Last day for early voting; poll closes at 7 p.m.

Today is the final day to cast a ballot in the early voting period for next week's election.

Voting appears comparable to 1992, when some 2,465 citizens cast early votes. As of mid-morning today, the county clerk's office reported that 2,266 ballots had been cast, with about 50 mail ballots still out. Voting continues through 7 o'clock tonight on the third floor of the county courthouse.

Those who don't take advantage of the early voting period can vote on election day, Tuesday. Polls will be open at various locations from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m.

There are five locally contested races on the ballot — county sheriff, district attorney, county attorney, county clerk and Precinct 3 commissioner — as well as others that have sparked interest.

The bid to replace County Sheriff Keith Collier, has sheriff's deputies going against each other in a low-key race. Kerry Fritz won the Republican nomination while his partner on the force, Darren Jackson, is the Democratic nominee.

A race that has been more confrontational is that of district attorney, where incumbent Republican Dana W. Cooley is getting a challenge from County Attorney Lealand W. "Pete" Greene. Greene, the Democratic nominee, is a former Scurry County DA.

Win or lose, Greene will give up the county attorney post. Seeking to replace him are two private attorneys, Republican Michael W. Hartman and Democrat Marvin Sentell.

Two other candidates looking to fill a vacated seat are Denise Beck, a Democrat, and Joan Bunch, Republican. They are seeking to fill the county clerk's post, left vacant by Frances Billingsley's recent retirement.

In the other contested race, Precinct 3 Commissioner C.D. Gray Jr., a Democrat, is being challenged by local businessman Howard Limmer, the Republican nominee.

Scurry County voters also have a say in numerous other races — including, of course, that of president of the United States. Two other races that have a local interest are two representative seats. In the District 70 State Representative's race, David Counts (D-Knox City) is being challenged by Scott McLaughlin (R-Big Spring). For U.S. Representative of District 17, Democratic incumbent Charles W. Stenholm is challenged by Republican Rudy Izzard of San Angelo.

Company G reunion begins

Veterans and families gather here today, Saturday

Matney's Raiders are back.

This weekend marks the 23rd annual reunion of Company G, known as one of the fiercest fighting units in World War II.

Veterans, their spouses and friends began arriving in town Thursday and will spend the next two days visiting and paying their respects to comrades who have died. Headquarters for the reunion is Willow Park Inn.

Activities — all to be held at Martha Ann Woman's Club — include a barbecue supper this evening, registration and a memorial service Saturday morning and a banquet Saturday night.

Citizens interested in the history of Company G are invited to visit with the group at the motel.

Company G, of the 142nd Infantry, 36th Division, was comprised of guardsmen from Scurry County.

The company's history actually dates back to World War I where it saw action in France, but was it was deactivated after the armistice.

It was reorganized in Snyder on April 18, 1924 by Capt. John E. Sentell.

As part of the Texas National Guard, G Company carried 65 men and three officers. But as Hitler overran Europe and the United States moved closer to war, Company G enlarged to about 250 men. On Nov. 25, 1940, it was mobilized under the command of Captain Tim O'Cook. Some 106 men from Scurry County were included in the Company.

G Company's first stop was at Camp Bowie in Brownwood, where the men trained for more than a year. They were then sent to Camp Blanding in Florida to participate in jungle training.

They also trained in the Carolinas, Camp Edwards at Cape Cod, Ma. and the A.P. Military Reservation in Virginia.

Company G's first assignment was hard duty in North Africa and they were part of the first wave in the Salerno Invasion of Italy.

Men from Company G participated in the bitter assault on the Maggiore Pass, fought in the Battle of Cassino, the breakout of the Anzio beachhead and in the liberation of Rome.

Many of the men were killed and most were wounded before the company was relieved about 140 miles north of Rome. It was refitted and took part as a unit of the Seventh Army in the invasion of Southwestern France. When the European war ended, Company G was on the front line in Austria.

Very few men in Company G returned without the Purple Heart. During the war, the 36th Division was credited with 15 Congressional Medals of Honor, 2,354 Silver Stars, 80 Distinguished Service Crosses, 5,407 Bronze Stars, 88 Air Medals, and 12 Unit Citations.

During the same time, the division captured 175,806 of the enemy.

The division boasted 366 days of combat operation and 132 days of consecutive combat.

Beat Plainview!

Keeping tabs on our neighbors: The Seminole Sentinel reported on some Friday night madness.

The Seminole Indians put one in the record books in its game against Lubbock Roosevelt. It all started as time was running out in the first half.

The Indians' quarterback completed a pass to the one-yard line. The Indians called timeout, but the scoreboard clock showed time had expired.

Coach Army Salinas argued that one second remained when the time out was called. Game officials concurred and put one tick back on the clock.

Seeing that time had expired, the Roosevelt team began leaving the field, but they were called back for one more play. Toby Shain easily scored another TD on the final play before intermission.

But after the touchdown, the Eagles went to the dressing room. Seminole lined up on the three-yard line for the points-after, but there was no opponent across the line of scrimmage.

The offensive team was called for illegal movement and penalized five yards, back to the eight. The Roosevelt team was still off the field and in the locker room.

The Tribe quarterback took the snap from center and the whole team trotted into the endzone for the two-point conversion.

Lord's Acre Festival set Saturday

A domino tournament will be held from 1-5 p.m.

Entertainment will be provided throughout the day by various groups, including the junior high girl's choir and the FUMC chancel choir.

Serving for the barbecue dinner will begin at 5:30 p.m. Tickets are $5 for adults, $3 for children age six through 12, and free for children under six.

A live auction is scheduled to begin at 6:30. Items to be auctioned include a stained-glass window reconstructed from the old church building, a patio table and benches made from oak.

Also, solid brass wind chimes made from old organ pipes, a handmade oak "ice box" chest, mesquite wood floor lamp and coat tree, a tall country cabinet featured in "Southern Living" magazine, a handmade baby cradle, a mantel clock with Westminster chimes, gliding deck chairs and other specially donated items.

Also to be auctioned are a couple of prints by Wyatt, along with some jewelry items.

Featured this year will be a new sculpture of a white buffalo made with poured stone.

Admission to the festival is free and prizes will be given away throughout the day.

All proceeds will benefit the church's youth ministry.

Saudi bombing suspect held

WASHINGTON (AP) - A man believed to have driven the explosives-laden truck that destroyed part of a housing complex in Dhahran last June, killing 19 Americans, is being held by Saudi officials, The Washington Post reported today.

The man is among 40 Saudis citizens now detained because Saudi officials believe they were involved in the truck bombing, according to the newspaper, quoting sources they did not name.

The newspaper quoted sources as saying that the investigation inside Saudi Arabia had been completed, but that there was evidence as well that implicates both Iran and Syria.

