TWO MEN CONFESS TO $1,000 STORE ROBBERY

Lives Of 13 Children Snuffed Out In Storm

SCHOOL HOUSE SHATTERED AS GALE BREAKS WITH FURY OVER SMALL VILLAGE IN MARYLAND

Eleven Perish In Ruins And Two Others Die In Hospitals; Negro Man And Woman Also Killed; 20 Other Persons Injured

LAPLATA, Md., Nov. 9. (AP)—A twisting wind struck suddenly out of a sultry sky today and shattered a school house here in which about 50 children were studying.

Eleven perished in the ruins and two others died while being rushed to Washington for treatment. At least 20 more were injured, some critically, and a negro man and woman were killed in their dwelling, one of three caught in the narrow mile-long path of the storm.

Eleven of the torn little bodies lay tonight in the town's undertaking establishment or at their homes while two were still in the Washington hospitals which were reached too late.

The dead: Marie Langley, aged 10; Mary Ellen Bowie, 7; Lever Martin, 12; Jack Clark, Jr., 12; Lester Sinclair, 7; Mary Alice Cooksey, 9; William Bean, 10; Levega Martin, 10; Henry H. Claggett, 8; Lorenz Martin; Alice Bean, Lucille Miles, 12; Wright Maddox, 9; Rupert Watts, negro; Lula Patterson, negro woman.

Laplata, which has a population of only 500 was dazed by the disaster. At 3 o'clock only a little rain was falling and everything was calm. Two minutes later the wind driving a torrent of rain before it, descended upon the village. Dr. G. D. Heath, Maryland health department official, whose office was across the street from the school, saw it twisted into a mass of splinters and closed his eyes to shut out the horror.

Rush To Aid.

The whole town soon was rushing up the little knoll on which the school house stood. Injured children lay in the twisted wreckage which was strewn over a wide circle. Other children were running about dazed and crying for help. Some had been carried by the wind several hundred feet; others had fled, stumbling and weeping.

Although several houses had been smashed in the storm's path, its greatest force seemed to center in the one small spot on which stood the little school house. The wind and rain came out of the southwest and up the Potomac river, which flows not far away. Cutting a northeasterly path it missed the greater part of the town.

Miss Ethel Graves, one of the two teachers of the school, called the children about her when the first inkling of the storm was given. As they gathered the building began to move and then the frame work was sheared from the foundation as if cut by a scythe. The larger part of the building was carried about 50 feet away. Every living thing within its walls went with the wind.

Calls Sent For Aid.

Within ten minutes after the storm, calls for aid had been sent to Indian Head and Dahlgreen, Md., and Washington. Medical aid was dispatched at once. The physicians and nurses first on the scene found only a measure of order restored, but most of the severely injured had already been started to Washington and for others the town's two hotels and newspaper office served as hospitals.

One of the few children within the school who was able tonight to give an account of the disaster was Muriel Hardesty, 13, one of the oldest in the classes. She suffered only a few bruises.

"The first time I knew what was happening," she said, "was when the window panes began to chatter. Then there was a thunder clap and a roar. The stove began to wabble about the room and then the whole building went over. The next thing I knew I was in the Bowling hotel."

Some described the storm as first hitting the house of Mr. and Mrs. James Padgett, demolishing it and injuring Mr. and Mrs. Padgett and their two children. Next in its path was the home of Mrs. Charles Jamieson. It, too, was wrecked and she was injured. The school house was then in line and from there the storm swept down a ravine and smashed the home of Rufus Watts, negro. He was killed and Eliza Watts was injured.

JITNEYS BARRED

Old Ordinance May Change Plan Of Bus Firm

FORT WORTH, Nov. 9. (AP)—An ordinance several years old barring jitneys from downtown streets here probably will cause the Southland Transportation company of Dallas to abandon its projected bus line to Fort Worth and run it to San Antonio instead.

W. H. Flippin, Dallas lawyer and attorney for Guy Shields, head of the company, said today that they incline to such a course.

The company planned to run cars between two large hotels of Dallas and Fort Worth, respectively, but it was found that the local hostelry could not be reached by bus except over forbidden thoroughfares.

Apple sauce for the Wichita Falls public because it is unusually quick at discovering the hidden piont in humorous subtleties (oh yes, yes, yes), crackling satire aimed on the city's traffic system, razzberries softened by a dash of sugar and cream for certain of the nation's politicians, quips about Marie, Calvin and Farmer Jim, a dissertation on Europe, a Solomon's philosophy dressed in Shavian wit minus the sarcasm, and a bag of phenomenal stunts with the lasso.

That was Will Rogers, the international comedian, a former Texas and Oklahoma cowboy who rode the range through territory adjacent to Wichita Falls when the city was not a city but a cluster of one-story buildings and shacks bordering the state highway. It all happened last night in the Junior college auditorium.

Auditorium Packed.

The inimitable Rogers, self-appointed spokesman of the White House, told a multitude which packed the auditorium that America had five friends in Europe before he took an ambassadorial jaunt across the Atlantic, and after he finished his trip that five had joined the majority. "But those fellows have been hating each other for years," he said, "and have only started to dislike America." Rogers declared American tourists should stay away from Europe and do their touring at home, explaining "there is more to see" in the United States and adding, "you don't see those fellows coming over here and

ROAD INQUIRY MEETS SILENCE IN EX-WORKER

Sherman-Youmans Employe Is Firm in Refusal To Answer Questions

INQUISITOR GETS RILED

Committee Member Declares He Will Talk as Soon As Legislature Meets

AUSTIN, Nov. 9. (AP)—Persistent refusal of T. H. Needham, former employe of the Sherman-Youmans Construction company of Houston, to answer questions relating to that company's state highway contracts enlivened Tuesday's session of the house investigating committee. He was the first witness thus far to refuse flatly to answer interrogations.

Needham, who is vice-president of the Southern Road company, pointed out that a suit brought by Attorney General Dan Moody is pending in the 53rd district court here and declared questions pertinent to the suit should not be asked him by the committee. He held to his contention under the vigorous questioning of three attorneys and of Rep. W. A. Williamson, of San Antonio, committee member.

Has His Say.

After Needham had refused to answer "yes" or "no" to a series of his questions, Williamson asked permission of the committee to address a remark to the witness. Upon permission being given, Williamson said to Needham: "I just want to tell you, sir, that your memory will be freshened when the 40th legislature convenes."

When the legislature is in session, it can punish a witness for contempt, a power the committee apparently concedes it does not possess when the legislature is not in session.

Richard Critz, committee attorney, informed Needham the committee would want him to go on the stand Wednesday, but Needham said he had to return Tuesday night to Port Arthur, and the committee refused to pay him the mileage and witness fee allowed other witnesses.

Needham told the Associated

Judges Disqualified Or Not Anxious to Preside In Her Case

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Nov. 9 (AP)—Commitment papers holding Aimee Semple McPherson and her co-defendants to trial on three counts of conspiracy were in the hands of the criminal division of the superior court tonight and consideration was being given to what judge should preside at the evangelist's trial.

Of the five criminal judges, Carlos S. Hardy is disqualified because he was a witness at the preliminary hearing of Mrs. McPherson, and Arthur Keetch has made it known that his intimate knowledge of the kidnaping case would eliminate him. Judge Victor McLucas is reported to have expressed a desire not to preside.

This would leave Judge Charles Burnell and Edwin Hahn eligible to try the case. Between these two jurists have been divided the most important cases in recent years here.

PIGGLY WIGGLY THEFT OCT. 31 IS CLEARED UP

$635 Cash Recovered From Pasture Cache on Petrolia Road

FIND IT "INSIDE JOB"

Butcher and Former Employe Now Face Charges Of Thievery

With the confession of two men and the recovery of $635 in cash, dug up from a pasture hiding place nine miles out on the Petrolia road, Chief of Police George Hodgins announced Tuesday that the robbery October 31 of a safe in the Piggly-Wiggly No. 2 grocery had been cleared up. Something over $1,000 was taken from the safe. Of this, $635 has been recovered and the balance has been accounted for almost to a penny in expenditures made by the two men now in jail.

One of the men now held was a butcher at the store, located on Indiana avenue. The second man was at one time employed in the Piggly-Wiggly system but for a week or so prior to the robbery had not been connected with the company. He it was, the police declare, who was locked in the store at the close of the business on October 31, who opened the safe, using the combination said to have been supplied him by the butcher, who made his getaway and who later split the proceeds with the other man.

Arrested Saturday

Both men have been under arrest intermittently since last Saturday. City Detective Seth Gardner, who was put to work on the case immediately after it was reported, Chief Hodgins said. Nothing conclusive could be found, however, until Tuesday. Gardner continued his work with help from Hodgins, Night Chief Will Allen and Detectives Carmichael and Kiersey.

Tuesday morning one of the men held in jail was released but was shadowed by Gardner. He went, the officers say, to the union station where he checked out a hand bag. This he took to a point nine miles out on the Petrolia road where he opened it and buried something. The bag was then brought back to the city and rechecked at the station.

Caught in Hotel

Officers were sent to the Albany hotel where the suspect had engaged a room and he was arrested again as he came in. Taken to the city hall he was subjected to an intensive questioning and after a short period of this offered to take the police to the hiding place of the money. He later made a full detailed statement to officers concerning the whole thing, they assert.

Police said last night that they had suspected an "inside job" from the first. Officials of the Piggly-Wiggly system here concurred in this belief. The investigation preceeded on this theory, notwithstanding the fact that, to all external appearances, the robbery was done by someone breaking in through a skylight at the store. A panel of glass had been removed and other indications left of an entrance being effected this way.

Formal charges of robbery will be filed against the pair today.

One Time Sheik, Deserted and Dejected, Leaves for Long Prison Term With None of His Dashing Bravado and a Sorry Figure of His Former Self

CHICAGO, Nov. 9. (AP)—Dejected, deserted, surly and unrecognized, Martin J. Durkin went to a half century penal sentence today.

No longer the bizarre "sheik" the temporary hero of many fancies intrigued by the first page narrations of his florid affairs with women, his activities as a nationally-sought fugitive from justice, his readiness to "shoot it out" with officers, he was just "another mug that the law caught up with."

When he came back to Chicago, thousands of persons, women and girls predominating, crushed against each other hours before train time in an effort to reach points of vantage from which to behold the compelling "sheik."

Manacled then as he was, and heavily guarded, he was immaculately groomed, his moustache waxily twirled, his smile effervescent and contagious, and there was many a gasp of "oh Marty," "atta boy, Marty," and "hello, Marty," and sopranos trilled the greetings. Today he needed a shave, he did not have on an excellently tailored top coat to shield him from the biting wind and driving snow, and the hurrying passengers in the railroad station looked a second time only because the stooped, slouchy, sulking man was chained between two husky guards and a third walked just behind.

Gaily he posed for newspaper pictures when he came back from St. Louis, Mo., where he was caught after a transcontinental chase. Today he ducked his head, with "youse guys have got enough of me."

Tonight in the state penitentiary near Joliet he lost his identity excepting for a number, while he serves 35 years for the murder of Edwin C. Shanahan, federal agent, who sought to arrest him for violation of the Dyer act. After that there will be 15 years and five days of federal sentences seven in all and they will run consecutively, two of five years each and five of a year and a day each.

CITY WATER REPORT IS READY

BIG NEEDS TO BE OUTLINED BY ENGINEERS

Vast Amount of Data Is Now Being Assembled In Kansas City

OFFICERS INVESTIGATE

Shepherd and Curd Leave Today for Conference With Experts

Wichita Falls will soon know the true secrets of her water supply problem and the city council will be furnished complete data and facts concerning the situation. This information was given Tuesday to Mayor R. E. Shepherd by Black and Veatch, technical engineers of Kansas City, who have been engaged to make a survey.

Black and Veatch were given a contract several weeks ago to furnish a complete and exhaustive survey of the entire problem of water supply here. This calls for data, facts and figures on several different projects already proposed, and from this survey the council intends to adopt a plan of action for relieving the situation.

Complicated Report.

That the report is to be much more complicated than had been anticipated is evidenced by the fact that much of the work is being done in the firm's main offices in Kansas City, rather than actually on the ground here. It is a matter principally of figuring actual costs between the major plans projected.

