J. Frank Norfleet Heads Lumsden Death Probe Fraud Charged In Kellogg Anti-War Pact Campaign

Huge Sums Said To Be Spent To Gain Favor For Treaty

Representative Tinkham To Order Investigation Of Situation, Thursday, He Declares Last Night

Bill Is First Up

Ratification of Treaty To Be First Work of Senate; Understanding On Pact Is Reached Wednesday

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Charging that international bankers and business organizations, as well as foreign interests, were spending huge sums to win favor for the Kellogg anti-war pact, Representative Tinkham, Republican, Massachusetts, declared tonight he would introduce a resolution tomorrow for a congressional investigation.

The resolution would provide for a committee of five who would inquire into the source of the alleged propaganda funds.

Plan League Membership.
Acceptance of the treaty, Tinkham asserted, meant that the United States would be "subject to League policies without participating in League decisions; it means membership in the League of Nations which means eventual full membership in the League of Nations itself."

What he believed to be the "real and vital international issue" for statesmen to deal with was the freedom of the seas.

Kellogg's Plan Gets Ahead Of Navy Increase Measure
WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—The senate is going to consider ratification of the Kellogg treaty, pledging the nations of the world against war, before starting work on the bill to increase the navy by 15 cruisers.

An understanding giving the peace treaty priority was reached today. Two propositions come before the senate tomorrow on equal footing.

Assured of strength for the treaty, Chairman Borah of foreign relations, laid his cards on the table today before Chairman Hale of the naval committee, sponsor of the navy bill.

Conflict May Result.
Hale later announced he would see KELLOGG PACT, Page 12

Mike H. Thomas of Dallas, elector at large, was chosen chairman of the Texas college and Withington secretary.

Avalanche Reporter Listens To Road Bond Rumors Then Marshalls Facts Which Bear Upon Question Of Voting Million Dollars For Good Highways

By AL HILL
Avalanche Staff Writer

(This is the first of a series of articles bearing upon the impending road bond election in Lubbock county. In this series the Avalanche hopes to present all of the facts bearing upon this all-important question.)

We've been saving up for readers of the Avalanche; waiting for Christmas shopping, the holiday season and New Year's to come and go; knowing you would be having your minds on those events.

There have been some things said, perhaps also done, that are of vital concern to every citizen of Lubbock county. Especially is this true, when there's a million dollars involved.

Now, wouldn't we have been nice, to have spilled out all the whisperings and suspicions that have been going the rounds ever since the $1,000,000 county-wide road bond issue election was called, right in the middle of the spirit of Christmas, or of New Year's?

Back In The Saddle
But we're all back in the saddle again. There's hard riding ahead and our mind's down to business.

You will remember that, immediately upon the heels of the defeat of the $2,004,000 county-wide road bond issue election held on December 1, the leaders of both sides of that campaign got together and pledged support to the present proposal of paving only the state and federal designated highways traversing the county, leaving out the lateral roads, to which was largely accredited the defeat of the other project.

The fine spirit of cooperation, among these men of Lubbock and Lubbock county, was the source of much consolation to everybody having the welfare of this city and county at heart. And it continues to be.

Rumors Have Been Heard
But, there have been some very vigorous rumors—some strange sayings—intimations of "a nigger in the wood-pile." We have heard these from sundry sources. The business of a newspaper reporter being to run things down, we've been about our business for several weeks. The further business of a newspaper reporter being to "get things right" and "impartial," the things we've heard are being passed along through the columns of The Avalanche for exactly what they are worth, item for item, as they have been found.

The $1,000,000 road bond election has been called for Saturday,

January 12. That's a week from the coming Saturday. Following the meeting of "agreement" between the two factions of the other campaign, the leaders decided there would be no publicity—such as obtained during the last campaign. Instead, there was to be personal work on the part of several scores of men, among the voters, but no extensive campaign of advertising through the papers or by mail.

Opposition Develops
For a short while it looked like there would be no opposition to this election. Then opposition developed and sparkling rumors began fluttering from ear to ear. Here are some of them:

"The petitions that were passed around and signed, asking the county commissioners' court to call the election, were not worded like the election order reads."

"There is not enough money stipulated in the election call to build concrete roads on the highways as designated."

"It looks like 'they' do not intend to build concrete highways, but something cheaper."

"The routing of Highway No. 53 is stipulated in the election order so it must come into Lubbock along the Avenue H route."

Now, let's consider these whisperings, one by one:

The petitions that were passed for signatures, from which the commissioners' court acted in calling the election, and of which there are nine on file in the county clerk's office, read, in the part concerning the highways to be paved and amounts stipulated for that work, as follows:

"Texas State Highway No. 7, via Slaton, Lubbock and Shallowater, $275,000."

"Texas State Highway No. 9, via Woodrow, Lubbock and Monroe to Abernathy, $218,000."

"Texas State Highway No. 53, via Idalou, Lubbock and Wolf-farth, $275,000."

"Lubbock west to County Line on Lubbock-Levelland road, $110,000."

"From Idalou via Becton to County Line on Idalou-Silverton road, $100,000."

The total amount named, $978,000. With the $22,000 which is to take up road bonds of road district number one, this makes the million.

One Stipulation Noted
There is no stipulation as to the exact route Number 53 shall take from Idalou to Lubbock, typewritten on the nine petitions on file. On one of these petitions, however, is pencilled in, after the word, "Idalou," in the clause relating to Number 53, the words:

Two Students Die In Dallas Blaze Early Wednesday

James H. Martin and Sam R. Scott Are Trapped In Burning Structure; Aged Man Saves Others

(By Associated Press)
DALLAS, Jan. 2.—Trapped in one of the structures, two Baylor University medical students perished in flames which razed three dwellings early today.

The dead were: James H. Martin, 28, Itasca, and Samuel R. Scott, 23, San Antonio.

Rev. J. B. Daly, 82, retired minister who lived next door to the burning in which the students were burned to death, was taken to a hospital suffering from shock and exposure. He was credited with having possibly saved the lives of others by kicking on the sleepers' doors and awakening them.

Nurses Body Is Hunted
Miss Dora Humble, a nurse, first thought to have been burned to death in the fire, was found tonight nursing a patient at the patients' home and unaware that firemen were searching the ruins for her body.

Malcolm Daniels, a student, jumped from the roof of the house in which Martin and Scott died in spite of the fact that he had been operated on for appendicitis very recently. He suffered no ill effects.

Scott and Martin were freshmen. Martin at one time was superintendent of schools at Osceola, Texas, where his widow now teaches school.

Consul Dies

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Jan. 2.—(P)—Capt. Rosendo Torres, 78, consul here for Spain and Cuba, and formerly a leading lumber exporter, died today.

The function of the alpha hormone is confined to controlling the speed of certain physical actions in childhood and costs about $3,000,000 a pound in its pure state. The beta hormone is only one-third as expensive. Its function is to raise the blood pressure and control retention of water in body cells.

By separating the two, scientists believe, Dr. Kamm has opened up a field of medical progress revolving around loss of water by the tissues in cases of severe burns and shock from surgery on anesthesia, and has made it possible to eliminate undesirable effects obtained in childbirth by the use of pituitrin containing both hormones.

Peace Efforts Of Conference Fail To Get Agreement

Reply of Bolivia Is Still Awaited by Pan-American Group In Washington; Argentina Won't Aid

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—The buttressing of western hemisphere peace through efforts of the Pan-American conference tonight was at a temporary standstill.

While the conference awaited a reply from Bolivia to authorize the signing of a protocol to conciliate the Bolivian-Paraguay boundary dispute, the parley's own arbitration and conciliation treaties were in the hands of its delegates.

The conclusion of the Bolivian-Paraguay protocol, by which both countries would submit their differences to an international tribunal of nine members, was held in abeyance by Minister Eduardo Diaz de Medina, delegate from Bolivia. He told the conference committee he could not sign the document until he received instructions from his government.

Dr. Eligio Ayala of Paraguay announced that he had been instructed by his government to sign at any time.

Word of Argentina's refusal to take part in the conference's effort to conciliate the Paraguayan-Bolivian dispute was received tonight as something of a shock by delegates from twenty American nations.

BEILTON, Jan. 2.—(P)—The owners and publishers of the Houston Post-Dispatch were made defendants in an $100,000 libel and damage suit, filed in district court here today by Roy I. Tennant, member of the state board of control in charge of purchasing.

New Chemical Achievement May Prove Great Aid To Humanity; Cost Will Be $3,000,000 Per Pound

BY COLEMAN B. JONES
Associated Press Science Writer
NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—A chemical achievement which may reduce the age-old suffering of childbirth and help save the lives of surgical patients and victims of severe burns, was recognized today by the American association for the advancement of science with its highest award.

It was the isolation and analysis of the two hormones of the posterior pituitary gland by Dr. Oliver Kamm, head of chemical research in the laboratories of Parke, Davis and company of Detroit.

