Panel Pushes Toward Excise Slash

Plea Changed To Guilty in Gambling Case

NEW YORK — (AP) — Frank Erickson, boss of a nationwide, multi - million - dollar bookmaking empire, pleaded guilty today to gambling charges that could send him to prison for 60 years.

The pudgy gambling czar, who never spent a day in jail in his life, entered the plea as he was brought into Special Sessions Court for trial.

Reports circulated that Erickson made the guilty plea to protect wealthy, big-money bettors.

District Attorney Frank Hogan said he would demand "the stiffest sentence" possible when Rickson is returned to court Monday for sentencing.

The 54-year-old gambler, who admittedly netted $100,000 profits annually from his coast-to-coast gambling operations, is subject to a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $500 fine on each count of a 60-count information, or a total of 60 years and $300,000.

His attorney, Sol Gelb, told Justice Nathan B. Perlman that the defendant wished to withdraw his innocent plea, and plead guilty to the one count of conspiracy and 7[illegible] counts of bookmaking.

[illegible]ason was continued in $1[illegible]0 bail.

After Gelb entered the plea, the judge turned to Erickson and asked:

"Does the defendant plead guilty to each of the 60 counts?"

"Yes," Erickson replied.

His fingers pressed hard against the table top, but his face appeared without emotion.

Hogan said he saw no reason why the 54-year-old defendant "should not be sent to jail for a long time." The gambler never has spent a day in jail.

There are reports that Erickson pleaded guilty in an attempt to lessen his penalty, although his attorney had maintained up to the time of the trial that the defendant would not do so.

Speculation also circulated that the guilty plea was entered as a means of protecting big-money bettors. Some of these businessmen-bettors reportedly wagered up to $15,000 daily through Erickson.

Several of them had appeared before the grand jury which made the charges against Erickson.

The jury investigation came after a raid on Erickson's plush Park Avenue offices by a squad of district attorney's men. They confiscated a truckload of records and data.

The raid was an upshot of Erickson's admission before a Senate investigating subcommittee that he operated a $12,500,000-a-year, coast-to-coast, law-breaking bookmaker enterprise.

Truman Said Asking 3 Million for H-Bomb

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Congressional sources said today President Truman will ask Congress for $300,000,000 to speed up work on the hydrogen bomb.

A member of the House appropriations committee, asking not to be named, said the money would be used entirely for construction work at existing atomic energy commission installations, mainly at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Los Alamos, N. M., and Hanford, Wash.

This informant said he understood Mr. Truman's request would be sent to the Capitol in a day or two.

District Court Opens, Recesses

The June term of 31st District Court opened and then recessed this morning until 9:30 a.m. Wednesday when the damage suit brought by J. S. Oldham, Lefors, against the Gray County Gas Co. is slated to go to trial before a jury.

Judge Lewis M. Goodrich dismissed the remainder of the 45-man panel when the jury for the Wednesday trial was drawn.

Six other civil suits scheduled to go to trial today were continued for varying reasons until the week of July 31.

Lewis Files For Constable

Precinct 2 Constable Bill Langley pulled his third opponent for reelection late Saturday night when ex-Constable Earl Lewis filed for a place on the July 22 primary ballot.

Lewis was defeated for reelection by Langley in 1948 in a constable's race that was thrown into the runoffs. Lewis has been considering making a comeback try for several weeks and got into the race just under the wire Saturday.

Others in the tussle are Carl Stone and Verlin Smith.

This afternoon the County Democratic Executive Committee was meeting to determine the order of ballot and assess the filing fees. Candidates then have until midnight June 24 to pay their share of the cost of election or be dropped from the ballot.

Giant Flying Boat Hauls 144 Men on 2,609-Mile Jaunt

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — (AP) — The giant Caroline Mars ended a 2,609-mile flight from Hawaii yesterday with 144 men aboard. Never before, the Navy said, had so many been carried so far nonstop in one aircraft.

A little later, a sister flying boat — the Hawaii Mars — settled down on San Diego Bay with 106 men. She had taken off two hours and five minutes before the Caroline Saturday, flown 2,400 miles to Alameda, Calif., added 5,000 pounds of cargo and then hopped on here.

In these two four-engined craft, which spread their wings 200 feet, the Navy had ferried an entire company of Marine reservists in full combat kit from the islands for training exercises at nearby Camp Pendleton.

The lift made by the Caroline —which has more powerful engines than the other Mars flying boats — wasn't a world record for passengers. That was made by the Marshall Mars last year. She carried 308 men — but on

Machinery Moves Onto Highway 70

The clatter of heavy machinery preparing to gouge out 25.29 miles of Highway 70 reverberated over the crisp morning air today as workmen of the Ernest Lloyd Construction Co. readied tractors and turnpauls for the job.

Barricades were going up late this morning at the "end of paving" to warn motorists of the construction work going on ahead.

Hank Shelton, superintendent of the job, said the first actual loads of dirt would be hauled away early Tuesday morning when the project would be in full swing.

Rock crushers, for the 4.4 miles of paving, will take about a week to set up and put into operation.

The construction crew found a good working line to follow on the Gray County side where county maintainers had scraped out the barely passable roadway weeks ago.

The 25.29 miles, except for the 4.4 stretch of paving, will carry excavation, structures, and grading work on the highway up to the south bank of the Canadian River. Paving of that stretch will have to come under another contract.

After that the main problem will be bridging the waterless Canadian. But, that is sometime in the future.

Shriners to Build Crippled Childrens Hospital in Area

A fund raising campaign will soon get underway for the construction of a Shriner's hospital in the 40-county Panhandle area. The project has been approved by the board of trustees, Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children, at a meeting in Los Angeles.

The application was handled by the Khiva's Kendrick Fund, which was createdd for such purposes.

Trustees for the fund are Bill Gilstrap, president; Ross D. Rogers, secretary; J. B. Briscoe, treasurer; Joe A. Jenkins, John L. McCarty, Wayne O'Keefe and Dr. A. J. Streit.

Officials said that John D. McGilvray, vice chairman and Mrs. Gertrude G. Fallendorf, administrator of nurses, will assist local Shriners in seeing that the hospital would be built on a basis to give adequate needs to a designated area.

Shrine organizations in the area will be invited to participate in the building program.

The first Shrine hospital was built in Shreveport, La., in 1923, and the last was authorized for Los Angeles in 1945.

There are now a total of 17 such hospitals over the United States, Canada, Mexico and Hawaii.

Pool's Opening Day Brings 419 Bathers

Th municipal swimming pool counted 419 paid admissions for its opening Sunday, most of them adults.

A check of the admissions showed 199 children under 12 years of age and 220 adults used the pool.

City officials expected the cool weather may keep most of the swimmers away this afternoon and prepared to go ahead with finishing touches around the pool and pump house.

New York Paper Still Suspended

NEW YORK — (AP) — The New York World-Telegram and Sun, struck last Tuesday by the CIO American Newspaper Guild, did not publish today for the sixth consecutive publication day.

A mass picket line of 350 persons ringed the newspaper's main building this morning. The guild has picketed the building since about 400 members — news and business department employes — struck at dawn last Tuesday in a contract dispute over wages and other issues.

Printers and other AFL mechanical union members did not cross the picket lines, and the big afternoon paper has not been published since last Monday.

Allies Mine German Roads, Bridges, Magazine Reports

FRANKFURT, Germany — (AP) — The Western Allies are reported mining key roads and bridges throughout West Germany and other parts of Europe to stall any possible Soviet attack.

These preparations came to light Sunday when a German magazine published pictures of a winding highway around famed Lorelei Mountain on the Rhine River in the French zone. The pictures showed a row of holes being drilled in the road and then covered with concrete caps. Explosive charged dropped into the holes would tumble the highway into the Rhine at one of its narrowest points.

American headquarters declined to comment. But a French source in the Koblenz area said:

"It is not only on this route on which such measures are taken and not only the French who are making such preparations. It is the allied high command which ordered this."

Plans have been in the books for more than a year for allied occupation forces in Western Germany to fight a delaying action, if trouble comes.

The plans call for evacuation of civilians as rapidly as possible. Emergency signals have been given all dependents of U.S. army and air force officials to be prepared to pull out if and when an alarm is flashed.

Indications are that the Western defense chiefs have drawn up a master plan for similar defense preparations in other European countries.

The pictures touched off a furor in the Russian-controlled East German press.

The Communist newspapers did not mention any possibility of a Russian attack, but declared the planned destructions were "part of an American aggressor's plan to march against the Soviet Union. One newspaper said the Americans are preparing to follow Hitler's scorched earth policy.

The Red press also claimed the French planned to blow up the side of Lorelei Mountain, damming the Rhine and flooding the country for miles around.

A French spokesman described this report as "nonsense."

Panel Agrees On Rent Curbs

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senate and House conferees agreed today on a compromise bill extending federal rent controls for six months beyond June 30.

The compromise, subject to approval by both chambers of Congress, give municipalities power to keep the federal controls for an additional six months, or until June 30, 1951. In communities where no such action is taken, controls would end automatically on Dec. 31.

The House had voted for an automatic seven-months extension, with an additional five months optional. The Senate wanted a six-months automatic extension, with six more optional months.

Way Paved For Vote on Corporations

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee threw out of its new tax bill today a proposal —once approved—to cut the federal tax on "economy brands" of cigarettes.

The action cleared the way for a vote next on whether to boost corporation taxes about $500,000,000 a year.

Some members contended a rise in corporation taxes would put a "veto proof" tag on their bill cutting wartime excise taxes by $1,100,000,000.

These excises are the taxes on furs, jewelry, luggage, movies, telephone bills and scores of other things.

The committee voted 13 to 12 against cutting the tax on the "economy" cigarettes. The federal tax is now seven cents a pack of 20 on all cigarettes, regardless of their selling price.

During hearings, the makers of "economy" brands — such as Wings, Marvel and Avalon — argued their smokes should have a lower tax than cigarettes selling at a higher price.

The committee then decided tentatively to set the tax at 4.9 cents a pack on cigarettes retailing for 12 cents a pack or less, exclusive of state and local taxes.

Today's vote wiped out that tentative decision.

Chairman Doughton, Democrat from tobacco-growing North Carolina, had argued the proposed cut would result in lower prices to farmers. The treasury had figured it would cost the government about $90,000,000 a year in revenue.

Democratic congressional leaders reported after their regular Monday morning conference with President Truman that tax legislation had been discussed.

Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex) told reporters that Mr. Truman was "very anxious to have a tax bill passed" but declined to speculate on whether the president would approve the bill now being shaped up by the ways and means committee.

Mr. Truman's position has been that he thinks the wartime excise taxes should be cut, but that there should be increases elsewhere to offset the cuts.

Rayburn said he anticipated the House would begin debate next week — probably on Tuesday — on the ways and means committee's bill.

Senate Democratic Leader Lucas said that if the House completed action on the bill next week, he thought the Senate could wind up work on it before the end of July.

Three Men Injured As Cars Sideswipe

Three persons were injured, one seriously, when two autos sideswiped late Saturday night on the Lake McClellan road, about 3 miles off State Highway 70.

Bobby Joe Ryan, 20, of Borger was removed to Worley Hospital where his physician said he suffered a crushed chest, internal injuries, cuts and brouises.

State Highway Patrolman E. J. Robertson said Ryan's car and one driven by William R. Gise, Pampa, collided at the crest of a hill. Roy C. Glockner, 18-year-old Lefors youth, a passenger in the Gise car, was taken to Worley Hospital for treatment of a slight head injury.

The Ryan car turned over after the impact.

Also injured was Donald De Vore, 22, Borger, who was treated at Worley and released.

A Duenkel-Carmichael ambulance brought two of the victims to the hospital and the third was brought in by a passing motorist.

Traffic Signals Will Be Tested

City Engineer Ray Evans expressed hope this morning that the city would be able to throw its new progressive-type signal system onto a test run after midnight Tuesday.

Two key men of the Brooks Electric Co. were forced to leave the job temporarily due to a death in the family of one and a critical illness in the family of the other. This left the third key man of the company jumping around on several other contracts the Brooks firm has going.

"But outside of that, and barring all unforeseen accidents, we hope to have the system ready for testing after midnight Tuesday," Evans said this morning.

Vogeler's Release By Hungary Hinted

VIENNA, Austria — (AP) — Reliable American informants said today that Robert A. Vogeler, American business man jailed in Hungary on spy charges, may be released this week.

The informants said Hungarian officials have made no definite promises, but indications are that they may turn Vogeler over to U. S. officials Tuesday or Wednesday.

Vogeler, 39, an executive and roving European representative of the International Telephone and Telegraph Company, was sentenced by a Hungarian People's Court last February on charges of espionage and sabotage. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 15 years.

Vogeler's pretty Belgian-born wife, Lucille, was overcome with joy by the reports that her husband might be released.

"This is what I have been waiting for and praying for every day for the last four months," she said.

Mrs. Vogeler conferred with U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson in London on May 12 when he was there for a Big Three session. She said Acheson had given her a "most encouraging message" regarding her husband.

"I can't say more than that," she said at the time. "If I did say too much, harm might be caused. But now I have certain knowledge that something is being done for my husband, and by the highest authorities."

In New York, Vogeler's father, Robert A. Vogeler, Sr., who heard radio broadcasts of his son's expected release, said "I couldn't believe my ears."

"I don't want to be pessimistic," said the goateed, retired engineer, "but I'll believe it when I see Bob sitting in that chair before me."

Informants here expressed doubt that Edgar Sanders, British associate of Vogeler, who was sentenced at the same time, will be released at present.

The British government has been negotiating for the release of Sanders, who was sentenced to 13 years.

American officials have denied that any deal was made to swap Vogeler for Valentin Gubitchev, Soviet United Nations employe, convicted with Judith Coplon in New York of espionage.

Gubitchev was given a suspended sentence and sent home. Observers interpreted the move then as a bid for similar treatment for Vogeler.

If Vogeler were released, he probably would be escorted to the Austrian - Hungarian border. American officer probably would meet him there and bring him to his home in Vienna.

Both Vogeler and Sanders confessed in court that they had turned Hungarian economic secrets over to American intelli-

GOP State Chiefs Assail McCarthy; Dewey Is Cautious

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. — (AP) — Top flight Republican governors appeared divided today over the effect on their party's political fortunes of what some of them called "McCarthyism."

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York told reporters he has a "mixed" reaction to broadside charges by Senator McCarthy (R-Wis) that the State Department is harboring Communists. He didn't elaborate publicly.

Gov. Earl Warren of California, running for a third term, lined himself up solidly against what he called the "blanket accusations" made by the Wisconsin senator.

Warren said he thinks McCarthy speaks only for himself and not the Republican Party in making charges for which the California governor said not enough supporting evidence had been produced.

Gov. James H. Duff of Pennsylvania, running for the Senate, used almost the same words in condemning what he labelled McCarthy's "random, blanket charges without specific date to back them up." All three GOP governors aired their views at meetings with reporters at the annual governors conference, swinging into business sessions here today.

Warren pooh-pooed the idea

Ruhr Rejects Communists in Socialist Vote

DUESSELDORF, Germany — (AP) — The miners and steel workers of the Ruhr valley rejected Russia's policies in Germany and gave communism a crushing defeat at the polls yesterday.

But while they rejected communism, the same workers voted for a state constitution calling for socialization of the Ruhr's basic industries.

The Ruhr workers elected a legislature for their home state of North-Westphalia, in the British occupation zone. It is the most populous state of West Germany, with 9,000,000 registered voters.

The smoky Ruhr powerhouse once was West Germany's Communist stronghold. Three years ago, the Communists got 14 per cent of the vote. They were the third largest party in the state.

Yesterday, they got 5.5 per cent, and went into fifth place, Max Reimann, their leader, trailed badly in Dortmund.

Thousands of workers who had voted Communist before turned their backs on Russia and blasted Communist hopes of winning the Ruhr away from the west.

They apparently spoke for all of West Germany's 46,000,000 people who condemn Russian policies in East Germany.

At the same time, the North Rhine-Westphalian voters also showed they have no love for resurgent German nationalism. The noisy militant candidates—some of them with Hitler - like ideas — got only 1.9 percent of the ballots. Extremism, both of left and right, was rejected.

The voters turned instead to their traditional parties — the conservative Christian Democrats and the socialists (Social Democratic Party).

By a quirk of local politics, the conservative voters were responsible for approval of a constitution calling for socialization. They apparently voted for the constitution because it contained a provision calling for denominational schools administered by the churches.

Many Socialists, however, have opposed the constitution because of the school issue.

The exact nature and extent of possible socialization is not clear in the constitution. It speaks of "large factories of the basic industries and undertakings which because of their monopolistic position have special significance."

It is possible socialization of these industries may not be effected until after the next elections three years from now—despite the constitution.

This is because of the strength gained in the legislature by conservative and right-wing parties which generally oppose socialization.

Owner of Older Home Faces Loss Unless He Modernizes

LIGHTING TIPS FOR Homemakers

Spring housecleaning often results in the decision to replace one or two lamp shades and if you are choosing new ones there are a few points to keep in mind.

First of all don't overlook the new plastic shades which look so much like silk that one almost has to touch them to make sure that they are not delicate fabric. These amazing new shades can be sponged clean with mild soap and water, both of them are sturdy enough to withstand rough and handling one can give them without the slightest damage.

Make sure, too, that a shade you select is the right size for the lamp. Shades which are too small or too large throw light unevenly.

If you are choosing new shades for lamps which are placed near your television set, avoid those that are made from any material or shade color. These can cause glare and discomfort that will interfere with enjoyment to excess amount of light.

Clean lamp shades give a brighter light and can be done by hand even those that cannot be washed successfully. The dusty type of dictionary brush or the vacuum cleaner attachment will help. Some shades may be washed with warm water, mild soap and a soft brush to help remove the dirt.

To prevent glaring spots, not only above the appearance of the shade but also under lights. Home lighting specialists suggest that there be a space between the lamp and shade covering one to two inches.

Keep your bed lamp handy for quick use by placing it on the wall behind the bed. Another of your own best sources of light is the reading lamp. Be sure to use a bulb of the correct wattage for the shade you have selected. Use the highest wattage bulb that the shade will safely accommodate. Don't overload portable holders or extension cords. Turn down socket hooks to keep the lamp steady.

For dusty bulbs or any other job that may cause splashing water be sure to turn off the light to prevent breakage from splashing water.

To light or not to light—that is no question if a closet is more than two feet deep or insufficiently lighted by the room lights in which it is located. Check the lighting in each closet in the house as it is cleaned this spring to determine if it is lighted conveniently. Residential lighting specialists recommend that a minimum of 60 watts is needed in most closets. And don't forget to clean lighting fixtures during spring cleaning in attic, basement closets and porches. Dirt and dust are light robbers and clean bulbs and fixtures will give more light.

In all God's providences it is good to compare His word and His works together, for we shall find a beautiful harmony between them, and that they mutually illustrate each other.

The owner of a pre-war home faces a dollar loss in its value this year as the sellers' market gives way to a buyers' market, he said over 60 percent of a panel of builders, architects and other authorities in a recent survey reported by the Construction Research Bureau, national clearing house for building information.

This opinion is based on the large number of new homes which this year and the prospects of a new all-time high record. The new homes are up-to-the-minute in design, equipped with more conveniences and generally have more buying appeal than their forerunners. Demand for used homes began to drop last year as the construction of new homes and the actual home building began.

The home-owner can protect his investment by modernizing his house, says the Bureau. This can be done without heavy financial strain through an FHA-insured mortgage payable over 2 years.

What should a home-buyer want in a house that is in good repair with modern kitchen and bath, good insulation, heating plant adequate for greater comfort?

As most homes have been designed to some extent to meet the needs of their day, not every house will have to be brought up-to-date. A bad feature for instance would be an old-fashioned furnace that requires the old hand-stoker. It will not take a buyer.

Owners of such homes know that an effort is being put forth to sell insulation. An existing home may be insulated easily by blowing mineral wool into the wall spaces and covering roof area with the material. It can turn out only over that a given 30 percent of fuel costs for homes so protected are up to 15 degrees cooler during the hot weather months, an excellent sales argument in itself.

A modernized used home has more interior value than many new built structures. Its rooms generally are larger than rooms in the type of modern construction and it is otherwise a better dollar value for 'top' than some houses being built today.

A home-owner who lets repair and modernization work lapse is undermining his own investment, says the Bureau. Declared because needed small repairs develop into large ones if neglected. The same principle holds for modernization needs. The work may be spread over a period of time as the owner desires. He should not permit any area of his house to become antiquated because sooner or later he will have on his hands a white elephant with little or no market value.

Floor Construction, Care Important in Every Home

By HENRY J. WINGATE
Nationally Known Architect and Engineer

Floors are as important to a house as roof, walls and foundation. They get more wear than any other part of the house. Yet many home-owners do not know how floors should be laid and the care they should receive.

Hardwoods such as oak and maple are more widely used than any other flooring material, although use of composition materials has grown rapidly. Because of their lower cost, softwoods are often used in rooms with little traffic.

The strength of a floor is in the joists which support it. Best construction calls for these to be placed no more than 16 inches apart. If over 8 feet long, each joist should be braced against the adjoining ones with pieces of wood or metal in the form of an X, called bridging. A rough subfloor is laid on the joists, preferably running diagonally for greater rigidity. With building paper on top of this to prevent dirt sifting through, the finish flooring is nailed to the subfloor.

This can be either long strips the width of the room, or short pieces called random lengths. The latter costs less and if carefully laid gives pleasing effects. Parquet flooring is made in small squares and rectangles in a factory and is either nailed or cemented to the subfloor. This is particularly good in rooms where it is desired to use few rugs.

Smoothness of surface is the first consideration for any floor because unevenness invites wear and rapid deterioration. A new floor will be better if permitted to season in place at least a month after which it should be thoroughly scraped and sanded. Then 3 coats of highgrade varnish should be applied to provide a long lasting, wearing surface. If a wax finish is desired, it goes on over the varnish. It was once thought sufficient to shellac floors that were to be waxed, but experience has proved that unless the wax is renewed almost daily, the shellac is not strong enough to prevent wear.

To finish softwoods, it is a good idea to use a varnish with pigment coloring for the first two coats, cover with a coat of clear varnish.

A floor should never be washed with alkali soaps, washing powder or hot water. A daily wiping with floor oil will keep the varnish in good condition. If washing is required, a linseed oil soap is best, water used sparingly. Waxed floor should be polished often with a weighted brush and wax added to sections with greatest traffic.

Loss in Fires Headed for Record Total

This will be the most disastrous year in the nation's history for home-owners, if fire losses continue to rise at the present rate.

April's fire losses totaled $61,605,000, or 11.4 percent higher than April fire losses in 1949. During the first months of 1950, total property loss from fires was $251,236,000, as compared with $242,858,000 for the first 4 months of 1949.

90 percent of all fires can be prevented.

Heading the list of fire causes, says the National Board of Fire Underwriters, is careless use of matches and smoking materials, from which nearly 1-3 of all fires start. Faulty and overheated heating equipment cause almost 1-4 of the annual destruction.

Careless use of flammable liquids like kerosene, gasoline and cleaning fluids causes 12 percent of home fires, while the fourth major cause is faulty and overloaded electrical wiring and appliances, accounting for 10 percent of all blazes.

Most buildings burn as a result of bad housekeeping or because their construction is not sufficiently fire-safe. Fire prevention experts say that the clean house seldom burns while the unkempt one frequently does.

Attics and basements cluttered with old newspapers, discarded furniture and other flammable material constitute a serious hazard. Few householders realize that by permitting such accumulations they invite disaster.

Every home-owner has learned the rules that should be observed for preventing fires — elimination of rubbish; matches in metal containers out of reach of children; careful use of electric irons and other appliances, disconnecting them when left even for a moment; disposal of oil rags in metal containers; no smoking in bed, and extinguishing of matches and cigarettes; no debris around the furnace, and so on.

Homes also burn because they are not constructed with maximum fire-safety in mind.

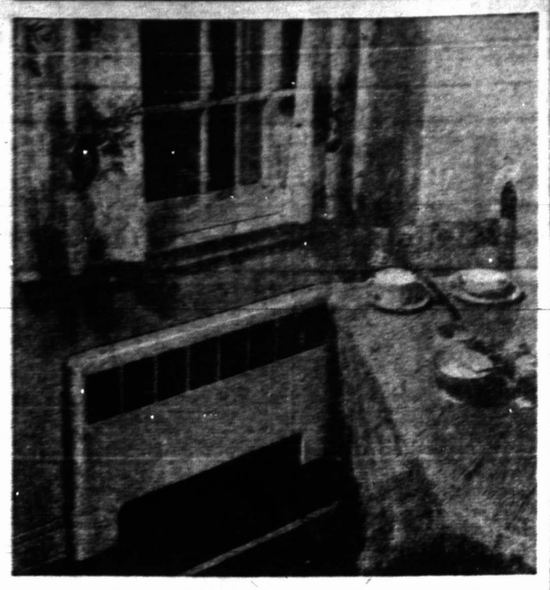
Lack of fire-stops within walls is a major contribution to fire losses. A hollow wall is a natural flue through which flames can instantly spread to the whole structure. Solid blocks of gypsum or lumber placed at intervals between all wall studs will prevent flames spreading through the walls. Many homes lack such protection. This can be remedied, however, by blowing the concealed hollow wall spaces full of naturally non-combustible mineral wool insulation. National Bureau of Standards tests show that a wood-lath wall filled with mineral wool will stop the passage of fire for one hour. Furthermore, the insulation helps remove a leading fire cause by ending the necessity for heavy firing of the furnace.

Confinement of fire to the place where it starts is all-important. Fire department officials say that the first 5 minutes at any fire are worth the next 5 hours.

Hence, in addition to making sure that his walls are fire-stopped, the householder should have a solid flush-type door at the head of the basement stairs, and it should be kept closed at all times. The basement ceiling should be covered with batts of mineral wool fastened between the joists. As most home fires start in the basement, the rest of the house should be protected from flames spreading from this area.

These precautions for preventing rapid spread of flames are not costly; and if everyone makes it second-nature to observe the safety rules he will never need to call in an insurance adjuster.

CORNER COMFORT



Gay and colorful breakfast nooks are wonderful morning "cheerer-uppers" in modern homes. But the limited space which can be devoted to them in today's compact houses sometimes presents a problem. In the attractive breakfast nook pictured above, space is saved by recessing the convector-radiator beneath the window where it provides dependable heating comfort without taking up valuable floor space or interfering with arrangement of the table and chairs.

Modern Heating Units Help Utilize Smaller Home Space

With today's accent on small, compact homes and apartments, the problem of utilizing every inch of floor space effectively has become greater than ever.

In modern homes much space has been released by making rooms do double duty as in the popular modern living-dining room combinations, and creating furniture which can be used for a variety of purposes such as cocktail tables which can be raised for dining.

One of the best sources of space-saving, however, is in today's slimmer, more compact heating units, and they are a factor that should be given consideration when the new home is planned. If steam or hot water heating is to be used, the new convector-radiators can be used to save both space and costs, for they can be recessed completely or partially into the walls, and furniture may be placed as close to them as necessary, without fear of damage.

In excessively restricted areas such as the popular breakfast nooks in today's new homes the space-saving contribution of the newly styled heating outlets is especially apparent.

Wherever there is a shortage of space, it is a good idea to make a thorough study of what furnishings are necessary or what can be spared. The answer may be in smaller scaled furniture or chairs and tables which can do double duty.

Summer Class Students Due Report Cards

Report cards will be issued Wednesday, ending the first half of Pampa High School's summer session, Principal Frank Wilson said today.

The term will end July 21 for 183 students, 16 of whom will have obtained sufficient credits for graduation.

