State Solons Up Payment To Children

AUSTIN (UPI) — House and Senate budget negotiators today agreed to grant families with needy children a $100 payment each year in lieu of increasing monthly welfare checks.

The conference committee appointed to work out a compromise between the House and Senate versions of a $20 billion spending plan to operate state government for the next two years agreed to add $17 million to the budget to increase the once-a-year grants from $60 to $100.

Representatives voted to abolish the annual payments and raise average monthly welfare grants for needy children from $32 to $38.60.

The Senate spending bill, which allocated $47 million more for Aid to Families with Dependent Children than the House bill, called for token increases in average monthly payments to $32.99 the first year and $33.10 the second.

Senators, however, voted to continue the $60 annual grants to welfare families with needy children to buy school clothes and help pay heating bills.

In the meeting of the 10-man conference committee today, the legislators voted to up the annual payment to $100 and accept the Senate plans for token increases in average monthly checks.

The House plan would have made an additional 19,000 persons eligible for welfare aid the first year of the biennium and 59,000 the following year.

In their third day of negotiations, the conference committee also agreed to take the first steps toward eliminating a low level of care for welfare recipients in nursing homes.

The conferees accepted Senate proposals to begin a gradual phase out of Intermedicate Care Facilities II payments beginning Sept. 1. Officials said the low level care — which one critic said "amounts to nothing more than room and board" — would be continued for persons now in the program but no new recipients would be authorized.

In other action by the Legislature, Gov. Bill Clements won a Senate vote to give him increased power over operations of a number of state agencies today but was not faring so well on his proposals for greater authority on state purse strings or power to put his own choices at heads of state boards.

Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, won 26-5 approval today for the bill to give the governor authority to transfer programs handled by divisions of his office to other independent state agencies. Opponents had blocked a vote to approve the bill Monday on a procedural point.

Sen. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth, indicated an informal poll of senators shows the governor's request for authority to designate the chairman of various state boards and panels may be in trouble.

The bill authorizing the governor to re-assign programs now goes to the House where another proposal Clements strongly supports — initiative and referendum — appears on the verge of approval by representatives.

House members debated the initiative and referendum issue at length Saturday, then adopted an amendment by Rep. Carlyle Smith, D-Grand Prairie, that would allow citizens to vote on any issue submitted to the Legislature by petition if lawmakers revised the citizen proposal.

Clements had backed the so-called indirect initiative and referenda plan debated by the House, saying it was not all he wanted, but "half a loaf is better than no loaf."

He said Monday Smith's amendment

Fuel Crunch Moving East

By The Associated Press

With some Californians resorting to bribery and even the horse and buggy to get about, the gasoline crunch continued to spread eastward today with industry officials warning motorists to "Play it close to home."

As May gas supplies dwindled, and dealers worried their allotments might not last to the end-of-the-month Memorial Day holiday, new reports showed the fuel shortage is creating more demand for smaller cars, rental cars and sailboats.

And a Saudi Arabian leader told Americans either to reduce consumption or face still higher prices.

That advice came as California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. prepared to sign an order forcing more stations to stay open on weekends and members of Congress prepared to take up President Carter's challenge that they come up with a standby national gas rationing plan.

New figures also were released showing that Californians burned more than 1 billion gallons of gas in March, more than in any single month in history. It was the 52nd consecutive month of record consumption.

Members of the California Service Station Association called a meeting tonight in San Francisco to plan strategy for a four-day shutdown, despite attempts in state courts to block the closures. The association, which is seeking a 25 percent gross profit guarantee, says that unless they close down for a few days stations will run out of gasoline before Memorial Day.

As gasoline shortages spread to the nation's heartland, Robert Lawrie, executive director of the Midwest Automotive and Gasoline Dealers Association warned motorists: "Play it close to home. Don't go any farther than one tank of gas will take you and bring you back. Otherwise, you can very easily get stranded."

Things are so bad in California, a random survey by the Los Angeles Times on Monday showed that two out of three station owners and managers had been offered bribes ranging from a bottle of whiskey to $500.

"You listen and you turn 'em down," said John Vranjes, owner of a station near downtown Los Angeles. "I got to face these people again sometime. And if I take now, it's not going to look good for my image.

Marshall Gruskin, regional manager of Dial-a-Messenger in Beverly Hills, Calif., rented a horse and buggy Monday to dramatize his frustration with the shortage. He found it beat a truck.

"The horse and buggy beat the truck's time by an hour and a half," he said. "It moved fine through traffic, and of course it didn't have to wait in a gas line this morning."

In Montgomery, Ala., Frank Harris put a 10-gallon limit on his customers. Among those that he turned down Monday was his wife.

"I've been optimistic until the last 10 days," said Bancroft Timmons, president of the Alabama Motorist Association. "Now I think we need to be a little more cautious."

In Washington, Saudi Oil Minister Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani said his country will oppose another price increase next month at a meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries but warned "Saudi Arabia alone cannot do much."

Moreover, he said Saudi Arabia, this nation's principal source of foreign oil, will not expand its current levels of production.

"Since supply cannot and should not

Self-Made Fernandez Eyes GOP Nomination

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Ben Fernandez says his life story is akin to a "Horatio Alger story with a Spanish accent."

You see, the son of Mexican immigrant parents who was born in a Kansas City boxcar is running for president of the United States.

The 54-year-old economist doesn't discourage the comparison of his boxcar birthplace to Abe Lincoln's log cabin.

"Unheard of things" have been happening in the world, he says, indicating there is "change in the wind."

We have a Polish Pope, a female prime minister of Britain and a Republican governor of Texas, don't we?

Next, he says, is a Mexican-American Republican president.

Fernandez, at a news conference here this morning, says he thinks his story can be an inspiration to Americans who are "going through a national nervous breakdown."

The Los Angeles, Calif., resident spent his childhood in the produce fields, worked his way through college with "respectable jobs" like dishwashing, and started his own economic consulting company.

Although he says it's "ostentatious" to say he's a millionaire, he acknowledges his net worth now is $1.2-1.3 million.

Fernandez has never run for elective office before, but neither had six former presidents, he notes.

He is convinced that the Republican candidate who "works the hardest and has his finger on the pulse of the country" will be the man facing Jimmy Carter in the 1980 election.

To cope with inflation, which Fernandez calls the "most insidious problem" facing the country, the economist has a four-part plan:

—Cut back on government waste.

—Begin deregulation of industry after industry, beginning with the oil and coal industries.

—And, develop a tough, viable energy program.

Fernandez says he would refuse to deregulate the oil industry until the oil companies agreed to divest themselves of ownership of coal companies.

"I want to force competition between the oil and gas companies," he said, which likely will lead to a "drop in the price" of both fuels.

He also wants a plan from the oil companies on how to build up the oil inventory in the northeastern portion of the U.S., which Fernandez said is going to "get it in the neck" this winter.

His energy program would involve energy consumers, he said, because we waste about 30 percent of the energy which is produced.

That might even mean lowering the

Gold Hits New High

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold hit an all-time high of $255.50 an ounce in London today as the dollar firmed in Europe after dropping in Tokyo.

The new record was recorded by London's five major bullion market dealers, surpassing the record of $254 an ounce, the "fixing" price set for the morning trading session of Feb. 8. Gold closed Monday in London at $251.75.

In Zurich, the metal was quoted at $253.625, also near the record high. It closed in Zurich Monday at $251.125.

In Tokyo, the U.S. currency closed at 212.675 Japanese yen, down from 213.85 Monday. Dealers said the slide was due partly to a remark by G. William Miller chairman of the U.S. Federal Reserve Board, that the yen was valued too low.

Water Bill Advances In House

A-J News Services

AUSTIN — Arkansas water could travel through canals across Oklahoma to the Texas High Plains under authority of a new taxing body tentatively approved Monday by the House.

Representatives approved the Ogallala Water Import Authority on voice vote. A final vote is needed to send the 45-page measure to the Senate.

Land covering the Ogallala aquifer would be included in the authority's jurisdiction, except Crosby, Dickens and Garza counties. The underground reservoir stretches under more than 40 counties, from Midland north to the Panhandle border with Oklahoma.

Supporters say the water authority is needed because the vast agriculture lands of the High Plains will face a critical water shortgage within the next 10 to 20 years.

Arkansas has more than enough water to meet needs in the Panhandle, proponents add. The bill does not specify where the water would come from.

If approved by High Plains voters, the district would have authority to tax property and sell bonds.

Wayne Wyatt, general manager of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District in Lubbock, says he's optimistic the bill will pass and that it should enhance the district's opportunity to import water.

"The only thing that worries me is that time is getting short (for Senate passage)," he said. The session is slated to end later this month.

"The passage of this measure is a necessary step toward importation of water to the High Plains," said Duncan Ellison, executive director of Water Inc., a non-profit corporation which has been deeply involved in the issue.

"Legislators from this area have done a good job in getting all the objections from representatives in other parts of the state straightened out. I expect it to pass."

Opponents have claimed large-scale water importation would be a financial disaster because the district could not raise enough money through taxes to support it.

House members voted to limit the body's power to expropriate private land to areas within its district, instead of the entire state.

Rep. Pete Patterson, D-Brookston, said people in his Northeast Texas district should not be subject to broad pow-

TOO MUCH JUNK FOOD

Heart Attack Risks Found In Children

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Many children are potential heart attack victims because they eat too much junk food and watch too much television rather than exercise, says a University of Michigan professor.

Thomas B. Gilliam of the department of physical education said Monday his study of Michigan school children since 1975 has turned up potential coronary troubles associated chiefly with sedentary and overweight adults.

Of the 400 children tested, he said nearly half showed at least one risk factor for heart disease, including abnormally high cholesterol levels, high blood pressure, excess weight or a family history of coronary disease.

Gilliam said those conditions do not necessarily mean there will be a heart attack in the near future, but the children already are forming habits that could lead to attacks eventually.

"Children are transported to and from school, extracurricular and even sports activities. They sit for long hours watching television and consume lots of high-calorie junk food," he said.

"As a result, children are showing increasing evidence of high cholesterol, high blood pressure, obesity and other conditions which have been shown to be associated with heart disease in adults."

Gilliam said even those children considered fairly active rarely experience the kind of intense physical activity needed to raise the heart rate above 180 beats per minute and foster the development of a strong, healthy heart.

Under a grant from the National Institutes of Health, Gilliam is leading a three-year study to see if vigorous exercise can significantly reduce blood fats and blood pressure in children as it has in many adults.

"The early evidence suggests that it can," he said.

Gilliam cited a recent pilot study with 62 third-and fourth-graders in which half participated in their normal physical education classes twice a week while the other half were exposed to 12 weeks of intense, rigorous activity four days a week.

"Tests at the beginning and end of the program indicate that children in the experimental group whose blood analysis showed high blood lipids (fats) were able to significantly reduce these within the 12-week program," he found.

Wounded Son Allowed To Die

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Domingo Martinez, along with his family, had a decision to make — whether to let his son live or die.

The decision was to let him die, since living for Robert Martinez, 19, of 2618 Duke St. would have meant merely existing on life-supporting equipment at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

The younger Martinez virtually was dead when he arrived at the HSCH's emergency room shortly after 2 a.m. Friday.

He had lost at the game of Russian roulette — in which a player spins the cylinder of a partially loaded pistol, then places the weapon to his head and pulls the trigger.

If the chamber does not have a bullet in it, the player wins. If the gun discharges, the player loses.

The victim's life-supporting equipment was unplugged at about 6 p.m. Monday. Martinez died minutes later.

"The doctor told me there was no hope," Domingo said this morning at the funeral home. The father said the decision to bless his son with death was unanimous among the family.

"All I know is that it was something where we couldn't let him go on the way he was," the elder Martinez said, his voice breaking at times while talking to a reporter on the phone.

"We don't know if it was right or wrong; it was just a decision we had to make," the father said. "I couldn't see my daughter-in-law going out there and seeing him like that."

Police officer John Blythe, who made the initial report of the shooting Friday, stated that, "according to medical authorities, a decision will be made at a later date whether to remove the (life-supporting) devices."

However, the victim's father said the decision was made solely by the family, and not by hospital personnel.

Reports indicate a .38-caliber bullet entered Martinez' right temple and exited the opposite side. Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy said this morning he had not made a ruling in the death.

Two men, ages 19 and 20, told police

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A purely social contact could be jeopardized if you put him on the spot for a favor. It's better to wait until you know him better.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If at all possible, steer clear of speculative ventures. You tend to be a shade reckless where gambles are concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Important decisions affecting you and your mate should be made jointly. You will be asking for problems if you do otherwise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do not leave to underlings matters concerning your income or resources. They may not understand what's expected, and gum up the works.

Calabash Offers Lots Of Seafood

CALABASH, N.C. (AP) — It's less than a mile between city limit signs here, there's but one stoplight in town, one cinderblock motel and, maybe, 200 residents.

But sandwiched between the two signs are 20 seafood restaurants. This coastal village just may be the per capita seafood restaurant capital of the world.

"In the summer, people are coming in and out so fast it's just like the door is opening and closing itself," said Charlie Chandler, 67, who runs one of the restaurants.

"Just today at lunch, I had people from Ohio, Tennessee and Kentucky, and I didn't even ask everybody," Chandler declared on a recent afternoon.

The customers who line up outside the restaurants in Calabash during the peak summer season are, primarily, tourists visiting the beaches along the Carolina coast. With a miniature golf course, a gift shop or two, and no nightclubs, Calabash doesn't draw tourists for any other reason.

They flock like seagulls to eat. Indeed, inland imitators seek some of the action by advertising "Calabash-style" seafood.

On the map, Calabash is a tiny spot just a step or two inside the North Carolina line, convenient to a string of North Carolina beaches and South Carolina's 50 miles of Grand Strand.

The restaurants are famous for fried cocktail-size shrimp, flounder, oysters, and crab cakes, served in belt-popping abundance.

"Yu eat that stuff in other places that claim to be Calabash, you're eatin' breaded seafood — right?" said Chandler, referring to inland restaurants.

"Here, we just flour it and cook it. We don't bread nothin'. The seafood comes in from all over the place, but we don't serve nothin' but fresh because it gets cooked and eat before it has a chance to get old."

The seafood saga runs deep in Calabash. Mayor Ivey High runs one of the restaurants, as do three of five members of the city council. And High has two sisters who have their hands in restaurants.

"They both claim to be running the original Calabash restaurant," said High, a 65-year-old native of the town. "But don't put that in the paper. It'll start a squabble."

High traces the seafood legacy to the 1920s, when shrimpers and other fishermen sold their catches in Calabash. The restaurant business got started, High said, when popular outdoor oyster roasts for tourists had to be moved inside because of health regulations.

Vester Beck, High's brother-in-law, claims to have opened the first authentic Calabash-style restaurant in 1940.

"I started, then another one started, then another," said Beck, who's 62. "I guess everybody thought they'd get rich."

By all appearances, there is very little advertising, and even less competition, presumably because there are more than enough customers.

"If one place runs out of something, you don't hesitate to borrow from somebody else," said Lennon Nance, 46, another restaurant owner.

The typical Calabash restaurant is plain, with vinyl-covered booths, silverware wrapped in waxed paper and tartar sauce in squeeze containers. But customers don't come to Calabash for opulence, they come for seafood.

"I love to cook the best," said Chandler. "I love walking through the dining room and hearing people tell me it's the best they ever ate."

Rifle Association Joins Fight Against Land Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hunting for sport has emerged as a major issue in debate on Alaska land-preservation legislation, with the National Rifle Association and other pro-hunting groups joining oil producers and other businessmen fighting an administration-backed bill.

The NRA and other groups such as the National Outdoor Coalition and Safari Club International have lined up against the bill managed by Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., and backed by national conservation organizations and the Carter administration.

The pro-hunting groups have joined oil, mining and timber companies and Alaska Gov. Jay Hammond in supporting Alaska lands legislation managed by Rep. John Breaux, D-La., and John Dingell, D-Mich.

Each of the rival bills — now being debated in the House — would add more than 100 million acres of federal land in Alaska to the national park and wildlife refuge systems. Alaska's area is about 375 million acres, double the size of Texas.

The Breaux-Dingell version is favored by the hunting groups because it would put more land than Udall's bill under the wildlife refuge system, making it eligible to be opened for hunting at the discretion of refuge supervisors.

Breaux-Dingell would put 20 million acres off limits to sports hunting in the state, while Udall would close 30 million.

Dan Smith of the National Rifle Association said "tens of thousands" of letters have been sent to Congress in support of the Breaux-Dingell bill.

"We have notified our members to let their congressman know there are sportsman-conservationists out there," Smith said in an interview.

Earlier, Alaska Sen. Ted Stevens attacked the Udall-administration bill as posing "a serious gun-control threat to Americans."

Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus said in a statement recently that Stevens was "guilty of inflammatory and erroneous rhetoric designed to mislead the public."

"I am torn between describing his statements as either a desperate last-minute smear campaign or simply a misinterpretation," Andrus added.

Compact Auto Sales Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new mini-sized cars are rapidly staking out a major share of the automobile market as gasoline lines and high fuel prices spur motorists to think small, according a Department of Transportation report.

Sales of domestically produced subcompacts increased by 72.5 percent from January through April over the same period of 1978, the figures released Monday showed.

"Chevette sales are nearly double their sales of a year ago when it was already the best-selling subcompact in history," the report said. "Omni and Horizon sales have also approximately doubled over the last year."

Domestic subcompacts were third in overall sales with 17.6 percent of the market, compared to 10.2 for the first four months of 1978. Imported cars ranked second with 20.9 percent, compared to 18.6 percent from January to April of 1978.

Composite small car sales so far this year — including imports and domestic subcompacts — accounted for 38.5 percent of the market. That represents a 39 percent gain over the first four months of 1978.

Intermediates still lead the field with 21.6 percent of the new car market for the first four months of 1979, but they are down from 26 percent for the same period of last year.

Compacts, apparently being displaced by the even more economical subcompacts, dropped 19 percent, to a 16.6 percent share of the 1979 market. Full-size cars were down 7 percent to 17.3 percent of the market. They were tied with imports a year ago, but now have slipped behind.

Vehicles in the "other" category, including vans, light trucks and recreational vehicles, accounted for 6 percent of the market in the first four months of 1979.

The report said the trend to smaller cars began last fall with the interruption of oil supplies from Iran and the subsequent sharp rise in gasoline prices.

"All manufacturers are experiencing record shortages of small cars," the report said. "Delivery time for Volkswagen Rabbit Diesel is running up to one year and some dealers are refusing to take further orders for them.

"Prices being paid for some fuel-efficient vehicles are running as much as several hundred dollars above list at some dealers," the report said.

The study also said the same trend is reflected in the used car markets with smaller cars depreciating at a slower rate than larger ones.

'Generally, 1975 model compacts and subcompacts have depreciated about 25 percent while full size 1979 models have depreciated about 50 percent in value," the study said.

In another automotive development Monday, Transportation Secretary Brock Adams accepted delivery of two experimental safety cars which he said are both compact and economical to operate.

Only one arrived in time for an unveiling ceremony at department headquarters. A truck bringing the other one to Washington ran out of gas.

Adams said the experimental cars, built by Calspan of Buffalo, N.Y., and Minicars of Goleta, Calif., can withstand crashes at speeds up to 40 or 50 miles per hour and still protect its occupants.

The Calspan car seats five, weighs only 2,675 pounds and is rated at 28 miles per gallon. The Minicars version seats four, weighs 2,500 pounds and is supposed to get 32 miles per gallon.

In another ceremony at the Deartment of Energy, four new, advanced electric cars were delivered. Department officials say the new vehicles have a range of 40 to 60 miles in stop-and-go driving compared to 30 miles for current models.

MASS SLAYER SAID NO THREAT

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Doctors say Howard B. Unruh, confined for the past 30 years after 13 persons were killed during a shooting rampage in Camden, is no longer a threat to society and should be transferred to a minimum security psychiatric hospital. Unruh, 58, has never been found competent to stand trial in the slayings. He has been confined to the maximum security wing of Trenton State Hospital since Sept. 7, 1949 — the day after the the shootings.

Car Rental Business Booming

By The Associated Press

For the business executive on the road, the vacation driver and the Californian frazzled by gas rationing, the answer to the latest fuel crunch comes in one phrase: rent a car.

Business is looking good for the nation's major car-rental firms, despite long lines at service stations, problems buying gasoline on weekends and steadily rising fuel prices.

Some drivers in gas-pinched California are taking advantage of the fact the state's "odd-even" rationing scheme — based on license plate numbers — doesn't apply to short-term rentals, said Andrea Benjamin, spokeswoman for Budget Rent-A-Car in Chicago.

