Safeway changes '95 percent' done

The addition or expansion of five departments at Snyder's Safeway store is "95 percent complete," store officials noted Saturday.

"All we lack is the salad bar for our deli and a few minor details," said Randy Couch, store manager.

Changes at the store have generated 14 new staff positions in addition to a new look inside.

Departments added include a pharmacy — officially opened last week — a bakery and the delicatessen. Those expanded include the plant department, upgraded to a full line floral shop; and the produce area, which has been changed to a "farmers market" arrangement.

The new pharmacy manager is Kin Ching, transferred here by Safeway from Midland, who is joined by local registered pharmacist Vina Strayhorn.

The bakery manager is Karen Marr. Her department offers such baked goods as doughnuts, cookies, breads — to include French and garlic bread

Q. — Regarding jobs, how large a part does the oil industry play in Scurry County?

A. — The latest figures available from the Texas Employment Commission are for the first quarter of 1985. At that time, the job category for "mining industry," which involves the oil field, showed an average of 2,291 jobs here. Assuming an average labor force of 10,000, this means the oilpatch accounts for almost 23 percent of county jobs. Other figures related to salary, however, noted the industry accounted for some 43 percent of total wages.

Program to aid enrollment for women

By Shirley A. Gorman
SDN News Editor

Western Texas College has been granted federal funds for tuition and child care for older women who are interested but have never been able to attend college classes.

The funds will be distributed through the newly organized New Women's Program at the college. Pat Blakely, who graduated fom WTC in 1985 after attending classes part-time for four years, has been named director.

Federal funding will cover the cost of tuition for an applied psychology class related to family living. It will start Feb. 17.

"This class will not be structured like the typical college class with a lot of homework and tests," Blakely said. "Instead it will be based more on attendance and participation. We are trying to show women that they can go to college if they want to."

The two-hour class will be taught by Dan Osborn and will be in session three days a week. It will run through May 8 and will meet at the Baptist Student Union on campus.

An informational meeting for the New Women's Program has been scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday at the Senior Citizens Center. Blakely will present the program. Those interested may

Hance addresses state tax burden

By VICKI BROWN
SDN Staff Writer

Oil prices, tax increases, educational reform and agricultural issues were addressed Friday by Republican gubernatorial hopeful Kent Hance.

Hance spoke with the SDN and several other West Texas newspapers during a teleconference interview.

Hance believes that taxpayers are facing a "substantial increase" in school property taxes over the next six to 10 years. "The law has shifted the (financial) burden to the local districts while taking away their control."

Noting that he plans to "address spending first", Hance made no promise that a tax increase would not be considered.

"Clements (former Gov. Bill Clements) and White (Gov. Mark White) both said they would raise taxes. If the price of oil goes to $15 per barrel, I'm not going to close Texas Tech, the University of Texas or any of the schools or shut down the highway patrol," he said. "I think we need to address spending first, cut unnecessary programs, then consider taxes. There's just no way to see (the future) in a crystal ball."

However, he emphasized that no state income tax, either personal or corporate, will be considered.

Hance hopes to lessen the chances of a tax increase by aggressively pursuing the state's economic development through business. He plans to establish a network to promote Texas business throughout the U.S. and overseas.

"I would establish economic

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Forgetting is as important as remembering."

It's probably a good thing for Snyder that several years ago Milton Ham turned over the mayor's gavel to Rod Waller.

A case in point is Ham's recent experience trying to meet his son for lunch at a Lubbock restaurant.

Ham left a morning business meeting just in time to make a scheduled luncheon with son, Mark. The evening before, the two had agreed to meet at Chili's, one of several restaurants located across from the South Plains Mall.

The business meeting was one of those that drained you mentally, and a cup of coffee was foremost in Ham's mind. He reached the restaurant to find that his luncheon companion had not arrived.

He asked the waiter to be seated near the door so he could watch for Mark. Meanwhile, Ham ordered coffee, snacked on some crackers and buttered up a blueberry muffin.

Some 30 minutes passed, and Ham was becoming edgy because Mark had not arrived as scheduled. The waiter also was becoming a little impatient as the luncheon crowd grew. Ham was brought a menu and noticed an unusal name of Oscar's at the top. Still Ham figured it was a name for the menu for that day of the week. A few minutes later, however, the light came on when he realized he was in the wrong restaurant.

An embarassed Ham called the waiter over and explained his plight–the fact that he had become relatively satisfied by the tasty muffins.

An amused, but understanding waiter pointed him north down the same street. Ham reached the restaurant expecting to find his son, but to no avail. He told the same story to the waiter who seated him near the front. Ham was really fuming because, despite the delay, Mark still had not arrived.

Ham ordered another cup of coffee and was scanning the menu when he caught the name. He was in El Chico, not Chili's which was still a block north.

Ham explained to the waiter, slipped out and headed for his late appointment with his son. Finally at the right restaurant, Mark was seated near the front and called out, "Hey dad, over here. Where you been....was it a long meeting?"

"Son, you'll never believe..."

Flowers honor 7 astronauts

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Long after the end of a memorial service Friday for the fallen crew of space shuttle Challenger, citizens came in darkness to leave floral tributes at the gates of the Johnson Space Center while neighbors lighted candles along a quiet residental street where an astronaut had lived.

Dozens of sprays, dominated by a 10-foot-high heart of red, white and blue carnations, were left in a crescent of color and fragrance near the gate of the NASA facilitiy where the slain seven had trained for orbital adventure.

The space center was closed to the general public to permit a gathering of about 10,000 to mourn together with the President at a memorial service for the Challenger crew. Much of the nation watched the 35-minute service on television.

Visitors to the center, blocked from entry, responded by leaving the floral tributes. Later, cars parked on NASA Road 1 and people walked sadly among the flowers.

At a nearby community where astronaut Ron McNair and his family lived, neighbors placed lighted candles on their lawns, leaving the quiet residential street in a soft flickering glow.

The memorial service was on a grassy mall surrounded by the white stone and black glass buildings of the Johnson Space Center. Astronauts, engineers and grieving families listened to President Reagan deliver a 10-minute eulogy for those he called "seven brave Americans."

He urged that space exploration continue despite the explosion of space shuttle Challenger last Tuesday that claimed the lives of McNair, Dick Scobee, Michael Smith, Judy Resnik, Ellison Onizuka, Gregory Jarvis and Concord, N.H. teacher Christa McAuliffe.

"Sometimes, when we reach for the stars, we fall short," said Reagan. "But we must pick ourselves up again and press on despite the pain."

Many family members, sitting in a center section near Reagan as he spoke, wept openly. Some senior NASA executives sitting nearby joined them in tears, as did some in a large contingent of astronauts.

Four T-38 jets, the type flown by astronauts, roared in a tight formation overhead. One craft split away, climbed toward the sun and swept from sight into clouds.

The service was near Mission Control, nerve center of all space shuttle flights. The computers and screens there are frozen to the moment, 11:39:13 a.m. EST, when Challenger exploded on Tuesday just 73 seconds after launch from the Kennedy Space Center.

Within an hour after the service, senior NASA executives and astronauts were meeting to continue an investigation into why Challenger blew up.

But for the brief time of the service, the space community so accustomed to triumph was united in grief for the fallen.

"We're gathered here today as a family," said the Rev. Bernard R. Hawley, of Salina, Kan., a Presbyterian minister who is the father of astronaut Steven Hawley and the father-in-law of Sally Ride, America's first woman in space.

"We are a family that shares a common goal, a common commitment, and now a common devastating loss."

Light opera is tour event

The Diamond M Museum will sponsor a trip to see the Texas Opera Theatre production of Die Flederamaus in Abilene Feb. 8.

"Die Fledermaus is light opera and popular with general audiences," Marcy-Jean Mattison, museum director, said. "The Texas Opera is part of the Houston Grand Opera Company and will be performing in the restored Paramount Theatre in Abilene.

The tour group will leave the Diamond M Museum at 4 p.m. on the afternoon of the performance and have dinner at the Sheraton's Kensington Court before going to the theatre. The cost for the tour will be $25 per person which includes transportation, dinner and tickets for Die Fledermaus.

Reservations for the trip can be made by calling the Diamond M Museum at 573-6311. All reservations will be confirmed when the fee is paid and payment is to be made by 4 p.m. on Feb. 5.

WTC to observe special month

Western Texas College will join other institutions across the nation in observing the first National Community College Month in February.

President Ronald Reagan issued a proclamation designating the special month following the passage of a joint resolution by the 98th Congress. The resolution was sponsored by Frank Murkowski (R-Ark.) in the Senate and by Don Young (R-Ark.) in the House.

The American Association of Community and Junior Colleges plans several national events to celebrate the month. "Opportunity with Excellence" has been chosen as the theme, a phrase which personifies the mission and philosophy of the nation's 1,221 community, technical, and junior colleges.

Visitors are always welcome on the WTC campus and are especially invited during February. Fans are invited to attend the WTC-Frank Phillips College basketball game without admission charge on the night of Feb. 20 in recognition of the month and the WTC drama department production of "Backyard Story" is scheduled for Feb. 21-24 in the Fine Arts Theatre.

The Scurry County Museum, located on the WTC campus, invites visitors to see a special exhibit of circus posters and banners, "Under the Big Top," through Feb. 12. The Diamond M Museum will feature works from its permanent collection in a "Hearts and Flowers" theme throughout the month of February.

The resolution passed by Congress points out that in the fall of 1981 there were over 1,200 community, technical and junior colleges in which 40 percent of all undergraduate college students in the United States were enrolled and that these colleges prepare people for employment in over 1,400 different occupations or for transfer to four-year colleges and universities.

These colleges are within reasonable commuting distance for more than 90 percent of all Americans and provide an opportunity to obtain a post-secondary education at low cost for many people who could not otherwise afford one, the resolution continues. The colleges are community-based institutions which provide flexible and diverse programs and services tailored to fit the needs of their local populations and industries.

Flowers honor 7 astronauts

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Long after the end of a memorial service Friday for the fallen crew of space shuttle Challenger, citizens came in darkness to leave floral tributes at the gates of the Johnson Space Center while neighbors lighted candles along a quiet residental street where an astronaut had lived.

Dozens of sprays, dominated by a 10-foot-high heart of red, white and blue carnations, were left in a crescent of color and fragrance near the gate of the NASA facilitiy where the slain seven had trained for orbital adventure.

The space center was closed to the general public to permit a gathering of about 10,000 to mourn together with the President at a memorial service for the Challenger crew. Much of the nation watched the 35-minute service on television.

Visitors to the center, blocked from entry, responded by leaving the floral tributes. Later, cars parked on NASA Road 1 and people walked sadly among the flowers.

At a nearby community where astronaut Ron McNair and his family lived, neighbors placed lighted candles on their lawns, leaving the quiet residential street in a soft flickering glow.

The memorial service was on a grassy mall surrounded by the white stone and black glass buildings of the Johnson Space Center. Astronauts, engineers and grieving families listened to President Reagan deliver a 10-minute eulogy for those he called "seven brave Americans."

He urged that space exploration continue despite the explosion of space shuttle Challenger last Tuesday that claimed the lives of McNair, Dick Scobee, Michael Smith, Judy Resnik, Ellison Onizuka, Gregory Jarvis and Concord, N.H. teacher Christa McAuliffe.

"Sometimes, when we reach for the stars, we fall short," said Reagan. "But we must pick ourselves up again and press on despite the pain."

Many family members, sitting in a center section near Reagan as he spoke, wept openly. Some senior NASA executives sitting nearby joined them in tears, as did some in a large contingent of astronauts.

Four T-38 jets, the type flown by astronauts, roared in a tight formation overhead. One craft split away, climbed toward the sun and swept from sight into clouds.

The service was near Mission Control, nerve center of all space shuttle flights. The computers and screens there are frozen to the moment, 11:39:13 a.m. EST, when Challenger exploded on Tuesday just 73 seconds after launch from the Kennedy Space Center.

Within an hour after the service, senior NASA executives and astronauts were meeting to continue an investigation into why Challenger blew up.

But for the brief time of the service, the space community so accustomed to triumph was united in grief for the fallen.

"We're gathered here today as a family," said the Rev. Bernard R. Hawley, of Salina, Kan., a Presbyterian minister who is the father of astronaut Steven Hawley and the father-in-law of Sally Ride, America's first woman in space.

"We are a family that shares a common goal, a common commitment, and now a common devastating loss."

Light opera is tour event

The Diamond M Museum will sponsor a trip to see the Texas Opera Theatre production of Die Flederamaus in Abilene Feb. 8.

"Die Fledermaus is light opera and popular with general audiences," Marcy-Jean Mattison, museum director, said. "The Texas Opera is part of the Houston Grand Opera Company and will be performing in the restored Paramount Theatre in Abilene.

The tour group will leave the Diamond M Museum at 4 p.m. on the afternoon of the performance and have dinner at the Sheraton's Kensington Court before going to the theatre. The cost for the tour will be $25 per person which includes transportation, dinner and tickets for Die Fledermaus.