Doctor Awarded Prize
For his achievement Dr. Kamm was awarded the annual "association prize" of $1,000.

This is the first time that science has been able to obtain from any of the mysterious ductless endocrine glands of the body two specifically different hormones, the chemical messengers which enter the blood stream as it passes through the glands, and enables them to perform their functions of controlling life processes throughout the body.

The "pituitary twins" as the hormones isolated by Dr. Kamm are called, have been named Alpha and Beta. Although they are almost identical in chemical structure, he told the chemical and medical sections of the association, they control vastly different physiological processes of the body.

Blood-Stained Car Is Used As Clue In Investigation; Results Seen For Careful Study of Case

(Special To The Avalanche)
AUSTIN, Jan. 2.—J. Frank Norfleet, nationally famous nemesis of a far-flung gang of criminals, is in Austin working with the father of Lawrence Lumsden toward a solution of young Lumsden's mysterious death 10 days ago.

Lumsden, a recent University student was found shot to death in a car a few hours after he left his fraternity dance.

An arrest Thursday is eminent, local officers believed Wednesday night.

Car Is Clue
A car, rented by an unknown person under an assumed name the night of young Lumsden's death, returned bearing blood-stains, has been the object of Norfleet's investigation.

The father of a youth whose name was forged to the rental order for the car, is here assisting the officers, and it has been shown the youth whose name was used was not in Austin at the time.

At the request of the Senior Lumsden, Justice Frank Tammehill held up the coroner's verdict in the death several days, finally entered a verdict that the youth had come to death by an undetermined hand.

McClain Aids Also
Former Deputy Sheriff J. E. McClain, who investigated the Lumsden youth's death recently is continuing his work on the case, and whether they were from him blood. The handwriting with which the forged name was signed to the car rental order has been studied by experts. Norfleet, most

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

CONTOUR OF YOUR NECK DESERVES CAREFUL ATTENTION

I am going to devote some attention to suggestions and advice on the care of your neck. A poor neck ruins a pretty face—and it always has been a disputed point among beauty specialists whether age shows first in the color and contour of a neglected throat or in the same conditions affecting the hands. Certainly, both of these places are danger areas, and as such, they merit your careful and regular attention.

I personally incline toward the belief that the neck is the more important of the two. After all, your hands can be covered once in a while, but with fashion frowning, as she does, on all the camouflage of chokers, frills and high collars, you have no choice but to permit your throat to be constantly exposed to public view.

Sometimes the contour of the neck may be spoiled through an internal condition. Mild cases of swollen glands have been successfully treated through a nightly, external application of white or colorless iodine. It is really essential, however, to consult your physician about any persistent trouble of this kind, as there are two distinct kinds of swollen glands; only one of which is treated with iodine. The other with thyroid. As one indicates over-active glands and the other sub-normal activity of the glands.

The way you hold your neck is another factor in determining its good appearance. I remember the time when the Posture League was supposed to have sponsored pulling in for in the transmission of the exercise chin. I'm sure there was an ex-develop a double chin. Elevate your chin, for I know of no surer way to neck, not to camel-like degree, but keep your head perked at an "up-lift" angle if you would prevent the flabbiness that destroys the contour.

The Woman's Day

By Allene Sumner

Lady soldiers are demanded by a Mrs. C. Fuller Winters, president of the American Federation of Industrial Women. Mrs. Winters has talked about her "woman's guard" plan for some time, and is working for legislation which would create the "woman's guard" as auxiliary to the National Guard.

She wants "guard women" put under the War Department, with officers detailed to train them into work of the cavalry, infantry, artillery, air corps, and other branches of the military service.

LET UNCLE SAM PAY

It will give an outlet for energy to those who have passed the Girl Scout age," she patiently explains. Sure, the "woman's guard" would wear uniforms—cute ones—and would offer that "discipline which pampered American women need," she says.

To all sounds very much like an audacious plan to make Uncle Sam provide and pay for amusement for girls tired of home, huddles, movies, church suppers, and mall fong.

Liquor Market Angles for New High In Gotham

BY ALEXANDER C. HERMAN
Staff Writer for Central Press and The Journal

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—In celebration of the tenth New Year's since prohibition became national law finds the bootlegger market bullish and angling for a new high.

Despite innumerable seizures all celebration (depending on the view), the tenth New Year's since prohibition became national law finds the bootlegger market bullish and angling for a new high.

There isn't a bootlegger out of captivity who can't spout this economic law with a conviction that would make a college professor's teaching sound like so much hogwash.

As a result, bath-tub poison, beautifully bottled, gets delivery together with the smuggled stuff from Canada, Mexico, Cuba and most other points, east, west, south and north, at the fancy prices of:

Whiskey, $84-$140 a case.
Cordials, $120-$132 a case.
Rum, $50-$60 a case.

Wines, $45-$60 a case.
Gin, $100-$125 a case.
Champagne, $120-$140 a case.

These are supposed to be the market prices of the "real thing."

Since the border line between legality and the bath-tub product is hazy, the more unscrupulous leggers dish out domestic booze at import prices—and get away with it.

Some dealers, who have been supplying their own vintages all year around, play fair and charge "local manufacture" prices—which average about 30 per cent lower in all beverages except gin.

Gin, being so easy to manufacture sells for $35-$40 a case (bath-tub) with no questions asked.

Those fortunate enough to get physicians' allotments, can get government-bottled-in-bond whiskey for as low as $25-$37.50 a case. But this privilege is reserved for a comparatively lucky few.

The range of prices, a successful bootlegger explains, depends entirely on making the traffic bear all it can. In some instances, a high class customer would be insulted if too low a price were asked.

"So what can I do?" asks the bootlegger quizzically, "but charge him $100 a case for the same stuff I sell others at $75."

(Not only have liquor traffickers become economists, but now they are psychologists, too.)

As for specialties—qualities may change, but prices are the same—fifty to a dollar a shot of whiskey (depending on the geography and cists to the point); twenty-five to fifty cents a glass of beer, sixty cents to a dollar (or more) for a cocktail.

Despite raids, places are wide open. One of them (in the Times Square section) puts on its own voluntary padlock after a certain hour at night to keep the wandering drunks out!

The Beer Flat racket (popular in the middle west) has not yet been popularized here. Of course, there are places in New York where one can get a schooner, with trimmings of pretels and dewdust, for even as low as a quarter a tall glass. But they are of the old saloon type—

Grief Brings Reconciliation

Relief from the sorrow which has befallen Ellen Mackay Berlin and her noted husband, Irving Berlin, song writer, over the sudden death of their 24-day-old son, at their home in New York City, has been found in the apparent reconciliation with Mrs. Berlin's father, Clarence Mackay, millionaire, who had been estranged from his daughter since her marriage to the Ghetto-born jazz composer. Mackay forgot old scores and took complete charge of the funeral arrangements. Photo shows Mrs. Berlin and their two-year-old daughter, Mary Ellen.

CABINET ANNOUNCED

Cordial Feelings Of Hoover Visit Still Echoing

MANAGUA, Nic., Jan. 2. (AP)—The cabinet of General Jose Maria Montecada, who was inaugurated yesterday as president of Nicaragua, was announced today with the exception of the secretary of war.

Official and semi-official circles were still talking today about the very cordial feeling manifested at yesterday's ceremony and evidenced when President Adolfo Diaz personally escorted his successor from the presidential office to the inauguration stand.

Many Nicaraguans assert the and have none of the hominess of the Chicago flats, where the beer comes from the kitchen, and the drinking is done in the living room on a dining table.

Some one estimated that it would take 90,000 agents to enforce prohibition effectively. And the cost would be $300,000,000, according to Prohibition Commissioner Doran.

Which leads a wag to say that the best way to make the money would be for the government to go into a little bootlegging as a sideline. For then the money would be forthcoming with ease.

Be that as it may, the bootleggers aren't worrying. Theirs seems to be a season of good cheer—for themselves if not for their customers.

friendlier feelings between leaders of the liberals and conservatives began with the visit of Herbert Hoover to Caribbe late in November.

Lubbock Rotarians evidently included in their list of New Year resolutions one covering attendance at weekly club meetings, for almost all of the members of the organization were on hand yesterday at noon when Vice President Jerry J. Clements called for order at Hotel Lubbock.

Wallace W. Rix was in charge of the program which was featured by an old-fashioned spelling bee. Words were taken from the "Blue-Back Speller" of 1858 and approximately half the men present were "spelled down" in the fifteen or twenty minutes of the "bee." Prof. Cecil Horne, of Texas Tech, played the part of the "teacher" and the two teams were headed by Rev. Walter P. Jennings, pastor of the First Christian church, and Dean Marcus Gordon, head of the College of Liberal Arts at Texas Tech.

At the close of the spelling bee, classification talks were made by Walter W. Royalty, motor car distributor, and W. C. Cole, book store operator.