Nine of the graduates will get vocational certificates, while seven are finishing under the pre-college program.

Oldest student is 23 and the next oldest 19. Both are veterans who will graduate this summer and enter college.

The student body, while made up largely of Pampans, also has several students from other towns and two other states. Principal Wilson's records reveal there are students enrolled from Lefors, Miami, McLean, Marlow, Oklahoma, and the New Mexico Military Institute, Roswell.

Classes are conducted on a six-day basis, beginning at 7:30 a. m. and ending at noon.

Judy Garland Is Suspended Again

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Suspension has knocked Judy Garland out of a film role for the second time in a year.

Her studio, M-G-M, said that she has been suspended for failure to report for work Saturday in a picture in which she was working with Fred Astaire. A replacement for her, said M-G-M, will be arranged this week.

Betty Hutton replaced Miss Garland in "Annie Get Your Gun" last year after the latter was suspended.

Touch Up Bathtubs With Color for Bath-Hating Tots

Many a child who now needs coaxing to take a bath will see the matter in a different light if a few simple decorative touches are added to his bathtub.

A colorful, personalized tub makes bathing fun. Not only does this help form good hygiene habits — splashing is a form of play that child specialists highly recommend for small tots.

To make a galvanized steel tub a child's "playmate," paint the tub's outside with a bright blue or other eye-catching color of the child's choice. The tot's name might well be painted on, in a different color.

Then stick on some decals — the type of transfer figures widely used in bathrooms and kitchens. Decals come in a wide variety of figures, such as ducks and fish, that capture a child's fancy.

If there are several children in the family, each would be pleased with a separate tub, decorated just for him or her.

A tip on painting surfaces of new galvanized steel products: The paint will stick better if the surface is washed first with a water and vinegar solution.

Decorated tubs, placed outdoors and equipped with toy ships or toy ducks to float on the water, will hold children's interest for many hours during the long summer days.

Kidney From Dead Woman Transplanted to Another

CHICAGO — (AP) — A kidney from a dead woman has been transplanted in another woman in an operation which doctors said is the first of its kind ever performed.

Dr. Richard M. Lawler said the surgery was performed Saturday morning in Little Company of Mary Hospital and that the patient was in "good condition" early today. Her condition was normal and she had talked to her husband, hospital attendants reported.

Dr. Lawler, a member of the hospital staff and senior attending surgeon at Cook County Hospital, directed the operation. It was begun 10 minutes after the donor of the healthy kidney died and required an hour and a half.

Dr. Lawler removed the diseased kidney from Mrs. Ruth Tucker, 49, of Chicago.

The healthy kidney from the dead woman, in an adjoining operating room, was removed by Dr. James West, also a staff member at Little Company of Mary and associate attending surgeon at Cook County Hospital.

The two surgeons were assisted by Dr. Patrick H. McNulty and Dr. Raymond Patrick Murphy.

Working simultaneously, one team of surgeons removed the diseased kidney from Mrs. Tucker while the other team removed a kidney from the dead woman.

Dr. West handed the healthy kidney through a door to Dr. Lawler and within 45 minutes, the transplantation had been completed and blood was flowing through the kidney placed in Mrs. Tucker.

Dr. Lawler said that as soon as the clamps were removed from the blood vessels, the organ changed to a healthy pink color.

Mrs. Tucker was suffering from polycystic kidney, a disease in which cysts in the kidney fill with urine which cannot be released. The disease usually is fatal.

Dr. Lawler said the right kidney is functioning only 10 percent of normal, but it was not removed.

Mrs. Tucker entered the hospital five weeks ago while doctors sought a suitable donor. The woman who consented to give her kidney after death also was 49 years old, of the same physical size and with the same blood type. She died from hemorrhage of the varicose veins of the esophagus and cirrhosis of the liver. Her name was not disclosed.

Lighting for Farm Homes Can Equal Those in City

We've come a long way since the first farm homesteads wired for electricity boasted a lone bare bulb in the center of the ceiling to light a room.

Today's modern homemaker has learned that it's no longer necessary to work in her own wearisome shadow. In fact, with proper lighting, her kitchen can be as bright and cheerful as the out-of-doors itself.

The cosy farm kitchen pictured at left with its gay yellow-geranium patterned paper has had every dark corner erased with a flood or soft, shadow-free fluorescent lighting.

The generous sized ceiling fixture with its two 40-watt fluocent lamps, gives generous overall lighting throughout the room. Lighting specialists are quick to remind homemakers to always choose generous size fluorescent fixtures, for unlike ordinary household bulbs, the lamps (which vary in length according to wattage) cannot be increased to higher wattage once the fixture is installed.

Notice in the picture above how the sink area has its own built-in fluroscent lighting to give extra light for difficult-seeing jobs like cleaning spinach, paring vegetables or picking pin feathers.

Texas Farms Show Gain in Income for First Part of Year

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Texas was one of the five states whose farmers' income gained during the first four months of 1950.

As a whole, the Agriculture Department said Sunday, the national figure is expected to be about $10,600,000,000 or nine percent less the first six months this year than in the first half of 1949.

The May and June estimates are tentative, but most states showed a decline for the first four months.

For the January-April period, Texas had a total of $429,264,000, compared to $391,371,000 the same period last year.

The Agriculture Department blamed the national decline on a drop of about six percent in the prices farmers receive, and a reduction in the volume of marketing.

Stock receipts were down only about six percent. Poultry and eggs declined 20 percent.

In addition, some loss is expected in wheat and cotton income because of smaller crops and lower prices.

The four states other than Texas with gains for the first four months with comparative figures for the 1949 and 1950 periods: Illinois $505,950,000 in 1949; $506,324,000 in 1950; Florida $171,261,000 and $20,077,000; Kentucky $174,896,000 and $176,432,000; Oklahoma $125,771,000 and $135,264,000.

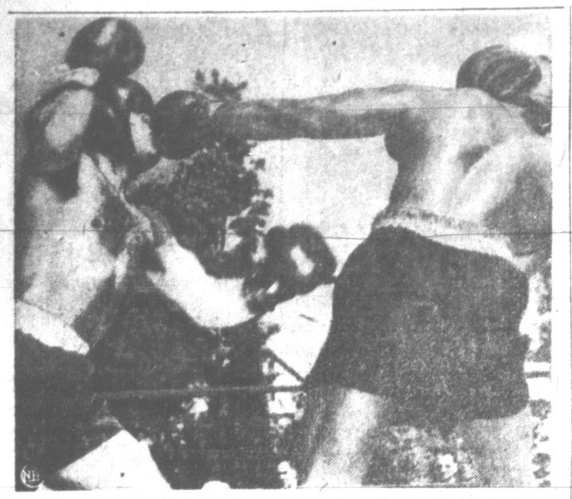
Jean Duenkel Champ Again In Ladies Golf Tournament



RIGHT ON THE NOSE—Sparring partner Jimmy Taylor lands a left jab smack dab on Jake LaMotta's proboscis at Kiamesha Lake, N.Y. The recipient is preparing to defend the world middleweight championship against ex-titleholder Rocky Graziano at the Polo Grounds, June 28.

The annual Ladies All-City Golf Tournament came to an end yesterday afternoon at the Pampa Country Club when Mrs. Jean Duenkel won the title for the second consecutive year by outfiring Mrs. Floy Heath, 4 and 3, in the finals of the Championship Flight.

Mrs. Duenkel, displaying her usual steadiness, stroked beautifully yesterday, and fired long shots from the tees and then performed superbly on the greens. Mrs. Heath got off some very nice drives, but consistently overran the pins. Both ladies fired 45's on the front nine holes, and both were four over par on the fifteenth green, where they ended their match and came in.

In the consolation finals of the Championship Flight, Marjorie Austin outfired Darlene Earp, 4-3 to annex the title.

Closest match of the day was the Nola Fade-Irene Beagle match, in which Mrs. Fade won, 1-up on the final hole. Mrs Fade shot a 101, while Mrs. Beagle was one higher with a 102.

The complete final results:

CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT

Jean Duenkel def. Floy Heath, 4-3.

CONSOLATION

Marjorie Austin def. Darlene Earp, 4-3.

"A" FLIGHT

Sally McGinnis def. Fern Parker, 4-3.

CONSOLATION

Nola Fade def. Irene Beagle, 1 up.

"B" FLIGHT

Lillian McWright def. Lois Watkins, 3-2.

All winners received trophies.

Mangrum, Golf's Hottest, Is Man to Beat in PGA Tourney

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y. —(AP)— Wheeling along the road today toward Columbus, Ohio, and the Professional Golfers' Association Championship is a guy who will bear watching — and not because he's loaded with fresh money.

Lloyd Mangrum rates as the man to beat in the PGA event as he currently is the hottest thing in golf, with $8,100 in prize money to show for the last three weeks of play.

He picked up $3,000 yesterday by winning the ninth annual Palm Beach Round-Robin Tournament, the sum going into the kitty along with the $2,500 he won for finishing second, after a playoff, in the National Open, and the $2,600 he picketed in winning the Fort Wayne, Ind., Open the preceding week.

There was nothing flukey about the dapper guy's triumph. He demonstrated convincingly he was the best of the field of 16 star pros in every phase of the four-day, five-round event.

He had the highest point total, 37, with Lawson Little a distant second with 20 points.

His medal score of 344 for the five rounds was nine strokes better than that of the second low man in that department, Claude Harmon.

He shot one round of 65, tieing the competitive course record.

He was the only entrant to be under par for each of the five rounds.

He beat the two men with whom he tied in the open — Ben Hogan and George Fazio — by 20 and 21 strokes, respectively. As they suffered a letdown, Mangrum's game blossomed.

The Palm Beach tournament schedule provides that each player play in a foursome with each other player in one of the five rounds. Points are computed by comparing the medal scores of the foursome members. That is, a man shooting a 70 would be plus two over a rival shooting a par 72.

Little, with a point score of plus 20 and a medal score of 353, took second money of $2,000 in the $15,000 event, and Claude Harmon won $1,500 for third place. He had plus 15, three points better than fourth-place Herman Barron.

Behind the third-place Harmon the players finished as follows: Herman Barron, plus 12; Art Bell, plus 10; Cary Middlecoff, plus 10; Jimmy Demaret, plus 2; Sam Snead, plus 2; Jim Ferrier, zero;

Jack Burke Jr., zero; Hogan, minus 12; Norman Von Nida, minus 13; George Fazio, minus 15; Paul Runyan, minus 18; Fred Hass Jr., minus 20, and Chick Harbert, minus 31.

Lubbock Takes Two In Doubleheader With Gassers

LUBBOCK — (AP) — Lubbock trimmed Fred Parker and the Borger Gassers in both ends of a doubleheader here Sunday afternoon, 10-8 and 6-5, to hand the visitors their fifth and sixth straight defeats.

Chris Haskins, who collapsed from sunstroke after finishing the first game, won the opener by scattering 10 hits effectively. The Gassers pounded him for six runs in the first two innings, but Haskins settled down to win his ninth game of the year.

In the nightcap Hook Epperson won his sixth game of the year although he needed help in the seventh from Royce Mills. The Hubbers scored six runs in the first two innings off Parker and made them stand up, despite a Gasser challenge in the final frame.

At the hospital, where Haskins was taken by ambulance after his collapse in the Hubber clubhouse, physicians reported that his condition was not considered serious. He apparently suffered sunstroke, brought on by the heat and by kidney trouble with which he has been suffering.

NCAA Tourney Begins Today; Cochell Tops

By BO BYERS

AUSTIN — (AP) — First and second-round play began here today in the 66th annual NCAA Tennis Tournament.

Most of the gallery watched the match in which Herb Flam of UCLA, seeded no. 2, opened his bid for the title against Hugh Sweeney of Houston.

Only other seeded player competing during the morning was Tony Vincent, no. 9, of Miami University. He matched strokes with Darrell Winrich of College of the Pacific.

Earl Cochell of the University of Southern California ruled the early favorite to cop the championship despite his seeding of no. 3 behind Jack Tuero, Tulane, no. 1, and Flam.

Cochell, who beat Flam yesterday at Houston for the Texas Sectional Tennis Tournament title, is rated seventh among the nation's amateurs. Flam ranks tenth and Tuero fourteenth. Seedings for the present tourney were based primarily on performance in last year's NCAA meet and this season's college play.

A bang-up battle between Dick Savitt of Cornell, seeded no. 5, and Glenn Bassett of UCLA was anticipated by the gallery in the afternoon. Bassett is unseeded, but he has the ability to pull a minor upset.

UCLA and USC are co-favorites to win team honors. It could easily be an all-California finals in both singles and doubles. UCLA has four singles entries, two of them among the top four seeded players, and two doubles combines, the Flam-Garnett team seeded no. 2.

USC has the same number of singles entries, three of their four men being seded between third and eighth, and its one doubles team of Cochell - Hugh Stewart is seeded first.

Texas Is Victor in NCAA Baseball Play; East-West to Clash

OMAHA — (AP) — The two remaining undefeated teams in the NCAA baseball tournament —one from the East, the other the West — clash today in a game that will give a solid advantage to the winner.

Rutgers and Washington State are scheduled to meet at 6:30 p.m. (CST). The winner will be the only team in the tourney for whom defeat will not mean elimination.

Last night's play trimmed the field to six. Texas sent Colorado A&M home, taking the Aggies 3-1 and Tufts came from behind to oust Bradley 5-4.

For any one of the four teams who have already lost one game in the double elimination tourney, a second defeat will mark the end of the tournament road.

Texas and Tufts will play the second game today at 9 p. m. (CST). That game constitutes a schedule change.

Taking a rest today will be Wisconsin and Alabama.

Texas, defending champion, in beating the Colorado Aggies, picked up two runs in the fifth on singles by Ben Tompkins and Frank Kana, a double by Kal Segrist, a walk and an error.

The Longhorns added another in the seventh on a walk and Gus Hrncir's double.

The Coloradoan's got their tally on two solid singles and a scratch hit in the eighth.

Tufts' winning run was scored when Bradley relief pitcher Don Alford hit a batter with a pitched ball with the bases full.

Lamesa Trips Dukes 9 to 5 in Battle Of Unearned Tallies

LAMESA — (AP) — The Lamesa Lobos captured a battle of unearned runs here Sunday afternoon by defeating the Albuquerque Dukes, 9 to 5, behind the seven-hit hurling of Eulis Rosson.

Only 915 fans, one of the smallest crowds of the season, braved the heat to view the opener of a three-game series.

Rosson registered his ninth win of the season and allowed only one earned run. Manager Jodie Beeler gave Rosson top defensive support with what may be a league record. Beeler compiled a total of 13 assists at second base without an error. None were on double plays.

Lamesa collected only eight hits off three Duke hurlers but was the recipient of six unearned runs and took advantage of rookie Jordan Pitta's wildness.

Albuquerque opened the scoring in the second on a walk to Art Cuitti and Bob Bartolomie's single on which Jay Haney errored, allowing Cuitti to score.

Lamesa tied it up in the same frame on a walk to Bill Ashley, Pitta's balk and singles by Dan Pinto and Frank Calo.

Both teams staged rallies in the fifth. The Dukes counted three runs on singles by Earl Harriman and Stan Surma, coupled with three costly Lobo errors by Calo, Pedro Santiago and Bo Dempsey.

'Rich' Sparks Oilers To 11-9 Win Over Sox

Virgil Richardson almost single handedly snapped the Amarillo Gold Sox "jinx" over the Pampa Oilers in Oiler Park yesterday afternoon when he slapped a two-run homer in the bottom half of the ninth inning ending a performance in which he drove in six runs, to down the Amarillo visitors, 11-9. "Big Rich" got a double and two homers in pacing the Oiler attack that gave them their twenty-second victory in their last twenty-six games, and their first triumph of the season over the Soxers. The Pampans had lost five times previously this year to their arch rivals.

Richardson's big blow, with Joe Fortin on base, climaxed an evening of spine-tingling entertainment that had 1,068 fans sitting on the edge of their seats throughout most of the game. The Oilers jumped to an early 9-2 lead, but saw their advantage melt under the Sox heavy artillary, until Richardson's blow saved the tilt from extra innings.

Earl Doud, erratic righthander started on the mound for the locals, but ran into trouble at the first. Singles by Jim Higgins and Doug Lewis and Jim Bynon's long double shoved the visiting outfit in to a 2-0 headway in the first inning.

But the Oilers went to work on Sox starter Andy "Ace" Adams in the third when Dick Dawson started things by poling a home run over the left field boards. Deck Woldt doubled, Homer Matney flied out to center, before Joltin' Joe Fortin smashed another circuiter over the left field barrier to give the Pampans a 3-2 lead.

The margin was lengthened considerably in the fourth when singles by Woldt and Matney, Dawson's double, and Richardson's first home run with the bases loaded gave the Oilers six runs and shoved them into their 9-2 lead.

In the barrage, Adams was lifted in favor of rookie Joel Calloway who blanked the Oilers the rest of the way, until he was sent to the showers in favor of a ninth inning pinch hitter. Meanwhile, the Sox kept pecking away at the seemingly gigantic Oiler heading.

A double by Tom Caliento scored Crawford Howard from first after the Amarillo first baseman had been struck by a pitched ball in the top of the fourth. Then Doud settled down and blanked the Sox until a five run rally in the eighth ended his mound attempts and brought Mack Hyde to the hill, Doud walked Ed Brown and Rocco Cardinale, allowed Nease a double and Calloway a single and had two men on base and one down when Hyde came on. Hyde filled the sacks when he walked Higgins, but struck out Bynon before Doug Lewis slashed a base clearing double to right field and brought the losers into within one run of the Oilers, 8-9.

Nease opened the ninth inning Amarillo attack with a single after one was down. Hyde hit Ed Brown before Cardinale lifted a high fly to Homer Matney in centerfield. Matney went deep against the boards, but, in the bright sunlight, dropped the ball and Nease sped to third. Pinch slugger Metz LaFollette drove a high fly to Fortin but Nease raced home after the catch to knot the score. Lefty Roy Parker was called in to toss to southpaw Jim Higgins and stopped the rally by pulling down a scorching line drive.

Fastballer Ray Faust was then sent to the mound for the fatal ninth, and walked Joe Fortin before Richardson drove one of his fast ones over the right centerfield boards.

Parker, who tossed to only one man, received credit for the win, and Faust who pitched to two, was charged with the loss.

The teams will clash in the second game of their three game series tonight beginning at 8:30. George Payte will hurl for the Oilers, against big Metz LaFollette, ace of the Gold Sox staff. The last Oiler game of the home stand is slated Tuesday night with the Gold Sox, and then the Pampans will leave for an extended road tour until July 3.

Shoo-In Victory for Trojans Expected in Madison Track Meet

MINNEAPOLIS — (AP) — Southern California's track squad headed today for the Big Ten-Pacific Coast conference meet at Madison, Wis., and, unless performances in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's annual affair mean nothing, a shoo-in victory.

The Trojans captured their 14th NCAA crown Saturday in the University of Minnesota's Memorial Stadium by rolling up 49 1-5 points, putting them well ahead of second place Stanford which had 28.

Yale, a pre-meet favorite to give Southern California a battle in its attempt to repeat its 1949 victory, wound up in third palce wth 27 points.

Two NCAA records were broken by a Yale man, Jim Fuchs, to set a new shotput record, and Canadian born Don McEwen of Michigan raced handily to a new mark in the two-mile.

Fuchs bettered the old mark of 56 feet 1 1-2 inches which he set by tossing the ball 56 feet 11 3-16 inches in Saturday's finals.

McEwen shaved seven-tenths of a second off the two-mile mark, McEwen ran the distance in 9:01.9, compared with the 9:02.6 set by Greg Rice of Notre Dame in 1939.

Other finishers were Morgan State with 20 points, Rice 18, Occidental 17, Notre Dame 14, San Diego State 14 1-3, Texas and Kansas State 13 each, Tulane 12, Pennsylvania and Michigan State 11 each.

Let's Talk Things Over

With Gabby Garrison

For almost a month now, I've been content to report on various sports activities in this area and comment on the occurrences, and never once has the name of my Alma Mater crept to these pages. Perhaps the reason has been that some fans may have taken the mention as a sort of bragging or "blowing my horn," but the truth is, the whole Texas Panhandle actually does have something to discuss about West Texas State College in Canyon. . .especially the more sports minded people.

For years, the small college of less than 1500 students has fielded some really great small school athletic representatives. I say small school representatives because the Buffaloes could hardly be expected to furnish the brand of entertainment as seen by some of the larger schools. But, in past years, the West Texas basketball teams have been particularly outstanding, in battling these large schools and it is with this phase of activity that I am now concerned.

Although it is several months before basketball comes into the limelight, cage fans at WTSC are going in the air over their 1950-51 team and the toughest schedule in the history of the famous basketball school.

Coach Gus Miller, who has worked himself into an inside track by being elected president of the National Association of Intercollegiate Basketball, has abandoned the "crying" technique this year, and comes out with a type of sulliness that is making his list of foes take notice. Miller, author of the famous West Texas "freeze" system, could have several reasons for his unusual quietness. His last year's team, as regards to the freeze, will be remembered by such formidable opponents as Texas University, whom the Buffs surprised by freezing the ball over ten minutes; and Arizona University, whom the Thundering Herd outdid in their last conference game of the year by some 16 points. Upsets like these are what has featured the Buffalo court campaigning for many years. And next year may be the year to end all years.

The Panhandle hoopsters will be playing their first year in their new $400,000 field house. The structure will be equal to a six story building and have a seating capacity of over 4,000 persons. Included in that field house will be something I've wondered about for quite a while. The backboards will be transparent plastic, since a rule has been passed in the Border Conference stating that all new gyms built in the conference, must have these new backboards. But these new structural ideas won't be the only new things brought to this area by the basketeers. The famed Oklahoma A and M "Aggies," coached by Hank Iba, will dedicate the house on December 4. Orders for game tickets are already coming in, and officials aren't worried about the tilt attracting a capacity crowd. Then, the Buffs embark upon a season that will match them against Western Kentucky, Pepperdine of Los Angelas, Marshall of West Virginia, Murray State of Kentucky, and the University of New Mexico.

As if this isn't enough, Coach Miller announced last week that he has a game pending with Adolph Rupp's University of Kentucky Wildcats, for years one of the best in the nation. With a look at this schedule, one might hastily shake his head, shed a tear, and feel sorry for the West Texans. But here's where maybe I brag a little bit, save yourself the trouble. Next years Buffs will be able to take care of themselves.

Miller's team will average 6'-3", sparked by five juniors. The squad will probably field a starting line-up of all juniors, although Harold Robinson, Canyon sophomore, has been described as the best Buff prospect in the past ten years. Robinson stands 6'2" tall and hits the basket from all angles. He is an adept ball handler, and may team with Soph Buck Young, all-stater in 1949 from Santa Rosa, New Mexico, in furnishing the Herd with one of the slickest guard combo's in recent years.

Already tabbed as possible all-time greats in the annals of West Texas hoop history, are Nolan Poteet, rangy pivot man from Samnorwood; Austell Burrus, star of last year's upset over Texas University; Dwaine Stewart, 6'-3" forward who dumped 27 points in the NAIB playoffs against Texas Wesleyan; Mose Hale, nifty guard from Goodwell, Oklahoma; and Bill Price, jumping-jack guard who was a real crowd pleaser last year with his baffling type backboard play and ball handling finesse. Then there are reserves Dennis Walling, Neil Spurlock, Lonnie Rice and Roy Hubbs, to join with Robinson and Young in providing capable substitutions.

No, I can hardly see why anybody would weep for the Buffalos. Maybe it's just school loyalty, but with a coach like Miller, and a squad like I just mentioned, it would be a fatal mistake to underestimate their ability. One shouldn't have to attend West Texas to be justly proud of the scrappers — they've given this Texas Panhandle a place with the best in the basketball world.

Bosox Beaten by Tigers Sixth Consecutive Time

By JOE REICHLER
AP Sports Writer

"If we could only beat Boston we might have a chance."

This was manager Red Rolfe's stock answer to spring queries regarding Detroit's pennant chances for 1950.

Rolfe knew what he was talking about. His Tigers won only seven games from the Red Sox in 1949 while losing 15. They finished fourth, 10 games behind the New York Yankees.

The Tigers have met the Red Sox a dozen times thus far and have come off with nine victories. That is two more than they were able to win from Boston in their entire 1949 season. That, in a nutshell, is the chief reason why the Bengals are leading the rest of the American League by two full games today.

Detroit made it nine triumphs in the last 10 games yesterday—the sixth in succession over the Red Sox — by trouncing Boston, 10-2. Art Houtteman went all the way for his eighth victory. He allowed seven hits, but two of them were homers by Ted Williams and Vern Stephens to account for Boston's runs.

Despite the victory, Detroit's first place margin was shaved a half-game by the Yankees, who whipped the St. Louis Browns, 15-5 and 9-0, in both ends of a doubleheader in St. Louis.

Cleveland's Indians ruined "Fathers Day" for Connie Mack, baseball's oldest daddy, by blasting his Philadelphia Athletics twice, 7-0 and 21-2. After Bobby Feller blanketed the A's with two hits in the first game, the Indians scored a record 14 runs in the first inning of the nightcap.

Brooklyn's Dodgers climbed to within a half-game of the National League leading St. Louis Cardinals by whipping the Redbirds for the third straight time, 9-0. Philadelphia's third place Phillies moved to within a game and a half of the top, tripping the Cincinnati Reds twice, 4-3 and 4-2.

The Giants trounced the Chicago Cubs twice, 6-0 and 10-5, to creep up to within a half game of the fifth place Bruins. Boston's Braves won their sixth straight, defeating Pittsburgh 8-6 in the first game of a doubleheader, the second was called after nine innings on account of darkness and a curfew law with the score tied at 8-8. The game will be replayed tonight.

The scheduled doubleheader between Washington and the White Sox in Chicago was postponed by rain.

Cleveland's 14 runs were the most ever made in the first inning. The previous high was 13 made by the Braves in 1900 and the Giants in 1911. The A's held the American League mark of 12, set in 1937. Three other clubs since 1900 tallied 14 runs in an inning.

Feller won his sixth game in the opener. A single by Wally Moses in the first and another one-bagger by Mike Guerra in the eighth were the only hits off the former strikeout king. Mike Garcia won his fifth in the finale.

Tommy Byrne won his eighth game, helping his own cause with a home run and double in the opener against the Browns. Allie Reynolds, his Yankee pitching mate, hurled the shutout in the nightcap.

Dan Bankhead blanked the Cardinals on six hits for Brooklyn. It was his first major league shutout. Duke Snider rapped four hits while Jackie Robinson batted in four runs for the Dodgers.

The Phils got some fine pitching from bonus kids Curt Simmons and Bob Miller. Simmons paces seven hits for his eighth triumph in the opener. Miller allowed eight hits to register his fifth triumph without a loss.

Larry Jansen, proud papa of six children, really had himself a Father's Day. The Giant right-hander allowed only three Chicago hits in registering his second straight shutout.

Dave Koslo, helped by homers by Wes Westrum and Hank Thompson, won his sixth game in the nightcap.

Tommy Holmes drove in three runs to lead the Braves to their first game victory over Pittsburgh.

George Kell Thinks He Will Repeat as AL Batting Champ

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEH YORK — (NEA) — A year ago there wasn't a peep out of George Clyde Kell.

When Kell won the American League batting championship by .0002 with .343, everybody said it was too bad to see a great hitter like Ted Williams beaten out of it.

Nothing was said about the Red Sox slugger tailing off, the Tigers' third baseman coming on like Middleground in the Belmont.

