Texas Likely Target

WASHINGTON (AP) Dallas, Houston and New Orleans, along with the Texas and Louisiana Gulf Coast refineries, are the most likely targets of a limited nuclear attack, a governor study shows.

These would be the targets should an enemy want a limited attack to disrupt the U.S. economy, said a report from the Congressional Office of Technology Assessment.

In a hypothetical case, if the Soviet Union attacks the U.S. energy supply with 10 SS-18 missiles, each with eight 1-ton warheads, almost half of the coverage area would be in a series of nuclear "footprints" in Texas and Louisiana, including Dallas, Houston and New Orelans, the report said.

'New Spirit' Pledged

TORONTO (AP) Joe Clark, a small-town politician whose Progressive Conservatives toppled the formidable Pierre Elliott Trudeau and the 16-year reign of his Liberal Party in Canada's election, pledged today to put "a new spirit, a new life" into this divided land.

Trudeau, who became prime minister on a wave of "Trudeaumania" that swept Canada 11 years ago, now becomes the leader of the opposition in the House of Commons.

Shoot Demonstrators

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) Police shot and killed 14 men, women and children trying to take food to militants occupying the Venezuelan Embassy. It was the second time in two weeks President Carlos Humberto Romero's forces fired on demonstrators and raised the number killed by his military regime to at least 37.

Vance Meets Thatcher

LONDON (AP) Secretary of State Cyrus Vance meets with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher today, amid signs of a British tilt toward the new black-majority government in Rhodesia and away from the previous U.S.-British idea that guerrillas had to have a say in it.

Over Shouts Of Texans...

Oil Control Resolution Passes

WASHINGTON (AP) - Texas members of the House Democratic Caucus were out-shouted today by opponents of President Carter's plan to lift oil price controls.

"I realize that the cards were stacked against us on this issue," said U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm of Stamford after the caucus made its voice vote against decontrol.

"They (resolution supporters) can take full credit for any future gasoline lines."

A roll call vote on the resolution was pushed off until Thursday morning when the caucus ran out of time but most Texans had voted in the minority on an earlier test vote.

Stenholm criticized the caucus' decision to cut off debate without considering an amendment he had offered or any other amendments.

Stenholm's amendment in favor of coal price controls was sincere and not a delaying tactic, he said.

"I will present my argument later on the floor of the House," he said.

The caucus' passage of the resolution is not binding on its members.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth told the caucus on its first day of debate that approval of the resolution will embarrass Carter and the Democratic Party.

U.S. Rep. Toby Moffett of Connecticut, the resolution's sponsor, and its supporters said the caucus' approval would be a repudiation of Carter's energy policy.

Texas caucus members lined up almost solidly against the resolution in what was billed as a test vote Tuesday, a losing attempt to table it. Texans voted 17-3 to table the resolution, but the motion failed 153-82.

"I think this vote was our minimum strength," Moffett said.

That unplanned roll call, however, forced the caucus to recess when time ran out before a vote on the resolution.

The three Texans voting with the majority were U.S. Reps. Bob Eckhardt and Mickey Leland of Houston and Henry B. Gonzalez of San Antonio.

Carter does not need congressional approval to lift controls, but Congress can attempt to restore them.

"The president of the United States took a courageous stand," Wright said as he urged defeat of the resolution.

The Fort Worth Democrat said federal regulation of the domestic oil industry since the 1973 Arab embargo has served only to speed up the flow of dollars abroad.

"Let's not look for scapegoats, gentlemen. Let's look for solutions," Wright said.

Poll On Memorial Day Plans Here

The Snyder Chamber of Commerce is taking an informal poll of its retail business members to determine the number planning to be open on Memorial Day.

Bill Warner, chamber manager, said the chamber plans to take such polls prior to all major holidays as a service to shoppers. Letters were sent out earlier to managers of retail members of the chamber and all are being urged to respond promptly so that results may be tabulated prior to the weekend.

PROCLAMATION SIGNED--Snyder Mayor John Fagin has signed a proclamation that May 25 and 26 be set aside in the city as Buddy Poppy Days. Buddy Poppies, made by disabled American War Veterans, will be sold those days and the proceeds from the sale will be funneled into organizations and agencies which help disabled veterans, their families, and the families of deceased veterans. Shown with Fagin are 6-year-old Denise Blythe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Blythe, and Nell Fowler, a member of the auxiliary unit of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Mrs. Fowler and Roy Hendricks, not shown, are the co-chairmen of the drive sponsored by the VFW. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

Ask Us

Q--If Memorial Day is a national holiday, why do Snyder Schools have classes that day?

A--Memorial Day, like several other national holidays, has not been observed as a school holiday here for some time, due primarily to the fact that pupils, teachers and most parents seem to prefer longer periods off at Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter. The schools are required by law to be in session 183 work-days per school year, and if all of the national holidays were observed by dismissing classes, they would have to start earlier in the fall and-or continue later in the spring. For example, this year, if Memorial Day had been a holiday, it would have been necessary to have scheduled the last day on Monday June 4. So, national holidays such as Veterans Day, George Washington's Birthday, Lincoln's Birthday, etc., are not observed as school holidays, explains Jack Gorman, assistant superintendent for administration and personnel.

Interest Ceiling Bill Only Needs Governor's OK

AUSTIN (AP)—One of the Legislature's most controversial bills, raising the ceiling on home loan interest rates, is on its way to Gov. Bill Clements' desk.

But interest rates will remain at their present level until Aug. 27 because sponsors and savings and loan lobbyists were unable to muster the 100 House votes to put it into immediate effect.

The House sent the bill to Clements when it voted 92-41 on Tuesday to accept changes made by the Senate.

Rep. Jerry "Nub" Donaldson, D-Gatesville, the sponsor, said today he had given up on adding the eight votes needed for immediate effect.

"I just put my file on the bill away. It's going to the governor," Donaldson said. "We worked as hard as we could."

Eleven representatives had abstained from voting on the bill, apparently because of possible conflicts of interests, and Donaldson was unable to persuade them to vote for it.

Clements is expected to sign the bill. He proposed its essential provisions after deciding it was necessary to assure a supply of mortgage money in Texas.

The bill would set the ceiling on home loan interest at two percentage points above the average monthly rate for 10-year U.S. Treasury notes and bonds - currently just above 9 percent. The absolute maximum would be 12 percent.

The new ceiling would be in force only until Sept. 1, 1981, unless the 1981 Legislature extends it.

House members accepted the Senate's decision to remove a provision outlawing "points" that lenders charge sellers of homes.

They also went along with the Senate's action to allow penalties for prepayment of a home loan if they are required by an agency created by the federal government.

Donaldson said the Federal National Mortgage Association ("Fannie Mae") requires penalties, but usually waives them if they conflict with a state law.

Weather Modification Group Attracts Clouds

There is something about the HIPLEX spring briefing that brings out the best in the weather.

When the High Plains Experimental Weather Modification Project participants assembled in Big Spring Monday to check signals for the 1979 program, the elements cooperated by providing seedable clouds. The project operations are based at the Big Spring Municipal Airport.

Representatives were on hand from the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, Texas Department of Water Resources, Texas A and M and Texas Tech Universities, Colorado River Municipal Water Dis-

Mayor Louie Welch of Houston made a last-minute point at the conclusion of an audience with the Texas Highway Commission concerning a Port-to-Plains highway Monday.

"Pray for me," he said. "I have to drive back to Houston on 290."

There was some joking and possibly there will be some raised eyebrows in the future as interests in Snyder, Sweetwater, Abilene, Brownwood, Austin and Houston push for a new highway through their towns instead of another route to the west because the members of the three-man Texas Highway Commission now are from Abilene, Austin and Houston. Sam Waldrop of Abilene is the chairman.

But the people carrying the ball for this route figure they have plenty of ammunition on their side, regardless of the make-up of the commission, which everybody expects to make a decision based on needs and services. For one thing, the route that would follow U.S. 84 through Snyder would serve hundreds of thousands more people than any route that could be devised to the west of us.

Mulberry Square Productions, which achieved prominance by producing G-rated "Benji" for motion picture theatres and followed up with other "G" films that did well, is about to release its first PG film, we are advised. Producer Joe Camp and Mulberry Square had come to be regarded as synomymous with "G" but Camp says "The Double McGuffin" due out this summer will carry a PG rating because "today a G rating is a turn-off to adults."

