HEY, IT'S ALREADY BLAAACK!

Nose printing added to livestock show validation process this year

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Every person has a unique set of fingerprints. Did you know every lamb has a unique nose print?

Taking a lamb's nose print is part of the validation process for people who want to show their animals at livestock shows in Texas. The state has now required all lambs to be validated to prevent fraud. In the past, the animals were only tagged in one ear. Now they are also printed and tattooed.

Howard County residents brought their lambs to the fairgrounds Monday for the validation process. Each lamb stood on a rack with their noses in a holder to get the right print.

Terry Denton and Chandra Scott worked as a team to get the print even if it took a few tries. Scott is an agriculture science teacher in Sands and Denton is the Future Farmers of America instructor at Big Spring High School.

Scott would dry off the nose and Denton would press an ink pad against the animal's nose then place it on a white piece of paper. The paper has the owner's name printed on it and all the cards will be forwarded to the state lamb validation office in San Angelo. From there, the cards will be taken to each participating major stock show in Texas.

Scott and other volunteers would then pierce the left ear with a Howard County tag. The tattoo was imprinted on the right ear followed by a green dye to set it in place. The tattoo is an official number issued only to Howard County and has a specially designed feature to ensure its authenticity.

"We have done the county validation tag for at least 15 years but now we have to do the nose print and tattoo. This was a step taken to prevent people from bringing in their lambs to a show under false pretenses. It hasn't happened here but this will insure that it won't in the future," said Don Richardson, Howard County extension agent.

Richardson added the winners at the stock shows and randomly selected owners will be checked by show officials to determine eligibility of the lambs. If any part of the validation process does not match up with the records, the lamb will be disqualified.

Those who violate the rules run the risk of being ineligible to participate in future shows. Knott resident Trisha Nichols, 14, will be showing her lambs for the first time this year. She has been involved in 4-H for three years in the food and nutrition departments.

"I've always wanted to show lambs but I was too busy with basketball and other things. To get them ready for a show, we have to wash and shear them."

"They like to eat anything. When I was getting them ready to come here for the validation, they tried to eat my shirt," Nichols remarked.

Within the first hour of the validation process, at least 20 lambs had been registered. Richardson said there were 187 tags ordered and this process was mild compared to how it will be later this month at the hog validation.

More than 300 tags were ordered for the upcoming swine validation scheduled for Nov. 30.

Saturday cleaning to spruce city up for the holidays

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

If a picture is worth a thousand words, Big Spring Proud Citizens Committee plans to turn the city into a masterpiece this weekend with its first ever citywide cleanup day.

Proud Citizens member Polly St. Clair said the group would like to make the cleanup a quarterly event.

Volunteers helping with the cleanup will need to meet at the Proud Citizens office at 707 Scurry St. at 8 a.m. Saturday.

"This particular time has been designated to clean up so we can light up for Christmas with the Trail of Lights and to spruce up the city before the celebration of Howard College's 50th Anniversary," St. Clair said. "We will be having many people visiting our city for these events."

Proud Citizens member Millie Cunningham said the area to be concentrated on is a six block area from Gregg to Gollad and from First to Sixth. However, people can form small groups and do their own neighborhood cleanups.

"We have several groups and individuals that are planning to help us and we will break for lunch at noon and serve lunch at our office to all of the volunteers," Cunningham said.

Volunteers will need to bring gloves, weed-eaters, hoes, rakes and any other equipment that may be useful.

The city of Big Spring will haul all trash collected to the landfill and keep track of the weight.

The Texas Department of Transportation will supply trash bags and Fina will supply some gloves for the cleanup.

Cunningham said if everything can be kept separated, Proud Citizens may turn the

Ivie says goodbye to water district Thursday

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Thursday was proclaimed O.H. Ivie Day by Big Spring Mayor Tim Blackshear at the City Council's last meeting.

As part of O.H. Ivie Day, honoring Ivie for his 43 years of service to the Colorado River Municipal Water District, the board of directors of the water district will host a retirement reception for Ivie Thursday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the water district office, 400 E. 24th St.

The district has thrived in countless ways during Ivie's tenure as consulting engineer, assistant manager and the last 30 years as general manager.

Judging by Ivie's character, he would probably prefer to ride off into the sunset on a white horse with his wife of 50 years, Yvonne, rather than to a drum roll and marching band.

But, the successes of the district during his tenure make it extremely difficult not to praise his knowledge and expertise in the field of water supply projects.

As for future plans, Ivie and his wife will be moving into a new home in Pecan Plantation south of Grandbury.

"We look forward to having opportunities to travel and enjoy the benefits that have been afforded us by the district. Our thoughts and prayers will remain with the district, which we have considered a privilege to have had a part in its development and service during the last 43 years," Ivie said.

Ivie's leadership as general manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District has

Westside center's purpose is children

Editor's Note: This is the ninth in a series of reports looking at the 10 agencies the United Way funds. The United Way is currently raising money for the organizations with a goal set at $210,000.

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

The Westside Community Center was established in the early 1940's to provide a recreational place for children after school while their mothers helped in the war effort.

Madeline Boadle, former executive director, said the center has always been for latchkey students along with an all-day summer program.

"This was started by the Council of United Church Women. The United Way then took over several years ago and it is operated by volunteers," said Boadle.

"In 1970, we decided to establish a board and put citizens on it. We also incorporated the center as well," she said.

In the past the center also provided cooking and choir lessons along with defense driving schools for adults.

Boadle's daughter, Jackie Mauch, became director when Boadle retired in 1987. Mauch then resigned last spring and the board of directors decided to put the two agencies under one management staff. The budgets of each center are kept separate and Melinda Hernandez is now the director of both agencies.

It is now open 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. and the employees pick up the children from school.

The kids are treated to movies, videos, ping pong, outdoor games and puzzles before they are taken home.

College board approves handbook, catalog changes

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

There are some new changes at Howard College.

Board members approved several handbook and catalog changes during their regular meeting last week. All of the proposals went into effect immediately upon approval.

President Cheri Sparks was given the authority to waive certain building use fees. This was done because some Howard College courses are taught in buildings provided by other entities.

One example of the waiver is for students who attend class at Goodfellow Air Force Base in San Angelo. The board's approval now gives Sparks the authority to waive the fee in other similar situations.

In an effort to help out Howard County youth organizations, the board approved waiving a 15 percent surcharge on outside products sold at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Many youth groups use the money for operating funds but because of the surcharge, were unable to make a significant profit.

Anyone using the coliseum who wants to bring in an outside caterer may now do so with a price of 50 cents per plate. In the past, college officials allowed only the food service department to cater events for a profit. Officials said the surcharge would amount to the same revenue for the college. It would also cover the cost of the extra cleaning necessary after a catered event. This policy applies only to events in the coliseum and not in other buildings.

The threshold for advertised bids was raised from $5,000 to $7,500 in order to save the college money. Currently, bids over $5,000 require an advertisement in the local newspaper, a bid document, a formal bid opening and presentation to the board for review and approval. Since many bids fall in between

He will continue to offer his services to the district as a consultant, at the request of the board of directors, but if ever asked will tell you the real credit for the success of the district has to go to the employees and the people who have served on the board.

In the districts October newsletter, Ivie stated, "As I look back on the district's triumphs and struggles, I am thankful that the member cities of the district have seen fit through the years to appoint qualified men to represent their cities as members of the district's board of directors."

"From day one to the present, there has never been a time when the district's board was divided to the extent that the ultimate decisions it has made were adversely impacted to the detriment of the area," Ivie stated.

the $5,000 and $7,500 range, the threshold was raised to save time and money for the college.

Two changes to the catalog include second degrees and graduation fees.

Students who want to graduate must meet graduation requirements for a particular degree and/or certificate. After doing so, a student must complete an additional 12 semester hours before another degree can be awarded. These courses, excluding orientation and physical activity, must be completed after the student receives the first degree. A student cannot receive the same degree or certificate twice from the college.

The last change approved by the board was to lower the graduation fee from $20 to $10. The fee, in the past, included the cost for the cap and gown.

cleanup into a little contest to see who can clean up the most trash.

"We have volunteers signed up from the Boys Club, Boy Scouts, city of Big Spring, prisoners from the inmate work program, Fina, Howard College, Woman's Club, SouthWest Collegiate institute for the Deaf and many other proud citizens," St. Clair said.

The cleanup is a "Keep Texas Beautiful" project and St. Clair said all volunteers are asked to sign in at the cleanup.

Keep Texas Beautiful is a division of the non-profit Keep America Beautiful Inc., and in a three-year research project found three predominate attitudes people have about littering.

"They feel no sense of ownership for the property.

"Someone else will clean up after them..

"Litter has already accumulated.

Where does litter come from?

Motorists and pedestrians are most often blamed for litter, but Keep America Beautiful has identified several sources that also contribute to the problem.

Those sources include commercial refuse sources, including dumpsters; household trash handling; construction and demolition sites; uncovered vehicles; loading docks; motorists; and pedestrians.

In Texas, $20 million is spent annually to remove litter from roadsides.

The most successful way to prevent litter in a community is to have an ongoing, organized program such as Proud Citizens, that involves local government, businesses, civic groups, the media, schools and private citizens.

Groups or individuals wanting more information about Saturday's citywide cleanup should contact the Proud Citizens Committee at 263-0282, 264-7107 or 263-4707.

Quote of the Day

"We have plenty of freedom in this country but not a great deal of independence."

John W. Raper, writer, 1954

Referendum's failure not indictment of bilingualism

Canada has narrowly survived another referendum on Quebec's secession - by a 1 percent vote of the electorate.

It was a hard-fought vote for unity with the entire country coming together to try to convince Quebec not to leave the country.

The next referendum, and secessionists promise there will be one, may succeed.

Speaker of the House Newt Gingrich said this vote showed the dangers of bilingualism.

It wasn't bilingualism that drove Quebecers to vote to secede each time. It was a feeling of disenfranchisement from the rest of the country.

