Commissioners Approve Hospital Budget

By THOM MARSHALL and ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

After 45 minutes of discussion and comments from some of the approximately 40 citizens present at the Gray County Commissioners Court session today, the proposed 1976 $3.8 million dollar budget for Highland General and McLean General Hospitals was approved.

On making his motion that the 56 - page budget be accepted Commissioner Don Hinton commented that at the last session (Dec. 12) the commissioners had asked that additional budget information be provided.

"I think they have successfully done this," he said. "I got the budget several days ago and I have studied it."

Budget consideration was moved from the ninth item on the 14 - item agenda to second place, following the swearing in of the three new hospital board members — Mrs. Susie Wilkinson, Bill Tidwell and Ed Patman.

The new board members succeed E.L. Henderson, Aubrey Steele and J.W. Meacham, whose terms expired.

The budget approved today was for total estimated expenses of $3,494,924.27 for Highland General Hospital and $276,187.70 for McLean General Hospital.

In the original budget, submitted to the county commission on Dec. 12, the estimates were for $3,466,640.27 for Highland General and $271,418.70 for McLean.

The increases, Monogue explained, were necessitated because of an increase in liability insurance rates and increasing the salaries of licensed vocational nurses (LVN).

Several citizens from McLean attended the session and spoke of that community's need to keep their county hospital open.

Jake Hess said, "I've got a son alive today that would've been dead if it hadn't been for the hospital at McLean."

The mayor of McLean, Sam Haynes, said, "We appreciate the consideration given us by the county commissioners court." We've received some rather bad publicity in the paper here."

"We've got problems," Gray County Judge Don Cain said. "We have communicated back and forth on these problems."

He said that "It is the duty of the news media under the first amendment to report the facts and to criticize public officials if they feel criticism is justified. We trust it will be constructive criticism."

Commissioner Ted Simmons of McLean pointed out that government regulations have caused problems in operating smaller hospitals.

At one point in the meeting, Doug Coffee commented on the recent increase of room rates and asked about a desk purchased for the administrator's office.

In other business commissioners renewed the county's three - year contract with Metropolitan Ambulance Service, retroactive to September 1974; continued the granting of the $3,000 residence homestead taxes to persons over 65 years of age and approved nine persons for continued participation in the retirement program for employes more than 70 years old.

The court approved 90 - day time deposits of $12,000 from the jury fund and $65,000 from the Farm to Market and Lateral Road account with the interest to go to the general fund.

The 1976 minimum wage was set at $2.30 hourly for hospital employes and $2.20 for other county employes.

Judge Don Cain said the only county employes affected by the change are part - time workers, who were paid $2 hourly in 1975.

Wages hikes of 10 per cent became affective today for county employes, according to the county budget approved earlier by the court.

In discussing renewal of the ambulance contract, Judge Cain said the county and city each pay the firm $1,400 monthly. The new contract will expire in September 1977.

Commissioners approved a one - year lease with the Agricultrual Stabilization Conservation Service Committee for space in the courthouse annex to begin with the expiration of the current lease on Feb. 1. The agreement calls for the committee to pay the county $260 monthly. The county provides the janitorial service and pay the utilities.

"We are not making any money," but I don't think we are losing any either," the judge commented.

Wanda Carter, Gray County clerk, discussed a recent meeting on the Voting Rights Act she had attended in Austin.

"They want a report on all changes in 1975," she said. Judge Cain three voting precincts were combined last year because they had less than 50 voters.

Commissioners also approved a notice of the General Telephone Company of the Southwest of proposed buried cable installation in county road right of way in Precinct III — the Grandview area.

"I wonder if the county needs a $700 or $800 desk for the administrator at the expense of people in misery."

Judge Cain responded by saying, "It's the desire of the commissioners court that items be checked by the hospital administrator and the hospital board," and he asked Robert Monogue, administrator, if a desk had been purchased.

Monogue answered that desks had been purchased "for my office and for other offices." He did not comment on the price of the desks and he added, "I can't speak for the hospital board. There are several of them here."

Dr. R.M. Bellamy, a member of the hospital board, emphasized the importance of a good hospital to Pampa in attracting new doctors to the city.

"We've lost two doctors from Pampa in the past six months," he said, "and we anticipate the loss of two more in the next year."

Dr. C.F. Sparger, the new chief of staff at Highland, said that he "would like to underscore every point made by Dr. Bellamy," and he commented on the work load at the hospital saying that it "increases every day."

He encouraged the increasing of salaries for the low salaried people at the hospital. He commended the "chairmen of departments" and said "they are all very effective people. We should keep them on a level similar to other hospitals."

Commissioner J.O. McCracken of Grandview requested that the administrator provide the county commissioners with a balance sheet at the end of each month. He said the request had been made before but that "we haven't got one in several months."

McCracken also requested that when the hospital board approves bills at the monthly meeting, invoices be immediately at hand "to look at if they so choose," and he asked that the new board members, "as they meet the first few times, pay particular attention to expenses in various departments so they can become familiar with them."

Following approval of the budget, Fred Neslage, hospital board chairman, said "Thank you for approving our budget. I'd also like to assure the people of McLean that we've gone all out at all times to provide a top flight hospital and we will continue to do everything we can."

He added that "Everything out there is open to you. I spend a lot of my time out there. I don't get a blooming cent for it. People hear rumors. Before you get upset, come out and talk to Mr. Monogue or one of the fine board members."

Storm Paralyzes States

By United Press International

A major winter's storm which paralyzed southeastern Wyoming and dumped nearly two feet of snow on western Nebraska belted the Upper Midwest with more blowing snow today.

In Atlanta, fog shut down busy Hartsfield International Airport and cut visibility to 600 feet. The metropolitan area was blanketed.

The Wyoming Highway Patrol said traffic was beginning to move again following the New Year's Eve deluge which piled up a record 16.8 inches of snow on Cheyenne.

The storm, spawned by a huge arctic cold front, buried Cadron, Neb. under 20 inches of snow. Moving toward the northeast, the storm swept over the Dakotas and Minnesota and Michigan's Upper Peninsula. Willmar, Duluth and Redwood Falls, Minn., had 8, 7 and 6 inches of snow respectively before dawn today. Huron, S.D., reported seven inches since Thursday noon.

The National Weather Service said winds of more than 40 miles per hour would create "consrderable blowing and drifting snow." It warned of additional heavy snow and strong winds for the Dakotas and northern Michigan.

Freezing rains on the fringes of the storm were reported in parts of northern and eastern Iowa, northern Illinois, southern Wisconsin and northwest Indiana.

Snowbound party-goers celebrated overtime.

"I'm getting drunk and having a New Year's Eve party," Mac Moon of Longmont, Colo., announced from a snowbound Wyoming motel Thursday. "I ain't stepping one foot out the door until the snow and wind quits."

Cheyenne, Wyo., was buried under nearly 1½ feet of snow. Winds piled up seven-foot drifts. Foot-deep snows were common in much of the state.

Fifteen motorists stuck on Cheyenne's snowpacked streets made it to a high school. They welcomed in the New Year with chili and soda pop.

There was heavy drifting in Colorado and numerous traffic accidents were reported.

Hundreds of motorists were stranded in motels. Moon's party and others like it could last quite a while. Snows flitted over the Plains early today and though the storm diminished, many roads remained impassable.

Some travelers found less amenable ways to pass the New Year's storm.

Six persons spent nearly 24 hours stranded in the snow-covered wreckage of a private plane near the summit of 13,000-foot Tincup Pass in Colorado before they were found and taken to hospitals.

The storm, born in the Rockies New Year's Eve, stretched into the Plains today and extended to the upper Mississippi Valley and the upper Great Lakes, bringing heavy snows and blizzard conditions to some areas.

The storm also dumped heavy snows through Minnesota, portions of Wisconsin and Michigan.

Snow also socked the Northeast. Snowplows were called out to sand down major roadways in New Jersey New Year's Day as four inches of snow piled up.

Candidate Checks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Aides for seven presidential candidates, including President Ford, picked up government checks today at the Treasury Department to help finance their campaigns.

It was the first time ever that direct taxpayer subsidies have been allocated to presidential contenders.

Ford's emissary received a check for $374,422, the second highest total dispersed under the new law allowing for partial public subsidization of presidential campaigns.

Checks for four other candidates who have qualified for the subsidies but did not send representatives to pick them up will be mailed to them, a Treasury spokesman said.

Assistant Comptroller Jim Neeley said the Treasury starting handing out the checks, totaling about $1.88 million for all 11 candidates.

Teens Perish in Club

LA LOUVIERE, Belgium (UPI) — Some 50 young revelers were happily celebrating the New Year at the tiny "Six-Nine Club" when the lights suddenly went out.

Someone lit a cigarette lighter to see — and plastic holiday decorations burst into flames, turning the crowded bar-dance hall into an inferno of terror.

Panicky teen-agers trapped on the rear dance floor jammed into a narrow corridor toward the only exit — but instead they found a wall of flames.

"They were trapped like rats," said a fireman.

Fifteen partygoers died, including eight who were trapped in a cramped bathroom as they searched desperately for an exit. Others looked for a doorway in the back room, but it had been walled up years before.

Police said six of the dead were men and nine were women, although one body was so badly burned its sex was not determined for hours.

Thirty-seven more were injured, five seriously. Most of the victims were between 17 and 22 years old, police said, and were residents of this coal-mining area 25 miles southeast of Brussels.

Fire Chief Louis Woit said by the time fire trucks arrived five minutes after the blaze started at 4 a.m., those still inside were already doomed.

Among the few who escaped was owner Jean-Marie Nalinnes, whom police detained for questioning on possible negligence charges.

Faulty wiring caused the initial blackout, Woit said.

Weeping relatives filed through the city's hospital all day trying to identify the charred bodies. Some were recognizable only from watches or jewelry.

A well-dressed woman of about 50 wailed "Oh no, oh no" as her husband, his face taut with grief, talked with police.

"Did your son wear a bracelet with the name 'Xavier'?" a police inspector asked.

"Yes," the man said.

"That's him," the policeman replied.

Doctors Protest Costs

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Many Southern California doctors started the New Year by slowing down or stopping their practices in protest over the increased cost of malpractice insurance. Some hospitals began turning away non-emergency cases.

More talks were scheduled today between Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. and leaders of the protesting physicians.

The doctors began their action Thursday because the price of malpractice insurance has increased 327 per cent and has hit some doctors with yearly premiums of $36,000 or more.

Doctors said they could not pay the premiums, causing their insurance to lapse at midnight Wednesday. They said they would not risk practicing — or in some cases, accept new patients — without coverage.

In the San Fernando Valley, a suburban area of Los Angeles where the militant doctors were particularly strong, some private hospitals began turning away non-emergency cases, as spokesmen had warned they would be forced to do.

At the 600-bed Brotman Memorial Hospital, a spokesman said only emergency patients would be accepted for surgery until the crisis ends.

Patients arriving by ambulance Thursday were examined by a panel of staff physicians. Those with non-emergency injuries, such as broken legs, were "stabilized" and sent to the nearest public hospital, a spokesman said.

Staff doctors at government-operated hospitals, covered under group policies, were not affected immediately by the premium increase.

A survey of 61 general practitioners of the 20,000 physicians in the area, turned up 10 who said they would not open their offices Monday and five who were uncertain. Of the other 46, half said they would not accept new patients, leaving about one-third of the sample practicing normally.

The largest public hospital in the area, the 2,000-bed County-USC Medical Center, said there had been no noticeable increase in referals from private hospitalson the first day of the strike.

At Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, a spokesman said conditions were normal for a holiday. "Babies are being born here just as they always are," he said.

"Nothing can stop that."

Fires, Traffic Take Lives

By United Press International

Traffic deaths rose at a rate of nearly five an hour in the first hours of the New Year's holiday weekend and fires claimed an alarming number of lives.

Traffic accidents increased sharply in the early hours of the holiday period, coming on the heels of 412 traffic deaths over the Christmas weekend — the lowest toll on record for a four-day Yule holiday.

The National Safety Council had estimated between 350 and 400 persons would die in traffic accidents during the 102-hour New Year's holiday period, which began at 6 p.m. local time Wednesday and ends at midnight Sunday.

But the death count was well over a third of the council's pre-holiday estimate today as the second full day of the long weekend began.

Multiple-death accidents and bad weather helped boost the death count.

A United Press International count at 11:30 a.m. EST showed 171 persons dead in traffic accidents. A breakdown of accidental deaths:

Traffic	171
Fires	55
Planes	2
Other	8
Total	236

Florida reported 18 traffic deaths, Michigan 14, and Texas 12 and California 11.

Fires also took a heavy toll.

A fire broke out at a New year's in Brooklyn, N.Y., and partiers, instead of calling for help, tried to put the blaze out with a garden hose. They failed and four children were killed.

A New Year's Eve fire, apparently triggered by Christmas tree lights, raced through a Greenwood, Ind., home, killing Charles Roberson, his wife and their four children.

"It appears they all made an attempt to get out but didn't have a chance," a police spokesman said.

Windmills of Their Minds

Course Revives Old Producer

By LINDA HEISERMAN
Pampa News' Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A new course in windmilling will be offered next February at New Mexico State University, according to the New York Times.

The two - week, 96 - hour class is designed for energy - conscious ranchers, farmers and suburbanites interested in the installation, repair and maintenance of water - pumping windmills.

"A windmill renaissance has developed throughout the United States in the interest of conserving energy and cutting soaring electricity costs," said Mogens I. Rasmussen, the class instructor and a native of Denmark who grew up using windmills for power.

In 1974, Rasmussen conducted a survey to determine the number of working or repairable water - pumping windmills in the United States. He found that there are approximately 175,000 and that about half are still usable.

In response to the survey, the college received a "surprising and entirely unanticipated" spate of more than 1,200 letters from across the country, asking for all kinds of information about the old - fashioned contraptions.

"Most of the communications were from ranchers and farmers looking for ways to economize because of the energy crunch and the profit squeeze," Rasmussen said.

Many of the writers own water - pumpers that have been left idle while newer electric pumps were used. According to Rasmussen, the owners "want to get them back in operation, but they complain that they lack the know - how to meet the necessary repairs and maintenance needs."

Up until now this know - how has been "a lost art because of the almost complete nonexistence of experienced windmillers," he said.

But with his new course, Rasmussen hopes to change all that.

Envrionmentalists are questioning the ability of state and federal government units to enforce clean air laws after recent air pollution tests at a Montana electric power plant, the New York Times reported recently.

The tests, conducted in October and November by the state's Department of Health found that the coal - fired plant owned by the Montana Power Company was emitting as much as 10 times above the allowable pollution level under state and federal pollution standards.

Montana's clean air standards are regarded as among the toughest in the country. But after the test results were made public, an environmental spokeswoman said, "It's nonsense to boast about (the standards) if the state and federal agencies are incompetent in enforcing them."

An Environmental Protection Agency spokesman in Denver acknowledged that the federal agency had not measured the plant's emissions because "we give states first chance at enforcement."

And the head of the state's air quality division explained that state law does not require regular testing of possible pollution sources. He said that the plant has not been checked since 1972 because his department was "tied up" with other problems.

Although allowable particulate emission from the plant is about 400 pounds an hour, in four tests the plant was discovered to be emitting 468 to 4,200 pounds an hour.

