THREE RETIREES HONORED...

Snyder Teachers Get Awards Monday Night

Retirement awards and service pins were presented at the annual awards session of the local Texas State Teachers Association unit Monday evening in the Snyder High School Auditorium.

Retirees from the local school system this year are Jessie Guthrie, Herman Parsons and Ida Mae Webb. Also recognized at the meeting were two who are taking early retirement, Gussie Gray and June McGlaun.

Two faculty members received their 30-year service pins. These awards went to Ollie Peek of Snyder High School and Carolyn Reon of West Elementary.

Twenty-five-year service pins went to Pauline Autry at North Elementary, Fred Beard at the high school, Barbara Bigham at West Elementary, Elizabeth Jenkins at Central Elementary, Nina Nesbit at Northeast and James Stehley at the junior high.

Receiving 20-year service pins were Jo Ashley at junior high, Betty Courtney at East Elementary, Vera Mae High at North Elementary, Jo Ann Littlepage at Stanfield Elementary, Billie Hartsfield, Albert Lewis and Janet Wesson, all at the high school.

Ten-year pins went to Alice Borrego, Helen Mock and Kenneth Parker, all of Northeast Elementary; Margaret Corkran, Sue Eiring and Martha Fagin, all of the junior high school; Peggy English, Mary Killam, Elouise Lambert, Dorothy Lavender, Bill Lyon and Kathryn Roberts, all at the high school; Johnnie Harber and Dale Lavender, both at West Elementary; Mary Hopkins at North Elementary, Modelle May at East Elementary and Anna Sears at Central Elementary.

Refreshments were served in the high school student center prior to the presentation of the awards in the auditorium.

We happened upon some interesting information about taxes the other day.

The big collector of taxes, of course, is Uncle Sam, the one involved in the Washington, D. C., hassle. But state and local governments take a share themselves, and the figures show that people who live in Texas are taxed as little by these agencies as those in any other state---except Oklahoma.

The figure filberts have determined that state and local taxes gobble up anywhere from 8.6 percent to 15.8 percent of personal income, depending on where you live.

Only four states take less than nine percent. These are Oklahoma, 8.6; Texas, New Hampshire and Arkansas, 8.9 each.

The highest is New York, where state and local taxes take 15.8 percent of the personal income.

One of the first states we looked up was California. We expected it to be among the lowest, now that Howard Jarvis has successfully put his tax-cutting program across. But Californians still are well up the ladder at 10.9 percent. This means that their state and local taxes are higher than some 24 other states.

The states with the lower percentages are mostly in the South, with major exceptions being New Hampshire, Ohio, Indiana, Missouri and Kansas.

In Texas, some people expected a strong effort in the Legislature this session to do away with the county-wide appraisal system. However, they had forgot that a constitutional amendment approved by voters last November set counties up on the system, and mere legislative action can't change it now.

The county-wide appraisal system is the way a private business would do it. But the way the present system was set up, there is so much confusion that a lot of people have turned against it.

From the standpoint of efficiency, it doesn't make sense for several government agencies to have different values, different percentages of assessment and different rates on the same piece of property. The county-wide system makes the values and the assessment figures the same for all, leaving only the rate for adjustments by the agencies themselves. But there should be a simpler way to achieve this than the way it was set up.

For example, we have thought all along that a single agency should be designated to finance operation of the appraisal district and that there surely is a better way to name members of the appraisal district board. Some changes on these issues could eliminate some of the problems. One criticism that emerged was the fact that appraisal district board members were not directly responsible to voters. A change, we understand, will provide that board members of the various agencies, who are elected by the people, shall serve on the appraisal board.

Anyway, it appears doubtful that Texas will ever go back to the old way of valuing and assessing property.

Austin Recovers Following Flood

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Austinites piled furniture on lawns and spread their soaked carpets on driveways in the hot sun that followed an overnight flood that left at least nine dead and millions of dollars of damage.

"I feel like either laughing or crying, but I have better things to cry about," said Jill Mueller as she looked through her water-ravaged home along Shoal Creek.

Mayor Carole McClellan made a Monday morning inspection of damage resulting from downpours that dumped almost seven inches of rain on some sections of the city between late Saturday night and early Monday morning.

"I think we are fortunate we didn't lose more lives, when you look at the devastation," the mayor said. She asked for a disaster area declaration for the flooded areas.

Austin Police Sgt. Ernest Shugart said authorities had recovered nine bodies, including a man whose pickup truck swirled into a drainage ditch whirlpool and a woman whose car was found 12 feet off the ground in trees.

Shugart said four others were listed as missing, including a mother who was swept away with her baby as her husband watched.

The Austin Municipal Airport recorded just over four inches of rain Sunday night and early Monday, and that brought the total since Saturday night to about seven inches.

Flash flood quickly pushed water to 20-30 feet deep in parts of town.

Homes along Shoal Creek suffered the most damage. The creek, usually a placid stream, wanders from north to south through a residential area and empties into Town Lake.

"The homes at the turns of the creek were demolished," said area resident Cam O'Keefe. "It looks like we had a week of hurricanes."

Mrs. O'Keefe and husband Kayo helped rescue a stranded woman and son, whose home was battered by the water.

"We put our boots on first to avoid snakes," said Mrs. O'Keefe.

One of the dead was identified as Michael Villarreal, 18, whose pickup truck wound up in a flooded drainage ditch in North Austin.

Mike Sheridan, a night auditor at a hotel near the ditch, said he saw the truck go down like a sinking ship.

IF SAUDIS HIKE PRICES...

OPEC Nears Agreement

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is close to an agreement calling for a $2 price increase by leading producer Saudi Arabia in return for a price freeze by all other members, two oil ministers said today.

"The Saudis are ready to go to $34," Gabon's oil minister, Edouard Alexis M'Bouy-Boutzit told reporters. The Saudis currently have OPEC's lowest price of $32 a barrel and produce more that 40 percent of OPEC's output. A $2 Saudi increase would raise gasoline and heating oil prices in America about a half penny a gallon.

Another minister, who asked to remain anonymous, also said the Saudis would raise their price.

The two ministers also said that other members would freeze their prices in return for the Saudi increase. They did not say how long the price freeze would last but conference sources predicted it would be at least until fall.

The two ministers said the Saudis had refused to cut their record high production at this time but would consider doing it later.

The Gabon minister said most OPEC countries were considering across-the-board production cuts to help mop up a world oil glut that is depressing prices.

"I am freezing my price and cutting production by 18 percent," said Qatar' oil minister, Sheik Ali Khalifa al-Sabah.

Qatar, one of OPEC's smaller producers, has an output of 500,000 barrels a day. Like most OPEC producers its price is about $36 a barrel.

Kuwait and Nigeria have already reduced their output this year by between 17 and 20 percent.

OPEC President Subroto of Indonesia said the meeting would be finished by about 7 p.m. — 1 p.m. EDT.

The oil cartel's semiannual price-fixing meeting began Monday with predictions the Saudis would raise their price $2. But Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi oil minister, told reporters his government would "never" go to $36, the base price charged by most of the other members of the 13-nation group.

Saudi Arabia was also enforcing a price freeze on the other governments by refusing to reduce its record production of 10.3 million barrels a day, more than 40 percent of OPEC's total output. This, coupled with increased exports from non-OPEC countries and conservation in the industrial nations, has resulted in a glut on the oil market that is keeping the price down.

The average OPEC price is now slightly more than $35 for a 42-gallon barrel. A Saudi increase of $2 would raise the average about 80 cents a barrel and add about half a penny a gallon to the price of oil consumed by the United States.

Coalition Falls In Rome, Italy

ROME (AP) — Christian Democrat Premier Arnaldo Forlani's four-party coalition government collapsed today and resigned because three Cabinet members were linked to a Masonic lodge under investigation as a possible criminal association.

Forlani submitted his 7-month-old government's resignation to President Sandro Pertini, who asked the premier to stay on as a caretaker until a new government — the 41st since World War II — could be formed.

Pertini said talks on forming a government would begin immediately.

The premier gave up after the Socialist Party, a member of the coalition, refused to agree to replacement of the ministers involved in the deepening scandal.

After a 45-minute Cabinet meeting called to announce the government's resignation, State Industry Minister Gianni De Michelis, a Socialist, said, "I believe that we can strongly make the case for a Socialist premier."

The collapse of the government sent stock prices tumbling on the Milan stock exchange until state banks intervened. The dollar hit a new high of 1,156 lire, but dealers said the rise was caused mainly by the strength of the U.S. currency.

Justice Minister Adolfo Sarti resigned Saturday after his name was linked to the lodge, Propaganda Due (P-2), that prosecutors are investigating as a possible criminal association.

The scandal, which led to the arrest of a former Italian secret service official, broke Thursday when Forlani released a list of 953 names of reported members of the lodge. It included top politicians, businessmen, publishers, diplomats and military officers.

Ask Us

Q.—Is there a law that allows no more than 10 percent of the drivers on Snyder's Streets on any one day to signal their intent to make a turn (I believe it is less than two percent for lane-changing)?