Mayor Shepherd and Commissioner P. B. Curd are leaving today for Kansas City where they will go into the details of the survey. The report is practically finished and will be presented to the city council within the next regular session following its arrival in the city.

Two general plans have been proposed for the water supply problem. One plan is to supply Lake Wichita with water from Lake Kemp at regular intervals, and to run all the water through a filteration or softening plant that would eliminate the mineral substances now in Lake Kemp water. The other is to construct a dual piping system in the city, one for house and table use and the other for washing and irrigation purposes. The line carrying water for domestic use would be filled with Lake Wichita water and the line carrying the irrigation and washing water would be supplied from Lake Kemp.

Can Be Softened.

Various water engineers and chemists, including the state chemist, have stated that Lake Kemp water could be softened, but that the process is an expensive one and not feasible except where no cheaper plan could be found. On the other hand, much objection has been drawn to the dual system because of the added expense of installing and handling of charge accounts.

The engineers are under contract to furnish data on actual costs of installing a filtering plant, cost of operation and upkeep; to ascertain the actual cost of impounding Lake Kemp water in to Wichita lake; cost of putting in a dual system, and any other schemes or proposition they think practicable or advisable.

The foundation has been laid and material is on the ground at 1003 Ohio where Frank Kell is erecting a one-story brick structure 50x75 feet. It is being put up at a cost of $8,500 and will be completed early in January, 1927. The building is leased to a poultry concern, it was said Tuesday.

Concrete is the aristocrat of pavements

Why Wichita Falls Builds Concrete Streets

Wichita Falls laid its first concrete pavement in 1915—on Scott Street.

For ten years this firm, rigid, unyielding pavement has carried the heavy traffic of the business district. During that time only simple, inexpensive maintenance has been necessary to keep the pavement as good as when built. On many other streets in this thriving city concrete has given the same satisfactory service.

It now has over 500,000 square yards of concrete street pavement, and recently contracted for 200,000 square yards more.

Wichita Falls is known as "The City That Faith Built." Her citizens have pride in the present and vision for the future. Concrete pavements have helped this faith because they act as a town tonic.

What about the streets in your town?

All of the facts are in our free booklet on "Concrete Streets." Ask for your copy.

MEDIC GIVES DEATH STORY

Physician Takes Stand To Tell Jury How Hall Was Slain

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 9, (AP)—After five hours of expert testimony in which two state witnesses reiterated testimony that the finger print of Willie Stevens appears on a calling card in evidence, Dr. Otto S. Schultze took the witness stand to tell of performing an autopsy on the body of Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, slain with the Rev. Edward W. Hall. Mrs. Florence Stevens Hall and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, are charged with the murder of Mrs. Mills.

Uses Wax Model.

Using a wax model to illustrate his testimony, Dr. Schultze told of a bullet wound in the middle of the forehead, the course of the bullet ranging slightly upward.

In addition to the wax representation of the human head, a cross section model was also placed before the witness.

Dr. Schultze said the upper part of the wind pipe, the larnyx and the tongue were missing from Mrs. Mills' body when he made the autopsy.

Body Not Mutilated.

Mr. Will's body was not mutilated, the physician said, and contained only one bullet wound. The bullet entered four inches above the opening of the right ear and pursued a downward course to the base of the skull on the left side.

It was inflicted, he testified, while Mr. Hall was stooping or by some one above his level.

Road Inquiry

Press he felt he had been treated unfairly by the committee. "The committee has refused to pay my mileage and witness fee, but it may have to later," he said. "I was perfectly within my rights in refusing to testify on a case that is in court. I am leaving tonight for Port Arthur, despite the fact Judge Critz told me I was not excused."

Needham refused to admit the Sherman-Youmans company used state highway department equipment on a private contract in Houston, and also declined to say how much state equipment the company in maintaining for a year the Harris and Galveston county highways had used.

Critz asked if the company did not paint out the state sign on state equipment in use on private contracts and Needham again refused to answer, pleading as in other instances of refusal that the Sherman-Youmans case was in court.

He's Going To Wait.

Needham, under questioning from Harry Graves, committee attorney, said "in most cases, the telling of the truth doesn't hurt, but I'm going to wait until trial of the case in court to tell the truth."

L. A. Sherman of Sherman-Youmans told him he would be used as a witness when the state's suit against the company was tried, Needham said.

"Will the testimony you are to give hurt the company?" George Christian, assistant attorney general, queried and Needham replied he did not think it would.

"Will your testimony hurt the state's case?" Christian asked, and Needham answered that would depend upon what questions were asked, but that he did not believe it would.

Although styling himself vice-president of the organization, Needham said he knew little about the Southern Road company; except that Sherman and Frank Youmans, who compose the Sherman-Youmans company were putting up the money. Other officers of the company, he said, are President Col. E. H. Combs; secretary-treasurer, C. A. Wells, both of Houston.

Office of the company is at Houston, and Needham said he had not been in the office since October 15. The company was chartered in Arizona with a capital stock of $200,000, of which $50,000 was paid in, and has a permit to do business in Texas. Needham said he had subscribed to $5,000 of the capital stock, but had paid none of it so far, and that he was to draw $300 a month salary beginning November 18.

Rogers Gives

spending their money." He caused the gathering a hearty laugh with a jest about the Americans who go to Europe and spends months with a guide books in their hands tramping around looking at churches all day.

Mussolini's success as premier of Italy was laid to a combination of two systems, Rogers explained. El Duce gained his power not with guns and clubs in the usual form of militant revolution, by scientific use of castor oil. Whenever Mussolini's Black Shirts captured a political opponent instead of shooting him or locking him up in a prison he was given large doses of castor oil, the size of the dose depending on how radical an opponent he happened to be. Mussolini won in a walk, all idea of rebellion disappearing from his opponents.

Minister of Strikes

After swinging into office Mussolini appointed himself minister of strikes.

"There will be no walkouts in Italy," said Rogers. "If capital and labor cannot get together, the government decides the issue. Any man who quits work goes to the hoosegow. Any employer who tries a lockout and won't pay the salaries finds himself right in there behind the bars with the other fellow."

As an aside Rogers confided Mussolini admits he (El Duce) is a "regular fellow." Likes the ladies, for instance. "And if I'd a brought the Follies girls over there with me I'd been made prime minister in a minute."

While America is using the air only for speaking purposes, Europe is using it for transportation according to Will. The next war will be fought overhead, he declared, and America will be caught armed with a niblick and a putter looking up at a cloud, not hunting for any silver lining but wondering how many enemy airplanes are behind it.

Anent those Wichita Falls lights, they've slowed the pedestrian down until he can't travel any faster than the automobile driver in heavy traffic thus taking away the advantage of walking. There are more traffic lights in Wichita Falls than automobiles, according to the humorist. You can't get anywhere in the day because of them and can't sleep at night or in the morning because of their bells, he said.

Warning to Texas.

Rogers issued a warning to Texas. Said he took dinner the other day with Jim Ferguson, incidently had more to eat than when he visited President Coolidge, "and Jim told me, 'well, Will, we got beat. But defeat is no disgrace'—I don't know where he got that! 'I guess we'll go up to the old home and take a little rest.'"

That "rest" served as the warning.

Rogers lauded President and Mrs. Coolidge, adding bits of fun without any sting, poked at the president as he drew a word pictoral of the chief executive.

The De Reszke singers, male quartet traveling with Rogers rendered a number of selections with a harmy and swing that was received enthusiastically.

Shopping isn't just a pastime

When buying a coat, you look for style and quality. That is why you compare one coat with another. You find comparison very helpful in selecting just the right coat.

The same holds true in buying coffee. You look for the flavor that pleases you best. Only by comparing the flavor of one coffee with another can you do this.

We could tell you of the marvelous flavor and delightful aroma of Folger's Coffee. How you would enjoy each steaming cup of this fine coffee. How its high quality makes it economical.

Instead, we ask you to compare Folger's with the brand you are now using by making the Folger Coffee Test. It is the logical, easy way to shop for coffee.

The Folger Coffee Test: Drink Folger's Coffee tomorrow morning; the next morning drink the coffee you have been using; the third morning drink Folger's again. You will decidedly favor one brand or the other. The Best Coffee Wins. That's fair, isn't it?

Charles Brandon Booth Speaks Before Forum

Stressing the importance environment of heredity influence plays in the lives of boys and girls of today, Charles Brandon Booth, national field secretary and child welfare expert lectured before several hundred members of the Woman's Forum at the Wichita club Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Booth's address was eloquent in its form and brilliant in execution and he held the rapt interest of his audience from beginning to end.

"A child is continually fighting the influence of environment which is such an important fact and can do so much or so little for him and do you know that 65 per cent of the prisoners are 25 years of age and under. Ignorance in the home and the fact that we cannot talk to our children on the vital subjects is the cause for a great deal of this," the speaker said.

"Parents should be careful of their dinner talk, even of their thoughts, for children are great copyists and not only do they copy their elders but they magnify. They get a thrill out of things we older people consider just the ordinary instances in life. Never in the history of the nation have children been so hungry for spirituality as now—not religion, but companionship of elders and spirituality.

"I do not think that the jazz age is the cause of crimes among the young people, they are beginning even now to break step, but I do think that the misuse of the automobile is causing lots of trouble," the speaker continued, as he made a plea for more companionship between children and their parents.

Introduced by Harrison.

Dr. Booth was introduced by Hubert Harrison, secretary of the chamber of commerce, who also took the opportunity to express his appreciation of the work being done by the Woman's Forum.

Mrs. Ray Eyssen and Mrs. Bruce Greenwood played a violin duet, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Lucile B. Huff and Mrs. Ben G. O'Neal was in charge of the program.

Preceding the talk, Mrs. A. R. Bleakley announced the Forum will sponsor a flower show and carnival as a benefit for the woman's building fund, to be held November 19-20, the place to be announced later, when each woman was asked to give an article to be sold at this time, that will bring one dollar. The women were given a list on which each could check the article they wished to donate.

Silence Not Always A Virtue—It's Dumbness

Silence Is Not Always Golden; Often It Is Lead That Crushes Everything and Everybody; We Can Forgive Harsh and Impatient Word, But We Never Know the Love and Tenderness of Others If They Remain Dumb.

The other day a woman in one of the western states was granted a divorce from her husband on the ground that he was addicted to silent sulking.

It was time that man's chief offense against the happiness of the home was recognized, and take it from me, if women are given a hand in the proceedings when they compile a universal divorce law they will put grouchiness ahead of infidelity, or failure to support, or habitual drunkenness, or any of the other causes that are held to entitle a woman to freedom and alimony.

For there is no other fault that a husband can have that gets so on his wife's nerves as sulking. Nor is there any other weapon with which a man can so terrorize his family as with grim silence.

It is the whip with which many a tyrant holds the trembling wretches of his household in order. He comes home to dinner, or down to breakfast, with a face as set and hard as a stone image. Something has gone wrong. He eats and drinks without speech, refusing even to ask for what he wants. He reads the paper with a portentous dumbness that strikes a cold chill to every heart. The children hush their prattle. The dog beats it for the cellar. The atmosphere of the room goes down to zero.

Finally, the wife musters courage to ask what is the matter. Is he ill? Has any one unintentionally offended him? What is wrong? To all questions he responds "Nothing" in a tone of voice that indicates the universe and convicts every one about him for having criminally conspired against him and committed the unpardonable sin.

Such a man always takes credit to himself for not saying anything when he is angry, but he would be less cruel, and far more agreeable to live with, if he smashed the furniture and swore a blue streak. A wife can deal with a red-hot, cursing man who gives her a chance to talk back and explain, but with a dumb one she is helpless. She can only grit her teeth and endure it and suffer grinding torments. Which the grouches know, and it is why they indulge in their mean, cowardly dumb spells.

Anyway, it has always seemed to me that silence is one of the virtues that we land out of all proportion to its deserts, and that there is mighty little truth in the old proverb that says, "Speech is silver, silence golden."

Silence is not always golden. Very often it is lead that crushes everything and everybody.

Who, for instance, yearns for the society of the dumb man or woman who sits up in company as unresponsive as a death's head at a feast? Who seeks the companionship of an individual out of whom every remark must be corkscrewed with an effort that makes conversation a physical labor? Who enjoys the society of one who forces you to ask questions until you feel like the grand inquisitor?

Don't tell us such a one is admirable or deep! We know better. He or she is just dull.

