TICKER DELAYED

Officials to Drop Sales Volume to Relieve Crowded Tape

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. (AP)—With four high priced issues skyrocketing $35 to $63 a share, and at least 50 others climbing $1 to $10 a share to new high records, Wall Street today witnessed the wildest stock market in its history.

The violence of the advance scared many small traders and investors into liquidating their stocks, with the result that many of the gains were cut down, and some issues showed losses of $1 to $5 a share.

Six Million Shares

Total sales set a new high record at 6,811,900 shares, which contrasts with the previous record of 6,714,400 established last Friday.

Orders poured into the market in such gigantic volume that the ticker ran from 30 to 100 minutes behind the market during the greater part of the day, the usual last minute rush of orders delaying the printing of the final transaction until two hours and 42 minutes after the market closed, the longest delay on record.

Forced by the thousands of complaints against the present service and the widespread confusion caused in brokerage houses throughout the country to take drastic action, officials of the exchange today decided to drop all sales volume from the tape, except for a few minutes after the opening, beginning Thursday.

Stock Prices Printed

Under the new plan, only stock prices will be printed on the ticker and it is expected that the quotation service will be speeded up at least 25 per cent.

Arrangements are being made by the exchange to supply sales volume of individual stocks to press associations and newspapers, pending the installation of special telegraph printers which are being provided for this service, but the details have not been worked out.

It originally was intended to drop all sales volume below 500 shares and to delay the inauguration of the change until the special telegraph printers had been installed in newspaper and press association offices next month, but the extreme delays of the past few days have necessitated a further curtailment in ticker tape characters and an advance in the date of the beginning of the new plan.

POISONING OF TRIO RELATED

Woman's Confession Is Read to Jury

UNION, Mo., Nov. 20. (UP)—Mrs. Bertha Gifford, Catawassa, Mo., late today in a signed confession, which was read to the jury in her trial, stated that she administered arsenical poison "to ease the pain" of three persons, alleged to have died as a result of her nursing during their illness. She is on trial for the poisoning of Edward P. Brinley, a neighbor, which resulted in his death.

Mrs. Ludelphia Brinley, widow of the man for whose death Mrs. Gifford is being tried, testified today that her husband was being cared for during his illness in May, 1927, at the Gifford home. She stated that on May 11 Brinley got up and wanted to go home, stating that he was well. Mrs. Gifford prepared two ham sandwiches for Brinley. After finishing the first sandwich he took violently ill. Mrs. Gifford continued to administer medicine to Brinley and was present when he died.

Mrs. Gifford's attorneys early tonight had not outlined their case. It is expected, however, that a defense of insanity will be offered.

Receding Flood Waters Leave Toll Of 16 Dead and Millions in Damage

Three Swollen Streams Claim 13 Lives in Kansas; Mississippi Inundates Farm Lands

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. (UP)—As raging waters which swept over five states to the south and west of here, receded today, relief workers surveyed a wide trail of destruction and loss of life, left in the flood wake.

Sixteen dead, thousands of persons homeless and property damage estimated in excess of $10,000,000 was the extent of destruction in the states of Kansas, Missouri, Illinois and Kentucky alone. Lowlands in Southeastern Iowa were also inundated.

13 Drown in Kansas

Thirteen persons were drowned in Kansas, according to the latest check-up and three lives were claimed in Kentucky. In Kansas the Walnut, Arkansas and Verdigris rivers went on a rampage that lasted three days, following heavy rains throughout the state. Thousands of acres of land were flooded and homes swept away, causing widespread suffering.

The Cumberland and Kentucky rivers rose in the eastern part of Kentucky. Driftwood carried a bridge away at Terjay, drowning three men.

The latest attack of the fall flood waters on the man-made parapets which ordinarily held the Mississippi river in its course, tore down the levees at Quincy, Ill., flooding approximately 12,000 acres of rich farm lands on both the Illinois and Missouri sides of the stream. Lowlands in Southeast Iowa also were flooded.

Losses in Illinois

Millions of dollars damage was done to the section in Western Illinois near Quincy, alone. Damage to crops and livestock in other sections of Illinois and Missouri will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

One man was reported missing at Marks, Mo., and the pumping stations in many drainage districts were put out of commission by high water. Railroad traffic which had been paralyzed, was being resumed to many flooded localities, but service is irregular.

No trains have run on the Quincy, Omaha and Kansas City line since Saturday night and hundreds of men are rebuilding tracks near Marks. The river has fallen a foot in the last 24 hours.

The Missouri river went out of its banks at many points in Missouri. The stream rose at all points across the state between Kansas City and St. Louis.

POSSES HUNT EERIE KILLER

Omaha Hatchet Maniac Attacks Couple

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 20. (AP)—Two hundred policemen and officers and as many citizens were on watch in all parts of the city tonight seeking a trace of a maniac hatchet slayer, who the police are convinced is responsible for the death of three persons and the wounding of two, one probably fatally.

Not since Frank Carter, the sniper, terrorized the city several years ago, with his silencer-automatic rifle, has interest and excitement been so tense. Carter shot several persons to death.

The latest victims of the "hatchet maniac" were revealed early this morning when Mrs. Harold Stribling, wife of former high school football star, was attacked and struck in the face with the hatchet. She was taken captive and led to a lonely spot in a swamp not far from their home, which is in Iowa, just across the state line. Stribling, beaten first by the fiend, is not expected to live. His skull was crushed.

Leaving the wife in the swamp, the man, described by Mrs. Stribling as a negro of light complexion, about 21 years old, disappeared. Her face bleeding from wounds, Mrs. Stribling wandered to a street intersection and there met a policeman who summoned aid.

Rewards offered for capture of the slayer total $1,000.

Two women and a man are dead, presumably victims of the same man. The first was J. W. Blackman, 73-year-old expressman found dead in his bed Sunday morning. Yesterday about 2 p. m., Mrs. Waldo Resso, 21, and her sister, Creta Brown, 18, were found slain, hacked to death by an ax or hatchet.

Potato Found Encircled By Farm Wife's Diamond

PALESTINE, Texas, Nov. 20. (AP)—A truck grower here declared that he had unearthed recently a sweet potato encircled by a diamond ring lost by his wife last spring.

When the potatoes were plowed one of them bulged at both ends. Upon examination the potato was found to have grown through the ring, the grower said. As the potato matured it had been squeezed in at the center by the ring which caused the bulging at the ends, he explained.

The ring was described as being as good as ever.

JURY ACQUITS STEWART OF PERJURY COUNT

Indiana Standard Oil Head Exuberant at Second Verdict

QUORUM QUESTION

Judge Charges Jury To Probe Attendance At Committee Meet

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. (AP)—Reaching a verdict in less than an hour a jury in the District of Columbia supreme court today acquitted Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, of charges of perjury, which followed his appearance last February before the senate public lands committee.

Frankly and exuberantly happy at the outcome of the trial which stretched through a week and a half, the oil man with his chief of counsel, Frank J. Hogan at his side, was surrounded by a throng of friends offering their congratulations. He thanked the members of the jury individually and bestowed upon each of the women who served on the panel a hearty hug.

Quorum Question

The case was given to the jury at 2:30 p. m. with instructions from Justice Jennings Bailey to consider first of all whether there was a quorum present at the session of the senate committee at which Stewart gave his testimony. The point was the subject of a bitter dispute from the very beginning of the trial.

The minutes of the committee were introduced into evidence by U. S. Attorney Leo A. Rover, who handled the government's case, with the contention that they reported eight members of the committee's 15 to have been in attendance and that the meeting therefore was valid.

This was disputed by Hogan, with the assertion that of the eight reported by the minutes as present some were actually elsewhere and were included in the roll call by a telephonic request to the clerk of the committee. Witnesses for the defense testified that at no time were more than five members of the committee actually in attendance.

Majority Required

In his instructions to the jury, Justice Bailey ruled that before a meeting of a senate committee can become valid a majority of its members must be actually and physically present. With a majority present at the outset, he said, one or more might withdraw without impairing the validity of the session, unless a specific point of a lack of a quorum should be raised.

He told the jurors to settle the quorum question first of all and, if it was agreed that these requirements were not fulfilled, it need go no further, but return a verdict of acquittal at once.

What happened in the jury room remained a secret, guarded closely by the members of the panel. One said that an agreement was made before reporting the verdict, under which all promised not to reveal how the discussion went or how many ballots were taken.

Final Indictment Cleared

Stewart's acquittal on the perjury charge clears him of the last indictment pending against him as a result of his testimony before the senate committee. A charge of contempt of the senate, arising from the same appearance at which it was alleged that he committed perjury, was brought to trial late in May of this year and also resulted in an acquittal.

The perjury indictment was based upon three questions which, the government asserted, were propounded by the committee and which, it was charged, Stewart answered with deliberate falsifications.

These questions were whether he knew anything of the distribution of the liberty bond profits of the Continental Trading Co., Ltd., of Canada, which the committee was attempting to trace; whether he received any of the bonds, and whether he had had any conversation or had any knowledge that would lead him to believe that any individual or organization had received the securities.

It was charged that Stewart answered all three questions in the negative when as a matter of fact the president of the Continental had given him bonds to the value of $750,500.

Q. A. & P. Tracks In Good Condition

The Record News has received a telegram from A. F. Sommer, vice president and general manager of the Quanah Acme & Pacific railway at Quanah, saying that the report that the Wichita Falls special train could not be run over that line because of soft track was erroneous.

It is inferred from Mr. Sommer's telegram that the Quanah, Acme & Pacific is in good condition.

This correction is cheerfully made.

John W. Bradley Dies Aboard Special Train At Plainview

PLAINVIEW, Texas, Nov. 21.—John W. Bradley, president of the North Texas Furniture company of Wichita Falls and a member of the Wichita Falls booster delegation, died aboard the special train at 1:30 o'clock here this morning.

Acute indigestion was given as the cause of Mr. Bradley's death. The Wichita Falls train was turned around here and started back for Wichita Falls at 3 o'clock Wednesday morning, carrying Mr. Bradley's body. The train will arrive in Wichita Falls about 11 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Mr. Bradley's death brought to a sad climax a day of celebration by the Wichita Falls delegation and thousands of South Plains citizens over the completion of the Denver and South Plains railway.

John W. Bradley, whose death in Plainview was reported here early Wednesday morning, was a pioneer business man of Wichita Falls, having resided in this city for about 20 years.

He was active in the business, civic and religious phases of the city. He was president of the North Texas Furniture company, a director of the Security National bank and a member of the Highland Heights Christian church.

He is survived by his wife, who resides at 1622 Eleventh street, a daughter, Miss Harriett Bradley of Wichita Falls, and one son, Dr. John Bradley.

Vestris Witness Says Reporters 'Ganged' Him

Sea Veteran Quoted as Damning Ship Tragedy as 'Murder' Denies All on Stand

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. (UP)—A sun-bronzed sea captain who has a new-born hatred for newspapers and newspaper reporters because he claims they misquoted him when he said the Vestris sinking was "murder" furnished the main color today as two government groups investigated that latest sea tragedy.

Capt. Frederick Sorenson, a middle-aged man who has been at sea for 20 years and who has held a master's license for eight, was the chief character in today's interesting interlude of the government's attempt to find out what made the Vestris go down with a loss of life of 114.

Sorenson was widely quoted when he arrived in New York with other rescued passengers of the Vestris, upon which he was sailing to South America. "It was a crime," "they were murderers," "they could have saved 50 people," "Captain Carey should have committed suicide" were among the statements attributed to Sorenson at that time.

But today as he munched cough-drops and listened to veteran ship news reporters tell of how they got the interview, Sorenson merely expressed contempt and said:

"They were reckless lies and I know they were absolutely not correct. The reporters are trying to gang me."

Then he said the Vestris was apparently in good shape and that the life boats were safe—a contradiction of his original statement that the life boats were "rotten."

HE DOESN'T CHOOSE

To Wed Broke, So John Coolidge Will Wait 'Till He's Able

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. (UP)—John Coolidge, the president's son, may be engaged to Florence Trumbull, daughter of the governor of Connecticut, but he will not marry her until he is earning a salary sufficient to support a wife "on his own."

This was indicated in White House social circles today, following a statement made in New Orleans by Miss Trumbull in confirmation of the reports of the engagement. The president himself had nothing to say.

A formal engagement of the announcement, however, is expected soon.

MOODY CALLS ROAD PARLEY

Conference to Meet In Austin Nov. 27

AUSTIN, Nov. 20. (AP)—Governor Moody late today called his highway legislation conference for next Tuesday, Nov. 27, at Austin, to discuss road policies and programs to be recommended to the 41st legislature.

Committee members from 27 of the 31 senatorial districts have been named by legislators in response to the governor's request and he expects to receive notification of the appointment of the remaining four before the conference.

The meeting will practically determine the general and perhaps specific character of highway laws to be enacted. Many of the proposals already being urged probably will be threshed out.

The next legislature is almost certain to make several changes in administration of highway affairs, since the entire program of highway legislation was withdrawn in the 40th session, because of the wide variance in measures offered.

Aim of the governor's committee meeting is to get started on a definite program before the next legislature meets to insure ample time for consideration and action by the lawmakers.

Following are the committee men reported so far to Governor Moody: W. A. McCartney, Texarkana; W. E. Thomason, Nacordoches; Ed. Murphy, Livingston; Cone Johnson, state highway commissioner, Tyler; R. J. Easley, Detroit; John V. Singleton, Waxahachie; J. M. Penland, Waco; Charles S. Gainer, Bryan; R. L. Pettus, Goliad; District Judge George Calhoun, Austin; Charles Neblett, Stephenville; Ben L. Russell, Baird; D. K. Martin, San Antonio; John H. Davis, Levelland; J. S. Hamlin, Farrell; Herbert Henderson, Port Arthur; E. C. Claybaugh Jr., Carthage; Todd L. Wynne, Athens; G. P. Webb, Sherman; Will B. Marsh, Dallas; Leonard Tillotson, Sealy; W. O. Huggins, Houston; John L. Darousett, Galveston; M. K. Graham, Graham; W. T. Wheeler, Fort Worth.

Escaped Texas Convict Nabbed In Chicago Police Headquarters

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. (AP)—A young man last night walked into police station seeking a place to sleep. Because of his clothes, which were in good condition, and his actions, the suspicions of Sergeant Michael Bergin and Policeman John Dunn were aroused. The man was searched and a revolver was found in his possession. He immediately told police he was Robert Newman, 25, and that he had escaped on Sept. 11, 1928 from the Huntsville, Texas, state penitentiary and still had two years to serve on seven concurrent sentences for forgery. Huntsville authorities were notified and Bergin and Dunn then learned $500 had been offered for Newman's capture.

SOUTH PLAINS THRONGS JOIN IN CELEBRATION

Band Music and Color Of Frenzied Crowd Pep Up Jamboree

VISITORS ARE FETED

Plainview Leaders See That Everybody Is Enjoying Stay

By HENRY C. FULCHER
Managing Editor, The Record News

PLAINVIEW, Texas, Nov. 20.—It could happen only in West Texas.

No other section and no other state could stage such a celebration as that which rocked this town tonight as thousands of South Plains residents and visitors celebrated in a frenzy of noise, color and excitement, the formal inauguration of service of the Denver and South Plains road.

An hour after seven special trains had discharged their shouting delegations Plainview was a town gone mad. Bands played on every corner or marched and counter marched through the streets with howling delegations of home town adherents at their heels. The streets were jammed with a milling mob of visitors and townspeople. For early

IRREPRESSIBLE SHEP

ABOARD SOUTH PLAINS Special, Nov. 20.—Shep, the irrepressible, the one time singing mayor of Wichita Falls, otherwise R. E. Shepherd, carried off individual high scoring honors in the march through the South Plains today. The Wichita Falls leader was everywhere and anywhere. He herded the Wichita Falls delegation into towns and out again. He led them in song and in the street parades. He taught the Fort Worth delegation how to sing and carried away the crowd at Quitaque when he took charge of Dallas crack band and led the crowd in "Let Me Call You Sweetheart." He organized an emergency trio consisting of Archie Smith, Henry Camp Harris and himself and turned the public eye from other towns to Wichita Falls. He ignored Amarillo, which perhaps, is as it should be.

afternoon and night there was no set program and it would have been useless to attempt one. Plainview simply threw open the doors of its homes and business houses and burned the fun.

Towns Are Crowded

The celebration here tonight climaxed the first day's tour over the new railroad through the South Plains, a day which found the hundreds of residents along the right of way crowding the towns, villages and cross roads to welcome the first trains over the new route.

Wichita Falls' special train with its delegation of 115 and Paul Seeds' band led the trains of all other towns throughout the day following immediately behind the special bearing high officials of the Burlington system, the Fort Worth

Girl Wounded By Bullet Fired At Random By Hunter Near City

A shot fired at random by a hunter on Holliday creek was believed by police to have caused the wounding of Geneva Dodson, 18, 1601 Thirtieth street, Hillcrest, as she crossed the bridge on the Holliday-Lake road about 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. She was wounded in the arm.

The girl had left a bus and was going to her home when the bullet struck her. She told police that she had not heard the shot but that she had discovered the wound when she felt a pain in her arm and saw that it was bleeding.

The injured girl was taken to the Wichita General hospital where the bullet was removed. She was released from the hospital shortly afterward. Her injuries were not considered serious.

The person who fired the shot, which was apparently a discharge from a 22 calibre rifle, was evidently some distance away, according to the police, as the bullet was not traveling with enough force to penetrate very far into the girl's arm.

Crowds Line Tracks to Shout Welcome at Visitors on Specials

Old and Young Residents of New Empire Turn Out En Masse; Fine Crops Observed

By HENRY C. FULCHER

ABOARD SOUTH PLAINS SPECIAL, Nov. 20.—A mighty roar that must have reached across these plains from Childress to Dimmitt, and from Silverton to Lubbock went up today as thousands of West Texans lined the right of way of the new Denver and South Plains railroad to greet the iron horse on its first official journey into this fertile territory. Not one horse but a whole troop of them, an even half dozen, carried the official delegations of Wichita Falls, Dallas, Fort Worth, Amarillo, Childress, Memphis, Estelline and Turkey and the Burlington railway system who provided the occasions that brought thousands to the railroad tracks in universal rejoicing.

Approximately 1,500 rode the seven special trains lined out in majestic power across the Llano Estacado for distance of 30 miles. The moving of this traffic in something resembling order and safety in itself presented a difficult problem to railroad officials although the task was handled with an efficiency that did credit to the morale of the Denver force from track walker to executive vice president.

The Wichita Falls special, however, was running more than an hour behind schedule as the cavalcade got under way from Childress early this morning. It was a universal holiday over the South Plains today.

All along the right-of-way residents of this section congregated at crossings, water tanks and small towns to wave and shout welcomes to the speeding trains and to add their cheers to those of the excursionists. From miles around they came; men, women, children and babies in arms. Old men who had waited years for this dream of railroad service to come true, young men who had not waited so long but who saw in the coming a promise and hope of a new and better day for their homes and country, all gathered along this road to show their happiness in their divers ways. Some stood silent and awed as the trains roared by, some added the "yip-yip" and "whoopee" of the Texas cowboy, but most of them stood by and simply roared their greetings to the visitors.

Mothers held their babes above their heads to glimpse the spectacle and at every cross-road, hamlet and town enthusiastic chamber of commerce and civic boosters showered the trains with circulars, literature, souvenirs and things to eat.

The special train bearing the officials of the Burlington lines, the Fort Worth & Denver and other allied lines led the long procession out of Childress this morning. The route ran through some of the richest agricultural country of Texas, fields of corn and small grain, cotton as yet unpicked and frequent splashes of brilliant green from the new wheat crop presenting an ever-changing panorama of prosperity and potential wealth. And to those same railroad officials, whose vision and faith in Texas development caused them to launch the most pretentious railroad building project in years went the major part of the acclaim of this section.

Railroad officials on the journey also included Frank Kell of Wichita Falls, whose private car Tyrone was attached to the Wichita Falls special. With Mr. Kell in the special car were W. M. McGregor, Reese Allen, J. J. Perkins and R. H. Schultz and L. N. Bassett, traffic manager and vice president and general manager respectively of the Wichita Falls and Southern.

More than 100 Wichita Falls business men are included in the chamber of commerce special train, which is proving as excellent as all trains from the chamber. J. W. Chatham, traffic manager, is in charge of the train, with assistance being given by D. H. Berry, assistant manager. R. E. Shepherd, with a carnation in his coat lapel and a cracking toy pistol in his hand, is leading the delegation in its parades and sing songs.

SOUTH PLAINS SIDE LIGHTS

Estelline, Hall county, chamber of commerce boosters provided the only wisecracks in the deluge of material that was placed on the train. A circular said among other things: "One mayor, five flighty aldermen, three blind laws, no jail and one trotline, plenty of prosperity."

Personal message from Paul Putty to Mrs. Putty: "No, the weather is fine up here. I am sure I won't take cold."

Colorado has nothing on the South Plains either in weather or scenery. Monday brought a cloudless sky, sunshine and crisp cold weather. As the train climbed on top of the caprock outside of Quitaque, Wichitans were treated to scenery that few would believe could be found in Texas. High rolling hills, canyons and sparkling streams, passing through two of the three tunnels in the state. The road twists and curves around bluffs and over deep cuts. Only a river full of mountain trout was needed to complete the picture.

