LUBBOCK EVENING JOURNAL

VOL. 11, NO. 110 LUBBOCK, TEXAS, "The Hub Of The Plains" MONDAY, FEB. 10, 1936 "Today's News In 10 Pages"

FINAL Edition

Two New Comic Strips Making Journal Debut

"ALLEY OOP," "MYRA NORTH, SPECIAL NURSE" ADDED TO FUNNY PAGE, OFFERING STILL BETTER FEATURES TO SOUTH PLAINS

To make even better what already is West Texas' best daily funny page, two sparkling new comic strips are today being added by the Lubbock Evening Journal. You'll find them on Page 7.

The two new strips, "Alley Oop," by Vincent Hamlin, and "Myra North, Special Nurse," by Thompson and Coll, take the places here-to-fore held by "Benny" and "Mom 'n Pop."

Tested in a score of metropolitan papers over a period of more than a year, "Alley Oop" has to do with a prehistoric man of that name, and his pet dinosaur, "Dinny." The strip has a Texas "tie-up," in that Artist Hamlin, formerly on the staffs of the Fort Worth Record, Fort Worth Star-Telegram and Houston Press, in addition to the Des Moines Register-Tribune, got his idea for "Alley" from studies in geology while doing illustrations of oil field stories for the Texas papers. Hamlin knows his geology, his history and his fossils and "Alley Oop" is the only strip of its kind. While interesting to growing children, it is also of interest to their parents — especially to the men.

Enter Detective Nurse

"Myra North, Special Nurse", is a realistic, romantic and exciting detective strip which will prove popular with youngsters and grownups, alike. Something happens every day in "Special Nurse," which is more interesting than many novels yet it takes only a few minutes each day to keep up with it. Like "Alley Oop", the feature is a "different" kind of comic strip and is full of surprises, humor and pathos.

The editorial staff of The Journal feels certain that the new comics soon will find a strong following and that even staunch fans of "Benny" and "Mom'n Pop" soon will forget their favorites and become even more partisan in support of "Alley Oop" and "Myra North, Special Nurse". The two substitutions are being made in keeping with The Journal's policy of steady improvement in all lines of West Texas' leading afternoon newspaper.

COLD WEATHER CONTINUES IN U. S.

MORE THAN 500 DEAD; MIDDLE WEST IS IN CENTER OF WAVE

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Feb. 10. — Worse and more of it was the weather forecast today as the frigid wave continued in the second month of an apparent assault to pound the mercury as far down in the thermometer as possible.

Deaths continued in the subzero areas as the total for the year went well past the half thousand mark. Suffering continued apace. Threats of floods and danger from the expected breakup of ice jams hung over many sections. Shortages of fuel, food, and water in other places were reported as serious.

Trains Are Stalled

Railroads in the Corn Belt continued to hold trains at terminals. Many through trains arrived hours late and others remained stalled in deep snow banks over night. Airlines experienced difficulty with snow covered landing fields and many bus lines were forced to cancel all schedules. Schools in many states remained closed. Public buildings were turned into temporary shelters for the homeless.

Zero tempertures extended as far south as Missouri and eastward across lower Michigan. Temperatures in most areas of the great plains and northern Rocky mountain states and many of the middle western states were materially higher than 24 hours ago as the worst of the storm swept toward the Atlantic coast.

Pinnell was charged after Mrs. E. Pullman reported the residence had been moved from her property.

"The house is mine," Pinnell insisted. "I built it about eight months ago out of my own lumber. But I got mixed up on property lines and put it on Mrs. Pullman's property by mistake."

The defendant's bail was fixed at $300.

League May Back Down On Oil Embargo

URGE GREATER DEFENSE

DIPLOMATS AT GENEVA ARE NERVOUS

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS CAUSING WORRY TO VARIOUS GROUPS

BY CHARLES E. HARNER
Associated Press Foreign Staff

The probability that the League of Nations will not, after all, impose an oil embargo against Italy was seen today in diplomatic discussions in Geneva.

The oil embargo is under study as a supplement to other league sanctions against the Mussolini government for its campaigns in Ethiopia.

Riots Cause Move

But recent developments in the Mediterranean area, notably the nationalist riots in Egypt and Syria, have demonstrated adequately what the British have feared throughout the Italo-Ethiopian struggle: A continuation of the war between white and colored is likely to have repercussions under other flags.

Such league sanctions as have already been put into effect—concerned with economic and financial matters—have failed to halt Italy's military activities. Only yesterday Fascist planes bombed Emperor Haile Selassie's headquarters town of Dessye, with undetermined casualties. Oil experts investigating the petroleum situation, say they are not too certain the supply of oil could be shut off from Italy.

Fear More Trouble

Italy has warned that she would consider the application of more sanctions an unfriendly act and, consequently, many diplomats at

Bodies Of Youths Recovered Sunday

MARFA, Feb. 10 (AP)—Funeral services were arranged today for three youths who lost their lives in a lake near here.

The victims were Donald Niccolls, 19, R. L. Stiles, jr., 15 and Leroy Cleveland, 15.

Men in motorboats trailed grappling hooks over the bottom of a large lake yesterday and recovered the bodies, sought since the three were drowned last Monday night when, it is believed, their boat was overturned by a sudden norther. Three airplanes and a diver who flew here from Galveston sought the bodies without success. Dynamiting also was futile.

The bodies were found within 20 feet of each other, about 100 feet from the point at which the overturned boat was discovered.

"Why, I even have to use tubs sometimes," he said, "and often I have to move my bed."

CURTIS' BODY SPEEDS WEST

FINAL HONORS WILL BE PAID STATESMAN OF KANSAS PLAINS

(By The Associated Press)

TOPEKA, Kas., Feb. 10 — The body of former Vice President Charles Curtis sped westward today for final honors in the city of his birth and scene of his progress from jockey to high office.

An impressive funeral in the state capitol awaited arrival Tuesday of the body from Washington, where the 76-year-old statesman of Indian descent died unexpectedly Saturday after a heart attack.

State To Close Up

State business will be suspended while the official body, headed by Gov. Alf M. Landon and the Supreme court justices, attended the services in the house of representatives hall.

For two hours before the funeral, the body will lie in state in the capitol rotunda, not far from where Mr. Curtis stood in August, 1928, before nearly 50,000 persons to be notified formally of his nomination by the Republican national convention for the vice presidency.

All public offices in Topeka have been asked to close for the funeral, the first ever held in the Kansas statehouse.

The funeral party from Washington will include Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gann, brother-in-law and sister of Curtis with whom he made his home, and Mrs. Webster Knight, his daughter. Other relatives from Kansas and Oklahoma will be present.

The Kaw Indian tribe of Oklahoma, of which Curtis was a member, made plans to be represented officially at the services.

GREATER ARMY REQUESTED IN REPORT

GENERAL CRAIG TELLS CONGRESS OF NEED OF MORE MEN

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10. General Malin Craig, chief of staff of the army, told congress in a report published today that "evident troublous times in the world" should spur the United States to build up its defense.

A report of hearings on the war department appropriations bill carried Craig's recommendation for a minimum of 14,000 officers and 165,000 enlisted men in the regular army, plus a minimum of 210,000 in the national guard.

State Of War Exists

"It is perfectly evident to everyone that troublous times have again arrived in the world," said General Craig. "A state of war exists in Africa, Asia is resounding to the tramp of marching men.

"These are far from our shores. We do not see how they can possibly concern us. Nevertheless, it is unwise to neglect the lessons of our past experience."

Strength Is Cited

The strength of the army last Oct. 31 was 11,943 officers and 139,763 enlisted men, not including 6,444 in the Philippine scouts and 812 warrant officers. In June of last year there were 11,985 officers and 118,727 men. The national defense act provides for a regular army strength of 18,000 officers and 280,000 enlisted men.

The war department submitted estimates for 165,000 men but the bureau of the budget reduced this to 147,000.

No Secret Made

No secret was made, however, of the $50,000,000 five-year program for Hawaii urged by Major General

ARMY PROGRAM IN TEXAS DISCLOSED

Major-General L. H. Bash, quartermaster-general, told the house appropriations committee, during hearings on the war department appropriation bill, congress would be asked to authorize expenditure of $3,918,457 at certain posts and had made estimates for other work to cost $14,058,098.

The first total would be allocated as follows: ammunition storage at Camp Stanley, $1,014,286; Fort Bliss and Biggs field, $735,328; Fort Crockett, $956,400; Fort D. A. Russell, $77,818; Fort McIntosh, $60,000; Fort Sam Houston, $1,034,725; San Antonio arsenal, $39,900.

An estimate of $14,058,698 was made for reconstructing San Antonio's army flying fields, composed of these items; Kelly field, $6,699,900; Brooks field, $4,185,326; Duncan field, $2,228,572; Normoyle quartermaster depot, $944,900.

FESS CHARGES BORAH WITH LEANINGS FOR THE NEW DEAL

BY LEONARD B. SHUBERT
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (AP)—The tilt between Senator Borah (R-Ida) and Simeon D. Fess, former Republican senator for Ohio, continued today, affording Democratic leaders no small measure of delight.

The latest development was a statement, published today, in which Fess again implied that Borah had New Deal leanings. The man chosen for the Republican nomination must be one, he said, who had supported "more Republican measures than Democratic measures."

Borah Challenges Him

Borah, hearing that Fess had threatened to "take a walk" if the Idahoan won the presidential nomination, had challenged Fess to what candidate he stood for and whether he favored the "old deal."

Democratic leaders maintained silence on the feud, but it was no secret that they were happy over it. Since Alfred E. Smith threatened to "take a walk" if the New Deal were endorsed by the Democratic convention they have been hoping for similar signs of schism in the Reppblican ranks.

Considered Symbolic

The Borah-Fess argument was generally considered symbolic of Borah's differences with what he calls the "old guard." Republican leaders in Ohio had planned to send an unpledged or "favorite son" delegation to the national convention, but observers believed Borah's decision to enter that state in quest of delegates would spell abandonment of these plans.

Many believed the state central committee would endorse some leading presidential possibility, and they figured Borah would have less

DECISION ON TVA IS DELAYED AGAIN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (AP)—The Supreme court today deferred its TVA decision until at least next Monday.

Disappointing another throng of notables and lawyers who had expected the long-awaited ruling, the court concluded the handing down of rulings without any mention of the contested New Deal law, February 17 is the next dicision day.