In the Saudi capital of Riyadh, Saudi security sources said today the investigation into the June 25 bombing is still under way and authorities are questioning dozens of detainees.

Many of the suspects had connections to Iran, said the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity. They did not elaborate.

Earlier this week, FBI officials decided to pull out the last of the agents sent to Saudi Arabia to help with the bombing investigation, a U.S. law enforcement official who requested anonymity, disclosed today.

The decision to withdraw was made by FBI Director Louis Freeh, who had become frustrated in his efforts to persuade Saudi officials to let the agents participate fully in the investigation, the official said.

Despite two trips by Freeh to the kingdom to appeal to top Saudi officials, FBI agents in Riyadh were never allowed to interrogate any suspects in the case and did not have full access to the Saudis information, this official said.

Immediately after the bombing more than 70 FBI agents were sent to help, the largest contingent ever sent abroad on one investigation.

Seniors want action not words on Medicare

OCALA, Fla. (AP) — Retirees watched warily as Medicare became an issue in this year's presidential election. Now they are anxious, angry and often cynical about politicians' willingness to deal with a growing national problem.

Republicans proposed reining in the spiraling costs of Medicare, then Democrats effectively blocked the move and spent millions on ads portraying the GOP as insensitive to the elderly.

The ensuing battle left a bitter taste.

"It's a hot potato, they don't want to touch it," said retiree Frances Taffel, who moved to Delray Beach from Fairfield, Conn. "Meanwhile, our lives are hanging by a political thread."

From south Florida's condos to the rural retirement communities of central Florida to the GOP havens of southwest Florida, many retirees say they have been used and deceived.

"If the politicians would just be real honest," said Lavern Westerlund, a retired secretary from Baltimore who now lives in Tampa's John Knox Village retirement community. "One side says they're cutting back, the other says they're not touching it. Now I see that President Clinton wants a bipartisan commission to look at it."

On Thursday, Republican challenger Bob Dole also proposed a bipartisan commission.

Democrats were successful in fighting GOP attempts to trim Medicare's projected spending by $270 billion over the next seven years. Republicans eventually lowered their proposed reductions to $158 billion over six years. The president's own proposal sought $124 billion in savings.

The hospital care trust fund is expected to run out of money around the turn of the century. The non-partisan Concord Coalition, set up by former GOP Sen. Warren Rudman and former Democratic Sen. Paul Tsongas, scolded the president for failing to bring a long-term solution of one of the nation's thorniest budget problems into this year's campaign debate.

While some retirees are angry at the Republicans, many others are angry at Clinton for targeting them with Medicare ads. Others are furious about the rocketing cost of medical care — expenses that threaten their independence to retire where they want.

The volatility of the issue gave the then-struggling president political traction last winter and has helped put normally Republican retirement havens like Arizona and Florida in play for the Democrats this year.

Clinton led Dole 55 percent to 30 percent with 6 percent favoring Ross Perot among voters 65 and older in an Oct. 14-20 survey taken by the Pew Research Center.

A similar survey of that age group four years ago showed Clinton with 44 percent to 36 percent for then-President Bush and 5 percent for Perot. The margin of error was plus or minus 7 percentage points in both years.

A Florida political scientist who studies politics and the elderly says the Democrats' campaign strategy may backfire.

"It's a classic example of short-term gain but long-term pain," said Susan MacManus of the University of South Florida. "The honeymoon for Clinton in a second term will be less than the blink of an eye. This is a time bomb, both political-wise and cost-wise."

She said the Democrats have not been honest about the financial problems facing Medicare. The power of senior voters and residual hard feelings between the parties over Medicare may make it hard to solve the problem after the election, she said.

"A lot of people think this election cycle has been squandered," she said.

Christine Day, a specialist in elderly politics at the University of New Orleans, also said it may be tough to solve the problem after the election.

"It depends on how contentious things are between Congress and the president," Day said. "For the last two years, they haven't done much."

The powerful American Association of Retired Persons objected to the original Republican plan as "too much, too fast."

But AARP officials concede adjustments must be made.

"We haven't pounded on the table and said, 'Don't touch Medicare,'" said Kirsten Sloan, a Capitol Hill lobbyist for the organization. "Something has to be done. They're going to have to roll up their sleeves and work in a bipartisan fashion, with a lot of public input and a lot of public debate."

Every move will be watched closely by seniors, who account for more than 24 million registered voters over 65. Of that number, 21 million voted in 1992, according to the AARP.

"If it's broke, let's fix it," said Sylvia Wolfe Herman, a retiree from Delray Beach.

Medicare and Social Security are intensely personal issues for older voters.

Researchers claim life existed on Mars

LONDON (AP) — British scientists say that they have found the strongest evidence yet that there was once life on Mars — a second meteorite carrying organic material.

The Britons say they found organic matter in two meteorites — one retested after NASA first reported finding traces of life in it, and another, newly tested meteorite, billions of years younger than the first.

"This is a smoking gun for life on Mars," said chemist Ian Wright, one of the trio of scientists in the new study. "I believe we will be in a position soon to study Martian metabolism."

"I believe I can say life existed — and may still — exist on Mars," Wright said.

In August, scientists at NASA said they had found microscopic and chemical evidence of life on Mars in meteorite ALH 84001, which dates back about 3.6 billion years.

Wright and Colin Pillinger of Britain's The Open University and Monica Grady of London's Natural History Museum studied pieces of that meteorite, and of another, EETA 79001, which was formed 180 million years ago and blown into space about 600,000 years ago.

The meteorites were found in Antarctica in 1979 and 1984. The British scientists' findings on the rocks have not yet been reviewed by their peers.

News of their research was certainly exciting, said Doug Blanchard, head of a research group at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in Houston.

The fact that the meteorite examined by the London group is much younger than the one NASA scientists looked at suggests that life could have continued on Mars for much longer than previously thought — and perhaps could still be there, Blanchard agreed.

"It would be incredibly egotistical to believe we are the only planet with life on it," astronomer Colin Pillinger said at a news conference Thursday announcing his group's findings. "To think we are the only place uniquely selected for life would be incredible."

Pillinger said he first presented chemical evidence from meteorite 79001 in 1989 in the magazine Nature to suggest that life existed on Mars.

Those results were criticized by other scientists, who said the organic matter discovered in the meteorite could have been picked up on the meteorite's trip to Earth.

Federal judge's ruling backs Medicare patients in HMOs

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Medicare patients enrolled in health maintenance organizations have the right to prompt hearings if they are denied medical services, a federal judge ruled in an order expected to have nationwide impact.

The federal Health Care Financing Administration, which oversees Medicare, has legal responsibility for overseeing HMOs under contract to provide care to Medicare patients, Judge Alfredo Marquez ruled.

The federal government had contended that HMOs were privately owned and that it could not be held accountable for their actions.

