Rains boost Scurry ag outlook

Pre-dawn thunderstorms rambled across Scurry County early today, adding to moisture received on Sunday and giving a giant boost to the county's young cotton crop.

Although spotty on Sunday, today's early rainfall was general in nature. Accompanied by small amounts of pea-size hail, agriculture observers doubted any significant damage.

Joe Hefner, with the Scurry County office of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service, said about 75 percent of the county cotton crop was planted and up. He predicted the rains would not only give the crops a boost, but would allow farmers still in need of moisture to finish planting.

The rains fell on four areas of the county which previously had missed moisture needed for planting. The two-day total at Dunn was just over two inches and Ira received an inch. Dermott received two inches and another previously dry spot, northwest of Snyder near Union, recorded 3.4 inches.

In the city of Snyder, 1.52 inches fell from 7 a.m. Sunday until 7 a.m. Monday. Since then .06 of an inch was recorded at the city water plant, bringing the 1991 total to 5.45 inches.

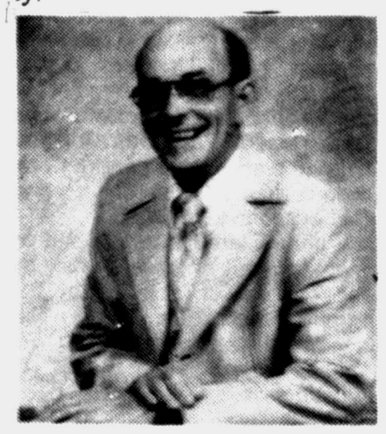

Reports of from 3.10 to 3.7 inches was reported near Loyd Mountain. The two-day total at Hermleigh was 2.25 inches and Fluvanna received 1.60 inches. Near Polar, 1.75 inches was recorded and 2.25 inches fell near Camp Springs. Two inches fell east of Snyder near the Price Daniel unit. Just west of Lake Thomas, the precipitation totaled 2.7 inches and 1.40 fell at the lake.

Light rains were still falling in isolated parts of the county Monday morning. The early Monday storm was accompanied by lightening and some winds. The weather inadvertently set off one of the weather warning signals for the city of Snyder.

On Sunday afternoon, Scurry County was under a severe weather watch and there was a confirmed funnel sighting in Borden County and an unconfirmed sighting in Mitchell County.

SPLASH DAY — The first day of summer vacation featured Splash Day at the county swimming pool in Towle Memorial Park. Wet weather Sunday and Monday played havoc with a favorite summertime activity. The pool is open from 2 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily. Family nights are from 5:30 to 7 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays and from 7-9 p.m. on Saturdays. (SDN Staff Photo)

BUCK HATFIELD

Hatfield ends lengthy tenure

Hatfield, who has been on a leave of absence for the past three months, cited health problems as the reason for his decision.

Hatfield has been minister of the church for the past 21½ years. Hatfield said he will continue to preach and plans to conduct revivals and Bible conferences.

"I don't intend to quit preaching, I'm just changing ministeries." Hatfield said he had been seeking medical treatment for the past several months, and doctors had advised him to avoid the stress of pastoring.

Commissioners decide...

Kiddie pool to stay

Scurry County commissioners court today agreed to maintain the kiddie pool in Towle Park, but decided to charge for its use.

Swimming pool operators had proposed turning the wading pool into a sand box. Joe Cheyne of the Scurry County sheriff's office proposed that the kiddie pool be retained.

The kiddie pool will be fenced and regular admission will be charged. Also, kids using the pool must be accompanied by an adult.

Clarence Payne of City Realtors appeared before the court to seek additional compensation for rental of a building east of Snyder which was used for an auction of surplus equipment.

Payne said the hospital arranged for rental of the building, but Payne said he was not aware that the auction would be held and felt that additional rental compensation was in order.

Rent paid was $300. Because it was not an agenda item, the court could not take action, but it suggested that Payne meet with hospital officials.

Commissioner adopted a policy to reimburse county employees at the rate of 26-cents per mile for use of private vehicles in performing official business. Shannon Grantham was appointed to fill a vacancy on the county child welfare board.

Also approved was a subdivision regulation policy giving commissioners authority to regulate plats, drainage and street constructions outside the city limits.

In other business the court also approved a $700 budget transfer

Water charge on council's agenda

Snyder City Council will hear a request from Colorado River Municipal Water District for an increase in water rates, and will hear a funding request from the the chamber of commerce at today's 6:30 p.m. city council meeting at city hall.

Also the council is expected to name a new mayor pro-tem and consider a lease agreement with the Snyder ISD, and will considered a proposed city economic development plan.

Other items on the agenda include a presentation from a representative of the Big Country Resource and Development Area, the proposed closing of a city street, and a second reading of an ordinance prohibiting parking along a portion of 37th St.

Among those attending tonight's meeting will be O.H. Ivie, CRMWD general manager, and chamber interim manager Ricky Fritz. Ivie is expected to ask for an increase in city water rates in order to retire the debt on the pipeline from the Ivie Reservoir. Fritz will request some $7,200 from the city's hotel-motel tax fund for the AJRA National Finals Rodeo.

The council will also consider a lease agreement with Snyder ISD for the east and west fire stations. Under the tentative contract, the schools could lease the buildings for $1 annually. City officials note this would save the city some $4,000 in maintenance costs each year.

School Supt. Dalton Moseley said the east station would be used for storage and the west station for special education classes. The lease would also have to be approved by Snyder ISD board of trustees.

A.-The state requires 45 to 48 hours of instruction to grant three credit hours, and with only nine weeks available in the summer term, it is necessary for the class to meet all nine times. Classes have met on July 4th in past years, also.

Ruffin death

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The man who dropped off former Temptations singer David Ruffin at a hospital where he later died has vanished, police said.

Ruffin collapsed at a crack house where he had gone in a borrowed limousine in the hours before his death, police said Sunday as they continued to search for the man.

Toxicology test results expected to establish the cause of death were pending, but acquaintances said Ruffin had long been known to have drug problems.

Police Lt. Thomas Fournier said the man who took Ruffin to the hospital early Saturday also had gone to the crack house with him a few hours before.

Children's TV ads promote high-sugar, high-fat foods

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saturday morning children's television encourages eating habits that can lead to tooth decay, heart disease and cancer, say a congressman and a public interest group.

