Official says school equity 'trojan horse'

School Funding

AUSTIN (AP) - Despite billion-dollar suggestions for making the state's school finance system more equitable, the chairman of an education task said such reform doesn't have to be an expensive proposition.

"You can get significant equity with no change in funding -and I'm not arguing for that, I'm just saying factually that's correct," said Houston businessman Charles Miller.

"It's a Trojan horse issue to use equity to build a lot more money into the system," he told a Wednesday news conference.

Miller was appointed by Gov. Bill Clements to head the task force after the Texas Supreme Court ruled the current school funding system is unconstitutional. The group will make recommendations when the Legislature convenes in special session Feb. 27.

The court, which found glaring disparities between property-rich and poor school districts, imposed a May 1 deadline for lawmakers to reform the $11 billion-a-year school finance system, which relies on state funding and local property taxes.

A number of costly school finance reform plans already have been proposed. A plan before the State Board of Education calls for a $15 billion increase in education funding over the next five years, while one suggested by a group of poor school districts has a $10.5 billion, five-year price tag.

Clements has said he doesn't believe more taxes are needed to meet the court order, but Miller said the governor has not told him the task force must come up with a proposal that doesn't require more money.

"He didn't ask me to do anything or give me any instructions," Miller said.

One way to make the system more equitable without raising taxes or diverting money from rich to poor districts would be to funnel money from other parts of the state budget to education, said Miller, without advocating the approach.

A case can be made for an infusion of new education money over a period of time, such as 10 years, Miller said, but the state must simultaneously look at ways to improve the way the education system works.

Miller also said he was disturbed by the time frame imposed on the state by the court, which ruled in October.

This is only a test

Hereford Postmaster Charles Britten negotiates an "obstacle course" in one of the new vans being used by the Postal Service in Hereford. Postal employees are required to take four hours of classroom training and four hours of "road" training in new vehicles. The course was set up on the east parking lot of the Presbyterian Church in Hereford.

Gorbachev warns Lithuanians to take it easy

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) - President Mikhail S. Gorbachev came to this Baltic capital today and told people clamoring for independence that pitting the central government against their own could lead to tragedy.

Gorbachev, at times adopting a pleading tone, promised that the people of Lithuania will have a say in the republic's future.

The comments were aimed at cooling pro-independence passions as Gorbachev embarked on a crucial mission to persuade Lithuanian Communists to reverse a decision to split from the federal Communist Party.

"We have been tied together for these 50 years, whether we like it or not," Gorbachev said, walking through a crowd of several hundred after laying a wreath at a monument to Lenin in downtown Vilnius. "And all the more so, we have not lived in a federation. We have lived in a unitary state with its own realities."

One person called out to Gorbachev: "People must decide their own fate!"

"Nothing will be decided without you," Gorbachev responded as he slowly made his way back to his limousine. "We will decide everything together."

But he added: "Remember, if someone succeeds in pitting us against each other in a clash, there will be a tragedy. We should not allow this."

Josef Stalin absorbed Lithuania along with the two other Baltic states, Latvia and Estonia, in 1940 under a secret agreement with Nazi Germany, and many Lithuanians want their independence back.

As never before in his nearly five years in power, Gorbachev put his personal prestige on the line in coming to Lithuania, exposing himself to a population that openly disagrees with him and is not likely to be moved by his appeals.

But if Gorbachev fails to bring the Lithuanians back to the fold, Communist Parties in the 14 other republics could feel encouraged to break with Moscow.

The Soviet leader told the crowd that the rights of all minorities in the Soviet Union - whether they be Lithuanians or small non-Lithuanian ethnic groups in the republic - must be respected, or it could endanger the unity of the country's more than 100 ethnic groups.

"If even the slightest suppression occurs, or misunderstanding, somewhere in Estonia or Moldavia, it spills over into the rest of the country," he said.

Several thousand people gathered around the square as Gorbachev placed the wreath, and several hundred of them broke through police cordons to surround Gorbachev afterward.

The crowd was calm and curious. Gorbachev, who has bitterly criticized the Lithuanian Communist Party decision to split, was straightforward and friendly.

The people who gathered apparently were passers-by attracted by the heavy security around the Lenin memorial. It was not announced in advance that Gorbachev would visit the memorial.

The Sajudis political movement that is pressing for independence planned a formal rally later, and organizers said they hoped a half-million or more Lithuania residents would show up to prove to Gorbachev they cannot be dissuaded.

Vytautas Landsbergis, head of Sajudis, said Wednesday he had called on everyone in the republic of 3.7 million people to fill the streets of Vilnius.

Columbia closes on target

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - Columbia's astronauts early today flew to within 500 miles of the floating science laboratory they plan to salvage on Friday with a flick of the shuttle's robot arm.

Commander Dan Brandenstein and pilot Jim Wetherbee have been stalking the 11-ton lab since Columbia was launched Tuesday into a path 1,725 miles behind their quarry.

The shuttle, which is in a slightly lower orbit, takes less time to circle the globe and is gradually catching up with the satellite lab. The closing rate today was about 38 miles for each 91-minute orbit of the Earth.

Brandenstein and Wetherbee planned three minor course corrections today to put the shuttle on a near-collision course with the satellite know as the Long Duration Exposure Facility.

They should reach it Friday morning. Once they do, they will fly in formation with it 35 feet away while mission specialist Bonnie Dunbar reaches out with Columbia's 50-foot mechanical arm to snare a grappling fixture on the side of the 30-foot-long satellite, which is as large as a small school bus.

Controllers, meanwhile, reported the $85 million Navy communications satellite launched by the astronauts Wednesday was functioning well. An onboard motor burn late Wednesday boosted it on another leg toward its permament working outpost 22,300 miles above the Pacific Ocean.

As the gap between the shuttle and the wayward laboratory closed, hunter and hunted were traveling nearly 200 miles high at more than 17,400 mph.

"We're glad you're doing so well; the whole world's impressed," Mission Control told the astronauts as it wakened them today with its version of "Banana Boat Song."