Over 50 days have passed since the TVA arguments. Usually decisions are given out in much shorter time.

Twice already — three weeks ago and last Monday — hundreds of persons went to the court's $11,500,000 marble mansion expecting to learn whether the government can sell its surplus electricity in competition with private utilities.

But each time the opinion did not materialize. That gave rise to speculation that the justices were encountering difficulties whipping the decision into satisfactory shape.

"KING OF HOBOES" IS "ALL HET UP" OVER CALIFORNIA'S BAN ON HOBOES

(By The Associated Press)

CINCINNATI, Feb. 10—Jeff Davis, "king of hoboes," said today he is "all het up" about "this business of trying to keep the 'bo out of California."

"Why, say!" he exploded, anent the recently inaugurated border patrol campaign by the city of Los Angeles against indigent transients, "it was itinerant men and women who made California what it is right now!"

Word from Los Angeles indicated Davis had instructed lawyers representing the "International Itinerant Workers' Union, Hoboes of America," to "see that the constitutional rights of the hoboes are not violated."

"That's right," declared the small, wiry leader, whose organization claims a membership of 811,000.

"It was 'California or bust' in the old days. The pioneers—tired, hungry and broke—went to the state in stage coaches and eventually put California on the map.

"And now, they're trying to 'bust' the hobo. Now the police stand at state lines and keep out American citizens who have their constitutional rights to go to any part of the country, as long as they are seeking opportunity and the chance to make good."

Davis reaffirmed a statement by Benjamin Benson, publicity director of the "Hoboes of America." Benson was quoted in a letter to the Associated Press at Los Angeles as saying "a hobo is a migratory worker, not a tramp or a bum."

RUTHIE PLAYS TO TURN-OUT HOUSE ON OPENING NIGHT; IS IN HOSPITAL TODAY

(By The Associated Press)

BALTIMORE, Feb. 10 — Ruthie rested in a hospital here today after an opening night, turn-out performance.

Ruthie is a lioness. Her first performance in Baltimore — some say it was her last here — was in a neighborhood theatre last night. In her wake she left a slightly injured boy, a hysterical woman and nearly 2,000 frightened theater patrons.

For Ruthie, instead of going on the stage, bounded from her cage backstage, through a door and into the aisle. Her second bound carried her into the laps of four boys in the fourth row.

The boys thought at first she was a big dog. Edward Posluszny, 15, found out that Ruthie really was a lion when she moved on suddenly, leaving Posluszny with a clawed knee. He was treated at a hospital and sent home.

As Ruthie bounded again, she passed directly in front of Mrs. Blanche Peart. Mrs. Peart fainted, later was treated for hysteria at a hospital.

HAYMON KRUPP, TEXAS OIL MAN, SEES ANOTHER FIELD IN HUDSPETH COUNTY

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—A brusque, baldish Texas oil man, Haymon Krupp, who is reluctantly 61, gazed out of a Manhattan hotel window today, saw a vision of gushing, black oil and prophesied:

"I feel I'm going to discover another oil field."

Back in Hudspeth county, Texas, drillers, sweating and grime faced, are working in three shifts, 24 hours a day, to fulfill the vision, putting down the first well.

Discovered Big Lake

Krupp, one of El Paso's leading citizens, had a similar dream which in 1920 resulted in discovery of the Big Lake field, on lands of the University of Texas. The university's one-eighth royalty has reached the $25,000,000 mark.

Krupp shied away from the subject.

Explained Mrs. Krupp: "My husdoesn't like to talk about what he has done. But I'm going to tell you this. He's the finest man that ever lived and he made the University of Texas one of the richest schools in

BUSINESS RISE IS FORECAST

U. S. C. OF C. REPORTS "EXCELLENT BASIS" FOR RECOVERY

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States reports "an excellent basis" had been laid for continued business recovery.

"The level of business activity continues to rise," the chamber said in its Washington review, adding that "so far in 1936 there have been no recessions."

Coincidentally, the commerce department noted retail gains in the week ended Wednesday over the same week last year in most of 31 cities studied.

Weather Is Factor

Severe weather retarded sales, the department said. "But there were many healthy signs in industry," it added, noting the snow added soil moisture and killed insects to improve farm prospects.

"At mid-winter," the chamber said, "there is an excellent basis for further progress . . .

"In the middle of 1935 it was possible to say that the level (of business activity), if all activities could be cast into a general average, was the best since 1931."

"Select good seed of proven quality.

"Prepare and fertilize the soil.

"Plant one half acre, not including space for potatoes, a winter supply of onions for storing or beans and peas for drying.

"Conserve and prepare quality products. Can 18 containers of vegetables.

Describes Work

Mrs. E. A. Moores of Hurlwood spoke recently of her 13-year-old daughter, Bennie Marie:

"Four-H club work has meant much to her. While I was in Idaho for six weeks, she went right ahead with the canning and canned products at home. She has had only a year of clubwork, but she conserved 80 containers of fruit and vegetables from the farm garden and orchard in six weeks."

Miss Gladys Sanders, assistant county home demonstration agent, showed 4-H club sponsors how to prepare a "dinner in a dish" which, in turn, will be demonstrated to club girls this winter. The recipe calls for:

One pound of sausage, one No. 2 can corn; one No. 2 can tomatoes; one medium sized onion; two green peppers three tablespoonsful of shortening; three tablespoonsful of butter and one and one half cups of bread crumbs.

"Put shortening in pan and melt, when hot add diced onions and pepper and cook until brown. Then add meat and cook. Butter a baking dish, put a layer of the meat mixture in dish, cover with corn and thin tomatoes, sprinkle with salt. Add another layer of meat, cover with buttered bread crumbs and bake until crumbs are brown. Garnish with parsley."

This recipe serves ten people, the agent said.

OIL OUTPUT IS INCREASED

PRODUCTION FOR 1935 HIGHER IN U. S. BY 86,000,000 BBLS.

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—The bureau of mines estimated the 1935 crude oil production at 993,942,000 barrels, an increase over 1934 of about 86,000,000 barrels but slightly less than the record of 1929.

The report was subject to revision.

Production of crude last December was reported at 88,711,000 barrels, a daily average of 2,861,600 barrels, or about 21,000 barrels below November, but 13 per cent above the average for December, 1934.

December Total Unchanged

December daily average production in Texas and California showed little change. Oklahoma reported a decline of about 15,000 barrels. California's average of 678,300 barrels was the highest since February, 1930. Louisiana continued to set new production records as the daily average output in the Rodessa field rose from about 10,500 barrels in November to about 17,000 barrels in December.

The bureau said the influence of an unusually heavy fuel oil demand was noted in the refinery yield and the average recovery of gasoline from crude declined from 44.2 per cent in November to 44 per cent in December.

Motor Fuel Demand Up

The domestic demand for motor fuel in December was 33,731,000 barrels, or 10.3 per cent above the demand a year ago. The domestic demand for the entire year was 452,556,000 barrels, a new record.

The bureau survey showed that exports of motor fuel continued to run counter to the usual seasonal trend, the total for December being 3,343,000 barrels, nearly double the total of a year ago.

The bureau of labor statistics showed the price index for petroleum products for December, 1935, was 82.8 compared with 82.5 the previous month and 49.8 in December 1934.

Stocks Decreased

The decrease in stocks of all oil last December was placed by the bureau of 2,486,000 barrels compared with 1,669,000 barrels the previous month and 5,891,000 barrels in December, 1934.

The daily average output of gasoline declined last December from the previous month, the totals being 4,881,000 gallons and 5,037,000 gallons, respectively, for the two months.

The largest December decrease was recorded in Oklahoma City field, 1,498,000 gallons. The daily average production in the Panhandle field declined 104,000 gallons but the bureau said this was not enough to indicate a material change in the status of gas conservation in the field.

Natural gasoline stocks at refineries continued to rise but the increase again was outweighed by a decrease in stocks at plants and terminals.

The preliminary total for natural gasoline production in 1935 was set at 1,832,636,000 gallons, an increase of six per cent over 1934, but .27 per cent below the record of 2,238,698,000 in 1929.

KANSAS CITY TO MAKE FILM SHOWING ACCIDENTS FATAL TO PEDESTRIANS

(By The Associated Press)

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 10—Kansas City is going into the movie business—in the cause of safety on the streets.

Plans for a motion picture to "educate pedestrians" have been announced by Police Director Otto P. Higgins and City Manager H. F. McElroy. It will be produced by the police department.

Fifty-eight of the 87 persons killed by motor cars in Kansas City last year were pedestrians.

"So, obviously," said Director Higgins, "the town is in need of pedestrian education. We have decided to produce a picture that will dramatize several types of accidents fatal to pedestrians in 1935."

Officials To Be "Stars"

"Stars" will be Mayor Bryce B. Smith and City Manager McElroy. They'll play the role of automobile victims.

"This will not cost more than $10 or $35—if that much. We have only to pay for the film. We have been offered the use of a camera and projection machine. A newspaperman will write the continuity we have our own developer and our own screen.

"There were 22 types of traffic accidents in Kansas City last year. So there will be 22 scenes in the picture."

It will be furnished to any organization desiring to show it.

PEACEFUL BUDDHIST CLOISTERS ARE REDEDICATED AS MILITARISTIC SHRINE

BY C. Y. McDANIEL

NANKING, Feb. 10 (AP)—Three bowls of rice, or a few wheat cakes a day when living — an unmarked grave when dead.

Such was the lot of the common soldier in China for centuries, though the struggles which overthrew imperial dynasties and established new ones, and in the civil wars of the early republican era which turned ambitious bandit chieftains and army subalterns into "warlords" and "marshals."

'Every Man A Soldier'

But militarism is the new order of the day in China. "Every able bodied man a soldier," is the motto of a program which compels every school and college youth to learn the art of warfare.

"National salvation can only be achieved if the people of China are ready and willing to lay down their lives for their country," is the slogan flashed to Young China from moving picture screens, highway billboards and over the radio.

New Yorker Draws Pdans

This is the spirit which prompted the national government to spend $1,000,000 on a memorial at Nanking to honor the heroes of the revolution of 1911 and inspire the youth of the land to emulate their deeds of bravery and patriotism.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek provided the authority and funds, and a former New York architect, Henry Killam Murphy, the architectural inspiration which have transformed the ruins of a 15th century Buddhist monastery into a war memorial and heroes' cemetery.