From 8 a.m. until noon each Saturday, children tune in to shows sponsored by high-sugar, high-fat and high-sodium fast foods with little nutritional value, said Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore.

"Saturday morning television advertising is really about food," said Wyden, who is asking four federal agencies to look into the situation.

"I am troubled that a time block which demonstrably has a very high percentage of loyal, young, highly impressionable viewers is being used to reinforce poor nutritional values rather than good ones," Wyden wrote to the Federal Trade Commission, Department of Health and Human Services, Federal Communications Commission and U.S. surgeon general.

Wyden's letters were based on a study being released today by the Center for Science in the Public Interest, a 20-year-old, non-profit consumer health advocacy organization based in Washington.

The federal agencies had no immediate response to Wyden's letter. However, FCC spokesman Steve Svab said the Children's Television Act of 1990, which takes effect next year, will limit the number of ads allowed during children's shows.

In the late 1970s, the FTC tried to regulate the content of such ads but was pulled off the effort by Congress, which said the agency was overstepping its authority. Critics at the time called the FTC a "national nanny."

To prepare the latest study, researchers for CSPI watched programs on ABC, NBC, CBS and Fox networks on the morning of Feb. 9 and found that of the 350 commercials, 63.4 percent were for food.

Of the food ads, most were for cereals, followed by restaurants, candy, beverages, cookies, entrees and chips. There was also one public service announcement on eating.

The researchers then did nutritional evaluations of each food, giving it a passing grade if less than 25 percent of its calories came from refined sugar, less than 30 percent of its calories came from fat and it contained less than 400 milligrams of sodium.

Only 20 of the 222 food commercials passed the test.

Of the 20, 13 were fruit roll-up products, three were breakfast cereals, three were frozen entrees, and one was a public service announcement on the importance of healthy breakfasts.

"I note that there is more breakfast cereal advertising during this time period than toy advertising," he said. On the survey day, 78 of the 128 non-food ads were for toys, while there were 83 ads for cereal.

Since children influence the food choices in most families, the public would be better served if kids were encouraged to make more nutritional requests, said the congressman.

"Obesity and poor nutrition have been at least a contributing cause of illness and early death for tens of thousands of Americans each year," he said. "Many lives could be saved, or made better, by elimination of instances of illness ranging from cancer to heart disease through development of better eating habits among all Americans."

Wyden is chairman of the House Small Business subcommittee on regulation, business opportunities and energy. He has devoted several congressional hearings to food issues, including fraud and deception in diet products.

Sullivan was hometown grad speader

BLAKELY, Ga. (AP) — U.S. Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan returned to the small town where his skin color once kept him out of high school and urged students to strive for excellence no matter what the odds.

"Aspire to be all things that you can be, not just in terms of a successful career, but in terms of becoming a successful human being," Sullivan told 500 honors graduates of Early County High School in Blakely on Sunday.

Sullivan, who is black, was barred from Blakely High School in 1946 when it was all-white. His family sent him and his brother to all-black public schools in Savannah and Atlanta.

Although he regretted being unable to attend school in his hometown, Sullivan said he and his brother were fortunate their parents sent them out of town to continue their education.

"It was very important for what we have been able to achieve," he said.

Earlier in the day, Sullivan spoke at the Mercer University School of Medicine, where he was presented an honorary doctorate.

'Boxie' Weems ends more than 3 decades in education

By Shirley A. Gorman
SDN News Editor

When Bernard "Boxie" Weems retired at the end of the 1990-91 school year, he didn't just quit working. Instead, it was more like he just changed jobs.

After a total of 35 years as a coach and PE instructor, Weems said he decided to get out of the profession and devote more time to selling insurance and other interests.

Several years ago he earned his insurance license so he would have something to do in his post retirement years. He is a regional manager for Primerica Financial Services.

Weems has taught elementary physical education and served as a junior high coach throughout his 23 years in Snyder. In addition, he also drove a school bus starting in 1979.

Weems has taught kindergarten through sixth grade PE at Northeast for the past 10 years. Prior to that, he spent 11 years at East and 2 years at Central. Also from 1968-1969, Weems taught PE and coached at Travis Junior High School.

Previously Weems served as junior high coach at Rotan from 1956-57; head coach in Melvin from 1957-58; assistant coach in Ralls from 1958-59; assistant football and head track coach at Stephenville from 1959-60; head coach and athletic director at Springton from 1960-63; and boys and girls coach at Hobbs from 1963-68.

At Northeast, Weems said two teachers were students when he coached at Rotan.

Throughout his career in Snyder, Weems said he tried to coordinate his PE classes with athletics. "Once a coach always a coach," best describes Weems who said he always liked to spot elementary students who had that "special something" and work with them to develop their potential by the time they reached junior high and high school.

Weems said he doesn't think as much emphasis is being made on physical fitness today because students have more things competing for their time. For instance, he said today's youth often opt to sit and watch television whereas while he was growing up outside recreation was just about all they had to do in their free time.

Besides teaching and coaching, Weems has also worked with track during the summer recreation program and with both girls and boys baseball teams.

Weems, known best by the nickname "Boxie" picked up the name while a child. Built similiarly to an older brother who had been nicknamed "Boxie" because of his build, he was called "Little Boxie" until his brother died.

He attended college on a football scholarship and chose both the teaching and coaching professions because he "likes working with young people and observing their accomplishments.

Besides selling insurance, he also intends to work in his yard, travel and visit his grandson.

He and his wife, Patsy, have a son, Bernie Weems who lives in Abilene, a daughter, Kayla Goswick of Snyder and a grandson, Chad, who lives in Overton.

CALLING IT QUITS — After 23 years in Snyder, Bernard "Boxie" Weems, who has coached and taught physical education, retired at the end of the 1990-91 school year. He plans to devote more time to his family, yard work and selling insurance. (SDN Staff Photo)

Dr. Gott By Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My wife is very ill, and we have been married a long time. My problem is that I don't want to be unfaithful, yet have sexual desire. Is there any medication that will enable me to maintain a low sexual profile and remain faithful to the woman I care so much about?

DEAR READER: You raise a common and vexing problem: what to do when a spouse is unable to meet a partner's needs.