Environmentalists contend that the test results argue against the federal government's position that states will be able to monitor the large new power plants planned for the coming decade.

Oil spills are nothing new on the trans - Alaska pipeline project. Alyeska Pipeline Service Company, the company building the line, makes announcements of spills several times a week.

But a recent 600,000 gallon spill — the largest in the state's history — far overshadowed the previous incidents which had never been more than several thousand gallons.

Fuel from eight storage tanks spread over two acres of frozen tundra on the North Slope oil fields several miles from the Arctic Ocean. Although the extent of environmental damage was not immediately known and in spite of the spill's proximity to the ocean, Alyeska officials claimed that there was no danger of water pollution.

The pipeline company is trying to pump the oil back into the tanks which cracked following a 50 - degree temperature change, causing the huge spill.

Before construction began on the pipeline, critics warned of the environmental damage that could occur from oil spills during the construction and operation of the pipeline.

The forecast calls for cloudy skies and cold temperatures Saturday with lows tonight in the middle teens.

A Watchful 1976

Looking forward into the New Year, we are unable to shake off a certain optimism.

As to the economy, the biggest reason for hope is the loss of popular credibility by both the President and Congress. Neither is yet in a position to bamboozle the public into acceptance of emergency intervention by the federal government.

Meanwhile, the private processes of the marketplace are at work. There is a fair possibility that economic recovery will have taken place, before a federal outrage can be perpetrated.

That energy prices, especially of oil products, will continue to be high has a silver lining. Because of government intervention, prices of gasoline and fuel oil were suppressed for the greater part of the last 25 years. The result was evident excess in other governmental departments. Planners mandated cities based on auto transport patterns. Neighborhood stores were outlawed. Railroads and bus lines were featherbedded or regulated into bankruptcy. The return of fuel prices to marketplace levels would restore household thrift to a level of respectability.

The news media discovered that Social Security is insolvent. The result was a cleverly disguised tax - relief measure that cleared Congress. This provides that an individual could set aside up to $1,500 of his pay for retirement purpose. Such incentive amounts to financing for capital investment. If industry can turn a profit, the new financing spells out more production tools and more jobs. The effects of the savings will become apparent in 1976.

These several patches of sunlit sky fall short of a guarantee that the woes of the American community are overcome. New Barbarism continues a planned program of encirclement from without and demoralization within. Both Canada and Mexico are drinking the cup of international socialism. Cuban - trained terrorists plot the disruption of the civil processes, and they are aided and abetted by a powerful domestic propaganda — sometimes true, sometimes merely shrill — against the efforts of law - enforcement agencies. With so many laws on the books, it is difficult to separate lawbreakers from law - upholders. For false laws must be challenged if true law is to be sustained.

As we see it, an illusion of security is the least secure of all possible attitudes. Incessant vigilance has not ceased to be the price of liberty. The twin sentinels of every individual's safety are a healthy skepticism of the promises that men make plus that degree of mutual trust required for cooperative actions. This balance rarely is achieved in any but voluntary arrangements.

Beware of the leader who offers to supply your every need; he may decide you do not need to live. We hope that is not too somber a note to welcome in the New Year. Just to be srue that the hidden optimism shines through, we shall re - phrase the same idea: America is safest when Americans are most watchful.

1975 In Review

During the first week of 1975, the Hydra - headed monster called Watergate made one last gasp as former President Nixon's top aides were convicted of complicity in the coverup. The aides included H.R. (Bob) Haldeman, John Erlichman, John Mitchell and Robert Mardian.

The domestic economy — which showed encouraging signs by the end of the year — was a large question mark last January. Foreign oil continued a precipitous price rise; and, despite abundant rhetoric from the White House and Capitol Hill, the year ended with still no comprehensive U.S. plan in sight to become self - sufficient in energy.

After more than a decade of military involvement in Indochina, the United States lost the first war in its 200 - year history. It was a war that was lost not on the battlefield but in the corridors of political power in Washington. Whiplashed by a well - heeled anti - war movement, abetted by liberal Members of Congress and the media, succeeding Presidents from Kennedy through Nixon failed to take militarily decisive actions that might have cut short the war and preserved freedom for millions of Asians.

The Mayaguez incident in May gave hope to Americans that the recent debacles in Cambodia and Vietnam had not rendered the country powerless to repond to challenges abroad. The U.S. freighter was captured in the Gulf of Siam and rescued in a dramatic land - sea - air operation 65 hours later from its Cambodian captors.

Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi joined the host of world leaders who regard democracy as less important than their personal power. She loosed a broad crackdown against political opponents in the world's second largest nation, ending parliamentary government in that troubled, impoverished country.

The United Nations continued a headlong plunge toward impotency, led by Communist - supported third world countries which welcomed a Palestinian terrorist organization to the U.N. as though it were a member state; invited Uganda's bloodthirsty dictator Idi Amin to address members; and voted to brand Zionism "a form of racism."

New York City went hat - in - hand to Washington for a bail out from its financial woes. Although President Ford at first steadfastly refused to budge, on Thanksgiving eve he announced that a loan guarantee program would be forthcoming.

Two women attempted to assassinate the President, underscoring the difficulties of governing in an open society and the undercurrent of sick souls that are an unhappy part of the American landscape.

America entered the homestretch toward its 200th birthday. It ended the year with no American solider in combat and a domestic economy that showed signs of its former strength. Every thoughtful citizen should have no difficulty proving to himself, that, with all the challenges facing the United States, there is no better place on earth to live.

Reagan's strategy is to head off Ford at the ski slopes and on the putting greens.

Children Affected By Praise

By MAX RAFFERTY

I've had occasion to mention before that most of the shibboleths and slogans so dear to the heart of the educational establishment are as preposterous as a New York City annual budget.

"Children learn more in small classes than in large." (Recent findings indicate the opposite.)

"More money will solve the illiteracy problem." (The schools which suck up the most money usually have the most illiterate pupils.)

"Rote memorization is a poor instructional method." (Horseradish! It's one of the best.)

See what's wrong with us teachers? We've been suckled and weaned on flagrant falsehoods. Let us zero in on the latest explosion in the slogan factory: "Positive praise instead of negative criticism should be used in teaching disadvantaged children."

Sounds reasonable, doesn't it? Everyone likes to be praised; no one enjoys criticism. Then, too, slum children come to us in fear and poverty, lacerated by their lifestyle, neglected and kicked around at home. If any group ever needed to bask in the unaccustomed warmth of general commendation, the ghetto youngsters are surely that group. Right?

Wrong. Here let me quote from a New York Times story about a recent study of San Francisco minority high school students made by a Stanford University research team:

"Those who were the lowest achievers in school reported getting the most praise from their teachers. In other words, those who do the worst work have been led to believe they are doing satisfactory work."

Pause to ask, "Why?"

Reason: "Most of the misled students are blacks or Mexican - Americans. Their teachers heap praise upon them despite poor academic performance. By giving warmth without standards, the teachers are unwittingly killing their students with kindness."

See what's happening? My mush - headed colleagues, in San Francisco and elsewhere, are saying, "Oh, that was simply splendid!" to the black and the Chicano kids for classroom work which would have elicited a stern and disapproving "Unacceptable! Do it over!" if it had been handed in by a white Anglo - Saxon Protestant. And this sort of teaching is so sickeningly sentimental and so blatantly racist that I don't even like to think about it.

Consider how well this dream world of the school is preparing these youthful unfortunates for life in the all too real and hard - boiled world which lies ahead of them, while I quote yet again from the report:

"Minority students have completely unrealistic images of their own achievement and effort. They do not know that their work is poor. They do not know how much work they should do to improve."

Of course they don't, because they've been systematically lied to ever since they started kindergarten. Confound it! Teachers are supposed to tell children the truth. If the quality of a pupil's scholarship and diligence is outstanding, say so. Praise is always healthy when it's deserved. But when a pupil is not meeting school standards, say so, also, and then take as much time and trouble as may be necessary to show him how to shape up.

This implies, of course, that the San Francisco schools have any academic or behavioral standards to be met, and that, Virginia, is another story.

The report concludes, pathetically: "They (the minority students) think they are doing well. They are told so every day."

Moral of this sad vignette: Your best friend isn't the one who cons you and butters you up when he should be straightening you out. It's the one who levels with you about your faults and then helps you to overcome them.

San Francisco bleeding - hearts, please take note.

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

The Real Default Of 1975

By WILLIAM RUSHER

The year 1975 was (among other things) the year the American people began relearning some old and long - forgotten lessons about the grim consequences of irresponsibility. Unfortunately, there are further and far more painful lessons along that line still to learn, and 1976 may be the year we start learning them.

The bankruptcy of New York City, despite its painful aspects, had, for most Americans, all the elements of an old - fashioned morality play. The Big Apple had long been regarded by many non - New Yorkers with that strange mixture envy and disapproval we reserve for women who have fallen successfully, as it were. In the words of the old song, "We never mention Aunt Clara; Her picture is turned to the wall. Though she lives on the French Riviera, Mother says she is dead to us all."

But, after decades of profligacy of all kinds (definitely including the fiscal kind), New York came to the end of its rope. Aunt Clara came home in rags, a tin cup in her hand. It was all terribly sad — but also, in no very mysterious way, extremely satisfying. And easily the most satisfying thing about it was that it happened to somebody else.

That, we smugly reflected, is what befalls people who disregard their inescapable obligations and take no heed for the morrow. No doubt they can get away with it for a while, but sooner or later the dread bill is presented for payment.

If, then, I suggest that 1975 may be best known to hisotry as the Year of the Great Default; the reader might be forgiven for assuming I am referring to the tribulations of Abe Beame and the chuzzlewit liberal economics that brought him down.

But the reader would be mistaken nonetheless. For the Great Default that will characterize (and stigmatize) 1975 in the eyes of history is not the default of New York City but the default of the leaders and people of the United States as a whole; and the obligations we failed to meet were not those of a city to a few banks but the obligations of a world power to a status it cannot possibly escape; and when we come to the end of our rope — as we will, and probably sooner than later — there won't be any global Gerald Ford standing by to bail us out, but only Leonid Brezhnev or his successor, and he will have most of the rest of the world in his pocket, and there will be a hungry grin on his face.

As my colleague James Burnham likes to point out, the simple question in all politics is, "Who shall be master in the house?" In world terms in our era, the Soviet Union is bidding — ambitiously, powerfully, successfully — for that position. We cannot dissuade it from trying, and, much as we might like to, we cannot designate Switzerland, or the Pope, or the UN, to hold the title instead. Above all, we cannot simply ignore the bid.

And yet, in 1975 we allowed ourselves to be thrown summarily out of Southeast Asia by Russia's clients there — not at all because we had no other choice, but solely because we had not made up our collective mind to pay the price of staying and prevailing. During 1976, if Angola is any sign, we (and, it goes without saying, all other forces opposed to communism) are going to commence the final retreat from Africa. At a guess, by 1977 or 1978, a major Communist drive will have been launched against South America.

At some point it will become impossible to disguise the truth any longer — namely, that the ostrich - like American posture in world affairs is as bankrupt as New York City, and that payment for our heedlessness can no longer be postponed. Only this time it won't be the kind of payment that new taxes on cigarettes or real estate, or even on income, can discharge. It will be payment exacted in the old familiar coin of liberty — or death.

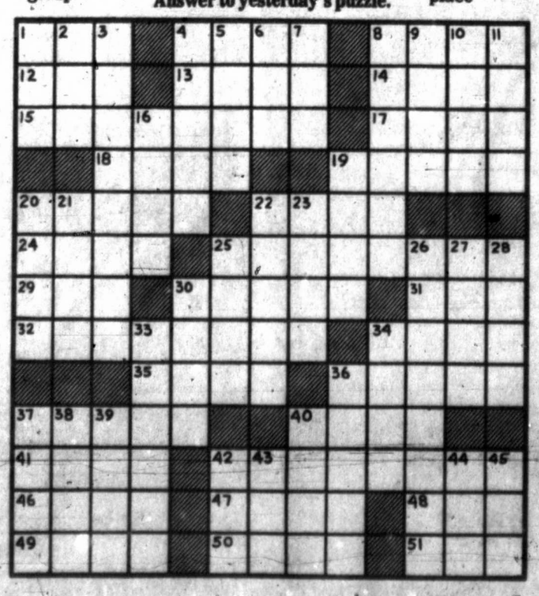
Answer to yesterday's puzzle.



Up To New Tricks

The behavior of Congress when it comes to its own pay raises rarely has been very circumspect. It is easy to discern the root of the problem — a lack of political fortitude among members.

In 1969 Congress exhibited one historic approach to the problem when it raised the pay of members by a staggering 41 per cent — from $30,000 to $42,500. The general rationale is to secure the raise in a non - election year and to take a big plunge so the music has to be faced only once.

In 1972 Congress complained that its members had only eight pay raises in some 170 years. Members exhibited another traditional ingenuity. They authorized formation of a 12 member non - congressional salary commission which would make recommendations to the President. The President could authorize the salary raise without an act of Congress. Ergo, Congress did not have to face voters wrath since it did not act.

In 1975 Congress used a "watch - the - left - hand" approach. With the minimum of public attention and with the utmost of haste, Congress' right hand attached an amendment to an obscure bill relating to health and safety standards in the post office which would give members an annual cost of living pay increase.

THE OTHER SIDE

Why Won't Congress Probe the Teamsters?

By LEE EDWARDS

The favorite game of Congress these days is, "Let's Investigate!" All you need is a couple of facts, some spicy rumors, one or two witnesses who are willing to tell "all" for a place on the front page of the morning paper or the evening TV newscast, a hearing room, and you're all set.

What's that? J. Edgar Hoover was instructed by a couple of Presidents to do some snooping and he went ahead and did it? Let's investigate the FBI!

You're kidding! The CIA actually spent some money trying to stop some communists from taking over Chile? And they suggested that maybe we ought to consider knocking off an african dictator? Let's investigate!

But a funny thing happened on the way to the hearing room. When Sen. Robert Griffin, a moderate Republican from Michigan, proposed the creation of a special select committee to investigate improper activities in the labor management field, especially the Teamsters, he looked around and found himself almost along. He suggested the select committee on November 18th. As of December 19th, only 10 senators had joined him:

Carl Curtis of Nebraska, Paul Fannin of Arizona, Dewey Bartlett of Oklahoma, Bob Dole of Kansas, John Tower of Texas, Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, James Allen of Alabama (the only Democrat), Clifford Hansen of Wyoming, James McClure of Idaho, and Milton Young of North Dakota.

Why haven't the bold and fearless investigators of the FBI and CIA and other essentially useful if flawed institutions come forward? Where is rank Teddy Kennedy?

Certainly, if ever an organization needed investigation it is the Teamsters, and if ever a relationship stank to high heaven it is the association between the Teamsters and organized crime.

Fact: On July 30, 1975, James R. Hoffa, former international president of the Teamsters Union, disappeared. In his autobiography published after his disappearance, Hoffa charged that the union had been sold out "to mobsters — and known racketeers."

Fact: On August 15, 1975, the WALL STREET JOURNAL editorialized that "a sizeable portion" of the Teamsters' $1.5 billion main pension fund "has gone into bizarre, risky and perhaps even fraudulent ventures . . . the fund has passed millions of dollars to companies identified with Mafia members and their associates."