A.—No. But, as you have observed, some people do things without any law compelling them to do so.

Jury Being Selected For Murder Trial

Jury selection began this morning in 132nd District Court for the murder trial of Tina S. Woods.

Mrs. Woods is charged with killing her husband, Tommy Woods, in a stabbing incident which occurred last Feb. 7 at Coleman Apartments.

He was pronounced dead at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. Death was attributed to neck wound allegedly inflicted by a knife wielded by his wife.

Jury selection was expected to be completed and testimony was due to begin this afternoon.

District Attorney Pete Greene is prosecuting the case. Mrs. Woods is represented by Tom Bevill, Breckenridge attorney.

District Judge Wayland G. Holt is presiding.

Holiday Claims 346 Lives

CHICAGO (AP) — Traffic accidents claimed the lives of at least 346 people nationwide during the three-day Memorial Day weekend, far below both last year's total and the National Safety Council's estimate for the holiday.

Last year, 411 people died during the Memorial Day observance.

This year's total of 346 included deaths that occurred between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Monday in each time zone.

The National Safety Council had estimated that between 450 and 500 motorists could be killed over the weekend.

The worst toll on record for a Memorial Day weekend was in 1969 when 629 people were killed in traffic accidents.

Caucus Talks Strategy

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The House Democratic Caucus talked redistricting strategy behind locked doors today as representatives prepared to fight over their election district boundaries.

But as of mid-morning, the House redistricting bill had not found a place on the debate calendar because the final, polished version of the measure had not reached the Calendars Committee.

Bills must be placed on a calendar, laid out for 24 hours, before they may be debated in the House.

The Democratic Caucus, consisting of both liberals and conservatives, gathered to talk over the bill, but it was unclear whether it would take a position to fight it or support it.

Poland Problems Continue

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Two Cabinet ministers have committed suicide and two former premiers appeared before a Communist Party review panel in a far-reaching investigation of the roots of Poland's economic crisis, the Polish news agency reported.

Meanwhile, 15,000 people marched in Warsaw on Monday to demand freedom for alleged political prisoners. The action organized by students and a prisoners' rights group defied appeals by the independent union Solidarity, church and academic leaders.

Sympathy marches took place in Lublin, Opole, Lodz Torun, Bialystok, Wroclaw and other cities, a student spokesman said.

Car In Funeral Procession Hit

A funeral procession was interrupted Monday afternoon about 2:30 when one of the vehicles was involved in an accident at 25th and Ave. E.

J.R. Meadows, driving a 1973 Oldsmobile, was somewhere near the center of the procession traveling east on 25th through the red light at Ave. E when a 1974 Oldsmobile driven by Ethel Mae Weems came through the intersection and collided with the Meadows' vehicle.

Floyd Weems, a passenger in the second vehicle, was taken to Cogdell Hospital by Scurry County EMS. He was treated and released for minor injuries. Officer Richard McCulley investigated the mishap.

Early this morning, officers Robert Harbin and Keith Ward were called to the Bunkhouse to investigate a complaint that someone had thrown a large, live bull snake into the shower with another Bunkhouse resident. The culprit who allegedly threw the snake in was advised of the seriousness of his practical joke and told to dispose of the snake.

PROCESSION MISHAP—The two vehicles above were involved in a collision at 25th and Ave. E. One car came through an intersection on a green light, striking a car in the middle of a funeral procession that was going through on the red light. Investigating officer, Richard McCulley is shown here speaking to one of the car occupants. (SDN Staff Photo)

apple pie legislation

Whenever three-quarters of the U.S. Senate signs up to sponsor a particular piece of legislation, it's a safe bet the measure isn't going to harm a soul — or accomplish much of anything, either.

This year's apple-pie-and-motherhood bill is a regulatory-reform measure built around a requirement that any federal agency planning to issue a new regulation must first determine that the anticipated benefits will "justify" the costs and that the proposed rule is the most "cost-effective" means of achieving the objective in question.

No one but the most rabid devotee of bureaucracy for its own sake could object to such a requirement, it has a nice, business-like ring to it that has undeniable appeal in a society all but strangling in government red tape.

What, after all, are we coming to when the common hamburger is subject to 41,000 separate federal and state regulations stemming from 200 laws and more than 111,000 precedent-setting court cases, according to one recent Colorado State University study?

The problem with cost-benefit analysis, the heart of the "Regulatory Reform Act of 1981," is that it promises more than it can deliver. The objectivity, the dispassionate balancing of pros and cons implied by such an approach, is largely illusory. All public-policy decisions, including regulatory actions, are ultimately based on value judgments.

Consider, for example the expensive and time-consuming regulatory maze the pharmaceutical industry must negotiate in this country before bringing a new drug on the market.

According to Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., one of the chief sponsors of the pending reform bill, it now takes 10 years and $54 milion to move a new drug from the laboratory bench to the patients bedside. Such regulatory restraint, he says, has put the United States behind other nations in the development of new pharmaceuticals.

What Laxalt does not mention is that these self-same regulations spared the United States the incalculable pain of a Thalidomide tragedy, to cite but the most obvious example. How do we weigh delay and expense against the avoidance of hideous drug-induced birth defects? It is a value judgment, pure and simple, and it always will be.

In the regulatory setting, costs are always infinetly easier to estimate and qualify than are benefits. What is the value of a human life, if we are talking of health and safety regulations? Or fuzzier still, how do we price enhancement or degradation of the quality of life?

Even Murray L. Weidenbaum, chairman of President Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers and a leading advocate of cost-benefit analysis in the regulatory sphere, has acknowledged the difficulties inherent in trying to determine whether the benefits of a particular proposal "justify" its costs.

"Reliable measures of costs and benefits are not easily achieved or always possible," he said in a recent article.

"Should the loss of a forest be measured by the value of the timber eliminated? What of the beauty destroyed. What of the area's value as a wildlife habitat? In view of such questions, it is unlikely that agency decision-makers will be faced with simple choices."

There is nothing wrong with requiring agencies to give explicit consideration to the anticipated costs and benefits of every proposed rule and to examine alternative means of achieving their objectives. Indeed, such an analytic approach ought to be part and parcel of the public process at every level — including the adoption of legislation that ultimately leads to regulation.

Much of the responsibility for the current red-tape overload belongs squarely in the lap of Congress, which has enacted hundreds of sweeping laws over the past decade or so affecting every aspect of American life and has done so with little regard to the cumulative costs.

It is sheer self-delusion, however, to expect that a cost-benefit approach to regulation will suddenly simplify the decision-making process and replace "political" determinations with "objective" ones.

There is nothing more subjective, and hence more "political," than the judgment that a proposed rule's benefits — however defined and measured — do or do not "justify" its costs. One man's bargain is the next man's burden, and no regulatory "reform" law is going to change that fact.

will maggie make it?

Britain's Maggie Thatcher is going to make it!

Don't uncross your fingers yet, but inflation is down and the economy is looking up.

Her prescription was the same as Reagan's: cut expenses and cut taxes.

Belt tightening is never comfortable. And it took two years. But the storekeeper's daughter is going to make it!

When the British elected Maggie Thatcher Prime Minister, they knew what they were getting.

Previously, as Minister of Education, she had discontinued free milk in schools.

Her opponents that long ago were chanting, "Thatcher -- Thatcher -- milk-snatcher!"

But the Big Giveaway was bankrupting Britain so they elected to give her toughness a try.

It was all uphill.

After one year of Thatcher -- inflation continued up and employment continued down and the GNP was in decline.

Her own party was fragmenting; longtime supporters falling away.

News media at home and abroad were asking, "Will the Thatcher government survive the next vote count in Parliament?"

It did.

Now it's T-day plus two years -- and things are looking much better -- for her country and for her.

The business downturn has bottomed out. Joblessness has topped out. British corporations are beginning to report higher earnings. The British stock market, reflecting optimism, has been setting historic highs. The lending rate, which had been as high as 17 percent, is down to 12 percent.

Most significantly -- because this is a hypo for everything and tantamount to a pay raise for everybody -- Britain's inflation rate is down from a raging 22 percent a year ago to 12.5 percent now.

The Thatcher monetarist theory is that you strangle inflation with high interest rates, control of the money supply, pruning government spending, and shifting resources to the private sector.

She is gambling that to free the economy from controls will eventuate in busines prosperity and that business prosperity will eventuate in a bigger pie for everyone to share.

Essentially -- Reaganomics.

So what happens in Britain -- despite acknowledged variables -- should offer some indication of what will happen here.

President Reagan's traditional first-term honeymoon was extended by his near-brush with assassination.

Inevitably, between now and the promised economic improvement, our president's popularity will sag.

When that time comes perhaps both he and we can take heart in the British experience.

GROWING OLDER

Lou Cottin

It could have been a disaster!

The green light was shining greenly. A car made a legal right turn on red. It missed me by a few inches.

The driver swore at me. I swore back.

Some of you may remember my previous column that contended that right turns on red are dangerous — especially to older people like me, to the handicapped and to children.