"There are others who rent a car with a full tank of gas, drive it until it runs low, then turn in the car for another with a full tank of gas," she said.

But more important, say spokesmen for the Big Four in auto rental — Hertz, Avis, National and Budget — is a trend to save on gasoline by flying to destinations, then renting a car for business or vacation purposes.

That appears to be happening already between such short hops as San Diego and Los Angeles, where businessmen previously had driven but now are flying and renting autos to avoid a fillup line on the 250-mile round-trip.

The car-rental spokesmen say the practice may soon spread to such East Coast hops as between Washington and Philadelphia.

The outlook for vacation travel is less certain. At Avis, spokesman Bill Schechter said reservations for June, the first prime vacation month, are coming in normally.

But at Hertz, the nation's No. 1 auto rental firm, reservations for California and Florida vacation spots are "up quite strongly," said spokesman Thomas Elliott. He said Hertz' business overall is up 15-20 percent over this time last year.

Things are not so good, however, at some of the smaller rental agencies, which lack the national reservations network and don't do much airport business.

At Rocket-Rent-A-Car in Los Angeles, Darryl Gordon said his weekend business dropped from the normal 60 rentals to 25 because "the fear of gas shortages has made people afraid to go any place."

He says at least 10 of the 25 rentals last weekend came from people who already owned cars but didn't have gas, or who wanted to conserve their own fuel.

"I had a man with a brand new Lincoln Versaille come in here who rented a Pinto without air conditioning because he had no gas. And it was a hundred degrees here yesterday," he said Monday.

The Big Four have had their own gasoline problems because of allocation programs that have cut back supplies. But so far, they report, there has been no affect on rentals.

National, Budget and Avis report that in some areas of Southern California they have given customers less than the usual full tank of gas to start.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Policy Doesn't Balance

WHILE IT may be easy and, at least partially correct, to blame the OPEC oil cartel for the tremendous growth of America's balance-of-trade deficit since 1975, Heritage Foundation economist Susan Woodward believes a more realistic appraisal indicates U.S. export policy is a major culprit.

Noting an alarming shift from a $9 billion surplus in 1975 to a $31 billion net export deficit in 1977—and an estimated $28 billion deficit in 1978—Miss Woodward says:

"The initial response to the question of why the U.S. is running a trade deficit of such staggering proportions invariably stresses the expense of oil imports."

THOSE IMPORTS rose from $7.6 billion in 1974 to $41.5 billion in 1977. Yet that only supplies part of the answer, she maintains.

Other factors, she writes, are: 1. The recent failure of U.S. exports to expand; 2. The U.S. tax structure; 3. Environmental restrictions on U.S. trade abroad; and 4. U.S. antitrust laws.

"It is clear," she writes, "that there are too many separate pieces of legislation and too many governmental agencies, commissions, and the like with diverse regulatory powers affecting U.S. exports. This highly fragmented situation results in an uncoordinated array of requirements which collectively creates a major barrier to export trade."

A survey conducted by the Industry and Trade Commission of the Department of Commerce substantiated this by soliciting opinions from a random sample of nationwide industries, concerning the impediments they encounter in exporting.

A TOTAL OF 1,596 impediments were mentioned, and of those, 40 percent were listed as induced by the U.S. government. Included in this list were:

Delays due to bureaucratic procedures, boycott of U.S. goods, lack of U.S. government financing and incentives, the U.S. tax structure and specific export procedures.

Concludes Miss Woodward: "The most obvious point which must be accepted is that the U.S. merchandise trade balance is continuing to deteriorate with no evidence that conditions will change for the better under current U.S. regulations and policies."

President Carter's policy statement offers hope for improvement, but even if implemented, his actions merely represent a stopgap with limited temporary benefits.

A PERSONAL NOTE to NBC President Fred Silverman:

In your attempts to get your network out of the doldrums, there is one thing you might do in addition to raising the quality of your shows to the heights of mediocrity.

That would be to eschew the foolish determination of all three networks to challenge each other's best shows with their own best efforts.

There'll be 19 hours of inane programming on all three networks, then all three will have one good program apiece—scheduled in the same time slot.

If you'll look at the CBS and ABC schedules, you'll have no trouble at all in finding time slots in which even a mildly entertaining show would be without worrisome competition.

Slip your best shots into those time periods and I'll guarantee you that your ratings will go up. There are millions of folks who might watch TV more often if the best shows weren't always opposite one another.

JACK SCHNEIDER passed along an unusual editorial from the annual report of Eagle-Picher Industries, Inc.

It was entitled "Inflation—the number one problem" and it correctly noted that higher prices are the result of inflation, not the cause of it as President Jimmy would have us believe.

Inflation is caused by federal monetary and fiscal policies and excessive government regulations, it explained.

"Six persons are now working in the private sector of our economy to support four persons who are either employed by the government or who are sustained by it," the Eagle-Picher editorial said.

"True economic wealth results from the production of useful goods and services," it added, not from welfare programs that simply transfer taxes from the gainfully employed into the pockets of those who are dependent on government programs.

It concludes: "What can we as individuals do about the problem of inflation?...We could marshal our forces in elections to vote for candidates who represent our point of view."

A-10 For Sale To Communists?

WASHINGTON—President Carter is under intense pressure to expand his policy of accommodating the Chinese Communists to include the sale of U.S. military equipment, including some of the nation's most modern warplanes.

The controversial policy change has been quietly raised by the Peking government and several U.S. companies with State and Defense Department officials who are now preparing the recommendations for the White House.

The Chinese Communists have indicated that they would like to modernize their air force by purchasing a large number of U.S. fighter-bombers to protect their 5,000 mile border with the Soviet Union.

Fairchild industries was approached recently by Chinese officials expressing an interest in purchasing a number of the company's A-10 close air support aircraft. This missile-bomb carrying jet is considered one of the swiftest of its type in the world.

WHAT IS interesting about the secret Chinese approach is that both the State and Defense Departments were informed of the inquiry and there has been no effort by either to discourage further talks.

In addition to seeking the A-10 jets, Peking has a long shopping list of other military equipment that they would like to purchase either in the U.S. or Western Europe.

Energy Sec. James Schlesinger, a former Sec. of Defense and director of the CIA, brought this unpublished list to the White House after it was presented to him during his tour of the Chinese mainland in 1978.

The administration's informal reply passed back to Peking was that the question of U.S. arms sales couldn't be raised with Congress until new relationships were worked out between the U.S. and Taiwan and the mainland.

THIS ROADBLOCK has now been lifted with the passage by Congress this year of legislation implementing U.S. relations with Taiwan and the opening of full diplomatic relations with Peking.

There also has been an unannounced policy that the question of arms sales to China must be kept on the shelf until after a new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT) is signed with the Russians and approved by the Senate.

With no prospect of Senate action on SALT until at least this winter, pro-Peking supporters both in and outside the Carter administration have decided to press for a decision now.

Their concern is that if the President doesn't act now that the issue of arms sales could become a major issue in the 1980 Presidential campaign, thus lessening its chances for approval.

The strategy is to make the A-10 aircraft sale a test so, if there is a change in Presidents in 1981, the principle of arms sales to China will have been set, thus making it hard for any new administration to change it.

Whether Congress will go along with the lifting of the long standing U.S. arms embargo against Communist China at this time is debatable.

There is also a higher policy question at stake in the proposed sale of A-10 aircraft to Peking.

This involves whether it is in the national interest of the U.S. and our allies to furnish arms to a Communist superpower whose foreign policy objective includes supporting world revolution and the establishment of Marxist governments throughout the world.

Be Alert For Pitfalls If You Have To Rent

NOT SINCE the early post-World War II days—when housing was so scarce that it was commonplace for two or even three families to live under one roof—has buying a house been so tough.

Costly mortgage money combined with soaring prices have literally pushed a purchase beyond the capacity of huge numbers of would-be owners.

Simultaneously, a developing scarcity of rentals has made finding this type of shelter more and more difficult. And any person now a tenant is well aware of how rents are creeping ever upward, whether or not the building is under "rent control."

Let's say, though, you have decided to rent, for any of several valid reasons. This Q. and A. will provide the guides for you.

Q: WHAT IS THE proper proportion of your income for rent?

A: An old rule of thumb is that your total monthly shelter costs should not exceed one week's pay. That rule can be bent and should be, depending on the level of your income, extent of your obligations, other safeguards. But it's a basic beginning.

Q: What type of shelter is best?

A: An apartment offers the most service and requires the least responsibility. The heating, yardwork and repairs are taken care of by building management.

An attached house, townhouse or duplex generally will give you a small yard, the care of which will be your responsibility. Your utilities also could be your responsibilities.

A detached house will provide you with more living space, a larger yard, frequently a carport, garage or parking space, and generally more privacy. In addition to your rent, you are responsible for the usual expenses of running a home, including utilities, trash collection and lawn maintenance.

Q: WHAT ARE THE best ways to find rental housing?

A: Start with your friends and acquaintances. Ask if they know of places coming up for rent. This could be a great source.

Check newspaper classified ads and brokers in the area. So-called "apartment finders" may be of help, but be wary of being charged merely for lists taken from daily papers also available to you.

Ask apartment managers or superintendents of buildings in which you are interested if apartments are coming on the market.

Q: What should you ask the landlord if you find a place?

A: When you put down the application fee, ask if this commits you to take the dwelling if you are accepted. If you reject the unit, will any charges be deducted from your application payment?

What happens to the fee if the prospective landlord fails to provide you with a satisfactory dwelling? How long will it take after the application for the landlord to advise you of an acceptance?

WHEN YOU TOUR the dwelling, make a list of all damages and needed repairs. Ask the landlord if he will repair them before you sign a rental agreement. Have the landlord make a list of damages. Keep a copy of that list.

If the landlord refuses to repair the damages, ask him to sign an acknowledgement that you have pointed them out to him.

If you still plan to rent despite the damages: keep a copy of the report for your records to protect you against claims when you move out.

Be sure you understand all the terms in the rental agreement before you sign. Ask questions about the "legalese." Don't rely on any oral promises. Get everything in writing.

If the landlord has set up rules and regulations to preserve his property or to safeguard tenants, learn what they are before you enter into a rental agreement.

BE CLEAR ON all deposits required: a cleaning deposit which allows the landlord to clean or paint after you move; a damage deposit which must be returned when you leave the premises unless you caused excess physical damage; and a security deposit, sometimes used interchangeably with a damage deposit.

Read your lease with care to find out if there are any reservations or conditions affecting refund of these deposits.

When you rent and sign a lease, you are making an association of some duration. You must, for your own protection, learn as much as you can about your rights and: in turn, your responsibilities. The key to your rental search lies in one word:

Ask!

John D. Lofton:

TV Programming Isn't All Bad

WASHINGTON—In the endless slugfest between television and its critics, Gene Jankowski, president of the CBS Broadcast Group, has delivered some telling blows against the nay-sayers.

The first point Jankowski made in his recent talk to the International Radio and Television Society in New York City was that the so-called "golden age" of TV in the 1950s and early '60s wasn't really all that golden.

He quotes New York Times TV writer Jack Gould as having written in 1952: "Let's face it: television is getting pretty bad. The high hopes for video which were held by so many are vanishing before our eyes."

In December 1958, an article in Fortune magazine, titled "TV: The Light That Failed," observed: "Another season of second-rate programming has started TV on a self-destructive cycle: program mediocrity reduces audience, reduced audience weakens the medium's economics, weakened economics seems to bring on more mediocrity."

IN 1961, GOULD of the Times wrote that theatrical creativity had all but disappeared from TV in favor of "perfunctory and predictable adventure shows that are ground out by the yard."

Another thing that irks Jankowski is how the critics apply a double standard to TV—how good words take on a negative meaning when they go from the print media to broadcasting.

For example, "circulation" is a good word for newspapers, showing how many readers there are and how big the profits are for a publisher. But "ratings" is a bad word for TV, even though it indicates the same thing.

"Advertisement" is a good newspaper word. Ads provide consumers with information, increase client sales, keep prices down, support a free press, and mean profits for the publisher. But "commercial" is a bad word for TV, even though commercials perform these identical functions.

Jankowski also believes that the failure rate of TV shows, while admittedly high, is unfairly criticized. He notes that the failure rate of other creative art forms is rarely noted.

IN BOOK publishing, there is an unofficial acceptance of 100,000 copies as the hallmark of a hit. Last year, 33,841 book titles were published in the U.S. Of these, 40 sold more than 100,000, for a failure rate of 99.9 percent.

In the record business, gold and platinum singles and albums are the hits. In 1977, 10,628 recordings were copyrighted. Only 55 made platinum and 220 made gold. That's a failure rate of 97.4 percent.

A movie must gross at least $8 million to be considered a possible hit. Last year, 188 films were released; 40 were hits, for a failure rate of 78.7 percent.

Jankowski says: "The marvel of television is not that it's bad but that it's so good—so good in so short a time while it serves so many publics. It must also be remembered that TV has a voracious appetite.

"The public expects, and television provides, new programs on a continuing basis. All the Broadways of the world combined have never made such a demand on creativity to serve a market that has gone from 520 commercial television stations 20 years ago to 808 today, and a growth in public television from 43 to 258 stations in the same 20 years."

As for the current buzzword, "diversity," Jankowski says that the variety of TV programs is almost endless—TV has drama, comedy, sports, news, talk shows, game shows, movies, concerts, theatrical serials.

He observes: "Unfortunately, most people who dislike our television programs simply refuse to accept a basic truth: when the viewers are free to choose among many programs, they will consistently select broadcasts that the non-professional programmers don't like."

FINALLY, Jankowski points out that nobody has to watch only TV. He says:

"The publishing industry, with many voices, is in robust good health; there is no shortage of newspapers, magazines and journals of opinion of every kind; there is something called radio that has just completed its best year in history; and Hollywood still turns out good movies each year.

"In addition, there is music and what we used to call conversation. So, leaving television aside, we are not without sources of intellectual stimulation and leisure-time diversion. Why not candidly acknowledge, then, that television need not be all things to all people at all times?"

Why not acknowledge this, indeed?

WATFORD, England (AP) — Rock singer Elton John swigged champagne from the bottle after the professional soccer team he helps manage won a home game and a boost up the league ladder.

John is chairman of the board of Watford Football Club in Hertfordshire, 18 miles northwest of London. Watford Monday won its second promotion in two years to enter the second division of the professional English soccer league, one step below the likes of Liverpool and Manchester United.

"I can't really believe that we are in the second division and I am not going to think any further than waking up in the morning with a hangover," said John.

Sirhan Makes Bid

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sirhan Sirhan, the convicted assassin of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, is seeking a cut in the time he must wait before being eligible for parole.

SIRHAN

He asked the California Court of Appeal Monday to reduce his minimum stay in prison and to eliminate 45 months added to his life sentence for crimes involved in the 1968 Los Angeles assassination.

Sirhan, who will become eligible for parole March 1, 1985, after serving more than 16 years, asked the court to order the state Community Release Board to reduce his term in recognition of voluntary work efforts and psychological and social adjustment.

The Community Release Board held its initial parole consideration July 18, 1978, and reaffirmed the base term. Another evaluation is scheduled for July.

Author Raps Teachers

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Ken Kesey, author of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," says he wishes high school teachers would take his book out of the classroom and bring in Shakespeare or the Bible.

KESEY

"They're teaching 'Cuckoo' because it's easy," Kesey told the University of Florida's annual writers conference Monday. "You have to teach what is hard. But teachers don't want to. They want to be popular, to be called by their first names and jostled like in 'Welcome Back Kotter.'"

Kesey, whose book won Oscars as a film, said one reason for the nation's literacy problems is that education has concentrated on the technicalities of reading and neglected its content.

BARTOW, Fla. (AP) — The man believed to be the oldest person in the United States has returned to his convalescent home after spending a week in a Lakeland hospital for tests.

"He's in real good spirits and had lunch," said Ruth Aiple, administrator of the Bartow Convalescent Center, after 136-year-old Charlie Smith's return Monday.

She said Smith had no serious medical problems and none were expected.

"We're already planning his birthday party for July 4," she said.

Governor To Perform

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee's chief executive will take a short respite from politics to demonstrate his command of Paderewski and Chopin.

Gov. Lamar Alexander has agreed to play piano as the guest artist at a concert of the Nashville Symphony on May 27th.

The stint was the idea of his press aide Debby Patterson, who handled the symphony's advertising account before joining Alexander. "He's excited about it. He's been practicing," she said Monday.

Alexander, who in addition to a minuet and two preludes will play a sampler of country music tunes, studied piano for 13 years. He also plays trombone, sousaphone and washboard.

"I think this is strictly the piano," Mrs. Patterson said.

China Booked Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Edward Koch can go to China next year if he wants but the Chinese are all booked up right now.

Koch has been told by Chinese officials that he will have to postpone the September visit because the country's "receiving capacity will be taxed to the full for the rest of the year," according to Gilliam Sorenson, the city's commissioner to the United Nations.

Chang Wuying, an official of China's U.N. delegation, said the "exceedingly great number" of guests scheduled to attend the nation's 30th anniversary meant no room for Koch and his 40-member delegation.

"I don't think the mayor is terribly disappointed," said Deputy Mayor Peter Solomon. He said the Chinese had already promised to make the city the center of their economic interests in the United States.

Park Your Skateboard, Fella

RENO, Nev. (AP) — The young man arriving for jury duty was stopped by a guard outside the courtroom.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

The guard didn't object to the man's beard or long hair, or his appearance for jury duty in jeans and sneakers. But the skateboard had to go.

"You'll have to park that thing outside the courtroom," the guard said.

The prospective juror grudgingly left the skateboard behind, but grumbled that it was discriminatory.

"If women are allowed to take their purses into court, I don't see why I can't carry in my transportation," he said.

Cancer Victims Helping Researchers Find Cure

LOS ANGELES (AP) — While John Wayne fights a cancer that invaded his body, the Hollywood legend — like thousands of others locked in that personal combat — is joining the larger medical battle against the disease itself.

Cancer, which kills an American every 80 seconds, is being attacked from all sides as researchers sharpen old tools and search desperately for more potent weapons.

Cancer victims who participate in that search, in hundreds of research projects around the world, may themselves reap the benefits — or they may leave behind a new clue that will push doctors closer to the answer.

"It can be an opportunity to ... help other individuals with this disease in the future — sometimes in the not-too-distant future," said Dr. Mark Green of the University of California-San Diego medical school.

Green said that although research with untried therapies often involves incurable patients, most studies seek to improve existing therapies and a patient's recovery is not endangered.

"To participate in an experimental program does not mean that it's all over," he said in an interview. "And the act of participating can be psychologically very important" in the patient's recovery.

Wayne, hospitalized since new cancer was found in his intestine May 2, has volunteered to participate in an experimental treatment program at UCLA Medical Center, officials said. The actor lost his stomach to cancer in January, and one lung in 1964.

The hospital has released no details of the program Wayne is to join. But administrator Bernard Strohm said, "It is experimental medicine. These protocols (projects) are searching for the unknown. They are searching for the answer to this tragic riddle."

A great deal of cancer research involves modifications and combinations of existing chemotherapies, radiation and surgery as doctors search for a life-saving recipe.

"The goal of every one of these clinical trials (is to) find a treatment that is very active against tumors and as sparing as possible to the patient," said Green.

A major problem with many of the 50 or more chemicals now used to fight cancer is that in attacking malignant cells they often cause devastating side-effects ranging from constant nausea and loss of hair to increased risk of infection or bleeding.

The search for new anti-cancer drugs is continuous, as researchers seek more potent treatments with fewer side-effects.

From laboratory tests "we have every reason to expect a new drug to be just as good or perhaps better than the standard treatment," Green said. "But we can't really know until we try it."

"We've been numbed many times by many kinds of cancers. We're still searching," he said.

Homosexual Permitted To Take Boy To Prom

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (UPI) — Despite threats against his life, a Lincoln High School senior has been granted permission to escort his boyfriend to the prom.

"Homosexuals have rights," principal Fred Stephens said Monday. "If I can guarantee his safety there — we always have policemen the night of the prom, and we have parents there — the decision is that he can attend the prom. That was a straight legal decision."

The student, who did not wish to be identified, said he had received threats, but would not say who had issued the threats. He also said he had to consult some friends before deciding whether to risk attending the prom.

The principal said he had been forewarned the student would ask to bring a male friend to the prom and had several days to mull over the factors involved.

Stephens last week said he would deny the student's request if he believed the student and his date were endangered, but Sunday said he would have to assess the situation before he decided whether to allow the student to attend the function.

