Connors dies at 71

LOS ANGELES — Actor Chuck Connors, the fast-shooting Lucas McCain on the long-running television series "The Rifleman," died Tuesday of lung cancer. He was 71. Connors, who also appeared in at least 28 movies, died about 2 p.m. at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, said hospital spokesman Ron Wise. /7A

Holiday closings

Federal, state and county offices will be closed today for Veteran's Day. Banks also will be closed, as will the U.S. Postal Service offices. There will no regular mail delivery but there will be pickups from drop-boxes. Open as usual will be Midland schools, Midland College and city offices.

AIDS treatment

LA JOLLA, Calif. — Scientists developed a tiny "molecular knife" that cuts and destroys part of the AIDS virus, and they soon will test the treatment on people with the deadly disease, a researcher said Tuesday. "It's a new technology which could potentially be very powerful, but it needs a lot of refinement," said Dr. Flossie Wong-Staal, a researcher at the University of California, San Diego.

Biggest challenge

LOS ANGELES — Comedians have joked about it, but to many people, programming a videocassette recorder is no laughing matter. An electronics company hopes its new hand-held device will solve the problem: It lets you talk to your VCR and tell it what programs to tape. The voice-activated system also allows you to skip through commercials and works as a universal remote control for the TV, VCR and cable channel box, the company says.

MISD to 'fine-tune' lines

Board responds to concerns about boundaries

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff writer

In response to parent concerns, Midland school-board trustees Tuesday agreed that district-proposed boundaries need adjusting.

The school board tentatively agreed to consider:

- adding more students to Abell and fewer to Alamo;
- sending Northgate pupils to Greathouse Elementary School (now under construction);
- moving the boundary line for the Alamo attendance area from Mark Lane to Midland Drive;
- moving some rural students — currently attending Emerson — to Scharbauer;
- moving some students from Bowie to Emerson.

School-board member James Fuller said he agreed with parents — who have spoken at a series of community meetings — that the

Richards opens special funding session

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards opened a special session on public education funding Tuesday by saying school administrators should look for ways to trim spending.

Texans "are telling us that, in this economy, they're paying all the taxes they can stand. And it is time for us to listen — all of us to listen," Richards told a joint session of the Senate and House.

Richards, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and lame-duck House Speaker Gib Lewis are backing a school finance reform plan that school officials have said will result in massive local property tax increases.

The plan anticipates no more than $650 million in new state money over the next two-year budget cycle, the amount expected to be available without an increase in state taxes. That's less than the Texas Education Agency

United Way praises fund-raising efforts

By Katherine Poteet
Staff writer

The United Way of Midland ended its 1992-'93 campaign Tuesday at a Wild West campaign finale and announced that it had raised $2,533,655 this year.

Although that total falls short of the set goal of $2,755,000, campaign chairman Jess Parrish remained positive about this year's effort.

"I think is was a very successful campaign," he told supporters at the Midland Center.

"We knew going into this year that economics weren't good, it was an election year and other things. It would have been great if we could have made the goal," he added, "But, we have to think of the people who will benefit from the money that we did raise, how many people have won because of this money. I am very pleased with this campaign."

Parrish, whose marshal persona graced this year's United Way posters, said he expects about $120,000 to come in over the next few weeks.

"There's probably that much filtering through the system that just hasn't reached us yet," he said. "With that much more, it would put us within $100,000 of our goal and put us at about 95 percent."

The current amount is 92 percent of the set goal.

The United Way's theme was "How the West Was Won ... The United Way" and centered on the efforts of the United Way, headed by "Marshal" Parrish, to destroy the Hopeless Gang, which consists of Homelessness, Illiteracy and Drugs.

Bush fires aide who searched passport files

By Eric Schmitt
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — President Bush on Tuesday dismissed the State Department official responsible for late-night searches through the passport files of Bill Clinton, Clinton's mother and Ross Perot shortly before the presidential election.

Elizabeth Tamposi

The official, Elizabeth M. Tamposi, the assistant secretary of state for consular affairs, was given until today to leave her office, a State Department spokesman said.

The searches of the Clinton files by State Department officials embarrassed the Bush administration in the closing days of the campaign because it gave the impression the administration was wielding its influence to gather material to use against a political opponent.

The disclosure on Monday that officials also rifled through Perot's files seemed to support his claims that the administration would take extraordinary steps to discredit his third-party candidacy with "dirty tricks."

The State Department spokesman, Richard Boucher, declined Tuesday to discuss any wrongdoing by Ms. Tamposi or other senior State Department officials, pending the release "in a few days" of a State Department inspector general's investigation into the handling of the records searches. It was not clear whether any higher officials would be accused of wrongdoing.

"I just have to say that you'll be able to draw your own conclusions when you

Pentagon ends defiance, to reinstate gay

■ Judge reaffirms order, chides military.

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The Pentagon said Tuesday it will reinstate a gay sailor, ending its defiance of an order from a federal judge who is considering whether the military's ban on homosexuals is unconstitutional.

The judge on Friday had issued a temporary order that Keith Meinhold, 30, of Palo Alto, be reinstated. But when Meinhold showed up Monday at Moffett Naval Air Station south of San Francisco, he was turned away.

On Tuesday, U.S. District Judge Terry J. Hatter Jr. in Los Angeles reaffirmed his order and chided the military for defying him.

"This is not a military dictatorship. It is not the former Soviet socialist republic. Here, the rule of law applies to the military ... even to the commander-in-chief," Hatter said.

Soon after the court hearing, Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams in Washington said the Navy has agreed to reinstate Meinhold and will swear him back into the Navy

Officer, attorney defend actions in fatal shooting

An attorney and his client, the police officer who fatally shot a knife-wielding man last month, defended the officer's actions in light of demonstrations and accusations by the victim's family and friends.

"The demonstrations, they are presuming he's guilty," said attorney Steve Fischer, a visiting professor at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

Chief judge resigns, agrees to house arrest, monitoring

NEW YORK (AP) — Judge Sol Wachtler stepped down Tuesday as New York state's top jurist, agreeing to house arrest and monitoring by an electronic bracelet three days after being accused of threatening an ex-lover.

Wachtler, 62, who before his downfall was mentioned as a possible gubernatorial candidate or U.S. Supreme Court justice, was solemn and humble as he agreed to a no-bail arrangement that includes a promise to stay away from the woman and her daughter.

He showed emotion — his eyes welling — only when federal Magistrate Judge Sharon E. Grubin complimented "the wisdom you have shown on this bench."

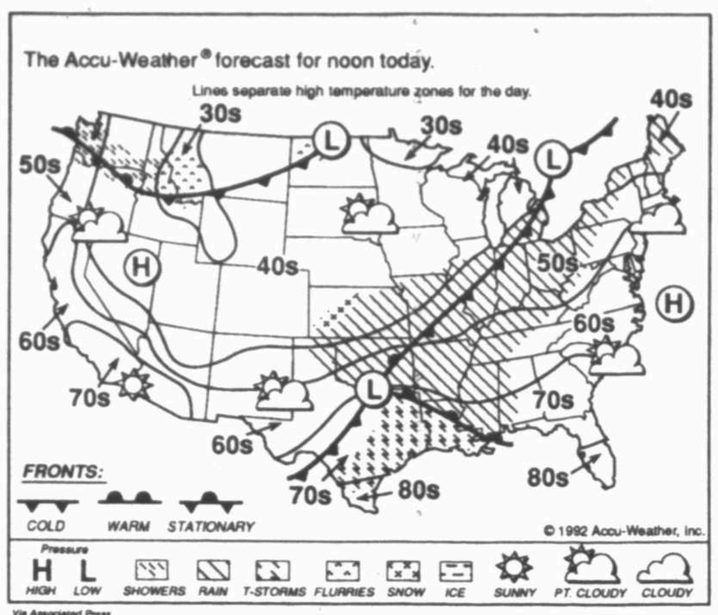

His attorney later announced Wachtler's resignation, while insisting that the charges "bear no relation to his role in the court."

Expect clouds, high near 70

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for low morning cloudiness, turning partly cloudy, with a high near 70 and south to southwest winds at 10-20 mph. Tonight should be partly cloudy and colder with a low in the mid-30s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Thursday should be sunny and breezy with a high near 60.

After an overnight low of 57, Tuesday's high reached 81, compared to the record high for that date of 85 set in 1964. The record low was 16 set in 1950.

STATE

Skies remained cloudy across much of the state Tuesday as southerly wind flow continued across north and central Texas. There were scattered showers across the state.

Light rain and showers dotted South Texas. Up to 3 inches of rain was reported in the southeast with the heaviest amount at Port Lavaca southeast of Victoria.

Widely scattered thunderstorms developed over the far northwest portions of North Texas mainly west of a Wichita Falls-Haskell line. as a cold front stretched from northwest Oklahoma into the Texas Panhandle.

NATION

Heavy snows covered parts of the Colorado Rockies and Alaska on Tuesday. Low temperatures broke records across New England.

Warm, moist air scattered thunderstorms across Texas and Oklahoma, the Mississippi Valley and the Midwest. Rain also fell from Kansas to the Great Lakes and in southern Florida.

Dry, sunny skies were across the West, from California to the northern Plains.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

MISD: Trustees respond to parents' concerns

(From 1A)

current district plan would overcrowd Alamo Junior High while under-utilizing Abell Junior High, which is now being built.

"The bond issue was passed to alleviate overcrowding at the junior high schools. That is what we need to do," Fuller said.

The staff plan had 808 students attending Abell and 1,041 attending Alamo, a difference of 233 students.

The staff proposal — taking under consideration all the residential construction under way in north and northwest Midland — allowed room for growth.

"I agree with James," said trustee George Staley. "But the way the northwest is growing, we should tentatively make some commitment for growth incurring."

"The staff proposal is sound," said trustee Gary Willis. "It is responsive to school policy. I agree we need to make some modifications. The 200 difference in students is not conscionable. There will be growth at Abell, but the 200-student gap is too wide."

Larry Lusby, MISD executive director of computer and special services, said moving the boundary line from Mark Lane to Midland Drive, would include more students in the Abell district, about 20 per-grade-level, which would take 40 students out of Alamo.

Also, trustees suggested moving ESL (English as a Second Language) students from Alamo to Abell. Adding ESL pupils and students in the Mark Lane section would increase Abell's beginning enrollment to 898 and reduce Alamo's to 950, leaving a difference of about 52 students, rather than 200.

"Assuming the same socio-economic conditions continue to exist, we will have to have some adjustments in five years," Lusby said.

Staley asked the staff to prepare an ethnic breakdown of Abell and Alamo with the suggested changes.

Trustees also requested the staff prepare a breakdown — ethnic, socio-economic and levels of ability — of the students in the Briarwood, Melody Acres, Greentree and Crestgate divisions.

"We have a consensus that we all want Northgate to be in the Greathouse attendance area," Willis said.

Some parents in Northgate, within walking distance of Abell, had complained that they were assigned to another elementary school.

No matter what suggestions were offered, Staley noted that "we will not touch high school boundaries."

The board also suggested that Wilson Heidelberg, MISD executive director of auxiliary services, inquire about building a walkway over Loop 250 to cut down on bus expenses to transport some students across the Loop.

"That is a state right-of-way," Heidelberg said. "It would be funded by the Texas Highway Department and the city. I think they would be willing to loook at it if we would make a contribution."

"It's worth looking into," Willis said.

Although some citizens attended the meeting hoping to voice opinions on school boundaries, the agenda item on boundaries was listed as a board discussion item only.

"We just wanted to get some direction on this," said board president Jack Hightower. "We will open the issue up for discussion for the public at the next meeting."

Several concerned parents of band students at Lee High School spoke before the board about school allocations for merit expenses and student travel.

Joe Plemons said the capital outlay budget of $16,000 for both band and orchestra students at LHS "does not begin to meet expenses."

He said it cost $13,000 for bus, travel, two meals and no overnight stay for the 250-plus member band to compete in an El Paso UIL (University Interscholastic League) competition.

He said the cost of attending the state competition in Austin was estimated at $17,000, for one-night accommodations and four meals.

"I suggest the school district have a fund, rather than allocate funds to schools," Plemons said.

Another parent, Bob Hunt, noted that only 16 schools out of more than 200 at the 5A level were chosen to attend the Austin event.

In other reports, trustees reviewed the district's ethnic breakdown fall survey.

see the inspector general's report," Boucher said.

Ms. Tamposi said in a written statement late Tuesday that she "took no action that I deemed wrong or inappropriate" regarding the records searches. "I did not approve, encourage or condone any review of passport records other than those specifically identified" in requests under the Freedom of Information Act, she said.

Boucher said that Ms. Tamposi, a political appointee of Bush's former chief of staff, John H. Sununu, submitted her resignation on Nov. 4 along with hundreds of other presidential appointees as part of the transition to a new administration.

But Acting Secretary of State Lawrence S. Eagleburger took the unusual step Tuesday morning of recommending to Bush that he accept Ms. Tamposi's resignation before the others.

Ms. Tamposi, 37, served in the New Hampshire Legislature during part of Sununu's tenure as governor in the 1980s. She was named to head the Consular Affairs Bureau in 1989 after running unsuccessfully for Congress in 1988.

Boucher also declined to comment on the examination of Perot's files in a storage area maintained by the National Archives in Suitland, Md., on Oct. 13, two weeks after officials searched the same area for Clinton's records.

SHOOTING: Police officer, attorney speak out the October 21 shooting.

Partin fatally shot Francisco Gutierrez Madrid, 45, about 5 a.m. outside his 807 E. Kentucky Ave. house after Partin and two other officers responded to a disturbance call, police said.

Madrid, who had been tossing appliances and furniture into the front yard, threatened the officers, chased them around the yard, jumped in a police car and attempted to drive away before running at Partin with a knife, police said.

Partin warned the man to drop the knife then fired three shots — that struck the victim in the head, chest and shoulder, police said.

Partin has been on administrative leave with pay since the incident.

"I did fear for my life," said Partin, accompanied by his wife of four years, Jamie, 22, and their 2-year-old son, Taylor.

"I wouldn't want to have to be in the same situation again," he said.

Partin declined to discuss the details of the shooting pending an investigation by the Midland County grand jury, which is expected to conclude Nov. 18. The FBI also has questioned Partin for possible civil rights violations, Fischer said.

Results of such FBI investigations are reported to the civil rights section of the Department of Justice in Washington, D.C., to determine merit.

"We hope that the FBI and the DA (district attorney), after this is over, will release everything," said Fischer, himself a former district attorney in Willacy County.

"He (Partin) has fully cooperated. He's answered every single question posed by law enforcement," he said.

Fischer will defend Partin if criminal and/or civil action is brought against the young officer — because he is innocent, he said.

Fischer said the demonstrations and accusations against Partin are unfair, presuming the officer to be guilty and ignoring his rights.