Ancient Place Glorifies War

Visible for miles, a reinforced concrete pagoda overlooks the "hall of commemoration," old Chinese in appearance but thoroughly modern in construction, and the serpentine wall enclosed area in which neat rows of headstones mark the last resting of those who fought on the "right" side in the various stages of the revolution.

Long-robed priests walked and chanted, and incense burned for four centuries in the great hall in whose walls stone slabs bearing the names of the revolutionary martyrs have been set.

This building was one of medieval China's replies to the challenge of fire, rust and decay. No wood is found anywhere in the structure, successive tiers of 12-foot thick brick arches support the high vaulted roof.

For several hundred years a sacred shrine of Buddhism (the religion which above all others opposes warfare and death), this beamless temple is now a shrine of patriotism, glorifying battles and the soldiers who fight them.

"Tolerant" Island Object Of Search By Nudist Group

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 10 (AP)—Maurice H. Allard, nudist organizer, has declared any "tolerant" island in the Caribbean sea was a potential site for colonization by a schooner load of his friends and relatives.

"It's all a mistake," Allard said of reports that a 1,400-acre tract in the Virgin islands had been selected by the master of the 45-year-old schooner Fleetwood.

"What we plan is to make a tour of the islands around the Caribbean sea in search of the best available site for a colony, not of nudists, but of those who are tolerant.

"We shall leave as soon the boat is made seaworthy and weather conditions are favorable."

Allard brought the schooner Fleetwood and his followers into Tampa late Wednesday after what he termed a "short test voyage," and insisted he planned to sail again as soon as the weather eased.

SUPERVISOR NAMED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10. (AP)—Senator Tom Connally of Texas said he had been informed Fletcher Rawls had been appointed supervisor temporarily in charge of the border patrol at Brownsville, Tex.

Connally said Rawls, a civil service employe, had been in the service "a number of years." He will hold the post until a permanent supervisor is appointed.

BENNETTSVILLE, S. C.—Volunteer Fireman Frank Townsend has decided he might as well stick around and not hurry so much the next time the fire alarm sounds.

Twice recently he puffed and panted to swing onto the tail end of the fire truck, only to find the fire was within two doors of his own grocery on the main street.

A Big Nickel

TAMPA, Fla.—There was just a nickel between Jack Pendola's 90 days in jail and a five-year prison term.

Pendola, a negro, admitted stealing a bicycle which was valued at $49.95. Another five cents value and the theft would have been a felony instead of the misdemeanor for which he received punishment.

PRISON RIOT SAID TO BE "SERIOUS"

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10 (AP)—The Examiner said Sunday the recent riot among prisoners on Alcatraz island was "far more serious than prison authorities had indicated" and declared it had information that Al Capone and George "Machine Gun" Kelly, two of "the rock's" most notorious prisoners, had refused to join the uprising.

Two leaders of the rebellion, which occurred Jan. 20, are on hunger strikes in solitary confinement, the paper said it learned from undisclosed sources.

Among The Leaders

Among the leaders, the newspaper said, were Norman T. Whitaker, convicted with Gaston Means in a Lindbergh ransom hoax; Ludwig "Dutch" Schmidt, Roger Touhy gang gunman involved in the John Factor kidnaping; Herman Waley, kidnaper of 9-year old George Weyerhaeuser, and John Paul Chase, lieutenant of "Baby Face" Nelson.

The riot started after the death of Jack Allen, a prisoner who was reportedly refused hospital treatment because of his frequent appearance in th esick list when there was no sign of any ailment. The Examiner said he died after an operation for a stomach ulcer. The prison announcement attributed his death to pneumonia.

When workers in the laundry, where the worst criminals are assigned, quit work, the newspaper said Capone remained at his post despite jeers of "yellow rat."

Others Also Refuse

Others who refused to join the quickly spreading mutiny, the story said, were Kelly and two of his associates in the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel—Harvey Bailey and Albert L. Bates.

So many men were sent to the dungeon in the guard's efforts to stop the screaming and howling prisoners set up when locked in their cells, that, the newspaper said, the warden ordered eight more cells built in the dungeon.

The newspaper said Whitaker and J. Lucas are still in the dungeon where they are daily given forced feeding. They, with Chase, Schmidt and Waley, went on a hunger strike in the dungeon, but the latter three capitulated as soon as forced feedings were started.

Our tense modern life affects DIGESTION

BRAKES SCREAM as traffic clogs the street from curb to curb. Nerves quiver with fatigue. Feel those stomach muscles tighten? Light a Camel for digestion's sake.

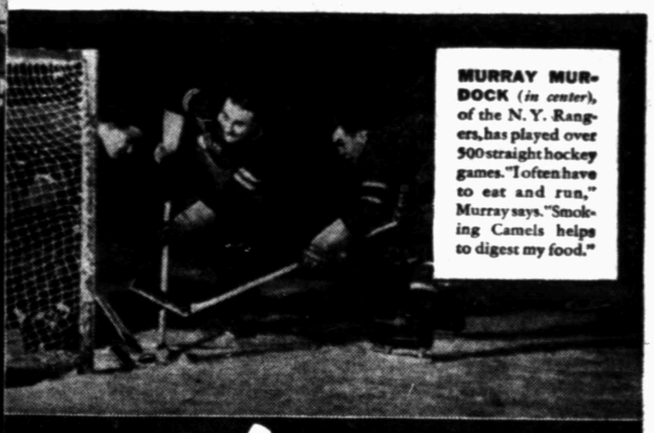

Smoking Camels Found to Ease the Strain and Promote Well-Being

Life gets more complex. The pace grows faster. People live harder. Where do we see the effects? Frequently on digestion, so often overtaxed by the busy whirl! Smoking Camels is of definite aid in promoting good digestion. Turn to Camels yourself. They have a mildness and delicacy that never grow flat or tiresome. Make the pleasant experience of smoking Camels part of your daily life, and see how much more zest you have for smoking and how your digestion is measurably improved. Camels set you right!

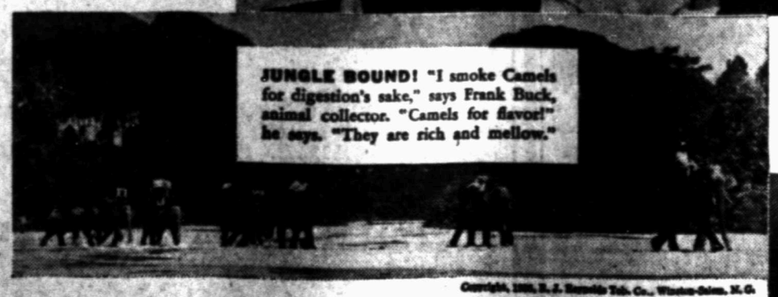

And now we come to one of modern life's most gracious privileges—dining at Keen's English Chop House in New York, as shown at the right. Like the Mermaid Tavern of Shakespeare's day, Keen's is famous as a gathering place of congenial spirits.

"We've noticed that patrons who appreciate fine foods also appreciate fine tobaccos," says William (above), of Keen's. "Camels are a favorite at Keen's English Chop House. We've noticed that our guests who smoke Camels during and after meals seem to find more pleasure in dining"

MURRAY MURDOCK (in center), of the N. Y. Rangers, has played over 900 straight hockey games. "I often have to eat and run," Murray says. "Smoking Camels helps to digest my food."

JUNGLE BOUND! "I smoke Camels for digestion's sake," says Frank Buck, animal collector. "Camels for flavor!" he says. "They are rich and mellow."

Baseball's Payroll Is On The Increase

FIGURE COMES CLOSE TO $3,000,000 THIS YEAR IN MAJORS

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (AP)—Major league baseball's payroll will come close to the $3,000,000 mark this year for the first time since the depression forced a sharp downward revision of player salaries.

Although the aggregate figure still is considerably short of the palmy days when Babe Ruth's pay soared to $80,000 per season, with proportionate boom-time salary checks for all outstanding performers, the trend this year is distinctly upward.

Goes Up $350,000

Estimates gathered from reliable sources by the Associated Press today indicate that the payrolls of the 16 big league clubs, this year and last, have gone up about $350,000. This is equivalent to restoration of approximately one-third of the total "cuts" made in the three preceding seasons.

The estimated league payroll totals for 1936 are $1,575,000 for the American and $1,350,000 for the National.

TEN HIGHEST SALARIES

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (AP)—The ten highest salaried figures in major league baseball this season, including players and managers, are listed unofficially as follows:

Joe McCarthy, manager of New York Yankees	$35,000
Mickey Cochrane, manager-catcher of Tigers	30,000
Bill Terry, manager-first baseman of Giants	27,500
Joe Cronin, manager-shortstop of Red Sox	25,000
Jimmie Foxx, first baseman of Red Sox	23,000
Lou Gehrig, first baseman of Yankees	23,000
Lefty Bob Grove, pitcher of Red Sox	22,500
Charley Grimm, manager of Chicago Cubs	22,000
Frank Frisch, manager-second baseman of Cardinals	20,000
Carl Hubbell, pitcher of Giants	18,500

Red Sox Top List

The Boston Red Sox top the list for the first time as a result of the acquisition of some of the American league's most expensive talent. Owner Tom Yawkey, it is estimated, will pay more than $300,000 in the coming pennant campaign. The Boston salary list, front-office included, is far from the "high tide" figures set by the Yankees in Ruth's heyday.

The Yankees have economized of late but their payroll still is near $250,000 with Manager Joe McCarthy, at $35,000, the highest paid pilot in either big league.

Champions Increase Pay

The two championship clubs, Detroit Tigers and Chicago Cubs, each are figured to pay their performers close to $250,000. The Cubs raised pays throughout their roster this spring. The Tigers, in addition to bonuses, also have revised the salary list upward for the second straight year.

Other teams with payrolls above the $200,000 mark are the New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals. Branch Rickey, generalissimo of the Cardinal system, is in the $50,000 class and one of the highest paid executives in the game.

Increases Scattered

Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Brooklyn and the Chicago White Sox, all with first-division ambitions if not actual pennant prospects, have handed out scattered increases.

The St. Louis Browns and Cincinnati Reds, in the process of reconstruction, also have rewarded merit with raises.

The steepest payroll decline affects the Philadelphia Athletics. Simply by selling all their high salaried stars, the A's have cut their salary overhead more than 50 per cent. The Boston Bees and Washington Senators also have done some slicing.

The list of holdouts, however, has grown this year with upwards of 25 players publicly manifesting dissatisfaction with their contract offers, and more squawks yet to be heard.