Some new statistics further substantiate my views.

A headline in the Dec. 11, 1980, edition of the New York Times noted: "Study asserts turns on red cause 20 percent rise in intersection accidents."

The story reported that the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety had gathered information from police departments in six states that had adopted right-turn-on-red laws between 1974 and 1977.

The analysts estimated that if similar laws had been enacted in the same period in all states, 20,000 additional accidents would have resulted each year. And 1,400 of them would have involved pedestrians."

In urban areas, said the institute, pedestrian-vehicle accidents increased 79 percent and collision between vehicles increased 25 percent. Overall, accidents involving a pedestrian and a vehicle increased 59 percent.

OK. Let's go to U.S. News and World Report, which disclosed in its Dec. 22, 1980, issue that "accidents soared since the (right turn on red) rule became common."

The report noted that the government planned to complete its own study of turns on red this year. "If there is a serious hazard," a government spokesman was quoted as saying, "we will try to develop measures to reduce the risk of right turns on red without losing their energy and time advantages."

You see, somebody figured that the right-turn-on-red law saves a gallon of gas per car per year. We don't know who worked up the statistic or how he or she arrived at it.

We, of course, are mainly concerned about the elderly and our grandchildren. And statistics indicate that the law has brought about a 110 percent increase in accidents involving the elderly and a 30 percent increase in accidents involving children.

In my earlier column on this subject, I proposed that "zebras" be established in streets between traffic lights, especially in suburbs that have not installed traffic lights at all crossings.

Zebras are wide sections of diagonal lines drawn across the street that permit pedestrians to cross safely in areas between widely separated traffic lights. At these zebras, all traffic must stop in both directions the instant a pedestrian leaves the sidewalk.

I also propose that we ask our city, state and federal governments to end right turns on red altogether!

Many of us have always been prepared to risk our lives for our country.

But should we or anybody else be asked to risk our lives to save a spoonful of gas?

woman's world

by rusty brown

Two weeks out of college I landed my first job. It felt great. It was in the hometown office of a congressman, and I would get a crack at speech writing and doing a piece for the Congressional Record.

(Back then, I didn't know that nobody ever read the Congressional Redord — but that was only the beginning of what I didn't know.)

In no time at all, the office manager was expecting me to stay downtown evenings as part of my training in political smarts. There were "errands" I should accompany him on, people to meet — and, of course, he wouldn't mind giving me a ride home afterwards.

It soon dawned on me that the "reasons" for the late hours were trumped up, and I began to get very nervous during the long political lectures in the darkened car parked in front of my house.

All of this monkey busines peaked in the office one night when the door abruptly closed, his arms were suddenly around me, his bristly moustache scratching my cheek as I struggled from the clutch.

I was bewildered and scared. Too ashamed to tell anyone, including my parents. They would never let me go back to work, and I would never get to write for the Congressional Record.

I had no words to describe my dilemma then. I do now.

They are SEXUAL HARASSMENT.

It occurs any time an employe is expected to submit to unwanted sexual advances from an employer or supervisor in order to keep a job. Last year the federal goernment labeled it discrimination and declared it a crime. Hallelujah!

It's been going on for eons, long before women talked about it or dared complain about it.

Now women don't have to quit a job because of it. They can slap lawsuit on their employer instead, because of sharp teeth given to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

The EEOC says that it is the company's responsibility to clean up its act. If bargaining for sex is part of any hiring, firing or advancement of employees (male or female, by the way), the penalties can still be stiff.

Sexual harrassment also involves the "atmosphere" on a job — meaning, "cool it, boys" the the off-color jokes, the cat calls, the leers and the "playful" pinches to females' tops or bottoms.

Several federal courts also have lent support with decisions favoring the women's crusade. The Wall Street Journal, in a major feature on the issue, mentioned a Michigan circuit court that fined Ford Motor Co. and a plant foreman $140,000 because he promised a female worker easy tasks in exchange for sex.

It's not surprising then that companies around this country are issuing "hands-off" warnings to employees, arranging workshops for managers and suprvisors to "sensitize" them to the problem and greasing the internal grievance procedures to handle complaints. Some longstanding "leeches" already have been fired.

Progess, yes, yet along come two nationally prominent women who make unbelievably ignorant remarks.

One is Ann Landers, noted advice columnist. Asked during a newspaper editors' seminar about sexual harassment, she said that in 25 years in the business it had never happened to her. "And I'm disappointed," she fliply added.

The same week, Phyllis Schlafly, women's movement foe, testified before the Senate Labor Committee that "sexual harassment on the job is not a problem for the virtuous women, except in the rarest cases."

Mesdames Landers and Schlafly do all women a great disservice with their insensitivity and lack of understanding. Their remarks sully what others have worked for years to correct.

We who have been sexually harassed are also virtuous — to virtuous to tell Phyllis and Ann where to go.

Your Birthday

May 27, 1981

Set your sights high this coming year. Your possibilities for achieving what you go after are better than usual. The degree of your success is up to you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be prepared to put forth a solid second effort today if you hope to fulfill your ambitions. You could do it on the first try, but it's not likely. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone may come to you for help today. Your initial impulse could be to let him or her go it alone. However, your nobler instincts will prevail.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This is not a good day to try to swing a business deal on friendship alone. Base your case solely on the merits of the proposition.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You could be uncharacteristically envious of an associate today. Instead of worrying about his or her accomplishments, try harder yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You can be quite productive today, but it may take you a long time to get started. Get to what needs doing without wasting critical time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In partnership situations today, especially those with your mate, don't do anything without your counterpart's consent which could be mutually harmful if it goes wrong.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Persons with whom you associate today will have a great influence over your work habits. Triflers could substantially lessen your productivity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Even tasks which you normally enjoy could become a bore today. It might be helpful to break away from your routines for some pleasurable activities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try to focus your efforts and energies today on things which contribute to your security or enhance your income. Scratch other projects from your list.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're very capable today, provided you are allowed to operate independently. When others get into the act they could slow you down considerably.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You can be more helpful to others today by encouraging their strengths rather than by excusing their weaknesses. Make constructive suggestions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today it may be necessary to exercise extra discipline over spending. Your extravagance is lessened in the company of frugal pals.

ALTRURIAN CLUB FOUNDERS—Mrs. Lucy Curnutte Yeoman spoke recently at the final meeting of the year for the Altrurian Club. She showed this picture, made in 1908, of the founders of the Snyder chapter. On the front row is Mrs. Hugh Boren, Mrs. J.T. Whitmore, Mrs. Ella Dodson Cooper Eubank, Mrs. Cullen Higgins Waddell, Mrs. C. R. Buchanan, Mrs. English and Mrs. H.G. Towle. Standing from left to right are Mrs. Powell, Mrs. Danzler, Mrs. Joe Caton, Mrs. Charles Lockhart, Mrs. Edwin Bruce Bowes, Mrs. R.H. Curnutte and Mrs. W.W. Milsford.

Altrurian Club Has Speaker

The Altrurian Club met May 15 at the Martha Ann Woman's Club with Edith McCanna serving as hostess. Nine members and four guests were in attendance. Guests attending were Virginia Grove, Maggie Boone, Dorothy Reddend and Mrs. Lucy Curnutte Yeoman, the speaker.

The luncheon tables were decorated with yellow roses and daisies and the meal was served by Mrs. Melba Light, the director of the club.

Lida Rhoads presided during the business meeting in the absence of the president, Mrs. Dewey Odum.

The program was presented by Mrs. Yeoman honoring the history of the Altrurian Club. She included a biographical sketch of her mother, Mrs. Robert H. Curnutte, who will celebrate her 100th birthday on June 1 and displayed pictures of the founding and 1940 chapter members.

Mrs. Yeoman told how her mother was an early member of the Altrurian Club in Snyder which was organized in 1908 and gave an interesting history of the club. She also discussed the life of women in pioneer days and urged present members to continue the worthwhile work started by these pioneer women. The club scrap books were also on display for members to see.

Mrs. Charles Miller reported that the Snyder chapter received an honorable mention for their chapter yearbook at the district meeting. The group voted to donate their scrap books and pictures to the West Texas College Museum. The next meeting will be in September.

Betty Friedan Gives Advice

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP) — Feminist Betty Friedan says women must stop trying to be "superwomen" in their careers, just as men should give up the hard-driving behavior that she says can shorten their lives.

Ms. Friedan also told Smith College graduates Sunday that the women's movement must include men in the struggle for equal employment opportunity.

Czar Alexander II of Russia died in 1894.

The first talking film, "The Jazz Singer," starred Al Jolson and opened in New York Oct. 6, 1927.

Potato Souffle Is Hearty Dish

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DINNER FOR SIX Baked Ham PotatoSouffle Asparagus Rolls Lemon Tarts Beverage

POTATO SOUFFLE

Attractive and hearty.