While the commander and pilot tended to flying Columbia, the three mission specialists, Dunbar, Low and Marsha Ivins, busied themselves with experiments. They melted crystals, photographed the Earth and took medical measurements of one another in tests to determine how well the human body adapts to space weightlessness.

Columbia's 10-day mission, the second-longest in the 33 shuttle flights, is a stepping stone toward longer shuttle missions and to months-long rips aboard space station Freedom starting in the mid-1990s.

Atmospheric drag has been pulling the satellite closer to Earth.

Hereford's HEROES

By BARBIE MOORE

I don't have just one hero in Hereford. I have many.

I am leaving Hereford soon to move back home to Nashville. This has been home to me for seven year. Six of these years I have worked at West Texas Rural Telephone. The employees there are my heroes, as well as my family and friends.

There are the great guys who were always there for me when I needed them the most, the ones who cried and the ones who made me laugh when I was down and out.

there are the girls in the office who have been my friends, especially when I just needed someone to listen.

I hope each of them will know how much I will miss them and how very special they have been to me. I will be able to take their love and kindness with me as I leave.

As in Bette Midler's song, Wind Beneath My Wings, they have all been just that and I will never forget any of them. They are my heroes.

Thank you Hereford and West Texas Rural Telephone. You will always be in my heart.

(We want to know about your hero: a parent, a teacher, friend, neighbor, spouse, someone who is your hero. Please include your name, address and phone number. Your story should be from 200 to 600 words. Mail your story to the Brand, PO Box 673, Hereford, 79045, or bring it by 313 N. Lee in Hereford. Let us all know about your hero!)

Officials cautious on Chinese move

WASHINGTON (AP) - China's announced lifting of martial law is receiving muted praise from the Bush administration, while members of Congress express doubt that Beijing is about to improve its record on human rights.

Moving cautiously, U.S. officials said Wednesday that they would reserve judgment until the announcement by Premier Li Peng was implemented. More upbeat, Vice President Dan Quayle called the announcement "a positive step forward for human rights."

But the White House and State Department reflected a cautious U.S. policy stance by issuing identical statements saying "we must assess the full scope of this action after observing its implementation."

The Bush administration dropped its opposition to World Bank loans to China for earthquakes and other unspecified calamities, but officials said the step was not related to the lifting of sanctions and that the United States would continue to oppose loans to China for projects.

On Capitol Hill, Rep. William S. Broomfield of Michigan, the ranking Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said China's announcement was "more blue smoke and mirrors, and would not fool anybody in Congress into believing that the Chinese leadership was moderating its oppressive rule."

Rep. Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., who sponsored legislation to permit Chinese students to remain in the United States after their visas expire, called the lifting of martial law an "empty gesture."

Pelosi said she would push for a congressional override of President Bush's veto of the bill to protect Chinese students even though he has promised to shield them through an executive order.

Senate Democratic Whip Alan Cranston of California called the announcement "a small, very small, step in the right direction ... insufficient justification to halt sanctions against China."

House Democratic Leader Richard A. Gephardt of Missouri renewed criticism of Bush for sending two senior officials to Beijing for talks soon after Chinese troops massacred hundreds of students and other pro-democracy protesters in Tiananmen Square in June.

Naval astronomers look for 10th planet

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) - Astronomers at the U.S. Naval Observatory are narrowing their solar system search for a 10th planet, a mysterious, phantom giant that has long captured the speculation and interest of stargazers.

Speculation about the existence of another planet evolved because something, perhaps a massive object orbiting the sun on the outer edge of the solar system, is giving a gravitational nudge that disrupts the predicted orbits of Uranus and Neptune, said astronomer R.S. Harrington.

"We are still incapable of predicting the location of Uranus," Harrington said Wednesday. "It's clear something is wrong in the outer solar system."

Astronomers have theorized since the beginning of the century that some additional planets existed beyond the orbits of Neptune. The theory sprang from observations that Uranus failed to orbit the sun with the majestic and mathematical symmetry experts expected.

That led to a search that resulted in the 1930 discovery of Pluto, the ninth known planet in the solar system. Further searching revealed in 1978 that a moon was orbiting Pluto.

But Harrington said calculations later showed the combined mass of Pluto and its moon are about 1,000 times too small to account for the detected, but unexplained irregularity of the Neptune and Uranus orbits.

HHS junior wins essay contest

Jerry Gallegos, a junior at Hereford High School, will be attending a the celebration of the sesquicentennial of the Texas Supreme Court on Saturday in Austin.

Gallegos was one of 70 Texas students chosen by the Texas Young Lawyers Association to attend the event, based on an essay on the court by Gallegos and other criteria.

Gallegos and other students selected were judged on school or community leadership activities, community service, information from application and references, academic record, and ethnic and gender representation.

Gallegos will have an opportunity to meet the Supreme Court justices, tour the court and the State Capitol and other sites in Austin.

Shaky coalition could unravel in E. Germany

EAST BERLIN (AP) - Communist Premier Hans Modrow today sought to appease parties that had threatened to leave his governing coalition, proposing that Parliament oversee the dismantling of East Germany's secret police network.

In an address to the body, Modrow also said he would seek agreement with the opposition on plans to create a new police agency before multiparty elections on May 6.

The Communist-led government had appeared in danger of collapse over charges the discredited Communists were seeking to revive secret police activity in an underhanded bid to cling to power.

The Communists face widespread charges that they are preventing a fair campaign for the parliamentary elections, which were promised last fall after a peaceful popular revolution toppled the old hard-line regime.

Three non-Communist parties in the government threatened to pull out of the government on Wednesday, and opposition groups nearly broke off talks with governing parties earlier in the week over the secret police controversy.

Mattox seeks to block judge's ruling on judicial elections

AUSTIN (AP) - The state cannot obey a federal court order requiring special, nonpartisan elections of 115 district judges in nine urban counties, Attorney General Jim Mattox said in seeking to block the decision.

The motion to stay the Jan. 2 order was filed Wednesday with the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans after federal Judge Lucius Bunton failed to modify his ruling as requested by Mattox.