Conspicuous among thoes who have not yet settled their salary differences are Dizzy Dean, Arky Vaughan, Van Mungo, Hank Greenberg and Bill Lee, but most of the athletes in the higher brackets are well pleased with the documents they have signed.

TECH FRESHMEN, SLATON QUINTET TO PLAY TONIGHT

During the long years when deep, dark plans were being made to swipe Tulsa and Oklahoma City from the Western league and ensconce them in the Texas circuit, wiseacres said such a shift would revitalize and strengthen the game in the Lone Star loop.

They were right—but this year it appears they are going to be "righter".

Up in Tulsa—the city which sent Cot Tierney, John Heving, Clyde Manion, Dud Lee, Lena Stiles, Ray Richmond, Tom Connally, Red Kress, Red Bennett, Harry Rice, Lyman Lamb and a host of other luminaries to the "big show"—Marty McManus is a "home town boy who made good".

He, too, went up from Tulsa in 1920 after one year in organized baseball, all of which was spent in the oil capital. For a dozen years he was a major league star and now, coming down, he lands in the managerial spot wearing the livery which gave him a start to fame and the long green.

Tulsa has been in the baseball doldrums—for Tulsa. The petroleum headquarters is a red hot baseball town under ordinary conditions but recently it has been only normal from that standpoint. Handicapped from the standpoint of a park, and walloped by the depression, Tulsa hasn't been, to say the least, anything like it used to was in those dear, dead days when it had more money to the citizen than any other city in the world.

McMANUS

But with Marty back to make things buzz, Tulsa more than likely will get a new deal in the diamond line, which means that Texas league moguls should be smiling through their beer mugs.

McManus, a raw kid from Chicago, joined the Oilers in the old Class A Western loop in 1920. Spencer Abbott, a rough, tough cookie of the old school, saw he had something even though Marty's only previous experience had been with the fast Wabadaws, a St. Louie semi-pro brigade. So he kept Marty as a utility man and before Spencer or Marty either one knew it, the handsome Irisher was doing Tulsa's first basing, hitting well over .300 and a major league prospect.

Came the end of the season and Marty went to the St. Louis Browns and is just now getting back to the bushes after seven years in St. Louis, four and a half in Detroit and service at Boston with both the Red Sox and the Braves, including a managerial year with the Red Hose.

Shortly after Marty became a member of the Browns—where he was listed as a utility infielder—the great George Sisler, than in his hey dey, became ill and Marty went to first base.

For three weeks he subbed for Sisler in his big league debut and for those three weeks he outhit Gawge and, by the gods, outfielded him. Soon thereafter he became the Browns' regular second sacker and was off to a lifetime major league batting average of .290 and a fielding average at first, second, third and shortstop of .964.

Not bad, eh?

McManus became a Tulsa baseball idol in 1920 when he turned a trick that baseball men will tell you is really sumpin'.

Because he had intestinal fortitude—or rather just plain "guts"—he was a hero and is still a hero whenever Tulsa fans gather to talk about the days when that city had one of the greatest minor league teams ever assembled. Here's what happened.

Omaha and Tulsa were playing a double header and a long, tall speedball righthander was hurling for the Nebraskans.

At bat for the first time in the first game—Marty hit in third hole—a fast ball took him on the noggin with a smack that could be heard all over the orchard.

Marty dropped like he'd been pole-axed and did not play in the rest of the game.

Omaha's fast ball pitcher went great guns, won his game handily and tried the "iron man" trick by coming back to hurl the second tilt. Tulsa and Omaha were fighting for the league's top, so Marty went back to the fray.

Coming to bat in the first frame of the second game he coolly surveyed the opposing boxman as he wound up and let fly.

"Wham!" cracked ash on leather and the spheriod streaked on and on—a smashing line drive over the left field wall for a homer!

The tough kid from Chicago's "Hell's Kitchen"—playing his first year of organized ball—had made the grade in a big way!

That's why Sportometer says Tulsa is due for a baseball revival under Marty McManus.

Always a fighter; always aggressive and always hustling, Marty will have a fighting, hustling bunch of ball players or they won't stay on his payroll.

That coupled with his personal following in Tulsa is enough to make Texas league owners smile through their beer mugs!

CAGE RACE IS CLOSE; HOGS ARE ON TOP

BUT BAYLOR MAY GIVE UPSET THIS WEEK IN TWO GAMES

BY FELIX R. McKNIGHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Only a half game separated the three leaders as Arkansas, University of Texas and Rice institute, ranked in the percentage column in that order, prepared for two-game series in the Southwest conference basketball race this week.

Atop the heap by a half game after smothering Southern Methodist in a pair of week-end games at Fayetteville, Arkansas faced the task of vanquishing the Baylor Bears in two games Friday and Saturday at Waco to hold its position.

Point-Getters To Meet

Two of the conference's classiest point-getters, Ike Poole, Porker center, and Theo Alford, Baylor forward, will meet. Poole accounted for 27 points in the Methodist series while Alford has snagged 56 markers in his last four games.

The outstanding game of the week finds Texas pitted against Rice at Houston Wednesday night. Both are a half game behind Arkansas, although Texas leads the Owls by several percentage points. The winner is bound to slip into at least a temporary first place tie with Arkansas.

Sharpshooters Primed

Texas will have its pair of sharpshooters, Taylor and Collins, primed for the game while Coach Jimmy Kitts has Mike Seale and "Tree Top" Kelly ready for heavy scoring duties.

Rice meets the Texas Aggies, tailenders, at College Station Friday night while Texas will engage the "off again, on again" Southern Methodist Mustangs at Dallas Saturday night.

In last week's games, Arkansas took two games from Southern Methodist, 34-23 and 40-20; Texas blasted Texas Christian, 38-25; Baylor beat the Aggies, 42-28; and Rice set back Baylor, 32-23.

Southwest conference basketball standing:

Team	W	L	Pct.
Arkansas	5	1	.833
Texas	4	1	.800
Rice	5	2	.714
Baylor	3	4	.429
S. M. U.	2	4	.333
T. C. U.	1	4	.200
A. & M.	1	4	.167

Last Week's Results

Arkansas 34-40; S. M. U. 23-28 (at Fayetteville).

Rice 32; Baylor 23 (at Houston).

Baylor 42; A. & M. 28 (at College Station).

Texas 38; T. C. U. 25 (at Austin).

This Week's Schedule:

Wednesday: Texas vs. Rice, at Houston.

Friday: Arkansas vs. Baylor, at Waco. Rice vs. Texas A. & M., at College Station.

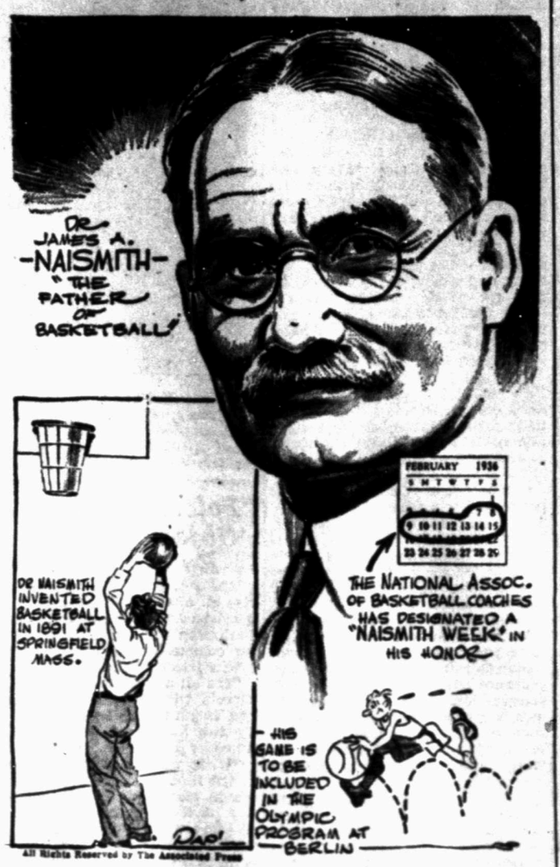

Saturday: Arkansas vs. Baylor, at Waco. Texas vs. Southern Methodist, at Dallas.

DR. JAMES A. NAISMITH, ORIGINATOR OF BASKETBALL, HONORED THIS WEEK

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 10. (AP)—This is the week basketball coaches, players and fans all over the country pay tribute to Dr. James A. Naismith, originator of the sport. The idea is for every college and high school team to set aside one game and donate one cent from each admission to a fund which is to be used to send Dr. Naismith and his wife to the Olympic games, found an annuity in their behalf and start a memorial for him either at Springfield, Mass., or at Lawrence, Kas.

Dr. Naismith is the only founder of a major sport still alive. At 73 he is professor of physical education at Kansas university. He originated basketball at the Springfield Y. M. C. A. college in 1891.

Basketball is included in the Olympic program for the first time this year.

A New York cartoonist was burned up when he discovered the man he had been interviewing for 20 minutes was not Tom Yawkey, but Mike McNally, the old ball player who is a dead ringer for Yawkey. . . . "I'm still a few millions shy," apologized Mike.

Let Baby Arizmendi tell you of the difference in champions. . . . "Tony Canzoneri's title," he says, "is always on the bed posts . . . Freddy Miller keeps his in a vault."

. . . Which is how a lot of other people feel about it. . . . And may explain why Pete Reilly is taking Miller back to Europe.

The Red Sox signed Johnny Prisina, 19-year-old catcher, the minute he was graduated from the Clarksville, Ark., high school . . . So he's one ball player who didn't cost Tom Yawkey anything. . . . It was "Reds Sail in The Sunset" when the first batch of Reds left for Puerto Rico yesterday.

O'MAHONY GETS SUSPENSION IN TEXAS

ACTION COMES AFTER WALKOUT SATURDAY AT GALVESTON

(By The Associated Press)

HOUSTON, Feb. 10 — Danno O'Mahony, the Irish Free State soldier, today was no longer wrestling champion of the world so far as Texas is concerned.

Fred E. Nichols, Texas labor commissioner, in charge of boxing and wrestling, said Col. Harry J. Landry, president of the National Wrestling association, had promised to request other states connected with the association to void O'Mahony's claim to the title.