Henry Camp Harris of the National Security Life Insurance company had a Wichita Man give him an order for a $50,000 life insurance policy across the breakfast table in Childress Monday morning.

South Plains towns have devoted much white paper to advertise their advantages, but at least as much more space has gone to advertise what the country needs. If you believe the papers and circulars, this country is opportunity's open door to every profession and business.

Don McCauley of the Wichita Falls Radio Supply company installed a radio set on the train. Messages were being received throughout the day from KGKO at Wichita Falls. Harry A. Gray operated the set.

R. E. Shepherd's harmony trio organized on the South Plains special train kept Wichita Falls in the limelight throughout the trip. The newsboys trio picked up another member at Sterley Junction, the complete ensemble of songsters including, besides Mr. Shepherd, Archie Smith, Henry Camp Harris and R. F. Brown. Nothing but long practice could allow these gentlemen to put so much feeling in that mournful "Come On You Sebes." members of this party said.

Carl Pool of the Pool Textile Manufacturing company, a Sherman booster for Wichita Falls, was the guest of J. B. Marlow on the South Plains tour. Mr. Pool entered the garment manufacturing business 17 years ago at Sherman and today his plant is one of the largest in the south. Success of the Pool enterprises, which include a number of different kinds of factories, demonstrates the ability of the small city to develop industrially, Mr. Pool said.

Fruit cake and coffee was served Wichita Falls visitors by wives of the officers and directors of the Plainview National bank. The basement of the bank was turned into a reception hall for the welcoming of visitors on the South Plains excursion. Bankers of Plainview, while extending a welcome to visitors from all sections, seemed particularly impressed with the opportunity of closer relationship between Wichita Falls and the South Plains.

The new South Plains line connects Wichita Falls directly with this section by less than a day's travel. "I am sorry your special did not bring 500 from Wichita Falls to see our country," Dr. C. C. Gibney, physician and president of the First National bank, declared.

Approximate attendance from various towns represented on the seven special trains to the South Plains included the following: Railroad officials from all over the nation 45, Dallas 93, Fort Worth 141, Wichita Falls 115, Amarillo 141, Childress 430, Memphis and Estelline 350 and Turkey 125.

Advertising Club Talks Precautions

A plan for limiting advertising to those media which prove profitable was discussed by members of the Ad club in their weekly luncheon at the Kemp Tuesday noon.

Following the reading by J. M. McPhail of an agreement adopted by the merchants' association in another city forbidding placing of advertising in media which do not show adequate returns, action on the matter was deferred until a later date.

An address on "Budgeting Advertising in the Department Store," was given by Marvin B. Smith of W. R. McClurkan company.

A committee consisting of C. A. Spragins, T. A. Bradley, and V. N. Armstrong was appointed to make arrangements for the erection by the club of a community Christmas tree on the lawn of Memorial auditorium.

Henrietta Physician Seriously Ill Here

Dr. J. H. Ferris of Henrietta is in a serious condition at the Wichita Falls General hospital following a major operation Tuesday night.

About a week ago, Dr. Ferris was injured in an automobile accident near Fort Worth. The accident is said possibly to have precipitated the condition which made the operation necessary.

CROWDS JOIN RAIL 'WHOOPEE'

South Plains Train Beset With Merriment

and Denver City and allied lines. In each town brief stops were made for musical programs, hand shaking and in some for parades and speeches.

A 10-hour stop was scheduled here and Plainview did itself proud in entertaining its visitors. The town was ably aided by residents of other nearby cities which had been dropped from the train schedule, particularly Floydada whose residents poured into this city today to help with the reception.

The train bearing railroad officials led the way into town closely followed by the Wichita Falls special. Apparently every resident of Plainview was on the committee to greet the visitors. The Fort Worth, Dallas, Amarillo, Childress, Memphis and Estelline specials followed in the order named. Courtesy cars were provided for a tour of Plainview for the afternoon and at 7 o'clock tonight the city entertained more than 1,000 visitors at a wild duck dinner served in the city auditorium. This was followed by a dance at which visitors were again guests of the city.

Leave Today

The procession of special trains will leave here early Wednesday morning, running direct into Dimmitt, the end of the line. Breakfast will be served visitors at Dimmitt. On the return trip to Plainview stops will be made at Hart and Edmonson and another brief stop at Plainview. The trains will then turn south over the Lubbock branch of the road for visits at Lockney, Granary, Petersburg, Becton, Kitalou and Lubbock. The first trip will be made from Lubbock Wednesday night.

Childress residents were up in the early hours of the morning Tuesday to start the double business of playing host to the Denver specials as they rolled in and to join in the celebration as one of the towns in this section which also will draw great benefits from this new rail construction. Leaders of the town were also happy over announcements by F. E. Williamson of Chicago, executive vice president of the Burlington lines, that a new station will be constructed and the Denver car shops here rebuilt during the coming year. Mr. Williamson's announcement was made Monday night at a banquet at the new Hotel Childress in the honor of Denver officials and brought several hundred residents of this city to their feet in cheers.

"The depot shall be in keeping with the splendid progress being shown in the remainder of your city," Mr. Williamson said after praising the new construction here and the progressive spirit of Childress residents. While no figures were mentioned by the Denver official, it is unofficially understood that approximately $123,000 will be spent in the project with $80,000 going to the construction of a new station and $38,000 to be used in yard and track improvement.

The Wichita Falls special was the first in to Childress this morning. A Denver engine had picked up the train at 3 o'clock Tuesday morning in Wichita Falls and a persistent porter, aided and abetted by R. E. Shepherd, P. M. Cordell and others routed the sleepy boosters out of their berths at 5:30 o'clock. Several hundred Childress residents and officials' reception committee from the chamber of commerce and board of development and the Denver band of Childress greeted Wichitans as they piled from the train shortly after 6 o'clock.

Band Leads March

Led by Paul Seeds and his band, the home town delegation, numbering more than 100 business men, marched to the Hotel Childress, where breakfast was served with Childress civic organizations playing the part of entertainers. Claude Terrell welcomed Wichitans in a brief speech, while R. E. Shepherd made brief reply and led a before-breakfast song.

At intervals of 15 minutes other specials from Dallas and Fort Worth arrived and were met by the ever-increasing crowd of official greeters. The Amarillo delegation, which arrived Monday night, was given breakfast at the Hotel Childress. The trek into the great South Plains area started a little more than one hour later with the special train bearing Denver officials leading the way and other trains following in order. With their duties as hosts discharged more than 400 Childress residents boarded their own special train this morning and joined the tour.

The special greeting committee of Childress men for the Wichita Falls delegation included besides Mr. Terrell, chairman, Gerald Smith, A. G. Willingham, Paul Rogers, J. O. McMinn, John W. Allmond, Don Warren, G. W. Ellison, Arch Blanton, J. W. Chambers, G. H. Hamil, Bob Gully, J. M. Preston, J. C. Schuerer, L. H. Rigby, Dick Turner, H. W. Thaten, H. E. Perry and M. G. Brock.

The first scheduled stop on the route at Estelline was passed up because of the delay in leaving Childress, although residents of the town were at the tracks en masse to shout their welcome to the visitors. Approximately 300 Estelline boosters then boarded a train and followed in the procession. Parnell also welcomed the trains and distributed circulars and other material telling of the advantages of the town, as did practically every city through which the specials passed.

CONCERT GIVEN AT STERLEY JUNCTION

STERLEY JUNCTION, Texas, Nov. 20.—The advance guard of the Plainview committee of welcome boarded seven Denver and South Plains railway special trains here this afternoon to escort the visitors on the remainder of their journey. Wichita Falls band and delegation paraded and gave a brief concert during the stop here. The committee to escort the Wichita Falls delegation to Plainview included R. O. Sanford, F. Covington and E. Q. Perry.

QUITAQUE PIONEERS ARE HONORED

QUITAQUE, Texas, Nov. 20.—Pioneers of Quitaque who have long fought for rail connections for this town and officials of the Fort Worth and Denver were honored today in this town's celebration of the formal inauguration of service on the completed Denver and South Plains line. O. C. Arthur, president of the chamber of commerce and master of ceremonies, paid tribute to the town leaders and pledged to the Denver the eternal co-operation and support of his town.

"Quitaque welcomes you with open arms. The town is yours. Be at home," he told the massed throngs from a dozen towns as they stood in the main streets. Bands from every town kept up a continuous sound of music and R. E. Shepherd led the crowds in songs.

High school girls of Quitaque provided a rooting section which gave yells for each town and individuals. The crowd spent more than an hour here. A special edition of the Quitaque Post was distributed free to hundreds.

SOUTH PLAINS TURNS OUT CROWD

SOUTH PLAINS, Nov. 20.—Sixteen months ago a center of maize fields, South Plains turned out a representation of several hundred persons to welcome the special trains formally inaugurating service on the Denver and South Plains road. The Wichita Falls train was first into town following directly behind that of railroad officials. A band concert and several quartet numbers were given by the Wichita Falls visitors. A stop of 10 minutes was made here. Pamphlets telling of the opportunities and needs of this town were distributed to all special trains.

Although one of the newest towns on the new railroad South Plains already boasts a $40,000 municipal water plant, electric power and lights, telephone service, a grain elevator, gin and other facilities.

TURKEY RESIDENTS WELCOME TRIPPERS

TURKEY, Nov. 20.—Hundreds of residents of this section of the South Plains, two airplanes and an orchestra and all the flags and bunting in town welcomed the Denver and South Plains special trains here today. Wichita Falls booster delegation led the march down the main street of the town and R. E. Shepherd took charge of affairs for a singsong and musical program.

Trains scuttled up and down the new railroad tracks, telegraph and telephone operators were swamped with messages and calls and when it was all over a good part of the town's population boarded one of the trains and joined the visit to other cities.

Air Inspector At Municipal Field

Twelve planes of various styles and makes at the municipal airport Tuesday gave the officials there a busy day, and gave Kell field the appearance of keeping pace with the rapid development of commercial aviation generally throughout the country.

Visitors landing at the local municipal port Tuesday included Hector Gray, flying a Whirlwind Travelair, belonging to the Phillips Petroleum company of Bartlesville, Okla.

A United States department of commerce Stinson-Detroiter, flown by Walter Hasen, inspector for that department, landed Tuesday evening. Mr. Hasen will remain here for two days, it was said, for the purpose of giving examinations to local fliers.

Frank Nicewander of Palestine, Texas, stopped here on his way from Denver in a new Hisso-Eaglerock plane.

Nine ships operating from Kell field as home port were at the field Tuesday.

Technical Club Names New Official Board

The Wichita Falls Technical club held its annual election of officers Monday night, naming P. M. Cordell of the Texas Electric Service company as president to succeed Herbert Voelcker, and choosing Charles E. Watson as vice president; John Marrs, as second vice president, and C. F. Helcamp, to be secretary-treasurer.

John Marrs, H. E. Kelly, C. J. Pate, Charles E. Watson and P. M. Cordell are new directors to serve with Herbert Voelcker, A. H. Douglas, C. F. Helcamp and Roy J. Mobley, hold-over directors.

Tuesday, Dec. 18 was chosen as the date for the annual gridiron banquet at the Wichita club.

New Plane Stops Night At McAlester

Telephone messages received late Monday stated that the big four-passenger Stinson monoplane carrying Dudley Rider, pilot, Fulcher Armstrong, J. E. Bell and Earl Stilley of this city landed at McAlester, Okla., for an over-night stop, and would reach the field on the Henrietta road here before noon Wednesday.

Flying from Detroit to Benton, Ill., Sunday, the ship with its crew has been held at that point, it was said, by unfavorable weather. In the absence of further messages, it is presumed that the flight was resumed this morning from Benton.

Sanitary Chief Warns On Dumping of Trash

Dr. J. M. Farrell, chief sanitary inspector, promised arrest and prosecution of parties dumping trash and tin cans on vacant lots and places other than the city dumping places regularly designated.

Tuesday, after complaints had been made by property owners that the practice is being indulged in at their expense, Dr. Farrell said that he would give one warning through the newspapers and then take drastic action.

"No man has any right or business to endanger the health of the community by dumping tin cans and trash wherever he pleases in the city limits," Dr. Farrell said. "Likewise, no man has any business marring any other man's property by dumping his refuse on property he finds unguarded at the moment."

HOOVER LAYS FISHING PLANS

Observers on Trip Foresee New 'Hoover' Doctrine

ABOARD THE U. S. S. MARYland, Nov. 20. (UP)—The flagship of the Pacific fleet, carrying President-elect Herbert Hoover to South America, gathered speed today as it steamed through tropical waters towards the Cape of St. Lucas where the president will try his luck at deep sea fishing Wednesday.

The water off the lower California cape is said to be fine for fishing and Hoover, recalling some of his past fishing expeditions, expressed a desire to hook a tropical fish. Four small boats will be used by the fishing party, which will take advantage of the rapid time made today, to stop off the cape.

The idea of fishing tempted Hoover early today as the battleship steamed along the lower California coast where the deep sea creatures are plentiful. He recalled that a friend once fought a giant marlin for 14 hours before landing it and such adventure appealed to him.

After plans for the expedition had been made the battleship was speeded up to between 17 and 18 knots an hour to allow time for the halt.

The possibility of a "Hoover doctrine" to supplement the Monroe doctrine in the relations of the United States with Latin and South American countries was advanced today by observers on the trip.

A Tobacco Pump

LONDON.—Even a water pump on a steamer isn't safe from the eagle eyes of customs inspectors. A seaman was fined here recently when he pleaded guilty to an attempt to smuggle six pounds of tobacco through the inspectors by hiding it in the top of a pump.

Value of Good Roads Stressed By Donnell

Development of good roads in nearby counties and the completion of important new railroad connections with the plains country were emphasized as factors contributing to Wichita Falls' continued growth by B. D. Donnell, editorial director of The Record News and Daily Times in an address to the members of the real estate board Tuesday noon.

Roscoe Staton, member of the last city board of equalization, urged a survey of property in Wichita Falls with a view to obtaining a more correct taxable value than the present schedule provides.

Bootblack Slayer Awaits Death Content With Dreams of Angels' Tips

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. (UP)—If there is a place in heaven for a negro bootblack who soon will die in the electric chair for committing a murder, Dave Shanks hopes the angels give liberal tips when he shines their shoes.

Shanks, illiterate negro, who slept soundly through much of the testimony during his trial and who received the jury's verdict without any show of emotion, joked about his fate today.

"You know I've heard that all God's chillun got shoes," the negro said. "If all of them give tips, I will be treated better than I have been down here on earth."

Shanks was a bootblack in Evanston where last summer he attacked and beat to death with an iron pipe Miss Jennie Meta Constance, teacher in literature at Bradley college, Peoria, Ill. The young woman was taking a post graduate course at Northwestern university.

The negro's desire for a few extra dimes in his meagre existence was cited as a cause for the murder of the school teacher. The bootblack slept in the rear of the shop and his tips was practically the only salary he received.

Enid Citizens Urge Appointment of Sturgis

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 20. (UP)—A delegation of citizens from Enid today called upon Governor Johnston and urged him to appoint H. J. Sturgis of Enid to succeed Judge James B. Cullison as judge in the 20th district court.

$56,000 Damage Suit Alleges Contract Breach

Alleging breach of contract, R. D. Jones of Young county, Tuesday filed suit in the 78th district court for $56,000 damages against the Panhandle Refining company and the Roberts Oil corporation.

The petition sets forth that after Jones refused to give a nine-acre lease to the Roberts Oil corporation, a contract whereby the plaintiff was to have sold Panhandle products in Young county was breached. Of the amount asked, $40,000 is sought as exemplary damages.

Ill health was believed to have caused Father Roney to shoot himself.

Wichita County Rural Schools Resume Work

After a six weeks interval for the cotton picking season the Allendale and County Line schools have resumed work, Burl Bryant, county superintendent, announced Tuesday. The two schools were the only ones in the county which were in session during July and August, making up for the period when the students are called to the cotton fields.

Will Brumbalow has taken charge as principal of the County Line schools to succeed J. A. McDonald, new juvenile officer. Mrs. Brumbalow is teaching in the fifth and sixth grades at the school.

Baptist Mission Schools Opened

Mission study schools being conducted in 21 Baptist churches of Wichita and Archer counties under the supervision of the Women's Missionary union got under way in three Wichita Falls churches Monday night with a total attendance of nearly 200 people.

The Southside Baptist church enrolled 30 members in three separate classes. At the Highland Heights Baptist church more than 40 attended the opening, with the organization of five classes. Lory Memorial Baptist turned out practically 50 per cent of its church membership, there being more than 100 present for the school which divided into five classes. Each of these churches declared that material increases in attendance are expected during the week.

The mission study movement extends to every Baptist church in the two counties, with Mrs. T. J. Furniss supervising the local schools; Mrs. J. M. Tanner, those in Wichita county outside of this city, and Rev. E. M. Agee, the Archer county members.

Borden

IS COMING TO TEXAS

THE BORDEN COMPANY, the oldest and largest manufacturer of milk products in the world, will build its first milk condensary in Texas, at Waco.

The Borden Company pledges itself to do everything in its power to develop the dairy industry of Texas, for an adequate supply of good milk is the first essential for a condensary. A unit for the production of milk powder will be completed as speedily as possible. Units for the manufacture of evaporated milk and other milk products will be added as rapidly as the milk supply warrants.

This is welcome news to the people of Texas, and a great opportunity for the farmers—long-delayed, but here at last.

Now the progressive farmer can get away from the uncertainty of one crop, and put his feet (and his bank account) firmly on the proven ground of a sure-cash-every-month income—the steady income which comes from dairying.

Dairying puts back into the land the fertility which has been taken out. Dairying is diversification of the best kind. If followed steadily and persistently, it leads to deep-founded agricultural prosperity. Farming is still the backbone of both the United States and the great state of Texas.

The new Borden plant will be the beginning of a great milk industry for Texas. It will enable the people of Texas to buy milk produced on their own rolling prairies and packed at home. From pasture to pantry—Texas' very own.

Gail Borden, a Texas Pioneer

Gail Borden first came to Texas to engage in stock raising, in 1829, when Texas was still a colony of Mexico. He represented his district at the convention at San Felipe in 1833, where the Mexican government was petitioned for separate statehood. Mr. Borden's ability so attracted the attention of Stephen Austin, that he engaged him to make an official survey of the colony. Gail Borden made the first topographical map of Texas, when it became a republic under president Sam Houston.

In 1835, Mr. Borden and his brother, with Joseph Baker, a printer, started the first newspaper in Texas at San Felipe. Those were troublous times. An invasion by the Mexican general, Santa Ana, made it necessary to move their press and type to another village, but Mexican soldiers captured it and threw it in a river. When the Republic of Texas was established Gail Borden became public printer, and later collector of customs at Galveston, a city which he himself surveyed and laid out. Borden County with its county seat, the town of Gail, and the two towns of Borden, are all named after him.

In 1851 he left Texas and went to New England, and in 1857, after years of effort and many trials and hardships, he perfected the process of condensing milk, Gail Borden's Eagle Brand, and founded the great milk business which bears his name.

He returned to Texas and died at Borden, Colorado County, January 11, 1874.

Borden's Eagle Brand Condensed Milk (sweetened)

The original and finest grade of Condensed milk. Famous as an infant food since 1857. Full-cream cow's milk—exceptionally rich in butter fat—smoothly blended with finest sugar. Wonderful in coffee and magic quick desserts.

Borden's Malted Milk

An ideal health beverage for all ages. Delicious, highly nourishing, digestible—and easy to prepare. For light lunches, between meals or at bedtime. Ask for a Borden Special at your favorite fountain.

Borden's Evaporated Milk (unsweetened)

Borden's Chocolate Malted Milk

Borden's Dime Brand Condensed Milk (sweetened)

Long a Texas favorite. The popular size tin of condensed milk—smaller than Eagle Brand, not quite so rich, but equally pure and delicious.

To bakers and ice cream makers—The Borden plant in Texas will produce powdered milk of highest quality

THRIFT CLUB'S WORK IS TOLD

Radio Speaker Explains Christmas Plan

"The 8,000,000 people making up the largest membership of all the clubs in the world will soon receive checks by which they will be distributing to themselves more than $550,000,000, 60 per cent of which will be spent for constructive purposes," declared Herbert F. Rawl, president of the Christmas club, over radio Tuesday night from New York in addressing the members of local bank Christmas clubs throughout the country.

More than 8,000 neighborhood banks, the speaker stated, are affiliated in the Christmas club movement, which extends to practically every city, town and village in the United States. It was pointed out that the movement had its inception 18 years ago as a means of affording the small depositors opportunity for needed regular savings, and also the occasion for becoming better acquainted with banking practices. The development of 10,000,000 permanent savers from the ranks of Christmas club members is pointed to by the club's officials as a commendable accomplishment of the organization.

Mr. Rawl emphasized the important contribution which this cultivation of thrift has made to the march of progress in all business enterprises during the last decade.

"We Americans," he said, "accept as our every day right a standard of living at once the marvel and envy of the people of other countries. Seldom do we pause to think of the organizations in finance, commerce, transportation and industry which have made this high standard possible as a result of skillful business leadership."