Ideally, this is the kind of issue that is best discussed and negotiated between the partners involved. However, given your wife's illness, I suspect she is in no position to engage in a rational resolution. Therefore, as you point out, the decision is yours.

In my experience, men in your situation often resort to masturbation. While this form of sexual release is obviously not as satisfying as normal sexual relations, it may provide a temporary answer to your problem.

To my knowledge, medicine to reduce libido (sexual interest) is not a satisfactory solution; such drugs (female hormones, for instance) may unnecessarily affect your metabolism and cause health problems (such as elevated cholesterol).

I recommend you discuss your concerns with your doctor, who is more familiar with your family and may be able to offer additional advice.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I recently used ibuprofen for relief of arthritis and was amazed to find that I had a problem with impotence for the first time in my 70 years of life. When discussing this with my son who is 35, he indicated he experienced the same problem when treating a cold with a cough/cold preparation. The side effects of medication often sneak up on people, and they don't realize or recognize the cause. The public should be informed that ibuprofen can cause an undesirable situation.

DEAR READER: Ibuprofen, an anti-inflammatory drug used for treating arthritis, does not ordinarily cause impotence. Therefore, I think you'll have to search for another reason for your problem.

Nonetheless, many drugs (both prescription and over-the-counter) inhibit sexual performance. In particular, decongestants (which are commonly added to cough/cold remedies) can cause impotence, although this side effect is by no means frequent.

Your son was correct in identifying the cause of his temporary impotence.

However, in your case, the cause-and-effect is far less clear. If your impotence persists, see your family doctor. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Impotence." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Oil well firefighters in Kuwait...

Florida woman finds new cause

HOUSTON (AP) — Florence Dawson was too late to put a yellow ribbon on her car antenna. But the Coral Gables, Fla., secretary is encouraging her friends and neighbors to display blue ribbons to support Houston oil well firefighters still working in Kuwait.

"I kept meaning to get a yellow ribbon for my car to show my support for our troops in the Mideast. But while I was still thinking about it, the war ended," Ms. Dawson told The Houston Post in a telephone interview.

So when she was astounded by a television news report of the 600 oil wells set ablaze by the retreating Iraqi troops, Ms. Dawson wanted to act quickly.

As she watched burning wells belch thick black smoke across the skies, Ms. Dawson said, "I thought, 'How can anyone do anything about that?' Then I saw those men from Houston who had gone over to fight those fires.

"They were on television saying, 'It's no big deal.' It was reassuring to look at them, to listen to them and to know they were over there," she said.

Oil well control specialists from Boots & Coots Inc., Red Adair Co. Inc. and Wild Well Control Inc., all Houston-area firms, were recruited by the Kuwaitis to extinguish and cap the wells.

Ms. Dawson said she wanted to show her support so she organized a small group of friends and co-workers to write special thank-you notes to the three companies and to display blue ribbons — "hoping to see Kuwait's skies turn blue again."

"We sent letters to the three companies and great big cards of encouragement, telling them 'good luck, go get them' — just trying to make them feel like someone's behind them," Ms. Dawson said. "This is a horrible situation and these men were the only ones that everyone has to depend on."

James Tuppen called her to thank her for the card she sent Boots & Coots and Joe Bowden sent her a box of Wild Well Control gimme caps for the note she sent his company.

"She's a wonderful lady, and she's doing a lot to support us," Bowden said before leaving Houston last week for Kuwait.

Ms. Dawson said she has only driven through the Panhandle of Texas, but would like to visit Houston on her next trip to the Lone Star State.

"I would love to meet those men," she said. "They're real heroes."

Ex-mayor tells grads to get involved

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — The former mayor of San Antonio, honored by Jersey City State College for his efforts at political reform, told graduates to get involved in government.

"It will be a failure if you walk away and don't give back to society," Cisneros told nearly 700 graduates at the school's commencement Sunday.

He urged them to end the division of America into two societies, one for the rich and one for the poor: "You'll have to address this or America will suffer deeply."

Cisneros, saluted for encouraging citizens to solve problems in education, crime, drugs and housing, received an honorary doctorate in humane letters.

Cisneros, a Democrat who was mayor of San Antonio from 1981-89, was rumored to be a vice presidential contender in 1984.

Charles Goren, Mr. Bridge

By Phillip Alder

One of the bridge world's most famous figures, Charles Goren, died on April 3 at the age of 90.

He might never have become a bridge authority if it hadn't been for a hostess who laughed at his bad play when he was a law student at McGill University. He resolved that she wouldn't laugh again.

In 1933 he became a syndicated bridge columnist, and in 1937 he won his first national title, the Board-a-Match Teams. Eventually he amassed 30 national titles and was a runner-up 21 times. And eight times (a record) he received the McKenney Trophy for the most masterpoints collected in a year. In 1950 he was part of the victorious American team in the inaugural World Team Championship for the Bermuda Bowl.

But arguably Goren's best move was to adopt the point-count method of hand evaluation proposed by Milton Work. Goren realized this was much easier to comprehend than Ely Culbertson's honor-trick approach.

Sitting East in today's deal, Goren worked out the right defense. West's bidding was wild, but at least he found the best lead — the jack of hearts, covered by the king and ace. Goren returned the seven of diamonds, declarer finessing the 10. West led his second heart, the nine. When South called for dummy's three, Goren saw the need to lead diamonds a second time. He overtook the nine with his queen, even though this established three heart winners in the dummy, and fired back his second diamond. Declarer could cash only eight tricks (four spades, three hearts and one diamond) and went one down.

Child-to-child sexual abuse cases increasing, experts say

AUSTIN (AP) — Experts say society's ignorance and denial of cases involving children abusing other children is making it more difficult to find and rehabilitate young offenders.

The number of youths referred to Travis County Juvenile Court for committing sex offenses has doubled from 43 in 1987 to 87 last year, said Claire Burnett, the court's placement coordinator.

And the victims of young sex offenders quite often are other children, therapists say.

"People don't believe that a kid will do this to another kid. It's real taboo," said Scott Harpst, a therapist who works with a half dozen boys in the Austin-Travis County Mental Health and Mental Retardation Department's DayGlo Family Treatment Program.

"I think a lot of people would like to believe their kids are playing doctor," he said. "But this stuff's been going on a long time. We finally decided, let's look under this rock here."