That's a problem we face here in the United States. People feel disenfranchised, that they have no say - whether they vote or not - in how this country is run, what programs are approved and how the money is spent.

We saw some of that anger in the last election with sweeping changes in both the U.S. House of Representatives and the U.S. Senate.

Opinions expressed on this page are those of the Editorial Board of the Big Spring Herald unless otherwise indicated.

Bilingualism will not tear us apart. It can keep us apart until we bridge the gap. Many species of humanity have made their home here in the United States, speaking a variety of different languages. They have retained their heritage while learning the language of their new home and becoming a part of its community.

People have to overcome their sense of disenfranchisement, brought on, in part, by themselves. They may have been harmed by the government but instead of doing what they should - vote the person out - they have moved away from government and become complainers instead of actors.

Bilingualism isn't the problem. The problem is deeper and one government can't cure without the help of the people.

Separatists look for new leader

MONTREAL (AP) — Quebec's separatist government begins the search for a new leader today after the dramatic resignation of Premier Jacques Parizeau, who appalled even supporters by blaming immigrants for an aching close loss in the independence referendum.

Parizeau, a key player in the French-Canadian separatist movement for two decades, expressed hope that his departure would help, not hinder, the crusade for independence of Canada's largest province.

Lucien Bouchard, head of the Bloc Quebecois separatist party in Parliament, distanced himself from Parizeau's remarks, in which he blamed Monday's defeat on "money and the ethnic vote."

"His declaration does not reflect what sovereigntists feel," said Bouchard, who was the separatists' most passionate orator during the referendum campaign.

Bouchard, who lost a leg to a near-fatal flesh-eating disease last year, refused to say if he wanted Parizeau's job. His future, and that of his party, were on the agenda of a party leadership meeting today.

Parizeau, 65, was elected premier last year after promising to hold a referendum on secession. His side lost Monday, but only narrowly - 50.6 percent to 49.4 percent - just 53,000 votes out of 4.6 million cast.

Fifteen years ago, Quebec's first secession referendum lost much more handily, 60-40.

Instead of savoring the separatists' strong showing this time, Parizeau shocked even his colleagues with a vitriolic speech Monday night, blaming immigrants for the narrow defeat.

Prime Minister Jean Chretien and other politicians, as well as numerous minority leaders and anti-racism groups, denounced Parizeau's remarks.

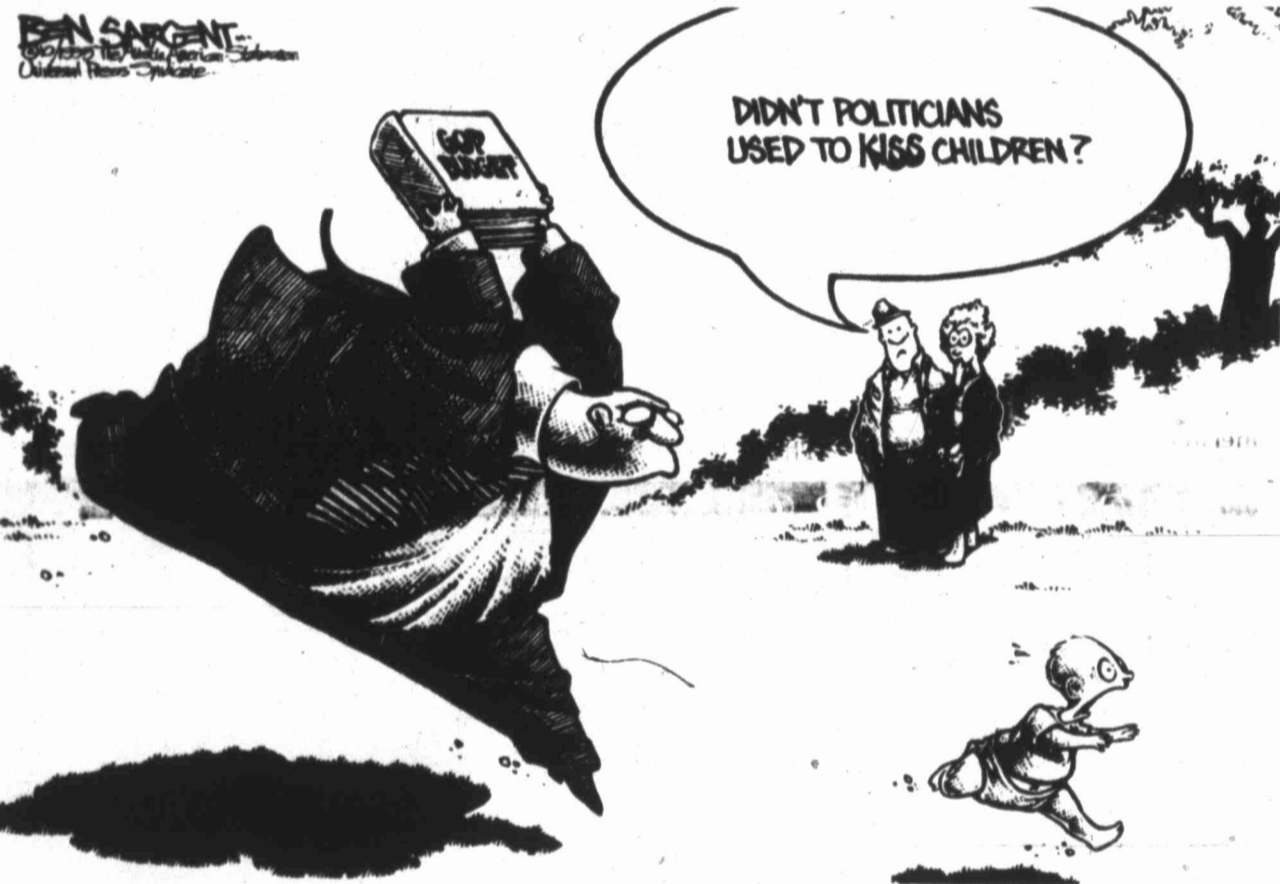

At an emotional news conference Tuesday, Parizeau said he would step down as premier before Christmas. He denied he was resigning because of the previous night's diatribe, but it was clear that his even closest allies had repudiated him.

Parizeau said he used terms "that could have been much better chosen." But he reiterated his view that Quebec's French-speaking majority had, in effect, been thwarted by non-franco-phones.

About 90 percent of English-speaking, Cree Indians and immigrant Quebecers opposed secession; French Quebecers - who make up 82 percent of the population - voted for independence by a 60-40 margin.

Not another budget summit

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON TODAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The mind-numbing, half-year-long Andrews Air Force Base budget summit of 1990 wrecked the political fortunes of President Bush and helped propel Georgia Rep. Newt Gingrich toward the House speakership.

Political careers are on the line once again as the nation's three most powerful elected officials — President Clinton, Gingrich and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole — inch toward inevitable budget negotiations.

Nobody wants a repeat of that 1990 monster marathon, which ranged from the Capitol and the White House to the politically neutral Air Force base in the Maryland suburbs.

But despite Clinton's current veto bluster, and the counter-swagger of GOP leaders, sooner or later the president will have to sit and deal with the Republicans who have controlled the national agenda for the past 10 months.

It could lead to a fascinating and politically defining three-way encounter, whether behind the scenes or out in the open, whether called a budget summit or something else.

The outcome has important overtones for the 1996 presidential campaign.

Both the House and the Senate have passed bills to balance the budget in seven years, slash anticipated Medicare spending by $270 billion and cut taxes by $245 billion.

A House-Senate conference committee will hammer out a compromise that Clinton is expected to veto.

"I think Clinton's doing the only thing he can at this point. I don't think that Dole and Gingrich really want to sit down and negotiate with him behind the scenes right now," said James Thurber, a political scientist at American University. "But, if it goes over one veto, it becomes a questionable strategy."

Until now, the three leaders have mostly circled each other warily.

But a prolonged, government-threatening stalemate is in none of their interests. Nor, given the strong personalities involved, is it likely Clinton or the two GOP leaders will cave in.

Thus, all three know there has to be a compromise down the road.

—Clinton must show leadership, prove he's not a spectator in the process and move enough toward the Republicans to demonstrate the centrist credentials he hopes to carry to a re-election victory.

—Dole, the leading GOP candidate for president, needs to prove himself of presidential caliber. This includes not being overshadowed by Gingrich. The Kansas also must not give up so much that he is savaged by the GOP's right wing he has so carefully courted.

—Gingrich needs to maintain his role as the leader of the "Contract With America" Republicans who seized control of Congress in 1994, wringing just enough compromise from his troops to keep the revolution going without endangering its goals.

Clinton's got little to gain from compromising too early or too much with Republicans. Democrats already are irritated with him for moving to the right by saying last month he had raised taxes in 1993 "too much." So he's been hanging tough, vowing to fight for larger Medicare spending and to preserve certain education, environmental and anti-crime programs.

"So I say to the Republican leaders: Back off your cuts in these vital areas. Until you do, there's nothing for us to talk about," he said in his weekly radio address Saturday.

"Everybody knows to some extent this thing now has to play out to a veto," White House chief of staff Leon Panetta said in an interview.

The 1990 Andrews talks were the beginning of the end for Bush as he abandoned his "read-my-lips, no-new-taxes" pledge. And they helped drive Gingrich to prominence as he broke with Bush in renouncing the tax hike that was an integral part of the final package.

Although Clinton is new to the mix, Gingrich, Dole and Panetta are veterans of those 1990 talks.

Panetta, then chairman of the House Budget Committee, said he doubts the final negotiations will be anything on the scale of the Andrews talks.

"I suspect once you get past a veto, hopefully common sense prevails and you try to talk it through to see if we can arrive at an agreement."

"Which is not to say it will be easy," Panetta added. "If I had to bet, I'd say this is probably one of those sessions that is going to end up very close to Christmas."