This season Kell, traveling at a robust .380, obviously is out to demonstrate that his showing the way to the hitters was no accident, which baseball people knew it wasn't all along. The Arkansas school teacher was on his merry way in 1946-47, when he batted .322 and .320, literally got a bad break when a line drive off Joe DiMaggio's bat fractured his lower jaw in '48.

Perhaps the most unusual thing about the quiet Kell this trip is his telling the cockeyed world that he believes he can repeat as batting champion and take the toothy Tigers to the pennant with him. He is telling Williams and the others to come and get it if they can.

Scaling the heights did something to the soft-spoken, grossly-underpublicized Kell, gave him a terrific lift.

"A year ago I wasn't thinking this way," says the Detroit star, "but now I don't see any reason in the world why I can't win the batting championship again. I've been pulling the ball better the last three years."

Al Simmons, now coaching the Indians, made a suggestion to Kell that helped lift him from a .270 hitter with the Athletics, swat the sphere savagely and on a line to all fields.

"I was a pinch hitter," explains the sturdily-built, reddish-haired Arkansas State alumnus. "Simmons saw that I wasn't getting around on the ball.

"He suggested that I try a lighter bat, so I switched from a heavy 37-ouncer to a 32-ouncer, the smallest in the majors.

"With the A's, I stood far back in the batter's box, and because I wasn't giving the club all the help I believed I should, I switched to a position even with the plate and three or four inches from it.

"It was the combination of the new position and the light bat which got me out in front of the ball where I could pull it.

"I know all about the Rogers Hornsby and Stanley Musial theory of standing as far back in the batter's box as you can get, and hitting the ball at the last possible second after the pitch has expended itself.

"Musial plainly does that naturally better than I did. I get better results trying to hit the ball before it breaks fully."

Modest George Kell telling you what he intends to do to the pitchers — and how — typifies the new aggressiveness of the Tigers.

Pioneers Climb From Cellar by Pasting Abilene Sox

ABILENE — (AP) — The Blue Sox ran fresh out of pitchers Sunday and the Clovis Pioneers took quick advantage of the situation to score a 19-7 victory and climb out of the cellar after less than 24 hours of residence therein.

The Pioneers broke out in a rash of base hits in the second inning against Tony Estrello, Cuban righthander, and scored seven times before another pitcher could get warmed up. A three-run homer by Peter Trabucco was the payoff. The ninth batter up that inning, he knocked Estrello out with the seventh hit of the frame.

Practice Hitting From All Lies To Develop Proper Hand Action

By GENE SARAZEN
Winner of Them All

A Cardinal practice error is to nudge each shot into a perfect lie.

You can never develop proper hand action if you sweep the ball rather than strike it.

Practice hitting balls out of fair, poor and downright bad lies, otherwise you can accomplish just as much staying in the clubhouse and playing a few hands of pinochle.

I am against preferred lies on the course unless conditions truly warrant this. Our national infatuation with scores and record-breaking lies behind this deplorable trend.

I sympathize with the millions of golfers who read that the sand iron shot is really a cinch, but who encounter paralysis every time they step into a bunker. Sew clubs provide facilities for practicing trap shots.

After the golfer finishes a lesson on how to get out of traps, the club professional admonishes him to be sure and practice that stroke. The zealous pupil takes his wedge and a few balls out to a trap, but before he has played five shots some emissary from the pro shop dashes out to ask him if he doesn't know he's spattering the green with sand and didn't he ever read the green committee's regulation that under no conditions will any member practice in a trap?

The commonsensical solution is for clubs to build practice traps. While they are at it, they might think about erecting an inexpensive canvas awning so zealous players could practice in all kinds of weather. Lessons would not have to be cancelled because of rain.

Practice greens would bear at least a vague resemblance to the greens on the course.

OUT — Familiarizing himself with the sand iron through practice, Frank Stranahan, above, blasts out of a trap properly.

Certified Douglas fir seed is being introduced in the northwest.

Lie's Plan for Red China Hit By GOP Solons

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Two Republican senators say Trygve Lie should be ousted as secretary general of the United Nations unless he withdraws his proposal for recognition of Communist China.

In a joing statement, Senators Bridges of New Hampshire and Knowland of California accused Lie of being a tool, if not an actual ally, of the Reds, and called on the administration to seek his discharge if he doesn't stop urging that a Chinese Communist be seated on the U.N. Security Council.

"Lie says, in effect, if Russia will not accept the rules of the U.N., the rules must be changed," their statement said. "He adopts the same tool, if not their actual ally.

"What Lie proposes is more than mere craven appeasement. It is surrender, abject capitulation."

The two senators said the United States should use its veto, if necessary, to prevent a Chinese Communist from taking a seat on the security council.

"There is grave danger," they added, "that the Soviet Union may destroy the United Nations by holding a gun at the head of each free nation with a dictate 'do it our way—or else.' "

Canadian Sentenced To Die for Slayig

NAPANEE, Ont. —(AP)— James Fosbraey, 29-year-old Royal Air Force veteran, has been sentenced to hang for the knife-slaying of his pretty young wife.

A jury convicted him in less than an hour after hearing letters he wrote his wife, threatening to kill her and charging her with a romance with another veteran.

The English-born veteran showed no emotion when sentence was passed.

He will be hanged Sept. 21.

Housework Easy Without Nagging Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Artist Is Careful After First Mistake

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — The artist who put the wrong Spanish flag on Col. Robert R. McCormick's airplane checked and double-checked this time before he added 28 new miniature emblems.

The remodeled B-17 in which Col. McCormick, editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, has flown over the world has been undergoing overhaul and engine replacement here recently.

Artist Ted Grohs accidentally put the flag of the defunct Spanish republic, instead of the Franco government emblem, on the plane before McCormick's recent goodwill trip to Spain. That's been fixed, of course, and Grohs has added the new ones including such out of the way places as Andorra, Pakistan, Cyprus, Faroese and San Marino. Sixty-eight countries are now represented by flags on the fuselage.

that communism charges will play any part in his campaign against James Roosevelt, eldest son of the late president and Democratic nominee for governor of California.

Duff said, however, that he thinks the people of Pennsylvania and other states are worried about the possibility that some Communists or fellow travelers are holding government office. He added that the administration was not "coming clean" with facts about subversives.

Dewey, who announced last week that he won't run again for governor of New York, seemed more impressed than the other Republican governors with the fact that McCarthy — despite his methods — may have taken hold of a man-sized issue for the November congressional elections.

Dewey's friends said the New York governor has had no political love for McCarthy since the latter worked for former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota in the critical Oregon primary in 1948. Dewey beat Stassen in that primary and went on to win the GOP presidential nomination.

Despite this, Dewey wouldn't take the opportunity to join Duff and Warren in public criticism of McCarthy's methods.

Their confessions followed a pattern which had been repreated frequently in trials behind the Iron Curtain.

The U. S. State Department branded the trial as "devoid of justice, inadequate as to evidence, and replete with falsehoods."

Sosthenese Behn, chairman of the board of I.T. and T. denounced the charges as "fantastic in the extreme and totally untrue."

The State Department has raised the question whether Vogeler was subjected to "coercion by intimidation, lack of food, drugging or other forms of mistreatment."

The State Department declined comment last night on the report Vogeler's release is being negotiated. Other sources said the dickering is in a fairly advanced stage but also noted that previous negotiations fell through.

Mrs. Vogeler said she has learned that her husband is in good physical condition and that he has been kept in a prison at Vacs, 23 miles north of Budapest.

Lt. William Nelson of Augusta, Kan., brought the Caroline over in 14 hours 18 minutes in a flight he described as routine:

"The takeoff was smooth. The ride was smooth. The landing was smooth."

The Marines aboard the Caroline weren't too happy for a while, however. They were jammed into the plane's lower deck before the takeoff. It was hot and stuffy.

After the craft was airborne, the upper "smoking" deck was opened. Some slept through the night on mattresses spread on the decks.

With the major league trading deadline past, it's safe to suggest an idea.

Too often clubs make a deal, then find they've traded a peach for a lemon.

Why don't they put all major league deals under the jurisdiction of the Fair Trade Commission?

Paul Calvert, the Detroit right-hander, broke Yankee Bob Porterfield's jaw with a pitch. A few days later, in an exhibition game, he beaned the Reds' Danny Litwhiler.

One thing about old Paul; he's consistent.

Calvert is getting quite a name as a relief pitcher.

As far as opposing batters are concerned, it's a relief when he's through for the day.

A country gal married a big league pitcher. The first time she listened to a broadcast of a game he pitched, she went home to her mother.

He tracked her down, and asked for an explanation.

"I won't stay married to a man who quits work to go out and get drunk," she said.

"The announcer kept saying that you were high and outside."

Things are looking a bit better for Cincinnati fans.

There are indications of a return of that old Blackwell magic. kayoed George (Sugar) Costner in the first round.

When you put two lumps together, you're bound to have a sweet ending.

It was the second time that Sugar Ray had stopped Sugar George in the first.

Costner must be wondering what the bell sounds like.

Most basketball authorities agree that height and speed are the two most important ingredients for success on the court.

Just another case, where you lose if you're too litte or too late.

Sen. Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin thinks there are Communists in the State Department wood-pile.

Manager Joseph McCarthy of Boston hopes there are more sluggers in his wood-pile.

Newest name for Marlene Bauer, the 15-year-old golfing sensation — she's a juvenile delink-queen.

Things are looking black for some of the National League teams — Blackwell, that is. The Cincinnati Reds' Ewell Blackwell seems to have regained winning form.

Maybe Ol' Buggy Whip will have the lash laugh on his critics yet.

Former Stage Star Is Seriously Ill

SANTA MONICA, Calif. —(AP)— Serious illness has hospitalized Jane Cowl, popular and beautiful stage star of a generation ago and once known as america's foremost "Juliet."

A physician said she entered the hospital 10 days ago and has undergone surgery in an effort to correct a chronic abdominal ailment. The duration of her hospital stay is undetermined.

Miss Cowl, now 65, made her debut in 1903, played "Romeo and Juliet" in 856 consecutive performances in New York beginning Jan. 24, 1923, and starred in such hits as "Lilac Time," "Smilin' Through" and "Within the Law." She moved to Hollywood several years ago.

A Doctor Advised Hadacol for Mrs. Wade—Relieved Her Neuritis Pains and Gas on Stomach

Her trouble caused by deficiencies in Vitamins B_1, B_2, Iron and Niacin

Day after day, we are besieged by letters pouring in, telling of the almost miraculous results the great new HADACOL treatment is giving folks who are troubled with these deficiencies. Just read what Mrs. Myrtle Wade,* Route 1 of Martin, Tennessee, writes:

"I have been sick for quite some time with a nervous condition. I am 58 years old. I asked my doctor about taking HADACOL as I was taking shots every week from him. He told me to take it for it was good to build a weak person up. So I got a bottle and took it.

"Before I started HADACOL I ached all over with neuritis pains. I had a lot of trouble with gas after every meal. Nothing agreed with me. By the time I took HADACOL a few days I could tell I was getting better. I got my third bottle today and I tell everyone I see what a wonderful medicine it is. All who have taken it tell me they feel so much better and sleep so good at night.

"I only wish I'd begun taking HADACOL long ago, but as I had tried most everything with no results I kept putting it off but I can truthfully say HADACOL has done more for me than anything I've tried."

Ask your own doctor if this isn't so. A lack of only a small amount of Vitamins B_1, B_2, Iron and Niacin can cause much sickness—neuritis aches and pains (commonly called rheumatism pain), stomach distress, gas, indigestion, and a general all-around run-down condition being but a few.

So don't keep on taking products which give only temporary relief. Common sense will tell you that you must get at the cause of such deficiencies. And now—thanks to HADACOL—it's at last possible to do so.

Helps You Feel Wonderful

HADACOL supplies your deficient system with extra amounts of these vital elements and starts you on the road to feeling better, often within a few days' time. And if you take this great medicine regularly — it helps prevent such miseries from coming back. HADACOL comes in liquid form so that it's more quickly and easily absorbed in the blood. It even builds up the hemoglobin content of red blood cells (where iron is needed) to carry these precious health-building elements to every organ of your body — to the heart, lungs, liver and kidneys — even to the eyes, hair and nails.

Sold on A Strict Money-Back Guarantee

Make up your mind that you'll start the great HADACOL treatment today. Just see if you won't thank us again and again for making public these facts about one of the greatest medical blessings of all times.

HADACOL costs only $1.25 for a trial size bottle. Large family or hospital size, $3.50. It is sold only on a strict money-back guarantee.

NEW YORK —(NEA)— Rayon jersey separates make the traveler's dream wardrobe come true. The six pieces shown sell for under $40. Adaptable designs outfit a girl for almost any occasion, from dawn to dinner dancing. They pack literally with a twist of the wrist into an overnight bag.

To pack the dinner skirt (right), the traveler properly twists the fabric like a piece of taffy so that accordion pleats will stay crisp. Out of her tiny suitcase, she pulls the apricot and beige jersanese ensembles shown left.

Dressed up for town or travel she wears a short skirt, sleveless blouse and rib-hugging jacket (upper left inset). Without the jacket and with the addition of a soft cummerbund, she's cool and casually dressed for country informality (upper right inset). For sunning (lower right inset) the blouse teams up with accordion-pleated shorts. Evening wear (lower left inset) introduces the floor-length pleated skirt and brings back the jacket, this time without the blouse, to show off a deep V neckline, and the cummerbund sash-tied at the side.

The words to the patriotic hymn, "America", were written in 1832 by a theological student, Samuel Francis Smith, to the tune, "God Save the King", which he found in a German songbook.

Are YOU a Mature Parent?

Here's new perspective on child-parent relations . . . a unique series by Harold F. Strong, shown here in his role as "proxy father" to some 400 "problem boys" . . . written for every normal child and his normal parent . . . 10 articles that hit hard with the impact of experience .

By HAROLD F. STRONG
Written for NEA Service

When parents come to terms with their own fears and insecurities, problem children will cease to be problems.

The current vogue of books on parent guidance, our growing interest in some magic way to win our youngsters' love and respect, are indications of the uncertainty we feel in our dealings with them.

But in our zeal to follow the experts' prescriptions for giving children "understanding" and a "feeling of acceptance," we have lost sight of the all-important fact that these good gifts can be made only by parents who understand and accept themselves.

The mother of a boy branded in court as "incorrigible" said to me: "I tried to keep a decent home. He had love. But he always had a will of his own. I never dared cross him."

She was suffering from humiliation and grief over her son's trouble. She was also suffering from fear of him. Although she loved him sincerely, fear was stronger; that's why he was in trouble.

When we grant children the right to their own ideas, to speak their own minds and feelings, we should not forget to claim the same rights for ourselves. We live by our convictions of right and wrong. And we can champion these convictions fearlessly, without dread of inducing dark and mysterious ailments in our children.

A child's emotional health isn't endangered by a just and indignant rebuke to something wrong. It can be seriously impaired if he has to live with a parent made irritable and uncertain by suppressed humiliation and resentment.

When you find yourself constantly excusing your child's bad temper or impudence, it's time to take inventory of your feelings, not of his.

Don't be shocked when you discover what you really feel. If it is indignation and anger, accept them. Your reaction is proper and natural. If you accept it, you'll find your own way to convey your indignant reaction as natural and proper to your child—and give him perhaps his first inkling of the human being behind the parent he has bullied and taken for granted.

When we withhold correction from a child who needs it, our motive is less often love for him than fear of what he may do to hurt us in reprisal.

Preservation of Foods Studied by Merten HD Club

The Merten Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. Jack Prather with the president, Mrs. C. A. Jones, in charge of the meeting.

Mrs. T. G. Groves led a 10-minute discussion on "Recommendation for Improving the Fair Products."

Mrs. H. H. Threatt conducted the discussion of the "Pressure Cooker Method of Canning," treating the method in all its phases from pre-treatment of food through packing to processing.

The three types of processing were listed as: pressure canner method, for all non-acid vegetables and meats; boiling water bath, for tomatoes, fruits, and juice; open kettle method, for relishes, jelly, and preserves.

Mrs. Threatt stated that oven canning, intermittent sterilization, and the use of canning powders were to be avoided, with the exception of calcium chloride salt tablets and ascorbic acid. The former, using one tablet per pint, she stated, may be used to keep tomatoes firm, and the latter prevents darkening of peaches, pears, and plums when used 125 mg. per pint.

Mrs. A. M. Nash gave the Gray County Council report.

Refreshments consisted of ice cream and cake, frozen in layers, and iced drinks.

Those present were Mmes. Vardeman Smith, John Brandon, A. Swafford, T. G. Groves, A.M. Threatt, and three guests, Mrs. Anne Blankenburg, Borger, mother of the hostess, Mrs. Earl Casey, and Mrs. Richard Casey and daughter, Sharon.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. V. S. Day.

Grace Friend . . .

GIRL WANTS TO CHOOSE OWN BOY FRIENDS

Dear Miss Friend:

I have a problem just the opposite of what you would expect from a 15-year-old girl. I don't have a boy problem, that is, not really.

My problem is caused by my parents who want me to have dates with the son of their best friends instead of with the boy I really like but whose parents are strangers to mine.

They are always saying that girls should have dates with boys in our own social circles and not with boys with different backgrounds.

And yet, Miss Friend, the funny thing about my situation is that the boy my parents approve of is not nearly as well behaved when we are out on dates as the boy my parents don't want me to see.

What is the answer to this?
Lula

Dear Lula:

It is natural that your parents, best for you always, to know some who love you and want the very concern as to whom you date. So, of course, it always happens that they will prefer for you to go out with the boy whose parents they know.

It is interesting that parents, in their zeal for your welfare, some times choose the wrong young men.

I would suggest that you conduct yourself in such a way that your parents will develop confidence in your judgment and will allow you to choose your friends where you will.

Bring the young man to your home so that your father and mother will have a chance to talk to him and learn something of his background from him. As they know him better they will change their minds about him if he deserves it.

Don't worry too much about the situation as you are at an age where you soon may have a new and more interesting beau who will make you wonder what you saw in your present boy friend.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

Frozen Pack Can Be Block

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

I wonder how many Canasta players know the story of the goat who repeatedly charged at full speed into a stone wall, knocking himself unconscious several times an hour. A bystander asked the goat's owner, "Why does he do it? Is he blind?"

The owner answers, "He ain't blind. He just don't give a hang!"

When I see the way some intelligent and otherwise prudent players go all out for a frozen pack, I come to the conclusion that they also don't give a hang. For the benefit of those readers who don't enjoy charging into a stone wall, I offer the following advice: Don't compete for a frozen pack when the opponents have a far better chance to win it.

For example, suppose you and your partner each have only six cards, while the opponents each have ten cards. Both sides have melded, and one of the opponents now freezes the pack. Should you try to win the discard pile?

Not if you're in your right mind. You need a terrific combination of good luck for your side and stupid play by the opponents to get that pack. Just console yourself with the thought that you can't win every hand. Let the enemy take the pack and get their own wild card back. What can't be cured must be endured.

In such a situation, try to give the pack away early. Make the most dangerous discards immediately.

There's no great harm in losing a small discard pile; but you don't especially want to lose a really big one. Even if the opponents manage to win several small piles, that is better than letting them win one big one that contains just as many cards. Every time an opponent picks up the pack, he gives up the chance from the stock. By making him pick up several small piles you make him give up several draws from the stock — from which he might get additional wild cards or red threes.

Q — I had three jacks and two wild cards on the table. The pile was frozen. I had two jacks in my hand to take the pile in case a jack was thrown. The player at my right threw a jack, and I wanted to take it. The opponents said that I would then have eight cards in my canasta of jacks. They claimed that seven was the limit. Was this correct?

A — No. You need at least seven cards to make a canasta, but there is no rule against having more than seven.

Q — Both sides had melded. The pack was frozen. A ten was discarded to me, and I put a pair of tens down on the table. I then added the ten from the discard pile. I wanted to continue to meld some of the cards in the pile, but the opponents said I could meld only the tens at that turn. I could put the discard pile in my hand and could meld from it at my next turn — but not at that turn. Were they right?

A — No. You were entitled to put the pile in your hand and continue melding at that same turn.

Q — Are you allowed to take the last card of the stock and meld out? If so, are you allowed to make a discard as you meld out?

A — Yes to both questions. You are allowed to take the last card of the stock and meld out; and you may or may not (as you choose) discard at this play.

Q — Are you allowed to freeze the pack only against the opponents — or is a frozen pack frozen for everybody?

A — A frozen pack is frozen for everybody.

★ WE, THE WOMEN

By RUTH MILLETT
NEA Staff Writer

Did Johnny or Sue have an especially good teacher this past year — one who was genuinely interested in her students, whose fairness could be counted on, one who had the enthusiasm to make school work interesting?

If so, have you let her know just how much that meant to John or Sue and to you as a parent?

If not, why not send her a letter expressing your appreciation? Let's make it Good Teachers Week — with written thanks from grateful parents whose children were fortunate these past years to be in the hands of capable, likable teachers.

We parents know full well that what our children get out of school depends to a large extent on the kind of teachers they have. A good teacher can make a child like school, make him want to learn, help him to get along with his classmates and feel secure in the belief that in his school world he can count on justice from the highest authority — his teacher.

During the social period Mrs. Theresa Humphreys and Mrs. W. L. Parker won high prizes during a period of games. Prizes were Japanese vases.

Mrs. Roy Tinsley and Dorothy Barritt will be hostesses at the next meeting.

In the case of fruit stains, don't try to get them out with hot water. It will only set the stains. Instead, rinse the spots with cold water immediately after the stain appears.

Paint Job Given School Building

Hallways of Pampa's junior high school are getting a paint job from Maintenance Supervisor M. F. Helmick, and his busy crewmen.

The ceilings of the corridors are white, while the walls are getting a "sun tan" shade. The particular colors, said Helmick, were not chosen just because of looks, but also for the added light they give the passageways.

The library was painted in light green, with white ceilings. Library shelves got new varnish jobs.

Following the work at the junior high school, the supervisor said, about 1,000 desks at the senior high will be sanded and refinished.

The earliest known printing about America is the Columbus Letter, printed in 1493, a two-leaf news sheet announcing the discovery of the islands of the Indies to the Spanish court.

Unsung Heroine

One of the unsung but nevertheless worthy heroines of our day is Mrs. Clara Kibler of Cleveland, Ohio. Mrs. Kibler is one lady who not only whipped federal redtape but also showed up a few of the reasons why the U. S. Post Office Department can never break even.

Mrs. Kibler insured, to the sum of $5, some dishes which she mailed to a niece in Maryland. The dishes were smashed enroute and Mrs. Kibler properly lodged her claim.

Much more careful with the redtape than the post office, Mrs. Kibler's dealings the Post Office Department's claim department fill out forms, (2) demanded the original paper the dishes were wrapped in, (3) demanded pieces of the broken dishes for appraisal; (4) tried to get Mrs. Kibler agree to a $2 payment instead of the $5 which originally had been agreed upon and upon which basis Mrs. Kibler paid mail insurance.

To make a long story short, Mrs. Kibler spent more than $5 to collect her proper payment from the Post Office Department, she wasted a lot of her own time; caused postal employees to waste a lot of theirs, and probably suffered some ill effects from high blood pressure and indigestion. But because of the principle of the thing, the Cleveland woman stayed right there and pitched until she whipped government inefficiency and highhandedness to a frazzle.

Good for Mrs. Kibler. We cheer her not only because she won her rights over stupid bureaucracy, but also because she uncovered for all to see the sort of monkeybusiness which makes the U. S. Post Office Department so much more expensive to the taxpayer than it ought to be.

Gracie Says

By GRACIE ALLEN

"A fire whistle which was blown as a noontime reminder for more than 25 years has been discontinued by the City Council of Covina, California." It's about time — and if people need a whistle to remind them of lunch, they aren't very hungry. Also it's confusing to strangers.

A thing like that nearly ruined my Aunt Clara's married life. When she'd hear the church bell ring in her town she'd send her husband down to find out why it was ringing — but none ever came back, except the tenth one. He said it was ringing because a man was pulling the rope.

The first nine husbands were too bashful to go inside a church, so they asked at the pool hall and nobody knew. They're still there, playing pool and wondering.

A Republican victory in 1950 is a must, not only in the state but in the nation.
—Sen. Wayne Morse (R) of Oregon.

Soviet communism is in deadly earnest, whereas the so - called "free world" is lackadaisical . . . This cold war is a serious business.
—John Foster Dulles, GOP adviser to the State Department.

Fair Enough - Pegler

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Senator Margaret Chase Smith, of Maine, a nominal Republican, took advantage of the special privilege of her sex in her recent selfish, harmful criticism of the party which elected her. She and the six other Republicans who said that she had spoken for them do not understand what a Republican should be. Like Clare Luce, another nominal Republican who imposes on her feminine prerogatives, Mrs. Smith wilfully hurt her own party just to attract undeserved pleasant attention to herself. I refer to Mrs. Luce's fawning praise of a prominent Democrat, Eleanor Roosevelt, on an artificial public occasion arranged for the benefit of Mrs. Roosevelt and her own party.

I am about 56 years old and I have seen in my time a steady shrinking of the personal freedom of American citizens and a drastic impairment of the integrity of the states by the Democratic Party. In my time also we have outlived two terrible wars in Europe, the first of which was absolutely none of our business. As to the validity of our reasons, as a nation, for inviting the attack which got us involved in the second world war, historians and reporters, admirals and statesmen who now are beginning to establish concealed facts with reference to Japan, China and communism in the Orient. When Japan struck the first blow, which Winston Churchill if not President Roosevelt had been eagerly awaiting, Churchill exulted over an incident which he had worked and prayed for. Our disaster meant Britain's deliverance. "What a pal!"

The test of the foreign policy of a party in power is whether that policy preserves the nation without war. We had Democratic presidents in both of these wars. As late as November, 1916 the campaign slogan of Wilson's party was "He kept us out of war." The people believed that he would continue as resolutely as before to keep us out of a war which was only a little more noisy repetition of a long succession of European wars with a lineup always subject to change. Five months later, we were in. As late as 1940, President Roosevelt was assuring American parents "again and again and again" that he would not send their sons to fight in a "foreign" war, a promise intended to mean that he would "keep us out of war." That promise was influential with parents and millions of young students and husbands and wives. It was a false promise.

Wendell Willkie, the false Republican, who later was to excuse the promise as mere "campaign oratory," was the Republican candidate of 1940, to be sure. But he was a Democrat in disguise. Frank Knox, who had been the Republican candidate for vice president in 1936, said in September, 1939, that "that fellow," meaning Willkie, was a Democrat when he was told that a boom was forming in New York to nominate Willkie at the top of the Republican ticket in 1940.

The record shows that the Republican party is a party of peace and the injection of the Spanish-American War of 1898 does not substantially discredit that record. That was the only American war that ever paid a profit and there were persuasive political and moral reasons for the United States to clean up an offensive situation. The physical damage was trivial.

Instead of fouling their own nest with petty and insincere criticism of the Republican party, Republican senators and groups of "senior" and "junior" or "young" Republicans should study the history of their own party and the mighty earnestness of its devotion to personal liberty, the integrity of the several states and the interests of the great republic called the United States of America. They have a duty to their country to repudiate and strike down at every occasion the proposition that this nation is a "democracy" and the unsupported implication that democracy is good. They should inform themselves of the terrible difference, which is well revealed by the creeping encroachment of the liberties of the people under administrations of the Democratic party during 25 years out of the last 37. Few would be able to make the contrast for themselves out of their own conscious experience. They are too young. Serfs born in serfdom rarely can.