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 20. (AP)—Declaring that a new millionaire's mansion could be checked against every white cross on the battlefields, Paul V. McNutt, national commander of the American Legion, urged the convention of the American Federation of Labor to endorse legislation to prevent war profiteering and provide a universal draft.

Standing before the labor men, the American Legion head explained that the legion's chief concern in the proposed universal draft legislation, was to have the fundamental principles of "equal service from all and special privileges to none," enacted into the basic law of the land.

Coal Miner Soon Regains "Lost Pep"

Tells How He Has Taken Thedford's Black-Draught for Relief of Constipation During Last 40 Years

Tracy City, Tenn.—"My work makes it necessary for me to use a medicine which will give quick relief from constipation and indigestion," says Mr. Lee Nunley, a well known coal miner of this place.

"For forty years or more," he says, "I have taken Black-Draught for these troubles, and have always found it reliable. At times, I suffer from bad spells of indigestion, following constipation.

"Many years ago, a friend told me to try Black-Draught, as it was a vegetable remedy and would not harm my body, so that is how I came to use it. I make a tea of it, and take a sip of it after meals. I soon begin to feel better when I start this treatment.

"My work is very confining, and my color gets bad and I get sluggish. I lose my 'pep' and don't feel like going. After I take a course of Black-Draught, I feel fine again."

Manufacture of Thedford's Black-Draught began in 1840, and many people tell of having taken it all their lives when in need of a laxative or cathartic. Made of medicinal herbs and roots that have been carefully selected, and then scientifically combined in convenient, powdered form.

Sold everywhere; 25 doses, 25c.

The Social Side—Wichita Falls' Woman's Interests—Clubs and Churches

Mrs. Sippel Talks On Federated Clubs At Woman's Forum Luncheon

"Service is the rent we pay for the place we occupy in the world and we haven't paid the rent until death takes us away," said Mrs. John F. Sippel, president of the General Federation of Women's clubs when she was the honored guest Tuesday at a luncheon at the Woman's Forum.

Mrs. Sipple talked on "The Federation, Its Origin, Its Work and Its Responsibility," and gave the history of the federation along with the founding of women's clubs. She declared "this is the woman's age and that she has a great deal of power but she must be careful how she uses that power."

Mrs. Sipple said she likes the name of Wichita Falls and believes that in ten years' time Texas will be the best state in the union "because the people of Texas have something to contribute to the world and because people are coming to Texas and are staying long enough to get acquainted with the people."

Mrs. Potter Honored

Sharing honors with Mrs. Sippel were Mrs. W. R. Potter of Bowie, president of the Texas Federation of Woman's clubs, and Mrs. David Warren, chairman of the writer's department of the state federation and Mrs. R. Q. Lee of Cisco, state parliamentarian and the wife of Congressman-elect R. Q. Lee of the 17th district. Mrs. Ben G. Oneal, president of the Woman's Forum, introduced Mrs. Sipple and Mrs. W. W. Cook presented Mesdames. Potter, Warren and Lee.

The speakers' table, arranged in one long table, was decorated with white crysanthemums with silver tulle leadin gto the appointments. A large silver oil derrick with miniature drillers placed around it, formed the centerpiece while six white tapers surrounded by white chrysanthemums added to the beauty of the table.

Favors for the guests of honor were lovely corsages of sweet peas and tiny rosebuds.

Each of the small tables was centered with a silver candlestick bearing a white lighted taper tied with silver tulle. Silver doilies aided in carrying out the silver color scheme. Place cards were pictures of the Woman's Forum.

Mrs. Stevens Chairman

Mrs. J. Truman Stevens was general chairman of arrangements for the luncheon and she was assisted by Mesdames. Charles E. Watson, R. M. Peterson, C. M. McFarland, Nydia Joiner Young, James L. School and College News

Two interesting speeches by members of the public speaking department featured the Junior college-high school general assembly Tuesday morning during the half-hour period. The first, "Phillip Nolan" by Hazel Hobbs presented an interesting review of the man without a country. "Is Life Worth Living?" proved a subject for much thought when presented by Aileen McKinley. Her speech was concluded by a stanza of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's poem, "A Psalm of Life."

Six of the cast of 17 characters who will appear in the one-act play by the Junior college Spanish club Thursday morning at assembly were introduced by Lela Belle Jenkins. The title of the play will be "My Spanish Sweetheart" and an admission charge will be made for the program. The following were introduced: Harold Diggs, Virginia Belle Walker, Alice Hartman, Alice Bone, Edna Mae Phillips and Arvil Davis. Following the introductions was a song and dance act by Edna Mae Phillips.

Pete Powell, Coyote football captain, gave a brief talk on the game with Amarillo which is to be played on Thanksgiving day. He praised the pep squad for its wonderful support in the past conflicts and urged every student in the school to be present at the game and give their support, as 1,500 rooters are expected from Amarillo for the final clash of the season. This estimate was obtained from word received by Principal Rider from the Sandstorm officials when they asked for 1,500 tickets. According to Mr. Rider, all box seats at the stadium will be reserved, along with a few other grandstand seats.

Members of the Girls' club will hold an open house program Friday morning during the 30-minute period in the main auditorium, according to Elizabeth Powers, cabinet member of the organization. Everyone attending the program will be charged an admission of canned goods, fruits, vegetables, or any food. Those not contributing food will be charged 10 cents for the program. These contributors will be given to needy families on Thanksgiving, it was announced.

The Junior college this year has scored a higher record in scholastic standing than ever before, according to an announcement made by Dean S. H. Rider. He also announced that a circular letter had been received from Texas Christian university stating that all subjects passed with an average of "D" would not be recognized upon entering the university.

Short-story contest that is now being sponsored by the Wichitan, the school paper, will not close until Dec. 5, according to Alexander Cameron, editor-in-chief. It was previously announced that the contest would close Nov. 21, but the time has been extended so that contestants will have until over the Thanksgiving holidays to complete and better their work.

Members of all civic classes of the high school will spend the entire day Wednesday visiting the meeting of the federal district court. All class members will meet at the courthouse at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning and will spend an hour on a visit through the jail, as court does not convene until 10 o'clock. Approximately 150 students will attend the court.

CHIC CHERIE — Latest Fashions

Cherie is offering a $50 prize for the three best budgets for a Winter wardrobe that doesn't cost more than $200. Sue and Dina and Kitty are going to try for a prize—if Cherie is going to be reckless with her money this way, they think they might get some of it. (But they won't because this is a regular contest. No members of the family can win). THIS IS THE WAY TO MAKE YOUR BUDGET. Cut the fashion pictures from the papers (all the stores are having fashion ads just now). Choose the clothes you think Cherie should buy for any one of the three budgets. Make them into a scrapbook and send it to Cherie in care of this paper. Start it now!

Send your scrap book to Cherie by December 1. If you want to make a picture budget for each of the three prizes you may, but put your name and address on each one of them. About our styles here—in the first sketch Sue was wearing a bright red crepe sport dress with bows down the front. Dina was wearing a charcoal print. Also with a bow on the bodice. Kitty was wearing a bow-trimmed printed velveteen. All that ought to convince you that bows are smart. This sketch, kind reader, shows Cherie watching her dear friends make their picture budgets. Cherie wears a satin dress with a kerchief drape on both the blouse and skirt. Sue wears lace, Dina printed velvet.

O' These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. (US)—A righteous looking lady with a husband whom she parked on the baggage in front of the gate to the train shed. She worried two porters, made one hold her dog, the other guard her baggage and her husband, while she managed to change her reservations. It took several trips to the train to get all the baggage in. When the hour of agony was over she handed one porter a dime and the other 15 cents, to say nothing of the look she threw in.

Then she gave her opinion of porters who took one's money without lifting their caps and saying, "Thank you."

"But it's all right with me," said the black man, grinning, "I jes' thank the Lord I ain't married to her."

A Chicago woman asked $600 a month alimony and the judge gave her $75.

The day is coming when it won't even be $75. The income will detour with the husband. Which may decrease the number of divorces. Especially among women who aren't fond of work.

A woman never should wear strange clothes to attract attention unless she looks very attractive in them. Being different isn't enough.

I saw an extremely goofy looking girl the other night in a Russian cafe in New York, with her hair about three inches longer than the ordinary bob. She had it tied to her neck with a ribbon which ended in a bow under her chin. On top of her head her hair looked as if it were glued down. And in spite of all this she was very pretty, and much admired, as an exhibition.

Natacha Rambova, Rudolph's widow, wears her hair in the same braided knobs over her ears, with the same type of Egyptian headgear that she wore years ago when she was Rudy's bride. She is thinner and not quite so pretty, but she still has more poise than the pyramids.

It was a little child, maybe two years old. The mother while older physically, had very little edge on the child, mentally. They occupied a section in the center of the Pullman car, with nice quiet people scattered about in other seats.

"Yes dear, that's a car-car. Baby like the car-cars? Baby want to see car-car start?" (always in a piping voice). "The car-car will start in two minutes darling. Yes, that car-cars go at the same time, dear. Yes, the car-cars get to Chicago at the same minute."

"Car-car."

"Yes dear, these are car-cars."

"A drink? All right baby stay here and mama will get her a drink in the car-car fountain. Yes dear, the man runs the car-car, up front in the engine."

Gradually all the passengers disappeared into the observation car, or out on the back platform where there were lots of cinders and it was cold.

Three women set out from Washington, D. C., and motored to California to find husbands. They ask for men who are kindly, truthful, good natured, honorable, non-smoking, non-drinking, and who don't philander.

California has a great reputation for delivering the goods, but here's a poser. To get what they are after, they will have to climb the golden stairs. Even the old statement, that marriages are made in heaven is pretty well perforated.

Blanche Groves Circle Meets With Mrs. Crawford

Members of the Blanche Groves circle of the Lamar avenue Baptist church met at the home of Mrs. J. L. Crawford when Mrs. Russell Ponder led the devotionals. Plans were made to remember one needy family with a dinner Thanksgiving day.

After the lesson on the Mission study, "Minister of Women," led by Mrs. Webb, the meeting closed with sentence prayers for the revival now in session.

Members present were Mesdames Webb, White, Walters, Ponder, J. L. Crawford, Strickland and Clyde Crawford.

Trouble Is Well on It's Way When Woman Is Deprived of Her Home

A Woman's Desire for Her Own Home Is an Age-Old Instinct Inherited From the First Cavewoman—Therefore, Any Attempt to Deprive Her of It Is Sure to Result in Unhappiness.

A man wants to know of me if I don't think his wife is utterly unreasonable because she wants a home of her own. Ever since they were married they have lived with his people, and he points out with unassailable logic that this arrangement is not only much cheaper but gives his wife less work to do than she would have if they set up a separate establishment.

Nevertheless, the queer, irrational creature to whom he is married persists in demanding her own home, and weeps and says that he doesn't love her when he refuses to give her one. Hence, he is exasperated beyond measure because she isn't happy and satisfied, when she has a perfectly good roof over her head and plenty of wholesome food to eat. And aren't women the crazy things, anyway? And why do they make such a fetish of their homes?

Well, I'll tell you, Mr. Man. It is because a woman's home is the realization of the dream she has cherished ever since she played keeping house in the nursery. It is because her home is a woman's emancipation proclamation. No woman ever really feels free until she lives in her own house, with her own furniture that she picked out herself and that represents her individual taste, and her own gas range on which she can cook the things she likes the way she likes them.

One of the main reasons that girls get married is to get a home, and this doesn't mean that they marry to get somebody to pay their bills for them. They can do that themselves, but what they crave is a place in which they may reign supreme and have their own monogramed towels and silver chest. And mostly they have to marry to get this. You will notice that the bachelor girls who have set up their own homes are not keen on matrimony. It is the girls who have to live in the family home who are most actively engaged in husband-hunting.

That is why no woman wants to live with her own mother after she is married, and that's why she is miserable and discontented if she is forced to live with her mother-in-law, no matter how good and kind and considerate the mother-in-law may be nor how luxurious the house she shares. For women are individualists, and there is no young wife who has the home-making instincts in her who wouldn't rather have her own two-by-four flat or a pasteboard bungalow in which she could express herself and of which she was mistress than live in another woman's palace.

Perhaps it is because a woman's house is so completely the outward and visible sign of her authority that she exhibits a jealousy about it that she knows about nothing else on earth. She is literally like the monopolistic Turk who can bear no rival near the throne, and any other woman who attempts to interfere with her ways of housekeeping does so at her peril.

One of the bitterest feuds I ever knew of began when a mother-in-law insisted that her daughter-in-law should wash the dishes in two waters instead of one, and among my acquaintances is an otherwise tolerant and broad-minded woman who has cherished a grudge for 20 years against her son's wife because, when the girl came as a bride to live with her, she shifted the arrangement of the furniture in her room.

Of course, it may seem foolish that women should lay such stress on little things, but the average domestic woman's life is made up of little things, and her happiness depends on such small trifles as being able to gratify her own whims and do just as she pleases in her own home. To use doilies if she prefers them to tablecloths, to have the wallpaper she likes and the draperies that appeal to her, to doll up her kitchen or leave it bare as a laboratory, according to her taste.

Possibly no mere man can ever understand just what a home means to a home-loving woman, for men are, at best, imperfectly domesticated animals, and to most men a home is mainly a place where they can hang up their hats and ease their feet and get the kind of things they like to eat without having to order them and then slump down over pipe and paper. Or else it is a place where they can grouch and gloom and work off all the temper and nerves they are afraid to exhibit to somebody of their own size and weight.

Or home is merely a filling station, and as soon as they have got their tanks replenished they step on the gas and joyride away and don't come back until every other place is closed up. Any place where the food is good and the bed comfortable can be home to them, but no place is home to a woman that isn't her own and isn't filled with her own things. That is why men's social clubs are successes and women's are failures. When a woman wants to read and relax she doesn't go to a club to do it, she goes home.

This desire of a woman for a home is a cosmic urge. It has come down to us from our earliest foremothers, who, when the supply of dry caves in which to live and rear their hairy babies ran out built hutches of branches of trees and grasses, and so erected the first homes. You can bet that each of those red-headed ladies had her own individual shack to boss and that she didn't double up with her mother-in-law.

So you see, Mr. Man, that your wife isn't to be blamed for wanting her own home. It is in her blood. It is her inheritance from those cavewomen who invented homes, and if you are a wise man and know what's good for you, you will go right out and get her one before the sun sets.

In that way you will make her happy and you'll keep her busy and interested, and you will take the best way that has been yet devised for developing her character. For a home will do more than all the Ten Commandments to keep a woman walking in the straight and narrow way. Somehow there is a moral influence in pots and pans and gas ranges and vacuum cleaners that lifts women up to the higher life.

Why? Don't ask me. But I have seen a complete set of aluminum ware regenerate a flapper and turn a Charleston dancer into a sedate housewife in the twinkling of an eye.

Furthermore, be glad and thankful that your wife wants her own home and has the homemaking instinct instead of being one of the undomestic women who shy at the sight of a kitchen and insist on living in hotels and boarding houses so that nothing may interfere with their bridge games and shopping orgies.

Scientists In Autumn Meet Reveal New Adventures Into Vast Unknown

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Nov. 20. (AP)—Reporting on their latest explorations into the infinite fields of the unknown, members of the National Academy of Science, at its autumn meeting here, are exploring secrets of nature which touch man's pocketbook or have aroused his curiosity time out of mind.

Exploring the heavens in search of the center of centers among the great galaxies of stars, in only one of which the earth is but a small clinker spinning as it circles about a little sun, Dr. Harlow Shapley of Harvard, speaks in terms of a hundred million light years. One light year is the distance that light, moving at 186,000 miles a second, travels in 12 months.

Cheaper Engines

Exploring the misbehaving of gasoline and other fuels for internal combustion engines, Dr. C. F. Kettering, vice president of the General Motors corporation, is able to speak with confidence of the time when more economical engines can be used in automobiles and airplanes than is now practicable.

Studying the squealing radio waves which are familiar to many listeners who have tried to operate their receivers in the neighborhood of an overworked regenerative set, E. F. W. Alexanderson of the General Electric company, finds a way to measure their echoes as they come back to an airplane from the earth. In this discovery, he sees the promise of early realization of the long sought method by which aviators may determine precisely their altitude above the ground.

Lighter Compass

Dr. J. D. Tear of the same company's research staff, analyzing the lines of force in the earth's magnetic field and considering the behavior of various combinations of metals, comes upon the development of a new compass for aircraft which he describes as more accurate and much lighter than others in use.

Exploring the complex mixture which the bee puts up and man calls honey, Dr. C. S. Hudson, recently transferred from the bureau of standards to the United States public health service, has been able to gather a considerable store of the hitherto extremely rare sugar, melezitose, which the insects obtain from the pine tree and its relatives in the conifer family. It's bad for honey, he explains, but it undoubtedly will help science in understanding this family of trees.

Center of Centers

Speaking of the galaxy of stars and planets and nebulae in which the earth is such a small part, Dr. Shapley expresses confidence that he and his associates have found its center in the Milky Way, at a distance of about 47,000 light years, although it is eternally hidden by one of the mysterious dark clouds which hang in the heavens. Other galaxies lie beyond the earth's particular galaxy. Each has a center he said, and there must be a general center around which all revolve. He is hunting for that with his telescopes and cameras, peering into space millions of millions of miles away.

1,200 At U. D. C. Texas Dinner

HOUSTON, Nov. 20.—More than 1,200 persons, the largest gathering so far during the convention, assembled today for the Texas dinner, given by the Texas division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy for general officers and delegates to the 35th annual national conclave here.

Dr. Stockton Axson, professor of literature in Rice Institute, was the chief speaker, and General A. T. Goodwin of Elmore, Ala., commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, delivered a brief address.

"Southerners born with the traditions of the confederacy behind them are better Americans for being southerners," Dr. Axson said.

Dr. Axson recounted the heroic sacrifices of women of the south during the Civil war, paying special tribute to those who left their homes to nurse their wounded on the fields of battle.

Dr. Axson also spoke eloquently of those heroes who will be cherished forever in the memory of southerners, Robert E. Lee, Stonewall Jackson, Bedford Forrest and later Woodrow Wilson.

T. W. Davidson of Dallas, former lieutentant governor, made a brief talk. Mrs. Forrest H. Farley, Texas division president, was toastmistress.

Former Mayor Of San Francisco Dies

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 20 (AP)—Eugene Schmitz, former mayor of San Francisco, died unexpectedly at his home here today.

Schmitz of late years was leader of a theater orchestra, but prior to that he played a leading role in San Francisco's most hectic political life, especially after the earthquake and fire of 1906.

He was elected to office on the union labor ticket and served three successive terms.

Shortly after the earthquake, Schmitz, along with many other city officials and the entire board of supervisors, was indicted on charges of taking money from private railroad companies to allow them to replace cable car systems with overhead trolleys. The days of the trials that followed were marked by shooting and bloodshed.

GRAY HAIR DARKENED SIMPLE HOME RECIPE

Faded, streaked or gray hair can now be darkened, youthful appearance restored, and the stamp of encroaching years forever banished by the use of a simple mixture that anyone can prepare at home. To ½-pint of water, add ¼-oz. of glycerine or rosewater, and a box of Darlox Compound, (formerly Nuglo) which can be bought for a few cents at any drug store. Your druggist will mix it if you prefer. It will darken the hair and restore its natural color and youthful beauty. It is harmless, cannot be detected, will not darken scalp, is not dirty or sticky and will not rub off.—Adv.

FEES UP TO COUNTY HEADS

Payment of Justices to Be Laid Before Meeting

The question of the basis upon which the four justices of the peace of Wichita county are to be paid since the recent ruling of the attorney general's office against the payment of fees in criminal convictions will be laid before the county commissioners at their next meeting, Nov. 25, Judge E. W. Nicholson announced Tuesday afternoon.

Fees Accepted Now

For the present fees are being accepted as usual in cases of pleas of guilty and in all civil proceedings, Judge Nicholson said. Actual trial and conviction by a jury are the only circumstances under which the justice is not receiving a fee, according to the understanding of the ruling here.

In an effort to have all possible information and advice available to put before the commissioners Monday, E. P. Walsh, county auditor, has written the attorney general's office, explaining difficulties and asking for suggestions. His letter, mailed Monday, explains that money coming to the county through the justice courts goes into the second class fund for roads and bridges, but that if the justices are to be paid ex-officio, the funds must come from the third class fund, thus creating an unusual situation. He asks for a suggested basis of remuneration.

Walsh's Letter

His letter is quited in full below:

"We have your opinion No. 2753 before us and in that connection wish to ask the following questions:

"The county's part of fines collected are paid into the road and bridge fund. If ex-officio is allowed to the justices, such money would be paid out of the third class fund. Can you suggest any relief from this situation?

"If the ex-officio compensation is not to be based upon conviction in criminal cases, can you suggest a fair way to choose the amount to be paid to any justice of the peace?

"We have five justices in this county, two in this city and three in smaller precincts. The smaller precincts do not do more than one-fifth as much business as one of the local justices will do. Can you suggest a fair and equitable way to arrive at the amount that each justice should be allowed as ex-officio?"

John Coolidge's Girl Says Wedding Won't Be In White House

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 20. (AP)—Miss Florence Trumbull, daughter of Governor John H. Trumbull, of Connecticut, told newspaper men today that she and John Coolidge, son of the president, would be married but not in the White House.