The Rotary club will not meet next Wednesday but will join with the Kiwanis club in a joint session on Thursday at noon, at which time the approaching road bond election will be discussed. Robert J. Mur-

Reigel's Freak Run One Of Most Startling In History

Bribery Sought By Boston Councillor For Sunday Sports Permit, Says Fuchs

Experts Aver Play Was Most Unusual In Grid History

Captain-elect of California Team Ran In Wrong Direction With Ball As Sense Direction Failed

By ALAN J. GOULD.
Associated Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Football records become a trifle hazy with the years. There is no counterpart of the "Little Red Book" of baseball to check on past performances of the gridiron, but it has been at least one or two pale blue moons since anything so startling has occurred as Roy Reigel's now famous run toward his own goal line at Pasadena.

"Such things have happened before but not as a deciding factor in a big game." That about sums up the impression of football men hereabouts today as to whom the question of precedent for Reigel's dash was put.

Dowd Puffed "Boner"
There long has been the case of "Snooks" Dowd, one time major league ball player, who ran nearly 200 yards for a touchdown—some 70 yards to his goal and then, upon discovery of his error, over 100 yards the right way for a score, including the distance across field. But Reigel's had no such luck.

"I never heard of a player making so long a run in the wrong direction," Edward K. Hall, chairman of the football rules committee said, "but I have seen players start the wrong way a number of times after emerging from a mixup with a fumbled ball."

"It was very easy, as I read the play, for Reigel to go wrong. He was not accustomed to ball carrying and he probably came out of the mixup head-down, bent simply on moving away. In being spun around he just lost his sense of direction, as he said."

"Instances of players getting started the wrong way have been numerous but they seldom get very far without discovering their mistake or being checked," said Ed. Thorp, famous referee. "The yell of teammates or the crowd usually will wake a fellow up before he has done much damage, but I can understand readily how it happened to Reigel. It is very easy to lose a sense of direction after being spun around in a mass of players and it must be remembered that California had just changed goals."

Chambers looped one from mid-court just before the game ended.

Strolling Down Sports Lane

With Allan Carney
Avalanche Sports Editor

A long, drawn-out football season came to a colorful close on Tuesday as the Golden Tornado of Georgia Tech blew with mid-season fury to down the Bears of Southern California and the Big Six all-stars showed their heels to a team picked from the Southwest Conference to score a 14 to 6 victory. The games saw some of the outstanding performers of the past season in action. Stars like Mizell, Thompson and Lumpkin of Georgia Tech, Lom of California, Gowell of Nebraska and King of Texas university, shone with their usual brilliance.

In defeating the California eleven, the Golden Tornado finished the season undefeated and incidentally hung up a record seldom attained by a college team in a heavily contested season such as the one just passed. A record crowd of 70,000 persons saw the champions of the Southern Conference triumph in the twelfth annual Tournament of Roses game. Roy Lumpkin, former Oak Cliff high school star, who is a sophomore at the Southern institution, gained national recognition by his brilliant performance with the Tornado machine during the past season. Big and fast, the former Dallas boy has been one of the most consistent and powerful gainers throughout the hectic season.

Coach Ernie Bearg's Big Six aggregation clearly excelled in practically every department of the game when the Southwest Conference seniors made their final appearance on New Year's day. The team from the corn belt region gave the greatest exhibition of ball carrying seen on a Texas gridiron this season. Sharing honors with Blue Howell, the Nebraska battering ram, was Bog Mehrle, a small but fleet halfback from Missouri university. Mehrle's knife-like thrusts through the line and dazing end runs were the main factors in advancing the ball up to within scoring distance where Howell could plow over for the two markers. "Rammin' Rufus" King, Texas university fullback and captain, upheld the honors of the Southwest team with his consistent passing and line smashes.

Doubtless the team representing the Southwest Conference was far from the best that could have been mustered. A glance backward over the past season is sufficient to stars of the year in this loop prove that the outstanding were not seniors but sophomores and juniors. Gordon Brown of Texas and Choc Sanders, linemen who received considerable all-American mention, are underclassmen who belong on an all-star Southwest Conference team. Other linemen who were outstanding throughout the past season and were not in the intersectional games are: Koch of Baylor, Powell of S. M. U., Adkins of T. C. U. and Paradeaux of Baylor. Sophomore and junior stars who were unable

Batting Feats Of Rajah Overshadow Hectic Character

Many Who Criticize Hornsby Overlook Fact That He Is Greatest Natural Hitter In Senior Circuit

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Rogers Hornsby undoubtedly has the usual number of human frailties. Probably Sam Breadon and John McGraw will insist he has more than the usual number.

Any boy who can lead a major league in stick work for six consecutive years must have the stuff. Anybody who, having turned that trick, can come back after a lapse of two years and add another title to the list, is just emphasizing the fact.

Three of the seven campaigns in which he led the flock in the National league he hit over 400. One of these years—1924—he hit 424. The average star slicker is mighty happy with a batting average of .24 points below that. If you hit 300 points below that, you're in the "charmed circle."