Of course we will admit that there are times when most of us talk too much; occasions when we tell things that we didn't intend to tell, and ought not to have told, and we say things that would have been far better left unsaid. But even so, it is doubtful if the preponderance of merit is on the side of silence. There are times when the most reckless talker alive cannot do so much harm, or wound so cruelly, as the person who merely holds his peace and says nothing.

There are friendships that have been killed by cruel speeches, but there are just as many that have been killed by silence. Who cannot recall some friend who was estranged and lost, who might have been held by a word if that word had been spoken?

He or she took offense at something, some fancied slight, or an imagined lack of cordiality, or a garbled rumor. If either one had asked for an explanation, everything would have been smoothed away, but we took refuge in the silence that is an Arctic wall that freezes up all approaches to reconciliation.

If, like little children, we could go and talk it out with our enemies, be sure we should sleep forgiven and forgiving tonight.

Without doubt, a certain amount of silence in family life would be a good thing and a conservator of the peace, if it went all the way around. But it never does.

Family silence is the most onesided thing on earth. It harps like a parrot on our faults and is as dumb as an oyster about our virtues. In fact, in most households it is considered criminal to ever mention any one's good qualities and equally criminal to refrain from holding up their faults and weaknesses for public discussion.

Women are always berated for talking too much, but I prefer the wraps herself in awful silence and under whose baneful influence woman who chatters as meaninglessly as a canary to the one who cheerfulness dies.

The happy homes are not those presided over by grim, repressed women, who sit up silent at the head of their tables, and whose family partake of a meal like any other dumb animals that are being fed.

It is the woman who knows how to talk and to make talk, who babbles entertainingly about everything she has done and seen during the day, who rests and entertains her family and turns a plain meal into a feast of wit and a flow of soul.

Finally, there must come a time when to each of us the silence of death will come between us and our best beloved. Cry aloud as we may, we cannot make them hear in that far land to which they have gone. God knows then whether we shall most regret the things we have said, or the things we have left unsaid.

The harsh and impatient word we utter they forgave us and forgot. but the unuttered love and tenderness they never knew.

It would have joyed them to know how we admired them. It would have given them fresh courage when their hearts failed, if they knew how we honored them for the fight they were making. But we never said the words of appreciation and praise for which they hungered and as we murmur passionate regrets into deaf ears we know that there is a duty of speech that outweighs all the virtues of silence.

Popular Society Girl To Wed Dallas Man

Announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Gay Gynne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peyton Gwynne of Pembroke Lane, to George J. Greer of Dallas, was made at a beautifully appointed 1 o'clock luncheon given by Mrs. Britt Cranfill at her home on Brookside Drive Tuesday afternoon.

Roses, plume chrysanthemums and other cut flowers were used in profusion throughout the house, with the six individual tables coentered with pretty bouquets. A color scheme of orchid and pink was carried out. A four-course menu was served and places were marked with dainty cards, a kewpie and maiden holding between them an engagement ring. The announcement was made with a quaint rhyme. The wedding will take place at high noon on December 1 at the home of the bride-elect's parents.

Covers were laid for the honoree and her mother, Mrs. Peyton Gwynne, Mesdames Ann Owens, Eugene Clark, Anderson Kemp, Dillard Anderson, Charles McGaha, Jack Wages, Dudley Golding, Roma Tandy, Jouett Bonner, Reese Allen, Abe Marcus, C. Short Skirts and Kitchen Needs Taken Up By Woman's Convention In Discussion at Dallas Meeting

DALLAS, Nov. 9. (AP)—Short skirts and kitchen equipment were discussed from the same platform before the Texas Federation of Women's clubs in the 29th annual convention here today.

The discussion came at the afternoon session following presentation at the morning session of a resolution denouncing gun-toting and asking that the legislature be petitioned to "control and regulate sale of fire arms." This resolution with others was read and will be discussed and acted on later in the convention.

The president of a woman's Methodist college, Dr. H. E. Stout of Texas Women's college, Fort Worth, told the 500 club women present that he "thanked the Lord for short skirts."

Speaking on the subject, "Woman's Before the American Home Department of the Federation," which conducted the afternoon program dwelt on women's clothes, after stating that "woman's dress is none of the reformer's business."

"Reformers and long-haired uplifters," including many preachers of the evangelistic type, 'are always telling women what they should wear," said President Stout. "I read recently in a magazine an article by a woman who criticized men's clothes and I thought that here finally was something new under the sun. Men are forever telling the women what they should wear, but it's none of their business or the reformers' business.

"Woman couldn't be the woman she is today if it wasn't for the short skirt which gives her the freedom of motion necessary for health. The dresses of today are the most fitting of all time."

He said that the fundamental things young women should be taught are "the fundamentals of physical womanhood. He deplored the modern reducing fad and extolled healthful play, which he said was far better than "sitting curled up in a chair reading bad books."

MAN WHO WANTED TO ABOLISH KINGS PERFORMS WEDDING

SWEDEN AND BELGIUM IN UNION AGAIN

Ceremony Today Will Complete Marriage Of Royalty

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 9. Socialists are joining hands with monarchists in the carriage ceremonies of Princess Astrid of Sweden and Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium. Following the civil wedding ceremony Thursday, by Carl Lindhagen, veteran socialist Burgomaster of Stockholm, the future king and queen of the Belgians will go to Brussels for the religious ceremony, to be presided over by Mons. Van Roy, archbishop of Malines, on November 10, in the church of St. Gudule.

Married Wednesday.

It is the first time in the history of the Swedish royal family that a marriage has been performed by other than a church authority.

No less significant is the fact that Burgomaster Lindhagen, while in parliament, urged that Sweden become a republic. But, when arrangements were made for him to ride up to the royal castle in state, he did not object.

Probably no other wedding in recent times has brought so many distinguished guests together, Kings and queens of the Belgians, Norway and Denmark head the list. Princess Astrid selected eight bridesmaids, including her sister, Princess Martha; Princess Marie Jose of Belgium, Princess Ingrid of Sweden and Princess Feodora of Denmark. Prince Leopold chose as best man Prince Olav, crown price of Norway; and as bridegroomsmen, Prince Gustaf Adolphus of Sweden, son of the Swedish crown price; Prince Charles of Belgium and Prince Carl, the bride's brother.

The throne room of the place, chosen for the wedding, holds 1,100 persons.

For Future Brides.

The laces in the wedding gown of the princess will be kept in the family for future brides. These costly laces, adorning a crepe de chine gown, belonged to Princess Astrid's mother and have been in the possession of the Danish royal family for 138 years.

Princess Astrid will be twenty-one on Nov. 17. She is said to be a good cook and does not object to washing dishes.

Crown Prince Leopold arranged to be married just one day after his twenty-fifth birthday. He is known for his modesty.

Sweden and Belgium have become very close this past year. They signed a formal treaty never to war against each other, and Swedish bankers underwrote a large portion of a $100,000,00 Belgium stabilization loan.

Wedding Bells for Princess

Carl Lindhagen, socialist mayor of Stockholm, was chosen to marry Princess Astride of Sweden and Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium; Mons. Van Roy, Archbishop of Malines, was selected to perform the religious ceremony later at the Church of St. Gudule, Brussels; Princess Martha, eldest sister of Princess Astrid, is a bridesmaid, and Prince Gustaf Adolphus, grandson of the king of Sweden, a bridesgroomsman.

WALL STREET WORLD'S NURSE

New York Center Takes Away Loan Prestige From London

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. (AP)—The great strides which Wall street, financial heart of the United States, has made in supplanting London as the world's money lender were measured today in an estimate by bankers here that well over one billion dollars in gold will be lent to foreign borrowers in 1926 by the American people.

This golden stream, which once seeped principally from sources along the Atlantic seaboard, now flows in large volumes from the reservoir of savings in the great midwest and Pacific coast.

Out of this vast sum Europe will fashion a financial crutch to support the final work of restoration from the world market. American loans to the world are now said to exceed $10,000,000,000 and it is this pecuniary interest that is fast giving the people of the United States what bankers call the international mint. Nearly $4,000,000,000 has been lent in alien lands in the last three years.

System Poisoned By Spells of Constipation

Speaking about her experience with Thedford's Black-Draught, Mrs. Thos. L. Nash, of Vincennes, Ind., says:-

"My general health has grown much better, since I began taking Black-Draught. For many years I was troubled with spells of constipation. When one of these would come on me, I could not sleep well at night. My rest was disturbed, and I often had a dull, aching feeling which would last for days.

"My appetite was poor, and nothing to eat tempted me. I often suffered from gas pains. My system would get so thoroughly poisoned, that I was miserable.

"Someone recommended Black-Draught to me, and I began to take it. I soon found that it was what I needed for my trouble. A small pinch taken after meals, with a glass of water, soon got rid of the cause of my suffering.

"After I had thoroughly cleansed my system of this toxic condition, I felt better than I had in years. I slept well, and my appetite returned. Now I keep Black-Draught in the home and a dose now and then prevents any return of the trouble.

"I have recommended Black-Draught often to my friends, because I have found it such a helpful medicine. I am more than pleased with the results from it."

MILLION DOLLAR SALE RUMORED

PURCHASER NOT NAMED IN SALE OF RICH LANDS

Rumor Says Hooser Sells Entire Holdings in Cooke County

According to reports coming from Cooke county, John Hooser, prominent Dallas oil operator and banker, has sold his entire oil properties in Cooke county to one of the major oil companies for a consideration of $1,000,000. The rumors fail to disclose the name of the purchaser although it is said that both the Texas company and the Humble Oil and Refining company have endeavored to acquire the holdings.

If the sale has been made it is certain that it is not yet fully consumated. It was denied at the local offices of the Humble that such a deal had been made by that company.

Attorney Denies It.

An attorney of the Hooser interests who was in Wichita Falls admitted that there had been "talk" of a sale but that one had not been made.

The property involved in the rumored sale consists of 1,300 acres in the Bulcher district of Cooke county, 26 miles northwest of Gainesville on which are 25 producing wells with a settled daily production of approximately 600 barrels. There are also several drilling wells on the leases.

Discovered in July.

Oil was discovered on the block last July by Hooser on the August Hyman farm and since that time there has been an intensive drilling campaign carried on there. C. C. Lanier is interested in some of the holdings.

It is also reported that the property adjacent to the Muenster pool is involved in a sale. There are three shallow producers in this pool which was discovered in September by Lynch, Stahl and Burress of Ardmore, Okla.

Oil for the Hooser pool is run by the Humble Pipeline company. Te Humble Oil and Refining company has blocked considerable acreage in various parts of Cooke county.

GAS WAR NOT CAUSE OF CUT

Economic Reasons Assigned To Retail Reductions In Gasoline

HOUSTON, Nov. 9.(AP)—The two-cent reduction to 19 cents retail gasoline prices in Houston is not the result of a price "war," as has been intimated, but due to natural economic reasons, according to the concensus of Houston oil men. It is pointed out there usually is an adjustment between winter and summer prices and that it would not be surprising if the price drops to 18 cents as there is usually a difference of three cents between the winter and summer prices.

It is also declared by those who should know that though there is not war and the prices were cut practically simultaneously, there is no agreement among the oil companies to reduce the price of gasoline.

THE MAN THAT RUNS AWAY

"HE that hath not reputation is poor indeed." This, from the Bard of Avon.

Any banker will tell you that many a worthy man on the highway to success, of a sudden tries to cheat the bank, runs off, leaves his debts unsecured.

On the precise moment in which the lawyer, taking advantage of his client, mingles the trust money in the lawyer's own account, or uses the client's money for personal expenses, at that precise moment the red light shifted on the highway for the foolish lawyer, who soon will be outside the profession.

Any priest will tell you that there is no redemption if repentence is lip-service. Unless the very soul is cast in the dust, by true contrition, the hard-necked sinner mocks both man and God.

Meet your troubles as they come up, face to face. Play the man, and your troubles will retreat; run and they follow you like a shadow And they will curse your life.

The way society is constituted, each individual man is but a mere unit in the highly organized group-interest, and no man, no matter how rich, mighty or powerful is able to stand by himself. He may not be hanged by the neck if he is defiant of commercial morality, but if he persists in defying the conventions hanging were easy before what is in store for the man that breaks faith.

Indicted at the bar of public opinion, the man is now punished by that most terrifying of all sentences, which is to say, he is ignored. In exile he sits, like Marius musing on the ruins of Carthage.