Fact: The professional Drivers Council for Safety and Health (PROD) estimates that only one of 10 Teamsters is ruled eligible for pension benefits when he reaches retirement age. PROD has supported Senator Griffin's call for a investigation.

Fact: Last spring, a former Teamsters official pleaded guilty to evading taxes on money embezzled from the union, although he protested that he diverted the money not for himself but to make illegal political contributions.

The reaction of Teamsters boss Frank Fitzsimmons has been predictable and revealing in its decibel level: "When Sen. Griffin bleeds for workers, he always bleeds with their blood . . . Sen. Griffin's entire career is dedicated to trampling on or denying rights to workers . . Senator Robert Griffin from Michigan is an enemy of working men and women."

In truth, Griffin, as co - author of the historic Landrum - Griffin Act, provided additional rights and protections to the union member against the corrupt, dictatorial union leader. That Griffin is perceived as a friend and not an enemy of the working man by the working man is clear from his being elected twice to the U.S. Senate from Michigan, the most "unionized" of all the states.

It's obvious why Fitzsimmons is screaming — he's scared of what and who will come to light. But why are so many members of the U.S. Senate unwilling to play "Let's Investigate" with the Teamsters?

Could it be they don't want to open a Pandora's box which would involve not just the Teamsters but other unions that have been less than democratic in their treatment of members?

And why hasn't President Ford and his "open" and "honest" administration endorsed the select committee and its investigation? Could they be thinking that there are 2.2 million Teamsters and they vote?

Senator Griffin has urged the formation of a select committee composed of four representatives of each party (modeled on the highly successful McClellan Committee of the late 1950's) to "get to the bottom of this mess and speak up for the working people."

So far, most of his colleagues have indicated there are some things you just don't investigate.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to a fine, devoted professional man for 17 years. We have a beautiful family, and I have never had any reason to doubt his fidelity.

Out of the blue, I received a phone call from a woman who spoke in a refined and cultured voice. She called me by name and said she thought I should know that my husband was having an affair with a young woman in his office!

I was so shocked I could hardly speak, but I managed to ask her who she was.

She said, "A friend," and then she hung up.

Abby, I got so weak I had to sit down. Then I became nauseated.

My first inclination was to believe her. I wondered, "Why would anyone want to make up a story like that?" Then, I tried to recall if there had been any tell-tale signs—late nights or unexplained absences, but there were none.

When my husband came home, I told him about it. He was as dumbfounded as I and assured me there was nothing to it.

Now I'm asking you. Why would anyone want to make such a call? I love my husband and trust him, but I am....

BAFFLED

DEAR BAFFLED: Miserable people try to make others miserable. Your caller was such a person. The word from here is, forget it!

DEAR ABBY: There are four of us married "girls" who have lunch together once a week, and today one of us presented a problem so unusual that only you could answer for us.

She has known this local undertaker for over 25 years, and they have always had a lot of laughs at parties and enjoyed one another's company.

Her question was, should she have her body sent to him when she passes away, and let him see her body (now that it's in its "older" state), or should she leave instructions to give her business to one of his competitors? (She's still a cute cookie in our book, even if she is over 65.)

DEAR FOUR: What a ghoulish topic for a girlish lunch! I'm sorry to let "cute cookie" down prematurely, but only she can answer that question.

Rain, Cold Threaten Drivers

By United Press International

The Department of Public Safety says cold, rainy weather moving into the state today made driving hazardous and threatened to push the New Year's holiday death count closer to the predicted 46 dead.

At least 11 persons have been killed on Texas highways since the holiday count began at 6 a.m. Wednesday, and two others have been killed in the crash of a small plane. The holiday period will officially end at midnight Sunday.

The DPS said driving conditions had been good for most of the holiday period but the death toll was still well ahead of Christmas holiday count for the same period.

Kenny Ahrens, 30, and G.W. Kane, 56, both of Mountain Home, were killed Friday in the crash of their light plane at the Kerr County airport. Officials said the plane went down about two-miles from the runway enroute to Ozona, Tex.

The DPS said at least two persons were killed in separate accidents New Year's Day.

A San Angelo man was struck and killed by a car as he walked along a city street Thursday. Police identified the victim as Jaun Chapa, 21, of San Angelo.

James Robert Denson, 18, was killed in the collision of his motocycle and a car on a Pasadena street. Police said no charges would be filed against the driver of the automobile.

In an accident late New Year's Eve, Shawn Williams Mullins, 18, died as a result of injuries received in the crash of his car into a ditch. The Baytown man was taken to a local hospital died a few hours later.

Two persons were killed in a wreck at an intersection in Corpus Christi, and two more died in a similar accident in Houston early in the holiday period.

Josephine Rodriguez, 29, and her daughter, Norma, 6, person were killed in the Corpus Christi wreck at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. A third person was in critical condition and under intensive care at a local hospital.

Police said a 16-year-old driving the truck that smashed broadside into the Rodriguez car was being investigated and charges may be filed. The pickup, police said, was driving on the wrong side of the street at the time of the collision.

Raual Montelongo, 26, of Bryan, was killed as he walked along a highway in Bryan at 12:32 a.m. and became the first person killed in Texas highway accidents in 1976.

Cornelio Ruiz, 22, of Tamulipas, Mexico, was hit and killed while walking along U. S. 77 in Raymondville.

Liberty Bell Moves

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — For the first time in 223 years, the Liberty Bell has a new home.

In a midnight ceremony New Year's Eve, the Bell was moved from its home in Independence Hall to a new $1 million steel and glass pavilion 100 yards away.

City officials built the pavilion because Independence Hall cannot handle the flow of tourists expected to visit Philadelphia during the Bicentennial year.

Thousands of persons showed up for the ceremonies despite heavy rains and chilling winds.

Many lit candles when the city extinquished street lights in the vicinity to dramatize the Bell's 20-minute journey.

Several workmen towed the Bell behind a procession of dignitaries and the 3rd Infantry Regiment Fife and Drum Corps dressed in Continental Army uniforms.

The Bell's original yoke was intact on its new metal frame, and the pavilion was opened officially to visitors following a special service.

The Bell, brought here from London in 1752 to commemorate Pennsylvania's 50th anniversary, has had a history of misfortune.

It cracked when it was first tested. The crack was repaired and the Bell was rung during the first public reading of the Declaration of Independence on July 8, 1776.

But on July 8, 1835, the Bell cracked again while tolling the funeral procession for Chief Justice John Marshall. The crack widened when it tolled for the last time in 1846 on the anniversary of George Washington's birth.

There was further concern about the move because the Bell had not left Independence Hall since it was taken through the streets of Philadelphia during a Liberty Loan parade in 1917.

Before that, it had not left the hall since 1777 when it was taken briefly to Allentown, Pa., to protect it from invading British forces.

Quake Rattles California

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The first earthquakes of 1976 struck Southern California, Greece and the South Pacific New Year's Day, jolting the Los Angeles area and killing a child in Greece.

The California quake shook a large area, rattling windows and shaking furniture over four counties. It disturbed millions of residents but caused no injuries and did no serious damage.

More than 40 tremors shook western Greece Wednesday and Thursday, killing a child in the village of Kastraki and injuring two persons in Famila.

The strongest quake registered 4.75 on the Richter scale. The government said 103 homes in Greece were destroyed and 300 damaged. Tents were sent to shelter the homeless.

The Southern California tremor "was one hell of an earthquake — a really great one," said Mrs. Carlos Schiebeck of Buena Park. "We live in a two-story house and it was swaying."

The tremor, which registered 4.2 on the Richter scale, struck at 9:20 a.m. PST and was felt in northern Orange County, north through Los Angeles County and 50 miles eastward through San Bernardino and Riverside counties.

Scientists at the Caltech seismological laboratory said the epicenter was about 20 miles east of Los Angeles, near West Covina.

A tremor that registered a strong 6.8 on the Richter scale was recorded at 5:42 p.m. PST at the University of California seismological laboratory at Berkeley. Scientists said the epicenter was in the New Hebrides Islands in the South Pacific, 6,000 miles to the southeast.

Three Protesters Die

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — The killing of three protesters in a New Year's Day shootout between national guardsmen and left-wing demonstrators at an Oporto prison today threatened to trigger a new wave of street violence.

Many of the leftists who participated in the Oporto protest met this morning to discuss new ways to press their demands in the aftermath of the shooting.

Three protesters were killed and six wounded Thursday when the paramilitary Republican National Guard opened fire into an estimated 2,000 rockthrowing leftists massed outside Custoias prison, a military spokesman said.

One of the dead was identified as Gunther Brunes of Hamburg, West Germany. A West German consulate spokesman said Brunes, 22, was a visiting student. The arrangements were being made to fly him back to Hamburg for burial.

The wounded included the 70-year-old mother and three-year-old niece of former Vice Premier Lt. Col. Arnald Metelo, imprisoned at Custoias for his part in November's abortive leftist military rebellion.

The spokesman said the guardsmen opened fired when a demonstrator tried to enter the prison through an open gate and other guardsmen said they heard pistol shots.

A similar rally was held outside Caxias prison near Lisbon, but armored cars dispersed the crowds without incident.

Both demonstrations drew a sizeable number of the leftists from the United States and European nations who have flocked to Portugal to support the activities of Portugal's leftists.

Alarm Scares Burglar

Burglars who apparently attempted to enter Malone Pharmacy at 2:17 a.m. today triggered the alarm and left without taking anything, according to the Pampa Police Department report.

The alarm sounded and two officers drove to the pharmacy to find a window glass broken on the north side of the building.

Owners Cecil Williams and Dan Williams were at the pharmacy when the officer arrived. They said nothing was missing, but some boxes which had been stacked behind the drug counter had been knocked over.

At the point of entry officers observed a large rock weighing several pounds inside the building.

"It is believed that when the burglar or burglars came into range of the alarm it sounded causing them to take flight," the officers' report read.

A report from the Catalina Club report that a plate glass window was broken out and that $80 was paid at the time. The glass was valued at $200. Later it was reported that someone threw a bottle through another window, also valued at $200.

Two citizen band radios were reportedly taken from automobiles.

Welch Burial Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard S. Welch, the CIA station chief in Greece who was murdered last month, is scheduled to be buried at Arlington National Cemetery Tuesday and President Ford may attend, a White House official said today.

Welch, 46, was shot and killed outside his home in Athens Dec. 23 as he and his wife, Kiki, returned from a Christmas party. The assailants have not been found.

The killing occurred after Welch was identified as a CIA agent by an English-language newspaper in Athens.

After the murder, Ford directed that Welch be buried in Arlington, normally the last resting place for the nation's military killed in combat.

A White House spokesman today said the burial would, baring last-minute changes, be held Tuesday.

When asked if the President would be in attendance, the spokesman said he "wouldn't be surprised."

The burial has been delayed because Welch's wife was in a Naples, Italy hospital and too ill to return to the United States.

Welch's body was returned to the United States Tuesday and given a tribute never before publicly accorded a CIA agents.

Mamie Reported Okay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mamie Eisenhower was in a hospital today for the third time within a year but was reported responding well to treatment for what doctors thought was a viral infection.

"She's doing okay," one medical source told UPI.

The widow of President Dwight Eisenhower was taken to Walter Reed Army Medical Center by ambulance Wednesday, with her own doctor and a police escort accompanying her.

The 95-mile trip from her farm at Gettysburg, Pa., to the big military hospital was her third hospitalization in 10 months, a spokesman said.

The 79-year-old former first lady has been ailing for some time. She had hospital treatment in August, Ga., in March for an intestinal ailment, which recurred and sent her to Walter Reed for more treatment April 14.

After Wednesday's arrival, Mrs. Eisenhower was given a private room and medical tests were made.

Thursday, the hospital reported, "Results of medical tests indicate that Mrs. Eisenhower had apparently contracted a viral infection, which is now responding to treatment.

"She is showing improvement over her condition upon admission. Mrs. Eisenhower is alert and resting comfortably."

A high-level medical source had told UPI Mrs. Eisenhower was somewhat dehydrated and treatment would be aimed at balancing fluids and medication.

The Secret Service said its agents assigned to protect Mrs. Eisenhower at her farm phoned the Gettysburg Fire Department for an ambulance at about 9 a.m. Wednesday.

Northrop Contributions Cost Taxpayers—Aspin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., says the Northrop Corp. charged the government $370,927 as "overhead" on government contracts then used much of the money to make illegal contributions to President Nixon's 1972 campaign.

Aspin Thursday released a previously confidential report by the Defense Contract Audit Agency, dated April 4, 1975, on Northrop's admitted illegal campaign contributions.

Northrop President Thomas V. Jones and Vice President James Allen have pleaded guilty to making illegal contributions and have been fined.

"What this report shows is how Northrop was reimbursed by the taxpayers $370,927 as overhead costs which were really in large part their own illegal corporate donations," Aspin said. He called it "the ultimate insult to the taxpayers."

Aspin, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, said the Pentagon made Northrop repay the $370,927 but that the company may owe the government even more. He called on the FBI "to immediately review its probe of Northrop."

According to the report:

—Northrop originally sought to reimburse the federal government for only $157,423 in improperly charged overhead costs on defense procurement contracts. These funds had been turned into illegal contributions to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign through European consultants.

—The Pentagon audit agency said the corporation owed a total of at least $370,927 in improper overhead costs.

—"There may be more monies due the government," the report said. "Such monies may only be identified through the use of techniques employed by law enforcement agencies empowered to issue subpoena, administer oath, take evidence, compel the attendance of witnesses and order the production of records and correspondence."

Venezuela Nationalizes Oil

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — Venezuela's nationalized oil industry today began looking for buyers for half a million barrels of oil a day which international oil companies rejected as too high-priced to allow them a profit margin.

The international oil companies, whose $4.7 billion assets were nationalized Thursday in the biggest peacetime takover of foreign investment in history, purchased only 1.5 million barrels a day, half a million less than the Venezuelan government 1976 export goal.

The sales contracts formed part of a negotiated nationalization which included compensation payments of over $1 billion for the unamortized part of the companies' assets as well as contracts to supply technical assistance to the state-run industry.

President Carlos Andres Perez, in an address to the nation after he formally nationalized the industry, world's third largest exporter after Saudi Arabia and Iran, said Venezuela would not lower its prices in order to sell more oil.

"The definition has obliged a sacrifice in volume which otherwise could be placed on the market," Perez said. "A solid price is more important than selling a greater quantity of barrels, ceding to the presure of the companies with a dangerous weakening of the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries."

Venezuela had hoped to reach two-year sales agreements with Exxon, Shell, Gulf and other former concession-holders in Venezuela to place around two million barrels per day. This amount was estimated to cover 75 per cent of Venezuela's 1976 budget of $7.7 billion. The companies, however, balked at the prices set by the government which averaged around 20-25 cents above their offers. Instead they committed themselves to only 1.5 million barrels daily. The average price asked by the Venezuelans is reportedly near $12 a barrel. Venezuela has been the single largest supplier of U.S. oil imports since 1928, shipping around 1.2 million barrels per day of crude and fuel oil to the U.S. East Coast.

Julie Tours China

HONG KONG (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon's daughter Julie and her husband, David Eisenhower, left Peking today for a tour of southern China, the New China News Agency said.

The Eisenhowers are touring southern China "in the company of Huang Chen, chief of the Chinese Liaison Office in the United States, and Madam Chu Lin," the NCNA report said.