Reservations for the trip can be made by calling the Diamond M Museum at 573-6311. All reservations will be confirmed when the fee is paid and payment is to be made by 4 p.m. on Feb. 5.

WTC to observe special month

Western Texas College will join other institutions across the nation in observing the first National Community College Month in February.

President Ronald Reagan issued a proclamation designating the special month following the passage of a joint resolution by the 98th Congress. The resolution was sponsored by Frank Murkowski (R-Ark.) in the Senate and by Don Young (R-Ark.) in the House.

The American Association of Community and Junior Colleges plans several national events to celebrate the month. "Opportunity with Excellence" has been chosen as the theme, a phrase which personifies the mission and philosophy of the nation's 1,221 community, technical, and junior colleges.

Visitors are always welcome on the WTC campus and are especially invited during February. Fans are invited to attend the WTC-Frank Phillips College basketball game without admission charge on the night of Feb. 20 in recognition of the month and the WTC drama department production of "Backyard Story" is scheduled for Feb. 21-24 in the Fine Arts Theatre.

The Scurry County Museum, located on the WTC campus, invites visitors to see a special exhibit of circus posters and banners, "Under the Big Top," through Feb. 12. The Diamond M Museum will feature works from its permanent collection in a "Hearts and Flowers" theme throughout the month of February.

The resolution passed by Congress points out that in the fall of 1981 there were over 1,200 community, technical and junior colleges in which 40 percent of all undergraduate college students in the United States were enrolled and that these colleges prepare people for employment in over 1,400 different occupations or for transfer to four-year colleges and universities.

These colleges are within reasonable commuting distance for more than 90 percent of all Americans and provide an opportunity to obtain a post-secondary education at low cost for many people who could not otherwise afford one, the resolution continues. The colleges are community-based institutions which provide flexible and diverse programs and services tailored to fit the needs of their local populations and industries.

Haiti's capital calm in spite of seige

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Security forces toting firearms and clubs patrolled the capital, which was calm early Saturday following anti-government rioting that a hospital and witnesses said killed five people and injured 61.

The unrest in Port-au-Prince broke out Friday, as President-for-Life Jean-Claude Duvalier imposed a 30-day state of siege nationwide that suspends individual liberties and grants security forces wide powers.

Rioting had affected a half-dozen other Haitian cities since Sunday, and at least 10 people have been killed in sporadic unrest since Nov. 28 that has been heaviest in Gonaives, Cap Haitien and Les Cayes.

On Friday morning, rioters ran through Port-au-Prince streets, building street barricades. Police used clubs and opened fire, and the General Hospital and witnesses reported at least five people killed and 61 wounded, 16 by gunshots.

Although bursts of gunfire could be heard throughout the city of 1 million, police regained control by midday, and by nightfall the streets were quiet. A few security officers patrolled the deserted avenues of Port-au-Prince early today.

Widespread confusion resulted when the White House and the State Department erroneously reported Friday morning that Duvalier's authoritarian government had fallen and that the president and his family had left Haiti.

U.S. government officials retracted the statement hours later.

In Port-au-Prince, U.S. information officer Jeffrey Lite said said the embassy was advising the 15,000 Americans in Haiti to stay off the streets.

Duvalier, in an eight-minute live radio and TV speech from the National Palace, said he was imposing the extraordinary measures to ensure that the government had the means necessary to restore order and protect life and property.

He said he would stay in power because he is "strong, firm as a monkey's tail," a Creole expression that implies strength, because monkeys use their tails to hang and swing from trees.

Duvalier also closed down three radio stations, including Radio Soleil, a Roman Catholic Church station that broadcasts in Haiti's Creole language. Radio Soleil has previously been closed for reporting on anti-government demonstrations.

An hour after the speech, 200 blue-uniformed militiamen brandishing rifles and pistols marched through the streets in support of Duvalier, whose family has ruled Haiti since 1957.

Woman smiling after transplant

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The first woman to receive an artificial heart smiled and squeezed her husband's hand just hours after surgeons transplanted the heart of a teen-ager to replace the pump that had kept her alive 45 days, doctors say.

Mary Lund, a 40-year-old secretary, was in critical but stable condition at Abbott Northwestern Hospital, where the eight-hour transplant was performed Friday by surgeons from the Minneapolis Heart Institute.

She awoke about four hours after the surgery and responded to commands by smiling and squeezing the hand of her husband, DuWayne, said Dr. Robert Van Tassel, an institute spokesman.

"We're very optimistic after what we saw today," Van Tassel said. "Her heart is working very well and is beating in a normal rhythm."

Doctors had been concerned that the artificial heart implant might have scarred Mrs. Lund's chest tissue, making the transplant more difficult. But Van Tassel said no significant scarring was found, nor signs of infection.

Mrs. Lund, of Kensington, received the heart of Jyna Marie Forshee, a 14-year-old Billings, Mont., girl who suffered an epileptic seizure Tuesday and was pronounced brain dead Thursday morning.

Since Dec. 18, Mrs. Lund had been kept alive by a small version of the Jarvik-7 artificial heart.

The largest building in the United States is the Boeing 747 Manufacturing Plant in Everett, Wash. It covers 47 acres.

Crude oil prices close below $19 a barrel

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time in seven years, prices for crude oil have closed below $19 a barrel.

And Mexico, second biggest supplier to the United States after Canada, has announced a major series of cuts.

In Friday trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange, a barrel of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, settled at $18.83 for delivery in March, down 73 cents from Thursday, and 67 cents lower than the end of the previous week.

The same grade of oil traded as high as $31.70 a barrel on Nov. 20. A barrel is the eqivalent of 42 barrels.

In other late trading, Brent North Sea crude sold at $18.05 a barrel for March delivery, down 60 cents from Thursday.

Such refined products as heating oil, and gasoline also closed sharply lower.

Elsewhere, Mexico, also announced price cuts averaging $4 per barrel for its oil, retroactive to Jan. 1.

A glut of oil on world markets, a relatively mild winter in the Northern Hemisphere and OPEC's refusal to prop up prices or cut production have been major factors in the slide in oil prices this winter.

Friday's trading was influenced by reports that Japan had signed deals with Saudi Arabia to buy oil at market-related prices and a perception among traders that oil ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will not find a way to control prices when they meet in Vienna, Austria next Monday.

Some traders also said the market was upset by a report that Indonesian Oil Minister Subroto had predicted that the OPEC ministers would agree to an 18 million-barrel-a-day total production quota during that meeting, up 2 million barrels from current official limits.

Members of the 13-member cartel already substantially exceed their own quotas, according to industry estimates, and analysts say the present daily flow is between 1.5 million and 2 million barrels more than the world market can absorb.

Underlying all the factors for Friday's plunge, traders said, was a bearish mood that would not go away.

"People ignore good news in bad markets and bad news in good markets," said Peter Beutel, an analyst at Rudolf Wolff Futures Inc.

Last December, as a glut in world supplies was already pressuring prices, OPEC, led by Saudi Arabia, its major producer, said it would increase production to preserve its "fair market share," abandoning previous attempts to support the market through restrained production.

Prices began to slip, then went into a dive on Jan. 16.

William Byers, an analyst at Bear, Stearns & Co., also said the reports on Japanese purchases tied to open-market oil prices were the main reason for Friday's plunge.

"Psychologically, the market was very nervous, and when you hear a story like that, that's got to put pressure on things, and that will get the ball rolling," he said. "I don't think it's a new story, but you get the same piece of news on two different days and the market will respond in two different ways."

Mexico's price cuts were announced late Friday.

Mexico slashes oil prices again

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico slashed crude oil prices by an average of $4 a barrel to nearly half the level of five years ago, but warned that falling oil prices could ultimately damage the international system of banking and trade.

In Los Angeles, oil industry analyst Dan Lundberg said Mexico's action will definitely mean lower prices at U.S. gas pumps, but no specific estimate of the price cut's impact was immediately available. Mexico is the second-leading oil supplier to the United States, after Canada.

The new Mexican prices, retroactive to Jan. 1, were announced Friday after President Miguel de la Madrid and Venezuela's President Jaime Lusinchi agreed to begin coordinating their two nations' petroleum pricing strategies in hopes of maintaining their shares of the world market.

Both Venezuela and Mexico depend on oil income to pay their large foreign debts, and the slide in world oil prices that began in November has raised fears that their interest and principal payments due this year will be harder than ever to meet.

The average price of Mexican oil, whose cost varies according to the type of oil and customer location, fell below $20 for the first time with the Friday announcement of the new prices. Mexico sells only by contract and does not trade on the spot market.

Mexico's average price in December was $23.75 per 42-gallon barrel. For January, the average is $19.75, the government oil monopoly Pemex said. Five years ago, the average was $36.50.

Pemex said its January prices for U.S. customers would be $21.70 for light Isthmus crude, down from $26.25 in December; and $19.50 for heavy Maya crude, down from $22 in December.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You are now in a good achievement cycle, so try to channel your efforts toward meaningful objectives. If the goal isn't worthy, ignore it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It isn't likely that you'll try to dodge sticky issues today, even situations where you might have to tell something unpleasant to another for his own good.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In an arrangement where you are working closely with someone else, take pains to treat this person fairly. Be sure you're treated likewise.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your mate's pace might not be as speedy as yours today. For harmony's sake, slow down and get in step.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Handouts on silver platters are not likely today, yet you can reap considerable rewards if you're prepared to expend the proper effort.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today, if you're involved in a fun mental or physical activity, don't take the game too seriously. Keep your ego under wraps.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In dealing with domestic disruptions today, heavy-handedness will only create more problems. But a feather-light touch will smooth things out.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This is a good day to make a duty call that you have been neglecting for quite some time. Interestingly enough, it will turn out to be enjoyable.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's to your benefit to be a bit stubborn in your commercial dealings today. Don't ask for more than you deserve, but don't accept less.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Challenges will serve to awaken your better qualities today. Things too tough for others aren't likely to intimidate you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you need assistance today, call upon your tried and true backups. People you have helped will be glad to reciprocate.

Course designed for women

call her at 573-0907 for more information.

Interested women will also be able to take a second course tentatively planned during the college's Spring Opportunity Session Feb. 17-May 11, Blakely said.

For those taking the course, child care arrangements have been made with Lou's Kiddie College.

Blakely emphasized the following strong points about the new program:

—Women do not have to prove financial need.

—A high school diploma is not required, but the college does offer a GED program for those interested.

—College credit can be earned with this psychology course.

She said the applied psychology course was chosen because it is "less intimidating" to first-time college students than such courses as math or English. Blakely added traditionally women seem to do well in such courses.

It will be an open entry class in that interested women may sign up after the class is underway without being penalized, she said.

"It is a good class for women. We want them to enjoy it and learn and prove to themselves that they can do college level work."

Blakely said she was chosen to direct the new program because she is an older woman who decided to go to college to pursue a degree. She will also be taking this applied psychology course along with the other women.

"I have been through it all so I know what these women will be thinking and going through. I will be there to help them."

The New Women's Program is designed as an expansion of the Image program which the college began a few years ago. "A lot of women were interested in going to college but were unable to do so because of lacks of funds for tuition for child care. The New Women's Program now addresses that need," she said.

Concert cancelled

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Singer Kenny Rogers canceled a scheduled concert Saturday night at Arizona State University after developing a severe case of laryngitis, his tour manager says.

Rogers, 47, is under doctor's orders not to perform for a week, Gerald Roy said Thursday.

The performance has been rescheduled for Feb. 11, Roy said.

4 arrests noted

Snyder police logged four misdemeanor arrests Friday night including one man jailed for misdemeanor assault following a domestic disturbance.

Three subjects were jailed for public intoxication with one of those additionally charged with possession of prohibited drug paraphernalia.

Trailer strikes local residence

A residence was struck here Friday by a trailer being pulled by a local's pickup, one of two minor traffic mishaps reported in Snyder Friday.

The Joy Alexander residence at 2605 30th St. was struck. The trailer apparently came loose from a 1981 Chevrolet pickup driven by Bob Doty of Rt. 3, Snyder.

The mishap was reported at 9:45 a.m. No value was estimated for damage to the Alexander residence.

The second accident occurred at 1:48 p.m. in the 4200 Block of College Ave.

Involved in it were a 1979 Plymouth driven by Tammy Rene Pace of 2011 Moncrief Ave. and a 1978 Chevrolet driven by Prentice E. Glass of 2804 42nd St.

Grass fire doused

Snyder firemen extinguished a grass fire south of the city at 4:21 p.m. Friday.

The blaze was reported ½ mile west of Dunn on Farm Road 1606.

Hance projects state changes

development centers overseas to promote Texas goods and to seek investment capital for the state," he added.

Hance noted that he also plans to work through local chambers of commerce to develop figures reflecting the economic strength of various areas of the state. Taking those figures, he plans to establish a "Texas Day in the Northeast and the Midwest" to attract business firms.

Hance would also abolish the corporate franchise tax for a company's first three years after relocating to the state.