All G-rated films now are considered kiddie films, says Camp, who says all he wants to do is entertain people and that adults always have been his primary audience.

That's not going to leave many G's on the scene.

Refuse To Postpone Planned Execution

AUSTIN (AP) The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today refused to postpone the scheduled execution Friday of Anderson Hughes, sentenced to die by lethal injection in the slaying of a Mesquite policeman.

Hughes is scheduled to die early Friday morning at the state prison at Huntsville. If the death sentence is carried out, Hughes will be the first person to be executed by injection of a lethal chemical.

The Death Row inmate was convicted Dec. 12, 1974, in the shooting death of Travis E. Williams.

The U.S. Supreme Court refused to stay Hughes' execution on Nov. 27, 1978.

His conviction was upheld May 8, 1978, but the state criminal appeals court and he was scheduled to die June 20, 1979.

However, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell held up the death sentence on June 9, 1978, until the entire high court could review the matter.

Although the full court denied Hughes' request, Justices William Brennan and Thurgood Marshall said the execution should be stopped because "the death penalty in all circumstances constitutes cruel and unusual punishment."

Locals Attend WTCC Meet On Tourism

Representatives of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce and the Scurry County Board of Development were participating in a tourist development meeting of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce this afternoon in Abilene.

Bill Warner, chamber manager, said the WTCC is especially interested in promoting conventions and other gatherings in West Texas cities and towns, and the meeting this afternoon was expected to devote considerable time to this subject. Other topics, such as problems related to gasoline supplies also were due to be discussed.

Local representatives attending the session included Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Art Feinsod of the Snyder chamber's tourist development committee, and Guy Sullivan, chairman of the Board of County Development.

'Killer Bees' Triumphant Welcome Stung By Boos

AUSTIN (AP)—The "Killer Bees" - heroes to some, mere fugitive senators to others - returned to a triumphant welcome splattered with boos Tuesday.

AWOL for five days, the 12 senators virtually assured defeat of a presidential primary bill thought to be tailor-made for former Texas Gov. John Connally by robbing the Senate of a quorum.

Ten fled to a one-room "safe house" within 15 minutes of the Capitol, where they spent a great deal of time reading stories of their flight.

One later made himself lost in Houston, the state's largest and most populous city, another was in Oklahoma and a third disappeared near the Mexican border.

Meanwhile, on orders of Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, the Texas Rangers - the pride of the state's law officers - searched the huge state for the absent senators.

The best they could do was the arrest Sunday of Sen. Gene Jones' brother, whose mustache should have set him apart from the clean-shaven senator.

The Killer Bees - also known as the "Dirty Dozen" and the "Tennis Shoe Gang" - announced in a telephone call to Hobby on Tuesday they would return at 3 p.m.

In keeping with Senate habits, they were 12 minutes late, arriving at the main entrance to the Capitol in a motorcade escorted by state troopers.

Applause broke out as they emerged from the cars and were swarmed by the news media.

The ovation in the Senate chamber, mindful of a political convention, was even louder but boos were audible.

One reporter said some of the 19 senators who stayed behind had booed the Killer Bees' entrance through a crowd of smiling relatives, aides and House members.

Their five-day absence squeezed the Senate for time since the 140-day legislative session ends at midnight Monday, and Sen. A.R. "Babe" Schwartz proclaimed, "I'm absolutely con-

the wrong approach

As the United States, Canada and other Western democracies have discovered repeatedly in dealings with other parts of the world, standards of freedom and honor are not held in high regard in many other lands.

Whether it is oil and OPEC, emigration and other human rights in the Soviet Union, tribal tyrants such as Idi Amin in Africa, Cuba's foreign legion of revolutionists or United Nations debates on almost any subject, the course of freedom has few true friends in the world.

It is well to remember that in light of some of the events now occurring. UNESCO, one of the United Nations' more powerful agencies, has underway a plan to stifle news reporting in a large part of the world in the guise of "protecting" journalists.

First announced last year, the plan would establish news gathering guidelines in any country which feels threatened by the free reporting of internal events. That means primarily the communist world and third world countries.

By substituting legitimate news gathering organizations with state-controlled agencies, UNESCO's plan plays directly into the hands of authoritarian regimes everywhere. To oversee this effort, a review committee has been established by the U.N.'s General Assembly. It's composition is revealing: 6 members from the West, 3 from the communist countries and 32 from the third world, whose members include no more than a handful of democracies.

Rather than trying to reform the myriad dictatorships among its members, the U.N. is busily trying to eliminate what vestiges of information freedom remain. The effort should be resisted relentlessly.

legislative sharing

Job sharing, a small but growing phenomenon in the private employment sector, has gained a foothold in the political world as well - at least in the state of Washington, where the House membership this year was evenly divided (49-49) between Democrats and Republicans.

To avert the paralysis that could have resulted from this partisan deadlock, the Washington House simply appointed one Democrat and one Republican each to the offices of speaker, floor leader, chief clerk, sergeant-at-arms and committee chairmanships.

Amazingly enough, the job-sharing worked relatively smoothly throughout the legislative session. The two speakers, luckily indeed, were close personal friends and managed to cooperate nicely in the top leadership post.

Committee co-chairmen and other forcibly paired leaders learned to work together amicably, and political bickering was greatly reduced. Republicans and Democrats alike pronounced the experiment a success.

The Minnesota House, the only other legislature in the nation with a similar partisan deadlock (67-67), didn't attempt the job-sharing approach used in Washington but instead tried to parcel out leadership posts and committee majorities more or less equitably between the two parties.

Every year I like to set goals for myself. This year is no exception. For 1979, I vowed I would (a) find inner peace, (b) study the religions of the world, (c) buy a bathing suit.

I was going to compromise the third goal when I got out my old two-piece bathing suit this year. Only one piece of it fit me. It is not important for anyone to know which piece it was, It is sufficient to say that if I appeared in it in public it would totally destroy my aura of mystery.

I don't buy a new bathing suit every year. It isn't because it represents a major purchase. It is because if I wanted that kind of pain I'd run the Boston Marathon or give birth in a Volkswagon.

To begin with, I am never psychologically ready for the styles. When I heard that this year's bathing suits were one piece, I had an entirely different concept in my mind as to what they would look like. Imagine my surprise when I picked up a one-piece suit and it caught on my ring finger.

The nymphs who appear in the ads lead me to believe the artist is sketching from memory. There hasn't been a girl with those measurements since Scarlett O'Hara trussed herself into a 16-inch corset.

To survive the summer at the pool I had to devise a list of Rules for Swimming.

1. Never frequent pools with full-length mirrors in the dressing room.

2. Do not go into the pool area until you have seen three women who look more rotten than you do in a suit.

3. If someone is wearing the same floral suit, do not stand close unless her flowers are opened at the same size as yours.

4. Make sure the chlorine foot bath is deep enough to tread water in.

5. Do not go into the water until three hours after you've eaten or your stomach goes down, whichever comes first.

6. A beach ball, a folding chair and an air mattress may seem cumbersome, but when worn over the effects of a long winter.

7. When sunning, hold a child on your lap.

If swim suits get any more daring, I may have to learn how to swim and hug the bottom of the pool.

Nostalgia is remembering the ol' swimmin' hole and forgetting the old bedsprings and broken bottles on its bottom.

We think of herbs as a neccessity for a chef's kitchen cabinet, but they are useful elsewhere in that they can repel moths, polish furniture, shoo away flies and mosquitoes, clean pots and pans and keep cats' claws off furniture.

Some of the useful ones for households are not as familiar to our ears as others used to flavor favorite meals daily, but are obtainable, according to the almanac.

A few springs of fresh basil will keep flies off food in the kitchen, and a bouquet of it in an open window sill will discourage them from looking around the screen for open spaces to crawl through.

Moths are discouraged by a number of herbs, and the best way to use these is in mothbags. Some of the herbs that can be wrapped in small bags or fancier ones made from net, include rue, tansy, wormwood, southerwood, lavender, peppermint, rosemary, costmary and santolina. Also thyme, lemon verbena, pennyroyal, clove, lemon peel and peppercorns.

Some of these are recognized for their medicinal scent, others for pleasant scents. A touch of lemon or clove oil added to the mixture will help hold the scent, and therefore increase its effectiveness.