The couple's China visit was arranged by Nixon when he made the historic visit in 1972 as the first American president to ever visit the mainland. The Eisenhowers arrived in Peking last Monday.

On Wednesday, the couple met with Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung who said Nixon was welcome to revisit China.

Julie said she was honored to visit China to bring her father's greetings to Mao and that her parents were deeply impressed by their visit to China.

On New Year's Day, the Eisenhowers had lunch with Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping and exchanged New Year's greetings, the agency said.

Bill Encourages Mortgages

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Thursday signed a bill which is intended to discourage banks from refusing to make mortgage loans to buyers of homes in neighborhoods which the banks consider to be on the decline.

Another provision in the same bill extends until March 1, 1977 the existing regulation under which maximums are fixed by the government on how much interest banks and savings and loan associations may pay on deposits in savings accounts.

Starting in six months, banks and savings and loan institutions in metropolitan areas will be required under the new law to make public lists showing where their mortgage loans have been made.

The purpose is to enable consumer and neighborhood groups to bring pressure against banks which discriminate against aging urban areas, a practice known as "redlining."

Critics convinced Congress that urban decay becomes unavoidable in any area which has been redlined by a bank. Since newcomers are unable to obtain a mortgage in a redlined neighborhood, they say, the neighborhood cannot survive.

Consumer groups wanted ceilings removed on how much interest banks could pay on savings deposits, hoping that banks would then compete for savings accounts by offering higher interest.

Broad bank reform legislation before Congress would phase out the regulation, but such legislation is not expected to pass before late next year, if then.

Parade Begins Bicentennial

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — The 87th annual Tournament of Roses parade—marred only slightly by an earthquake and the usual arrests—ushered in America's bicentennial year Thursday in a celebration of flowers, patriotism and nostalgia.

Singer Kate Smith, whose rendition of "God Bless America" has become a national institution, led the parade as grand marshal, only the third woman so honored.

"I hope and pray to God that we can have peace throughout the world," she said.

The parade was the first official event of the bicentennial year.

Proclaiming, "America, Let's Celebrate!" the 5½ mile, two-hour spectacular floated down Colorado Boulevard under bright, blue skies and temperatures in the 40s.

An estimated 1.5 million spectators watched the parade, some of them after camping out all night in chilly 30 degree temperatures to get a spot on the crowded curbside.

Halfway through the parade, an earthquake measuring 4.2 on the Richter scale jolted a large area of Southern California, but it was apparently felt by only a few spectators and did not disrupt the parade.

Ninety-four adults and 15 juveniles were arrested, mostly for drunkeness, officers said.

An off-duty policeman working for the tournament accidentally shot himself in the leg with his own gun, police said. Robert Alkeldsalkeld was reported in good condition at Huntington Memorial Hospital.

Angola Forces Appeal For Military Assistance

SILVA PORTO, Angola (UPI) — Pro-Western forces battling Soviet-backed rivals for supremacy in Angola have appealed to the United States to restore the military aid cut off by the Senate two weeks ago.

Officials of the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola and the National Front for the Liberation of Angola concluded a New Year's review of the year-long civil war with a call for the Senate to reverse its decision.

The Senate, fearing the United States might be drawn into a Vietnam-like war in Africa, voted to cut off covert aid to the pro-Western forces in the former Portuguese colony.

Jorge Sangumba, an official of the Union for the Total Independence of Angola, said Western nations were unreliable friends.

"Many African diplomats have told us that it is now safer to identify with the USSR because when you expect Western nations to help, they don't," he said.

"The United States is just waking up to the Russian threat in this part of the world. We are still hopeful that President Ford and Congress will see the writing on the wall before it is too late."

The Organization for African Unity has scheduled an emergency conference in Ethiopia Jan. 10 in an effort to reconcile the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola with its two rivals.

At the same time, the Popular Movement is believed preparing a new offensive with fresh Cuban support troops and with air attacks by a newly assembled squadron of MIG21 jet fighters based at the seaside capital of Luanda.

The civil war intensified after Portugal pulled out of the colony Nov. 11.

(In South Africa, Premier John Vorster also joined the appeal to the West to help offset the increasing Soviet influence in southern Africa.

(South African military sources said Vorster has been analyzing Pretoria's own Angola strategy and may decide to pull out the South African troops fighting on the antiSoviet side before the OAU summit.

(Since the Senate decision, South African government sources said Pretoria does not want to bear alone the burden of defending the West's sea oil routes they believe are threatened by the new Soviet presence in the South Atlantic.)

Hughes Phones Code

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — The call came at a public telephone booth just two minutes after schedule. The man picked up the phone and answered "0622."

Then he wrote down "TX17498KL," hung up, and drove away in a battered seven-year-old car.

The mysterious message, said Grover Walker, came from billionaire Howard Hughes and contained coded instructions for Walker to follow concerning a lawsuit filed in Albuquerque.

A judge earlier this week dismissed the suit, filed by Richard Hughes, 30, who claimed to be the illegitimate son of the reclusive billionaire. He told the court he communicated with Howard Hughes via a radio transmitter surgically implanted in his head.

A statement provided the court as possible evidence of Richard Hughes' claim was purportedly signed by Howard Hughes and admitted he had fathered the younger man. But District Judge Philip Baiamonte refused to accept the statement and said a personal appearance by Hughes would be required.

Walker, of Las Vegas, Nev., told the court he was the personal representative of Howard Hughes. He said he was to get further instructions from Hughes through a call to the public booth Wednesday.

At the appointed hour, Walker, accompanied by a reporter, was at the booth and the call came in. The call, complete with coded message, took four seconds.

Beirut Crash Kills 82

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Twisted metal and piles of sand have prevented rescuers from recovering 27 bodies from the tail section of a Lebanese airliner that crashed in the desert, killing 82 persons.

The Middle East Airlines Boeing 720 airliner went down Thursday 100 miles west of Kuwait airport in the diamond-shaped neutral zone between Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Iraq.

It was the first air disaster of 1976 and the first for the privately owned airlines in 12 years.

The plane, carrying 67 passengers and a crew of 15, was on a scheduled flight from Beirut to the Persian Gulf state of Dubai and Muscat.

Rescue teams from Saudi Arabia and Kuwait rushed to the scene by helicopter, but by nightfall had recovered only 55 of the bodies. The other 27 remained trapped in the tail section of the plane that split into three parts on impact.

The MEA spokesman said the rest of the bodies would be recovered by a team of Lebanese investigators sent to the crash crash site today to try to determine the cause of the air disaster.

Among the passengers were four Britons, six Greeks, one Norwegian, one Cypriot and 11 children. Most of the other passengers were Lebanese, Jordanian or Egyptians. There were no Americans aboard. The three pilots and 12 cabin attendants were Lebanese.

Flight 438 was supposed to have left Beirut Airport Wednesday night but mechanical problems with a Boeing 747 jumbo jet forced a nine-hour delay and the substitution of the Boeing 720, an MEA spokesman said.

It finally took off at 2:10 a.m. carrying 36 passengers from Beirut and 31 who were continuing a trip from London, Paris, Athens and Cairo.

Mexican Sailors Round

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (UPI) — Twenty-one Mexican sailors, tired and hungry after bouncing around in the Atlantic for 72 hours without food, received a hot meal today and bedded down at Coast Guard stations.

"They were they happiest bunch of people you ever saw," said a Coast Guard spokesman as the men, three each from seven 48-foot trawlers, arrived in the quieter waters of Pamlico Sound.

"They weren't sick. They just couldn't prepare anything."

The seven boats, owned by the Mexican government, set sail from a Norfolk, Va., shipyard Tuesday but became scattered and confused after the radio on the lead boat failed.

Winds rose to 35 knots and the boats were tossed about in Diamond Shoals by crisscrossing swells of up to 11 feet. Three lost power.

Thursday morning, lost and confused, they radioed for help and shot off a flare when they spotted Diamond Shoals light station.

They were rounded up by two 44-foot motor lifeboats, a cutter, a helicopter and a plane about 35 miles southeast of the Cape.

FTC Will Probe Retirement Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission today announced an investigation of the advertising and promotion of individual retirement accounts—pension plans, for the estimated 40 million Americans not covered by regular retirement funds.

The announcement came shortly after a House subcommittee issued a warning that heavy year-end promotion of the savings accounts appeared to be afflicted with "puff" advertising which was not adequately informing consumers of possible pitfalls involved.

The plans were made possible by the Pension Reform Act of 1974. Under the law, individuals not covered by government or corporate pension plans, or included in any profit-sharing, thrift or stock-bonus plan, may set aside up to $1,500 per year and defer tax payments on such accounts or annuities when they retire.

In announcing the probe, the FTC said it was making no judgment on the matter but was merely making the investigation "within the limits of its jurisdiction" a matter of public record.

It said it wants to find out whether the "advertising and marketing violates the Federal Trade Commission Act" which bans false, unfair and deceptive advertising.

Hints from Heloise

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Christmas is right around the corner and I would like to pass on a few suggestions someone might use.

We confine our decorations to the living room, dining room and halls, but why not have a "Merry, Merry Kitchen?"

This year I made a wreath and a big Santa Claus and put them on my kitchen doors.

Looking at Santa really gave me a big lift.

I also put little Santas and a snowman, made out of felt, on my cupboard doors and my refrigerator. If you are not artistically inclined, they can be purchased at most stores.

Even scenes from Christmas cards are pretty and brighten up the kitchen.

For my kitchen table I made a simple centerpiece out of pine cones and ribbons and placed a candle inside.

Just use your imagination and see how pretty your kitchen looks this Christmas.

Mrs. Dave Galliher

* * *

What a beautiful idea! After all, the kitchen is where we will be spending a lot of our time so let's pamper ourselves a little bit.

Besides, it'll give the family a big lift too, I betcha!

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Cut anything pertaining to Christmas from your Christmas cards (candy canes, dolls, Santa's face and trees) and paste to a felt skirt for use under your Christmas tree.

You can use glitter or sequins to decorate them even further.

You can make this in a hurry and it is very inexpensive.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

Tried your hint about leaving clothes on the line over night. Loved it!

They smelled so sweet and the ones that needed ironing were just damp enough without any dampening.

Worked fine until a bird spotted a sheet. I had to take it down and wash it over.

Oh well, I'm sure glad cows can't fly...

Dear Heloise:

Parsley flakes are expensive so I buy fresh parsley, wash it well, and put in a colander to drain. Then I spread the parsley in a pan and place the pan in the oven for a few days, turning them over once in a while.

When dry, I crumble them up, stems and all, and put in a jar.

I did the same thing with basil and mint.

Mrs. Ernest Spinelle

* * *

Really works, but there is absolutely all the difference in the world in drying parsley in the oven and in the refrigerator. Just spread the sprigs of parsley on paper towels and place in the refrigerator for a week or more. It will crumble to touch and it stays a gorgeous green.

Also try freezing parsley to keep it fresh. Just put the parsley flowers in an empty ice cube tray, fill it with water and freeze like ice cubes.

When you want fresh parsley, take a cube out and put it in a glass of warm water. Your parsley will be as green and fresh as the day you bought it.

Dear Heloise:

Here's a suggestion for that present you take to a wedding.

Leave on the price tag as it usually has the name of the store where you bought the merchandise. Then just remove the part of the tag that has the price on it.

In this way the newlyweds will know where their present came from if they find the need to return it.

Americans Really Class Conscious

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Americans may not consider themselves class-conscious but they nevertheless have very clear ideas about social standing, a sociologist says.

Richard Coleman, a senior research associate at the Harvard-MIT Joint Center for Urban Studies, interviewed 900 persons in 1971-72. One-third of his sample said they wished persons would not judge each other on income and class.

"These same people had a ball talking about those hideous people on welfare, having kids and getting drunk all the time," he said.

He said his study, now being edited into a book called "Social Standing in America," may explain public reaction to some issues.

"To the extent the public says it wants New York to default, they really want the city to default on the high salaries paid to garbagemen and policemen," Coleman said.

Coleman found individuals classed each other into seven economic and social layers, and those in the top class made further distinctions.

The groups, and their approximate 1975 incomes, were:

Success elite — $50,000.
Doing very well — $40,000.
Good Life U.S.A., middle American style — $20,000.
Comfortable — $15,000.
Getting along — $9,500.
Having a hard time — $6,000.
Poverty — up to $5,700.

"To an extent, people think they react to one another on an economic basis alone," he said. "But, when they talk about it, they rate each other on intensely personal behavior items — how they use the money they have."

Coleman conducted 30 interviews to find out how people in the success elite, about 3 per cent of the population, viewed each other. He found they grouped themselves based on family and social grace as well as income.

The groups were the upper upper class or social register world — about 10 per cent of the top group — the lower upper class or newly rich and the upper middle elite or professional managerial class.

Although the upper upper class tend to have higher incomes, the real difference is "they are in the best clubs. They came out of the right wombs, went to the right schools, have pretty faces, shoot a good game of golf."

The managerial class, he said, may be doing well financially but they have no social standing.

"Labor union leaders, or Mafia people may be doing that well financially, but they are viewed as a working class elite. They are not even upper middle class."

Young Taste Poverty

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Young Southern Baptists had an actual taste of poverty Tuesday — and they didn't enjoy it.

They began a religious meeting by sampling gruel, the sustenance for than 460 million persons around the world.

"Ugh," said one young coed. "It's awful. The texture, the taste. Ugh."

The youths, attending Freedom '76, a bicentennial project sponsored by the Southern Baptist Convention, tried the bland, yellowish porridge at the request of a minister who requested them to forgo one meal per day.

In addition to offering the soy-corn blend, Dr. Jimmy R. Allen, pastor of San Antonio's First Baptist Church, said the youths should give up a meal every Tuesday and donate the monetary equivalent to the poor and hungry.

The minister said 30 per cent would be retained to combat hunger in San Antonio, 30 per cent would go for hunger in other parts of the United States and 40 per cent for world hunger.

He also asked the conventioners to "fight for the kind of changes that will give someone the right to live," refering to two Congressional resolutions which "make the right to food a basic cornerstone of our foreign policy."

The last Confederate Army was surrendered near Durham, N.C.

News About People

FINGER LICKIN'?

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — A libel suit filed against Col. Harland Sanders, founder and white-bearded trademark of the Kentucky Fried Chicken Corp., was ordered dismissed Monday in Jefferson Circuit Court.

In dismissing the suit filed by one of the company's franchise outlets in Bowling Green, Ky., Judge Thomas Ballentine held it was not libeled by comments attributed to Sanders by the Louisville Times and Courier-Journal newspapers.

They quoted him as saying the gravy sold in Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurants is like "wallpaper paste." He also was quoted as saying the company's "crispy chicken" product is "nothing but a fried doughball wrapped around some chicken."

Sanders no longer has any part in the operation of Kentucky Fried Chicken, except in a public relations capacity that involves extensive traveling.

SPILLANE SPLIT

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Detective novelist Mickey Spillane was sued for divorce Monday by his wife, Sheri, to end their 11-year marriage.

Mrs. Spillane cited irreconcilable differences as grounds for her suit in Superior Court.

The couple separated last month. They have no children.

TOO MUCH FRANK

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., was sued Monday for allegedly abusing his franking privilege.

The suit was brought by Rep. Alphonzo Bell, a candidate for the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate.