Neither a state lottery or parimutual horse racing are being considered as answers to the state's economic woes. "(A lottery) produces no real business. The people who play have the least amount of money to throw away. I think the question is 'Will it add more to our social cost?'"

He noted that he "wouldn't sign a (horse racing) bill unless it contained a strong anti-crime measure and a local option measure."

During the briefing, the candidate told reporters that the often controversial educational reform package passed during the White administration contains "areas that need adjustment."

"Control over discipline has been taken away from the local districts. Most principals and superintendents I've talked to want that control."

Although he supports the concept, Hance noted that the no-pass, no-play rule also requires adjustments. He said an equitable system of punishment needs to be developed for failing students who do not participate in extracurricular activities. "The use of tutors should be a statewide rule as well," he added.

The six-week punitive measure currently used should also be reconsidered. "Six weeks is an eternity to a high school youngster. Most people don't understand that we've always had the rule in UIL (University Interscholastic League). Students were allowed to be deficient in one course, but (grades) were handled on a week-to-week basis."

Believing that "farmers are in deep trouble," Hance noted, "Ninety-five percent of what affects agriculture comes from Washington."

His primary weapon as governor would be use of his political influence in Washington, where he served as a U.S. Representative. "I think the federal government should drop its program to help Third World countries establish their own agricultural programs." He cited the drop in cotton exports to China over the past few years from six million bales to just one million bales.

He believes that a statewide subsidy program is a "bad idea" that would fail to garner enough votes among legislators. As the state's leader, he would promote agriculture overseas.

"I would also try to form a compact with other states on soil conservation and control of the amount of products produced," he added.

Focusing on his campaign, Hance expressed confidence in securing the Republican gubernatorial bid. "The best thing that's happened is the number of party regulars who have signed on (to the campaign)."

He added that he offers the party two advantages over Clements and Tom Loeffler. "First, I'm the only candidate with experience in Austin and in Washington. I know how the legislative system works.

"Second, pure politics. I'm the one candidate that can beat Mark White. My big race is the primary. If I can win that, White is gone.

The Dimmitt native believes that West Texas voters hold the key to his victory. "I need a large turnout in West Texas. The difference in victory and in not making it will be the area from Fort Worth to Austin and west. If I can get 250,000 votes, I think I'll win without a run-off."

A graduate of Texas Tech University and the University of Texas School of Law, Hance served as a state senator for four years and won the U.S. Congressional seat vacated by George Mahon in 1978 — both positions as a Democrat.

He resigned his political office in 1984 to seek the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate seat vacated by John Tower. He lost that race to Lloyd Doggett of Austin, who later lost to the Republican Phil Gramm in the national election.

Last year, Hance switched party affiliation to the Republican Party because "I could see that moderate and conservative Democrats were in the minority in the Democratic Party."

Dry soil crimping '86 crop prospects

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Topsoil has gotten so arid across the High Plains that it's crimping prospects for 1986 crops, a High Plains Underground Water Conservation District survey shows.

The overall five-foot soil profile is similar to last year's, and there are even two more inches of moisture now than in January 1985, according to the annual survey of about 200 locations in the district's 15-county area.

But that news isn't all good because the moisture is at the bottom the soil profile, district manager Wayne Wyatt said.

With critically dry top soil, seeds will be hard pressed to germinate and establish roots to reach that moisture. Farmers who can irrigate will have to pre-water the land, while others will have to pray for rain, he said.

Pre-planting moisture and yields go hand in hand, and using the survey as a guide, farmers have an idea of how much moisture is needed to bring the soil to capacity.

This year's survey shows a deficit in the soil profile capacity of two to six inches.

The driest fields are in cotton-production areas where the crop lingered through the October rains and continued to sap moisture from the soil, said Mike Risinger of Lubbock, who holds a joint agronomist position with the district and the area Soil Conservation Service.

Tax on mobile home responsibility noted

Scurry County Appraisal District personnel note some confusion among local taxpayers regarding responsibility for payment of personal property taxes on mobile homes.

The confusion arises when the mobile home is sold. Staffers note some taxpayers have questioned who is responsible for any delinquent taxes owned on it — the buyer or the seller.

The individual selling the home is responsible for delinquent taxes owed unless he advised the purchaser of the lien at the time of sale.

Item 32.03 of the State Property Tax Code states, "A tax lien may not be enforced against personal property transferred to a bona fide purchaser for value who does not have actual notice of the existence of the lien."

District personnel note the transfer of tax obligation should be in writing to protect both parties since "the burden of proof is on the individual in whose name the property appears on the tax role."

Word processing major available at WTC

With approval from the Coordinating Board of the Texas College and University System for its new word processing curriculum, Western Texas College has become one of six community colleges in the state offering a two-year-major in word processing.

Word processing is described as a system for managing the paperwork of a business efficiently and economically, Joann Snider and Cathy Chavez, office careers instructors say. The key factors in word processing are trained personnel, automated equipment and specific standardized procedures. These all combine to provide more efficient and economical business communications, usually involving the transformation of information into readable form.

Word processing was introduced at WTC on a limited scale in the 1980-81 school year. New equipment and courses have been added in the following years and students now work with the Wang dedicated word processor, the IBM, TRS 80 and Apple microcomputers, the IBM and Exxon electronic typewriters and Dictaphone machine transcriber.

"Word processing is becoming a crucial component in today's office," Mrs. Snider points out. "We have designed our program to provide students with marketable skills. We provide the student with the basic education necessary to function efficiently in the word processing environment. We feel confident that any student who completes our program with an A or B will be ready to step into any office and work and even suggest ideas on how to set up a word processing center."

The first semester's curriculum for word processing majors includes introduction to word processing, introducing terminoly, input-output methods and microcomputer applications. Some applications that students will be doing this semester include preparing a resume, a payroll project and an accounts receivable or accounts payable simulation. All these will be done with the microcomputer.

Word processing applications I follows in the next semester providing hands-on experience in operating a text editor by keyboardimg actual business documents, revising these documents and manipulating information through the use of functions of a dedicated word processor. Basic text editing functions are common on all text editors regardless of the brand, Mrs. Snider noted, so these skills are easily modified to the equipment to be used.

First semester sophomore courses include automated accounting with instruction and practice in bookkeeping and accounting implemented on the microcomputer, word processing machine transcription, development of skills in transcription from recorded dictation, and word processing applications II, stressing advanced functions on the dedicated word processor for increased productivity and improved efficiency.

Microcomputer word processing offers hands-on experience using various processing software packages and teaches operators text editor functions on various microcomputers.

In WP 230, students will work in an office. This may involve working in an office for pay or working on or off campus in a non-paying situation. Either type of job must be approved by the department, and if students cannot find employment off campus they will be assigned to work in offices on campus. This is the first time that students have been required to function in an office setting.

Students who successfully complete the two-year program will earn the Associate in Applied Science degree.

Part-time students who want to take only one or two courses are still welcome, the instructors emphasize. They can choose courses which they feel will be of particular interest or benefit to them, and many students in this category are using the courses to improve their job skills or develop new skills. All students have adequate use of the machines since lab times are scheduled at the start of each semester.

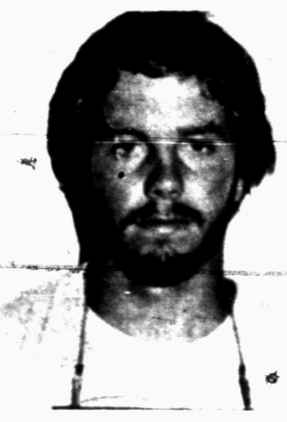

Copies of the new word processing curriculum are available for students who would like to know more about the courses required for the complete program. Students who plan to attend classes on a part-time basis can spread the program over a longer period of time. Descriptions of the courses are also available and will be included in the new college catalog scheduled for distribution this spring.

LARRY KENT SIMS

Fugitive sought for rape

COLLEGE STATION--Larry Kent Sims has been placed on the Texas Most Wanted list. A reward of up to $1,000 is being offered by the governor's office for information leading to his capture.

The fugitive is described as a 31-year-old white male, 5-4, 135 pounds, with medium brown hair and blue eyes. Investigators say he might be in the Houston area.

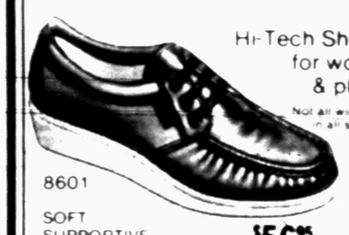

Anyone with information on Sims' possible whereabouts is asked to call the Texas Crime Stoppers Advisory Council toll free at 1-800-252-8477 or their local Crime Stoppers Program.

Callers do not have to reveal their identities.

He has been charged in Brazos County with aggravated rape in connection with the July 6, 1979 attack on a Texas A&M coed.

Increased inequality in income distribution, at least in some countries, has been one effect of the economic crisis in Latin America, according to the Inter-American Development Bank. For example, it cites a Brazilian survey that indicates that while the real income of all groups in that country declined by an average of 20.4 percent in 1981-83, the incomes of the bottom 40 percent dropped by an estimated 27.4 percent.

Monahans poses no problem for Snyder court crew, 73-42

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

Snyder made short work of a hapless Monahans Lobo team in Scurry County Coliseum here Friday night, 73-42.

Coach Larry Scott interjected all 11 players into the game and each one managed wind up with 2 or more points inked into the score column. In fact, the starting five contributed only 37 of the Tigers' total as they spent part of the second quarter and most of the final half on the bench.

In short, Friday's contest was, well...no contest.

Leading the way off the sidelines was 6-2 senior Don Osborn, who shoveled home 14 points for the night. Starters Jackie Anderson and Bobby Scott followed with 13 and 12 respectively.

"I was real pleased with the way Don played tonight," said Coach Scott. "He really got after it. He's had to play behind Chris (Garrett) and Trey (Tippens) all season and that's made him a better player. He was aggressive tonight under the boards. He did a good job."

Snyder sacked a 6-4 lead on a bucket by Tippens and never looked back. Bobby Scott pitched one in on an assist from Anderson to make it 8-4, and Anderson followed with a pair of his own to put the Tigers ahead 12-4 with six minutes gone in the ballgame.

Monahans' Edward Sanchez finally tallied on a free throw with 2:02 remaining, but Scott and Osborn got the final two field goals of the quarter as Snyder romped, 16-5.

The major difference was occuring under the basket. Baskets were a rarity for the Loboes - they hit just 18 of 61 for the game - and rebounds were even more scarce. The Loboes managed only seven offensive boards over the 32 minutes of play.

The second quarter saw little difference from the first. Monahans claimed the opening basket but Osborn, Scott, Anderson and Daniel Martinez put in consecutive scores as Snyder went in front 24-7 just two minutes deep into the period.

The advantage reached 21 with 1:35 left in the quarter when Osborn scored to make it a 34-13 game. Subsequent goals by Todd Pollard and Mike McWilliams left it 38-13 at halftime.

If that weren't enough, Snyder opened the second half by scoring the first 11 points. Anderson got 5 of them.

The result was a whopping 36-point lead, 49-13. Pecos didn't score until Ramon Chavez finally put up an 18-foot jumper with 4:43 left.

By then, Coach Scott had cleared the bench.

As expected, the irregulars weren't able to keep the mele escalating, but they were able to play even with the Loboes.

"I was pretty well pleased with the way they played. Coming off the bench like that you have a tendency to be too relaxed and turn the ball over a lot. But the kids played well. They kept the offense going and played pretty good defense," said Coach Scott.

The win puts Snyder at 16-6 for the season and 7-3 in District 2-4A play. The Tigers tangle Tuesday again, hosting Sweetwater at 8 p.m.

Monahans fell to 12-13 overall and 2-8 in loop action. The Loboes were led by Chavez, who scored 13 points. Sanchez, Jim Garden and Chris Barber added a half-dozen apiece.

Lady Tigers conquer Loboette team, 48-39

MONAHANS – Snyder's Lady Tigers turned on the jets in the first half here Friday night, then put it on cruise control to sail past Monahans 48-39 in a District 2-4A ballgame.

The Tigers out-pointed the hosts 11-3 in the first quarter and 18-6 in the second to enjoy a 29-9 halftime advantage.

Monahans tried to rally but was unable to catch the Lady Tigers, who improved their season record to an impressive 19-4.

"We played real well the last half of the first quarter and in the second quarter," said Coach Ken Housden. "We did kind of coast the second half and let them get a little close."

Snyder got only 13 points from four of its five starters, but the fifth - Karlene Thompson - had her usual big night. The 5-6 senior bagged 31 points, including a 15-of-15 effort from the free throw line, and muscled away 12 rebounds.

Christy Comer added 8 points as the two girls combined for all but 9 of Snyder's total.

Snyder won the game from the stripe, hitting 22 of 28 free throws. Monahans was 11 of 18.

Rachael Sanchez paced Monahans, now 6-15, with 12 points.