When I was young, you could travel anywhere in the United States under any name you chose and work at any job you could land. Now all of us are registered under one or another of the draft laws and catalogued even to the intimate details of our bridge-work. We are cataloged in filing cabinets under social security and it is now proposed to register us all over again under socialized medicine. Not even in France, a nation notorious for her parasitic bureaucracy 40 years ago, were the people so card-indexed. Whose business is it whether you have a right lower, removable bridge with two teeth? Whose business how many bathtubs there are in your house or whether your wife had a job last year and for how many days? It was nobody's business in the old republic, but it has been more and more the business of the Democratic party since 1916.

You may have a "dossier" in the FBI. I am morally certain that I have.

Why should a man cherish the right to go from St. Louis to Albany, change his name from Smith to Higgins and abandon the clerical line for a job on a truck? I will tell you why. Because that is his right. The very fact that we ask why is proof that we don't understand and therefore cherish the old freedoms. Sure, it is a great convenience to the police. But to hell with their convenience. Let them hustle. That is what we pay them for. The more important truth is that it is convenient to the union bosses. It enables them to check on the new employee, to learn whether some dirty grafter in St. Louis ran the poor fellow out of town for refusing to kick back a part of his pay or buy raffle tickets to raise a $5,000 kitty to send the business agent and some trollop on a trip to Europe. The Republican party is pro-liberty and whoever is pro-liberty is pro-labor. But the Roosevelt-Truman party narrowed freedom to the brutal discipline of the CIO and the AF of L and in total, imposed on free Americans the curse of European "controls."

This is by no means even a summary of the beauty of Republican principles as compared with democracy. But it might stir inquiry among the minds of a people who have passively and stupidly abandoned so much without a struggle.

What is the importance of some clumsy, but not dishonest, acts of Senator McCarthy in rooting out traitors by comparison with the guilt of Roosevelt, Truman and the Democratic party in planting them in our capital and protecting them? What matters the inconvenience of some smirking fellow-traveler who boldly invites suspicion by comparison with the enslavement of our millions under the union monopoly and terror?

The general program of the Truman crusade is clear. Promise everyone everything, and hope to back it up with government money. Such a policy will wreck the United States and reduce it to bankruptcy.
—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R) of Ohio.

Washington.....by Peter Edson

ANDERSON, Ind. —(NEA)— Success of this community's "American Guard" political education and reform movement raises the question of whether the idea will spread in Indiana and to other states.

Already there have been inquiries from other places. Charles O. Harbaugh, the young executive director of the Anderson American Guard, has in the last few weeks made talks on the Guard movement in Seymour, Conners ville, Crawfordville, Muncie, Fort Wayne and Indianapolis, Ind.

Harbaugh also told about the success of the American Guard in the primary election, at a meeting of the Tri-State Bakers' Association, in Chicago. St. Louis, Mo., has sent a delegation to Anderson to study American Guard operations at first hand. A number of St. Louis citizens have enrolled as members of the Anderson American Guard.

Thus far the Anderson American Guard has sent out no paid organizers to promote growth of the idea. If any other city with similar political clean-up problems on its hands wants to know how the American Guard tackled its job, the Anderson founders will be glad to tell them. But they aren't soliciting members, yet.

There are evidences, however, that the Anderson American Guard founding fathers had this idea in mind. They incorporated under state law, so they can expand all over Indiana. And they have ideas on how they might become a national organization.

One of the things they may be waiting for is to see if they can repeat their May Primary successes in the November election.

At the present time, Crawfordsville, Ind., has gone farther than any other Indiana city in following the Anderson lead. But Crawfordsville is going to change the Anderson formula considerably.

Sparkplug of the movement in Crawfordsville is Russell Thompson, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. In Anderson, the American Guard was completely divorced from the Chamber of Commerce. In Crawfordsville, the Chamber of Commerce will do the whole thing.

Crawfordsville will not use the name "American Guard." Instead, it will be called the "Minute Man" campaign. The familiar figure of the Lexington Minute Man monument, that was used during the war savings bond drives, will be the symbol for all advertising, publicity and membership pins.

CRAWFORDSVILLE GROUP

The political situation in Crawfordsville is entirely different from what Anderson experienced. Crawfordsville is principally known as the seat of Wabash College. Crawfordsville's industries dominated by a branch plant of a Chicago printing company — are largely open shop plants. Crawfordsville has had no bad labor relations problems and no CIO-PAC to contend with.

There really is no great local political clean-up movement to put over in Crawfordsville. But the Crawfordsville Chamber of Commerce and some 350 local business men feel that the voters need educating on public issues in the November elections.

In the words of Mr. Thompson, one of the purposes of the Crawfordsville educational campaign will be to "Knock out the idea that security is anything to seek. The sad part of the New Deal," he says, "is that it has made people lose the feeling of satisfaction in doing something for themselves."

As direct targets, the Crawfordsville campaign will shoot at the Brannan plan, socialized medicine, high taxes and the welfare state, which it will refer to as "the Poorhouse State." "We don't want to make the professional Democrats mad," says Mr. Thompson, "but we do want to do our little bit to stop socialism in America . . . It's opportunity we want, not security.

"We're still American enough to believe that if enough people go to the polls, we can beat these things," Mr. Thompson concludes. "But," he adds, "if a majority of the people still want what we've got now, so be it. This is democracy."

This rather frank statement of objectives brings up the matter of the real purposes of the Anderson American Guard. The Guard has won its reputation for conducting a bi-partisan political clean-up campaign. But its real aims are stated in its constitution.

There are a few generalities that everyone can agree with, such as "To study the Constitution of the United States . . . To abide by and promote the teaching of the word of God . . ."

But along with these are some specifics: "To demand a reduction of . . . Federal controls over business. To guard against individual rights being sacrificed for security. To demand that the Federal government refrain from competing with private industry. To insure the farmers of a stabilized — but not socialized — agricultural economy."

These reveal the American Guard for what it really is, or what it might become if it grows to state-wide or national proportions. It is a political movement, complete in itself, and with a program and platform all its own.

My Grandson's College Economic Textbook Propagandizes For Collectivism

In the last three issues I have been quoting and commenting on a book called "Applied Economics" that is used at the University of Southern California. There are very, very many statements in this book that if put into practice would completely revolutionize the ideologies set forth in the Declaration of Independence. The writers of the Declaration of Independence believed in a government with the consent of the governed. This textbook practically denies that men should have liberty. In the forepart of the book the authors use the words "we" and "our," in the latter part they confess they mean the government when they use the words "we" and "our." If that is not a planned government or a centralized government I do not know what a planned centralized economy is.

On page 544 they contend that economists have changed their ideas on government spending, and go on to say that it is no longer necessary for the government to balance its budget. They say:

"It should borrow freely when necessary to keep the total volume of expenditures in the economy at a level sufficient to provide full employment."

They also believe that the government should absolutely control the money and credit supply. They do not seem to know that the government attempting to interfere with the credit and the money supply is the primary cause of long periods of unemployment, and that every serious depression is the aftermath of credit expansion due to government interference with the supply of credit.

Listen to their statement on page 693:

"The more moderate, noncollectivist advocates of general economic planning visualizing a democratic organization, built as far as possible on the foundation laid by existing institutions."

There is no such thing as a noncollectivist who advocates economic planning. That is a contradiction of terms.

On page 694, the authors say:

"There would surely be a system of managed currency: hence the plans would stipulate the amount of money or credit to be created each year, and where it was to be allocated, the general objective being to maintain a neutral or stable monetary system in which there would be no marked fluctuation of the price level."

Marked fluctuations of the price level in the past have always been when the government interfered with banking and credit. The politicians dare not contract credit because they would be voted out of office. Therefore, it is much better when private individuals suffer for their errors of extending or accepting credit, and be constantly correcting the credit structure. If this were done, there would be no long periods of unemployment and no booms and busts.

They put words into the mouths of liberals that they do not believe. On page 629 they say:

"Liberalism is based upon a belief that freedom of contract and the force of competition will assure to each individual his just due."

I know of no liberal or no man who believes in a definite limited government who so believes. What they do believe is that to the degree that people voluntarily exchange goods and services without interference from the government or by other groups and where there is no willful fraud, that to that degree each individual gets his just due. They believe that under a competitive system each individual will much more nearly get his just due than he would under a centralized planned economy.

The authors are repeatedly talking about there being no planning where there isn't centralized planned economy, and that there is a form of anarchy without centralizing planning. The fact of the matter is that under a true capitalistic system every individual is planning to promote his economic well-being. There is much more planning by individuals than by a centralized government. This is true because it is impossible for any group of people to know enough about our conditions to intelligently plan for everybody.

The authors advocate more than economic planning on page 632. They quote Professor Carver as advocating a program for restricting marriage. They contend that immigration and unrestricted marriage cause low wages. I wonder if they would contend that we would have higher wages if there were only 100 people in the United States? If there were only 100 people in the United States 100 people would practically starve to death.

Labor Too Ignorant

On page 629 they say:

"Laborers are often too ignorant to know how their well-being can best be promoted, or they are at such a disadvantage in bargaining that they cannot protect themselves from exploitation."

If they are too ignorant to know whether this job or that job is better for them, how would they be intelligent enough to vote for government bureaucrats who wanted to stay in office to do their deciding for them? This is something the authors do not explain.

The whole book advocates the very thing, namely centralizing planning, that makes it impossible for people of goodwill to furnish steady jobs at an ever increasing wage. It is the crime of crimes to have the youth of the land reading such a book in the name of education, written by men who have no conception whatsoever as to what causes wage levels to raise.

The Wonderful Wizards Of Washington

National Whirligig

news behind the news

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A sudden and serious threat to the Eisenhower-for-president movement lies in the fact that so many unwanted and involuntary boosters have climbed aboard his wagon with the cry that, despite his silence on major issues, he represents the so-called "liberal and progressive wing" of the Republican party.

Oddly, and unfortunately for the professor-general, this class of rooters consists of many of the same groups which helped to force Wendell Willkie on the GOP in 1940.

Among them are "fair deal" columnists and political writers, certain Eastern magazine publishers, politicos never known for their party regularity, and several ADA-ers, who tried to substitute Eisenhower for Harry S. Truman at Philadelphia in 1948.

POSITION — Many of them claim that they frequently confer with the former European commander and profess to know his plans. If they are speaking the truth, General Eisenhower considers himself a Republican, and far less "liberal" than some of the reporters say he is.

It may also be deduced that he is not averse to a political career, if he does not have to place himself in the position of making an active campaign for the nomination.

He takes the position, according to his supposedly trustworthy intimates, that "the office should seek the man."

CLAMOR — It is only fair to report that this clamor for Eisenhower, in view of its source and its resemblance to the Willkie charge on the GOP ramparts, enrages veteran politicians of that party.

After reading a certain newspaper column which demanded such an impossible slate as the President of Columbia University and Senator (Mrs.) Smith of Maine, a well-known Republican exclaimed:

"Are we going to let these fair dealers, liberals and half-baked Democrats tell us again whom we should nominate? Not if I have anything to do with it! They helped to put over Willkie in 1940, and then they turned around and supported Roosevelt!"

WAILING — The anti-Truman coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats on Capitol Hill collapsed in the face of the explosive political issue of extension of rent control. The proposal would have been defeated if only five Dixie members had voted their convictions instead of their political friendships.

Two popular Administration senators would suffer seriously in November, when they must run for reelection, if a federal lid on rents had not been retained. They are Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas of Illinois and Democratic Whip Francis J. Myers of Pennsylvania. Had rents soared skyhigh for lack of congressional action, they might have lost thousands of votes in the tenement areas in their congested cities.

Democratic dismay on the House side was even more violent. At least sixty northern and middle western members from populous areas begged their Southern friends to support the measure, even if they did not agree with its purpose. There was great weeping and wailing in the cloakrooms and in the corridors.

RETURN — The Southerners surrendered out of kindness. Only five voted in the negative in the Senate, whereas eleven voted for it. The measure squeezed through by only twelve votes.

As a rule, the bloc from below the Mason and Dixon Line delivers from fifteen to twenty anti-Truman votes on such politico-economic issues.

But the northern faction will "pay off," and heavily, at the proper time. In return, they will see that FEPC does not come to a vote when and if grateful Majority Leader Lucas, on the insistence of the White House, revives debate on that question.

ISSUE — Canny Representative Albert J. Engel of Michigan is receiving congratulations from Capitol Hill colleagues for the issue he raised when he announced as a candidate in Michigan's hot Republican gubernatorial primary.

Mr. Engel made clear that he would not accept any "unclean money" as campaign contributions. Although there are many kinds of politically dirty cash, he mentioned specifically such givers as the interests behind slot machines, gambling and bookmaking.

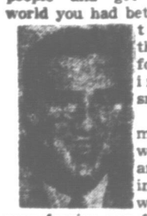
Naturally, they would like a clear field in such a populous and wealthy state as Michigan, where General Motors workers have just won a nice raise and pension agreement.

With these questions hitting the headlines daily because of the Senate crime investigation, Mr. Engel believes his early declaration should win him many extra votes.

Success Secrets

By ELMER WHEELER

If you want to get along with people and get ahead in the world you had better realize that there is one thing nobody will forgive — making him feel small.



You can rob a man, kick him when he's down and abuse him in all sorts of ways — and he may forgive you for it. He even may forget it. But it is a rare human animal that will forgive a person who makes him feel little.

A prominent marital counsellor told me the other day this is the real cause behind most divorces —not the things the couple did or didn't do—but the fact that one or the other made the other partner feel small.

The other day I got some "inside information" on a strike of transportation workers. A man whose wife worked for the union told me— "The decision whether to strike or not to strike hung in the balance and settlement was about equally divided among the men. What turned the tide was that the president of the company, whom the union had expected to meet with them, didn't show up but sent a third assistant secretary instead.'

Whether this "big shot" was stupid enough to do this deliberately or stupid enough not to know better doesn't matter. His action resulted in a strike's being called. There were other issues involved— important issues—but a little insignificant thing like the president's sending an underling in his place was what decided the matter. The workers thought he was "too big" to meet with them.

In your human relationships remember this success secret — "Never make the other fellow feel small." It will carry you far.

Texas Youth's Body Is Found in Nevada

WELLS, Nev. — (AP) — Ground and air searchers yesterday found the body of a 13-year-old Texan, Stanley Thompson, El Paso, on the sagebrush spotted foothills of the rugged Ruby mountains.

The youth, lying at the base of a desert brush barely one half mile from the ranch where he was visiting, apparently had died from an accidental shotgun wound.

Searchers discovered the boy's body almost a day after he was first reported missing.

The population of the Western allied countries still considers Germany of today as responsible for the beginning of the war. The Germany of today, however, does not feel responsible.
—West German Chancellor Dr. Konrad Adenauer.

Apparently Mr. Truman thinks anybody who is opposed to him is an "obstructionist." He would have a one-party government in the United States, and that is totalitarianism.
—Rep. Joseph W. Martin (R) of Massachusetts.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, MD.

WRITTEN FOR NEA

Chorea, or St Vitus dance, is a curious condition about which much still has to be learned. It seems to be related to rheumatic fever. A family tendency to the disease is fairly common. Unusually bright children and those with a "highly strung" nervous system appear to be particularly susceptible.

The disease is somewhat more common in girls than in boys and affects principally those between five and 15 years of age. Some children with early signs of chorea do not appear to be ill but merely more awkward than usual. They are often scolded by their parents or teachers for dropping things and showings of poor muscular without realizing that it is illness and not intention which is responsible.

In mild chorea the general health is good, the muscles twich only slightly and the speech and mental functions are not disturbed. Children with mild chorea frequently complain of fatigue.

Emotional disturbances, such as easy crying and nightmares, are often present. When the hands are held straight out in front with the fingers spread, the jerky irregular movements of the muscles are characteristic and can be easily recognized by the experienced physician.

In the severe form of the disease the movements involve a lot of muscles and the youngster may not even be able to feed or undress themselves without help. Sometimes the speech is affected and a child may not be able to talk at all for several days.

The worst type of chorea is the maniacal form which is, fortunately, very rare. Here, in addition to the muscular movements, there are severe mental symptoms which may last for weeks.

VIOLENT ATTACKS

The muscles are weakened. The heart is sometimes involved but often escapes undamaged. Irritability and emotional outbreaks are common. An attack lasts on the average from eight to 10 weeks and most patients recover.

Diagnosis is not difficult as a rule if the possibility of chorea is considered. It is important to try to tell whether the chorea is of the kind associated with rheumatic fever or not.

Diet and long bed rest, similar to that which is given for rheumatic fever are the treatments of chorea. Because chorea involves the nervous system, sedatives for the nerves are usually necessary in addition. The cause is still unknown.

Dr. Jordan will answer questions from his readers in a special column once a week. Watch for it.

Mr. Truman heads a warfare rather than a welfare state.
—Norman Thomas, perennial presidential candidate.

CHIRPS

By ROBIN TIBBETS

Seems like every time I go to the show there's some jaybird and his gal in the seat — and I do mean seat — in front of me, who apparently have neither a car nor a home.

Now, I'm not against courtin' — in the right places and at the right time — but it sure gets on my nerves to have to sit and watch Wild Bill Hitchrack gallop over mountain trails which wind around between a head of blond hair and a hook nose with a set of puckered lips beneath it.

There are several kinds of movie lovers. First, there are the ones on the screen that nearly everybody pays to see. Then, there are the ones who pay good money to get a seat where they can spoil the evening for the poor guy sitting behind.

Of the latter group, there are the kissing lovers, who, from the time they sit down, are continually kissing each other and causing the poor janitor no end of mopping after the show is over. The smacks that result would make a cow pulling her foot out of the mud sound mighty weak.

Then, there are the lovers who slump 'way down in their seats, where only the tops of their heads are visible on one end and on the other all you see is knees — four of them. Of course, there is nothing like seeing Betty Grable standing on the screen in a brief beach costume with a bony knee under her chin. These lovers talk in audible whispers and laugh every time the hero gets plugged in the heart, and even in the best of movies, emit numerous giggles which do not generate any love for said lovers from others of the audience.

Then, there are the lovers who sit and gaze at each other. They don't say anything, or do anything — they just look. And right in the middle of a look, who should peek around Miss Starry Eye's nose, but Bud Abbott! Ah! 'Tis an interesting sight.

But, wherever there are movies, there will always be lovers; and where there are lovers, there I'll be, right behind them, watching the Lone Ranger behind a shapely nose playing peek-a-boo, six-gun in hand, with Wild Bill Hitchrack who is craftily hidden in the tangled curls of Someo.

Bid For A Smile

Mr. Jones was going to town, so his wife asked him to call at the grocer's and order a pound of butter, two pounds of lard, and three gallons of oil.

Mr. Jones—All right, but I'm sure all those greasy things will slip my memory.

—o—

It was approaching 2 a.m. and the young man was still hovering around the front door. The stillness suddenly was shattered by a crash upstairs:

Timid Young Man—Gracious, dear, what could that be?

Miss—Oh, that's Daddy just dropping a hint.

—o—

A traveling salesman knocked at the farmhouse door.

Salesman— Now, Mr. Smith, you really should have an atlas. It is absolutely indispensable in a home where the children are going to school.

Farm—Not by a durn sight. My grandfather walked to school and by gum the children can walk to school too.

He was visiting the newlyweds at their home, and everything was fine, but—

He—Why did you take an apartment with such a tiny kitchen, Tom?

Tom—You're the first man I've told so keep it quiet. It's so small that I can't get in there to help my wife when shes doing the dishes.

Two burglars broke into a men's store and started sorting out the suits when one thief, holding up an outfit marked $85, called to his friend, "Bert, take a look at the price of this one," he said. "Why, its down right robbery!"

Traffic Officer—What do you mean by running right by that red signal?

Victim—My wife sent me to the store for a spool of thread and told me to hurry and not stop until I got back with it.

—o—

Doctor—There goes the only woman I ever loved!

Nurse—Why don't you marry her?

Doctor—I can't afford to. She's my best patient.

No-Roach Introduced to Panhandle Homes

Partner in Martin-Turner Unassuming, Respected

Most of the success stories sung and recorded throughout the land are limited to the type of person who makes good and spontaneous news copy. It is the contention, however, of many learned promulgators of information that anything involving more than a handful of people is news. It is, therefore, not out of order to point up the story of one of our leading ctizens of the distaffian side. Reference is made, of course, to Mrs. J. M. Turner, associate in the firm of Martin-Turner, insurance agents and underwriters.

Perhaps it would be well to answer the silent challenge of the critics and explain the contention that those employed in the insurance field are good copy. Number one reason would be that the portion of the population gainfully employed in the insurance field is at the helm of the largest single segment of the American business scene. Very few people, if any, pass through a day of their existence without being affected in some small way by insurance. Without the high integrity and intelligence of the American insurance executive and his supporters, the American economy could very well be in an extremely precarious state. In short, the wise and sound investment of insurance funds plays a major portion in maintaining the stability of this country and assuring you of a chance to continue a free existence in the American economic system. It follows, then, without any argument, that your local insurance agent should be given far more recognition by his fellows of genus homo-sapiens than is now his lot.

Mrs. J. M. Turner, although she insists on remaining in the background, is one of the most highly respected of Pampa insurance executives. She goes about her business in the quiet, methodical manner of one who has her sights on a specific goal and who is at peace with herself.

Mrs. Truner is a terrific example of what can be done by anyone who has the determination and fortitude to establish an ultimate goal and continue to pursue the quarry until success is assured. Not too many years ago, she was left with a decision to make — would she be just another woman, or would she make an effort to lift herself above the ranks and make a success of her life. The answer is obvious to the people of Pampa. Mrs. Turner has delivered the goods and has become one of the most respected executives in the local insurance structure.

The firm of Martin - Turner, located at 107 N. Frost, has become a landmark in Pampa. There is hardly a type of insurance to be named that can't be obtained through Mrs. Turner and her associate, J. Ray Martin. The genial combination of Martin-Turner will insure you against almost anything but bald headedness. Perhaps you may talk them into a policy protecting those few remaining hairs. However, if you need surety bonds, health and accident insurance, workman's compensation, automobile, fire and life underwriting assistance, you'll find it to your liking at Martin-Turner.

Don't put off talking to Mrs. Turner about your insurance problems. Fate is a fickle jade. One never knows when tragedy will strike the most humble or the most affluent of people. When it does strike, it's too late. The wise man acts before trouble begins. Make it a point to pay Martin-Turner a visit tomorrow. Don't wait! Have them show you the figures—the tremendous dollar value of insurance in force in America. They'll give you an inkling of the many families and individuals saved from destitution and personal tragedy by wise and early investment in sound insurance programs.

Cretney Drug Store Has Abundance of Gaston-Johnston's New No-Roach Rx

IF YOU'RE inclined to believe the delectable damosel is a bit daft for swinging a paintless brush over the drainboard, take another look. She's a smart lass; that's Johnston's "NO-ROACH" she's applying to her ultra-efficient kitchen of 1950.

As time staggers on in its fruitless attempt to maintain pace with the mad scramble for prominence of the human race, the attendant confusion sometimes causes the real contributors to human comfort to be overlooked. Pasteur fought for recognition in the face of scorn from his fellows—so goes the story, when the first chapter ends, on all of the more important contributors to the betterment of the human.

Although the plodding chemists who discovered the amazing properties of Gaston - Johnston's "NO-ROACH" had things easy, compared to the early-day chemist, their path was strewn with thorns. The public was surfeit with 'cure-alls,' with potions, powders and pills capable of killing anything from rattlesnakes to bed bugs. To develop, announce and place on the market a virtual miracle worker in the slaughter of a large variety of household pests, required fortitude, foresight and patience.

Such qualities were 'old hat' to the Gaston-Johnston chemists. They were of the sterner-stuff variety of humans. The resistance of a skeptical housewife didn't faze them. They went to work.

The company, so it is told, started in California, where it is common knowledge a large portion of the 'roach,' 'waterbug,' 'fly' and spider populations are ensconced in natural habitat, to test and perfect the new miracle potion for ending the pampering of household pests. Evidently the thinking was that a successful test on a California 'roach' was positive evidence that any other area's roaches would be 'in the bag,' at it were.

The initial tests were inordinately successful. The Gaston-Johnston people quickly placed the fluid on the market in areas where people were still sensitive about their household pests. "NO-ROACH" was on its way. product will testify that it is a product will testify that it is good investment, as near to being a cure-all for buggy pests as anything and downright inexpensive.

"NO ROACH" is a colorles coating. One simply brushes it on surfaces frequented by roaches, ants, waterbugs and their ilk. It is invisible, stainless, odorless and completely sanitary. The colorless coating kills these crawling insects, and it remains effective for months to kill any strays that wander in over it. Even the most critical host to the lowly bug can't find room to grouse about such a handy item as "No-Roach."

Don't look the other way and say "me, roaches!" Did you ever come back to the little gray home in the Panhandle, expecting to find a gleaming, white kitchen waiting to greet you for that midnight snack and find it crawling with the gleaming backs of dark brown cockroaches and ants? The shock is enough to make you commit numerous types of mayhem. Practically every housewife has faced that horror at one time or another, and you don't need to let it get you down. Get busy the next morning and get yourself some Johnston's "NO-ROACH." Thousands of women who have tried it say there's nothing to compare with it for killing roaches fast!

Like all good things, you'll eventually find them in the Panhandle. Although Pampa has been fairly safe from the inroads of the 'cockroach,' the fortress isn't impregnable. A word to the wise is never wasted on intelligent ears. It can always happen here.

Hear ye, then! Trot down to Cretney Drug Store and invest in a pint or so of this stuff that puts bugs on the permanent 'wagon.' They are guaranteed not to try getting off to pick up the whip. Gordon Rice will be glad to give you the pleasant details concerning the effectiveness of "NO-ROACH" and will explain the ease with which you can acquire and use the liquid in your own home.

Cretney Drug Announces the Promotion of Pharmacist Rice

Recent news of census hiatus, weather reports, politics and the like weren't enough to suppress the news that the Cretney Drug organization had elevated Gordon Rice to the position of manager in the local Cretney store.

Gordon Rice is well qualified to assume the management of Pampa's largest modern drug establishment. Although he has a long way to go from the standpoint of years, before he can claim entrance to the ranks of old-timers in the pharmacuetical profession he is highly trained in the scientific aspects of the trade.

Mr. Rice is the possessor of a degree in Pharmacology from one of the better schools in a state directly to the east of the Panhandle, and several years of practical application of his learning have made of him a trustworthy and accurate pharmacist worthy of his new prominence. Although he is not a native of the great state of Texas, in true Texas fashion, he is being absorbed into the community swim and is actepted as a native by lha el drug-store-patronizing gentry.

It was only natural for Gordon Rice to cast his lot with the people of Pampa. T ehman had tried Oklahoma, California and a stretch in the Army, during the recent skirmish with the boy wth the toothbrush lip adornment. What, then, could be more natural than to seek a plac as close to heaven as Pampa to indulge in his chosen profession. Like everyone else who comes to the Panhandle, Grodon found this to be a pretty healthy spot to live. As a result, he found a bit of time on his hands. Pampans use an occassional prescription, but most pharmacists in the area have to learn something else while awaiting one of the infrequent illnesses of a Pampa resident. During these long waits, our Mr. Rice educated himself in the other phases of Drug Store operations. From cameras to coconut-cream pie, from Toni's to Toffee the man learned the stock, policies and procedures of Cretney, and the daily needs of the populace. As a result, there is a pretty sharp, industrious and conscientious manager at the local Cretney helm.

Next time you're down town, take a trip to Cretney. If you're on the way to a movie, stop in for a 'coke'. Maybe you'll need a spot to rest during the midweek shopping tour. There are lots of places worse than Cretney. Besides, you might get hungry and want to sample the menu at the popular Cretney fountain. They have a menu you won't forget.