Bell said Tunney's selective mailing in August and September of a newsletter that contained "laudatory and complimentary" accounts of the Senator violated federal law covering franking privileges.

The congressman said the newsletter was paid by Tunney's re-election campaign while the mailings were sent at public expense.

MEIR MOURNS U.N.

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The resolution branding Zionism as a form of racism bodes ill for the future of the United Nations and not Israel, former Israeli prime minister Golda Meir said at a fund-raising dinner for Israel.

"If I am pessimistic is not for the future of Israel but for the future of the United Nations," she said.

The dinner raised more than $1.5 million from the audience, including one family that donated $150,000 and another that gave $125,000. Mrs. Meir gave special thanks to Mayor Ralph Perk, who pledged $1,000, and Teamsters Union leader Jackie Presser, who pledged $25,000.

MISSION: BACKPAY

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Television producer Bruce Geller sued Paramount Pictures Monday for breach of contract, contending the studio owes him back pay for the "Mannix" and "Mission Impossible" series.

Geller said Paramount violated a 1972 agreement that gave him credit and a percentage of the profits from the series even if he was not actively involved in the programs.

Geller said Paramount has made at least $3 million from the programs, but has refused to pay him according to their agreement.

MENNINGER IS ILL

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Psychiatrist Karl Menninger is seriously ill from the effects of a brain tumor, a spokesman for the Menninger Foundation said Tuesday.

Menninger previously was listed in satisfactory condition at Stormont-Vail Hospital.

It was the first time any Menninger or hospital spokesman disclosed the existence of the tumor, believed to be responsible for the 82-year-old doctor's partial loss of hearing and reoccuring dizziness.

"The attending physicians of Dr. Menninger have stated their conclusion that he is neurologically and medically seriously ill from the effects of a long recognized tumor of the VIII cranial nerve," said spokesman Don Richards. "Intensive treatment and management plans are under way."

Menninger, chairman and founder of the Menninger Foundation, entered the hospital this month for an operation to drain fluid from the brain. The operation was designed to relieve pressure doctors thought was causing his dizzy spells.

WENATCHEE, Wash. (UPI) — Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., asked how the Democratic left would view his opposition to busing, dismissed such radicals as of no importance in the party.

"Well, the left-wing has no real standing in the Democratic party," Jackson said Tuesday. "That's what caused them to face the disastrous effects of 1972. I think that speaks for itself."

In a position paper issued this week, Jackson reiterated his opposition to school busing. He said he would seek curbs on the power of federal courts to order busing as a means of achieving racially balanced schools.

RANDALL TO RETIRE

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI) — Rep. William Randall, D-Mo., announced Tuesday he will not seek re-election next year to the Congressional seat he has held for 16 years.

"The Randall dictum emphasizes that there are two types of retirement," said Randall, 66. "One is voluntary and the other is involuntary. In my own case, I am going out of Congress not because I have to go but because I prefer to go."

Randall said he suffered a hypertension problem last year but that his health now is excellent. He said he is leaving Congress to practice law.

Randall took office Feb. 4, 1959, filling the unexpired term of George Christopher, who died in office. Before that he was a county judge for seven terms.

During his 16 years in Congress, Randall served on the Veterans Affairs, Interior, Science and Aeronautics, Government Operations and Armed Services House committees.

DRIVE-IN CUSTOMER

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Christie Coffin, 32, went into a gift shop suddenly — because she had a heavy leg.

The University of California lecturer on architecture was wearing a cast on her leg and, while trying to park her car, got her foot stuck on the accelerator.

Her car crashed through a front window. Four persons were eating lunch in the shop at the time but none was hurt.

"Pictures were bouncing off the wall when the car crashed through the building and plowed into the lamp and rug department," Henry Lowe, one of the four inside, said.

FORD'S SON WANTS HORSE JOB

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Steven Ford, the President's 19-year-old son, is dropping out of Utah State University.

Steven, an outdoorsman, is hoping to find a parttime job in California raising horses while also going to school there.

Sheila Weidenfeld, Mrs. Ford's press secretary, said Tuesday Steven will head for Southern California Jan. 3 and look for work.

No Women Served at Bar

LONDON (UPI) — Maggie Brittain bellied up to the El Vino wine bar to claim her newfound rights and ran smack into 96 years of tradition.

All she wanted was a round of drinks for her female friends.

She got nowhere.

Paul Bracken, manager of the bar on Fleet Street, said she would have to sit at a table before he would serve her.

After a lengthy argument, Miss Brittain, chairman of the National Union of Journalists' Equality Working Party, left with her three friends.

"This has been a ludicrous, pathetic and pitiful exhibition of mindless prejudice," she said. "We shall lay a complaint at a county court and claim damages."

For bar owner C. Mitchell, it was simply a matter of tradition.

"We are maintaining our standards and traditions. The rule that women must sit down was introduced for purely chivalrous reasons," he said.

"When ladies were ladies they would never dream of standing at a bar by themselves and drinking."

The Sex Discrimination Act, passed by Parliament, took effect Monday and guarantees women precisely equal treatment with men, particularly in such areas as pay, working conditions and job opportunities. Violators can be fined up to $800.

And of course there were the jokes.

Some suggested calling the Queen "Throneperson Elizabeth II," renaming Manchester, changing the law of succession to give Princess Anne an equal crack at the throne and doing something about the Isle of Man.

The Equal Pay Act, passed in 1970 but delayed until now to give employers time to comply, requires that men and women doing the same job get the same pay.

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK

Journalists throughout the world today are undoubtedly recapping 1975, and projecting the future of 1976.

In keeping with these reports, I should like to assess the utility room beat.

DAYTIME TELEVISION: In 1975, 78 million housewives were lured from their domestic chores each week by 72 game shows, 60 soap serials, and such provocative TV teasers as, "Dancing Bear can't get the Captain's sweater to stay on the hook."

Projection: The coming year is one of the most challenging for daytime TV. Losses of contestants whose EKGs aren't "up" to winning the car will be high. Also, there is reportedly a shortage of diseases, which have been consumed by soap heroes and heroines at the rate of six a day. Look for new maladies, such as congenital dandruff and embarrassing itching.

ECONOMY: A Tupperware party started last year in this country every ten seconds. There are 317 million people who are Total Tupperware families; that is, men and women in the business of selling Tupperware together.

Projection: Next year, we will begin to feel the influence of Tupperware. Look for movies, "Gidget Goes Plastic," sports classics in the Burp-Proof Storage Bowl, seminars on "Is there plastic after death?" and young people going into TM (Tupperware Merchandising).

BOOKS: Housewives spent $36 million last year on How To Save Money books. Leading the list of best sellers were: How To Dress a Chicken In a Basic Weekender Wardrobe (Rancid Press, $12.95), "How To Perform Home Surgery Using Notions and Remnants" (13 illustrations, Payne Publishers, $13.95), and How To Build Your Own Summer Cabin Using Scraps You Ripped Off From The Lumber Yard (Choates & Choates, $16.95).

Projection: There will be a rebirth of nostalgia; namely the how-to books on sex that were popular in the early 1970s. These were less expensive and utilized the materials at hand.

STATUS: A walloping 49 per cent of American housewives returned to the labor market in 1975, on either a full or part-time basis.

Projection: During the next five years it is estimated that the age of a child feeding and dressing itself and making a bed may be lowered to 12 years old. Look for disposable children, wash and wear husbands, and wives who fall asleep in front of the TV set.

Brando Land Clear

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The land Marlon Brando gave to an Indian group belongs to the Indians clear of debts, Brando's lawyer said Tuesday.

The actor, known for his support of Indian movements, donated 40 acres near Agoura, just north of Los Angeles, to the Survival of American Indians Association a year ago. After the Indians took possession of the land with tribal ceremonies, it was discovered that there was a $318,000 mortgage on it, held by the family that sold the land to Brando.

The note was due Tuesday. If it had not been paid, the land would have reverted to the previous owners.

Brando's attorney, Lawrence Kartiganer, confirmed that the mortage had been paid by certified check last week and a clear title was given to the Indian association.

Kartiganer would not say whether Brando personally paid off the mortgage or whether others were involved. Brando "saw to it" that the money was paid and the Indians got the land, he said.

MERGER REJECTED

DUBUQUE, Iowa (UPI) — Dr. David W. Preus, the president of the American Lutheran Church, has ruled out the immediate possibility of merger between his denomination and the Lutheran Church in America but said he is open to increased cooperation between the two Lutheran bodies.

Angola Forces Appeal For Military Assistance

SILVA PORTO, Angola (UPI) — Pro-Western forces battling Soviet-backed rivals for supremacy in Angola have appealed to the United States to restore the military aid cut off by the Senate two weeks ago.

Officials of the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola and the National Front for the Liberation of Angola concluded a New Year's review of the year-long civil war with a call for the Senate to reverse its decision.

The Senate, fearing the United States might be drawn into a Vietnam-like war in Africa, voted to cut off covert aid to the pro-Western forces in the former Portuguese colony.

Jorge Sangumba, an official of the Union for the Total Independence of Angola, said Western nations were unreliable friends.

"Many African diplomats have told us that it is now safer to identify with the USSR because when you expect Western nations to help, they don't," he said.

"The United States is just waking up to the Russian threat in this part of the world. We are still hopeful that President Ford and Congress will see the writing on the wall before it is too late."

The Organization for African Unity has scheduled an emergency conference in Ethiopia Jan. 10 in an effort to reconcile the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola with its two rivals.

At the same time, the Popular Movement is believed preparing a new offensive with fresh Cuban support troops and with air attacks by a newly assembled squadron of MIG21 jet fighters based at the seaside capital of Luanda.

The civil war intensified after Portugal pulled out of the colony Nov. 11.

(In South Africa, Premier John Vorster also joined the appeal to the West to help offset the increasing Soviet influence in southern Africa.

(South African military sources said Vorster has been analyzing Pretoria's own Angola strategy and may decide to pull out the South African troops fighting on the antiSoviet side before the OAU summit.

(Since the Senate decision, South African government sources said Pretoria does not want to bear alone the burden of defending the West's sea oil routes they believe are threatened by the new Soviet presence in the South Atlantic.)

Hughes Phones Code

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — The call came at a public telephone booth just two minutes after schedule. The man picked up the phone and answered: "0622."

Then he wrote down "TX17498KL," hung up, and drove away in a battered seven-year-old car.

The mysterious message, said Grover Walker, came from billionaire Howard Hughes and contained coded instructions for Walker to follow concerning a lawsuit filed in Albuquerque.

A judge earlier this week dismissed the suit, filed by Richard Hughes, 30, who claimed to be the illegitimate son of the reclusive billionaire. He told the court he communicated with Howard Hughes via a radio transmitter surgically implanted in his head.

A statement provided the court as possible evidence of Richard Hughes' claim was purportedly signed by Howard Hughes and admitted he had fathered the younger man. But District Judge Philip Baiamonte refused to accept the statement and said a personal appearance by Hughes would be required.

Walker, of Las Vegas, Nev., told the court he was the personal representative of Howard Hughes. He said he was to get further instructions from Hughes through a call to the public booth Wednesday.

At the appointed hour, Walker, accompanied by a reporter, was at the booth and the call came in. The call, complete with coded message, took four seconds.

Beirut Crash Kills 82

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Twisted metal and piles of sand have prevented rescuers from recovering 27 bodies from the tail section of a Lebanese airliner that crashed in the desert, killing 82 persons.

The Middle East Airlines Boeing 720 airliner went down Thursday 100 miles west of Kuwait airport in the diamond-shaped neutral zone between Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Iraq.

It was the first air disaster of 1976 and the first for the privately owned airlines in 12 years.

The plane, carrying 67 passengers and a crew of 15, was on a scheduled flight from Beirut to the Persian Gulf state of Dubai and Muscat.

Rescue teams from Saudi Arabia and Kuwait rushed to the scene by helicopter but by nightfall had recovered only 55 of the bodies. The other 27 remained trapped in the tail section of the plane that split into three parts on impact.

The MEA spokesman said the rest of the bodies would be recovered by a team of Lebanese investigators sent to the crash crash site today to try to determine the cause of the air disaster.

Among the passengers were four Britons, six Greeks, one Norwegian, one Cypriot and 11 children. Most of the other passengers were Lebanese, Jordanian or Egyptians. There were no Americans aboard. The three pilots and 12 cabin attendants were Lebanese.

Flight 438 was supposed to have left Beirut Airport Wednesday night but mechanical problems with a Boeing 747 jumbo jet forced a nine-hour delay and the substitution of the Boeing 720, an MEA spokesman said.

It finally took off at 2:10 a.m. carrying 36 passengers from Beirut and 31 who were continuing a trip from London, Paris, Athens and Cairo.

Mexican Sailors Round

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (UPI) — Twenty-one Mexican sailors, tired and hungry after bouncing around in the Atlantic for 72 hours without food, received a hot meal today and bedded down at Coast Guard stations.

"They were they happiest bunch of people you ever saw," said a Coast Guard spokesman as the men, three each from seven 48-foot trawlers, arrived in the quieter waters of Pamlico Sound.

"They weren't sick. They just couldn't prepare anything."

The seven boats, owned by the Mexican government, set sail from a Norfolk, Va., shipyard Tuesday but became scattered and confused after the radio on the lead boat failed.

Winds rose to 35 knots and the boats were tossed about in Diamond Shoals by crisscrossing swells of up to 11 feet. Three lost power.

Thursday morning, lost and confused, they radioed for help and shot off a flare when they spotted Diamond Shoals light station.

They were rounded up by two 44-foot motor lifeboats, a cutter, a helicopter and a plane about 35 miles southeast of the Cape.

FTC Will Probe Retirement Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission today announced an investigation of the advertising and promotion of individual retirement accounts—pension plans for the estimated 40 million Americans not covered by regular retirement funds.

The announcement came shortly after a House subcommittee issued a warning that heavy year-end promotion of the savings accounts appeared to be afflicted with "puff" advertising which was not adequately informing consumers of possible pitfalls involved.

The plans were made possible by the Pension Reform Act of 1974. Under the law, individuals not covered by government or corporate pension plans, or included in any profit-sharing, thrift or stock-bonus plan, may set aside up to $1,500 per year and defer tax payments on such accounts or annuities when they retire.

In announcing the probe, the FTC said it was making no judgment on the matter but was merely making the investigation "within the limits of its jurisdiction" a matter of public record.

It said it wants to find out whether the "advertising and marketing violates the Federal Trade Commission Act" which bans false, unfair and deceptive advertising.

Americans Really Class Conscious

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Americans may not consider themselves class-conscious but they nevertheless have very clear ideas about social standing, a sociologist says.

Richard Coleman, a senior research associate at the Harvard-MIT Joint Center for Urban Studies, interviewed 900 persons in 1971-72. One-third of his sample said they wished persons would not judge each other on income and class.

"These same people had a ball talking about those hideous people on welfare, having kids and getting drunk all the time," he said.

He said his study, now being edited into a book called "Social Standing in America," may explain public reaction to some issues.

"To the extent the public says it wants New York to default, they really want the city to default on the high salaries paid to garbagemen and policemen," Coleman said.

Coleman found individuals classed each other into seven economic and social layers, and those in the top class made further distinctions.

The groups, and their approximate 1975 incomes, were:

Success elite — $50,000.