But not longer, Dole told reporters Tuesday, "because we want to take off from January after the New Hampshire primary" in February.

Election replaces last vestiges of apartheid

MMABATHO, South Africa (AP) — Taxi drivers have threatened blockades and troops have been deployed to deter possible violence when North West Province joins most of South Africa in electing local officials Wednesday.

The nation's second democratic vote has uncovered long-simmering disputes in the province that is home to fervent African National Congress supporters and a party loyal to a former black homeland leader ousted last year.

A holiday was called Wednesday for elections at 12,000 polling stations nationwide to choose almost 700 local and rural councils that will replace the last vestiges of apartheid rule. President Nelson Mandela and his ANC came to power in the nation's first all-race election in April 1994, and most of the local councils also were expected to be black-led.

While many of the races have failed to ignite the passion of last year's vote that ended apartheid, and balloting was expected to be mostly peaceful, parts of North West Province were tense on election eve.

Much of the territory formerly was the Bophuthatswana black homeland, one of the puppet states set up by apartheid South Africa to strip blacks of South African citizenship.

Former leader Lucas Mangope, ousted for trying to prevent last year's vote, and his United Christian Democratic Party continue to hold pockets of support in a province otherwise dominated by the ANC.

Mangope was accused of corruption and authoritarian rule during the years he led Bophuthatswana, with the government ordering him to pay back $5 million in missing public money. Still, he attracted larger rallies than the ANC in recent appearances.

Warring Balkan leaders try to find peace in Dayton

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Late-night landings of three jets bearing the leaders of Bosnia, Croatia and Serbia marked the start of a potentially difficult conference billed as the most promising chance to end warfare in the former Yugoslavia.

"I'm an optimist. I believe the talks will succeed," declared Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic, the principal power broker in the region, who arrived first at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base near Dayton aboard a Yugoslav Airlines Boeing 727.

Milosevic and presidents Alija Izetbegovic of Bosnia and Franjo Tudjman of Croatia, who arrived within several hours of each other late Tuesday, were spirited away after brief welcoming ceremonies.

Today, Secretary of State Warren Christopher will formally open the talks at the Midwestern military installation. Further negotiations will be conducted by Richard Holbrooke, the chief U.S. mediator whose shuttle missions to the Balkans laid the groundwork for the conference. No date has been set for conclusion of the meeting.

On the eve of the talks, President Clinton warned the warring parties their negotiations may be "the last chance we have for a very long time" to end the war.

cess in Dayton, and the whole world is watching," Clinton said Tuesday.

The three presidents already have agreed on a constitutional blueprint — hammered out during a series of shuttle missions to the Balkans by Holbrooke — that would create two entities within a united Bosnian state.

But a number of critical issues remain unresolved. They include an armistice and the separation of forces, maps of the exact territorial division of Bosnia, the status of Sarajevo and the fate of Eastern Slavonia, the last slice of Croatia still occupied by rebel Serbs.

Croatia has threatened to go to war if an agreement is not reached by the end of November. A tenuous cease-fire now in force in Bosnia would almost certainly collapse in that event.

The American delegation has drafted a general peace accord, consisting of several separate agreements, that address each of the unresolved issues.

"We attach great importance to the peace initiative of the U.S. and we are here to join the efforts to bring peace to the Balkans," said Milosevic, whom top U.S. officials once accused of starting the conflict. They now concede, however, without Milosevic, negotiating on behalf of Bosnia's Serb rebels, they have no chance of achieving a lasting peace.

Yeltsin back to work after hospitalization

MOSCOW (AP) — Boris Yeltsin met with his top aide for about an hour today in the first working visit since the president was hospitalized for heart trouble last week, a news agency reported.

Yeltsin had seen only doctors, family and bodyguards since he was rushed to the hospital Thursday with acute ischemia, a condition that restricts the flow of blood to the heart.

Despite assurances from Kremlin spokesmen and Yeltsin's wife that he is feeling well and is firmly in command of the country, there has been skepticism in the press about the state of the president's health and its possible political consequences.

Doctors have said Yeltsin should remain in the hospital for another month.

The president and top aide Viktor Ilyushin discussed foreign and domestic affairs, and "the mechanism of contacts" between the president and his staff, the ITAR-Tass news agency reported.

The president also signed laws today raising minimum pensions and wages, and sent a bill on foreign military cooperation to parliament.

Wanna gawk? Gotta pay up

PLANO (AP) — A group of teenagers led by a 13-year-old girl have turned curiosity into generosity.

The beneficiary was a west Plano couple whose home had been damaged by fire.

Seychelle Van Poole, 13, said she got the idea after listening to neighbors complain about the heavy traffic on their street following the fire.

"I decided since they didn't want people to come by, why not ask people for contributions if they're going to be nosy?" she said. "I was expecting to raise about $100 at most."

The home was damaged Saturday.

The teenagers started their collection efforts on Sunday, asking passing motorists for donations when they drove by to look at the damaged home.

A group of 11 youngsters took turns stopping passing cars, asking for donations. The donations ranged from $1 to $40 from motorists in 150 cars they stopped.

In a little more than 6 hours, they raised $610.25. They gave the money to owners of the home, Sam and Judith Frenkil.

"I was astounded," said Mrs. Frenkil, 44. "How they got this idea, I have no idea. We're very grateful."

Damage to the home was estimated at $220,000.

"I've never heard of something like this," said Russ Mower, fire marshal for the Dallas suburb. "I sort of admire people who come up with ingenious ways to raise money for good causes."

Mrs. Frenkil says they're looking for a temporary home and plan to rebuild.

Storms could have pushed manatees north

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — The unusual sighting of a manatee off the Texas Gulf coast has left marine scientists puzzled in its wake.

The endangered, walrus-like creature — rarely seen in Texas waters — surfaced off Naval Station Ingleside for at least two hours Tuesday, drawing military personnel and scientists to watch.

"We wonder why it's here," Tony Amos, a researcher who watched the manatee at Naval Station Ingleside, told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times. "But there probably was a time when manatees did range here regularly — before man came on."

There is no resident population of manatees in Texas. But populations exist off Florida and off Mexico's Yucatan peninsula.

Some wildlife officials have theorized that tropical storm activity off Mexico this year could have prompted some manatees to swim north to Texas.

Amos filmed the 7-foot-long manatee with a video camera, while Petty Officer Second Class Neil Allen, a Navy electronics technician, took photographs.

"It was awesome," Naval Station Ingleside Lt. Ingrid Mueller said of the gray-skinned animal. "... It looked like such a beautiful, gentle creature. It was one of the neatest things I've ever seen."

Amos, a research associate with the University of Texas Marine Science Institute in Port Aransas, also kept track of the manatee's breathing rate.

Tuesday's viewing followed a flurry of sightings of manatees around the Coastal Bend.

Navy diver Steve Tomasek was the first to spot the manatee Tuesday, said Ms. Mueller.

"She was almost up on the shore when I saw her," Tomasek said. "... Her head was sticking out of the water, she was going down and resting on the bottom, then coming up for air."

Early sightings of the manatee or its relative, the dugong, may have given rise to the folklore of mermaids.

Sixth-grader arrested for drive-by shooting

HOUSTON (AP) — Police arrested a sixth-grader Tuesday in connection with a drive-by shooting in which eight people were injured when attackers opened fire with a shotgun outside a convenience store.

Police said the 14-year-old, who attends Sharpstown Middle School, has not admitted involvement in Monday's shooting, but will remain in custody pending further investigation. The shooting apparently was gang-related, police said.

The shooting took place at a store across the street from Jane Long Middle School, where security has been tightened and students were offered counseling on Tuesday. Witnesses said a small red car carrying three men drove by the convenience store, and one of the passengers in the front seat aimed a short-barreled shotgun at them and fired several rounds.

Police still were looking for two more suspects Tuesday night.

Eight people, ranging in age from 12 to 45, suffered injuries, although they were not life-threatening. Only the 12-year-old, Khan Trahn, was still hospitalized Tuesday night, according to Houston radio station KPRC.

Rare albino alligator dies at state aquarium

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A rare albino alligator that charmed visitors and caretakers alike at the Texas State Aquarium has died.

Officials say they aren't sure what caused the death of the fragile reptile, who had lived in an indoor replica of an estuary for the past several months.

The five-foot-long alligator, whose name was Eve, was believed to be between 3 and 5 years old. She had already survived longer than most other albino alligators, who normally have a life expectancy of only about one year before they succumb to health problems or fall prey to other animals.

Throughout the year, aquarium workers had to take special precautions with Eve. They kept her out of the sun and fed her a special diet. They also limited people from taking pictures of her to avoid hurting her eyes.

Albino alligators have no pigment, which causes their eyes to be pink and prohibits them from being exposed to sunlight. They are not the same as white alligators, who have pigmentation and blue eyes.

She was donated to the aquarium last October and took up residence in the Back Bay Marsh habitat with another alligator named Adam in March. Aquarium workers said they had grown attached to her during her stay.

"She was a nice animal, calm and quiet, a little too quiet sometimes," said Ray Sullivan, lab supervisor. "We miss her." Jim Prappas, director of animal husbandry, described Eve as "mellow and laid-back."

"She just had a calmness about her that was easy to work with," Prappas said. "At times, you would almost get too comfortable with her. I've had my face inches from her face. I never, ever, ever would have done that with Adam." Sullivan concurred. "Adam would walk a mile to eat you," he said.

Officials are awaiting test results on Eve to determine why she died. Prappas said the alligator had passed a physical in August.

No quarter leads to attack by bikini-clad woman

WACO, Texas (AP) — It was not your everyday parking lot confrontation.

A Baylor University student was walking through a convenience store parking lot, he said, when a woman with fake blood and a knife sticking out of her head asked him for a quarter.

In addition to the fake blood and phony knife, the female panhandler was wearing an orange bikini and cowboy boots, with tattoos on her stomach and shoulder.