Such crimes are not usually reported because people refuse to acknowledge them or they dismiss the activity as normal sexual experimentation, Harpst said.

Consequently, relatively few juvenile sex offenders are ever caught, he said.

A youth who commits a sex offense can be sent to the juvenile equivalent of state prison, said Rosemary Lehmberg, head of the Travis County district attorney's family justice division.

But few young sex offenders reach that point, she said.

"The general tenor of juvenile justice is not to criminalize juvenile behavior but to correct it. That's the goal of juvenile justice," she said.

The catch, however, is that the state cannot order a young sex offender to seek counseling unless he is "convicted".

"The biggest problem we encounter in the majority of sex offender cases is the proximity in age between the victim and the quote, unquote defendant," Ms. Lehmberg said. "That aspect of the case sometimes makes it more difficult for whomever is determining the case, be it a judge or a jury."

The issue is complicated even further by the traditional equation of childhood and innocence, said Deborah Michel, who runs the DayGlo program.

Society represses the notion that a child who appears healthy and normal could sexually abuse another child, Ms. Michel said.

But child-to-child sexual abuse is dangerous because it fuels itself, said Jeanne Wilson, a Department of Human Services investigator. Young victims of sexual abuse suffer emotional scars that make them more likely to become sex offenders themselves, she said.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your possibilities for personal gain look more encouraging today than they may look tomorrow. Don't leave any loose threads dangling so you can trip over them later.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) What you hope to accomplish can be achieved today, provided you are self-reliant and independent. Have complete faith in your own capabilities.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your perceptions could provide you with valuable information today that can't be derived through a process of logical reasoning. To be successful, though, use both.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Make your own determinations today regarding someone new you may meet. The fact that this individual doesn't get along too well with one of your friends shouldn't affect your evaluations.

Lakers edge Bulls, 93-91...

Perkins' 3 leads L.A. to win

CHICAGO (AP) — Sam Perkins came to Los Angeles with the stigma of being an underachiever, a good player who didn't do enough to help his team win.

On Sunday, he achieved something remarkable.

With one perfect 3-point shot, he overshadowed both Michael Jordan and Magic Johnson in the exciting opener of the NBA Finals.

The unexpected hero gave the Lakers an unexpected 93-91 victory over Chicago.

Neither team led by more than seven points. The Lakers' 84-80 lead was the biggest in the last 10 minutes. The lead changed hands six times in that span as Jordan and Johnson took turns making big plays.

But it was Perkins, a forward and backup center, who put the Lakers on top 92-91 with his 3-pointer with 14 seconds left. They held on as Jordan's 16-footer from the left hit the rim but bounced out with 4.9 seconds to go.

"I was wide open," said Jordan, who led all scorers with 36 points. "It felt good."

"When I let it go, I feared it was going to be blocked," said Perkins, who scored 22.

His six years in Dallas were forgettable. He averaged 14.4 points during those regular seasons.

Last Aug. 6, he signed as a free agent with the Lakers.

Perkins has developed into a more complete player. In the first quarter, he had three baskets off post-up plays and two 3-pointers. And he had six of the Lakers' last seven points.

"What we've come to find out since we had him is what a good low-post player he is," Los Angeles coach Mike Dunleavy said.

He also has confidence with Perkins on the perimeter.

"That's his shot," Dunleavy said of the game-winner. "He can make 3-pointers. He's got the green light to shoot any time he gets it."

Jordan had his shot. Twice.

There were 24 seconds left, and Chicago led 91-89 in the first Finals game in its 25-year history. Jordan's 15-foot bank shot from the right swirled around the rim and bounced out. Perkins rebounded.

After Jordan missed again with 4.9 seconds remaining, Los Angeles' Byron Scott got the rebound, was fouled and sank the final point with 2.7 seconds to play.

"The wrong North Carolina guy made the shot," said Jordan, who was a college teammate of Perkins and James Worthy with the Tar Heels.

Game 2 of the best-of-7 series is Wednesday night in Chicago.

"I just said, 'Oh, no' when he shook loose and put the shot up," Johnson said of Jordan's final attempt. "Michael is a number one, scariest person in the NBA at that time in the game."

Perkins, who made 18 of 64 regular-season 3-pointers, would be far, far down that list. But Johnson drew the double team from Bill Cartwright, found Perkins open and passed to him.

Jordan had 12 points in the third quarter and has led Chicago's scorers in all 13 playoff games. He added 12 assists and eight rebounds. Scottie Pippen had 19, but no other Bull scored more than six.

Crowley stops Matadors in regionals

ABILENE — The high-flying Crowley Eagles took two straight games from District 2-4A champion Estacado over the weekend to end the Matadors' season in the Region I title series.

Crowley took a 15-10 win Friday behind staff ace Jason Gardner and 13 hits from his teammates, including two hits each by No. 4 and 5 hitters, Kreyton Paschall and Todd Brantley.

The Eagles swept the series Saturday by scoring five runs in the top of the seventh inning of Game 2 for a 10-6 come-from-behind victory.

Crowley moves into this week's Class 4A state baseball championship tournament with a 28-7 record after eliminating District 2 runner-up Frenship and Estacado in successive series.

The Mats' record for the year is 20-15.

Title tilt to feature European teams

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — European teams dominated the first year of the World League of American Football, and that isn't going to change in the World Bowl.

The London Monarchs on Sunday made the World Bowl an all-European event by rallying from a 17-point deficit behind five touchdown passes by Stan Gelbaugh to post a 42-26 victory over the New York-New Jersey Knights at Giants Stadium.

Barcelona (9-2) had grabbed the other spot in the WLAF title game at Wembley Stadium with a 10-3 win over the Birmingham Fire Saturday night.

For the opening 20 minutes Sunday, the Monarchs (10-1) appeared like they would miss the title game in their backyard. Their secondary blew three coverages, staking the Knights to a 17-0 lead.

Cotton Bowl plan draws criticism

DALLAS (AP) — A Sugar Bowl official says the Southwest Conference's plan to send the league runner-up to the Cotton Bowl if its champion has a chance to play for a national championship is "unacceptable."

The Cotton, Orange and Sugar bowls are discussing a proposed alliance with Notre Dame and the Atlantic Coast and Big East conferences to produce better bowl matchups.