A little sachet of herbs will perk up the musty odors of closets, trunks, attics and storage chests.

To freshen a smelly kitchen from unpleasant odors like those left from frying fish, simmer a pan of water on the stove containing some of the odorous spices or herbs. Cloves will do the trick, but a few pieces of a broken cinnamon stick and some whole allspice will even be better.

Those with fireplaces can add these to a few burning coals for a room freshener.

While everyone is familiar with the effect of catnip, fresh or dried, upon cats, the effect of lemon balm is less well known. If kitty scratches at the furniture, rub the wood areas with fresh lemon balm leaves. This has a duel effect it; keeps cats away and polishes the wood at the same time. We're familiar with all the lemon furniture polish available on grocery shelves.

If you are troubled by mice, you can either repel them with mint or wormwood or attract them to your traps set with anise. Sprigs of fresh mint laid around baseboards or attic sills will discourage mice, as will wormwood.

With outings, picnics and many nights of baseball watching coming up, we're reminded it's mosquito season, too. Pennyroyal can be used on arms and legs to repel mosquitoes. It has the odor of citronella which some of us have used to ward off mosquitoes and fully understand why it would turn them off.

The herb and spice story is endless, but with summer approaching with its many troublesome pests, these helpful hints are good to keep in mind, and we can even grow some of the solutions to problem pests in our own little herb gardens.

rise of enterpreneurs

NEW YORK (AP) — While some Americans worry about bigness in business and mourn what they see as a loss of individuality, there are others who claim the seeds of a new self-reliance are being sown.

Joseph Mancuso is one. From his encompassing perspective, he sees able people rebelling against bigness, peaceably and constructively, and asserting and expressing themselves as entrepreneurs.

It's a celebration, not a wake, says Mancuso, 38, holder of certain credentials to make such an assessment: Harvard Business School, author of seven business books, teacher, businessman, director, entrepreneur.

It is this last-named description that Mancuso prizes most highly, having recently founded the Center for Entrepreneurial Management, a nonprofit organization to develop and promote creative management.

Evidence of a growing spirit of risk taking is all about us, he says. That it is often overlooked, is to him simply a fault of perception.

Since 1965, he continues, at least 250 college level entrepreneurship courses have been developed, many on campuses that once considered themselves suppliers of managerial talent to establishment companies.

Several entrepreneurial institutions have sprung up: his own, based in Worcester, Mass.; the Entrepreneurship Institute, in Columbus, Ohio; and the School for Entrepreneurs, in Tarrytown, N.Y.

Mancuso's effort, which already has 1,000 paid members ($71 a year) offers "software" such as seminars, books, tapes and a newsletter at discount. The seminars are held mainly in the Worcester-Boston area.

While entrepreneurs usually work for themselves, in Mancuso's view they may work for others too, including large companies, if given the freedoms their personalities demand. His membership includes both.

A number of magazines also attest to the movement. Two were founded this spring: Inc., for new and small businesses, claims a circulation of 450,000. Venture claims an initial circulation of 75,000.

Others include Successful Business, a year-old quarterly published in Knoxville, Tenn.; Small Business Reporter and Business Owner, each 2½ years old; and the Journal of Applied Management, four years old.

The entrepreneurial base, that Mancuso and others expect will pay economic dividends in the 1980s, also includes a proliferation of seminars on establishing and managing your own business.

commentary

donald f. graff

Turkey, the West's oldest ally in the Mideast, NATO's strategic eastern anchor, is in trouble. Again.

The country is virtually bankrupt, economically and politically. It is billions of dollars in debt to foreign creditors to whom it has been unable to make payments since 1977. Industry is operating at less than half capacity while inflation races ahead at better than 50 percent annually. Unemployment estimates run up to 25 percent of the total work force.

Political terrorism is widespread with American servicemen now added to the list of victims along with prominent Turkish public figures shot down in the streets. Sunni Moslems, the majority in Turkey, are clashing in the eastern provinces with Shiites, who spearheaded the revolution in neighboring Iran. The Kurdish minority is restless. Martial law is in effect in 13 provinces and the issue of extending it to additional troubled areas could bring down Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit's minority government.

Turkey is, understandably, looking to its Western allies for help, initially financial. It wants $1.5 billion in immediate cash and credits.

It is not likely to get that much, but it will get something. The Carter administration is pressing for congressional approval of an emergency $100 million and is talking in terms of total aid of $375 million this year and another $350 million next year.

West Germany, France, Britain and possibly Japan are also expected to ante up so that the eventual package may well reach $1 billion.

That will certainly help, but will it be sufficient? It may stave off economic collapse, but long-term recovery is going to require further sacrifices that an already pressed public may refuse to accept. Therein lies the danger of political collapse.

A grim situation, to be sure. But why should the West, the United States in particular, be so concerned?

The most obvious answers are found in Turkey's strategic situation and its military role. Turkey has the longest border with the Soviet Union of any nation in the Western alliance. It controls the straits from the Black Sea through which Soviet warships must pass to reach the Mediterranean. Turkish armed forces, numbering some 600,000 men, are among the largest in NATO, although for years they have been deployed as much against supposed-ally Greece as any likely Communist foe.

And now that revolution has neutralized Iran, the electronic monitoring posts the United States maintains in Turkey will be essential to the verification of Soviet compliance with the terms of the SALT II treaty.

All this is valid enough, but Turkey also has a deeper significance for the West. Turkey was the first and has been the most determined society in the Middle East to break with the medieval past to join the modern world. The revolution from the top that the shah attempted to impose upon Iran was carried through a half century earlier in Turkey by Kemal Attaturk.

Women were liberated from the veil, not necessarily willingly. Western ways were adopted and the structure of a parliamentary democracy established. Outwardly, Turkey became a contemporary secular state. Inwardly, however, it has yet to completely adjust to its new structure.

Lacking the oil of its Arab neighbors and other significant resources, Turkey's economic development has been a long struggle. And politically it has suffered during the postwar era from what might be termed too much democracy, a fragmentation of parties in the Italian and pre-de Gaulle French style that has frustrated stable government.

Now that Iran has gone with the revolutionary winds, however, Turkey with all its problems and faults is more important to the West than ever, both as a military ally and as a political hope for future stability in an otherwise highly unstable region. If Turkey goes under, the loss will be not only to the Turks, but to all of the West.

Under the circumstances, it would appear that the Turks are going to be able to count on their friends in need.

letter to editor

To The Editor:

The International Year of the Child has accomplished its goal in Sweden. Because of the IYC the Swedes have recently adopted a law prohibiting spanking by the child's parents.

It's hard to believe that this very same idea is being circulated through the United States today. If parents in the U.S. don't speak now, they too may some day be required to withhold proper discipline.

Jimmy Carter has already designated 1979 as International Year of the Child. He has appointed a 25-member commission chaired by Mrs. Andrew Young.

The leaders of IYC would have you believe that the goal is merely to help poor, neglected or abused children. But when you realize that the instigators of the IYC were the Women's International Democratic Federation (WIDF), an old-time Communist Women's group, you wonder what they could possibly offer our children.

WIDF presented the Year of the Child resolution to the United Nations in 1976. It was adopted and the UN has asked UNICEF to be the agency in charge of implementation.

What do the IYC leaders hope to achieve in the United States. In reading their literature it is very clear they hope to liberate our children from traditional morals and values, from parental authority, from nationalism and patriotism, from capitalism, from practices which may foster racial, religious, or any other form of discrimination.

This will be accomplished through non-governmental organizations, child-development centers and the educational system beginning at the age two.

In March, a Texas Family Institute was held in Austin, in which IYC ideas were discussed. Guests speaker, Dr. Norton Grubb, Economist of the University of Texas stated, "It is inappropriate to leave the family isolated from the government. The family unit is out of date. We must change the concept that the family is a private institution and island-walled off or a refuge. The role of men and women is raising children will be changed."

Last Friday in Austin the House voted on HCR 64 which would form a IYC commission in Texas. It passed 45-73 in favor of the bill.

In the long course of history, freedom has died in many ways; freedom has died on the battlefield; it has been crushed under the heel of a jack boot; it has been consumed in a holocaust; it has been snuffed out by dark conspiracies. But the most ignominious death of all is when freedom dies in its sleep.

I urge you to get involved. The future of your children lies in your hands.