Nichols declared the title vacant yesterday, and suspended O'Mahony and his manager, Jack McGrath. He gave them until Wednesday to explain O'Mahony's walk-out at Galveston Saturday night on a match with Juan Humberto. John Galiano, Texas boxing and wrestling inspector, was at Galveston at the time, and recommended the title be declared void.

"TAP DANCE FOR SWIM PERFECTION," THAT'S ADVICE OF GEORGIA SWIMMER

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 10. (AP)—By tap-dancing two or more hours daily, 16-year-old Dorothy Philpot prepares herself for a drive on national swimming championships.

Faithfully adhering to her "tap-dance-for-swim-perfection" method, she already has captured several state dash honors and now plans to try for championships in southeastern and mid-Atlantic meets.

Last summer she easily won the 50- and 100-yard dashes in the junior-women's division of the Georgia state swimming meet. Then she decided to test her speed against the senior women, with the result that she won the 50-, 100- and 200-yard dashes.

Here is Dorothy Philpot, 16-year-old Georgia swimmer, with a message for aspirant aquatic stars: "Tap-dance two hours daily." She does it and wins championships.

She also entered the southeastern meet despite a severe cold and finished second in the 50-yard dash. On account of her cold, however, she decided to withraw from the remaining events she had entered.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Philpot, Dorothy once regarded tap-dancing as her favorite pastime. She attended dancing school two years.

Occastonal, then frequent swims in local pools, however, elevated swimming to the top of her favorite list. So she shunted dancing to the background.

Advice from C. W. Jones, University of Georgia trainer, caused her to return to tap-dancing as a method of training for aquatic proficiency and possibly for a dual career as swimmer and dancer.

"Tapping Builds Legs"

Now she offers this advice to aspirant swimming stars:

"Tap-dancing builds up the muscles in the legs, and the legs are very instrumental in good swimming. It also limbers you up, which is an important thing for a swimmer."

Trainer Jones believes the young star will be a national champion in a few years.

Promise Made In Race For Mayor

SEATTLE, Feb. 10 (AP)—Former Mayor John F. Dore has promised "Seattle will be no Sunday school town if I am its next mayor."

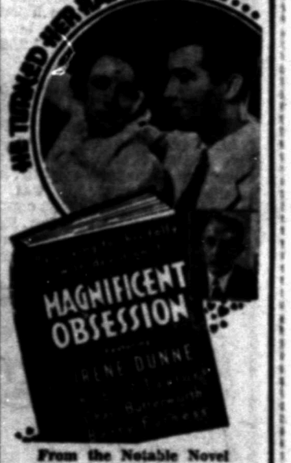

Opening his campaign for re-election to the office he left two years ago, he said:

"You can't attract tourists to a Sunday school town to spend their money and Seattle will be no Sunday school is I am its next mayor. I'll make a San Francisco out of it."

FINLAND WINS SKI RELAY

BRITISH HOCKEY MEN ARE REINSTATED; PLAN 2ND ROUND

(By The Associated Press)

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany, Feb. 10—Finland snared its first title in the fourth Olympic games today as the hockey contingent, definitely settling its heated eligibility row in Great Britain's favor, arranged a second round robin series for the eight survivors of the first eliminations.

The Finns won the 40-kilometer ski relay — four men running 10 kilometers each — in a hair-raising finish with Norway second and Sweden third. The United States quartet never had a chance and finished 11th in a field of 16.

The suspensions meted out to James Foster and Alex Archer, British hockey stars, definitely were withdrawn at the request of Canada but not without a heated verbal exchange between Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic committee, and P. Vasser Hunter, British delegate.

The draw for the second round-robin series put America in the easier half — against Czechoslovakia, Austria and Sweden. Canada's rivals in the other group will be England, Germany and Hungary.

ONCE-IMPOSING HOME OF HOUSTON IS HOME OF HOMELESS NOW; IS TO GO TO STATE IN CELEBRATION ON MARCH 2

(By The Associated Press)

HUNTSVILLE, Feb. 10—The once imposing home of Gen. Sam Houston, father of Texas' independence, has become home of the homeless.

"Steamboat House," where the adventurous life of "The Raven" ended in death in 1863, is known to its casual dwellers as "Squatters' Place," a rickety, patched and draughty haunt of families that camp in its cavernous rooms without hindrance. They move in and out, sometimes rooms are vacant, but nobody cares nor checks their ebb and flow.

Frame Still Sound

The hewed oak frame on 10 by 12 pine sills is still as sound in the main, as when it supported the roof over the grim soldier who led his raw volunteers to victory over the Mexican dictator, Santa Anna, and won the independence of Texas at San Jacinto in 1836.

No one knows in which room the old hero died.

"It might have been this one," said J. G. Johnson, former owner, pointing to a left front room with sheets hanging in the windows, "or it might have been the one directly back of it."

To Be Given State

The old structure in its coat of yellow, with broken window panes and air of neglect, is to be presented to the state March 2, the Centennial of Texas' independence.

Johnson said his father bought the Houston home "long about 1927 or '28," for $250 from Mrs. C. A. Randolph, secretary of a cemetery in which it stood, and moved it half a mile to the present location. For that operation it was cut in two.

"The back porch probably was taken off and used in building what now is the front porch," Johnson added.

In 1933 he sold it to a Houston business man, understanding, he said, it was to be placed in a park near Elkins lake. This was not done, however, as the state would not grant a permit to move it.

Some time ago, Johnson said, he told the owner he could no longer be responsible for the old landmark. "I had moved to my house across the street and squatters moved in here, but two or three months ago my house burned and I moved back."

"Squatting" In Front Room

Johnson, with several of his eight children, is "squatting" in a front room.

The house lost its former straight lines when moved and now forms an "L" with the base of the letter facing the street. The only trace of its "steamboat" appearance is given by the south side. A porch there runs to the back of the house and the surmounting long, narrow roof suggests a second-story porch floor. A door and several windows open on this roof. At the other side, the galleries have been sheared away.

"The old place ain't what it used to be; it sure had done gone down—it's just a place to camp in now," said Johnson sadly.

TONY FISHER TO BATTLE RISKO IN TITLE GO TONIGHT

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 10. (AP)—A 21-year-old Newark boxer who has had little top-rank experience will try tonight to knock the middleweight crown off the head of Eddie "Babe" Risko.

The challenger is Tony Fisher, born Anthony Fesce. The fifth child of a family of eight, he turned to the prize ring three years ago to help his father pay the grocery bills and was given the title chance largely because of his popularity in Newark.

The championship bout, officially sanctioned by the National Boxing association and the New Jersey Athletic commission, will be over the 10-round route.

NEWLY-ORGANIZED LOOP IS APPROVED

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 10 (AP)—Officers of the newly-organized Alamo Athletic conference unanimously adopted rules and by-laws at a meeting here last night. J. M. Gordon of Texas Tech, who is president of the Texas Association of Colleges, approved the rules.

The newly formed conference consists of Sul Ross college of Alpine, Texas College of Arts and Industries of Kingsville and St. Mary's University of San Antonio.

Horned Frogs Open Football Training

FORT WORTH, Feb. 10. (AP)—The Texas Christian Horned Frogs got out their football togs today for spring football training.

The chief problem of Coaches L. R. Meyer and Raymond (Bear) Wolf was to find a fullback to replace the ineligible Lacy McClanahan. Meyer has two fullbacks in Glenn Roberts and Horace Carswell, but indicated he planned to do considerable experimenting before he picks a regular man. Candidates are Charley Needham, Ki Aldrich, center, and Lennon Blackmon, sophomore halfback and former Abilene High school star. Leon Pickett is getting a try at center.

Nine teams are eligible to compete in the district event. They are the champions of Cooke, Wise, Hood, Somervell, Parker, Tarrant, Johnson and Denton counties and the Fort Worth city champion.

Black-Draught Good Laxative

Black-Draught has been kept on hand for all the family in the home of Mr. W. A. Lemons, of Independence, Va., since twenty years ago. Mr. Lemons writes that he takes it as a laxative in cases of "headache, dull, tired feeling, biliousness."

"And I take it if I feel uncomfortable after a heavy meal," he adds. "I especially use it for sick headache. It certainly is good."

When a man says "Black-Draught is good," it is probably because he remembers the prompt, refreshing relief it brought in constipation troubles. Its benefits are felt because it is a simple, herb laxative, so natural in composition and action that thousands and thousands of men and women prefer it when a laxative is needed. Adv.

better known as "Bennie", who would be a force for good things in any city and has proven himself a valuable asset to this one.

NEW Resettlement administration headquarters, workers in which will supervise rehabilitation of the "dust bowl" area, mean quite a bit to Amarillo.

It will have a payroll including about 160 persons — most of which are being moved into the Panhandle city from other places.

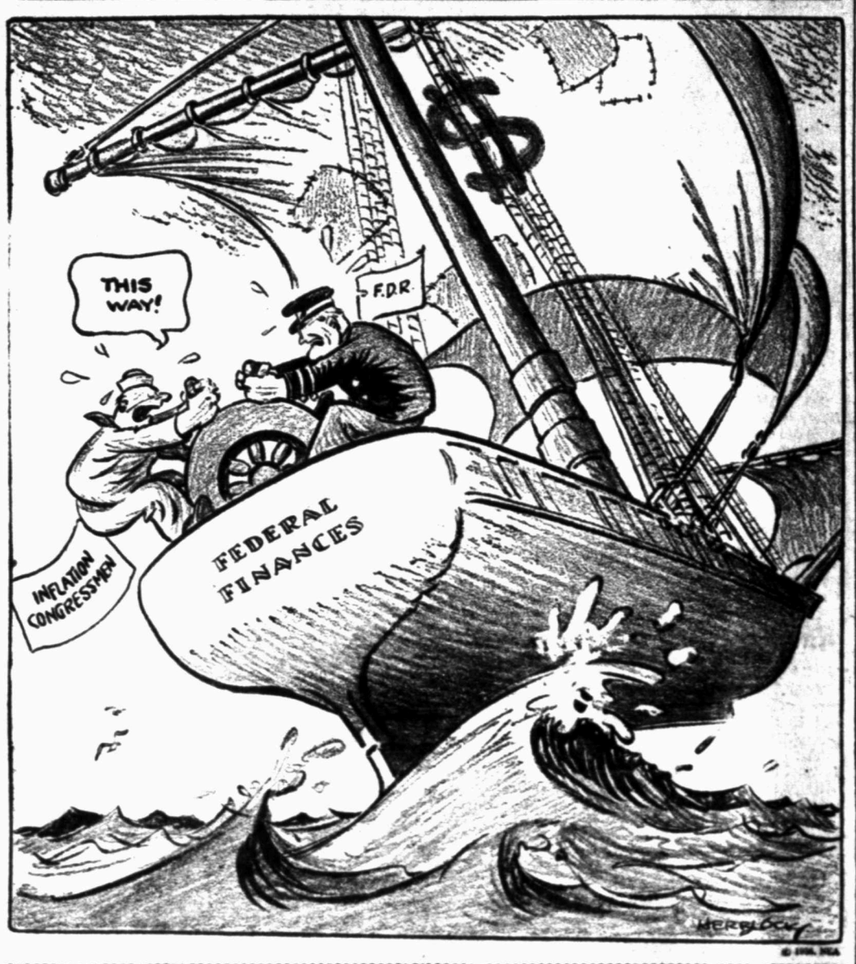

That's quite a boost and, incidentally, a feather in the cap of Congressman Marvin Jones, who doubtless had considerable to say about where the headquarters were to be located.