"I don't think they should be (demonstrating). It tends to bias the public. ... Let's look at the facts not emotions," said Fischer, who acknowledged the right to protest.

Fischer dismissed the allegation that the shooting was racially motivated.

"It's not a racial issue when you're attacked with a knife. The issue is the knife," the attorney said.

A preliminary police investigation concluded that Partin was acting within departmental regulations, officials said.

Partin had responded to the same address on a domestic disturbance call before, he said.

Police said Madrid had a history of drinking-related arrests, including an arrest for assault on a police officer in 1981.

Partin, a police officer since March 1991 and employed by the Midland Police Department since October 1989, is one class short of a bachelor's degree in criminal justice at UTPB.

Partin is enrolled in the class — legal aspects of corrections — taught by Fischer.

So far no action has been taken against Partin.

Midrid's sister, Josie Espinoza, 34, told the Reporter-Telegram that police should have been able to subdue her brother without killing him.

The League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC) also is looking into the shooting.

has estimated would be needed just to cover an increase in student enrollment.

But leaders have said there's not support for a state tax increase to pump more money into education, and Richards said schools won't be the only ones looking for funds when the Legislature meets in regular session in January.

"The school boards and superintendents are going to be facing hard decisions, but they are no more difficult than the ones that we all are going to face in January," Richards said.

"We may be facing the prospect of not funding the growing case load in basic health and human services programs. We may face the possibility of eliminating whole programs and whole agencies," she said.

"I would seriously urge school administrators to examine every possible way of reducing spending, because that is what we are going to have to do," she said.

Lawmakers are meeting to revamp the school funding law because the Texas Supreme Court ruled that the current system of transferring local property tax money from richer to poorer school districts, within counties or groups of counties, violates the state constitution.

The court gave the Legislature until June 1, 1993, to come up with a new plan to equalize funding among school districts.

To respond to the court mandate, the three top state leaders are advocating their so-called Fair Share Plan.

on Thursday. Today is a holiday, Veterans' Day.

"The sailor is supposed to show up on Thursday, the oath of office will be administered and he will be immediately reinstated," Williams said. "He will pick up in his old job where he left off."

Meinhold said he was happy and hoped the case would help gays and lesbians throughout the military.

"I certainly would not have thrown away a 12-year career unless I thought I could make a difference for a lot of people," he said.

"I would be proud and honored to wear the uniform again," he said.

Citing the military's ban on homosexuals, the Navy involuntarily but honorably discharged Meinhold in August after he said on national television he was gay. He sued, claiming the ban violated the Constitution's equal protection clause and provisions that prohibit punishment of a particular class of people.

The ban on homosexuals took effect during World War II. In recent years an average of 1,500 military personnel per year have been discharged because of it. But President-elect Clinton has said he favors lifting the ban.

Hatter said there was a likelihood Meinhold could prove the ban is unconstitutional and that the Navy violated federal regulations during Meinhold's discharge proceedings. Hatter issued the temporary injunction ordering reinstatement while he considers the merits of the case.

In reaffirming that order Tuesday, Hatter said that if the Navy refused, it would be banned from filing future motions in the case.

ed a buffet dinner and entertainment by Jody Nix and the Texas Cowboys, carried on the western theme.

The event featured a showdown between the marshal and the Hopeless Gang, during which the Gang returned Tesa Trueheart to Marshal Parrish. She was kidnapped at the pilot kickoff in July. They also made a contribution to the United Way, consisting of two bits, a plug nickel, a pair of longjohns and the deed to their hideout.

Before the gang came into the center, Parrish and the evening's emcee, Bill Dingus of Exxon Co., U.S.A., called up the United Way "deputies" and members of the United Way posse to announced totals from different areas of the campaign.

Serving as deputies during the campaign were Bill Johnson, oil unit; Larry Holden, industry/commerce unit; and Mike Canon, public/professional unit. The members of the campaign's posse were Bill Franklin, special gifts; Pat Coble, residential; Dr. Deana Lusk, retirees; Gordon Caskey, independent oil; Wayne Achee, major oil; Tom Yelverton, petroleum industry; Les Munson, retail; Helen Pattison, real estate and finance; Ken Thompson, business and entertainment; Jerry Lockhart, UTC; Dr. Joe Baressi, education; George Logan, government/services; and Fred Krautsch, professional.

Parrish and Dingus also introduced members of the United Way's main and pilot campaigns, as well as representatives of the 17 local agencies that the United Way funds will go to.

At the end of the program, Parrish said he owed a huge thanks to the campaign's volunteers.

"I want to say thanks to everyone," he told the crowd. "I owe them more than I can ever say."

JURIST: Chief judge resigns, begins house arrest

es to prevent his situation from harming the institution he reveres and the extraordinary judges and staff who serve it," the statement said. "Chief Judge Wachtler is therefore resigning from the court."

FBI agents arrested Wachtler on Saturday on a Long Island freeway, and he had been under a suicide watch at a hospital. But a psychiatrist told the court that Wachtler was not likely to harm himself or others, or to flee.

When the magistrate questioned whether there was a need for an electronic bracelet, U.S. Attorney Michael Chertoff said it was necessary to ensure "adequate protection for victims who have received rather strong threats."

"At this point, our motto is, 'Better safe than sorry,'" he said.

"The notion of his being a danger to another human being is simply non-existent," replied Wachtler's attorney, Charles A. Stillman.

On Monday, the six remaining state Court of Appeals judges had declined to suspend Wachtler despite the charges he harassed a New York City woman, tried to extort $20,000 from her and threatened to kidnap her 14-year-old daughter.

After Wachtler's resignation was announced, Chief Judge Richard D. Simons said court members accepted it "reluctantly but necessarily. As friends, we also must share his anguish and the anguish of his family."

Authorities said the alleged victim, Joy Silverman, 45, a socialite and Republican fund-raiser, broke off an affair with the married judge about a year ago and began dating other men.

Wachtler was escorted into the courthouse, his handcuffs hidden by a raincoat, shortly before noon.

He appeared relaxed and at one point chuckled while talking with an attorney. At other times, he was solemn as he clasped his hands before him or took deep breaths. When he stood before the magistrate, he buttoned his suit coat.

The magistrate read him the agreement between his lawyer and federal prosecutors: He may leave his home only to consult with lawyers or doctors; must provide officials with a daily log of all visitors; may have no contract with his alleged victims; and must pay for the private security guards who will watch him.

The magistrate asked if he understood.

"Yes I do, Your Honor," he responded, his hands intertwined.

He could be arrested, she warned him, for violating any condition of the arrangement.

"That's right," he said.

Contacting the victim would result in an obstructing justice charge, punishable by 10 years in prison.

The next court appearance will likely occur in the next few weeks in Newark, N.J., where the investigation began because letters were mailed from New Jersey.

Bosnia's warring factions sign unconditional cease-fire

By Terry Leonard
Associated Press Writer

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Bosnia's warring factions signed an unconditional cease-fire covering the entire republic Tuesday, but it was uncertain whether all had the will or means to end months of bloodletting.

Also Tuesday, the Red Cross evacuated about a third of the estimated 6,000 people — Muslims, Croats and Serbs — who have been trying to abandon Sarajevo. The agreement on a Bosnian cease-fire, which was to go into effect at midnight tonight, was reached during negotiations among military commanders who have been meeting for two weeks at the Sarajevo airport on a plan to demilitarize the capital.

Several longterm trends argue for an end to the fighting in Bosnia. These include the approach of winter, increasing economic problems and diplomatic isolation in Serbia, and the military losses and lack of supplies and food on the Muslim side.

However, dozens of truces have failed in Bosnia in the past — many within hours — because top commanders lack control over fighters in the field.

At least 14,000 people have been killed in the fighting, which started when Serbs rebelled after Muslims and Croats voted for independence on Feb. 29. Serbs, who made up about a third of the republic's prewar population, have captured about 70 percent of Bosnia.

Croats control most of the rest of the republic, mainly in the southwest. That leaves Muslims, the largest single group with about 43 percent of the prewar population, in control of only small pockets of territory.

"We will stick to it," Bosnian government spokesman Kemal Muftic said as Serb artillery rounds landed around the downtown presidency building. "We have ordered our forces to stick to what is written in the agreement."

Serb interest in a truce could be related to economic troubles and political battles in serb-dominated Yugoslavia. Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic has been widely blamed for supporting the Bosnian Serb rebels. Feeling threatened in the Dec. 20 elections, he might be pressing the rebels to cool their aggression.

Yugoslav federal Premier Milan Panic has urged the West to ease sanctions imposed in May against Yugoslavia. He said this would give him political leverage to defeat Milosevic in next month's elections.

In Geneva, U.N. special envoy Cyrus Vance and the European Community's representative, Lord Owen, welcomed the agreement. "The international community expects all three sides to live up to their commitment," they said in a statement.

The Western envoys have sided with the Muslim-led government in opposing Serb and Croat proposals to divide the republic into three ethnic cantons.

Vance and Owen have instead proposed dividing the republic into nine geographic regions not based on ethnicity.

On Monday, Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic made a counter-proposal to the Vance-Owen constitution.

The Bosnian Serbs did not insist on joining their territory with that of their ethnic kin in neighboring Yugoslavia, he said, but would insist on the existence of internal borders within Bosnia — based on current front lines reached in the fighting.

Monday's agreement "has been signed by the Serbs, Muslims and U.N. representatives, together with the Croatian Defense Council," said Serb Gen. Ratko Mladic, reached by telephone in the Serb stronghold of Pale, east of Sarajevo.

"Only the regular Croatian army has not signed yet, but we expect them to sign in a few days," he said. Croatia has denied persistent claims that soldiers of its regular army are involved in the fighting.

The Serbs have made gains in recent weeks, such as capturing Jajce, a key government stronghold in western Bosnia.

Fighting continued Monday in northern Bosnia and around Mostar, in western Herzegovina.

Belgrade-based Tanjug news agency said Serb forces in Mostar were taking a pounding in an offensive by Croatian army soldiers, and that at least 20 Serb fighters had been killed.

The United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees said in Geneva that heavy fighting was hampering efforts to get relief supplies into Sarajevo.

Opposition party protests election

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — Members of the political coalition opposing the state's ruling party on Tuesday blockaded the Federal Electoral Institute to protest what they called a stolen election.

Officials of the National Action Party (PAN) and the Democratic Revolutionary Party (PRD) promised more demonstrations if the state election commission did not recognize their claims of fraud. Election officials so far have dismissed all allegations so far.

"There will be much stronger acts of civil disobedience," said PAN spokesman Isaias Colunga.

The ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI) on Monday declared victory in the Tamaulipas gubernatorial race. Preliminary results were said to heavily favor the PRI candidate, congressman Manuel Cavazos Lerma, over opposition candidate Jorge Cardenas Gonzalez, the mayor of Matamoros.

Final tallies weren't expected until at least today.

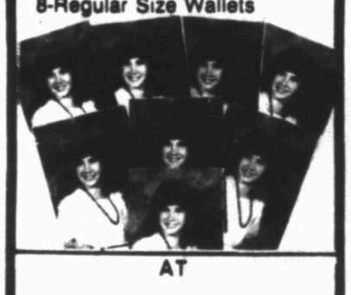

On Tuesday, coalition candidates and a handful of supporters used a truck, decorated with PRD and PAN signs, to block the street leading to the election headquarters in Matamoros, where ballots are still being tabulated. A crude coffin with "Here lies Democracy" written on the sides was placed atop a platform across from election headquarters.

Police patrolled the area with a group of men wearing camouflage uniforms and carrying nightsticks. They did not interfere with the demonstration.

Opposition supporters say various types of fraud were committed during Sunday's balloting, including the use of counterfeit voter cards.

Government announces inquiry into arms sales

LONDON (AP) — The government on Tuesday announced an inquiry into charges that Margaret Thatcher's Cabinet secretly promoted arms sales to Iraq until within weeks of Baghdad's invasion of Kuwait in August 1990.

The furor erupted after three executives of Iraqi-owned Matrix Churchill Corp. were acquitted Monday of selling arms-making machine tools to Iraq between 1988 and 1990, in violation of an arms embargo.

Prosecutors dropped the charges after former Trade Minister Alan Clark acknowledged that the government had encouraged the exports. A British secret service agent testified that Matrix Churchill's former managing director, Paul Henderson, had been a spy for MI6, the external intelligence agency.

The opposition has charged that Thatcher knew of the arms sales and that the government was prepared to let Henderson and two other businessmen go to jail to cover up intelligence activities.

In a statement after the trial, Henderson's lawyer said Henderson had been told by Clark in 1988 that British and U.S. policy were coordinated, and that Henderson had no doubt the information he provided was shared with the CIA and available to the White House.

Testimony at the trial also indicated the United States would have known about the sales.

U.S. Congressional critics have charged that the Bush administration was aware Iraq was getting Western help in rearming after the Iran-Iraq war but did nothing to stop it.

"There have been some extraordinary stories about this matter," Prime Minister John Major told the House of Commons on Tuesday. "I agree they must be clarified beyond any measure of doubt."

The sales, worth more than $37 million, took place when Thatcher was prime minister. Major, then a Cabinet minister, succeeded her in November 1990, shortly before the Gulf War allies launched air strikes to drive Iraq from Kuwait.

The Matrix Churchill debacle comes less than a week after Major's government nearly collapsed in a parliamentary battle over a European treaty, and adds to the misery of a government already in deep trouble over the economy.

"Thus a government widely seen as incompetent now stands accused of corruption," commented the London newspaper The Independent.

Attorney General Sir Nicholas Lyell, facing angry legislators in the House of Commons, said the inquiry would be able to call intelligence agents. Any Cabinet minister who refused to testify would be fired, he said.

The attorney general denied, without elaboration, a flood of opposition charges that the government colluded in the arms sales.

He also ducked repeated demands to apologize to the businessmen, and wouldn't say when Thatcher first knew of deals involving Matrix Churchill, based in the industrial city of Coventry.

An intelligence agent, identified only as "witness B" and hidden in court by a screen, testified Oct. 30 that he had learned of Iraqi contacts with Matrix Churchill in 1986 from an employee, Mark Gutteridge.

Asked whether he had told Gutteridge his report would be seen by Thatcher, the agent said "I may well have said that."

Opposition parties accused four government ministers of promoting a cover-up by signing documents claiming a "public interest immunity" to protect certain records from disclosure.

The trial judge rejected the government's request to withhold the documents.

Henderson and his colleagues were accused of claiming to the Trade Department that the machine tools were for peaceful purposes when in fact they were designed to make fuses for shells.

Eric Beston, an assistant secretary at the Department of Trade and Industry, testified that the Foreign Office tried to block export licenses in 1989, in part because it had evidence that previous shipments had been turned to military uses.

But Beston said his department successfully argued that Iraq would simply get the same equipment from other countries.

Clark, the former trade minister, testified during the trial that Britain's real enemy was Iran and that he counseled Matrix Churchill on how to get around "tiresome and intrusive" government export guidelines.