"A fool there was and his name was Jack.
He ran away and never came back."

No coward ever saved his life by flight. For the man who runs away from his responsibility, dies then and there.

THE RISING OF GREAT SALT LAKE

GREAT Salt Lake is reported to be rising. The records of the last 25 years prove it. However, its upward progress in the world has not yet assumed such a rate of rapidity as to cause the residents of Salt Lake City to view with alarm as a case of hell and high water. At any time Great Salt Lake was much greater than it is now covering parts of what is now Utah, Idaho and Nevada. The bars, cliffs and beaches formed by the waters of the ancient lake are plainly visible along the base of the mountains.

Lake Bonneville, the name of the ancient body of water, had an area of 19,800 square miles and a depth of 1,100 feet. Its depth where the Mormon temple now stands was 850 feet. The waters of Lake Bonneville reached the Pacific through the Columbia river. Geologists say that a change from a dry climate to a moist climate—from a scant rainfall to a copious one—would result in a great increase in Great Salt Lake's area and, if continued long enough, might cause it to spread itself to something like its ancient proportions. The geologists have traced two great moist periods of dryness. There have been several lesser periods of ups and downs.

If Great Salt Lake is rising now, in harmony with the country's rising moist sentiment. Not one of the most picturesque, Great Salt Lake nevertheless is one of the west's great curiosities. But it would be bad for the 800,000 people now living, moving and having their being in the dry bed of the original lake, if climatic conditions should so change as to thrust anything like its old-time greatness upon it. Fortunately there is no immediate occasion for alarm. Utah is hardly likely ever to go as wet as all that.

If the Coolidge administration is worrying over the loss of so many senators and representatives, a whole lot of democrats are ready to assure it that its worries have just begun.

That is to say, Senator Butler's steam road roller skidded into the ditch simply because those Massachusetts roads were so very, very wet.

Intelligent Italians will make the most of the consolation that at any rate the iron heel of oppression is preferable to the red torch of anarchy.

Speaking of Cal's popularity, Al would invite the attention of the boys to a little home-made article in his own back yard.

In republican circles there's a hurried and desperate search on for a goat that will fit the case.

A STEP TOWARD IMPROVEMENT

THE motion picture industry promises to be no different from any other youthful enterprise which endures upon reaching the inevitable period of readjustment. What may be expected from it in one direction at least, is forecast by the announcement that the original scenario writer is coming into his own, and that from now on, while adaptations will of course continue to be employed there will be more and more stories whose plot is not traceable directly to some stage success of popular novel.

Although in its brief existence it has advanced with Brobdinagian strides such as the stage never attempted, in comparison with the articulate drama the cinema is still an infant in years. It has been. It has been called upon to meet undreamed of demands, and it is but natural that a considerable amount of triviality should slip to the unavoidable rush. The stage, with all its benefit of long experience, is still by no means blameless in this respect, but patrons of the theatre have a more summary way of dealing with offerings not to their liking than has yet been practiced to any considerable extent by cinema devotees.

With its tremendous mechanical resources the vast public to which it caters, and the prodgality with which it spends money, the picture industry should be able to command the best writing talent, and to put forth films which would ride to the level where an enterprise of its scope rightfully belongs. The list of authors under contract is promising. What they may bring forth remains to be seen. A step in the right direction is being taken.

THE WEATHER CUTS UP

THE western side of Europe has been getting a large overdose of rains the same as the middle west of the United States.

These rains have fallen from Holland to the high shoulders of the Pyrenees and eastward to Switzerland. They have interferred with railroad traffic, covered whole districts of farmland with little ponds of water and cut gulfs in the highways. Strasbourg has experienced the heaviest downfall of its history. The autumn snows in the Alps have fallen at an earlier date than usual. In the Charleroi region of Belgium, industries have had to close.

Such weather has been used as the basis for argument that climates are changing. But taken over long periods, climate is a pretty stable institution. A year or two ago, heavy rains fell on a part of of the Peruvian coast that was very nearly desert. The human inhabitants were altogether unprepared for such visitation. Their mud houses melted in the rain. Their little irrigated fields eroded away. The profitable guano industry was threatened with extinction. But these rains were freak rains, and came no more. Next year, this season may be recalled as the one in which the farmers waited day after day for their corn to cure in the field, the creeks ran yellow with mud, and the trade in slickers reached its peak—and the recollection may be made the keener by a dry and dusty Indian summer.

THE "DUDE RANCH" INDUSTRY

THE business of giving eastern recreationists a taste of pictureskue western life as it is recorded in the moving picture has developed to a point where it pays to organize, standardize practices and arrange for the exchange of trade secrets. Hence the formation the other day in Bozeman, Montana, of the Dude Ranchers' Association of the Northwest.

At the dude ranch the customer—he or she—sleeps next to blankets, eats food that gives exercise for the teeth, spends hours upon hours in the sun and lets the wind and the blowing sand do what they will to the human skin, with small benefit of cold cream. There is much horseback riding, much excursioning into gulches and canyons and the places where "th' ole trapper fit the bar that time." The people who go to the dude ranches think they have seen life as it was lived in the cattle country when Theodore Roosevelt first went west. It doesn't hurt them to believe it, and they come away browned, lusty of appetite and with maybe the momento of a pony kick to boast about.

Nowadays when you see a long hair on a man's coat it's probably an indication he's been hugging his mother.

It frequently so happens that a girl draws a prune when she thinks she has a date.

GROCERS
Teacher: Helen Hutchinson
Class: Doris, Harold, Carolyn, Ethel, and Mitchell

Class: "Oh, please, dear teacher, tell us about the grocer."

Teacher: "The grocer, my dears, is the man who has the date printed on the right-hand side of his statement so he can add it into the bill."

Class: "What does he do for a living?"

Teacher: "His specialty is waiting on people who came in after you did and giving them all a little sermon on news of the day with footnotes which include the biographies of his friends and relatives."

Class: "He must be a very wise man, dear teacher."

Teacher: "He is so wise that he can tell whether to sell you a good or a bad melon merely by feeling."

Class: "By feeling the melon?"

Teacher: "No, by the way you're feeling."

Class: "What other points of skill has he?"

Teacher: "He can wrap up two cans of tomatoes, a box of matches and a bottle of milk so the package looks as if it contained three scythes, a bass drum and a bridge lamp."

Class: "And does he know anything else?"

Teacher: "Plenty. For example, if you ask for a pound of cheese, he can cut unerringly into the cheese and get exactly eight cents worth more than you asked for."

Class: "It must be a good business to be a grocer."

Teacher: "It's such a good business that most grocers keep right on being grocers even after they've got enough money to retire."

Class: "If something that you buy at a grocery is spoiled, will the grocer take it back?"

Teacher: "Gladly. Some grocers have been known to take back the same spoiled article as many as 10 times."

Class: "And does the grocer never get swindled?"

Teacher: "It is impossible to swindle a grocer."

Class: "Why?"

Teacher: "Because he knows his vegetables."

Class: "We must run along now, teacher. We had a nice time at your class."

Teacher: "Come again soon, and park your hipflasks at the door."

NOW WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT IT?

DAILY SCIENCE SIX

1. What is electrical insulation?
2. What is a short circuit?
3. Is it really dangerous to telephone during an electrical storm?
4. Is a feather bed really a protection from lightning?
5. Does all lightning strike the earth somewhere?
6. Is it especially dangerous to stand under a tree in an electric storm?

HOME BREWED ELECTRICITY

There are various ways of generating minute currents of electricity. Amber when rubbed gives off electricity; a comb in the hair on a dry cold day often crackles with tiny charges of electricity, and even the finger tips touching the side of an automobile, under certain atmospheric conditions, gives one a tiny electric thrill. One easy way to obtain a noticeable amount of electricity is to place some small pieces of copper and an equal number of zinc shavings in a lemon, connecting the zinc and copper pieces with wire. In a short time the acid of the lemon acting on the zinc and copper will induce a flow of electricity through the wires which can be distinctly felt but is not dangerous.

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to yesterday's questions:

1. The chief wheat producing countries are the United States, Russia, Canada, Australia, Argentina.
2. Durdm wheat is used principally for spaghetti and such products, not for bread.
3. Durum wheat was found in north Africa.
4. Rice is grown in South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and California.
5. To cultivate rice on steep hils, as is done in China, Java, etc., terraces are made and water is pumped or led or carried to the fields.
6. Rice feeds more millions of humans than wheat, but wheat ranks as a higher-class food.

Modern Nobility

"What became of your niece who used to live with you?"

"Oh, she's gone now; she married a lord."

"How wonderful! What was he, an English lord?"

"No, a landlord."
—Frances B. Gratz.

"I'M THE GINK"

I'm the polite gink who always wants to get ahead of you at bank windows and other places. I am effusively polite. I ask, with a bland smile, if you mind me stepping ahead of you. I'm in a hurry and will take only a second. Of course you dislike to appear mean enough to refuse me and I know that. Once I get ahead I take plenty of time. I don't care what you say behind my back. Of course I know I'm a liar and a cheat, but I go right ahead. "Friend, do you mind if I step ahead of you just a second? I am in an awful hurry. Won't take a second."

Kellygrams

BY FRED C. KELLY

Last night I had a long talk with a schoolboy who told me how bored he is with acquiring an education. He mentioned several recent lessons that to him have no possible future application to affairs of life, and asked me: "What's the use of such stuff?"

While I have a fairly low opinion of much that is done in the name of education, I was compelled to admit to this lad that he will have a tough time locating any kind of knowledge that won't sooner or later be useful.

Every scientist knows that it is fatal in research to give too much thought to what use you are to make of knowledge. True scientific adventurers go right ahead exploring uncharted territory, not knowing where they will end up, or what good it will do them to be there.

Sometimes it is years before a newly discovered item of knowledge will fit with anything else. But some day it comes in handy.

Many years ago a man named John W. Hyatt, a printer who had turned inventor, became interested in trying to find a substitute for ivory in making billiard balls. Just when elephants became so scarce that ivory was too high priced for billiard balls, Hyatt had a new kind of ball ready.

In trying to get suitable material for a billiard ball, Hyatt, developed celluloid. He did not use this for his billard ball, but what he learned about celluloid made possible the camera film. Without the camera film there would be no motion pictures.

Think of the motion picture industry being made possible through knowledge acquired in seeking a mere billiard ball!

A professor of botany, at Harvard, I think it was, wished to have a research hobby that could not possibly be useful. His objection to useful research was that as he learned something worth while, he would feel duty bound to go on with it and thus become a slave to a thing that he wanted to do solely for recreation.

He finally determined to devote himself to the study of a microscopic deposit found on the under side of the wings of a certain rare beetle, obtainable only in a remote section of Africa. So far as I know, whatever knowledge he thus obtained has never been of the slightest use. But who knows when it may be added to other bits of knowledge and be of the highest importance?

It may even lead to something which will stop falling hair.

I hope it does!

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch.

HOME INDEED.

Draw up a chair, and light a light,
And find a book to read.
The heavens are dark, and wild the night.
And home is home indeed.
The louder seems the winter's ire
Tonight, the brighter seems the fire,
For, when the wintry storms begin
The more the comfort here within
The wind is at the window-pane,
The wind is at the door;
It shakes the house, and shakes in vain,
For loud the chimneys roar,
And higher leaps the crimson blaze
In winter than in summer days;
The more the weather is unkind,
A greater joy within we find.
The fields in springtime calls us forth
Their rosy paths to roam,
But when the wind is in the north
We pluck the rose at home.
Perhaps God sends the wintry hours
To show that there are other flow'rs,
For, when a roof and fire you need,
Ah, then a home is home indeed!

Mexico Irrigation Possible, He Says

Austin Man Going to Live On Million Acre Ranch In Coahuila

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Nov. 9.—A Mexico of irrigated valley farms rivaling the Rio Grande valley in Texas, of countless silver, gold, lead and zinc mines and oil fields in the hills country, a thickly-populated, highly-productive country, is the vision of Ralph R. Ogden, Austin man, who will this week go to the million-acre farm and ranch in Coahuila of which he is half-owner.

He and his associate already have an irrigated farm of several thousand acres and have found it possible to produce crops comparable to those grown under irrigation in Texas, he pointed out. Much of the big ranch is given to the growing of cattle. Oil possibilities and the widespread distribution of valuable ores make the section of Mexico in which he is located one of unbounded promise, Mr. Ogden believes.