Lubbock can't kick over not getting those headquarters, for in the first place we are not in or near the "dust bowl", even if they are trying to put us in it.

And anyhow, we've gotten at least our share of governmental agencies at work in this country, all of which mean more citizens, more buying power and a place closer to the "lick log", better known as the "pie counter".

"Mutiny On The Bounty"

An Actor Doesn't Mind Being 'Panned'; A "Century" Isn't A Tenth Of A Grand; No Ale In 'Icebox'—All Studio Argot

BY PAUL HARRISON
Journal Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 10.—Technicians' argot: "Trucking" usually means motor transportation of freight. In Harlem it's a dance. In the studios it means moving a camera across a set to follow the motion of players.

And "panning" a player doesn't imply uncomplimentary remarks. Instead, "panning" means pushing the camera toward an actor, beginning with a long shot and finally resolving on his face.

A "butterfly" is a gauze-covered hoop held before players in outdoor scenes to cut down intensity of the light. A "century" isn't a $100 bill, but an adjustable standard for holding light screens and shades.

You'll find no food in a studio "icebox" — that's the soundproof cover built around the camera. "Sink" isn't a kitchen term, either, but a slang contraction of synchronization. A "buzzard" is an unsatisfactory scene. A "canary" is an unidentified noise in the sound recording system.

How They Get "Sink"

Synchronization isn't accomplished in quite the manner you may have believed. That is, when a player on the screen opens his mouth to speak, the corresponding impression on the adjoining sound track is not opposite the pictures showing the first lip movement—it's 19 pictures, or "frames" ahead.

This is done to keep films from catching on fire. Two powerful lights penetrate the film when it is projected, one for the sound, one for the visual pictures. The lights are too hot to be operated together. But motion and speech do emanate from the screen at the same time, so everything comes out all right.

Useful "Toy"

The projection machine used for preliminary editing of a picture would delight a child. It's called a moviola and provides images only an inch wide and little more than half an inch high.

Only one person can watch it at a time. The editor sits at a table and peeks through a circular lens as the film unreels at the normal rate of 90 feet a minute. The general impression is that of sitting in the last row in the top balcony of a theater a mile long. Only clearer.

As the picture begins to be patched into something like final shape, it's taken into a regular projection room and reviewed on a full-sized screen. That's to permit critical conferences of executives and yes-men.

No Squeaks Allowed

Echo and squeak hunters play important roles in moviedom. Before shooting begins, carpenters go all over a set testing every board and piece of furniture for squeaks. And you often see workmen prowling around in odd places on the sound stages, stuffing pieces of rubber and wool here and there, and tapping walls and ceilings with long poles to locate elusive "wild sounds."

Annoying echoes and freak vibrations are continually occurring. Brick walls are covered with sound-absorbing felt, and pipes are padded with loose layers of asbestos—not to insulate the heat within them, but to keep noises from bouncing off of them.

Feathered Enemies

There's nothing funnier to a disinterested onlooker, or more exasperating to a hurried director, than the visit of a sparrow to a sound stage. Birds do get in occasionally, and have to be ejected before the cameras can turn again, because the beating of wings sounds in the mike like a fleet of passing planes.

Electricians, carpenters, and prop men swarm into the overhead catwalks to shoo out the birds. Players cheer and jeer. Executives swear. And costs mount with every wasted minute.

Rabbit Drive Being Planned By Agents

DALHART, Feb. 10 (AP)—Northwest Panhandle county agents are trying to work out a six or seven-county coordinated rabbit drive. The longears are making serious inroads on wheat which has the best prospects in four years, said Frank Stubbs, Dallam county agent.

TAX COLLECTIONS IMPROVING

Tax collections of towns, counties and school districts indicate improved financial conditions in this section over a year ago.

Newspapers of the area report better collections, running two, three and up to five per cent and more, over the year before.

Delinquent taxes are the straw that will break the backs of municipalities, state, county and city. Gradually the unpaid taxes of this area are being worked out. It will take more time, of course, but the facts indicate that people are beginning to see their way out.

Real estate is moving, both in town and farm property. These sales frequently bring in back taxes to collectors. Other elements also tend to aid collectors in gathering in back payments, all of which indicate better times.

Dutcher's News And Views OF WASHINGTON

(Copyright, 1936 NEA Service, Inc.)

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—Higher income taxes on the well-to-do, federal inheritance taxes on the wealthy, and retroactive excess profits taxes on processors who have been recovering AAA taxes through the courts will be Roosevelt's answer to recent jolts to the budget.

Proposed new tax legislation, if administration plans are not revised, will call for a billion dollars or more of levies to meet costs of the new farm program, the bonus, and the return or with-holding of processing taxes under the old AAA program.

Most sensational aspects of the plan as its "soak the rich" phases and its objective of insuring lower prices for consumers by re-enactment of processing taxes at substantially lower rates.

Simultaneously, Roosevelt plans a belligerent counter-blow at backers of the American Liberty League and other wealthy groups which oppose him, an attractive alternative for the congressional inflationists and a gesture for millions of city consumers who have resented higher food prices.

Want To Raise Billion

The administration wants to raise about $500,000,000 to pay for its farm relief-soil conservation program for the next fiscal year.

It seeks nearly $300,000,000 with which to pay off moral obligations and liquidating expenses under the old AAA contract system.

It wants $250,000,000 to apply against extra bonus payment expenses, of which $20,000,000 would be for this fiscal year and $160,000,000 for next year.

The latter figure would be an annual expense, due to immediate bonus payment, spread through until 1945, the date originally stipulated for maturity of bonus certificates.

How Tax Plan Would Work

Roughly, in round numbers and subject to revision, the administration plan for raising the money is about as follows:

1. An additional tax, perhaps as high as 10 per cent, on all individual unearned income above $10,000. This might bring in about $325,000,000 to the treasury.

2. Inheritance taxes at graduated rates on all inheritances of more than $10,000. The yield presumably would be somewhere near $300,000,000.

3. Processing taxes designed to raise about $350,000,000 instead of more than $500,000,000 as under the old AAA schedules. There is where the consumer theoretically would get a better break than under the former program. Tentatively, it has been proposed to cut the tax on hogs from $2.25 to 75 cents a hundredweight; the wheat tax from 30 to 20 cents; the cotton tax from 4.2 cents a pound, to 2.8 cents; and the rye tax form 30 to 15 cents.

4. A special retroactive excess profits tax of 90 per cent or more, through which the treasury would seek to recapture perhaps $200,000,000 from processors who have had their impounded taxes refunded under the supreme court decision or who simply refused to pay.

The court handed back about $200,00 ,000 of impounded taxes, and additional "delinquent" taxes up to the date of the devastating AAA decision amounted to more than $70,000,000. The administration is determined that big packers, millers, and other processors who passed the tax on to consumers while "little fellows" were paying their AAA taxes must not be given those bonanzas at the expense of the taxpayers who already have paid as consumers.

It proposes to apply the same tax to any refunds obtained through court action of the billion dollars in processing taxes actually paid. The tax may also be made applicable to millions of dollars in fees collected by lawyers who fought the processing taxes.

Lobby Is Forming

The principle of this retroactive tax is the same as that of the post-war tax which levied 80 per cent on profits from war contracts.

Already a lobby is forming here to represent interests which want to keep the nearly $300,000,000 of impounded and delinquent taxes, and, if possible, to get back their shares of the billion dollars paid.

If the administration pushes hard on the program herein out-lined, a very dull session of congress will become a lively one indeed.

In 1755 Gov. Barrois sent Bernardo de Miranda to explore the Llano country for evidence of gold and silver. He took samples of gold which were sent to Mexico and pronounced "worth while". Texas Centennial visitors will find the Llano country one of the greatest mineral regions of the west.

HIGH COURAGE

by Jeanne Bowman.

Synopsis: Ann Farnsworth is now Nikki Nielson, a member of the fishing colony at Union Town, instead of one of Portland's leading debutantes. Many strange things have conspired to reduce her to her present state—or is it being "reduced" to have earned the love of such a man as John Neuman? At any rate Anne hopes to find out what has caused Tom Farley to turn on her so viciously, and what the trouble is in the Farnsworth canneries. She is working on the boat she has bought for the Sorki boys, and living with Lilsa, their aunt.

Chapter 30
FARLEY MAKES TROUBLE

Anne only sensed the growing unrest at first, for John had warned everyone that she was to be kept from knowing the truth of things if possible, for her own safety.

At first she was concerned only with delight in her growing knowledge and increasing strength. Her slim body was rounding, her skin becoming a dusky gold, cheeks and lips flushed with scarlet. The mop of curls, cut short so they could be pushed under her cap, were the color of sage honey.

And then, as she found bed of an evening less attractive, she began to notice a change in Lilsa. She would come in worn out in spirit as well as in body.

"Lilsa," pled Anne one Sunday, "won't you tell me what wrong?"

"I don't know," the woman admitted, "of course we have more work with this run, but its something else, something in the air. Things aren't harmonious like they were when Mr. Luke was alive."

"What things, Lilsa?"

"Oh, I don't know, Tom Farley's relatives, the place is running over with them and they all want to boss. If I hadn't worked there seventeen years I'd try to find another job."

Tom Farley. At the mention of that name, Anne retreated to her corner overlooking the Pacific, while memories of the past rushed over her. Lee hadn't told Judge Kellogg of the outcome of his investigation, though she'd heard nothing much from the fishermen. She sensed trouble, rather than knew of it. Farley was unquestionably working with Rob Crocker, and the two wouldn't give up easily.