The win puts the Tigers at 8-4 in district play, still two games behind second place Andrews, which ripped Lamesa 80-50 Friday. Sweetwater, ranked fifth in the state with a 26-1 record, 12-0 in the district, sewed up at least a tie for 2-4A crown. The Lady Mustangs popped Fort Stockton 77-49.

Snyder will take on the Mustangs in Sweetwater next Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Says NFL's Rozelle...

Climate right for drug plan

HONOLULU (AP) - In the wake of the New England Patriots' drug-testing controversy, National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle says "the climate is right now" for a new, stronger drug plan.

"I think both players and owners don't like the problem and want to do something about it," Rozelle said Friday during a press conference at Aloha Stadium, site of Sunday's Pro Bowl.

The Patriots' situation will facilitate a new drug plan for the league, the commissioner said.

He said proposals for a new NFL drug plan, which the league and the players' union will develop jointly, will be ready by spring, and the plan implemented prior to next season.

The current NFL drug plan is included in the players' union collective bargaining agreement with the league, which expires in 1987. A new drug plan would supercede that part of the agreement.

"I'd say the ball is in my court. The burden is on our office to develop a plan," the commissioner said.

Rozelle said the league aims to strengthen drug testing and to, as much as possible, ensure at the same time the confidentiality of those players who volunteer for rehabilation.

He said there was no complete assurance, though, that names of players would not somehow surface, as happened with the Patriots.

Rozelle said a new agreement is needed now because other clubs might go the same "wildcat" route as the Patriots, with the players voting overwhelmingly to under voluntary drug testing.

The players' union has filed a grievance with the National Labor Relations Board, claiming the Patriots' voluntary drug testing violates the union's contract with the league, which calls for testing of individuals after "reasonable cause" has been established.

"It would have been better if the Patriots had followed the policy guidelines of the collective bargaining agreement," Rozelle said.

Talking about Patriot Coach Raymond Berry's decision to have his players vote on voluntary drug testing, Rozelle said: "I think Ray is a very well-meaning person who may have more concern, more awareness (about the drug problem) than other coaches and management personnel.

"I think he erred in not reporting (to the league office) the incident in Miami."

Rains continue to swamp AT&T Pro-Am tournament

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) - Continuing rains, flooded conditions and "a solid river" washed out Friday's play and set up a day-late finish in the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

"We decided to keep it to 72 holes and finish Monday," said Harry Crosby, son of the late founder of this renamed event and a member of the board of the Monterey Peninsula Golf Foundation, the tournament organizer.

Crosby said the decision to extend the tournament schedule one full day was made after consultation with the new commercial sponsor.

Officials also had the option of reducing the tournament to a three-day, 54-hole affair and retaining the Sunday finish, but decided to stay with the original 72-hole format.

"Right now we're looking at the second round Saturday, the third Sunday and the final round Monday," Crosby said.

That, of course, is on a weather-permitting basis. More rains are forecast for Sunday.

"There's one really good thing about the rain-out," said Don Ohlmeyer. "It means we get to lead for another full day."

Ohlmeyer teamed with pro Bob Eastwood for a better ball 63, which shared the pro-am lead in Thursday's first round. They were tied with Willie Wood and amateur John Zoller.

Wood had a 68 on his own ball at Pebble Beach and was tied for the individual lead with Japanese veteran Kikuo Arai for the individual lead.

Fuzzy Zoeller, John McComish and Peter Jacobsen were one shot back after the first 18 holes of play.

Duran floors Zambrano

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) - Roberto Duran didn't hang around long after knocking out Esteban Zambrano in less than two rounds.

But before he left the New Panama Gymnasium on Friday night, the three-time world boxing champion said he was "very satisfied."

Duran returned to the ring after an 18-month layoff and declared he was ready to pursue a record fourth title. The knockout came at 2:57 of the second round.

The challenger fell to his knees in a corner under a powerful Duran left hook that caught the Zambrano in the jaw.

Although it was scheduled for 10 rounds, the fight lasted just long enough for Duran to show that he was in good shape. The crowd applauded and cheered deliriously as he raised a glove in triumph.

Duran said he planned to fight again in Panama on March 1 before facing the winner of a March 9 middleweight fight between John Collins and Robbie Sims in Las Vegas, Nev.

Henry Armstrong, Alexis Arguello and Duran himself were unsuccessful in attempts to gain a fourth crown. After winning lightweight, welterweight and junior middleweight titles.

Westerners aiming for road victories

Western Texas College Coach Phil Spradling remains optimistic about the Westerners' chances of making the regional tournament as the team prepares for Monday night's game with Howard College in Big Spring.

"We're going to have to win on the road now but we've played well on the road all season and I think we can do it," said Spradling, whose Westerners play in Big Spring on Monday and in Odessa on Thursday.

Monday's game will be the second half of a double header. Coach Kelly Chadwick's Dusters take on Howard's improved Hawk Queens team at 6.

Western's men are in fifth place in the conference standings, a game behind New Mexico Junior College and Odessa College. But the Westerners, 5-4, could move into a tie for third place this week with a little help. New Mexico Junior College, 5-3, must play at undefeated Midland on Monday night. Should the Broncos lose, they would drop to 5-4. WTC could then catch Odessa by beating the Wranglers on Thursday. Odessa is also 5-3 in conference play.

The Westerners have a revenge motive in defeating Howard. The Hawks upset the Westerners 80-72 at home earlier in the season. Spradling expects a good game, despite Howard's 2-6 conference record.

"They lost Kimble (Bruce Kimble) who was their leading scorer, but you can bet they'll be ready to play," said Spradling. "In this conference, you can't take anybody lightly. We'll have to play well."

Kimble averaged 20 points a game for the Hawks but became ineligible to grades after the first semester.

Western is 14-8 for the season while Howard is 8-13.

In addition to the NMJC at Midland game Monday, Odessa will be at Borger to play Frank Phillips (1-7) and South Plains (7-2) will be at Roswell to play NMMI (1-7).

Meanwhile, Chadwick's Dusters will be looking for their eighth straight victory when they take on Coach Don Steven's Queens. The Dusters are 19-6 for the season and 5-1 in conference play.

Howard has shown improvement after losing its first four conference games. The Queens have won three straight, and will come into the game with a 3-4 record - in fourth place in the WJCAC. The Queens are 9-14 for the season.

The two teams tipped off the 1985-86 conference season with Western taking a 72-50 victory.

In the only other women's game scheduled Monday, Odessa (6-0) will play Frank Phillips (2-4).

Pro Bowl shapes up as Bear-Pat match

HONOLULU (AP) - The New England Patriots' All-Stars have a chance to take out some frustration, and also end the season on a winning note, in Sunday's Pro Bowl.

The Patriots, beaten 46-10 by Chicago in last Sunday's Super Bowl and rocked by a drug scandal earlier this week, have eight players on the American Football Conference All-Star team for the game against the National Conference.

The NFC squad is stacked with Bears, as Chicago's nine players are the most sent by any team to the NFL's all-star game this year.

"It would make it a lot easier to end on a winning note," said Patriots running back Craig James. "It certainly wouldn't make me forget the Super Bowl, but it would make it a lot easier to take."

Other Patriots in the Pro Bowl are guard John Hannah, wide receiver-kick returner Irving Fryar, and tackle Brian Holloway from the offense, and linebackers Andre Tippett and Steve Nelson, cornerback Raymond Clayborn and safety Fred Marion from the defense.

Chicago's contingent to the nationally televised game at Aloha Stadium includes Walter Payton, the NFL's all-time leading career rusher and most valuable player of the 1978 Pro Bowl, quarterback Jim McMahon, center Jay Hilgenberg and tackle Jim Covert.

Representing Chicago's overpowering defense are end Richard Dent, the Super Bowl MVP; linebackers Mike Singletary and Otis Wilson, safety Dave Duerson and end Dan Hampton.

Members of the winning squad receive $10,000 each, with the losers earning $5,000.

The Patriots voted last Monday to undergo voluntary drug testing, and the names of players who allegedly had used drugs surfaced. Clayborn and Fryar, among those named, declined comment, saying they were concentrating on helping the AFC win the Pro Bowl.

While the Pro Bowl has a distinct Patriots-Bears flavor, the squads are coached by men whose own clubs lost to either New England or Chicago in the playoffs.

Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins, playoff losers to New England, is the AFC coach. The Los Angeles Rams' John Robinson, whose club was knocked out of the playoffs by the Bears, is the NFC coach.

Dan Fouts of the San Diego Chargers, the game's MVP three years ago, will start at quarterback for the AFC.

Walker ponders idea of playing for 'Pokes

DALLAS (AP) - Former Heisman Trophy winner Herschel Walker says he has not ruled out the possibility of someday playing for the Dallas Cowboys.

Walker, in Dallas for a sporting goods convention and to compete Saturday night in the Dallas Times Herald Invitational Track Meet's pro football 60-yard dash, said Friday, "The Cowboys are No. 1 in my mind."

Walker now plays for the New Jersey Generals of the United States Football League, but the USFL will not play a down until this fall.

"I think the opportunity of me coming to the Cowboys is an opportunity that's very strong," running back Walker told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram Friday. "But whether I do or not is another question."

Although the future of the USFL is unknown, Walker says he will stand behind his commitment to the league and to Generals owner Donald Trump.

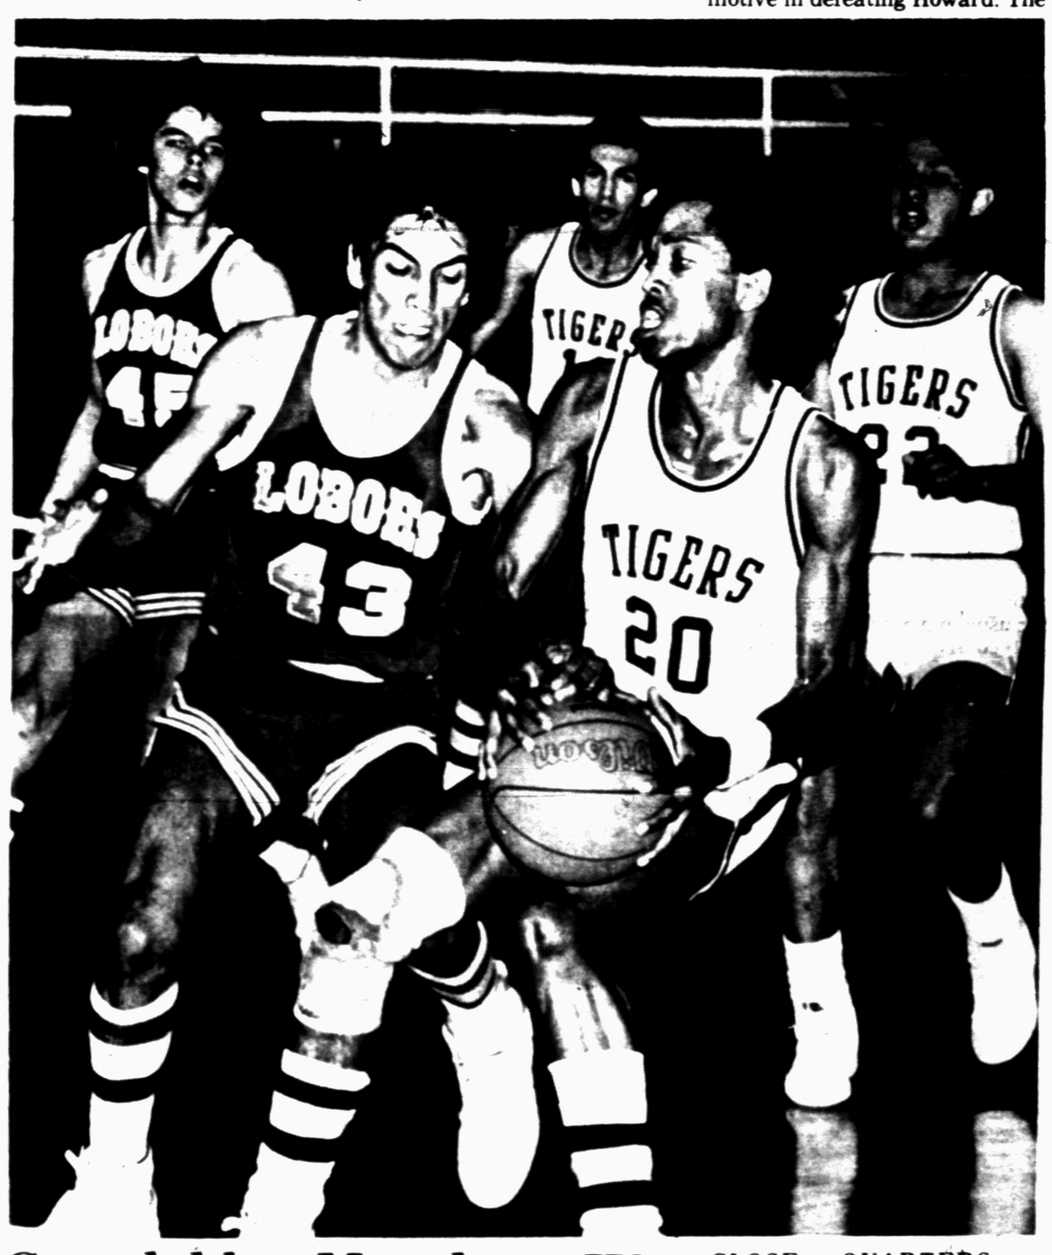

"I think the situation the USFL is in now is a question not too many people can answer," Walker said. "I know for myself, they hired me to play football. That's what I enjoy doing and that's the reason I'm staying there."