"One thing is very clear: What Judge Bunton has ordered us to do, we're not capable of doing under state law," said Mattox. "He dropped a nonpartisan election into a partisan election code."

The federal judge's order did not specify who pays for the elections, supervises them, prints ballots or certifies results, Mattox said.

Bunton ordered that the judges be chosen by districts within the nine counties in a May 5 nonpartisan election. Mattox had asked the judge to allow the judges instead to run in the March 13 party primaries and Nov. 6 general election.

The motion for a stay could be withdrawn by the attorney general's office if Bunton revises his order before the federal appeals court rules, Mattox said. Bunton was expected to rule on Mattox's request Thursday, a source in Bunton's office in Midland said Wednesday.

Mattox said he sought the stay Wednesday afternoon because state election law requires Democratic and Republican party chairmen to send a list of candidates for the primary ballots to the secretary of state on Friday.

"We did not believe that we could wait any longer," Mattox said. State officials don't have the power to waive the Friday deadline, he said, although the judge could change it.

Bunton ruled in November that the at-large system of electing judges in Bexar, Dallas, Harris, Tarrant, Travis, Ector, Jefferson, Lubbock and Midland counties illegally dilutes the voting strength of blacks and Hispanics.

The lawsuit challenging the system was filed in 1988 by the League of United Latin American Citizens.

Mattox, a Democrat running for governor, has been urged to appeal Bunton's ruling by some Republicans, including Gov. Bill Clements, Secretary of State George Bayoud and some judges in Houston.

Clements and a spokesman for Bayoud said they were pleased by the attorney general's Wednesday action.

"It's about time! Today's action by the attorney general in appealing and seeking a stay is long overdue - yet it falls far short of the kind of vigorous action this case requires," Clements said in a statement.

Mark Toohey, an aide to Bayoud, said Mattox has "wasted valuable time in seeking a stay. We're extremely pleased that he's finally decided to follow the lead of Secretary Bayoud in doing the right thing."

John Hill, former Texas Supreme Court chief justice, is working without charge to appeal on Bayoud's behalf. Mattox has argued Hill cannot do so because the attorney general is supposed to be the state's sole legal representative.

In his Jan. 2 ruling, Bunton said the interim judicial elections in the nine counties should be based on existing political subdivisions. Those are state House districts in Bexar, Dallas, Harris and Tarrant counties; justice of the peace precincts in Travis County; and county commissioner precincts in Ector, Jefferson, Lubbock and Midland counties.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Jan. 11, the 11th day of 1990. There are 354 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Jan. 11, 1935, aviator Amelia Earhart began a trip from Honolulu to Oakland, California, that made her the first woman to fly solo across the Pacific Ocean.

On this date:

In 1757, the first secretary of the U.S. Treasury, Alexander Hamilton, was born in the West Indies.

In 1805, the Michigan Territory was created.

In 1861, Alabama seceded from the Union.

In 1943, the United States and Britain signed treaties relinquishing extraterritorial rights in China.

In 1964, U.S. Surgeon General Luther Terry issued the first government report saying smoking may be hazardous to one's health.

In 1977, France set off an international uproar by releasing Abu Daoud, a Palestinian suspected of involvement in the massacre of Israeli athletes at the 1972 Munich Olympics.

In 1978, two Soviet cosmonauts aboard the Soyuz 27 capsule linked up with the Salyut 6 orbiting space station, where the Soyuz 26 capsule was already docked - making it the first time three spacecraft were brought together in orbit.

In 1984, Chief Warrant Officer Jeffry C. Schwab, a U.S. Army pilot, was killed by Sandinista fire as his helicopter was shot down along the Nicaraguan-Honduran border.

Ten years ago: During U.N. General Assembly debate on the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, Soviet delegate Oleg Troyanovsky defended the action, saying it was meant to repel "armed intervention from outside."

Five years ago: Three American GIs were killed when a Pershing 2 missile caught fire during a training exercise near Heilbronn, West Germany.

Today's birthdays: Actress-director Eva Le Gallienne is 91. Television producer Grant Tinker is 64. Producer David L. Wolper is 62. Actor Rod Taylor is 61. Country singer Naomi Judd is 44. Golfer Ben Crenshaw is 38.

Thought for today: "The essence of taste is suitability. Divest the word of its prim and priggish implications, and see how it expresses the mysterious demand of the eye and mind for symmetry, harmony and order." - Edith Wharton, American author (1862-1937).

Officers elected for Pioneer Study Club

New officers were elected when the Pioneer Study Club met at The Caison House recently with Mary Panciera conducting the session.

New officers elected were Rosemary Thomas, president; Lucy Fay Cocanougher, vice president; Helen Langley, recording secretary; Gladys Miller, corresponding secretary; Fern Ford, treasurer; Mabel Heard, historian; Billee Johnson, yearbook and publicity; Willie Wimberley, federation counselor; and Mary Panciera, parliamentarian.

Lucy Fay Cocanougher and Helen Langley served as hostesses.

Roll call was answered with "How to keep Hereford beautiful", in keeping with the study "How to keep America and Texas beautiful".

"Lets keep Texas beautiful" was discussed by Catherine Gripp. The governor of Texas gives a community achievement award as an incentive for cities to clean up. Dallas, the winning city, has become an example for methods other cities may use. Dallas set up a Clean Up Dallas Inc. to reach as many people as possible. The water department delivered attractively designed anti-litter letters to 265,000 city water users. Also Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts delivered good neighbor hand booklets listing the greatest causes of litter.

Waco, another winner, added a Frontier Recycling Center. It is one of the nations few multi-material recycling theme centers and is called "Wild West Park". Materials are delivered to different frontier type buildings. Almost all Texas towns have some sort of anti-litter program or beautification program.

In Hereford, the Pioneer Study Club is sponsoring a drive urging each citizen to plant a package of flower seed.

Langley stated, "Now that the world is moving in a democratic direction, the United States should set its sights on the urgent mission: saving the planet.

"It is time to recognize that environmental degradation has become a greater threat to security than the possibility of military conflict.