Tribe agrees to release 81 hostages

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — An Indian tribe in northern Brazil agreed to free 81 hostages after the government promised to remove a squatters' village from their Amazonian reserve, news reports said Tuesday.

The TV Globo network said the accord was negotiated between Guajajara tribal leaders and Justice Minister Mauricio Correa, who announced it after three hours of talks.

Several Guajajara chiefs signed a document with Correa and Sydney Possuelo, president of the National Indian Foundation, agreeing to release the hostages immediately, the independent radio Jornal do Brasil reported.

Until the settlers are evacuated, the Indians will keep eight buses they seized, the radio said.

The hostages, many suffering from heat and dehydration, have been held since Nov. 2 along a jungle highway about 1,400 miles northwest of Rio in Maranhao state.

The Guajajara have long demanded that the government remove some 6,000 residents from Sao Pedro dos Cacetes, a village illegally settled 50 years ago in the middle of their 350,000-acre Canabrava reservation.

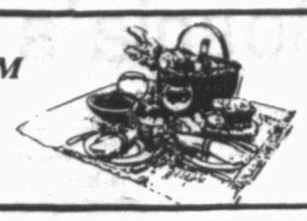

The current dispute began nine days ago when three hired gunmen murdered a Guajajara chief's son.

The next day, scores of Indians with shotguns, rifles and pistols stopped the eight buses and five passenger vehicles on a highway near the reservation's outskirts, taking about 150 people hostage. Reports conflicted as to the total number taken.

The tribe later released 39 children, 10 women and three men who had medical problems. Twelve other hostages escaped Sunday night.

Officials: Bush to submit bare-bones carry-over budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush will depart from the practice of his recent predecessors and submit a bare-bones federal budget before leaving office that will seek no tax or spending changes, administration and congressional officials said Tuesday.

Instead, the unusually brief document will summarize what fiscal policy has looked like during the Bush administration and simply project what the 1994 budget would look like without any of the changes President-elect Clinton is certain to make. Fiscal 1994 begins next Oct. 1.

"There's just no reason to make a political statement," said a White House Office of Management and Budget aide who spoke on condition of anonymity. "We've basically decided to put the numbers together and tee the ball up for Clinton."

Despite that disclaimer, the document may be more political than described.

By laying out his final measurement of how the economy is performing and how it is affecting federal tax collections and spending, Bush will be establishing a benchmark to which Clinton's later spending blueprint can be compared.

OMB officials are "hoping to box Clinton in so he can't play games," said one lobbyist who has talked with budget office officials and who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

The OMB official said Bush's final budget will probably be about 200 pages long, as opposed to the 1,700-page document that is normally submitted. It will likely be released in early January.

It will show that with no additional changes, spending will remain under the caps required by the 1990 budget agreement, said the OMB official. A White House official and a congressional aide, also speaking anonymously, confirmed that the plan would merely list the spending caps.

It is also likely to include a brief message from budget director Richard Darman defining the problem of the growing federal deficit, which in fiscal 1992 hit a record $290.2 billion.

Missing will be proposals to cut the capital gains tax rate, shave the growth of Medicare and other benefit programs, and increase law enforcement spending — proposals that have characterized spending plans Bush has submitted in the past.

When Presidents Reagan, Carter, and Ford left office, they all submitted lengthy, full-blown budgets that included favorite proposals to make changes in tax and spending policies.

But the OMB aide said the administration believed that such an exercise would be irrelevant in light of the changes Clinton wants to make.

Clinton will be sworn in on Jan. 20. The law requires the president to submit his budget for the upcoming fiscal year by the first Monday in February, which next year will be Feb. 1.

But the law does not require him to submit a budget if the outgoing president has done so. Clinton might need an extension from Congress if Bush's blueprint is so sparse that it is not considered a budget for purposes of meeting the Feb. 1 requirement.

Since that date is just 12 days after Clinton takes office, it would be hard for him to piece together a detailed document encompassing his budget priorities by the deadline.

"We haven't made any decisions about how quickly we would move," Clinton domestic policy adviser Bruce Reed said in Little Rock, Ark.

But Reed said Clinton is ready with budget-level details for his top priorities — spending and tax changes.

To Make Money In The Stock Market, You Need A Little Skill. To Make Money From Lotto Texas, You Need A Little Pencil.

LOTTO Texas is a new game from the Texas Lottery, and you could make millions just by filling out a playslip and paying a dollar.

(We apologize to all those who have made their money through skill and savvy.) The purpose of this is to instruct you on how to play.

OK. To play, just pick six numbers from one to fifty. If you happen to pick the same six numbers that come up at the drawings, then you could win millions of dollars.

OK. Step number one. Go to any of the LOTTO Texas retailers. You can only play where you see a red and yellow sign that says LOTTO Texas.

Step number two. While you're at the retailer, pick up a LOTTO Texas playslip and a pencil. There's a picture of the playslip on this page. You may find the playslips in a stand called a play station. If not, just ask for one.

Step number three. (My, we're moving right along now, aren't we?) Just choose SIX numbers from one to fifty. You can play up to five times on each playslip. Completely fill in the numbers that you choose on the playslip ONLY WITH A BLACK OR BLUE BALLPOINT PEN OR A PENCIL. The one featured here would work just fine.

Also, don't erase any mistakes you make. Just fill in the VOID box on that particular play and you will not be charged for it.

Step number four. (Past the halfway mark.) Take a dollar (that's how much it costs to play LOTTO Texas) and give it and the playslip to the retailer. It takes just a few seconds. When you're done, you'll be handed a ticket which will verify which numbers you picked. Please remember to take the time to sign your name on the back of your ticket so no one else will be able to cash it in.

Step number five. Tune in the televised drawings on Wednesday and Saturday nights at 9:58 p.m. CST to see how well you did. If you picked all six of the numbers which are randomly chosen on the ball machine, then you could become a millionaire. If you missed the drawing, the numbers will be posted the next day at all LOTTO Texas retailers and in your local newspaper. The jackpots are paid in 20 annual installments.

You can also win second and third prizes by matching five out of six or four out of six numbers. Match three out of six and you will win $3 automatically.

Win up to $599, and you can collect your prize at any LOTTO Texas retailer.

Winnings of $600 or more can be claimed at any of the 24 Texas Lottery claim centers. You can also claim prizes through the mail using a claim form that you may pick up at any Texas Lottery retailer. Please be sure to make copies of the front and back of your ticket before you send it in. The Texas Lottery is not responsible for tickets lost in the mail. All prizes must be claimed within 180 days of the drawing.

Finally, LOTTO Texas can be played up to 10 drawings (that's five weeks) in advance. If you want to play those same numbers for several drawings in a row, fill in the multi-draw box on your playslip with however many drawings you would like to play.

One more thing. You must be 18 years or older to play. And when you watch the televised drawings, there's a chance that your heart may start to pound a little and your palms may begin to sweat. The most important thing for you to remember is to please have fun and enjoy playing the game of LOTTO Texas.

School funding plan needs full debate

Now that the Texas Legislature is back in session to attempt — one more time — to pass a school financing plan that meets constitutional muster, there is every reason in the world to try a new approach. After all, three earlier attempts have failed in the courts and the Texas Supreme Court set a June 1 deadline for the Legislature to come up with an acceptable alternative plan. Time is running out.

The so-called "Fair Share School Finance Plan" put forward by Gov. Ann Richards, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Gib Lewis is anything but fair. It's a warmed-over "Robin Hood" plan that would take $400 million from the state's wealthiest school districts, send them to the state teacher retirement fund, then redistribute the same amount to the state's poorest school districts in the form of state funds. That, in addition to the plan's other detractions, have gained it the support of no one except the three state officials proposing it.

One proposal we do agree with is to allow the Legislature to consider all plans that might be proposed, not only the "Fair Share" plan. That might encourage legislators to break their deadlock on the school financing issue and actually pound out a plan that would be of benefit to all the state's school children.

That could mean the House of Representatives would sit as a committee of the whole and that instead of referring legislation to the Public Education Committee, every proposal would be debated in public on the House floor and every member would have to take a public stance. That idea was put forward by The Dallas Morning News earlier this week.

While there may be few bills that merit such generous and open debate, we believe the school financing measure is one that does. The issue touches virtually every resident of the Lone Star State and no doubt will determine how prepared the state is to meet its challenges.

The future of public education in the state — and, to an extent, private education — turns on this one issue.

ANOTHER VIEW

Common sense prevails in disposable diaper war

The apparent victory of disposables in the Great Diaper War reflects a human trait that must be maddening to those who hope to control others' behavior. People won't do something that makes no sense to them, even when the advertised reason for doing it could be viewed as a good one.

And it made no sense for families with babies to give up the convenience of disposable diapers, despite the assault on disposables by zealous environmentalists who tried to make the throwaways a symbol for all that's wrong with the way Americans treat the environment. Disposable diapers, you see, end up in sanitary landfills; and that's bad, even though that's what landfills are for.

Three years ago, legislatures in 22 states were considering laws to ban disposables outright or to discourage their use by taxing them. No such laws have made it onto the books. The Environmental Protection Agency doesn't even mention diapers, cloth or disposable, in its new guide to reducing waste.

The tale, of course, is about diapers only on one level. On another level, it's about common sense asserting itself over sensationalism, and about the understanding that the costs of modern life, as symbolized by the convenience of disposable diapers, often are legitimate.

The strident advocates of cloth diapers, however, were willing to seriously inconvenience millions of mothers because disposables, as mentioned, end up in landfills and because — here's another heinous offense — they are made from paper which is made from trees and they also contain plastics. In this argument, the marginally adverse environmental impact of cloth diapers is ignored.

This zealotry was aimed at controlling behavior. Instead it has resulted in scrutiny of the claims made in its behalf. And as often happens in such cases, good sense apparently has prevailed.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, Nov. 11, the 316th day of 1992. There are 50 days left in the year. This is Veterans Day in the United States, and Remembrance Day in Canada.

Today's highlight in history:

On Nov. 11, 1918, fighting in World War I came to an end with the signing of an armistice between the Allies and Germany.

On this date:

In 1620, 41 Pilgrims aboard the Mayflower, anchored off Massachusetts, signed a compact calling for a "body politick" to enact "just and equal laws."

In 1831, former slave Nat Turner, who had led a violent insurrection, was executed in Jerusalem, Va.

In 1889, Washington became the 42nd state.

In 1921, President Harding dedicated the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery.

In 1939, Kate Smith first sang Irving Berlin's "God Bless America" on network radio.

In 1942, 50 years ago, during World War II, Germany completed its occupation of France.

In 1965, Rhodesia proclaimed its independence from Britain.

In 1966, 25 years ago, Gemini 12 blasted off from Cape Kennedy, Fla., with astronauts James A. Lovell and Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin Jr. aboard. (Gemini circled the earth 59 times before returning.)

In 1972, 20 years ago, the U.S. Army turned over its base at Long Bihn to the South Vietnamese army, symbolizing the end of direct U.S. military involvement in the Vietnam War.

LESLIE GELB

Clinton needs to show toughness

Republicans are already undermining Bill Clinton with foreign diplomats and businessmen — just as they did to Jimmy Carter, with crippling effect, after the Nixon-Ford administration.

Gelb

The hits come from former officials who have worked intimately with foreigners in 20 of the last 24 years and have gained their trust. The underminers include the likes of Henry Kissinger, former top Reagan-Bush national security aides and conservative legislators.

Their message is everywhere the same: This governor of a small Southern state is dangerously inexperienced in world politics, as was Carter. He is being surrounded by naive Carterite liberals and Democratic neo-isolationists. And with only 43 percent of the popular vote, Bill Clinton has no mandate.

If the president-elect is to avoid being weakened even before he steps into the Oval Office, he had better cut off the poisoners at the knees now. He must send out the word that he knows who they are — and that he will settle accounts soon.

Republicans have played the game just that hard in past transitions. Democrats should do no less. It is the only way to survive and govern in Washington. It is also the best way to let foreigners know that they, too, will pay for gratuitous opposition and personal attacks.

Washington has become almost totally unruly. The town is saturated with left- and right-wing ideologues, officials and lobbyists with independent power bases. They do not respond well to persuasion. But they do appreciate fear and power.

The question is whether Clinton has the stomach for such combat.

Conservatives are unashamed by self-interest and feel comfortable exercising power on their own behalf. But because moderates and Lockean liberals tend toward tolerance by philosophy and temperament, they want to understand other points of view and find it natural to live with differences. Thus they feel awkward wielding raw power. They prefer using it only on behalf of high principles such as human rights.

Clinton is a moderate and a politician to his soul. He does not incline toward skin-pinching, horse-trading or threats. He seeks to conciliate, make everyone feel good, persuade through reason and balance conflicting interests.

Typical of the Clinton style is the way he handled the North American Free Trade Agreement. From the beginning, he clearly favored the treaty as a net plus. But he insisted on knowing the minuses — particularly the difficulty of enforcing environmental laws and retraining workers likely to lose jobs — and pinpointing them in his endorsing statement. He fine-tuned the whole operation personally.

His NAFTA position has rigor and reason. Which won't take him very far in getting the treaty approved. He will not be able to please everyone. He will need to put a harder edge and thrust on his advocacy — and break some knuckles.

No one ever talks of Clinton as a knuckle-breaker, as ruthless or tough in dealing with others. He evinced no such traits as governor of Arkansas or as a presidential candidate.

This does not mean he lacks personal toughness. On the contrary, he demonstrated an incredible ability to absorb hard blows in running the presidential gantlet. He can also show anger, but showers it mostly on his own staffers. He generates affection, loyalty and respect. But he inspires no fear among supporters, let alone among adversaries.

Clinton bridles when his toughness in exercising power is questioned. But he knows people think he isn't tough.

Getting tough with friends and liberals is one thing. Putting butterflies in hostile Republican bellies is another. But Clinton had better show he can play Lyndon Johnson-style hardball before he even takes the oath of office. Otherwise he will face more trials at home and abroad than he or any other leader can survive.

WILLIAM SAFIRE

Secret taping of phone calls shameful, wrong

WASHINGTON — Boasting over the telephone to a potential contributor, the head of the pro-Israel lobby here made some wild claims of having clout with the Clinton camp.

Safire

Unknown to the lobbyist, the caller, Harry Katz of New York, was secretly tape-recording the conversation. When the embarrassing tape was turned over to a newspaper, the foolish lobbyist was forced to resign.

This called to mind another recent episode of surreptitious recording. Ross Perot, in a press conference portraying himself as the victim of a vast conspiracy, revealed a bit of victimizing of his own.

Perot admitted that he had called Oliver North about his predicament with the law, ostensibly offering help, but had secretly taped the conversation, which was damaging to North.

A third instance of one-sided recording of a two-person conversation was widely publicized earlier this year by Gennifer Flowers, Bill Clinton's accuser. She was discredited when her tapes failed to show specific evidence of infidelity and showed signs of having been doctored.