When a hand is played a couple of hundred thousand times it is almost impossible to get a complete top or bottom score. Nevertheless, we are going to show a couple of results that would come close if all results could be tabulated together.

At nearly all tables someone will play at a low part score and probably make it or go down a trick or possibly two. At this one table North, who liked to open the bidding and never bid a four-card major, opened one diamond. South didn't know exactly what to do and just raised to two.

Now West, a free spirit, elected to compete with a takeout double. East responded with two spades and South bid his six-card club suit. When this got to [illegible] Spades again wanted to double, but he got no chance. South went to four clubs and West doubled.

He had an interesting reason for this double. He was looking at three aces and he thought that his partner would have just one diamond. Therefore, he led the three of diamonds.

East produced the ace much to West's happy surprise and promptly led the suit back. West was then able to collect tricks with his own three aces and give East a diamond ruff to come out with plus 500 on a non-descript sort of hand.

Tempting Beef Recipes For Lazy Days Of Spring

SALAD MOLD USES GROUND VARIETY MEAT

When the warm, lazy days of spring arrive, let a main dish salad take over the important entree role at luncheon and supper. There's nothing more refreshing!

One of the most delightful of salads can be made with a variety meat, ground smoked tongue. After this meat, with its unusually appealing flavor, has been served sliced, hot or cold, there's usually enough left over to make several cups of ground meat. Use it for this salad, advises meat authority, Reba Staggs of the National Livestock and Meat Board.

JELLIED SMOKED TONGUE

3 cups ground, cooked smoked tongue
2 tablespoons unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
2½ cups hot beef stock or bouillon
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon grated onion
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons minced green pepper
2 tablespoons minced parsley
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup mayonnaise
Slice, unpeeled cucumbers

Soak gelatin in cold water. Dissolve gelatin in hot beef stock or bouillon. Add lemon juice, sugar, onion and Worcestershire sauce. Chill until slightly thick. Mix tongue, green pepper, parsley, celery and mayonnaise and add to thickened gelatin. Pour into a greased 1½-quart ring mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on platter and circle with cucumber slices.

8 to 10 servings.

COOKED BEEF INTO TEMPTING BROILED SANDWICHES:

Sandwiches are more than slices of bread with something in between or on top. For those who like them hot, they can be a lighthearted summer meal in themselves.

When leftover beef is on hand make these special Broiled Beef Sandwiches for a hearty lunch, suggests Reba Staggs, home economist with the National Livestock and Meat Board.

BROILED BEEF SANDWICHES

2 cups chopped or ground cooked beef
3 tablespoons catsup
3 tablespoons pickle relish
1 tablespoon mayonnaise
1 can (4½ oz.) chopped ripe olives, drained
¾ teaspoon salt
8 slices rye bread, buttered
½ to 1 cup coarsely grated Cheddar cheese
1 teaspoon oregano

Grind or chop meat. To the meat add the catsup, pickle relish, mayonnaise, olives and salt. Spread meat mixture over bread. Arrange on baking sheet. Top with cheese and sprinkle with oregano, if desired. Broil 3 inches from heat approximately 5 minutes, until cheese is melted and beef heated through. 8 sandwiches.

Musee Du Louvre Lands Paintings

WASHINGTON (AP)- The painting "Dante and Virgil in Hell" by Eugene Delacroix has been lent to the National Gallery of Art by the Musee du Louvre of Paris for showing in a gallery of paintings of the French Romantic period.

Also on loan from the Louvre are Delacroix's "Portrait of Chopin" and Gustave Courbet's "Portrait of Berlioz," as well as Delacroix's "Paganini," lent by the Phillips Collection in Washington.

The paintings will be on view with other works of the period through Sept. 3.

Paul von Hindeburg was elected president of Germany in 1925.

School Breakfast Rules Changed By House Bill

AUSTIN (AP)—Rep. Sue McBee angrily objected Tuesday night that fellow legislators had insinuated she was taking food from the mouths of school children.

Opponents of her bill on the school breakfast program painted verbal pictures of kids trying to hear teachers over the growling of their empty stomachs.

That was the kind of emotional debate that went on before the House voted tentative approval, 76-62, to Mrs. McBee's bill.

Final consideration still is needed before the measure can go to the Senate.

The bill would let school districts stop serving breakfast to needy children at any school where less than half the eligible youngsters participate for 60 consecutive schools days.

Also gaining tentative approval, 91-39, was a bill allowing the handful of districts without school cafeterias to abandon their breakfast programs.

A 1977 state law requires each school district to join the federally funded breakfast program if at least 10 percent of its pupils are eligible. Children receive breakfast either free or at reduced prices.

Mrs. McBee, D-Del Rio, said the breakfast program "is obviously working well in some areas and it is obviously failing miserably in others."

The Texas School Administartors Association backs the bill, and administrators have testified they resented being ordered by the state to participate in the breakfast program.

Rep. Paul Elizondo, D-San Antonio, said the bill was "convenient for school administrators who are not handling this program effectively" but would hurt children.

"This is the year of the child. We should not start it by refusing to feed hungry kids in the morning," Elizondo said.

Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, said the "bottom line" was "not local control. It is hungry children."

One child who is dropped from the breakfast program would be "one less child who is able to concentrate and learn," Washington said.

Mrs. McBee accused opponents of the bill of demagoguery.

"I deeply resent the insinuations that I am unfeeling about the children of Texas because nothing is further from the truth.

"The bill doesn't take a single crumb of food out of a single child's mouth and if it did, I wouldn't be carrying it," she said.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Distention problem

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 42-year-old woman, 5 feet 1, 124 pounds and I've always had a pouchy stomach. Now I'm distended from under the breast bone to the bladder area almost all the time. I exercise regularly and bicycle but I still look quite pregnant.

Four years ago I had a hemorrhoid operation and subsequently a lower GI study and was not advised of any problems. I've been through the cancer prevention center and was told I was in good health.

When I asked about bloating I was advised that some people are allergic to some foods but my diet is simple meat and potatoes — no rich foods. I probably eat a little more sugar than I need. My bowel movements are regular but I do have a gassy system and I feel nauseated at times.

I have stretch marks that I never had when I was pregnant. I would be very interested in your opinion and what course of action you feel I should take.

DEAR READER — Generalized distension of the degree you are describing has to be associated with the accumulation of gas in the colon. It comes from either swallowing air or the fermentation of incompletely digested foods and sometimes from both. About 10 percent of the general population does suffer from severe gas difficulties. Everyone has gas except it doesn't accumulate or isn't trapped in the digestive tube in such a way to cause the kind or problems you are describing.

I'm sure you eat something else besides meat and potatoes. Perhaps you use milk. A reasonable percentage of the adult population has milk intolerance because they can't split the lactose sugar in milk. It's a double sugar and has to be split into single sugars before it can be absorbed through the intestinal wall and into the bloodstream.

Anyone having the degree of difficulty you describe should see a specialist in gastroenterology. If you should have a food problem such as milk intolerance, it won't show anything at all on the X ray but your history of the type of food consumption and general characteristics will tell your doctor what the problem may be.

To give you more detailed information on such problems, I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-6, Controlling Gaseousness. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

In the meantime, I would suggest that you eliminate all milk and milk products, eliminate coffee, including decaffeinated products, tea, cocoa, chocolate and all soda water drinks of any kind.

I don't want you to stay off of milk for a long period of time because you might develop a calcium deficiency. Milk and milk products are our major source of calcium. It's all right to test yourself as I have suggested but please see your doctor for a more detailed examination and see if he can help you identify which foods are a problem.

If your difficulty should prove to be milk, there is an enzyme called Lact-Aid that you can add to milk which may solve this problem for you. You can get more information about it from SugarLo Company, 3540 Atlantic Avenue, Atlantic City, NJ 08404.

Convicted Of Capital Murder

BRYAN (AP)—A 17-year-old Bryan youth has been convicted of capital murder in the death last December of a 27-year-old man who was beaten to death with a jack handle.

Jurors deliberated an hour and a half Tuesday before convicting Curtis Paul Harris. The victim was Timothy Merka, 27, of Mumford, who had stopped to help with a disabled vehicle.

Merka's truck and wallet were stolen after he was killed.

Two, possibly three, more defendants still face trial in the case.

