback Craig Morton, a 15-year veteran, has thrown for 2,005 yards and hates to leave the pocket. He hands off to Rob Lytle, Jon Keyworth, Otis Armstrong and Jim Jensen to keep defenders honest.

Pope Optimistic About Talks

Reunification Discussed With Turkish Leader

F NEWS
Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
Saturday, Dec. 1, 1979

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II returned from Turkey on Friday, optimistic about his reunification talks in Istanbul with Patriach Demetrius I of the Eastern Orthodox Church.

On the final day of his three-day trip, John Paul became the first Roman Catholic pontiff to attend a full Eastern Orthodox service since the Great Schism over papal authority split the church in 1054.

A communique issued by the pope and the patriarch at the close of John Paul's visit declared, "We affirm anew our firm desire for full communion."

A major step toward that goal was formation of a special theological commission with about 60 members from the two churches. The names of the 25-30 Roman Catholic representatives were expected to be announced Saturday.

More than 20 cardinals greeted the pope when he stepped off his special Alitalia jetliner after the flight from Izmir, Turkey. John Paul told the crowd his heart was "still filled with intense emotions," and added:

"With this trip I also wanted to give witness to my firm desire to go forward on the road which leads to the full unity of all Christians and give at the same time a contribution toward the coming together of all men, in the same respect of that which is essentially and profoundly human."

Turkey was the first predominantly Moslem country John Paul has visited as pope, and he said the people of Turkey "made me understand what a desire for understanding and brotherhood there is in the heart of every man." Security was extreme during the pope's visit because of turbulence in the Moslem world and death threats.

On the return flight, the pope showed no signs of strain from the trip and cast aside reports he might spend Christmas in Bethlehem. "As the French writer Jean-Paul Sartre says, you have to know when to stay at home," the pontiff said with a smile.

He chided journalists on the plane when one, crowded to the rear during an impromptu news conference, protested, "This method is not democratic." The pope replied, "The behavior of journalists who fight for democracy in this way is mistaken."

The pope began his final day in Turkey by attending a two-hour Orthodox Divine Liturgy to commemorate St. Andrew's feast day in St. George's Cathedral. He then visited the ancient city of Ephesus before returning to Rome Friday evening.

The pontiff, clad in a white robe and a red mantle topped with a gold-embroidered red sash, did not join Demetrius in celebrating the Divine Liturgy.

"This visit to the primary throne of the Orthodox church .... My participation in this liturgy .... show with clarity the will of the entire Roman Catholic church to go forward in the march toward unity of all," the pope said to the patriarch and the several hundred persons packed in the tiny cathedral.

Replying, Demetrius explained, "We too search and desire peace and goodness.... It is toward this aim that our two churches come out of their isolation and alienation — not to say hostility — in order to take the road of this meeting and reconciliation."

To the applause of the congregation, the two church leaders embraced before the altar in a gesture of conciliation.

In a joint declaration the two said they had made progress in their talks, and an informed Vatican source said the pope felt "quite close" to agreement with the patriarch on some major concepts. "The Holy Father also believes that sister churches could differ in their liturgy, in their usages, in their expressions, in the manifestation of their faith, and even in their theology and still be one," the source said.

Tight security was in evidence, as at previous appearances at religious ceremonies since the pope's arrival in Ankara Wednesday.

John Paul was flown to the Aegean coastal city of Izmir, then went by helicopter to Ephesus, the ancient Greek city where the Virgin Mary was said to have lived before her death and where the Second Ecumenical Council in 431 proclaimed her the mother of God.

Taking advantage of relaxed security around the mountaintop shrine dedicated to the Virgin Mary, the pope moved about freely, exchanging pleasantries with those who went to see him.

About 2,000 pilgrims including Americans and their families from Turkish NATO installations, greeted the Polish-born pope.

As he toured the shrine, a single shot rang out in the distance, creating anxiety among the crowd. Associated Press reporter Ismail Kovaci reported that a soldier on guard in the area had accidentally fired his rifle and that no one was hit.