The new wrinkle would create better opportunities for a national championship game among teams from conferences committed to specific bowls — the SWC to the Cotton, the Big Eight to the Orange and the Southeastern to the Sugar.

The SWC proposal, effectively, asks the bowls to pass on a team ranked No. 2 in the country for the common good of setting up an annual national championship game.

University of Texas athletic director DeLoss Dodds said the league is counting on public pressure for a national championship game to influence the bowls.

But the SWC proposal has yet to generate any support from bowl officials, and Sugar Bowl executive director Mickey Holmes has already called the proposal "unacceptable."

Jones nabs LPGA win at Rochester

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Coming up to the 18th green at the Rochester International with victory in reach brought back memories for Rosie Jones.

Next time, the memories will be sweeter.

"I only remembered seven years ago, how fast it was and how much break there was," Jones said Sunday after winning a two-shot victory on the Locust Hill Country Club course and taking home a $60,000 check.

Jones lost to Kathy Whitworth in Rochester in 1984 by bogeying on the 18th in a sudden-death playoff.

This time around, Jones shot a bogey-free 6-under 66 to finish at 12-under 276, two shots ahead of Danielle Ammaccapane and 19-year-old rookie Brandie Burton.

Andrade wins Kemper Open

POTOMAC, Md. (AP) — Billy Andrade earned more than $180,000 for winning the Kemper Open. He also picked up a whole lot of respect.

At age 17, Andrade was the top-ranked junior player in the nation. As a collegian, he was a three-time All-America. As a pro last year, he ranked a decent No. 64 on the money list.

All that was nice, but his career was missing one very important item — a tournament title. Andrade took care of that Sunday, when he beat Jeff Sluman on the first playoff hole to win the Kemper.

"I won as a junior golfer. I won as an amateur golfer. But I hadn't won where it counts, and that's out here," he said.

Andrade made two birdies and a scrambling par to force a playoff, then made a birdie on the first extra hole shortly after Sluman hit his tee shot into the water. The winner's check gave him $266,936 this year, good for No. 27 on the money list.

Six Tigers selected to all-district team

Six Snyder Tiger baseballers were named to the just-released All-District 2-4A squad including Newcomer of the Year, sophomore Raymond House, senior first-baseman John Wright, junior shortstop Mark King, outfielders Bobby Clinkinbeard, a junior and senior Shelby Bufkin, and DH Chad Fox.

Two catchers, three pitchers, six infielders, five outfielders and two designated hitters were selected to the squad's first team.

RAYMOND HOUSE

MARK KING

Estacado, district champion, landed nine members on the first team including Most Valuable Player Albert McBride and Coach of the Year Rod Gardner.

McBride was a senior pitcher for the Mats who rang up 37 strikeouts in 30 2-3 innings and rolled to an ERA of just 0.68 and a 5-0 record in regular season play for coach Gardner's EHS nine.

Loop runner-up Frenship and Lamesa, which wound up the year tied with Snyder for third place, each placed two players on the team while Dunbar added one.

House boasted a .990 fielding percentage from third base this year for the Tigers.

He also added a .409 batting average and a .607 on-base average for the Black and Gold.

Returning all-district first-baseman Wright accounted for eight Snyder RBI while hitting .385 for the year.

JOHN WRIGHT

BOBBY CLINKINBEARD

King's .300 batting average also allowed the SHS junior to knock in eight runs.

Clinkinbeard hit at a .450 clip for the Tigers and forged a .591 on-base percentage while fellow outfielder Bufkin batted .318 with a .481 OBP.

Fox wound up hitting .321 in 1991 with nine runs batted in and an on-base average of .387.

The rest of the first team included catcher Patrick Williams, pitcher Chris Bryand, first-baseman Anson Lyons, third baseman Steve Spence, outfielders Malcolm David and Zebbie Lethridge and desginated hitter Roctrus Sanders of Estacado and Dunbar catcher Lee Roy Danford.

SHELBY BUFKIN

CHAD FOX

Also on the first team were Wes Diaz, a pitcher and outfielder Brenden Linster of Lamesa and Frenship honorees first-baseman Brad Douglas, shortstop Chris Matthews and pitcher Brad Cade.

Levelland dominated the second-team choices with eight followed by Lamesa's five and one from Frenship.

Faces Becker Tuesday...

Chang takes tough road in Open

PARIS (AP) — For most of the favorites left in the French Open, the high-pressure matches are yet to come. For Michael Chang, they're becoming routine.

Twice in three days, Chang strode on to center court to find more than 16,000 fans rooting wildly for his rival. Each time, he stuck to his game plan, kept his poise — and survived.

First it was Jimmy Connors, who rendered the crowd delirious with play that seemed impossible for a 38-year-old. Chang, half his age, hung on until Connors, exhausted, withdrew after the opening point of the fifth set.

On Sunday, the opponent was seventh-seeded Guy Forget, France's best hope for a title, cheered on by hopeful partisan fans. Chang prevailed in four sets.

The road ahead gets no easier for the 19-year-old from Placentia, Calif. Next up, in a quarterfinal match Tuesday, is second-seeded Boris Becker, playing some of his best tennis in months. If Chang gets by Becker, he might tangle in the semifinals with Andre Agassi, another in-form powerhouse.

Agassi ran off 15 straight points at the end of the first set to begin a 6-3, 6-3, 5-7, 6-1 rout of Alberto Mancini in their fourth-round match Sunday. His quarterfinal opponent is unseeded Jakob Halask, a strong Swiss player.

The other four men's quarterfinalists will emerge today from matches pitting top-seeded Stefan Edberg against Soviet Andrei Cherkasov; American Jim Courier against his unseeded practice partner, Todd Martin; 12th-seeded Michael Stich of Germany against French teen-ager Fabrice Santoro; and France's Arnaud Boetsch against Argentina's Franco Davin, both unseeded.

Is Chang, the winner here in 1989, getting accustomed to huge crowds cheering against him?

"I'm not getting used to it, but I am preparing myself when I know it might happen." Chang said. "I try to concentrate on the opponent and the ball."

In contrast to Chang, the top-seeded women have moved into the quarterfinals with little hassle from crowds or opponents.