The entire Cretney establishment is keyed to your personal needs. You may think the sparkling grandeur of the modern drug house is an impersonal and lifeless thing. Don't you believe it! Just get sick and then watch the way the local drug crew goes in to action. You'll have the best in modern medical aids, the finest in prescription ingredients, the ultimate in scientific compounding of your prescriptions, and the understanding of a pharmacist who is conversant with your problems and the desires of your family doctor. Try Cretney next time your in town.

Maytag Coolers Welcome Relief To Torrid Texans

In a long period of batting about the old globe, many attitudes have been observed anent the weather. California hides behind the expression 'unusual.' Some areas call their bad weather 'unseasonable.' Others grouse about the ultra - potent offerings of 'old Sol' or the inundating deluges of 'Jupiter Pluvius. Texans, however, are pretty sensible about their weather conditions. If it's cold, it's cold. If it's hot, it's hot. If it rains, it's raining. No one seems to get upset about what the elements have to offer. The Pampa resident has long since learned there isn't a thing he can do about altering the condition of the weather. He does know, however, that he can do many things to increase his personal comfort against the inroads of devastating heat or cold. With this recent bit of hot weather driving him to nylon shirts, "T" shirts, shorts and shade in the back yard, the weather - wise Pampan begins to think of things frigid.

What better reason, then, for thinking of Pampa Maytag. Rhinehart and Dosier are just the boys who can do a great deal toward relieving the discomfort of hot weather. They have a variety of cooling systems guaranteed to bring the temperature in your home down to a cool stage reminiscent of the comfort of a creek bank in the high Rockies. If you don't like to get out in the heat to do your shopping, get a Pampa Maytag deep-freeze cabinet of frozen - food locker and cut down your trips to the corner market. For top value and service, you can't go wrong on Pampa Maytag Proructs.

Don Taylor Warns Motorists Against Seasonal Neglect

As long as it is fashionable to make a bit of comment concerning the weather, it is apropos of the season to remind the citizenry of this fair city that the family car isn't altogether immune from the inroads of the caprices of weather. Hot weather is especially damaging to your car.

When the conversation turns to automobiles it has to include the unsung gentlemen who make a profession of keeping your car in shape. However, it sometimes takes a gentle reminder to make you cognizant of the fact your car must be readied for seasonal changes in the same manner you buy a new spring suit, shirt and straw hat.

Remember Don Taylor, the printer turned oil-gas-service vendor? Don has a pretty classy service emporium over on South Frost. If you haven't had a chat with Don since summer arrived, it's high time you got over there and let his boys put the eagle eye on your old bus while you have your chat with Don. You owe it to yourself and family to check the high-friction points of your car. Don Taylor will do a first rate job of weather-conditioning the old bus and making it much safer for you and the general public. Even the best automobile won't run safely without proper lubrication. Observe the national safety season by having your car serviced and checked for summer driving at the Schneider Garage.

Girl Bites Dog; In Fact She Swallows It

McKEESPORT, Pa. — (AP) — When a man bites a dog, that's news but when a little girl swallows one, that's trouble.

Five-year-old Carol Ann Moke is in McKeesport hospital awaiting an operation that will remove from her stomach a small glass dog, about an inch and a half long.

The youngster was playing with the dog in her mouth when she slipped and swallowed it. Doctors said her condition is fair.

Separate Peace Pact Urged by Statesmen

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— A separate peace treaty with the United States — "Russia has no intention of signing one" — was urged today by Ukio Ozaki, 92, Japanese elder statesman who has spent the past month in Washington.

"Russia still holds 400,000 Japanese prisoners," Ozaki said as he boarded a Pan American clipper for Honolulu and home. "It would be foolish to expect that she would ever sign a peace treaty."

Linton Feels Sorry For Eight Rescuers

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — 28-year-old John Linton has nothing but sympathy for eight men who came running to rescue him when he fell 10 feet into a cellar excavation.

"You better get a derrick," he called up to them.

But the six policemen and two park guards said no, they'd try alone.

They pushed and heaved and finally got Linton out of the cellar — all 360 pounds of him.

The LONESOME BRIDE

WHEN Gloria Brown regained consciousness, she was lying back in Miltiades' arms—his dear, safe, comfortable arms, just like she had wished to be doing when she thought she was dying. His arms were like cushioned steel as he sat behind her at the head of a couch in the back room of the fruit store.

Miltiades was saying: "Darling. You darling little fool. . . . She's coming out of it, Hansen."

Gloria looked up, still dazed, expecting to see the little gray man. She'd thought all along that he was Hansen—now she remembered, he was Lofty Gordon.

Her eyes rested on Reuben, the doorman at the Splendide Apartments, who was bending over her as he finished tying up the bandage on her shoulder.

The big doorman, whom she'd been afraid of because she had thought he was Lofty Gordon, grinned down at her and said: "She's okay, fella. Her shoulder's only scratched. If she hadn't stood in our line of fire, we could have prevented this."

So Reuben was Hansen instead of—

Where was the little gray man, Lofty Gordon? Gloria looked around Tony's little sitting room fearfully, but there was no sign of this terrible person. They must have taken him away.

She turned, looking up at Miltiades, suddenly realizing: "Darling, you're not in jail!"

"Lie down." Miltiades pushed her anxiously back on the couch, explaining: "I sold the lieutenant on the idea that you were up to something and if I helped him trail you, knowing your ways and all that, we'd find out plenty. And was I right!"

He grinned at Lieutenant McGann, whom Gloria now noticed for the first time, standing in the doorway. McGann grinned back at Gloria.

"Feeling better, Mulligan?" His tone was friendly and he moved slightly to hide the stretcher which two men in white were carrying past the doorway in the next room.

"Mrs. Benoni?" Gloria asked as she saw them. Weak tears ran down her cheeks.

The lieutenant shook his head. "No. Lofty. He'll live to fry. We were in the alley when we heard him shoot her and we came to listen in. We got here just in time. The Benonis are—on marble slabs. One apiece."

"I can't believe that she killed Sal," Gloria said. "It must have been that ratty husband of hers."

Lieutenant McGann shook his head reluctantly. "I think Benny told the truth," he said. "We found Mrs. Benoni's fingerprints on Sal's lacquered fingernails. Sal wasn't in the water very long. There wasn't any water in her lungs. She might not even have been dead when you first noticed her."

• • •

GLORIA sat up excitedly. "But if Mrs. Benoni had been there on the beach I'd have seen her and recognized her!"

"Bathing suits and caps make people look different," he said. "It's pretty unlikely that you would recognize her, since you weren't as well acquainted as we thought at first." He grinned. "She probably got away and beat it to a car, but fast. You see, she was deathly afraid that Sal would tell Lofty Gordon what she alone knew."

"What did she know?" Gloria asked. "Don't keep me waiting!"

"She knew that the Benonis had discovered the secret of the emerald necklace."

"It had green eyes," Gloria shivered. "Evil, green, leopard eyes."

"She's feverish," Miltiades worried. "I'd better take her home, lieutenant."

"Hush, darling," said Gloria. "I'll run a fever of 102 if I don't find out exactly what happened. Give, Lieutenant McGann. Give from the beginning!"

"I'll make a bargain," said the lieutenant. "I'll go home with you and tell you there."

• • •

GLORIA didn't want to, but it was two against one. Very soon, she was in the police limousine and very quickly she was back home in their own rooms at the Splendide.

Under Gloria's direction, Miltiades made some coffee and they settled back in the living room, with Gloria made comfortable on the divan, with her feet on one end and her head at the other and with Miltiades beside her, just like he had been in the living room at Tony's. Hansen, who had come along, sat across the room.

"Now," said Gloria. "Give, Lieutenant."

The lieutenant nodded. He lit a cigar and sipped his coffee. Miltiades took Gloria's hand, but she did not notice, for her eyes were glued on the police lieutenant's round face.

"It's this way, Mulligan," he began. "Lofty belonged to the Benoni gang until he switched to the dope racket. Benoni was scared of this, so Jack the Cork was delegated to sing—that means inform, in case you don't know—to the federal dicks. As a result, Lofty got five years in stir."

"Naturally that didn't make him love either Benny or Jack the Cork," said Gloria. "I guessed that much. And also I figured out that when Lofty was released early for good conduct, he went after Jack the Cork."

"We figured that out too," Lieutenant McGann grinned, "but we didn't think Lofty would risk going back to jail quite so soon. That's why he caught us napping when he stabbed the Cork. Hansen didn't get to the Splendide until after the first murder."

"Lofty Gordon was a terrible person," Gloria said.

"And a smart one," said Lieutenant McGann.

"Go on," said Gloria. "I can't wait."

8 of 10 American Women Out of Shape, Expert Says

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK — (AP) — The world is out of shape today — and so are more than eight out of 10 American women.

This melancholy statistic isn't based on one man's roving observation. It comes from the Corset and Brassiere Association of America.

"Of the 55,000,000 U. S. women above the age of 15, at least 85 percent are overweight, or lack symmetry in the vicinity of bosoms, waist or hips," said Fletcher D. Dodge, executive vice president of the association.

What depresses me about this estimate is that Fletcher doesn't even include the women with jut jaws, knobby knees, bowed legs, suitcase feet, or blacksmith's biceps.

No, all he surveys is the corset zone. To correct nature's errors in this area the women of America in 1950 will spend $400,000,000 or more for girdles, pantie girdles, brassieres, bandeaux, corsets, corselettes, falsies and garter belts.

Every year about this time — the opening of National Corset Market Week — Fletcher reviews the status of the American feminine shape. He is a stern critic and invariably finds something wrong with it.

Here, girls, is his prediction of the fashionable figure for this autumn:

"An even slimmer, narrower hipline, . . waistline slightly less indented, . . bustline more softly rounded."

And what about falsies?

"More and more women will be wearing them," Dodge said flatly.

Fletcher says the American woman has grown taller and widerhipped in the last five years.

Reds Destroy Ancient Spire

BERLIN — (AP) — The 410-foot spire of ancient Georgenkirche (St. George's Church) was wrecked with five dynamite charges yesterday by Communist authorities who charged it was unsafe.

A symbol in the fight between church and state in Soviet territories, the steeple was blasted over the protests of church members. Bishop Otto Dibelius, primate of Germany's 14,000,000 protestants, was one who watched grimly as workemen toiled for nearly three hours to bring down the spire.

He preached a sermon condemning the demolition plans at his church in the American sector and reiterated church folk claims that the spire was safe. Then he went to the Alexander Platz, in the center of Berlin's Russian sector, to watch the dynamiting.

The war-damaged church was not in use but church authorities said they planned to install a chapel in the tower until they could get enough funds to rebuild the church entirely.

Anti - Communist newspapers quoted church officials as calling the demolition plans "another Communist blow at the church."

Two Pampans attended a meeting of the Nort Plains Watchmakers Guild in Amarillo where they heard highlights of a tentative bill to license watch repairmen in the state of Texas.

The two local watch repairmen present were R. W. Hughes and Earl F. Miller.

Flash Flood Leaves Hundreds Jobless, Homeless in Ohio

CROOKSVILLE, Ohio — (AP) — Damage caused by a flash flood that made hundreds jobless and temporarily homeless in six southeastern Ohio communities still was being uncovered today.

Best estmates place total damage caused by the flood at more than $2,000,000! But the exact figure probably will not be known before the week is out.

One business block in nearby Roseville was condemned last night after it was found the waters had weakened walls of a dozen business establishments. Some 40 persons also made their homes in the area.

Also in Roseville, the famous "Potter's Alley" which is noted for its artware and novelty ceramic pieces was in ruins. A spokesman for the small concerns said that the flood may mean the end of business for some.

Sunday brought thousands of curious motorists to the 25-square-mile area hit by the flash flood.

Besides Crooksville and Roseville, the flood caused damage at Rose Farm (Tropic), White Cottage, Saltillo and Fultonham.

One death by drowning was reported. Mrs. Alice Adrian, 55, Rose Farm, was the victim.

Snipped Apron String Opens Camp for Diabetic Children

GAINESVILLE — (AP) — Camp Sweeney, the South's first camp for diabetic children, was dedicated yesterday.

Speakers at the ceremony included State Attorney General Price Daniel, Dr. Edward Bortz of Philadelphia, past president of the American Medical Assn. and an officer of the American Diabetes Assn., and Dr. T. S. Painter, University of Texas president.

Banker Henry Bell of Tyler snipped the strings of an old-fashioned apron held by Sharon Westhafer, 12, of Dallas, who has had diabetes for 10 years, and LaWanna Batson, 11, of Henrietta, whose diabetes was discovered before she was 21 months old.

Bell said this symbolized the children's cutting themselves loose from their mother's apron strings and starting out for themselves, despite their ailment.

Dr. J. Shirley Sweeny of Dallas had the idea for the camp. He retired from practice in internal medicine in Dallas to help build it near this North Texas city where he grew up. Gainesville friends helped him find the money and the land.

Dr. Bortz, long-time friend of Dr. Sweeney, said there are four parts to Dr. Sweeny's plan.

"This camp is the first. After that comes a research division of the Sweeney Metabolic Foundation. Then a metabolic laboratory will be built for studies on what diabetics should eat and what they should leave alone.

"The final part," he said, "is a program to educate the public on diabetes. There are more than one and a half million Americans who have diabetes and who do not know it."

Corporation Tax Hike Too Much, House Committee Leader Says

European Pool Talks Opened; Chief Hopeful

PARIS — (AP) — French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman today told delegates from six Western European nations, assembled here to plan a merger of their coal and steel industries, that "we feel we will not be permitted to fail or quit without finishing our job."

The conference which Schuman opened in the foreign ministry salle de l'horloge (clock room) was historic, he said, because never before had the West European states delegated a "fraction of their sovereignty to an independent, supra-national authority."

Urging his proposal to put Western Europe's coal and steel and industries under control of an international body empowered to make binding decisions, Schuman said the nations must find means "outside our national limits" to create a more rational economic structure, to cheapen production and to open new markets.

The six nations represented today France, Western Germany, Belgium, Italy, The Netherlands and Luxembourg — all have agreed to the idea. Britain has held back.

Schuman expressed a hope that the British later would join the pool.

"We cannot conceive of Europe without her," he declared, adding, "we know — and this reassures us — that the British government hopes for the success of our work."

Following today's opening meeting, the delegates will hold secret sessions to plan details of the working of the pool and its controlling authority.

Britain, wary of giving final control of her vast coal and steel industries to someone else, will be informed in detail of the progress of the talks. Foreign Office Economist Herve Alphand will confer daily with British minister in Paris William Hayter, supplying details for a nightly report to London.

France has a plan drafted by top economic planner Jean Mon-

Flagpole Sitter? Nope, Just Giving Pole New Covering

Things were looking up at the post office Monday afternoon.

Squinting eyes focused on a young man at the top of the postal building's flag pole. Not a flagpole sitter, nor a loser of an election bet, 18-year-old Bobby Bailey was busily engaged in repainting the pole in the olive green shade used at postal installations.

Bailey, a resident of Dallas, had as his first job, after attaining the full height, the task of put-

Authorities Baffled In Disappearance of 17-Year-Old Girl

EUREKA, Calif. — (AP) — The disappearance of a pretty 17-year-old waitress, apparently without her clothes, baffled officers today in attempts to solve the "Lovers' Beach" slaying of a nude bakery driver.

The driver and waitress had a Saturday night date.

Sunday morning, the body of the driver, Henry (Red) Baird, 28, was found on the beach below Table Bluff, a cliff 75 yards from the surf. There was a bullet hole in the back of his head. He wore only socks and shoes.

His clothing was piled neatly nearby — on top of the clothing of the waitress, Barbara Kelly. Only her shoes and stockings were missing. Baird and Miss Kelly had been dating two months.

Close by was Baird's car. Missing from it was a .22 caliber pistol he always carried. Sheriff Charles W. Rabb said Baird apparently had been shot by a .22. But the skull appeared crushed considerably for such a small bullet.

A lighthouse keeper saw one car casting its light on the remote beach spot at 12:30 a. m. Sunday — then the lights went out. The lighthouse keeper never saw the car leave; nor did he see any other car enter.

Investigators found $32 in Baird's wallet and $3 in a pocket.

The brown-haired, hazel-eyed Miss Kelly had informed her parents in Fortuna she was going to a show Saturday night in Eureka, would spend the night with friends.

Ships Feared Sunk In Yangtze Mouth

HONG KONG — (AP) — Two blockade runners were reported to have struck mines and sunk at the mouth of the Yangtze off Shanghai yesterday. Fifteen persons were said to have been killed.

The British Royal Navy said it had heard the report, but was unable to confirm it.

Hong Kong shipping companies thought enough of the report, however, to cancel all future ship sailings to Shanghai.

The two ships were the Greek Coaster Santos, and the 800-ton Value of Panamanian registry.

The accounts reaching Hong Kong said more than 50 survivors of the two ships had been picked up by a British patrol vessel inside Chinese territorial waters.

The Value left Hong Kong June 16 with 200 tons of cargo for Shanghai. It carried a crew of 30 Chinese. The captain is T. J. King, a Shanghai - born British subject.

The Santos has been running between Shanghai and North China ports for about a month.

According to the reports, the two ships were trying to enter at about the same time, hit the mines at 6 p.m. and sank within minutes of each other.

The Chinese Nationalists announced from Formosa last December that they had mined the Yangtze River leading to Shanghai.

AUSTIN — (AP) — J. E. McDonald's demand that his name be printed on the July 22 Democratic primary ballot was argued in the Supreme Court today before a shirtsleeved, overflow crowd.

The court relaxed its rules and let everybody but itself and contending lawyers shuck their coats to hear a case which may set up a new rule for testing party loyalty in Texas.

Attorneys for McDonald argued that the court's decision should hinge upon his pledge and his announced intention to support the candidates of the primary in which he seeks to run for the 11th time as commissioner of agriculture.

Attorneys for the state Democratic executive committee, which banned him from the ballot last week on grounds of party infidelity, contended that McDonald should be barred under a civil appeals court ruling and acts showing he does not now in good faith intend to support Democratic candidates.

The executive committee's leading counsel, former Mayor George Sergeant of Dallas, said that the committee gave McDonald a full and fair opportunity to present his case last week, and that it barred him after hearing his testimony.

Sergeant told the court that the committee did not act entirely upon McDonald's admitted past support of Republican presidental nominees, but on "aid and comfort" he gave Ben Guill, a Republican, in his recent congressional campaign. This, Sergeant said, was given while McDonald was applying for a place on the Democratic ballot.

Sergeant asked the court to dismiss the mandamus and injunction pleas on grounds they seek to halt acts which have already taken place. He also said the court had no jurisdiction because fact questions were raised that had already been determined by the committee.

TOKYO — (AP) — The question of whether U.S. Defense Secretary Louis Johnson may recommend prompt American aid to Formosa was still unanswered here tonight.

After a second day of briefing by top American officers on Far Eastern defense, one officer depicted Secretary Johnson as "leaning our way." The officer, who can not be identified, favors immediate aid for Formosa, threatened by the Chinese Communists.

Another high ranking official said the secretary had so carefully hidden his reactions to headquarters that none could be sure how he stood on the Formosan question.

Maj. Gen. Earle E. Partridge, acting commander of the Far East air forces, and his staff officers stressed the danger of allowing Formosa to fall into enemy hands, reliable sources said. The Nationalist Chinese held island is 350 miles from Okinawa, big U.S. air base.

Air officers also strongly supported the views of General MacArthur, occupation chief, and his strategists in urging vigorous efforts to save Southeast Asia. They emphasized their desire to

New Signal System In Full Operation

Early morning drivers got the surprise of their lives when they hit the mid-town section and saw the traffic lights in full working order.

The system went into red and green operation at 6:10 a. m., after going through a long test period late last night and early this morning.

City officials Monday didn't expect the lights to be tested until after midnight today but T. M. Brooks, contractor for the project, put every available man on the job during the afternoon and evening hours. The lights went on test shortly before midnight but operations were halted during the rain.

Minor adjustments are still being made to the progressive controller system that speeds up traffic through a timing synchronization circuit. A car traveling at 20 miles per hour can enter the Cuyler and Browning intersection (going south) and go straight through hitting a green light all the way to Tyng.

Eleven of the intersections are tied in on the progressive system — on Ballard, at Browning, Francis, Kingsmill, and Foster; on Cuyler, at Browning, Francis, Kingsmill, Foster, Atchison, and Tyng; and Frost, at Francis. The Hobart and Alcock signal is not tied in but could be if the system is ever extended down Francis.

Overhead blinker lights that will go into operation as full traffic lights during school hours will be located at Faulkner and Alcock, and the Brown, Barnes and Frederic intersection. Over-

Committee Sets Up 5.5 Percent Filing Fee for Candidates

A filing fee of 5.5 percent of the first year's annual salary for each county and precinct office was assessed at 2 p. m. Monday by the Democratic county executive committee to defray the cost of the July 22 primary.

The session was held in the grand jury room on the third floor of the court house.

The assessment is levied only against the office but is split equally among the candidates seeking that particular office.

Should a candidate be unopposed for an office he must pay the full 5.5 percent. If two, or more, are seeking the office they must each pay an equal portion. For instance, the annual salary of the sheriff is $4,687.44. The filing fee, at 5.5 percent, amounts to $257.81. Since there are three seeking the office each will pay one third of the fee, or $85.94.

At this figure the county committee will have approximately

Livestock Industry Asks Rail Rate Cut

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The livestock industry today asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for a general reduction in railroad freight rates on live animal shipments.

Seven livestock raisers associations joined in the petition to the ICC. They contended the several post-war freight rate increases authorized by the commission have been accompanied by a steady diversion of animal shipments from rails to other modes of transportation. They said the railroads should move at once "to protect their traffic and revenues by rate revisions."

The petition said freight rates on livestock have been increased, during the post war years, by 43 percent in the West, 50 percent in the East.

The petition was sponsored by these associations: American National Livestock, National Wool Growers, Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers, Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers, Highland-Hereford Breeders, Livestock Traffic and National Livestock Producers.

Lawmaker May Wield Strong Influence in Excise Voting

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the tax-framing House ways and means committee said today he believes a $433,000,000 tax boost the committee has voted for corporations "goes too far."

The top Democratic tax manager disclosed in an interview that the committee put the boost into its general tax bill over his personal opposition. He said 14 committee Democrats voted for it. He and 10 Republicans were opposed.

Doughton did not indicate what position he would take when the bill goes to the House floor next week for a vote.

If he openly opposes the rise then, his position might be decisive in event of a close division in the House. As chairman of the committee, Doughton will be in charge of the bill. He also wields considerable personal influence with many legislators on tax matters.

The bill cuts excise taxes by $1,010,000,000,000. The boost in corporate taxes was designed to offset this cut in part and win presidential approval of the measure.

Doughton indicated he would support a moderate rise in corporation taxes but told newsmen:

"I want to pick up more revenue by closing tax law loopholes instead of piling up taxes on corporations which, everybody knows, are hidden taxes ultimately paid by the consumers."

The move was designed to meet President Truman's requirement that the excise cuts must be offset by larger taxes elsewhere, before he will sign the bill.

This would cut the tax load of small corporations earning from $5,000 to $167,000; but jump the present 38 percent income tax rate for the biggest corporations to almost 41 percent.

Administration leaders immediately predicted the tax bill, in a form suitable to the president, will be handed to the White House in time for Congress to adjourn July 31.

However, this schedule assumes prompt approval by the House, where the bill is expected to come up next week, and the

Joe Bowers, 44, Oil-Cattleman, Dies in Hospital

Joe Benjamin Bowers, engaged in the oil and cattle business in the Panhandle since 1927, died unexpectedly about 3 p. m. Monday at a local hospital. He was 44.

Mr. Bowers' holdings of about 3,000 acres in Gray County went into oil production in 1927. These wells are believed to be the second group put into operation in the Panhandle oil section.

The oilman was born in Gray County June 5, 1906. He was the son of Joe and Lizzie Bowers, who began ranching in 1911 nine miles south of Pampa.

His mother, a native of Missouri, died in 1930 and his father a year later.

In addition to his oil and ranching business in Gray and Hemphill counties, Mr. Bowers also had wheat interests in South Dakota. He was a member of the American Legion.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Wednesday at the First Christian church, with Rev. H. H. Tyler, church pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery, Blackburn-Shaw-Sims Funeral Home in charge of arrangements. The body will lie in state late Tuesday afternoon at his residence, 519 E. Kingsmill.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Loretta Bowers; two sons, James Elzia and Joe Ben Bowers, Jr.; also two brothers, Aurbra and John. All are of Pampa except Aurbra, who lives in Hemphill County.

Budget Bureau Conditionally Approves Dam

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The $85,000,000 Canadian River dam project in Texas has received the conditional approval of the Budget Bureau.

Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas last night said there were three conditions in the endorsement of the West Texas conservation development, and listed them as:

1. Congress should appropriate no funds for the work until a contract has been signed by all three states on the Canadian watershed. These are Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

2. The reimbursable feature of the project — 95 percent of the cost — should be repaid with two percent interest.

3. Ownership of the development should be placed in the hands of municipalities which are to use the water at the earliest practicable date.

Johnson said the recommendation was given Interior Secretary Chapman, who will send it to Congress.

(Pampa's Mayor C. A. Huff received formal notification of the bureau's action in a telegram from Sen. Johnson this morning. The telegram said the bill would probably go first to the full Senate interior and insular affairs committee.)

The approval gives pending legislation to authorize the project a much better chance to pass this session of Congress, Johnson said.

The legislation was passed last year by the House and is pending in the Senate.

Included in the project are a $27,000,000 dam and a $54,000,000 aqueduct system to deliver water to a dozen cities in the Panhandle and High Plains of Texas.

Solons Favor Plans For FBI Increase

WASHINGTON — (AP) — J. Edgar Hoover's campaign for 300 additional FBI agents to hunt down Communist spies appeared today to be tabbed for victory.

The House appropriations committee and a Senate appropriations subcommittee were reported to have agreed to approve the FBI director's request.

The Senate subcommittee's recommendation is expected to be accepted in turn by the full appropriations group and the Senate.

Hoover told senators two months ago in a secret session that there are 54,000 known Communists and some 500,000 Red sympathizers in the United States who form a potential fifth column of traitors.

He said at that time that the Communists were more active today than Fascist and Nazi agents ever were during World War II.

Hoover's testimony, released on June 8, left a deep impression on lawmakers. One senator, who asked that his name be withheld, said both the House and Senate groups felt Hoover should get the full number of agents he requested plus about 400 additional other employees to help carry the Federal Bureau of Investigation's heavy work load.

This would give Hoover the largest force of undercover agents the Federal Bureau of Investigation ever had and allow for greatly increased activity in seeking out subversives and foreign spies.

Measure to Force Criticism Reply In Papers Killed

BATON ROUGE, La. — (AP) — A bill which would have required Louisiana newspapers to print replies by persons criticized in news stories or editorials is dead.

The measure killed Thursday was defeated 70-29, but failed of the required 53-vote majority.

The bill was formulated after the New Orleans Item published many Louisiana legislators "branded as liars" and "lackeys" of Gov. Earl Long. The publisher of the Item, David Stern, and Editor Clayton Fritchey were summoned before a special senate committee to face possible contempt charges and today pay sentences. The newspapermen refused to retract or apologize and the committee declined to recommend punishment.

"We've had enough trouble this session with newspapers," said Sen. C. E. Bethancourt of Houma. "Why antagonize them with something we can't enforce?"

The measure would have required newspapers to print "in the same prominence" replies by persons criticized by the press. Fines and jail sentences were provided for newspapermen who refused to print the replies.

Band Chief Hired For Lefors School

LEFORS — Byford Sealy, graduate student of North Texas State Teachers College, Denton, was appointed director of the Lefors Independent School District Monday night.

Sealy received his bachelors degree from NTSC and will receive his MA there this summer. He has been assistant band director at North Texas.