FIRST POPE FOR NINE CENTURIES — Pope John Paul II, rear center, became the first Pope for nine centuries to attend a full Orthodox service at St. Georges Church, Istanbul, Friday. He celebrated with Patriarch Demetrius I, left foreground, in a morning service on the last day of his three day visit to Turkey, in a step toward unity between the Catholic and Orthodox churches. On the right background is Cardinal Johnnes Willebrands, President of Vatican Secretairiat for Christian Unity. (AP Laserphoto)

Cheering Crowd Greets John Paul II At Mass

EPHESUS, Turkey (AP) — Pope John Paul II mingled with a cheering crowd of 2,000 faithful at this biblical town on Friday and celebrated an outdoor Mass honoring the Virgin Mary.

There was a moment of confusion when a group of soldiers ran away from the crowd toward an area where some people reportedly heard a rifle shot. Security officials said that a soldier's rifle went off accidentally about a half mile away from the pope and no one was hit.

More than 600 Americans — mostly from a NATO base in nearby Izmir — as well as large groups of Polish workers from a nearby factory and Italian visitors and clergy, turned out to greet the pope in sunny but chilly weather. Many brought picnic baskets and their pets.

The Polish-born pontiff, who came here from Istanbul on the last leg of his three-day visit to Turkey, later returned to Rome aboard a special Alitalia jetliner.

In his homily, the pope said the church "in our times is subjected to particularly difficult and arduous tests."

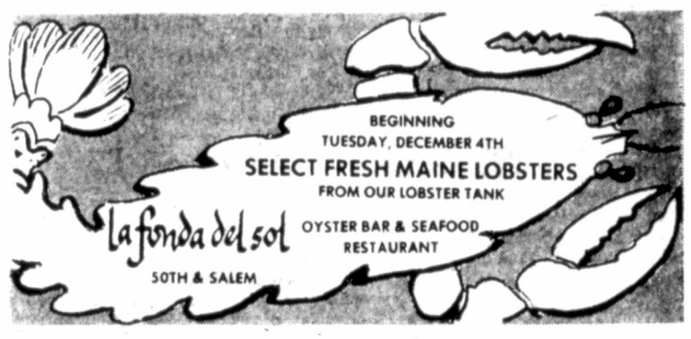

He said he trusted the Virgin Mary will guide both the Eastern Orthodox and Roman Catholic churches in their effort for unity.

Observation Of Advent To Begin Sunday

By CONNIE CHAPMAN
A-J Religion Writer

Sunday begins the season of Advent, marking the time leading up to Christmas.

The word "Advent" comes from two Latin words which, taken together, mean "coming to." These Latin words also are the root for the word "adventure."

Advent, then, is a time of preparing to "come to" Christmas and is similar in its relationship to Christmas in the way Lent is a season of preparation for Easter.

In churches which observe the season, Advent includes the four Sundays before Christmas. Christmas Day begins the season of Christmastide.

The color which is used in paraments, lectern hangings, and in some traditions, some part of clergy vestments, is purple for this period. Purple is also the color used during the Lenten season. The reason that color is used during both of those seasons is that these times are periods of penitence and preparation.

During the four Sundays of the Advent season, some churches emphasize particular themes. On the first Sunday the emphasis is on the Second Coming; on the second Sunday, on scripture as a witness to the Coming Lord; the third Sunday, the message of John-the Baptist and the whole theme of ministry; and the fourth Sunday, personal prepartion for the birth of the Christ Child.

In churches and in homes of families who observe the season, the most usual symbol is an Advent wreath. This consists of five candles, four purple ones and one white one (or sometimes 3 purple, one pink, and one white.). The purple represent the four Sundays leading up to Christmas and the white candle, which usually is taller than the others, is the Christ candle which is lit on Christmas Eve or Christmas Day. Each of the purple candles is lit on Sunday and a brief ceremony marks the emphasis of that particular day.

In churches which use the Advent wreath, candles are lit and the ceremony led by family groups or special classes from the congregation.

The Rev. Jo Carr of the staff of St. John's United Methodist Church and co-author with Donna Cash, also of that congregation, of an annual Advent devotions book, talked about how a family might use an Advent wreath in preparing for the holidays.

"Using an advent wreath in the home is one way to keep the commercialism of Christmas in focus for our children....It serves as a symbol in explaining our beliefs to our children and helps us all to articulate that faith....Having the brief family devotions offers yet another option to the extremes of just complaining about the commercialism and giving in to it...It can be a meaningful way to learn the true meaning of Christmas with the real carols."