He said he planned to meet with the student to discover where the threats were coming from and how serious they were.

"I need to talk with him to see if it's heresay or if there's substance to the threats," Stephens said. "If any other student here was threatened, I would talk with him."

The principal said the student's rights hd to be protected, but he was concerned how safe it was to allow him and his date to attend the May 22 prom.

Stephens said he did not know why the student had decided to attend the prom, or whether his date was another student.

"I think that most people at school are aware of his sex preference," he said. "I'm not sure he has kept that a secret. He assured me his behavior would be appropriate."

Stephens said he had talked to the student's mother and that his decision to attend the prom had been hard on his family, although he has not lived at home for more than a year.

Gas Crunch Turns Mayor Into Mass Transit Backer

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The gas shortage has converted one of the Citibus system's harshest critics — Mayor Dirk West — into a mass transit promoter in Lubbock.

Admitting he has come "full circle," West said he is convinced "we need to get into mass transit as quickly as possible."

The city's bus system is not mass transit, but "minor transit," he said, adding the Citibus system has been "a millstone around our necks and a big money loser."

"Despite good efforts, we've got a rinky-dink bus system which has been promoted poorly and not made an impression," he said.

Council members seem resigned to cutting their losses on the bus system, but West sees the gas shortage as "the best chance in the history of the city operating the bus system for it to be on a paying basis."

However, to capitalize on the opportunity, West said many changes in the operation are needed.

In a letter to council members and City Manager Larry Cunningham, West suggests a meeting be held to discuss making the bus system "a much used and needed facility." That meeting, with transit department staffers, will be held during the city council's regular meeting May 24.

"Certainly we can't achieve this with the small buses and the trite 'cutie type' promotion we have had, but with bigger buses, better routes and a better image, I believe we can take this losing operation and turn it around," he says in the letter.

The advertising agency owner said the city should discard the promotional "slogans and ditties" that have been used in the past for a "functional, hard-sell" campaign emphasizing the "cold hard facts of life."

"Ride the bus and don't run the risk of being stranded," was one such suggestion, as well as a message that "mass transit is the only solution to high prices of gas or no gas at all and long lines at the gas station."

With the gas shortage, "people are going to look for another way to get to school and work and to shop and mass transit is going to be vastly more attractive," said.

However, he said the city needs to plan carefully and increase the number of bus routes, perhaps with long-distance routes "we've never considered before" such as to the airport.

However, West acknowledged route planning is a "problem" in Lubbock because the city has no "core."

The mayor advocates a "total phase-out" of the 21-passenger buses currently in use and a complete conversion to large-capacity diesel buses as rapidly as possible."

Already the city has applied for $1.48 million from the federal government to purchase 15 such buses, which were to be used to replace buses on the Texas Tech University campus routes.

"I didn't know the staff was being prophetic" in seeking the federal grant, West said, adding the city may submit additional applications for more money to purchase more buses.

"We can expect a very large increase in income from the transit system," he said, and user fees should help offset the additional expenses.

"We need to rethink and perhaps restructure our entire mass transit system in Lubbock," he said.

"We need to take an overview of everything we're doing now and either validate it or change it."

The bus system "has been a problem with no solution, but this new money and energy crunch created a solution," he said.

"This means the transit system, instead of being an expensive, unused service, can be a needed and viable service."

Senior Citizens Gathering Here

In celebration of Older Americans and Older Texans Month, senior citizens from 15 South Plains counties are meeting at Fair Park Coliseum today and Wednesday for Lubbock's third annual Senior Citizens Roundup.

The roundup features a daylong health care seminar today and the Senior Olympics Wednesday.

Registration for the seminar began at 1 p.m. today, with booths from local health care agencies supplying information and referral services from 1 to 4 p.m.

Information will be supplied from such groups as the Texas Commission for the Blind, the South Plains Kidney Foundation, the Texas Department of Human Resources, Tel-Med of Lubbock and the West Texas Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation.

After a two-hour break, about 625 persons are expected to return to the coliseum for an awards banquet at 6 p.m.

The Outstanding Senior Citizen for 1979 will be announced, and several area couples and individuals also will be honored with certificates from Gov. Bill Clements and the South Plains Association of Governments (SPAG) advisory council.

"This is to say thank you (to all the participants) for remaining active," SPAG coordinator Betty Shannon said.

A Parade of Bands, featuring Kitchen Klatter groups and choruses, will provide after-dinner music, followed by Rick Sudduth and his Cowpoke Band, which will provide dancing music from 9 to 11 p.m.

Wednesday morning, young-at-heart athletes will return to the coliseum at 8:30 a.m. to register for the special olympics and to don their T-shirts, compliments of State Savings Loan Association of Lubbock.

Mayor Pro Tem Alan Henry will welcome the crowd at 10 a.m., and the olympic torch will be lighted at 10:15 a.m.

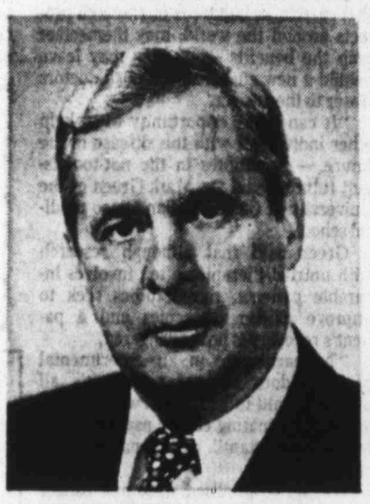
Participants will have a chance to compete in eight events, including the walking contest and softball toss (with categories for both men and women), the hula hoop contest, wheelchair races, balloon bust relay (last year's most popular event), the horseshoe toss, beanbag toss and the giant tricycle race.

After a boxed lunch at noon, the winners will be announced and will receive ribbons and trophies in the Winners Corral.

A round of song will close out the two-day affair at about 2 p.m., said Mrs. Shannon.

About 800 persons from South Plains senior citizen centers attended last year's event, Mrs. Shannon said, adding a larger crowd is expected this year.

Several organizations are co-sponsoring the event, includung SPAG, Green Thumb, the Texas Tech University Studies on Aging, South Plains Office on Aging, RSVP and area ACTION organizations.



LUTHER DEBERRY
State Highway Director

Local Club To Hear DeBerry

Luther DeBerry, engineer-director of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, will be the featured speaker at the Lubbock Rotary Club at noon Wednesday in the Memorial Civic Center Ballroom.

He will be introduced by George C. Wall Jr., district director of the highway department.

DeBerry will be guest of honor at a reception at 10:30 a.m. by the Transportation Committee of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

Sunday through Saturday is National Transportation Week and the local district office of the highway department has a display at the South Plains Mall.

DeBerry is the chief administrative officer of the department, which is charged with construction, maintenance and operation of a 70,000-mile, all-paved, toll-free system of highways of all types and with the cooperative development of public transportation in Texas.

DeBerry was born in Bogata in 1914. He attended public schools there and received a bachelor of science degree in civil engineering from the University of Texas. Immediately after graduation in 1937, he joined the highway department and worked in Sherman, Paris, Clarksville and Greenville. He served in World War II with both the U.S. Corps of Engineers and the U.S. Navy.

After World War II he worked in Emory, Greenville, San Antonio, Lufkin and Dallas for the highway department. He became assistant state highway engineer in 1968 and was appointed to the department's administrative position Feb. 1, 1973.

Overton South Residents Seek Design-Historic Designations

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Calling Overton South the "most significant remaining segment of Lubbock's heritage," a spokesman for the Overton South Neighborhood Association said Monday the area deserves to be designated a Design-Historic District.

Roger Loter, chairman of the neighborhood group, said the 200-acre area bounded by 19th Street, Broadway, Avenue Q and University Avenue "is the last remaining intact segment of the original city of Lubbock."

Based on that single fact, the neighborhood should be preserved, Loter said. But the area also is the site of several "historically or architecturally significant buildings," he added.

Besides applying for the protective zoning for the neighborhood, the association is seeking historic landmark designations for 16 buildings, including St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Thompson Junior High School and Lubbock High School.

The organization also wants protection for trees, street lights and fire hydrants in the parkways, four brick streets and Works Progress Administration signs on curbs throughout the neighborhood.

The association attempted to select the best example of various styles of architecture represented in the neighborhood for designation as landmarks.

The Urban Design Commission will discuss the Overton South application at its Thursday night meeting, and take action on designating two 13th Street structures as landmarks.

The First Baptist Church is attempting to have the homes, located at 2219 and 2223 13th St., moved so the lots can be used for additional church parking.

However, Urban Design Commission chairman Beverly Stribling declared a moratorium on future work on the houses until Thursday's meeting.

The Urban Design Commission, created last September by the Lubbock City Council, can recommend to the Planning and Zoning Commission that sites or areas with historical or architectural merit be designated landmarks or design-historic zoning districts.

The Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a public hearing on each recommendation, then make its own recommendation to the city council, which would make the final decision on any designations.

Once an area is designated for historic preservation, demolition or significant structural changes require commission approval.

So far no structure or area has received the protective designation, but the Depot Restaurant is expected to become the first on Thursday.

Jail Construction Still On Schedule

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock County Commissioners routinely approved nearly $200,000 in construction bills for the new county jail Monday and heard a report from a representative of Maeker and Stephens Architects that work on the facility is progressing on schedule.

The few pickets remaining from a recent strike against local contractors are not holding up construction, according to the spokesman.

The $200,000 figure represents payment to be made for the past two weeks' bills.

In other business, commissioners reiterated their support of a consortium of Lubbock city and surrounding county governments for the administration of Comprehensive Employment and Training Act program funds. They voiced a belief, however, that the agreement should not be renewed until the beginning of the 1980 fiscal year, not earlier, as they say Lubbock city government suggested. Attorneys for the city and county are drafting a final agreement for next Thursday's meeting.

Commissioners watched a Southwestern Bell presentation regarding a possible new telephone system for Lubbock County buildings, which would consolidate the three reportedly overworked systems now in use by the county. The initial cost would be $126,321, with monthly bills estimated at $34,860 compared to a current figure of $37,032. The payback period was estimated to be 20 years. Commissioners, who ordered the study some months ago, agreed to to take the study "under advisement" and discuss possible implementation at a later date.

W.D. Turner Construction Co. of Lubbock was awarded the county's annual road paving project. They will resurface or repair approximately 13 miles of county roads at a cost of $139,501.80.

Commissioners unanimously appointed Raymon Chapra of the Small Business Administration to the board of Trustees of Texas Mental Health/Mental Retardation Commission. He fills Lee Baker's unfinished term, due to end in August 1980.

Commissioners also convened the Board of Equalization, and recessed it until July 12 at 9 a.m.

Former Houston Policemen Given Probated Sentences

HOUSTON (AP) — Two former police officers accused of planting a gun on an unarmed teen-ager slain by police after a high speed chase have suffered enough and should not have to go to prison, a federal judge has ruled.

Using a 17-page memorandum to record his reasoning, U.S. District Judge Finis Cowan placed the two ex-policemen on five years of probation Monday for their convictions in a 1977 case in which a "throw down" gun was found beside the body of Randall Alan Webster, 17, of Shreveport, La., after the youth was shot to death.

Cowan said others who had been granted immunity or participated in plea bargaining probably were more culpable than defendants Danny Howard Mays, 32, and Norval Wayne Holloway, 29.

After deliberating 39 hours, a jury convicted the two April 4 on charges of lying to a grand jury and of covering up the fact Webster, was unarmed.

Cowan sentenced Mays and Holloway to five concurrent years on each count but suspended execution of the sentences and placed them under supervised probation for five years.

"(The) defendants were thrust into a stressful, emergency situation; they did not create the emergency," Cowan said. ". . . They were not the conspiracy's originators or its principal perpetrators."

Cowan said the defendants had suffered enough through ruinous legal expense, their families being subjected to enormous anxiety, expense and humiliation, and their being subjected to public humiliation and intense media and unfriendly public scrutiny.

"(The) defendants will now have all of the limitations and disabilities of convicted felons," Cowan said.

At the end of the four-week trial, Mays was acquitted on a charge of violating Webster's civil rights. Holloway was acquitted of being an accessory on that charge and a third former officer, Paul Dillon, 29, was acquitted on all charges.

Trial testimony indicated Webster was shot when Mays struck him on the head with his gun, which discharged accidentally.

Students To Flood Summer Job Market

WASHINGTON (AP) — The summer job market will probably be flooded with about a half million more young people this year than last, according to the Labor Department.

The influx of job-hunters will bring the total youth labor force to 28 million, the department said Monday. The increase is due to more people in the 22-to-24 age group and more youths of all ages looking for jobs, the department said.

... COMPLEXION PERFECTION

GENTLE VACUUMING PROCESS

If you are young enough to dream; but figure you are too old for miracles ... you may be in for a surprise!

If skin that glistens with cleanliness and presents a texture as sleek as that of the typical apple-cheeked four year old is what you want, it is available as the end product of a treatment at the DermaCulture Studio, 4902 34th Terrace Shopping Center. In fact, DermaCulture is the proven way to "complexion perfection."

The sophisticated procedure, first developed in 1938, requires months of intensive training on the part of its technicians. Because of this, only dedicated and caring technicians complete the training requirements.

The DermaCulture method was originally developed for problem skin. It has even restored severely damaged complexions and enjoys an enviable reputation for creating fragile, flawless complexions. Treatment begins when the patron reclines on a comfortably padded table with legs elevated for circulation promotion and complete relaxation. The first step of the procedure consists of a satiny facial cleansing administered by quick, cool fingers of an expert therapist. Most women go through only the motions of skin cleansing and generally speaking, only the surface soil is removed. Very few people have the correct conception of what constitutes a really clean skin.

After the cleansing, a vaporizing solution is applied to soften scaly facial cells so often found in the average complexion. The face is not subjected to the normal friction of other parts of the body that helps the skin to constantly renew itself. The solution softens pore-trapped bits of film that clog the natural cleaning and lubricating factories working below the skin.

Next comes applications of an infra-ray mask which opens pores and further softens any unwanted accumulation. Superfluous material is then gently vacuumed away by a vacuum cleaner which very much looks like a bent drinking straw. It is a very gentle process. Then a technician deftly plucks away blackheads, white heads, or as we prefer to call them, "pore-plugs".

The final step is a pleasant firming technique using highly perfected patented equipment. The customer's reward is a superbly smooth skin.

Every skin can look better in only one treatment, some skin problems require a series before real correction is effected. DermaCulture, effective in the removal of acne, pimples, skin blemishes of every type, scars and other severe skin problems, is used by several airline schools including American, Delta and Texas International, who regularly send the stewardesses and trainees for treatments when skin problems ar discovered. In the Dallas studio, as many as thirty will come at one time.

SCRUB WITH HONEY AND ALMOND GRAIN

A number of TV and screen personalities in California, where the first DermaCulture Studio was established, have discovered the great benefits derived from DermaCulture, as might be expected, since the repeated application of stage make-up can cause problems.

The procedure was developed by a German specialist who came to this country and found no therapy treatment available. Since then it has been improved with newly invented aids.

After the initial treatment, the supercleanliness can be renewed in the home, with products such as a cleanser made with barley, honey and almonds — a cleanser which again, gives the skin a neweness and silkiness possible only with the removal of excess lubrication. One soap, made especially for excessively oily skin, has kelp as its main ingredient. Another new product in the line is a soap for normal skin. The astringent, the mildest and most gentle ever developed, is a boon for the woman who must be careful with a fragile complexion. This green, herb-based liquid has a natural fragrance coming only from the herbs necessary to make it.

DermaCulture has a complete line of cosmetics that are excellent for all types of skin. In fact, all of our cosmetics are free of any perfume and the ones used on the face are totally free of oil as well. These cosmetics can be purchased without taking the treatments, although we prefer to give at least one is order to thoroughly cleanse the skin and demonstrate the proper use of the cosmetics.

It has been proven in other cities in Texas that DermaCulture treatments and the use of our skin care items are most effective in the protection of the skin of the most avid tennis players and all other outdoorsy people. The skin retains a softness that belies the many hours spend in the sun. All sun-loving people should be patrons of DermaCulture for the sake of their skin.

The skin is the largest organ of the body, and one of the most important. Not only is a lovely skin important to you personally, but your complexion is the first thing other people notice. You can paint it-you can powder it-you can tan it-but unless your skin is so clean and healthy that it needs no improvement, DermaCulture treatments may be the only way to your natural skin beauty.

DermaCulture, a proven beauty concept that is available to you here in Lubbock. If you value your skin — your looks — your poise and personal ego — if you would achieve the serene self-confidence that only comes with looking your best — DermaCulture. It's the common sense approach to skin care.

Additional information and appointments may be made by telephoning DermaCulture Studio, 4902 34th Terrace Shopping Center, 792-8535 Monday through Saturday.

South Plains 4-H'ers Qualify To Compete At State Contest

More than 100 South Plains 4-H members from 19 of the 20 counties in extension District 2 have qualified to compete in the Texas 4-H Roundup at College Station next month by taking top honors in district competition at Texas Tech University.

About 500 4-H Boys and girls competed in the 29 contests. Winners received awards in ceremonies at Coronado High School auditorium.

Hale County 4-H'ers captured the most qualifying wins of any county, with six senior wins. To qualify for the state contest, a team or individual must have a first or second place win in the senior division, which is for youths 14 and older.

In junior competition, held simultaneously with the senior contests, Swisher County had 28 first and second place victories. Juniors do not compete beyond the district level.

Other counties taking a large portion of senior division honors included Gaines with five qualifying wins and Swisher with five.

Hale County captured eight junior wins. Borden, Dawson, Lamb, Lubbock and Scurry counties captured four qualifying wins each.

Already, two rounds of district competition have been staged. The 4-H Food Show was last December, and judging contests were April 28. Winners from those events will join this Saturday's winners as the district 2 delegation to Texas 4-H Roundup.

Winners were presented at an awards assembly which followed the contests. The Pioneer Natural Gas Co. donated ribbons for the winners, with Bob Carthel of Pioneer presenting the honors.

Special awards were given winners of the agronomy contest by Monsanto Chemical Corp., and the farm and Ranch Management contest by Production Credit Association. Awards were also given to participants in the foods and nutrition-Let's Speak Out contest by Adam's Extract.

Presenting skits at the awards program were winners of the Share-the-Fun contest: Floyd County, first place; and Crosby County, second place.

The 4-H group was welcomed by Billy C. Gunter, of Lubbock, district extension agent for agriculture.

Twenty nations are reducing consumption because they believe the shortage is real.

Even before Iran shut down, gasoline supplies were tight. Demand continues to grow. But government has limited the use of octane improvers. So refiners need more crude, and more complex refining facilities, to make the same amount of gasoline.

Since 1975 U.S. oil production including Alaska increased only 3%. But consumption went up 16%. Industry efforts to add production were impeded by regulations, red tape and price controls.

Iran has resumed exports, but at a reduced volume. Free world oil supplies are short of demand by more than a million barrels daily.

For now—we must conserve because the shortage is real! For the future—we must develop all U.S. energy resources—because the shortage is real!

Thank you for listening.

When insurance coverage can be obtained at no cost, it is sound business practice to take out a policy even if there does not seem to be any real danger.

After South opened one no trump, North employed the Stayman Convention to check on opener's major suit holding. When a spade fit was uncovered, North's hand became worth an invitational raise, which South, holding a near maximum, was quick to accept.

West led the queen of diamonds. East followed with the six and declarer won the ace. Declarer crossed to dummy with a club, taking care to lead the eight from his hand. The nine of spades was run and the finesse lost to the king. West continued with the ten of diamonds, which East overtook with the king and shifted to a heart. Declarer played low and West won the queen.

West exited safely with a trump, taken in dummy. A club to the jack won, and the last trump was drawn. After cashing the king of clubs, declarer entered dummy by overtaking his carefully preserved deuce of clubs. He then tried the heart finesse, but West produced the king for the setting trick.

Declarer was unfortunate to find three of four cards badly placed, yet he had only himself to blame for losing the contract. He had played the clubs carefully, but not the diamonds. Declarer should have planned to have the defenders lead hearts at a time when it suited him, not them.

It was important to keep East off lead to prevent a heart shift before declarer was ready for it. Therefore, declarer should have allowed West to win the queen of diamonds at trick one. West will no doubt continue the suit. Now declarer wins, enters dummy as before and takes the losing spade finesse.

West gets out with a trump. After the club finesse succeeds, declarer draws trumps and clears clubs, ending in dummy. The jack of hearts is run to West's queen. But what can he return? A diamond will present declarer with a ruff and sluff, while a heart into the tenace will be the answer to declarer's prayer.