Kevin Claxton, 19, of Houston, said when he replied that he didn't have a quarter, three women, including the one in the bikini, got out of a car and began shouting at him. He said the bikini-clad woman then kicked him and struck another Baylor student and a 17-year-old friend from Houston, then chased him around the parking lot.

Claxton said when he fled into the store, the bikini-clad woman followed, knocking items off shelves before kicking and jumping on top of his 1993 Ford Thunderbird as her friends shouted obscenities.

"She was the one who was doing all the hitting," Claxton said. "The other ones were just kind of her cheering section."

"I was kind of like shocked the whole thing was going on. First of all, this lady was a lot bigger than me. I don't know if I could have took her. I just wanted to get out of there."

No arrests had been made late Tuesday in the Saturday evening incident. The charges would be misdemeanor assault and criminal mischief over $1,500.

Wave of area codes coming

WASHINGTON (AP) — A wave of new area codes hitting the country is short-circuiting business switchboards. But an ad campaign starting today aims to educate companies about how to navigate the changes.

Most residential telephone users should have no trouble dialing the new area codes because their calls are routed through local telephone networks equipped to handle them, the Federal Communications Commission said.

But private business switchboards, known in telecommunications lingo as PBXs, can't recognize the new codes unless they've been upgraded, making it impossible to dial calls to them.

That's because unlike existing area codes, the new ones don't have a zero or a one in the middle. Instead, they use two through nine.

"Don't get stuck in the middle," warn the ads, commissioned by the telephone industry and the FCC, and running today in USA Today and The Wall Street Journal.

The ads, paid for by the telephone industry, offer a telephone number — 281-792-9999 — for businesses and other PBX users to call at no cost to test whether their equipment can reach the new codes. Those whose PBX systems fail the test can get help by calling another toll-free number — 800-218-6436. That number was not yet in service Tuesday afternoon.

Kathleen Wallman, chief of the FCC's Common Carrier Bureau, said PBX makers and telephone companies have done a good job getting the word out, but some companies are discarding information being sent to them.

"Some companies think it is a marketing pitch," she said. "They don't realize the importance and urgency of upgrading the switch."

Companies that use PBXs can either upgrade their system with software that recognizes the new area codes or replace the system. Upgrade costs range from $850 to $17,500, according to the telephone industry.

spokeswoman for the United States Telephone Association. PBX systems are widely used by government offices, hospitals and schools as well as businesses, said the FCC, which does not regulate them.

Since the beginning of this year, 11 sections of the country, including Alabama, Colorado, Virginia and Washington state, have begun implementing new area codes.

From November through next year, nine areas — Chicago, Dallas, Miami, Missouri, northern Florida, Ohio, Oregon, South Carolina and Southern California — will add new codes. By next year, a total of 23 new codes — including one for toll-free 800 service — are slated to be in operation, affecting millions of people, the FCC said.

The new area codes are being instituted because all codes under the old plan, dating back to the 1940s, have been exhausted thanks to the explosion of such services as cellular phones and fax machines.

Heavy demand for corn, soybean push prices higher than last year's

WASHINGTON (AP) — Heavy demand for this fall's corn and soybean crop helped push the October index of farm-level prices up 11 percent from last year.

Higher prices for hogs and wheat also fueled the increase, the Agriculture Department reported Tuesday. Gains were offset somewhat by declines for cattle, lettuce, calves and dry beans.

Compared with September of this year, the index rose just 1 percent. Higher prices for corn, wheat, soybeans and milk offset declines for lettuce, broilers, hogs and peanuts.

October corn prices averaged $2.95 a bushel, their highest since August 1984, because of a lower harvest and strong export demand. Soybeans rose to $6.17 a bushel for similar reasons. Wheat averaged $4.71 a bushel, the highest since November 1974, because of short supplies and heavy exports.

Because marketing of soybeans and corn are heaviest this time of year, their prices had a greater impact on the index than did wheat prices.

Beef cattle prices fell to $58.80 a hundredweight, their lowest since February 1987, driven downward by the lowest cow prices since February 1978. Heavy slaughter dampened prices.

Lettuce dropped to $17 per hundredweight, from $25.90 in September and $22.30 a year ago, as supplies recovered from shortages caused by spring flooding in California.

Borrowing crisis ensnared in midst of budget fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton and congressional Republicans seem willing to postpone the government's looming borrowing crisis by a few weeks. But it remains ensnared in a budget fight that's far from resolved.

Clinton and GOP leaders plan to meet today at the White House for their first face-to-face talks about their fiscal differences in nearly two months.

White House spokesman Mike McCurry said the discussion would be limited to the government's borrowing authority, which could run out this month, but Republicans said they want to consider all budget disputes.

"I don't think you can talk about the debt limit in isolation," House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., said Tuesday. "You have to include reconciliation, spending bills, the whole thing."

Reconciliation is the technical name for the huge package Republicans have assembled that promises to balance the budget by 2002. It relies heavily on reductions in Medicare, Medicaid and other social programs, and contains tax cuts for families and businesses.

The House and Senate approved similar budget-balancing bills last week. Behind the scenes, lawmakers and aides have begun trying to work out differences between the two chambers.

In a closed-door meeting Tuesday, Gingrich, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., and other leaders agreed that the final package would contain $245 billion in tax cuts over seven years, participants said — the same amount the House and Senate initially agreed to. Moderates have been hoping to shrink the tax-cut package so some spending reductions could be erased, but conservatives have insisted on retaining the full amount.

GOP leaders hope to send a final budget-balancing bill to Clinton by Nov. 16. Clinton has said he will veto it, citing excessive spending cuts and tax reductions.

Even before today's White House meeting, GOP leaders said they would probably send Clinton a bill extending federal borrowing authority until about Nov. 29. Treasury officials say the current $4.9 trillion debt limit will probably be reached early this month.

The administration had been insisting that the extension run until mid-January, when this year's budget fight may be over. But Clinton signaled some flexibility Tuesday, saying, "I think any responsible extension is a move forward."

Republicans hope to build pressure on Clinton by halting the government's ability to borrow money unless the president signs their budget-balancing measure.

Woman released after seven years in jail for civil contempt

BALTIMORE (AP) — After seven years in jail for refusing to disclose her son's whereabouts, Jacqueline Bouknight walked free and revealed nothing more than a smile.

Her attorneys call her a hero of civil disobedience. The judge who held her in contempt fears the child may be dead. And the advocate for the boy, who would be 9, pleaded with the 29-year-old mother to start talking.

"Jackie, it's a tragedy you have let this go on so long," court-appointed lawyer Mitchell Mirviss said during a hearing Tuesday in which a judge allowed her release.

Known in court records only as "Maurice M.," the boy was barely 6 months old when he was taken from his mother and placed in temporary foster care after doctors found fractures on his right arm and shoulder. He also wore a body cast to heal a broken leg.

When Ms. Bouknight won her son back several months later by taking parenting classes, the baby disappeared and Ms. Bouknight ended up in the Baltimore City Detention Center for refusing to say where he had been taken.

Her attorneys argued that Ms. Bouknight was just trying to protect her son from the physical abuse she experienced in foster care when she was a child.

One of Ms. Bouknight's attorneys, Cristina Gutierrez, said the mother promises to find her son and fight a court order that prohibits her from contacting him. She noted her client has "no family, no life, no money."

The boy's father was killed in a 1988 drug-related shooting. Over the years, Ms. Bouknight volunteered several leads to investigators, but none led to the boy. They were always followed by her defiant silence.

Broken thumb sidelines Tyson

LAS VEGAS (AP) — For $39.95, Mike Tyson can watch the telecast of the Riddick Bowe-Evander Holyfield fight Saturday night. Or he can attend in person.

Whatever he does, a spectator is all he can be. A broken right thumb has knocked him out of his fight against Buster Mathis Jr. on free television at the MGM Grand, a short cab drive from Caesars Palace, the site of the Bowe-Holyfield match.

The injury will keep the former undisputed heavyweight champion out of action for from four to six weeks.

"This is a really serious setback," Tyson said. "I was really anticipating this fight."

Actually it was a reinjury of the thumb that forced the fight to be postponed.

Tyson broke the thumb approximately two weeks ago, but hoped he would heal in time. Then he rebroke it while sparring either Monday or Tuesday.

"I'm very upset because this was a great opportunity for me," said Mathis, who was to get $800,000, by far his biggest paycheck. Tyson was to get $10 million.

"Hopefully, this opportunity will rise up again and there will be a Buster Mathis-Mike Tyson fight."

John Horne's Tyson's co-manager, said the contract would be honored and that Tyson would fight on Fox Network, which was to telecast Saturday night's match.

At a news conference earlier in the day, Mathis said he thought Tyson was bluffing when he said his hand was sore. But Tuesday night, at the announcement of the postponement, he was no longer skeptical.

"I think this is real and I hope everything will be all right with this man," Mathis said.

Tyson's doctors, Gerald Higgins and Gary Marrone of Las Vegas notified the MGM Grand at 4:10 p.m. PST that Tyson would not be able to fight.

"In all morality, we can't let him participate in this fight," Higgins said.

"The break is in the thumb between the main joint and the tip of the thumb," Marrone said.

Marrone said Tyson injured the thumb about three weeks ago and saw Marrone and Higgins about two weeks ago. Marrone said he and Higgins thought the injury possibly could heal in time for the fight, but X-rays Tuesday "showed that the fracture that had begun to heal had refractured."

Heavyweight Mike Tyson reacts during a news conference Tuesday in Las Vegas, where it was announced that his fight with Buster Mathis Jr., would be postponed.

NFL's mid-term report card

The caliber of team play in the NFL has been pretty bad this year, the result of the salary cap, free agency and expansion all meeting in one season.

The caliber of individual play has been more impressive, particularly at wide receiver, where there are a half-dozen guys who deserve all-pro mention.

With a half-season remaining, they get it on the half-season All-Pro team.