In each of these instances, the heat was on the person taped. One cost the lobbyist his job, another jeopardized a defense, the third came close to derailing a presidential bid.

But little condemnation was directed at the person who recorded the conversation without telling the person on the other end.

I think Katz, who brought down an arrogant fool by setting a recording trap, is a dishonorable man. Perot, who thinks nothing of intrusions on the personal lives of others, is equally dishonorable for his betrayal of North's trust. And Ms. Flowers, whose exploitation of her tapes of Clinton did not rise to the level of blackmail, is — by virtue of her secret taping — a dishonorable woman.

Honor? What kind of notion is that to bring up in the real world of interpersonal relationships? And what's so terrible about recording your own telephone conversations — it's your phone line, isn't it?

Recording another person's conversation, when he or she is speaking with a reasonable expectation of privacy, is ethically repugnant — and in some enlightened states, unlawful.

One administration back, I caught a federal official routinely taping his calls without telling his callers — perhaps for memoirs, perhaps as a souvenir of his days in power. He taped one of those calls in Florida, a state that requires notification of the other party, but a chance to make a national example of this wrongdoing was lost when a Republican prosecutor was prevailed upon to drop the case.

Today, with inexpensive telephone answering machines offering a "recording capability," secret taping is child's play.

If the taper's intentions are honorable, it's easy to say "Do you mind if I record this?" The other person is forewarned; both speakers are on a level playing field.

If the taper does not request permission beforehand, the intent is probably dishonorable; he knows a record is being made and speaks guardedly, while the other, speaking freely, may say things he would hate to see in a transcript in court.

The argument is made that secret taping "protects" the caller — that if he is threatened or lied to, he then has proof of the other person's offense. That is Perot's defense. It was Richard Nixon's rationale for the White House taping system: that he could set history straight if any visitor or caller tried to twist the truth.

That's 100 percent selfish; the taper protects himself at the endangerment of everyone else. Take that self-protection argument to the next step: the miracle of miniaturization will soon make it possible for everyone to be outfitted with a tiny recorder.

The wearer may be protected, but at what cost to everyone else's personal freedom? Do we want to live in a society where every word must be measured before speaking, where distrust is enshrined?

Teach your children: Secret recording, like eavesdropping, is shameful and wrong. We don't want to become a nation of spies.

ART BUCHWALD

This column belongs to the American people

Everyone in this country has been affected one way or another by Ross Perot. I must admit that he has made a lasting impression on me, particularly where this column is concerned. Let me tell you what I'm going to do for you in the next four years.

Buchwald

Pretend that I have very large ears like television antennas.

OK, first of all I'd like to say that this column belongs to you, the American people. I just work for you, and you have to tell me exactly what you want me to write and I'll do it. You're my boss and I'm not going to take any pay.

This is a fine newspaper you're reading — what makes it fine is you readers, not the big boys upstairs who put it out and don't care what you people think. But I'm for you little guys who read it mainly for the want ads because the economy's so bad and I'm the only one who can fix it.

I'm not talking about raising chickens like some vicuna-coat editor — nor am I in favor of giving a tax break to the uppity right-wing sports writers.

OK, all of us have an obligation to make sure that this column provides everyone with the American dream.

And speaking of the American dream, I promise you that I'll make sure that the Japanese or Germans don't take good newspaper space away from American columnists.

OK. As I said on my half-hour show on NBC last night and will say on CBS tonight, ABC tomorrow evening, PBS next week, the BBC on Sunday and Radio Free Albania on Inauguration Day, the other American columnists like Russell Baker and Bill Safire never cared about you.

They were on power trips and that's why so many newspaper readers have turned to me to tell them the truth.

The readers don't want to find out what is going on for the next four years from those boys in $1,000 suits with blow-dried hair. Sure, they call me a spoiler. But they also called Saddam Hussein a spoiler and half of the former East German politburo as well, which is no answer because things were spoiled way before I got into the newspaper business.

I am not saying that you should read me if you believe that there is a better column around. But it only takes two and two to make four, and four to tango, and I want you to know that unlike Mary McGrory and George Will I'm putting my mouth where my money is.

I want you to understand that I have made a commitment to you. In order to make this column work for the people I'm putting my byline on the table. And I want you to know that unlike those writer guys in their BMWs I don't belong to anyone but you.

OK. We're now in a two-minute drill and I'll be working for you, folks, to make this column an article of faith that will benefit all Americans.

So tell me what you want me to write. You're the ones running America. This column belongs to you. I just hold it in trust.

Now here is the thing you're really going to love.

All the other fellows write their pieces on computers, but I write mine with a goose quill pen. That's why people who are fed up with the media keep turning to me because I'm the only one in America who can guarantee any of them a nice day.

Clinton strategists lay groundwork for next 8 years

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The strategists who helped Bill Clinton win the White House are now sketching plans for a political operation designed to keep him in touch and in tune with voters as he implements a busy policy agenda.

In doing so, the Clinton aides are borrowing a strategy of the Republicans they just beat: keeping a constant political watch over presidential policy and constantly preparing for the next national election.

Key players in the effort are those who orchestrated Clinton's winning campaign: communications director George Stephanopoulos, manager David Wilhelm, strategists James Carville and Paul Begala, media adviser Mandy Grunwald, pollster Stanley Greenberg and fund-raiser Rahm Emanuel.

While they sketch out a political operation they are also comparing notes about shopping for new cars, a practical acknowledgement for some that Clinton's crew members dare not drive foreign models once they're in power in Washington.

Stephanopoulos, one of Clinton's closest aides and his most visible spokesman, is certain to land in a senior White House position.

Wilhelm, who built Clinton's organization in crucial states and often served as an emissary to labor and other interest groups, is likely to land either in the White House or at the Democratic National Committee.

The outcome depends on whether Clinton chooses to run his political operation from inside the White House or through the party.

"David is the right hand for politics," said one senior Clinton adviser. "Where he lands is where the politics get directed from."

Past presidents have tried it both ways. Ronald Reagan turned first to campaign spokesman Lyn Nofziger and then other Republican operatives to run a White House-based political team.

President Bush, on the other hand, installed campaign manager Lee Atwater as Republican Party chairman and kept the nuts and bolts of his political team at party headquarters. After Atwater's death, the Bush operation shifted to the White House but was never as effective.

Carville, who directed Clinton's daily strategy, has made it clear he wants no role in government. "I wouldn't live in a country that would allow me to work in the government," is a favorite Carville line.

But he will serve as a senior adviser from the outside when Clinton needs political advice. "It will be nice to have the president of the United States call you in and say, 'James, what do you think about this?'" he said.

Less clear is the role to be played by Carville's partner, Begala. He worked for House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt as a speechwriter and strategist, and colleagues promote him heavily for a White House position. Wherever he lands, Begala is certain to remain in Clinton's political inner circle.

Like Carville, Grunwald says she prefers to help Clinton from the outside, continuing to work for her growing campaign client list while serving as a political adviser to the new president.

Connors dies at 71

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Chuck Connors, the fast-shooting Lucas McCain on the long-running television series "The Rifleman," died Tuesday of lung cancer. He was 71.

Connors, who also appeared in at least 28 movies, died about 2 p.m. at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, said hospital spokesman Ron Wise. He entered the hospital a week ago.

Born in the New York City borough of Brooklyn, Connors played baseball with the Brooklyn Dodgers and Chicago Cubs, as well as basketball for two seasons with the Boston Celtics. He came to California when he joined the old Los Angeles Angels minor league baseball team.

Better known for his humorous sideline antics than his baseball prowess, the 6-foot-5 Connors picked up acting roles in such movies as "Pat and Mike" in 1952, "Target Zero" in 1954, "Hold Back the Night" in 1956 and "The Big Country" in 1958.

But his career didn't take off until "The Rifleman" TV series, which ran from 1958 to 1963 and was the top-rated new show its first season. Connors, playing a New Mexico homesteader raising a son by himself, battled villains with the aid of a Winchester rifle that he cocked as he drew it. Johnny Crawford played his son.

In a 1983 Associated Press interview, Connors said he didn't mind being remembered most for "The Rifleman."

"It's no problem at all for me. My whole ability to make a living is derived from the fact that I was 'The Rifleman,'" the actor said.

Connors also starred as a defense attorney in the series "Arrest and Trial" in 1963-64 and as a former soldier falsely accused of cowardice in "Branded," 1965-66. His numerous TV guest-starring roles included the Emmy-nominated role as the lustful slave owner Tom Moore in the "Roots" miniseries.

He was in the TV movies "Banjo Hackett" in 1976, "Nightmare in Badham County" in 1976, "Standing Tall" in 1978 and "The Tourist Trap" in 1979.

Connors also appeared in the films "South Sea Woman" in 1953, "Designing Woman" in 1957, "Geronimo" in 1962, "Move Over Darling" in 1963, "Soylent Green" in 1972 and "Airplane 2: The Sequel" in 1982.

A longtime friend of former President Reagan, Connors once contemplated entering politics. He decided not to, he said, "because from being around so many politicians, I became a little cynical about politicians in general."

His other TV shows included "Cowboy in Africa" 1967-68, "The Thrill Seekers" in 1973-74, "The Yellow Rose" in 1983-84 and "Werewolf" in 1987-88.

Connors, who was married and divorced three times, was survived by his four sons.

Senate re-elects all top leadership for two more years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate on Tuesday re-elected all its top leaders for another two years, demonstrating that incumbents — whatever their status with the voting public — still can find acceptance on Capitol Hill.

One contest was close, incumbent Phil Gramm's one-vote victory over Mitch McConnell to head the Senate's Republican campaign committee. The race was viewed as a referendum on Gramm's job performance and on the question of whether a man with presidential ambitions for 1996 should hold the post.

Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, was re-elected without opposition along with his leadership team in a closed-door Democratic conclave. In a similar GOP meeting, Minority Leader Bob Dole was unanimously chosen, but some of his top lieutenants had to survive challenges.

It was remarkable stability in a year when candidates from the top of the ticket to the bottom sought to claim the mantle of change and to distance themselves from Washington. Even incumbents tried to run as outsiders.

The Republican contests suggested divisions between moderate and more conservative Republicans over how to conduct themselves once President Bush leaves the White House and they become an opposition party.

Alan Simpson of Wyoming was re-elected whip, the party's No. 2 post, on a vote of 25-14 over Sen. Slade Gorton of Washington.

While Gorton and Simpson are not that ideologically different, Gorton was seen as the candidate of the party's younger and more conservative members who want more combative, aggressive leadership. It was a rematch of a contest Simpson won eight years ago.

Simpson predicted afterward that Senate Republicans would unite. "When you are the last bastion of your party, you tend to join together more," he said.

Dole, who will soon become the nation's top-ranking elected Republican, quipped that the new political constellation would mean "fewer trips to the White House, and fewer White House people at our lunches."

In another contested GOP race, Mississippi's Trent Lott got 20 votes for secretary of the Republican conference, to 14 for Sen. Christopher Bond of Missouri and five for Sen. Frank Murkowski of Alaska. Lott replaces Sen. Robert Kasten of Wisconsin, who was defeated at the polls Nov. 3.

"Senate Republicans are changing," said the more conservative Lott, noting the presence of a younger generation, many of whom have transferred to the chamber from the House of Representatives. "If we can get those guys more engaged, you will see a more dynamic force around here."

Sen. Don Nickles, of Oklahoma, added, "You'll also see very spirited opposition if (Democrats) come up with massive new taxes, or massive new spending programs that will increase the deficit."

Gramm, of Texas, hung onto his chairmanship of the Republicans' Senate campaign committee by one vote, winning 20-19 over McConnell, of Kentucky.

As chairman, Gramm oversaw GOP recruiting and fund-raising for this year's elections, and now will direct the party's efforts to elect Republican senators in 1994.

That contest was viewed as less ideological than personal. Gramm afterward accused McConnell of running "the whole campaign on the basis of a negative campaign against me, and it had some impact."

McConnell denied the charge, saying he had based his appeal on assertions that he was the best person for the job, and that the campaign post may not be appropriate for Gramm, who is considered a likely 1996 presidential candidate.

"I think it was certainly an issue for the caucus to consider, whether running for president and chairing the Senate campaign committee are compatible activities," McConnell said.

Other GOP senators said Gramm's narrow win showed that a bare majority believed he had done well to limit Republican electoral losses in a year when Bush was doing poorly.

On the Democratic side, Wendell Ford of Kentucky was re-elected party whip and John Breaux of Louisiana was elected Ford's chief deputy, replacing Sen. Alan Dixon of Illinois who lost his seat.

Despite the presence of a record six women in the new Senate, no women found their way into the leadership.

Official: MIAs may be alive inside Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) — The top Republican on the Senate Committee on POW-MIA Affairs said Tuesday that Americans missing in action from the Korean War could still be alive inside Russia, and he accused Russia of stonewalling U.S. efforts to find out just what happened to them.

Sen. Bob Smith, R-N.H., also said the U.S. government "has covered up what it knew (about Korean War POWs) through a pattern of denial, misleading statements and, in some cases, lies."

His comments came at the committee's first hearing held specifically on U.S. servicemen missing or held prisoner from the Korean War, which ended in 1953. The committee is scheduled to go out of existence at the end of December.

Smith released what he said was the most comprehensive compilation of U.S. government policy and intelligence information that has been known about the fate of men missing from the Korean War and what the government did to find out about them.

"It is a document that shows in explicit detail that the government of North Korea did not return a large number of American servicemen at the end of the war and that some of the men left behind were sent to Communist China and to the Soviet Union," he said.

Officially, there are 8,177 servicemen who never returned from the Korean War. That number includes POWs who died in camps, servicemen lost at sea and buried by Americans in Korea, and people whose fates remain unknown.

Smith said internal U.S. government documents show that "our government believed men were still alive in captivity, and until only a few months ago, has kept that reality from the American people."

However, a joint American-Russian commission searching for U.S. prisoners of war is finally making some progress despite the efforts of some Russian government elements trying to hinder the process, he said.

Council issues $4.9 million in certificates of obligation

■ Funds to be used for street, drainage and traffic projects.

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

Midland City Council members sold $4.9 million in certificates of obligation Tuesday, supporting street and drainage projects, including a $1 million seal-coating effort.

The certificates are similar to bonds except that their issuance, while incurring debt, does not require citizen vote.

The certificates were issued to First Southwest Company of Dallas whose bid of 5.664 percent interest was the lowest of 10 submitted.

The funds will be used for a variety of street and drainage improvements, but unlike past years, the certificates will be issued for three years, making the exact allocation of the money difficult to determine, said Mayor J.D. Faircloth.

Street work is slated to include $1 million to be used strictly for seal-coating with the bulk of the work encompassing streets in southeast Midland — east of Big Spring Street and south of Golf Course Road, said Harvey Hansen, director of engineering.

Hansen said most of the streets are deteriorating quickly and are in need of repair immediately.