Walker has extended his personal services contract with Trump through 1989, but he said if the USFL delays plans to move to a fall schedule, he has the option of leaving the team.

"If they try skipping a season, then it's up to me to decide what do do," the former University of Georgia running back said. "It's in my contract that they have to play at a certain time. If I'd have to wait too long to play, I'd have to make a decision because I don't want to waste away."

Walker said it was a "big surprise" when the Cowboys drafted him in the fifth round of the NFL draft last May.

"The Cowboys have been the only team I ever looked at and said that if I ever play in the NFL, that's the team I'd like to play for," Walker added. "They've got a reputation of winning ball games, and that's the reason I play, to win."

Tom Marvin led the way with 14 second-quarter points as Snyder junior varsity plummaged Monahans here Friday night, 65-45.

The Cats are now 9-1 against district opponents. They will entertain Sweetwater here Tuesday night at 6:30.

Marvin crammed the hoop with 20 points for the night but didn't just concentrate just on offense. He also yanked down 13 rebounds.

Terry Garza also hit double figures with 14 points, and came away with three assists and six rebounds. Earl Ware provided strong defense as he managed six boards and five steals.

The game was tied 9-9 after the first quarter but Snyder ignited for 23 points in the second - including the 14 from Marvin. Monahans was limited to just 6 points as Snyder celebrated halftime with a 32-15 advantage.

Coach, principal together

LIVINGSTON, Texas (AP) — A former junior high school principal accused of murdering football coach Billy Mac Fleming left school with Fleming the day the coach disappeared, a surprise witness has testified.

Shirley Nugent said Friday she had kept silent for nine months about seeing principal Hurley Fontenot with Fleming because of family problems she was having.

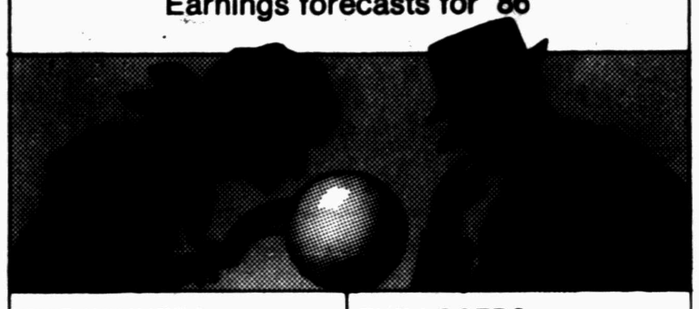

Fleming, 36, of Hull disappeared April 12 from Hull-Daisetta Woodson Junior High in Liberty County, where he coached football and taught math. His body, shot twice in the back of the head, was found 10 days later near a logging road in Polk County.

Fontenot, 48, of Raywood is on trial for Fleming's murder, and prosecutors allege he killed Fleming over the affections of school secretary Laura Nugent. Fontenot is free on $50,000 bond.

Testimony in the case enters its third week Monday.

This will be a great year for corporate profits, according to 2,000 security analysts from 130 brokerage houses across the country. The winner companies are those the analysts expect to do the best, while the losers' profits will be below average. Their 1986 predictions may be optimistic, though. In past years, the projections have had to be sharply revised downward.

By Vicki Brown

"He never found his fritter tree and honey pond, but he had a fine time looking!"

In "The Fritter Tree and the Honey Pond," local writer Janelle Burk and her father Alneer McFadden capture the roving spirit of Mrs. Burk's grandfather, Elijah Clinton McFadden.

"Papa was a dreamer. He always thought his pot of gold might be just over the next hill, so he was always looking for it. I remember hearing him say time and again, 'Wife, if we're ever going to make a change, now's the time to do it, while we don't have anything.' And since we never had anything, we moved often," McFadden tells readers in the book's introduction.

Janelle explained that in his youth, her father was the same type of wanderer.

Although neither her father nor grandfather found a "pot of gold," Janelle believes that the book based primarily on her father's life is just that for her. "It captures stories and memories that can be treasured for generations to come," she said.

The book records episodes in McFadden's early gadabout life. Born in Brown County on Jan. 24, 1900, he relates each family move by covered wagon and his father's various occupations — farmer, well-driller, candymaker, horse trader and many others in between.

With humor, he describes his own wonderlust through the early years of marriage. His prose style reflects the optimism and humor he found in days of both prosperity and poverty.

"The Fritter Tree and the Honey Pond" began, at Janelle's request, as merely a collection of her father's stories. "I wanted a special reminder of him. He's always told us these stories — some funny, some hair-raising. It started because he was going to write them down for me to keep."

Janelle originally planned to keep the project in the family, deciding to type the stories and distribute copies to relatives. But at McFadden's suggestion, she decided to "go all the way."

She became co-author, editor and proofreader — overseeing the manuscript from its rough draft to its distribution.

"Even though he wrote the stories down, he needed suggestions. I also rewrote some of the stories. There were some parts of the book that I wrote, writing as though I were him. But he always read those himself and made changes to reflect his style," she said.

Janelle also divided the manuscript into chapters and planned the book's structure. "He said he never could have done it at all on his own."

After the manuscript was completed, Janelle and her father acted as their own publishers.

"At first I thought I would approach a publishing house, but I knew if it had been accepted it might take years for it to be printed. We wanted it done during Daddy's lifetime.

"Also, the book would have been subject to editing. I think it could be done in the form for a book like that but some things would have to be changed."

A member of the Scurry County Poetry Society, Janelle recently won the prestigious Voertman Award given by the Poetry Society of Texas. She also received the Newcomers Award by that organization in 1979.

Her poems have appeared in several magazines including "Farm Woman News", "Mature Living", "The Altar" and in several poetry magazines. Her work has also appeared in the PST Yearbook.

"One published in the yearbook means more to me because you're competing with poets — some who have been writing poetry for a number of years," she noted.

Although this is her first book, Janelle is no stranger to prose writing. She has had several articles accepted by "Marriage and Family Living", "Home Life" and "Mature Living." She primarily writes general interest, "how-to" and inspirational pieces.

Recently retired as a secretary in the president's office at Western Texas College, she devotes about five hours per day to her craft.

She sees other books in her future writing plans. "Someday I may write a fiction work based on my father's experiences," she added.

Janelle and her husband Roy have made Snyder their home since 1963. The couple has five children, Donnie of Snyder, David of Abilene, Ginger Banks of Midland, Kathi Ash of Big Lake and Sheryl Chandler of Lubbock. They also have six grandchildren.

"The Fritter Tree and the Honey Pond" is available from Snyder Book Store and from Janelle. She has also donated a copy of the book to the Scurry County Library.

Shoemaker-Milota unite in Snyder

Candy Shoemaker became the bride of Todd Milota in a double ring ceremony in the Bethel Baptist Church in Snyder with Rev. Jim Townsend officiating the Jan. 14 ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Don McHaney of Hermleigh and Mr. and Mrs. Ron Milota of Roswell, N.M.

Vows were exchanged before an altar decorated with a brass plant stand holding a large arrangement of irises and gladioli.

Given in marriage by her grandfather, Dick Fowler, the bride carried a bouquet of burgundy red roses and baby's breath. The bride wore a traditional white wedding gown that featured a high Victorian collar, appliqued in venise lace. The venise lace appliqued over chiffon and sprinkled with seed pearls bodice with an empire waistline.

The bell skirt of chiffon, fell from the empire waistline to a chapel length train. The fitted sleeves had pearl buttons at the wrist and a full bell overlay of chiffon.

The head piece of venise lace and pearls, held a two tiered chapel length veil of bridal illusion. The top tier was trimmed in venise lace appliques and sprinkled with seed pearls.

The bride chose in keeping with tradition to wear a pearl brooch belonging to her great-grandmother as something old and borrowed. Her gown was new and the traditional blue garter was something blue.

Matron of honor was Maria Boswell. She was wearing a full floor length gown of burgandy velvet with puff sleeves trimmed in white lace. She carried a single dark red rose.

Donnis McHaney, sister of the bride, served as flower girl and wore a full length gown of burgundy and white.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall. The serving table was covered with white lace over burgundy.

The center of the table was a three tiered cake, topped with minature bride and groom under an archway of flowers. Serving was Terri Brock and Danet Bond.

burgundy velvet and white satin. Christopher Hendricks served as ring bearer for the ceremony.

Standing up with the groom was best man, Joe Harold of Phoenix, Arizona. The groom and best man wore black tuxedos.

Perry House served as usher and Kelly Patton registered guest.

Musical selections were played by Mrs. J.A. Martin as pianist.

The bride's mother wore a suit of burgundy with a cream blouse, while the groom's mother wore an ivory crepe chemise dress. Each mother wore a corsage of

The bride is a 1984 graduate of Hermleigh High School and attended Midland College in Midland.

The groom is a 1980 graduate of Goddard High in Roswell, N.M. and is currently employed by Geo-Search.

The second worst train disaster in history occurred Feb. 1, 1970, when two passenger trains collided near Buenos Aires, killing 236 persons. The world's worst train disaster killed more than 600 people in France in 1917.

The O.N. Lasters celebrate their 50th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. O.N. Laster celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Jan. 25 at their home in China Grove.

Hosting the celebration were their children Travis and Helen Jo Stubblefield of Odessa and Billy and Gerry Ray of Midland. Helping to welcome and serve family and friends to the occasion were the grandchildren Shane and Cathy Sperry and Greg Ray of Midland and Barrie Beaird of Midland.

Guest attended from Abilene, Odessa, Midland, Crane, Big Spring, Snyder, Dunn, China Grove, and Madison, Wisconsin.

The couple were married in Coahoma on Jan. 25, 1936 and have lived all their married life in China Grove.

Women vintners

The traditional little old winemaker is giving way in the United States to a new breed of women vintners who combine stamina with enthusiasm, creativity and a good memory for taste and smell.

The rising popularity of American wine has created a skilled labor shortage in the industry, according to an article in the January issue of Harper's Bazaar, and women are snapping up jobs as oenologists in major wineries on both coasts.

The oenology department of the University of California at Davis admitted its first female in the 1960s. Now 25 percent of its graduating students are women who often take entry-level jobs as lab assistants and "cellar rats," hoping to become assistant or chief winemaker at $25,000 to $60,000 a year.

Until recent times, the only women to gain control of wine production did so as a surviving widow or daughter.

There was the widow Clicquot Ponsardin who, in Napoleonic France, carried out her own invasion of Russia by shipping the Russians 10,000 bottles of the family's champagne. It was an instant hit with the nobility.

Fifty years later another widow revolutionized the taste of champagne. She was Mme. Pommery, who said the practice of adding sugar to the wine masked its delicate flavor. She was the first to blend "brut" champagne, taking the wine out of the sweet after-dinner class and making it a drink for all occasions.

Today's women winemakers, like their male counterparts, work as many as 80 hours a week from August to October.

Zelma Long, the doyenne of women winemakers, has been vice president at the Simi Winery in Healdsburg, Calif., since 1979.

"Winemakers can be compared to couturiers," she said. "Often the same fabric will turn up in several collections, but each designer cuts, pins and drapes according to his ideas, to create an original. So, too, winemakers working with grapes from the same vinyard make individual wines."

In 1892, the Namchow was wrecked in the China Sea with a loss of 414 persons.

Reading intelligently

NEW YORK (AP) — To read a company's annual report intelligently one should examine footnotes closely and know how to interpret key ratios that help determine the company's financial health.

The profits story is sometimes in the footnotes, where a reader may find the reason earnings dropped. The reason for a rise or drop in earnings is often more important than the actual fluctuation.

Key financial ratios should be analyzed. The price to earnings multipule, known as the P-E ratio, is an important measuring stick to companies in the same industry. Other important ratios include debt-equity, the quick ratio, and sales turnover.

SCS Notes

BY SAM BUCHANAN
District Conservationist

The Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District will be selling windbreak trees from now until Feb. 15, 1986, according to Charlie Henderson, chairman of the board of directors.

The types of trees the district will sell include the Nondell Pine, Native Plum (wild), Cottonwood (cottonless), Russian Olive, Green Ash, Hackberry, Black Walnut, Osage Orange (Bois-d-'arc), Arizona Cypress, Austrian Pine, Ponderosa Pine, Honey Locust, Bur Oak, Pecan and Eastern Red Cedar.