Through a spirit of cooperation, business and industry, government agencies, civic and neighborhood groups are brought together as a team to improve the community's environment."

Those present for the meeting were Langley, Panciera, Gripp, Mildred Sheffy, Mary Jane Burrus, Rosemary Thomas, Gladys Miller, Fern Ford, Beatrice Hutson, Eloile Manning, and Eunice Petersen.

Autograph party set Saturday

Local author, Kay Peck, will be featured at an autograph party from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 13, at Dillar-a-Dollar Bookstop, 214 N. 25 Mile Ave.

Peck is the author of Folsom Boy, a novel released by Winston-Derek Publishers of Nashville, Tenn.

HOW'S THE WEATHER OUT OF THIS WORLD?

NEW YORK (AP) - Next to New York, Americans most want to know how the weather is at a place literally out of this world - the moon.

That's the conclusion drawn from a new telephone weather service launched last summer by American Express.

On June 24, 1497, the first recorded discovery of North America took place as explorer John Cabot, on a voyage for England, sighted land, probably in present-day Canada.

NCAA Convention termed evolutionary

DALLAS (AP) - There were no revolutionary steps taken at the NCAA's 84th annual convention, but college athletics' leaders say the moves made will prove to be evolutionary.

The organization concluded a rocky, four-day session having adopted small steps in what school presidents promise will be a large reform designed to shrink big-time college sports and give athletes more study time.

On Wednesday, delegates voted overwhelmingly in favor of harsher penalties for drug use, especially steroids, and a year-round testing plan for athletes.

The convention also approved reducing the basketball season by three games to 25, releasing each school's graduation rate for athletes, granting scholarships to incoming athletes for summer school, and relaxing Proposition 42 to allow athletes who don't meet all the incoming academic requirements to earn regular scholarships based on need.

Other changes were thought to be more for show than substance, such as lopping five days off the 20-day spring football practice season.

"It's purely symbolic. It's not going to save money, or help academics, or anything," said Texas athletic director DeLoss Dodds.

Small steps, however symbolic, were OK with NCAA executive director Dick Schultz.

Schultz said he knew of no other convention where so much had been done for student-athletes, and the NCAA Presidents Commission now has momentum to work toward more meaningful reform.

"There is now within the membership a very strong and urgent feeling that we need some reform, that we need some change," Schultz said after the convention.

"This was a good first step," he added. "What happened obviously provides momentum for reform."

But few of the reforms approved here appeared to be chiseled in concrete - especially the plan to eliminate three basketball games beginning in 1992-93.

Athletic directors stung by the loss of revenue from three basketball games - said to be up to $1.5 million a year at some schools - say they'll try for a compromise to restore some contests before the 25-game schedule goes into effect in 1992-93.

"It wouldn't be the end of the world if we got a lot of other reform and the number was 27. The number is arbitrary," Big 10 Commissioner Jim Delany said.

The year-round drug-testing program will begin by checking three dozen football players at every Division I school for steroids and masking agents. The change is an admission, delegates said, that colleges don't have drug use in check.

"The punishment must be more persuasive than it has been," Pittsburgh athletic director Ed Bozik said. "This indicates we are no different than society, (only) a reflection of society's problems."

Schultz told the 1,900 delegates earlier that the tougher anti-drug program was needed because "we are only catching the dumb ones."

Under the new drug penalties, first-time offenders could lose an entire year's eligibility. Those who test positive a second time for "street drugs" will lose another year of eligibility, but athletes caught using steroids twice will be banned for life.

Schultz said the NCAA expects court challenges to its program, but also expects to prevail.

The emphasis is on steroids, he said, because most of the positive tests the NCAA has seen have been for performance-enhancing drugs.

"Performance-enhancing drugs are really those ones that make a competitive difference," Schultz said, and delegates "wanted to concentrate on performance-enhancing drugs at this particular time because they feel that's by far the major problem."

Presently, the NCAA tests only at championship events and bowl games. If they test positive, NCAA athletes now face only the loss of eligibility for postseason competition for 90 days.

The year-round testing will cost the NCAA $1.6 million a year. It was approved for all divisions, but with enough money only to begin with Division I football players. The year-round program also was approved for only two years, with the understanding that it will be continued.

Tests will be performed at each school at least once a year, and probably twice, according to Edward Booth of Nebraska, the chairman of the NCAA's drug committee.

The harsher penalties were approved by a 659-25 vote, and the year-round program 569-111. Both changes take effect Aug. 1.

Horned Frogs miss out in upset bid

By The Associated Press

The Texas Christian Horned Frogs missed an opportunity to upset the Texas Longhorns because they missed too many free throws in the closing minutes and couldn't hit a single three-point basket.

TCU coach Moc Iba had a simple explanation for Wednesday night's 83-80 loss.

"Texas hits 3-point shots, while we made inside shots," Iba said. "The kids gave a great effort. We made a few mistakes, but that's to be expected."

In other Southwest Conference games, Arkansas whipped Baylor, 99-84, Southern Methodist upset Texas A&M, 67-54, and Rice edged Texas Tech, 74-71. In a non-conference game, Houston edged Iowa State, 83-82.

Lance Blanks scored 31 points, including 25 in the first half, to lead the Longhorns to the victory over TCU.

The Horned Frogs, led by Reggie Smith's 19 points, missed seven of 10 free throws in the final seven minutes and missed three three-point attempts in the final 16 seconds.

"Lance played great," Penders said. "He only took one bad shot all night."

Todd Day and Ron Huery each scored 19 points to lead Arkansas to a 99-84 victory over Baylor.

"It was a sloppy, laid-back game," said Arkansas Coach Nolan Richardson. "We didn't play very well. Our players have been reading the newspapers about how well we have been pressing. We got greedy with our press and never got any rhythm. But, I'd rather play that and win, than play well and lose."

Kelvin Chalmers had 18 points to lead Baylor scoring.

Vernon Perdue had 14 points and John Colborne added 12 to lead Southern Methodist to a 67-54 victory over Texas A&M.

It was the first SWC victory over the season for the Mustangs.

Tony Milton led the Aggies with 20 points despite playing on a tender ankle. David Harris added 13 points.