Gold Strikes It Big In Furnishings

By ELAINE Q. BARROW
AP Newsfeatures

A "gold rush" at the New York Merchandise Mart is expected to pan out for home decorators across the country.

In home furnishings, lighting and accessories, the "prospector" needn't look any further than gold-toned brass, according to Lenny Lubell at Raymor Richards, Morgenthau, Inc.

"There's been a big resurgence in brass in every home-furnishing area," Lubell says. "It has been a trend that started slowly a few years ago. People are getting tired of chrome. Brass is softer and it fits in with both contemporary and traditional styles — which chrome does not do."

His showroom featured brass end-tables and magazine racks, panel screens, kinetic brass sculptures and brass trunks, and mirrors with gold borders.

Echoing the enthusiasm for brass, Wendy Fenton of Nora Fenton, Inc., says, "Brass is up, brass is big. We've made a lovely success story with it."

She pointed to a copy of an antique serpent vase, candlesticks and a new line of fireplace accessories. Among the novelties was a pinch scotch bottle, held by a brass frame with a brass cover that inverted to serve as a jigger.

With two hands, Wendy hefted a bookend structured with an owl figure.

"Brass is sold by the weight," she says. "There's so much brass in this that it retails for $400. But we're using this pair only for display. We'll have it knocked off with another factory which will reduce its weight and price."

Her company, she says, does not carry coated brass.

"The patina finish is not offensive to us and it can be polished with just regular brass polish," she says. "Sometimes firms that carry coated brass find that it peels and is ruined.

"However, brass ages beautifully and doesn't get dirty like silver."

She acknowledges that although "it's not for Mrs. America to do, some large department stores polish brass with newspapers. They can't find people to do the time-consuming job of hand polishing."

In other displays at the Mart were brass pyramids, brass trim on wood accessories, and lamps with butterfly decorations fashioned in brass color. There were also reading lamps standing on brass bases, 5 inches tall; a glass apple with a brass stem; and even an antelope with gold antlers.

One showroom featured the robot C3PO from Star Wars, represented as a novelty overlayed with 22-karat gold. It can be used as a bank or cookie jar.

"I think brass is the whole boom," says Ruth Siegel at Decorative Crafts. "But Oriental, too, is coming in so strong you can't get the stuff."

On hand, however, were minutely detailed Oriental chests which she said had come from the Republic of China.

Gold-leaf paint added sparkle to Far Eastern tapestries in another showroom. There were also porcelain lamps from Paris, crystal accessories, stoneware and porcelains from the Far East, and composition materials formed to resemble "naturals."

Another firm presented a wealth of Oriental paintings and Oriental-mode furniture. Here again were bronzed mirror panels, one with brass-colored diagonal strips which obviously offered more to look at than into.

Opulence was carried still further by a 55-by 50-inch chromograph of a gold Rolls Royce.

In dinnerware, too, the gold theme was evident. At Rosenthal, white porcelain was highlighted with 24-karat gold in a burnished matte finish on the borders and on the tops of serving dishes.

The gold fever apparently hasn't affected the Syroco showroom, specializing in plastic KD or "lifestyle" furniture that the customer takes home and assembles.

"Although our biggest seller is wicker-appearing furniture," said Dan Sullivan, "we are still selling a lot of chrome, because we sell to the less sophisticated and those who are not as wealthy as those who are turning to brass."

An overall view is expressed by Roger Schumacher, executive director of the NYMM, which is a member of the New York Home Furnishings Council, sponsor of the winter market.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: KEEPING FIT IN SAN MATEO asked why so many motorists are abusive to joggers. (Someone yelled at him: "Hey, you jerk, get off the street — what are you' trying to prove?")

You should have mentioned that most joggers jog down the center of the street, paying no attention to traffic signals and behaving in general as though they owned the street!

If a passing motorist honks his horn and signals for the jogger to move over to the side of the road, the jogger pays no attention whatsoever.

My sympathy is with the motorist — not the jogger!

KANSAS

Dear Kansas: My mail has been running 50 to 1 in favor of the motorist. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for a chance to sound off about joggers. They are a terrible nuisance. Why must they use the streets to jog? What's wrong with jogging in parks? Or on a football field? Joggers not only endanger their own lives, but they cause motorists to swerve to avoid hitting them, endangering others.

Joggers run right down the middle of the road, darting in front of oncoming cars so they don't have to break their stride or slacken their pace. They are a hazard to all motorists. Why can't they run on sidewalks and obey the traffic rules like pedestrians? Better yet, why don't they do as I do and jog at home (in place) in my living room?

I'm as health-conscious as the next guy, but I'm no exhibitionist.

STUDIO CITY HEALTH NUT

DEAR ABBY: My husband LOVES to look at female joggers. They turn him on! He gets so excited when he sees a woman jogging he can hardly keep his car under control. He says there is something about the rhythm of the female body bobbing up and down that excites him. So far, he hasn't run off the road or hit another car or a pedestrian, but I'm afraid his luck will run out soon.

ANTI—JOGGERS

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to get in my two cent's worth about runners and joggers. If it's exercise they want, why don't they go to a gym or exercise at home? It's a lot healthier. Those half-naked show-offs run on heavily traveled streets under the pretense of "keeping fit," while they fill their lungs with exhaust from cars and buses.

Not to mention the punishment they give their feet, ankles, knees and hips. I've had it with those exhibitionistic idiots!

KEEPING FIT IN PRIVATE

DEAR ABBY: I'll tell you why I hate joggers. Because they ignore traffic signals, run in front of cars and create a real traffic hazard for motorists. Many times I have had to slam on my brakes to avoid hitting a jogger. I've also had to quickly swerve, nearly hitting another car. Joggers do not belong on the streets with automobiles. And the same goes for bicycles. Motorcyclists at least operate at the same sped as automobiles. Bicycles and joggers do not.

Silk Prices May Come Down

By JOHN MOODY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Never mind diplomacy or politics. Normalization of relations with mainland China means the price of silk and cashmere will be coming down — way down — by the end of the year.

At least that's what the fashion industry is saying, hoping and praying for.

Allen Tucker, chief designer for Calvin Klein Sportswear, says the opening of the China silk and cashmere market could mean up to 20 percent savings — some of which may actually find their way to the American buyer, starved for such luxury materials but for years unable to afford them.

The House of Klein, however, has been forward-thinking, and acting.

"Three years ago, we decided that pretty soon the U.S. and China had to open up relations," Tucker said. "So we started working out an arrangement with Peking to supply us with part of our cashmere. Now that the China market is opening up, we figure we have a head start because we know the people and the way the Chinese work."

Pierre Cardin, of course, nearly upstaged President Carter's diplomatic coup by announcing a few days before that he would travel through China to present fashion shows in Shanghai and Peking.

But for pure business purposes, Tucker figures Calvin Klein is ahead of the competition.

"The Chinese business mind is a lot different from anywhere else. They offer by far the best quality silk and cashmere, and the least expensive labor. But they don't offer any perks — no samples. They don't take back any material that's not up to standard. They figure, 'Let the buyer beware.'

"They're very open and up front about this from the beginning, so they feel no guilt at all in telling you they're not interested in your problems. It's the whole honorable merchant mentality."

The Calvin Klein collection this year will include vast amounts of charmeuse silk in both sportswear and formalwear. Silk quality is judged by the number of mummies, or weaves, per square inch, and Tucker says Klein will use only the highest grade — 20 mummy.

The silk costs about $12 a square yard, but a shirt which may take two or three square yards will retail in the stores for about $120.

After the China connection is going full swing, however, Tucker said the price for the same article may drop as low as $90.

The same will be true of cashmere sweaters. Calvin Klein's 3-ply sweater, which retailed last year for $135, will probably be down this fall to $95, Tucker said.

"Going to China is going to be a real experience. They don't have a sense of fashion yet, but they're very fast learners. And we expect to bridge the fashion gap within a couple of years," Tucker said.

Egypt, Where East Meets West

By HILMI TOROS

CAIRO (AP) — East is East, West is West and the twain mix on the facade of Cairo.

"I love the French, their language and culture," he says in English.

His shop, along with thousands of others in Cairo, is geared mainly for Egyptian customers while still sporting a Western sign in addition to Arabic, reflecting the French, British and, lately, American influence many seem to welcome.

Many signs appear in French, as at the shop where the pin-striped and bell-bottomed suits are made by "Osman and Fils, Tailleurs" (Osman and Sons, Tailors). Ahmed el Shamy's grocery store is billed as "super-market," although he himself questions the "super" prefix. He sells packs of cubed sugar still carrying the "sucre tablettes" signs.

And the label on the local rose wine grandiosely boasts "grand vin sec," while a discriminating taster can question both its greatness and dryness.

The local English-language weekly, The Egyptian Mail, found something wrong with the foreign grafitti in this city of the crusades, Mamelukes and 1,000 minarets.

It never questioned the validity of foreign signs. The paper chided the merchants for their spelling errors in French or English. Clothes are cleaned by "steam" and not "stem," as one cleaner claimed, the paper lectured.

Napoleon's 18th-century foray into Egypt and later the long British influence were bound to leave imprints, but subsequent nationalism has brought no systematic cries for de-Westernization.

Even the late Gamal Abdel Nasser, the stern pan-Arabist, did not erase the Anglo-French influence, although he ordered English and French languages stopped in primary schools for a time.

Even during his era, the intelligentsia and upper class at times preferred to speak French among themselves, rather than Arabic. Many still do.

And Anwar Sadat, who succeeded Nasser in 1970, provided further impetus to the Western influence by his "infitah" (open-door) policy.

Now the assumption is that anything that carries an import tag is better than local products.

Even in El Minya, a Nile-side town 150 miles south of Cairo, the intensifying fascination with non-Egyptian goods is evident.

When a foreign visitor was considering buying what he thought was a locally knitted sweater, the shopkeeper tried to conclude the deal but actually lost a customer:

"It comes from China."

ICE CREAM SEASON

It's ice cream season for kids (and adults). That can mean sticky stains on carpets and sofas. Floor-care experts suggest sponging the stain with cool water. If a greasy stain remains, sponge with grease solvent. Let it dry and repeat if necessary. Vacuum the residue.

Crime Council Seeks Answers To Money Pinch

By JEFF McCASLIN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

While Operation Identification moves forward at a snail's pace, the Lubbock County Crime Prevention Council is faced with finding swift answers to some pressing financial problems.

LCCPC members were told at their regular meeting this morning that the executive committee will meet Wednesday to discuss fund-raising strategies to cover approximately $6,000 in outstanding debts.

Mal Cleland, LCCPC president and Better Business Bureau director, said that although he is not worried about the council's ability to raise the money they have a time limit of about 30 days to find solutions.

Meanwhile, Operation Identification, which began two weeks ago, is proceeding at a slow but methodical pace in an effort to get local citizens to mark their valuable household items.

Hal Hensley, chief administrator for the Criminal District Attorney's office and coordinator of Operation Identification, said about 100 to 150 marking devices have been distributed to area residents so far.

Hensley said problems are arising in getting the materials (brochures and marking devices) distributed to volunteers and then to homeowners. He added that area residents have been very cooperative in volunteering their services to help get the project off the ground.

Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford said the program will take some time to complete.

Homeowners are advised by the council to complete their marking procedures as quickly as possible so the chemical pens and electric marking devices can be distributed to other residents, Hensley said.

Volunteers have been instructed to leave the marking devices with homeowners and return to pick them up one day later. Volunteers also will provide participants with stickers warning potential burglars that all the valuable items in the home have been marked and can be readily identified by any law enforcement agency.

Montford, pleased with the outcome of the Business Crimes Symposium held May 3 in the Civic Center, suggested the council sponsor another symposium in the fall.

He said the next crime symposium should be held over a two-day period so that local merchants and bank executives could get all their employees to attend.

"We could reduce crimes against businesses by 30 to 40 percent if we could fill up the (Civic Center) auditorium."

Frank Abagnale Jr., former con artist and master forger who was the guest speaker at the symposium, previously offered to return to Lubbock free of charge and conduct seminars in area schools and businesses in prevention techniques designed by him to halt white collar crime.

Cleland, concerned about a lack of communication between the council and the subcommittees, suggested establishing a newsletter so council members can be kept up to date on the accomplishments of the several subcommittees.

The council will meet next Tuesday to discuss organizational matters and decide whether to suspend the regular Tuesday morning meetings unless specific issues or problems need to be addressed by the whole council.

Local Center May Head Pilot Project

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Five statewide pilot projects that would benefit handicapped students are on the drawing board, and the Lubbock-based Education Service Center could serve as coordinator of one of those projects.

The projects are aimed at developing and implementing model programs for training general education personnel involved in the education of the handicapped.

Officials in Lubbock's Region 17 Education Service Center have recognized the need for such programs and they want to be in on them from the beginning.

The service center is funded by federal, state and local funds and provides services to schools in a 20-county area.

David Cobb, director of special services for the center, explained that each project would be manned by a service center, a public school district and a college or university.

The 20 service centers in the state will be divided into "clusters" of five and one center from each cluster would be chosen to participate in the project.

The pilot programs were approved several weeks ago for $210,000 in funding through the federal Education of the Handicapped Act. The funds will begin to flow to the Texas Education Agency on July 1 and then will be dispersed to each project.

Cobb estimated that each cluster would receive $40-50,000 in funds.

The programs will serve to bring about better compliance with federal Public Law 94-142 which passed in 1975 and required that all public schools in the country provide special education for handicapped children.

Cobb said that the law requires each student in public schools to be "placed in the least restrictive environment." It has recently been determined by educators that regular classrooms would provide such an environment for handicapped children.

But the problem lies in educating regular classroom teachers about the problems and needs of handicapped students.

Cobb said that there has been some in-service training of school personnel in education of the handicapped, but it "really hasn't had the emphasis that the law (94-142) will allow us to handle."

In the Lubbock public schools, little has been done in the way of in-service training of regular teachers in handicapped education.

But Dr. Cecil Green, director of special education in the Lubbock school district, explained that many demands "impinge on the in-service time" given to teachers.

He explained that eight days during the year are allowed for in-service training of all kinds for teachers. "Not more than four of those days can be teacher work days," he said.

The amount of time teachers have for in-service training "is cut considerably by the problems of just setting the schools in motion for the fall," he continued. He said that special education teachers do work with regular classroom teachers, however, and said that training in handicapped education will "have priority" in the planning of in-service programs for the coming school year.

Cobb said that plans for the model programs are "kind of nebulous" at this point, but said "we will have to look at other methods other than in-service training days "for implementing the educational plans.

He said the projects, aimed at educating teachers already in the field as well as those training at the college or university level, will probably consist of development the first year and implementation the second year. He said the program would hopefully be ready for use in other areas besides the pilot sites after the second year.

The problem of awareness of the conditions of the handicapped must first be considered in developing the projects, said Cobb, and then "we need expertise in dealing with the handicapped individuals."

He said the projects "must be flexible enough" to adapt to the smallest and the largest school districts.

Cobb also emphasized that the projects must serve as just one means of providing education in the area of problems of the handicapped for school teachers. "We have to look for alternative methods too," he said.

Cobb said that he hoped the choice of service centers to be involved in the project would be known in the next few weeks.

Policeman Tells Of Drug Raid On Barbershop

A drug raid on a Lubbock barbershop early this year ended with one detective being tripped with a clippers cord, another scooping a bagful of heroin out of a flushing commode and a suspect being allowed to finish cutting the hair of a bythen crying boy before being taken to jail, a police detective testified Monday in 237th District Court.

Sgt. Doyle Nelson, who led the Jan. 9 raid on the 407 N. University Ave. barbershop, said officer Earl Rankin was tripped as he ran past Henry Fierro Salgado, 48, of 3321 Amherst, who is charged with possession of heroin.

Salgado's trial was scheduled to continue this afternoon.

Nelson said he pursued one of the other men charged in the raid, Luciano Garza, 40, of 4642 Grinnell St., to the barbershop bathroom and retrieved the 1 1/2 ounces of heroin just before it went down the commode in a plastic bag or "balloon."

A small boy whose hair Salgado had been cutting was by then "very upset," Nelson said, and the barber was allowed to finish the haircut and the boy and his grandfather to leave before Salgado was taken to the police station.

Garza and a third defendant, Raul Fuentes Sauceda, 30, of Carlisle, are scheduled for trial Wednesday and next Monday.

Questioned by Assistant Criminal District Attorney Everett Seymore, Nelson said the shop, Raul's Barber Shop, had been under surveillance for two months before the raid.

Nelson described some visitors to the shop during that period as "drug known "drug addicts" and said many stayed no longer than four or five minutes.

"I didn't think you could get a haircut in four or five minutes," he said.

Turks Await Soviet Approval Of Flights

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — The Turkish government says the Soviet Union must agree before it will let U.S. planes use its air space to verify Soviet compliance with the new SALT treaty.

"While contributing to world peace and security, it is only natural that Turkey also takes into consideration its own security and relations with its neighbors, and takes care to base its relations with its neighbors on mutual trust," the Foreign Ministry said Monday after confirming that the United States asked Turkey to allow U-2 reconnaissance planes to monitor the Soviet Union from Turkey's skies.

The Istanbul newspaper Milliyet said the Turkish government told the Americans Soviet agreement to the flights should be made part of the new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty which President Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev are to sign in Vienna next month.

The U.S. government's comment was expected from State Department spokesman Hodding Carter today. But Milliyet said American diplomatic sources told it the Soviet government has been informed of the situation, and if the Russians did not agree to U-2 surveillance from Turkey, either Carter would not sign the treaty, or if he did sign it, the U.S. Senate would not ratify it.

U.S. U-2s now fly from bases in Cyprus, off the south coast of Turkey, but have been barred from Turkish air space since Francis Gary Powers' U-2 was shot down in the Soviet Union in 1960.

Milliyet said U.S. Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, during a visit to Ankara last week, told Turkish officials only high-altitude observation from over Turkey, along part of the Soviet Union's southern border, could replace the information obtained from U.S. electronic surveillance stations in neighboring Iran which the revolutionary regime there shut down.

Two U.S. bases in Turkey which track Soviet nuclear and military activities plus satellite surveillance might not provide adequate observation, the paper said.

The Foreign Ministry said the United States requested permission for the overflights "in order to carry out verification (of the treaty) in an effective and credible manner." The Americans said the flights would be limited to Turkish air space, meaning they would not extend over Soviet territory, and the planes would not be based in Turkey, the statement said.

Art Thieves Hit Museum

By CANDY SAGON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

There are no new leads in the theft of two rare 19th century prints stolen Saturday from the special Currier and Ives exhibit at The Museum of Texas Tech University, Dr. Leslie Drew, museum director, said this morning.

Campus police are investigating the theft, and Drew said the story of the loss in this morning's Avalanche-Journal "may touch the heart of the culprit who took them."

Tech police said the small, finely detailed prints apparently were taken between 2:30 and 3:30 p.m. Saturday from the museum's main gallery.

The theft is the museum's first from a special exhibit, Drew said.

Each print was 9 inches by 6 inches, or the size of an average book, and was in a matted oval frame stained a dark red. Police said they were small enough to be slipped into a woman's purse.

Tech detective Mario Gomez said the prints have an estimated value of $500 and $150, and that police are compiling a list of names of persons who either collect Currier and Ives prints or who may be interested in owning that type of work for possible questioning.

The art work was reported missing to university police at 3:40 p.m. by museum security chief Ron Stroud, reports indicated.

The prints are part of a special traveling exhibit from the Esmarck Corp. of Chicago. The exhibit, which has been touring the country since 1975 and which has been at the Tech museum three weeks, contains 125 works by famous American lithographers Nathaniel Currier and James Merritt Ives.

The prints, drawn in great detail, illustrate scenes of farm life, current events and the mechanical and technical innovations of the middle to late 19th century.

The two stolen prints are titled, "Sunlight-the Castle," and "Fawn's Leap in the Catskills."

Drew expressed shock and sorrow Monday at the theft, saying, "the sick part about it" is that the incident probably will affect the museum's ability to get special exhibits in the future.

"It affects the name of the entire community. I'm sure Esmarck will think twice about it when we ask for another exhibit," Drew said.

"And it's not just a crime against the museum," he said. "It affects all the people who live here and visit the museum and all the guests who stop in to see it.

"You like to think you control your own destiny and then someone comes along and besmirches your good name," he added.

Drew said Esmarck officials were "shocked and disappointed" to hear of the theft. It is the first theft from the exhibit in the four years it has been circulating among museums.