The Mondell Pine originated in the regions of Southwest Asia. It will reach a height of about 18 feet in five years, and 40 feet in 15 years. This pine can be used for windbreaks as well as for landscaping. The Russian Olive is a fast growing shrub or small tree that is excellent for wildlife. It has beautiful foliage and also makes an excellent large hedge.

The native plum is excellent for wildlife and makes very good perserves and jelly.

Protection from rodents and wind should be planned for the trees. This can be done by using cans, containers, shingles, hailscreens, old tires, etc. Water is essential. A minimum of five to eight gallons per tree each week will be needed the first growing season and about 10 gallons the second growing season. An inexpensive "drip" irrigation system is recommended. This can be made by using plastic pipe and emitter tubes. This drip system is also available through the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District.

Payment is due upon placement of the order. Refunds will be made if delivery is not completed. Due to variables in weather conditions and care required by the planter, no guarantee of liveability is made.

Due to shortages of some trees, orders should be placed as soon as possible.

Forms for ordering trees can be picked up at the Soil Conservation Office in the Snyder Shopping Center, 3423 Avenue T. Individuals may also call 573-1268 and an order blank will be mailed to them. Soil Conservation personnel assisting the district can also be contacted if additional information is needed.

BRIDGE

James Jacoby

By James Jacoby

Following the habits of a bridge lifetime, South called for dummy's 10 of hearts after the opening lead of the nine. East covered with the queen and declarer won the ace. Now a diamond was led to the 10, won by East's king. East played the 10 of spades. Declarer won the king, played to dummy's ace of diamonds and tried the jack of clubs. When declarer finessed, West gathered in the club king and continued with the heart eight. There was now no way to avoid losing three heart tricks. These, added to the two minor suit kings, resulted in down one.

The right play involves suppressing your natural bridge instincts. At trick one you must play low from dummy. The play will then go just as before, but the difference becomes apparent when West wins his club king. Now continuing the eight of hearts only provides partial success. East can win one heart trick when the jack or 10 is played from dummy, but there is no way to take two more tricks in the suit right away. Declarer will score two diamond tricks, one heart, three clubs and three spades to make his contract.

You'll be successful in these situations if you use the "what if" rule. First ask yourself, "What if I play the jack, covered by the queen, and West later gains the lead and comes through with the heart eight?" If the answer to that question doesn't please you, then ask, "What if I don't play the jack?" If you like the answer to the second "what if" better, you will probably play low and make your contract.

Scent therapy

The rising popularity of room fragrances stems from a sound psychological basis, according to both medical and fragrance experts.

Perfume creators have long believed that fragrance produces a physical effect that results in emotional uplift, and some scientists now agree.

For instance, they've found that an apple aroma relaxes most people, while blends with a touch of musk create a feeling of excitement.

Because the scientists have found the sense of smell to be so keen and so quick to react, they recommend a soothing fragrance for environmental use and more exciting scents for personal use.

Color balancing

Lip color should never be so bright or so deep as to dominate the face. Start with the eyes, which should always be the focus of the face, to build your makeup scheme.

Then balance skin and lip color so that the eyes remain most prominent, the lips second and skin color the most subtle.

Good makeup takes some thought and practice, but the results are worth the trouble.

The sun is 400,000 times as bright as the full moon, and it gives the earth as much light as do all the other stars put together.

Robinson, Landis united in double ring Snyder ceremony

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Russell Robinson of Snyder and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Landis of Odessa.

The couple was united before an altar of two brass, heart-shaped candelabra. Each candelabrum was holding 17 white votive candles in crystal holders, nestled in greenery. One was placed on each side of the altar.

The altar was graced with a brass archway and halo adorned with greenery and silk roses in navy and light blue. The halo held seven white votive candles in crystal holders.

The unity candle was held by a brass candle holder and accented with fresh greenery. The light blue unity candle was made especially by the bride's mother. The candle was personalized with the wedding invitation, silk baby's breath, tiny navy blue bows with navy blue gypsophillia.

Pew markers held white votive candles in crystal holders with greenery and white bows and long streamers. The railings around the piano and organ was also decorated to match the pew markers.

Given in marriage by her father and mother, the bride wore a pure white traditional wedding gown. The Victorian style, fitted shiffli embroidered bodice featured a high cameo neckline and an English net yoke with a deep Wedgewood lace ruffle accented with venise lace and a satin butterfly bow. The schiffli embroideried bishop sleeves were gathered tightly to deep schiffli embroidery cuffs and accented with satin bows.

The A-line skirt of schiffli embroidery was accented at the waist with a satin ribbon covered with venise lace. A wedgewood lace ruffle held in place with venise lace formed an inverted "v" in the back and was accented with a satin bow. The hemline was embellished in front with three wedgewood lace ruffles and venise lace which formed another inverted "v" with a satin bow. From this inverted "v" ruffle upon ruffle of Wedgewood lace fell to make the catherdral train.

The matching headpiece of venise lace and satin ribbon complemented the bride's gown. The two-tiered chapel length veil trimmed in venise lace added the finishing touch.

The bride carried a bouquet that was designed and created by the bride's mother. It included light blue silk roses, white silk carnation puffs, silk lily of the valley and silk English ivy. It was fashioned in a cascade with white, navy and light blue streamers of ribbon with loveknots complementing the bouquet.

The traditional items used for the wedding was a white laced covered Bible that the groom's mother and sister carried at their weddings, as the something old. Something new was the gown and veil and diamond earrings were borrowed from Mary Laster of Snyder. The blue garter served as something blue and the bride wore pennies in her shoes minted in the couple's birth years.

Candlelighters for the ceremony were Randy Billingsley and Roger Batchelor, both from Snyder. They wore navy blue Beaumont tuxedos with white ruffled shirts and navy blue bowties. Completing the attire was black patent leather shoes.

"Crazy" played as the candles were lighted. As the mothers were being seated, "You Decorated My Life", was the musical selection played. As the couple lighted it the unity candle "You Light Up My Life" was sung by Judy Billingsley of Snyder. She also served as the pianist.

Serving as maid of honor was the bride's sister, Tonia Robinson of Snyder and the groom's sister, Tammy Turner, was the bridesmaid. Rachel Billingsley of Snyder served as junior bridesmaid.

Maid of honor and bridesmaid gowns were floor length made of light blue fantanza organza. They had Victorian necklines and leg-a-mutton sleeves.

The attendants carried round bouquets fashioned after the bride's. They were white and light blue silk roses and light blue gypsophillia with silk English ivy. The maid of honor had a navy blue center rose while the bridesmaid's center rose was light blue. Both were complimented by white lace backing with white, light and navy blue streamers. The bouquets were completed with loveknots tied in the streamers.

Junior bridesmaid dress was floor length with a round ruffled neckline and puff sleeves. A ribbon sash accented the waistline. The dress was made out of the same fabric that the maid of honor and bridesmaid dresses.

Rachael carried a round bouquet fashioned like the other bridal attendants. The dresses and bouquets were made by the bride's mother.

Kelley Allison, cousin of the groom from Clovis, N.M., served as flower girl. She was attired in similar dress to the other attendants. She carried a white lace basket trimmed with light blue satin ribbons, filled with white, navy and light blue silk flower petals.

Ring bearer was John Chester Kelley, cousin of the groom, from Earth. He was dressed in a sky blue Keats tailcoat with vest and bowtie. He wore a white shirt with pleated wing collar.

He carried a white lace heart shaped pillow with a ruffled lace edge with navy and light blue satin ribbon bows and gold wedding rings. The ring bearer's pillow was made by the bride's mother.

The groom chose to wear a white Keats tailcoat and vest with a white pleated wing collar shirt. The bowtie and white patent leather shoes completed his attire. The boutonnier, made by the bride's mother, was light blue silk rose, complimented by a white silk rose bud and baby's breath.

Standing with the groom was best man Chris Doles of Odessa and groomsman was Jimmy Landis, the groom's brother from Odessa.

The men wore sky blue Keats tailcoats, vest and bowties. Shirts were white with pleated wing collars. The boutonnieres were made by the bride's mother. The best man's boutonniere was navy blue silk rose bud complemented with baby's breath and light blue gypsophillia.

Groomsman's boutonniere was a light blue silk rose accented with navy and light blue silk gypsophillia and baby's breath.

Roger Batchelor and Randy Billingsley were ushers.

MR. AND MRS. RONNIE BOB LANDIS

The bride's mother wore a floor-length dress of burgundy quiana with chantilly lace overlay to form the sleeves and high neckline. Her corsage was of pink silk rose buds, burgundy gupsophillia and baby's breath. The corsage was complemented with burgundy lace ribbon. It was also made by the bride's mother.

The groom's mother wore a street-length taupe satin brocade dress. It featured long puffed sleeves with wide cuffs that buttoned at the wrists. The neckline featured a braided trim. Her corsage was light blue silk roses accented with navy blue silk gypsophillia and baby's breath. The corsage was completed with a light blue ribbon bow. The shoulder arrangement was made by the bride's mother.

The bride's father wore a sky blue Keats tailcoat, vest and bowtie with a pleated wing collar shirt. His boutonniere was a single navy blue rose, accented with light blue gypsophillia and baby's breath. It was also made by the bride's mother.

The bride presented her mother a single long stem navy blue rose with greenery, complemented by navy and light blue streamers with loveknots, as she approached the altar.

Upon leaving she presented to the groom's mother a rose like the one she had given her mother.

The registry table was covered by a light blue linen cloth with a white lace overlay. The table was accented with a light blue feather pen and guest book. The throw-away bouquet, fashioned like the bridal attendants' was also used in the table arrangement.

Registering guests was Amanda Stephens, cousin of the groom from Odessa.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall.

The bride's table was covered with a light blue cloth with a lace overlay. Light blue candles in frosted candle holders were placed on either side of the bride's bouquet that was used for the centerpiece. A crystal punch bowl, light blue plates and cups complemented the table.

Bowls to match the candle holders held white, navy and light blue single stem rose mints and mixed nuts. Crystal goblets engraved with the couple's names and wedding date was also on the table.

The wedding cake was a three-tiered lady windmere. It consisted of four individual cakes on the bottom tier with a single cake centered on them. This tier was divided from the top tier by four columns with two love birds in the center. The top tier held the cake top which was a modern kissing couple under an archway with a wedding bell centered. The cake had white icing accented with navy and light blue silk roses. Also accenting the cake was light blue and white silk gypsophillia. The cake was made by Patsy Hart of Snyder.

The groom's table was covered with a navy blue cloth accented with two large light blue bows and streamers. A german chocolate sheet cake with a miniature bride and groom centered the groom's table. White napkins with navy blue ink with the bride and groom names and wedding date were used. Silver coffee service and a light blue candle with white and blue candle ring were used to accent the arrangement. Crystal bowls held mint roses and mixed nuts.

Serving at the groom's table was Peggy Stephens from Odessa and Kathy Allison from Clovis, N.M., both are aunts of the groom.

White, navy and light blue rose rice bags were passed out by Pam and Paula Laster of Snyder.

Guests came from Odessa, Midland, Earth, Littlefield, and Clovis, N.M.

The bride graduated from Snyder High School and is currently employed in Odessa by Westover Academy Day Care Center as a teacher.

The groom is also a graduate of Snyder High School and is currently employed in Odessa by Welex.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents held in the church fellowship hall on Dec. 28.

The couple will honeymoon in Odessa and surrounding area before making their home in Odessa.

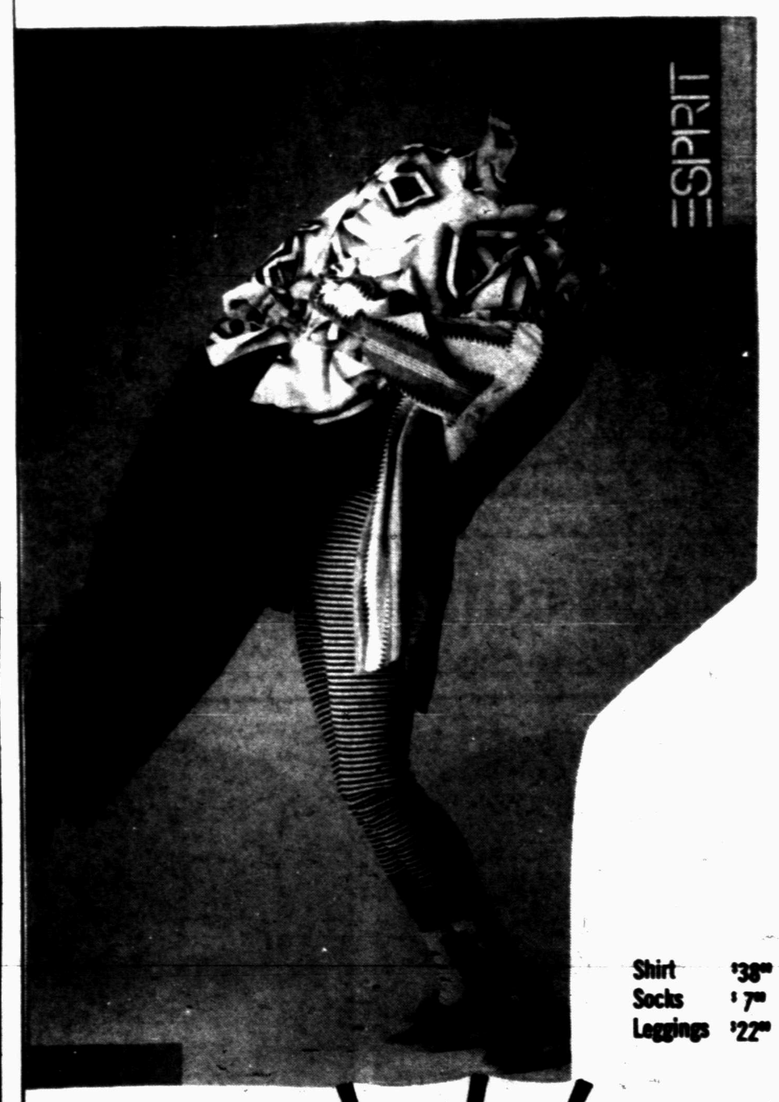

Shay's Rebellion

Dateline: August 1786-February 1787, Massachusetts. Shay's Rebellion. The economic depression after the Revolution forced many property owners into debt, for which they could be imprisoned. In Massachusetts, town meetings were held to petition for lower taxes, court reform and revision of the state Constitution. In one instance, an armed force led by Daniel Shay, a veteran of the Revolutionary War, tried to resolve the issue forcibly and narrowly avoided a clash with local militia. Shay's men were dispursed or captured with the assistance of federal soldiers. The rebellion served to emphasize the need for a strong central government and, indirectly, for a Constitution of the United States. The Daughters of American Revolution urge you to study American History.