Recently he and his associates have leased an additional 60,000 acres of land for the grazing of stock. The original ranch owned by him and a native Mexican capitalist associate, was acquired before the regulations affecting mineral rights were made, and the two men plan extensive oil and mineral developments, he said.

Mr. Ogden will make his home in Mexico.

He believes a peaceful, prosperous period is at hand for Mexico, and has pointed to the course of the national government in funding the old loans to the government, as a sign that extensive capital will find its way to the rich undeveloped resources south of the Rio Grande.

How to stop BOILS!

There's only one way to stop boils. Stop the cause of boils! That's common sense—isn't it? All right. Boils thrive because the blood gets so weak in healthy, red cells that it can't throw off the impurities that get into the body. There's not enough rich, red blood to purify the system.

Now—S. S. S. builds back the blood to fighting strength. S. S. S. builds red-blood-cells—builds them by the millions! Boils dry up!

S. S. S. is the thing. Impurities that cause boils and other skin eruptions can't stand up against the rich, healthy, red blood that S. S. S. builds. That's all there is to it.

Stop boils with S. S. S. It's the way. Get it at any druggist. The larger bottle is more economical.

Town Talk - - - By H. F. J.

NOT ALWAYS SMOOTH

Verily, those who would bask in the fleeting light of reflected glory find their thrones precarious.

Now it seems to be all a mistake.

Henry apparently, isn't paying all of Marie's expenses on her tour of the United States; he, apparently, didn't make a graceful gesture; and several of those who sought to draw the attention of vox popuil by attaching themselves to the conspicuous entourage of the queen are having a tough time sticking to it.

It seems the gentleman who announced Ford's benefactions wasn't meaning that, in the eyes of Marie's official manager, he wasn't a gentleman for saying what he did. It isn't quite clear from press dispatches whether he was kicked off the train because he wasn't in reality a sort of Fordian Santa Claus to royalty, or whether he was a bona fide Ford representative who had merely been indiscreet in the matter of talking.

At any rate, there is an unsavory mess. Discord seems to be far too prevalent and several notables have taken their departure "in the interests of harmony." Marie is reluctantly intervening to put an end to the pretty bickerings etc., etc.

Once more, that old path of glory isn't always smooth.

SPORTING NEWS · THE RECORD NEWS · FIRST ACCURATE COMPLETE

TOP O' MORN STUFF
By Blondy Cross.

They say Jabez Gardner is a lucky man. Perhaps so, but the breaks haven't been so good this year what with the dirty turn his championship baseball aspirations took last summer, heavy expenses on a second division team and more recently an inforced trek to Rochester for an operation.

* * *

LUCKY AGAIN?

Maybe the Gardner luck is returning. At least, it appears offhand the Spud prez got a fortunate twist in the draft not so many days ago. A number of clubs put in claims for the services of young Herb Cobb, flinging phenom of the Wilson team in the class B Virginia league. As is the usual process when more than one club would draft a player, the matter was left to a shake of the hat. Wichita Falls drew the lucky paper wad, so Cobb became the property of the Spudders.

* * *

GOING UP

Cobb is a righthander, 20 years old and stands about six feet one inch. His performance with Wilson through the 1926 season was of an exceptionally flossy calibre. And it's not such a far jump from class B pastiming to class A. His youth stands him in good stead there, for Cobb has several seasons to come before he reaches his zenith.

* * *

The youngster worked 295 innings last summer in a shorter season than the Texas league. The best mark registered during the lengthier Lone Star schedule was made by Owens of Santone, who pitched 294 innings. Evidently Cobb is a gormand for labor.

* * *

SECOND IN LEAGUE

League statistics rank Cobb second in effectiveness and that after working more innings than any other hurler in the loop. Not so bad. His earned run average was 3.47 per game.

* * *

Cobb participated in 44 games, won 20 and lost 13. He struck out 135 batters. Kind of smoked 'em by the boys, and walked 90.

* * *

GARDNER RETURNS

Prez Gardner was back on deck yesterday, all rosy and in good humor. Practically recovered from the ordeal of his operation and bubbling over with baseball trades in the making. He has divulged none of his transactions and will not until they either have been successful or fallen through.

* * *

DEALS PENDING

Gardner, before returning to the city, visited with owners of the Chicago Cubs and White Sox, both St. Louis major league teams, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Des Moines. The major purpose of these contacts was that of swinging deals that may bolster the Spudders. He is working on several transactions which involve infielders and pitchers.

* * *

Santa Anna Getting Rich.

Carl Williams, the Santa Anna cotton king, has baled his product and put it on the market at what he terms "none too good a price." But Santa Anna has developed himself a regular mint in the turkey industry. He expects to clean up on the gobbler market shortly before Thanksgiving day.

* * *

Pete Lapan has penned a missive from Los Angeles where he is wintering. The Spuds pepper box is all gingered up over some boy pitching wonder he has laid his glims on in the outskirts of Hollywood.

* * *

* * *

Tom Estell is still picking cotton on his farm near Purdon in central Texas. With the cotton mart congested the Spudder spitballer is longing for the baseball season to open so he can ease back into the "real money" again.

VALLEY TEAMS QUIET

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 9 (AP) A lull following the excitement of Saturday's gridiron melodramas, settled over the campuses of Missouri valley conference members as the teams settled down to the grind of mid-week practice for Saturday which will see every squad in the valley pitted against a conference foe with the exception of Kansas and Oklahoma who meet Thursday at Lawrence.

At Manhattan, Coach Bachman prepared his Kansas Aggies for their invasion of Nebraska Saturday. The Aggies will virtually own the title if they down the Corn Huskers.

HE WINS IT.

WENATCHEE, Wash., Nov. 9. (AP)—An unintentional kick in the face which knocked out the referee won a wrestling match here last night for Ralph Hand, Cottage Grove, Ore.

While Referee Ben Hayes was lying unconscious in a corner Charles Davis, Wenatchee, pinned Hand to the mat, but when Hayes came to, Hand had succeeded in downing his opponent. Not having seen the previous fall, Hayes awarded the match to Hand.

MEET AGAIN

You remember the boy who cleared the path for Red Grange, back in 1924, on the famous Illinois eleven, whose name was Earl Britton? Well, he and Red will meet again on the gridiron, but Britton is with the Brooklyn Horsemen and Grange Yankees, so it promises to be one of the best clashes of the year.

LEWIS WARNED

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 9. (AP)—Seth P. Strellinger, chairman of the state athletic commission, today notified Ed "Strangler" Lewis, former wrestling champion that unless he is in shape to meet Joe Stetcher, champion here December 1, Lewis' forefit of $5,000 would be lost.

GRIP DOWN TO WEIGHT FOR BOUT WITH YAQUI, HE SAYS

Heavy Struggle Expected Tonight In Welter Title Strife, Coyotes To Be Guests Of Association

THE CARD.

Charley Grip, Baltimore, versus Yaqui Joe, Sonora. Welterweights, two falls to a finish.

Joe Kopecky, Chicago, versus Charley Miller, Los Angeles. Middleweights, two falls to a finish.

Time: 8:15 tonight.
Place: Majestic theatre.

Grip has posted $100 weight forfeit. He is to scale 145 pounds this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Both Grip and Yaqui Joe will weigh in at the Manitou barber shop in public, according to Matchmanker A. Ross. Grip said last night that he is down to weight already.

The Indian and the Baltimore strong man are said to be in the best of condition and fully prepared to wage the struggle of their lives. Both have their sights leveled on the world's welterweight championship throne left vacant by Matty Matsuda who retired several weeks ago. The winner of tonight's melee will claim the championship. Jack Reynolds of Indiana advertises himself as champion, but both Grip and Yaqui Joe stand ready to dispute his claims.

General opinion is Grip will beat the Redskin, but a majority of wrestlers who are well acquainted with the prowess of both aver Yaqui's speed, wiriness and agility will prove too much of a handicap to the slower moving Grip.

The Kopecky-Miller match is expected to be a banner bout. Kopecky has become quite a favorite with the city's fans due to his cleverness and ever-willingness to step in and pitch to the limit. Miller has cleaned up everything in his weight along the Pacific coast.

The Wichita Falls high school football squad, champions of the eastern half of district one, interscholastic league, has been invited to the program by Promoter Ross. The high school athletes are to be guests of the matchmaker and the wrestlers.

Another Game

Here's the latest photo of Red Grange, a 1926 edition of that starring professional after he had finished one of his recent games. Red looks a bit the worse for his pro experiences.

"It's not the game it used to be on the amateur field," sighs Red, with a smile.

Indians Still In Line For a Game

Ludgate Angling For Scrap As Prelude to Two Hard Battles

Wichita Falls will probably have its week-end football game after all. Coach Ludgate of the Junior college has been negotiating with several teams for a match, but late yesterday had not heard definitely. An attempt to bill another conference encounter with Hillsboro Junion college had brought no response last night. So Ludgate had billed tentatively a game for Thursday with the speedy high school eleven of Grandfield, Okla. Grandfield will be remembered as giving the high school Coyotes a 16-6 trouncing in the last practice game before the opening of the conference and has since developed into one of the best high school teams in Oklahoma. Thus far Coach Chamber' aggregation has beaten all opposition by heavy margins and has yet to taste defeat. Thus the Indians will have their hands full Armistice day if Grandfield furnishes the opposition.

Renew Practice.

Indian grid activities were renewed under the inspiration of clear skies Tuesday afternon, with two super games looming in the near future. It is less than two weeks till the Tribe tangles with the powerful conference leading Plowboys from John Tarleton Agricultural college. The following week, Thanksgiving day, another hard contest has been billed with the Decatur Baptists, a team which has long stood right near the stop in the state Junior college circles. The practice game billed here for the week-end will be kept in mind, of course, and will be played with the intention of winning it, but its value will lie chiefly in its training effect for the two big conference tilts.

Some Injuries.

A number of the Tribe are not in the best of condition for play and may not be at their best this week-end. The hardest hit in last week's game was Boyd, scrapping guard of the Tribe, who suffered a badly turned ankle. Thompson and Ford, first-string ends are also both held back by old injuries again aggrevated by over-use. The Oklahomans will therefore find the Indians below strength and may make going hard for them.

Much of the week's work will still be devoted to fundamentals. The Tribe proved to be in good condition as far as endurance is concerned in Friday's game but found itself off form in some departments of play. The passing game, on which much of the team's early offensive success depended, was off entirely against the Cameron Aggies, the team not completing a single aerial during the contest while three were intercepted and three incomplete.

FRANCHISE SOLD

Lincoln Western League Club Passes to New Hands

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 9. (AP)—The Lincoln Western league franchise which has been an uncertainty since the 1926 season closed, was definitely settled today when William "Ducky" Holmes, former major league player and Western league manager, and a group of local men accepted the terms of Larry Arnold, Los Angeles, former owner. The sale prices was not divulged.

Various cities including Sioux City, Ia., have been dickering with Arnold for the club.

Birds Nest, Va., with its excellent duck hunting and striped bass fishing makes it a veritable sportsman's paradise.

SNOW DRIVES GRIDDERS IN

Mid-West Elevens Limber Up Inside Huge Symnosiums

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.(AP)—Field houses and gymnasiums on every big ten campus echoed tonight with the shrill barking of football signals as western conference teams, driven indoors by a snow storm readied themselves as best they could for Saturday's games.

Northwestern worked with fatalistic frenzy for the Chicago classic confronted by two jinxes. The Wild Cats are dedicating Dyche field, their new stadium Saturday and they are entertaining the Maroons on the Evanston gridiron for the first time in almost 20 years.

Wisconsin Optimistic.

Wisconsin foresees its first real chance to beat Iowa since the schools resumed relations in 1924.

Michigan, regarded by Wolverine followers as nearing the peak of its form, drilled confidently for Ohio State and found itself a favorite after the easy wind from Wisconsin, Illinois, Minnesota and Purdue did not regret the inability to practice outdoors for the Illini meet Wabash, the Gophers play Butler and Purdue engages Franklin in easy contests. Illinois already is looking to the Ohio State game, Minnesota to its return game with Michigan and Purdue to the Indiana conflict, all two weeks hence.

Indiana vs. Miss. A. & M.