"Existing reconsideration procedures followed by HMOs fail to secure minimum due process for Medicare beneficiaries," Marquez wrote. "Notice and informal hearing requirements set forth by statute and regulations are all but ignored."

There are 38 million Medicare patients nationally, with some 4 million enrolled in HMOs, according to the Social Security Administration.

"It's a nationwide class action, so it will apply to all Medicare enrollees in HMO plans," Sally Hart Wilson, an attorney who filed the original lawsuit, said Thursday.

A decision hasn't been made on whether to appeal, said Michael Huangs, a Justice Department attorney in Washington who worked on the case.

Marquez's ruling, issued Oct. 17, resulted from the 1993 lawsuit by the Center for Medicare Advocacy on behalf of five Tucson women enrolled in a local HMO plan.

The lawsuit accused Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala and the Health Care Financing Administration of failing to oversee Medicare HMOs properly.

It did not seek monetary damages but asked the court to order Shalala to put into place and enforce effective notice, hearing and appeals procedures when HMO service is denied.

Each of the plaintiffs contended that they suffered serious consequences from a system that did not allow for a timely opportunity to appeal denial of services.

One woman who suffered from diabetes complained of pain in her foot but received no response from her doctor with the health maintenance organization. She subsequently lost her leg at the knee to amputation.

Then, after her discharge from the hospital, the HMO refused her home health care, even though she needed intravenous medication at home.

Jury says death for 3 in gang

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A jury recommended on Halloween that three gang members die for gunning down a trio of trick-or-treaters three years ago.

The ambush left the teens bleeding to death next to their bags of candy on a sidewalk in Pasadena. Prosecutors said the gang members, seeking to avenge a cohort's death, mistook them for members of a rival gang.

As the jury's recommendation was read Thursday, two of the defendants grinned at each other. The shackled defendants had been so disruptive and profane during their trial that deputies placed them in special belts capable of delivering stunning jolts of electricity.

The murders stunned Pasadena, a city famous for its internationally televised Rose Parade, and illuminated a longstanding gang problem that received scant public attention.

The trick-or-treaters were shot as they walked from a birthday party. They had turned down a ride, so they could get more candy on their way home.

Deborah Bush, mother of 14-year-old victim Stephen Coats Jr., sobbed in the hush courtroom and later called the jury's decision a victory. Also killed were Reggie Crawford, 14, and Edgar Evans, 13.

"None of us slept well knowing ... there were people out there who could just gun people down and show no remorse," she said.

Herbert McClain, 26, Karl Holmes, 20, and Lorenzo Newborn, 25, were convicted in 1995 of three counts of first-degree murder. The judge can accept the jury's recommendation or give life sentences.

A lightning bolt generated temperatures five times hotter than the surface of the sun.

Still something to learn

By Phillip Alder

A reasonable approach to life is: A day without learning something new is a day wasted.

At the bridge table, although experts don't learn something new every time they play, occasionally positions crop up that they haven't met before.

There were lots of good plays at the European Junior Championship, but as one would expect, there were also some inexperienced efforts. In this deal, senior players would really kick themselves if they made the same error that two Easts produced in Cardiff.

How should the play go in three no-trump after West leads his fourth-highest spade?

Both declarers, desperate for tricks, called for dummy's spade queen. Now came a low heart to the king.

At the first table, South switched to diamonds, driving out West's ace. A moment later South played a heart to dummy's 10 and finished with 11 tricks: two spades, four hearts, three diamonds and two clubs.

At the other table, South sneaked the diamond 10 past West at trick three. Then he played a heart to dummy's 10 for nine tricks: two spades, four hearts, one diamond and two clubs.

Fair enough, except that East should rush in with the heart ace at trick two. From the Rule of Eleven, East knows that South has only one spade higher than the eight. Also, as East holds the heart nine, declarer cannot have a two-way guess for the heart jack. Then East returns his remaining spade, establishing West's suit while West still has the diamond ace as an entry. This kills the contract.

Watch for the entry-preserving second-hand-high play.

Husband turns out to be a wanted felon

LINDALE (AP) — For the past four years Minerva Vasquez believed she was the common-law wife of Robert Jessi Gonzales, an upstanding citizen and father of her 2-year-old daughter.

But an abrupt visit from police and prison officials Wednesday turned her world upside down. Ms. Vasquez learned Gonzales is really Jesus Suniga Loza, a felon who has been hunted by a prison task force since 1992 for a parole violation.

Loza, 47, received a life sentence on Feb. 19, 1980, for a 1977 burglary in Dallas County, said Larry Todd, spokesman for the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

On Dec. 11, 1991, Loza was paroled from prison and less than a year later, he was nowhere to be found, Todd said. A parole violation warrant was issued for Loza's arrest on Sept. 14, 1992, beginning a four-year search for the fugitive.

Authorities say Loza has a criminal history dating back to the 1960s.

"I didn't know," Ms. Vasquez told the Tyler Morning Telegraph Thursday.

"He said he was from West Texas. As far as I knew, he had traffic tickets — that's it."

Loza was also sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary for the 1979 rape of a child in Dallas, and a two-year term for possession of marijuana in Abilene, the county seat of Taylor County.

The search for Loza ended Wednesday when an alert Smith County probation officer, with the help of an Automated Fingerprint Identification System, discovered Gonzales' true identity and notified the parole office in Abilene.

Sheriff's Department Criminalist Jason Waller said Gonzales had been arrested in June by Lindale police on a misdemeanor assault charge. In August, after signing an affidavit swearing he had never been convicted of a felony offense, Gonzales pleaded guilty to the assault and received a probated sentence.

Courtroom Gaffes Provide Chance to Laugh at Lawyers

DEAR READERS: And you thought there was nothing funny about the law. David Broome of Phoenix sent me something that may change your mind. These are questions (taken from official U.S. court records) lawyers have put to people on the stand:

Question: Was that the same nose you broke as a child?

***

Q: Now, doctor, isn't it true that when a person dies in his sleep, in most cases he just passes quietly away and doesn't know anything about it until the next morning?

***

Q: What happened then?

A: He told me, he says, "I have to kill you because you can identify me."

Q: Did he kill you?

***

Q: Was it you or your brother that was killed in the war?

***

Q: The youngest son, the 20-year-old, how old is he?

***

Q: Were you alone or by yourself?

***

Q: How long have you been a French Canadian?

***

Q: Do you have any children or anything of that kind?

***

Q: I show you Exhibit 3 and ask you if you recognize that picture.

A: That's me.

Q: Were you present when that picture was taken?

***

Q: Were you present in court this morning when you were sworn in?

***

Q: Now, Mrs. Johnson, how was your first marriage terminated?

A: By death.

Q: And by whose death was it terminated?

Q: Do you know how far pre - nant you are now?

A: I'll be three months on Nov. t

Q: Apparently then, the date · f conception was Aug. 8?

A: Yes.