Mrs. Carr said the observance of Advent among Protestants has gained new popularity in the last ten years, although it has its origin in the ancient liturgy of the church.

Clergy Criticize U.S. Steel Shutdowns

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The 16 plants that U.S. Steel Corp. said this week it will close could be made profitable if the giant company really wanted to do it, church leaders argued here Thursday.

"The heart of this story is disinvestment," said the Rev. Charles W. Rawlings. "They just want to get out of the steel business."

Rawlings, urban advisor to the Episcopal Bishop of Ohio, was in town for a joint news conference with Episcopal Bishop Robert Appleyard and Catholic Monsignor Charles Rice, both of Pittsburgh.

U.S. Steel said it was closing the plants, eliminating 13,000 jobs in eight states, because cheap foreign imports and government overregulation had made it impossible to run them at a profit.

"That's just a smokescreen," said Rawlings. "The real reason is the failure of the company to reinvest its own profits in the modernization of its own facilities."

Company chairman David Roderick denied that claim Wednesday, saying that "the cash flow generated in steel has gone back into steel."

All three clergymen said U.S. Steel might simply be trying to force a more favorable regulatory climate for steel production so the company could proceed with a proposed new steel mill at Conneaut, Ohio.

"This is a prelude to virtually shutting down the steel industry in Pittsburgh and moving it to Conneaut," Rice said. "We're afraid that if we seek help for the industry, U.S. Steel will use the help to move to Conneaut."

"They'll take the money and run," Rawlings agreed. "What we have here is a kind of economic Auschwitz for tens of thousands of steelworkers."

"This is just a first step," said Appleyard. "Unemployment of thousands will be another chapter unless there is action. The future of Pittsburgh as a city and this entire area is at stake."

Rice said U.S. Steel shouldn't be allowed to contend that its plants weren't profitable without a challenge. He said nobody had questioned Roderick's figures on foreign steel dumping and plant depreciation.

"We're not saying he was untruthful," Rice said, "but the matter is controversial and both sides should be heard."

The shutdowns should not be allowed without closer examination by everyone who is affected, Rice added.

"To leave these economic life and death decisions to one man, or one corporation in a tall building in downtown Pittsburgh is madness," he said. "It's too big."

Pontiff Celebrates Mass Outdoors

around a mountaintop shrine dedicated to the Virgin, the pope moved about freely, chatting with the those who came to see him.

"Me too, me too," shouted a 6-year-old American girl when the pontiff lifted a baby and kissed him on the forehead.

For the 59-year-old pontiff, restrained for two days by walls of security agents, it was a more familiar occasion.

Ephesus, an ancient Greek city on te Aegean oast, was the site of the Second Ecumenical Council, which proclaimed in 431 that Mary was the mother of God. The Apostle Paul preached here.

Since he became pope last year, John Paul II has made a point of paying homage to major shrines to Mary. Here, he visited the house of Mary, the shrine marking the site where she was supposed to have lived.

The rebuilt house, a small grey stone building set among thick trees, stands on a hill overlooking the ruins of the ancient city, the blue waters of the Aegean Sea and the hill of St. John. There stand the basilica dedicated to the disciple and the first Christian church built in honor of the Virgin.

Church To Mark Week Of Prayer

The Elgin Avenue Baptist Church, 66th Street and Elgin Avenue, will mark the beginning of Week of Prayer for Foreign Missions Sunday.

During a 6:30 p.m. service, a presentation of flags of many of the 95 countries in which Southern Baptists have missionaries will be featured.

Government Study Lauds Preschool Programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Head Start and other preschool programs for low-income children help keep them from flunking or needing special education classes in grammar school, a government-funded study has found.

The children score higher on IQ tests at age 6, have more self-esteem and usually are better in math in fourth grade than peers who did not attend preschool classes.

The IQ gains gradually disappear and are not found in the youngsters after age 13. But the study funded by HEW's Administration for Children, Youth and Families concludes that the $700 million-a-year cost of Head Start is well worth the gains these low-income children make in school.