H. C. Wilson, superintendent-elect was also present at the meeting. Wilson expressed a desire that all parents with children who will start to school this fall give their children some pre-school preparation. This would include physical examinations, vaccinations and other medical care.

He also suggested that parents teach children something about school discipline by means of coloring, cutting out paper dolls and other similar methods. This would cushion the shock that party rigid school discipline places on the child who has never experienced restriction of movement, he explained.

During the meeting members voted to buy a two-way inter-communication system from General Electronics Co., of Houston. The system was demonstrated at the meeting by a company representative, Ralph D. Block. They also voted to purchase a popcorn machine for the use of school money-raising projects.

Attending the meeting were Roy Jeffreys, president, E. D. Vaughn, Ed Brock, Wiley Guthrie, Marvin Tibbets, Fred Browning, Henry Dunn, W. E. James, Sealy, Wilson, and Block.

Refreshments of pie, cones, and ice cream were served to the group in the school cafeteria.

Rose Covered Trellis Forms Setting for Hillis-Wilson Rites

GROOM — An improvised trellis covered with vines and red and white roses, formed the setting for the marriage of Lena Hillis to Alva Wilson last Saturday evening in the garden of the Bob Newton home at Lark.

Leroy Carver, minister of the Church of Christ, read the most impressive double-ring ceremony.

After the guests had assembled, a chorus, composed of girls from the local Church of Christ and also friends of the couple from Lark and Amarillo sang "Because," "I Love You Truly," "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" and "Always." The chorus was directed by Jay Carver of Amarillo. The girls all wore pastel evening gowns and each wore blue or yellow nosegays, chosen colors of the bride.

The traditional wedding marches were hummed softly for both the processional and recessional.

Given in marriage by Homer Martin, in whose home Miss Hillis had lived the last year, the bride was dressed in a white satin gown with a hooped skirt. It was designed with a fitted lace jacket with a full flared peplum. She wore an Indian head penny in her shoe for something old. She carried her bridal bouquet on a white Bible, which was borrowed from Becky McCoy. Her fingertip length veil of illusion was attached to a net headdress embroidered with pearls designed in the form of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of blue orchids surrounded with stephanotis and showered with satin streamers

Mrs. John Reed of Jericho, matron of honor, wore a yellow organdy gown. Her headdress of yellow net was styled similar to that of the bride. She wore a corsage of yellow carnations.

Miss Helen Moran of Abilene, maid of honor, wore a blue embroidered organdy gown. Her headdress was of yellow net styled similar to that of the bride and she wore a corsage of blue carnations.

The flower girls were Molly Newton of Lark and Carol Jean Wilson of Pampa. They wore identical dresses of blue organdy styled with ruffles around the neck and across the back with hooped skirts. Each carried a basket covered in yellow petals to represent an opening flower. Their headbands were made of blue and yellow split carnations.

Danny Craig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Craig of Lark, was the ring bearer. He was dressed in a white suit and carried the rings on a small white satin pillow.

Herman Wilson, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man and Roy Martin, nephew of the bridegroom, served as usher and groomsman.

Mrs. Martin, whom Miss Hillis had adopted as her mother, wore a black and white printed dress with black accessories.

Mrs. Wilson, mother of the bridegroom, wore navy and white with navy accessories. Both wore gardenia corsages.

Following the ceremony, the bridal party was feted with a reception in the Newton home. Laid with a lace cloth, the serving table was centered with a bouquet of blue and yellow carnations, white plumes and blue satin bows.

Mrs. John Hickox, sister of the bridegroom, served the cake and the punch was poured by Mrs. Lee Kirk, Mrs. Fred Holcomb and Mrs. John L. Witt.

Other friends in the houseparty who assisted Mrs. Newton were Mrs. John V. London, Mrs. Roy Clark, Mrs. Allan Knorpp, Mrs. Henry Merrick and Mrs. Clarende Merrick.

Mrs. Jesse Lewis, wife of the local Church of Christ minister, secured names for the guest register.

The couple is to be at home in Groom, after a wedding trip to Colorado. Mrs. Wilson will teach in the Groom public schools this fall. Mr. Wilson is associated with his father in business at Lark and with the Barnett Elevators at Lark.

For traveling the bride wore a blue tailored suit made to match that of the bridegroom. She wore navy accessories and her corsage was an orchid taken from her bridel bouquet.

About 150 guests attended the wedding.

A Mature Parent Can Forget Past

By HAROLD F. STRONG
Written for NEA Service

Parents who allow yesterday's unhappy past to rob them of today's joy in their children are children themselves who refuse to accept the discipline of living.

Failure is a universal human experience.

But if we accept past failures as proof of our inability to win and hold new affection, those failures can wreck our relationships with children.

Emotional disturbances among youngsters of divorced parents often spring from parents' shaken confidence in their value to others.

In the process of helping a boy under treatment for chronic truancy, we learned his mother's background. Daughter of a domineering mother, she had eloped at 18 and been divorced. A second marriage also had failed.

When we worked with her, she gradually was able to recognize that her inability to control her son stemmed from a deep conviction of her own incompetence to make good decisions, a distrust of her own right to authority. Her dominated childhood and failures as a wife had paralyzed her confidence.

Divorce is generally only the climax to the repeated failures of two people to reconcile conflicting points of view.

In the emotional tension, man and wife are unable to separate fact from fiction, and can emerge from the collapse of their marriage overwhelmed by a burden of self-doubt and defeat.

A parent who has been divorced must take time for a sincere appraisal of his experience. If he has made mistakes, they should be admitted, and squeezed dry of whatever lessons they have; then they should be forgotten.

Otherwise, any distrust of himself that is left over will carry over to his relationship with his child. The youngster's readjustment to the new state of affairs will not be hastened by a defensive, uncertain parent whose whole attitude suggests he is not qualified to take authority.

Parents who expect defiance have only themselves to blame if defiance is what they get.

Tomorrow: The desire to see your children excel.

19 Texans Barred From U.S. Service

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Civil Service Commission disclosed yesterday that 19 persons at Houston have been barred from federal service for frauds in Civil Service examinations.

Of the 19, the commission said in a statement, 11 now are government employes and four are former employes. The federal employes involved have been fired.

The commission said the frauds were committed in connection with examinations for career postal positions. It found that the 19 persons either impersonated someone else or had someone impersonate them in taking the examinations

Since no criminal charges have been placed, no names were released. All, however, are barred from federal service or three years and also face the possibility of court action.

The commission said that of the 19 persons, eight took examinations for some other person while eleven — all federal employes — had someone else take examinations for them. Of the 15 employes or former employes, 13 were letter carriers and two postal clerks.

Grace Friend . .

CHANCE FOR A GOOD DEED

Dear Mrs. Friend:

I belong to a church club, the members of which have always had much in comman and have always had wonderful times together.

Lately one of our members has invited a woman to join the group who has belonged to the church for some time but has never been active in the social life.

No one in our club likes her or wants her in the group. She is unattractive and always persists in wearing dresses much to big for her so that they hang on her thin body like sacks. She never washes and puts her new makeup on over the old. Her hair could be blonde and pretty but it is so dirty and greasy that it has no color at all and it smells so that no one can bear to sit next to her. I should add that that is not the only odor which emanates as she never bathes or cleans her clothing.

I tell you all of this so that you can see that there really is a problem. No one wants to, or can hardly bear, to sit near her and if we plan anytrips no one wants to be in the car with her.

Only one of us wants her, the one who asked her to join.

We don't want to be mean and hurt the woman but it just seems like too much to keep her with us.

How can we ask her to leave the club so that she won't be hurt?

L.D.

Dear L. D.:

Why don't some of you approach the woman's friend and explain the situation to her? Perhaps she can advise the woman about her personal appearance.

If she doesn't want to why don't you have a few discussions at your club meetings in which the importance of cleanliness and personal appearance are discussed. If no member wants to talk about it ask a guest speaker to talk on those subjects.

I hardly see how a group of people purporting to follow the teachings of Christ can ask a woman to leave their group, especially as you are all members of the same church and at least have that in common. It would seem to me that the only course open to a Christian would be to try to help the woman overcome her handicap.

She cannot be entirely unaware that she is avoided and probably will welcome advice on how to correct the situation.

Christ would not have turned anyone away regardless of her appearance. Here is a chance for you to observe his teachings. See what you can do with it.

Avoid Summer Wilt By Extra Grooming

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer

It takes a special bit of doing for career girls to keep that spic-and-span look during the summer.

Freshly-combed hair and newly-pressed clothes seem to wilt on the way to work. Summer whites and pastels show every fleck of dirt that sneaks in an open office window. Even clean scrubbed skin, made damp and oily by the heat, attracts more than its usual share of grime.

Chief villain, of course, is perspiration odor, which tends to become more troublesome as the season advances.

There are two safeguards against these problems. The first is cleanliness. Best rule to follow is: when in doubt, don't. Don't try to get by with yesterday's shower, that not-quite-fresh blouse, last week's shampoo or a below-par deodorant.

Second is neatness. Choose simple clothes of wrinkle-resistant fabrics. Save your frills for the cool of the evening.

Give special attention to your undergarments. Summer sheers reveal frayed straps, safety pins and wrong-color slips. Lightweight materials yield to your bulges, particularly when dresses are cut on the bias, so girdles and bras are important too. Don't highlight your figure faults by neglecting curve control under this season's fitted styles and clinging fabrics.

UCLA, USC Netters Picked As NCAA Tourney Favorites

By BO BYERS

AUSTIN — (AP) — UCLA and USC looked like the teams to beat after yesterday's opening rounds on the NCAA tennis tournament.

All four of USC's singles entries — three of them seeded players — advanced to the third round with little trouble. Likewise, UCLA's quartet, two of whom are ranked second and fourth in the meet, reached today's round.

One of UCLA's representatives, Glenn Bassett, pulled the major upset of the second round by bouncing out fifth-seeded Richard Savitt of Cornell, 7-5 6-0. Bassett's dogged returns and beautiful lobs, combined with the Texas heat, wore Savitt down.

Abilene Sox Shove Pioneers to Cellar With 9-3 Pasting

ABILENE — (AP) — The Blue Sox gave eighth place back to the Clovis Pioneers last night, winning behind lefty Bob McChesney 9-3 to square the series.

Sam Hunter relieved McChesney in the eighth inning when the ex-Hardin Simmons University southpaw got in deep water. Pete Trabucco opened the inning with a double and scored in a single by Bob Moniz. Catcher Harry Bright doubled Joe Blake was safe on an error Moniz scoring. Hunter retired the next three batsmen.

Abilene won the game in the third when Ralph Rahmes hit his fourth homer in as many consecutive games to drive in manager Stubby Greer, who had singled.

Payte Is First Pampan To Hurl Two Shutouts

It was a scorekeeper's headache, but who cared?

George Payte became the first Pampa Oiler hurler to toss two shutouts this campaign when he blanked the Amarillo Gold Sox on seven scattered hits last night as he and his teammates continued their awesome display of plate prowess by pounding three Gold Sox chunkers for a nightmarish 20-0 victory.

It was the second straight victory for the Oilers over their arch-rivals, and was comparatively simple. The big Pampa bats pounded out eighteen hits in the first four innings and scored all their runs before Manager Seitz evidently gave the "let-up" sign and the Oilers mercifully coasted to the victory.

At the end of one hour of play, the Oilers were at bat with no men out in the bottom of the third inning. At that rate, it would have taken over three hours to complete the contest, but as the Oiler attack slackened, the teams completed the farce in 2 hours 19 minutes. It was the second such outlandish Oiler win in the current home stand, which ends tonight, after the Pampans massacred the Albuquerque Dukes 24-8 on June 14.

But actually, Payte needed only one run to win last night and he took care of that personally by blasting a home run in the fourth inning. His big bat slapped out three hits in four appearances, and he scored four of the Oiler runs himself. It was his most impressive showing of the year, although he did blank Abilene 6-0 on June 1 in a seven-inning game.

Over 2,000 fans sat almost spellbound last night as the Oiler attack started rolling the minute Dick Dawson stepped into the box to lead off the bottom of the first inning. Dick, who has provided the spark that kindled many of the recent Oiler scoring spurts, opened things when he drove starter Metz LaFollette's first offering of the game over the left field boards. It was a fitting welcome for the Amarilloans and typified the rest of the action. But things weren't eased for the big Sox righthander, and he saw his change-up pitch slapped against the right-field boards by Deck Woldt for a double. Then Roy Parker relieved the hefty hurler of his troubling base runner by smashing another four bagger over the left field wall and propelling the Oilers into a 3-0 headway. LaFollette then got the next three men to retire the side.

In the bottom of the second, five consecutive singles by Martin Payte, Dawson, Woldt, and Parker, scored three more Oiler runs. The long seige saw the last three bingles blasted right back through the box into centerfield and had a great deal to do with driving LaFollette to shelter.

But the rightsider stuck around to open the Oiler third frame firing, but after trying to fastball Virgil Richardson, he retired, "Big Rich" slapped his third homer off Amarillo hurling in the last two games to open the third. Then manager Harry Davis waved in Bob Stevenson. Stevenson's attempts were slaughtered, as he too was greeted by a home run. Don Ricketson smashed his first fence clearing blast of the evening to start the newcomers troubles. Jeandron walked and Martin singled before Payte sacrificed both runners with a perfect drag bunt down the third base line. Stevenson threw wild to first and Payte was safe. Dick Dawson once again found the first pitch to his liking, and pounded this third consecutive hit and second home run of the game, scoring two in front of him. Woldt singled, Parker walked, and Joe Fortin sliced another single to left, scoring Woldt. Richardson, who had started the inning, walked, and Stevenson gave up. With none out, Andy "Ace" Adams was called in and promptly retired the next three men to end the inning.

In the fourth, Adams didn't fare quite so well. He became the third Gold Sox hurler to be greeted by a home run when George Payte bounced one off the left field score board. Dawson got his fourth straight hit, a double to left centerfield, and Woldt singled. Parker was the victim of three fast strikes, but Fortin walked to load the bases. As if he wasn't in enough trouble, Adams then walked Richardson to force in a run. The bases were cleaned, however, when Don Ricketson blasted his second homer of the game and sixteenth of the year. It was his first grand slam circuiter of the season. Adams whiffed Jeandron and got Martin on a popper to first base to end the inning.

The Oiler attack was apparently eased by orders from manager Seitz, and the Oilers got only one more hit throughout the remainder of the game. Adams pitched creditable ball, but the Oiler hitters seemed to swing listlessly, as if trying to speed the end of the game and end the nightmare.

The Oilers will end their current home stand tonight against the Gold Sox beginning at 8:30. Bill Garland is expected to toss for the Oilers against an unannounced Amarillo opponent, although it is expected that either Ray Faust or Hersil Zolliecoffer will get the nod. The Oilers will then leave for an extended tour that will take them to Albuquerque, Borger, Amarillo, Lamesa, and Abilene. They return home on July 3 against the Albuquerque Dukes.

HOMER MATNEY, Oiler centerfielder, has provided local fans with more than his share of thrills these past two seasons with his sensational play, but is now being forced to retire, due to an injured back. He is currently hitting .348. After retiring, he plans to remain in Pampa and sell Atlas Life Insurance.

Matney Forced to Retire After 9 Years of Baseball

Nine years ago, a straggling rookie third baseman pulled into Pampa and asked Manager Grover Seitz for a chance to make his team. That day marked the beginning of one of the finest careers in organized baseball.

For it was on that day that Homer Matney began breaking in as a rookie with Manager Seitz and his pre-war Oilers. And now, nine years later, the amiable fellow is being forced to call it quits, right where he started.

Classed as one of the greatest defensive outfielders in West Texas-New Mexico League history, Matney is being forced to the sidelines with an ailing back. Injured discs in his back have begun pinching nerves, so that the roaming outer-gardener has been in pain for the past several weeks.

As the announcement was made over the loud speaker in Oiler Park last night, telling the fans of his forced retirement, an ovation split the air and shook the very rafters. But it was a meagre tribute to one who has added so much to the game. Oiler officials and fans have decided to hold a Homer Matney night on July 4. On that night, the Albuquerque Dukes will play a doubleheader with the locals, and Matney will receive any gifts and contributions, donated by fans. It would be impossible to give him too much.

Homer came to this city as a third baseman, and after spending his rookie season here, advanced to Waterloo of the Three I League where he moved to the outfield. In the latter part of 1942, he joined the Army and served three years.

Upon his release in 1946, Homer went to St. Paul of the American Association, and then in 1947 joined the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League. He stayed with the "Bums" for 17 days, but played in only three games, before being farmed to Montreal, Canada. He stayed with Montreal until the early part of 1948 when he left for Mobile. He was then traded to Fort Worth of the Texas League where he compiled an almost legendary fielding record. He was selected on the Texas League All-Star team in 1948, and seemed destined for greater things in 1949. But he chose to come back to Pampa.

So, back he came — and last year, and up to the present time this year, he has roamed the various league outfields with the greatest of crowd-pleasing skill, and is currently hitting .348. Statistics seem almost forgotten, however, when one speaks of such a fine all-around fellow.

Matney's plans are to remain here, with his family — a wife and two sons—as an agent for Atlas Life Insurance.

Houston U. Joins Missouri League; Drops Gulf Coast

HOUSTON — (AP) — The University of Houston is the newest member of the Missouri Valley Conference.

Arthur E. Eilers, conference commissioner, announced yesterday in St. Louis that the school had joined the loop.

Eilers said that a conference vote in the next three or four days will determine exactly when the university will be admitted to championship competition as a full fledged member.

The university definitely will play conference baseball and compete in spring sports in 1951 and will play conference football in 1951, he said. There is a possibility that Houston will play conference basketball in 1950-51.

Wichita, Tulsa, Oklahoma A. and M., which, with Houston, form the western half of the loop. The eastern half consists of Bradley, Detroit, Drake and St. Louis.

Houston will play two games with Missouri Valley Conference members this fall.

Armed Heads for Kentucky As Third Top Money Earner

By FRED HAYDEN

NEW YORK — (AP) — Armed today was heading back to the lush blue grass of Calumet Farm in Lexington, Key., where he started out as an ugly duckling. But the retired old man of the turf always will be remembered as the golden gelding.

The gallant galloper ended his story-book career as the third greatest money winner of all time with $817,475. Citation tops the money winners, with Stymie second. Armed won more than half his 81 races — 41. He was second 20 times and had 10 thirds. Only 10 times was he worse than third. He's nine years old now and has raced seven years. The veteran built up a popularity seldom, if ever, equalled.

He's the champion money earner of all the geldings in turf history. He has been since he won the Suburban Handicap at Belmont Park on Memorial Day of 1946. That was the day he overtook the great oldtimer, Exterminator, who finished first in half of his 100 starts and earned $252,996.

Jimmy Jones, who has had charge of Armed for several years, or since he relieved Papa Ben handling the main training chores for Calumet, always has rated Armed his favorite — above the famed Whirlaway.

Armed didn't reach the heights of Citation, but he accomplished a great deal more than Ben or Jimmy ever expected of him.

This year, Armed raced six times, getting two wins and three seconds. He won his last race on March 22 at Gulfstream Park in Florida — an overnight affair, and wound up his final season with earnings of $7,525. But that's more than he banxed the first year he raced — as a three-year-old in 1944, when he won three of seven starts and $4,850.

You'd have given little for Armed as a yearling — a pitiful looking, undersized runt, and his meteoric career as a handicap star did not begin taking shape until he was a four-year-old in 1945. Before completing his 1947 season, he had broken eight track records around the country.

It was in 1947 that Armed, Assault and Stymie had turns at holding the world money-winning title. Armed that year had his greatest season, earning $376,325.

Rosson Twirls Lobos To Win Over Dukes

LAMESA — (AP) — Eulis Rosson gained his second victory in as many games as the Lamesa Lobos edged the Albuquerque Dukes, 9-8, here last night despite an erratic defense that commited six errors which gave the visitors three unearned runs.

Rosson notched his tenth win of the year in a relief role as a crowd of 1,253 fans saw the Lobos rack up their fourth straight victory, and their sixth success in the last seven games. The veteran righthander allowed only one hit after replacing little Isael Ten during a Duke uprising in the seventh inning.

Frank Calo doubled Bill Ashley home from second in the bottom of the seventh with what proved to be the deciding run. Ashley had walked, then moved to second when Bo Dempsy was hit by a pitched ball.

Don Cantrell went the route for Albuquerque, allowing 12 hits and absorbing his fifth defeat of the season, against a like number of victories.

Williams Moves Into 2nd Place In Player Poll

CHICAGO — (AP) — Boston's Ted Williams has moved into second place behind Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals in the popularity poll of the nation's fans in selecting starting lineups for the All-Star baseball game at Comiskey Park July 11.

Musial today remained the best vote getter with a total of 112,208 ballots. But Williams, the American League's most valuable player last year, is closing in with 109,317.

Second baseman Jackie Robinson of Brooklyn is third with 107,982 while George Kell, Detroit third baseman, has dropped to fourth with 103,684.

Future Unsecure In Coast Loop; HU Drops Out

WICHITA FALLS — (AP) — D.L. Ligon, president of the Gulf Coast Conference, today declined an opinion as to what will happen to the conference with the University of Houston out of it.

He said he would call no special meeting of the conference but that the matter would be handled at the regular meeting in Decemmber.

He said University of Houston probably would continue in the Gulf Coast Conference through the next football season anyway.

North Texas State, Midwestern University and Trinity University are other members of the Gulf Coast loop.

Let's Talk Things Over
With Gabby Garrison

In most instances, last night's 20 to 0 Oiler victory would have been finished with probably less than half of the original crowd in the stadium. That would have been in any average game, but hardly in a tilt in which Pampa beats Amarillo.

It probably does more Pampa people more good to see an athletic organization from this city soundly trounce a team from Amarillo than the largest bottle of Hadacol could do in a million years. It's like a shot in the arm, and the shock last night was one that electrified the entire ladies night crowd of some 2,200 fans, probably a third of which was from Amarillo. I doubt if there was one fan in the crowd that left before the game was over, unless he was from Amarillo.

Jerry Sheridan, Amarillo Times sports writer, called me from Amarillo at 1:30 this morning to get the box score. He said he was here, but left in the fourth inning to escape the ribbing he would have received at the merciless hands of Warren Hasse and myself.

The scribes from the Amarillo Globe just sat through the game, changing pencils and shaking their heads. In commenting on the fact that Bob Stevenson was charged with seven runs on six hits in no official innings pitched, since he retired without getting a single Oiler out, Frank Godsoe said, "That's correct, but it ain't right." Then as a foul ball bounced off Joel Calloway's leg in the first base coaching box, the Amarillo writer remarked, "That's the hardest he's been hit since yesterday." The Oilers had pounded Calloway Sunday and driven him from the box.

Yes sir, these past two nights have been something to remember. Let's hope tonight doesn't spoil it.

A month ago this coming Saturday, I came to The News as Sports Editor. At that time, the Oilers had won 11 games and lost 20 and were in the league cellar. And now, here it is in less than a month and we're only two games out of the league lead and in second place. The boss thinks maybe the Oilers should pay half my salary. Jim Arndt, Oiler business manager, is agin' it, because he thinks we would have started winning even if I hadn't come. Maybe so, but I shouldn't think that the Oiler organization would miss that extra $2.50 per week.

Last night's pitching performance in Amarillo by "Overhand Joe," the mechanical tosser, was quite a success. The robot tossed against the Elk City Elks and the Dumas semi-pro team. It worked the entire game, pitching for both teams. That's a new angle. Instead of hiring a team doctor, they can get a mechanic.

Speaking of the Elk City Elks, Howard Bass, former Oiler pitcher, is still their ace mound performer, and Jack Riley, ex-Pampa third baseman and outfielder, is now leading the team at the plate.

Bass has won five games and lost none, at the last official release. He had started seven games, given up 44 hits, fanned 49, and walked 18. He is the only Elk hurler who has not lost a game.

Riley has elevated his batting average to .412 with 28 hits in 68 attempts. Six hits have gone for two bases and three for triples. The former Oiler third baseman has still failed to hit for the circuit.

Other ex-West Texas - New Mexico League stars playing with the Oklahoma club are: Lester Mulcahy, catcher who played with Albuquerque last year, batting .393 for the Elks with 10 home runs to his credit; Joe Bauman, Amarillo Gold Sox first baseman in 1946-47, now hitting .392 with seven homers; and Bass, who is batting .355.

The Elks won their league last year and placed third in the National Semi-Pro tournament. This year they're in the lead with 18 wins and three losses.

We've received lots of queries about the new "Meet the Oilers" series, started Sunday. The features are to be run twice each week, on Sunday and Wednesday, for approximately 10 weeks. We sure learned a lot of interesting things in interviewing the Pampa baseballers. For one thing, we didn't know that Joe Fortin was a student at Texas Tech last winter as a P.E. major, and . . .but, that would be tellin', so we'll just wait for the stories to come out.

I received a possible solution from some fan the other day in regards to the recent problem of attendance at Oiler home games. The attendance has increased considerably now, though, but this fan reminded us that Betty Grable was a mascot of the St. Louis Cardinals when she was a girl. This fan wondered if the Oiler management wouldn't take the hint. Well, Mr. Mills. . .

Unsympathetic Bums Stop Giant Winning Spree, 8-5

By JOE REICHLER
AP Sports Writer

Tip to the National League clubs — don't bring a winning streak into Ebbets Field. Those unsympathetic Brooklyn Dodgers are sure to crack it.

Really, it's uncanny the way the devil-may-care Dodgers cool off the "red hot" clubs.

First it was Philadelphia. The young, eager Phillies stormed into Ebbets Field on Memorial Day in first place as a result of winning five of their previous six starts. The Brooks immediately polished them off twice to knock them off the top perch.

Then it was St. Louis. The Cards came into Brooklyn last Friday leading the league by three and a half games. The Dodgers thrashed them three straight times to send them limping away with only a half-game lead.

Last night it was New York. The Giants moved in with four wins in their last five starts. Another triumph would boost them into a fifth place tie with Chicago.

But it was not to be. Led by Jackie Robinson and Carl Furillo, the Dodgers dusted them off, 8-5, for their fourth victory in as many meetings with their interborough rivals.

The victory, Brooklyn's fourth in a row, moved the Dodgers into an exact first place tie with the idle Redbirds. Each team has won 32 and lost 20.

The Braves fell three games off the pace last night when Cliff Chambers of the Pittsburgh Pirates bested lefty Warren Spahn in an old-fashioned 1-0 duel.

A two-out single by Danny Murtaugh in the second inning, a poor throw by Sibby Sisti and Earl Turner's one-bagger brought in Murtaugh with the only run of the game.

The game was enlivened by a skirmish between Chambers and Boston's Earl Torgeson. The latter rushed Chambers in the third inning after he was grounded by a close pitch. Not a blow was struck, as usual.

Chambers had hit Torgy on the back with a pitched ball in the first inning of Sunday's second game.

Just before he was "lowbridged," Torgeson had lashed a long foul into the right field stands. The bespectacled Boston first baseman and Chambers are natives of the same state—Washington.

Chambers allowed only four hits to Spahn's five. He stopped Sam Jethroe's hitting streak at 15, horse-collaring the Negro centerfielder four times.

Writer-Friend Tells Truth About Ted Williams Story

(Editors Note: This story helps explain the unusual and often strained relations between Ted Williams and Boston fandom and sports writers. Joe Reichler, a friend of Williams, spent many days investigating.)

By JOE REICHLER

BOSTON — (AP) — Most baseball players eagerly seek to win the favor of fans and sports writers alike.

Not so Ted Williams. He is at sword's points with all but a few Boston newspapermen. And the exchange of insults between Williams and Fenway Park's left-field bleacher crowd has already caused an explosion.