Q: What were you doing at tha t time?

***

Q: Mrs. Jones, do you believe yo u are emotionally stable?

A: I used to be.

Q: How many times have you committed suicide?

***

Q: So you were gone until you returned?

***

Q: She had three children, right?

A: Yes.

Q: How many were boys?

A: None.

Q: Were there girls?

***

Q: You don't know what it was, and you didn't know what it looked like, but can you describe it?

***

Q: You say that the stairs went down to the basement?

A: Yes.

Q: And these stairs, did they go up also?

***

Q: Have you lived in this town all your life?

A: Not yet.

Q: Do you recall approximately the time that you examined the body of Mr. Edington at the Rose Chapel?

A: It was in the evening. The autopsy started about 8:30 p.m.

Q: And Mr. Edington was dead at the time, is that correct?

Cancer-stricken cardinal hands over some of his work

CHICAGO (AP) — Cardinal Joseph Bernardin, suffering fatigue from terminal pancreatic cancer, is handing over his day-to-day responsibilities to another bishop, the Chicago archdiocese announced Thursday.

Bernardin, 68, the nation's senior active Roman Catholic cardinal and leader of Chicago's 2.3 million Catholics, has been battling pancreatic cancer for 16 months. The disease has spread to his liver and Bernardin said recently that his doctors have indicated he cannot expect to live more than six or seven months.

Bernardin also will drastically cut back on his public appearances beginning immediately, said archdiocese spokesman Robert Quakenbush.

"He's still the cardinal. He's still the archbishop. He will still make the major decisions," Quakenbush said.

Bishop Raymond Goedert, who has been one of the archdiocese's seven auxiliary bishops since 1991 and currently serves as head of the group as the vicar general, will work to fulfill Bernardin's responsibilities, Quakenbush said.

Goedert also took over Bernardin's day-to-day responsibilities in June 1995 when Bernardin underwent surgery for the pancreatic cancer, Quakenbush said.

Lady Tigers ready for bi-district game

The second season for the Snyder High School Lady Tigers begins Saturday as the volleyballers enter bi-district play against Canyon.

The first-round contest will take place at 6 p.m. in the Box at Lubbock Monterey.

Snyder enters the playoffs as the second place team from District 2-4A while Canyon is the third seed from 1-4A. The Lady Eagles finished the season 16-9, 8-4 in league play. Snyder was 23-7, 7-3.

The Snyder-Canyon winner will play El Paso Bowie, the winner of 3-A the first part of next week.

Levelland, which lost a seeding playoff to Snyder Tuesday, will face Dumas at 5:30 p.m. Saturday at the Hutcherson Center in Plainview. The Dumas-Levelland winner will take on San Angelo Lake View.

The District 2-4A champs, Lamesa, will play the winner of Pecos and El Paso Burgess. The Lady Tors received a first-round bye as did all first place teams.

Snyder JV field goal better than Plainview

Andy Parker kicked a 24-yard field goal to make the difference Thursday as the Snyder Tiger JV got past Plainview, 10-7.

Justin McNair had Snyder's only touchdown in the third quarter on a one-yard run. Parker converted the extra point.

According to coach Tommy Doyle, Plainview scored first in the opening quarter, but Snyder came back and scored in the third. "The kids just do what it takes to win," Doyle said.

The JV's record is now 8-1 with one game left to play next Thursday in Levelland at 7 p.m.

District 2-4A Preview

By Brent Taylor
Sports Editor

It appears to be a three-team race for the district championship between Frenship, Levelland and Estacado, but the Snyder Tigers are hoping to make it a four-team race.

Snyder must win out to have a chance and then get some help to make the playoffs. Frenship has the toughest schedule with Levelland and Estacado left to play.

Snyder (3-5, 1-2) at Plainview (1-7, 0-3)

Last Week: Snyder lost to Estacado, 23-14
Plainview lost to Levelland, 10-0

This contest will come down to who wants it the most. Plainview's defense has been able to keep them from being blown out, but the Bulldogs offense is lacking, mainly due to injuries in the backfield. Plainview has started five different running backs this year.

The Tigers only goal is to win. Snyder knows another loss will kill any hopes of a playoff spot. "We just have to go up there and play four quarters of football," said SHS coach David Baugh.

Frenship (5-3, 3-0) at Levelland (6-2, 3-0)

Last Week: Frenship defeated Lamesa, 34-14
Levelland defeated Plainview, 10-0

The premiere game of the week will be played in Levelland with the winner improving its chances of the top spot in the district.

Frenship continues to have the number one offense in the area, gaining 371.5 yards a game. Levelland has the number one defense, giving up only 185.1 yards a game.

The Frenship-Levelland winner will be undefeated in loop play with one contest remaining.

Estacado 54, Lamesa 0

(6-3, 3-1) (1-8, 0-4)

Last Week: Estacado defeated Snyder, 23-14
Lamesa lost to Frenship, 34-14

This Thursday night contest was over in a hurry as Estacado scored twice in the opening quarter in route to a 54-0 blowout of Lamesa.

Estacado's Warren Boyd touched the pigskin 11 times and gained 260 yards and scored three times on runs of 69, 66 and 70 yards.

High betting lines signal a college blowout weekend

By The Associated Press

Go ahead, just try to find a Top 25 game that figures to be competitive.

Here's a hint: Skip the games involving the eight highest-ranked teams in this week's AP poll.

No. 1 Florida is a 34-point choice over Georgia in a rivalry gone as sour as that between No. 5 Nebraska and Oklahoma. The Cornhuskers are favored by 35 points, nine more than the margin by which No. 8 North Carolina is expected to beat visiting North Carolina State.

In less traditional games, No. 2 Ohio State, No. 3 Florida State, No. 4 Arizona State, No. 6 Tennessee and No. 7 Colorado also figure to win easily. Among the top 10, only Michigan State at No. 9 Michigan has the appearance of a close game.

Michigan (6-1, 3-1 Big Ten) is a mere 8½-point favorite at home against Michigan State (5-3, 4-1), but the Spartans were underdogs last year, too, when they pulled out a 28-25 upset in East Lansing.

The return of quarterback Todd Schultz has given Michigan State hope. Since Schultz returned from a knee injury that sidelined him for a month, the Spartans have rolled to impressive wins over Illinois, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Since his layoff, Schultz has completed 48 of 66 passes. That, in turn, has opened a running game that has produced over 200 rushing yards in each of the Spartans' last five games.

"You wonder where he gets his poise and confidence from," offensive guard Brian Mossallam said of Schultz. "The man plays with confidence. It oozes out of him in the huddle. You'd think he had started for three years."

The Georgia-Florida game, aka "The World's Largest Outdoor Cocktail Party," returns to Jacksonville, Fla., and there is little doubt who will win.