Ray Little hit two straight 3-pointers with 4:03 to play that pulled the Aggies to within 55-49, but SMU guard Rod Hampton answered with six straight points. The Aggies never got closer than 11 points in the last two minutes.

"I feel very bad," A&M coach Shelby Metcalf said. "I take this loss personally. It killed our momentum. We shot ourselves in the foot tonight."

The Aggies hit only 35 percent of their shots.

"We played hard and we played smart," SMU coach John Shumate said. "We have to operate on all five cylinders in order to win, and we did that tonight. You can't be one-dimensional in college basketball. We got a lot of help tonight from everyone."

Brent Scott scored the go ahead basket with 45 seconds remaining to give the Rice Owls a 74-71 victory over Texas Tech, which was held scoreless the final 4:29.

Scott finished with a team-high 20 points as Rice rallied from a 43-36 halftime deficit.

Tech's Jerry Mason led all scorers with 23 points.

"We've been preaching to our guys to keep believing and keep working, and something good will happen," Owls coach Scott Thompson said.

"We took some bad shots and had some bad turnovers in that last two or three minutes," Tech coach Gerald Myers said.

Byron Smith hit a 10-foot jump shot with 36 seconds left for the winning basket, and the Houston Cougars survived a flurry of Iowa State misses thereafter to defeat the Cyclones 83-82.

Smith led Houston with 20 points followed by 19 from Carl Herrera and 15 from Craig Upchurch.

Iowa State center Victor Alexander scored seven straight points that gave the Cyclones an 82-81 lead with one minute remaining. He finished with 20 points and 15 rebounds.

Jayhawks breeze along

By The Associated Press

For No. 1 Kansas, it was another day at the beach.

The Jayhawks enjoyed some fun in the Florida sun, then went out and breezed by Miami 100-73 Wednesday night.

Kansas arrived in town Tuesday afternoon and Coach Roy Williams held an unusual workout: he took the team to the ocean and practiced on a court he drew in the sand.

"The guys were a little tired, and maybe I'm a little crazy," Williams said. "But I think college basketball should be fun.

"The guys seemed to like it. They probably would have liked it better in the middle of the day because there would've been more pretty girls there."

Williams liked the Jayhawks' effort on the real court, too. Rick Calloway scored 16 points and Kansas improved to 17-0.

In other games, No. 5 Missouri beat Southern 106-87, No. 6 Syracuse stopped No. 15 St. John's 81-72, No. 12 Arkansas defeated Baylor 99-84 and No. 17 North Carolina State topped Boston University 95-70.

Kansas, upset by Miami 87-86 last season, was in no trouble this time. The Jayhawks scored nine straight points for a 41-28 lead in the first half and went on a 17-2 burst early in the second half.

"They're like poetry in motion," Miami coach Bill Foster said. "They're one of the best teams to come in here the last few years."

Kevin Pritchard scored 14 points and Jeff Gueldner, who made three 3-pointers, added 13. Kansas, averaging 95 points per game, reached the 100-mark for the fifth time.

Joe Wylie had 20 points and freshman Samarr Logan 19 for Miami (4-6).

No. 5 Missouri 106, Southern U. 87

Missouri scored the game's first 17 points and, even without its coach and two guards, had little trouble with visiting Southern.

Doug Smith had 24 points and Nathan Buntin 21 for the Tigers (14-1). Anthony Peeler added 13 points and 11 assists, one off the school record.

Coach Norm Stewart, who missed Missouri's final 14 games last year after he was diagnosed as having colon cancer, was absent with the flu. Travis Ford was hospitalized with a strained back and Lee Coward sat out to rest his cracked rib.

Missouri led 20-2 and 40-15. Southern, led by Joe Faulkner's 27 points, got within 48-34, but no closer.

No. 6 Syracuse 81, No. 15 St. John's 72

Derrick Coleman matched a career high with 24 points and had 17 rebounds as Syracuse broke out of a two-game shooting slump.

The Orangemen shot just 33 percent in splitting its last two games, but hit 56 percent in ending an eight-game winning streak by St. John's.

Stephen Thompson scored 20 points and Billy Owens 17 for Syracuse, which is 11-1 overall and 2-1 in the Big East. The Orangemen expanded a one-point halftime lead in beating the Redmen for the fifth straight time in the Carrier Dome.

Jason Buchanan, Boo Harvey and Malik Sealy each scored 13 points for St. John's (13-3, 2-1).

No. 17 N. Carolina St. 95, Boston U. 70

Rodney Monroe scored 29 points and Brian Howard 20 as North Carolina State beat Boston U. for its sixth straight victory.

The Wolfpack (12-2) led just 34-31 before going on a 12-2 run in the final four minutes of the first half.

Reggie Stewart, who did not start, scored 27 points for the Terriers.

Pardee hires ex-USFL aids

HOUSTON (AP) - The USFL Houston Gamblers once battled the NFL Houston Oilers for fan support, and now it appears some former Gamblers coaches will join Jack Pardee with the Oilers.

Pardee, former head coach of the Gamblers, became head coach of the Oilers on Tuesday.

Three of his longtime assistants - defensive coordinator Jim Eddy, offensive line coach Bob Young and defensive backs coach Pat Thomas - are expected to follow Pardee to the Oilers. All three coaches held the same positions with the defunct Gamblers.

Ray Alborn, former Rice and Lamar coach, was a defensive line coach with the Gamblers, and he also is under consideration.

Detroit Lions quarterbacks coach June Jones, who held the same position with the Oilers two seasons, also was a member of Pardee's Gamblers staff.

Jones is in town this week and hopes to receive permission to interview as Pardee's offensive coordinator.

While Pardee assembles his staff, the position reaction to his signed five-year contract already was being felt - at the ticket office and among the players.

"I certainly have nothing against Jerry Glanville and I wish him the best, but with the polarization of the fans over the past week, I'd be losing my credibility if I didn't say it would have been a tough sell," said Mike McClure, executive vice president of administration.