We have decided to propose a sort of pre-nuptial agreement to our six-year-old son — "only" son, we might note.

We asked the other night if he planned to take care of old mom and dad as the golden twilight of their lives slowly moved toward the final sunset.

His reply was that he planned to live at home forever.

At this point, of course, he envisions this as a perpetual state of $4.95 toys, corny dogs on request and not having to make up his own bed.

We, of course, were attempting to identify if he favors some type of perpetual care facility as opposed to attempting to gain power of attorney as soon as we reach retirement age.

So the question got us to thinking that an agreement might not be such a bad idea while we — as in son and his parents — care about each other more or less equally.

Again, like a pre-nuptial contract that the very trendy or the very rich now favor prior to solemnizing their vows.

And like any good contract, concessions will likely be required from both sides.

First off, we need to set an age limit at which point he will cease asking us for money. That is, a point after which such transactions will move toward a more businesslike arrangement to include such items as interest and pay-out schedules.

Once this particular hurdle is jumped, all other commitments we accepted as parents can likely progress uninterrupted.

This should include the normal creature comforts of clothes, food, shelter and moral support plus such guarantees as as much education as he wants (until he starts getting older than some of the teachers).

The money question we feel is important, however, to avoid (1.) possible future hard feelings and (2.) the dangerous knowledge that a certain level of personal success is always going to be available.

In return for this concession, we the parent will need to establish some guidelines regarding how much attention we will require with old age.

An example of some points to be addressed include personal visits (to include an overnight stay) on a minimum of two major holidays per year; telephone calls inquiring as to our health at least monthly; annual Christmas card greetings (presents optional); and open-ended visitation rights regarding grandchildren (if applicable).

Of course, he's only six and there is still plenty of time to work out the details.

For now, it might suffice for both of us to realize that the parent-child agreement swings both ways.

Kids in need and parents who respond change into parents in need and adult kids expected to.

To know that it's not unrealistic to believe one day Dad might need to call in his checks on at least some of those $4.95 toys, corny dogs and beds made up for free.

"Welcome, Ladies and Gentlemen, to the Cowchip Inn's First Ever Annual Ranch Fashion Show. I'm especially tickled to see you fellas in the audience, because, as you know, ranch fashions are strictly unisex.

"We will open our show with our Midnight Crisis Casual Wear. Gertrude will model for us the ladies attire. Notice how the flannel gown is tied up between the legs diaper-style. This is to allow freedom of movement without the bother of changing clothes. The gown is accented by a pair of Gertrude's husband's longhandles. These can be grabbed quickly and pulled on under the gown for warmth.

"Gertrude is going to take off one of her cowboy boots to show us...yes, that's it, Gertrude...not a pair of socks, as you might expect, but little fuzzy booties in fashion colors that Gertrude likes to wear around the house! As you can see, they are quite servicable as socks and, once again, save valuable time.

"Over her flannel gown, Gertrude has chosen a down-filled vest. A gimme cap and flashlight completes this gorgeous ensemble. Let's all give Gertrude a big hand. You can go now, Gertrude.

"That last little number was just perfect for running a Bobcat out of your chicken house at night, don't you think?

"Now our handsome male model, Billy Bob Joe Jim, shows off our Midnight Crisis Casual outfit for MEN. Note that the ...er...zipper...is still undone. This is because Billy Bob Joe Jim has pulled his jeans on over his pajama bottoms and finds that they stay up just fine, for a man in a hurry. Over his pajama top he has pulled on his work coat. For those of you who are new to the world of country fashions, let me just say that country folk have two changes of clothes at all times: a work coat and dress coat, work boots and dress boots, work hat and dress hat. This is so that they can tell the difference between when they are working and when they are playing.

"You will notice that Billy Bob Joe Jim's work coat, a denim jacket, is faded almost white. See the cute little holes in the pockets? And look how the buttons hang off by a single thread.

"Billy Bob Joe Jim, you look all ready to go calve that heifer, don't you agree folks? Thank you, dear.

"To conclude our fashion show, we thought we'd cater to all you economy-minded country folk who like to get the most out of a dollar. For example, cast your eyes upon the silver duct tape that Billy Bob Joe Jim has wrapped around the instep of his boot. It makes a real fashion statement.

"Gertrude has learned the value of a well-placed patch. Bend over, Gertrude, so we can all get a better look.

"We are going to take a brief intermission, and when we return, Billy Bob Joe Jim is going to reveal to us the fascinating world of broadcloth Western shirts in the rainbow shades of white and blue.

"If you will excuse me, I must go now and help Gertrude get that dang flannel gown untied."

What's life like in new all volunteer Navy?

EDITOR'S NOTE — What's life like in today's all-volunteer Navy? A Pentagon reporter went to sea to find out, boarding the nuclear attack submarine USS Olympia, the 20-year-old guided missile cruiser USS Josephus Daniels, and sailing on the World War II battleship USS Iowa and the aircraft carrier USS Saratoga of Achille lauro fame.

By NORMAN BLACK
AP Military Writer

ABOARD THE USS SARATOGA (AP) — It's approaching midnight and a weary Michael Wayne Brown has been working for more than 12 hours in the Damage Control Center of the aircraft carrier USS Saratoga, the ship that launched the planes that intercepted the hijackers of the cruise ship Achille Lauro last October.

Brown's station is the type of place where the romance of men going to sea meets reality.

Brown, a beefy guy you'd want on your side in a fight, doesn't see much of that sea. He doesn't work on the bridge. He is an enlisted man, a firefighter, a sailor who signed up when he was 17 and has spent 12 years in the Navy.

Proud of his work and skills, Brown credits the Navy and the U.S. taxpayers for getting him out of a Louisiana gas station and providing thousands of dollars worth of education. But he doubts most Americans appreciate what he gives in return.

"Seven months out of the year, I don't see my two kids," Brown says. "Last year, it was 8½ months out of 12. I do not enjoy leaving my family."

He and his wife "have these peaks, you know. There's a high divorce level in the Navy. You just grow apart. You're separated so much, you can just grow out of love. It takes a very special lady."

Making ends meet is another concern. Brown says he made $16,500 last year.

And although it's peacetime, he says, "you can never forget you're on a combat ship. The Navy is out here for a reason and we know that."

His ship is the Saratoga, CV-60, better known to the crew as "Super Sara." The carrier is 29 years old, doesn't have nuclear power.

But the Saratoga is an aircraft carrier that has regained top efficiency ratings and reclaimed its front-line position with the United States Navy, patrolling oceans around the world.

It's a floating city with 5,000 men, its own radio and TV stations, newspaper and hospital. It's a self-sustaining mobile fortress.

The Sara is also more — a raw, dangerous environment where men and machines are always on the edge, always pushing a technology and "weapons system" that few nations have ever mastered. The United States has 13 deployable carriers capable of handling high-performance jets. The Soviets have none.

But whether it's aboard an aircraft carrier, battleship, cruiser or submarine — of whatever vintage — there is a certain pride and rivalry among sailors.

A submariner aboard the nuclear attack submarine USS Olympia just can't understand why men would want to go to work above the sea. The captain of the 20-year-old guided missile cruiser USS Josephus Daniles is somewhat piqued when a reporter runs late for a tour of "one of the finest ships ever built." The master chief of the Saratoga, the top enlisted man on board, states forcefully that "the carrier is where the action's at."

On each of the warships, it's a male-only world (women are not yet allowed to serve on combat ships), and a young one. The average age of the 5,000 men on the Saratoga is 19, with many too young to buy liquor.

It is, however, a clean world. Mothers would be proud. Part of that emphasis is for safety reasons. Part of it stems simply from the need to constantly fight the corrosive effects of salt water. And another part is simply discipline and the fact that a lot of men are having to live very close to each other.

The hours are long. Start with a scheduled 12. Sixteen is more likely, 18 or 20 not unusual. The hours are explained by the constant need for maintenance and the necessity of being ready for combat at all times.

Aboard the Saratoga, everything revolves around the air wing. Even a carrier's commander must be a pilot. The Navy spends more than $1 million to train a pilot. They have the most dangerous job in aviation.

Spend some time with a Landing Signal Officer, perched on a small platform attached to the side of the ship near the rear of the flight deck, and you'll see why. Day or night, foul weather or fair, the process of landing with a proper "controlled crash" is never routine.

The flight deck activity is tightly choreographed and at night, surreal. One roll of the deck, one failure to duck, and you will probably die.

Below, away from the flight deck's heat and noise and the cloying smell of burning jet fuel, the chief engineer worries about everything from plumbing to electricity to keeping the ship on an even keel. One F-14 weighs 33 tons; stack a few on the side of the deck and even a massive ship can list.

Aspiring thespians attend many endless 'cattle calls'

EDITOR'S NOTE — It's a world of too much talent and too little work. But thousands of aspiring actors and actresses keep trying, attending endless auditions — "cattle calls" — while perfecting their skills and waiting tables to put food on their own tables. Occasionally one gets a firm grip on the brass ring.

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Katherine Barry once went to an audition where all she had to do was giggle. Her four years of college weren't much help. The gods of advertising liked somebody else's giggle better.

Tony Addabbo got bitten by a junkyard dog while waiting for the cameras to get set. Then the building where he was doing the filming was raided by the Internal Revenue Service.

Margaret Nagle stood under a fire hose in 45 degree weather for hours making a television commercial and when it was over she was just dropped at the Chicago airport, still soaking wet, and told to have a nice flight back.

All three — plus tens of thousands of others — are aspiring actors in New York City. These three are all in their twenties, they all have dreams, and they love what they're doing.

It's a tough life, far more competitive than that of young trainees climbing up a Chase Manhattan ladder, and the rewards are usually far less spectacular. For most, it's endless auditions and acting, singing or dancing classes, because people who are not triple-threats might as well go back to Des Moines. It's a world of parttime jobs — hash-slinging is still a favorite although it's now called presenting nouvelle cuisine.

"Everything that is interesting you go out of town to do until your name is Richard Kiley," says Casper Roos, a 60-year-old actor who has been in the chorus of 13 Broadway musicals and managed to stay in the field all these years, doing films, off-Broadway, television commercials, anything to pay the rent.

Roos is a rarity of sorts, a man who has managed to stay working in this world of too much talent and too little work.

"There's the old joke about the guy sitting in the lounge at Actor's Equity and saying, 'I really ought to get out of this business. I haven't worked in 10 years,'" remarks Gerald Simon, a veteran actor with over 1,000 commercials to his credit.

Roos, a silver-maned, distinguished man, recently played the tyrannical father in Lillian Hellman's "Another Part of the Forest" at the Equity Library Theatre, one of the most prestigious showcases in Manhattan.

Over 600 actors auditioned for the 13 parts in the Hellman play, a job that entails six weeks of hard work divided between rehearsals and the three week run. And not a dime of income. But it's probably the best showcase in Manhattan, sure to draw agents, casting directors, producers to see aspirants in good roles.

Simon and his actress wife Liz Dammarell came to New York to do Shakespeare almost 20 years ago and quickly found that Proctor & Gamble was a better friend than the Bard. But even that is no snap. Television commercials are as fiercely competitive as the chance to play Lear. Maybe more so. The average television commercial earns the principal actor $5,000 to $8,000 for a day's work. A really good one, shown nationally for a long time, can earn an actor up to $25,000.