"Us Georgia fans are just here for the fun," said Karen Smith, who drove down in her motor home expecting to see Steve Spurrier's Gators (7-0, 5-0 Southeastern) beat her beloved Bulldogs (3-4, 2-3)

That's become a habit since Spurrier took over at Florida, and his players are expected to make him 7-0 against Georgia. A victory would tie Spurrier with former Bulldogs coach Wally Butts for the longest run of success in the series.

"Big game? Are you serious?" asked Nebraska's Mike Minter, once a redshirt freshman at Oklahoma. "When Oklahoma plays Nebraska ... everybody goes nuts down there."

Perhaps there will be bedlam in Norman, Okla., but likely not a close game. Tom Osborne's Huskers (6-1, 4-0 Big 12) have beaten the once-great Sooners (2-5, 2-2) five years in a row, including 37-0 last season at Lincoln.

North Carolina (6-1, 4-1 Atlantic Coast) leads the nation in scoring defense at 7.1 points allowed per game.

"As long as you don't put that defense in backed up situations, they will be a very, very hard football team to beat," North Carolina State coach Mike O'Cain said.

But in their last three games against the Wolfpack (1-5, 1-3), the Tar Heels have won with offense — scoring no fewer than 30 points in each.

Ohio State (7-0, 4-0 Big Ten) is a 35-point choice against visiting Minnesota (3-4, 0-4); Florida State (6-0, 5-0 ACC) is a 19-point favorite at Georgia Tech (5-2, 4-2); Arizona State (8-0, 5-0 Pac-10) is a 23-point heavy at Oregon State (1-6, 1-4); Tennessee (5-1, 3-1 SEC) is picked to win by 17½ points at South Carolina (5-3, 4-2); and Colorado (6-1, 4-0 Big 12) by 22 at Missouri (3-4, 1-3).

Big 12 hoop coaches ready for new league

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Texas coach Tom Penders likes to run. In the former Big Eight, says Oklahoma State coach Eddie Sutton, people will stop you from running.

They haven't played a single Big 12 basketball game yet, but challenges and disagreements already are sprouting among the coaches.

"In Gallagher-Iba Arena, I'm not going to let the Longhorns run," Sutton said Thursday during the first Big 12 basketball media day. "It will be the same with (Missouri Coach) Norm Stewart in Columbia. They're not going to let them run. Coaches in this league are outstanding. When you go on the road in (the former Big Eight), they're not going to let them run."

Oh yeah?

"I'm not worried about that. We may go 0-16, but people aren't going to slow us down," said Penders, whose Longhorns were the only Texas school among the top five in the preseason Big 12 poll.

"I think the officials are the ones who dictate that," Penders said. "They can slow a game to a walk if they want to. But to say we can't play a certain style somewhere, I have to disagree."

Everybody did agree on one thing, however. The Big 12, a merger of the Big Eight and former Southwest Conference schools Texas, Baylor, Texas A&M and Texas Tech, could be one of the strongest in the nation.

"The Big 12 is going to be great for fans and super for players," said Nebraska coach Danny Nee, whose team won last year's NIT championship. "It will move the Big Eight into the 21st century."

"It's going to be one of the premier conferences," said Colorado coach Ricardo Patton, who does expect a lot of up-tempo style. "Fans are going to see a different brand of basketball. The Big Eight has been somewhat of a half-court game. With the Texas teams, you'll see more running, more pressing full court. The style definitely will be different when the Texas teams come in."

Writers and broadcasters in the preseason Big 12 poll ranked Texas right behind Kansas, followed by Iowa State, Oklahoma State, Missouri, Texas Tech, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Kansas State, Texas A&M, Colorado and Baylor.

"We're last in the polls," said Baylor center Brian Skinner. "That's a good situation. We can be more relaxed and not worry about anybody's expectations."

Nevertheless, the pressure on the Texas schools will be greater than ever. Historically, basketball was emphasized more in the Big Eight than in the SWC.

"Certainly we've got some work to do," said Baylor coach Harry Miller. "But I don't feel any sense of urgency."

Fans may soon be able to own Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Never mind rooting for the New York Yankees. Fans may soon be able to own a piece of their favorite team.

Yankees owner George Steinbrenner has considered going public with the team — apparently in the wake of their World Series victory over Atlanta last weekend, the New York Post reported today.

He could sell just 49 percent of the club and raise an estimated $200 million, while still remaining the team's principle owner, the Post reported. Other analysts estimate the Yankees' entire worth between $200 and $250 million.

Steinbrenner and the his family own 55 percent of the team.

LUBBOCK — The Western Texas College rodeo team opened up here Thursday night at the Texas Tech Intercollegiate Rodeo with Kevin Johnson taking the early lead in calf roping.

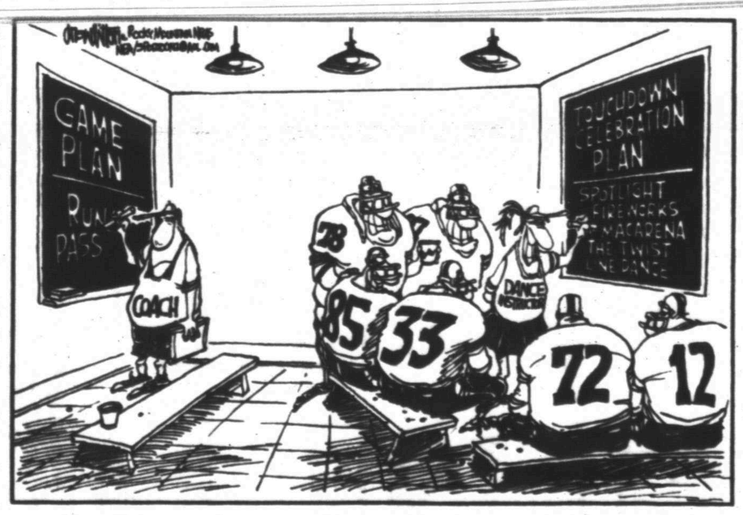

Johnson had a time of 9.9 for the top spot. Joe Moody and Rusty Henard are close behind. Moody is sitting third with an 11.2 and Henard fourth at 11.3

Barrel racer Tona Wright is in second with a 14.85.

The rodeo continues tonight with the finals set for Saturday. Both performances are set for 7:30 p.m. in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Campaign...

Dole eager to begin 96-hour marathon

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Eager to begin his 96-hour campaign marathon, Bob Dole got a send-off today from two former presidents who joined him in condemning what Gerald Ford called a "badly mishandled" Clinton administration.

"We're going to hit the road. We're going to try to reach out to everyone we can at every truck stop and every all-night diner," Dole said as his GOP presidential drive entered its final days.

Joined by former Republican presidents Ford and George Bush at a rally at Capitol University, Dole proclaimed: "We're dedicated. We're committed. It's not a game. This is about the greatest country on the face of the Earth."