On the other hand, baseball players who work with and against him, are unanimous in praising him as a person as well as a diamond great. Also, the kids and a lot of obscure people swear by the great Boston Red Sox hitter.

Does the constant booing of the fans affect his hitting? Does he trace that to the batting slump he underwent recently that dropped his average down below .300?

"I don't give a damn about the fans," says the great Boston outfielder. "Most of them can go to Hell. They don't bother me one damn bit. They've been on me for years but I'm not worrying one bit. Let 'em boo all they want and let 'em cheer me all they want. I'll ignore them just the same. If they get on me too much I'm just hot-tempered enough to tell them exactly what I think of them.

"The majority of the fans are all right but those bums in left field are just plain morons. They say I take offense too easily but there isn't a man alive who could take all the filthy abuse those guys out there hand out without dishing some of it back."

Why doesn't he get along with the writers?

"They can go to Hell, too. Not all. But most of them. They wail because I won't bother with them. Why should I, when all they're interested in is digging up dirt. They lurk behind pillars hoping to catch you in some wrong. Sports writers today don't care about facts and figures. All they're interested in is your personal life. Give the fans figures, records, scores. That's what they want, not what does Joe Doakes have for breakfast in the morning."

A Boston newspaperman, Al Hershberg of the Post, offers an explanation for Williams' attitude towards fans and sports writers alike:

"He's the toughest person in the world to figure out. He'll do anything in the world for the underdog. But for some reason he'll not get along with a fellow who can help him, such as newspapermen, for instance.

"He'll donate to charity, help poor families, visit sick people in hospitals, hand out dozens of free, autographed baseballs — as long as he gets no publicity about it. Just let him find out that you intend to put it in the papers and he'll have nothing to do with you.

"He just doesn't want people to see he's a nice guy. He's great with people individually but hates people collectively."

Very few Boston writers talk to Williams except when necessary. And that's the way Ted wants it.

On the other hand there's Leo Cloutier, sports editor of the Manchester (N. H.) Union. He swears by Williams.

"The trouble with the Boston writers," Cloutier says, "is that they don't take time out to get to know the real Williams. He has his eccentricities and he's great copy so they exploit his weaknesses to the limit.

"But if they took pains to find out the real Williams they'd find him to be one of the most generous and finest fellows in the world. He has great virtues. He never lies. If he gives his word, you can depend upon it no matter what the cost. As a friend, he's the most loyal in the world."

Then there's Art Sampson of the Boston Herald.

"Williams can be the sweetest, nicest guy in the world," says Sampson, "if you don't try to delve into his private life. He is frank, honest, extremely generous and devoted to his friends. Do him a favor and he'll never forget it."

"Williams is a mass of contradictions," says Murray Kramer of the Boston Record. "He'll be your best friend one day and won't even say hello the next."

"Ted has a lot of traits that I wish I had," says Steve O'Leary, also of the Record. "He's done a lot of wonderful things that I wish I had thought of doing. He's the most misunderstood man in baseball and yet he's brought a lot of it upon himself."

What about those gestures he made in the direction of the fans during a doubleheader with the Detroit Tigers the last Thursday in May? What brought that on?

"I'd rather forget about that. I've regretted that incident ever since. I was sincere when I apologized publicly to the fans."

In writing about the incident that Williams would like to forget, the Rev. John S. Kennedy, a priest who writes for the Catholic Transcript of Hartford, Conn., said:

"What Williams did was disgusting. It was completely out of place in an adult. But what about the good old fans? In their way, they were quite as disgusting as Williams. They were like a pack of animals, howling, bellowing, screeching, yowling in a way not even remotely human. They behaved like denizens of a zoo which have not been fed or watered for a week . . ."

Jack Malaney, veteran Boston Post Writer, voiced similar sentiments.

"I'm not excusing Williams' wretched behavior the other day," Malaney said. "But the fault is not entirely his. Having heard some of those insults hurled at him by fans hidden in the stands, I can understand his feeling.

"I sat out there among those wolves in left field once and I actually blanched at some of the things screamed at Williams. They just called him the lowest, vilest, rottenest names they could think of. As sensitive as Williams is, he just couldn't stand them forever."

Malaney said he thought much good was accomplished by the column Jimmy Cannon, wrote in the New York Post which said Williams intended to ask to be traded at the end of this season.

"Many people took stock in the story," he explained. "And they worried that it might be ture. It suddenly dawned on them that Williams might soon be hitting some runs against and not for Boston.

"The first time Williams stepped up to the plate following the trade story the crowd gave him one of the biggest ovations of his career. They've been cheering him ever since."

Dick O'Connell, in charge of the park, lays most of the blame on visiting patrons from the surrounding areas.

"Every Sunday we get 40 busloads of fans from those areas," he explained. "They all have reserved seats in the left field stands. They're part of an excursion crew. Most of them are half liquored up after a couple of hours on what we call a 'floating barroom.' They don't need much of an excuse for goading Williams with insulting remarks."

Squeeze Play Gives Hubs Triumph Over Borger Gassers, 5-4

LUBBOCK — (AP) — Rookie Buddy Morrow's perfect squeeze bunt sent Buddy McCallum home from third with the run that gave the Lubbock Hubbers a 5 to 4 victory over the Borger Gassers in the last half of the ninth inning here last night.

Walt Stenborg walked with one out and McCallum went in to run for him. Bob Clodfelter, who posted his 11th victory of the year, fanned for the second out, but Jackie Wilcox kept the rally alive with a clean single to right-field, McCallum taking third.

Morrow, on the first pitch, laid the ball down the third base line no more than six inches fair. McCallum came streaking in from third before the Gasser infield could make a play.

The Hubbers had taken a 2-0 lead on Mike Dooley's 14th home run of the year in the fourth and two more runs made it 4-0 in the fifth.

But the Gassers rallied for one run in the seventh on an infield single, another single by Jimmy Littlejohn and an outfield error that allowed Bob Leonhard to score from second.

Three more unearned runs counted in the eighth to deadlock the count, two errors with three hits accounting for the tying runs.

In an effort to break the losing jinx, the Borger club agreed before the game to draw batting order numbers from a hat. Fred (Pappy) Williams, the club's leading hitter, drew the lead-off assignment.

Work on Short Putts in Practice To Develop a Smooth Stroke

By GENE SARAZEN
Winner of Them All

Most golfers practice their putting by starting out with the 30-footers and work in.

It is much more advisable to start a foot or so from the hole and gradually work back to 15 feet or so. You are more likely to develop a smooth stroke.

Golfers think too much about holing their practice putts. Great golfers like Horton Smith concentrate on their stroke when they practice. They know if they are stroking the ball correctly, they will get their share of putts.

Putting techniques are more individual than any of the other strokes, but there are two touchstones that all excellent putters follow.

★ ★ ★

SQUARED AWAY — Twice U.S. Amateur champion, Willie Turness, above, lines up a putt with the face of his putter looking at the hole.

First, keep the blade as low as possible going back.

Second, the face of the putter is always kept square to the hole. It must look at the cup during the entire stroke.

Anybody can hit the ball. It takes a golfer to put his shots together and a three-foot putt is every bit as much of golf as a 250-yard drive.

The putter separates the cream from the milk. The great champions have all been beautiful putters. Harry Vardon is the one possible exception to this rule and when he was winning he wasn't a bad putter.

A champion cannot remain so if his putting falls off.

In the 1946 U. S. Open, Byron Nelson played immaculate golf from tee to green, the best in the field. Nelson failed to win not simply because he three-putted the 71st and made a miserable putt on the 72nd, but because on his full four rounds his putting was not coordinated with the pitch of the rest of his game.

Point of No Return

Free markets must be kept clear of bureaucratic controls if the United States is to continue to progress, said J. Howard Pew, of the Sun Oil Company, in an address before a group of distinguished scientists. He then added: "There are men in our own country today clothed with political power who are deligently striving to socialize industry, medicine, education, labor and security. This is a totalitarian program and cannot be reconciled with the economy of the free market. . .I warn you that we are rapidly approaching the Point-of-No-Return on Freedom's Highway."

Does anyone believe that American industry would have progressed to its present development had government controlled it in the past? In answering that, think of the oil industry as a typical examyle. It is les than a hundred years old. Its pioneers were laughed at as hopeless visionaries who'd lose their shirts. Enormous sums of money had to be spent and no one knew if they would ever be recovered. Great chances had to be taken, great obstacles overcome. All of this was done because the men who believed in the oil industry worked in an air of freedom, where individual enterprise and ability could take the risks — and reap the rewards, if any. What socialized country has such blessings as the United States?

What is true of the past is true of the present. It will be true of the future. The free economy is the only kind that brings out the best in people. It is the only kind which makes certain — through the irresistible force of competition — that the people will be given what they want at the lowest possible price. And, most important of all, it is the only kind which is compatible with human freedom.

Fair Enough - Pegler

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK — Organizations purporting to be Republican issue programs, blueprints and schedules to attract Democratic and socialistic votes. Some elder Republicans are so discouraged that they are willing to yield leadership to ignorant, immature and unprincipled sprouts calling themselves "young" Republicans if, by this means, the party could elect enough nominal Republicans to control the committees in Congress. They are frankly willing to vote for Democrats and Socialists on the Republican ticket, believing that the mere label on the majority would somehow assure them of Republican administration.

This is despondency. A Republican administration or Congress which would put through the Truman-socialistic program of compulsory government medical service involving a checkoff might as well be called a democratic or Marxian administration or congress. The label would be reminiscent of the mockery of the ill-printed, ill-pasted blandishments on the counterfeit Old Step-father and Old Bath-tub that we deceived ourselves with during prohibition. It was all hootch and the horrible effects were not ameliorated by the labels. Any Republican who is willing to settle for Senators Margaret Chase Smith, of Maine, Aiken and Flanders, of Vermont, and Ives, of New York, is kidding himself. These people are, at best, democratic dead-heads who don't uphold the republic which existed until the adoption of the fatal 16th Amendment and the 17th, providing for the direct election of senators.

The 16th was the turning point. By that fundamental change, the people ceased to be masters of Congress and became subjects of Congress and the White House. It abolished their right to any portion of their earnings. We now retain only as much as Congress, by a generous impulse, allows us to keep. Cordell Hull, the Democratic hillbilly congressman of that day, was the author and most potent advocate of the 16th. He had not the excuse of the ignorance which might be said to mitigate the crime of the sockless hayshakers who only understood that this was a chance to thrive on the taxes of the New York and Chicago city slickers.

One of the "young" Republican programs proposes to grant federal money to states with low per capita wealth and low public revenues to raise their expenditures per child "at least to the national educational average." One reason why they have low revenues is that income tax and social security take the substance. The question whether the federal government has any right to pay part of the cost of educating children is glibly decided in favor of the idea. But the Constitution of this republic never even entertained the thought that a New Yorker should have to pay a per capita to provide elaborate school buildings and fancy affectations for the children of the Arizona citizen whose per capita wealth is far below his rate of expenditure on schools. The erratic activity which is called education was none of the federal government's business. It would be equally reasonable to make the citizen of Key West pay taxes to shovel snow off the walk of a citizen in Buffalo. "Education" has become a vast professional racket for parasites and conspirators with a devouring appetite for taxes, pushing children out front as an advance guard.

Lynching is similarly stirred into the Marxian confusion which some nominal Republicans profess to regard as Republican doctrine. There is a superstition that the Deep South commonly practices lynching as a sport, but Michigan, Ohio, Minnesota and Pennsylvania have tolerated more lynching in the last 15 years than the Deep South ever did. But they make a distinction in favor of the rackets called labor unions whose lynchings are excluded from the act.

If a mad mob of Crackers kills a colored man suspected of a crime in some turpentine swamp in the heat of passion, that undoubtedly is a lynching. But if an organized and instigated battalion of trained goons imported across a state line for purposes of anonymity should reduce the local cops to quavering cowardice and kill and maim in cold blood fifteen or twenty citizens not under suspicion of any crime, they would not be a lynching. The anti - lynching law would take no notice.

The federal government has no right or duty to mess in local police work except to the extent already provided, which may be excessive. But if it had such a right or duty then the distinction in favor of mighty bands of criminals operating under formal charter as political wards of the ruling party obviously is Hitlerian doctrine. Hitler's Brown Shirts offer a precedent and a parallel. Yet these criminal battalions are political subsidaries of the Democratic party and now we find organizations professing to be Republican indorsing this horrible business as republican doctrine.

My essays are not consecrated to the candidacies of all who offer themselves as Republicans. A Marxian on the Republican ticket is a Marxist still. It is a compromise or a fraud to support opponents of the republic on our ticket. Vermont, historically a Republican state, is now actually to the left of the new deal and infested with actual Communists in the lower portion, especially in summer. That was why there was such lively hope that the Alger Hiss trial would be transferred to Vermont.

Zigging Bicycle Shoulda' Zagged

WILMINGTON, Ohio — (AP) — The bicycle he was passing zigged when it should have zagged, so he drove his car into a dtich, a Georgia motorist told the highway patrol yesterday.

As a result, Kenneth Boshire, 65-year-old cyclist of nearby Blanchester, is in city jail here facing a charge of drunken driving on a bicycle.

The driver who said he took to the dtich to keep from hitting Boshire is W. J. McCloughlin, 41, of Atlanta, Ga. Boshire was cited by State Highway Patrolman J. F. Cushman.

I LOVE TO TELL THE STORY

DAVID BAXTER

Different groups of Christians have held to various ideas about Jesus and the Christian walk in life, but for ages immemorial they universally did one thing— they glorified Christ and held Him up as the Supreme Individual, the finest, the best, the very sum total of the supremacy of goodness. Jesus was enthroned as the immortal King of kings in the hearts of all sincere persons who bore His name. The agnostic doubts the activities of organized religion but he admires Jesus. The atheist does not believe a God exists but he quotes Jesus as, at least, the sublime philosopher. True, Confucius had said, "Do not do to others the things you would not have others do to you," but it was Jesus who took this negative advice and made it a positive way of life; "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them." Here was the dynamic of doing, not just refraining from doing.

To say that religionists have sinned and, at times, violated every principle of Christ, would be putting it mildly, but that wasn't Christ's fault. His teachings were, and are, as good as ever. It is just that men do not always hold fast to that which is good. Men are very fickle and changeable, but "Jesus Christ, the same, yesterday, today and forever."

I have heard many men tell of their conversions to many groups and no man should be ashamed of his testimony of what he believes to be right. In my own case, I was converted to what I believe to be Christianity, and which the church fathers believed, while a political prisoner of F. D. Roosevelt in the Washington, D.C. jail in 1942. I was awaiting trial on a false charge of "sedition," of which charge the courts of the United States exonerated me. The assistant attorney general who prosecuted me is presently running around with Charlie Chaplin and Paul Robeson to communist conventions, recently visiting Moscow and laying a wreath on the tomb of John Reed, American communist buried in Red Square. After years of strong agnosticism, I was moved by seeing a copy of the Gospel of St. John treated disrespectfully by a fellow-prisoner. These brochures of love had been given us by Harvey Prentice, a splendid Christian and head of the Washington Gospel Mission largest in America. My change of heart came after re-reading the Sermon on The Mount in a Bible left in my cell by the Gideon Society and I discovered that "the blood of Jesus Christ, God's son, cleanseth us from all sin." I came to understand that fine word "Grace" and the accompanying one "Faith", and to this day I have never been ashamed to give the testimony of a Christian believer.

In the matter of the Christian walk, at first ascetic, I have come to believe that it involves a great deal more than merely telling people what we believe, for, says the Scripture, "be ye doers of the Word and not hearers only."

In doing, Christians are generally agreed that three duties are involved: To God, country and family. The first is spiritual, involving carrying the Gospel to all the world; the second has to do with citizenship; the third family responsibility. There is a close affinity between the second and third duties, each revolving about morality as defined in the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule. Here is where the Christian can let other men know whether or not he has real faith, for "faith without works is dead" —at least in the sight of men, since only God can see the heart.

The late Dr. Walter A. Maier of the Lutheran Hour once told me that one of the saddest failures of Christian duty to country and family was the reluctance of many Christians to actively participate in political action; our lives, fortunes and education in this world being largely influenced by what happens politically and economically. Your tax bill, for instance, is a direct result of what you and others have or have not done in your political responsibility as a citizen. We say that we need more Christians of high moral and ethical principles as our public servants, but how are we to get them if they won't serve? Many such men, for example, think Christians should have nothing to do with politics on the ground of separation of church and state. But, while church should truly be separated from state, there is a vast difference between the serving Christian individual with his duty as a citizen and organized religion. I have yet to read of Jesus telling His followers not to be of service, in whatever field they may be required, from treating the sick and feeding the hungry to serving as county supervisors or government representatives, in all of which they can well apply the Golden Rule. In "occuping till He comes" there seems to be many ways of doing it servicably, idealistically and morally.

This is all, of course, a matter of the Christian individual, exactly opposite to the prevelant notion of organizing huge church machines and projecting them upon the body politic, which really would be "the church in politics" of the vilest type. It is noteworthy that in all of those latter moves, the tendency is to more and more obscure Christ and His mighty teachings, and substitute organized religion, compulsion, collectivism and the nastiest kind of political and economic immorality. Eventually the plotters of this kind of "kingdom of God" would obliterate Christ completely and make a god of government. To substantiate this, I need only quote Bishop F. J. McConnell, of the Federal Council of Churches, who wrote: "If present day tendencies are to give us any clues we cannot think of God as absolute in the old sense. The only absolutes we can respect are the absolutes of the moral realm. We are in protest against absolutism in rulers. The call of men today is for a limited God." ("Democratic Christianity" page 2).

In his book, "The Search For A New Strategy in Protestantism," (pps. 31, 32, 58-61) another big political church collectivist, Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, past president of the Federal Council, says, "In a recent article on 'Paths to Peaceful Revolution' published in the Christian Century, Mr. Kirby Page uses these words: 'a questionnaire responded to by nearly 21,000 clergymen and rabbis showed that 18,324 of these ministers favor a cooperative commonwealth as contrasted with 1,035 supporting rugged individualism. . . . Approximately 6,000 expressed themselves as favoring socialism, and nearly 10,000 as supporting drastically reformed capitalism.' Such words reveal the conviction of a man who believes the system must be changed and that the church must take a prominent part in the overthrow of this system. A revolution must come and the church must be a leader in the revolution. . . It must appear to thoughtful persons that peaceful revolutions are slow in coming and long of duration. The only revolution which succeeds quickly is a blood revolution."

That's what Dr. Holt wrote. See the difference between his seeming put-the-church-in-as-a-bloody-revolution-leader, with collectivism the goal, and the idea of Christians as individuals, respecting the moral rights of other individuals, following the teachings of Christ? While all real Americans are revolutionary, they are not the Dr. Holt type. They revolt, instead, against the communism and regimentation he seems to call for. They revolt against any form of tyranny whether by one man or majority initiative.

Thus, when the Christian sings, "I Love To Tell The Story," it is of Jesus and His love, not of a religious machine trying to bring a Marxist dictatorship upon men. It is a Jesus and His glory, the glory of He "who spake as never man spake" and Whose "truth shall make you free." His glory may well be reflected in men of principle, who believe something and believe it strongly, without compromising, and who serve Him by serving others in whatever capacity they may be called. Our nation could certainly use a few of them.

news behind the news

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Both public and private developments now disclose that Secretary Dean Acheson's recent mission to London was not so successful in strengthening our "cold war" forces as he has reported to President Truman, to the American Congress and to the people.

His polished phrases and legal analyses cannot conceal that it was actually a failure, in the opinion of Capitol Hill.

The Secretary of State maintains, publicly and privately, that he achieved his goal of persuading Western Europe to forget ancient differences, and organize its social, political, economic and military resources so that, together with our reinforcement, the "free world" could present a formidable front that Russia would never dare attack.

CONFIDENCE — Relying on these Achesonian assurances, in a speech written by State Department experts, President Truman journeyed to the Middle West to express a new confidence in the Western Powers' ability to combat Russia without resort to arms.

National Defense Secretary Louis Johnson chimed in obligingly by instructing his military aides — Generals Bradley, Collins and Vandenberg — to talk vaguely of "new weapons," which would obviate the need of mass armies, meaning millions of American boys.

ALLIES — The purpose of these revelations was to assure our European allies that we could stop the Russians at the Elbe or Rhine Rivers, so that they would not be conquered overnight and forced to await — again — five years before "liberation."

They warned Mr. Acheson, as well as his diplomatic and military aides, that they had no stomach for that kind of American aid or relief.

That is the story of the overseas drama as it has been told by President Truman and Secretary Acheson. It contrasts violently with what is actually happening across the water.

REJECTED — The British Labor Party, in a formal proclamation, has rejected French Foreign Minister Schuman's plan for merging the steel-and-coal resources of France, Germany and other Marshall Plan countries.

Besides ending the economic rivalries which have precipitated three wars, two of which involved almost the whole world, the scheme is designed to strengthen Western Europe against Russia.

Mr. Acheson characterizes it as a "hopeful and imaginative move." But Britian will not join because the pooling may mean more severe competition for her products, and because this private enterprise project would endanger the success of her socialistic system.

For the same reason London does not favor the so-called European Payments Union, which would try to break down the tariff and monetary barriers that choke intra-European trade, and force Europeans to depend upon Marshall Plan billions for bare recovery.

VALUELESS — Both of these plans were eulogized by Secretary Acheson in his three reports. Without Britain's participation, they are valueless.

Oddly, even in his Dallas speech, which was delivered on the day the Labor Party spurned the Schuman proposal, Mr. Acheson failed to mention the British rejection.

It was as if a lawyer demanded acquittal of a murder defendant in court, even after he learned of new evidence that showed him to be guilty.

Prime Minister Attlee has said that England will "cooperate" in any attempt at "European integration." But he spoke only after angry outbreaks about Britain's attitude on Capitol Hill, and he did not elaborate.

DANGER — Mr. Acheson reports that the twelve North Atlantic Pact nations have agreed to organize a system of "balanced collective security." To prevent duplications, he says, each member will contribute the arms and forces it is best equipped to provide. The Western European countries, he says, will furnish men in the early stages at least.

Now Paris informs us that she does not want to supply even twenty or thirty divisions, the minimum needed for a defensive ground force. The same is true of England, Holland and Belgium.

They cannot afford to maintain large armies and, even if they could, the people are so set against another "bath of blood" that they want to pull out of the "cold war," leaving support of the anti-Russian cause to the United States.

That is the spirit now sweeping Western Europe because of the fears of actual conflict engendered by recent jingoistic statements at Washington and Moscow.

Thus, contrary to Achesonian assurances, we were never in greater danger of losing our economic and military allies, or of being forced to wage the "cold war" with an outpouring of billions of dollars over there and here.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, MD.

WRITTEN FOR NEA

The morning after the first hot Sunday or holiday of early summer brings to every office a crop of sun worshippers whose bright red skins and blisters show a lack of good sense in exposing themselves to the sun.

Strangely enough it is the same people who year after year forget their past experiences and over-expose themselves to the sun in spite of the discomfort which they have previously suffered. They ought to know better, but they seem never to learn.

Now severe sunburn is not only uncomfortable but can be dangerous. Furthermore, sunburn is no help to health. The sun's rays are necessary for the growth of plants and help in maintaining the health and well-being of human beings and animals.

One of the benefits which the sun can give is to aid the human skin to produce a substance called vitamin D, which is necessary for complete good health and which prevents rickets in children.

A brown, tanned color is the result of the deposit of a pigment or coloring matter in the skin called melanin. This helps to protect the body against getting too much from the sun's rays. When the skin becomes pale it means that there is not much melanin present.

Melanin does not flow to the skin at once on exposure to sun but takes time. A white skin, therefore, is not as well protected against the sun as it is when good tanning is present. Until the skin is protected in this way it can be burned by the sun in almost exactly the same way that it can be burned by any other hot substance.

When the skin is burned by sun the outer layers are killed and have to be replaced from the layers below. After a severe sunburn, for example, the outer layers are shed in sheets and pull off. The dead outer layers do not get any benefit from the sun and actually prevent some of the good which is desired.

NO FALLING ASLEEP

People who are not accustomed to much sunlight and do not show tanning should be careful about the first few exposures. They should be especially careful not to fall asleep in the sun. Too much sun is dangerous as well as uncomfortable.

A number of ointments or lotions can be placed on the skin and will protect somewhat against rays of the sun and promote tanning rather than burning. There are many of these substances on the market.

Ungrateful Bird Costs Samaritan

DEAL, N.J. — (AP) — Robert Bertelsen, a kind-hearted service station employe, tried not to step on a little bird pecking at the ground last night.

But in dodging the bird, he stumbled and fell through a plate glass window. He wasn't hurt, but his boss charged him nine dollars for new glass.

The bird flew off without saying thank you.

Church Says Devil Must Be Supplied

DETROIT — (AP) — The Detroit conference of the Methodist Church, announced more than 400 ministerial appointment yesterday, but left a few pulpits to be supplied.

One of the latter was the church at Devil's Lake, near Ann Arbor.

CHIRPS

By ROBIN TIBBETS

To me, a filing cabinet is a most fascinating article of furniture—if you want to call it furniture. Some people call it equipment, some call it furniture, and others call it just plain junk. But to me, regardless, it is still a fascinating piece of metal.

I doubt if anyone knows who first thought of the filing cabinet. Whoever he was (and it had to be a he), he must have been one of an unusualy disorderly mind. Only one with such a mind would ever be capable of inventing such a place where sheets of paper can be so disorderly filed in such an orderly manner.

Always, there is a drawer for items which come under one or other of the letters of the alphabet. About the only thing wrong, is there aren't enough letters in the alphabet. To offset this unfortunate mistake Roosevelt made, there is a letter which has been added for the purpose of taking care of all the articles which are invariably left over after all the filing is completed. The letter of which I am speaking is "Miscellaneous" which is actually a combination of a number of letters. So ingenious was the thinker-upper of this new letter that he caused it to fit practically anything from eight-legged donkeys to nudist colonies.

Apparently, filing cabinets were invented to confuse otherwise efficient secretaries. For example, boss says to go get that letter on Cuban Imports from the files. So Susie marches briskly over to the filing cabinet and very confidently pulls out the "I" drawer, supposing to find the letter under the heading of "Imports." Aha! But she is wrong. Not only is the letter not under the heading of "I," but it is also not under "C." A thorough search of the files discloses the letter under the "F" index. Why? Well, Gracie, the filing secretary, explains it this way: the "C" file was too high for her to reach, since she is only 5 feet 2 inches. In that same light, the "I" drawer is too low, which would cause her to have to bend over or kneel down and a tight skirt sorta makes that impossible —so, the letter is placed in the "F" drawer, not only because it is convenient to reach, but also because the writer of the letter's name is Jean Pierre La Font, a Frenchman, and with so many F's in his name, his letter just naturally belonged under the F's!

Thus when the morning paper comes out next day and a glaring headline reads: "Intoxicated Businessman Claims He Saw Snakes With Drawers," who can complain?

Washington.....by Peter Edson

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

(Peter Edson on Special Assignment)

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — High Washington brass and the town's socialites are a little miffed over the seating arrangements which have been made for the main attraction of the celebration of the city's 150th birthday this summer.

The event in question is a big pageant called "Faith of Our Fathers" which will be presented in a giant new amphitheater being built in Rock Creek Park. It's generally considered a mark of social rank here to have the best seats for any important event such as this.

However, Edward Boykin, the noted historian from Charlottesville, Va., who is in charge of the production, has ruled that the best seats at the gala premier will go to the carpenters and laborers who worked on construction of the amphitheater, and for free. It's a deserved reward, he says, for their hard work on the project.