"Are you and John Coolidge going to have a White House wedding?" she was asked as she reached the city with her father and mother to attend the governors' conference.

"No, it won't be a White House wedding," she replied blushing.

"Has there been any formal announcement of the engagement?"

"Not yet," she said.

"You don't deny it by any chance do you?" pursued her questioner.

"Oh, no," she said.

"In fact, the engagement is accepted among all your friends, isn't it?"

"Oh, yes," she smiled. "It seems to be accepted everywhere."

Science Makes Six Great Steps In U. S. During Year, Report Says

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. (US)—An amazing onward march of scientific attainment during the past year was revealed by George K. Burgess, director of the bureau of standards—Uncle Sam's "House of Magic"—in his annual report to Secretary of Commerce Whiting today.

Among the most important of the many milestones that marked this remarkable advance toward the ultimate in practical science were:

Giant Telescope

1. Construction of a two-ton telescope mirror of optical glass as part of the first all-American-made telescope of great size, for Ohio Wesleyan university.

2. Manufactures of wallboard from cornhusks—a long step toward assisting the farmer in utilizing waste products of his land.

3. Recovery of xylose, a rare costly sugar, in commercial quantities from cottonseed hulls.

4. Discovery of a cheap substitute for the expensive goldbeater's skin used for making gas cells in dirigibles.

5. Perfection of a machine by which steel scales are ruled direct from light waves with an error not exceeding two one-millionths of an inch—a tremendous step forward for manufacturers of various precision instruments.

6. Attainment of a successful radio beacon, consisting only of a simple receiving set and an indicating device on the airplane.

Thousands of Tests

These are but a few of the accomplishments reported by the bureau. An idea of the multiplicity of its activities is revealed in Dr. Burgess' statement that the bureau made 142,713 tests, involving no less than 454,589 determinations in the course of the year.

The discovery of a substitute for the goldbeater's skin, coming at a time when the dirigible has established itself as a means of transportation, marks a giant stride in the aviation industry, as reflected in a greatly reduced cost of construction.

The price of goldbeater's skin is prohibitive. It is an intestinal membrane obtained from cattle, and yielded only in a few square inches from each animal. The bureau is carefully safeguarding the nature of this substitute, except to reveal that "it is made from materials which are available in unlimited quantities."

A gas cell made of the substitute has been in use on the giant dirigible Los Angeles for several months and its "behavior is almost as good as the best of the goldbeater's skin cells now in use," the report states, adding:

"Improvement in technic and workmanship will yield a cell equal, if not superior," to those now in use.

The accomplishment marks the successful termination of a search conducted by scientists ever since the advent of the balloon for a fabric that is cheap and at the same time impervious to osmosis by gas and air.

Perfection of the process by which wallboard is produced from cornstalks required many months of intensive research, followed by many more months of practical application to make the various machines function properly and then to synchronize them. Already a semi-commercial factory has been established at Ames, Iowa, producing two tons of board per day.

Delicate Undertaking

The successful casting and cooling of the giant telescope mirror was an outstanding accomplishment of the "house of magic." The great two-ton lens was cast on May 7, 1927. Then followed the delicate process of cooling—in which a slip would have meant the cracking of the glass and the loss of untold labor. For more than eight months the temperature was lowered almost infinitesimally each day until on Jan. 21, 1928, the glass was removed from the furnace and found to be without a flaw.

Burning down old buildings to determine what really happens in a fire in a typical non-fire resisting structure, experiments to make paper currency more impervious to wear and tear, testing of thousands of commercial products, research along a hundred different lines and an investigation into radioactive substances are a few of the countless other activities of the bureau during the year.

And it all was accomplished on an appropriation of less than $2,750,000.

FIGHT TO OUST BAPTIST LOOMS

Ark. College Head Aroused Ire By Aiding Al

TEXARKANA, Ark., Nov. 20. (UP)—A fight for the removal of Dr. Charles Brough as president of Central college, Conway, Ark., will come before the Baptist state convention to be held here next week, it appeared certain today.

The controversy grew out of political activities of Dr. Brough, wartime governor of Arkansas, in behalf of the Smith-Robinson presidential ticket in the face of "solemn warning" by some Baptist leaders to "tend to his own business."

Dr. J. S. Rogers, executive secretary of the convention, and Dr. J. S. Compere, editor of the Baptist Advance, official publication of the state convention, are leaders of the group which will seek to oust Dr. Brough.

They have announced that when the convention opens for a three-day session here next Tuesday that they will lead a fight to have Dr. Brough dismissed as head of the Baptist college. Friends of Brough have announced they will take his case to the floor of the convention.

In reply to telegrams from Rogers and Compere demanding that he cease speaking for the Democratic presidential ticket, Dr. Brough replied the two were attempting to "gag my right of free speech and thought," and "it is the most brazen attempt at coercion in the history of the state."

"The worst fight in the history of the Arkansas Baptist ranks," was forecast today by Texarkana Baptist leaders.

Vestris Crew Was Cowardly, Charge

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 20. (INS)—"The crew of the Vestris was the cowardliest bunch of seamen that were ever on a sinking ship," Harry Fay, Charleroix, Pa., boxer and survivor of the ill-fated vessel, charged today.

Fay was en route to South America to fight Luis Firpo when the ship sank off the Virginia capes.

Fay was unwilling to commit himself on Capt. William J. Carey. "Up until the ship disappeared Carey passed the deck, smiling and smoking a cigar," the fighter said.

Fay refused to amplify his charges on advice of a friend, who accompanied him to the federal building here, where the fighter went to replace his passport, lost in the sea disaster.

The fighter criticized members of the crew who have accepted theater contracts on the strength of their experience.

He had no criticism of the passengers on the ill-fated Vestris.

"Most every man had to save himself and help in saving the women," he said.

Farmer Freed in Fight With Boxer

BLACKWELL, Okla., Nov. 20. (UP)—James Vickers, farmer and father of eight children, was discharged from jail today where he was held after slashing Babe Hunt, heavyweight boxer, late yesterday. Hunt refused to prosecute Vickers.

The boxer and Vickers engaged in a controversy over the right of way in crossing a bridge between Ponca City and Tonkawa. Vickers slashed Hunt in the face with a knife. Doctors took 14 stitches in the boxer's face.

LONDON, Nov. 20. OUSLEY URGES ROAD PROGRAM

Legislative Action Asked In Address

LAREDO, Texas, Nov. 20. (AP)—A legislative program to provide a state-wide system of good roads connecting with main national highways was urged today by Clarence Ousley, good roads director of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, in an address before the South Texas Chamber of Commerce.

In presenting this suggestion Ousley criticised bus and truck line operators whom he said pay nothing toward construction or maintenance of the roads on which they travel.

"It is unjust and cruel to tax general property owners for maintenance when shippers and travelers gather the most benefit," Ousley said. "Free road beds for autoists and common carriers is a joke that has been carried far enough. As highways are the same form of public service as railroads, charges should be made for their use," he declared.

Ousley's suggested policy of meeting the problem would retain the present registration fee in the aggregate with the existing division of receipts between counties and state, increase the tax on gasoline to at least four cents a gallon and levy a reasonable gross receipt or tonnage tax on carriers.

The new Ford has a very simple and effective lubrication system

THE lubrication system for the engine of the new Ford is as simple in principle as water running down-hill.

A gear pump in the bottom of the oil pan raises the oil to the valve chamber reservoir. From here it flows on to the main crankshaft bearings and the front camshaft bearing. Overflow oil drops into the oil pan tray and runs into troughs through which the connecting rods pass.

As the ends of these rods strike the oil they scoop up a supply for the connecting rod bearing. At the same time they set up a fine spray that lubricates the pistons and other moving parts.

From the tray the oil runs into the bottom of the pan, and is again drawn up through a fine mesh screen and pumped to the valve chamber.

This system is so effective that the five-quart contents of the oil pan pass through the pump twice in every mile when you are traveling at only 30 miles an hour. Yet there is only one movable part—the oil pump.

As a matter of fact, the lubrication system for the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires practically no service attention.

There is just one thing for you to do, but it is a very important thing . . . watch the oil! Change the oil every 500 miles and be sure the indicator rod never registers below low (L).

If the oil level is allowed to fall below low, the supply becomes insufficient to oil all parts as they should be oiled.

To insure best performance it is also advisable to have the chassis of your car lubricated every 500 miles. This has been made easy through the use of the high pressure grease gun system.

Proper oiling and greasing mean so much to the life of your car that they should not be neglected or carelessly done.

See your Ford dealer regularly. He is especially well-fitted to lubricate the new Model A car and he will do a good, thorough job at a fair price.

WEALTH COMES TO PROSPECTOR

Aged Gold Hunter Collects On Invention

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 20. (AP)—A quest for wealth which started in boyhood began to bear fruit today for George Campbell Carson, who grubbed the desert for 30 years in a vain search for gold and then in the evening of life invented a copper smelting furnace which promises to make him a millionaire.

First returns to Carson for his invention were announced yesterday when his attorneys said the United Verde Copper company had made a settlement in the suit which he brought charging infringement of patent.

Almost simultaneously came word from Tucson, Ariz., that judgment had been entered in his favor in a suit against the Phelps Dodge corporation and the Calumet and Arizona Mining company.

Although the amount of money accruing to the old prospector and his associates cannot be computed in exact figures, it is said the total will be between $7,000,000 and $20,000,000.

After years of prospecting, Carson turned to the study of chemistry and engineering. The furnace was the result. The copper companies contended it was based on an old principle and Carson was not entitled to royalties.

Penniless, Carson formed the Carson Investment company to press claims against the copper producers and stock was sold to finance the litigation.

Brother of Ocean Flier Hurt in Car Accident

SILVER CITY, N. M., Nov. 20. (AP)—H. G. Goebel of Tuscon, Ariz., cousin of Art Goebel, transoceanic flyer, Steve Morris of El Paso, Texas, and Mrs. L. F. Duncan of Seattle, Wash., were injured last night when an automobile in which they were riding near here went off the road on a turn and rolled over three times.

Goebel was only slightly hurt while the condition of his companions was critical.

Moody Said To Claim Payment

HOUSTON, Nov. 20. (AP)—Members of a delegation from the Galveston county mainland chamber of commerce said that Gov. Dan Moody intimated here that he was favorably inclined toward payment of claims for dairy cattle killed in the fight several years ago against the foot and mouth disease in Galveston and Harris counties.

The Galveston county committee plans to ask the next legislature for reimbursement for damages suffered not only through destruction of thousands of dairy cattle but through prohibition of the harvesting of crops put into effect at that time.

Instead of being allowed to restock within four or five months, as the dairymen understood would be the policy, restocking was delayed a year, members of the committee said. Hundreds of small dairymen were said to have been affected and a number financially ruined.

MEXICAN REBEL CHIEF KILLED IN GUN FIGHT

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 20. (AP)—Dispatches from Guadalajara today said that Manuel Espinosa, an insurgent chieftain, had been killed by police in Lagos.

Espinosa audaciously entered the town alone. When police recognized him and attempted to arrest him, he resisted. His single handed battle against the police came to an end when one of their shots killed him.

More Than Ton of Venison in Storage Here Attests to Good Deer Hunting

Ice Plants Care for Large Surplus of Wild Game Brought Back by Wichita Falls Hunters

Success of several invasions of big game territory by Wichita Falls hunters since the season's opening on Nov. 16 is evidenced by over a ton of fresh venison now hanging in the storage vaults of local ice plants.

Hunting zones in New Mexico, and in Mason and Llano counties in this state, have yielded the animals bagged by the local nimrods. A man who traveled to New Mexico for the opening of the season declared that 700 hunters entered the preserve at sunrise on the opening day at the entrance which he had chosen. He stated that bucks were abundant, and that he had made his kill, a 10-pointer, by 10 o'clock that morning. Upon leaving the zone shortly after noon, he learned from the attendant that 150 deer had been carried out up to that hour.

Two parties from Wichita Falls were on the ground in the rough country south of Brownwood for the opening of Nov. 16. W. W. Fraser, J. C. Park, Everett Park, Charles Smoot and Kitt Cowan reported abundant numbers of does in Llano county, but with bucks apparently scarce. This party brought back three deer, one a 10-point buck. Walter E. Hodges, W. B. Guthrie, Clyde Gabbert and Jim Morton were members of a group which invaded Mason county last Friday morning and found game fairly plentiful. Two days of hunting yielded six good-sized bucks to increase this city's consumption of venison.

According to Mr. Hodges, the storage plant at Mason, county seat of Mason county, reported a total of 126 deer placed in their cold storage during the first two days of hunting in that county. It was also stated that on Saturday 29 bucks were killed on one 20,000-acre tract.

Hearing Called On Rail Privileges

AUSTIN, Nov. 20. (AP)—All Texas railroads except the Fort Worth and Denver City and the Wichita Valley, have applied to the state railroad commission for authority to establish transit privileges of carload cotton seed oil shipments at Dallas, Sherman, Fort Worth, San Antonio, Greenville and Houston.

The commission will hold a hearing on the application sometime during its December term, opening Dec. 11.

If the transit privilege is granted, oil shipments may be stopped at the cities named, manufactured into lard substitutes, and reshipped to consuming points at a cost representing a large saving over what two unrelated shipments would cost.

The oil would take the regular rate to the transit point, under the system proposed. From the transit point, the lard substitutes manufactured there would take the regular rates for such commodities, plus $8.10 for each outbound car. Then 24 per cent of the inbound freight charges on cotton seed oil equal to the weight of oil used as an ingredient in manufacture of lard substitutes would be refunded provided the refund would not exceed 15½ cents a hundred pounds.

DETROIT, Nov. 20. (AP)—Harry Watson, pal of Paul Jaworski, notorious gunman, was convicted of first degree homicide in connection with the slaying of an officer in the Detroit News payroll holdup last June by a jury in recorder's court today.

Under the Michigan law, the maximum penalty for such an offense is life imprisonment.

Will of Terror Reign Victim Void

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 20. (UP)—The state supreme court today reversed the Osage county district court in admitting to probate the will of Reta Smith as an aftermath of the "Osage reign of terror."

Reta Smith and her husband, W. E. Smith, and a servant girl, were killed when the Smith home at Fairfax was dynamited in March, 1923.

The Smiths left a joint, mutual, reciprocal will in which Smith provided that if he and his wife died simultaneously his property should go to his father, Thomas Smith.

Mrs. Smith provided that her property should go to a half sister, Grace Bigheart, with the exception of $5, which should go to Millie Burkhart, wife of Byron Burkhart, who now is serving a life sentence in the pententiary in connection with the Osage murders.

The court held the will was void since Reta Smith would not have any more of Smith's property under the terms of the will than if Smith had died intestate.

Justices Score Delays In Refusing Appeal

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. (INS)—With three justices declaring that there should be an end to appeals for the purpose of delaying criminal cases, the supreme court today summarily dismissed the appeal of J. Robert Cogen of New York, who sought to escape trial on liquor conspiracy charges.

Cogen brought action to recover papers alleged to have been seized by dry agents in a raid at 1435 Madison avenue, New York and to prevent the papers being used as evidence against him. Justices Vandevanter, McReynolds and Brandeis all asserted that the primary purpose of the appeal was to gain delay.

McCloskey Victor By 309 Votes, Count Shows

Congressman Wurzbach today was reported near a nervous breakdown and resting near his home at Seguin.

Wurzbach, in a brief submitted to the court, alleged that erasures had been found in tally sheets which the court checked, that some of the envelopes containing the returns had been open when they were given to the court and that in some boxes more votes had been counted than there were qualified voters in the precincts.

London Press Hot Over Vestris Case

LONDON, Nov. 20. (AP)—The conduct of the inquiry in New York into the sinking of the Vestris drew indignant comment from two of this morning's papers.

The Daily News characterized the procedure as "bullying, biased, ignorant and inconceivably stupid, suggesting a preconceived resolve to villify a British steamship at all costs and despite all proof to the contrary." The paper added that the methods had aroused deep indignation in Great Britain.

The Daily Express said "bowery methods of treating unfortunate witnesses as if they were criminals conspiring to deceive cause the greatest resentment in this country."

Girl Wanders As Waitress to Seek Data for Writing

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 19. (INS)—A desire to "see the world" to obtain material for writings caused Maud Nesserirodt, 19, to leave Lawrence university, at Canton, N. Y., last July, and travel through Canada and several states, working as salesgirl and waitress, she declared today at the home of her uncle, L. F. Nesserirodt.

She denied a love affair had caused her wanderings and said she was now ready "to stay home with my uncle and aunt."

The girl has lived at her uncle's home since her parents died in Jacksonville, Fla., two years ago. She was entered in William and Mary college, but left last June for Canton, where she stayed with her cousin, the wife of Prof. W. W. Thomas, until the wanderlust became too strong. She hopes to be a writer.

School Head Urges Plotting Of State Roads Away From Schools

AUSTIN, Nov. 20. (INS)—Recommendation was made to the state highway commission today by Prof. S. M. N. Marrs, state superintendent of public instruction, that locations of state highways be at least 100 yards from public school buildings in order to eliminate danger to school children. The communication was addressed to R. S. Sterling, chairman of the highway commission.

"We have been 30 or 40 years in changing the sites of schools from near the right of way of railroads," Marrs' letter said. "We certainly should avoid making the same mistake with reference to the highways." He added that school officials would be urged to observe his recommendation in locating sites for future school buildings.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—A young woman recently took an apartment in the east Eighties and discovered she was living in quite a foreign section. All her neighbors were either Scandinavians or Germans, signs in the store windows were unpronounceable and mysterious, and by using a little imagination she could almost feel as if she were abroad when she walked down toward the East river.

Soon after she moved there a German woman who lived across the hall asked her to take a chance on a victoria which was to be raffled off at a fair a turn verein was giving. Rather flattered at being invited to participate in neighborhood activities, she gladly paid her quarter, signed her name in the book the woman had, stuffed the receipt in her desk and forgot all about it.

Last week she received a letter which was as mysterious to her as the German side of the menu at the restaurant at the corner.

"You ought to learn German if you insist upon living in the hinterland," said her friend. "Now, I'm wise. I live where I know what people are talking about and then I can read any mail they may send me. That might be valuable."

"It's probably an advertisement. I think I'll send it to Gerda, though, for a joke. She's German and I wrote her I was living here."

So the girl slipped the German letter in with her own letter and shipped the whole thing to Gerda and forgot all about that.

Two days later she got a special delivery letter from Gerda containing the German letter and its translation. To her utter amazement the letter announced that she had won the victoria and six German records.

"Well," she said to her friend, "that was certainly a close shave."

"It sure was," agreed the friend. "And even if you can't speak German you can learn to appreciate German music now that you've six records of it."

One of the most interesting rooms in New York is on the second floor of the Pennsylvania station. It is the central distributing office for Pullman reservations, the biggest thing of its kind in the world. All Pennsylvania Pullman space is now booked through and from this central distributing office.

Tables running lengthwise of the big room bear in racks the diagrams of berths, compartments and drawing rooms for every train offering such space which leaves the Pennsylvania station. The number of cars average around 500 a day. There are 2,000 pigeonholes, open at each end so that they can be worked from either side of the tables. These pigeonholes are divided horizontally according to the days of the week. The tables containing these racks of diagrams and pigeonholes are connected by direct telephone wire with all Pennsylvania local ticket offices, and the ticket clerks in the central distributing bureau all wear telephone operators' headpices, with a transmitting horn on their breasts.

Except for a supplementary mail business, the central bureau is run entirely by telephone or telegraph. It has a daily average of 10,000 phone calls, and rises occasionally to 15,000. An average of 1,000 telegrams asking for reservations is received. Ninety clerks, working 30 to a shift, take care of this enormous business.

The wife, after much cogitation and discussion of the matter, decided to get a boyish bob. Not wanting to trust this delicate operation to her regular barber she decided to ask sister-in-law the name of her hairdresser. Sister-in-law has a very trick haircut, which had long been envied by the wife. So, via telephone, the wife was informed where William, her barber, might be found.

The wife called the telephone number and got William. She made an appointment for 10 o'clock that morning. At that hour she presented herself at the address given by sister-in-law. It didn't look like even a French hairdresser's, but then, again, neither was it a private dwelling. A maid approached and greeted her.

"I have an appointment at 10 o'clock," quoted the wife.

"An appointment? At 10 o'clock?" was the evidently puzzled question of the maid.

"Yes, William is to cut my hair at 10 o'clock."

"What?" in astonishment. "Why William is the engineer."

The wife decided the situation needed clarifying so she asked where she was.

"This," replied the courteous maid, "is the resident department of the Spence School for Girls."

On Sunrise Boulevard, one of the busiest highways in Nassau county, all traffic was stopped in both directions for 10 minutes the other day while what was probably the strangest parade that ever caused a traffic jam filed slowly across the road.

A gang of workmen excavating at the side of the road had disturbed the home of a family of turtles, father and mother and four little ones, and the turtles, evidently thinking the other side of the way would be a safer place to build their new home, started gravely across in Indian file.

Trucks, limousines, touring cars and flivvers threw on their brakes and came to a squeaking halt with their grinning drivers waiting patiently until the smallest baby turtle had disappeared over the edge of the concrete before proceeding on their way.