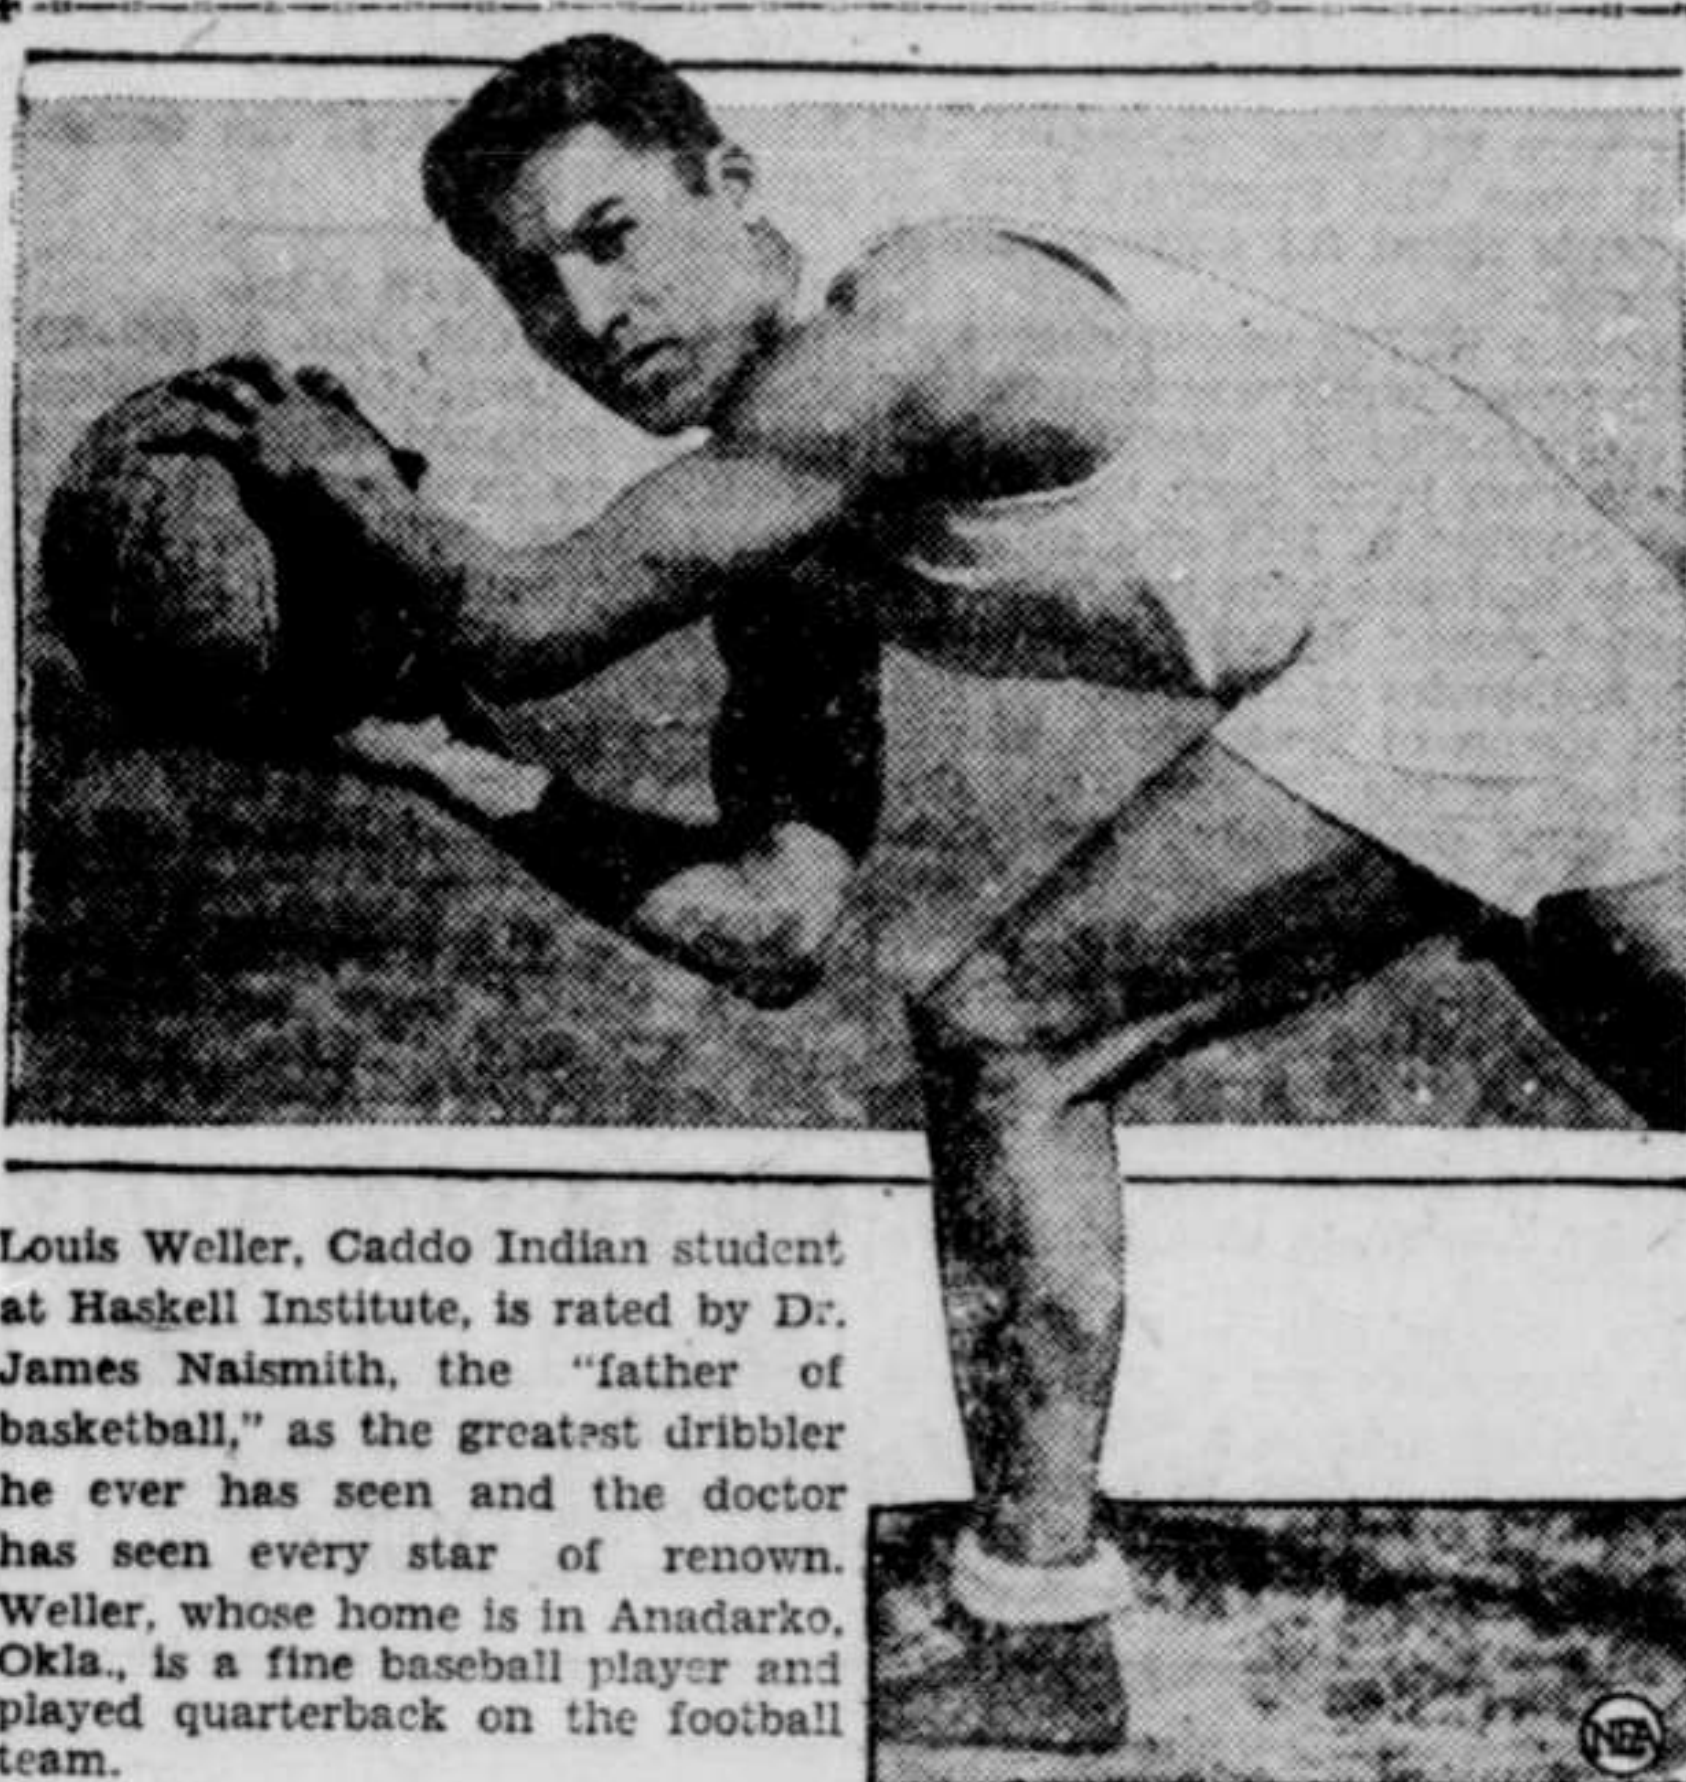

Hornsby's lowest average in those seven winning years was .370, the first time he copped the crown.

to pry against the Big Six eleven are: Shelly of Texas, Gilliland of Baylor, Zarafontas of A. and M. Grubbs and Tolar of T. C. U. and Wilson of Baylor.

A team made up of the sophomores and juniors would likely have made a better showing against the corn belt aggregation than the group of seniors. We don't believe in offering excuses after a battle has been lost it is needless to say that the game was not a fair test of the brand of football played in the Southwest Conference. The Missouri university team of 1927 which was swamped so thoroughly by a certain S. M. U. eleven by the tune of 32 to 6, might be willing to vouch for this fact. Page Gwynn Henry.

Speaking of the Big Six Conference, a new era of football is in store for the Nebraska Cornhuskers with the acquisition of Dana X. Bible as grid mentor. The man who has been at the helm of football at Texas A. and M. for 11 seasons has looked at the University of Nebraska as an excellent field for his open style tactics and gladly seized the opportunity to take over the reins vacated by Coach Ernie Bearg. Nebraska followers likewise wanted his style of coaching. Husker teams of old, and those of the last four years which were trained by Coach Bearg, have relied on a plunging, body-crushing attack. Bearg has signed as director of athletics at Washburn college at Topeka, Kan.

High School Cage Season Opens At Ralls On Friday

Lubbock High Basketeers To Meet Ralls Jackrabbits In Initial Contest Of Season On Ralls Court

Rounding into shape at a fast clip, Lubbock High school's basketball quintet, will meet its first foe of the season Friday night in the Ralls gymnasium when Coach Del Morgan and his squad of cagers invade the stronghold of the neighboring Jackrabbits for a practice tilt.

With almost three weeks of steady training behind them, the local high school loopers now stack up as strong contenders for the district title which they carried off last season. Although Coach Morgan has not as yet selected his first string performers, early training has brought out a number of promising basketeers from the ranks of the raw recruits.

In addition to the three letter men returned, the Westerner mentor has discovered several court performers of first class caliber who will likely make valuable timber for the first string five before many moons. The letter men, H. A. Castleberry, captain and center, Ernest Dowell, guard and Hayden Moody, forward, will find able team-mates in Robert Rich, guard, Joe Bailey Powers, forward and McGehee, guard. Other members of the squad who have displayed basketball ability of unusual merit are: Price, guard; Hardberger, center; Jesse and Peel, forwards.

Early scrimmage practice in which the squad was divided into a half-dozen or more teams revealed several smooth working floor combinations. Stressing the pass and pivot style of attack, Coach Morgan will likely have a team to send against the Ralls aggregation Friday night capable of holding its own against any in this section.

Jack Dempsey To Return To Gloves

New York American Reports Former Champion Definitely Agrees On A Comeback Try In Ring

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The New York American will say tomorrow that Jack Dempsey definitely has agreed to return to the ring in quest of the heavyweight championship he lost to Gene Tunney in 1926. Promoter Tex Rickard is expected to announce the manassa mauler's return next week from Miami.

According to the American Rickard's statement will say: "That Dempsey has agreed to meet the winner of the impending elimination tournament, and that the match will decide the rightful owner of the championship left vacant by the retirement of Gene Tunney."