Your Birthday

May 24, 1979

Your ambitions and material goals will be furthered this coming year by persons working behind the scenes. Breaks will come just when things start to look their darkest.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Arrange your schedule today so that things don't have the chance to pile up on you. Your work will suffer if it's left to the last minute. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each and a self-addressed envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You could experience some unusual social pressures today, so it's best you keep your guard up. If something unpleasant occurs, don't overreact.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The rug could be pulled out from under you today in a situation that you think you have under control. Be ready to make some quick adjustments.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Avoid confrontations today with persons whose basic philosophy conflicts with yours. You may say something which you'll regret.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't be stingy today, but use your common sense before lending anything of value to one who is careless with his or her own possessions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You will not appreciate having your independence tampered with today, so steer clear of persons who like to arrange your schedule for you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Tedious tasks are not your cup of tea today. It's best to focus your efforts on jobs that don't require a long attention span.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't make heavy demands of your pals today. They may not be in the position to comply with your wishes. You could misinterpret their reasons.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Care must be taken not to upset the boss or those who are runing the show today. Antagonizing authority figures will bring down the roof on your head.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Try to be flexible in your thinking today, rather than adhere to narrow views. Your opinions will be rejected if you fail to appreciate the beliefs of others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Before acting on the advice today that could cost you money, make sure your adviser knows what he or she is talking about. Bad information could prove expensive.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Decisions that you make under pressure today could work against your own best interests. Take time to weigh all alternatives.

Chapman of Comanche and R.L. Chapman of Andrews; a sister, Mrs. Emmer Walker of Oklahoma; 25 grandchildren, 61 great-grandchildren and seven great-great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Phillips

STAMFORD — Services were held Saturday for Mrs. L.C. Philips, 88, who died Friday in Stamford. She was the mother of Mrs. Robert (Joyce) Plumlee of 5400 College Ave. Also surviving are a son, Ewell Philips of Medford Ore. and five grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Ex-Tarzan Has Mind Problems

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Johnny Weissmuller, reportedly suffering from psychological problems, is to be transferred from a retired actors hospital to a mental health facility this week, officials say.

"I requested it (the move) because the man did have psychological problems and we're not licensed to handle those kinds of patients," Jack Staggs, director of the Motion Picture and Country Hospital in suburban Woodland Hills, said Saturday. "I wanted him to be taken where he can get proper care."

Hospital employees reported that the 74-year-old actor, who was an Olympic swimmer and played "Tarzan" on the screen in the 1930s and 1940s, has been "wandering into different peoples' rooms, spitting on the floor and making Tarzan calls that are heard throughout the hospital."

Fossils of flowering plants 165 million years old have been found.

DONALD MCKINNEY

Grace Baptist Plans Special Meet Thursday

Grace Bible Baptist Church, 2106 26th St., will conduct a special service Thursday, with Rev. Donald J. McKinney, pastor of the Heritage Baptist Church in Lake Charles, La. preaching. Services will begin at 8 p.m.

Pastor McKinney has been an ordained minister for nearly 40 years. He has pastored in Lake Charles for 26 years. Along with his pastorial duties he continues an extensive conference ministry, speaking in various parts of the United States. He is a regular contributor to the international magazine, The Sword & Trowel which is circulated in 40 countries as well as the U.S. Pastor McKinney has a weekly television broadcast entitled, "This is My Father's World."

His son, Barry McKinney, pastor of Grace Baptist, invites all to attend.

When outside temperature is 75 degrees or below, save energy by turning off the air conditioning system.

Use a fan instead, advises Pat Seaman, a housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

BECKY RHODES

CINDY THAMES

3 From WTC In National Contest

Two recent graduates of Western Texas College and one current student in legal secretary and medical secretary courses were in national competition in Cincinnati and one placed fourth.

Becky Rhodes, who was in the legal secretary competition, was the fourth place winner. She is a recent WTC graduate. The contest included arranging an appointment schedule from a transcriber; typing a final draft from a rough draft (interrogatories, summons, complaints); typing statements to clients from information on transcriber; completion of forms (warranty deeds, note of issue, dissolution of marriage, etc); composition of original letters from information on transcriber; other machine transcription problems; human relations problems.

Cindy Thames, another recent WTC graduate, was in the national contest for medical secretaries. This contest included a rough draft of a medical article written by a doctor (manuscript); arranging an appointment scheduled; composition of original letters concerning appointments, referrals, tests, etc.; insurance form completion (Medicare, Blue Cross); human relations situations.

Janice Bradbury, a current student at WTC was in the Office Clerk-Advanced Typing Contest. This contest included typing material such as letters, rough draft with proofreading symbols, tables with columnar heading, reports, memos and forms; filing alphabetic and numeric office materials, verifying calculations, solving a human relations program and setting priorities (decision making).

The three contestants were accompanied to the national contests by Charlene Light, OEA advisor at WTC.

Special Session Threat Renewed

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas legislators will be summoned into special session unless they pass several key pieces of legislation he supports, Gov. Bill Clements has reiterated.

An initiative and referendum bill is at the top of his priority package.

In a statewide telecast Tuesday night, the governor said he doubts the legislators will pass the bills in the remaining five days of the Legislature.

Earlier Tuesday, Clements pinned some of the blame for a possible special session on 12 renegade senators - the "Killer Bees" - who by their absence prevented the Senate from having the necessary quorum to conduct business.

"It is unfortunate that we even have to contemplate a special session and the additional expenditure of more than a million dollars," said Clements.

"But if childish games and the minority's refusal to face its sworn duties in 140 days of a regular session doom some of the major legislation I have been talking about, I have no choice but to consider calling a special session to dispose of unfinished business."

Clements said the unfinished business also includes approval for wiretapping in narcotics cases, energy legislation and budget-execution authority.

One legislator told The Associated Press the governor indicated he will call a special session next year while legislators are running for reelection. Clements also indicated, the legislator said, that he will make initiative and referendum, wiretapping and budget execution campaign issues if the Legislature fails to pass them.

Clements repeatedly has threatened to call a special session if an initiative and referendum bill, before Texas voters, is not passed in the regular session.

The House failed by 17 votes Monday to pass an initiative and referendum measure.

The governor also threatened legislators with a special session if they failed to pass a state bar bill to his liking. But after the House rejected to state bar measures tailored to fit his specifications, Clements said although he is considering calling a special session, no decision has been definitely made.

Cemetery Assn. Sets Meeting

WESTBROOK — The Westbrook Cemetery Association will hold its annual meeting at 11 a.m. on Memorial Day in the Golden Age Building here.

10 'Killer Bees' Found One-Room Life Tedious

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)- Things were going as planned last Friday as Sen. Ron Clower picked up his Senate colleagues Carlos Truan and A.R. "Babe" Schwartz shortly before 7:30 a.m.

By 8 a.m., Clower said 10 senators who later would make international headlines as the Killer Bees, had assembled at a northwest Austin one-room location. Two other lawmakers went undercover at separate locations.

For the next five days, the senators listened for strange noises as they eluded Texas Rangers and state troopers sent to arrest them and return them to the Senate.

When it ended at 3:12 p.m. Tuesday, the rebels had killed chances of a 1980 presidential primary measure passing the Texas Legislatue this session.

Clower, D-Garland, said Tuesday the plot began at the Capitol last Thursday, following a Senate session.

He said events went as follows:

"We went around and notified those senators and got agreements in sufficient numbers to make final plans.

"We executed the plans the next morning by 8 a.m. I went and picked up people, Schartz and Truan, and took them there. The others knew where to go. We got there and had breakfast; just a regular breakfast that a friend of ours made - scrambled eggs.

"The cars were driven directly to the home but parked 75 yards away around the corner. They weren't parked directly at the house. Then someone, aides, came by and drove the cars away to the airport."

Clower said his wife knew the group would steal away, but she did not know where they were.

Life inside the hideout soon became confined, said Truan, D-Corpus Christi.

"We did not go out for fear that people would see us," he said. "Everytime we could hear any kind of strange noise, we peeped out the window."

Some senators only brought one change of clothes.

"We were given a change of underwear when we got there," Truan said.

Sen. Bob Vale, D-San Antonio, said he walked around in his shorts and Killer Bee tee shirt until Truan hid his cigarettes.

"Some of the senators were smoking and I couldn't stand it," Truan said. "I got up real early one morning and I hid their cigarettes."