WR — In the "what else is new?" category — Jerry Rice, San Francisco; Michael Irvin, Dallas. In the "what else is new?" category — Isaac Bruce, St. Louis; Herman Moore, Detroit; Carl Pickens, Cincinnati; Curtis Conway, Chicago. Rice and Irvin are easy. Give the other guys a break.

TE — New England's Ben Coates is hurt. Nobody else is close except Denver's Shannon Sharpe, who is really an H-back. A little honorable mention: Mark Chmura, Green Bay, who shouldn't be benched for Keith Jackson; Howard Cross, New York Giants, who's always been very underrated and ...

Joe Valerio, Kansas City, Steve Bono's lead blocker and touchdown catcher.

T — No stats. A lot of opinions. But the best remain William Roaf, New Orleans, and Erik Williams, Dallas.

G — No stats. A lot of opinions. The best: Nate Newton, Dallas; Randall McDaniel, Minnesota. Plus Steve Wisniewski, Oakland; Dave Szott, Kansas City; Lance Smith, New York Giants.

C — Kent Hull, Buffalo, the last Bill standing. And, just for the heck of it, Curtis Whitley, Carolina.

Sands, Klondike on collision course for District 5 showdown

By DARRELL ERICSON

Sports Editor

The Sands Mustangs are two games away from a perfect season. The Mustangs are now 8-0 overall, 3-0 in district and travel to 3-5, 2-1 Loop Friday night at 7:30 p.m.

In order to prepare for the end of the season — which means playing undefeated Klondike — Sands head coach Billy Barnett is using this week's game as a sort of dress rehearsal.

"We have a couple of things we want to accomplish out of the game. We want to give our backup players some playing time and perfect our offense."

On offense the Mustangs will concentrate on fundamentals. "We have some trouble staying with our blocks. We have to get it all together to get ready for our last game."

Although they are looking forward to playing Klondike, the Mustangs still must concentrate on the task at hand.

"We can't overlook Loop. Mathematically they can still reach the playoffs. We're not going to take Loop lightly. They are a good ball club," Barnett said.

Loop is predominantly a running team, so the Mustangs' defense will play a big role, Barnett said. "Loop is a running team and we are going to have to contain the run. It will be a mental game. We can't afford to have any let downs," Barnett said.

The biggest attribute to the success to date has been senior leadership. "They have done a tremendous job with this team. They have kept the team focused from week to week and wanting to play, practice and win. I just can't say enough about them," Barnett said.

Klondike (8-0, 3-0) vs. Dawson (0-8, 0-3)

PATRICIA — The Klondike Cougars are at the top of District 5 six man. Their toughest competitor appears to be Sands, but now the Cougars are concentrating on Dawson.

"Dawson has an explosive offense and is well coached. We are going to play them like they are undefeated. There is always a chance for an upset, and we don't want that to happen," Klondike head coach Jim Kinnear said.

"We have everything to lose and nothing to gain with a loss or win, where they have everything to gain."

The Cougars offense is where it needs to be, but the defense is falling behind, Kinnear said.

"Our offense is where we think it needs to be, but there is always room for improve-

Sandberg has enough of idle life; signs contract to return to Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — Ryne Sandberg was enjoying his life away from baseball ... until September.

First, there was the national hoopla surrounding Cal Ripken's record streak of consecutive games with the Baltimore Orioles.

"Pretty awesome," Sandberg said. "That made me miss it."

Those feelings intensified on the final weekend of the season, as he sat next to his new wife, Margaret, in a Wrigley Field private suite and watched his former Chicago Cubs teammates battle Houston in a thrilling series with postseason implications.

"He'd been busy all morning," Margaret Sandberg said. "So finally, when we had a chance to sit and talk, he said, real calmly, 'Everybody's asking if I'm coming back.' And he had a huge smile on his face. I looked at him and I said, 'Ryne, you're going to go back and play.' And he goes, 'I am?' I just knew that's what he wanted to do."

And so it was. Sandberg on Tuesday ended his 16-month retirement, signing a one-year contract to play for the Cubs.

"I was a baseball player. I'm still a baseball player. And I'll always be that," said Sandberg, who turned 36 last month. "I did the retirement thing. I did the summer activities and all that. It just got to the point where now it was time to go back and play baseball."

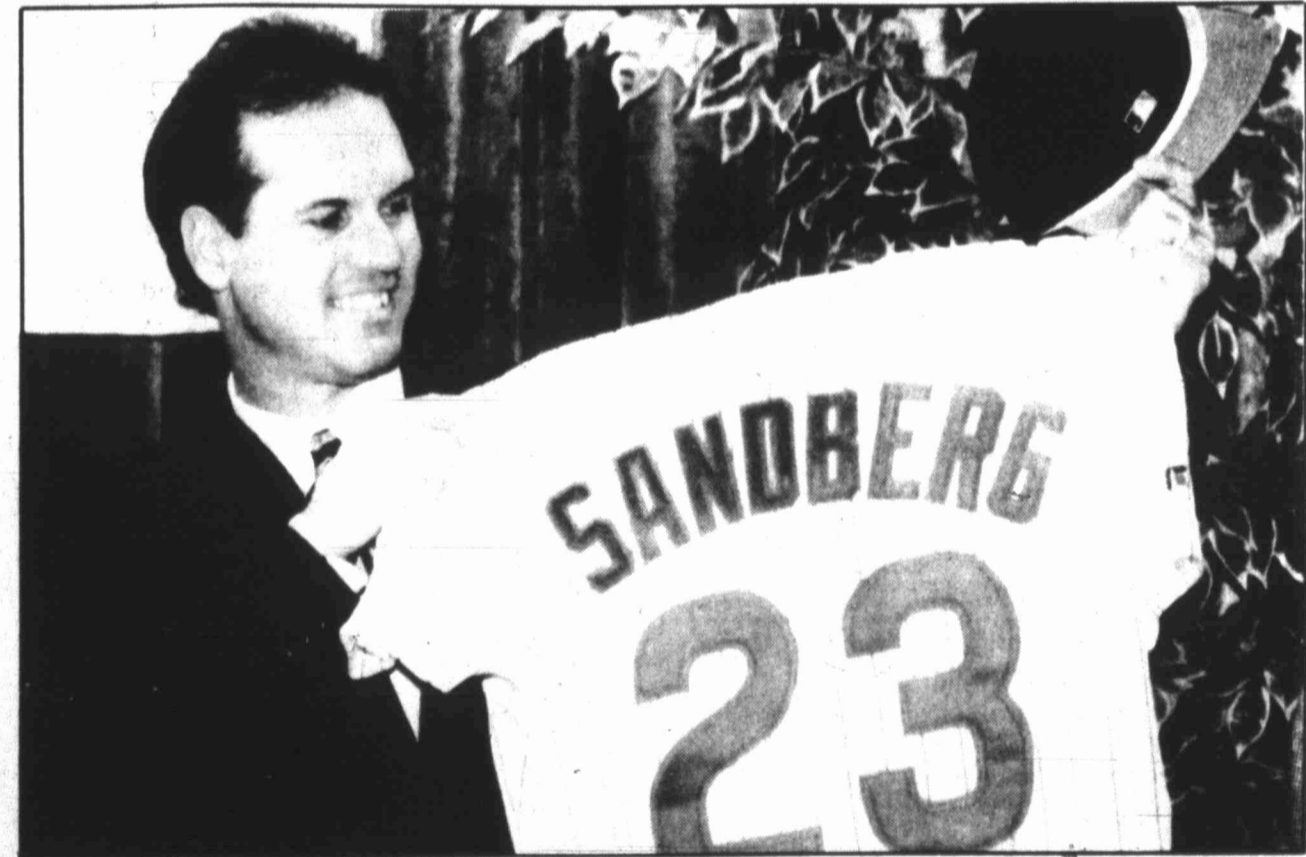

"This is something that I wanted to do and I needed to do. It was very important to me. I don't think it really left me." But Sandberg — statistically the best fielding second baseman in major league history, a 10-time NL All-Star and the 1984 league MVP — left it.

In so doing, he walked away from the approximately $17 million he had left on his contract.

When he stunned Chicago with his announcement on June 13, 1994, the Cubs were in last place. In Sandberg's opinion, general manager Larry Himes had ruined the team. Baseball players were ready to start a strike that would result in the World Series being canceled. And his personal life was in turmoil; his wife would file for divorce later that month.

Sandberg is a lifetime .289 hitter with 245 career home runs, 905 RBIs and 325 stolen bases.

Ryne Sandberg holds his jersey Tuesday after announcing he had signed a one-year contract with the Chicago Cubs. Sandberg was an All-Star second baseman for 10 years with the Cubs before retiring in June 1994.

Jones: Super Bowl or bust

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Jerry Jones has spent most of the autumn challenging the NFL. On Tuesday, he put the heat on his team, saying there can be no excuse short of catastrophic injury for not winning the Super Bowl.

"There can't be one acceptable excuse except for losing one of the triplets (Michael Irvin, Emmitt Smith or Troy Aikman)," said the owner of the Dallas Cowboys. "I still haven't been able to accept the fact we didn't win last year even with the injuries that we had. I wanted to win three Super Bowls in a row."

The Cowboys lost 38-28 to the eventual champion San Francisco 49ers in the NFC championship game.

"I know what three turnovers in the first five minutes can do," Jones said.

NATION/WORLD

Expert testifies at King trial

NEW YORK (AP) — A handwriting expert testified a boxer's signature on two copies of a contract with promoter Don King were identical, supporting a government theory that King faked a contract to collect insurance money.

Gus Lesnevich's testimony came as federal prosecutors considered whether to rest after a month of testimony meant to prove King collected $350,000 illegally from Lloyd's of London.

World Series ratings up

NEW YORK (AP) — World Series ratings increased 13 percent this year over 1993, the first time they've gone up in four years.

Atlanta's six-game victory over Cleveland averaged a 19.5 rating and 33 share.

ment. Our defense lacks intensity, we have to work on getting better."