Indiana has a non-conference foe but a formidable one in Mississippi A. & M.

Notre Dame, preparing for the Army and its big bid for the national title is without Parisien, reserve quarterback who brought the scoring punch to the Northwestern game when the regulars had failed.

FROGS STILL HURT

Injuries Stud Dodge Trail of T. C. U. Men.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 9. (AP)—The Frogs of the Texas Christian university had hoped they were through with the old injury jinx for this season, but another visit Monday afternoon was costly. Lowell Parrish, promising reserve halfback, probably was forced out of action for the football season when his shoulder was thrown out of place again.

Parrish had the first trouble with his shoulder in the game with Texas Tech two weeks ago when the "trick" joint flew out of socket three times. The injured shoulder healed sufficiently for Parrish to get into the Aggie game last week a few moments, but this latest hurt probably will put the Terrell boy on the hospital list for the remainder of the season.

PROFITS.

Coach Lou Young said on his return from Champaign, where "Frosty" Peters' toe beat the Penn boys, 3 to 0, "Illinois has a great team. It was a clean but very hard-fought game. We must profit by our mistakes."

MOVIE GRID HERO.

If Wally Marks, captain and star halfback of the University of Chicago, successfully passes the screen tests he will be a movie hero. Wally is believed to be the ideal type for the collegiate hero.

A new world's record at 18.2 balkline run of 732 was established by Roger Conti, a young Frenchman, in a match against Louis Cure at the Olympia club, Paris.

RECORD.

A new world's record in the 100 meters dash for women was established by Fumi Terao, 16-year-old Japanese girl, at the Meiji shrine athletic carnival. Her time was 12.7 seconds.

COYOTES GET WEEK OF REST

No Game to be Carded For Saturday, Coach Decides

When Tuesday's survey of the high school football squad was completed, Coaches Bud and Brown McCallum decided not to play a game this week, and a complete rest from severe work was the order. Negotiations had been carried on with Cleburne and with Polytechnic high school of Fort Worth for possible opposition in a game to be played here this week-end. Cleburne had a game carded, but the match with Polytechnic had fair prospects to be closed when the decision was made that it was best not to play for a week.

The original plan of playing off the triple tie between Amarillo, Lubbock and Plainview in the western district has been discarded for a schedule which forces the local team to wait still longer before the district title can be played for.

May Go Away.

Incidentally, it may also result in forcing the Pack to play its title bout on foreign territory as this is the year for the college to play at home on Thanksgiving. Coach Bud McCallum may wait till the Saturday after Thanksgiving to play in order to get the game here if any team other than Amarillo wins finally in the western play-off. Amarillo played here last year and would be clearly entitled to play at home this year.

According to an agreement arrived at Monday by representatives of the three schools affected and approved by C. E. Davis of Quanah, district executive committee head, the final plan calls for a play-off between Plainview and Lubbock at Lubbock, the winner to meet the Golden Sandstorm of the Panhandle capital at Plainview, for western half honors. The winner will meet the Coyotes, eastern half champions, for first honors in Interscholastic league district number one for class A schools. The first game is to be played November 13, and the second November 20, thus forcing the district title contest to wait not earlier than Turkey day.

Game To Be Late.

That arrangement will again throw the deciding game later than league officials had hoped. Some districts are already deciding district titles on Armistice day, but there will be probably enough delays in an organization as large as that of the league to bring about further complications which will force the state semi-finals and finals far into December. Hopes of the league rule-makers in fashioning changes in regulations to make earlier the state finals will apparently not be realized, according to recent developments.

Tuesday found the thirty-odd squad members as hard at work as ever. A number of regulars were found on the sidelines in spectator roles or were absent entirely on account of injuries sustained in the Lion tilt. Injuries were more numerous than at first estimated. A close examination revealed, besides the absence of several molars, that Sisk, first-call end, had suffered two fractures of the jaw. Tuesday he was carrying his chompers very much in a sling, with the two jaws wired up in such a way that neither could be moved. Three weeks in that position is the verdict of the medico; hence it will be no more football for this plucky little gridder, even though his spirit calls for more. Hunkie Ray is suffering severely with a broken nose and a general battering that will keep him from the game for several weeks. Lynch is toting a shoulder injury that puts him out for possibly weeks to come. Downing, guard and tackle, one of the real defensive mainstays of the Pack line re-hurt an old shoulder injury and will be unable to play for at least a week. A number of others are carrying various brands of Saturday's furiously fought battle. A game played this week would find the team considerably below normal strength.

KARASICK WINS.

EUGENE, Ore., Nov. 9. (AP)—Al Karasick, light heavyweight wrestler of Eugene, won from Jack Ryan of Texas here Monday night, taking two out of three falls. Ryan took the first fall with a Japanese wrist lock and Karasick the next two with reverse headlocks.

Army-Notre Dame Classic to Draw Headline Place In Week-End Battles

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.(AP)—Led by Army's unbeaten warriors of moleskin and pigskin, fifteen formidable football battalions of the east will unlimber heavy artillery on Saturday in the most extensive series of major engagements this year.

At least eight of these struggles will involve foes of long standing. Chief national interest will center in Army's battle with Notre Dame at the Yankee stadium where two unbeaten elevens will battle with championship aspirations at stake. Ancient rivalries will be renewed between Princeton and Yale, Harvard and Brown, Colgate and Syracuse, Cornell and Dartmouth, Williams and Amherst, Washington and Jefferson and Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania and Columbia.

13 Years Old.

The Army-Notre Dame feud started 13 years ago in defeat of the West Point team 35 to 13. In the 12 games played, Rockne's team have carried off the honors in eight, Army has won three while one contest, that of 1922 ended in a scoreless tie.

The overwhelming victory of the future generals here last year at 27-0 interrupted a long Notre Dame march, for the Hoosiers had not previously been upset by Army since 1916.

The grapple of Princeton and Yale which may decide the 'big three" championships brings together the most ancient foes of the gridiron. With a triumph over Harvard last week the Tigers today ruled favorites to repeat their 1925 sweep to titular honors.

Next to the Princeton Yale melee in the scale of tradition stands the Amherst-Williams engagement. Their series starting in 1884 preceded that of Harvard and Brown by a year.

Pitt. and W. J. Matched.

Pittsburgh and Washington Jefferson looking in a game of apparently evenly matched teams, calls the rivals into action to break a series deadlock. Each university has won 13 games since the opening of gridiron warfare between in 1890.

Dartmouth's defeats by Yale Harvard and Brown have aroused new hope at Ithaca and their meeting on Saturday holds for Cornell a golden opportunity to avenge last year's crushing defeat at 62-12.

Football critics who have seen their forecasts spilled rather freely this season, anticipated stirring battles between Pennsylvania and Columbia and Syracuse and Colgate with little to choose between the latter teams.

Georgetown's unexpected victory over Syracuse last week has focused new interest on the Georgetown-Navy engagement at Annapolis with the Middies attempting to extend a winning streak which already has reached seven straight.

The "Biff" Who "Biffed" Yale

LIEUTENANT "BIFFF" JONES

"Biff" Jones is the guy responsible for putting the United States army on the football map.

Jones is a new idea up at West Point. This is his first year. He succeeded McEwan as head coach at the end of last season and many at the time were varied in opinion as to his success.

His greatest joy came in giving Yale the worst walloping that school has had in their 25 years of games between the two institutions.

Jones played for the army in 1914-15-16 at guard and has since been regarded as the greatest of army linesmen.

In 1917 he was elected captain of the squad, but the war broke out and he was sent to do his directing on the other side.

NO FIFTH DOWN

Referee Declares Students Just Thought There Was.

BOSTON, Nov. 9. (AP)—Princeton's famous "fifth down" in Saturday's 12-0 Tiger victory at Cambridge, a play that mystified 54,000 spectators and allowed Jake Slagle to score a field goal on Harvard, has been cleared away.

The "fifth down," according to Referee Wilmer Crowell, was in reality only the fourth. An error in placing the ball helped create the illusion. Here is how he explained it.

On the third down the Princeton quarterback took an extended time in calling his signals and this caused the Harvard guard to be drawn offside.

"I called it no play and cautioned the Princeton quarterback. The spectators did not know this and I doubt if Field Judge Okeson knew what happened. That's why many believed Princeton was given an extra down."

RICE POINTS FOR AGGIES

Owls Put in Vigorous Study Preparing for Coming Battle

HOUSTON, Nov. 9. AP)—Rice Institute Owls spent their practice session Tuesday practicing Agricultural and Mechanical College football formations in preparation for the game at College Station next Friday. The workout, however, was light. Coach John W. Heisman has said that the Owls need a let-down after their strenuous performance here last week with the Southern Methodist University Mustangs if they are to be keyed up for the next struggle.

Meanwhile Heisman, looking at the 20-0 Rice defeat by S. M. U. apparently fails to be cast down. The manner in which Rice held the charging Mustangs backs for downs on the one-yard line and the fact that Rice did not go to pieces when S. M. U. scored its first touchdown, gives him considerable satisfaction. Indeed, he says, notwithstanding the defeat before a superior eleven, Rice played the best football of the season. Inexperience, he believes, and not a lack of fighting spirit, caused their downfall.

Geneva Hasn't "Ringer" Team

At Least, So They Say All Credit Should Go To McMillin

With the success of a small college football team there always comes a feeling of leariness. That of "how can they do it with such a small crew when we, the bigger colleges, with a student list that number into the thousands, cannot get a team together to beat the small fellow."

Quite Critical.

This is not hearsay. It actually happened between Cornell-Harvard and little Geneva college of Beaver, Pa., where the very famous "Bo" McMillin is coaching a succesful small group of grid stars to undue success.

Cornell wanted to know all about the status of players on the little Geneva team. They wanted to know just exactly about the how and why of Harris, Johnson and Davis, now whom they say "were players of no mean ability on other college teams." Then Geneva, to satisfy the authorities at Ithica, excluded these men from the line-up.

Harvard was beaten under the same conditions.

In answer to all these questions Rev. Pearce, president of the college, gives "Bo" McMillin as his only excuse for the rise of football at Geneva, in proportion to the greater universities.

"McMillin put a little college in Kentucky on the football map and he did it practically alone, with his own style of play. Since that time he has injected this system into other teams and with success.

"Bo" Too Good.

McMillin gets all the credit for the football glory at Geneva. He attracts the athletics with his personality and trains them beyond ordinary skill, himself, beyond that mark.

"There is no inducement of any kind offered boys to play at this school. All come of their own free will. Johnson visited the school but never registered. Harris is a local boy and enrolled with a word."

Rev. Pearce invites any inquiry into Geneva, and when you stay for lunch you are served by three of these famous players—Harris, Fenniken and Hubbard—who are working their way through, taking orders in the dining room.

Before the end all suspicion will turn to admiration.

ARNOLD SELLS OUT

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 9. (AP)—Larry Arnold of Los Angeles today sold his Lincoln baseball team of the Western league to a group of Lincoln men, headed by Ducky Holmes. The consideration was not made public.

WICHITA FOUR SHADES ARMY

Will Rogers Guest at Polo Embroglio and Heavy Barbecue

Wichita Falls poloists turned back the army, a team composed of Fort Sill officers with Doc Fletcher as number 1, yesterday at Call field in a lively battle 8 to 6.

"Wild Bill" Rogers, better known as just plain Will Rogers, a former Texas cowboy, was an interested spectator. "Wild Bill" marveled in particular at the performance of Horace Robbins' star polo pony, Dream Boy. Will laid a couple of covetous eyes on Dream Boy and if wishes were horse beggars would be riding polo ponies as far as the internationally famous humorist was concerned.

The game was a very evenly played affair with no particular horseman necessarily drawing the spot away from the rest. At times, Featherston, Robbins, White and Fletcher bobbed up into the public eye momentarily about the rest of the speedy field.

The game was cleanly played and minus fouls.

After the contest poloists and friends repaired to a large and enthusiastic barbecue arranged by Featherston and D. O. Johnson in honor of Will Rogers. The picnic, party or what have you proved a riotous success from every standpoint.

Rogers was kept too busy eating to exude any of the dry wit he is famous for.