The findings were based on follow-up studies of 820 children in 1976-77 who had taken part in Head Start or similar programs in the early or mid-1960s. A research team headed by two Cornell University professors, Irving Lazar and Richard Darlington, analyzed the results and issued the report entitled "Lasting Effects After Preschool."

They contend that a controversial 1969 study that concluded Head Start had only a few weak and fleeting effects on low-income students now has been refuted. They said that the earlier study had led lawmakers to cut or hold the line on funding for Head Start.

"We would ask the public and the policy-makers to notice the strength of these findings and to reconsider their commitment to the nation's children, especially low-income children, by continuing to invest in preschool education. It is an investment in their future and in ours."

The youths studied were exposed to the preschool programs between infancy and age 5. Some 92 percent were black, most were poor and 40 percent had no father in the home.

The study found that the youngsters showed more self-esteem than counterparts in a control group, and their mothers had higher job ambitions for them.

They attended special education classes at only half the rate of their counterparts, and that in fourth grade they were a half-year ahead of the control group in math. On average, their score on the Stanford-Binet IQ test rose from 90 before the program to 95 by age 6.

An HEW researcher, Bernard Brown, said that the earlier critical study placed too much weight on the disappearance of an edge in IQ scores. The Head Start children still do better in school, even if their edge in IQ disappears, he said.

Talks To Resume In Teachers Strike

CLEVELAND (AP) — Following a protest rally and demonstration by dozens of parents and students, negotiators agreed Friday to resume talks toward ending Cleveland's 44-day-old teachers strike.

Federal mediator Harold S. Gold said representatives for the striking teachers and the city's debt-ridden school board agreed to resume bargaining Saturday and to "continue as long as it is in any way productive toward reaching a settlement." Negotiations were last held on Monday.

The 5,000-member Cleveland Teachers Union struck the 92,000-pupil school district on Oct. 18, curtailing classes and a desegregation program. All 146 public schools were closed Nov. 6.

Special Services Set To Recognize Pastor

Peace Tabernacle will honor the pastor, the Rev. Dick McCreight, on the occasion of his seventh anniversary of coming to serve the congregation.

Special services are scheduled for Sunday at 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. The pastor and his family also will be honored at a banquet today in the dining room of John Knox Village.

McCreight has been in the ministry since 1964. He is affiliated with the United Pentecostal Church International and serves on the International Sunday School Baord of that church. He is the chairman of the Public Responsibility Committee of the Lubbock State School and a member of the Volunteer Council of that school.

Peace Tabernacle began in a tent in September 1937 with seven members. It now has more than 500 in its membership. The church is located at 2102 5th St.

Peace Tabernacle is the sponor of New Life Academy, a school now in its second year. McCreight is principal of the 81-student school, which emphasisizes a strong academic program centered around fundamental Christian principles.

Under the leadership of the pastor, youth ministry has grown considerably at Peace Tabernacle. The Youth Action Singers choir has traveled through 13 states to give concerts.

Puffy has a problem. She's much better at climbing trees than she is at getting down again. Usually someone has to get a ladder and bring poor Puffy back to earth.

People share Puffy's problem. Their fears are forever driving them to do what they can't undo. They run away from reality only to wish they hadn't. We have even coined the idiom "up a tree" to denote the dilemma of a situation from which we cannot free ourselves.

With people, it takes more than a ladder to solve the problem.

Through the centuries men have found Faith an answer to fear. Our churches cultivate courageous Christians. For with confidence in God comes confidence in ourselves.

The man who knows he's never alone doesn't run away.

Spectacle Lifeblood Of 'Master Of Fantasy'

By DOLORES BARCLAY

NEW YORK (AP) — It's hard to sit still in the world of Warner LeRoy.

How do you keep your eyes focused on the art deco statues of Isadora Duncan dancing across his library mantel when Tiffany lamps beg for comment on the other side of the room?

LeRoy lives in a constantly moving mosaic of fantasy and fun. Spectacle is the lifeblood of this restaurateur, artist and businessman, who created New York's Maxwell's Plum and Tavern-on-the-Green restaurants and the Great Adventure amusement park in New Jersey.

"If it's not fun, I don't want to do it," he said, relaxing one night at his duplex apartment in the Dakota building on Central Park West. "Luckily, I've been able to do it all with fun."