Doing very well — $40,000.

Good Life U.S.A, middle American style — $20,000.

Comfortable — $15,000.

Getting along — $9,500.

Having a hard time — $6,000.

Poverty — up to $5,700.

"To an extent, people think they react to one another on an economic basis alone," he said.

"But, when they talk about it, they rate each other on intensely personal behavior items — how they use the money they have."

Coleman conducted 30 interviews to find out how people in the success elite, about 3 per cent of the population, viewed each other. He found they grouped themselves based on family and social grace as well as income.

The groups were the upper upper class or social register world — about 10 per cent of the top group — the lower upper class or newly rich and the upper middle elite or professional managerial class.

Although the upper upper class tend to have higher incomes, the real difference is "they are in the best clubs. They came out of the right wombs, went to the right schools, have pretty faces, shoot a good game of golf."

The managerial class, he said, may be doing well financially but they have no social standing.

"Labor union leaders, or Mafia people may be doing that well financially, but they are viewed as a working class elite. They are not even upper middle class."

Hints from Heloise

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Christmas is right around the corner and I would like to pass on a few suggestions someone might use.

We confine our decorations to the living room, dining room and halls, but why not have a "Merry, Merry Kitchen?"

This year I made a wreath and a big Santa Claus and put them on my kitchen doors.

Looking at Santa really gave me a big lift.

I also put little Santas and a snowman, made out of felt, on my cupboard doors and my refrigerator. If you are not artistically inclined, they can be purchased at most stores.

Even scenes from Christmas cards are pretty and brighten up the kitchen.

For my kitchen table I made a simple centerpiece out of pine cones and ribbons and placed a candle inside.

Just use your imagination and see how pretty your kitchen looks this Christmas.

Mrs. Dave Galliher

* * *

What a beautiful idea! After all, the kitchen is where we will be spending a lot of our time so let's pamper ourselves a little bit.

Besides, it'll give the family a big lift too, I betcha!

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Cut anything pertaining to Christmas from your Christmas cards (candy canes, dolls, Santa's face and trees) and paste to a felt skirt for use under your Christmas tree.

You can use glitter or sequins to decorate them even further.

You can make this in a hurry and it is very inexpensive.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

Tried your hint about leaving clothes on the line over night. Loved it!

They smelled so sweet and the ones that needed ironing were just damp enough without any dampening.

Worked fine until a bird spotted a sheet. I had to take it down and wash it over.

Oh well, I'm sure glad cows can't fly...

A Heloise Fan

* * *

Dear Heloise:

Parsley flakes are expensive so I buy fresh parsley, wash it well, and put in a colander to drain. Then I spread the parsley in a pan and place the pan in the oven for a few days, turning them over once in a while.

When dry, I crumble them up, stems and all, and put in a jar.

I did the same thing with basil and mint.

Mrs. Ernest Spinelle

* * *

Really works, but there is absolutely all the difference in the world in drying parsley in the oven and in the refrigerator. Just spread the sprigs of parsley on paper towels and place in the refrigerator for a week or more. It will crumble to touch and it stays a gorgeous green.

Also try freezing parsley to keep it fresh. Just put the parsley flowers in an empty ice cube tray, fill it with water and freeze like ice cubes.

When you want fresh parsley, take a cube out and put it in a glass of warm water. Your parsley will be as green and fresh as the day you bought it.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Here's a suggestion for that present you take to a wedding.

Leave on the price tag as it usually has the name of the store where you bought the merchandise. Then just remove the part of the tag that has the price on it.

In this way the newlyweds will know where their present came from if they find the need to return it.

FINGER LICKIN'?

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — A libel suit filed against Col. Harland Sanders, founder and white-bearded trademark of the Kentucky Fried Chicken Corp., was ordered dismissed Monday in Jefferson Circuit Court.

In dismissing the suit filed by one of the company's franchise outlets in Bowling Green, Ky., Judge Thomas Ballentine held it was not libeled by comments attributed to Sanders by the Louisville Times and Courier-Journal newspapers.

They quoted him as saying the gravy sold in Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurants is like "wallpaper paste." He also was quoted as saying the company's "crispy chicken" product is "nothing but a fried doughball wrapped around some chicken."

Sanders no longer has any part in the operation of Kentucky Fried Chicken, except in a public relations capacity that involves extensive traveling.

SPILLANE SPLIT

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Detective novelist Mickey Spillane was sued for divorce Monday by his wife, Sheri, to end their 11-year marriage.

Mrs. Spillane cited irreconcilable differences as grounds for her suit in Superior Court.

The couple separated last month. They have no children.

TOO MUCH FRANK

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., was sued Monday for allegedly abusing his franking privilege.

The suit was brought by Rep. Alphonzo Bell, a candidate for the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate.

Bell said Tunney's selective mailing in August and September of a newsletter that contained "laudatory and complimentary" accounts of the Senator violated federal law covering franking privileges.

The congressman said the newsletter was paid by Tunney's re-election campaign while the mailings were sent at public expense.

MEIR MOURNS U.N.

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The resolution branding Zionism as a form of racism bodes ill for the future of the United Nations and not Israel, former Israeli prime minister Golda Meir said at a fund-raising dinner for Israel.

"If I am pessimistic is not for the future of Israel but for the future of the United Nations," she said.

The dinner raised more than $1.5 million from the audience, including one family that donated $150,000 and another that gave $125,000. Mrs. Meir gave special thanks to Mayor Ralph Perk, who pledged $1,000, and Teamsters Union leader Jackie Presser, who pledged $25,000.

MISSION: BACKPAY

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Television producer Bruce Geller sued Paramount Pictures Monday for breach of contract, contending the studio owes him back pay for the "Mannix" and "Mission Impossible" series.

Geller said Paramount violated a 1972 agreement that gave him credit and a percentage of the profits from the series even if he was not actively involved in the programs.

Geller said Paramount has made at least $3 million from the programs but has refused to pay him according to their agreement.

MENNINGER IS ILL

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Psychiatrist Karl Menninger is seriously ill from the effects of a brain tumor, a spokesman for the Menninger Foundation said Tuesday.

Menninger previously was listed in satisfactory condition at Stormont-Vail Hospital.

It was the first time any Menninger or hospital spokesman disclosed the existence of the tumor, believed to be responsible for the 82-year-old doctor's partial loss of hearing and reoccuring dizziness.

"The attending physicians of Dr. Menninger have stated their conclusion that he is neurologically and medically seriously ill from the effects of a long recognized tumor of the VIII cranial nerve," said spokesman Don Richards. "Intensive treatment and management plans are under way."

Menninger, chairman and founder of the Menninger Foundation, entered the hospital this month for an operation to drain fluid from the brain. The operation was designed to relieve pressure doctors thought was causing his dizzy spells.

WENATCHEE, Wash. (UPI) — Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., asked how the Democratic left would view his opposition to busing, dismissed such radicals as of no importance in the party.

"Well, the left-wing has no real standing in the Democratic party," Jackson said Tuesday. "That's what caused them to face the disastrous effects of 1972, I think that speaks for itself."

In a position paper issued this week, Jackson reiterated his opposition to school busing. He said he would seek curbs on the power of federal courts to order busing as a means of achieving racially balanced schools.

RANDALL TO RETIRE

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI) — Rep. William Randall, D-Mo., announced Tuesday he will not seek re-election next year to the Congressional seat he has held for 16 years.

"The Randall dictum emphasizes that there are two types of retirement," said Randall, 66. "One is voluntary and the other is involuntary. In my own case, I am going out of Congress not because I have to go but because I prefer to go."

Randall said he suffered a hypertension problem last year but that his health now is excellent. He said he is leaving Congress to practice law.

Randall took office Feb. 4, 1959, filling the unexpired term of George Christopher, who died in office. Before that he was a county judge for seven terms.

During his 16 years in Congress, Randall served on the Veterans Affairs, Interior, Science and Aeronautics, Government Operations and Armed Services House committees.

DRIVE-IN CUSTOMER

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Christie Coffin, 32, went into a gift shop suddenly — because she had a heavy leg.

The University of California lecturer on architecture was wearing a cast on her leg and, while trying to park her car, got her foot stuck on the accelerator.

Her car crashed through a front window. Four persons were eating lunch in the shop at the time but none was hurt.

"Pictures were bouncing off the wall when the car crashed through the building and plowed into the lamp and rug department," Henry Lowe, one of the four inside, said.

FORD'S SON WANTS HORSE JOB

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Steven Ford, the President's 19-year-old son, is dropping out of Utah State University.

Steven, an outdoorsman, is hoping to find a parttime job in California raising horses while also going to school there.

Sheila Weidenfeld, Mrs. Ford's press secretary, said Tuesday Steven will head for Southern California Jan. 3 and look for work.

Young Taste Poverty

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Young Southern Baptists had an actual taste of poverty Tuesday — and they didn't enjoy it.

They began a religious meeting by sampling gruel, the sustenance for than 460 million persons around the world.

"Ugh," said one young coed. "It's awful. The texture, the taste. Ugh."

The youths, attending Freedom '76, a bicentennial project sponsored by the Southern Baptist Convention, tried the bland, yellowish porridge at the request of a minister who requested them to forgo one meal per day.

In addition to offering the soy-corn blend, Dr. Jimmy R. Allen, pastor of San Antonio's First Baptist Church, said the youths should give up a meal every Tuesday and donate the monetary equivalent to the poor and hungry.

The minister said 30 per cent would be retained to combat hunger in San Antonio, 30 per cent would go for hunger in other parts of the United States and 40 per cent for world hunger.

He also asked the conventioners to "fight for the kind of changes that will give someone the right to live," refering to two Congressional resolutions which "make the right to food a basic cornerstone of our foreign policy."

The last Confederate Army was surrendered near Durham, N.C.

No Women Served at Bar

LONDON (UPI) — Maggie Brittain bellied up to the El Vino wine bar to claim her newfound rights and ran smack into 96 years of tradition.

All she wanted was a round of drinks for her female friends.

She got nowhere.

Paul Bracken, manager of the bar on Fleet Street, said she would have to sit at a table before he would serve her.

After a lengthy argument, Miss Brittain, chairman of the National Union of Journalists' Equality Working Party, left with her three friends.

"This has been a ludicrous, pathetic and pitiful exhibition of mindless prejudice," she said. "We shall lay a complaint at a county court and claim damages."

For bar owner C. Mitchell, it was simply a matter of tradition.

"We are maintaining our standards and traditions. The rule that women must sit down was introduced for purely chivalrous reasons," he said.

"When ladies were ladies they would never dream of standing at a bar by themselves and drinking."

The Sex Discrimination Act, passed by Parliament, took effect Monday and guarantees women precisely equal treatment with men, particularly in such areas as pay, working conditions and job opportunities. Violators can be fined up to $800.

And of course there were the jokes.

Some suggested calling the Queen "Throneperson Elizabeth II," renaming Manchester, changing the law of succession to give Princess Anne an equal crack at the throne and doing something about the Isle of Man.

The Equal Pay Act, passed in 1970 but delayed until now to give employers time to comply, requires that men and women doing the same job get the same pay.

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK

Journalists throughout the world today are undoubtedly recapping 1975, and projecting the future of 1976.

In keeping with these reports, I should like to assess the utility room beat.

DAYTIME TELEVISION: In 1975, 78 million housewives were lured from their domestic chores each week by 72 game shows, 60 soap serials, and such provocative TV teasers as, "Dancing Bear can't get the Captain's sweater to stay on the hook."

Projection: The coming year is one of the most challenging for daytime TV. Losses of contestants whose EKGs aren't "up" to winning the car will be high. Also, there is reportedly a shortage of diseases, which have been consumed by soap heroes and heroines at the rate of six a day. Look for new maladies, such as congenital dandruff and embarrassing itching.

ECONOMY: A Tupperware party started last year in this country every ten seconds. There are 317 million people who are Total Tupperware families; that is, men and women in the business of selling Tupperware together.

Projection: Next year, we will begin to feel the influence of Tupperware. Look for movies, "Gidget Goes Plastic," sports classics in the Burp-Proof Storage Bowl, seminars on "Is there plastic after death?" and young people going into TM (Tupperware Merchandising).

BOOKS: Housewives spent $36 million last year on How To Save Money books. Leading the list of best sellers were: How To Dress a Chicken In a Basic Weekender Wardrobe (Rancid Press, $12.95), "How To Perform Home Surgery Using Notions and Remnants" (13 illustrations, Payne Publishers, $13.95), and How To Build Your Own Summer Cabin Using Scraps You Ripped Off From The Lumber Yard (Choates & Choates, $16.95).

Projection: There will be a rebirth of nostalgia; namely the how-to books on sex that were popular in the early 1970s. These were less expensive and utilized the materials at hand.

STATUS: A walloping 49 per cent of American housewives returned to the labor market in 1975, on either a full or part-time basis.

Projection: During the next five years it is estimated that the age of a child feeding and dressing itself and making a bed may be lowered to 12 years old. Look for disposable children, wash and wear husbands, and wives who fall asleep in front of the TV set.

Brando Land Clear

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The land Marlon Brando gave to an Indian group belongs to the Indians clear of debts, Brando's lawyer said Tuesday.

The actor, known for his support of Indian movements, donated 40 acres near Agoura, just north of Los Angeles, to the Survival of American Indians Association a year ago. After the Indians took possession of the land with tribal ceremonies, it was discovered that there was a $318,000 mortgage on it, held by the family that sold the land to Brando.

The note was due Tuesday. If it had not been paid, the land would have reverted to the previous owners.

Brando's attorney, Lawrence Kartiganer, confirmed that the mortage had been paid by certified check last week and a clear title was given to the Indian association.

Kartiganer would not say whether Brando personally paid off the mortgage or whether others were involved. Brando "saw to it" that the money was paid and the Indians got the land, he said.

MERGER REJECTED

DUBUQUE, Iowa (UPI) — Dr. David W. Preus, the president of the American Lutheran Church, has ruled out the immediate possibility of merger between his denomination and the Lutheran Church in America but said he is open to increased cooperation between the two Lutheran bodies.

Grain Inspectors Hired

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Officials say 31 federal inspectors will be hired for the Port of New Orleans to combat short-weighing, misgrading and other questionable practices, bringing the inspection staff to more than twice its size last year.

Harlan Ryan, head of the Agriculture Department inspection division for the port, said Thursday the 31 inspectors would be hired at a base annual salary of $13,500 and would be part of a 200-man nationwide expansion of the federal grain inspection staff.

Ryan said 49 federal inspectors were now working in the area, up from a low of 35 in midsummer. In addition, 10 inspectors have been temporarily assigned to New Orleans from other areas to help with the scheduling changes.

Ryan said the additions would mean more ships, loading more grain, would be inspected more thoroughly than in the past. He said a controversial new seven-day work schedule would also mean supervision on weekends where there had been none.

"There's an increased workload, plus we are stepping up our supervision somewhat," he said. "Elevators have always operated on a seven day a week schedule loading, but we haven't always had the supervision."

But the inspectors' union, annoyed with the workload and the new schedule, has complained to the National Labor Relations Board.

The union says men have been required to work excessive overtime, and calls implementation of the new schedule an unfair labor practice. The schedule will require inspectors to work 10 days in a row before getting four days off, with two on call.