Defending champion and No. 1 seed Monica Seles was the first top woman to lose a set in the tournament, but she rebounded to defeat an injured Sandra Cecchini 3-6, 6-3, 6-0.

The other top women all won in straight sets, including second-seeded Steffi Graf, third-seeded Gabriela Sabatini and No. 4 Mary Joe Fernandez. Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, the 1989 champion and No. 5 seed this year, and sixth-seeded Jana Novotna of Czechoslovakia, also won.

Conchita Martinez, the seventh seed, eliminated 10th-seeded Jennifer Capriati 6-3, 6-3 and then said she couldn't understand why some people considered it an upset.

"People shouldn't give her so much attention," Martinez said.

The seed with the toughest afternoon was No. 13 Nathalie Tauziat of France, who went into overtime to defeat Naoko Sawamatsu of Japan 7-5, 2-6, 12-10.

Chang, who opened his match by winning five straight games, repeatedly passed Forget when the serve-and-volleyer tried to rush the net and kept the French favorite off balance.

'Will Rogers Follies' wins six Tonys; Simon has best play

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Will Rogers Follies," lassoed six Tony Awards, including best musical of the 1990-91 Broadway season, and Neil Simon's Pulitzer Prize-winning "Lost in Yonkers" was named best play.

"Pound for pound, I think the cast of 'Lost in Yonkers' may be the best I've ever worked with," said Simon, whose comedy-drama told the story of two boys living for a year with a tyrannical grandmother.

"Lost in Yonkers followed "The Will Rogers Follies" with four awards at Sunday night's ceremonies. "Miss Saigon and "The Secret Garden" each won three.

Three stars of "Lost In Yonkers" won Tonys. Irene Worth was named best featured actress as the matriarch, Mercedes Ruehl best actress as her daughter and Kevin Spacey best featured actor as one of the two boys.

Simon, who won a Tony for best play in 1985 for "Biloxi Blues," got a hint he was a winner this year when his name was inadvertently announced 20 minutes early.

Actor Anthony Quinn was to announce the musical direction award when he opened an envelope and proclaimed Simon the winner. He said later he was handed the wrong envelope.

The musical direction award went to Tommy Tune for "The Will Rogers Follies." Tune, who also won for choreography — his eighth and ninth Tonys — accepted from Seattle, where he's appearing in "Bye, Bye Birdie."

A Ziegfeld-like recreation of the life of the famous Oklahoma humorist and rope spinner, "The Will Rogers Follies" also won awards for the score by composer Cy Coleman and lyricists Betty Comden and Adolph Green and for costumes and lighting.

The heavily-publicized "Miss Saigon," which tied "The Will Rogers Follies" with 11 nominations, won three of the four Tonys given out for acting in musicals.

Jonathan Pryce and Lea Salonga, who starred in the operatic "Madama Butterfly" story updated to the Vietnam War, were named best actor and actress and Hinton Battle won as best supporting actor.

Actors' Equity, the actors' union, initially denied Pryce permission to appear in the American production, saying it would be offensive to cast a white in the role. Salonga, a Filipino, was also turned down at first.

"This can't be for real," Salonga said, thanking God "for all of His blessings" and then Actors' Equity for "giving me the chance to come here to the United States."

"The Secret Garden" won Tonys in three musical categories, including best supporting actress for 11-year-old Daisy Eagan.

Playwright Marsha Norman won for writing the book for "The Secret Garden" and Heidi Landesman was cited for set design.

The John Guare play, "Six Degrees of Separation," about wealthy New Yorkers taken in by a college-age con man, received one award, for director Jerry Zaks. It had been expected to give "Lost in Yonkers" stiff competition. Nigel Hawthorne, who played writer C.S. Lewis in the already closed "Shadowlands," won as best actor.

"Fiddler on the Roof," which stars Topol and came to Broadway after a long national tour, was named best revival.

A second special Tony was given posthumously to the Rev. George Moore, pastor of St. Malachy's Roman Catholic Church, also known as the Actor's Chapel. Moore, who died last month, presided over the church located in the Broadway theater district.

Among the performers who presented awards were Audrey Hepburn, Tyne Daly, James Naughton, Jackie Mason, Raul Julia, Carol Channing, Denzel Washington, Joan Collins, Joel Grey, Lily Tomlin and Shirley MacLaine.

SWITZERLAND

In the past, tiny Switzerland has been famous for its mountains, watches and secret bank accounts. But in the future, it appears visitors will have to be satisfied with only the Alps and watches.

For generations the world's wealthy and crooked have been able to hold "Form B" Swiss bank accounts, identifiable only by a number. Banks were not required to know the identities of such depositors.

A lawyer, notary or trust administrator could open an account for a client and the bank would never know the actual depositor. Moreover, it was a violation of Swiss law for any bank employee to give out the name of a Form B account holder.

Currently, about 35,000 Form B accounts exist in Swiss banks.

These accounts became safe havens for those trying to hide their wealth — all kinds of people from organized crime figures, drug dealers and corrupt dictators to the rich trying to avoid taxes.

But under intense pressure from the United States and other countries, things began to change. Two years ago, the Swiss government ran into a multimillion dollar drug money laundering scandal that resulted in resignations, including the justice minister's. So the Federal Banking Commission has implemented new rules.

Effective in July, the identities of all Form B account holders must be on file. They will be made available to any foreign country or law enforcement agency with a legitimate right to know. The one exception is for an account holder involved in ongoing legal proceedings, including divorces.

Experts say the change will end the cycle of money laundering and hiding assets in Switzerland.

However, they expect that role will now fall to Hong Kong, Britain's Channel Islands and several Caribbean Island nations that still have bank secrecy laws.

NASA starts 3rd countdown for space shuttle Columbia

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA began the third countdown for space shuttle Columbia's biomedical research mission early today, after bad fuel sensors and malfunctioning navigational equipment halted two earlier efforts.

Shuttle managers are now aiming for a Wednesday morning liftoff. They resumed their countdown at 1 a.m.

NASA's second attempt to send Columbia on the 41st shuttle mission ended less than an hour before its scheduled Saturday morning launch. One of the shuttle's three navigational units failed to work properly and could not be fixed.

Workers installed a new unit Sunday. A fresh batch of laboratory animals for the astronauts' research assignments — 30 white rats and 2,478 tiny jellyfish — will be loaded into the spaceship Tuesday.