Hero of the Vestris

SOMETIMES it seems as if it takes a great tragedy to reveal the fundamental nobility of the human race.

The story of the sinking of the steamer Vestris has not been pleasant reading. But through the dark paragraphs of terror and death there have been bright gleams of courage and fidelity that are worth going far to get.

Michael O'Loughlin, the chief radio operator, made a name that should be remembered for a long time. To understand the nature of his heroism, you must fix in your mind a picture of the situation on the sinking vessel.

The Vestris was lying far over on its side, its decks slanting as steeply as the roof of a house. It was sagging lower in the water every minute, with long waves jarring it deeper as they broke over its nearly submerged bows. The passengers were huddled on deck in life preservers.

In the little chubby-hole of a radio room sat O'Loughlin. Perhaps "sat" isn't the word; the room canted at such an angle that he had to brace his feet against the wall to keep from falling. He knew that at any moment the ship might turn completely over, or slide down into the depths without warning. To be cooped up inside under such circumstances hardly could have been pleasant.

But there sat O'Loughlin, keeping in his hand the little key that was the steamer's sole contact with the rest of the world. Hour after hour he stayed there, ticking out the signals that were bringing help across the hostile sea. Lower and lower the ship settled; at last the lifeboats slithered down the slanting side. Still O'Loughlin stuck, guiding the rescue ships to the scene. The power generators were flooded, and he had to send his signals on the emergency coil, but he kept at it.

The scientists are fond of telling us that we are ruled by fundamental instincts which cannot possibly be broken. The strongest of these, they say, is the instinct of self-preservation. Oh, how they libel the race!

Self-preservation! O'Loughlin could easily have left his post after once making sure that help was on the way. He could have stepped outside, made his way to a lifeboat or raft, strapped a life belt about his waist and made sure of his own safety. No one could have blamed him for refusing to die like a drowning rat in a sinking cage. But—he didn't.

Things like that happen oftener than we realize. An ordinary, undistinguished man finds himself face to face with terror and death; and, without any flourish or heroics, he calmly ignores them and does the duty that presents itself. He may die as a result; yet the blindest materialist alive must admit that such a man has eternally conquered death. He has proved that it cannot frighten him; and the aspirations of the race are thereby vindicated.

Privately-Owned Planes

WHENEVER it is suggested that the use of privately-owned airplanes in this country will presently rival in extent the use of privately-owned autos, the objection is made that the average citizen will never be able to get use of a landing field.

Miss Amelia Earhart, writing in the current issue of Cosmopolitan magazine, makes a suggestion that may provide a good part of the solution. She believes that the aviation country club will do the trick.

As more and more people buy planes, she says, existing golf and country clubs will establish small landing fields for their members. In addition, aviation enthusiasts will get together and establish new clubs, with landing fields, places for storage of planes, and club houses.

This sounds quite reasonable. The ordinary citizen can't hope to keep a plane in his back yard, but if he can join a club that will have plenty of space for such activities he'll be just as well off as if he had his own landing field.

Legal Hair-Splitting

THE legal hair-splitter is still with us.

Philadelphia, under the courageous leadership of District Attorney Monaghan, has been making a notable effort to rid its police department of crooks. It has fired a third of the department's higher officers and has indicted several more.

Now an attorney for one of the accused officials goes to court—to assert his client's innocence? No. He files an attack on the grand jury that is doing the investigating, asserting that it does not have the legal right "to make findings of fact on which to base indictments."

It is that sort of maneuver that has filled the average man with a deep distrust of courts and lawyers. A layman would suppose that the only question at issue was the guilt or innocence of the accused men; but some lawyers prefer to split hairs in the hope that that point can be dodged.

A SMALL CITY OR A COUNTRY TOWN?

Stamford prides itself upon being something above the general run of country towns. It feels—or its loyal citizens feel—that it is in the class of the small city, rather than the country town. In other words, we have just about all the advantages that a city many times our size enjoys. The difference between Stamford and Dallas is not a matter of quality but of size. —Stamford (Texas) American.

WEST TEXAS SIDE LINES

Turkeys at 28 to 35 cents a pound and pecans at 7 cents to 50 cents a pound are furnishing Christmas money for many a West Texan nowadays.

The turkey crop is commanding prices that will render the grower a good profit, that will create a demand among many others for breeding stock to bring more money into West Texas another year. It is largely eastern money that comes in—new money—money that goes to the banks on deposit or to the grocery and clothing and furniture stores of West Texas to make living more pleasant.

—San Angelo (Texas) Evening Standard.

WHAT HE SAID, NOT HOW MUCH

A writer in one of the large magazines of America says there is not enough data on the life of Christ for anybody to write a common, every day biography of Him, such as is given the average citizen when he dies. This same writer also adds that what Jesus said while here is "a mere handful." Yet, no other person of any time since the beginning of the world has had as much influence on the lives of other people as this same Jesus of Nazareth. This is another illustration that it does not take a long oration—or a lot of "sayings"—to impress one on other people. —Sherman (Texas) Daily Democrat.

The INN of the HAWK and RAVEN

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

(Copyright, 1927, Dodd Mead & Co.) (Copyright, 1928, Metropolitan Newspaper Service, New York)

During the summer, Jonifer takes Gerane and his nephew, Peter, to Edelweiss on a pleasure jaunt. They are disguised as gypsies. While there, they see Starcourt acting as the escort of the princess, on her return to the palace. One look at Gerane's face, when she sees Starcourt, tells Jonifer that she loves him. Peter arrives at the same conclusion, and is none too pleased, for he secretly loves Gerana. However he knows he can never marry her, for not only was his father, Jonifer's half-brother, of illegitimate birth, but he himself was born out of wedlock. Jonifer, being the legitimate descendant of the Duke of Droon, who was made an outlaw, many, many years ago, after his attempt to seize the throne, exercises his prerogatives as head of the family in a way that the son of his deceased illegitimate half-brother often finds distasteful. Peter instantly becomes jealous of Starcourt, who, according to a spectator, is about to undertake the extermination of the bandits in the Forest of Droon and has been made a colonel, for he has voluntarily undertaken the task.

Urged on by his mother and his brothers, who hate Jonifer, Peter contemplates a revolt against his uncle's authority.

Jonifer, who, on learning that Gerane is in love with Starcourt, makes some secret plans that involve the soldier, takes a trip to Moscow. On his way home, near the Axphain border, the stage-coach is held up—not by his men however. The arrival of a troop of soldiers results in the capture of the robbers. The incident serves to inform Jonifer that Starcourt, with 500 picked men, is in the Forest of Droon to run down the Davos band, no matter how long the task keeps him there. Jonifer and his companion,

Jahn Crispo, quietly disappear that night and MAKE their way home, realizing that the situation is too serious to permit of their running the risk of capture.

INSTALLMENT XV

He and Jahn Crispo made their escape that night. A thunderstorm came up about 11 o'clock, a wild mountain hurricane. He and Jahn had been assigned quarters all to themselves, a couple of officers surrendering their tents. As they stole away into the forest and circled back to the highway below the camp and its fourscore unsuspecting soldiers, Jonifer chuckled with glee.

It was raining pitchforks, the wind was roaring, thunder boomed like a mighty cannonade, but the two men minded not. Indeed, they not only thanked their lucky stars—that, fortunately, were invisible—for such a manifestation of kindness on the part of nature, but they reveled in the turmoil. When they were safely across the stream at the bottom of the gorge and were making their way up into the hills, Jonifer, very short of breath, paused to explain his chuckles.

"I cannot help laughing, Jahn, when I think that this is the second time we have tricked Starcourt on that very identical spot. Ha! Ha! Ha!"

"Curse me!" growled Crispo, "if it wasn't for all this thunder, they could hear that laugh of yours in the camp."

Shortly after nightfall the next evening they rode into the Digman yard on a couple of sorry horses borrowed from a woodchopper, in whose cabin they had spent part of the preceding night and most of the following day. They were safely back at their homes in the valley, an hour or two later, counting the gold they had carried back from Moscow.

Gerane's joy over her father's safe return was unbounded. He had been gone the better part of a month. Great uneasiness had prevailed in the valley. Disquieting news had reached the inhabitants through the Digmans, who, in their agitation, reported that the whole Graustark army was engaged in a stupendous effort to put an end to the robbers, once and for all.

As time went on and the two messengers to Moscow were long overdue, Gerane proposed that a rescue party go forth in search of them. She announced her firm intention to head the band, whether or no, and flew into tempestuous rages when her propositions were frowned upon or laughed at by the men of the valley. She was in a great state of despair and indignation, even fury, when Jonifer finally came home. He was very proud of her, but swore by the high heavens that, if he had caught her out in the Forest looking for him, he would have chopped her head off and sent it to Colonel Starcourt as a warning of what he might expect, if he continued to annoy the young lady's father, Jonifer Davos!

She had stayed awake far into many a night, mentally cataloguing the frightful things she would do to Starcourt, if he harmed her father. She would make him pay!

And now she was happier than than she had ever been in all her life. Her father was at home, safe and sound. She would not have to do anything to punish Starcourt. Still she was not above wishing that she might capture him alive.

She had become unpleasantly aware of a change in her cousin, Peter. As the days went by and the impression grew that Jonifer may have fallen into the clutches of the law, Peter revealed unmistakable signs of what she was pleased to describe as bumptiousness.

"No, no, Julius, you must not do that," she cried. "I may be wrong. I may be silly and—"

He became increasingly officious. His manner toward her indicated a quality of familiarity that had not been manifested before. He strutted a little; he took it upon himself to give orders—wildly and uncertainly, to be sure, but orders, just the same.

And his two brothers seemed to be holding their heads higher than was their wont. They too strutted a little. Slowly it dawned upon her—and to others as well—that Peter and his brothers secretly were hoping that Jonifer would never return. The first named began to make a practice of visiting the chieftain's house and lolling about, as if he were quite at home there. And at such times she did not like the way he looked at her. Moreover, his mother, Ranya Brutz, was going about the place with her head high and a domineering light in her handsome black eyes.

Gerane went to Julius Broadaxe with her suspicions. That worthy calmly answered that he would like nothing better than to wring Peter's neck and would do so within the hour, if she. . .

"Oh, no, Julius, you must not do that," she cried. "I may be wrong. I may be silly and. . ."

"We have all noticed the change in him," broke in the smiths grimly. "We do not like the airs he is putting on. Besides, a few of the younger men seem to be getting thick with him lately. It does not look right to me. Peter is a fellow I have always liked. Most every one likes him. But, if he thinks he can step into your father's boots, Gerane, and deprive you of the right to succeed to the leadership of this. . ."

"Good heavens, Julius," she cried out, "I do not want to become the leader of this band of—of you all, I mean. And don't you dare to even intimate that my father has been—well, that he will not come back alive." She clenched her hands. "I—I could kill you, Julius Snook, for suggesting such a thing. I could tear you limb from limb. Don't you. . ."

"With those little scratchers of yours?" grinned Julius, looking down in huge amusement at her fists. His great hands were on his hips, his prodigious arms akimbo. "Bless you heart, I would die laughing, if you tried it."

"Be serious, if you please, Julius," she commanded. "And give heed to what I am saying. Let me see, what was I saying! Oh, yes, about Peter."

And they discussed the new Peter for half an hour, coming to but one conclusion, and that was Julius': Peter's neck would have to be wrung. Likewise the necks of his two brothers. Julius gallantly refused to wring a woman's neck, so Ranya was to be spared.

Jonifer's return put an end to Peter's increasing lordliness. He slipped back into his old groove, that of absolute fidelity to his leader. There is this to be said for Peter and his brothers: they were loyal to their chieftain. Their mother's scathing taunts had no effect whatsoever upon them. So long as Jonifer Davos was alive they would stand beside him and fight unto the death for him. Was he not their father's brother?

Many days passed before Jonifer, guessing Gerane's secret and inwardly applauding the forebearance she showed in asking no questions, brought up the subject of Starcourt and his activities. He saw her eyes brighten; her cheeks grew warm; her lips were parted when she listened to him.

"Curse me," said he later on to Julius Broadaxe; "I am of half a mind to undertake it this very week."

"I would be folly, Jonifer. They are too strong for us. It behooves us to keep our noses inside this valley, my friend."

"But, man, it makes me unhappy to see her going about with her eyes sad and—why, it is pathetic, Julius. If you had a daughter whose eyes used to be bright and gay, and you had to see them getting heavier and sadder all the. . ."

"Now, see here, Jonifer, enough of this. What do you think I am made of? You will have me crying, if you keep this thing up any longer. Besides, we all agreed in counsel the other night that it was best to wait till this flurry is over and the troops go back to where they belong."

"I suppose you are right," sighed Jonifer.

Nevertheless, after standing it as long as he could, he sallied forth one night with a goodly company of men, bent on carrying out the design that had been on his mind for months. He had learned from one of the Digmans that Starcourt and a small detachment of troopers were to camp for the night in one of the glens upon the hills above Semlik.

The story of his attack and its result calls for but few words. Suffice it to say that, when he and his yelling band of whirlwind riders dashed into the glen, expecting to take Starcourt by surprise, they were met by a fusillade of rifle shots that laid half a dozen of the assailants low and sent the others scurrying for their lives.

Of the 20 men who rode out with Jonifer only 11 returned to the valley and they were hard put to gain this place of refuge.

And, for a long time thereafter, the great Jonifer glowered and cursed the livelong day. He took no comfort, you may be sure, in Broadaxe's grisly contention that this was "the best way to keep our population down."

But what irked him even more than personal defeat was the incomprehensible joy of his daughter over the fact that neither he nor Starcourt had been killed!

He fairly gnashed his teeth when Gerane had the consummate impudence to beg him not to match sword or wits again with so redoubtable a warrior as Colonel Starcourt!

So he went up into the woods and made a solemn vow.

FIGHTING DAD

We're mighty glad that dad is here,
for he is getting old;
He suffers much from summer's heat, as well as winter's cold.
His health is anything but good;
his rheumatism's bad,
But there's one time that one can show a lot of life—for dad;
And that is when he starts a tale about the civil war;
He takes a half a day for it, and sometimes even more.

I've gone with him through Vicksburg's scrap, and also Antietam,
And every time he fights and yells like he don't give a d——
For life or limb; his only aim is whipping Yankees out;
And you should hear that whoop he gives—that savage rebel shout!
I wonder if the neighbors think that we are killing him
When he emits those piercing yells, with all his old-time vim?

We all grow tired of hearing tales of war between the states,
And still we sit with anxious ears the while that he relates
His tales of action, for we know that dad enjoys it so;
And it won't be so very long before he has to go
On to the bivouac of the dead—on to the Golden Shore,
Where he will love all fellowmen—where he will fight no more.

THUG IS LOSER IN COMIC CHASE

Train Crosses Street So Hijacker Is Stalled

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 20. (UP)—A chase akin to the slapstick comedy pursuits of the movies ended with Arnold Lembke, 29, in jail today, sorry that he held up a woman and her escort.

Leonard H. Dumas Jr., 24, and Miss Billie Ballard, 25, were sitting in an automobile in a park here last night when Lembke accosted them with "Give me all you've got." An object resembling a pistol threatened them.

Dumas handed over $13 and Miss Ballard contributed a few cents. As the bandit left in his car, he was pursued by Dumas. During the chase the bandit's car bowled over a woman and witnesses to the accident joined the pursuit.

As the speeding cars passed a police station Dumas shouted "Help us catch a bandit," and Sergeant Harry Chamberlin ordered out a patrol wagon.

Then a long freight train meandered across the street and the bandit car was stopped, the crowd immediately pouncing on him.

"I resented that holdup," Dumas said. "I resent it more, now that I know he used a cigaret case as his weapon."

FARMS CHOSEN FOR NEW TEST

Use of Electricity to Be Experimented With

DALLAS, Nov. 20 (INS)—Twenty-one Texas farms have been selected by the Texas committee on the relation of electricity to agriculture for the purpose of conducting scientific experiments in farm electrification, the committee announced today.

The experiments are to be conducted over a period of three years to determine in what ways electricity can be profitably applied to various types of Texas farming. The experiments will be conducted under the auspices of Texas A. and M. college. This move follows a recent electric survey of 506 farms made by J. E. Wagxoner, survey director of the committee.

Farm Types Selected

The farms selected represent the following types: Dairy, poultry, general, cotton, truck and ranch. They are considered among the leading farms of their communities and were selected because of the progressiveness of their owners. Various types of electrical equipment are being placed on the farms and the equipment will be tested regularly and accurate records kept throughout the period of the experiment. Where possible the farms selected are near main traveled highways and it is the intention of the committee to place large electric signs on each farm within view of the highways to direct public attention to the farms.

The following farms have been selected:

A. B. Harmonson, poultry, Justin; Charles Davis, general farm, Corsicana; B. Watson, dairy, Buda; W. E. Barrow, ranch, San Saba; M. G. Lodel, dairy, Mineral Wells; John W. McFarlande, dairy, Palestine; W. E. Henderson, dairy, Irving; F. W. Shaver, poultry, Willis; Vernon Richie, dairy, Alvin; R. L. Chinese Island Hillbillies Given Haircut When They Come to Town

SHANGHAI, Nov. 20. (AP)—War has opened on the Chinese of Haitang island who persist in wearing queues.

Before the revolution, which began in 1911, a Chinese without a queue was a rare sight. With the coming of republican China a queue came to be looked upon as a symbol of the empire and the long braids of hair were banned. Queues by the million were shopped off, not a few heads met the same fate when the owner objected too strenuously to losing his queue.

But Haitang island, a spot of land off the central China coast, escaped the wrath of the government barbers and for 17 years has afforded a haven where wearers of queues could live in comparative safety. But the Nationalists, although upsetting policies of predecessors right and left have the same opinion towards queues. As a result soldiers have been commissioned as barbers, and the men of Haitang here been named their prey.

The harvest of queues is under way on Haitang and is scheduled to continue until there are no more queues to cut. Thousands of queues have gone under the shears and thousands more await the same rate.

The Nationalist agents lie in wait for their quarry, remaining in the villages and as the rural folk came to town they are arrested, shorn of their queues, forced to pay a small sum for the process and then turned loose.

Slight Grand Jury Probe No Terror For Gangsters

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20. (AP)—A grand jury investigation of gang murders, bootlegging and police corruption, apparently holds no terrors for the gangsters, for with the inquiry in full swing, there have been three outbreaks of gang warfare in the last three weeks.

The latest outbreak of gang warfare occurred last night, when two rival gangs shot it out with rifles, pistols and sawed-off shotguns. They left Frank Piccola lying on the street with 11 bullet wounds in his body and sped away in an automobile with three other wounded men. Piccola, known to the authorities as a gangster, refused to give any information that would lead to the identity of his assailants.

French Ministers Hope To Have Salary Raise

PARIS, Nov. 20 (AP).—French cabinet ministers are fairly certain to have their salaries raised. They are getting $5,300 a year and the plan is to pay them $7,200.

The chamber commission of finances has approved the increase which Premier Poincare wrote into the 1929 budget, and parliament is not expected to offer any serious objection.

Farmers' Union Meets At Denver

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 20. (UP)—A horde of farmers from every section of the United States gathered here today to attend the National Farmers' union convention and to discuss a feasible solution of the farm relief problem. Five hundred delegates, representing approximately 100,000 American farmers are taking part in sessions today.

To place farming on a stable basis, the farmers must unite, delegates contended in stressing cooperation as the keynote of the convention.

A summary of opinion of delegates reveals:

First: The farmer must save himself and not expect congress to offer help.

Second: The farmer must market his product through cooperative groups.

Third: Farms cannot be operated in centralized groups and must be maintained as individual units.

Fourth: The McNary-Haugen farm relief bill is a dead issue and politicians are unable to solve the farmers' problem.

Prosperity Depends Upon Increased World Trade, Says News Service Head

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. (UP)—To maintain her prosperity America is going to have to become the greatest international trading nation the world has ever known, Karl A. Bickel, president of the United Press, said last night at a banquet given in his honor by Sigma Delta Chi, national journalism fraternity, which is holding its annual convention here.

"America is going to have to do that," said Bickel, "in the face of the keenest competition that any nation engaged in any such adventure for new and spreading markets ever faced."

Bickel said that in view of the importance of foreign trade President-elect Hoover's trip to South America was especially significant.

"No more significant gesture was ever made by a president-elect of the United States than this immediate recognition by Mr. Hoover of the vital importance of a complete and thoroughly mutual understanding between the gerat powers of Pan-America," Bickel said.

The United Press executive told of the part his organization was taking in promoting an understanding between nations by quickening their interests in each other through the world wide distribution of world wide news.

A NEW POWERPLANT

The new Packard eight-in-line power plant, compact, powerful, vibrationless, is the development of five years of study and research.

which makes every Packard a Packard Eight

THE new Packard eight-in-line powerplant for its 126 and 135-inch wheelbase models reflects Packard's thirty years of experience in building and servicing all types of motors.

The eight-in-line engine originated in Europe. But Packard was the first prominent American manufacturer to introduce it.

Packard's lead was promptly followed by other American builders so that, whereas prior to 1925 thirty American manufacturers of multi-cylinder cars were making V-type motors, today there are but four—and only two of these producing in substantial quantities.