Part of the seal-coating project will go toward previously delayed projects, including three square miles west of Garfield Street between Andrews Highway and Illinois Avenue.

The street department had asked for $1.6 million specifically for seal-coating.

An additional $1,427,000 can be used for other street improvements.

About $85,000 will be used to purchase hot and cold mixes of emulsion, gravel and sand to fill potholes and repair ruts and cracks in the road.

The cold mix will be spread over the entire roadway about a half-inch think, costing about three times less than using the hot mix, Hansen said.

Among planned drainage projects, some of which have not been designated, is a large-scale study to determine what channels need to be widened or deepened — procedures necessary to increase flow capacity.

Hansen said work needs to be started on the channel running west of Midland Park Mall to Midland Drive and another running from Big Spring Street at Mission Square to Highway 80.

The traffic department plans to use $300,000 in certificates to buy new equipment, install new interconnect and repair existing interconnect across town.

The interconnect system consists of a computer that assists in monitoring signal problems at various intersections. It also helps synchronize traffic lights.

The department also hopes to purchase controllers and cabinets at 29 intersections downtown, which would replace equipment installed in the 1950s and ease the flow of traffic during rush hours.

Other projects include unspecified park improvements, $500,000; the purchase of addi-

■ Because of federal guidelines, it will cost an extra $1 million to dig each pit.

By Darren J. Waggoner

New federal regulations could soon trickle down into the water bills of Midland residents, as the Texas Water Commission (TWC) seeks to change the makeup of state landfills.

Local landfill pits are dug 25 feet deep and about 50 to 100 feet wide, at a cost of $250,000 for each hole. The city has a permit to pile an additional 25 feet of garbage above ground before covering it with two feet of soil.

Under new guidelines, the city will be forced to place a plastic-lining and two feet of clay along the bottom of each pit. Instead of digging straight-sided holes, the holes must be dug at an angle.

Utilities director Ken Jones estimates the regulations will cost the city an additional $1 million to dig each pit, putting the total cost at $1,250,000 each.

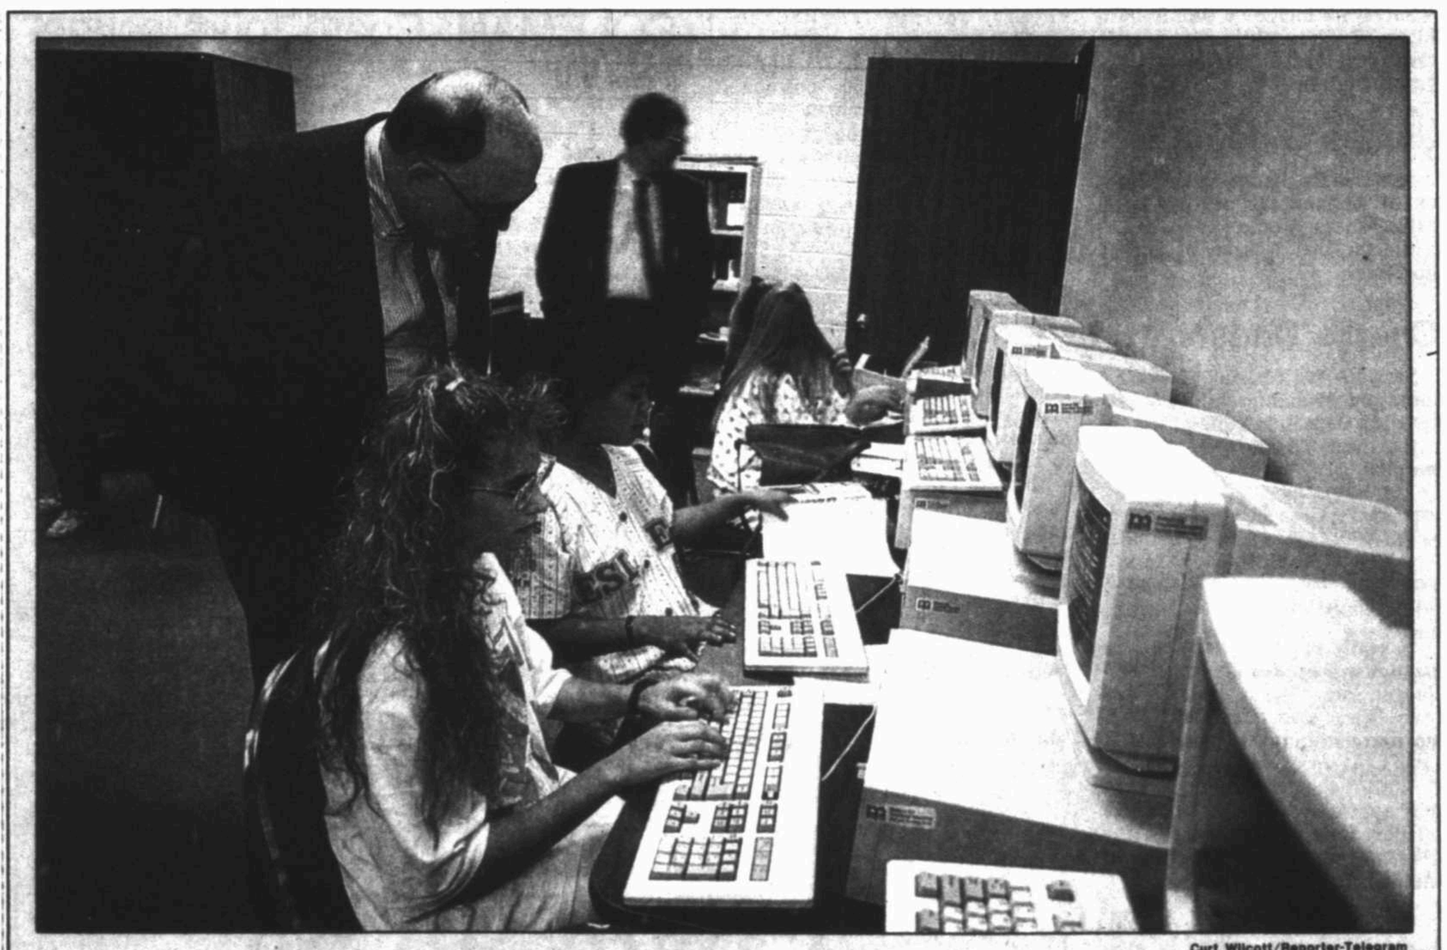

"The regulations are there to keep the water that goes through the refuge from polluting the ground," Jones said. "But they're in place for towns that get a lot of rain; they make sense in a wetter climate but not here."

Jones said the change would eventually affect everyone, including people living in apartments.

"Right now it costs $7.75 per household per month to pick-up trash ... it's included in your water bill," he said. "If you live in an apartment it will eventually be reflected in your rent."

Jones said dumping fees are $8 a ton plus $1.50 in state surcharges,

Coleman is 'classy,' board says

■ MISD members tour alternative school and were impressed by its comfortable environment.

Child care rooms, a wall of glass bricks, muted gray tones, and high-tech classrooms led some school board members to describe Viola Coleman High School as "classy, but comfortable, like a family center," rather than a school.

"I'm impressed," said Midland school board president Jack Hightower as he entered the newly completed school Tuesday afternoon.

School board trustees toured the approximately $1.6 million facility following a tour of Lee Freshman High School's recently renovated science classrooms and labs.

Trustees and school administrators noted that Coleman High's environment was not unlike that of a professional building. And indeed, the intent of Midland architect Gary L. Vandergriff, with Vandergriff Group, was to create "a professional office building environment, not so much a school."

Nonetheless, a framed portrait of the school's mascot, the Coleman Knight, is prominently displayed in the main office, and the school colors of red and black have been incorporated into the architectural design with gray brick accented by bricks of varying shades of deep red. Black tiles also accent white and gray walls inside.

Vandergriff said the facility, which encompasses more than 26,000 square feet, includes a child-care wing with observation rooms, a nurse's clinic, administration and counseling offices, a large-scale testing center, a computer lab, a science lab, auditorium, fully equipped life skills class and seven academic classrooms.

"The school has a full curriculum. Students won't need to leave campus (for any instruction)," Vandergriff said.

The facility is good news for the 209 students — 87 in the morning session, 89 in the afternoon and 33 in the evening —

Official: Texas must compete in order to prosper

■ State's deputy comptroller meets with area business and civic leaders.

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

Texas, which is steeped in world competition, must take the aggression in competing for goods and services in a changing global economy if the state is to regain its prosperity, Deputy Texas Comptroller Billy Hamilton said Monday in a visit to the Midland-Odessa area.

West Texas, like the rest of the state and the nation, no longer can afford to "muddle along" as if "everything will work out, because the way the world is working now, it might not work out," Hamilton said.

Following his talk to West Texas business and civic leaders at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin's Center for Energy and Economic Diversification (CEED), Hamilton said Texans found out in the last several "hard years" that "there doesn't have to be a brighter tomorrow.

"It's something you've got to work toward."

In its platform of ideas called "Forces of Change," the Texas Comptroller's Office is ferreting out and exploring ways to help ensure Texans a brighter tomorrow.

In today's increasingly high-technological society, the future of Texas is one of competition, Hamilton said.

"The world economy at some level is pretty unforgiving of people who aren't ready to compete," he said.

Primary keys in preparing for that competition in West Texas and throughout the state are education, flexibility and innovation.

"I don't think the Midland-Odessa area can probably sustain itself just on oil and gas and agriculture," Hamilton said. "Its got to look for ways to bring in manufacturing, to offer other types of services."

While petroleum is "going to continue to be a commodity that's in demand worldwide," West Texans in various aspects of the oil-and-gas industry have "welled up a lot of expertise," which could be capitalized on in world markets, Hamilton said.

Those skilled and knowledgeable people could apply their talents and energy in "creating all of these new high-tech industries," he said.

"Our problem in this state right now is not the price of oil," Hamilton said. "Our problem is thinking strategically: how to use the minds of the people that we've got and all the other resources."

People in the petroleum industry could "leverage" a lot of their knowledge by "tapping into the worldwide demand for oil and gas and oil-and-gas technology," Hamilton said.

In his formal talk at UTPB's CEED, Hamilton alluded to technology and said that Winston Churchill was prophetic when the British prime minister, in a 1943 address at Harvard University, said, "The empires of the future are empires of the mind."

Hamilton said that he and his boss, Comptroller John Sharp, are really high on encouraging exports.

"It's amazing," Hamilton said. "Nationally, something like 80 percent of the exports are done by 2,000 companies," even though there are "literally millions of companies doing business.

"There's just a vast market to be tapped if we are smart about it,"

MOSC conductor tenders resignation

By Georgia Todd Temple
Staff writer

Don Th. Jaeger, music director and conductor of the Midland-Odessa Symphony & Chorale, offered his resignation this week effective at the end of the 1992-'93 season.

Jaeger

"This decision is based on a combination of factors, among which is a desire to lend a vigorous expansion of the summer festival in Michigan which I founded 15 years ago," Jaeger said in his resignation. "Additionally, I will have more time to pursue other professional and personal opportunities."

Jaeger began his conducting activities while a faculty member of the Interlochen Arts Academy, where he also served as administrative director. During a 20-year tenure at Interlochen, he conducted numerous orchestras, band and ensembles.

From 1969-'81 he served as music director and conductor of the Midland Symphony Orchestra in Midland, Mich., and for seven years concurrently, was conductor of the Northwestern Michigan Symphony, now Traverse Symphony.

With the Midland Symphony, he toured Europe in 1976 and presented a Kennedy Center concert in Washington, D.C.

In the late 1970s, he founded the Northwood Orchestra under the auspices of Northwood Institute and continues today to plan and present its annual summer festival in Harbor Springs and Charlevoix, Mich. With this orchestra, Jaeger

Local group makes donations to brighten holidays of others

By Michael Kashgarian

The holiday spirit is already affecting some local residents.

On Tuesday at the quarterly meeting of the Activities Directors Association of nursing and retirement homes, the group made presentations to help feed the needy on Thanksgiving and bring a little Christmas happiness to some youngsters.

"This is our first year to do this. Our organization has been in effect for eight years," said Cleo Wolf, president of the group and activities director at Terrace West Nursing Center.

The organization decided to forego gift-giving between one another this year and help others instead, he said.

"We are not just for the elderly and senior citizens. We are for everybody," Wolf said.

DEATHS

Lisa Battles

Memorial services for Lisa Battles of Midland, wife of former Reporter-Telegram sports editor Ted Battles, are to be at 10:30 a.m. Friday at Trinity Presbyterian Church with Dr. Al Moreau officiating. Ellis Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Battles

Mrs. Battles died Tuesday at a local hospital.

She was born Aug. 23, 1925, in Brooklyn, N.Y., where she was reared and educated. She attended Adelphi Academy in Brooklyn and later the University of Vermont, where she earned a degree in English.

While in college, she met Ted Battles and they were married on June 17, 1947, in Burlington, Vt.

The family lived in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Oklahoma prior to moving to Midland in 1953, when Battles joined the Reporter-Telegram staff.

Mrs. Battles was a member of Trinity Presbyterian Church, serving as a deacon in the late 1970s. She was active in the Meals on Wheels program, the Midland Community Theater and EN AMI Book Club. Mrs. Battles also was involved in school activities, the Parent-Teachers Association and served as a Cub Scout den mother for her sons.

Survivors include her husband; two sons, Byron Williams Battles of Silver Spring, Md., and Brandon Morse Battles of Fort Worth; two grandchildren; two nieces and one nephew.

The family requests memorials be directed to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA), the Allison Cancer Center or the Salvation Army.

Clyde Reynolds

BIG SPRING — Services for Clyde C. Reynolds, 87, of Garden City are to be at 2 p.m. Thursday at the Nalley-Pickle & Welch Rosewood Chapel in Big Spring with the Rev. Ken James, pastor of the Garden City United Methodist Church, officiating. Burial will follow at the Garden City Cemetery.

Reynolds died Tuesday at his residence.

He was born Aug. 26, 1905, in Lubbock. He married Roberta Ratliff on Jan. 29, 1943, in Dallas.

Reynolds moved to Sterling City as a young child and graduated from Sterling City High School. He later attended Texas Christian University in Fort Worth.

He moved to Glasscock County in the early 1920s and started his ranching business. He was a member of the Texas Cattle Raisers Association, the Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, the New Mexico Cattle Growers Association, and served as director with the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association.

He also served on the Garden City Independent School District board for several years.

Survivors include his wife; one son, Ritchie Reynolds of Marfa; one daughter, Becky Cotten of San Angelo; four grandchildren and two nephews.

Ray Neely

Graveside services for Ray "Little Red" Neely of Midland are to be at 2 p.m. Thursday at Fairview Cemetery with the Rev. Bob Porterfield, of West Kentucky Baptist Church, officiating. Services are under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Neely died Tuesday at a local hospital.