Glanville led the Oilers to three consecutive playoff appearances but the Oilers collapsed over their last three games this season.

"It would have been a difficult situation," McClure said. "A lot of people had already told us they weren't renewing their season tickets."

The Oilers sold 40,000 season tickets for the 1989 season after the Astrodome seating capacity to increased to 59,433 for football.

McClure was with the Oilers during the Bum Phillips era from 1979 through 1981 when the Oilers sold more than 44,000 season tickets.

"That was before the expansion, and that was just about the most we could sell," McClure said. "I'd say we could now sell up to 50,000."

Oiler players reacted positively to the selection of Pardee, who has pro head coaching experience with the Chicago Bears, Washington Redskins and USFL Houston Gamblers.

"He seems very confident in his abilities and he's a good leader, that's something we needed," center Jay Pennison said.

Buildup to title games continues

Earlier games meaningless to Rams, San Fran

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - There's a simple way to look at the two games the San Francisco 49ers and Los Angeles Rams played this season.

The wrong team won each time.

"Throw them out," San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana said. "We won one we shouldn't have won, they won one they shouldn't have won."

Whatever, the games sure were different, as different as 13-12 and 30-27 can be. And it's likely to be just as different when the Rams and 49ers meet Sunday for the NFC championship.

The game the Rams shouldn't have won was played Oct. 1 at Candlestick Park, where for some reason Los Angeles has had more success than at home. The Rams have won six of the last 10 against the 49ers at San Francisco but have lost eight of nine at Anaheim.

The October game was dominated by the 49ers, who had 367 yards but couldn't cross the goal line. Mike Cofer's four field goals were their only points.

Holding a 12-10 lead, the 49ers were at the Los Angeles 15-yard line with 2:59 left when Tom Rathman fumbled. It was the only fumble of the season by Rathman, who carried 79 times and caught 60 passes, and only the second in a career in which he has handled the ball 421 times.

Kevin Greene recovered and Rams quarterback Jim Everett completed five straight passes to set up Mike Lansford's 26-yard field goal that gave the Rams a 13-12 victory.

But a four-game losing streak at midseason left the Rams two games behind San Francisco when the teams met at Anaheim Stadium on Dec. 11.

The Rams took a 17-0 first-quarter lead that was cut to 17-10 by halftime, largely on the strength of a short pass from Montana that John Taylor turned into a 92-yard touchdown.

Everett, who spent most of the night picking on Darryl Pollard, San Francisco's left cornerback, hit Buford McGee with a 13-yard touchdown pass and Lansford added a 22-yard field goal to make it 27-10 1:27 into the fourth period.

Montana drove the 49ers 66 yards in six plays to cut it to 27-17, but the Rams came right back, driving to the San Francisco 4. The Rams seemed set to go in for the clinching score when a bungled snap between Everett and center Doug Smith produced a fumble that Matt Millen recovered at the 5.

Montana found Taylor five yards downfield and Taylor took off on a 95-yard touchdown play. It was the first time in NFL history a team had two 90-yard touchdown plays from scrimmage in one game and contributed mightily to Montana's career-high of 458 passing yards.

What kind of game will materialize on Sunday - low-scoring, as in October, or high-scoring, as in the December game.

"You can't tell," Robinson said. "Most likely, it will be totally different."

Browns avoiding Denver altitude

BEREA, Ohio (AP) - The Denver Broncos had to put up with barking fans outside their hotel in Cleveland three years ago, so Coach Dan Reeves figures it's only fair for the Cleveland Browns to have to deal with Denver's altitude for a couple of days this year.

Reeves on Wednesday repeated his complaint about the NFL's decision to let the Browns arrive in Denver on Saturday, a day later than required by league rules. The NFL's decision to waive the rule reduced the advantage the Broncos earned by having the AFC's best record, Reeves said.

Browns owner Art Modell said Reeves is making too much of the issue.

"Where I disagree with Dan Reeves is, it's not a competitive advantage," Modell said. "It doesn't give us any edge. He's playing at home. Coming out Friday would be a disadvantage to us."

The Browns asked for the waiver because team doctors said the altitude at Mile High Stadium would affect them less if they arrived within 24 hours of Sunday's game.

Without the waiver, they would have gone to a high-altitude location for practice this week so they could become accustomed to the thinner air.

Before playing in Denver two years ago, the Browns practiced at high altitude in Albuquerque, N.M. This week, they are working at their usual Baldwin-Wallace College field.

"As far as the altitude's concerned, that's a bunch of malarkey," Reeves said. "It doesn't make any difference if they come in here 45 minutes before a game or 45 days before a game. The altitude's going to be the same. It's going to bother you."

He pointed out that the Browns lost only 38-33 to Denver after practicing at high altitude for several days two years ago and lost big, 30-7, when they flew to Denver the day before a regular-season game in 1988.

"Rules are set prior to the season," Reeves said. "Part of the advantage of winning home field is that you don't have to travel. You fight your guts out, you lay it on the line so that you have the home field advantage. Part of the reason for that is that you don't like to travel for the championship game two days prior to the game. That's totally different than anything you do the entire season."