Ford, 83, who ran at the top of the ticket with Dole in 1976, and Bush, 72, who ran against Dole twice for the Republican nomination, portrayed Dole as a man of honor who would return respect to the White House.

Ford, calling the current administration "badly mismanaged," recalled that he and Dole might have defeated Jimmy Carter had they not lost Ohio by 11,000 votes.

"We can't let that kind of margin take over in 1996," Ford said.

Bush said Dole would carry on the Republican presidential lineage stemming from Ford to Ronald Reagan and to himself. "What better thing can you say about the next president of the United States, but that his word of honor is good," Bush said.

The rally marked the beginning of Dole's bold attempt to overcome Clinton's lead in the opinion polls and fire up his campaign with a nonstop journey through more than a dozen states.

It will be wrinkled suits and shirts for the candidate, duffle bags and dogeared notebooks for the bevy of journalists trying to keep up with the 73-year-old, who is looking to catch Clinton at the finish line.

"We can sleep after Nov. 5. But we want to wake up America," Dole told an audience in Atlanta Thursday night before flying to Ohio for his last full campaign night in a normal hotel room.

"Bob Dole isn't going to give up," he vowed. "I decided two or three days ago we needed to shake up this race at the finish."

The first 19 stops include a 4:30 a.m. Saturday event in Newark, N.J., and a 2:30 a.m. visit to Las Vegas, one city that will not be sleeping when Dole arrives early Sunday.

"That is 96 hours. We're not doing this to punish the media. That's not my intent. But I wouldn't think of anything like that. Well, I thought of it," Dole quipped.

Dole's trip today was taking him through Ohio and Michigan, winding up with a 1 a.m. event near Detroit.

Clinton was in Santa Barbara, Calif., calling anew for campaign finance reform in an election year in which the parties have raised records amounts of cash and the Democrats are under fire for their fund-raising tactics.

"I have no comment," White House political director Doug Sosnik said several times Thursday to reporters who asked about Dole's plans.

After New Jersey, Dole's Saturday itinerary included Philadelphia, Indianapolis, Covington, Ky., St. Louis, Omaha, Neb., Sioux Falls, S.D., and Grand Junction, Colo. Then it was on to Las Vegas and San Diego.

Dole's announcement took the 100 or so reporters who cover the candidate by surprise.

There was palpable concern about such necessities as changes of clothes, showers and how to send stories and pictures from a virtually nonstop campaign.

Mishaps cause minor injuries

Police officers investigated several accidents this week in which five people were transported to the hospital to be treated for minor injuries.

A two-vehicle accident occurred at 9 o'clock Thursday evening in the 2800 block of College Avenue. Three people were taken by Snyder EMS to Cogdell Hospital where they were treated and released. Treated at the hospital were Erminia Villanueva, 27, Krystle Villanueva, 4, and Paul Villanueva, 7, all of 900 28th St.

Officers also investigated a two-vehicle accident at 11:25 a.m. Thursday in the 3700 block of Austin. Involved were a 1991 Ford driven by Lawrence Odom of 6066 N. Highway 208 and a 1972 Chevrolet driven by Cody Derrick of 3650 CR 471. A passenger in the Odom vehicle, Stacy Christian, 15, was transported by private vehicle to Cogdell Hospital where she was treated and released.

Officers also investigated a two-vehicle accident on Tuesday at 11:20 a.m. in the 4000 block of Denison. Involved were a 1984 Chevrolet pickup driven by Sean Duncan of 3407 44th St. and a 1995 Ford driven by Shanda Bowlin of 4400 Avenue V. Bowlin, 17, was taken by private vehicle to Cogdell Hospital where she was treated and released.

Officers were called to the 2400 block of 42nd Street at 8:40 p.m. in reference to kids bursting pumpkins in the street. And at 8:44 p.m., officers were called to the 4100 block of Jacksboro in reference to vandals and someone stealing pumpkins. An offense report for Class C theft was submitted.

In other activity Thursday, an offense report for Class C assault was submitted at 10:38 a.m. in reference to an incident at Snyder Laundry.

A 911 call at 10:41 a.m. from the 2800 block of El Paso was transferred to the National Poison Control Center in reference to two-year-old children ingesting Advil.

An officer was requested at 5:38 p.m. at McLeod's Jewelry in reference to a person being assaulted. An offense report for disorderly conduct/language was submitted and a person was issued a citation for criminal trespass.

Kevin Jones notified officers at 8:18 p.m. that he had found a tool box in the 4500 block of Galveston.

A report for criminal mischief was submitted at 2:46 this morning in reference to tires being damaged on a pickup while parked at the Western Texas College dorm parking lot. An offense report for Class B criminal mischief was submitted.

Snyder police officers also cleared two cases this week with the identification of several juveniles.

In a burglary on Sept. 26 at the Boys and Girls Club, nine juveniles were involved. They include six males, ages 10-13, and three females, ages 12-15.

A house burglary on Sept. 22 at the Mack Riggins residence was cleared with the identification of three juveniles, all 10-year-old males.

High blood pressure is a 'red flag'

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What would cause a sudden elevation in blood pressure? At 73, my reading has been around 114/74. Suddenly, it's changed to 180/105. My doctor put me on medication for control, but I want to know what has caused the increase since I've had no change in diet and no stress in my life.

DEAR READER: A sudden and unexplained increase in blood pressure is always a "red flag" to physicians. This could reflect a problem with kidney function or some other physical abnormality that should be addressed. For example, a "silent" (non-painful) kidney stone could elevate your blood pressure.

In your case, your doctor should closely monitor your blood pressure without increasing the dose of medicine. If the blood pressure remains high for a week or two, you need special X-rays and blood tests to discover the cause, which — if corrected — will allow your blood pressure to return to normal.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Hypertension." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What causes a leg ulcer and what can be done to get rid of it?

DEAR READER: Ulcers on the skin of the leg often result from deficient arterial or venous circulation.

In the first instance, not enough blood reaches the skin, because of arterial blockage — usually due to aging. Consequently, minor scrapes and abrasions fail to heal, become infected and enlarge. The diagnosis of arterial insufficiency can be made by a series of tests, including Doppler ultrasound. Treatment includes special dressings, antibiotics — and, possibly, surgery to unclog the artery.

Venous ulcers are more common. In the presence of varicose veins or edema (swelling), stale blood pools in the legs, preventing oxygen and nutrient-rich blood from reaching the tissues. Again, healing is delayed, minor trauma can become infected and ulcers will form.

By and large, venous disease of the lower extremities has a characteristic appearance: bulging veins plus thin and fragile skin. Such ulcers usually respond to elevation, special dressings, diuretics (to reduce edema), elastic wrapping, and other non-surgical techniques.

Sometimes, operative procedures such as vein stripping or laser surgery may be necessary.