4 medium potatoes (1½ pounds scant)
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper to taste
¼ cup Parmesan cheese, grated
3 large eggs, separated
1 cup half-and-half

Pare potatoes and quarter; boil in unsalted boiling water to cover until tender; drain and rice; measure 2 firmly packed cups — use any remaining potato some other way. With a spoon, stir the salt, pepper, cheese and egg yolks into the potatoes; gradually stir in the half-and-half, keeping smooth. Beat the whites until stiff; add to potato mixture; gently beat until blended. Turn into an ungreased 1-quart souffle dish (about 6¾ by 3 inches). Draw the tip of a teaspoon held about 1 inch from the edge of the dish around the top surface. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until puffed and browned — 40 minutes. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

Playing better defense

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Here is another instructive hand from "Instructions for the Defense."

East opens a weak two diamonds and South jumps to four spades. The jack of diamonds is opened. Dummy plays low and West continues the suit. East wins the trick and leads his singleton heart. West takes his ace over South's king and continues with the queen. Declarer ruffs, plays the ace and king of trumps, ruffs a club and claims.

East claimed that West should have cashed his ace of hearts before leading the second diamond. Then East wouldn't have had a heart and would have had to lead a third diamond to establish West's queen of spades as the setting trick.

We have to assess some blame to West for failure to lead that ace of hearts in accordance with the principle that any time you give your partner a chance to make a mistake he may make it, but all the real onus is on East.

East should have led a third diamond in case that uppercut possibility existed. The only way a heart shift at trick three would be correct were if South held king-queen of hearts and absolutely solid spades. Otherwise, any heart tricks would have kept. So we agree with 80 percent of the blame to East and 20 percent to West as charged by Flint and Greenwood.

Identify type of deafness

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR .LAMB — I have been deaf now for almost two years. I can't even understand much with my hearing aid. An X-ray made about six months ago showed that the bone was somewhat thick over the right ear. They stated possible otosclerosis.

I looked this up in the encyclopedia, which says such problems can be helped by an operation called fenestration. What is that? Is it dangerous? I asked one doctor if an operation would do any good and he said he was afraid it would not help me. If it isn't dangerous what have I to lose? Both ears are bad now. I'm willing to try the operation; no need being deaf if help is possible.

DEAR READER — You need careful testing including a battery of modern hearing tests to identify the nature of your deafness. Otosclerosis is a condition where there is an overgrowth of bone in the ear. It can prevent the normal transmission of sound waves. In some instances the bone can be removed or another opening be made (fenestration) to permit the sound waves to pass through the ear. This operation and modifications of it have been very helpful in selected cases.

You may have more than one type of hearing loss. If you have degeneration of some of the nerve cells in your inner ear or the nerve mechanism of hearing, then surgery will not correct this form of hearing defect.

Hearing aids are commonly used in nerve cell and nerve damage. These should be designed to fit the particular type of hearing loss a person has. Just amplifying all the sound frequencies may enable you to hear a lot of sound but distort it so much that you can't understand normal conversation. In case most of the loss is of high frequency sounds, the aid should selectively amplify these.

The different types of hearing loss and what can be done about them are discussed in more detail in The Health Letter number 16-8, Your Vital Hearing, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Just getting a hearing aid without proper testing may not do the best job for your hearing loss. That is why it is important to define what kind of hearing loss you have and what is causing it. Some forms of hearing loss can be corrected and no hearing aid is then necessary.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My 28-year-old daughter has developed high blood pressure and is on medication. The problem is she has different readings in her arms. Her left arm is normal; the high reading is in her right arm. Her doctor does not know why. Do you have any idea why this occurs?

DEAR READER — Have her ask her doctor to refer her to a cardiologist. One possible explanation is that she has a congenital defect called coarctation of the aorta. In these cases there is a constriction of the main artery that leaves the heart, on the aortic arch, between the place where the artery originates that goes to the right arm and the one that goes to the left arm.

The anatomy is such that pressure falls beyond the constriction. As a result the high pressure is seen in the right arm and the low pressure beyond the constriction is in the left arm and legs. If this is the case, the heart specialist may want to reconsider how she should be treated. When the constriction is severe, it can be surgically corrected.

Man Lands In Jail After Great Climb

CHICAGO (AP) — Still dressed as a comic-book hero, Daniel Goodwin was in jail today as he expected after becoming the only person ever to climb to the top of the world's tallest building — on the outside.

The 25-year-old professional acrobat and gymnast from Las Vegas, Nev., used suction cups and metal clips to climb up the metal-and-glass west side of the Sears tower on Monday, outwitting authorities who tried to stop him and bringing cheers from dozens of spectators 110 stories below. It took him 7½ hours, battling 40 mph winds.

"He agreed that this wasn't something everyone should do," said Jack Rimkus, the police officer who arrested Goodwin atop the 1,454-foot building. "He said he expected to spend a few days in jail."

Goodwin, still wearing his custom-made, red-and-blue "Spider-Man" outfit, was led away in handcuffs at the summit.

He was held for investigation of disorderly conduct, criminal trespass, and criminal damage to property, said Cmdr. Robert Casey.

"He said he grew up where there's lots of trees and had always been impressed with tall buildings and cities," Rimkus said.

The 5-foot-7, 180-pound Goodwin, originally from Kennebunkport, Maine, "behaved like a perfect gentleman" while handcuffed and led away, Rimkus said. Goodwin suffered no ill effects from the climb, except for a sore hand, police said.

"He was very grateful to be on top," Rimkus said. "He held out his arms for the cuffs...and thanked all of us."

The climb became a Memorial Day event downtown, where streets are usually deserted on holidays. Parents brought children, bicyclers stopped to crane their necks and a vendor hawked sunglasses at the tower.

Goodwin climbed a ladder and from there used 8-inch iron climbing hooks to attach himself to grooves used by window washers. He would twist a hook until tight, use it as a step, then remove one from below to make a new step higher up, Rimkus said.

Authorities gave up trying to stop Goodwin when he reached the 55th floor. After 15 minutes of negotiation — while Goodwin dangled — they allowed him to climb unhindered while the scaffolding was pulled up behind him for safety.

Sears, Roebuck and Co. officials said they considered the stunt a crime and would try to see if the building was damaged.

Richard Harris, 26, said he heard about the climb on the radio and brought his 5-year-old son, Michael, to watch because the boy is an avid fan of Spider-Man, a Marvel Comics character.

Looking through binoculars at the climber — clad in a bright suit with orange-red belt, hood and knee-length boots — Michael said, "Yep, he's the real thing."

Seeping Salt Water Threatens Boom Town

SOUR LAKE, Texas (AP) — Salt water seeping from a leaking sinkhole may force state officials to abruptly halt this Southeast Texas town's third oil boom of the century to preserve an ecologically-sensitive forest.

The Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates the state's oil and gas industries, will decide June 4 whether to stop much of the production in the 1-million-barrel-a-year oil field.

Such a decision, producers say, will put them out of business and cut off this town's major income source.

Geologists say that eons ago, a huge mushroom of salt was shoved within 600 feet of the earth's surface, trapping pools of oil and gas and forcing even larger pools around the flanks of the salt dome.

One of many oil companies founded at the turn of the century took out a $1 million option on a 865-acre tract at Sour Lake and agreed to drill three wells.

The first two were dry. But the third blew in a gusher on Dec. 8, 1903, signaling the birth of a company later named Texaco Inc., and turning Sour Lake into a muddy tent city of 15,000 almost overnight.

Other parts of the field were carved into oil leases — some only 29 feet wide — along a roadway dubbed "The Shoestring," and wells were drilled so close together the legs of the wooden derricks interlocked.

Prior to World War I, the Hardin County community 65 miles northeast of Houston experienced a similar boom when oil was discovered in pools locked beneath the salt dome.

But on Oct. 9, 1929, so much oil had been pumped from the ground that a 10-acre area in the field started sinking. The ground collapsed, creating a lake.

The sinkole was little more than a local curiosity until last September when officials discovered the seeping salt water.

Missing Man Calls Mother

ATLANTA (AP) — A missing 22-year-old retarded black man, whose case had just been added to a special police task force list of missing or murdered young blacks, called home to say he was picking peaches in eastern Georgia, his mother said today.

The case of Ronald Crawford, who disappeared May 18, and that of an unidentified 28-year-old black man whose body was found in a river, were assigned Monday to the task force. The unit now is investigating 28 slayings since July 1979 and is also looking into one other disappearance.

Crawford's mother told The Associated Press her son called home about 11 p.m. EDT Monday.

"I heard from him, but we don't know exactly where he's at," Mrs. Crawford said. "I'm not pleased with it. All he told me he was working, and he's down near Augusta, Ga. He's picking peaches."

Asked about the report of the re-emergence of Crawford, a spokesman for the task force said, "We are not releasing any information on that right now." Police earlier described Crawford as retarded and mentally disturbed.

"He asked me was I worried about him. I told him 'Yes,'" Mrs. Crawford said. "I said, 'You haven't seen your picture on TV?' He said 'No.' He told me he had been working."