The lineups and score of the game follow:

Army		Civilians
Fletcher		Lancaster
	No. 1
Klauss		Featherston
	No. 2
Mallonee		Robbins
	No. 3
Young		White
	Back

By Chukkers:

Army	0	2	1	2	1	0	0—6
Civilians	1	0	2	1	2	2	0—8

Goals:
Fletcher 2, Kluss, Mallonee 2, Goodman, Featherston, Robbins, White, civilian pony.
Substitute:
Goodman for Kluss.

Two Big Leaders Primed for Clash

T. C. U. and Arkansas To Bring Together Pair Of Stars

FORT WORTH, Nov. 9. (AP)—Two of the greatest captains developed in the Southwestern conference in many years will oppose each other when the Texas Christian University Horned Frogs and Arkansas University Razorbacks clash Saturday at Fayetteville. They are John Washmon of T. C. U. and Herman Bozman of the Porkers. Both of the star pivot men are captains of their teams and each is playing his last year of college football. After being used for two years as a varsity end, Bozman was shifted this year to the position he played as a freshman, performing advantageously as a wingman, but Coach Schmidt needed a dependable pivot man and already had an unusual crop of ends.

Bozeman more than repaid Schmidt's confidence by outplaying every opposing pivot man he has met this year. He will meet more than an average opponent Saturday in the veteran Washmon although the husky Razorback will outweigh the Frog captain by 20 pounds.

Washmon is the more versatile of the two, having established an enviable record in the conference as a place kicker as well as a power in the line. His defensive work also has been noteworthy.

Washmon in 1925 was easily the choice of coaches and sport critics as all-conference center. Bozeman was rated among the best ends in the circuit. Handicapped at the first of the season by illness Washmon got a bad start this year, but has rapidly rounded into condition in the past few games and now looks like the probable choice again as all-conference pivot man.

GENE COMING HOME

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Nov. 9. (AP)—Gene Tunney, heavyweight boxing champion of the world, who has spent the past 10 days in Bermuda, today sailed for New York. The champion made a brief address last night at a benefit performance given for the dependants of those lost in the foundering of H. M. S. Sloop Valerian in the recent Carribean hurricane. There was no boxing on the program but the champion's appearance drew a great crowd and every available seat was sold.

PERMIT DENIED.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 9. (AP)—Minnesota's boxing commission today refused to reinstate Fred Fulton, the plasterer, and permit him to fight Bearcat Wright, Omaha negro, here Friday night. Fulton was barred from fighting in Minnesota and other states after his alleged "fixed" match with Tony Fuey in Los Angeles.

SPORT a la CARTE

by ROY GROVE

Charlie Philip, the Rosenberg, erstwhile bantam champion of some place or other is scheduled to meet Bushy Graham in New York, January 7.

It would be better to say that Charlie is matched, rather than scheduled, as he has a habit of walking out on the dandy boys about the time the seats are all sold, as he did against Bud Taylor in Chicago.

It takes a champion to do that and get away with it.

This brings into some consideration the New York state boxing commission, and they must be considered as they are considerate. They, as a body, are generous in support. Some 17 states, represented by their commissions have put the ban on this Rosenburg champion guy.

Still the New York commission will sanction the match. They could have only one motive and that, a grudge against Phil, desiring to see him go glimmering.

They wouldn't, of course, put on the bout in New York knowing that the rest of the union is against the title holder. When the New York commission commishes against a fighter they throw him out of the state and ask the rest of the union's commissions to work with them in allowing no compensation whatever to the ousted battler.

It is true they didn't get very far with Tex Rickard and, inasmuch as he took his heavyweight fight to another state, they should immediately oust Tex.

Now at this writing it looks as if the commission has ousted itself and that Tex Rickard controls the New York boxing lords who so generously consented to Tex holding the battle in his own garden.

It is not that we have anything against the lords of the game, or Tex, or Phil, or Bushy, but we are just sort of floating around for an answer to "What is a commission, in New York?"

* * *

Brown's use of only 11 men againts Yale and then turning around, using the same 11 against Dartmouth causes no little talk among the football sidelines.

Yale's old team of 1888 was a squad of only 11 men and this same crew worked through 11 games without a substitute. That team scored 698 points to their opponent's nothing.

The style of the games has changed. Whether or not it is tougher nowadays than in 1888 is much the discussion, but this writer believes that any team to score 698 points to 0 can't really be that old-time bone-crushing type of football.

* * *

The game has changed somewhere, today, and Yale's team of 1888, if their scoring is true, was one of the fastest and most scientific squads ever to race a football.

Football today is becoming more scientific and a greater puzzle than ever to the fans, especially when the forward pass is incomplete and a penalty is taken, then again, the game seems to go along at the regular football gait.

There does seem to be a joke somewhere in the book concerning the new forward pass rule. The new rule provides for a 5-yard penalty when more than one forward pass fails, in any series of downs. This is far different without being touched by more than one eligible player and the pass, which is not completed after being touched by at least two eligible men.

If the pass merely grounds there is a penalty. If it is touched by more than one eligible player there is no penalty other than the loss of the down. This solution will not do and only just gives the rule makers something else to talk and fool around with.

LONGHORNS IN GOOD SHAPE

Team Gets Ready for Armistice Round With Pirates

AUSTIN, Nov. 9. (AP)—With most of the players recovering from the minor bruises received in the Baylor-Texas game last Saturday at Waco the Longhorns went through another strenuous afternoon at scrimmage at Memorial stadium here this afternoon in preparation for the Armistice day tilt with the Pirates of Southwestern University.

It is reported that practically the entire city of Georgetown will come to Austin for the game, which will be staged upon Memorial stadium gridiron Thursday as a part of an Armistict day program which will include a number of events, both sporting, musical and theatrical.

A Lean Season.

Longhorn records show that the Pirates have not beaten the Steers since 1908, the year that their athletic relations began. The score was 11 to 9. Since then the two teams have met on 16 different occasions, with the Steers always scampering off with the major end of the tally.

The most decisive beating administered to the Pirates at the hands of the Longhorns was in 1924, shortly after the Germans established the famous Hinderburg line. It was a 70-0 victory for Texas. Last year the two teams met as in their usual customs, at Memorial stadium the Steers winning 34 to 0.

RETAIN HORWEEN.

Arnold Horween, coach at Harvard, has been offered a new contract extending over a number of years. No decision has been made by Horween.

Oahu, Hawaii, has 10 football leagues this year. The famous "barefoot" league is included in this number.

Bill Kline, veteran fullback at Yale, returned to his team after a week's absence on account of illness in the family.

ADVANCE STOCK MARKET MEETS WITH GREATER RESISTENCE

MANY ISSUES GO TO HIGH YEARLY LEVEL

Trading on a Broad Scale As Profit Taking Puts On Bulletin Tone

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.(AP)—Resumption of the upward movement in today's stock market encountered stiffer resistance, due to rather heavy profit-taking by traders who had purchased stocks "for a turn" and a renewal of bear selling in several specialalties with the result that final quotations disclosed considerable irregularity. Trading was on a somewhat broader scale as shown by the fact that more than a score issues were elevated to new high levels for the year.

Bulls Take Heart.

Bullish sentiment was created by the announcement that the United States treasury officials favored a credit of 12½ per cent on 1926 income taxes by the lowering of call money and commercial paper rates and by reports of unusually heavy inquiries for railroad equipment. The revision of stock exchange member loan, making last month's decrease in excess of $167,000,000 instead of only slightly more than $27,000,000 also was given as a bullish construction on the theory that it indicated, as federal reserve figures had done, that stocks had passed from weak to strong hands.

Common stock of the U. S. Steel corporation, which is expected to report a large increase in October unfilled orders tomorrow noon was a gain a market feature, touching 149½ and then easing to 149, where it was up ¾ a point net on the day. Total transactions in this one issue approximated nearly 200,000 shares, or about one-eighth of the day's entire volume, which was 900 issues. General Motors sold as high as 151¾ and then fell back nearly two points also closing fractionally higher on the day. Mack Trucks rallied nearly five points to 94½ on urgent covering which followed the publication of the quarterly report, showing $1.78 a share net earned on the common stock in that period.

Rails Are Sold.

Failure of the Chicago and Northwestern directors to raise the regular semi-annual dividend undoubtedly caused some speculative selling of the railroad shares. Chicago and Northwestern fell back over three points to 77. Rock Island 6 per cent preferred touched a 1926 high at 92.

Among the new highs were Kennecott, Shell Union Oil, Phillip Morrison, DePont (new stock), Tureka Vacuum and the Liggett and Myers issues. Paths broke over three points to a new low at 36 and heaviness again developed in Warner Pictures "A." On the other hand Famous Players crossed 117 to a new high on the movement in response to reports of large current earnings.

The renewal rate on call money was lowered at 4½ per cent after holding steady at 4½ for over a month. Funds were freely offered at the lower figure. Time money rates were unchanged, prime commercial paper was quoted on a flat 4½ per cent basis instead of 4½ to 4¾.

Demand sterling held firm around 484⅝ but weakness developed in several of the continental exchanges. The French francs broke over 10 points to around 3.71½ cents, Italian lire dropped seven points to around 4.18 cents and minor recessions took place in most of the other European rates.

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 9.(AP)—The cotton market ruled rather quiet today with price fluctuations comparatively narrow. Following an early advance of 14 points, due to favorable cables and to the map showing of much rain and cold weather in the belt prices turned earlier on a renewal of hedge selling and realizing and before noon all the early gain had been lost and a little more besides as the price level was one to five points under the close of yesterday. During the afternoon the market ruled quiet with price fluctuations decidedly narrow and within the early range. Some trade demand developed on all dips and a little hedge selling on the rallies. The market turned easy again in the late trading, the close showing net losses for the day of five to eight points.

Liverpool came in about four penny points better than due and the weather in the belt according to the map was bad. As a result first trades showed gains of 10 to 12 points and prices advanced further after the start to 12.64 for December, 12.68 for January and 12.84 for March, or 14 points above the previous close.

The subsequent reaction due to hedge selling and prospects for better weather caused December to ease off to 12.48 near noon, January dropping to 12.52 and March to 12.86. In the late trading the market again eased off owing to prospects of good weather and hedge selling, making new lows for December at 12.42, for January at 12.48 and for March at 12.83, or 21 to 23 points down from the highs. The close was at or near the lowest.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.(AP)—The cotton market was comparatively quiet today. After selling up to 12.60, January contracts eased off under realizing by recent buyers, reacted to 12.45 and closed at that figure, the general market closing barely steady, net one point higher to five points lower.

The market opened firm at an advance of nine to 15 points. Active months showed net advances of about 14 to 16 points in early trading. December selling up to 12.60 and March to 12.86. Buying evidently was encouraged by the steady ruling of yesterday's late market and relatively firm Liverpool cables, while there was not much southern hedge selling. The advance above 12.50 for January met increased offerings, and prices worked gradually lower during the afternoon. December eased off to 12.50 and March to 12.68 in late trading.

Last prices were at the lowest of the day, with May and later deliveries relatively easy.

Reports of further rains and windy weather in the south were a factor on the opening advance, as it is believed that an unusually large amount of cotton is still in the fields which might be damaged by unfavorable conditions.

Private cables reported covering with London and Bombay buying in the Liverpool market and also a better cloth demand from India with a fair turnover in cotton yarns.

Exports today 24,816, making 2,914,449 so far this season. Port receipts 118,-844; U. S. port stocks 2,555,926 bales.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.(AP)—Corn scored a brisk rally today whereas wheat prices tended to sag. Much of the trade was to undo spreads, and was in the nature of simultaneous buying of corn against selling of wheat, a process requisite to even up recent large transactions of exactly opposite character. Sharp falling off in the volume of corn receipts today was apparent.

Corn closed unsettled, ⅞ to 1⅛ net higher; wheat unchanged to ⅝c off, oats at ⅛@⅜c advance and provisions varying from 2c decline to 5 cents gain.

Wheat prices averaged a little over, taking the day as a whole. One of the chief factors was word of improved weather in Argentina but wheat crop reports from that country were conflicting, then, too the movement of wheat in Canada continued liberal offsetting notice of smallness of wheat stocks at Liverpool. Oats sympathised with the upward trend of corn.

Provisions reflected weakness of hog values but subsequently became steadier on account of lard buying on the part of houses with foreign connections.

"HONEY LOU" By Beatrice Burton

AUTHOR OF "LOVE BOUND," "HER MAN," ETC.