She went to work the next morning in thoughtful mood. A grey day, a silver grey day, she decided, as they started out on a sea as smooth and shining as an aluminum tray. She watched the world turn from grey to blue as a gentle rain blew up. This would be good for her garden and she wanted it a blaze of colors when John returned.

When John returned. Her days revolved about that thought. On the late drift, after supper was over and the little galley cleaned, she sat outside thinking of him.

Some day they would sit thus, watching net buoys bobbing like scarlet blobs on the water, watching other boats, catching the first glimpse of the Cape light.

And then her revery was interrupted. George had jumped to his feet and was looking off towards Astoria. "Look at that fool," he shouted to Orvi, pointing to a small cruiser ducking in front of a big freighter, tooting derisively. "He must be drunk."

The boat careened, seemed to sight the "Nikki" idling on her drift, and darted towards them George jumped to the roof of the cabin and began waving and shouting. Orvi turned on the searchlight and directed it towards the buoy lights.

But on the cruiser came. Anne looked at George, he was standing still now, like a statue. Orvi, too, seemed numb; only the men in the nearby gilnetters were sounding sirens, tooting whistles.

The boat cut in between the two buoy lights. Stopped.

"On purpose, he did it!" cried Orvi, suddenly articulate, as the buoy lights were drenched.

And now to the din was added the sound of cursing aboard the boat.

"He's tangled his propeller in our nets," Orvi wailed, and then he broke into Finnish and Anne, understanding, longed to join him.

A man came out on the tiny deck, reeled drunkenly, then steadied himself and swore belligerantly at the crew of the Nikki; at all fishermen who cluttered up the way and thought they owned the whole Pacific.

Orvi, stricken, looked at him. "Oe thousand dollars," he wailed as the man swung over the stern to slash at the water with a blade, "our net, he can't do that to our net."

Other voices joined from nearby boats and Anne caught occasional words. "Fellow working for the Farnsworth crowd. 'Sorki brothers won't stand a chance of having it made good."

The powerful engine of the boat started its hum, strangled, stopped. It started again, choked. Time after time the performance was repeated, then suddenly it started towards the gilnetter.

Paralyzed, Anne watched until it came close. Horrified she faced the man who had slashed the net. Tom Farley, sobered now, stared at her in amazed recognition.

The gilnetter tipped with the wash of their wave as they veered by, and Anne sank to the floor of the boat.

There was no use of staying long on the river. Anne looked at the dangling net as George drew it slowly in. The great gash slashed in it had released the fish. Only a few were entangled in what was left.

"Like silk, it was," murmured Orvi.

They turned back to Union Town with scarcely a word spoken between them.

George broke the silence once. "And I thought this would be ma's last summer at the cannery," he said.

When they had tied up to the wharf, Anne spoke. "Come up to my house, we'll pass yours quietly so Tecla won't hear."

But Tecla did hear. She had sat watching the lone boat putting back from the drift, and like every other woman with a man on the water, she wondered what was wrong.

"There is trouble, she said, opening the rear door and confronting them as they started up the stairs.

"Yes," answered the boys.

Lilsa heard the tramp of feet and met them at the door. She took one look at their faces, then hurried them in, fiercely cheerful, her top knot riding her head like the comb of a fighting cock.

"Coffee we'll have, and I've cheese left to dip in it." She turned to Orvi, "take the crepe of your face and build a fire; Nikki's cold."

"I'm not," faltered Anne, and shivered with nervousness.

"Your spirit is; an open fire warms the heart."

Listening to their tale, Lilsa cut squares of the leathery curd cheese as if she were cutting squares from the hides of the vandals who had ruined the net. She plopped them into the steaming coffee.

"Drink, then talk," she snapped.

The fire crackled merrily, boots were pulled off and wool stockinged feet stretched towards the blaze. The fishermen three, heartened by the steaming beverage, found their gloom lifting.

"We could mend the net," George decided, "but it would take till the end of the season."

"Don't worry, boys," Anne was trying to remember how much money was left in her account. "We'll buy a new one."

"It would be better to sue, and make them buy it for us," Orvi said in protest.

"We couldn't sue Tom Farley."

THE PLAINSMAN GETS SOME MAIL

CCC WORKER ANSWERS PHILLIPS' LETTER

Dear Plainsman: "Will you allow me to reply to J. W. Phillips through your column?

I would like first to tell him a little story.

Mr. Phillips, I once met a little boy. The little fellow was crying like his heart was broke, so I asked him what the trouble was. He told me his ma had baked a cake and refused to give him the biggest piece. Now it seems to a bunch of us fellows that your trouble is about the same as that little boy's. You failed to get the biggest slice, so you don't know anything to do but sit back on your haunches and howl. Did you ever try being a sport and do a little boosting for the other side when you knew you had lost? It would make you feel better and make the other fellow think so much more of you.

The veterans that are here as members of the Civilian Conservation corps, are a part of a crew of men that 19 years ago this coming April was given a job to do. They did it to the satisfaction of those that were over them. It was not done like some of them thought at the time it should be, however, they did not try to do any mud-slinging. All they did was a little private grumbling, but at that they lined up with the rest and let it go at that, the job was done and that was the main thing.

Now the few of us that are here in camp were members of that great crew, and when we got here we were given a job to do, and we are doing it, I think, to the satisfaction of our boss and we are proud of it. We are proud of the amount of work we are doing. As for you and your five men I don't think you could pick five men in this county and do the blacksmith work that has been done in this shop in the last five months. You could not pick 25 men and do the work in 12 months that has been done here from the service building to the highway. If you are going to ring us into it by trying to give us a hard rap in the newspapers, please use a little judgment and ask the engineering department here for actual figures on what we have done. I think they will accommodate you but if they will not, then come out and hitch yourself to a shovel and wheelbarrow and side in with one of the boys and stay with him a few days and learn at first hand whether or not this bunch works.

Now about Mr. Thompson and his staff, the most of them are young men but this bunch of vets have plenty of respect for them and their ability. In fact we are for them to the last man, and to the last ditch and they have got to be good for a bunch like this to all be for them.

Thanks,
Emmett Harrison,

Cotton Market

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (AP)—Cotton futures opened quiet, 1 lower to 2 higher with traders awaiting developments in Washington. March 11.19; May 10.84; July 10.56; Oct. 10.29; Dec. 10.30; Jan. 10.32

Trading was quiet after the call, and prices moved within a comparatively narrow range. There was a fair demand from the trade and Liverpool which absorbed some moderate southern and New Orleans selling, and there was considerable switching between months without much change in the differences.

At the end of the first hour Mch was around 11.19 and Oct 10.30, or net unchanged to 2 points higher.

A few hedges appeared to be reaching the market occasionally, but they were in very small lots, and contracts seemed scarce later in the morning with prices advancing on a little trade buying and covering.

March was relatively firm, selling up to 11.26, or 9 points net higher, while Oct. advanced to 10.34 with the general list showing net gains of 4 to 9 points at mid-day.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 10 (AP) — Suspense and uncertainty continued to hang over the cotton market today and at the opening prices showed little change from Saturday's closing levels.

Confused over the many and varied reports from Washington on the new farm bill and the loan cotton proposal, traders were staying out of the market.

March opened at 11.13, May at 10.78, July at 10.54 and Oct. at 10.26. Prices held around the opening level during the early trading.

MKTS— AD COT N ORLEANS --

The market held in a narrow range during the morning and showed little change either from the previous close or the opening level. March sold at 11.13, May at 10.79, July 10.56 and Oct. 10.27.

Trading has evidently reached a stalemate until such time as the Washington legislative developments are clarified.

GREATER ARMY

Hugh A. Drum, commander of the department out at "the crossroads of the Pacific"—$20,000,000 for defenses outright and another $29,332,922 for housing and other "human need or welfare" requisites. Similarly the hearings disclosed Major General Lyle Brown's demands as commander of the Panama canal department for a $25,000,000 five-year program of defense installations.

Although Major General Johnson Hagood did not run up dollar-and-cent totals for border needs, the eighth corps area and third field army commander emphasized the Mexican boundary was "the only land frontier we have which is of any military importance." He agreed with committee members inquiring as to the need of more adequate border defense that "any foreign power of any strength could land and come through Mexico almost at will" and that in case of trouble from an enemy on the Pacific side "it would be a great menace to the United States, so far as troops landing in Old Mexico and coming across our border is concerned."

Figures showing the army will have only 250 airplanes in first-class fighting trim a year from June were given a subcommittee by Major General Oscar Westover, air corps chief.

He told the committee, too, that air defenses for the nation's territories and possessions are "almost impotent."

ALEXANDER'S RECORD WELL KNOWN HERE

Jack Alexander has been arrested several times by Lubbock officers, principally for alleged bootlegging activities.

Indicted by a district court grand jury for transporting liquor Nov. 12, 1931, Alexander won his freedom when Durwood H. Bradley, then district attorney, asked dismissal of the case because of insufficient evidence.

Injunction Granted

An injunction restraining Alexander from sale of beer and liquor was granted by Judge Homer L. Pharr of 72nd district court March 17, 1934.

A county court case, filed by Vaughn E. Wilson, former county attorney, charged Alexander March 8, 1934, with sale of beer. The court docket shows that the case was disposed of April 2, 1934, after an analysis of beer allegedly sold by Alexander contained more than 3.2 per cent of beer. The case was transferred to a grand jury for investigation.

Plea of guilty in a case charging Alexander with rudely displaying a pistol in a Shallowater cafe is recorded on the county court docket. Fine of $1 and costs was assessed March 30, 1934.

WAR SITUATION

Geneva fear that more league actions directed against Italy would do nothing but cause more unfriendliness.

Italy's position as a balance of power in Europe makes France fearful of losing the Rome government's friendship. Germany already is outside the league, having resigned from Geneva on the grounds that other members discriminated against her.

The French argue that, should Italy quit with the same complaint, Germany and Italy can scarcely help but feel aligned in spirit, at least.

France also has become increasingly nervous over reports, denied categorically by the German government, that Germany is moving camouflaged soldiers into the demilitarized Rhineland.

Sheriff B. L. Parker of Tahoka took into custody two sisters, 13 and 15 years old, who were said to have run away from their home at Idalou.