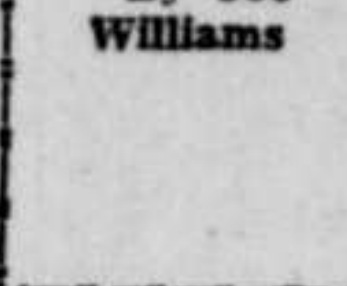

Aggie Basketeers Train For Season

COLLEGE STATION, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Serious preparations for A. and M.'s winter basketball campaign were begun here today when sixteen members of the Aggie squad returned to the campus and reopened practice for Friday and Saturday night games with the Fort Sam Houston Teachers. In two games at Huntsville, before the Christmas vacation, the Farmers defeated the Teachers' quintet.

Coach Chuck Bassett has trimmed his squad to seventeen men and is ready for the opening of the conference season.

The Nut Cracker

By Joe Williams

The only man the Boston Braves seem to need to win a pennant this year is Del Gainer at first base.

Judge Fuchs is reconstructing the old Braves. The judge might try playing first base himself. Another Judge is a pretty good first sacker. (Thunder and lightning off stage, sounds of horses galloping.)

One of the Boston pitchers gave more earned runs than any other heavier in the league. That will give leaping Joe Dugan a chance to live up to his name at the hot corner.

Pop Warner's plan of scoring football on the number of first downs doesn't go far enough. Why not chalk up the millimeters?

A football game would be like an election—in a close contest you couldn't be sure until the next day who won.

Percy Williams, Olympic sprint winner, has been forced to quit college, he says, because so many people persisted in honoring him for his victories that he couldn't keep his mind on his studies. Fame is a noxious thing.

Big Ten Coach Is Seeking Aggie Job

Dallas News Says Official Spends Entire Day Inspecting A. and M. Plant; 30 Applications Received

DALLAS, Jan. 2.—The Dallas News will say tomorrow that a head coach of the Big Ten conference was at College Station, Texas, all day today inspecting the plant with a view to accepting a position as athletic director at Texas A. and M. college to succeed Dana X. Bible, who resigned last week to sign a Nebraska University contract.

Outside of declaring that its information came through strictly reliable sources, the News gave no clue to the identity of the big ten mentor sought by the Aggies. Officials of the school were understood to have offered the job to the coach in question at the national football meeting last week at New Orleans.

At least thirty coaches are known to have applied for the post, but Aggie officials have been silent on the topic.

Tornado Gridders Due Home Jan. 8

Baseball Manager Testifies Before Finance Assembly

So-Called "Bloc" With City Council Threatens Presidency of National League Team

(By Associated Press)
BOSTON, Jan. 2.—The Boston finance commission today heard Emil Fuchs, president and manager of the Boston National League baseball team, testify that William G. Lynch, Boston city councillor, had sought a bribe for favorable action by him to permit Sunday baseball and other sports in Boston. The hearing was on charges made by Charles F. Adams, vice president of the club, and owner of the Boston Bruins team of the National Hockey League.

Fuchs' testimony had to do mainly with a meeting in his hotel suite at which, he said, Lynch told him he represented a "bloc" in the city council which could hold up passage of the bill, recently endorsed by a referendum in the state, allowing Sunday sports.

"Then Lynch said that the members of the bloc had considered that I could afford to pay $5,000 a man to have the bill passed."

"I thought the thing was ridiculous," the baseball man said, "and I didn't believe there was anything to it. I told Lynch he couldn't do anything like this and he replied, 'You don't know what we can do. We'll delay it and when it comes to your permit we'll delay that, too.'"

Razorback Giants Will Meet Ponies

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Trying for their fourth consecutive Southwest conference basketball title, the Arkansas University Razorbacks will leave here tomorrow for Dallas, where Friday night they open their cage campaign against Southern Methodist University, last year's runner-up. The players, all six-footers, will make the initial trip. Coach Schmidt said.

FROGS DOWN SIMMONS

FORT WORTH, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The Texas Christian University baseball team took a game from Simmons University here tonight, 30 to 27. The count was tied until the last few seconds. The two teams play again Thursday.

Nunn became public weigher in precinct three.

Nath Burkett, new sheriff, announced that he had appointed G. A. Boswell and Kelly Hooper as deputy sheriffs. Boswell will have charge of the office and Hooper will be highway law enforcement officer.

Plainview Permits Reach Good Total

(Special To The Avalanche)
PLAINVIEW, Jan. 2.—Plainview's building permits for 1928 totaled $1,495,313 with the month of December showing 23 permits totaling $154,350.

The building permits for 1928 were practically double those for 1927 when the total was $760,739. The permits do not include any work that was done on the new railroad that was completed in the city during the year nor any municipal improvements. The biggest part of the expenditure has been for new business houses. Several large buildings have been built, or are under construction, notably being the Hilton Hotel, the Skaggs office building, Guy Jobb building, T. O. Collier building, the Unger building, Jarvis Tull building, A. G. Hinn building, Hale County Dairy Association creamery, L. S. Kinder warehouse and the Highland Ward school.

Who's Looney Now "Piece of Magic" To Be Demonstrated

He will attempt to illustrate to some scientists how he turns his snow white hair to a rich brown by gazing at the panel of a walnut wardrobe.

Mr. Chaloner, who does not attempt to explain his "piece of magic," has announced that he will give $1,000 to any one who can account for it. Writing to Colonel William Rand, New York attorney, Mr. Chaloner said: "The black walnut of the wardrobe enters my eye, penetrates my skull, enters the roots of my hair and when, thereafter, I boyishly 'duck my head' in the basin, the eye enters my hair and stays there for hours."

Mr. Chaloner was at one time adjudged insane in New York, although held sane in Virginia and North Carolina. He was later declared sane in New York.

"Who's Looney Now" was the telegram he sent to his brother, Bob Chanler, a sheriff in New York, on the occasion of his marriage to Lina Cavallieri. He changed his own name from Chanler to Chaloner.

Dean T. U. Taylor Passes 71st Year

AUSTIN, Jan. 2.—A freshman student of his first class at the University of Texas today as president of the University congratulated Dean T. U. Taylor, head of the university engineering school on his 71st birthday.

President H. Y. Benedict of the University of Texas was one of the freshman students when Dr. Taylor became an instructor here back in the "early eighties."

Born in Parker county, Texas, in 1858, Dean Taylor received his academic and collegiate training in his native state. He was in the first graduating class of Sam Houston Normal in 1880, and received his degree in civil engineering from the University of Virginia in 1883.

In 1883 he came to the university as adjunct professor of applied mathematics. There was no college of engineering then, and when he did convince the authorities of the need for this department, he taught all the engineering courses offered.

From a school with an enrollment of 275 and a faculty of 11 voting members, he has seen the University grow to an enrollment of more than 5,000 and a faculty larger than the first student body.

During his years of work as a member of the University faculty and dean of the college of engineering, Dean Taylor has taught approximately twelve thousand students who are scattered from Patagonia to British Columbia and from the Philippines to the British Isles. He has written several books on engineering subjects, and has served in consulting capacity with various engineering undertakings in Texas, one being the present water supply system of Fort Worth.

Salvation Army Forces Are Split

PARIS (P)—The municipal council has demanded flowers in all Paris schoolrooms and school yards to brighten the existence of children at school.

Tax Payers Lose In Highway Suit

AUSTIN, Jan. 2. (P)—Suit of J. M. Heathman and other Walker county tax payers to prevent county Judge P. H. Singletary and his commissioners from expending process of a bond issue for building highway 19 from Riverside to Huntsville was lost today in the supreme court, which upheld the civil appeals court decision against the plaintiffs.

District court had held for the taxpayers but the case was reversed on appeal and this reversal was sustained today.

The main question in the suit was the routing of the road. The route by Ryan's Ferry, instead of Cline's Prairie, was approved by the state highway commission and the commissioners court accordingly routed the road that way, so state and federal aid would be available for the project.

SCRIPTURE: A righteous man falling down before the wicked is a troubled fountain, and a corrupt spring. It is not good to eat gory meat; so for men to search their own glory is not glory.—Proverbs, XXV, 28, 27.

PROFITABLE INDUSTRY

For a number of years the Avalanche has been urging the people of this section to engage in the dairying business more extensively. Several years ago a number of our farmers did start out in the business, and to meet with disappointment, and failure, and the stock of dairy cows they had invested their money in were sold for beef, and there was a disgust set of fellows that possibly wanted to kick us because we had been instrumental to a certain extent in causing them to invest their money in milk cows, only to lose it. However, after a few years more development in the milk and cream industry, it develops that we are making haste slowly, but we believe surely, in an industry that is going to mean a great deal to this country. We believe in the future of this industry because we know that the big manufacturers would not be willing to put their money in large plants throughout this section if they did not have expert information of the possibilities of the South Plains for the production of dairy products in very large quantities.