READ THIS FIRST:

HONEY LOU HUNTLEY is private secretary to old "GRUMPY" WALLACK, head of the Wallack Fabric Mills. Honey Lou likes everyone at the mills except JOE MEADOWS, the shipping clerk, who makes love to her against her will.

JACK WALLACK, who comes to his father's mills to learn the business, falls in love with Honey Lou the minute he sees her. Brought up by an old-fashioned mother, Honey Lou is a mixture of flapper and clinging vine.

Honey Lou goes to work with Margaret in the office of Holy Cross hospital. One day she goes to tea with the wily Anglea and meets Jack's mother, whom Jack calls THE HEAD, because she manages everything at home. She tells Honey Honey that Grumpy is not satisfied with his new secretary, ANN LUDLOW, the office vamp. Jack asks Honey Lou to work for his father, who is at home sick with lumbago, and Honey Lou promises that she will.

Honey Lou meets Angela, who tells her that Jack Wallack is taking her out to dance that evening. Honey Lou calls up Tim Donegal, determined to have him take her to the same place.

Honey Lou goes with Tim to the restaurant and he has been drinking. The place is raided by dry agents and Honey Lou escapes with Jack Wallack. Jack tells Honey Lou that he thought she was tricking him and ends by telling her that he loves her and wants her to marry him.

Honey Lou tells her mother that she is to marry Jack Wallack the next day but her mother asks her to wait and have a wedding. Honey Lou's engagement is announced and plans are made for the wedding.

She meets Angela downtown and she persuades her to open a charge account under the name of Mrs. Jack Wallack, Jr., and to put the shoes she is buying, along with some lingerie on the account. But at home with Margaret, who sees through Angela, she decides to take back the lingerie and Margret pays for the shoes for a wedding gift.

The day of the wedding is rainy. Jack comes to bring Honey Lou her engagement ring and his gift of a brown dressing case in the morning, all of which are signs of bad luck, according to Mrs. Huntley.

It Was Like Sinking Down Into Darkness—(Honey Lou and Jack on the Honeymoon.)

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIX

At the stroke of half past four she flung open the door of the little bedroom that she had shared with Margaret for so many years, and walked serenely down the hallway to the sitting room.

The day was dark, and all the lights in the house were turned on. In their glow, Honey Lou caught a glimpse of The Head, big and handsome in purple velvet, standing beside "Grumpy" who leaned on his cane.

"Just think, they'll be my father and mother-in-law in a few minutes!" she said to herself. It seemed as if it couldn't be true!

Angela, in her shimmering white stood beside them gazing at Jack with her wide dove-colored eyes.

On the other side of the room were Honey Lou's own people. Mother and Margaret, with their hands caught together as if to comfort each other. Aunt Lucy, dressed to kill in wine-colored silk trimmed with cascades of gold lace. Uncle Henry, biting the ends of his mustache and staring down at the floor. Uncle Henry was to give her away.

Honey Lou's eyes swept past them all and went straight to Jack's grave, white face, as he stepped into the room.

Her chin was held high as if the weight of the rose-point veil and the orange blossoms on her queenly little head dragged it back a bit, and her parted lips smiled eagerly. She could have posed for a painting of Love, itself, as she stood there in the doorway with her eyes in her lover's eyes and her cheeks flaming with sudden color.

As she started toward him, lightning flashed across the room, and all at once the lights went out. A great crash of thunder seemed to fairly shake the building.

Close beside her, Honey Lou heard her mother give a little moan. Poor mother, who believed in signs!

"She probably thinks that this means bad luck for me, too!" said Honey Lou to herself, with a light heart. She flashed her mother a smile as she passed her, the long veil trailing out behind her like blown mist. "But I'd get married today, if there's earthquakes, cyclones and cloudbursts! If the end of the world came, I'd marry Jack, anyway!"

The room was in gray darkness now, except for the flickering flames of two tall candles on the mantel-piece behind Jack and Dr. Merriam, the pastor of Mrs. Huntley's church.

In the soft light that came from them, Honey Lou could see only Jack's face clearly. The others were all hidden from her in the gloom.

And so it seemed to her as if they stood alone. Just she and Jack—the two of them!

In a dream, she heard Dr. Merriam's voice repeating the impressive and beautiful words of the marriage service, and in a dream she heard her own voice and Jack's answer him. She felt the chill of the wedding ring slipping down her finger.

And then it was all over, and Jack was kissing her on the lips. They belonged to each other, they belonged to each other at last! And—what was it the minister had said? "Whom God hath joined together, let no man put asunder!"

The lights flashed on again. And as Honey Lou looked up, she saw Angela coming toward her across the room.

Behind her came The Head and Mrs. Huntley. They both kissed her and they were smiling as they did it. But Honey Lou saw that there was wet brightness in their eyes.

"Mighty glad to have you in the family, Hon' Lou!" "Grumpy" said to her, limping up on his cane. "Didn't know Jack had enough sense to pick out a nice girl like you." He gave her a peck on the cheek.

They all went out into the dining room, where Mamie Rothecker, who sometimes worked by the day, was waiting to serve supper.

With true Kentucky hospitality, Mrs. Huntley had prepared a feast fit for the gods. With her own hands she had fixed it all—the roasted chickens, ham baked in cider, candied sweet potatoes covered with whipped cream, peas in patty shells, frozen fruit salad, hot rolls, cakes, ice cream and coffee.

She had decorated the table with its white satin ribbons, its little silver paper bells, and its tall white candles. How she had done it all, and helped a bride get ready for her honeymoon in six days, Honey Lou did not know.

Her heart swelled with pride as her mother, proud looking and gracious, came into the dining room carrying a big tray. On it were little glasses and a dusty bottle of white wine.

Honey Lou wondered where in the world it had come from. Her mother never had any wine in the house.

Then, all at once, she remembered! Steve Mayhew had brought it to the house last Christmas day, and Mrs. Huntley had forbidden him to open it.

Poor Steve! For a second pity for him quen

HENRY MARSHALL MURDER TRIAL ON CALL IN COURT TODAY

BRISK LEGAL FIGHT COMING IS FORECAST

Man Is Charged With Murder Of Cousin on July Seventeenth

The trial of Henry Marshall, charged with murder in connection with the fatal shooting of his cousin, Charlie Marshall, will be called in the 89th district court this morning, Judge P. A. Martin having ordered a special venire of 150 men.

The case has created considerable interest throughout this section of the country. Defense and prosecution have promised some surprises.

The case grew out of a shooting on the night of July 17, when Henry Marshall reported he had shot at a supposed hijacker at the entrance of his garage. He believed the intruder had escaped. The next morning, however, Charlie Marshall, his cousin, was found dead from gun shot wounds, lying on a lawn near the garage.

J. F. Lindsey, reported to have been with Charlie Marshall at the time of the shooting, has been jointly charged with the killing, and is now in the county jail.

The district attorney's office filed charges against Henry Marshall immediately after the shooting and he was released on $3,000 bond. A few weeks later the district attorney recalled the case and fixed bond at $10,000. It was reported at this time that additional evidence had come to hand and a heavier bond was required.

The grand jury formally indicted Marshall at its last sitting, and the case was set for today.

Defense counsel is composed of B. Y. Cummings, Charles Welch, Robert K. Crane and John Davenport.

Possibilities of organizing a window decorators' association were discussed, and the following committee was chosen to look into the matter: Alva Willgus, T. A. Bradley, J. B. Price and B. S. McCleary.

Practically all offices in the county court house will be closed Thursday in honor of Armistice day and the world war veterans, as will most of the business houses of the city. Booth Brings Brilliant Message To College and High School Students

BY ELEANOR FLEMING

Completely captivating his audience of more than a thousand with his dynamic message of inspiration, Charles Brandon Booth, noted child expert and national field secretary of the Big Brother and Big Sister Federation, brought home a number of thoughts, practical ones and yet thrilling and thought-impelling, to the assembled student body of the Junior college and high school Tuesday afternoon at the college.

Mr. Brandon, who was "loaned" to the school for the occasion by the Woman's Forum of the city, gave his famous inspirational address, "You and Company," which has already been given to 500,000 students in the United States, overwhelming his audience with the virility of his ideas and the sincerity of his delivery. Old admonitions, given so many times for the student chapel exercises by speakers, were driven home in a new day, and those who expected the "same old thing in the same old way" were delightfully surprised with the originality of manner and the compelling personality of the speaker.

"Know yourself. Appreciate yourself. Give yourself" were given by Mr. Brandon as the three rules for better living and more happiness. An episode of a football game was vividly described reflecting the emotions of triumph, disappointment and discouragement in a manner that secured the sympathy and admiration of every student present.

Mr. Booth is the son of General Ballington Booth and Maud Ballington Booth, and a descendent of the founder of the Salvation Army.

Four Days For Holiday.

Four days, not including Sunday will be given as the Thanksgiving holiday in local schools, according to announcement made Tuesday by Dean Rider in the high school and college assembly. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday and Saturday will be given in order that the teachers might attend the annual meeting of the Texas States Teachers' association at El Paso at that time.

A talk on the advantages, rules and equipment of the Snider Library was made by Ver Jobe, librarian, who announced the arrival of several hundred new books, making a total of 4,000 valued at $10,000. James Williams gave a report of the college football game, and it was announced that an essembly in the near future would be set aside for a technical explanation of football by the coach. Further announcements were made by James Moore and Estel Parham. Assembly singing was led by Alva Willgus.

CLUB HEARS PECAN TALK

Mrs. Lily Mercer Speaks Tuesday to Realty Operators

Mrs. Lily Mercer, pecan growing expert, was the principal speaker before the real estate board Tuesday at the Kemp. The climate in this section of the country and the soil conditions are ideal for pecan growing, she told the board. "The main reason pecans have not been planted more extensively in this country is because of drouth," Mrs. Mercer said.

"Pecans need sun overhead and water underneath, and rainfall is not good for them," she stated, and she urged that pecan trees be planted in this city for shade trees as well as for the fruit they would produce.

A. M. McPherson, program chairman, outlined the program which will be followed along with other subjects for discussion throughout the winter. In line of the subject of beautifying the city his suggestions included a study of landscaping, flowers, excluding roses, and varieties; roses, lawns, trees, varieties; insects and diseases of plants and trees, and how to evade them; fruit trees and the home garden; roses, varieties and how to care for them; hedges and their care, climbing vines.

W. B. Hamilton talked in the interest of the chamber of commerce which is launching its $75,000 campaign next week, beginning Monday and continuing through Wednesday. He enumerated some of the accomplishments of the chamber during the past year, and asked the co-operation of the board in the campaign for funds to be used during 1927. He also announced the annual chamber of commerce banquet to be held Friday night at Junior college.

Booth Brings Brilliant Message To College and High School Students

BY ELEANOR FLEMING

Completely captivating his audience of more than a thousand with his dynamic message of inspiration, Charles Brandon Booth, noted child expert and national field secretary of the Big Brother and Big Sister Federation, brought home a number of thoughts, practical ones and yet thrilling and thought-impelling, to the assembled student body of the Junior college and high school Tuesday afternoon at the college.

Mr. Brandon, who was "loaned" to the school for the occasion by the Woman's Forum of the city, gave his famous inspirational address, "You and Company," which has already been given to 500,000 students in the United States, overwhelming his audience with the virility of his ideas and the sincerity of his delivery. Old admonitions, given so many times for the student chapel exercises by speakers, were driven home in a new day, and those who expected the "same old thing in the same old way" were delightfully surprised with the originality of manner and the compelling personality of the speaker.

"Know yourself. Appreciate yourself. Give yourself" were given by Mr. Brandon as the three rules for better living and more happiness. An episode of a football game was vividly described reflecting the emotions of triumph, disappointment and discouragement in a manner that secured the sympathy and admiration of every student present.

Mr. Booth is the son of General Ballington Booth and Maud Ballington Booth, and a descendent of the founder of the Salvation Army.

The climate in this section of the country and the soil conditions are ideal for pecan growing, she told the board. A. M. McPherson, program chairman, outlined the program which will be followed along with other subjects for discussion throughout the winter. In line of the subject of beautifying the city his suggestions included a study of landscaping, flowers, excluding roses, and varieties; roses, lawns, trees, varieties; insects and diseases of plants and trees, and how to evade them; fruit trees and the home garden; roses, varieties and how to care for them; hedges and their care, climbing vines.