Your family physician can advise you and, when appropriate, refer you to a vascular specialist.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Some friends and I have begun a diet program that doesn't allow sugar. We eat sugar-free candy, cookies, etc. regularly and wonder if people can get too much artificial sweetener in their systems. Would it be better to eat natural sugar, rather than overload on artificial sweeteners?

DEAR READER: Sugar is not a nutritional necessity. Complex carbohydrates — such as bread, pasta, potatoes, and rice — can easily supply dietary needs; refined sugar is, in large part, a reflection of the American sweet tooth.

Because sugar supplies "empty" calories, people who diet should avoid it. By substituting non-caloric, artificial sweeteners (NutraSweet and others), such people can significantly reduce their intake of calories, with resulting weight loss.

As I have written before, artificial sweeteners should only be consumed in moderation. For exam le, these products are appropriate for the morning coffee or tea and in snacks or modest portions of desserts. It is probably not healthful to wash down a box of sugar-free cookies with a six-pack of diet soda, day in and day out.

To answer your question specifically, you'll do better avoiding natural sugar, but take it easy on the substitute.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Winning the Battle of the Bulge." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My neighbor says shingles are contagious. Two dermatologists disagree. Who is correct?

DEAR READER: Shingles are caused by a type of herpes virus that affects the nerves in the skin, leading to crops of painful blisters that break out on one side of the body. After about 10 days, the blisters burst, crust over and disappear.

The question of contagion depends on this cycle. As long as blisters are appearing, the shingles are considered to be active — and contagious by direct contact. This is the reason that experts forbid patients with active shingles from any contact with pregnant women, newborns or patients with immune deficiencies.

However, once the blisters have stopped appearing, the disease is not contagious.

The most dreaded complication of the infection is post-herpetic neuralgia, a type of chronic pain that permanently affects about 10 percent of patients. This is why anti-viral therapy, with prescription drugs such as Famvir in pill form, is so vital. Early treatment (at the first sign of infection) may not only ameliorate the severity of the shingles, but may prevent the neuralgia.

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — No horse for the Warrior Princess: This time, she was carried to Jay Leno's stage by two musclemen in loincloths.

The last time Lucy Lawless, star of TV's "Xena: Warrior Princess" showed up for "The Tonight Show With Jay Leno," her horse lost its footing and fell as she was taping a skit Oct. 8.

U.S. military raises cigarette prices to discourage smoking

BOLLING AIR FORCE BASE (AP) — The price of cigarettes sold at supermarkets on military bases is rising by $4 per carton today as the Pentagon tries to discourage soldiers from smoking.

"I think it will work, too," smoker Eva Hamilton said Thursday as she stocked up on cigarettes at the commissary at this air base in Washington D.C. "I won't be able to smoke as much — can't afford it."

The cartons of cigarettes, rising almost 35 percent from $11.50 to about $15.50, will still be cheaper than the $17.50 common at private grocery stores.

The Defense Department is imposing the increase despite opposition from a congressional panel, which contends the Pentagon does not have the power to make such a change without its approval.

Base exchanges — military-run department stores — will have the same higher cigarette prices even though they are separate from the commissaries, which sell only food, tobacco products and magazines. Base exchange prices generally are similar to those of private stores except that there is no tax.

Both systems, financed largely by the federal government, are part of the compensation package for millions of military personnel and their families.

But tobacco products are the only items deemed health hazards by the surgeon general that are sold at reduced commissary prices, said Pentagon spokeswoman Deborah Bosick.

"In a roundabout way, we're asking taxpayers to subsidize tobacco products and pay for the health problems that occur from smoking or other kinds of tobacco use," Bosick said in an interview. "It's kind of hitting the public with a double whammy."

She acknowledged that the $4 per carton increase — which works out to just 40 cents per pack — may not prompt many smokers to quit. However, she said, the Pentagon does not want to abet the smoking habit with the extra incentive of cheap cigarettes.

This marks a change in policy for the Pentagon. For about a century ending in the early 1970s, the military had included a "tobacco ration" in package meals soldiers received in the field, said commissary historian Pete Skirbunt. Now such soldiers can buy cigarettes at temporary markets the military sets up.

The Defense Department pursued the price increase even after members of the powerful House National Security Committee requested a delay so it could be reviewed by a subcommittee on military morale, welfare and recreation.

A Sept. 27 letter signed by all 12 subcommittee members — Republicans and Democrats — contended the increase violated federal pricing rules — because commissaries must sell products at the "lowest practical price" — and could lead to higher costs for other commissary products.

Seven of those lawmakers are from tobacco-growing states. But members of the tobacco industry and the subcommittee said the issue is not tobacco but rules.

"What they're doing is illegal," said Walker Merryman, spokesman for the Tobacco Institute, an industry lobbying group in Washington.

The subcommittee plans to consider possible action when it reconvenes after the election, said Cary Brick, chief of staff for the panel's chairman, Rep. John McHugh, R-N.Y.

The military annually sells about $450 million of cigarettes and chewing tobacco in commissaries, which receive 75 percent of their financing from the government. Not all commissaries sell cigarettes.

About 32 percent of military personnel smoke, compared with 25 percent of all adult Americans, according to a 1995 Pentagon study.

The Pentagon previously has banned smoking at all military work sites.

Smoker Hamilton has mixed feelings about the price increase, although she's certain the higher prices will reduce her smoking. "I'd like to keep them cheap," she said. "But they should be trying to discourage people from smoking."

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

HEAVE OFFERINGS

A MOST IMPORTANT PART OF THE ANCIENT ISRAELITES' WORSHIP OF GOD WAS THE SACRIFICIAL OFFERING TO THE LORD. THE HEAVE OFFERING (THAT IS, THE PART TAKEN AWAY FROM A LARGER MASS AND SET ASIDE FOR JEHOVA) SUCH AS THE RIGHT SHOULDER OF A LAMB BECAME, WHEN THE SACRIFICIAL CEREMONIES WERE OVER, THE PERQUISITE OF THE PRIEST CONDUCTING THE CEREMONY AND WAS EATEN BY HIM IN THE PRECINCTS OF THE SANCTUARY (NUM.18:9,10; C.F. LEV.6:16). ONCE HAVING LEARNED THIS, WE CAN UNDERSTAND THE DOUBLE SIGNIFICANCE TO CERTAIN ACTS RELATED IN THE SCRIPTURES. SAMUEL, THE PROPHET, WHEN HE INVITED SAUL TO EAT WITH HIM AND OTHERS AT A "HIGH PLACE" (A SHRINE OF WORSHIP) AND, AT SAMUEL'S DIRECTION, THE COOK SERVED SAUL THE SHOULDER OF MEAT, SIGNIFYING SAUL'S IMPORTANCE TO THE OTHER GUESTS, WHO DIDN'T KNOW THEN THAT HE WOULD SOON BE THE FIRST KING OF ISRAEL! (I SAM.9:15-24)

Jenny Jones testifies in murder trial

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Talk show host Jenny Jones found the roles reversed when defense lawyers in a murder trial turned the microphone on her. Jones, usually smiling and gossipy on the show, became guarded and appeared nervous on the witness stand.