The Farm and Ranch, of Dallas has been another publication that has taken a great interest in the development of dairying, and in its recent issues says that special force for advertising is being put by promoters at exorbitant prices, and found in many cases that the cream necessary to successful operation was lacking. That experience set the dairy industry back by years. In the meantime the centralizers built up and became the controlling factor in the market for dairy products. The price for our cream became the criterion of profit for an inferior product threatened the growth and permanency of dairying in the Southwest.

These conditions generated a demand for alternative markets for the farmer's product. Creameries handling only sweet cream and making a high quality product proved that, with the ice cream business, better prices could be paid farmers, and that there is a market for high-class butter at a premium price over centralizer butter. But the creamery business has a hard struggle in getting into the market until its volume has grown to considerable proportions, and can win in the long run only on quality.

Just now the movement is all for milk-condensing plants and these factories. While this is gratifying, we feel that here is a good place to make haste slowly. There may be more immediate money in a whole milk market if present prices are maintained, but the raising of calves, chickens and pigs is seriously handicapped without the skim milk which is left when only cream is sold. It is therefore doubtless if in the long run the former will be as well off, for dairymen must be self-perpetuating if it is to be permanently successful. Those who raise no calves and must buy their cows are under a handicap that reduces their profits, even where whole milk prices are highest—the city market.

The Southwest does not yet produce all the butter and ice cream it consumes. In other words, there is no surplus of dairy products here. Condensers and cheese factories usually go to surplus-producing areas. The large, well-established companies will not install a plant without assurance of sufficient volume to justify operation, but the promoter has no such compunctions. He will establish any kind of a plant anywhere that he can sell machinery or collect a promotion fee.

We do not know that such promoters are now operating in the Southwest, but the present wave has so many of the earmarks of the creamery wave of the first part of the century that we feel that a word of warning to farmers, chambers of commerce, and others is not out of place at this time.

During the last fiscal year money found in undeliverable letters or loose in the United States mail totaled $98,678 and the nominal value of drafts, money orders and checks in undeliverable letters was more than $5,000,000. What a multitude of avoidable misunderstandings!

A prosperous New Year would be a great change to many people—and we imagine that many people would enjoy the change, too.

A Washington Bystander

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Years ago, when he first visited the capitol building, the writer, who professes no knowledge of art, was much impressed by the wall fresco along one corridor of the basement of the senate wing.

The painted panels are crowded with American flora and fauna. Each bird and flower is produced by the painter with exquisite detail that seems to be taken a love of the work. No two panels are the same; no two flowers and no two birds alike, yet there are hundreds of both.

When an observer moves around a corner into another corridor, the panels, planted in solemn tones and with only the decorative frame work about them filled in, strike on the eye with something of a shock. Evidently, it was the purpose of the artist many years ago to emblazon all the walls with his living colors; but life was too short for the task.

Work of Artist Exile.

Like the decorations in the old committee rooms that fill the basement floor of the senate wing, the wall frescos were the work of Constantino Brumidi, an Italian soldier and artist, who spent the last 25 years of his life lovingly lavishing his talent upon his gigantic task. He died in poverty and in 1880 congress appropriated $200 to pay his funeral expenses and also made a belated payment on his contract for the mighty fresco in the capitol dome to aid a destitute daughter in Italy.

Brumidi was a naturalized American as he toiled at the capitol. He came to this country in 1855 to escape vengeance of a minister of state in Rome. As a national guard captain he had refused to order his troops to fire "on the people," the records say, and languished 14 months in prison without charges or trial.

It was this dimly remembered incident of Italian history that brought about the half completed fresco work in the senate wing of the capitol. Brumidi was a marked man already in Rome.

It was to him the Pope entrusted restoration of the Raphael frescos in the loggia of the Vatican.

The yellowing old records of the senate include a statement filed by the artist himself that the ceiling of the old agricultural committee room with their elaborate portraits and allegorical presentations of agricultural themes, form the "first specimen of the real fresco to be introduced into America."

Neptune in Strange Place.

The artist carried for his idea of dedicating each committee room to its established purpose by the nature of its decorations.

It is a little startling now-a-days to look up from the table of the powerful appropriations committee which deals in prosaic matters of dollars and cents and find Neptune and other sea flavored mythological figures filling the arched ceiling panels, surrounded by scantily clad ladies riding sea monsters. This room originally was intended for the naval committee, however, and the adjoining room, now also part of the appropriations mill and decked out with Valley Forge and other army historical scenes of considerable note, was the military committee room.

ELIMINATING WORRY VITAL IN TREATING TUBERCULOSIS

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of an important series of three articles on climate and tuberculosis.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association

And of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

It has been emphasized in a previous article in this series that there is no one best climate for tuberculosis, and that various factors enter into the choice of the place to which the patient with this disease is to be sent, if he is to leave home at all.

Certainly he should not travel into a new community without sufficient funds to take care of him for at least a year, to provide him with food and lodging, and to make sure that he will have competent medical attention.

Mental Attitude.

The satisfaction of the patient's mind is of the utmost importance. A mother will not get well if she is constantly worried about the condition of the children that she has left at home.

A business man will not recover as well in a strange climate as at home if he is constantly worried about his business. It is for this reason that many institutions have grown up near all of the large cities in our country.

The routine of treatment in such instances is of greater advantage than any possible advantage to be derived from climate. The biggest advantage of institution is the fact that the patient can be educated in the proper routine of life leading to recovery.

The second reason for treating a patient in an institution rather than at home is the advantage of a change. As pointed out by Dr. James Alexander Miller in the American Review of Tuberculosis, healthy people, when tired, experience a tremendous improvement in their general physical and mental tone by a complete change of environment.

This is all the more true of those with tuberculosis. People who live in apartments or tenement houses frequently do better merely by transferring to a day camp near the seashore or in the country.

Oxygen and Rest.

The advantages of open-air life and open-air sleeping are now recognized by common experience. These increase the general tone of the body, quiet the nervous system and favor relaxation and sleep.

Dr. Miller made a complete survey of various resorts for the care of the tuberculous in this country, as a result of which he has drawn up certain definite conclusions relative to the importance to climate in this disease. These conclusions are so significant that they will be given in full in a subsequent article.

TOMORROW: General rules to follow in caring for the tuberculous.

The Herr and the Tortoise

SO THINK WE

We think that the flu and the speed demon are running a close race which one will furnish the most business to the undertakers of the nation, but it looks like the speed demon and his co-partners the reckless drivers, will get the biggest percentage check.

We think that every little merger has a meaning of its own, and it is very often much different from the one that is given by the "mergers."

We think the reason that the rising generation feel somewhat superior to the present generation, is because they really are.

We think getting a federal tax return would be to us just like finding money in an old waistcoat that we had long time forgotten.

We think we will find that there are people in the audience that can talk faster and louder than the talking machines. Looks like there is always something to take the joy out of life.

We think the fellow that said that whether life is worth living depends upon the "liver" might be right in more than one way. Think it over!

We are afraid that the dove of peace is not included in the protected game in South America.

We think there is possibly more truth than levity in the statement that it takes an asbestos cork to withstand the acids and other high-powered stuff that is contained in some of the so called whiskey, that the people buy to drink.

We think this flu business may be lighter than common, but there is one thing sure the fellows that have had it will not agree that it is any picnic spell to have it as a bedfellow.

We think for the best interests of the nation there are too many youngsters who put in the greater part of their time unfolding road maps and snapping cigarette lighters.

We think there must be something radically wrong with the jail at Midland, since so many people have been able to escape the prison bars of that city. Probably the jailor has too much confidence in his prisoners.

We think people are peculiar, yet they are nearly all alike. They know that it will be the last minute job to get an automobile license or pay their poll tax, but they will wait till that last minute before they will do either, and then have to wait and wait for service. But we are all alike, and we cannot offer any criticism, except that it is just peculiar that we will do that very thing.

We think it should not concern the scientists so much how much the earth will weigh, but just whether it is going to be able to turn fast enough to keep pace with the people who are living in it or on it.

We think that even kings have their off days. According to the newspaper reports the King of England is getting well one day and getting worse the next, so that we presume an average would be that he is "poorly today, thank you."

We think that $16,000 contributed to the City of Lubbock by people who violated the laws of the city during the year is quite a neat sum of money, and if these people had contributed this to the support of the poor children of the community, what a wonderful help it would be, and how it would have aided in making thousands happy, while as it was, every dollar of it was paid grudgingly and simply meant that somebody had done the wrong thing at the wrong time.

The Way Of The World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

PATIENCE

School children today know more real science than Aristotle, Newton, or Galileo. The accumulated knowledge of the years, carefully handed down by scholars, has taken care of that. But few school children or grown-ups have the thing that made Aristotle, Newton, and Galileo great.

They lack the master qualities of self-control and patience. They lack the self-control which makes them strong enough to keep at their books, and they lack the patience that keeps them going when knowledge doesn't come easily. Above all the great scientific thinkers of the past had patience. They were short on laboratory machinery but they were long on some fine human qualities which seem scarcer today than then.