Kinnear added that winning has bred a strong work ethic.

"It's great to be undefeated. It has made the kids work harder during practice and games, to remain undefeated. They know what they have to do in order to reach their goals," Kinnear said.

The Cougars will host Dawson Friday night at 7:30 p.m.

Borden Co. (4-4, 0-3)

at Highland (4-3-1, 3-0)

GAIL - After three straight losses, The Borden County Coyotes have gone back to the drawing board.

The Coyotes started strong but their lack of experience proved to be a problem.

"We're playing some good football. Our offense is better and our defense haven't given up to many yards. We just lack the quality of football to play in this district," Borden County head coach Bobby Avery said.

With five seniors and juniors, and 13 freshmen and sophomores the Coyotes are concentrating on establishing a good base for next year.

A win against Highland would be a good place to start.

"We are going to have to contain their tailback. They've got the speed and quickness to get around the outside. They can throw the ball good too. Our defense will play a big part," Avery said.

The Coyotes will travel to Highland Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Westbrook (5-3, 3-0)

at Hermleigh (4-3, 2-1)

WESTBROOK - The Westbrook Wildcats, in their second year in District 5 six man play, can clinch a playoff spot with a win Friday against Hermleigh.

"The two remaining games are the most important games and this one is the most important of the two. A win will clinch us a playoff spot, but a loss could throw us in a tie where we could lose in the flip," Westbrook head coach Jim Hill said.

The game will be a defensive matchup. Hill's hard-hitting defense will meet up with Hermleigh's defense led by linebacker Jimmy Digby.

"Hermleigh has a real physical ball club and the offense is going to have to key in on their linebacker. They have a good defensive game and we have to be ready," Hill said.

Playoff pressure is new to the Wildcats, but is something they are getting used to.

"The kids have been under the pressure they put on themselves to achieve their goals. They know what they want and they will get it."

Grady (3-5, 0-3)

vs. Wellman (5-3, 2-1)

GRADY - The Grady Wildcats will face another tough team in their search for their first district win.

"We are still hanging in there. We have done better than we were expected, realistically we were supposed to be 0-10. To some degree we are successful just by playing each week. We haven't quit yet," Grady head coach Roger Smith said.

In order for Grady to get a win the Wildcats have to start out strong and finish strong, which will be hard.

Smith said, "Wellman will be back at full form. They had their speed on the sidelines when they lost to Klondike and Sands. They are a much better team than their record shows."

The Wildcats defense will play major role in the game. It will have to contain Wellman's speed and stop the big plays.

Grady will face Wellman Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Real listening requires real skill

Real listening is one of the highest forms of human influence. It is a learned art and requires an inner sensitivity that goes beyond words to the feelings and real meanings of what is said.

Dana Tarter
Extension Agent

Unfortunately, we are often so eager to get our point across that we don't pay enough attention to what is being said. The goal of listening is simply to hear, understand and accept the other person's feelings and views. Parents need to set aside their lectures and opinions and really strive to understand from the point of view of their children.

It is almost impossible to train children to speak openly and honestly and constructively of their feelings, wishes and needs unless they have acquired the faith that such expression will meet with acceptance rather than with coolness or rejection.

While striving to understand, avoid giving advice, talking about our own experiences instead of theirs, or making the child's concern seem unimportant. A common strategy is the following:

•Give children full attention. Put aside lectures, reactions, feelings, perceptions and judgments. Eliminate distractions such as the newspaper, television or radio. Parents must put themselves in their child's shoes and try to see the situation from their child's point of view. •Physically, parents can show children they have their full attention by leaning toward and looking at the child, this shows involvement and concern. Emotions are often communicated through the eyes and parents can better understand the child's feelings by watching their eyes.

•Acknowledge your child's feelings. Sometimes though we do not intend to, we deny children's feelings by trying to make them feel or see things the way we do. Parents need to acknowledge and respect a child's feelings and views.

Next time your child approaches you with a problem or conflict invite more discussion.

Sometimes using a simple "Oh...mmm...I see" is enough to invite more discussion and this combined with a caring attitude will help children find solutions to problems on their own.

LITTLE DAB'LL DO YA

IN THE BAG

Huge roasting birds aren't the only turkeys on Thanksgiving Day. Sometimes it's the rest of the meal. A sampling:

— Canned cranberry sauce with the ridges still in place. At least slice it; even better, follow the recipe on each bag of fresh cranberries for that no-cook cranberry-orange relish.

— Stuffing recipes that call for pistachio nuts, dried cherries or figs, portobello mushrooms or Tex-Mex chiles.

— Frozen pies, or any pie with a machine-made crust (you can always spot a fake crimp). If there's no time or patience for homemade pies, do fruit cobbler or press Aglamesis pumpkin ice cream into a gingersnap crust.

— Canned lumps of sweet potatoes candied with pancake syrup.

— Instant or frozen mashed potatoes. Not for Thanksgiving, of all days.

— Brown-and-serve cloverleaf dinner rolls. This is a harvest holiday; make a little bread ahead.

Ready for some turkey disaster stories? From Whirlpool's consumer assistance center:

"Every year we hear from at least two frantic callers who inadvertently locked their self-cleaning ovens, trapping their Thanksgiving turkeys inside," says Whirlpool's Paula Hickmont. "The problem is that the person cannot get the bird out of the oven until it runs through the cleaning cycle."

From Butterball:
— A Kentucky woman called the toll-free number in '93 after her chihuahua jumped into the bird's body cavity and couldn't get out. She tried pulling the dog, shaking the bird; nothing worked. A Butterball Talk-Line home economist suggested carefully cutting the opening in the turkey wider.

— White meat, anyone? Taking anti-bacterial precautions way too far, a woman scrubbed her bird with bleach and then called the Talk-Line to find out how to get the bleach off. She was advised to dump the bleached turkey.

— Dinner on the run: A caller asked how long to roast the turkey. How big is it, the home economist asked. The caller responded, "I don't know; it's still running around outside."

Butterball's help-line, 1-800-323-4848, is open Thanksgiving week, Nov. 19-23. Their internet address: <http://www.butterball.com>.

WHAT GOES AROUND...

First love may make a return visit decades later

By SHERRI VASQUEZ
Scripts Howard News Service

After 60 years, two marriages, a divorce, three children and widowhood, Louise Allen fell in love again with her first love.

Allen is 76. Clarence Baylie, 80, had been married to the same woman for 50 years and was alone after she died. When he received a letter from Allen, his former sweetheart, he was surprised, then ecstatic. Surprised because he thought Allen had died. Ecstatic because she was alive and driving from Denver to Kansas to see him after six decades.

Rekindled romances are more common than people think, says Nancy Kalish, a psychology professor at California State University-Sacramento. Kalish has been studying long-lost lovers and is writing a book on the subject.

Nearly 500 people aged 20 to 89 around the world participated in the project. Kalish became interested when she rekindled an old romance with her college sweetheart. "I couldn't find anything on the subject," she says. "There were no books."

Of the couples in the study who reconnected, the ones most likely to stay together were those who met when they were 17 or younger, says Kalish. In most cases, they were each other's "first love."

Roger Wade, a sociology professor who teaches sexuality issues at Metropolitan State College of Denver, says, a person who is attracted to someone when young will likely find that person attractive later.

"People don't really change that much," Wade says. "Their temperaments and predispositions seem to remain pretty constant throughout their lives."

Baylie was Allen's first love. "We were both born and raised in Mankato, Kan. I met him when I was 15 and he was 20. His sister was a school friend of mine."

"We went steady for 1 1/2 years, but my mother thought he was too old for me and we broke it off."

Kalish says parental disapproval is the No. 1 reason couples in her study broke up. "Parents are afraid of their child's sexuality."

Baylie moved to Wyoming in 1934. In 1936, at 17, Allen married Arby Noller and moved to Denver. In 1943 they had a daughter and their twin sons were born in 1949. In 1956, after 20 years of marriage, they divorced.

She married her second husband, Marvin Allen, in 1960. He died in 1965.

In 1994, Allen was attending a family reunion in Colorado and a Nebraska woman wrote to Allen's niece to say she thought she was somehow related.

"She said her grandmother's name was Eva Baylie. I remember Tony had an older sister named Eva, so I wrote her and asked if she knew Tony Baylie. She said he was her uncle."

Baylie lost his wife in 1989 after 50 years of marriage and two children. After her death, he moved to Smith Center, Kan.

"I wrote him a note. I didn't know if he would remember me," she says. Instead of writing back, he called information for her phone number and called her, saying he couldn't wait to get in touch. He was surprised because someone told him I had died."

In November '94, she went to visit.

"I drove from Aurora to Smith Center. On the way there, I was pulled over for going 80 miles an hour. When I told the police officer why I was speeding, he said, 'Ma'am, if he's waited 60 years to see you, I'm sure he'd like to see you in one piece.'"

"He didn't give me a ticket, but he told me to slow down."

Baylie had told Allen to look for his red van outside one of the town's cafes, and to meet him there.

"When I walked into the cafe, it was very crowded. We made eye contact and I never saw anybody else in there. Then everybody in the cafe started clapping — they all knew I was coming."

They plan to travel the country in his van. Any plans for marriage? "Well, Allen says coyly, "possibly."

Members of Big Spring State Hospital's Volunteer Services celebrate their third consecutive win of the David Wade Plaque at the TXMHMR Volunteer Services State Council meeting. Other BSSH volunteers won individual awards at the Oct. 21 meeting in Corpus Christi.

State hospital's volunteer spirit earns awards for local workers

Special to the Herald

Big Spring State Hospital and its employees earned several awards at the Oct. 21 annual fall meeting of the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation Volunteer Services State Council.

The council honored exemplary volunteer efforts on behalf of people with mental illness and mental retardation.

The 1995 Rookie of the Year Award recognizes volunteers who have begun working with an MHMR program during the past year. The honorees included Jill Civello of BSSH.