Vale said he shaved and got dressed for the first time after his cigarettes disappeared.

"I told them, 'Unless I get them back, I'm going to walk out of here and I'm going to walk to the nearest store to buy some. If I get caught, I get caught.' I out-bluffed them because they were soon back," he explained.

Sen. Gene Jones, D-Houston, joined his colleagues at the Austin hideout but later fled to Houston. Jones recently quit smoking and said the smoke bothered him.

The other two Killer Bees not laying low in the 20 feet by 14 feet room were Chet Brooks of Pasadena and Raul Longoria of Edinburg.

Longoria would not say where he hid after fleeing state police at the courthouse in Edinburg, near the Mexican border, Friday. Brooks was in Oklahoma near Lake Texoma.

Can Apricots To Enjoy Them Any Time Of Year

By BLANCHE CHISUM
County Extension Agent

It soon will be apricot season again. Do you have a surplus or can you purchase them at a reasonable price? You can have them any time of the year by canning them.

You haven't canned before? Well here is how.

Wash and peel them just as you would prepare them to be eaten fresh, or plunge them in boiling water for 2 minutes or until the skins slip.

They can be halved or sliced, but be sure to remove the pits. Pack the apricots into clean jars, leaving one-half inch at top of the jars. Cover with boiling syrup made with two cups sugar to four cups water. If you like a sweeter syrup, add more sugar. Wipe off the sealing surface of the jar and close according to the type of lid being used.

Place the jars in a boiling water bath canner which is a large container with a rack in the bottom to hold the jars about one inch from the bottom. It should be tall enough to have space to cover the jars with about one to two inches of water and about the same amount of space above the water.

BLANCHE CHISUM
... extension agent

The water should be hot but not boiling when you place the filled jars in the canner. Place lid on canner and bring the water to a rolling boil, but reduce the heat just to boiling. This prevents the juice from being drawn out of the jars.

Boil pint jars 25 minutes and quart jars 35 minutes.

Remove the jars from the water bath and let them cool away from a draft.

The apricots can be canned without sugar if you prefer.

If you want to know more about canning come to the Special Food Preservation Workshop to be held in the Snyder Savings & Loan Community Room on Thursday, May 24, from 2 to 4 p.m. A special program will be presented concerning use of the water bath canner.

Other topics will include drying foods and use of the pressure canner. Two guest speakers will be giving these topics.

Pantie Puzzle —His or Hers?

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: SUSIE IN SPOKANE found a pair of silk panties in her husband's pickup truck and would like to meet the chick who's fooling around with him.

What makes her so sure it's a chick? Maybe it's a rooster. Susie's husband could be macho-straight when he's with her, but a transvestite who enjoys fondling feminine underthings now and then, either alone or in the company of another rooster.

JOE IN CHESTER, PA.

DEAR JOE: Rooster or chick—it's a fowl situation.

DEAR ABBY: I have a divorced daughter who has been living with her lover. She's 35 and self-supporting, so I can't tell her how to live. However, I am deeply concerned over the fact that my three grandchildren (3, 5, and 7) who live with their mother, are very much aware of the situation since they frequently crawl into bed with them!

I know that this sort of thing is not uncommon these days, but I feel that the children will be very much confused as to what is the right way to live when the time comes to tell them about life, sex, etc.

How can a mother tell her 12- or 13-year-old daughter that this is wrong, when she is doing it?

CONCERNED PARENT

DEAR PARENT: Obviously, your daughter doesn't consider her lifestyle "wrong," or she wouldn't openly practice it in the presence of her children.

DEAR ABBY: I used to get upset because my husband forgot birthdays and anniversaries until I recalled how my father used to go out with the boys on Saturday night, come home in a cab, broke, drunk and ready to fight at 3 in the morning.

Dad was a wonderful, attractive, smart man, but he just couldn't handle his liquor. Eventually he lost his job, then his self-respect. From then on, it was downhill all the way.

So now I rate my husband five stars for coming home sober every night.

Four stars for fidelity.

Three stars for paying the bills.

Two stars for being a good father to our kids.

One star for working harder than he'd have had to work if he had stayed single.

And minus one star for forgetting occasions like anniversaries and birthdays.

So my man still gets 14 stars. Not bad, huh?

Furr's Files For Reorganization

LUBBOCK (AP)—A major supermarket chain with stores throughout West Texas, New Mexico, El Paso and Phoenix has filed a petition for reorganization under bankruptcy laws.

Officials of Furr's Supermarkets announced Tuesday at their corporate headquarters here that the petition was filed in Fort Worth under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Act.

"We anticipate that some phases of the company's retail outlets willl be curtailed," a company spokesman said. Two other major supermarket chains reportedly have been negotiating to acquire a number of Furr's supermarkets in West Texas and New Mexico.

Steps are being taken to drop two unprofitable stores in Phoenix, the spokesman added. Furrs has 10 supermarkets in Phoenix.

A company statement said the chain's money problems stemmed in part from the Phoenix stores' inability "to successfully garner its share of the market from a group of more centrally located and agressive competitors."

Under Chapter 11, "the company seeks the opportunity to retain control of its assets and business as a debtor-in-possession, pending completion of an arrangement with its creditors," the statement said.

Furr's also announced the resignation of board chairman Clem B. Boverie, but said he will remain a board member.

Roy K. Furr, the new chairman, said the company will remain intact and marketing policies will not change drastically.

The company grew from one store in Kirkland, Texas, in 1904 to a chain of 79 supermarkets, 24 convenience stores and three restaurants.

Its sales are reported at $500 million and the company says it employs about 6,500 full-and part-time workers.

In Battle To Balance Gas, Heating Oil...

Diesel To Farms May Be Cut

Midwestern congressmen invoking the specter of idle tractors have urged President Carter to increase diesel fuel for farmers. But in trying to balance supplies of gasoline and heating oil, the administration actually may cut supplies of the fuel that powers the nation's farms.

Twenty-six farm state congressmen Tuesday reminded President Carter of his pledge that "rural America will not run dry," while their House colleagues voiced opposition to his plan to lift price controls from domestically produced oil.

In New York, service stations whose prices exceed 99.9 cents per gallons but whose pumps can't accomodate an extra digit will be allowed today to price gas by the half-gallon.

And in California, where lines at service stations dwindled but did not disappear, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. called for "more candor, less inconsistency and more leadership" from the federal government in the energy crisis.

The Energy Department Tuesday asked refineries to step up production, primarily of gasoline. Officials say the decision will not cut into the winter heating oil supply. But by adjusting their operations to increase gas production, refineries are producing less heating oil and diesel fuel from each barrel of crude.

The department pushed back by one month its Oct. 1 target date for 240 million barrels of heating oil, saying the original date was unrealistic. But because the supply of heating oil will peak later, the supply of diesel is likely to remain tight for a longer period.

Last week, a study by the New England Economic Research Office said that unless some action were taken immediately - perhaps even to the extent of cutting back gasoline production - a major shortage of home heating oil could result in the Northeast. And the report warned heating oil is also used extensively in the Midwest and Middle Atlantic states.

Getty Oil Co. said Tuesday it would halt sales of diesel fuel and heating oil in the Midwest for about a week while it works out a new distribution system.

That announcement came as Midwestern senators and House members asked for a meeting with Carter to work out a way to funnel diesel fuel to the farm belt.

"Today we face the very real prospect of idle tractors and irrigation pumps during the height of the planting and growing season," they told Carter in a letter. "Reports indicate that a good portion of America's crop may not be planted if fuel oil supplies do not become available soon."

Meanwhile, the Agriculture Department reported that some 67 percent of the nation's crop was planted as the week began, compared to an average level for this time of year of 75 percent.

Scholarship To Snyderite

SAN ANGELO—Jay W. Hammond of Snyder is the recipient of San Angelo State University Presidential Scholarship for the 1979-80 academic year.

A May high school graduate, Hammond was listed on the school's superior-honor roll and was active in baseball activities. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. M.L. Hammond.

Selection for the scholarships is based on ACT testing scores, honor society membership and recommendations by high school counselors.

Snyderite Gets Degree At TWU

DENTON—Diana Gay Campbell, Route 2, Snyder, was awarded the bachelor of science degree in nursing at the spring commencement of Texas Woman's University. More than 900 bachelor's and master's degrees and 21 PhD degrees were awarded.