He was born on Dec. 8, 1922, in Brady, where he was reared. He served in the U.S. Army during World War II in the South Pacific. Following his discharge, he moved to Midland.

He married Lucy Jackson in Midland on June 6, 1976.

He was employed as a truck driver, delivering supplies for Howard McCarroll Lumber Company. He retired in the mid-1980s.

He was preceded in death by his wife on Oct. 18 of this year.

Survivors include a stepdaughter, Vickie Kirby of Midland; a sister, Lola Hudson of Dallas; and two nieces.

Ruth Provosty

NEW ORLEANS — Services for Ruth Provosty, 94, of New Orleans, mother of Andree Hickety of Midland, were Thursday at the Lake Lawn Funeral Home Chapel in New Orleans. Burial was in Metairie Cemetery.

She died Nov. 4 at her residence.

She was a lifelong resident of New Orleans.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Michel Provosty, in 1958, and a daughter, Ruth Taylor, in 1981.

Survivors include another daughter, Jacqueline Avegno of New Orleans; a son, Michel O. Provosty of New Orleans; 18 grandchildren and 33 great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers were Mrs. Provosty's grandchildren.

Vera Lloyd

RIVERDALE, Calif. — Services for Vera Nell Lloyd, 79, of Riverdale and formerly of Midland, are to be at 10 a.m. Thursday at United Methodist Church in Riverdale. Services are under the direction of Buchheim Family Riverdale Chapel in Riverdale.

Visitation will be from 3-8 p.m. today at the funeral home.

Mrs. Lloyd died Monday.

She was a homemaker.

Survivors include a son, Robert Lloyd of Riverdale; seven grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

James Gideon

Services for James "Jake" Gideon of Midland are pending with Ellis Funeral Home.

Gideon died Tuesday at a local hospital.

Charlie Dodson

Services for Charlie Dodson, a longtime Midland resident, are pending with Ellis Funeral Home.

He died Tuesday at a local hospital.

Police seek information in murder of 6-year-old

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston police are offering a $2,000 reward for information on the kidnapping and slaying of a 6-year-old boy whose skeleton was found a week ago in Baytown.

Angelo Garcia was abducted Sept. 30 from the apartment he shared with his mother and her boyfriend, Arturo Rodriguez. The mother, Diana Garcia, told police two men kicked in the apartment door, beat and tied up her and her boyfriend and then took her sleeping son.

But Ms. Garcia and Rodriguez have denied that they knew the assailants or knew of any motive they may have had in kidnapping the child.

The boy's remains were discovered Nov. 4 by a man who had been digging for crabs at Goose Lake in Baytown. The Harris County Medical Examiner's office identified the boy through dental records and bits of clothing.

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

Fatal shooting

Staff report

ANDREWS — The Andrews County Sheriff's office is still investigating the fatal shooting of a man at an oil company office Saturday afternoon.

According to a report, a 911 operator recieved at call at 5:15 p.m. Saturday about a possible dead body on a oil lease approximately 16 miles west of Andrews.

The police ambulance service and the sheriff's deputies were dispatched to the scene, where they found a white male, approximately 38 years old, who had been shot several times. according to the report.

Judge Sandra Smiley pronounced the man dead at 6:25 p.m. His body was sent to Dallas for an autopsy.

The man was identified as Keith Lynn Nichols.

The sheriff's department did not release the name of the oil company nor did it have the results of the autospy.

Boy dies

A 15-month-old Midland boy died early Sunday morning at University Medical Center in Lubbock due to complications from burns he received during a house fire Friday.

Paul Friday died at 4:01 a.m. Sunday in the hospital's burn unit. His mother, Paula Arnold, was discharged from Memorial Hospital and Medical Center Saturday.

Ms. Arnold and her son were injured during a fire that destroyed their trailer home at 110 E. County Road 137. The two sustained burns after a space heater started a fire that began on a curtain and bed cover in the child's room about 8:15 a.m. Friday morning.

Hospital donates $150,000 to Texas Tech

Staff report

The Rehabilitation Hospital of Midland-Odessa (RHMO), a subsidiary of National Medical Enterprises Inc. (NME), announced its presentation of a $150,000 gift to the Texas Tech University Health Science Center — Department of Physical Therapy (TTUHSC) in Lubbock.

The gift will assist in funding a doctorate level faculty position, said Brian F. Wells, chief executive officer and administrator for RHMO. The gift will be disbursed over a five-year period to allow the university to increase its student class size and develop new research programs.

The funding for RHMO will increase the educational opportunities available to TTUHSC physical therapy students. The TTUHSC-Department of Physical Therapy graduated its first class of 14 students in 1985 and has increased its baccalaureate program graduates to approximately 28 students.

"Despite the number of graduates from programs like TTUHSC's and intensive recruiting efforts by area hospitals and other health facilities, there remains a shortage of physical and occupational therapists in the West Texas area," Wells said. "With the increasing focus on health care for the future, RHMO's gift to the university underscores its commitment to providing physical therapy students with the opportunity to further their education as well as to increasing the supply of therapy professionals in the area."

Opening in the winter of 1993, RHMO will provide a comprehensive array of physical rehabilitation services to persons with head injuries, spinal cord injuries, orthpaedic conditions, strokes and work-related injuries.

attending with their 40 toddlers and infants.

The school is designed for students who can't attend school during regular hours for various reasons, according to Principal Helen Lackey.

"There is a waiting list of students at both Midland High School and Lee High School of students who want to attend," Ms. Lackey said. "Some students have failed, are behind or have lost a credit due to attendance problems. They usually know the material and are able to pick it up quickly."

Ms. Lackey said the school also serves high school students who have babies, young women who are pregnant, and students who have to work during regular school hours.

The principal said the flexibility of the school sessions allows students to "work around work schedules, including split shifts, and attend school when not at work."

Ms. Lackey said school capacity — which amounts to a total enrollment from all sessions — is 450.

Enrollment is expected to increase to 300 by the end of November.

A parent education grant abundantly furnished the child care center with cribs, strollers and toys.

One piece of equipment that caught the eye of school administrators touring the facility was a stroller built for six tiny tots.

"I've got to keep moving, or they'll start crying," said a young lady taking her six young charges out to the school patio for a stroll.

conducted two New York performances, in Avery Hall with the Canadian Brass in 1981 and a Carnegie Hall concert honoring Van Cliburn in 1983 with Leontyne Price as guest artist.

"We're undergoing a rather major and vigorous expansion and that's going to take a lot more of my time," Jaeger said in an interview before Tuesday's MOS performance.

"With something you've been involved with founding, you have a different feeling about it. You want to be able to carry it as far as you can and hope that it's in good shape when you're gone so that it can carry on. That's one of my prime considerations at this time."

Jaeger also founded three annual Bach festivals: The Village Bach Festival, Cass City, Mich.; the Boulder Bach Festival, Boulder, Colo.; and the Bach from Gretna, Lancaster, Lebanon and York, Pa.

He began his musical career as an oboist, studying at the Amsterdam Conservatory as a Fulbright Scholar and at the Mozarteum in Salzburg. He was an oboist under Eduard van Beinum and Sir Georg Solti and won a bronze medal in the Prague Spring International Competition for woodwinds.

He accepted the Midland-Odessa position in 1989. His three-year contract began in June of that year. This season marks his fourth with the MOSC.

"I really enjoyed the orchestra itself, the people in the orchestra," Jaeger said. "We've had a lot of very, very good moments together, and I'm going to miss that."

Within the past 12 months, he has appeared with the Orchestra of San Luis, Argentina, and the Philharmonic Orchestra of Rousse, Bulgaria.

"From time to time opportunities come up for guest conducting which are interesting and stimulating," Jaeger said. "This will allow me to do more of that. There are a lot of interesting opportunities out there, and it will be nice to have time to pursue them."

PROSPER: Official promotes diversification

(From 1B)

Hamilton said.

Hamilton noted that Texas is crisscrossed by many "different interests" owing to the state being "so large and so economically diverse."

Instead of trying to solve problems with a blanket solution, state government is going to have to be "more flexible in the programs that we provide."

Government's role in society is "not to provide a program for every problem," Hamilton said. "It's to use its resources and identify the problems and tell the people. Working with businesses, working with churches, working with whomever, you can find solutions that are not just governmental solutions."

TRASH: Guidelines change way pits are dug which is much less than the $25 to $40 per ton charged by other cities.

Midland's operating landfill is located seven miles southeast of town on Highway 158. Twenty-five of 412 acres at the landfill have already been used. Three other county landfills are closed, amounting to 200 acres of underground trash.

The regulations are not final yet and the city is working with the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission to ensure the guidelines are kept as such and not made more stringent, which the TWC has the option of doing.

"We're working to get the regulations reasonable for this climate, this part of the state, which is much different that East Texas," Jones said.

Midlanders take out about 320 tons of trash each day, which city sanitation workers dump into the landfill. At the end of the day, workers pour six inches of soil on top of that day's accumulated trash.

Before 1970, Midland burned trash at the landfills, creating much more space. But environmental regulations banned landfill burning.

"We certainly understand the need to protect the environment, but why should we spend $5 if we only need to spend four?" Jones said.

The TWC also plans to instigate monitoring requirements for methane gas — a colorless, odorless and highly flammable substance that often occurs at dump sites as trash decays.

Under the regulations, the city will have to monitor the gas for 30 years, with monitoring devices placed every 500 feet.

"We'll try to get them to reduce the number of times we have to monitor if it shows no methane gas is turning up ... the testing is very expensive," Jones said.

"For the most part there is little methane here because it is so dry."

tional communication equipment — which will include the final installation of mobile data terminals into city police cars — $325,000; and the acquisition of land and buildings, $950,000.

Faircloth said the city is generally happy with the accepted rate.

"But we probably missed the window of opportunity," he said. "In the last few weeks interest rates have been inching up, if we could have done this six to eight weeks ago perhaps we could have gone a bit lower."

reach Services (AMOS), to be distributed at Thanksgiving.

AMOS, founded in 1988, helps about 250 needy families a month with clothing and food.

Members also took stuffed animals and assorted candy to the High Sky Children's Ranch, a facility for abused, neglected or troubled youth.

The group spent part of their visit singing with the youngsters.

"It's donations and gifts like this that help us through the Christmas season," said Ed Theiss, program director.

The donations show the children that the community cares, Theiss said.

Roasting turkey trivia can be found here

By Nancy Byal
Associated Press

Save yourself the effort of scouring books and brochures for turkey roasting guides and cooking tips. All the information you'll need for a succulent holiday bird is right here.

BUYING TURKEY

Plan on 1 pound per serving when buying a bird that weighs 12 pounds or less. Plan on ¾ pound per serving if a bird is more than 12 pounds. For bone-in turkey breasts (or portion), figure ½ pound per serving.

For fresh turkey, storage time is short. Buy your bird just one or two days before you plan to cook it. If you buy a fresh bird too far ahead, it may start to spoil in your refrigerator.

Check for a "sell by" date on the label. Fresh birds will be safe to cook for one to two days after this selling date.

Do not buy a pre-stuffed fresh turkey. Preparation conditions during stuffing may have promoted the growth of bacteria that causes food poisoning.

For frozen turkey, look for a bird that's solidly frozen, has no damage to the package, and has no pockets of frost under the wrap.

THAWING FROZEN TURKEY

Do not thaw at room temperature. Thawing turkey at a warm temperature promotes bacterial growth, which can lead to food poisoning.

Do not thaw a frozen pre-stuffed turkey until you're ready to cook it.

To thaw frozen turkey in the refrigerator, place the wrapped bird on a tray in the refrigerator for three to four days (allow 24 hours for every 5 pounds).

To thaw frozen turkey in cold water, place the wrapped bird in a sink or large pan of cold water. Change the water every 30 minutes. (Allow 30 minutes thawing time per pound.)

To thaw turkey in your microwave oven, check your microwave oven's instructions for the size bird that will fit your oven. Place the unwrapped bird, breast down, in a large baking dish. Remove the metal clamp, if present, and the giblets packets. Defrost turkey on 30 percent power (defrost) for 30 minutes. Turn the bird breast up; let stand for 30 minutes. Thaw on defrost for 30 minutes more. If areas of the bird thaw quickly, shield them with pieces of foil. (Check your owner's manual to see if you can use foil.) If you see that the bird is starting to cook, remove it from the microwave oven and follow the cold-water thawing method.

BEFORE ROASTING

Unwrap the thawed bird.

Remove the giblets and neck from the cavities.

Rinse the bird inside and out. Pat dry with paper towels.

If you're planning to stuff the bird, don't stuff it until you're ready to roast it. To stuff, spoon some stuffing loosely into the neck cavity. Pull the neck skin over the stuffing; fasten the skin to the back of the bird with a metal skewer. Loosely spoon some stuffing into the body cavity; do not pack. (If packed too tightly, the stuffing will not reach a safe temperature by the time the bird is done.)

Spoon any remaining stuffing into a casserole and refrigerate it, covered, until you're ready to bake it. Bake the stuffing alongside the bird the last 30 to 45 minutes of roasting (about 30 minutes in a 350-degree oven).

If a band of skin crosses the tail, tuck the drumsticks under the band. If the band is not present, secure the legs to the tail with string or thread.

Twist the wing tips under the back.

ROASTING DIRECTIONS

Place the bird, breast side up, on a roasting rack in a shallow pan.

Brush with cooking oil, if desired.

Push a meat thermometer into the center of an inside thigh muscle so the bulb doesn't touch any bone.

For covered roasting, do not add water. Roast, covered, with the vent open, in a 325-degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes per pound. Uncover and drain, reserving juices. Turn oven to 475 degrees; roast for 20 minutes more or until brown.

For open roasting, cover the bird loosely with foil, leaving space between the bird and foil. Press the foil slightly at the end of drumsticks and neck. Roast in a 325-degree oven, basting occasionally. When the bird is two-thirds done, cut the skin or string between legs. Remove the foil the last 30 to 45 minutes to let brown.

Unstuffed birds generally need 30 to 45 minutes less roasting time than stuffed turkeys.

Cutesy name doesn't improve product's taste

By Linda Anderson

I really don't like cutesy commercials for products with cutesy names. I saw one the other day for a new butter-margarine product called Move Over Butter in which a farmer and a cow sang a duet. It was so awful that at first I thought it was going to be another one of those "commercials" for fake products that end up being invaded by that drum-playing, battery-powered bunny.

Anderson

Anyway, the commercial was so awful I just had to try the product (is that reverse psychology or what), and when I found out it was a Fleishmann's product I knew it was a natural for a taste-test.

A one-pound carton of Move Over Butter cost $1.39, which is a tad more expensive than what one pound of ordinary margarine costs.