CBS News Survives Transition Period

NEW YORK (AP) — It might have been a tough 18 months for CBS News, dominant in the field since the mid-1970s. There was Walter Cronkite's departure after nearly two decades as "Evening News" anchorman, and ABC stole the show at one point with "Nightline," network TV's first late-night newscast.

CBS News may, in fact, be stronger today than it was a year ago.

The transition from Cronkite to Dan Rather as "Evening News" anchor was smooth, despite considerable pressure from the outside.

Expansion of the network's "Morning" news program and the addition of a midafternoon newscast are imminent, and there is a serious effort under way to expand the "Evening News" beyond its current half-hour.

Then there was the announcement, last week, that Bill Moyers, creator of public TV's Emmy-winning "Bill Moyers' Journal," will return in the fall with an assignment "ranging over the entire panorama of CBS News activities."

There has been a good deal of behind-the-scenes manuevering, too, notably the promotion of Robert Chandler to senior vice president for administration, Edward Fouhy to vice president and director of news, and Edward Colloff to vice president and director of public affairs programming — young men all..

"I told you we wouldn't stand still," William A. Leonard, CBS News' president, said the other day, recalling a conversation several months ago. Anyone who imagined Leonard a caretaker president couldn't have been further from reality.

Still facing Cronkite's departure, CBS in September broke long-standing corporate retirement policy and extended Leonard's contract for at least a year. Leonard was 65 on April 9, and would have been forced to retire May 1.

Leonard succeeded Richard S. Salant, who was required to step down at 65, as president of the news division in April 1979, and one of his first major decisions may have been the most difficult. He chose Rather, a former White House reporter and current correspondent for the network's "60 Minutes" newsmagazine, over Roger Mudd, once considered Cronkite's heir apparent.

Mudd shortly thereafter left CBS for an assignment in Washington with NBC News.

The selection of Rather was a sound one. The "Evening News" audience may have changed some in the two months since Rather took the job, but commercial time, an important guage for the network, sold faster than ever for Rather's first full quarter as anchorman.

The return of Moyers, a correspondent for the network's "CBS Reports" documentary unit for just under three years in the mid-'70s, may be as significant a development in the long term. If Moyers is not the pre-eminent broadcast journalist, he certainly is among the most-respected.

Sadat Writes U.S. Student

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — Mark A. Russell says he "about fainted" when he received a registered letter recently from the Arab Republic of Egypt. It was from President Anwar Sadat.

The 17-year-old high school student wrote Sadat last February, but he said he never expected a reply.

Russell had written Sadat to praise him for his "bold and dramatic efforts...in behalf of peace" in the Mideast.

He told Sadat that as a young black man he is resolved to fight racism in America.

"I cannot help but feel that even though we are many, many miles apart our goals of brotherhood and peace unite and uplift our souls when our optimism gives way to pessimism," Russell said.

In his reply, Sadat thanked Russell for his "considerate letter," adding, "I seize this opportunity to wish you a most happy and prosperous life."

The Statue of Liberty was unveiled Oct. 28, 1886, on Bedloe's Island — now Liberty Island — in New York harbor. President Grover Cleveland and the statue's sculptor, Auguste Bartholdi, were among the notables present. The statue was a gift to the United States from the people of France.

Break In Perfect Crime Seen By Chicago Police

CHICAGO (AP) — It looked like the perfect crime: $1 million in cash smuggled so skillfully from the underground maximum-security vault of the First National Bank of Chicago that it was days before officials knew it was missing.

No solid leads materialized after the Columbus Day weekend robbery in 1977. No arrests ever were made. None of the money turned up — until 23 $100 bills confiscated during a Georgia cocaine bust early this month were traced to the 3½-year-old heist.

Now the FBI hopes the lead will help crack the case. "It is the only basic thing we've had to work on since the robbery," said Anthony DeLorenzo, an FBI spokesman in Chicago.

The bank was closed and employees worked storing cash deliveries for the opening of business over that Columbus Day weekend when precisely $1 million in $50 and $100 bills was removed from a locked money cart near the vault. How the 80 pounds of currency was smuggled out has remained a matter of speculation, and where it went, a mystery.

When the loss was discovered, bank officials thought it was a bookkeeping error. By the time it was reported missing to police and federal agents four days later, the trail was stale.

Senate Ponders Cash Donations Limitations

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Senators agreed with the House Monday that politicians should not be permitted to accept cash contributions of more than $100.

The measure was sent back to the House for approval of several amendments.

"Do we really need this or are we just doing this for the sake of reform?" asked Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin.

"I think we really need it," Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, said of the measure authored by Speaker Bill Clayton. "If would simplify the procedure and make it easier to understand."

Another provision of the measure says that contributions not accepted do not have to be reported.

A federal court jury acquitted Clayton last October of political corruption charges in connection with $5,000 in cash given him by an FBI informant posing as an insurance man who was seeking the state's group insurance business. Clayton said he never intended to keep the money.

Traeger failed in an attempt to raise the cash limit to $200.

"This would give the local candidates, like the county sheriff, a little air," he said. "There's lots of good old boys who want to be sure his roads get fixed so he gives $200 to each candidate for county commissioner. And he doesn't want to give a check or his wife would find out about it."

Farabee opposed the amendment but said it would make no difference. A candidate has to report any contribution of more than $50, cash or check.

Bill Would Inform Juries Of Paroles

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House members game preliminary approval Thurday to a proposal that judges inform juries of the details of state parole and good conduct laws. The vote was 88-38.

The bill is one in Gov. Bill Clements anti-crime package.

Supporters said many juries impose sentences that are too lenient or two harsh because they do not know what parole laws are. Opponents said handing jurors a seven-page explanation, as the bill provides, would just confuse them.

A final House vote is needed before it goes to the Senate.

Dear Abby

Readers Throw Curves, Strikes to Bowlegged Boy

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to BOWLEGGED AND MISERABLE was both unkind and unhelpful. You advised this 18-year-old boy to see a psychiatrist or psychologist. Now the poor kid will not only worry about his bowlegs, but he'll think he's mentally disturbed, too!

Your only other advice was to recite a prayer to an imaginary deity. What cop-out advice! Why didn't you name some famous people who are bowlegged, yet attractive? Or you could have suggested wearing loose trousers.

Your blanket advice that people seek psychiatric help for minor problems is lazy, uncaring and potentially harmful to the spirit and the pocketbook. Next time someone like this boy writes, give him what he asks for — common-sense advice.

INDIGNANT IN MADISON

DEAR INDIGNANT: BOWLEGGED AND MISERABLE got my best advice. A good-looking 18-year-old who perceives himself to be "deformed and inferior" (his words) and is afraid to ask a girl for a date because he's moderately bowlegged needs more than a list of "bowlegged yet attractive" people. He needs a more realistic perception of himself.

Furthermore, one need not be mentally disturbed to seek psychotherapy. A temporary emotional upset is sufficient reason. And as for psychotherapy being "harmful" to the spirit and pocketbook — poppycock! The spirit will be nourished, and there are mental health clinics everywhere that charge only what the patient can afford.

DEAR ABBY: This is not a request for advice, it's a message to BOWLEGGED AND MISERABLE:

I grew up with one side of my face paralyzed, and although it set me apart from everyone else and caused people to remember my name, I yearned to be like everyone else. At times I begged God to make me look "normal." But having to accept my flaw has helped me become emotionally stronger than I would have been had I been able to "correct" my condition — which, of course, was impossible.

Now I have my own separate identity.

I saw a psychiatrist, as Abby suggested you do. A trained professional will let you lay your cards out, then the two of you will go over them together. In the end, however, it is you who will decide how your cards will be played. Try to be less preoccupied with your appearance, think positively, and keep a sharp eye out for that villain of all villains — self-pity.

Because I can accept myself as I am, I have made it. By the way, I am 26 and pulling for you.

HAPPY IN HOUSTON

DEAR ABBY: This is for that 18-year-old boy who is BOWLEGGED AND MISERABLE: I am a 30-year-old single male, considered attractive by women, and I am about as bowlegged as they come.

When I was 18, I also felt self-conscious, but that never stopped me from asking a girl for a date. I just made up my mind that nobody's perfect and there are worse imperfections than having bowed legs. At least mine were strong and healthy and got me where I was going. (They even took me to the beach where my legs were in full view of the public.)

Keep this in mind: Any girl who would refuse to go out with a guy because he is bowlegged isn't worth spending your time and money on.

So, from one bowlegged guy to another, ask girls for dates and forget about your legs. Life is too short to do otherwise.

BOWLEGGED AND NOT MISERABLE

DEAR ABBY: Tell BOWLEGGED AND MISERABLE not to waste any more time feeling sorry for himself. There are plenty of girls who would be glad to go out with him. I, for one, think bowlegged guys are sexy.

Tourist Stabbed While Visiting

NEW YORK (AP) — A 20-year-old student who planned to be cautious during his visit to New York because he knew "there was some crime problem" was stabbed in the chest at the United Nations, in what authorities believe is the first attack on a tourist there since the building opened in 1950.

Charles A. Clas, a sophomore at the University of Colorado, was in critical but stable condition today at Bellevue Hospital.