IN FRYING PAN

Popular Rep. Mike Monroney (D., Oklahoma) who was named the outstanding congressman on the hill is reported to be making good headway in his fight to win the Democratic senatorial nomination next month. His opponent, the elder Sen. Elmer Thomas who has sat in the Senate for 24 years, is out campaigning harder than he ever has before. But he's using the same tack that lost Senator Pepper the nomination in Florida. It's the claim that he loaded the state with Federal projects and benefits. The only difference is that Pepper claimed he had been responsible for delivering $1,500,000,000 worth of pork. Thomas is only claiming the delivery of $1,000,000,000 worth.

But Thomas is also trying to make clear to the Oklahoma voters that his seniority on Senate committees is the best vantage point for getting additional federal dollars and benefits. Actually, in spite of his youth, Monroney's great popularity among all the congressmen and government officials probably gives him more influence in the Capitol than Thomas wields. But he's not making an issue of this.

INTER-SERVICE FEUD

Some Pentagon experts predict at least a backstage feud between the Army and Air Force over the recent announcement that ground forces would have atomic weapons for tactical use against the enemy. They point out that the recent Navy-Air Force fight was basically over which agency would handle delivery services for the A-bomb.

When the use of tactical atomic weapons first began to be taught in the Army's schools, the Air Force experts registered their objections to such instructions. There's still plenty of doubt among the top military planners as to whether or not the A-bomb is a satisfactory tactical weapon.

ADJUSTMENT PERIOD

Post office officials are upset by the fact that some letter carriers are using their jobs to try to arouse the public to demand a restoration of the cuts in service. It is reported that some carriers are distributing petitions asking for two deliveries a day. Many are complaining about the lack of a place and time to eat lunch. Some reports of deliberate slowups are also being looked into by postal inspectors.

Answer of the postal officials to the complaints is that the carriers actually will have plenty of time to go any place they want to for lunch, that some delays which have been experienced will disappear as soon as the change is put into effect and that as soon as the public gets used to one delivery a day, nobody'll miss the other one.

SHARE TV SUCCESS

Wayne Coy, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission is very worried over the slow progress FM radio is making. He is urging that makers of television sets give the FM industry a hand:

"FM can be added to the TV set at comparatively small cost. This would mean that FM could ride TV piggyback up the ladder of success. At this stage of television's development when daytime service is limited, such an arrangement would make it convenient for the set owner to snap on the FM when television is not on the air. Whenever a manufacturer sells a TV - only set as the principal receiver in the home he is slamming a door on aural radio."

FARM INCOME

In spite of recent increases in the price of food, the Department of Agriculture predicts that the average U. S. farmer will end up the year making less than he did last year. Total farm income was 13.8 billion in 1949. While farm prices dropped during the early part of this year, farm costs stayed about the same. And the current increases in retail food prices won't make up the difference, the experts say.

LAST LAUGH

After Gen. Joe Collins had been informed he was to be Chief of Staff of the Army he immediately wired his friend Gen. Floyd L. Parks who was stationed at Pearl Harbor that he wanted him to come back to the Pentagon in the same job he had just left, as Chief of Information. Parks informed the Pentagon that he was returning reluctantly, but that they'd have to wait a few days because he planned to stop off in San Antonio, Tex. and win the Army's senior golf championship.

Gordon Gray, then secretary of the Army and golf crony of Parks', got a big laugh out of this boasting, but the laugh was on Gray because Parks actually won the championship. That's why, when Gray left the Army, he donated a huge silver loving cup as the perpetual award for the senior golf champ and presented it to Parks first.

DEMS EYE TICKER TAPE

Predictions of a business boom for the rest of 1950 are regarded by Democratic political leaders as a good omen for their success in the November elections. Stock market continues generally upward. Unemployment is still high, but dropping. Most of the major labor disputes are now settled and out of the way. National income is up. Consumer spending is up.

If you believe in business "cycles" — which most economists don't — U. S. may dodge serious depression for another 10 years or so. The frequently predicted post-World War II depression never developed. The 1949 recession was more like the post World War I dip of 1920. The real depression came from nine to 12 years later.

GERMAN REDS ARE BUG-EYED—Moscow recently charged—and Washington denied—that the U. S. is experimenting with bacteriological warfare by dropping thousands of potato bugs on Soviet-controlled East Germany. The German Communist weekly "Deutschlands Stimme" purports to prove the accusation with the front-page layout shown above. The headline reads: "Potato Bugs Dreamed Up? Our Reporters Followed the Trail of an American Pilot." The map is alleged to show the route of the bug-bombing plane. Other pictures show peasant women who say they saw the plane and a place where Reds claim bugs were dropped.

Army Seeks Total Control Of Defense, Crommelin Says

MONROE, La. — (AP) — The Army General Staff Corps is seeking complete control of the elements of national power, says Rear Adm. John Crommelin, retired Navy aviator and unification opponent.

In a continuation of his criticism of defense polities, he assailed what he called the "Prussian policies of the Pentagon" in a speech before the Louisiana department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The General Staff Corps, Crommelin said, wanted to eliminate the Marine Corps and make the Navy impotent and was an example of the "Prussian ideal of an elite group of dictators."

He called for a reduction in the strength of political factors in the administration of the armed forces.

The General Staff Corps, he continued, was aiming at complete control of "the elements of national power-economic, political and military."

After Crommelin's continued speeches against unification caused him to be furloughed at half pay he sought retirement and was put on the retired list at captain's pay. He was advanced to rear admiral. He has announced as a candidate against Sen. Lister Hill (D-Ala) in the November general election.

Census in Cleburne Shows Large Boost; Johnson County Up

FORT WORTH — (AP) — Cleburne's population reached an all-time high of 12,842 while Johnson County's increased from 30,384 to 31,108 during the last 10 years, District Census Supervisor James M. Hamilton announced here.

He pointed out that the urban areas in the county showed an over-all population increase of 3,045 as compared to the 724 increase in the county total. The urban increase indicates continuance of the trend toward decreased rural population, he said.

The previous high in Cleburne, the county seat, was 12,820 in 1920. Population decreased during the intervening years to a low of 10,558 in 1940.

Alvarado's population showed the second largest increase with the total rising 324 to 1,652.

The census report showed an increase of 222 in Burleson to 795; 116 in Godley to 423; 59 in Grandview to 882, and an increase of 36 at Venus, bringing the total to 357.

'Strangers' Finally Decide on Divorce

MIAMI, Fla. —(AP)— A woman who claims she and her husband have been "living as strangers" in a trailer since Christmas, asked a divorce yesterday on grounds of extreme cruelty.

Mrs. Marie Dove claims that her husband, William Dove, spent great sums on drink and on his friends but had no money for her.

For the last six months, she said, they have not eaten together and have "barely spoken." They were married 10 years ago.

Astronomer Thinks Meteor May Have Fallen in Texas

FORT WORTH — (AP) — The dean of Fort Worth's amateur astronomers thinks a meteor may have fallen in the Lewisville area southwest of Denton.

Oscar Monnig said he believes the meteor which threw a dazzling blue light over Southern Oklahoma and Northern Texas early Sunday morning fell in a north-south trajectory and came very close to the earth, if not all the way.

Monnig spent Sunday sleuthing the meteor and plotting its course by talking with persons who saw it. He talked to Clint Starr, night watchman at North Texas State College in Denton, and witnesses at Ponder and Krum. He said he also learned of two persons who witnessed it at Lewisville.

Monnig advised residents in the Lewisville-Lake Dallas area to be on the lookout for a piece of the meteorite.

"It looks like black crusted rock, solid in form and similar to slag," he said.

Mars Markings Are Called Scars

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — (AP) — Canal-like markings on the planet Mars are fracture lines, not products of "intelligent life," the American astronomical society was told yesterday.

Dr. Clyde Tombaugh, who discovered the planet Pluto, made the observation in a paper on geological interpretations of the markings on Mars.

The scientist, now in charge of telescope observations at the White Sands rocket proving ground, rejected the idea that the markings are made by "men on Mars."

Instead, he suggested, they are scars left by collisions with smaller planets or asteroids.

Determined Robins Won't Be Evicted

BUFFALO, N.Y. — (AP) — Two determined robins have set up housekeeping in a partly built house.

The contractor, Otto R. Nagel, twice tore down their nest but each time the robins built a new one. When Nagel saw five eggs in the third nest, he moved it to a joist.

As work progressed, the nest was moved to another room. The birds stuck to their home and all five eggs have hatched.

"The robins raise a fuss when we get too near," said Nagel, "so we try to work in another part of the building."

Driving Course Must Include Small Items

OLEAN, N.Y. — (AP) — A $151.44 repair bill convinced the board of education that something more was needed in the high school automobile driving course.

"Instructions on checking of oil, water and battery are now a part of the course," said George L. Purdy, a board member.

The bill was for replacing bearings and a crankshaft because the oil ran low in an automobile used in the course.

Unwanted Trousers Suddenly Popular

DETROIT — (AP) — Hereafter Milton Pierce will be careful when he tries on a pair of pants.

And of course he'll remember Harold Hoffman with gratitude.

Hoffman, in town from suburban Royal Oak, bought a pair of slacks yesterday at a department store.

As he pulled them on at home, he thrust his hands into the pockets in the satisfying way a man does with a new pair of pants.

Hoffman was more than satisfied. He was astonished. He pulled out a $61 roll of bills and an endorsed pay check for $90.05.

Hoffman went to the Royal Oak police. The police called Detroit police. Hoffman called the check endorsee.

It was a very happy ending. The endorsee was Pierce. The police record showed he had reported that exact loss last June 3.

Now he has it back.

Abashed but pleased, too, Pierce said he must have switched his money to the slacks and then forgotten all about it when he left without making the purchase.

Model Awarded Month's Alimony

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — For 26 days of marriage, photographer's model Thelma Glass, 28, was awarded one month's alimony.

Superior Judge Joseph Maltby yesterday allowed her a flat $250 as alimony instead of the $2,000 monthly she had demanded. Her husband is Richard A. Glass, 26, whose family operates a large produce company. Glass showed his weekly salary from the business was only $76.

They were married March 2 and separated March 28. Glass sued her for divorce, charging "cruel and inhuman treatment." She countered with a demand for $2,000 monthly pending trial of the suit, date for which has not been fixed.

Worker Electrocuted At Dallas Airport

DALLAS — (AP) — Leo Richards, an employee of a paint contractor, was electrocuted yesterday when a metal scaffold he was helping to carry came in contact with a 2,400-volt power line.

Four other men pushing the scaffold escaped with only minor shock.

The men were working near a Braniff International Airways hangar at Love Field. Braniff officials said the scaffold being moved reached 35 feet into the air.

Agriculture Commissioners' Trial Is Postponed Again

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The trail of the Texas and Georgia agriculture commissioners on charges of violating the federal lobbyist law has been postponed again, this time until Oct. 30.

The postponement was the fourth in the case. Originally, it was set for Feb. 13. It was postponed until April 17, then continued to May 29, on which day it was continued over until yesterday.

The commissioners are James E. McDonald of Texas and Tom Linder of Georgia. Others facing the same charges are Ralph W. Moore, of Washington, Robert M. Harris of New York and the National Farm Committee.

They are accused of lobbying in Congress for higher farm prices without registering as lobbyists as required by law.

The committee is a Texas corporation described by the government as a front for the individual defendants.

Actress, Writer In Divorce Case

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — Charging cruelty, Actress Rochelle Hudson, 33, has sued Sports Writer Dick Hyland, 50, for divorce. Her complaint yesterday said he caused their separation March 15.

Married Dec. 18, 1948, she is Hyland's fourth wife. She was divorced in 1947 from Navy Lt. Comdr. Harold Thompson.

Most Men Die Ready, Writer Who Covers Execution Says

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD
Associated Press Staff

Don Reid, Jr., amiable Texas newspaperman who has witnessed more than 100 executions at state prison, says most doomed men "die ready."

"I've never seen a man who didn't walk into the death chamber and sit down in the chair under his own power," Reid said. "I've seen one or two who died bitter. But mostly, they're mellow, as if assured they're going to a better place."

Reid, a specialist in the death cell interview, told the Texas Press Association convention at Fort Worth Saturday "a reporter must be sympathetic when he talks to a condemned man."

"The reporter must keep in mind that the condemned man is a human being who realizes his days are numbered and that when 1,800 volts shoot through his body it will all be over."

Reid said William R. Ray, executed recently for the rape of a 9-year-old Fort Worth girl, was "one of the least prepared men I ever saw go down."

"You could tell it the moment he walked into the death chamber with his head down. When he said he forgave everyone, he didn't mean it."

By way of contrast, Reid cited the execution of Porter Henderson, 47-year-old Harris County Negro who died last week for killing his wife.

"He walked in with a wide smile on his face and you could tell he was at peace with everybody and everything. He stopped in front of me with only a railing between us and asked if he might say something to me. I nodded. And he said: "I'm so glad I can stand before you tonight, knowing I'm going to see Jesus. He was singing in kind of a spiritual way as they strapped him in the chair — I'm going on home to Jesus."

Reid credits chaplains at the prison and visiting ministers for "preparing" men for the long last mile.

He is opposed to capital punishment, saying: "we have the electric chair but crime is still on the increase." He advised Texas editors and civic organizations to "stop crime before it begins — take a greater interest in ways to halt juvenile delinquency."

Reid has yet to write a word about executions for the newspaper he edits. He covers the death house dramas as a special correspondent for the Associated Press, and said: "Everybody in Huntsville reads the daily papers which carry the stories of executions. There's no reason to carry them again in our weekly."

● THIS can happen on almost any newspaper boy's route! In the turmoil of moving, some subscriber forgets to notify the carrier and to pay him for the papers he has delivered. As a result, change of delivery is delayed and the boy is out of pocket until he can locate the missing family.

So, if YOU plan to move, remember to inform your carrier—or our office—a few days before you go. Then, you'll be sure of immediate delivery at your new address.

And be sure to pay your carrier, if you are moving to another boy's route. Each carrier is in business for himself!

1—Card of Thanks

T. M. HATFIELD

We stand oft-times in the deep shadows of grief, longing for comfort yearning for love — While Christ is close beside us, closer than an human friend can be. If only we will dry our tears, and look up into His face, believing, our soul shall be flooded with His wonderful love and our sorrows shall be swallowed up in the fullness of joy. There is never the least doubt about the presence of Christ in our times of trouble; it is only because we remain unaware of the presence that we are not comforted.

We wish to express our sincere thanks and heartfelt appreciation to our many friends and neighbors for the kindness extended us at the time of our bereavement, the loss of our beloved husband and father, T. M. Hatfield. Especially do we thank Rev. E. C. Armstrong of Harrah Methodist Church. Also Blackburn - Shaw - Sims Funeral Home.

Taking Care of Movie Trio Full-Time Job for Mother

By GLORIA YARBROUGH
(For BOB THOMAS)

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Rearing three children is trouble enough, but Mrs. Eleanor Perreau has double trouble — hers are movie moppets.

"I don't know what I'd do if I had any more," she sighed on the set of "M" where 7-year-old Janine is emoting in her fifth picture.

Mrs. Perreau, a comely blonde, is also the mother of acting veterans, Gigi Perreau, 9, and Peter Miles, 12.

"My husband is in Rome right now with Jerry (Peter's real name)," she said. "Gigi will start another picture in two weeks and Janine will still be working on this one. I should be twins."

Mrs. Perreau explained that she likes to be with the children at least at the start of a picture. While they work she knits or answers their fan mail.

Bringing up three movie youngsters is no cinch, and she smilingly agreed that it requires some tact. Each child has a private bedroom because each has an entirely different personality.

When the children aren't working they lead perfectly normal lives, says mother. They go to a parochial school and get almost all "A's."

MILK BRIGADE—A Pittsburgh district storekeeper who defied striking milkmen to import milk for children had his store window broken during the night. LIEUTENANT McGANN took another sip of coffee before he resumed the explanations.

"Why did they nickname that horrible little man 'Lofty'?" Gloria asked, still holding Miltiades' hand.

"For the same reason that you call a big man 'Tiny.' Because he was small," the lieutenant explained.

"All the time I thought he was Hansen, because Hansen was tall," Gloria said, glancing at Hansen who smiled proudly.

"We couldn't disillusion you because Hansen—you knew him as Reuben, the doorman—was too valuable to us. He'd wormed his way into the Benoni gang without their knowing he was a federal officer."

"A federal officer!" Gloria blushed. She hadn't been very bright. That was why Hansen—Reuben—had been following her tonight. He thought the pie might have heroin in it, or that Gloria was carrying heroin around. Maybe he thought Gloria was another Sal! Probably it had been Hansen's badge that had made Ella Mae, the beauty operator, scream. Ella Mae looked pretty shady herself.

But Gloria consoled herself in the thought that both she and Hansen had mixed things up as thoroughly as the ingredients for a pie, yet somehow they had come out right. The whole recipe emerged as something to be proud of. It just went to show what Gloria had suspected, that a real cook didn't follow the rules in the cookbook, but tasted, experimented for herself . . . as Gloria had experimented with death while Lofty held his gun on her.

She murmured, "Why did Lofty follow me around so?" She unclasped Miltiades hand.

"He suspected that you knew either where the necklace was or where the Benonis were hiding," Lieutenant McGann pointed out. "And he was afraid you'd learn—well, look."

He drew his handkerchief from his pocket, unfolded it carefully, and the necklace lying there looked like a stage prop or something the Medicis might have worn, with its massive setting, its enormous green stones.

The lieutenant pushed at the clasp, which was as big as a pill box, and something white and powdery fell into his hand.

"Heroin," he said grimly. "There's room to store the stuff under every gem."

"You mean Alida Strong, the stage star—" Gloria gasped but McGann shook his head.

"We don't know yet, frankly. Maybe Sal just used the necklace for a hiding place, safe because it was so improbable, and she always had access to her sister's dressing room."

He put the necklace carefully away and Gloria was glad to see the end of the evil thing that had cost so many lives.

The lieutenant murmured, "Of course it was Sal who jettisoned dope into your sugar jar at Jones' Beach. She saw Hansen and got scared."

* * *

"SUPPOSE we'd eaten some of it!" Gloria shivered. "It's a good thing you got arrested, Miltiades, so the police got it."

"Yeah, I made a swell goat," Miltiades said bitterly.

He was still worrying about his job. But surely the office wouldn't fire an innocent man.

"It was what you said about Sal and Lofty quarreling that gave us our first real clue," McGann told Gloria. She remembered the scene—on the street when she was talking to Sammy the newsboy. She must have Miltiades buy a new gun for Sammy's father.

"Any time you want a job with the Brooklyn police, let me know," McGann was saying.

Hansen spoke now for the first time: "Just one thing, Mrs. Brown. What was that poem you shot Lofty Gordon with? It wasn't in my McGuffey's reader."

"It was from 'The Frogs,'" Gloria told him. "Aristophanes wrote it about 400 B.C. It's my favorite Greek drama."

"It ought to run on Broadway," said Hansen. "It's still got what it takes. And so have you, Mrs. Brown."

* * *

"THE next thing, they'll be wanting you in the F.B.I.," Miltiades told Gloria bitterly. "It's easy to see who wears the pants in this family. I take a nice safe room in jail while you knock off a public enemy."

"They also serve who only stand and want out," Gloria giggled, her dimple going through its customary stunt in the corner of her mouth. Suddenly she tensed, began to scream and flung herself frantically into her husband's arms. McGann whirled nervously, expecting at least to see that Lofty Gordon had broken out of the jail hospital.

"A mouse!" Gloria shrieked. "In the corner."

"Quiet, foolish. He won't hurt you," Miltiades soothed, holding her tightly and quite masterfully. Why, she was actually shaking.

Lieutenant McGann saw and marveled. She had torn Brooklyn apart with her soft little hands to save her husband, thrown a pie at a gangster and quoted Greek at a killer. Now she was yelling her head off over a mouse!

Gloria quieted down, lifted her head from her husband's shoulder and winked at the lieutenant before she settled down again on the divan.

"The little spalpeen!" Lieutenant McGann chuckled to himself. "She'll lead him a merry chase and he'll love it. I always heard that Boston was the Athens of America, but there aren't many girls smart enough to cover up when their brains are showing, like Mulligan."

Probably the Greeks had a name for her.

Courtesy While Swimming May Mean Life Or Death; 'Ducking' Definitely Not Funny

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of four articles on water safety by Henry S. Gordon of The News' staff, who served for 10 years as a life guard, swimming, boating and canoeing instructor at Kiwanis Beach, three miles from his native Lebanon, Pa. The writer dropped his water activities shortly before entering the newspaper business during World War II. He also saw active rescue duty in two of Pennsylvania's major floods during 1930s.)

By HENRY S. GORDON

Courtesy in the ol' swimmin' hole is every bit as important as courtesy on the highway. Fortunately, for swimmers, there is more courtesy on the beach than on the highways.

But, there are still some boobies who must duck or toss people overboard to amuse themselves.

About 95 percent of such actions are done on the spur of the moment without thought of the consquences.

It was in the summer of 1937 that three lifesguards at our station had to dive into 14 feet of water to bring out two victims of such asinine play. A young girl had completed a dive from the high board and was coming to the surface when some thoughtless individual shoved a 13-year-old boy off the second board. The youngster hit the water on his stomach, knocking the wind from him and grazed the upcoming diver's chin, hard enough to knock her out. Both went to the bottom like a rock. A two-man boat crew and the guard on the tower saw the action. The guards hit the water simultaneously and luckily brought both victims up. It took 10 minutes of artificial respiration to revive the boy and almost as long to bring back the girl.

Heart attacks, from fright, have been fatal to others who have suddenly been ducked or dumped from a boat or pier by these playful baboons. Such stunts are especially hard on children or adults who are trying to overcome their fear of the water by learning to swim. This type of person cannot, and should not, be "scared to death" but should, instead be helped and encouraged by those who can handle themselves in the water.

The only time horseplay in water is permissable is when a group of good swimmers get together among themselves. Preferrably, too, when small children are not watching and try to mimic them.

Boat or canoe capsizing is equally foolish for the same reason. Too many non-swimmers like to go boat riding, even though they should stay on shore.

But, it's time to teach Junior to swim.

"Oh, but he's only five years old," says doting Mama.

Poppycock.

We were swimming in deep water at three years, six months. Some toddlers can swim today that can't even walk. They're never too young.

Small children naturally rebel when "made to do something," taking piano lessons, for instance. This rebellious spirit can be circumvented with a little reverse psychology.

Children love to splash and play in water. The bathtub, wading pool and rain-swollen gutters provide excellent opportunities. On the beach, the child is equally ready to splash and paddle around, especially when he sees adults having fun. If Mom, Pop, brother and sister are all good swimmers and enjoying themselves, just deny Junior the privilege and make him stay on the beach, explaining to him he must first learn to swim like Daddy and brother or sister before he goes in the water. This denial serves to whet his appetite for learning something worthwhile. He will be a very apt student and learn quickly — providing parents are strict enough to enforce the no-water rule until he can paddle under his own power in water over his head.

(The above worked on us and we have personally employed it on children of our friends. They swim today — three of them holding American Red Cross life saving certificates.)

After Junior can swim, and no longer fears deep water, turn him over to a qualified instructor who can drill him in breath control, different strokes, and endurance. When he grows older send him to Boy Scout camp or a YMCA camp, all the time encouraging him to further conquer the water. If he is ever a member of the camp swimming team, or scheduled to take part in a water carnival, make it a point, even at the sacrifice of something else, to be among the spectators.

Too many mothers dotingly attempt to instill fear of the water in youngsters by using dire threats and outright warnings on how they "will drown" instead of getting Daddy to teach the growing boy how to swim. If neither parent is a swimmer, they should turn the youngster over to a qualified instructor who will show him the whys and wherefors on water sports. Teach the child early; early impressions on safety last him throughout his life time. He'll live longer too.

Wednesday we will discuss boat and canoe handling and boat etiquette.

Union Opposes Mexican Band Participation

McALLEN — (AP) — The McAllen American Legion Post says union objections have stalled plans to bring two school bands from Mexico to McAllen for a July 4 celebration.

The post, sponsor of the valley's major July 4 celebration, said it had appealed to Rep. Lloyd M. Bentsen, Jr., (D-Texas) to intercede with the Immigration Department in Washington.

The bands would receive no pay. They are from the Monterrey Military School and the Reynosa High School.

At Corpus Christi, E. A. (Jake) Stephens, head of the American Federation of Musicians in Texas, said he is opposed to allowing the bands to take part in McAllen's July 4 parade — but that his union has no power to prevent them from being admitted.

However, said Stephens, the U. S. Immigration Department usually contacts the union to see if it objects to foreign bands being given visas. He did not say whether the department had checked with him on the Monterrey and Reynosa bands.

Stephens said Texas high school bands can replace the Mexican bands.

"Many Texas school bands are anxious to receive invitations to take part," Stephens said. "Allowing the Mexican bands into the celebration may also put some Texas professional musician groups out of possible employment." Stephens said there is an agreement under which no U. S. professional bands play in Mexico, and no professional Mexican bands play in the U. S.

Latin American Diplomats Assail Coffee Probe Finding

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Envoys from 14 Latin American countries told Secretary of State Acheson yesterday that the proposals made by a Senate subcommittee which investigated the rise in coffee prices seriously threaten Latin American economy.

Eleven ambassadors and three charges d'affaires, calling on the secretary in a body, presented a sharp 1,300-word statement on the report of the subcommittee headed by Senator Gillette (D-Iow).

The Senate group charged that speculators profited in last fall's sudden coffee price boom. It suggested a watch on activities of an international coffee commission on which this country is represented along with Latin American nations, to head off any anti-trust law violations. It suggested technical aid to "other friendly nations" seeking to increase coffee output.

Th statement presented to Acheson called the last proposal "most unfriendly."

With reference to the report in general, the Latin Americans said:

"And in its entirety the report proposes that the United States government initiate what might amount to economic warfare" against the coffee growing nations.

The envoys declared, too, that Gillette committee proposals, if followed, would interfere with Latin American internal affairs and violate the Good Neighbor Policy.

They asked assurance that there will be "no adverse change" in U. S. policy toward their countries.

They commented that their nations have accepted rising prices of goods from the United States as a normal incident of world trade conditions.

'Get Tough' Policy Against U.S. Reds Reported Favored

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — (AP) — Pollster Dr. George Gallup says the public favors tougher government action against Communists.

He made the statement here at the fifth annual conference of 250 of the nation's public opinion samplers.

"Every poll ever taken shows the public wants to be tougher on Communists than any action the government has yet taken," Dr. Gallup said.

Methods for a more accurate approach to opinion polling at the November election are among major topics of discussion at the session.

Dr. Gallup, who predicted that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York would defeat President Truman in 1948, said "obviously we are learning and must learn by mistakes." He added that "the time factor was most important" in his wrong presidential prediction.

"Most polls did their interviewing in the middle of October," he explained, "and the shift came in the last ten days of the campaign, particularly in the farm areas as the result of drops in grain prices."

Balsa Wood Planes Utilized in Tests

EL SEGUNDO, Calif. — (AP) — Engineers using a mechanical slingshot and three-foot model airplanes are working to give Uncle Sam the best possible method of catapulting planes from a carrier deck.

There's a built-to-scale simulated flight deck in Douglas Aircraft Company's plant here. The little models made of balsa wood and paper are shot across this deck while a high-speed movie camera overhead records their every movement.

The models are weighted precisely with lead, and all else is to exact scale to simulate what actually happens when a bomber or a fighter shoots off a carrier deck at sea.

To prevent breakage of the models, curtains of cheesecloth are hung at the end of the model runway, stopping the little planes gently.