The union says inspectors have worked as many as 21½ hours consecutively during the peak grain loading periods recently — and the two men who worked the 21½ hour shift reported back to work about three hours later.

The hiring of new inspectors follows allegations and indictments charging systematic short-weighting and misgrading of grain by some of the nation's leading exporters. Fifty-three firms and individuals were indicted in the scandals in 1975, and many pleaded guilty.

Prosecutors said the investigation was continuing, and U.S. Attorney Gerald Gallinghouse told a Senate hearing that more charges could be expected in New Orleans and elsewhere.

'Save Money, Release Inmates'

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Paul F. Cromwell Jr., sworn in Tuesday to the state Board of Pardons and Paroles, says he feels the state could save money — and men — by releasing harmless inmates early and putting them under the supervision of qualified parole officers.

In remarks following the swearing in ceremonies, Cromwell, 33, said hundreds of inmates do not represent a threat to society and that if the state had sufficient parole officers to supervise them they could be useful citizens.

"Not everyone in prison should be out, but there are a great number there who would present no danger to society," Cromwell said. "If you consider the number of people in prison who could be on parole, you can see it could save the state a great deal of money.

"For every parolee who commits a crime, there are thousands who are not committing crimes and who are productive members of society. Our successes are always anonymous, and it is a human factor to make a great deal of the ones who fail."

Cromwell said it costs about $350 a year to supervise a parolee, and about $1,600 a year to keep an inmate in prison.

He replaces Paul G. Shandera on the three man board. Shandera has taken a position as parole commissioner at Huntsville, a post formerly held by Cromwell.

Cromwell said the parole system often comes under attack because new crimes are committed by persons who are on parole. He said personal interviews conducted by parole commissioners with inmates have greatly improved the Texas parole system.

Cromwell was asked his opinion on the death penalty.

"Morally, ethically, intellectually and academically I believe it is wrong," he said.

Snowmobilers Save Six Crash Victims

SALIDA, Colo. (UPI) — Jack Lewallan and his two sons wanted to get away from the holiday rush and appreciate the view from the 13,000-foot high Tincup Pass. They had no idea they would become heroes.

Lewallan, 48, of Buena Vista, Colo., and his two sons — Harvey and Danny — were snowmobiling Wednesday when they thought they heard a cry for help.

"We got up there and just happened to shut our machines off," said Lewallan, a 48-year-old heavy equipment operator. "It was snowing real hard and we didn't have any idea there was anybody up there."

The Lewallans followed the cries and located the wreckage of a light plane which had gone down the night before on a flight from Marshalltown, Iowa, to Las Vegas, Nev. All six persons on board were hurt, but alive.

"It gave us a weird feeling," said Lewallan. "It was just kind of weird to be up there at the timberline with all that snow and to find someone yelling for help."

Lewallan's sons stayed with the victims while their father drove the snowmobile six miles to the nearest house to use a citizen's band radio to call for help.

"I tell you, it was a pretty good way to start off the new year. It felt good to help them," said Danny Lewallan, 26, who was vactioning with his father from Winona, Kan.

"We couldn't get our snowmobiles in there so we had to walk about a quarter mile in snow up to our waist. Then we still didn't see the wreckage until we got right up on it.

"The wings were torn off," he said. "The only part of the plane you could recognize was the fuselage and it was upside down and wrapped around a pine tree."

A spokesman at Salida Hospital said all six victims were resting comfortably today, but could not be disturbed. They were identified as Ed Boston, 33, of Marshalltown his wife, Joanne; his brother, Dale, and sister-in-law, Deanna, of Haverhill, Iowa,; and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Coulthard of Marshalltown.

"The plane refueled in Kansas City and they didn't file a flight plan," said Deputy Ernie Morgan. "En route to Las Vegas they encountered heavy turbulence, lost altitude, hit a tree and crashed into the moutain upside down."

Immigration Orders Israeli Ship Out

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The U.S. Immigration Department has ordered the 27 officers and men aboard the Israeli-owned ship M.S. Niuta to leave the ship by Jan. 6 because the vessel has been stalled in its Mississippi River anchorage for three weeks by rebellious crewmen.

The order removed the need for a hearing in Federal District Court on a suit filed by the owners, Tanker Services Ltd. of Israel, seeking to force the entire Israeli crew, including the master, off the ship.

"The Immigration Department has issued an order that all men leave the ship by Jan. 6," James B. Kemp Jr., attorney for Tanker Services, said Tuesday night. "As a result, the judge has canceled the hearing."

"It looks as though the Immigration Department has solved the problem," Kemp said. "It looks like we got what we wanted."

Earlier in the week Kemp had filed suit alleging "certain disciplinary problems began to exist on the ship" after it departed Rotterdam on a voyage to Pascagoula, Miss. It said five crewmen called a strike after arrival at Pascagoula but later postponed the dispute until the next port.

On Dec. 8 the ship arrived at Burnside, La., about 70 miles up the Mississippi River from New Orleans, where the same five crewmen again went on strike and threatened violence against anyone who attempted to moor the ship or assist in loading her cargo, the suit alleged.

The second strike call led to a complete breakdown of discipline, with members of the officer's union and other unions refusing to work the ship if members of either union remained aboard, the suit said.

Tanker Services had offered to pay off the original five strikers and fly them home to Israel to arbitrate the dispute. The offer later was extended to the entire crew but was rejected in both cases.

Marries Girl in Coma

ROMFORD, England (UPI) — A beautiful blonde, in a coma and near death, went through a bedside "marriage" ceremony Tuesday with the man who loves her.

Linzi Featherstonhaugh, 24, was on her way to a Christmas Eve meeting with her fiance, Reginald Nightingale, when her car crashed just outside Nightingale's home.

Linzi was rushed to Oldchurch Hospital in Romford, but has been in a deep coma ever since.

Nightingale was determined to go through with their intended marriage.

"I'm sure she knew what was happening," Nightingale said. "A tear trickled down her cheek as I put the ring on."

Protests Torture of Doctor

LONDON (UPI) — Britain has recalled its ambassador to Chile to protest the alleged torture of a British surgeon who says she was beaten, tied naked to a bed and tormented with electric shocks for treating a leftist guerrilla leader.

Dr. Sheila Cassidy, 37, returned to London Tuesday after almost two months of captivity in Santiago. She said she now plans to become a nun.

Dr. Cassidy was met at the airport by Ted Rowlands, a British Foreign Office official who announced that Britain had recalled Reginald Seconde, its ambassador to Britain. He left for London Tuesday.

Rowlands also said Britain would deliver an official protest to Chile and refer the matter with the United Nations Human Rights Committee.

The Chilean embassy in London denied the allegations.

Dr. Cassidy said she was arrested Nov. 1 in a police raid on friend's house where she was treating a sick nun.

She said the police questioned her about a wounded man accused of being an urban guerrilla leader on whom she performed surgery for gunshot wounds last October.

She said they resorted to torture to try and make her reveal the whereabouts of "the leader," although she said she had no idea where he actually was.

"They drove me to what I assumed to be one of their houses of torture," she said. "After a brief questioning I was submitted to electric shock. I was tied to a bed. It was total body shock."

She said Chilean security police "ripped off all my clothes" and "told me that this could go on and on until I talked." She declined to tell more, saying "I don't want it to seem like lurid, sexy details."

She said the police also beat her "but not enough to show any real marks."

Dr. Cassidy said she was eventually sent to solitary confinment in a jail outside Santiago. There she was visited by a man who tried to hypnotize her "to make me forget the torture," she said.

"It went on for about an hour with a light focused on me. I pretended to be convinced that I had not been tortured," she said.

Dr. Cassidy, who had lived for four years in Chile, said she spent most of her time in solitary praying.

MAJOR DECLINE

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — World cotton production during 1975-76 will suffer its first major decline since World War II, Cotton, Inc., said in a recent publication.

The cotton organization said the production drop will probably result in increased demand, and higher prices for existing cotton supplies.

Child May Sue Parent

BOSTON (UPI) — The Massachusetts Supreme Court says a child can sue his negligent parent for personal injuries sustained in a car accident.

The decision, which said the amount of damages cannot exceed the parent's auto insurance coverage, overturned the doctrine of parental immunity in automobile fault cases.

"We believe that an absolute parental immunity to actions in negligence is not consistent with contemporary conditions and is no longer required by the necessities of modern family life," the court said in its decision Monday.

The decision involved Jessica Sorenson, now 6, of Peabody, who was paralyzed from the chest down after a car crash in May 1971. Her father, Paul, was driving. The child's mother, Linda, filed to recover $10,000 from an insurance policy for her daughter's injuries.

Citing the parental immunity doctrine, a lower court found in favor of the father.

Focus '76: Australia Moves Right

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — With Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser in the driver's seat, Australia's new conservative coalition government will veer sharply to the right.

Fraser's landslide election victory on Dec. 13 over deposed Prime Minister Gough Whitelam, leader of the Australian Labor Party, gave the millionaire conservative considerable clout.

At the helm of his Liberal Party, which is not at all liberal and is aligned with the rural-based National Country Party, the millionaire farmer is expected to implement staunchly conservative policies.

Fraser, 45, a six-feet six-inch master politician who was a fervent supporter of American involvement during the Indochina War, has promised to slash the national budget by $1.3 billion and provide tax cuts for business.

His promises of incentives and subsidies for business and rural interests went down well with conservatives, who had held power for 23 consecutive years until the labor-supported Whitlam government took over three years ago.

Charging "shameful waste", Fraser also has promised to cut back on welfare spending and his government no doubt will curtail budget allocations and services.

He is not expected to abolish such major programs as Medibank, which along with some other Whitlam programs have become too widely accepted to be abolished altogether.

Fraser sees his major task as improving the Australian economy.

This nation of 13 million persons who live in an area only slightly smaller than the United States has an inflation rate of 15 per cent and 400,000 unemployed.

There are fears in some quarters that the Fraser victory could plunge Australia into a major labor crisis and sabotage chances for economic recovery.

Whitlam had persuaded unions to accept a policy of wage indexation, a system that automatically adjusts wages to changes in the cost of living.

Some unionists say wage indexation is finished. If it is, so too could be chances for industrial peace.

Fraser, who wants closer relations with the United States, fears the Soviet naval buildup in the Indian Ocean and will reverse the Whitlam policy which opposed the establishment of a U.S. naval base on the island of Diego Garcia.

Fraser is expected soon to visit Peking and Tokyo, then Washington.

He wants to assure Peking that Australian policy toward China will not change although the government has swung to the right.

The Japanese will want Fraser to outline his policy on Japanese participation in minerals development and on his government's protection against Japanese imports, particularly motor vehicles.

Fraser is expected to boost Australia's defense spending by about 4 per cent.

He probably would view with disfavor purchases of military equipment from European sources if competitive equipment can be bought from the United States.

Fraser believes that the main potential danger in this part of the world is the growing competition between China and the Soviet Union.

He sees this vast nation as living on the edge of Asia rather than being a part of it.

By pressing for U. S. withdrawal from Korea at this stage, China could be creating conditions for a new conflict.

Some diplomats specializing in Asian affairs believe that an abrupt American withdrawal might embolden North Korea to step up subversive activities in South Korea and increase external pressures to a point that would bring South Korean retaliation—and a new war.

Though less vocal than China, the Soviet Union also backs demands for withdrawal of U.S. Forces from Korea. This could mean more militarily to the Soviets than to the Chinese. It would make Soviet naval operations out of Siberian ports and through the narrow straits between Japan and Korea less vulnerable. It also might give impetus to the Soviet campaign for an an "Asian Collective Security" arrangement.

But the Soviet Union also has a defense treaty with North Korea. Soviet leaders are well aware of the possible consequences if a change in the power picture on the Korean Peninsula changed drastically.

Because of these danger factors, the private positions of both Soviet and Chinese leaders vary considerably from their public statements, according to European leaders who have talked with officials in both Peking and Moscow in recent months about the Korean problem.

The deep concern expressed privately by Soviet and Chinese leaders and the apparent U.S. intention to maintain its commitment in Korea lead many Asian.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, JAN. 3

Your birthday today: As you confront natural limitations head on, something has to give. Part of that something is you: changing as you learn, discarding both real and figurative excess baggage and leaving behind old habits. Long-standing relationships improve; new ones are hard to establish. Today's natives adopt formidable goals, develop leadership qualities to get to them.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: You are your own best assistant. Friends promote strange financial theories; don't buy into any odd deals. Quit early. Too much partying is tiring.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Today marks the final stages of some long-standing problems in several personal enterprises. Events have a crisps, abrupt quality to them. Roll with changing conditions.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Stick close to regular places or work. Be alert for changes and a chance to profit from them. Assume responsibility for your own maneuvers.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Whatever your convictions, current happenings offer an opportunity to express them. Quiet actions speak louder than impulsive words. Search for records.

Leo [July 23-Aug 22]: Acquaintances are full of suggestions for fascinating speculative projects. At the risk of upsetting them, follow your own instincts.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Steady effort, even though scattered over several chores, yields better results than stop-and-start moves. A last-minute switch is no improvement.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Decisions are more easily reached than usual since today's episodes help you see the issues clearly. Consistent diligence helps. Relax tonight.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Look into legal details related to home and work. Don't do anything to anger anyone. Children require nothing more than gentle guidance.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Make do with what you have and hold. Make extra allowance for others' feelings, although they may not allow for yours. Take care of your health.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: An urge to create something new takes you outside of your habits. Try to soften your remarks. Review arrangements at home.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Explanations merely complicate matters, yet everyone demands one. Personal growth is encouraged by external conditions. Earnest study is beneficial.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: You feel you're being clear in expressing yourself only to find you've caused confusion. Keep things simple and direct, and stop when you're ahead.

Geese Flock Causes Light Plane Crash

STOCKTON, Calif. (UPI) — A light plane flew into a flock of geese and crashed into a field, killing a family of five, authorities said Monday.

Witnesses told investigators Sunday's crash occurred after the single-engine craft hit three geese at about 1,000 feet shortly after it took off from Stockton Metropolitan Airport en route to Walnut Creek, Calif.

Killed when the plane plunged into a freshly plowed field 10 miles west of Stockton were Leroy Higgins, 38, his wife, Karen, 31, their sons, Thomas, 9, Rolan, 5, and daughter, Genevieve, age one, all of Walnut Creek.