The museum director said calling the Chicago corporation to report the missing works was one of the hardest things he's had to do. "I would have rather taken 50 lashes," he said.

At the time of the theft, two security guards were assigned to watch the galleries, Drew said.

"But there's no way you can watch all the people," he said.

Security arrangements will be changed for the next special exhibit, Drew said, and "everyone is more alert" following Saturday's theft.

Medicaid Told To Pay Bills

FORT DODGE, Iowa (UPI) — Iowa's Medicaid program must pay more than $3,000 in medical bills and $500 damages to a person who underwent a sex-change operation in 1976, a federal judge has ruled.

In the ruling, filed last week in Fort Dodge, U.S. District Judge Donald O'Brien said the Medicaid program must pay for such operations when the procedure is "medically necessary."

O'Brien ruled the operation was necessary in the case of Verna Pinneke, 37, formerly of Clear Lake, and now living in Trinidad, Colo.

Miss Pinneke had filed suit against the state after it refused to pay for the operation which changed her from a man to a woman. The state had called the surgery "unnecessary, though perhaps desirable." The state also argued it was "cosmetic surgery," not covered under the Medicaid program.

The judge ordered the Department of Social Services to pay $2,570 for the original operation and $454 for a second operation to treat complications, as well as the damages.

UNDER GUARD — Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood bites down on his lip while Onslow County Deputy Sheriff Danny Lanier stands guard after Garwood arrived at Jacksonville, N.C., Airport this morning. Garwood, who disappeared while on duty in Vietnam in 1965 and resurfaced earlier this year, was reporting for duty at Camp Lejeune. (AP Laserphoto)

Garwood Will Perform Normal Marine Duties

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood will share a room with two other enlisted men and perform normal duties during the "weeks or months" it may take to resolve allegations that he was a wartime deserter and collaborator, says a Marine spokesman.

Maj. John Woggon, public affairs officer at Camp Lejeune, held a news conference today but declined to estimate how long it will be before authorities decide whether to court-martial Garwood.

Garwood returned to the United States about a month ago and was granted a 30-day leave before reporting for duty here Monday. He says he waited 14 years for a chance to escape his Vietnamese captors. Others accuse him of deserting and later helping the enemy.

He has been assigned a room with two men in a barracks and will have all the privileges and responsibilities of other Marines while the accusations against him are being investigated, Woggon said.

Garwood's Marine attorney, Capt. Dale Miller, said Garwood would not be talking to reporters any time soon.

"He's entitled to a little privacy," Miller said. "We do not want him to be put on display, to be ogled by anybody."

Garwood, 33, who disappeared in Vietnam in 1965 at the age of 19 and surfaced earlier this year, arrived at this Marine training base Monday night. He faces a death penalty if convicted of the allegations against him.

Garwood stepped off a commercial jet at the Jacksonville airport shortly before midnight, ending a wearisome day that began with a physical examination at the Naval facility at Great Lakes, Ill. He declined to comment to the crowd of reporters who met him.

One woman, Donna Long, 36, of Jacksonville, handed Miller a red carnation before Garwood arrived and told Miller it was for Garwood.

"He should be welcomed home like any other POW," said Mrs. Long, a member of a group interested in the outcome of prisoner-of-war and missing-in-action cases.

Mrs. Long said she detected a feeling of resentment in Jacksonville, especially from some of the younger Marines.

"They don't understand," she said. "They're very macho. I don't think anyone will hurt him, but there as been a lot of hostility in the community."

Military authorities said there were no plans to provide security for Garwood while he was on the base.

Bundy Possibly Seen Near Murder Site

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — A Florida State University student told police he saw a man fitting the description of Theodore Bundy duck into the bushes in the predawn hours before two sorority coeds were strangled in their beds, Circuit Judge Edward Cowart was told today.

The testimony came from FSU Campus Police Sgt. Clifford Norris Campbell. He said student Orlie Sorrell was interviewed on the day of the double-murder and about a month after Bundy was arrested as a suspect.

"He said the man he saw fit the description of Bundy," whose photograph he had seen in the newspapers and again in a police photo line-up, Campbell said.

Campbell was among the witnesses called in connection with Bundy's request that Cowart throw out evidence which a dentist claims will prove Bundy's teeth match a bite mark on the body of one of the victims.

The defense is seeking to quash the search warrant which permitted the teeth impressions to be taken over Bundy's protest. Defense attorneys said the affadavit which provided grounds for the search warrant contained misstatements and untruths.

The affadavit was sealed from the public and the defense did not immediately make clear what the alleged misstatements were.

Deputy Sherriff Jack Poitinger, who served the warrant, testified that photographs were taken the morning of the murder of bite marks on the left buttock and the right breast of Lisa Levy, one of the two St. Petersburg co-eds Bundy is accused of killing.

Man Critically Injured In Shooting Mishap

A 21-year-old Lubbock man was in critical condition today at Health Sciences Center Hospital with a gunshot wound to the eye suffered Monday night inside a vehicle.

Steven Lacy Parrish of 1303 65th St. reportedly was fighting for his life this morning after being shot about 9 p.m. while traveling in a station wagon on Loop 289 near the South Plains Mall.

When Parrish was pulled from the vehicle at the hospital, a .38-caliber pistol fell from the victim's lap to the ground, according to reports. A loaded .357-caliber pistol, wrapped in a towel, also was found in the front seat of the station wagon, police said.

Parrish's 17-year-old wife told police her husband was playing with the .38-caliber pistol in the front seat while she drove. She said the man was holding the weapon with both hands with the barrel pointed at his face when the weapon discharged.

The woman said she stopped the vehicle and tried to flag down a motorist, but without success. The woman said she then got back into the vehicle and drove to HSCH's emergency room with her unconscious husband leaning against her shoulder.

Reports indicate the bullet entered near the victim's right eye and exited from the top of the head. Police were continuing their investigation into the case early today.

In other activity, two men said they were assaulted by a 20-year-old white man, described as tall, thin and blond, early this morning.

Jeral Lynn McGee, 21, of Lubbock told police the man entered his residence shortly after 4 a.m. and began beating on him. Randell Moore, 19, of Big Spring, said he also was assaulted by the suspect after hearing the ruckus and entering the apartment.

McGee and Moore were treated and released at Health Sciences Center Hospital. McGee said he had had trouble with the suspect in the past.

A thief with an eye for the highway made off with a $53,000 semi-tractor rig from a local rental agency early Monday.

Police said someone drove the truck, a 1978 Kenworth, off the Lend-Lease Truck Rental lot at 1602 Amarillo Highway, shortly after it had been returned there.

Stan Aldrich said someone entered the backyard of his 2208 10th St. residence between 8 a.m. and noon Monday, and took his Alaskan malamute.

Aldrich said the dog, which was chained in the yard, was about 14 years old and was valued at about $200.

Burglars reportedly broke into the 2408 40th St. residence of Jack Wiggins early Monday and took more than $800 worth of property.

A TV set, some tools and a pistol, all together worth more than $700, were taken from Joann Love's residence at 632 Elgin Ave. early Monday, police said.

Police reports indicate entry was gained with a key.

A fishing rod and two reels were removed from the front porch of Mike Vinson's residence at 2519 16th St. sometime over the weekend. The equipment was valued at about $140, Vinson said.

Senators Probe Secret Account

WASHINGTON (AP) — An accountant hired by the Senate Ethics Committee is prepared to offer the first public view of how money flowed in and out of a secret bank account Sen. Herman E. Talmadge is accused of turning to his personal use.

Using bank checks, deposit slips and other documentary evidence, Lawrence Sullivan was scheduled to demonstrate today how $39,000 in campaign contributions and Senate expense funds was funnelled into an account in Talmadge's name at the Riggs National Bank of Washington.

From there, the money went into the hands of Daniel Minchew, Talmadge's chief accuser and former administrative assistant in 1973 and 1974.

The five specific allegations of financial misconduct the committee has leveled at the Georgia Democrat include one that some of the money from the secret account went for his personal use.

Talmadge denies he knew about the secret account, let alone benefited from it. Talmadge says the account, although established in his name, was opened and operated by Minchew without Talmadge's knowledge.

Minchew says he acted at Talmadge's direction.

Before questioning Sullivan, the committee spent two hours this morning reviewing Senate expense procedures with William Ridgely, former chief of the Senate Disbursing Office.

Ridgely said it was against Senate policy for anyone but a senator to sign claims for expenses.

Ex-Parliament Member Told About Thorpe Plot

LONDON (AP) — The Liberal Party's former deputy treasurer, David Holmes, said he hired a professional killer he met in a bar to murder Jeremy Thorpe's alleged homosexual lover, the prosecution's star witness claims.

Peter Bessell, a former member of Parliament who lives in Oceanside, Calif., testified Monday that Holmes visited him in Oceanside in 1976 and told him of the plot that failed to kill former model Norman Scott and killed his dog instead.

Bessell said Holmes told him he met Andrew Newton, a former airline pilot, in a Chelsea tavern and paid him $10,000 to kill Scott in 1975, and that Thorpe, then leader of the Liberal Party, was aware Newton had been hired.

Bessell said Holmes at first told him the reason the dog got shot was that Newton and Scott were arguing over a photograph Scott had showing Newton in a compromising situation with a woman. Newton was married at the time.

But Bessell said he pressed Holmes for more details and Holmes told him: "All right, Newton was hired to kill Scott. Jeremy didn't hire him, I did."

Bessell said he asked Holmes how he found Newton, and that Holmes replied he met him in the bar and that Newton "did this sort of thing regularly. It was his way of supplementing his income."

Thorpe, Holmes, and businessmen John Le Mesurier and George Deakin are charged with conspiring to murder Scott to hush up the alleged affair with the prominent politician.

Each has pleaded innocent and is free on $10,000 bail. Thorpe was Liberal leader from 1967-1976, and in the May 3 general election lost the parliamentary seat he held for 20 years.

Attorneys Deliver Closing Arguments

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Was Karen Silkwood a spy and a schemer — or a woman who knew too much? That question was left for a jury to answer as the lawyers delivered closing arguments in the $11.5 million Silkwood plutonium contamination trial.

The speeches took nearly eight hours Monday. The jurors were expected to begin deliberations today, after being instructed on the law by U.S. District Judge Frank G. Theis.

Miss Silkwood's survivors are suing Kerr-McGee Corp. on a claim of negligence in her contamination with radioactive plutonium shortly before she died in a 1974 auto crash. At the time, she was a Kerr-McGee lab technician.

Jury To Get Two Views Of White

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two views of Dan White will be presented to jurors — one a sane man who killed Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk in anger, the other a manic depressive who lost control.

Closing statements by the prosecutor and defense attorney were scheduled today before the seven-woman, five-man panel.

They will have two weeks of testimony, including five psychiatrists' evaluations, to weigh in determining whether White is guilty and if so, of what offense.

Both sides agree White shot and killed Moscone and Milk last Nov. 27 at City Hall when he went to see the mayor about recovering his job as a city supervisor.

Lawyers for both sides rested their cases Monday. Before recessing for the day, Superior Court Judge Walter Calcagno granted a defense motion to dismiss the allegation of special circumstances in connection with the killing of Milk. He said evidence failed to show that White killed Milk to prevent him from carrying out his duties.

However, the allegation still stands in the slaying of Moscone, whose scheduled duties the day he was shot included naming a successor to White on the Board of Supervisors.

The death penalty or life imprisonment without parole is called for in 19 cases of "special circumstances."

Those which are alleged in White's case are "more than one offense of murder" and that "the victim was an elected or appointed official ... and the killing was carried out in retaliation for or to prevent the performance of the victim's official duties."

Guerrillas Increase Activity

BOGOTA, Colombia, (AP) — Colombia's leftist guerrillas are becoming among the most active in Latin America and the civilian government has given wide powers to the military to combat them.

The military campaign has led to charges of torture as soldiers bring in for questioning students, doctors, engineers, lawyers and other professionals.

About a half dozen guerrilla groups operate in this coffee-growing country of 28.5 million people who have one of the few democratically elected governments in Latin America.

Intelligence sources say none of the groups alone has the strength to mount a full-scale insurrection, but the activities of at least three groups have alarmed the government and the business community.

Guerrilla activity here is much greater now than in other South American countries, such as Argentina, but still has not reached the scope of violence in such Central American countries as Nicaragua and El Salvador.

In Colombia, the most troublesome of the groups in urban areas at the moment has been the Maoist-oriented People's Liberation Army. It claimed responsibility for the May Day bombing of the residence of Marines who guard the U.S. Embassy in Bogota, injuring two maids and a Marine. It also claims to have burned buses, lectured theater audiences at gunpoint, and seized a newspaper printing plant to force employees to turn out leftist propaganda.

Another group, the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia, operates in the countryside and is more violent. It continues to invade villages and small towns, usually capturing the police station and assassinating people they accuse of helping the army in the anti-guerrilla campaign.

Until recently the M-19 group had been the most active in urban areas. But the army's crackdown has brought M-19 activity almost to standstill. M-19's tactics included kidnappings and the holding of prisoners in underground "people's jails."

The government of President Julio Cesar Turbay, who was elected last June and took office in August, has called on the army, under state of siege regulations, to halt a wave of kidnappings, robberies and killings of officials and businessmen.

The government says that in the last three years subversive groups have killed 442 persons, robbed 53 banks and stolen almost $2 million.

Guerrillas have killed the president of the country's principal labor union, Jose Raquel Mercado; a former minister of goverment, Rafael Pardo Buelvas, and the president of the Colombian subsidiary of the Texas Petroleum Co., Nicolas Escobar Soto.

Businessmen who were kidnapped and released include the manager of Sears in Colombia, Donald Copper.

The army has arrested about 900 people since Jan. 3 in an effort to stamp out guerrilla activity. The arrests began only a few days after guerrillas tunneled into a military arsenal and stole more than 4,000 weapons, which the army claims have been recovered.

The military's role in the anti-guerrilla campaign has resulted in accusations that the army is torturing people it arrests. There is also public debate about the possibility of a military coup, even though Turbay had announced before taking office that he intended to make an all-out effort to wipe out the guerrillas.

There have been formal accusations from within the government itself of army torture. The first such accusation came from the medical section of the Justice Ministry, which claimed that more than 30 people had been tortured after being arrested by the army.

The army and Turbay have denied the accusations.

While the army has assumed the main role in the anti-guerrilla activity, its intervention in civilian affairs is not new in Colombia. There has been a state of siege in Colombia for 30 of the last 32 years, stemming from "La Violencia" — the 1948-58 period of Liberal-Conservative political violence that took an estimated 300,000 lives.

It is not uncommon to see a line of army jeeps mounted with heavy machine guns and loaded with soldiers moving about the city while other soldiers with submachine guns patrol downtown streets on foot.

The army's campaign of arests, interrogations and military trial almos certainly have hurt the guerrillas, but the leftists organizations appear determined to show that they are not beaten.

In addition to the bombing of the U.S. Marine residence May 1, the traditional day honoring the working class, guerrillas robbed an airline office in the capital, bombed a civil defense office in the Caribbean city of Santa Marta and burned five buses in the industrial city of Medellin in the northwest.

There appears to be no sign that state of siege will be lifted.

To the contrary, the minister of defense, Gen. Luis Carlos Camacho, recently said the country's security statutes under which the military's broad powers in civilian matters is legalized, need to be strengthened rather than rescinded.

DR. LAMB

Mononucleosis At 60

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a woman in my 60s. I had mono a year ago and it flared up again. What is the cause of mononucleosis and how does one get over it so it doesn't come back again?

DEAR READER — Infectious mononucleosis is known as the kissing disease. It's particularly apt to occur in the college-age population. It's caused by a virus and one way of transmitting it is by kissing.

You can get it in other ways and usually once you've had it and have totally recovered you're not likely to develop it again, just like when you recover from measles, chicken pox or any variety of viral infections.

Often the infection occurs in very early childhood and the symptoms are indistinguishable from a minor respiratory infection. These children then have immunity to infectious mononucleosis and don't have it later in life.

For a variety of reasons, some people escape this infection in early childhood and develop it in early adult life. In these instances the symptoms may be more prominent with sore throat, low-grade fever and a number of nonspecific symptoms. Your doctor usually makes the diagnosis on the basis of blood tests.

Usually the illness only lasts a few weeks, although there may be residual fatigue, faintness and such nonspecific symptoms for some months after the acute illness has subsided.

In some instances if the symptoms are marked, doctors will give steroid hormones to help decrease the symptoms. They really don't cure the infection.

Usually the illness has to run its course and should leave no permanent residual damage. There are very rare cases of a ruptured spleen and it's probably wise during the acute illness not to engage in excessive amounts of physical exertion.

How do you like being in the college-age crowd? Most parents and grandparents already have been exposed to the virus at some point in life and it's relatively uncommon for individuals in your age group to develop infectious mononucleosis.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What is the difference in an angiogram and a myelogram?

DEAR READER — An angiogram is an X-ray. Dye is injected into the circulation which is opague to X-ray. Pictures are then taken and you can outline the size of arteries, veins or chambers of the heart. If there's an obstruction in an artery that's being examined, you can see it because the flow of the dye is blocked.

A myelogram involves an injection into the space around the spinal cord. Since the dye is opaque to X-ray, you're able to outline anatomical structures that you oridinarily wouldn't be able to see. A ruptured disc that is sticking into the space around the spinal cord or even pressing against the cord can be seen by an indentation in the dye.

READERS WHO WANT information about hay fever or allergic rhinitis can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for The Health Letter number 8-4. Send your request to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Plant To Burn Wood Wastes

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Texfi Industries and the state Energy Institute plan to adapt a boiler at the textile company's Rocky Mount plant to burn wood, as part of an experiment to determine whether wood wastes are a practical source of energy for industries.

Lumber mills in North Carolina turn out about 30 million tons of wood wastes a year, enough to supply 5 to 10 percent of the state's energy needs, state officials have estimated.

The Texf boiler will be the first industrial unit to use wood gasification, a process that burns cleaner than conventional wood combustion.

Texfi will spend $375,000 and the state will add $200,000 for the project. Company officials have said they hope to save more than $100,000 a year and almost 1 million gallons of fuel oil if the process is satisfactory.

Gov. Jim Hunt and David DeCurtis, president of Texfi, recently signed a contract for the project.

"If wood energy is going to become popular, we must prove it will work under industrial conditions of profit and loss," Hunt said.

Firm Designs Space-Age Blackboard

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Are you ready for the latest in sophisticated educational tools? It's called ... the blackboard.

The one displayed by Pacific Telephone looks pretty much like the one you or grandpa wrote on in school. Except for those wires running out the back.

This space-age blackboard, called the Gemini 100, has a pressure-sensitive surface that transmits what you write with chalk onto a video screen that can be viewed hundreds of miles away. The writing is sent there through a telephone connection that is made the usual way, by simply dialing the number at the other end. And you can speak as you write.

The phone company says it designed the blackboard at the urging of educators to allow an instructor to effectively lecture a maximum number of pupils — whether they're in overflow rooms down the hall or at another school in the system — without the hassles of travel.

The board also has applications in industry, where it would permit one group to confer with another from day to day on design problems, for example.

The board is actually two sheets of Mylar holding a gas between them. Pressure of chalk, or even a tracing finger, makes changes in the gas that are fed through a transmitting system and onto the telephone lines in the form of impulses. At the distant point, the impulses trace out correctly on the video monitor.

And when it comes time to erase, the process is equally as remarkable. An old fashioned eraser is all that is needed to wipe the transmitting board clean and an electric eye tripped by removal of the eraser from its resting place makes sure the electronic end wipes clean, as well, swish by swish.

Boards can be set up in two locations, if desired, next to receiving monitors from the other location. With this arrangement, it's possible to watch your monitor to see what is being drawn at the distant point, then modify that writing or drawing by erasing the correct spot on your own blackboard. It's a strange sensation, but an effective new way of two-way communication.

Like all telephone company equipment, the blackboard and its associated equipment is rented, not bought.

Doctor Says Synthetic Hormone May Cause Cancer By Itself

WASHINGTON (AP) — The synthetic hormone DES, already linked to stimulating cancer, may actually start the disease by itself when it breaks down in the body, a scientist says.

The evidence could add a new dimension to the controversy about using DES, a cell-growth stimulant, in medicine and agriculture. The chemical is used extensively in animal feed to stimulate stock growth, but the government is considering proposals to limit its use because of the link to cancer.

Dr. John A. McLachlan, a toxicologist with the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences, said Thursday new evidence shows that not all DES passes unchanged through the body from ingestion to excretion.

Far from being inert, DES, the synthetic estrogen diethylstilbestrol, can be metabolized in the bodies of mammas, including man, McLachlan said.