"This guy just walked up to me and I saw his fist go into my chest," said the Littleton, Colo, resident after undergoing emergency surgery Monday.

Joseph Brown, 23, of Queens, was charged with attempted murder and illegal possession of a dangerous weapon, police said.

Clas said he had arrived from Denver Saturday for his first visit to New York City and had planned to surprise his girlfriend when she arrived at Kennedy Airport from Switzerland on Monday.

"I had visited the Statue of Liberty, seen 'Annie' on Broadway—and gone to a Yankees game," Clas said. "I was trying to be real careful here because I knew there was some crime problem, but I thought if I took some precautions I'd be OK. I never expected something like this."

Powerful Tigers Test Speedy Mats Here Today

Snyder High School baseball coach Albert Lewis has a lot of respect for today's start of the best-of-three bi-district playoff series here. Afterall, Estacado's stats are no less than awesome. But then, so are Snyder's.

"We're just going to try to do the best we can," a humble coach Lewis said of today's 4 p.m. game at Moffett Field. "It's going to be tough and we expect it to be a real good ballgame. We're not afraid of them at all, but we know what they're capable of doing if we let them."

Estacado, 20-6 on the season with an 11-1 district record, bats .355 as a team and has 280 stolen bases to credit.

"I think (Danny) Griffin, their centerfielder leads them with 27 stolen bases," said Lewis. (Hector) Limon has 26 and I believe they say Wheeler has stolen 20 or something like that. So they can be pretty tough on the bases. We've got to try to keep them off the bases."

The Matadors will bring Wayne Dotson, 10-2, to the mound in hopes of stifling one of Snyder's major threats - power hitting.

The Tigers, boasting a .354 batting average (.365 during district play), have slammed 35 home runs out of ballparks all over West Texas. Though not as agile on the bases as Estacado, Snyder has the quickness to steal some bases, also. But just as likely, a Tiger baserunner finds himself crossing home plate off of the strength of a teammate's bat.

Snyder will counter Dotson with fireballer Tony Degrate, 11-0 after an 0-1 start. It will be Degrate's job - and that of his teammates - to keep the Matadors off the bases. Tough he has good pickoff moves, Degrate's delivery is not particularly fast; something that Estacado has no doubt noticed by now.

"We're not going to worry about that," Lewis has said. "His main concern is the batter and that's the way we want it. You've got to consider the man on base, but if you get the man at the plate out consistantly, the runner's not going to hurt you."

The series heads for Lubbock on Saturday, with Game Two beginning at 1 p.m. at Estacado Field. A third game, if necessary, will follow immediately.

Winner of the series will play either Burkburnett or Everman in regional competition next week.

AFTER 6-3 VICTORY...

Astros Speak On Strike

HOUSTON (AP) - The specter of a possible baseball strike was apparent Monday in the clubhouse of the Houston Astros.

The Astros appeared to have their act together in a 6-3 win over the San Diego Padres, but there was visible concern as to whether the season might end Friday if the owners and players cannot come to terms.

Pitcher Joe Niekro claimed his sixth victory, reliever Joe Sambito upped his consecutive shutout innings to 10⅔ in earning his fourth save and Art Howe, though he lost his 23-game hitting streak, remained the National League's leading hitter with a .367 average.

"I've been feeling real good lately," Sambito said after his seventh appearance in the last eight game. "I feel like I'm in a groove, like I've zeroed in. It's the feeling I've been waiting for all season."

But the 1981 season could end quickly should a strike begin Friday.

"The way I'm looking at it, there's definitely room for compromise. Both sides will be hurt badly. We all take the risk of turning off the fans," Sambito said.

Howe was disappointed about the end of his hitting streak, a club record and the longest in the majors this season, but he agreed a strike would hurt everyone, including the league's top hitter.

"I knew sooner or later the streak would come to an end," Howe said. "I just hoped it would go on a bit longer. I hope it doesn't come to a strike, but if there is I'll just try and stay in shape. I'm sure some of the guys will get together and take some batting practice. Everybody's going to suffer."

Houston helped Niekro with three first inning runs on Howe's sacrifice bunt and singles by Jose Cruz and Rafael Landestoy. San Diego narrowed the count to 3-2 on Luis Salazar's second inning sacrifice fly and Broderick Perkins' run-scoring single in the third.

Texas Malls Stanford; Bound For Nationals

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas banged out 33 hits in two games against Stanford on Monday, but it was Tony Arnold's right arm that sealed a record 21st trip to the College World Series for the Longhorns.

Arnold ran his record to 17-0 by holding hard-hitting Stanford to six hits for a 10-2 Monday night rout after the Cardinals scored a ninth-inning run to take a 9-8 afternoon win.

Stanford, 43-22, needed the afternoon win to avoid elimination in the NCAA Central Regionals. The victory set up the Monday night final.

The Horns went to their ace. Arnold, who beat Brigham Young here Friday, responded by holding the Cards to three singles through the first eight innings. He tired a bit in the ninth and gave Stanford two runs on three hits.

Texas jumped on three Cardinal pitchers for sixteen hits in the win.

"17-0 doesn't mean anything except going to Omaha," said Arnold, referring to the College World Series. Texas, 58-9-1, opens against top-ranked Arizona State Saturday night.

Texas tagged Stanford starter Steve Cottrell for two runs in the second. The Horns added one in the fourth and rallied for four in the sixth.

Catcher Burk Goldthorn started the four-run outburst with a single, one of his four hits in the night game. Bryan Burrows followed with an infield single that chased Cottrell and brought in reliever Mike Sullivan, the winner in the afternoon game.

Shortstop Spike Owen greeted Sullivan with a single to load the bases. Right fielder Larry Long added a run-scoring single, one of his three RBIs.

Sullivan, a side-armer, gave Texas a run with a wild pitch that sailed behind Mike Zatopek, who tagged the next pitch for a two-run double.

Texas added a run in the seventh on a Goldthorn double, and designated hitter Randy Richards closed the scoring with a two-run homer in the ninth.

Stanford, 43-22, came into the game with .340 team batting average, but was helpless until the ninth.

Stein Ties PH Record As Rangers Nip Twins

ARLINGTON (AP) - Bill Stein set an American League record Monday night doing something he never thought the Texas Rangers would let him try - pinch hitting.

"I didn't feel they would use me for a pinch hitter since they had John Ellis, but I got that first one early in the year and they just kept sending me up there," said Stein, who came to the Rangers in the off-season as a free agent.

Stein's ninth inning, bases-loaded single--his seventh consecutive pinch-hit this year for Texas--gave the Rangers a 4-3 come-from-behind victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Bob Johnson of Baltimore, who had six consecutive pinch-hits in 1964, and Stein were tied for the record. Dave Philley of Philadelphia established the major league record of eight in a row in 1958.

Stein has now hit safely in 15 consecutive games, seven of those with only one at-bat in a contest. For the season, Stein is 21 for 39, a .538 batting average. He's had eight RBIs.

The fans kept applauding after Stein's game-winning hit until he came out of the dugout for a bow.

"That's the first time that ever happened," said Stein. "I didn't know how to act."

Stein signed a three-year contract for $125,000 a year with the Rangers after he played out his option with the Seattle Mariners.

Stein's record hit came off reliever Doug Corbett after Buddy Bell's third single of the night had tied the game 3-3.

The Twins had gone ahead in the top of the ninth inning on a run-scoring single by Ron Jackson. Minnesota got its other two runs on RBI ground-outs by Mickey Hatcher.

Bell knocked in three runs for the Rangers.

Stein's streak began April 14 off Cleveland's Rick Waits. He tied the American league record May 23rd in Seattle with a single off Larry Andersen.

Kwiksilver Heads List Of Teams To Be At Classic

Kwiksilver, 1980 Snyder Classic champ, heads a list of 18 teams scheduled to compete in the second annual event to be held May 29-31 at Winston Field.

Among the teams included in the three-day tournament will be last year's runnerup Golden Life of Midland, which took first place in the state in Class A. Also attending will be Smith Homes of Abilene which won the State Church League last year, and J. C. Roberts of Lubbock, second in the church league.

Teams from Snyder include the Snyder Athletics, C.A. White and Snyder Merchants.

The tournament begins at 7 p.m. Friday (May 29) with C.A. White taking on Dickey Box of Midland, and continues through 1 a.m. Saturday morning. Action picks up again at 9 a.m. Saturday and runs until the championship game which is expected to be held at 5 or 6 p.m. on Sunday.

Other teams entered in the meet include the Astros, of Big Spring; the Chumps, of Big Spring; Sport Spectrum of Sweetwater; Rejects of Colorado City; J & J Electric of Abilene; Empire of Lubbock; N.L. Well Service of Seminole; Lobos of Rotan; South Grain of Merkel; and T.R.W. Reda Pump of Midland.

A concession stand will be open to the public. There is no admission charge.

Redman Wins Camel GT

LIME ROCK, Conn. (AP) - Brian Redman powered his Lola T-600 to a four-lap victory in the two-hour Camel GT race at the Lime Rock Track for his second in his new prototype Lola with a Chevrolet engine.