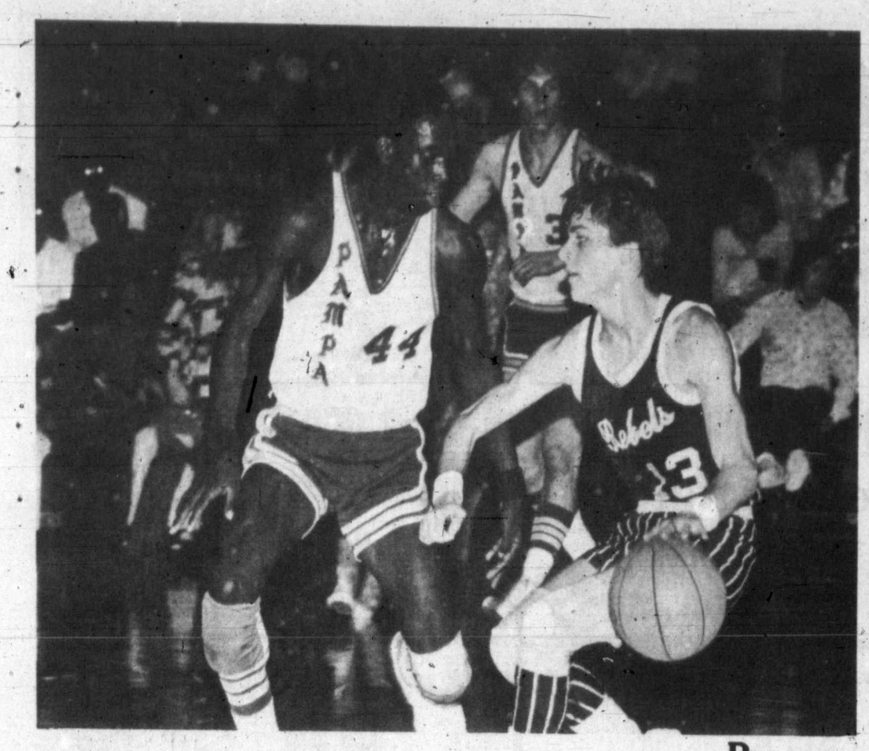
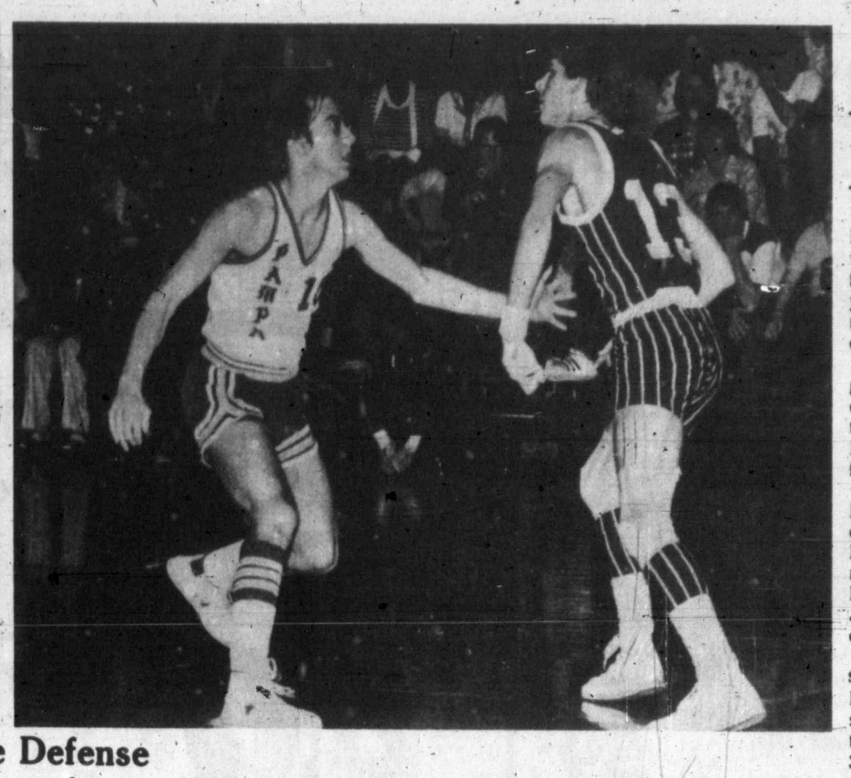
Pampa's Economy Prospers





Pressure Defense

Jewell Landers, 44, and Forrest Taylor, 10, took turns at pressuring Midland Lee guard Robin Todd Tuesday night in the Rebels' 51 - 46 win over Pampa in Harvester Fieldhouse. Pampa Coach Robert McPherson, upset at his team's play in the first quarter when the Harvesters fell behind 13 - 4, was happy with the performances of Landers, Taylor and Pee Wee Steele. Taylor and Steele came off the bench in the second half and ignited a rally, which closed Lee's advantage to two points twice in the fourth quarter.

It Sims To Me...

Series Exemplifies Good Basketball

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

The two - game Pampa vs. Midland Lee Series earlier this week in Harvester Fieldhouse pitted teams with similar styles of play, similar philosophies and similar coaches, all of which made the games two of the best in non - conference play that Harvester fans will have the chance to see.

Pampa won the first, 57 - 49, Monday, then learned how true the old basketball adage, that it's tough to beat the same team twice on consecutive nights, really is. Lee took the second, 51 - 46.

The split gives Pampa, the defending District 3 - AAAA champion, a 13 - 3 record (same as last year at this point) and Lee an 11 - 7 mark. The Rebels won the 5 - AAAA championship last season and eventually played in the state tournament.

"We played a little bit better tonight," Lee Coach Paul Steuckler said just after Tuesday's win. "I've got a young ball club and I've been telling them what a good club Pampa had. I think they were a little bit afraid of them Monday."

The key to Lee's win, Steucker added, was "we weren't so awed."

Pampa, like Lee is young, starting three juniors. The Harvesters, like Lee, play aggressively, on both offense and defense. Both teams are well - disciplined and sound fundamentally, a tribute to the coaches — Steuckler and Pampa's Robert McPherson.

"They had the psychological edge on us. We had beaten them the night before," McPherson said.

"And they're a good ball club. I'm sure they came up here hoping for a split. They played relaxed tonight, like we did last night."

Pampa will have until Tuesday to shake off the loss and correct any deficiencies. The Harvesters on that day host Lubbock Monterey.

It was odd to see the four Pampa High cheerleaders who attended Tuesday's Lee - Harvester contest sitting in the stands and not wearing uniforms. Their reason was the fact that two of the six cheerleaders were unable to come to the game and it would have been difficult to lead yells with just four.

Difficult, maybe. But not impossible. Cheerleaders are elected by the student body to represent the school at athletic functions.

The girls led cheers at junior varsity and sophomore football games last season. Why should varsity basketball be any different?

Applications are still being accepted for the position of head football coach at Amarillo Palo Duro High School, from which Doug James left to accept the San Antonio Jay job.

James, 28 - 12 - 4 at Palo Duro, had two teams in the state playoffs in four years there. James, 39, was selected over 27 other applicants for the job, previously held by Gene Van Cleve.

It was dramatic the way the Oklahoma Sooners moved into the favorite's role to capture the national championship Thursday. UCLA stunned No. 1 - ranked Ohio State 23 - 10 in the Rose Bowl to set up the situation that if Oklahoma knocked off Michigan, the Sooners would probably win the national title in voting early next week.

Oklahoma edged the Wolverines 14 - 6 in the Orange Bowl.

Few people expected OU to be No. 1 at the season's end after Kansas whipped the Sooners 26 - 3 in the regular season. Although undefeated Arizona State, once - beaten Alabama and Ohio State still have shots at the No. 1 rating, it's likely OU will be the choice of both polls (AP and UPI).

Here are my choices, in order, for the nation's top 10.

Oklahoma, Alabama, Ohio State, Arizona State, Texas, Arkansas, Michigan, UCLA, Nebraska, Penn State.

Paul Brown Ends Career

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Paul Brown, who coached the most victories in the history of football, quietly ended his 41-year coaching career Thursday night by retiring as head coach of the Cincinnati Bengals.

Brown, 67, still spry and in good health, said he will continue as general manager of the Bengals, the National Football League team he helped form in 1968.

Brown picked assistant coach Bill Johnson to take over as head coach and hired Mike McCormack, who was fired last month as the Philadelphia Eagles' head coach, to take Johnson's place as offensive line coach.

Brown's coaching career started in 1930 at Severn (Md.) Prep and later included high school, college, military and pro teams for an amazing record of 351-134-16.

He was an innovator of "scientific" football as it is played and coached today. He is credited with inventing face bars on helmets, was the first to employ a year-round coaching staff and the first to call plays from the sidelines via substitutions on every play.

Before coaching in the pro ranks, he was Ohio State University head coach from 1941-43, leading the Buckeyes to the national championship in 1942.

But Brown probably was best known for his long career as head coach of the Cleveland Browns from 1946 to 1962, where he developed such stars as Jimmy Brown, Otto Graham and Lou "The Toe" Groza.

Stunned and bitterly disappointed when he was fired as head coach of the Browns in 1962, Brown dropped out of football before starting the Bengals in 1968.

This past season year the Bengals had their best year, 11-3, and were edged 31-28 by the Oakland Raiders in an AFC playoff game last Sunday.

New coach Johnson, in Dallas, Tex., for the Cotton Bowl, issued a statement saying, "I am honored that Paul Brown would select me as his successor."

Johnson, 49, played nine years and then was an assistant coach another 11 years for the San Francisco 49ers, before joining Brown as an assistant coach when the Bengals franchise was formed.

UPI Names Landry As NFC's Top Coach

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tom Landry, who used numerous new offensive tactics and 12 rookies this season to put the Dallas Cowboys back into the playoffs, has been named United Press International's Coach of the Year in the National Football Conference.

Landry, the only coach in the 15-year history of the Cowboys, won in a narrow vote, getting 12 of the 39 votes from the UPI selection panel, which consists of three writers from each conference city.

Rick Forzano of Detroit finished second with 10 votes, followed by Bud Grant of Minnesota and Don Coryell of St. Louis each with eight.

Landrey also won the award in 1966. No coach has ever won it more than twice, as Landry joined Don Shula, George Halas, Allie Sherman and George Allen as two-time winners.

OU Trips Michigan in Orange Bowl

MIAMI (UPI) — Leroy Selmon may have had a hint before any of his Oklahoma teammates did that UCLA would upset previously unbeaten and top-ranked Ohio State in the Rose Bowl before the Sooners took the field Thursday night.

"I had a chance to talk with (UCLA quarterback) John Sciarra and he sounded pretty optimistic despite what happened the last time," Selmon said after the Sooners (11-1) laid their claim to the national championship with a 14-6 Orange Bowl win over Michigan. "He said they were going to go all out."

The "last time" UCLA was humbled by the Buckeyes 41-20. But Thursday the Bruins came back to upset the Big Ten champions 23-10 and give Oklahoma a clear shot at No. 1.

The Sooners made the most of it, using an end around play to reserve split end Billy Brooks and a keeper by quarterback Steve Davis to get ahead and a fearsome pass rush from Selmon, his brother, Dewey and Jimbo Elrod to stay there.

The rush on Michigan quarterbacks Rick Leach and Mark Elzinga kept the Wolverines from playing catch-up ball and they finished a woeful 2-for-20 in the passing department.

Winning coach Barry Switzer was obvioulsy pleased by the defense, which held the Wolverines to just 202 yards in total offense and one touchdown — that coming after a turnover put the ball on the Oklahoma 2.

"Our front linemen made some great individual plays," he said. "It was the same kind of defense we played when we beat Nebraska 27-0 our last time on national television in 1973."

A key defensive play was Sidney Brown's interception of tailback Gordon Bell's option pass when the Wolverines had a third-and-three on the Oklahoma nine.

Brooks, a senior who has been bothered since the sixth game of the year by a pulled hamstring, made the big play on offense in the first half, taking a pitch from Davis and running it in from 39 yards out.

Confident UCLA Pops Top-Ranked Ohio State

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — "I'd like to tell a couple of those Northern California writers who said that we didn't belong here to go to hell," UCLA's Dick Vermeil said angrily.

"I knew we could beat Ohio State and our players knew we could beat Ohio State."

In the shocker of the bowl season on New Year's Day, the Bruins may have cost the No. 1-rated Buckeyes a national championship. Coach Woody Hayes was so upset after UCLA's 23-10 victory that he wouldn't talk to anybody.

"If we hadn't screwed up against Washington and Air Force," said John Sciarra, the key Bruin in the major upset, "I think we'd be the national champions."

It was written in Northern California—and the rest of the country too—that UCLA didn't belong on the same field with the Big Ten powerhouse.

Ohio State went into the game with an 11-0 record and had blown the Bruins out of the Los Angeles Coliseum 41-20 Oct. 4.

Sciarra, a second team All-America behind Toledo's Gene Swick, and his teammates weren't awed by the Buckeyes.

The nifty Bruin quarterback fired touchdown strikes of 16 and 67 yards to Wally Henry in the third quarter and Wendell Tyler streaked 54 yards for a fourth-quarter score. Sciarra was voted the player of the game.

"We played our best game of the season because we knew we had to," said Tyler, who outplayed the Buckeyes' two-time Heisman Trophy winner, Archie Griffin. "We wanted it. We wanted it more than they did."

In the final seconds, Hayes took the long walk across the field and was embraced by Vermeil, a former Los Angeles Rams' assistant in his second year as head coach at UCLA.

Sciarra completed 13-of-19 passes for 212 yards, going 9-for-13 for 173 yards and two TDs in the second half.

The Buckeyes led just 3-0 at half time although they dominated the first half, rolling up 174 yards to 48 for the Bruins. In the second half, UCLA outgained Ohio State 366 yards to 124.

Tyler, who suffered a cracked wrist in the Bruins' fifth game at Stanford, was simply unstoppable in the second half. He reeled off 177 yards on 21 carries while Griffin carried 17 times for 93 yards.

Hogs Crush Georgia 31-10

DALLAS (UPI) — The "shoestring play," looked pretty good on the drawing board. But when it came time to roll it out on the runway at the Cotton Bowl Thursday, it failed to fly.

"I guess," lamented Georgia coach Vince Dooley, "that we should have just run out the clock instead."

The trick play that backfired in the final seconds of the first half Thursday reversed the momentum of the Cotton Bowl game and sent the Arkansas Razorbacks, overwhelmingly outplayed during the first two quarters, to a 31-10 runaway win over the Bulldogs.

If the play had worked, Gergia would have probably taken a 17-3 lead at the half. But it failed miserably since the Bulldogs fumbled on the play, allowing Arkansas to recover at the Georgia 13 and score the tying touchdown on a one-yard run by Ike Forte with less than 20 seconds remaining in the half.

"Of course," said Georgia quarterback Ray Goff, "everyone will second guess as to whether it should have been called at that time. The shoestring play could have been a great one or a sorry one. And it turned out to be sorry."

Arkansas thus had scored 10 points in the final minute of the first half thanks to two Georgia turnovers (backup quarterback Matt Robinson had previously fumbled to set up an Arkansas field goal by Steve Little).

"Without doing very much offensively or defensively in the first half we were tied and so we were ahead psychologically," said Arkansas coach Frank Broyles.

Arkansas took control in the second half and finally used a 35-yard pass from quarterback Scott Bull to flanker Freddie Douglas to set up the go ahead touchdown — a one-yard run by Rolland Fuchs with 11 minutes to play in the game.

The Razorbacks went ahead to score twice more in the final period on a one-yard run by Michael Forrest and a five-yard run by Forte, who gained 119 yards on 24 carries and was voted the gae's leading offensive player.

Georgia was held to two first downs and 60 total yards in the second half.

The Bulldogs had jumped in front, 10-0, on a 35-yard field goal by Alan Leavitt and a 21-yard touchdown pass from Matt Robinson to Gene Washington.

And Georgia control the game without interruption until the two costly fumbles in the final minute of the first half.

The Bulldogs dubbed their trick play the shoestring play because, when it was used successfully earlier this season against Vanderbilt, quarterback Ray Goff pretended to be trying shoe before the play started in order to lull the Commodore defense into a state of unpreparedness.

The bowl victory was the first in seven years for 10th ranked Arkansas, which finished with a 10-2 record.