The week before, technicians had to put in new computer components and fuel temperature sensors. Trouble with those parts forced NASA to halt the first countdown on May 21, a day before scheduled liftoff.

Mission commander Bryan O'Connor and pilot Sidney Gutierrez flew to Edwards Air Force Base in California on Sunday to practice shuttle landings. The five other astronauts stayed behind at Kennedy Space Center and reviewed flight plans. Four of them — three physicians and one cell biologist — underwent further medical testing.

The four medical specialists were named in early 1984 to the nine-day research mission, which NASA hopes will improve what is known about human adaptation to space. The flight was delayed from the mid-1980s to August 1990 by the Challenger disaster in 1986. Last year's shuttle fuel leaks pushed the mission into May.

Their lives have changed considerably while they have waited.

Dr. James Bagian was single when he was assigned to the mission. He's now married with three children.

Dr. M. Rhea Seddon was married with a baby.

7-year-old San Antonio boy ends cross country flight

KILL DEVIL HILLS, N.C. (AP) — Seven-year-old Daniel Shanklin made his own bit of history today in a flight to the place where powered aviation began.

The soft-spoken Texan made his one-hour, 43-minute trip to First Flight Airport at Kill Devil Hills near Kitty Hawk, where the Wright Brothers made their historic flight. He hopes that will put him in the record books as the youngest pilot to fly cross-country.

He took off from Raleigh-Durham International Airport on his way to Kitty Hawk at 10:04 a.m. today.

History won't come without the chance to do some old-fashioned kid stuff, however.

"Go to the beach," Daniel said of his plans once he completes his journey. By landing on Monday, Daniel would be able to celebrate his eighth birthday on the ground Tuesday.

Daniel edged closer to his goal Saturday when he set his Cessna 172 down amidst the big passenger jets at Raleigh-Durham International Airport.

Daniel, flying with instructor Stuart Moon, landed shortly before 3 p.m. at the Raleigh-Durham airport. Their day started with a 9 a.m. departure from Athens, Ga., where Daniel and his grandparents spent the night. He got a haircut in the town, and even signed several autographs.

Just before Daniel arrived at the general aviation facility, his grandfather Ken Shanklin flew in with his wife, Colleen, and Daniel's brother, Michael, 9, who is also a child pilot.

Once the two planes were parked and their engines off, Michael walked over to his brother's plane. When Daniel got off, they walked together to the tail section, shook it briefly, then shook hands

"He's flown with his grandmother and me almost ever since the day he was born," said Shanklin, a plastic surgeon. "When he got old enough that I felt he could understand and handle the airplane, we offered him flying lessons. He jumped at the chance to take them, and things progressed from there."

Shanklin said his second-grade grandson had logged 30 hours of flying before he began his trip in San Diego last Sunday from Lindbergh Field.

And, said Shanklin, Daniel isn't missing anything that the average 7-year-old would be doing.

"He does them all. Flying is a relatively major part the last couple of months," he said. "But he plays video games, he enjoys swimming, he enjoys tennis, he enjoys hiking and camping and all the other things kids enjoy."

Daniel loves to fly, though, especially when he's departing for the next stop.

"Because you only have to do two things," the young boy said to two television cameramen and two reporters as he sat on the wheel of his aircraft. "Push the throttle in and lift the nose at the right time.

What's the hardest part of Daniel's trip?

"Mountain flying or landing. It's because I can't see out through the window."

Daniel sits at the controls with the aid of a booster seat and a back cushion that raises him above the dash. When landing, he has to look out a side window because the nose of the plane is up.

Moon said he didn't think the trip would come off until he sat in the plane with Daniel.

for the extension service office. The funds will cover a new telephone system installed last February.

Commissioners also set June 14 at 2:30 p.m. as the date for a meeting at the coliseum with county maintenance employees to train for the handling of hazardous material.

The court also voted to consolidate voting precincts for the Aug. 10 constitutional amendment election. Absentee voting begins July 22 and ends Aug. 6.

After the paying of bills, the court adjourned and began a public hearing in which Sue Smith of West Texas Council of Governments told commissioners that the county was eligible for some $3,000 for use in addressing county residents for the coming 911 emergency system.

Smith said the grant, from the Texas Department of Highways and Transportation, could be used for expenditures such as map purchases, personnel and mileage. The grant will end August 31.

County Judge Bob Doolittle presided at the meeting and commissioners present were Duaine Davis, Jerry Gannaway, Roy Idom and C.D. Gray Jr.

Police arrested some 800 students at the University of California at Berkeley in 1948, one day after the students stormed the administration building and staged a massive sit-in.

Police log many arrests over very busy weekend

Local police noted reports of theft and assault and recorded several arrests during the weekend reporting period.

Over the weekend, police noted some nine arrests including one felony charge. At 2:07 a.m. today in the 900 block of the Lubbock Hwy., 18-year-old William Curtis Jackson was arrested for felony driving while intoxicated and driving while license suspended. Also arrested was his 22-year-old male passenger for public intoxication.

Other arrests included four public intoxication arrests Sunday including: a 23-year-old male at 6:29 a.m. in the 3900 block of College Ave.; an 18-year-old male at 5:14 a.m. in the 2000 block of Ave. R.; a 20-year-old male in the 2200 block of Ave. 0 at 3:24 a.m.; and a 17-year-old male at 12:23 a.m. at 30th St. and Ave. H.

All subjects were transported to Scurry County Jail.

An arrest by Sweetwater police was noted in reference to a local theft report. At 9:15 a.m. Saturday, Charlsie Hinson came to police headquarters to report the theft of her wallet from Palomar Motel. Hinson later advised police that Beall's of Sweetwater notified her of a $300 charge on a credit card. Sweetwater police were notified and took a female juvenile into custody. She was later released to her parents.

Charges follow rampage

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A convicted killer suspected in the shotgun deaths of a pregnant 10-year-old girl and her two great-aunts was charged with capital murder and ordered held on $2 million bail.

Police are checking into leads that up to three more assailants were involved in last week's rampage at the girl's Fort Worth home, a homicide detective said.

Edward Lewis LaGrone, 34, of Arlington, who also has been charged with raping the child, Keisha Lloyd, was transferred to Tarrant County Jail from the Arlington City Jail Saturday and arraigned on the capital murder charges. He remained jailed Sunday night.