Redman sped around the 1.53 mile road course at an average speed of 100.96 mph in the Coca Cola 400.

A crash near the end of the race prevented actor-race driver Paul Newman from keeping fourth place. Newman, who was not hurt, had a throttle stick on his Datsun 280 ZX turbo going into turn six, which caused the car to go out of control.

Allison Takes Nationals Title

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) - Bobby Allison went from seventh place in the field and held off a challenge from Harry Gant to win the World 600 NAS-CAR Grand National stock car race by eight seconds at Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Advice To Follow When Fired

EDITOR'S NOTE — "You're fired!" Those words cut to the quick; indeed, they often carry the psychological pain associated with death. "The ultimate corporate punishment" it's been called by a man who ought to know. He's Laurence Stybel — and he teaches students how to fire future employees. And how to adjust to being fired themselves.

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Newsfeatures Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The young candidates for masters' degrees in business administration at Babson College are full of confidence, ready to climb the ladder, ascend the heights, knock 'em dead in big business.

Then the professor tells them what to do when — not if — they get fired.

They laugh. Uneasily.

The professor is Laurence Stybel, a psychologist and business consultant who teaches general business and management to master's candidates at Babson and is an expert on firing and being fired (he's experienced both). To the young men and women sitting there so sure of coming success, he suggests things like:

— In negotiating severance pay, make sure you get neither too little nor too much. Three months is perfect. It will allow you time to find a new job without overdoing it, like the man who was given three years pay. He spent the first sailing, the second writing a novel and the third looking for a job from prospective employers who wanted to know what he'd been doing for two years.

— Make sure to work out a good cover story with your (ex) boss. To colleagues, friends, neighbors and future employers, you are never fired. You simply "resign to look for new opportunities."

— Use your contacts. You'd be surprised how many people you've met casually during your career who can help you find a new job.

Their egos a bit deflated, the students react much like soldiers in battle and others who must contemplate death.

"Me, get fired (killed)? It'll happen to the next guy."

"Me, get fired? I'll be doing the firing."

Which is why Stybel brings up the name of Elisabeth Kubler-Ross, author of pioneer studies of death and dying.

"Dismissal is analagous to death," Stybel says. "Even the terminology's the same. Getting the ax, walking the plank, it's the ultimate corporate punishment."

And it happens a lot, particularly in a contracting economy. A Gallup-Wall Street Journal survey last November showed that managers of large and medium-sized firms are nearly twice as likely to fire an incompetent worker now as two years ago.

Stybel and his wife, Maryanne Peabody, also run their own firm. They play a dual role, first counseling companies how to fire the executives they want to fire, then counseling the fired executive on how to find a new job.

That burgeoning service is called "outplacement." "I love the word," Stybel says, chuckling. "It's like 'The Loved One' when they use all kinds of euphemisms to refer to the dead body."

A dead shark sinks so slowly that its body is almost completely dissolved by the salt water before it reaches the bottom of the sea. The only part of the shark that is impervious to the action of the salt is its teeth.

Firemen Called

Snyder fire fighters were called to a minor truck fire on old Hwy. 84 this morning across from the country club. Someone had been welding on a mask truck owned by Link Rat Hole Service when it caught fire, causing only minor damage.

To soften hardened glue, add a couple of drops of vinegar to the bottle.

Follett Is Winner In Area Judging

Follett is the regional winner in community improvement contest judging conducted the past week.

The winning community was selected over Hermleigh and Imperial, two other district winners.

The contest is sponsored by the Texas A&M University Extension Service and electric utility companies in the state. As regional winner, Follett will now advance to the state contest.

Hermleigh had been presented a home improvement certificate during the visit of the judges last Wednesday.

Queen Victoria was proclaimed sovereign throughout India in 1858 and the crown took over the government from the East India Trading Co. The company had been granted a charter in 1600 by Elizabeth I and had received territorial sovereignty in the 1700s. The British returned control of India to its subjects in 1947.

Donna The Duck Is Safe

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Groggy from bites of drug-soaked bread, a duck that eluded rescue workers for more than a month despite a three-foot-long arrow in her breast has been grabbed, airlifted to an operating room and had the arrow removed.

But the tough little mallard made life rough on her rescuers to the very end.

The duck, named Donna by Humane Society of Southern Nevada volunteers, was captured by Tom Harper of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service after a tussle in the middle of a small pond at the Sahara Country Club golf course.

"I'm glad that's over," said the dripping Harper, who had been after the duck for several weeks.

The duck, groggy from the sodium amytal in the bread, was flown by helicopter to a veterinary hospital shortly after her capture Monday, and the target arrow was removed.

"The duck has been operated on," said a spokswoman for Dr. Gary Weddle. "The arrow is out, and she's doing fine."

Donna was shot at least a month ago by an unknown person, and residents of homes near the golf course had tried unsuccessfully to capture her.

Humane Society Chairman Dart Anthony said the arrow had to be removed or the duck would die, so efforts to capture her intensified last week. But numerous attempts to catch or net her proved unsuccessful, so on Monday morning, cracked corn soaked in vodka was put out, and the duck ate a few pieces.

"She got a little tipsy, but not enough," Harper said.

At that point, the decision was made to drug the duck.

Harper and Anthony tossed her pieces of bread soaked with the barbiturate, then settled down to wait.

Donna went to sleep for a brief period, then woke and flew to another pond. Anthony and Harper plunged in after her, but she escaped again and flew back to the first pond, where she was captured.

Anthony said the doctor cut the arrow and pulled it from Donna's body. He said the shaft had nicked her crop, the first part of her stomach, and that she had been unable to eat normally.

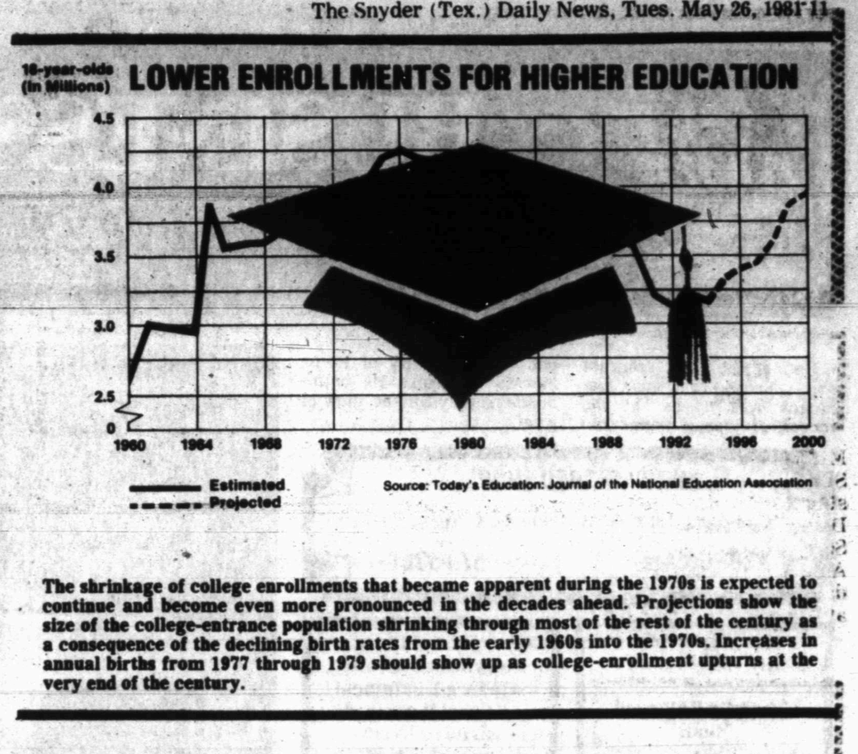
"There was less damage than was anticipated, thank goodness for her," Anthony said. "Right now the main thing is to make sure no infection sets in."

Earlier, Weddle said he felt Donna would suffer no lasting ill effects from the wound.

"Mother Nature's been taking care of these animals for hundreds of thousands of years before we came along," he said.

Anthony said the duck would remain in the hospital for two or three days before being returned to her mate and ducklings.

"Tom Harper and I are going to crack a bottle of champagne when we let her go," Anthony said.



The shrinkage of college enrollments that became apparent during the 1970s is expected to continue and become even more pronounced in the decades ahead. Projections show the size of the college-entrance population shrinking through most of the rest of the century as a consequence of the declining birth rates from the early 1960s into the 1970s. Increases in annual births from 1977 through 1979 should show up as college-enrollment upturns at the very end of the century.

Supreme Court Orders Study Of Drug Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today told a federal appeals court to restudy "drug paraphernalia" laws enacted by three northern Ohio cities which it previously had struck down.

The justices, citing a recently enacted Ohio law, told the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to restudy its striking down the laws enacted last year by the cities of Parma, Lakewood and North Olmsted.

The laws were virtually identical to a model act drafted by the federal government in 1979.