Five years of constant study of the straight eight, based solidly on Packard's successful development of this type engine for its 136 and 143-inch wheelbase cars, had so firmly proved the basic merits of the eight-in-line principle that Packard decided to standardize on eights.

With the new motor Packard puts eight-cylinder smoothness, power and performance at the command of thousands who in the past did not feel they could afford the supreme luxury of transportation which a Packard Eight provides.

You may demonstrate the new Packard Standard Eight at any time. Come in or phone and one will be placed at your disposal.

The Packard Standard Eight 5-pass. Sedan costs but $2435 at the factory.

Macaroni, Spaghetti and Noodles

With the coming of the winter months, the average person will be able to digest and assimiliate larger quantities of the starchy foods. Among the more wholesome starches we find the Italian pastes, macaroni, spaghetti, noodles and a host of similar products manufactured out of white flour and water into hundreds of shapes such as stars, crescents, shells, the alphabet, sheets, etc. Sometimes eggs are added to these pastes, but this type is actually not so desirable as the cheaper brands manufactured without eggs.

The invention of these products is generally credited to the Italians, but the records of history show that the Chinese were the real inventors, and that the idea for these pastes was introduced into Italy by a party of German traveling merchants. However, it was the Italians who realized the value of the idea and finally the manufacture of these products became a secret process, jealously guarded by Italy for fully a hundred years but, of course, this secret could not be maintained forever.

The flour from hard wheat is most commonly used for manufacturing these pastes and it is mixed with a small amount of boiling water and mixed and kneaded by powerful machinery until the dough is smooth and tough. It is then forced out of a cylindrical press through the small holes of a perforated iron plate. The shape of the holes regulates the mold of the product, the smaller kinds being sheared off by rotary knives.

In Italy many colored varieties are manufactured, being colored yellow with eggs, green with spinach juice and red with beet juice. The latter two types are the more wholesome.

Recently many firms have manufactured whole wheat macaroni. This has a slight dietetic advantage, since it contains some mineral elements that have been removed from the white flour. However, all of these pastes should be eaten with meals containing non-starchy vegetables and the latter will supply the mineral element to make up for the deficiency of the flour.

Since these products are highly starchy foods, they should not be combined with cheese or tomatoes as is done in the average recipe. The malic acid of the tomato is very powerful and does not form a good combination with any starchy food. The best way to prepare these pastes is to cook them in unsalted boiling water. Care must be taken that the water is thoroughly boiling, not merely hot. When cooked, they should be separated from the water and seasoned with butter or cream.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Rheumatic Fever

Question: G. W. asks: "What are the symptoms of rheumatic fever?

Answer: The principal symptoms showing the approach of rheumatic fever are soreness of the joints or muscles, loss of appetite, fever which usually varies from 100 degrees to 101 degrees except when it occasionally, at the start, goes as high as 104 degrees. Constipation, and coated tongue are usually present and tonsils are generally swollen but these organs may be inflamed as a result of the general toxemia and cannot usually be considered as a cause of the fever, although a fever from acute tonsilitis often resembles rheumatic fever.

The Lunchbox

Question: Mrs. G. W. asks: "Will you kindly give me a few suggestions as to what would make a wholesome and nourishing lunch? My husband works in a sawmill and takes a lunch with him in the morning. Up to the present it has consisted of bread and meat or jam sandwiches. I am quite aware how faulty that is considered, so would appreciate your help very much."

Answer: You can put up a good lunch with real wholewheat bread sandwiches, and also add some non-starchy vegetables which can be kept warm in a thermos bottle. Be sure to get the real wholewheat bread. At lunch time the sandwiches may be freshly buttered, and peanut butter or lettuce added. Such vegetables as the following may be used in the thermos bottle: Spinach, asparagus, string beans, squash and celery. In addition to these cooked vegetables, add to the lunch some fresh lettuce or celery. Wrap these fresh vegetables in a damp cloth and they will remain fresh until lunch time. I will be glad to send you an article on the subject of packing lunches if you will send me a large self-addressed stamped envelope.

FAVORITE JOKES OF FAMOUS FOLK

As Told by Them to FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By SERGEI RACHMANINOFF

Rachmaninoff is perhaps the most outstanding pianist-composer of the age. His original debut was made in his native land, Russia, some 20 years ago. His American debut was made in New York in 1909. He has made numerous successful world tours, has won several medals and was in charge of the Russian section of the American Red Cross during the war.

Sergi Rachmaninoff

"Speaking of favorite stories," he said, "I always laugh when an incident during my early days as a pianist recurs to my mind.

"Shortly before I made my official debut in Russia, I accepted what engagements I could get playing for society affairs and such.

"I once played at a function given by a lady of the newly rich type. She was trying to crash into society—putting on a big front—and all of that, but her education was a bit lacking—especially in the music line.

"For my first number I played 'Paraphrase on Rigoletta,' by Lizst, which is filled with many long rests.

"As I was holding my hands above the keyboard, motionless, during one of these lengthy rests, the lady tapped me on the shoulder, and, in a voice which could be heard all over the room, said: "'Young man, don't you think you'd better play something you know?'"

WAR HERO NOW IS PROFESSOR

Sergeant York Seeks Funds For Mountain School

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. (UP)—Sergeant Alvin C. York, the erstwhile "conscientious objector," who trounced an entire German machine gun battalion in little more than eight minutes, is still fighting after eight years to bring "book learning" to his native hills of Tennessee.

With one building of his agricultural school for mountaineers in operation and another ready for "dedication" down in Fentress county, Tennessee, Sergeant York is in New York on a lecture tour. He hopes through telling of his war experiences and the sale of his book, "Sergeant York," just published by Doubleday-Doran, to raise lacking funds for a girls' dormitory.

Outstanding Hero

"The outstanding civilian hero of the war," as General Pershing called the sergeant, did not appear to regard this on a strange mission. "I didn't see any other way to do it," York told the United Press. "I've taken the only course I thought best. What I'm interested in right now is the girls' dormitory. I have about $14,000 for the girls' dormitory right now and I need to raise about $16,000 more."

"There are 901 students in the grade school and 117 in the high school," said the sergeant. "They run from 8 to 21 years old. There has been since I have been running the school some of the elderly ladies, learning to read and write, but not just at present.

Valuable Land

"This land is right up on top of the mountain, but it's flat. The school's got 1,400 acres. It's the Tennessee land grant which Mark Twain's family used to own. It's underlaid with a fine coal seam, just like they thought then. The county valuation of this land, with buildings and equipment, would be around $200,000.

"The boys can work their way through school. The land grows corn, wheat and potatoes and is fine meadow land for raising sheep hogs and cattle. When we get the girls' part going, they can work their way, too. We've found we can make arrangements with people in Knoxville and Nashville to market their domestic science work, dress-making and the like."

The sergeant's only war ornamentation was a faded bit of ribbon in his lapel buttonhole. It represented the congressional medal of honor, voted him with cheers for killing 28 of the enemy, capturing 35 machine guns and bringing in 132 prisoners that October morning in the Argonne forest.

College Freshies Are New Marvels

CANYON, Texas, Nov. 20. (AP)—West Texas State Teachers' college always has its quota of particularly interesting students. This year three of the most unusual ones are members of the freshman class.

Jack Williamson of Elida, N. M., entered the freshman class by taking 18 entrance examinations, 17 of which he passed. He never attended an affiliated high school.

Mrs. Ruth Long Ellis of Warren, Ariz., who attended the college many years ago, when it was little more than a high school has renewed contact with the institution through its correspondence division, and is now a member of the sophomore class.

From Miami, Okla., there came this year Miss Earl Rutherford who received her education heretofore in the School for the Blind at Muskogee. Miss Rutherford graduated from the high school department of that institution. This is an accredited school and she has excellent preparation for college work which has just begun.

Warships At Orange Are Ordered Sold

ORANGE, Texas, Nov. 20. (AP)—Recent order for sale of 45 wartime vessels by the government, will remove a familiar landmark from this section.

Eight of the vessels are moored here. The number has been gradually reduced to that number by sale since the war. The vessels are to be either junked or equipped with Diesel engines of U. S. manufacture, according to the order.

"It's Wonderful To Feel Like I Do All the Time"

Another Wichita Falls Woman Declares She Owes Her Present Good Health All to Orgatone—Gains Daily

"For more than 20 years before I began taking Orgatone, I was in perfect misery from gall stones and pains in my back and sides," said Mrs. P. C. Gholson, who resides at 204 Austin avenue, Wichita Falls, Texas, recently.

"When I began taking Orgatone," Mrs. Gholson continued, "my system seemed to be all run-down. My back hurt me so I could hardly stand up. I had no appetite, couldn't eat much of anything, and of course became in a very much run-down condition. But conditions have changed since I have started on the Orgatone treatment. The pains in my sides and back have left me entirely and I am feeling like a different woman. Those cramps that used to bother me so much in my stomach are a thing of the past and I have no more belching or gassy pains now. I can eat just anything that I please, and you would be surprised what a pleasure this is to me owing to the fact that for a long time it was impossible for me to eat a great many things which my appetite craved.

"You can put me down as a real Orgatone booster and if anybody wants to know what I think of this meritorious preparation just let them call me, and I will tell them the rest."

Genuine Orgatone is sold in Wichita, exclusively by the Allison's Drug store, 716 Indiana avenue, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative, who is meeting the public daily and charges nothing to explain his theories on health and hygiene. All mail orders filled promptly by mail. —Adv.

Woman's Face Out of Court's Jurisdiction, Judge Rules

Charge of Grimace Toward Witness Enlivens Damage Suit Trial

The authority of even the most unbending jurist must stop short of any attempt to control the contortions, or if you please, distortions, of the feminine physiognomy. That is to say, if a lady wants to make a face at another in the court room, well, she just may, for all the judge has to say about it.

At least Judge P. A. Martin, presiding in the 30th district court Tuesday afternoon hastily ruled himself without jurisdiction when Shields Hiser, attorney for the defendant in the suit of Mr. and Mrs. James Boyle vs. Frank Morgan, et al, for damages, asked that his witness, Mrs. Mae Moline be spared the alleged grimaces of Mrs. Boyle.

Mrs. Moline was in the witness chair telling the jury about the loss of $28 worth of bed clothing, which she testified had been taken from her apartment.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyle were acquitted of the theft of the bed clothes in a trial last May and are seeking $3,000 damages for alleged false arrest.

Mrs. Boyle, whose testimony had just been completed, sat facing the witness for the defendant as she gave her testimony. Suddenly Mr. Hiser was on his feet:

"Your honor, I object to the faces Mrs. Boyle is making at the witness," he said.

"The court has no jurisdiction," Judge Martin ruled promptly, and the testimony of the witness was continued.

Witnesses for the plaintiff were on the stand most of the day. At 3:30 o'clock the plaintiff rested. Attorney's for the defense said that only a few witnesses would be introduced and that the case would probably go to the jury early Wednesday.

James and Mary, the 14 and 12 year old children of the plaintiffs, were among the witnesses called to the stand Tuesday afternoon. The children told of the coming of the officers to search the Boyle home several months ago.

Red Cross Solicitors Canvass Large Establishments For Memberships

Stores, refineries and other places where large groups of persons are employed are being solicited for the American Red Cross annual memberships, in the drive to raise Wichita Falls quota of $7,000, it was announced Tuesday.

Headquarters for the drive is in the offices of Walter S. Curlee, on the main floor of the Perkins-Snider Building, and the drive workers are obtaining their campaign supplies there from Mrs. T. B. Smith, executive secretary of the local organization.

Many Wichitans have come into the drive headquarters to make their roll call contributions, Mrs. Smith said Tuesday. "The more people who do that, the easier the work is on the citizens who are soliciting," she said.

It is expected that the local roll call will be completed by the end of the week, Mrs. Smith said, so that there would be no interference with the annual drive of the Wichita Falls Community chest.

Shower of Meteors May Again Fall

'Night of Fire' Predicted On Earth in 1932

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20. (UP).—Brilliant specks in the sky a few days ago that marked the earth's passage through the path of the leonid meteors indicate that the earth probably will witness a "night of fire" in 1932 or 1933, Prof. Charles P. Olivier said today.

Professor Olivier observed the meteors this week to see if there was an increase over last year which would indicate that the leonids were approaching a maximum within five years. He said that his observations had led him to believe that the night of Nov. 12, 1833, would be duplicated. On that night the sky was ablaze with meteors. Many thought the earth was coming to an end. More than 25,000 meteors were seen by a single observer in Europe.

The professor is president of the American Meteor society and a member of the University of Pennsylvania faculty at the Flower observatory at Upper Darby.

To Study Data

Data on the meteors collected all over the United States and Canada by meteor observers will be sent to the president of the society who will tabulate it in an effort to give complete data to astronomers who will calculate the mathematics of the 1932 or 1933 display. That will give scientists the exact data on which to predict approximately how the earth will react to the meteors then.

The meteors, which always appear in the middle of November, ride out of the contellation of Leo the Lion. They crash into the earth's atmosphere at an estimated speed of 44 miles a second, the professor said.

Because of their speed the meteors are "burned out" before they could possibly reach the earth, Professor Olivier explained. He said that once in a while they become fire-balls, meteors that reach within 60 to 40 miles of the earth and have the brilliance of a pale moon on a clear summer night.

The others are burned to nothing in the rare gases more than 60 miles above the earth's surface.

In Normal Course

"The leonids have a brother and sister relationship with Tempel's comet," the professor explained. "They probably both had a common parent. They both have a circuit around the sun of 33 years."

Possibility that the leonids might never again enter the earth's atmosphere in large groups was feared after the planet Jupiter, the sky monarch, "pulled" the meteors out their course in 1899, the year that the earth would have passed through the thickest portion of the meteors. This year's display indicated that other forces had righted the influences of Jupiter and the leonids were back in their normal course of 1833.

Newspaper Prints Telepathy Article As Author Dies

LONDON, Nov. 20. (US)—A ghostly circumstance attended the death yesterday of Viscountess Falloden, wife of Earl Grey, at Wilsford, their country seat, after a brief illness. When she had been dead only a few hours a London evening paper carried an article under her name in which she declared her belief in telepathy.

The newspaper received the revised manuscript of the article a few hours before the writer's death. Under the heading, "Telepathic Dreams," the viscountess expressed belief in "those powers which transcend the flesh and which are ours so weakly and independably." She added:

"It gladdens me that it should be possible to reach a place, to have even fragmentary knowledge of some one dear, without shattering through the empyrean in a rigid, deafening flight to be with that one."

Earl Grey was absent when his ward, only to arrive too late to see wife became ill, but hastened homeher alive.

Watch Tongue For Signs of Illness

Your tongue is nothing more than the upper end of your stomach and intestines. It is the first thing your doctor looks at. It tells at a glance the condition of your digestive system—and physicians say that 90 per cent of all sicknesses start with stomach and bowel trouble.

A white or yellowish coating on your tongue is a danger signal of those digestive disorders. It tells you why the least exertion tires you out; why you have pains in the bowels, gas, sour stomach, dizzy spells.

And it's a sign you need Tanlac. This good old reliable medicine has helped thousands who were physical wrecks. See how the first bottle helps you.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs; it is made of barks, herbs and roots—nature's own medicines for the sick. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

'Little Napoleon' Wearies of Exile

SAINT DENIS, Island of Reunion, Nov. 20. (AP)—Abd El Krim, one time master of the Riff, who held the French and Spanish armies at bay and defied every effort of modern military genius to capture him, has grown weary and restless in exile in this far-off French colony.

Krim does not conceal the fact that he is chafing against the monotony of his existence and the number of French soldiers who mount the guard over him has been increased for fear he may suddenly decide that the time has come to return to his own country; to his own Moroccan skies underneath which stretch the desert and mountains he is so familiar with and for which the tropical luxury of Reunion never has in the slightest degree compensated.

The castle of Morange where Krim is stifling under captivity is an imposing but dilapidated mansion from the gardens of which he can look over Saint Denis, the capitol of Reunion, and beyond that he can see the open sea—the pathway to home and liberty.

Krim is a veritable "little Napoleon" in exile with Frenchmen replacing Englishmen in the role of jailkeeper.

Galveston Ferry To Open Seacoast Route

PORT ARTHUR, Texas, Nov. 20. (AP)—Recent signing of a contract for operation of a ferry from Galveston to Bolivar's point is expected to open for more general travel one of the most beautiful stretches of the seacoast in the Southwest.

The ferry is to be placed in operation as soon as approaches and landings are constructed by the city of Galveston. Use of the ferry will shorten the distance by automobile from Beaumont and Port Arthur to Galveston by more than 15 miles.

MOODY PROVES HE IS FRUGAL

Governor Saves Enough To Pay Year's Salary

AUSTIN, Nov. 20. (AP)—By frugal practices, Gov. Dan Moody saved enough out of appropriation for expenses of the executive department during the year ending last Aug. 31, to pay his salary for 16 months.

A total of $38,236 was appropriated for the executive department and of this amount $32,835.85 was actually expended, according to the board of control budget just issued. The saving of $5,390.15 in excess of the chief executive's annual salary of $4,600.

While the legislature appropriated $750 for the governor's traveling expenses, Governor Moody actually drew on this account during the year for only $83.52, scarcely enough to pay railroad fare over 2,000 miles, without eating or lodging. His friends claim that he has gone down into his own personal purse to pay many expenses.

The legislature alloged and voted $2,500 for maintenance of the mansion and grounds during the year, but the governor and Mrs. Moody, who went there to live two years ago as an inexperienced newly-married couple, last year spent only $1,600 of that amount. Of the $2,000 appropriated for servants and employes at the mansion, Gov. and Mrs. Moody saved the state $75, drawing on this account for $1,225.

They did still better, when it came to running up bills for fuel, lights, ice, telephones and water at the mansion, paying out only $1,170 of the $2,000 appropriated by the state.

Economy also characterized miscellaneous expenses in the chief executive's office. The budget shows that $1,000 voted by the legislature, for books and stationary, $510 was actually spent. Of the $500 alloted for contingent expenses, only $276.

The freight and postage bill was held down to $500, although $900 was appropriated. The ice bill was cut, too. The legislature voted $36 for ice in the governor's office but only $26 was spent.

Americans Who Visit In France Fall In Number

PARIS, Nov. 20. (US)—The popular impression that Americans overrun the resorts of the Riviera each season received a jolt with the publication of official figures on the nationality of visitors to Cannes during the last period.

Of the total of 87,185 visitors, more than one-half were French, the number being 35,750. The British Empire, including all the dominions took second place with 9,507.

Italy, with 4,814, including a certain number of workmen, barely won third place from the United States, which mustered only 4,226, or about 6 per cent of the total.

Many Uses For Coal Revealed

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 20. (AP)—How coal can make two stalks of winter wheat sprout in place of one in the northwest, keep the grass green in the Mississippi valley and help the cotton beat the boll weevil in the South was explained to the second international conference on bituminous coal at Carnegie institute of technology here today.

C. H. McDowell, president of the Armour Fertilizer company, Chicago, explained fertilisers of ammonia and nitrogen, which are derived from coke. He said their growth would be slow, but that it would be important to both farmers and coal men.

The beginning, Mr. McDowell said, was years ago when in order to remove the odor from illuminating gas, coal men extracted the ammonia. Now, he said quantities of both ammonia and nitrogen are available as by-products of liquefaction of coal.

The liquefaction process, the speaker asserted, has made feasible concentrated fertilisers, which, if used at the proper period in early spring on winter wheat, would bring extra stalks; would enable grass to remain green longer during drought, and have already helped speed cotton growth by three weeks, giving the plant an advantage over the boll weevil.

ASSAULT CASE TO JURY TODAY

Electra Youth On Trial In County Court

Testimony in the trial of Gerald Gillum, 19 year old Electra high school boy charged with aggravated assault against his mother-in-law, Mrs. R. F. Prince, was completed before Judge C. M. McFarland in the county court-at-law Tuesday afternoon. The case will go to the jury after brief arguments Wednesday morning.

On the stand Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Prince, chief witness for the state, testified that young Gillum kicked her in the course of a struggle in the Gillum home on Nov. 13. Gillum, testifying in his own behalf, declared that he had asked his mother-in-law to leave his home because, he said, she had barred him from her residence. According to his testimony she cursed him and refused to leave.

Miss Vera Gillum, state witness, testified under cross examination that she saw Gillum's arms around her mother's shoulders and that he was exerting pressure to force her from his home. The parents of the defendant both testified in his behalf. The elder Gillum described his efforts to separate the two strugglers and quiet the confusion that extended to the porch of the Gillum home. Later Mrs. Prince summoned the police, the testimony showed.

Wichitan In Singapore Writes Brother Here

W. L. L. Barker of Singapore, former Wichitan and a brother of Wayne Barker, assistant city tax assessor and collector, will not return to the United States from the Orient for another six months, according to word received here by Mr. Barker Tuesday.

W. L. L. Barker is an employe of the Standard Oil company and recently was transferred to the Singapore district from Shanghai. In a letter to his brother here he said there are only 12 Americans in the district in which he is now living.

His plans a few weeks ago, were to enjoy his semi-annual vacation in Texas at once, but the changes in company plans made it necessary to postpone the visit.