He is about to do it again with a $100 million-plus hotel in Atlantic City and a $5 million addition to Maxwell's. His eyes danced with excitement as he showed the plans for a two-square-block hotel to be built on the site of the old Ritz Hotel on the Boardwalk.

"All the personnel will wear top hats," he said. Pointing to a sketch of a sweeping staircase that seems to pour into the opulent lobby, he asked, "Can't you just see Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire going down the stairs?"

LeRoy's design calls for 550 rooms with 1,500 restaurant seats, a 35,000-square-foot casino and a 1,200-seat theater.

"People will be there for the fantasy, so we're doing some wild things," he said. "We'll have sunken bathtubs, raised beds and hot tubs. One of the restaurants has a Venetian motif. There will be water going through it with gondolas and singers. One wall is a scene of the Grand Canal. Fireworks will be going off behind it all the time."

It's all very spectacular. Sort of like a Cecil B. DeMille supershow. But then, that's the life LeRoy was born into 45 years ago. He was about 4 when his father, Mervyn LeRoy, produced "The Wizard of Oz." Ever since, the son said, his dreams and creations have leaned toward Hollywood fantastic.

The exterior of his proposed hotel is no exception — it resembles the Emerald City of Daddy LeRoy's Oz.

"You know, it's strange, but everybody who's seen the design says that," LeRoy said. "I sure wasn't aware of it when I did it, but there must have been some subsconscious association."

LeRoy plans to add four floors to Maxwell's, one of Manhattan's East Side singles havens. The $5-million renovation will include shops and a disco. Maxwell's Plum will also branch out to San Francisco, Washington, Boston and Paris.

Amid all the construction and renovation for business, LeRoy is building a house in the country for his wife, Kay, and their four children. He said they are the people he'd rather spend time with more than "anyone else in the world."

To LeRoy, creativity is everything. "The business side is only there to make the creative side possible," he said.

"I never do anything for money. I've had offers that would make me an awful lot more money, but I don't want to do it."

But LeRoy most assuredly turns profits. Tavern-on-the-Green made $11 million last year for LeRoy and his business associates, Hardwicke Companies Inc., his financing firm.

LeRoy seems to have a special feel for the public pulse. He believes restaurants are more than just places to eat. There should be entertainment. A spectacle or two. So Tavern-on-the-Green has a big birthday cake ceiling and 16 Tiffany chandeliers. Maxwell's has an entire ceiling of Tiffany glass as well as priceless antiques and items of art deco.

There have also been fantasy failures for LeRoy. He cited his own dining room: "I went to Morocco and found some beautiful tiles. So I did this fantasy thing with tiles in the dining room. My family sat down to dinner one night and it was blinding. It was ugly."

The dining room is now entirely white.

"But I try things and as long as most of them work, you're OK," he said. "I've designed chairs that have fallen apart.

"I've been very lucky. I've just done the things I like. It might all end tomorrow. But I think it's important to go out on a limb and creatively put yourself on the line.

"I realize I was born lucky," he continued quietly. "When I had a setback, I never thought about it. I thought I was so lucky, it would be sacrilegious to think about it as a problem.

"When I was 14, I went to Paris and became influenced by existentialism. I believed what Albert Camus said — that we're just a grain of sand on the beach.

"You try to roll a rock and sometimes it falls down, and the great moment of humanity is going down to roll the rock up again."

THE MASTER OF FANTASY — "If it's not fun I don't want to do it" is the credo of Warner Leroy, the man who created New York's Maxwell's Plum and Tavern-on-the Green restaurants and New Jersey's Great Adventure amusement park. Leroy is having fun again planning a $100 million-plus hotel for Atlantic City where the spectacular will be the usual and a $5 million addition to Maxwell's Plum. (AP Laserphoto)

Search Frustrating For Coin Collector

But he hopes the collection will be returned over the weekend in exchange for a "huge reward."

Morely, a television and radio advertising executive, spent the day trying to track down the Checker Marathon cab he took Thursday just after buying a collection of late 18th century large U.S. coins at auction at the St. Moritz Hotel.

The executive and his brother, Bob, spent the day poring over thousands of cab registration papers at the city's Taxi and Limousine Commission, cross-referencing bits of information about the cab in hopes of turning up the right vehicle.