During a series of reluctant responses, she denied knowing whether one of her guests had been deceived about appearing on a show about gay crushes.

The guest, Jonathan Schmitz, says he was driven to kill Scott Amedure, who told Schmitz on the show that he had a crush on him and described "whipped cream and champagne" fantasies.

The trial resumed today with Schmitz's mother, Connie Schmitz, corroborating earlier testimony that her son had attempted suicide at least twice with pills and liquor.

Mrs. Schmitz also reinforced her husband's earlier testimony about the letdown her son suffered when his secret admirer was revealed on the show to be a man.

"You're going to meet the woman of your dreams," Schmitz's mother recalled telling him before his TV appearance.

Lawyers for Schmitz, 26, have not denied he shot Amedure, 32, three days after the March 1995 taping of the show, which never aired. They contend the talk show staff misled Schmitz into thinking his secret admirer was a woman.

"This was ambush television wasn't it?" defense lawyer Fred Gibson asked.

"No," Jones said.

Schmitz's lawyers say their client's embarrassment, coupled with a history of mental and physical illnesses, pushed him over the edge and kept him from forming the intent necessary to commit first-degree murder.

Jones reluctantly testified that no one told her Schmitz said he wouldn't appear on her show if his secret admirer was a man. She also said Schmitz didn't appear upset during the taping when his admirer was revealed to be Amedure.

Clips of the show, played in court Oct. 17, showed Schmitz laughing in embarrassment but with no apparent anger.

Jones said there was no deception in not mentioning the admirers were gay.

"The premise of the show was that it was a surprise," she said.

Gibson asked Jones: "Do you ever think that if you had not gone for that last little setup, that the tragedy that brought us here today would not have happened?"

"I don't know what you're talking about," Jones replied.

Gibson also questioned the talk show host about why the participation form that Schmitz signed did not mention that the title of the show was "Same-Sex Secret Crushes."

"I don't know how these forms are filled out at all," she said.

Jones said she usually doesn't know the topic of each day's show until she receives a script and other information the night before.

Clinton again calls for finance reform during 1996 campaign

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — As criticism of political money-raising grows, President Clinton is calling anew for campaign finance reform. Republican challenger Bob Dole says "a growing scandal" of Democratic misdeeds is the reason reform is needed.

In a speech today at Santa Barbara City College, Clinton was expected to stress his support for legislation that would restrict "soft money" contributions and eliminate political action committees.

"We do need campaign finance reform," White House spokesman Mike McCurry said in advance of the president's speech.

Dole, trying to get the jump on Clinton, said in Columbus, Ohio, that reform was indeed needed.

He pointed to a spate of news stories about Indonesian money flowing to Democrats and a fundraiser attended by Vice President Al Gore at a Buddhist temple.

"The administration is in the midst of a growing scandal involving a flow of foreign money into the Democratic Party that bought access to the White House," Dole said. "What we have seen from this administration in the last few weeks is the reason we need campaign finance reform."

"Soft money" is a term for political donations that individuals and corporations can use to avoid limits on direct giving to candidates by donating instead directly to political parties. The Republicans and Democrats can in turn use the unlimited cash for "party building" efforts.

Aides said Clinton also would revive the idea of a bipartisan commission on campaign finance reform — a notion he first endorsed more than a year ago but did little to push. Dole said that the commission was a good idea — and that he had been pushing it for years.

One of Clinton's aims in pushing for campaign finance reform is to minimize the priority that must be placed on fund raising in elections, McCurry told reporters Thursday.

"Because of the nature of the law and the reality of the political challenge that we face" the Democrats and the Republicans made an extensive effort to raise money this year, McCurry said.

GM loss: estimated $5 million per day

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. is losing an estimated $5 million a day because of strikes at two major plants, and analysts say those losses could soon double as more factories are idled.

Talks to reach a settlement between the United Auto Workers and GM resumed today. Negotiators met for 32 hours straight Wednesday and Thursday before taking a break.

The UAW strike at GM's metal stamping plant in Indianapolis led the company late Thursday to close its assembly plant in Moraine, Ohio, halting its production of Chevrolet Blazers, GMC Jimmy and Oldsmobile Bravada sport utility vehicles. The Moraine plant depends on Indianapolis-made parts.

GM said it also laid off an unspecified number of workers at its engine plant in Flint today but kept the plant open.

Light-truck assembly plants at Linden, N.J., and Shreveport, La., also were expected to close today, said a GM source who spoke on condition of anonymity. The source said the Chevrolet-GMC pickup plant in Pontiac, Mich., could close this weekend or Monday.

Linden produces Blazer and Jimmy sport utilities and Chevy and GMC compact pickups. Shreveport makes Chevy, GMC and Isuzu Hombre compact pickups.

The sheet-metal parts shortage already had led GM to shut down its Fort Wayne, Ind., truck plant. UAW members also have been on strike since Tuesday at the Janesville, Wis., truck assembly plant.

In Ohio, GM spokesman Jim Hagedon said the Moraine shutdown will idle about 3,500 of the plant's 4,400 workers; some maintenance and other employees will continue to report to work. Moraine workers are represented by the International Union of Electrical Workers.

The Moraine plant receives 26 different parts, including hoods, fenders, rooftops and other stampings produced exclusively at the Indianapolis plant.

Additional walkouts are likely if negotiators fail to reach a settlement soon. UAW locals in Anderson and Kokomo, Ind., have requested approval from the union's headquarters to strike GM parts plant there.

The strikes are hurting GM where it is most costly: its highly profitable production of pickups and sport utility vehicles.

The fast-selling Chevrolet Tahoes, GMC Yukons and Chevy-GMC Suburbans made in Janesville bring the world's largest automaker about $10,000 of profit each.

Analyst Joe Phillippi of Lehman Brothers said Thursday that lost profits would double to about $10 million a day if the Moraine, Linden and Shreveport plants are closed.

Negotiators in Detroit were believed to still be haggling over the job-security provisions of the "pattern" contract the UAW has signed with Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. GM has pushed for major exceptions because it wants to cut its work force and become more efficient.

A UAW source said Thursday that negotiators were closer than ever to a deal. But GM spokesman Chuck Licari declined to characterize the talks or say if significant progress had been made.

The Moraine shutdown raised the number of GM workers off the job because of strikes or shutdowns to about 13,300. Those layoffs were in addition to 19,958 GM workers still off their jobs because of parts shortages that resulted from the Canadian Auto Workers strike last month.

GM was slowly gearing up plants slowed down or idled by the CAW strike, which was settled last week.