Some chemicals produced in this breakdown actively react with other substances in the body, and it is suspected that some of the DES byproducts may initiate cancer, he said.

It is not believed substances can cause cancer unless they have the ability to react chemically with others.

Cancer is defined as the uncontrolled growth of abnormal cells.

"The overwhelming majority of scientists think estrogen (including DES) causes cancer by spurring cell growth initiated by other chemicals," McLachlan told a National Institutes of Health seminar.

Research now raises the possibility the hormones themselves may initiate the disease, a more active role than simply promoting and stimulating cancer from other causes, he said.

In 1975, Dr. Manfred Metzler, a German scientist who later worked with McLachlan in this country, first showed that DES could undergo major structural change that resulted in chemically unstable compounds. The scientists then demonstrated that these reactive compounds were produced in a number of mammalian species, including humans.

Estrogens are particularly active on tissues of the reproductive system and most of the cancer associated with the hormones are of the genital tract.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Dow Jones Closes Higher

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned upward today, rallying from its lowest level in more than two months.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which closed Monday at its lowest level since March 2, rose 4.07 to 829.09 by noontime today.

Gainers opened up a 4-3 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said investors remained concerned that rising energy prices and gasoline supply problems would aggravate inflation and slow economic activity.

But also noted strength among stocks picked out by traders as possible beneficiaries of the gasoline situation. Greyhound, for example, was up ¼ at 14⅞ after a gain of 1 Monday.

Resorts International class A stock added 1⅛ to 42¾ on the American Stock Exchange. The company reported first quarter earnings of $1.51 a share, up from 18 cents in the like period last year.

Houston Oil & Minerals, which came in with lower quarterly profits, fell ½ to 16⅞ on the Amex.

The NYSE's composite index rose .20 to 55.42, and the Amex market value index was up .26 at 176.43.

Volume on the Big Board reached 12.03 million shares at noontime, against 10 million at the same point Monday.

Sadat Ready To Resume Soviet Ties

By United Press International

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, facing mounting isolation in the Arab world, cautiously extended an olive branch to the Soviet Union today, declaring he was completely prepared to "reciprocate friendship with friendship."

But Sadat hedged his offer by announcing that he would reject any Soviet attempt at interfering in Egypt's affairs or imposing communist ideology on Egypt.

Sadat was addressing a political rally at a small village southeast of Alexandria at the conclusion of a week-long provincial tour of the Nile Delta.

"Moscow Radio broadcasts abuse of the Egyptian people every day, Sadat said. "Moscow incites the actions of the Arab dwarfs around us and rejoices in the rupture of Arab relations" with Cairo.

"And yet, we are completely prepared to reciprocate friendship with friendship," he said.

"But the Soviet Union should know that we reject interference in our affairs, we reject its methods and reject any attempt at imposing its regime on us," he said.

Sadat's offer coincided with speculation in diplomatic circles that Moscow might soften its opposition to the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty following the conclusion of SALT II with the United States.

It also coincided with reports about a possible revival of the Geneva Arab-Israeli peace conference, which would be chaired jointly by Russia and America, to bring other Arabs into the peace process. he said.

In Lebanon, after four days of bloody clashes, the two largest right-wing Christian militia groups said today they had merged into one organization.

THe move was seen as an effort to prevent further violence. Police sources said at least 25 people had been killed and about twice as many wounded in the fighting with rockets, mortars and machine guns — The worst between rival christian militias in 11 months. The battles were particularly severe in the southeast suburb of Furn Al Chebbak and Ain Rummaneh.

The right-wing Phalangist radio said that the Phalangist and National Liberal parties formally merged at midday today into a unified political command.

Tank Blaze At Plant Controlled

HARVEY, La. (AP) — An explosion and fire that tore through two storage tanks full of naphtha and alcohol at a chemical company was brought under control today and thousands of nearby residents returned to their homes.

Authorities launched an investigation of the blast which trapped four persons on the grounds of the burning plant for more than an hour and prompted wholesale evacuations.

"It looked like an atom bomb," said the owner of a saloon near the Witco Chemical Co. plant, which is across the Mississippi River from New Orleans.

Sheriff's department dispatchers, who would not allow their names to be used, said initially that four persons were trapped inside a burning building. However, all four were found safe near a back gate of the plant as firefighters advanced on the blaze behind a blanket of chemical foam.

As firefighters rolled to the scene, a sheriff's department patrol car cruised the streets of subdivisions, broadcasting an evacuation order over a bullhorn aimed out of the window.

Lt. Harold Klibert, public information officer for the sheriff's department, said there was no official evacuation. "We had an alert. We were not forcing people to leave their homes," he said.

However, officials in Civil Defense and the fire department said the heavily-populated area was ordered evacuated and that hordes of people left their homes.

Major streets in the area were jammed with slow-moving cars carrying families, pets and belongings. Road blocks were set up outside a square-mile area, and an evacuation headquarters was established in the parking lot of a supermarket.

Road blocks were taken down and residents were returning to their homes before midnight. Klibert said there were some minor injuries reported, but he could not elaborate.

The cause of the blaze was under investigation. There was no estimate of damages.

Carters Try To Avoid White House Visitors

WASHINGTON (AP) — When tourists line up outside the White House to see the inside of the executive mansion, there's always a chance they may catch a glimpse of its occupants.

Former Presidents Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford used to regularly stop by the visitors' line to chat. Once, Ford even had a group brought to the Oval Office to meet him. But the spontaneous greetings are less frequent in the Carter White House. The president has stopped by the line only on rare occasions. Rosalynn Carter says she uses the basement to avoid tourists when she goes from the residence to her office, especially if she's wearing blue jeans.

House Budget Faces Committee Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, finally settling on a moderately austere 1980 target budget, is heading for a rocky confrontation with the Senate, which favors tougher spending limits.

A conference committee of House and Senate members begins meeting Wednesday to reconcile budget differences between the two chambers. That work, complicated by the use of conflicting economic assumptions, is expected to last at least through Friday.

Meantime, members of the congressional Black Caucus called a news conference today to denounce the budget as "manifestly cruel and unkind toward the poor, blacks and minorities."

Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md., said the House vote was "symbolic of the abandonment of the principles of the Democratic Party." He called the budget approved by the House "a gross abandonment, a gross betrayal. It is unfair, it is unjust."

By a 220-184 vote Monday night, the House recommended $529.9 billion in spending and a $20.9 billion deficit — $7.5 billion below President Carter's proposed red-ink figure for fiscal 1980.

The White House issued a statement after the vote, praising the House's show of austerity and welcoming its support "of our determination to hold down government spending."

"We anticipate the same exercise of restraint in the upcoming Senate-House conference on the resolution and final action by the full Congress," said James McIntyre, director of the Office of Management and Budget.

The president, who called his own budget "lean and austere," recommended spending $532.3 billion and running a $28.4 billion deficit in fiscal 1980, the government bookkeeping year that starts Oct. 1.

Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., chairman of the House Budget Committee, said he was "pleased" with the vote for final passage, in which nine Republicans joined 211 Democrats for the margin of victory.

The opposition — 50 Democrats and 134 Republicans — largely consisted of conservatives who wanted deeper spending cuts and liberals who favored more money for social programs.

However, Giaimo and Democratic leaders, who prevailed on nearly every key vote during nine days of budget debate, were dealt one last-minute setback when the House approved a 0.5 percent across-the-board cut in spending. That vote was 255-144.

The amendment's sponsor, Rep. Joseph L. Fisher, D-Va., said he was using "a very small meat ax, nearer to the size of a scalpel" in making the $2.5 billion cut.

However, the amendment was strongly opposed by Giaimo, who said it would slash large sums of money from Social Security and defense. He said later its approval simply reflected a "feeling in the House that they wanted to cut somewhere."

Giaimo said he expects rough sledding in the conference committee on a number of major issues, including spending for social programs which were largely held to current levels by the Senate. On the whole, the House was more generous with social programs.

The House and Senate tentative budgets also differ on state revenue sharing, which the House would eliminate entirely but which the Senate leaves in.

On defense, the Senate and House would both permit slight increases after inflation is considered but not the 3 percent in "real growth" that the president requested to meet a commitment to NATO.

Overall, the Senate, using less optimistic economic projections than the House, proposed $532.6 billion in spending and a $29 billion deficit. The Senate also included a section on how to achieve a balanced budget in 1981, an issue the House did not address.

After the conference committee reaches a compromise on the spending proposals and the revised version is approved by the House and Senate, the target budget will be used as a guide by congressional committees in appropriating money.

The target budget will be reviewed late in the summer and then established as the government's permanent spending level. Normally, Congress retains the first target budget largely intact.

Peoples Temple Probe Points To Conspiracy

WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators said today there is circumstantial evidence of a "contingency conspiracy" behind Rep. Leo J. Ryan's assassination by members of an American cult in Guyana.

They also concluded after a six-month investigation that reports that a Peoples Temple execution squad exists to eliminate other national leaders "should not be totally discounted."

Present at the session to hear the report were several members of Ryan's family, including his daughter, Erin, and two sisters, Sheila Ryan and Shannon Torphy.

Ryan, D-Calif., three journalists and a cult defector were shot to death at an airstrip near the Peoples Temple's Jonestown settlement last Nov. 18. The next day, more than 900 cult members died in a mass murder-suicide led by their leader, Jim Jones.

"There is evidence to suggest Jones and some of his key lieutenants discussed and had 'understandings' to eliminate various individuals, including national political leaders," the staff report concluded. "Time may diminish the possible threat of this factor."

The investigators also said there is circumstantial evidence, but no hard evidence, that Jones had a "contingency conspiracy" to assassinate Ryan if the congressman could not be deluded on true conditions at the cult during his visit.

"Providing some moderate credence to the idea of a contingency conspiracy is the fact that the Jonestown suicide-murder ritual started before the Port Kaituma (airstrip) assailants returned to confirm the shootings of Rep. Ryan and others," the report said.

It said there also are unconfirmed reports that a large shipment of cyanide used in the mass murder arrived in Jonestown two days before Ryan's visit.

"Also related is the reported statement of a Jonestown survivor that several days before Mr. Ryan arrived at Jonestown he heard Jones say that the congressman's plane 'might fall from the sky.'"

The House investigators also agreed with the State Department's own conclusion last month that it had buried warnings of possible mass suicide at the cult in bureaucracy and reluctance to interfere.

As a result, the House report said, the State Department had four reports of potential violence scattered in files but told Ryan that "potential danger was 'unlikely.'"

However, the House study said, Ryan was advised more than once by advisers of "gut feelings" that there might be violence, but went to Guyana anyway.

"He tended to discount such warnings with the thought that his office as a congressman would protect him," the report said. "Moreover, he apparently was willing to face whatever danger might be present."

The report said evidence suggests that Ryan considered the accompanying reporters "as a shield" and the reporters in turn "regarded Mr. Ryan's status as a congressman as their best protection."

The House report concluded, as did the State Department, that one of the department's worst errors was to take no action on the written warning of cult defector Deborah Layton Blakey in May 1978, about six months before the mass suicide.

In fact, the House investigators said, Miss Blakey's warning was one reason U.S. Ambassador John Burke cabled the State Department for authority to ask Guyana to watch the cult more closely.

But they said Burke's request was so cautiously worded that the department tersely rejected it, saying the overture "could be construed by some as U.S. government interference."

Both the House and the State Departments investigations concluded that Burke's cable was cautiously worded because he was afraid the cult would obtain a copy under the Freedom of Information Act.

But the House report praised the "crisis management" of State Department officials after the airport murders in taking charge of survivors and getting them out the next day.

The House investigators also concluded the "allegations are false" that former U.S. consul Richard McCoy had a sexual liaison with a woman cult member and was therefore compromised.

But the House investigators said "there are repeated charges of a sexual liaison between Peoples Temple member Paula Adams and Laurence Mann, Guyana's ambassador to the United States."

The report said the cult could not have operated without some cooperation from Guyanese officials. It said there is testimony that two such officials supported the cult because they liked its socialist philosophy.

The report also said Jones conducted intimidation campaigns against reporters in San Francisco and harassed and intimidated public officials to support him.

It said cult members made threatening telephone calls to unfriendly reporters and their families, and tried to get San Francisco advertisers to boycott New West magazine for publishing an article "that exposed Jones."

Texas Station Owners Urged Not To Strike

"Mr. (Edward) Vetter is meeting with the group of retailers, the filling station operators, and is telling them in no uncertain terms that it would not be in their interest to do this," Clements said Monday.

The governor talked to reporters following a proclamation-signing session.

National gas station association officials have called for a strike this weekend, but Texas dealers so far say they will not participate.

Vetter also is in charge of developing a state gasoline contingency plan to move supplies of gasoline to areas hit by spot shortages in the future.

Jon Ford, Clements' press secretary, said Vetter is meeting with gas distributors on an "early warning system"

Ford said the warning system would enable state officials to learn early of planned supply cutbacks from distributors to retailers.

In other remarks, the governor praised House members for their preliminary vote this weekend on an initiative and referendum proposal.

Representatives voted Saturday to allow voters to direct the Legislature to enact or repeal a law. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby wanted lawmakers to retain ultimate authority in the process.

"I think they're finally being responsive to the people of Texas," Clements said.

The governor earlier called the Hobby-backed version "half a loaf."

"We got two-thirds now," Clements said.

He says he will call a special legislative session if lawmakers fail to submit to the voters a constitutional amendment giving the people the right to initiate and repeal laws.

The House delayed a decision on the entire initiative and referendum proposal until Tuesday.

However, the proposal as amended Saturday could wreck a legislative compromise if Hobby objects to it.

they were driving around early Friday, talking and drinking beer, while Martinez sat alone in the back seat, playing Russian roulette with a .38-caliber pistol.

The two said they heard a shot, and turned around to find Martinez, a bricklayer, lying in the back seat, bleeding and unconscious. The driver said he drove around about 20 minutes before taking the mortally wounded man to the hospital.

The two companions said Martinez had been known to play the dangerous game in the past.

Services for Martinez will be at 10 a.m. Thursday at the Henderson Funeral Directors Chapel with the Rev. Adolph Cortinas, pastor of the Pentecostal Holiness Church in Lubbock, officiating.

Burial will be in Peaceful Gardens in Woodrow under direction of Henderson Funeral Directors.

Survivors include his wife, Beatrice; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Domingo Martinez of Lubbock; four brothers, Domingo Jr., stationed with the U.S. Navy in the Philippines, and Freddy, David and Richard, all of Lubbock; and his grandparents, Fidel Martinez of Vernon and Catarena Ochoa of Austin.

Water Bill Advances In House

ers of a West Texas water authority.

"This will make them come back to the Legislature before they dig a ditch in our district," said Rep. Bill Sullivant, D-Gainesville.

The bill's sponsor, Rep. Bob Simpson, D-Amarillo, at first resisted attempts to limit the district's eminent domain to the High Plains area but later relented.

Patterson also won approval of an amendment that would require the water authority to pay local property taxes on all land leased or owned outside its jurisdiction. He and others from outside West Texas said local tax bases would suffer unless that stipulation was included.

Speaker Bill Clayton of Springlake, most of whose seven-county district would be within the authority's juridiction, cast the tie-breaker in a 64-63 vote on one unsuccessful amendment to exempt Ector County and Odessa.

Simpson persuaded colleagues to accept an amendment allowing state loans, but prohibiting grants, to the water district.

House members Saturday postponed a vote on the issue until today.

Senators Monday approved and sent to the governor a proposed constitutional amendment legalizing charity bingo games on a local option basis, and approved and sent to the House a bill allowing the state to demand custody of any fetus surviving an abortion.

The anti-abortion bill by Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, prohibits doctors and other medical personnel from doing anything to destroy an infant born live as a result of an abortion.

Mengden said the bill "will make it clear a living human being born alive after an abortion is entitled to the same rights, powers and protection as are granted by the laws of this state to all other human beings."

The bill authorizes the Department of Human Resources to assume custody of a child born in an attempted abortion unless the operation was done to save the life of the mother, or unless the father was unaware of the abortion and wants the child.

Texas Legislative Roundup

AUSTIN (UPI) — Happenings Monday in the Texas Legislature:

Senators approved 28-0 a bill encouraging the use of solar and wind energy devices in Texas.

The bill by Sen. Bob Vale, D-San Antonio, prohibits utility companies from setting discriminatory rates for solar energy users and allows up to 1 percent higher return on investment to public utility companies which invest in solar energy systems.

The bill, which now goes to the House, also establishes a licensing board and licensing requirements for persons who install solar energy devices.

The House rejected a bill that would have allowed state banks to establish branch offices anywhere within 750 feet of their main banking facilities.

The bill by Rep. Bob Ware, R-Fort Worth, would have extended the present limit of 50 feet, but opponents argued the extension amounted to branch banking, which is prohibited by the state constitution.

"This bill is purely 100 percent a branch banking bill to benefit the largest banks to the detriment of smaller banks," said Rep. John Wilson, D-La Grange.

"If we accept this bill, we will authorize banks to have branches within a 40-acre area. There is no prohibition against one of these branches being located in the same building as an existing state chartered bank."

Ware's bill was defeated 71-59.

The Senate approved a bill restricting commercial fishing to persons who spend at least half their time in that occupation, a move opponents said would put weekend moonlighters out of the commercial fishing business.

Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, the bill's sponsor, said part-time fishermen frequently cause problems by setting nets and leaving them unattended for long periods of time.

Schwartz's bill also allows the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to set fees for fishing licenses for non-residents and to adopt reciprocal agreements with other states to allow their sport fishermen to pay the same fee Texans pay to fish in other states.

The Senate Economic Development Committee unanimously approved and sent to the full Senate a bill raising the state's interest ceiling on home mortgage loans.

The bill, which passed the House last week, would abolish the existing 10 percent interest ceiling and establish a floating ceiling 2 percent higher than the interest rate on U.S. Treasury Bonds, up to a maximum of 12 percent.

The proposal was revised slightly by the committee, and is expeced to come up for full Senate consideration later in the week.

If approved by the Senate, it must return to the House before being sent to the governor.

Senators approved and returned to the House a bill abolishing the quarter system in Texas public schools, and returning to a semester system.

Backers of the bill say the quarter system has not lived up to predictions it would save money and provide more efficient use of school facilities.

The measure passed the House earlier, but senators amended it so another House vote will be required.

go up, it is consumption which will make all the difference," said Yamani. "It is your duty as a consumer to reduce the consumption to the lowest possible level."

A Transportation Department survey said Monday there are waiting lists and higher prices for small cars, which saw a 39 percent sales increase in the first quarter of 1979 compared to last year.

From elsewhere came more reports of gasoline shortages.

"The stations have been cut 15 to 20 percent over last year's sales, and you can't take that much juice out of the marketplace and get through the month," said Tom Anderson, president of the Pennsylvania Service Dealers Association.

Ed Terkelson, operator of DX Service in Omaha, Neb., said he planned to spend Memorial Day fishing. "I'm just going to let it run out," he said of his dwindling supply of gasoline.

Some gas dealers organizations have threatened a four-day shutdown this month in protest of federal controls on their markups. The Justice Department is looking into the possibility of bringing antitrust action against such a move.

speed limit to 50 miles per hour, rather than the controversial and much violated 55 mph speed now in force.

The country needs a "person who can get the message across and who can convince the American public we have a crisis," he said.

"We need to move swiftly to develop other sources of energy," he said, adding "we have enough coal to provide our energy needs for the next 200 years," but the industry is in a "slump" because of government regulations.

Development of nuclear energy needs to be "slowed down" until the American people receive "absolute assurances the problems found at Three Mile Island in Pennsylvania will not reoccur... and that nuclear waste will not come back to haunt us."

Good relations with Mexico will be crucial in the future because of that country's large supply of oil, he said, asking "Who better than Fernandez in the White House to deal with (President Jose Lopez) Portillo of Mexico?"

Fernandez is convinced the future of the U.S. heavily depends on this country's relationship with other countries in the Western Hemisphere.

The U.S. needs to "begin taking care of its backyard," he said, noting communism is "running rampant" in the Caribbean and Cuba's Fidel Castro is introducing communism into Central America "without fear" of reprisal from the U.S.

Three Hurt By Sniper In Irving

IRVING (AP) — A sniper, firing a rifle from two overpasses on Texas 114, shot at seven Terminal cabs and one truck late Monday night, injuring three persons, police said.

The truck driver, Kent Burnett, was wounded in the thigh and two cab drivers were cut by flying glass. None were injured seriously.

"The dude's in custody and we're discussing the matter with him," said police Capt. Joe Lowe, who declined to indentify him.