ST. LOUIS AWARDED 1929 AMATEUR ATHLETIC UNION CONFAB

CHICAGO MAN NAMED PREXY

Former All-Around Champ Elected New Head

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. (US)—St. Louis was awarded next year's convention of the Amateur Athletic Union at the closing session of its annual meeting here today.

The meeting also installed Avery Brundage of Chicago, former national all-around champion, as its national president, the new executive declaring for the elimination of commercialism in amateur athletics in his inaugural address. He likewise scored the practice whereby college athletes join clubs for summer competition because of the "inducements" involved.

The remainder of the "slate" voted into office for the ensuing year included Judge F. L. Hoffman, Cincinnati, first vice president; Herman Obertubbessing, New York, second vice president; Harry Maloney, Stanford university, third vice president; Joseph T. England, Baltimore, fourth vice president; Daniel J. Ferris, secretary-treasurer and delegate-at-large.

Supreme Court Justice Jeremiah T. Mahoney, Fred W. Rubien and Joseph B. MacCabe, Boston, were named trustees of the James E. Sullivan fund.

Six other cities were outbid by St. Louis for the honor of sponsoring the 1929 convention. It will be held during the third week of November.

DAILY DOPE

By

LARRY DAILEY

THREATENED WAR between the A. A. U. and major colleges, long impending, seems to have been averted. For the time being, at least. Victory was scored by the colleges Monday in the A. A. U. meeting at New York, when it was voted that athletes of accredited institutions of higher learning shall NOT be required to register for competition in athletic meets conducted under rules of the national body, providing they are properly sanctioned by their school authorities. This means that the colleges shall be sole judges of the amateur standing and eligibility of college athletes who participate in A. A. U. meets.

The Amateur Athletic union and the colleges have been at outs for several years, and a break was narrowly avoided this year when the make-up of the United States Olympic team was announced. The colleges charged, and apparently with good reason, that while a majority of the athletes chosen were college men, that they had little or nothing to say of their selection and training. The large colleges feel that the A. A. U. has been high-handed in its dominance of amateur athletics and while the breach is healed temporarily, the two factions still are far from terms of amity.

THE A. A. U. discussed amateurism, that vexing problem that has disturbed the serenity of not only that body, but of other athletic governing boards, notably the U. S. Lawn Tennis association and even in golf. The permitting by some conferences of college athletes to engage in semi-pro baseball for remuneration with the retention of their amateur standing was severely scored. The A. A. U. also reprimanded two of its athletes for permitting the use of their name for commercial purposes and warned against a repetition of that offense. Those athletes should have been barred for life and all who have lived in boarding houses will join with me in that recommendation.

They indorsed a brand of hash!

WHAT IS AN amateur? The definition of the word as given by Webster and its literal meaning vary greatly. An amateur is supposed to be a person who participates in sport for no gain and merely for the fun of it. As the man said when he first saw a giraffe, "There ain't so such animal." Some colleges, as pointed out above, permit their athletes to play baseball for money. Golfers "write" for newspapers and syndicates. Tennis players are also famous "writers," and there are other ways of an athlete making a pretty penny and retaining his amateur standing; that is, of deriving financial gain not directly from athletics but due to the fact that he is an athlete.

Last winter a troupe of tennis players toured Florida and other points South. Bill Tilden, Manuel Alonzo, George Lott and John Hennessey formed the troupe. Their expenses were paid, or most of it, by large hotels in the resorts. And their expenses at those hotels were plenty. In reality, though they engaged in some tournaments, the appearance of those tennis players were exhibitions, and nothing less. They could beat the local stars with ease. Then Alonzo almost invariably would oppose Tilden in the finals and as almost invariably, Tilden would win. It was good promotion for tennis—but it was equally good advertising for the resorts.

SOME SPORTS will deprive an athlete of amateur standing for an offense against the "code" that is permitted by another branch of athletics. That helps cause the confusion as to the real meaning of amateurism. Now there should be a line somewhere. I'm far from a fanatic on amateurism. I don't see why a man should be banned from being an amateur because some poor writer pounds out stuff that the star can sign his name to and sell, though personally I think most of such "ghost" stuff is terrible. Nor do I see why an athlete should not sell sporting goods without losing his amateur standing. Nor why they shouldn't commercialize their reputations as athletes—provided they don't receive remuneration for their competition. Most athletes are not wealthy, indeed, a majority are self-supporting. Therefore, if they devote much time to achieving athletic stardom they have little opportunity to gain a livelihood from business or a profession. But there should be a line drawn. We should have a clear and comprehensive idea of what an amateur is, in tennis, golf and track and field and all sports, alike. Then much difficulty and bickering could be averted.

I MEAN, let's have amateurs and professionals, and not "semi-professional" amateurs.

Famous Golf Shots of 1928

How the Champion Did It

By BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

Glenna Collett did not particularly need the hole she won with the greatest shot made in her championship match with Virginia Van Wie when she captured the women's title for the third time, but the effort was worthy of a deciding hole.

Glenna came to the 17th hole of the 36 hole go with the Chicago girl, 8 up and there was not much doubt even at that stage that she was to wear the laurel wreath again, but she was taking nothing for granted and hitting every ball as though the outcome of the struggle depended on the shot of the moment.

The 17th at the Cascades course, Virginia Hot Springs, is known as a "he man" hole. The actual yards separating the green from the tee number 459, but such yards they are. The hole is a dog leg affair and no one, man or woman, can cut the corner, for the elbow is a part of the Alleghany mountains. Only a long drive will enable the player to see the green for the second shot, and even if the requisite length is gained on the tee shot, there are troubles on each side of the fairway for the unwary, traps, of course, and a stream and a mound or two for good measure.

Some excitement had been caused on the course the day before when Mrs. Harry Pressler, Los Angeles, Western women's champion, had reached the edge of the green in two. Miss Collett drove in just the right spot to have a clear although long shot to the green. Her drive came to rest at the intersection leading to the green after traveling approximately 230 yards.

The eastern girl still was 229 yards from home with pitfalls lurking over almost every inch of the way. She was not dismayed by the dangers. Calling on her brassie to show just what it could do, she sent the ball flying "on the flag." It seemed for a time that the ball would hit the pin, but it slipped by and stopped 15 feet beyond the cup. The birdie four was a matter of two putts. Glenna went on to win that hole and the next, go to luncheon 10 up and win in the afternoon, 13 up and 12 to play, but she did not make any more brassie shots like the rifle effort at the 17th. She didn't have to.

RANGER LEADS DISTRICT NO. 2

Prep's Ineligibility Fails To Affect Standing

ABILENE, Texas, Nov. 20. (AP)—Ranger High school still leads district 2 of the Texas Interscholastic league, although the executive committee of the district has declared Lee Hammett, quarterback, ineligible for further competition.

The executive committee ruled that Cisco, loser of a game to Ranger, was entitled to another game, and that Abilene was entitled to a forfeit of its tie game with Ranger. Abilene refused to accept the forfeit, and Roy Henderson, secretary of the league, revised the Cisco ruling because the committee previously had found Hammett eligible.

Illini and Ohio Meet This Week

Traditional Middle Western Rivals Clash

URBANA, Ill., Nov. 20. (US)—Two ancient football rivals, coached by two old pals from the same home town, will get together here Nov. 24 when Ohio plays Illinois.

Back in 1913 two young coaches, both residents of the same city and graduates of the same university, cast their lots with the Big Ten conference as coaches who didn't know so much, but were aspiring young men wanting to get along. This fall brings them into action against each other as the country's leading mentors.

The coaches are Dr. Jack Wilce of Ohio and Bob Zuppke, Illini mentor. Both attended the same high school in Milwaukee and both played football and won degrees at the University of Wisconsin. The Ohio-Illinois game is scheduled to be the valedictory for Dr. Wilce, who has threatened to retire at the end of this season.

Coach Is Artist

Zuppke, perhaps the only football mentor in the country who is an artist, doing very interesting work in oils, is one of the most successful coaches in the history of football. Illinois has won the Western conference title four times and tied for it twice. Zuppke's elevens finished in front in 1914, 1918, 1919 and 1927 and tied in 1915 and 1923.

Dr. Wilce turned out winners at Ohio in 1916, 1917 and 1920.

Several Ohio-Illinois clashes have decided Big Ten title honors.

Most famous of all games were those in 1919 and 1920. In 1919 the Illini won at Columbus, 9-7, wrestling first honors from Harley's great crew in a thrilling finish. The Buckeyes came to Illinois field next year to win the game and the championship by the last play, a pass, the ball being in the air as the pistol cracked.

Under Zuppke the Illini have a margin of two victories over the Wilce-coached Ohioans, having won in 1914, 1918, 1919, 1921, 1923, 1924 and 1925.

Expect Great Crowd

Wilce directed the Buckeyes to triumphs in 1916, 1917, 1920, 1922 and 1926. In 1915 the teams tied.

Strangely enough, only one Ohio State team defeated the Illini at Columbus—that was the 1917 Buckeye championship eleven. The other four Ohio victories were won at Illinois in 1916, 1920, 1922 and 1926.

Wilce and Zuppke always have been close friends and their rivalry, keen as it has been, has never affected their regard for each other. More than likely there will be some further swallowing in the throat and moisture in the eyes as they shake hands in the Illinois stadium Nov. 24.

All Eyes On Mayor Jimmy Walker As He Arrives Late at Ring Shows

The Honorable James J. Likes His Boxing, and Indeed, Brought Back Game to New York State

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—After the crowd is all seated at a big exposition of the sour science in New York's Madison Square garden, and while the preliminaries are still in progress, there comes a sudden stir to the south of the ring.

A couple of special policemen dash down an aisle and post themselves in front of a number of vacant chairs in the front row on the Forty-Ninth street side of the house.

The crowd stands, everybody peering excitedly at the spot thus made prominent by the coppers. A mumble of vocal sound arises that is not infrequently disconcerting to the pugilistic young gentlemen who may be pulling and hauling at the moment in the ring. I have seen some of them pause in their fistic endeavors and gape around to see what's stirring.

The mayor of the great city of New York, the honorable James J. Walker, approaches the scene. He is as familiar to the majority of New Yorkers as a traffic cop. Yet the hubbub might lead a stranger to think that the folks had never before clapped eyes on the slender figure of the honorable mayor.

The Cops Are Present

Down the aisles he comes, usually with Paul Block, the newspaper publisher, and owner of the Newark ball club, and a couple of other friends. The special cops poke, and push, and scowl ominously at the surrounding citizenry, as if warning them not to even look as if they migh impede the progress of the honorable mayor.

The crowd cheers. The mayor shakes hands with those in the front row adjoining the vacant chairs. Finally he gets settled down after some little confusion and everybody resumes peering at the pugilistic proceedings.

Thereafter no one pays any further attention to the honorable mayor. He sits there fighting every round with the fighters, making strange facial grimaces, and sudden little lunges this way and that, as if dodging the blows himself.

The honorable mayor is the father of the law under which the sour science operates in New York state. He is an inveterate ringworm. He sometimes takes in the bouts at the small clubs. He departs the premises quite unnoticed after the main event in the garden, save as he may pause to argue the decision with someone.

The honorable mayor has his own decided opinions on pugilistic bouts, and doesn't hesitate to express them. He seems to be an excellent judge of a fighter, though he has his prejudices like the rest of us. He favors the rip-shorting type, rather than the boxer.

They Love Jimmy

It do not say that the honorable mayor times his arrival behind the crowd at the fistic functions, because he is notoriously late for anything he sets out for, including, his enemies say, certain promised reforms.

But he certainly puts a little touch of the theatrical to his entrance. And the crowd loves it. More than any man that ever lived, the honorable mayor typifies New York. In fact, he IS New York.

A New York fight crowd is often more interesting than the exposition of the sour science offered it at the garden. Nearly always you catch the glint of the flaming hair of Hope Hampton, the actress, as she sits beside her husband, the debonair Jules Broulatour.

She is the first female fight fan of the big town. Many other women attend intermittently, probably mainly because friend husband is going. But Miss Hampton rarely misses. She seems to like the fights.

The "mob," which is to say the managers, promoters, fighters, gamblers, hang out in the lobby while the preliminaries are beig disposed of.

They Talk Shop

They just stand around gabbing. The special cops keep nudging them. They aren't allowed to smoke out there. But they stand around, talking shop. Always shop. Occasionally a wild yell from the crowd within causes them to rush to the entrance and peer in to see if anybody is being murdered in the ring.

Then they turn away and resume the shop talk. Managers bawl the merits of their gladiators. The small club matchmakers tack up their programs with matches. By this time the main bout is going on inside, so they all march in.

On the Forty-Ninth street side of the garden, well back toward Eighth avenue, and to your right as you walk down the narrow aisle from the entrance is a slope of seats. The cheaper seats, if anybody pays for them.

They are rarely completely filled, save for the very biggest battles. There the managers, promoters and fighters gather. Most of them get in on what is called employes' tickets. The garden has its certain list of followers of the sour science who receive what might be called professional courtesies. "Chinese." Free tickets.

"The Death Watch"

I call the gathering back there on the slope "the death watch." It is the most interesting spot in the garden. There the boys view the pugilistic efforts going on in the ring with expert and critical eye. Oh, very critical. More critical, I would say that expert.

There they turn their thumbs down on a new fighter very quickly, unless he shows plenty. Won't do. Can't fight a lick. A bum. My guy would knock him out. How does a guy like that get a match in the garden?

I heard a simile back there one night. "As sorry as a manager who sees another manager's fighter get knocked out." Not bad. "Occasionally "the death watch" gives a boost, but always a "saxey boost," as we say on the slope. "He's a good fighter—but he can't hit." Or, "He can't take it." Or something.

Eddie Saxe, a bloke out West, used to almost invariably start out saying, "He's a nice fellow, and all right—but." Oh-oh! So we got calling it a "Saxey boost," and from that was evolved the expression, "weighing in the saxe"—only they spell it "sacks" today, not knowing what it means.

Frog Freshmen to Play Decatur Baptist Eleven

FORT WORTH, Nov. 20. (AP)—Texas Christian university will have collegiate football this week, even though the Horned Frogs are idle until they meet S. M. U. in Dallas Thanksgiving.

The T. C. U. freshmen team, the Polliwogs, will play the Decatur Baptist Indians, strong junior college team, here Wednesday.

BIG GRID TILTS FOR SATURDAY

Several Outstanding Games In Various Sections

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. (UP)—Interest of the football world will not center upon any certain gridiron of any particular section of the country next Saturday.

In all sections games will be played which should rival the most thrilling encounters the season has produced thus far.

In the East, Army and Nebraska meet in an intersectional game at West Point; Yale and Harvard engage in their annual classic at New Haven; New York university meets Carnegie Tech, conquerors of Notre Dame, at Pittsburgh, and Navy opposes Princeton at Philadelphia.

In the Middle West, Wisconsin will attempt to clinch the Big Ten title by defeating Minnesota at Madison; Northwestern and Dartmouth furnish an intersectional attraction at Chicago; Michigan and Iowa clash at Ann Arbor, and Indiana goes to Purdue for the annual headliner in the Hoosier state.

Stanford Meets Bears

The Far West offers the perennial Stanford-California game at Berkeley and the Southern California-Idaho battle at Los Angeles.

The Army, still smarting under its surprise defeat at the hands of Notre Dame a week ago, will try to even matters by halting Nebraska's undefeated Cornhuskers.

Years of tradition will hover over the New Haven gridiron as Yale and Harvard continue the battle they began in the first days of the game.

The mythical eastern title will hinge upon the outcome of the Carnegie-New York U. game and the Pittsburgh team, undefeated and untied, probably will lay claim to all available honors should they stop the violet eleven.

Navy, winding up one of the most disappointing seasons the Middies ever have experienced, will attempt to square matters at the expense of Princeton. In the past either Army or Navy could change a mediocre season into a most successful one by the simple expedient of trimming the other. Deprived of even this chance, the Middies probably will stake their all on a victory over the Tigers.

Big Ten Title at Stake

Wisconsin, for the first time in 16 years, is on the verge of a Western conference championship. It is almost certain of a joint claim of the title, but a victory over Minnesota Saturday would give Thistlewaite's charges undisputed claim to the topmost rung. In addition Minnesota and Wisconsin's rivalry is as old as the schools.

The Northwestern-Dartmouth game may produce any kind of football. Both teams have played an up and down brand of ball all season. Both, however, look ready to hit their top strikes again by Saturday. The Purdue-Indiana game will decide nothing except the ancient dispute between the two schools, and that only temporarily. They seem evenly matched.

Stanford and California both have tasted defeat but that detracts little if anything from the game at Berkeley. Their rivalry is sure to produce a real game. Southern California's game with Idaho will mark the Los Angeles eleven's preparation for Notre Dame the following week. Idaho should give the Californians much more than a casual workout.

Kansas in Snappy Drill For Missouri Contest

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 20. (UP)—The Kansas Jayhawks went through a snappy drill tonight in preparation for their old-time enemy, the Missouri Tigers, Saturday.

Following their defeat at the hands of Oklahoma the Jayhawks are determined that they shall not have another defeat this season and will journey to Columbia in prime condition. They expect the hardest game on their season's schedule for they know that they will meet a Tiger revengeful in spirit from last year's defeat and this season's conference setbacks.

More than 2,000 tickets already have been sold to Kansas alumni and former students by the university department of athletics, which, according to university authorities, shows the greatest interest in the game this year than ever before.

Texas Boxer Is Victor In Pennsylvania Bout

NEWCASTLE, Pa., Nov. 20. (AP)—Johnny McCoy, San Antonio, Texas, defeated Happy Atherton, Indinapolis, in 10 rounds of rather listless fighting here Monday night.

Harvard, Yale Well Matched

When Yale and Harvard line up Nov. 24 for their 47th annual battle, the four young huskies above will be on hand to give the 80,000 spectators something to cheer about. Yale has won 27, Harvard 13 and six games were ties.

By JOHN B. KNOX

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 20. (AP)—Harvard and Yale will resume their ancient football rivalry Nov. 24 more evenly matched, perhaps, than at any time within recent years.

No championship, official or unofficial, is flaunted as a reward before these two teams. The game even lacks the intersectional characteristic. Yet it holds a magic lure upon the American gridiron, a lure that has grown up through traditional rivalry reaching back through a dozen or more college generations.

The struggle this year in the Yale bowl will be the 47th for the Crimson and the Blue. During the half century past Yale has won 27 games, Harvard 13, and six games have been tied. By a coincidence all of the ties were 0 to 0 scores.

Until 1911 Harvard had won only five times. But in the succeeding nine years the Crimson wreaked vengeance on Yale by winning eight games.

Since 1922 Yale has had all the better of the gridiron battles, winning in 1923 and 1924, tying in 1925 and winning again in 1926 and 1927.

This season the records of the two teams bear a striking similarity in many respects. Each team has defeated Dartmouth. Each has been beaten by West Point. On the same Saturday, Maryland defeated Yale by one touchdown, while Harvard was taking a beating from Pennsylvania by one touchdown.

Yale, in the opinion of some of its critics, has not been up to standard this year, although sluggish play in some games has been offset by aggressiveness and brilliance in others. Charlesworth, at center, is a tower of strength in a sturdy line. Garvey, although handicapped to some degree by injuries, and Hubbard and Dunn are assets in the backfield. This is Coach Mal Stevens' first year as head of the Yale coaching staff, and the Harvard game looms as an engagement of outstanding importance for him.

Harvard, on the other hand has, in the view of some observers, a somewhat better performing team than in the last two or three years. It has a line of undoubted power. And behind it there is a lateral passing combination in Captain French and Guarnaccia that has stood out as above average for two seasons.

PONIES WORK TO BEAT FROGS

"Forget Baylor," Morrison Tells Mustangs

DALLAS, Nov. 20. (AP)—The past two days may have been merely Monday and Tuesday to six other Southwest coaches, but to Ray Morrison of S. M. U. they were many hours spent in the task of shaping a new assortment of plays by which he hopes to baffle T. C. U. in the final clash of the fast-fading grid season on Thanksgiving day.

"Forget Baylor and concentrate on the Frogs," or words to that effect was the ultimatum issued by the Pony boss to his stalwarts at today's practice session.

There was no indication at today's workout what lineup the Ponies would use against their rivals. If Redman Hume is able to play he will be at quarterback, but the "galloping gazelle" as yet is in no shape to take the field.

Comparative scores mean nothing in the contest. The Frogs beat A. & M. and the Aggies tied S. M. U. On the other hand the Ponies trimmed Texas and the Longhorns defeated the Bellmen. Both the Mustangs and Frogs beat Rice, the former by a 50-point margin and the latter barely scoring a victory.

Compston Starts Prohi Controversy

LONDON, Nov. 20. (UP)—Archie Compston, British professional golfer, has aroused a storm of controversy over his recent statement that the success of United States golfers is due to prohibition.

One person, asked why, if prohibition was the "open sesame" to athletic prowess, that the United States only took one first place in the Olympic races—Ray Barbutti, in the quarter mile.

Others said that Barbutti's victory had its own special interest in view of Compston's statement because, they said, prior to the race, Barbutti gulped down a glass of sherry and egg. This brought Barbutti's victory, they argued.

Big Crowd Sees Bowling Opener

Spudder Alleys • Entertain More Than 500 Visitors

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

The premiere of the Spudder Bowling alleys was, in the parlance of the game, a "strike" with plenty to "spare." I mean, it was a wow.