Label advertising claims the product is a "72 percent Vegetable Oil Spread" that is "Made with Sweet Cream Buttermilk." The company also wants consumers to know that "Your satisfaction with this Fleishmann's product is guaranteed" and that if you want to call them with any nutrition comments or questions, you can at 1-800-NABISCO weekdays from 9 a.m.-7:30 p.m. Eastern time (that's 1-800-622-4726, and let's you know about Fleishmann's family, doesn't it).

Nutrition information was not surprising: each 1 tablespoon serving of Move Over Butter is listed as containing 90 calories, and all of them are from fat. The product also is listed as having no cholesterol, so I guess that's good.

The taste-test showed that, in spite of it being made with "Sweet Cream Buttermilk" and having the word "butter" in its name, Move Over Butter tastes just like margarine. The young taste-tester and I couldn't taste any difference. And with 90 calories in each tablespoon, it's not even a reduced-calorie margarine.

Just goes to show you, I guess, that cutesy names and obnoxious commercials don't mean anything if the product is just ordinary.

Stick with cheaper brands. They taste about the same.

Price listed is from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.

Fort Davis plans walking tours

Staff report

Reservations can still be made for several of the nine evening walking tours of Fort Davis National Historic Site planned for Saturday.

The tours, scheduled at 20 minute intervals beginning at 6:30 p.m., are free and all area residents and visitors are invited to attend. Each tour will last approximately 45 minutes to one hour and is limited to 22 people.

On the lantern-lite tours, visitors will be asked to go back in time to November 1888. As visitors are escorted to a number of the refurnished buildings, they will meet staff members and volunteers dressed as officers, enlisted men, servants, officers' wives and townspeople. At the officer's kitchen and servant's quarters, the visitors will be treated to hot cider and cookies.

The theme for this year's tour is the election of 1888. It was the first time residents of the newly created Jeff Davis County had the opportunity to vote in the general election.

The evening, appropriately entitled "From Retreat to Tattoo" promises to be a night to remember. For reservations or more information, call the Fort Davis NHS at (915) 426-3224.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: The coming months hold much promise and great satisfaction for you. Next month, your sense of justice sends you to the rescue of someone who will later help you financially. Romance should be more rewarding than ever in 1993. You are happiest in the company of those who share your intellectual gifts. If self-employed, be certain to establish a rainy-day fund. The best time to seek a raise or promotion is late next summer.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: novelist Kurt Vonnegut Jr., comedian Jonathan Winters, golfer Frank "Fuzzy" Zoeller, actor Philip McKeon.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your discriminating taste serves you well when choosing your wardrobe. You will have to watch your step when meeting with a hardheaded customer or creditor.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Partnerships are now on a smoother course. New financial gains are possible. Do not sink your funds into speculative ventures. Loved ones may surprise you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Good money signs prevail. You profit from someone else's mistakes. Fans can be won by spending more time with them. Say "no" to new partnerships for now — you need more facts and figures.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Do not attempt to hurry a business associate. Volunteers can solve a community crisis. Get out and help! Do what you can to improve conditions at place of employment.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be direct in your attempts to reach a goal. Accepting a last-minute invitation could lead to a valuable friendship. Get the red out of your finances; limit credit card use.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Love and luck shine brightly on your world today. Your cooperative attitude and innovative ideas bring you into contact with people who have much to offer.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You should be able to captivate a newcomer and create a wonderful rapport. Share ideas; lend an ear. Entertain friends somewhere nice and quiet, such as your home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): New creative outlets pump you up. You are ready to clean house and start over. A big-ticket purchase may be timely. Take a crash course in etiquette; handle delicate situations with diplomacy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The language of love seems especially eloquent now. The terms of a proposed agreement could be music to your ears. Knock on doors and make calls.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): People say and do the most delightfully surprising things today. Good news and a wonderful partnership offer are featured. Cupid lurks in the wings!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Great success is possible in domestic and financial areas today. It pays to put your head together with a family member when planning sweeping changes. Curb spending.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A small child needs more TLC. Be a good listener and keep your temper even if you hear something you do not like. You get what you give. Remember to repay past favors.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are trustworthy, adventurous and very interested in recording their thoughts. Count on them to keep a diary or journal, especially when traveling. Many of these children love to play cat and mouse. Wise parents will discourage these youngsters from teasing their siblings and playmates. Their strong sense of competitiveness should be balanced with a desire to cooperate. Ambitious and hardworking, these Scorpios can become titans of the corporate world — or attain high political office.

Opening lead: Seven of ♠

Here's a chance for you to test your analytical powers. Assume that you have reached a perfectly normal three no trump and West, in response to partner's overcall, dutifully leads the seven of spades. Plan the play.

As long as West has one of the missing minor-suit honors, you can always make your contract—provided you guess which one West holds. However, your first problem comes at trick one: Which spade do you play from dummy?

Since the bidding and lead mark East with a suit headed by A J 9, you have only one sure stopper. If you play low, or the ten, from dummy, that stopper will be forced out on the go. Nevertheless, you can create a positional stopper and gain a tempo by inserting the table's queen. East must win the ace, but cannot persevere with spades without giving you a second trick in the suit and, with it, your contract.

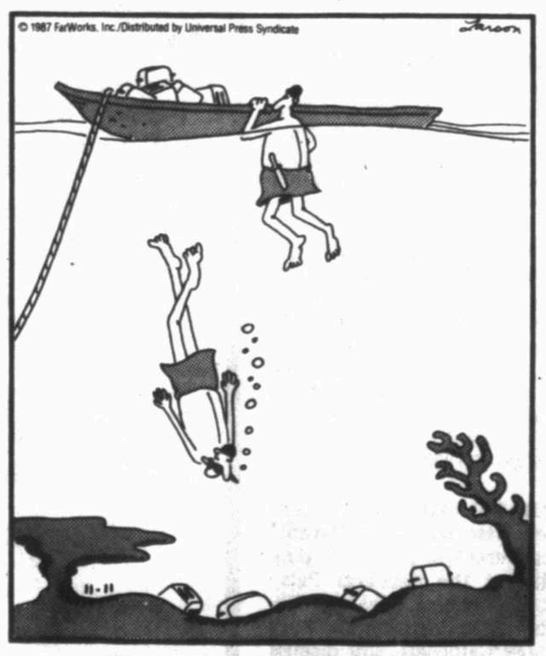

Let's suppose that East shifts to a club at trick two. If East holds the king of clubs and West the ace of diamonds, you must finesse now to make your contract. Reverse the minor honors and you must rise with the ace, establish a diamond trick, then revert to clubs to guarantee nine tricks—four hearts, three clubs and a trick each in the other two suits. Which play do you choose, and why?

We would rise with the ace of clubs and lead the king of diamonds. Looking at Q 9 of clubs in dummy, it is very difficult for East to lead away from the king of clubs—should partner hold the jack, East might be setting up the whole suit for declarer. As the cards lie, whether or not East takes the ace of diamonds immediately, the contract is home.

Fashion model Iman urges U.S. 'muscle flex' to ease starvation

WASHINGTON — The United States should "flex its muscle" to get U.N. soldiers deployed against the looters keeping food and medicine from the starving people of Somalia, high fashion model Iman Abdul Majid said Tuesday.

America's best known Somali immigrant, who is known as Iman, told a news conference that enough food and medicine has been shipped to her homeland, "but it serves no purpose when it is looted and people have no money to buy it on the black market."

The U.N. Security Council has approved use of U.N. forces. As the council's most influential member, the United States "can flex its muscle to use those troops," said Iman, who visited her suffering homeland last month.

Five hundred U.N. soldiers from Pakistan reached Mogadishu, the Somalian capital, in late September, but they remain undeployed because of objections from Somalian warlords. Canadian, Belgian and Nigerian forces are also in readiness, she said.

"Nothing has been done so far," Iman said, adding that it makes no sense if U.N. peace-keeping troops "can go only where there is peace. If there's peace, you don't need U.N. troops. ... If the looters are scared of being shot at, shoot at them" to scare them away.

NEW YORK — NBC newswoman Maria Shriver is recovering from viral meningitis at a Los Angeles hospital, NBC said.

Shriver

Shriver, 37, who entered the hospital Thursday, is feeling much better, NBC spokeswoman Tory Beilinson said Tuesday.

"Her prognosis is excellent," she said. "She's taking a few days to rest and will return home later this week."

She said Shriver went to the hospital complaining of a headache and was then diagnosed with viral meningitis, a less serious form of the disease.

The name of the hospital was not disclosed at the request of Shriver's husband, Arnold Schwarzenegger.

Meningitis is an inflammation of the membranes that envelop the brain and spinal cord. Bacterial meningitis, if untreated, can be fatal. Viral meningitis is contagious but can be easily controlled.

CLAYTON, Mo. — A judge Tuesday put rock star Axl Rose on probation for two years and ordered him to donate $50,000 to five social service organizations for touching off a riot at a Guns N' Roses concert.

Rose, who wasn't in court, was found guilty of property damage and assault. Attorneys had agreed to let Associate Circuit Judge Ellis Gregory rule on the evidence — police reports and videotape from the riot — and avoid a jury trial and what prosecutors termed a "media circus."

The riot broke out during a July 2, 1991, concert at the Riverport Amphitheatre in Maryland Heights, 15 miles northwest of St. Louis. Videotape showed Rose, the lead singer for the heavy metal band, diving into the crowd when he spotted someone with a camera, then punching a man. He then smashed his microphone on the stage and stormed off, ending the show early.

The ensuing riot caused what theater officials reported as several thousand dollars worth of property damage. Some 80 people were reported injured.

Terms of probation allow Rose to continue touring.

NEW ORLEANS — Filmmaker Spike Lee backed off his earlier suggestion that blacks skip school and work to see his biographical movie "Malcolm X."

During an appearance in New Orleans on Monday, however, Lee said that support for his movie is mandatory to convince studios that black dramas are worth the investment.

"Hollywood is using this as a test," Lee told a standing-room-only crowd in the Southern University gymnasium. "We're going to prove them wrong on this film. You don't have to take the day off. Please. It's very important. Parents, go and see this film with your children."

Lee touched off debate three months ago when he urged black people to forgo work and school to see the movie when it opens this month. He said the remark was taken out of context during a speech at the National Association of Black Journalists convention in Detroit.

The director said he hopes the new film will teach children how much Malcolm X, the black leader who was assassinated in 1965, valued education.

"If we really know what Malcolm was about, we wouldn't be doing a lot of the things we're doing. We wouldn't be killing each other at the rate we are, using drugs, disrespecting our women," Lee said.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Country singer Lorrie Morgan says she has repaid her creditors in full and withdrawn a bankruptcy petition.

Morgan, 33, filed a Chapter 11 bankruptcy petition last January, listing more than $846,000 in debts.

"My life has really come together this year and I'm especially happy that I don't have this burden hanging over my head."

DEAR ABBY

Young boy grieving for parakeet finds comfort in writing

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 9-year-old boy with a problem I can't ask anybody else about.

Van Buren

I had a pet parakeet who died last week. I had named him "Prettyboy." I cried when I found him lying at the bottom of his cage with his little feet sticking straight up in the air.

Everytime I tell somebody about losing Prettyboy, I start to cry. Then they laugh at me and say, "He was only a bird."

Abby, Prettyboy was not just any old bird. He was my best friend and I had him for nearly three years. He was one of a pair, but his mate died. Prettyboy was smart, too. He figured out how to pick the lock on his cage, but he never left his cage but one time after my mother scolded him for flying around the house and soiling everything in sight.

My mother told me if I wrote to you about Prettyboy's dying, I would feel better. She was right. — DAVID IN SCOTTSDALE

DEAR DAVID: Don't be ashamed of crying. Tears are healing. When a child loses a beloved pet, it is very much like a parent losing a child. That loss causes genuine heartache. But with time, the hurt heals.

Your mother is a wise woman. Sometimes just talking (or writing) about a problem — instead of keeping it bottled up inside of you — tends to heal your heart and make you feel better.

DEAR ABBY: Having just read the letter in your column about small children getting lost in department stores, I just had to write and tell you about my daughter, Kathy.

Many years ago, when Kathy was 3½ years old, I took her with me to a large hardware store. While I was busy looking through a bin of small tools for an item I needed, I suddenly realized that Kathy was gone from my side.

As I walked through the aisles looking for her, I was startled to hear my name called over the public address system:

"Attention, please. Will Louise Drelling please come to the register!"

I hurried to the register, and there I saw little Kathy standing beside the cashier. The cashier whispered in my ear: "Your child came over here and said, 'Will you please call Louise Drelling on the loudspeaker? She is my mother and she's lost.'" — LOUISE A. DRELLING, FOUNTAIN VALLEY, CALIF.

P.S. Abby, "little" Kathy is now 19, and in her third year of college.

DEAR MRS. DRELLING: In her third year of college at 19? Not surprising. Thanks for sharing a delightful memory.

DEAR READERS: Today is Veterans Day — the day we honor the men and women who have served our country in the Armed Forces. Originally called Armistice Day, it marked the end of World War I Nov. 11, 1918. It was declared a legal holiday in 1938, and in 1954, the name was changed to Veterans Day to honor all of America's veterans.

Our Canadian neighbors also celebrate Nov. 11, calling it Remembrance Day.

Pumpkins, apples, squash make flavorful fall soups

Associated Press

Pumpkins, apples and squash are among the seasonal flavors of fall.

For a first course at Thanksgiving dinner, Frank Terranova, chef-instructor at Johnson & Wales University in Providence, R.I., has created Cream of Pumpkin and Tart Apple Soup, served in a pumpkin. He also suggests Potage of Butternut Squash and Tart Apple, a soup that is low in fat.

CREAM OF PUMPKIN AND TART APPLE SOUP

3 pounds pumpkin, peeled and cut into cubes
5 cups chicken stock
1 cup chopped onion
¾ cup scallion, chopped
2 cups light cream
Salt and pepper to taste
Pinch of nutmeg
Pinch of cinnamon
2 cups tart apples (Granny Smith, Northern Spy, Greening), peeled and chopped fine
Sour cream (optional)

In a large pot, combine pumpkin, chicken stock, onion and scallion. Bring to a boil. Simmer until pumpkin is tender. Puree in a food processor and strain through a fine sieve. Stir in the cream. Season the soup with salt, pepper, nutmeg and cinnamon. Ten minutes before serving, stir in the chopped apples and let sit in the soup to warm through. Garnish each serving with a small dollop of sour cream, if desired. Makes 8 servings.

TO SERVE IN A PUMPKIN: Cut the very top off the pumpkin, just far enough to remove the seeds from the inside of the pumpkin and to use a ladle. Put the top back on the pumpkin; place on a baking sheet. Bake in a 300-degree oven until the inside of the pumpkin is barely tender. A 5-pound pumpkin will take 35 to 40 minutes.

Just before serving, pour the hot soup into the cooked pumpkin. When serving, scrape the ladle up against the inside portion of the cooked pumpkin to add texture to the soup.