He said the man was picked up about an hour after the snipings.

About five months ago, a sniper shot and killed two persons in cars driving on Texas 183 in Irving, only a few miles from where Monday night's shootings occurred. A high-powered rifle was used then.

Lowe said he could not say if the shootings were related.

"The M.O. (method of operation) is the same," he said. "But the weapon is different and that's all we know at this time. We have a statement and we have a weapon."

Cabbie Nathaniel Lewis suffered cuts from flying glass when his windshield was shattered while he took a passenger to Dallas from Dallas-Fort Worth Airport.

Authorities said Leon Benny McGriff drove his taxi to the scene of the shooting, at the highway's intersection with O'Connor Road, and the cab was hit. The shattering glass also injured McGriff.

A third taxi, dispatched to the scene, was fired upon also, and a fourth taxi, with two persons inside, was pinned down by a series of five shots after they arrived just before midnight, police said. A bullet hit the door of the third taxi, officials said.

Pistol Discharges In DA's Office

It may not have been the shot heard round the world, but it was heard round most of the courthouse — and when the echoes had died away, the embarrassment more than equalled the surprise.

Some investigators in the Criminal District Attorney's office were discussing whether a pistol in a homicide case could have discharged accidentally. To demonstrate his theory, one of them took out his own pistol.

The gun discharged — accidentally — sending a bullet through the ceiling. It richoceted off concrete above the ceiling and zipped back down into a snack bar area refrigerator.

"It happened, and we did an official investigation and the subject concerned received an official reprimand," Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford said today.

The pistol went off in the hand of an officer who Montford said "is a fine officer and a fine investigator.

"He didn't try to alibi for it," Montford said. "People make mistakes. What can I say? I wasn't real happy about it."

The officer said it was his first such mishap in 30 years of law enforcement work.

Montford said there is an office regulation that pistols are not to be unsheathed in the office.

"There were a bunch of red faces, I'll guarantee you that," Montford said.

Judge Bars Extradition Bid By U.S.

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The United States is going to appeal the denial of its request for extradition of three Chileans accused of ordering the 1976 assassination of exiled Chilean exile Orlando Letelier.

Supreme Court President Israeli Borquez on Monday rejected the U.S. request for extradition of former secret police boss Juan Manuel Contreras and two other army officers. The judge said the American case was based on a "paid accusation," and impartial evidence was lacking.

Borquez was referring to the testimony of Michael Townley, an American formerly employed by the Chilean secret police who in exchange for a lightersentence confessed to leading the group that planted a bomb in Letelier's car in Washington, D.C.

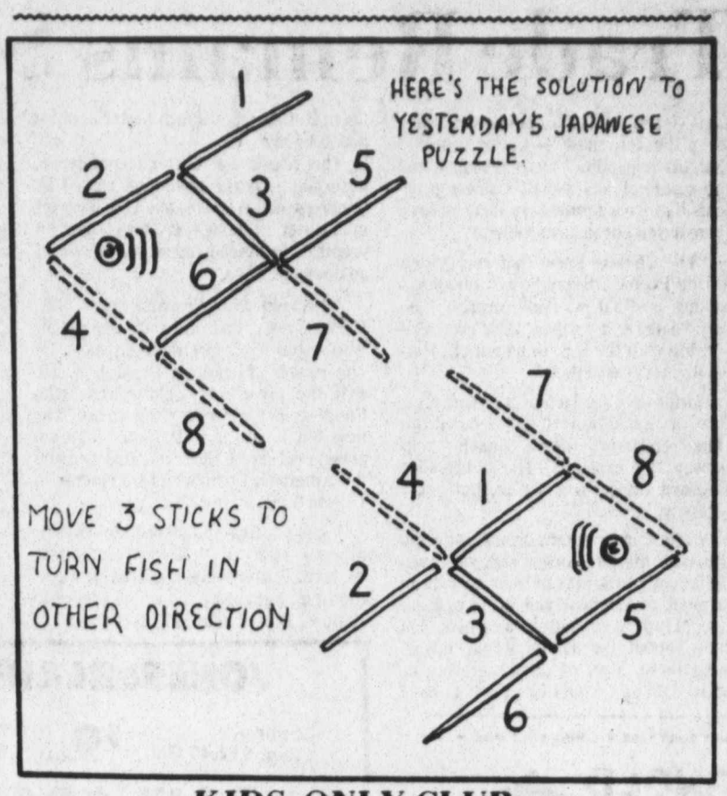
The bomb killed the exiled foe of Gen. Augusto Pinochet's military regime and an American associate, Ronni Moffitt, and wounded Mrs. Moffitt's husband, Michael. Townley was sentenced last Friday in Washington to from 40 months to 10 years in prison, while two Cuban exiles on his murder team got life, one got eight years and two others are still at large.

Alfredo Etcheberry, the Chilean lawyer who represented the U.S. government, said he would appeal Borquez's decision and contended his evidence was "sufficiently solid." The appeal will be decided by a panel of five supreme court justices, and a reversal of the court president's decision is considered unlikely.

Borquez in his ruling said after the appeal process is completed, the evidence should be submitted to the Chilean military court for an investigation to determine whether it should try the three men. But such a trial was also considered unlikely.

Etcheberry and U.S. Ambassador George W. Landau were to go to Washington later this week to talk with State and Justice Department officials. The U.S. government is expected to call Landau home indefinitely and sharply reduce the size of its embassy staff if it does not win extradition or a promise of a trial in Chile.

Sens. Frank Church and Edward Kennedy, the chairmen of the Senate Foreign Relations and Judiciary committees, asked President Carter in a letter to recall the ambassador and to consider suspending all assistance, credits and financial guarantees to Chile, estimated at about $10 million.



KIDS-ONLY CLUB

Household Items Used For Parties

By SHARI LEWIS

When you're putting party plans together, try to get real mileage out of each object you buy. For example, if you can create decorations and party games out of balloons, then you only have to shop for balloons.

If you'd like to avoid that kind of shopping entirely, save ribbons, bows and lengths of wool from Christmas and birthday gift packages — and then use 'em to make party hats, centerpieces and even props for games.

For an icebreaker to help kids (and adults) mix at the beginning of a party, cut lots of lengths of ribbon or wool. Just make sure that there are two pieces of each length. Cut some so that they are ridiculously long, others may be just the length of your thumb. The object is to locate and match up with the other person who has the cord of the same length. (Color doesn't matter).

If you've lots of ribbon or wool in only two or three colors, so much the better. After the mixer, play color-coordinated musical chairs. Take, say, red and blue bows. Tie one to each chair in the usual manner until the music stops — but at that point, each player may only sit in a chair that has a bow of the same color as the ribbon or wool in his or her hand.

Juanita Kreps Expects Support Of Trade Pact

HONG KONG (AP) — Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps arrived from China today and told reporters "all indications so far show Congress will support" the new U.S.-China trade agreement.

Richard Cooper, her undersecretary for economic affairs, said he expects Congress will approve the agreement by mid-June. He said this was an "optimistic but not unreasonable" target.

Mrs. Kreps said negotiations for the textile agreement setting quotas on Chinese textile exports to the United States will start May 20 and she expects that agreement to be concluded a few weeks later. The Carter administration has said it would not send the trade agreement to Congress until it gets the textile agreement.

The trade agreement, which opens the way to full economic relations between the two countries, was initialed by China's foreign trade minister and Mrs. Kreps on Monday, signifying their approval of its terms.

It still has to be approved by the two governments, signed and submitted to Congress for approval.

It provides for reciprocal most-favored-nation treatment, reducing U.S. duties on a number of Chinese exports, and smoothes the way for China to receive credits from the U.S. Export-Import Bank.

However, Mrs. Kreps said the agreement is not likely to reap a "bonanza" in U.S.-China trade. She called the pact "a framework within which trade can go forward."

"... It removes some of the possible hazards from the business point of view in doing business with China," she said.

She declined to give specifics of the agreement but said it allows trade between the two countries to "expand to full potential."

Mrs. Kreps said the textile agreement will not affect textile exports to the United States by Hong Kong, South Korea and other countries.

Asked about the cutback in the Chinese modernization program, Mrs. Kreps said: "The readjustment includes more careful consideration of the infrastructure that is necessary to modernize, in particular the need to develop hydroelectric power and transport which will support industry."

Cooper said the readjustment is not likely to affect U.S.-China trade.

Two-way trade between the two countries in 1978 totaled $1.1 billion. It is expected to rise to about $2 billion in the current year and to $4 billion by 1985.

In addition to the trade agreement, Mrs. Kreps and her team signed four science and technology agreements with the Chinese, a trade exhibit agreement, opened maritime negotiations and said talks on a civil aviation agreement would begin as soon as possible.

El Salvador Takeover Discounted

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — President Carlos Humberto Romero is under increasing right-wing pressure to end a wave of anti-government protests but foreign diplomatic and top government sources insist there is no threat to his military regime.

"Nobody in the military wants the responsibility of this country in a crisis like this," said a foreign diplomatic source who asked not to be identified. "There are divisions in the military always vying for power, but Romero always has to contend with that."

Foreign Minister Jose Natonio Rodriguez Porth also discounted the possibility of a takeover, saying "There is always speculation in the minds of some people but it is not a solution that can happen in this country now."

Militant peasants occupied three more churches Monday in their campaign to force the release of three leaders they say are jailed, and workers at 14 factories held brief strikes in support of the group

The churches taken over were in Suchitoto, Apopa and Aguilares, all within an hour's drive of here. Factory workers walked off the job in flurries of four-hour strikes and 150 union members at a bakery blocked off the premises and said they would stay inside.

Militants also occupied a high school Monday but said they would leave today.

The protests began May 4 when the worker-peasant Popular Revolutionary Bloc took hostages in the Costa Rican and French Embassies and occupied San Salvador's cathedral. Police killed 21 pro-Bloc demonstrators outside the cathedral a week ago.

The militants left the Costa Rican Embassy on Wednesday but took the Venezuelan Embassy and hostages there on Friday.

Two of the five leaders whose release originally was demanded, were freed, and the government insists it is not holding the other three. The militants say the government is holding them and have vowed to stand firm until they are released.

Soviet Craft Docks With Space Station

MOSCOW (UPI) — The unmanned Soviet Progress 6 cargo capsule successfully docked with the Salyut 6 space laboratory today, delivering a vital cargo of fuel and supplies to two cosmonauts who have been in orbit 79 days.

The official Soviet news agency Tass said Progress 6, carrying an estimated 2.5 tons of supplies, docked with Salyut 6 at 2:19 a.m. EDT.

The docking came just over 48 hours after the robot cargo capsule was launched from the Soviet Central Asian cosmodrome at Baikonur.

The capsule was carrying an estimated ton of rocket and jet fuel for the space lab engines and a ton and a half of food, water and oxygen regeneration equipment.

Also aboard was a tulip bulb that was expected to bloom shortly and decorate the dinner table for cosmonauts Vladimir Lyakhov and Valery Ryumin, who have been in space since Feb. 25.

The tulip was part of a series of biological experiments, but Soviet ground controllers said it is one item the two cosmonauts have been anxious to receive.

The capsule also was expected to restock the lab in preparation for the launch of another set of cosmonauts about May 25.

Soviet sources predicted Soyuz 34 would be sent up late this month with two cosmonauts — including a Hungarian spaceman — aboard.

Last month, the Soviets launched Soyuz 33, with a Soviet and a Bulgarian cosmonaut board, but the spaceship failed to dock with the space station and returned to Earth 48 hours after liftoff.

As is customary on such flights, the Progress 6 capsule is taking letters, newspapers and packages from Earth to the Salyut 6 cosmonauts.

The Progress capsules have played a major role in the Soviet Union's highly successful spacelab program.

University Ordered To Pay Students

WASHINGTON (AP) — Georgetown University has been ordered to pay two students, who complained about the cleanliness of dormitory bathrooms, $70 each.

D.C. Superior Court Judge Eugene Hamilton ordered the university to pay the money to roommates Stacie Glass and Patricia Rooney for "breach of implied contract" for not adequately cleaning two bathrooms in Copley dormitory. "This strikes at the very heart of the fitness of these premises for human occupation — the bathroom," Hamilton said. The women complained shortly after the school eliminated professional maid service for the dorm's bathrooms to save money. The university has until Wednesday to appeal.

Call For Shah's Assassination Could Cause Legal Problems

By THOMAS KENT

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The revolutionary regime's call for the assassination of Shah Mohmmad Reza Pahlavi, some of his relatives and former high-ranking officials who escaped abroad caused a sensation n Iran.

But the regime's promise of immunity for the killers is meaningless since none of those on the list is likely to go to any of the countries — Libya, Iraq or Syria, for example — that might honor the pledge.

"The terror against the shah has begun," a Tehran newspaper headlined after the head of the Tehran revolutionary court announced the hit list at a news conference Sunday and said the assassins "cannot be arrested by any foreign government as terrorists because they will be carrying out the orders of Iran's Islamic revolutionary court."

Analysis

Ayatollah Sadeq Khalkhani's "authorized" death list also included the shah's wife, Empress Farah Diba, and her mother; the shah's sister, Princess Ashraf; his last three prime ministers and his former ambassador to Washington, Ardeshir Zahedi.

Khalkhani's declaration clearly pleased many Iranians, some of whom have used portraits of the shah in recent months for target practice. But whether any of them would court martyrdom to do the ayatollah's bidding was an unanswered question.

Previously the revolutionary regime said it wanted to bring the shah back to Iran for trial. The Foreign Ministry said in February it would begin extradition proceedings wherever he settles, and plans reportedly have been drawn up for a show trial in a Tehran sports stadium.

Hani al-Hassan, the Palestine Liberation Organization's representative in Tehran, said last month that PLO leader Yasser Arafat issued standing orders for the shah's capture after Arafat visited Iran in February. Al-Hassan said had the ousted ruler remained longer in Morocco, his second stop after leaving Iran, "we would have gotten results."

The PLO has trained commandos, although their assassination record is spotty, and has made solid connections with the Iranian revolutionaries. But it would seem national pride would require the killing of the shah to be accomplished by Iranians, and there is no indication any Iranians have been trained for such a mission.

The 59-year-old shah is belived to be heavily guarded by a private security force as well as by local police in the Bahamas, where he has been since March 30. The government there has indicated he will not be welcome much longer. But it is assumed there will be extraordinary security precautions wherever he goes.

If an assassination operation succeeded, the killers would have to escape to be sure of not being prosecuted. If they were captured, Iran could use its oil to put on pressure for their release. But Ayatollah Khalkhani's assertion that "the people of Iran have condemned" the shah and the others on the hit list would be no defense in the United States, Europe or any other country where the targets are or are likely to go.

Nor would the government of any such country recognize the right of an assassin to carry out a death sentence handed down in absentia by a revolutionary court. Extradition would be the only legal avenue open to the Iranian government, and it would be a long and probably fruitless process.

Such legal arguments anger supporters of the revolution.

"Where was international law when the shah was killing people when he was in power?" a young university student asked angrily. "When 98 or 99 percent of the people in this country want him to die, it's no crime to kill him."

Taiwan Trade Remains Strong

By PHILIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL

American businessmen may have wasted a lot of hand-wringing when the U.S. switched its diplomatic ties from the Republic of China to the Communist government on the mainland. According to one long-time participant in Taiwan trade, things there have never been so good.

What's more, Everitt Carter says, the Chinese on Taiwan will benefit from the changed relationship because "they were too close to the U.S."

"Now the umbilical cord has been cut and they'll have to become more agressive in a marketing sense all over the world," he contends.

Carter is chairman and president of Oak Industries of Crystal Lake, Ill., a diversified manufacturing and home entertainment company that produces electronic components on Taiwan. Carter has about 20 years of experience in dealing with the Chinese.

Although he was "very surprised and disappointed" by the severing of relations — and the lack of advance warning given the Taiwanese — Carter concedes that his unhappiness was personal, not the result of any social business problems that have resulted. In fact, he says, there haven't been any problems.

"The Chinese knew that recognition (of the People's Republic of China) was coming, so that was no surprise," he says. "They didn't expect their own relationship with the U.S. to be cut off. Personally, I was ashamed."

Carter says the lack of a formal presence on the island is not a handicap. "The embassy wasn't much help anyway," he explains. "The ambassador (Leonard Unger) was a plus, but not a necessity."

While Carter is comfortable with the situation, the directors of Oak were not. He recently took nine of them to Taiwan to meet government and business leaders. "They were quite concerned, you know, about the safety of our investment there. Most of them were not as up to date as I would like them to have been. But they feel much better about it now," he says.

The reason for Carter's confidence, he explains, is the resolution passed by Congress which spells out U.S. interest in Taiwan, although it stops short of promises to defend the island in case of an invasion.

"The old treaty was 25 years old," Carter says, "and most of the people who wrote it are not there anymore for one reason or another. Besides, it said that the president would consult with Congress before ending the treaty. The new bill is stronger. It spells out Congress' concern. I think it's stronger and the American Chamber of Commerce in Taiwan thinks so, too,"

Oak is backing up Carter's confidence with its cash. Last December, after President Carter announced the new relationship, but before the actual break in relations, Oak announced plans for a 17 percent expansion in its manufacturing operation on Taiwan.

Carter, who is also a founder and executive director of the US-ROC Economic Council, says the Taiwanese also are going along with plans made before the break. "They aren't big 'Buy America' campaign and they're going right along with it. They plan to spend $20 billion on 'Buy American' in the next three years. They spent $5 billion just last year."

"They know now that they have to do it all themselves and that's just what they're going to do," he says.

The Oak chairman, making no effort to hide his personal opinions, says the U.S. can expect more competition from the Taiwan Chinese and from those on the mainland, too. "Why did we need the P.R.C.?" he asks. "Their oil is tough to get at, they have no industrialization, they don't have much money. What they wanted was top open a door to the U.S.

Monterey Hits Highway

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

PAMPA — For the past couple of weeks, Bobby Moegle has had more on his mind than Monterey baseball...

"It took a while, but I was finally able to talk my wife out of buying the (new) car," smiled Moegle. "It was a struggle though."

And on the subject of struggles, Moegle's Monterey Plainsmen will open the bidistrict playoffs here today against the Pampa Harvesters. Gametime is slated for 4 p.m. for the first contest in the best-of-three series.

Monterey captured the 4-AAAA district title 10 days ago by splitting a doubleheader with Coronado to win its 18th loop championship. The Plainsmen then had to wait until Friday before learning who they would meet in the first round of the playoffs.

Pampa edged Amarillo High 5-4 in a one-game playoff to win its first ever district championship and at the same time ended the Sandies' three-year claim on the district title.

"I would much rather play Amarillo High than Pampa for one reason," said Moegle. "It's 60 miles further to Pampa."

Monterey will bring a 24-7 record into the action, while Pampa sports a 19-5 mark. Kent Potts (9-2) will do the pitching for Monterey, while the Harvesters will counter with Steve Stout (8-1).

"Steve's best pitch is the fastball," said Pampa coach Steve Scott. "His fastball makes his curve more effective. Its been a while since Steve's fastball has been clocked, but the time, the radar gun registered 87 miles per hour."

No, observed Moegoe, Stout won't the hardest-throwing pitcher his team will face this season. Coronado's Gene Segrest had that distinction.

In regard to his own pitcher, Moegle decided to throw Potts because the Monterey coach feels the junior right-thander has regained his non-district form.

"The real tester was Hereford," said Moegle. "Kent only allowed two hits. Against Coronado, he was almost untouchable in the two innings of relief he worked.

"I think it was just that his arm was dead," added Moegle. "Just the rest it received made the difference."

What may make the difference today from Monterey's standpoint is to keep Pampa from getting on base with checked-swing base hits.

"That really worries me," said Moegle. "If I was a gambler, I'd put someone on the right field line. What I need is a rover. In the two games I watched, I only saw one right-handed batter pull the ball. The rest slapped the ball into right field."

But despite Moegle's observation, Harvester mentor Scott doesn't believe that Pampa is a bad hitting ball club.

"We've got four or five kids that hit with some power," said the Pampa coach. "In fact, we were one of the best hitting teams in this district."

Second baseman Mack Jennings' .392 average paced the Harvester offense this season. But Monterey has five batters that will carry higher averages to the plate today, Potts (.446), third baseman Ricky Pinkerton (.444), first baseman Tom Bevins (.438), second baseman Randy Ledbetter (.411) and designated hitter Steve Coleman (.395).

After today's single contest, the series will move to Lubbock and Lowrey Field Friday for one or a doubleheader — if two games are necessary.