News Council Finds NBC At Fault

MIAMI (AP) — A Shell Oil Co. complaint about an NBC news broadcast on fuel-oil production was found warranted Friday by the National News Council.

But five council members said NBC had not been given ample opportunity to respond to the complaint. NBC said it would not comment on the council decision before reading it.

The Oct. 15 broadcast, "Fly Now, Freeze Later," said Shell had decided to emphasize production of jet fuel instead of heating oil.

The council upheld the complaint 6-0, with five abstentions. The tally was revised from 7-0 to correctly record the vote of council member Michael E. Pulitzer, associate editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. A move to reconsider failed 6-5.

The complaint, filed Oct. 22 by J.H. DeNike, Shell vice president for oil products, said the broadcast "left viewers with the distinct impression that we (Shell) suddenly made a business decision to emphasize production of jet fuel and thus leave New Englanders without heating oil this winter, and that we took this action without considering our customers or the public."

The council said it was clear that Shell decided in 1975 to withdraw from supplying home heating oil in the Northeast.

"It is difficult to understand how the reporter (Brian Ross) could have overlooked Shell's repeated and insistent references to the action as dating back four years," the decision said.

"The record is incontrovertible: there was nothing sudden about Shell's decision or subsequent actions."

The council said BC asked or more time to decide whether to provide more information. But the council said the network had sufficient notice of the complaint and could ask for reconsideration if it decided to provide more information.

Council members William A. Rusher, publisher of the National Journal, and William H. Brady Jr., chairman of the W.H. Brady Co., suggested the language of the council decision should be harsher. But the council decided the language could threaten Ross's career and voted for what members called a milder final wording.

Council member Franklin H. Williams, president of the Phelps-Stokes Fund, said the decision was the equivalent of convicting NBC without a trial, adding: "I think we have to be extremely careful that we don't do anything that could come back and haunt us."

S. William Scott, vice president of radio news operations for Westinghouse Broadcasting, agreed with Williams.

"I have become persuaded during the debate that NBC did not have an adequate time for response on these specifics. I am persuaded that NBC should be given an opportunity to respond."

The council deferred action on a complaint against NBC similar to Shell's filed by Exxon.

The 18-member council is an independent, non-profit voluntary organization that examines allegations of inaccuracy or unfairness in news reports or unethical conduct by news organizations. It has no enforcement power and its findings are not binding.

Carter Campaigners Abandon Attempt To Buy Half-Hour On TV

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's campaign committee has abandoned an attempt to purchase a half-hour of television time on all three commercial networks next week for his announcement that he will seek re-election. He'll settle instead for five minutes on CBS.

"In light of the president's decision to curtail his political activities because of the situation in Iran, we felt it would not be appropriate to run the originally intended half-hour program," said committee spokeswoman Linda Peek.

"Our five-minute message will coincide with more than 2,700 grassroots parties planned around the country to mark the president's announcement he will seek re-election," she added.

Miss Peek and David Fiske, a spokesman for CBS, both said Friday the five-minute program segment would be aired at 8:55 p.m. next Tuesday.

The cost of the air time was not immediately disclosed.

"We had told the committee all along we were willing to discuss the sale of a five-minute spot, but not a half-hour," Fiske said. "We've already sold five-minute segments to Govs. Ronald Reagan and John Connally."

Although the Carter committee cited the Iranian hostage situation as the reason for deciding a half-hour re-election show would be inappropriate, legal action had dimmed the committee's chances of purchasing a half hour.

The U.S. Court of Appeals issued a stay Thursday blocking a Federal Communications Commission order, directing the networks to sell a half-hour of prime time.

The appeals court did not immediately set a schedule for hearing the case, and thus the likelihood that it would be resolved before next week had been sharply diminished.

Miss Peek said Friday the committee had been negotiating with ABC and NBC to purchase a half hour of prime time in early January to air the special re-election program.

Officials with ABC and NBC would only confirm Friday that negotiations were in progress.

The president's committee had originally requested a half hour from the networks on either Dec. 4, 5, 6 or 7 to coincide with Carter's re-election announcement on Dec. 4. A half hour in January, as suggested by the networks, would not be suitable, the committee had argued.