API Installs Officers Here

The Snyder Chapter of the American Petroleum Institute installed officers at its first meeting of the year held Tuesday at the Snyder County Club.

Officers installed included Neely Wright, superintendent for Union Oil Co., chairman; Neal Carter of Welex, first vice chairman; George Stewart of C-E NATCO, second vice chairman; David Burkett of Union Oil Co., treasurer; and James North Colt of McCullough Services, secretary.

Charley Jones, superintendent of special services for General Crude Oil Co., spoke to the group on a geo pressured geo thermal well General Crude is drilling under auspices of the Department of Energy and the University of Texas. The well will be evaluated as to obtaining energy by high pressure water flow, 40,000 barrels per day at 25,000 pounds, methane gas produced with the water and heat from the water itself, 250 to 330 degrees.

As with most energy sources these will be expensive and take five to 10 years before they are economical enough to produce, it was noted. But it is but one of many alternate sources of energy that both the industry and government are looking at now.

ASU Awards Degrees To Five In-Area

SAN ANGELO—Five students from Scurry County were among 370 receiving degrees during spring commencement at Angelo State University.

Ronald James Gill of Ellyanna received a bachelor of science degree with a major in animal science. Daniel Randy McMillan of Hermleigh received a bachelor of science degree with a major in biology. Nancy Gayle Sterling of Ira received a bachelor of science degree with a major in health and physical education. Raymond Earl Smith of Snyder received a bachelor of business administration degree, cum laude, with a major in business, and Kathy Ann Weber of Snyder received a bachelor of science degree with a major in health and physical education.

State Rep. Tommy Massey was the commencement speaker.

Second Chance At Indy

-Meanwhile Woodward Files Suit-

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)-The reality of racing is little more than an afterthought at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway today with the possibility looming of either a 44-car field or no race at all when the starting time arrives for Sunday's Indy 500.

Matters came to a boil Tuesday when car owner Wayne Woodward filed suit to halt the $1 million race and the U.S. Auto Club decided to offer 11 other entrants an opportunity to qualify their cars in a special session Thursday.

Woodward's suit, filed in Marion County Superior Court and scheduled for a hearing Thursday, asks the race be stopped unless his car is reinstated. Woodward's racer was removed from the lineup after qualifying amid allegations of cheating on power restrictions imposed by USAC.

Woodward's car, driven by Dick Ferguson, was not among the 11 offered an unpreeedented chance to win places in the field. All of those cars were bumped from the grid during time trials by faster cars.

Any of the cars in the special session qualifying faster than the slowest car now in the field - placed there by Roger McCluskey at 183.908 - would be relegated to the back of the traditional 33-car lineup.

The offer was made by USAC President Dick King under a USAC competition rule allowing special rulings "for the well-being of automotive competition." The only stipulation was that all 33 entrants already in the race agree in writing to the extra qualifying round.

Lindsey Hopkins, owner of the car that Joe Parsons has qu[illegible] in the third row, couldn't speak for his fellow owners, but said: "I'll agree to it. I think it's a temperat[illegible]wise dec[illegible]sion."

King said the action was taken because the 11 cars involved qualified before a USAC bulletin was issued prior to the final day of time trials "suggesting" that intake exhaust pipes have a minimum inside diameter of 1.47 inches. The bumped drivers said that amounted to legalizing attempts to override power restrictions and put them at a competitive disadvantage.

Malone NBA Most Valuable

NEW YORK (AP)-Moses Malone of the Houston Rockets, the National Basketball Association's leading rebounder, was named the league's most valuable player for the 1978-79 season.

Malone received 112 votes in balloting by 223 NBA players completed at the end of the regular season, the NBA announced.

The 24-year-old Malone averaged 17.6 rebounds per game. His 587 offensive rebounds broke his own NBA record and he grabbed 10 rebounds or more in 78 of the 82 regular-season games.

Malone, 6 feet 10 and 215 pounds, also ranked fifth in the league in scoring with a 24.8 average.

Malone is the 15th straight center to be named MVP.

Puff VB Game Set

Snyder High School will hold an evening of powder puff volleyball tomorrow, beginning at 4 o'clock.

Tickets for the matches, held at the high school gym, are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Senior boys will serve as players for the games. The teams will be coached by senior girls.

Coaching the Hairy Hitters will be Dana Elrod, Sarah Fagin, Kathy Harrell and Cindy Koonsman. The Whang Gang will be coached by Danna Myers and Sherry Neves. Debbie Myers and Shanna Smith will coach the Scrubs.

Bird Attorney Rages Over Celtics Stand

BOSTON (AP)-The lid has blown off contract talks between the Boston Celtics and the negotiator for college star Larry Bird, with an explosion of demands and allegations.

"There is nobody in professional sports, including Red Auerbach and myself, who can accurately determine what is a fair contract for Larry," attorney Bob Woolf said Tuesday.

Nevertheless, Woolf, Bird's Boston-based agent, called a news conference to insist both that his current contract offer is fair and that the National Basketball Association team, through team president Auerbach, begin "bonafide" negotiations.

"He (Woolf) means negotiate as long as I go up," Auerbach responded later. "Can I go down?"

The stalemate centers on the Celtics' refusal to budge from their original $500,000-a-year offer to the college Player-of-the-Year from Indiana State. Woolf initially asked for $1 million a season, plus another $200,000 in extras. Sources now say Woolf has come down to about $700,000 a year.

Bird was drafted No. 1 by the Celtics a year ago as a junior. The team has until the NBA draft June 25 to sign him or Bird goes back into the 1979 draft pool.

"I thought we'd have a clean, fast deal," Auerbach said. "Give them your best shot, bowl them over, make him the highest paid rookie in NBA history and that's it."

Instead, Woolf claims Auerbach simply won't bargain and that unless he does, "I would not be optimistic" about Bird's chances of joining the Celtics.

Woolf conceded he wants somewhat more than the Los Angeles Lakers will pay Michigan State star Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who will be the team's and league's top pick in next month's draft.

Gym Open At WTC

Area residents can obtain a membership to the Western Texas College Gym during the months of June and July.

Membership fee will be $25 per person per month, and may be paid in the athletic department this week.

Members must be at least 13 years of age. Each member will be issued an identification card which is to be shown at each visit, and cards are valid only for the member to whom they are issued.

Members may bring guests by paying $2 for each guest each visit.

Summer hours will be 11 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 2-5 p.m. on Sundays. Fridays and Saturdays will be reserved for groups wishing to reserve the facilities.

Members will have access to the raquetball courts, gym and swimming pool. Regular Booster Club memberships will not cover the new summer program.

Persons wishing more information or to reserve the gym for private parties may call Coach Joe Cushing's office at 573-8511 extension 283, or extension 317.

Latson Signs With College Dusters

Cindia Latson, a graduate of Ballinger High School, has recently signed to play basketball for the Western Texas College Dusters.

Miss Latson was chosen Most Athletic at Ballinger High in 1979, and was an all-district selection in both basketball and volleyball.

She has won awards in related math, civics and reading, and was named in this year's Who's Who Among American Students.

"Cindia is very strong inside. She is tough on the boards, very quick for her size (5-10)," praised Coach Joe Cushing.

Miss Latson is one of several girl recently signed to the Dusters.

Time Out For This Important Word

By BILL McCLELLAN

SOME GUYS work hard for three, maybe four years before receiving a letter jacket. But not me. It took me more like 14 years.

When I was in high school I was small, slow, and all the things that do not an athlete make. Ten years later, I'm still less than tall, and move with the speed of a creepy crawler.

But had I been a "normal" young man, I don't think my chances would have been very good to make the team. In Austin, the AAAA high school I attended won state in football my junior and senior years.

Did they need a small, slow individual? Ha! That's a laugh.

I DID play on various intramural teams, during my high school and college days, when they'd have me.

BASICALLY, THIS is a word of thanks, even though it doesn't seem start out that way. It's a small show of [illegible] for Snyder coaches, and some others that [illegible] credit, and don't get near enough [illegible] surprised, no, shocked, when [illegible] director Roy Carter [illegible] my letter jacket at the [illegible] sports ceremonies.

As I mentioned earlier, I [illegible] high school, and certainly didn't expect such [illegible].

IT'S WITH a lot of pride that I'll wear this one.