DH Leads Turnaround

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Late on a rainy Friday morning, Tommy Inman stood at bat. He carefully measured the pitch, then belted it off the right-center field wall in Arlington Stadium.

The ball died on the wet stadium turf and Inman, driving hard, pumped around the bases for a triple. The hit didn't mean much in terms of immediate return as LCC already led the game 4-3 (and would eventually beat the University of Dallas 6-3 in the first round of the NAIA District VIII tournament). But the long-term reward is immense.

You see, Inman broke his ankle in the first inning of LCC's first home game this season and he wasn't even supposed to be working out yet, according to the doctor's prognosis.

His early return is one of the things that is keeping LCC going in post-season play.

He was named the designated hitter on the district's all-tournament team, accounting for 7 Chaparral runs and three hits over the three-day affair.

"I guess I was just itching to get back out there," he said of his blazing return. "It's really tough sitting on the bench."

Inman's run-scoring (he scored six himself and drove in another) was really no surprise to those who have watched him play before.

Last season, he lead the nation in runs scored with 92. That, combined wth his freshman totals, gives him 154 over two years. At the same time he has knocked in 102 runs and hit for a .351 average. Both his freshman and sophomore years he was named all-district in left field.

One would think that with stats like that, the pro scouts would be panting but so far he hasn't been drafted. He's not anxious about it, though, and you can bet he's getting some great counseling — his father is a scout for the Montreal Expos.

"He (his father) wants me to play pro ball, and I want to play pro ball, but that's just something we're not really expecting. That'd be kind of icing on the cake."

Inman, an education major, says he's

Horns Top Arkansas For Conference Title

AUSTIN (AP) — There seemed to be little doubt in anyone's mind, especially the Texas Longhorns, that they were going to win the third annual Southwest Conference baseball tournament.

"We expected to win it when we started and we simply went out there and won it," Horn Captain Mark Chelette said Monday after UT had sliced up Arkansas 12-6 to win the tournament title and advance to the NCAA Central Regional playoffs.

"I think we proved today that we're the better ball club. We've taken some pride in our No. 1 ranking. Everybody has felt that we were the best and we wanted to play like it."

Texas' rowdy, cheering fans won't have to go farther than Disch-Falk Field to see the Longhorns continue in the playoffs. SWC officials announced during the game that the Central Regionals would be played here May 25-27.

The Longhorns quickly established the trend of the game in the first inning when they scored two runs on a throwing error by starting pitcher Bob McHale. They boosted it to 6-1 in the fifth on Terry Salazar's three-run home run and Keith Walker's double.

Arkansas scored once in the fourth on John Hennell's grounder and got three more in the fifth on Hennell's double and a two-run single by Johnny Ray.

That's when the Longhorns opened the flood gates with five more runs in the seventh. The runs came on singles by Jim Tjader, Joe Bruno and Kevin Shannon and errors by Arkansas shortstop Larry Wallace and third baseman Bob Kauffman.

All-Star Vote Belongs In Fans' Hands

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Baseball fans across the United States and Canada begin voting this week for the starting teams who will face each other in the 50th renewal of the All-Star Game, set for Tuesday night, July 17, in the controlled climate of the Seattle Kingdome.

The fan vote, frowned upon by some, is applauded here as perhaps the most significant accomplishment of Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's administration.

This is a showcase game, a place to salute baseball's greatest players, and it belongs to the fans. Sure, sometimes they make mistakes. Sometimes they vote for reputations instead of current production. But so what? Is it so very bad for a star who's on the way down to be called back for one more curtain call?

Analysis

It's certainly better for the public to make a mistake in this vote than when it goes to the polls to elect a president. And that one, by the way, is the only election with more votes cast than the baseball All-Star balloting.

For a long time, the fans were not asked their opinions about who ought to be representing the two leagues in this midsummer game. That's because in 1957 they forced baseball to take the vote away after some dreadful ballot box stuffing in Cincinnati.

The Reds, who finished fourth in the National League that season, strictly on merit, nevertheless had seven starters elected to the National League All-Star team. That was courtesy of their forgiving home fans, who flooded the polls with neatly clipped newspaper coupons carrying the names of all the Cincinnati starters.

Somehow, first baseman George Crowe missed out, but he was the only Reds' regular who didn't make it.

That bit of voting shennanigans convinced baseball that the fans couldn't handle the ballot and so it was taken away and turned over to the professionals — the players, coaches and managers.

Don't for one moment, however, think that giving the vote to the people who allegedly know the game best eliminated the inequities. Quite the contrary. The ground rules prevented the voters from casting ballots for teammates but they found a way around those regulations. Joe Reichler, a former sports writer who now works for the Baseball Promotion Corp., was in charge of counting the votes and tells this story.

"Suppose two players at a single position were close," Reichler said. "Teammates couldn't vote for their own guy but they wouldn't vote for the other guy either. They'd vote instead for some third player who didn't belong. What they were doing was depriving deserving players of votes in the hope of helping their teammate."

Reichler counted all the votes at home in one long weekend and that's how the starting teams were picked from 1958 until 1969. Then, along came Commissioner Kuhn, computer punch cards and a new voting system underwritten by the Gillette Company's Safety Razor Division. And now, instead of 500 or so players, coaches and managers selecting the teams, the voting belongs to the fans.

From a less-than-inspired start of just over two million votes in 1970, the balloting, much like baseball's attendance, has enjoyed an impressive boom period.

Fan participation grew every year, with the biggest jump from 1976, when just over eight million votes were cast, to 1977 when more than 12 million were received.

The vote cracked the 12 millin mark again last year and projections are for the same kind of response this season when the balloting begins Saturday.

None of this would have been possible without the cooperation of the Gillette people, whose involvement in sports even predates the start of the All-Star series in 1933, and without the modern technology of computers that process the ballots.

The computerized counting is a fact about which Mrs. Reichler is particularly grateful. After all, how would her living room look if her husband was still the chief ballot counter?

Manning Saves Tribe

By United Press International

Rick Manning's strong right arm snuffed out a seventh-inning threat and lifted Rick Waits to a well-deserved victory Monday night.

Manning, Cleveland's outstanding defensive center fielder, turned Tim Johnson's one-out, bases-loaded fly into an inning-ending double play and Waits retired the last six Toronto batters to cap a two-hit performance and give the Indians a 1-0 victory over the Blue Jays.

"A pitcher needs a play like that to keep him in the ballgame," said Manning, who made only two errors last year in 144 games, recording seven assists. "I've been working every day on charging the ball in the outfield."

Dave McKay, who singled off Waits in the fourth, doubled to open the Toronto seventh and Rick Cerone walked. Luis Gomez ran for McKay and both runners advanced on Al Woods' sacrifice bunt. After Alfredo Griffin walked to fill the bases, Johnson lifted a fly to center and Gomez was out trying to score the tying run from third.

The Indians scored the game's only run in the first inning, and it was unearned off hard-luck loser Tom Underwood, 0-5, who yielded only six hits. With one out, Paul Dade singled and Manning walked. Andre Thornton grounded to short and Dade raced home when second baseman McKay dropped Griffin's throw for the force play at second.

Reds 7, Padres 4

Dan Driessen and George Foster combined for six hits and five RBI as the Reds increased their NL West lead over Houston to a full game.

Tigers 3, Yankees 1

Steve Kemp singled home the go-ahead run in the eighth inning and scored an insurance run on Lance Parrish's infield hit to lead Detroit over New York behind the four-hit pitching of Milt Wilcox.

Rangers 7, Twins 5

Royals 1, Mariners 0

Pinch-hitter Pete LaCock's eighth-inning sacrifice fly scored George Brett from third base with the game's only run and lifted Kansas City to victory behind the five-hit pitching of Rich Gale.

Former Tech Aide Quits

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — New York Giants linebacker coach Bill Parcells has resigned because of personal reasons, a team spokesman said Monday.

The Giants also announced that Don Pollard, 39, will replace Parcells, according to Ed Croke, a Giants spokesman.

Pollard was named defensive coordinator at Iowa State University several months ago. Previously, he filled the same post at Oklahoma State University, Croke said.

Green Bay In Black With Record Profit

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packers said Monday that they had a record profit of $1,520,903 for the 1978 National Football League season.

Because the Packers are a municipally-owned organization, they must make public their financial records. They are the only team in the NFL that has to do so.

Fred N. Trowbridge, treasurer of Green Bay Packers, Inc., announced the profit figure during the club's annual stockholder meeting. He compared it with the best previous figure—$1,139,379 in 1970, and noted the club had a profit of only $266,810 in 1977 after taxes.

He said the increase stems from revenue under the new television contract which the NFL put into effect last year, worth about $5 million in the 1978 season for the Packers compared with about $2 million for 1977.

Trowbridge said expenses also increased. The salary budget, he said, expanded from about $4 million to almost $5 million.

Television contracts, he said, are "the base of our success financially.

"We, of course, have no idea what the new contract will bring, but we believe it will not be substantially different from what it is now," he said.

He said the corporation is in sound financial condition, with stockholder equity of $9,342,000 in 1977 having increased to $10,863,854 at the end of 1978.

The total worth of the corporation increased from $11,823,230 in 1977 to $15,211,863, he said.

Income prior to the regular season decreased from $700,798 to $388,804, reflecting in part a reduction in the number of exhibition games, he said.

Green Bay had four exhibition games instead of six, and had 16 regular-season games instead of 14.

Trowbridge also said there is increasing difficulty in selling tickets to preseason games.

Coach Bart Starr gave a brief report, saying 33 drafted and free-agent players had made the team over the last three years. He said 28 are still on the roster.

Twelve are starters, he said, calling them the nucleus of the team.

"Again, we will be a very, very young team," he said, reporting the average age to be 24.5, with an average NFL experience of less than three years.

LCC's Inman Gets Back On Right Foot

interested in coaching. "I didn't really know what I was going to do. I had just gotten into college and I knew I was interested in teaching and I thought if I'm going to teach it's only natural to coach too. . . I hope."

Playing under LCC boss Larry Hays is a big plus, Inman says. "Just being around him you learn more than you can hold.

"He's super. I've never played under anyone I've enjoyed playing under as much as him."

Inman sees a change in his coach this season and attributes it to Hays' taking up basketball again this winter.

"I think basketball kind of pushed him a little more to the wild side of life," he said, sounding like a honky-tonk jukebox. "He's more impatient and he's more edgy. Since he started basketball, he's a little quicker to flare up."

If last winter's basketball team wasn't enough to make Hays irritable, this spring's baseball season has been more than enough.

First, shortstop Glenn Wilken, twice an all-conference pick, didn't recover from a shoulder injury and Hays had to pull Bobby Doe in from the outfield to fill that gap. Then Inman got hurt and the coach had to search for his replacement in left field.

Now though, the team is ready to go.

"This year has been a shock to a lot of people because we haven't been doing the job," Inman said. "Maybe, if we keep playing like this, we're the best team in the nation."

The Chaprrals will get their chnce to find out just how good they are Wednesday at 11:30 a.m. CDT as they play No. 2-ranked William Carey (45-9) in the first round of the Area II tournament in Phoenix.

Grand Canyon College (55-10), the NAIA's top-ranked team and host for the tournament, will take on Sam Houston State (36-12) at 2:30 p.m. The two losers will then play at 5:30 p.m., thus cutting the field to three teams after the first day.

Play will continue through Friday. Winner advances to the national tournament at Nashville, Tenn., which begins May 28.

Boxer Remains Comatose

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Amateur boxer Ronnie Newton wanted to go on fighting after the punch that dropped him to the canvas and put him in the coma that continues almost three days later, said the man who refereed his fight.

Newton, 20, was dropped by a chopping right hand with 22 seconds to go in his title bout against Donald Curry of Ft. Worth in the AAU national championship tournament at Lake Charles, La., Satuday night. Newton was wearing protective head gear when he was felled, even though it isn't mandatory to do so.

Referee Elmo Adolph Jr. counted to three, then signalled that the fight was over and called a doctor into the ring.

"Ronnie was asking me — at what would have been an eight count — to let him go on," Adolph said. "I told him just to stay on one knee.

"The thing we're in there for is the safety and well-being of the fighters. I'd rather stop a thousand fights too soon than let one fight go on too long.

"We've been schooled that every second is precious in a knbckout, so the first thing I did was wave a doctor into the ring. At the same time, Ronnie was saying, 'I'm okay. I'm okay, Mr. Adolph.'

"I just told him to stay on one knee. I had to hold him down.

"I had a certain gut feeling that he was really hurt. If I'd let him get up, he might have staggered around and got hit in and been hurt even worse."

After struggling to rise, Newton rolled over and lay sprawled in the ring while the doctor examined him. He then walked to a dressing room.

Minutes later, he collapsed and was taken to St. Patrick's Hospital, where he was still in serious condition after surgery to remove a blood clot.

Regatta Set

The third annual Sunfish Regatta will be held at Maxey Park Lake on June 10 at 10 a.m. Sponsors of the event are the Parks and Recreation Department, KLBK and Paddles 'N Sails.

The Regatta will feature two events, a three-race contest for AMF Sunfish sailboats and a Dynamic Duo race for any 15-foot or smaller sailboat.

In the Dynamic Duo event, the boats will race to pick up a watermelon from the water and sail with it to the finish line.

The entry fee for the Sunfish race is $4 and for the Dynamic Duo the fee is $1. However entries recieved later than June 10 will be charged $10.

Tasker Named MHS Girls Cage Coach

Tim Tasker, currently assistant boys basketball coach at Levelland, has been hired as Monterey girls basketball coach, it was announced this morning.

Tasker will replace Phil Hood, who led the Plainswomen to the state finals in 1978, Hollis Gainey, assistant athletic director reported. Hood resigned earlier this spring.

The new girls coach is the son of Hobbs, N.M., high school coach Ralph Tasker and played for his dad on two state championship teams. He attended New Mexico State on a basketball scholarship, then stayed on at NMSU for two years as graduate assistant coach.

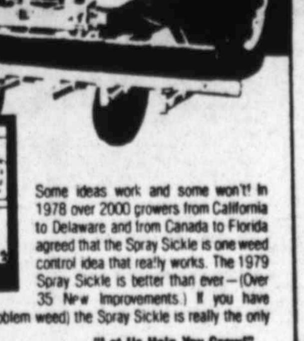
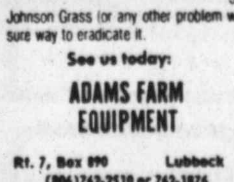
Knock out Johnson Grass (Roots and all)...but it takes the Spray Sickle to REALLY DO IT!





Some ideas work and some won't! In 1978 over 2000 growers from California to Delaware and from Canada to Florida agreed that the Spray Sickle is one weed control idea that really works. The 1979 Spray Sickle is better than ever—(Over 35 New Improvements.) If you have Johnson Grass (or any other problem weed) the Spray Sickle is really the only sure way to eradicate it.

CHEVY CITATION

Citation goes a long way on a tank of gas. But that's just the start. Citation has the traction of front wheel drive, rack and pinion steering, front disc brakes, and a transverse mounted engine that's cradled in rubber cushioned mountings to reduce engine vibration. Sleek Citation is easy to park, yet big enough for five adults and lots of cargo. See Chevy Citation for yourself. And to really appreciate it, get behind the wheel!

EPA ESTIMATED MPG: CITY ESTIMATE 24; 38 HIGHWAY ESTIMATE

With standard 4-cylinder engine and manual transmission.

Remember: Compare the estimated MPG to the "estimated MPG" of other cars. You may get different mileage depending on your speed, trip length, and weather. Your actual mileage will be lower in heavy city traffic, and your actual highway mileage will probably be less than the estimated highway fuel economy, the "estimated MPG" is more likely to reflect actual overall mileage than the "combined estimate".

TEST DRIVE THE ALL NEW CHEVY CITATION.

Vietnam Refugees Headed For U.S.

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The 448 Vietnamese refugees rescued from their stricken boat by a U.S. Navy frigate a week ago were taken ashore Saturday for processing before resettlement in the United States.

A spokesman for the refugee section of the American Embassy said the Vietnamese were taken to Laem Singh, one of two refgee camps in Thailand. He said he expected all in the refugees to be in the United States within the next two months.

The refugees, mainly ethnic Chinese, were picked up by the USS Robert E. Peary on May 5 off the Malaysian coast. Their 55-foot boat was reportedly drifting and there was a shortage of food and water aboard.

Rain Appears In Forecast

A-J News Services

More warm, windy weather was in store for the South Plains today, but weather forecasters added a little variety to the forecast with a slight chance of showers on Wednesday.

The warm temperature pattern was expected to continue this afternoon, with a predicted high in the lower 90s, much like Monday's maximum reading of 91.

Monday highs across the entire South Plains were in the low 90s or upper 80s.

Some showers were predicted this afternoon for far West Texas, and the activity was expected to spread to the South Plains Wednesday afternoon and night.

Slightly cooler weather, with a high in the upper 80s, was due to accompany Wednesday's partly cloudy weather.

Winds today were predicted in the 15 to 20 mph range, diminishing to 10 to 15 mph tonight.

Temperatures in the 80s and 90s were predicted for the entire state today, except in the lower elevations of the Big Bend, where forecasters said the mercury could top the century mark.

Elsewhere in the nation, thunderstorms drenched much of the eastern and northern sections of the country.

Showers and thunderstorms fell along the Atlantic Coast from Maine to Florida. Showers with scattered thunderstorms also spread from the lower Ohio Valley and Upper Great Lakes across the central plains.

Rainshowers were scattered over portions of Oregon and northern California.

Strength of the storms had diminished considerably today, however. The same systems Monday afternoon produced three tornadoes — in Illinois near Broadlands and near Newman, and near Lawtey, Fla. No injuries or major damage were reported.

Officers Kill Mexican Man

EL PASO, Texas (UPI) — Officers today killed a Mexican national they said tried several times to cross illegally into the United States, then grabbed a Border Patrolman's pistol and engaged in a shootout on the Paso Del Norte Bridge linking El Paso and Juarez, Mexico.

Mike Williams, public relations officer for the Border Patrol, said the man had been tentatively identified but that his name was being withheld pending confirmation.

An autopsy was being performed before an official ruling would be issued in the death.

Williams said the victim — after several attempts to enter the United States without proper immigration papers — was taken into custody on the bridge by immigration inspectors, who turned him over to the Border Patrol.

The man was to be deported to Mexico about 2:30 a.m., Williams said, "when he grabbed an officer's gun. There was an exchange of gunfire. He was warned several times to drop the gun."

Williams said the man grabbed the gun and ran across traffic lanes of the bridge waving the weapon in the air as he was being surrounded by armed officers of the Border Patrol, U.S. Customs and security guards.

El Paso homicide detectives were investigating the shooting.

"It's still under investigation," said police Lt. John Lanahan. "We haven't reached any conclusion. We still have some of the Border Patrolmen here for questioning."

Coast Guard To Conduct Hearing

GALVESTON (UPI) — Coast Guard officers charged with determining why eight men died in the collapse of an oil drilling platform have scheduled a preliminary hearing to be followed by a formal session later this week.

The three officers flew over the wreckage Monday and visited a sister rig in the Gulf of Mexico.

The bodies of seven of the missing men were not recovered and the Coast Guard suspended its search, explaining the victims may have drowned in the Gulf or been trapped in compartments that will not be examined unless the rig is salvaged.

The three officers scheduled a preliminary hearing for today "to see what will be presented" and a formal hearing Wednesday. The board's work, however, does not involve determination of civil or criminal liability.

Atlantic Pacific filed a federal court petition, meanwhile, seeking exoneration from damage claims in the accident, or, alternatively, limitation of damages to $1.25 million — the insured value of the platform.

The company said it always maintained the rig "tight, staunch, strong and in all respects seaworthy."

Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. John Hair said the three-member marine safety investigation team could make the area around the wreckage off-limits to preserve the integrity of evidence.

"The purpose is to obtain information for the prevention of similar casualties as far as is practical," Hair said. "It is necessary the cause of the casualty be determined as precisely as possible in order that detailed information will be available for review ... to know how the casualty occured."

One leg of the 115-foot-long jack-up rig Ranger I collapsed Thursday night, plunging the platform and 34 workers into the sea. Twenty-six were rescued. Divers Sunday found the body of Eddie Fredericks, 25, Abbeville, La., an employee of the Atlantic Pacific Marine Corp., platform.

COSTLY DIP

MEDFORD, England (AP) — Student Mohammed Dadesh tested the water, then ran back to his red car to hide his $2,800 under the front-seat carpet before going in for a swim. Dadesh later discovered he had put the money in the wrong car.