The 1995 Regional Volunteer Award is given to an individual in each of five regions of Texas for exceptional service to persons with mental illness or mental retardation. The Region 1 winner was Charles Rainwater, DDS, from BSSH.

Rainwater began volunteering in 1988 and serves on several statewide committees. He regularly supplies toothbrushes, toothpaste and dental care items for patients in addition to working on their dental problems.

The winner of the 1995 David Wade Plaque was the BSSH Volunteer Services Council. The plaque recognizes the volunteer services council which has made the most effort for volunteer participation at the fall meeting.

This is the third consecutive year they have received this award. Since the award's inception in 1973, the state hospital has won it 11 times. The honor is based on the number of volunteers who have traveled the farthest to attend the meeting. Twenty-four attended from Big Spring.

Stanton High School celebrates reunions
Members of Stanton High School's graduating class of 1934 had their 61st reunion Oct. 28. They met from 10:30 to noon at Guy's Restaurant. They then went to tour the Martin County Historical Museum for some more visiting, (bragging about children and grandchildren).
Those attending were: John Tella and Lera Atchison, Midland; A.C. and Melba Bassett, Odessa; Geraldine (Jerry) Ledbetter, Temple; Avery and Eadie (Eddie Smith) Falkner, Big Spring; Allene (Long) Hamilton, Big Spring; Juanita Hall (Atchison), Stanton; Stanley and Jane Reid, Stanton.
Black sweatshirts with a white buffalo on the front were available for class members that were present. A brochure was printed with names and photos of class members, those deceased, and the schedule. The room was decorated with black and white balloons (school colors of that time). This class met in Stanton for their 50th reunion and also their 59th reunion.

One day until playground's Design Day
The Design Day meeting for the playground project will be 7 p.m. Thursday at the Municipal Auditorium. At the meeting, the name for the playground will be revealed, along with the architect's design. The winning name will come from a list developed by the children's committee. The children who came up with the top 10 names will also be honored. Architect Steve Lauzun will be at local schools during the day to meet with children and receive their input on the park's design. For more information call Katy McAteer, 263-5289.

TV lately equals P.U.

So, have you watched any really good TV shows this season?

Neither have I. Let's understand something, from the onset, I'm not one of those people who claim, "I don't watch much TV. I really don't have the time." I do have the time, and if I didn't, I'd make the time. I don't own a VCR, I can't afford to go out to the movies, and I can read only so much before my eyes start to cross.

I need my TV!
I don't watch at all during the day and on warm summer evenings I can't be bothered, but during prime time from September through April you'll find me planted in the living room, glued to the tube.

Every September I look forward to the TV Guide's fall preview issue. Each new show, listed according to day and time, is accompanied by a brief synopsis. At a glance the winners and losers can be determined by anyone not existing in a state of unconsciousness.

I read that the powers that be are continually bombarded with ideas for new shows. Only a very few of these ideas are chosen to be made into pilots, and only the best of these pilots are picked up for a weekly series.

It's a highly selective process ensuring that the programming coming into our homes is top drawer — the best of the best.

Apparently something goes awry.

This season the show "Friends" is generating more than a few mirror images. The show is about a group of people who get along and have history. It works because the writing is terrific and the characters are likable.

It's a good concept for this '90s group of friends just as it was a good concept for another group of friends 40 years ago — Lucy, Desi, Fred and Ethel. It's not going to be good for every show that comes down the pike. There seems to be a real lack of original thinking out there in TV land.

One new show stars a former stand-up comic who made a name for himself doing depraved, disgusting material about women. While needling the opposite sex is a staple of comedians, this guy's stuff was way over the edge. His career floundered because hate has a way of turning on itself.

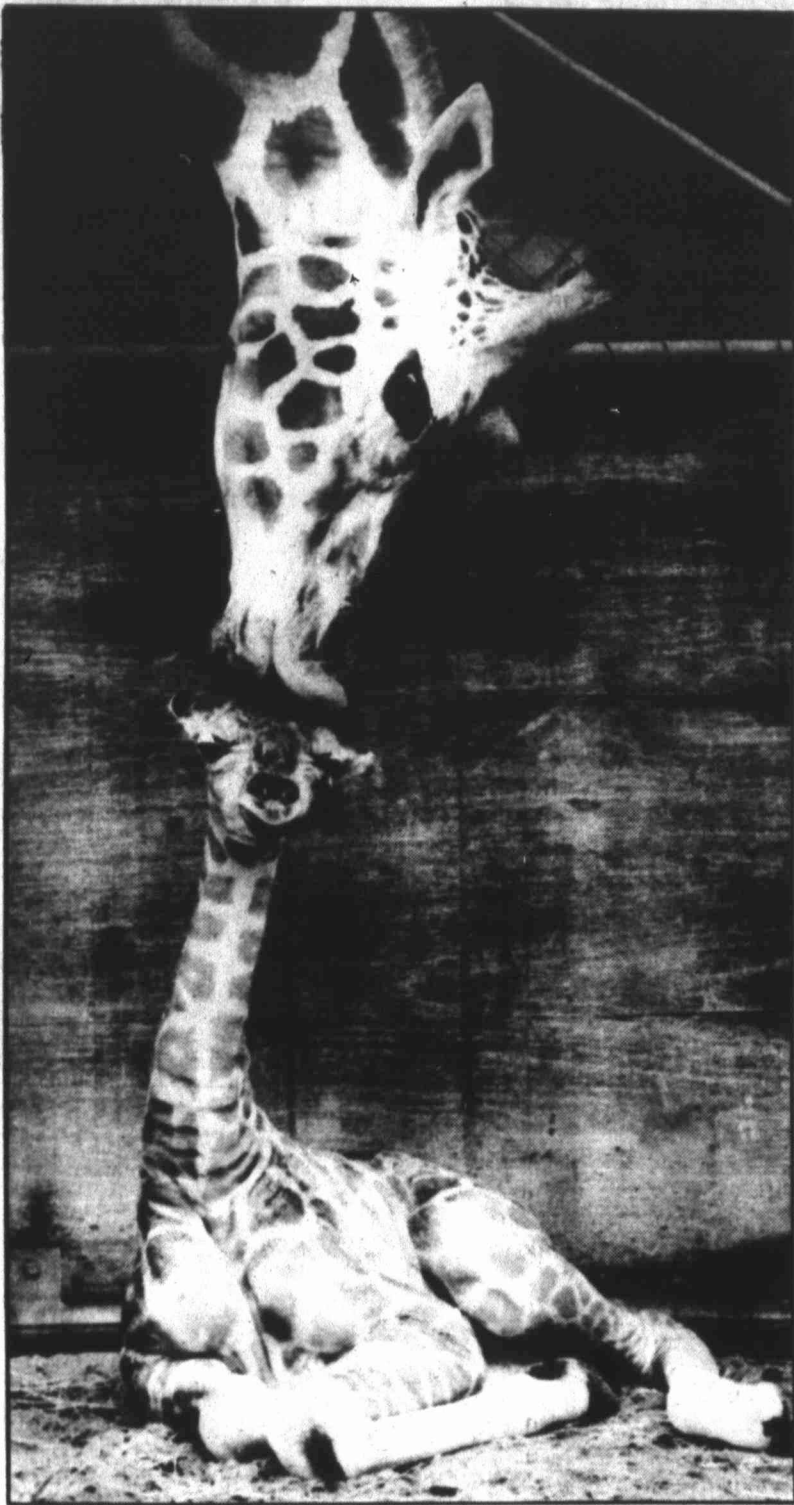

Now they give this pig-man a slight name change and cast him as a lovable sitcom dad. We're supposed to forgive, forget and accept. What kind of cheeseheads are these network execs anyway?

Maybe if I had been born earlier in the century I wouldn't be so "vast wasteland" dependent, but I'm a baby boomer. TV and I grew up together. It's an important part of my life.

Long ago the networks and I made an unspoken agreement. They would come across with programming that would entertain me. In return, I would sit still for commercials from their sponsors. That was the deal. Lately they haven't been holding up their end. All I ask is for a little creativity.

Is that so wrong?

Menswear loosens its tie - but just a notch

By SUZANNE S. BROWN
Scripps Howard News Service

For men who have spent most of their 9-to-5 lives wearing suits and ties, it can be tough to shed that uniform and select a casual replacement.

Yet 90 percent of American workers are wearing casual clothes to work at least some of the time. And relishing the comfort of it. Sixty-one percent of the workers surveyed in 1993-94 by NPD Group of Port Washington, N.Y., said their morale improves when they get perks such as dressing casually, and 28 percent said they'd like to dress down every day.

But most men will admit to needing some advice on loosening up their image while remaining professional, say department and specialty store menswear retailers. We asked them to share their ideas on building a workable casual wardrobe.

First, determine how formal your office environment is. Dayton Hudson's department store division has published a book, "The Complete Guide to Dressing for Workday Casual", and offers these guidelines for determining how to dress.

Your office is informal if day in and day out, pretty much anything goes. It doesn't matter whether or not you're meeting clients, there probably isn't a dress code. You're likely to work in labor / construction sales, computer programming, advertising, art.

Your office is semi-formal if you are expected to look businesslike, but a matched suit isn't required. Examples: government, computer industries, residential real estate, education, retail.

Your office is formal if credibility is tied to appearance. Men wear suits rather than sportcoats, women wear tailored suits and dresses rather than pants. Even on casual days, a professional image is expected. Examples: finance, law, stocks, corporate development, insurance, commercial real estate.

After determining your environment, you can begin making choices about what to wear. Your position in that company and your personal style comes into play at that point, too.

"We try to know who they are and how they need to look in addition to what kind of work they do," says Jim Harder, who with partner Jim Park owns a sportswear store.

Harder says his goal is to show customers "that they can look as good in a denim shirt, tie and pants as they do in a suit."

It's also important for him to demonstrate clothing items can be paired in various ways to make different outfits. "I encourage them to make more sense out of their buys," he says.