The court's brief order today read: "The judgment is vacated and the case is remanded ... for further consideration in light of the recently enacted section 2925.14 of the Ohio Revised Code."

The 6th Circuit court, the first federal appeals panel to consider the model law as enacted, ruled last Dec. 8 that the measure is unsconstitutional.

Several federal trial courts in other states have taken similar action.

The appeals court ruled that the measure failed to define accurately enough what materials were barred from sale.

For example, the panel found that terms "roach clips" and "miniature cocaine spoons" could apply to too many articles that could be legal.

The laws prohibited the possession, sale, manufacture and advertisement of any item "used, intended for use, or designed for use" in drug-related activities.

Only Parma and Lakewood brought their appeal to the Supreme Court. The cities' laws initially were challenged by several retail merchants.

OBITUARIES

Williamson

J. L. (Les) Williamson, 90, of Ranger died at 1:22 a. m. today in Eastland Memorial Hospital. He was the father of Mrs. Burton (Mittie) Tankersley of Snyder.

Funeral service has been set for 3 p. m. Wednesday at East Side Baptist Church in Ranger. Burial will be in the Eastland Cemetery, under direction of Killingsworth-Edwards Funeral Home of Ranger.

Other survivors include another daughter, Mrs. W. R. (Marie) Tankersley of Ranger; three sons, Stirmon Williamson and Jasper Williamson, both of Ranger, and C. V. Williamson of Las Vegas, Nev.; a brother, Bee Williamson of Morton Valley; 17 grandchildren and 25 great-grandchildren.

Dale Ware

Funeral service was held this morning at Cates-Spencer Funeral Home in Sweetwater for Dale D. Ware, former Snyder resident, who died Sunday in a hospial at Burnet. Burial was in Snyder Cemetery.

The Rev. Thomas H. Taylor, pastor of Union United Methodist Church, officiated at the service.

He was married on Oct. 20, 1929, in Snyder to Geneva Moore. She died in 1974, and he was married on May 18, 1975, in Burnet to Myrtie Bredemeyer.

Surviving are his wife; two daughters, Louise Wilson of Odessa and Lewellyn Dilbeck of Burnet; a sister, Marie Eades of Sweetwater; a stepdaughter, Yvonne England of Plano; a stepson, Ronald Bredemeyer of McGregor; six grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

McDonald

Mrs. Mary McDonald, 85, a former Scurry County resident, died Monday in Hudson, N. Y. Burial was set for today in Hudson.

She is survived by a daughter, five sons, four brothers and two sisters, including Mrs. John Lynch Sr. of Snyder. She also was the aunt of Mrs. R. J. Kidd.

Fargason

Ruth Fargason, 92, of Canyon, a former resident of Hermleigh, died at 3:30 p. m. Monday in Palo Duro Hospital in Canyon.

Funeral service has been set for 3 p. m. Wednesday in the Bell-Seale Funeral Home Chapel, with burial to follow in the Hermleigh Cemetery.

Mrs. Fargason had lived in Canyon for the past 20 years.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Bethel Black of Garland and Mrs. Thelma Hacker of Waxahachie; and five sons, Blakley Fargason of Canyon, Hugh Fargason of Dunn, Ernest Corley of Clyde, Albert Corley of San Antonio and Arthur Corley of Sweetwater.

Rev. Todd

Funeral service has been set for 2 p. m. Thursday at the Weeping Mary Baptist Church in Anson for the Rev. Aubrey Todd Sr., 69, pastor of the church. Rev. Todd died Saturday following a short illness.

He was a former pastor at Colorado City, Eldorado and Spur before moving to Anson in 1969.

The Rev. William Jackson, pastor of Greater Zion Baptist Church in Sweetwater, will officiate at the funeral service. He will be assisted by the Rev. Sam Blackwell, assistant pastor of Weeping Mary Baptist Church. Burial will be in the Sweetwater City Cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, a son and five daughters.

Supreme Court Strikes Gas Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today struck down a Louisiana tax on natural gas that passes through the state on its way to consumers in other states.

By a 7-1 vote, the justices ruled that the tax, which costs customers in 30 other states about $250 million a year, is unconstitutional.

The high court barred further collection of the tax.

"The effect of (the Louisiana tax) is to interfere with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's authority to regulate the determination of the proper allocation of costs associated with the sale of natural gas to consumers," Justice Byron R. White wrote for the court.

The court ruled also that the tax unconstitutionally interfered with interstate commerce.

Senior Citizens Set Banquet

The Scurry County Senior Citizens Center recognition banquet has been set for 6 p. m. this evening at the center.

The banquet will honor persons who volunteer their services to he center in various ways.

Advance reservations were required for the banquet because of seating limitations in the center's dining room.

Ruling Helps

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a case with enormous importance for American businesses, the Supreme Court ruled today that companies sued for civil antitrust violations cannot force all alleged wrongdoers to help pay court-ordered monetary damages.

Writing for a unanimous court, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said there is no "right to contribution" among businesses alleged to have violated the nation's antitrust laws.

Huff and Puff

But you'll never blow this brick home down. Quality construction with 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, and a 2 car garage. Comfortable family room with woodburning fireplace. Kitchen with built-ins plus dining area. Baths have marble vanities. Construction has already started; but if you hurry, you can choose your own colors.

If You Can't Afford Termites, Call Alexander's Pest Control

You can't escape from termites. They're hard at work in every area of every state, and they may be busy devouring somebody's home right in your neighborhood--maybe even yours.

You can't afford to take chances with costly termites. Your home is your largest dollar investment. It can be protected efficiently and scientifically at a pittance of the cost compared to the damage termites can do.

Call Alexander's Pest Control for professional protection, just to be sure.

By the time termites are discovered, the cost of repairing damage done could result in thousands of dollars. Once termites gain entry to your home, they spread rapidly through joists and floors. Wily termites are careful not to break through the surface of the wood--so your first clue of termites may come when a piece of furniture sinks into the soft wood. Replacing floors and supporting framework could amount to as much as 10 times their original cost.

After getting inside, the appetite of termites is insatiable. They often follow the wooden framework of the house to upper levels and floors, creating havoc as they do. Once inside the house, termites keep on with their destructive job until either the house is destroyed or treated. Just because your house is made of brick or concrete doesn't mean that it's safe from termites. These insidious insects are crafty and cunning in gaining access and getting to the wooden construction inside.

Voracious termites will eat anything containing wood or cellulose. They frequently damage valuable papers, books, expensive rugs and items in storage. Beside feeding themselves, worker termites carry food back to the colony for the queen, king, secondary reproductives and soldier termites. With this large family to feed, the worker isn't the least concerned about the value of your property.

A concrete foundation doesn't stop termites. Termites must return to their nests every 12 to 24 hours for moisture, and to feed the non-workers. Termite tubes under your foundation are a sure sign of infestation.

Mature termites develop wings and on a warm, moist day emerge from the colony as a swarm. This usually happens in the spring and sometimes in the fall. After flying a short distance, the wings drop off and new colonies are formed. If you see swarming termites, you had better call us for an inspection.

Professional chemical treatment is the only way to be sure you're safe from termite damage--and this treatment is far more economical than repairs. Using proven methods, we'll treat the soil around and under your house to create a chemical barrier that stops subterranean termites cold. We make sure every possible point of entry is blocked.

Alexander's Pest Control, 573-7133, also does all types of pest services. Owner Craig Alexander reminds you that whatever your pest control or weed control needs are, he can help.

HE KEEPS HIS WASHERS GOING -- Don Adams has found that constant service and maintenance keeps his equipment in tip-top shape. Take the hassle out of washday with a trip to Don Adams Laundry, 2400 26th Street. (SDN Staff Photo)

Service At Don Adams Laundry Makes Washday More Efficient

The folks at Don Adams Laundry make washday a more efficient and pleasant time for you.

For example, the laundry is open 7 days a week, 24 hours a day. This enables you to do your laundry at your convenience, not at someone else's.

An attendant is on duty from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and an attendant checks in at the laundry several times during the day on Sunday.

Don Adams Laundry has all the conveniences a laundry needs and then some. A dollar bill changer, a soap dispenser with choice of detergent, soil remover, bleach or fabric softener, and a pay telephone are all provided.

After the wash is done, an adjoining room is provided for folding and hanging clothes. This room is complete with tables and rolling clothes hampers.

The laundry is equipped with 68 washers; 60 commercial-duty, Maytag top-load washers and for larger loads, 8 front-load washers are available.

The firm also has 28 dryers (including 4 special dryers for delicate and permanent press fabric) making for more efficient washdays.

Don also sells and services Electrolux Vacuum Cleaners. He keeps several models and parts on hand to cut down your waiting time.

Whether your needs are for laundry or house cleaning, Don Adams can help. Go by 2400 26th Street (corner of 26th and Avenue X) and see for yourself.

Opening Wine

NEW YORK (AP) — How soon should one open wine before serving it?

A food and wine center here suggests red wine should be opened one hour before serving to let the wine breathe, releasing its full aroma and flavor.

White or rose wine should be opened at the time of serving, the experts said.