A message of death awaits Floyd Sowers and Harold Blanchard of Lansing, Mich. Police here were asked to inform the men, who are traveling in Texas, that Mrs. Sowers died recently at Kalamazoo.

A trash fire at 2306 Avenue U resulted in a call by fire department members and equipment at 2:35 p. m. Sunday. No damage occurred. The second alarm came from 2412 Fifteenth street, where fire in an automobile did little damage. The alarm was sounded at 8:55 p. m.

HAYMON KRUPP

Four candidates announced they the country."

Krupp, laughed, picked his wife on the cheek, and told her to get started on her shopping trip.

Life Has Been Patchwork

For Haymon Krupp life has been a patchwork quilt.

Born in Lithuania as a remote relative of the armament Krupps of Essen, Germany . . . His first view of rough-and-tumble Texas when 13 . . . drygoods merchandising . . . Pancho Villa driving a delivery truck for him and recruiting an army in his off hours . . . Oil and riches . . . and Pancho called him "Don Haymon." . . .

The stream of memory eddies about the rebel Mexican.

And not forgetful of a friend, it developed.

SENATOR PITTMAN

attract world-wide attention.

He called upon congress to "take cognizance" of the Island Empire's policy toward China, and "its intended effect upon the United States."

Pittman declared Japanese armies' conquest of Manchuria "was in violation of the covenant of the League of Nations, the Kellogg-Briand pact to outlaw war, and the Nine-Power pact."

He asserted that in asking congress to study the eastern question, he had in mind that "congress alone has the power and the duty imposed upon it to appropriate money for the national defense."

Quotes Jap Writer

Pittman quoted a Japanese writer as saying America "is ready to renounce her traditional principle of the freedom of the seas."

"Well," the chairman declared, "the United States does not intend to surrender the freedom of the seas and recognizes no jurisdiction in any government on the high seas beyond the three-mile limit in time of peace."

"The pending neutrality legislation," he continued, "expressly reserves and reaffirms all of its rights under international law even in time of war. Foreign governments may be warned that any restrictions that the United States may see fit to put upon its citizens in time of war will not constitute any warrant for illegal treatment of our citizens by foreign governments, nor deprive our government of the right to take any action it sees fit, voluntarily, on behalf of its citizens."

Quotes Admiral

He read a dispatch quoting Vice Admiral Sankichi Takahashi, commander of the Japanese fleet, as saying "Unless America renounces her naval policy aimed at the expansion and protection of her foreign trade, Japan will be forced to extend the fleet's cruising radius to New Guinea, Celebes, and Borneo, and establish footholds in Formosa and the mandated South Sea islands."

Pittman declared that "never in the history of modern times has such an undiplomatic, arrogant, and impertinent statement been volunteered by one holding such a position."

The speaker attacked "false and destructive" Japanese propaganda and declared "the propagandists are apparently attempting to influence the good, peace-loving people of this country through deceptive articles and threats of war."

Drive On Insurance Violations Is Made

The state department of insurance is engaged in a drive on insurance men who do not have a state license and also on companies that are operating without a state license in Texas, said R. F. Snakard, Austin, an inspector for the state department, here over the week-end. He was here on an investigation of agent matters, he said.

A complaint was filed in county court here against a man who not only was operating without a license, but was representing a non-licensed company. There have been several similar cases filed over the state, h added.

Mr.Snakard pointed out the retaliatory provisions of a law, passed and made effective recently. It provides the state may charge the same fees to foreign companies operating in Texas that those states charge Texas companies operating in that state.

"The District of Columbia charges $50 a year to operate in the district," he added. "That means that Texas may charge agents of companies from the district, $50 a year. These rates apply to fire, life, casuality and other forms of insurance."

Present Texas agent licenses expire March 31, the inspector added. Insurance agents must secure a new license before that time.

Grain Man Finds Business "Good" While On A Jury

(By Staff Correspondent)

BROWNFIELD, Feb. 10—A little thing like jury service does not keep J. C. Bond, local grain buyer, from plying his trade while attending sessions of the district court.

Wanting something else to talk about besides court matters, Mr. Bond began talking to farmers with him on the jury about crops. He soon found a man with 10,000 pounds of maize heads to sell. It was not long before he found another with a large amount of threshed grain.

After three days of "duty" on the jury panel, Mr. Bond found business pretty good. On his fourth day he talked to a man who had a carload of grain to sell. The deal was closed.

Test In Gaines Is Making Slow Time

(By Staff Correspondent)

SEMINOLE, Feb. 10 — Drilling slowly because of the hard lime and of danger of trouble if production in the "big lime" is actually met up with too fast, the No. 1 E. H. Jones of Wahlenmaier-York and Adams, on the Jones ranch near here, is making about five feet per day.

Latest report indicated the hole was down almost to 5,048 feet, with no show as yet. C. J. (Red) Davidson is the driller. His crew is to move to from the Jones ranch as soon as the job is completed.

Recently it was decided by backers of the test, when the 5,000 foot contract depth was reached and no production, to drill some 200 or 300 feet, unless oil, gas or sulphur water was reached.

Hard lime was entered at 4,995 feet. The test is 17 miles northwest of here, in section 414, block G of C. C. S. D. & R. G. N. G. Ry. survey.

STARS OF RADIO AND SHOW WORLD TO BE PRESENTED IN CENTENNIAL SERIES

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Feb. 10.—General Motors will present outstanding stars of radio and the show world in a series of entertainments at the Texas Centennial exposition this summer.

W. S. Kundsen, executive vice president has announced the corporation will take over the 4,444-seat Centennial auditorium for the duration of the exposition. The seats on the ground floor will be torn out, and the floor made level with the stage, he said. The auditorium will be air-conditioned. The 1800 balcony seats will not be disturbed.

Kundsen, who came here from the Pacific coast, said the exact nature of the exhibition and entertainment had not been decermined, but a weekly series of entertainments and spectacles was being considered. This, he said, would give the exposition a $1,000,000 musical and entertainment program.

HIGH COURAGE

Anne countered.

"Farley!" Tecla sat up straight. "Was he there?"

"He was the one who slashed the net."

Tecla leaned back, a look of fatalistic resignation on her face. "I t'ink Farley, he come to you boys to pay," she said.

"What?" they all cried, in unison.

"Yes," she answered wearily, "he come to make the offer, but he come to see Nikki."

And Anne felt this was true. Having seen her in the Sorki brothers' boat, he would try to learn her whereabouts. Knowing she was not in a sanitarium, but rather with the people he was intent upon harming he would want to know why she was there and what she was doing.

"I wis John was here," blurted Orvi.

John. Anne's heart quickened its beat at the name.

"Maybe you'd better go, Nikki," Tecla suggested.

"Go where?" she asked.

"To safety," Tecla answered.

"But, Tecla," she protested, "he can't do anything to me. I've done no wrong and surely he can't molest me in my own home."

"She's right," Lilsa confirmed, and the top knot nodded emphatically, "she's every right in the world to be here. We've good locks on the door and I'd like to see the color of the man's hair who'd try to hurt her when I was around."

"WRONG NUMBER" HOLDS NO TERRORS FOR BLIND GIRL; OPERATES BOARD

(By The Associated Press)

PORT ARTHUR, Feb. 10—"Wrong number" has no terror for Miss Margaret Childre, 21, whose sensitive fingers are the liaison for hundreds of telephone calls daily at the Port Arthur business college.

Miss Childre is believed to be the only blind girl telephone operator in Texas, but with the aid of a Braille attachment her hands unerringly connect the numbers her eyes cannot see.

Fall Destroys Sight

A fall when eight years old destroyed her eyesight but, notwithstanding, Miss Childre was graduated from the University of Texas last year with a bachelor of arts degree. In preparation for her college course she attended the Texas school for the blind at Austin and was graduated in 1932.

That autumn she entered the University of Texas but transferred to Southern Methodist university at Dallas for one year, returning to the state university for her degree. She completed the four-year college course in three long terms and two summer sessions.

Extension of Regular Board

Operation of the telephone switchboard which she undertook the first of this month, is Miss Childre's first step in self support. The attachment, invented by a blind man and approved by the American Association of Workers for the Blind, is an extension of the regular switchboard panel and carries duplicates of the apertures for plugging in.

Rows of plungers replace the line of holes in the board and a buzzer sounds the incoming call. Vibration of a plunger warns the blind operator as a light does one having vision and she readily locates the corresponding socket on the switchboard and plugs in. A Braille character beneath each plunger denotes its purpose.

Miss Childre's switchboard carries two incoming lines and eight house stations.

The efficient young operator, among other accomplishments, is a pianist and dances well, and Carl Vaughan, president of the business college, rates her an expert typist and stenographer.

BONDS APPROVED

TERRELL, Feb. 10 (AP)—Voters of Kaufman county commissioners district No. 3 Saturday approved, three to one, a $70,000 bond issue for widening and improving highway 15 (U. S. 80).

England's boot and shoe export trade decreased 129,430 dozen pairs in the first seven months of 1933 as compared to the figure for 1932.

DOMESTIC ALLOTMENT PLAN ADVOCATED BY WTCC IN LETTER TO TOM BLANTON

(By The Associated Press)

ABILENE, Feb. 10—The West Texas Chamber of Commerce's advocacy of a cotton control measure embodying the domestic allotment plan, in order that three southwestern states—Texas, Arkansas and Oklahoma—may not "bear the brunt of curtailment to the benefit of other states," has been expressed to Congressman Thomas L. Blanton, of the Abilene district, in which cotton production is heavy, and to other congressmen, D. A. Bandeen, WTCC general manager, has revealed.

Bandeen said the Bankhead act quota was only 72 per cent of the 1932, production for the three states as compared to 89 per cent for the states of Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina and South Carolina.

Others Produce More

Three southwestern cotton states produced 73 per cent of the quota in 1934 and 87 per cent in 1935 while the other five states were producing 113 per cent in 1934 and 199 per cent in 1935, Bandeen declared.

"In plain words," the letter to Blanton read, "it appears that the Bankhead scheme of quotas and allotments has resulted in our southwestern states bearing all the load of reducing the American cotton crop . . . We take the liberty of submitting the information we have gathered in an exhaustive survey in the belief that when considering new farm legislation you will see to it that our section will not again suffer under the penalties and discrimination imposed by the previous methods of control."

Bandeen said his organization had worked in close cooperation with Congressman Martin Dies of Orange, who reintroduced the domestic allotment plan in the house several days ago.