It is the custom of a certain tribe in India to have two funerals. One is held at the time of death and the second funeral comes a year later. This would be an interesting custom in this country. What will the community say about you the day after you have passed on, and what will the community say after you have been gone a year? Are we doing anything sufficiently important and useful to justify a funeral a year after we are gone? That would be a good time to sum up some people's lives.

INDEPENDENCE

Be careful what you ask for and from whom you ask it. The average politician, for example, expects a house and lot in return for every two-dollar favor. No matter how much we may want something it is not often worth the price of obligation to another. Success is business or the meeting of emergencies may make borrowing too necessary and wise. But borrowing ought always to be on a cold business basis, leaving no obligation other than the normal obligation to pay back. The sense of independence is one of the happiest "sensess" man can have.

Fortunately the human being, of whatever race, just naturally loves freedom. He not only craves a chance to express himself but if he is normal and decent he believes that all people who are not criminal or insane should have a chance to express themselves—should have a chance at freedom. In Italy the dictator Mussolini does not believe in freedom of expression or freedom of the press. An interesting result is apparent. Newspapers, forced to submit to government censorship, have lost circulation. That is a sign that people are still normal and healthy. They will read newspapers that enjoy the freedom of the press. They are less interested when they discover there is no longer any independence.

PRESS COMMENTS

HOOVER GOES TO WASHINGTON

Beaumont Enterprise: Mr. Hoover's decision to go straight on to Washington, instead of stopping in Florida when he returns to the United States from his Latin-American tour, will give the politicians something else to talk about. There is a strong supposition that political considerations caused Mr. Hoover to change his plans.

A great deal can happen politically in a few weeks. While Mr. Hoover was gone it is possible that developments occurred, political and otherwise, that demand his immediate attention. Could they not be attended to in Florida as well as in Washington? Maybe not. Mr. Hoover will soon be in Washington, at any rate, and it will not be surprising if some important announcements are made.

Mr. Hoover will have his hands full with the patronage seekers, and in addition to these hungry persons, legislative questions and the nation's foreign policy will probably engage his attention. Congressional leaders do not believe farm relief can be disposed of by the seventh congress which will make it necessary for Mr. Hoover to call a special session, in accordance with his campaign promise.

It is also rumored that Mr. Hoover will be in Washington, at any rate, and it will not be surprising if some important announcements are made.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

ASHTORETH ASHE, involved in the strange affairs of her millionaire employer, becomes suddenly and seriously ill. MONEY ENGLISH, her ex-sweetheart, leaves Boston to work from the New York office of his firm. HOLIS HART, her wealthy boss, disappears—presumably for Europe.

Before his departure he tells Ashforth of his transient interest in a girl he knows as MAE DE MARR. The name proves to have been assumed. "Mae" is actually SADIE MORTON, an old friend of Ashforth's. She has become a gold-digger and a pensioner on the good-hearted bounty of Mr. Hart.

Ashforth resolves to have nothing to do with her. During her convalescence she receives a large box, which her mother brings to her in bed.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER X

When the doctor had gone, Maize put the box on Ashforth's bed and lifted the cover mysteriously. Inside there were layers and layers of tissue.

"You'd never guess!" she breathed ecstatically. "Look, honey."

From the folds of paper she drew a soft cloud of tender chiffon, the color of a golden sunset, and like the blush on the cheek of a peach Pale amber touched with rose.

"It's the newest shade," she exclaimed, and caressed it with her finger tips. "Dawnsheen," they call it. A negligee, honey! Did you ever see anything so sweet in all your life. And look—there's an orchid tucked in the front there. See the lace on it. Silk lace."

She shook it lovingly and held it softly.

"It's gorgeous!" she said. "But, dearest, you oughtn't to have bought it."

Maize beamed happily.

"I didn't," she declared. "It's from Sadie. Sadie Morton. And look, honey—little mules, too. All faithfully and satin, and little French flowers. And negligee garters. And stockings just like cobwebs, with flowers embroidered down the front."

"Sadie Morton?" whispered Ashforth. "How did she know I was ill, Mother?"

Maize was exhibiting the contents of the big box, one by one. Slipping the garters over her wrist, Posing the little mules on her finger tips.

"She telephoned one day," she explained, "and I told her you were sick. And next day this box came from Hollander's. Last Thursday it was. And I've been so busy since I haven't thanked her or anything. I'll call her up by and by and tell her how much you like them. She sent a note, too. It wasn't sealed and I read it. I knew you wouldn't mind if Mother read your little letter."

Maize pawed through a litter of mail on the dressing table.

"Here it is. It's like Greek to me, but maybe you'll understand. All I got to say is Sadie's a good, generous girl. And I hope she's come honestly by all her fine things. . . . Will I read it to you, Lamb?"

Ashforth assented weakly.

"And put that negligee where I can feast my eyes on it," she ordered. "This is going to be a long convalescence, Mother. I can see that from here. A girl with an outfit like this ought to be a chronic invalid."

Maize smiled joyfully.

"It's wonderful," she declared "to hear you talking like your old self. Oh, my, we had a dreadful time, dear. The doctor said he never saw such a good nurse as me outside a hospital. First he wanted to send you somewhere you could get constant nursing. But I said I guess you can take care of your little girl as any hired hand. And he had to admit I was right, Ashforth."

"What was the matter with me?" asked Ashforth listlessly.

"Well, first off he said it was influenza," explained Maize. "Then he thought it might be bronchial pneumonia. But your lungs all cleared up fine as a whistle. Then he said it boasted, "and the best is none too good for me and my gang." "Me and my gang," ... Ash-toreth winced.

"I stopped," pattered Sadie, "and got some ice cream and stuff. I ought to diet, but what's the use? Gee, Ash—you're skinny."

She lowered her voice, with a glance toward the kitchen, where Maizie dished up the party. "Holly's gone to South America," she whispered triumphantly. "And I'll say he's a good egg! His lawyer came to see me, and we're going to be a couple of those love birds like you read about."

Maizie came with the ice cream and fat little brownies, bursting with walnuts. She put her tray down and bustled kitchenward for napkins.

Sadie leaned across the big chair where Ash-toreth sat. "Listen, Ash," she whispered her red mouth close to Ash-toreth's ear. "Why don't you play Holly yourself, honey?"

Then Maizie was back again. Drawing the bedside table toward the center of the room and passing her little green napkins. "They say a dish of ice cream is fattening as two potatoes," she sighed. "And brownies. My word, they must have 500 calories!" Sadie laughed. "You don't have to diet. You've just right. Mrs. Ashe!" she pronounced. "But Ash—he's skinny as a rail. A little trip to South America now would do her a world of good."

(To Be Continued.)

Maizie has another surprise for Ash-toreth. She reveals it in the next chapter.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 2. — (P) — Price upticks in the wheat market today resulted largely from trading maneuvers based on wintry weather. Wheat future deliveries were bought as a result of possible damage to domestic wheat now in the ground, whereas corn was sold owing to better conditions for movement of the corn crop.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous at the same as Monday's finish to 1-4c higher. Corn finished 3-8 c to 3-4c down, oats varying from a shade decline to 1-8 c advance and provisions unchanged to a rise of 30c.

FT. WORTH LIVESTOCK

FT. WORTH, Jan. 2. — (P) — (U. S. D. A.) With moderate receipts of cattle on sale at Fort Worth today the market as a whole remained steady. Slaughter steers sold at $7.75 to $11.35 and one load of good fat yearlings topped at $12.25. Other sales of light slaughter yearlings reported at $11.50 and less. Good fat cows in carlots brought from $7.75 to $8.75; low cutters $4.00 to $4.75. A few good heavy bulls sold up to $8.00 and choice heavy stock steer calves moved at $12.00.

Short supplies of slaughter calves cleared readily at advances of a quarter to a half dollar. Good to choice heavies up to $11.25 and above, several loads of good heavies at $10.50 and $10.75. Cull sorts around $3.25 to $6.00. Hogs sold at prices that were steady to weak. Butchers in car lots made a top of $9.05 and best truck hogs brought $8.65. Sales of good to choice 150-260 pound hogs in the pens held steady, mostly at $7.50 to $8.50. Packing hogs at $8.00; butcher pigs $6.50 to $7.50, ruled weak.

Today's business in sheep and lambs limited to the sale of a few decks of shorn fat wethers at $8.50 a price that appeared steady to strong.

KANSAS CITY LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 2. — (P) — (U. S. D. A.) — Fat lamb trade around the 11-market circuit was fairly active at strong to 25c higher prices while aged stock ruled firm; the extreme top on fat lambs of .1635 was paid at Chicago; total offerings were around 38,700; a decrease of 4,000 from a week ago and 9,000 less than the same day last year.

In the hog market shippers' purchases sparingly at steady to 15c lower levels; but packers were bearish at several points enforced a 15c to 25c decline. Chicago and St. Louis had a top of $9.25; aggregate receipts were estimated at 118,700 against 101,433 last Wednesday and 130,621 a year ago.