The attendance of more than 500 persons during the evening and their enthusiastic praise of the handsome Spudder alleys was ample proof of the favorable reception of the new sport hero. Leaders in various city activities and many women attended the formal opening. Too, there were congratulatory floral offerings from the First National bank, George W. Dimock, the Texas Electric Service company and Producers creamery.

Spudder Bowling alleys, under the management of Jim Galloway and Pete Turgeon of the Wichita Falls ball club, as you all know, is one of the most decorative and attractive of such recreational centers in the state. Six alleys provide the sport. A radio offers pastime for those who do not care to bowl. Light lunches and refreshments are available, served incidentally, by the charming wives of Messrs. Turgeon and Galloway.

L. S. Sternberg of the Continental Oil and Gas company won a pair of bowling shoes for high score last night. He turned in a 171.

A team exhibition match was another feature of the formal opening.

Municipal Golf Club Election Postponed

The indefinite postponement of the annual election of officers and directors of the Municipal Golf club, scheduled to have been held last night, was announced by President Jack Hale. The election meeting may be held next week.

Suburban Day

Thursday, November 22

WHAT memories Thanksgiving day revives — the old home, the rows of shocked corn, the golden pumpkin, the open fire, the family group around the festive board!

Thanksgiving is a day for homecomings. Mary back from college—John home from the city! The daughters, sons, grandchildren, the uncles and aunts who respond to the homing impulse on Thanksgiving day are legion.

How fortunate that Suburban Day, a regular monthly event in Wichita Falls, this month occurs just a week before Thanksgiving! It gives the people of this section the opportunity of supplying their clothing, furniture and home furnishing needs from complete and authoritative stocks and at money-saving prices.

Everybody likes to look his best and every hostess desires her home to appear attractive on holiday occasions. The approach of Thanksgiving calls for a "brushing up" in one's personal attire and for a critical scrutiny of curtains, rugs, chinaware and other household necessities.

Whatever your requirements you will be able to fill them satisfactorily and economically in Wichita Falls. Here you have the advantages of a great central market, a wide variety of selections and the wholesome competition of many stores.

The Suburban Day advertisements will appear in both The Times and Record News. Read carefully the advertisements in these issues. If you will make a pencil list of the things that interest you and the places where they may be obtained, it will be of great assistance to you in your Suburban Day shopping.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. (AP)—The cotton market was decidedly more active today with prices advancing on trade and speculative buying accompanied by talk of probable light ginning figures tomorrow and rumors of a steadier spot basis in the Southwest. January contracts sold up to 19.81, or 27 points net higher and closed at 19.78, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 20 to 25 points.

The market opened firm at an advance of 11 to 13 points in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables and reports of unfavorable weather for harvesting late cotton in the South. This early demand was supplied by some southern hedge selling and liquidation but offerings were light and there was nothing more than a momentary check to the advance, until prices approached the 19¾-cent level, for January and March contracts. The market then met considerable realizing or liquidation but it was absorbed on setbacks of a few points and prices firmed up again later, with the buying becoming more active and general.

According to some local brokers it included a more active demand from the trade to fix prices than for some weeks past and buying of this character was said to be reaching here from both foreign and domestic sources. There was also covering by recent sellers who were probably influenced by the comparative scarcity of contracts, once the early offerings had been absorbed. December sold up to 19.89 and May to 19.72, making net advances of about 25 to 29 points on the general list and while there was a little more southern selling and realizing late in the day, last prices were within 4 or 5 points of the best.

Some broadening of commission house demand was reported on the advance while there was further evening up of December contracts which involved considerable switching from December to later deliveries but which was accomplished without much change in the differences between months. At the close December was 7 points over January compared with 9 points at the close yesterday.

A private report was published estimating the ginnings to Nov. 14 at 11,300,000 bales which, it said, would represent about four-fifths of the crop. Exports today 44,467 making 3,202,471 so far this season. Port receipts 82,240. U. S. port stocks 2,160,867.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 20. (AP)—The cotton market was moderately active today and advanced slightly more than $1 a bale under coverings and trade buying promoted by various bullish influences including a better spot demand and higher Liverpool cables. January contracts advanced to 19.20 and closed at 19.16, or 18 points net up. The general market closed steady at net gains of 18 to 24 points.

Liverpool cables were 4 to 7 points higher than due and the market here opened steady in response. First trades showed gains of 4 to 7 points and prices continued to advance in early trading under a demand stimulated by the cold weather in the belt and expectations of a bullish census bureau ginnings report tomorrow. At the end of the first hour, December sold at 19.05, January 19.13 and March 19.18, or 12 to 15 points net higher.

Demand tapered off at these levels due to realizing and prices receded 4 to 6 points, but after mid-session reports of a firmer spot demand, large exports induced a renewal of trade buying and covering and prices made new highs for the session in late trading, December selling to 19.12, January 19.20 and March 19.26, or 20 to 22 points above the previous close. Another flurry of realizing carried the price level off 2 to 4 points and December closed at 19.08 and March 19.24, or 18 points net higher for the day. July contracts showed the maximum advance for the day, closing at 19.05, or 24 points over yesterday's close.

The early firmness was helped by a private ginnings estimate of 11,300,000 bales which served to strengthen beliefs that the official figures would be moderate, while the afternoon demand was stimulated in a large measure by an urgent need for ocean freight room for cotton bookings.

Irregular Market Skyrockets Favored Shares to New High Record Prices

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. (US)—Du Pont, Case Threshing Machine and Radio registered new high record prices in skyrocketing ascensions as the balance of the market turned more irregular, today. Du Pont and Case both sold for more than $500 a share in the greatest excitement and then dropped to 492 and 494¾ for net gains of 52 and 45¾ points respectively. Radio gained 26½ for the session. Wright climbed 6¼ and a few others moved 2 to 4 points higher. Steel, Can, Motors, Nickel and other recently favored industrials were subjected to continued profit taking that held them back through the session and closed them slightly lower.

Although heavy profit taking was encountered good support was evidenced and no drastic losses were suffered. Total trading was the second largest on record, amounting to 6,440,000 shares. Trading was broader than in Friday's record session so that the tape was two and a half hours behind at the close. Rails were in better demand led by Union Pacific, Central and Erie. Coppers and oils remained comparatively quiet. Call money ruled at 6½ per cent throughout.

"Buy the Rails"

"Buy the rails" was heard again. This time it came from interests who are closely associated with the most powerful of the "Big Ten." Inquiry revealed that their bullishness was based on belief that a favorable decision would be handed down by the interstate commerce commission in connection with the New York Central in the near future. This decision, it was claimed, would permit the Central to take over the Michigan Central as the first step in its planned merger. However, the main factor holding back the rails is that there is not likely to be any favorable action in connection with the Van Sweringen plans before next year when the personnel of the commerce commission is changed. Loree interests also will hold off until that time before doing any more work on their consolidation plans.

Bear Propaganda

The talk of sale of a big block of Radio by western interests proved bear propaganda when investigated. The market group named as having liquidated, it is learned, sold all the stock they were holding from $140 to $170 a share. Most of it was taken by General Electric interests and other friends of the company who talk more bullish than ever on the outlook. Strength in Radio-Keith reflected the cleaning out of the following that played for a quick profit on the merger rumors. Since official announcement of the association of interests of Radio and Keith-Albee the same quiet absorption of the stock has been experienced as pointed out here over a week ago.

Texas Gulf

Texas Gulf was again reported under absorption by Newmount Mining interests who were endeavoring to get back their holdings they sold over a year ago, but were meeting competition from bankers who now hold the dominant position in the company. Bethlehem was helped by report that dividend declarations may be at the rate of $5 a share annually. Otis strength reflected belief that the current quarter would result in the best earnings in its history. Some of Cutten's friends were buyers of Yellow Cab on the theory that with the third quarter's poor earnings out of the way the stock should soon reflect the plans of the General Motors management for placing it in the dominant position in the motor truck field. Du Pont's strength and the nature of the splitup of the stock was strong indication that it has not disposed of any of its General Motors stock.

Westinghouse Market

From Detroit came advice that the "Big Ten" were most active in Westinghouse. Mellon interests also are concerned with the market therein, however. As a result of recent market developments it is believed that the next directors' meeting will prove which group has control. As a result definite action is expected on plan to merger with Baldwin, American Steel Foundries and one other company. In the event of this consolidation, it is stated, the Philadelphia property of Baldwin would be held and turned into other lines than railway equipment. Bankers here, it is now reported, are friendly to the merger plan.

Sterling held around the high reached in Monday's trading in a generally firm but quiet foreign exchange market. Wheat continued its rally as more bullish private crop estimates were received and influenced strength in other grains. Cotton recovered further also on cold weather reports.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 20. (AP) (U. S. D. A.)—Dull trading prevailed around the 11-market circuit on most killing classes of cattle, low priced cows and bulls proving the exception. Prices on beef steers, yearlings and fat she stock were unevenly lower with several points reporting a general decline of 25c to 50c.

Light yearlings, including fed heifers were especially difficult to move and present values are $1.00 to $1.50 under a week ago. Many of beef steers, common, are higher bred short feds which, if they had been kept on feed 60 days longer, would have been very desirable from a killing standpoint. Stocker and feeder trade developed a weak to lower undertone influenced no doubt by the sharp decline on the slaughter grades. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 45,300, a decrease of 7,000 from a week ago and 8,500 short of the same day last year.

More liberal receipts and a narrow shipping demand resulted in a 10c to 35c decline in the hog market centers on the close, showing losses of 25c or more. The day's top of $9.10 was paid early in the session at Chicago. Total offerings were around 123,800 against 130,993 last Tuesday and 115,244 a year ago.

Fat lambs were on a steady to 15c higher basis. Light to moderate receipts the strengthening influence; aged stock was unchanged. A few choice native lambs at St. Louis scored $14.00 while choice natives at Chicago reached $13.75. The supply estimated at 39,100 was 2,700 less than a week ago and 7,500 under a year ago.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. (AP)—Corn advanced rapidly in price today, and carried other grains along, with deferred deliveries of corn going to within a half cent of the season's highest level.

Transatlantic estimates that Europe will require 129,000,000 bushels of United States corn, of which only 34,000,000 bushels have been bought thus far, attracted widespread notice, flood reports from the Southwest counting also as a bullish influence. Increased estimates of world needs of wheat were likewise at hand.

Closing quotations on corn were strong, 1½ cents to 1¾ cents net higher, wheat ½ cent to ¾ cents up, oats unchanged to ¼ cent advance, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to a rise of 5 cents.

Upturns in the value of corn accompanied advices that Argentina appears now to be leaving the European corn market practically to this country, with no shipments of Argentine new corn expected to reach Europe until next June. Furthermore, arrivals of corn in Chicago today were reduced to 92 cars, against 437 cars a week ago and 176 cars on the corresponding day last year.

Meanwhile, fears were expressed in some quarters that flood conditions, especially in the Mississippi valley, would damage corn still in the field and bring about material delay to the crop movement.

Country offering of corn today to arrive were slim, and other markets were reported as outbidding Chicago at downstate points in Illinois.

In this connection, talk was current that, taken as a whole, the movement of corn during November has been above normal, but has quickly gone into consumer use, permitting little or no accumulation of stocks. Under such circumstances, the advance today in corn prices continued right up to the close. Oats showed some sympathy with corn, but were inclined to lag.

In the wheat market an outstanding feature was word of 56,000,000 bushels increased estimates of world requirements of wheat for the season ending July 1, next. The new estimates, totaling 880,000,000 bushels, were spoken of as about the largest ever known. It was also announced that export sales of No. 2 hard domestic wheat, Gulf of Mexico November loading, had been made today at the same price as Chicago May delivery.

Provisions averaged lower, reflecting a downturn in hog values.

P-O OFFICIAL FAVORS CITY

Bartlett to Recommend Federal Building

Efforts of the chamber of commerce, other civic organizations, and individuals in behalf of a new federal building for Wichita Falls, a campaign extending over the last several years, seemed nearer fruition Tuesday, when John H. Bartlett, first assistant postmaster general, announced that he would recommend appropriation of funds for the construction of a new federal building here.

"I think Wichita Falls needs a new federal building about as badly as any other city in the country," the official said. "It is only a question of how soon the appropriation can be made."

The erection of such a building, as Mr. Bartlett said would be recommended, would provide centrally located and permanent quarters, not only for the postoffice and federal court, but for the many other offices, such as revenue department, service recruiting officers, which conduct business for the federal government.

Mr. Bartlett was shown various sites in the city which would be available for the proposed new structure, but it was said no announcement of preferred location would be made until after congress has acted upon the recommendation.

The visiting official reached the city early Friday morning and was the guest of Postmaster O. P. Maricle, Hubert Harrison, chamber of commerce manager, and Mayor J. W. Akin at breakfast in the Wichita club. Mr. Bartlett left Tuesday noon for Dallas.

NEW NICARAGUA CONTROL URGED

Report Recites Need Of Financial Control

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. (UP)—The best interests of Nicaragua make it advisable for her to accept a material extension of American control over her finances, both as to collection of all revenues and approval of all expenditures, according to recommendations in the report of Dr. W. W. Cumberland, financial expert, who made a survey of Nicaraguan affairs under the auspices of the American state department.

The Cumberland recommendations which were published by the state department tonight without comment and as the expert's own personal views, urged the appointment of two American officials to be nominated by the American state department and subject to removal by him, one to have complete charge of revenue collections and one to be in complete charge of government expenditures.

Constabulary Unstable

Doctor Cumberland also predicted it would be a long time before the Nicaraguan native constabulary, now under the direction of American marine corps officers, would be stable enough to be left under Nicaraguan direction.

The state department has given much consideration to the Cumberland report but has made public no decisions with regard to it. The report was prepared last March but publication was withheld at the request of the Nicaraguan government until after the Nicaraguan presidential election of a few days ago so that it would not be an issue in the campaign there.

The Cumberland plan recommends:

1. Creation of an auditor general, to be nominated by the American secretary of state and appointed by the Nicaraguan president, and to have complete control of all government expenditures.

2. Powers of the American collector general—now confined to customs collection, to be extended to all revenues, the official to be nominated by the American secretary of state and be appointed by the Nicaraguan president.

3. American secretary of state to have the power of removing both the collector general and the auditor general.

Loan Provided

4. Loan of $30,000,000 authorized, of which $12,000,000 would be issued at once to retire outstanding obligations, pay off revolutionary claims, 1928 election expenses and provide paving and sanitation for Managua.

5. Loan of $2,250,000 to Pacific railroad authorized to improve its equipment.

Doctor Cumberland was sent to Nicaragua a year ago, the state department paying his expenses, after resigning as economic adviser to the Haitian government to make the study.

The two American-recommended officials, the collector general of customs and the auditor general, together with the Nicaraguan minister of finance would constitute the high commission which would have charge of the budget and other fiscal matters.

While the Cumberland report has been in the hands of the state department American officials have held frequent conferences concerning it. In some conferences with American bankers the subject of the proposed $12,000,000 loan was discussed and rejected by the bankers because of the criticism in the senate and part of the press of American interference in Nicaragua and the depressing effect of such agitation upon the Nicaraguan securities market. Later it was suggested one house might undertake the project after the Nicaraguan presidential election if the country appeared calm and likely to enter upon a period of quiet and stability.

Would Stop Irregularities

The Cumberland report said the Nicaraguan revenue service was "honeycombed with irregularities" and the prediction was made that a more efficient regime under the sponsorship of a responsible collector general and auditor general would stop much leakage.

Commenting on the adverse effects of political upheavals in Nicaragua, Doctor Cumberland said:

"For the present the constabulary will be commanded by officers of the United States marine corps loaned to the Nicaraguan government, and these will attempt to train Nicaraguan personnel so that as quickly as possible the latter can assume complete charge of a force adequate to guarantee political stability. However, the process is certain to be lengthy, as partisan bitterness in Nicaragua is the dominating social phenomenon, and years will be required to develop a constabulary which under Nicaraguan direction could be relied upon to refrain from engaging in political disputes or espousing the cause of some political faction."

Efforts to obtain the Wichita Falls Memorial auditorium for the presentation of "Rio Rita" the night of Dec. 3 having been futile and the show has been definitely announced for the Majestic theater.

Along with this announcement came the added announcement that as the Majestic is a small house, the management advises the public in advance to watch for the opening of the ticket sale and get seats at the earliest possible moment. Tickets for the show will be at a premium and those who wish to see the only big league musical play announced for the city this season should get their tickets at the first opportunity, it was said.

FEDERAL JURY REPORTS TODAY

Atwell Assesses 35 More Beer Penalties

The report of the federal grand jury, charged by Judge W. H. Atwell at the opening of the semi-annual session of the United States district court here Monday, is expected before the close of the morning session Wednesday. The body adjourned early Tuesday afternoon until Wednesday morning and court officials believe their investigations nearing completion.

Meanwhile Judge Atwell spent Tuesday disposing of 35 more beer cases, bringing the total of sentences for the two days' session to 68. The business of hearing pleas of guilty to charges of having, selling, or manufacturing beer went forward smoothly and without interruption until 3:30 in the afternoon when the last of the day's assignments was disposed of. Only three defendants contested charges, and each was convicted. At the close of the second day of the session no defendant prosecuted by the government had escaped punishment, either by fine or jail sentence or both.

H. A. Maddison, charged with possession, drew the heaviest fine, $225, assessed Tuesday. Most of the other impositions were under $100 and only two jail sentences exceeded 15 days. Judge Atwell came to the defense of the rights of the defendants just before adjournment Tuesday when John Klein told of being struck over the head by a city officer at the time of his arrest. The officer was called and questioned, testifying that the blow was necessary in order to prevent the prisoner from destroying the evidence. The judge expressed to the defendant disapproval of the use of such methods of officers of the law, but explained that he, as a federal judge, had no jurisdiction over city officials. Klein was fined $25.

The following judgments were recorded on the docket Tuesday: Mrs. Alice Ashley, $100; Tom Finley, $60; Roy Franklin, $60; E. J. Hoelzel, $75; Mrs. Mae Howard, $65; H. Huey, 30 days; Mattie Jackson, 15 days; Beulah Kendrick, eight days; H. A. Maddison, $225; R. F. Morgan, $150; Cleve Patton, $75; R. C. Perkins, $100; Nellie Raborn, 12 days; R. H. Reed, $25; Jim Sparks, $25; R. C. Tarrant, $50; Mrs. Roy Taylor, $200; George Waldon, $30; Mrs. Jack Watson, $50; P. A. Wilcoxson, $175 on two counts; J. W. Young, $100; Alfred Cotton, $25; Henry Broker, 15 days; Ernest Brown, $25 and 20 days; Edna Turner, five days; W. T. Smith, $100; Carrie Winberly, $500 bond forfeiture; H. C. Young, $35, and John Klein, $25.

Bellevue Man to Show Violin 600 Years Old to MacMillen Here

An elderly man of Bellevue whose school days are far behind him, has probably as keen if not keener interest in the coming of Francis Macmillen, renowned violinist, next Friday, than any of the 3,000 school children who are expected to greet the artist in his matinee appearance at 3:15 o'clock at the Memorial auditorium.

For this man, W. M. Curry, is the possessor of a fragile time-worn violin reputed to be almost 600 years old, in which he thinks the visiting artist will be interested, and whose appraisal of the instrument has been promised.

Mr. Curry obtained the violin from a Clay county farmer named Robert Davis. Davis in turn was said to have gained possession of the piece in exchange for a horse, which he traded to a German farmer also living in Clay county. This owner of the instrument was said to have inherited it from his grandfather, one of the early immigrants in this state direct from Germany. The name of Regart Hubuf, maker of violins, with the date 1350, Petersburg, Germany, is stamped inside the box of the violin, whose appearance bears out its claim to very remote manufacture. It is of delicate construction, unusually light, and of very sweet tone. There comes down with the instrument the statement that it has been in almost constant use in scores of different hands.

Ed Cox, editor of the Bellevue News, wrote a letter last winter to Francis Macmillen, at Mr. Curry's request, to which he received the following reply:

"While touring the county last winter, I received a letter from you. At the time it was mislaid, and my manager has just found it, and called my attention to it.

"Regarding the violin you have in your possession, I am afraid I cannot give you much information. Instruments of great value are more or less like famous diamonds: they are usually known to the dealers and collectors. However, as a curio your violin might have value. If you care to bring it to Wichita Falls when I play there next winter, I will be delighted to look at it.

"Hoping you will forgive me for not answering sooner, I beg to remain, yours very sincerely,

Francis Macmillen."

The instrument in question is now at the home of Mrs. G. B. Smedley, 1822 Elizabeth, chairman of the ways and means department of the Woman's Forum, under whose auspices the Macmillen concert is being given.

Mr. Curry, who is the uncle of Mrs. W. C. Greenwood, 1406 16th street, is said to be anticipating Macmillen's arrival with elation born of deep pride in his possession, and will be in the city Friday for the interview.

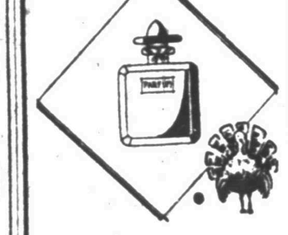

Home Rule For Scotland Agitation Is Scored

GLASGOW, Nov. 20.