Bail in the sexual assault case had been set at $200,000.

LaGrone, who had once been a boyfriend of the girl's mother, was arrested on the sexual abuse charge May 30 after the shooting spree.

Sgt. Paul Kratz, a Fort Worth homicide detective, said police believe that the motive for the slayings was retaliation for Keisha's report to the police that LaGrone raped her and made her pregnant.

Police said Saturday that they have "pretty good information" that one to three other assailants were involved in the pre-dawn attack, but no further arrests had been made by Sunday night.

Police received a sexual assault complaint against LaGrone on May 25, but he had not been arrested on that charge at the time of the rampage because of a heavy caseload, said Arlington police spokesman Dee Anderson.

Pamela Lloyd, the mother of Keisha, said her daughter told her over the weekend that LaGrone had sexually assaulted her for more than a year. Ms. Lloyd said LaGrone had impregnated her daughter, who was 17 weeks pregnant.

Ms. Lloyd said LaGrone offered her $1,500 on May 27 to drop the sexual assault complaint she had filed against him.

Dear Abby

Daughter's Heartfelt Thank-You Was Dad's Most Precious Gift

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1991 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This is a belated thank-you letter for something you printed in your column several years ago.

I lost my father suddenly last year. As difficult as his death was, I had peace of mind knowing that I had left nothing unsaid. Because of a Father's Day column you wrote, I sent my father a three-page letter instead of a necktie. It was a difficult letter to write because I had never verbalized my feelings about him, but once I started to tell him how important he had been in my life, and how much I owed him for raising me to be a caring, responsible, productive person, it was easy.

I will never forget the expression on his face as he read my letter. When he finished, he told me that he had never before received such a precious gift.

My father died knowing how much I loved and appreciated him. Abby, please make that suggestion to your readers every year. Thank you from the bottom of my heart.

JUDY THRASHER,
DEFIANCE, OHIO

DEAR JUDY: Here's your letter, dedicated to the memory of your beloved father. And thank you, Judy, for giving me permission to use your name when I telephoned you.

DEAR ABBY: Unfortunately, your advice to "Anonymous in the USA," the working couple who had never filed income tax returns, fell short of the best advice they should have received.

Contacting the IRS in this situation without first seeking the professional advice of a qualified, experienced CPA or tax attorney is asking for more, not less, trouble. While it's possible that they might emerge unharmed, the risk of far harsher treatment is too high.

Much better for them to consult with an experienced tax accountant or attorney so they can learn their rights as well as their obligations. So much of this couple's financial and emotional future is at stake; they need expert outside advice on this kind of problem, Abby.

In the past, you have advised people who have legal problems to seek legal advice; this situation is no different. Please correct your advice to this couple before too many people follow it.

DONALD B. WALTER,
CPA, SEATTLE

DEAR MR. WALTER: I just did, thanks to you.

DEAR ABBY: Was it you who wrote:

DEAR HARRY: No, but thanks for the compliment. The author was Ogden Nash, who must have been fixated on ladies' derrieres because he also wrote:

"Deck your lower limbs in pants, my sweet.
"You have seen yourself advance,
"But have you seen yourself retreat?"

Peer pressure may have led to brutal murder

BOSTON (AP) — It wasn't only that Kimberly Rae Harbour had been gang-raped, beaten, stabbed 132 times and left to die.

It was the possible motive that put her murder in its full, grim focus.

"There was nothing to do and so I guess we had the impression of going out to the field and kill somebody," a 15-year-old among the eight teen-agers arrested in the case told detectives.

The eight, ranging in age from 15 to 19, face murder charges in the killing last Halloween. A judge is expected to rule later this month whether all eight will be tried as adults or if the five who were 16 or younger when the attack occurred will be tried as juveniles.

Harbour, 26, was walking with a friend when the two were accosted by a gang of youths. The friend escaped, but Harbour was stabbed, raped, kicked and beaten. Some of those arrested said she pleaded for her life, telling her attackers she had a 7-year-old daughter and offering to have sex with them if they didn't hurt her.

The attack "goes beyond imagination," said Assistant District Attorney Daniel Mullane. But several experts said it isn't that unusual for groups of people to engage in a level of violence that would be unusual for one person to carry out on their own.

"People will do horrible, brutal, sadistic things in a group that they would never do on their own," said James Fox, a Northeastern University criminal justice professor.

As examples, he cited the New Bedford rape case, in which a woman was raped on a barroom pool table while onlookers cheered, and the brutal "Manson Family" slayings of actress Sharon Tate and others in 1969. Others noted similarities between the Boston attack and the gang-rape of a jogger in Central Park in 1989 that introduced the term "wilding" into the national vocabulary.

"It's as if the collective sense of conscience is spread over the whole group of people, compared to residing in one individual," said Fred Kelso, a psychologist who evaluates juvenile offenders for the Massachusetts court system.

For troubled teen-agers, organized gangs or groups of friends can fill the void left when families disintegrate.

"It's almost like 'Lord of the Flies,' " said Dr. George Hartman, a psychiatrist who also evaluates youthful offenders. "When the external structures break down, the gang takes over."

Videos, television shows and movies that portray women as willing victims also may contribute to violence, experts say.

"Violence by males against women is a lot of times motivated by depersonalizing the woman," said Paul Tracy, a Northeastern University criminal justice professor who specializes in juvenile crime.

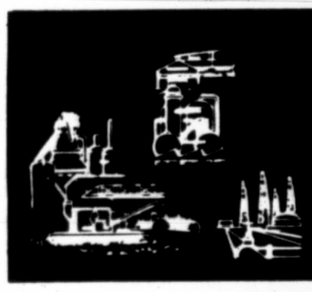

In their statements to police, the teen-agers charged with Harbour's murder said the evening began innocently enough.

"They was supposed to have a party, but they didn't," one 16-year-old told police.

Instead, police said, the group headed to one youth's house, drank beer there for a few hours, then went looking for another party. According to a taped statement by another 16-year-old suspect, someone suggested they rob prostitutes instead.

The suspects allegedly then came upon Harbour and her friend. The other woman was hit on the head with a stick and robbed, but escaped the mob.