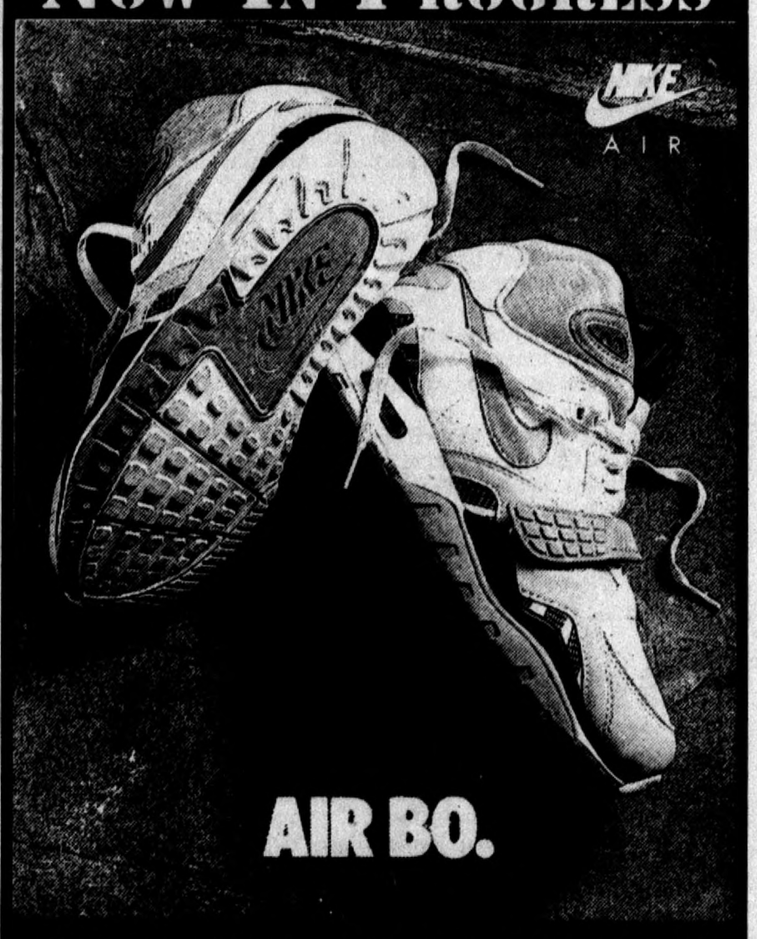

Reeves said he had protested when the Broncos were forced to travel to Cleveland two days before the AFC Championship Game following the 1986 season.

"I asked at that time, why in the world do we have to come in here two days prior to the game? We couldn't sleep the night before. People were driving around the hotel honking horns, barking like dogs," he said.

Abundant Life

NEW EVERYDAY
By Bob Wear

There is a sense in which it is wise and helpful to think of each day of living as a 'new beginning'. Even though some activities of each day will be a continuation of what has been begun sometime before; the dawning each morning brings a new day. Of course, we have to choose how we consider the new day. It can be something we dread, it can be very much the same old thing, or we can manage out thinking and our living so that it is a new day and a kind of new beginning.

Even in troubled times, this is a workable philosophy. We make it work by accepting full responsibility for making it work, and we can do this by giving prominence to the concepts and the real possibilities of 'revival' and 'renewal', and consciously begin the day with the view that it is a new day. This practice will serve many useful purposes, including help in handling the left overs from preceding days. "Every day is a new day, with new possibilities and unlimited opportunity." - E. Reeves.

Much is lost by permitting the spirit of boredom, of sameness (it's the same old thing), and staleness to enter into our living experiences. This will happen, unless we deliberately prevent it. We will be reasonably successful in preventing it by our daily consciousness of and dedication to all of the worthwhile principles and standards we know.

Each day is important, in its own right; and we can give reality to this importance by letting the day be considered important to us. We can do this by deliberately welcoming the day with the spirit of 'beginning anew'. We will have a better chance to do this, if we close each preceding day as completely as we can.

Life comes to us one day at a time, and there can be nothing better for us than considering each one a new day, and each morning 'a new beginning'.

Yesterday's Answer

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 34 and life is good! The last four years have been wonderful, but before that it was mostly hell.

There was no reason for me to be miserable. I was not short of money, had no career disappointments, no trouble with my marriage. The only problem was that I thought I was crazy. I couldn't be happy, no matter how good life was.

In college I had bad days and good days. As time went on, the bad days increased and the good days were fewer and farther between. I began to think dying would be easier than living. I cried all the time. If I hadn't been concerned about what it would do to my parents, I would have killed myself.

Finally, my parents began to matter less and less. I decided I would rather be dead than crazy.

I told my father how miserable I was and confessed that I was thinking about suicide. He telephoned my brother, who had similar problems and was being treated with an antidepressant. My brother put me in touch with his doctor, who prescribed the same drug.

Within a few weeks I was feeling ever so much better. I still have some down days, but they aren't half as bad as they used to be.

The message I would like to get across to your readers is this: When you feel down in the dumps for a significant period of time, try counseling. It can't hurt and it might help. If counseling doesn't work, talk to your doctor. A chemical imbalance in the brain could be causing your feelings of anxiety and hopelessness. They now have medication to treat this problem.

If your doctor doesn't want to listen, FIND ANOTHER DOCTOR. Go to the library and educate yourself about depression. Knowing that you are not crazy helps. Remember, you are not alone. This type of mental illness is not uncommon. Don't give up. There is help for you, but you must find it. I have been down that lonely road, and now I am a healthy, happy human being. -- Little Rock

DEAR LITTLE ROCK: What a great letter. No one could have written it but a person who has lived it. Thank you for a valuable contribution to this space.

And now a word to my readers: Please don't write and ask me for the name of the medication this woman is taking. There are many kinds of antidepressants and all must be prescribed by a medical doctor. (Psychologists and social workers cannot write prescriptions.) Also, individuals respond differently to medication. What works for one may not work for another.

Treating mental illness with drug therapy is one of this century's most significant contributions to humankind. It has freed untold numbers of sufferers from a living hell. Thank God for medical research.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've read many pet peeves in you column. Please print mine.

I'm a ticket-taker at public events such as ball games, concerts and circuses. So many people have the habit of putting tickets in their mouth while they put away their change. It's not a very good feeling to handle wet tickets from strangers. I'll bet if you printed this it would make a difference. -- Finicky in the Cheese State

DEAR FIN: Here's your letter. I hope it helps, but don't bet the rent. The habit you describe is the result of humans having only two hands, and I know of no solution to that one.

Arkansas was re-admitted to the Union in 1868.

Perfect for winter days

There is nothing more satisfying than a bowl of hot, hearty soup on cold winter days. This Lentil Minestrone contains fresh carrots and celery.

Spoon up hot lentil soup

Cold temperatures and dark days bring us inside to enjoy families at home and share hearty, full-flavored foods. And there's no food more warming and satisfying than soup.

Lentils are a great base for soup because they're inexpensive, require no soaking like dry beans and cook quickly. They're rich in the nutrients needed and have ample fiber, complex carbohydrates and minerals with little fat and no cholesterol.