AS A sportswriter, or any other newspaper job for that matter, you learn to live with complaints. The good things you do are normally expected, certainly nothing to be praised. The things you do wrong are usually pretty quickly pointed out.

Coaches, like sportswriters and a lot of other idiots in this world, seldom receive credit for what they do. Now THIS is not a complaint. It's something to be lived with, I suppose. But as far as coaches are concerned, it's something that most of us ought to think about for a few minutes.

WIN STATE, and you hear, "Well golleee. Look at all the talent he had to work with." Never fails.

But how many times have you heard, "Gee Coach, you had a 3-6 season. We know you did your best. You made the right calls. I'm proud of the job you did."

Well, the coach's wife might say it. His assistant might. But don't count on hearing it from too many people.

AS A sportswriter, I sometimes wish I could give out awards. Maybe some day The Snyder Daily News will, but this year, I'm glad we won't. There would be no way to pick winners.

I get a lot of help here from members of the editorial staff, and frankly I couldn't do without it. John Long and John Dunnam, in particular, have helped a lot, from writing stories to taking pictures and covering football games.

But by far, the most help I get comes from the coaches themselves. Snyder has so much going on in the way of sports at certain times of the year, that it would take forever to call each individual coach and get results, write stories, develop negatives, print photos, and etc. with that in mind, most coaches will call after a game and turn in results, or check if they can help in anyway. Some even type up results. All have gone out of their way to help.

AND THE strange thing is, they don't do it for themselves. They do it for the kids. Seldom, if ever, do they single out an individual. And you almost never hear, "He fumbled," or "They fumbled. It's "WE fumbled." Pretty unselfish people, these coaches.

THAT'S why I'd like to thank the coaches. For the jacket, to be sure. I'm proud of it. It's an honor. But it's more than that. I'd like to thank them for doing the best job they know how. For winning five district championships this season, and for doing as well as they possibly could in the other sports. For instructing the leaders of tomorrow - two of 'em mine - in sportsmanship, teamwork and discipline.

I don't have any jackets or plaques to present. But I'd like to say, coaches, administrators, athletic directors, students - I'm proud of the job you did.

THANKS.

Homers Rangers Win

Buddy's Bell Rings

ARLINGTON (AP)-Buddy Bell leaned back in his leather comfort chair in the Texas Ranger clubhouse and said "I don't know what happened."

What had happened was [illegible]'s first homer of the [illegible]buch handed Min[illegible]erry Koosman his [illegible] American League.

And it [illegible]ue.

The ball sa[illegible]e 400 foot mark [illegible] center field seats.

Bell tagged Koosman's second offering in the bottom of the eighth inning to snap a 3-3 tie and give the Rangers a 4-3 victory.

"I had just about figured I wasn't going to have a homer this year," said Bell, whose career high in one season is 14 home runs. "I'm glad I picked this spot."

Bell had received a scouting report from Texas pitcher Jon Matlack on Koosman, a former teammate in the New York Mets organization.

"Matlack said he had a [illegible] fastball and good contro[illegible]," said Bell who also knocked in two runs with a single in the third inning.

"Koosman dropped to [illegible] record while reliever Jim Kern earned his sixth victory against no loss[illegible] throwing the final inning and a third in relief of Steve Comer.

"We're making (owner) Brad Corbet look like a genius," said Kern, alluding to an off-season trade in which Bell, Kern, and Larvell Blanks were obtained from the Cleveland Indians.

"They are making (Cleveland president) Gabe Paul look like a dummy," said Bell.

"That was implied," replied Kern.

Bell said "I sure wasn't trying to hit a homer. But I knew when I hit the ball it had a chance. I have power but I usually spend it in the power alleys. I don't hit many homers. I can remember most of them."

Koosman refused to meet the press, staying in an off limits area.

An upset Twin Manager Gene Mauch kept the clubhouse doors closed for five minutes then said "I'm sorry. About all I can say is that the manager didn't have a good night."

Ron Jackson's seventh homer of the year tied the game at 3-3 in the 5th inning. Mauch obviously wished he had gone to ace reliever Mike Marshall earlier.

In the final game of the series tonight, Texas' Fergie Jenkins 4-2, will meet Dave Goltz 4-4.

Pecos Tags Borger, 8-2

PECOS-The Pecos Eagles, District 2-AAA champions, defeated 1-AAA champs Borger High School in Game One of a bi-district baseball playoff here yesterday, 8-2.

The best-of-three series moves to Borger for Game 2 at 1 p.m. Saturday. Game 3, if necessary, would follow immediately.

Winner of the bi-district playoff will meet Snyder High School in regional play next week.

LTA Plays Thursday

Parings for Wednesday's 9 a.m. Ladies Tennis Association have been set. Play will be held at Snyder Country Club.

Parings are: Patty Chorn and Finnie Seale, Shirley Grosshans and Demar Harris, Sue Reed and Diane Osborn, and Monette Sentell and Sally Walton.

Pro Football Hall of Famer Sid Luckman is the all-time leader among passers in percentage of touchdowns-per-pass, hitting on 8 percent of his aerials for a score.

trict, and Meteorological Research Inc.

Dr. James Scoggins, Texas A and M, discussed the mesoscale model for the target area, and Dr. Don Haragan, Texas Tech, and R.A. Schooling, CRMWD, looked at plans for precipitation measurements. Dr. Alex Long, A&M, and Dr. Don Taheuchi, MRI, explained the role of aircraft and new cloud physics instrumentation, while Bill Alexander and Bob Riggio, TDWR, went over plans for forecasting in connection with the project. Dr. Jerry Jurica, Texas Tech, reviewed the use of satellite imagery and its correlation with other data; Dr. Colleen Larry, Texas Tech, and John Girdzus, CRMWD meteorologist, up-dated the group on seeding and sampling as well as radar operations.

This season there will be three aircraft used in seeding operations, two by the CRMWD and one by MRI, but two of the planes will have new scientific equipment for sampling. One plane will seed clouds from the base, the other will try top seeding, penetration and sampling.

O.H. Ivie, CRMWD general manager, welcomed the group, and John Carr, represented TDWR; Loyd Steubinger, the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation at Denver; Dr. Jerry Mulvaney; and George Humber, Texas A&M.

vinced SB1149 (the primary bill) is a dead bill for this session."

By a 17-14 vote, the Senate did tentatively approve a bill on Tuesday designed to establish a presidential primary in March 1980-two months before the regular Democratic and Republican party primaries.

Two Juveniles Questioned In Theft Cases

The two juveniles arrested during the weekend for the theft of a Grimmett Brothers Construction Co. pickup were questioned by Snyder police yesterday in connection with the theft of a 1973 Chevrolet from the Jay Jones residence.

Police said the juveniles, two girls aged 13 and 14, respectively, will be charged with both auto thefts plus auto burglary for allegedly stealing a stereo tape from a vehicle owned by Nona Sutton.

Both vehicles were recovered, the pickup after it had been involved in a wreck and the Jones car was found abandoned in the city. All the incidents occurred this past weekend.

In other reports, two minor traffic accidents were investigated Tuesday.

In one, a 1978 Ford pickup driven by Federico Castillo was in collision with a 1977 Buick driven by Sue Leen Smitherman. The wreck occurred at 12:46 p.m. in the 1200 block of College Ave.

The second wreck took place at 3:05 p.m. in the 3700 block of Austin St. and involved a 1978 Chevrolet driven by Ruby Kitchens Smith and a 1972 Chevrolet driven by James Dee Dow.

Three Counts Consolidated In Trial Here

An habitual criminal declaration was made Tuesday in the case of Arthur Lee Harding, tried on three consolidated counts of forgery by passing.

Harding was handed two 10-year prison terms plus an enhancement on the third count of the forgery incidents. The enhancement will probably lead, sources indicated, to a life imprisonment declaration when the sentence is formally levied in 132nd District Court June 4.

The charges he was tried on yesterday allege he passed checks drawn for $100, $50, and $25, last Dec. 5 on the bank account of Kathy Reynolds. Court records also show a 1969 theft conviction for Harding as well as a 1973 forgery conviction.

The eight-woman, four-man jury spent approximately 5½ hours in deliberating his guilt or innocence in the forgery cases, then spent 50 minutes more in assessing the punishment. The jurors were dismissed about 7 p.m.