Miss Barry, Kathy to her friends, is 29 and after four years on the circuit has just landed her first national commercial.

"I come from the art, truth and beauty school of acting, but Chekhov doesn't pay the bills," she says. "So you do the commercials, the soaps, the films, so you can own a home, send the kids to school, be middle class."

She's philosophical about the timing in the business.

"I might be out 15 times in one two-week period and then there will be nothing for two weeks. Then the only calls are for grandmothers, lumberjacks or twins."

Miss Barry whizzes through the soaps and the commercial auditions, but when it's for a larger slice, she puts real effort into it. She recently auditioned for a part in the upcoming road show of Neil Simon's Broadway hit, "Biloxi Blues."

For that, she worked. Three friends had said she was right for the part, so she dropped off a picture and resume with the stage manager, who then called her.

She read the play carefully. "A Neil Simon prostitute is different than a Beckett prostitute," she says, "and I immediately got a sense of who she was. I decided I would audition in a slip. I've never auditioned in my underwear before and none of my underwear was right. So I went to Macy's and bought a mauve slip. Then I had some friends over, male and female, and auditioned in front of them in the slip. I got comfortable in front of acquaintances just wearing the slip.

"I decided not to wear heels. My legs go to jelly when I'm nervous and I didn't want to shake. So I did it barefoot."

She did not get the part, but she's not down. She was told she would be kept in mind for the future. In this business, that's good.

Addabbo, a 6-foot-2, 25-year-old whose body has been deemed delightful enough for the sexy Jordache TV ads, sits on a sofa one Tuesday morning at the Hughes Moss casting office, one of the biggest theatrical casting agencies in Manhattan.

"I'M FAMOUS FOR MY ICE BALLS."

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago, when my son became engaged, I gave him my mother's engagement ring to give to his fiancee. At that time, I asked him to please ask his fiancee to sign a paper stating that if the marriage was ever dissolved, she would return the ring to his family. He became indignant, said he was hurt that I had so little faith in their future together, and refused to even ask her. Like a softy, I let it go.

Two and a half years later, she walked out on him. She has the ring. My son says he wants no discordancy whatever—that he will pay me what the ring is worth.

Abby, I didn't sell it to him. I want the ring, not the money. They are working out a "friendly divorce," although I know my son is broken-hearted because she left him. They are living apart, and she is living it up. Meanwhile, knowing she has my mother's diamond really upsets me.

Maybe in time my son will want to marry again. Then what? Is there a solution?

DISTRESSED

DEAR DISTRESSED: Even though the ring is a family heirloom, when you gave it to your son you relinquished all claim on it. He would not be out of line, however, to suggest to her that because it belonged to his grandmother, he would like to buy it from her and keep it in the family. It's worth a try.

DEAR ABBY: When "Ryan" and I were first married, he showed me some photographs he had taken of his ex-wife posing in the nude while they were still married. (Photography is his hobby.) She was very well built and the pictures left nothing to the imagination.

I asked Ryan to either send them to her or to destroy them because I didn't want them in the house. He said he never destroys any of his pictures as they are "art." (I call them trash.)

Now it's nine years later, and I found these pictures stashed in the back of a drawer. Abby, we have two small children who could have easily found them. How could I explain who the naked lady was?

Should I put them back and say nothing to Ryan? Should I tell him I found them? (He'd probably hide them somewhere else, and I want them out of our house.) Should I return them to his ex-wife, or destroy them and hope Ryan doesn't miss them? Or is it none of my business?

ANGRY IN ARIZONA

DEAR ANGRY: Give them to your husband and ask him to please lock up his "art." If your children had found them, you could have told them the truth: "The naked lady was once married to Daddy."

• • •

DEAR ABBY: My father is very fat, and he is getting fatter because he doesn't do any kind of exercise and he eats everything he knows he shouldn't. He is supposed to be on a special diet, but every night I catch him sneaking a handful of cookies or a gigantic bowl of ice cream. When I tell him he shouldn't eat that stuff, he gets very angry. I am his 11-year-old daughter, but please don't use my name because he knows who he is, and I would never hear the end of it.

Don't tell me to tell my mother. She knows all about it, but Dad won't listen to her either. How can I help him?

WORRIED DAUGHTER

DEAR WORRIED: You are a very loving and caring daughter, but the only person who can help your father is himself. Finding his 11-year-old daughter standing guard over the bacon he has brought home only adds to his guilt and frustration. Offer lots of love, but hold the advice.

DEAR ABBY: One last word on how to eat a banana, the most consumed fruit in the United States. Where I come from, there is only one way to eat a banana. Alone! That way you can enjoy it to the fullest, and better someone shouldn't warble, "Poinciana, is that your nose or a banana?"

Investment in seven principal Latin American countries has dropped sharply as a result of the debt crisis, according to the Inter-American Development Bank. By 1984, the ratio of investment as a percentage of gross national product had fallen about 7 percentage points below the 1980-81 average. The actual ratio varied widely by country, from virtually no change in Colombia to a drop of 11 percentage points in Mexico.

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — How does a person find out if he has calcium deposits? I had a blood chemistry test that indicated my calcium to be in low-normal range. My problem is that I suffer from lower back, hip and leg pain. X-rays indicate that I have spinal arthritis, and my doctor says I have a sciatica problem. Could I also have calcium deposits?

DEAR READER — Except in rare circumstances, calcium deposits are not reflected in a high blood-calcium level. These deposits often occur as a consequence of aging. For example, osteoarthritis of the spinal bones frequently causes a structural alteration in the vertebrae. This is called "lipping," because calcium deposits form on the ends of the bones, and, in X-rays, they resemble the flared lips of drinking glasses.

These calcium overgrowths can rub against the nerves that leave the spinal cord between the backbones, causing sciatic irritations. Often a brace, physiotherapy or therapeutic exercises can relieve pain; sometimes surgery may be necessary to remove the tissue that is compressing the nerves.

Ask your doctor to refer you to an orthopedic specialist for a special evaluation. If you have sciatica, the problem will worsen and you may develop leg weakness as nerve function is further compromised.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My doctor has no idea what to suggest. I'm a very healthy and active 50-year-old woman and my problem is dryness. My mouth is so dry I can't eat anything without taking a drink with each mouthful. My tongue is perpetually sore and I often have a sore throat. Also, my eyes feel as though my lids are grating against them. I don't have diabetes and don't take any medications. Could use of a man's antiperspirant possibly cause this?

DEAR READER — Dry eyes and mouth may be symptoms of a general body disorder, such as Sjorgren's syndrome or a form of auto-immune disease. Ask your doctor to refer you to an internal medicine specialist who may, after a thorough examination and blood test, be able to pinpoint your problem. If, indeed, you do have Sjorgren's syndrome, you can obtain more information from the Sjorgren's Syndrome Foundation, 29 Gateway Dr., Great Neck, NY 11021.

The active ingredients in antiperspirants are not thought to cause the symptoms you describe.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Several years ago, I started to get a pounding in my right ear. The doctor ordered a test, during which they shot liquid into the arm and it goes up to the arteries on both sides of the neck. Now he has me on blood-pressure medicine and says there was a vein in my ear that was causing me to hear my heart beating. The blood-pressure pills have helped a lot, but I'm still confused. Could you explain this to me?

DEAR READER — Apparently, your doctor wished to investigate the possibility that your symptoms were due to an arterial blockage. Evidently, they were not. Sometimes patients with high blood pressure experience the sensation of pounding in the ears, so your doctor chose to treat your hypertension — a wise choice, because uncontrolled high blood pressure can lead to heart disease and strokes.

I am not sure what your physician meant by a "vein" causing your problem. Ordinarily, only arteries pulsate. Therefore, your throbbing sensation may have been the result of arterial stress, a consequence of your hypertension.

If your blood pressure has been controlled and you still are having trouble, see an ear specialist to make sure that an abnormality within the ear itself is not the cause of your symptoms.

Superstitions

Superstitions, like genes, tend to be handed down from generation to generation. With time, these myths become codified into folklore. Here's a list of common superstitions — all of which are false.

Blood pressure of 100 plus the individual's age is the normal value.

Gargles and mouthwashes kill a significant number of germs in the throat and mouth.

Bad breath always means disease.

Daily bowel movements are necessary for good health.

Laxatives are always good for abdominal pain and are never dangerous.

Pain in the back always indicates kidney disease.

Pain in the abdomen always means an overloaded stomach.

Pimples and boils indicate "bad blood" and are not due to infection.

Boric acid strengthens the eyes.

Physical activity ensures longevity.

Eye-muscle exercises can eliminate the need for glasses.

A cold can be "broken up" or cured.

You should feed a cold and starve a fever.

Punctures from rusty nails are more dangerous than wounds from clean nails.

Night air is unhealthful.

The need to debunk rank misinformation and superstitions has led authors Paul Dickson and Joseph Goulden to publish a book called "There Are Alligators in Our Sewers and Other American Credos" (Delacorte Press, New York, 1983; paperback Dell Books, 1984).

Among other misperceptions, the book addresses the following myths — all of which are incorrect:

Oysters are good only in months that contain an "R."

Vodka has no taste.

Sleepwalkers are immune to harm.

Owls can see in the dark.

Mice prefer cheese.

Ostriches bury their heads in the sand.

Bulls are enraged by the color red.

The book is fun to read; however, folklore is not the only source of puzzling information. The King James Bible, 1 Samuel, 6:4, states: "Then said they, what shall be the trespass offering which we shall return of him? They answered, Five golden emerods (hemorrhoids) and five golden mice ..."

Now, I don't know about you, but I would be totally thunderstruck by an offering of five golden hemorrhoids. What on earth are golden hemorrhoids? Are they something you would want to find in your stocking on Christmas morning? Would you save your money all year in order to give your mother-in-law five golden hemorrhoids for her 65th birthday? Disregard the mice. They're interesting all right, but tend to confuse the issue. I'm really fascinated by such a unique gift.

Not being a Hebrew scholar, I choose to believe that the translators of the Old Testament tried to sneak in a little pun on us. I'll bet the original meaning was modified by some of our earliest humorists. "Five golden hemorrhoids" may have been a tongue-in-cheek translation of "five piles of gold." No? Well, it sounds logical to me.

Here we are, up to our necks in myths and folklore. An apple a day keeps the doctor away. Chiropractic cures disease. megadoses of vitamins are beneficial. Medicare is synonymous with good medical care.

If I were a chairman of a large philanthropic foundation, I'd be tempted to give an annual Golden Hemorrhoid award to the health professional who most perfectly misrepresents the healing arts. This year the award would go to the Medicare-review physician who threatened to disallow hospitalization for my 90-year-old patient one week before she was to die from kidney failure. You see, to save tax dollars, the doctor claimed the hospital stay was "unjustified."

At the rate things are progressing, there won't be enough Golden Hemorrhoids — and superstitions — to go around.

Economic recovery said not reaching certain areas

EDITOR'S NOTE — New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, in his keynote address to the last Democratic National Convention, cited Mineville, N.Y., as an example of how the nation's economic recovery was not reaching some poor areas. And there is no indication this old mining town will recover any time soon.

By STEPHEN W. BELL
AP Business Writer

MINEVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Mineville is a few blocks long, with shade trees and a scrubbed-clean look. But underneath the promising facade are comatose iron ore mines not likely to revive.

Mineville's best days are behind, literally sealed off.

Three rolling mounds of iron ore tailings, one topped with conveyor buildings turned to shards by Adirondack gales, stand today as eroding monuments to the town's glory days in the 1870s and during two world wars.

In the 19th century, almost 2,000 miners drew paychecks from Witherbee & Sherman. During World Wars I and II more than 1,000 miners wrestled ore from beneath this town to help defend and build a nation.

Republic Steel Corp. — itself now a mere memory following a corporate takeover — bought out Witherbee & Sherman in the 1930s and fought a losing battle against cheaper Michigan ore. Republic finally closed the mines in 1971, idling a work force that had dwindled to 350 people.

Mineville once boasted one of the 10 largest iron mines in America. Now the town is ignored, stranded on the edge of the Adirondack Park in a corridor of wilderness halfway between Albany and Montreal. The village is off the track beaten west to Lake Placid 25 miles away and to Lake Champlain five miles to the east.

When the mines died, so did Mineville.

"Closing the mines had a big impact, no doubt about it," says William Crowley, an Adirondack Museum mining expert.

"The only jobs around here are mechanics, if you're lucky," says Jim O'Donnell, 17. "Or working in the woods."

"The mines closed in 1971," says Republic's last district manager, William A. Blomstran, "and nothing has happened since."

Postmaster Pauline Trybendis, speaking through the barred window of her post office, one of four storefronts that form Mineville's business district, says, "Since the mines closed it's been depressing, despondent and disheartening."

With 36,000 people dotting 1,800 square miles, Essex County was pushed into national prominence last year when Gov. Mario Cuomo cited the "abject poor" of the area in his keynote address to the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco. Cuomo's point was that the nation's economic recovery had not reached Essex County and other poor rural areas.