The cattle supply approximated 32,000, a shortage of 3,000 from a week ago and 1,000 under a year ago. Packers centered their attention on light steers and yearlings and the better kinds at some centers were slightly higher; weighty steers continued to find a sluggish outlet with additional losses on the in between grades of 1,600 to 1,300 pound averages. Low prices beef steers have worked higher this week and as a result the bulk of the short fed steers coming are of quality to sell within a price differential of $1.50 and $2.00; prime 1,000 pound steers in Chicago scored $16.60 as best yearling brought $16.25; stocker and feeder classes were very scarce with firm to higher values prevailing.

posed 2-for-1 stock split-ups, and indications were that the new issues would be put on dividend basis more favorable than the present. American Smelting put its new stock on a $4 annual basis, equal to $12 on the old stock, which had been paying $8. It was announced that the Rock Island Railway is planning to spend $25,000,000 on improvements.

The steel trade reviews were unusually cheerful, reporting that operations were holding at 85 per cent of capacity, with indications of considerable speeding up during the month. The official price of domestic copper was advanced to 16 3-4 cents per pound, and it was reported that none was available under 17 cents.

Epidemic Feared Plane Leaves With Anti-Toxin Units

EDMONTON, Alt. Jan. 2. — (P) — Flying on an errand of mercy to the far north, an airplane piloted by Captain "Wop" May, was to leave here today with 500,000 units of diphtheria antitoxin for two Hudson Bay company trading posts at Ft. Vermilion and Little Red River. A message was received last night that A. Logan, factor in charge of the post at Ft. Vermilion, was dead of diphtheria and fears were felt that others of the 200 persons living at the two outposts of civilization would be stricken.

The anti-toxin was requested by Dr. H. A. Hamman, who is stationed at Ft. Vermilion, 600 miles north of Edmonton. The message was dated December 18 and had to be brought by dog team from Little Red River to Peace River, 167 miles. From Peace River the request for aid was wired to Dr. M. R. Bow, Deputy Minister of Health at Edmonton.

Court Throws Law Open for Changing

One-Year Conviction Of Scurry Man Is Reversed And Remanded; Must Show Place Sells Liquor

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Jan. 2. — A new quirk in the effect of laws relating to liquor and searches was brought to light today by the court of criminal appeals and indirectly called to the attention of the incoming legislature. Reversing and remanding the one-year conviction of C. W. Green of Scurry county for possessing liquor for sale, the court held that the affidavit for a search warrant in the case should have shown that Green's residence was a place where intoxicating liquor was sold or manufactured, instead of alleging merely that Green possessed intoxicating liquor for the purpose of sale and possessed equipment for manufacture.

Quoting the law, the court said "The place searched was Green's private dwelling, occupied as such and no part of it was shown to have been used as a store, shop, hotel or boarding house, or for some purpose other than a private residence."

The law provides, the opinion continued, that when the place to be searched is a private residence, the affidavit in such case must show the residence to be a place where intoxicating liquor is sold or manufactured.

We haven't noticed in the news items yet any recommendation to the doctors that a bag of asafetida be tied to King George's bedpost.

Radio Corporation Refused Court Decision Review

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2. — (P) — The Radio corporation received another setback in the supreme court today when it unsuccessfully attempted to obtain a review of a recent lower court decision in Delaware restraining its license practices.

A temporary injunction was granted by the federal district court of Delaware restraining the corporation from enforcing that section of its license contract with competitors which required them to use radio corporation tubes in completing their sets.

Avalanche Reporter Gathers Points Which Bear Upon Highways Campaign

"On South side and adjacent to Crosbyton branch P. & S. F. R. R. Co. to intersect Highway No. 9, north of Lubbock."

It is from this one petition that the election order was made, reference to the routing of highway number 53 being made in the election order, as follows:

"Texas State Highway No. 53, via Idalou on S. side and adjacent to Crosbyton branch P. & S. F. R. R. Co. to intersect highway No. 9, north of Lubbock, Lubbock to Wolfarth, $275,000.00."

Which brings up the proposition of whether or not the election has been ordered in accordance with the petitions, as signed. Is it possible for any one, or any number of the men who signed these nine petitions, to take legal action, even now, and halt this election? Some have brought this point out by questioning the commissioners' right to write in the designation of Highway Number 53.

Rivalry Based On Routes
Which also brings up the fact that there is still rivalry among routes. There are those who want the highway to come into Lubbock over Broadway. There are those who want it to come into Lubbock over Avenue H. Therein lies the friction.

The point has been made that many men would never have signed the petition, asking for this election, if Number 53 had been designated on the petitions as it is on the election order.

Now—About enough money in the election call to pay for building concrete roads: Basis for this contention has been on the fact that there is a difference of $130,000 between the amount named in this election for the highways and the amount named for the same roads in the December election. This election calls for $275,000 to be used on the roads named, while the other one was for $145,000. This question, however, is one that only expert road builders can solve.

Designation Is Made
Be that as it may, the state designation on Highway 53 between Lubbock and Idalou is via Avenue H to a point north of the city where it leaves Highway 9 and turns northeastward to Idalou. Some rumor current during the campaign has been to the effect that the designation would be changed to bring the Idalou-Lubbock highway Judge Walter Ely, of Abilene, member of the state highway commission and a recent visitor here, said upon his visit to Lubbock that no change in the designation was expected. The fact that Number 53 is designated by way of Avenue H makes the paving by that route essential in that case and federal aid on that particular part of the project is to be forthcoming.

With the election order specifically calling for Avenue H route of Highway 53 as the route of the paved road between Idalou and Lubbock, construction of a Lubbock-Idalou paved highway by any other route would be impossible under the present election order.

Many Are Satisfied
A number of citizens, who have considered the Avenue H designation of the Lubbock-Idalou highway as final, are not particularly concerned with the clause inserted in the election order made by the Commissioners court, regarding this one route.

As to the further rumor that the court's order for this election, with stipulation as to routing of Highway Number 53 and as to the exact amounts to be expended on each road, that something else again. According to information from the Texas Attorney General's department, "the commissioners' court is authorized to designate in the order of election, notice of election, etc., the roads upon which the proceeds of the bonds proposed to be issued are to be expended, and the amount to be expended on the various roads. See Black vs. Strength, 246 S. W. 2d, page 79; Higgins vs. Vander, 233 S. W. 2d, page 877."

Anyhow, there's opposition to this road bond issue.

Friday Meeting Planned
When asked Wednesday as to plans for the campaign, C. E. McEugen, chairman of the Taxpayers' organization sponsoring the campaign, stated there would likely be a meeting Friday night, but that so far only the plans of having about 200 men buttonhole the voters between now and election day had been thought of.

Anyone who was a qualified paying voter, during 1928, may vote in this election. It will require a two-thirds vote for the proposal to carry.

feared of the law's defenders in his sensational crusade on a national scale, has woven together a mass of circumstantial matter which is expected to build Austin's most sensational death mystery solution in case the investigation brings results which were foreseen Wednesday night.

Lumsden Returns
Mr. Norfleet has been here two days, young Lumsden's father, L. Lumsden, wealthy banker and stockman of Wilson, came here last week, accompanied by a West Texas officer. He returned this week, leaving his case before Sheriff Coley White and the new staff of the incoming sheriff. Mr. McClain continued to assist in the inquiry which he started. Norfleet declined Wednesday to reveal any details of his discovery so far. Mr. Lumsden was in seclusion here.

The youth, who retired from the University a few weeks ago was the fourth student of this year's classes to die, all by violence or fatal accident. The youth's body was found in a car. In his lap lay a gun from which had been fired two bullets, one bullet wound was in the boy's head. This fact, and the discovery of the blood-stained car led officers into an investigation, which is expected to culminate Thursday.

He told a number of bidders, who gathered in his office, that when the other bids are opened finally they will be filed and that rights of all bidders will be protected and their priority preserved in event the injunction is finally dissolved and he is able to go on with the sale. He explained that those whose bids were opened today might seek a mandamus in the supreme court to compel him to issue the leases.

Ruling Is Made On Insurance Policies

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2. (AP)—In a case regarded as of great importance in the insurance world, the supreme court ruled today that money obtained from life insurance policies becomes a part of the estate subject to federal taxes when the deceased had retained the right to change the beneficiary at any time.

The case was started by the Chase National Bank of New York and involved taxes paid the government on approximately $200,000 in insurance carried by Herbert W. Brown, who died in 1924.

Brown left an estate of $524,000, including the insurance. After paying certain deductions, including $40,000 of the policies, the government levied taxes on the remainder. The taxes were paid under protest and suit was brought to recover money which had been paid on the insurance.

Two of the divorce suits were filed in the Seventy-Second district court, while the other two and the suit on note and garnishment were filed in the Ninety-Ninth.

In one of the divorce suits, the wife alleges that her husband, whom she is suing, "whipped her with a wet rope, choked her and pulled her hair," and otherwise and at several times cursed and abused her, and then abandoned her.