LENTIL MINESTRONE

1 medium onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1 tablespoon oil
1 medium carrot, peeled and sliced
1 stalk celery, sliced
1/4 pound lentils (about 2/3 cup)
1/2 of a 10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach
4 cups water
4 teaspoons vegetable, chicken, or beef bouillon granules
1 teaspoon dired oregano, crushed
1/4 teaspoon dired thyme, crushed
Few dashes bottled hot pepper sauce
One 8-ounce can tomatoes
1/2 cup uncooked medium pasta, such as bows, elbows or wagon wheels

In a large saucepan or Dutch oven over medium-high heat, cook onion and garlic in hot oil about 5 minutes or until tender, stirring frequently. Add carrot, celery, lentils, spinach, water, bouillon granules, oregano, thyme and hot pepper sauce. Bring to boiling. Reduce heat; cover and simmer 15 minutes. Stir in tomatoes and pasta; simmer 10 to 15 minutes longer or until pasta is just tender. Makes 4 servings.

"Caught" to be shown

"Caught", the newest film from Billy Graham's World Wide Pictures will be shown on Jan. 14 at 7 p.m. at the Temple Baptist Church, 700 Ave. K.

The true-to-life dramatic story portrays the power of one person caring for another. An 18-year-old American, Tim Devon, goes to Amsterdam in search of the father he has never known. His mother reluctantly admits he was born illegitimately out of a college romance between her and a Dutch exchange student.

In this city, far from his home, he slips into the self-destructive drug culture, but is encountered by a single, caring person-- a person of deep faith. The person, Rajam Prasad, found a way to share Christ's message of love, hope and forgiveness in a way that Tim could not ignore.

Vast audiences who have witnessed the film's premiere in movie theatres around the world have been gripped by its central focus on their friendship which was forged out of danger and desperation.

Deeply moved by the warmth of the film with its many moments of humor, Billy Graham, said 'Caught' is certainly the most outstanding film yet produced by World Wide Pictures.

"Caught" rings a challenge to us all; in reality, one caring person can have an immeasurable impact on the life of another lonely, disillusioned, desperate person. The public is cordially invited to attend this showing.

The space shuttle Challenger, carrying America's first woman in space, Sally K. Ride, coasted to a safe landing in 1983 at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Learning disabilities can be misdiagnosed

Nearly two million children in the U.S. are classified "learning disabled." That is, even though they are normally intelligent, they are said to have a brain problem that prevents them from learning with regular classroom instruction. Most of them are also very poor readers, so they may be diagnosed "dyslexic" as well.

Unfortunately, most of these children face bleak academic futures. Even when they are placed in remedial classes, the majority continues to have academic problems. As they go from grade to grade, they fall farther and farther behind their peers.

A main reason for this failure is that teachers, psychologists, and other professionals have been treating a "neurological condition" that has never been shown to exist in the majority of the so-called "learning disabled."

For many years, a long-held view was that "reversals" ("b" for "d," "was" for "saw") were key symptom of dyslexia -- for decades, reversals were included in the diagnosis of learning disabilities.

However, when researchers did investigate assumptions about reversals, the "symptom" was found to have no relationship to neurological problems said to underlie "dyslexia." Rather, the researchers concluded that they were trivial errors, easily correctable with instruction.

There is no question that generally the children who are labeled LD do have serious learning problems that usually begin in the early grades. However, most of the differences in brain function found between them and normal learners are just that--differences, not abnormalities.

The brain differences are simply ones that might be found between any two groups of people with different abilities. For example, the brain activity of two people reading a Spanish text would be different if one understood the language and the other did not. They would be "reading" in different ways and, therefore, what was going on in their brains would not coincide.

The unfortunate outcome is that the children never become the academic successes they are capable of becoming.

Reduce heart attack risk

If you have high blood pressure, smoke cigarettes or have a high cholesterol level, you are at increased risk of having a heart attack.

The good news is that these risk factors can be controlled, according to Dan Fintel, M.C., associate director of Medical Intensive Care Facilities at Northwestern Memorial Hospital in Chicago.

"Other conditions that can increase the risk of having a heart attack are excess weight, diabetes, a sedentary lifestyle, heredity and age," says Dr. Fintel.

Dr. Fintel recommends that you ask your doctor to assess your personal risk and discuss ways that you can lower it. Here are a few of the topics your doctor will probably cover:

-If left untreated, high blood pressure doubles the risk of heart disease; so, if medication is prescribed, take it as directed.

You may want to ask if the medication you take is one that has been proven to reduce the risk of fatal heat attack. While many medications lower blood pressure, only one type of antihypertensive drug has been shown to protect the heart.

For example, the beta-blocker Lopressor (metoprolol) has been proven to prevent fatal heart attack better than diuretics (water pills). As with all drugs Lopressor may cause side effects, most of which are mild and transient.

-If you smoke, you will undoubtedly be told to stop. Ask your doctor about support programs, groups that you can join, or methods that other patients have found helpful.

-If you have high cholesterol, you may be able to lower it by changing your diet, as a low-fat diet can reduce your cholesterol level significantly. If diet alone doesn't work, your doctor may prescribe medication.

-Finally, ask your doctor to help you work out a sensible exercise program that will benefit your heart and will help you lose or maintain your weight.

Remember, the most important thing to do if you think you are having a heart attack is get to the hospital fast. What if you're not sure? Here are some of the most common symptoms:

-Squeezing or pain in the center of the chest lasting two minutes or longer;

-Pain spreading to the shoulders, neck or arms;

-Dizziness, fainting, sweating, nausea or shortness of breath.

Hund named to honor roll

Rose Marie Hund of Hereford was among 193 students named to the Dean's Honor Roll for the fall semester at Panhandle State University in Goodwell, Okla.

The Dean's Honor Roll contains the names of students who have carried 12 hours or more and have a 3.3 grade point average on a 4.0 scale and have no F's or I's.

Author-journalist Ambrose Bierce was born in 1842 in Meigs County, Ohio.