The networks had countered that December was too early to begin selling such large blocks of political time. The FCC disagreed and found the networks had acted unreasonably, but CBS, ABC and NBC then succeeded in winning the temporary stay.

"We're still very concerned over the FCC order. We went to court against the commission, not the re-election committee," said Fiske. "The commission's decision has been stayed by the U.S. Court of Appeals and CBS will continue to seek reversal of the FCC ruling."

Miss Peek said arrangements had also been made for independent television stations in Washington, New York, Atlanta and Chicago to air next week's 5-minute program.

Federal Judge Orders Return Of Satirical Sculpture To Municipal Center

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal judge on Friday ordered a sculpture satirizing Chicago's former first family be returned to an exhibit in the city's municipal center.

Artist John Sefick's life-size, plaster and wire sculpture had been draped with a cloth and then ordered removed from the Daley Center by Rosa Farina, coordinator of programs and exhibits for the Chicago Council on Fine Arts. She found it uncomplimentary to former Mayor Michael Bilandic and his wife, Heather.

U.S. District Judge Marvin E. Aspen ordered the council to exhibit the sculpture, saying Mrs. Farina had no right to shut down the exhibit merely because she found it disagreeable.

Judge Aspen said, "A governmental entity ordinarily cannot select which issues are worth discussing or which view should be heard when public facilities are involved."

The action against the council was brought by the American Civil Liberties Union, which charged that the sculptor's consitutional rights had been violated.

"Maybe, we need another log on the fire, Heather. It is beginning to snow again ... My God, it must be eight feet out there by now."

It refers to last winter's blizzard that virtually closed down the city, a situation used by Mayor Jane Byrne in her successful campaign against Bilandic.

There were no objections to the first two exhibits, satirizing the court system and the Chicago Transit Authority. But hours after the Bilandics sculpture went on display, it was covered and then removed.

Mrs. Farina termed the sculpture "character assassination." Mrs. Bilandic founded the council and served as its first director before marrying the former mayor. Mrs. Farina formerly worked for her.

The judge ordered the council to exhibit the statue for five consecutive days any time within the next two months.

CBS Announces Minor Mid-Season Adjustments For Prime-Time Schedule

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS, winner of the networks' fall ratings "sweeps" for the first time since 1975, announced only minor mid-season adjustment of its prime-time schedule Friday.

ABC, in contrast, said earlier in the week that six new series would premiere after the first of the year. NBC so far has not announced lineup changes for the second half of the season.

CBS got off to a slow start in September, but in recent weeks has begun to chip away at ABC's lead in the ratings.

Network figures, based on data from the A.C. Nielsen Co. for Nov. 1-28, showed CBS with an average rating of 20.1 to 19.7 for ABC and 17.7 for NBC.

The networks traditionally have attempted to attract viewers during the "sweeps" with blockbuster programming. There were some first-run movies and well-publicized specials in November, but the competition was less active than in recent years.

CBS said a new half-hour situation comedy, "House Calls," starring Wayne Rogers and Lynn Redgrave, would join the schedule the evening of Monday, Dec. 17, at 8:30 p.m.

To make room for the new program, "WKRP in Cincinnati" will move from 8:30 to 7 p.m. Mondays, and "The Last Resort," which premiered in September but has been in limbo in recent weeks, will return to the schedule at 7:30 p.m. Mondays.

"The White Shadow," which currently airs 7-8 p.m. Mondays, will move to Tuesday nights at the same time beginning Dec. 18, replacing "California Fever," which will leave the air after Dec. 11.

Joining "The White Shadow" Tuesday nights will be "Hawaii Five-O," a CBS fixture for several seasons on Thursday evenings, and "Paris," a police series starring James Earl Jones that was introduced in September. Those two programs will change time slots Dec. 4.

Governor Orders Removal Of Portrait

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The gubernatorial portrait of Spiro Agnew, who later resigned as U.S. vice president, has been ordered removed from the State House reception room by Gov. Harry Hughes.

The governor, who was elected on an anti-corruption platform in 1978, didn't state a specific reason for the change.

Hung without public ceremony in 1973 several months after the former vice president pleaded no contest to federal income tax evasion and gave up his federal office.