The most important thing for men to understand is that there are different degrees of casual, says Colby McWilliams, vice president and director of men's fashion at Neiman Marcus. Executives shouldn't be wearing the jeans and sweatshirts sported by employees in the mail room.

"These are not the same clothes you'd wear to a football game or to run errands on a Saturday," McWilliams says. Please see TIE, page 3B

ABWA looks for ways to help others

By MARY McATEER
Staff Writer

With the end of World War II, men who had been in the military returned to the workforce expecting to resume their former jobs.

Women who had worked during the war, many of them widowed, suddenly found themselves unemployed. They needed the support of other working women and more education to improve their employment prospects.

During the 1950s, two ABWA chapters were established in Big Spring - the Cactus Chapter and the Scenic Chapter. After the Air Force base closed during the 70s and Big Spring's population decreased, membership declined, and in 1988 the two chapters merged, becoming the Scenic Cactus Chapter of ABWA.

Recently, club members sat down and made a list of things they could do to help out in Big Spring, because "we feel like we need to do something in our community," says Vice President Eileen Zant.

In addition to the club's annual scholarships, the list of projects included a drive to collect unused makeup for patients at Big Spring State Hospital for Christmas, dressing angel trees, and collecting magazines for the VA hospital.

Club members presented the fruits of their magazine collecting to Warren Longley, associate director of the VA Hospital, with a promise to make magazine collecting a regular, possibly monthly, occurrence. The gift was much appreciated, Longley said.

Club members are busy preparing for the annual arts and crafts shows at the Big Spring Mall Nov. 4 and Dec. 9. Area crafters rent booths where they display and sell woodcraft, crochet, floral items, lingerie, and candy.

The arts and crafts shows and the auction in the spring are ABWA's primary fund-raisers, providing the money they distribute in scholarships.

VA Medical Center Associate Director Warren Longley, ABWA Vice President Eileen Zant, President Betty Kelley, Secretary Danielle Castillo, Ways and Means Chairman Deloris Albert, Membership Chairman Betty Williams, and Natasha Castillo look through one of the magazines collected for the hospital.

ABWA scholarships are available to all women pursuing higher education, whether they are first time, returning, or non-traditional students. Scholarships, usually three per semester, are awarded on the basis of need and the club's available funds. Usually, once a woman has received a scholarship, as long as she maintains her grades the club will continue the scholarship as long as it's needed. For more information on the American Business Women's Association, please call 263-8019.

HOROSCOPE

FOR THURSDAY, NOV. 2, 1995

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You solve problems this week and as a result feel more together and anchored than you have for a while. Follow through on a creative idea. Brainstorming brings positive results to you and success to an associate. Be open to another's input. Tonight: Do what you want. *****

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Catch your breath and stop because too much is happening too fast. Staying clear about your choices can make a big difference in what goes on. Do not react to a decision; choose not to react. Follow-through counts. Tonight: Get a good night's sleep. **

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Evaluate what you want because you have the ability to create it. Stay anchored when others are confused by their choices. Your directness and knowledge make a big difference in what occurs. A boss may be pushing you hard. Tonight: Start the weekend early. *****

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be willing to check out new vistas and a special opportunity. You might understand far more than others realize. Your awareness and directness affect how you feel. Stay in tune with your long-term professional goals. Tonight: Take a class or a seminar. ***

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You get feedback from a partner, and your diplomatic style helps you turn a problem around. Examine what you want to do regarding a child or loved one. You might need to get that person's perspective before presenting a surprise decision. Tonight: Go for what's new. *****

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Partnerships open up considerably and cause positive changes. You understand more about a friendship; however, this might cause you to regroup. Evaluate, but don't make rash decisions. Be careful how you mix money and relationships. Tonight: Have a long talk. *****

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Changes could throw you off, if you let them. Acknowledge what is important to you. Don't let your emotions get triggered, and you'll succeed. Partners reveal much if you stay cool. Realize your limits concerning a change. Tonight: Hold on to your wallet. ****

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your creative juices flow, and you might want to keep a wish list. All that is happening opens a new door and helps you know what makes you happy. Romance flourishes. If you are single, your allure is unquestionable. Others are drawn to you. Tonight: Get some work done. *****

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A personal matter takes precedence today, and you can make a big difference. Evaluate changes, and work with an unexpected revelation. Your fun-loving side saves the day. Share your laughter and perceptions with those around you. Tonight: Begin the weekend. ***

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Reach out to someone to make your expectations clear. A romantic encounter opens new doors. Work with the unanticipated, and you'll succeed. Recognize that others may not view you the same as you do. Accept meaningful feedback. Tonight: Get some extra sleep. ****

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your possessive side emerges, despite your desire to keep certain facts submerged. Communications will flourish, and what comes out proves to be good for you in the long run. Be willing to brainstorm, review opinions and come up with new ideas. Tonight: Hang out. ****

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You are empowered by today's changes. Opportunities knock on your door, and you feel content in someone's company. A friend surprises you. Nothing is written in stone, except your own charisma. Tonight: Indulge yourself. *****

IF NOV. 2 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Romance is highlighted this year, if you are open to it. Your creativity also peaks. Others learn to seek you out for a new perspective or a different point of view. Question where you are going, and use your ingenuity constructively. You are very popular, but this puts greater demands on your time. Stay organized, and feel free to say "no." If you are single, you could have a ball and meet someone special this year. If attached, keep your relationship a high priority. PISCES brings out your talkative side.

Tie

"You should be wearing the equivalent of what you wear when you have a suit on."

A suit, in fact, is what he recommends as one of the first purchases a man should make for his casual wardrobe.

While admitting the irony of his suggestion, McWilliams says that the "soft suit" styling he advocates is a far cry from that in a traditional suit.

New versions emphasize comfort with relaxed armholes and less stiffness in the shoulders and front than traditional suits.

Such a suit can be split up, too. He says to pair such a suit with a jacket with a casual shirt and different trousers; the suit's pants with different jackets, and to change the mood of the suit by wearing it with a sweater or banded collar shirt rather than a dress shirt and tie for either office or evening.

McWilliams suggests sticking with solid classic colors—black, navy, brown and gray—to maximize your wardrobe investment.

That option is also good for the man who is more comfortable in traditional clothing than modern interpretations.

"If you have any reservations about something you're wearing, it's probably not right. If you have a second thought about it, go with something more basic," McWilliams says.

Big Spring High School senior Kathy Green reacts as she was named the 1995 Homecoming queen Friday evening. Her father, Floyd Green, reaches to give his daughter a hug.

DEAR ABBY: I must disagree with your flip answer to "Ticked Off in Texas." It is clear that neither you nor any of your staff has ever been in the position of being a second wife where there are children from a prior marriage.

I agree, it is very important for the divorced parents to be able to discuss matters pertaining to their child (or children), but that is as far as it should go. Buying items from the drug (or grocery) store for his former wife should not be his responsibility. As an adult, she should assume responsibility for her own shopping.

If this couple is such good friends, why did they get divorced in the first place? He has remarried, and his main responsibility is to his present wife. For you to mock the second wife for having the courage to express her feelings shows an unusual lack of understanding on your part. -- ALSO TICKED OFF

DEAR ALSO: I stand by my reply. In no way did I mock the second wife for expressing her feelings.

Hostility between former spouses hurts everyone—especially the children. It is much better when former spouses can be friendly and interact with their children.

Doing occasional favors and maintaining a reasonably friendly relationship does not mean that the second wife is loved less. In fact, a husband who does not have to contend with his former wife's anger is freer to pursue the good life with wife No. 2.

DEAR ABBY: A little rhyme regarding non-voters: About politics, they've much to say Because that's the American way. But they can't cast their vote With a TV remote Sitting home on election day. -- JEANNE M. HOLT, LARGO, FLA.

THE Daily Crossword by Samuel K. Flegner

Crossword puzzle grid with clues for Across and Down words.

THIS DATE IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, Nov. 1, the 305th day of 1995. There are 60 days left in the year. This is All Saints Day. Today's Highlight in History: On Nov. 1, 1952, the United States exploded the first hydrogen bomb, in a test at Eniwetok in the Marshall Islands. On this date: In 1512, Michelangelo's paintings on the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel were first exhibited to the public. In 1604, William Shakespeare's tragedy "Othello" was first presented at Whitehall Palace in London. In 1611, Shakespeare's romantic comedy "The Tempest" was first presented at Whitehall. In 1785, the Stamp Act went into effect, prompting stiff resistance from American colonists. In 1861, Gen. George B. McClellan was made General-in-Chief of the Union armies. In 1870, the United States Weather Bureau made its first meteorological observations, using reports gathered by telegraph from 24 locations. In 1936, in a speech in Milan, Italy, Benito Mussolini described the alliance between his country and Nazi Germany as an "axis" running between Rome and Berlin. In 1944, "Harvey," a comedy by Mary Chase about a man and his friend, an invisible 6-foot rabbit, opened on Broadway. In 1950, two Puerto Rican nationalists tried to force their way into Blair House in Washington to assassinate President Truman. The attempt failed, and one of the pair was killed. In 1954, the western African nation of Algeria began its rebellion against French rule. In 1973, in the wake of the Saturday Night Massacre, acting Attorney General Robert H. Bork appointed Leon Jaworski to be the new Watergate special prosecutor, succeeding Archibald Cox. Ten years ago: Twenty-two members of a Mexican anti-narcotics squad were killed by alleged drug traffickers in the village of Ignacio Aldama. Five years ago: During a trip to Orlando, Fla., President Bush accused Iraqi forces of engaging in "barbarism" and "brutality," adding, "I don't believe that Adolf Hitler ever participated in anything of that nature." One year ago: The Senate Intelligence Committee released a report saying that CIA Director R. James Woolsey's response to the Aldrich Ames spy case was "seriously inadequate," but that his predecessors were ultimately to blame for the scandal. Today's Birthdays: Newspaper columnist James J.