POTAGE OF BUTTERNUT SQUASH AND TART APPLE

6 cups fresh butternut squash, diced
4 cups chicken stock
¼ cup chopped onion
1 cup apple juice
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1½ cups Granny Smith apples, shredded

In a large pot, place squash, chicken stock, onion, apple juice and cinnamon. Simmer until mixture is soft and mushy. Pour mixture into a fine sieve and push all of the vegetables through. Add lemon juice and brown sugar. Slowly reduce the soup until desired thickness is reached. Add 1 cup of the shredded apples and heat through. Garnish soup with a little of the remaining shredded apple. Makes 6 servings.

Maple syrup adds flavor to pecan pie

Associated Press

In the following recipe, maple syrup is used instead of molasses or corn syrup to flavor classic pecan pie. You can also use pancake and waffle syrup.

PECAN PIE WITH MAPLEY WHIPPED CREAM

1½ cups maple syrup
¼ cup (½ stick) margarine or butter
¼ cup sugar
1½ cups pecan halves or chopped pecans
1 unbaked 9-inch pie shell
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
Dash salt
Whipped cream topping (optional)

Heat oven to 375 degrees. Heat syrup, margarine and sugar in a 2-quart saucepan to boiling. Boil gently, uncovered, 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool slightly.

Place pecans in pie shell. Mix eggs, vanilla and salt in large bowl. Gradually stir in cooled syrup mixture. Pour over pecans in pie shell.

Bake in a 375-degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes or until knife inserted near center comes out clean. Cool on wire rack. Serve with whipped cream topping, if desired. Makes 8 servings.

WHIPPED CREAM TOPPING: Beat 1 cup heavy cream and ¼ cup maple syrup until soft peaks form. Makes 2 cups.

Hobert ineligible

SEATTLE — Quarterback Billy Joe Hobert was declared ineligible to play intercollegiate sports by the University of Washington on Tuesday.

Athletic director Barbara Hedges said an investigation determined that $50,000 in loans which Hobert received last spring were improper.

She said she didn't think Washington athletic officials had acted improperly, and didn't think the Huskies should have to forfeit any of the eight games in which Hobert played this season.

"This is a very complicated story and a sad day for the football program and Billy Joe Hobert," Hedges said. "Billy is a young man with good intentions who never meant to jeopardize himself or his teammates.

"He has been forthright in the investigation and cooperated fully in every phase of the process. The university will continue to do everything it can to assist Billy and help him continue his education and progress toward his degree."

Hobert, selected most valuable player in last season's Rose Bowl, obtained the loans from the father-in-law of a friend.

SWC stars

COLLEGE STATION — Greg Hill has proven to be a very accurate barometer for the No. 4 Texas A&M Aggies.

When Hill rushes for more than 100 yards, the Aggies usually win, including Saturday's 40-18 victory over Louisville when he gained a season-high 142 yards on 26 carries and had a career high three touchdowns.

It was Hill's 12th career 100-yard performance and the Aggies have won 11 of those games. The effort earned Hill The Associated Press co-Offensive Player of the Week honor.

The Aggies' Hill shares the award with Southern Methodist's Rongea Hill, who rushed for 129 yards and scored three touchdowns in the Mustangs' satisfying victory over the Houston Cougars.

The player who put the finishing touches on Texas Christian's 23-14 victory over Texas was Tony Rand, whose 58-yard interception return for a touchdown assured the Horned Frogs of their first victory over the Horns in 25 years.

Rand's performance earned The AP's Defensive Player of the Week honor.

Cowboys try to avoid letdown

■ While the NFL has ordered Dallas' ticket office to make playoff preparations, Jimmy Johnson hopes to keep big heads in check.

Associated Press

IRVING — The NFL office has ordered the Dallas Cowboys to make playoff ticket preparations. Coach Jimmy Johnson said he believes his team is smart enough to know it doesn't mean a thing yet.

"I don't mind 'em feeling pretty good about themselves," Johnson said on Tuesday. "We don't have a danger if we prepare well during the week. Letdowns don't happen on Sundays. They happen during the week if the team doesn't get the job done in preparation."

The 8-1 Cowboys host the 3-6 Los Angeles Rams on Sunday in a game in which the oddsmakers have made them 14 point favorites.

Johnson said there is no such thing as a big favorite in the NFL.

"That's the big thing here (the NFL)," Johnson said. "The difference in the talent level from the best to the worst is very small. You don't win just by showing up. You are tested every Sunday. Look at the upsets we've already had like Phoenix beating San Francisco."

Johnson said he doesn't think playoff-talk and ticket-talk will bother his team.

"We've won some games and everybody has gone nuts," Johnson said. "That's fine but the Rams have a lot of talent. Their offense is very good and the defense has played well at times. We know Chuck Knox teams can be physical."

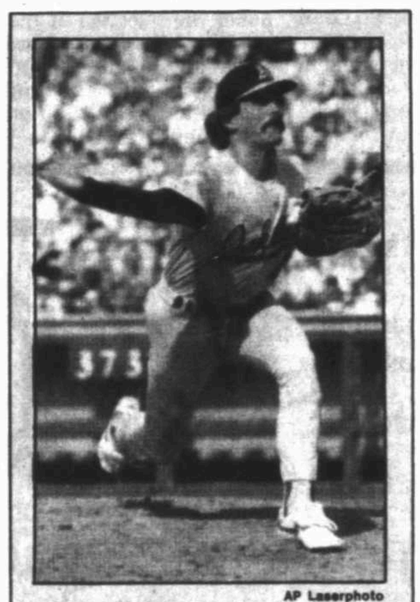

Johnson said the Cowboys have already become a marked team.

"Now that we have the record we have teams feel they have to be more wide open against us," he said. "The underdog will always take more chances. In a way it has helped us because we've had more turnovers because of that."

Johnson said he thinks the best is yet to come for his team which has lost only to Philadelphia, a loss later avenged in a second meeting.

"I think we will be a better football team in the second-half of the season," he said. "I can see room for improvement. We're not as consistent as I would like. We've had some injuries that have hurt us on the special teams and we can

Dennis Eckersly blew only three of 54 save opportunites in 1992.

Eckersley wins AL Cy Young

Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — Dennis Eckersley, who had a career-high 51 saves for the Oakland Athletics this season, on Tuesday became the first reliever since Detroit's Willie Hernandez to win the American League Cy Young award.

He received 19 of 28 first-place votes from a panel consisting of two writers in each of the 14 league cities. With three seconds and three thirds, Eckersley totaled 107 points under the 5-3-1 system.

"This is a once-in-a lifetime opportunity. I feel very lucky," Eckersley said during a satellite news conference from his home in Boston.

Jack McDowell of the Chicago White Sox was a distant second with two firsts and 51 points, followed by Roger Clemens of Boston with four firsts and 48 points. Mike Mussina of Baltimore was fourth with two firsts and 26 points, followed by Jack Morris of Toronto with one first and 10

Jeffires suggests emotion

■ Houston receiver Haywood Jeffires says the slumping Oilers need a little craziness.

Associated Press

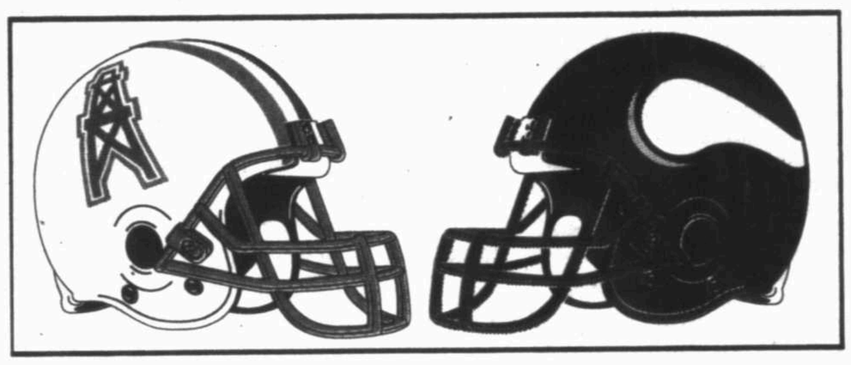

HOUSTON — Haywood Jeffires says it helps to be a little crazy.

That's what he'd like to see more of from his Houston Oilers teammates, who sleepwalked through Sunday's 24-14 loss to Cleveland for their second straight defeat.

That's crazy as in showing emotion, wearing it on their sleeves in a game and firing each other into a frenzy.

"A lot of guys question me about the way I am," Jeffires said. "But they should look inside themselves and realize it's OK to be a little crazy."

Jeffires slammed his helmet to the turf in disgust in Sunday's game, trying to light a spark in his teammates. But nothing worked.

"I wanted to get some excitement back in our team," Jeffires said. "I'll be damned if one guy can have enough emotion for 10 or 30 others. But there's no way this team is not going to be emotional Sunday if I have something to say about it.

"If it takes cursin' or fussin', I don't care."

Jeffires leads the NFL with 59 catches after being held to one catch by the Browns, ending a string of catching four or more passes in 24 straight games.

Now Jeffires wants to do more than just catch passes.

"I want to see us be excited about playing football again," Jeffires said. "And SCOTTSDALE, Arizona — The Giants remain in San Francisco, and Florida's West Coast remains without a major league team.

Baseball's owners, in a move they said stressed stability but was sure to spark a legal battle, decisively rejected a $115 million deal to move the National League team to St. Petersburg, Fla., even though the best offer to keep the team in San Francisco was $15 million less.

It was the first formal rejection of a move that baseball officials could remember. In all previous instances, shifts were stopped before a formal vote was taken.

It also marked the seventh time the St. Petersburg area had tried — and failed — to lure a major league team, a move that would have put two NL franchises in Florida and essentially locked up the Southeast for the league.

"I feel badly for the people of St. Petersburg, who were eagerly looking forward to having major league baseball in their area," Bob Lurie, the Giants' owner, said.

Strange 4-5A year over for Midland

Just when you had District 4-5A football figured out, along comes 1992 to challenge Ripley at his own game. Strange things do happen in this world.

Williamson

Midland Lee was a solid pick to finish second in the league and the Rebels didn't make the playoffs for the first time in nine years. Midland High was even money to have another winless season, but the Bulldogs ended the year with a victory over Abilene High to end an 18-game losing streak.

For the first time in two years, Lee and MHS both won on the same weekend. And both will head into next season with a winning streak.

But both are out of the playoffs this year as every town in 4-5A will have a playoff representative — except Midland.

If you would have your choice, it would be to be for both teams to be a loser on the last week of the football season. In Texas, the only way to end the season in the playoffs with a victory is to win a state championship. Short of that, a last game loss in the playoffs is a sweeter cross to bear.

Still, Lee and MHS had their moments during the 1992 season. Here are a few of them:

■ Best Moment For Lee: The Rebels had their best game of the year against playoff bound Amarillo Palo Duro, but beating Abilene Cooper, another playoff team, on the final week of the season was a major highlight.

■ Best Moment for MHS: Without question the Bulldogs' 34-21 win over Abilene High to end the 18-game losing streak was the thrill of thrills for the year. MHS had scored only 35 points in five previous 4-5A outings.

■ Best Performance for Lee: Rebel fullback Scott McLeod led city rushers with over 800 yards and 13 touchdowns this year in a consistent role, but quarterback Courtney Turner's 200-yard plus passing performance against Odessa Permian was a thing of beauty to watch. Unfortunately, that showing came in a loss.

■ Best Permormance for MHS: Junior Michael Gilbert had a couple of big moments. His 141 yards rushing against San Angelo broke a 19-game streak in which MHS had failed to have a rusher gain over 100 yards in a single game. However, Gilbert came right back with 143 yards and two touchdowns to help MHS break its 18-game losing streak.

■ Worst Moment for Lee: This is a tough one because there were so many points in the season that could have produced much different results. Against San Angelo, Lee came from 21 points down to take a lead, only to eventually lose, 44-34. Against Permian, Lee was down 21-14 to Permian and had a second down and goal from the five-yard line, but didn't score. Still, the loss to Odessa High has to stand out as the worst moment of the season.

■ Worst Moment for MHS: A 57-0 loss to Lee to open 4-5A play was a quick back breaker. It was the worst loss of the season for the Bulldogs.

■ Looking Ahead for Lee: With a team heavy on juniors, it will be interesting to see what kind of memory these Rebels will have in 1993. If they do remember — and learn — 1993 could be a major "Payback" time.

■ Looking Ahead for MHS: At the very least, the Bulldogs can begin a season without carrying some leftover baggage from the year before. The win over AHS was huge in that regard. However, MHS will have to carry its baggage next year with trips to El Paso, Lubbock, Amarillo, San Angelo and Abilene twice.

Top-ranked Chaps break new ground

DENNIS — Midland College's top-ranked junior college men's golf team won its fifth tournament of the fall semester at the completion of the final round here Tuesday at the Sugar Tree Golf and Country Club.

The win gives MC five wins in the fall for the first time in school history, while Chad Campbell's individual gold medal gave the Chaparrals the top medalist in each of the six tournaments they have entered, a first for any Texas juniot college team.

Campbell, of Andrews, topped the field with a three-round score of 221. MC's Shawn Savage (223) and Guy Redford (225) gave the Chaps a sweep of the tournament medals. Other top medalists for MC this fall were Stephen Dundas (three golds), Jason Brooks (one) and Redford (one).

Here are the final results after the last round of The Shootout at Sugar Tree Collegiate Classic golf tournament, played Monday and Tuesday at Sugar Tree Golf and Country Club in Dennis, Texas:

Team Standings: 1. Midland College, 291-311-305—907; 2. Odessa College, 302-295-316—913; 3. Texas Wesleyan University, 315-301-304—920; 4. New Mexico Junior College, 311-308-313—932; 5. Weatherford College, 312-310-314—936; 6. Grayson County College, 313-319-320—952; 7. Cameron (Okla.) University, 325-317-325—967; 8. McMurry University, 316-323-329—968; 9. Western Texas College, 324-319-333—976; 10. Texas Southern University, 327-321-329—977; 11. Northeast Community College, 323-317-346—986.

Medalists: 1. Chad Campbell, MC, 72-75-74—221; 2. Shawn Savage, MC, 71-79-73—223; 3. Guy Redford, MC, 76-73-76—225.

Beals set to make rugged Baja run

Spencer, Kelly and Carty Beal, the all-brother racing team, left Tuesday for Mexico and the famous Baja 1000 off-road race, which will test their Class IV, four-wheel drive Dodge to the limit, beginning Thursday in Ensenada, Mexico.

The race will cover 1,036 miles, ending in La Paz, virtually covering the entire length of the Baja peninsula — and all off-road.

"It's a pretty bloody race and you have to be about half crazy to do it," said Spencer Beal. "We hope to complete the course in about 36 hours if things go our way with an average of about 30 miles per hour."

Spencer said that Kelly will drive the first 350-mile leg while Carty will take the mid-350 section before Spencer ends with the final leg of the race.

"We pre-raced the course about three weeks ago," Spencer noted, "but it took us about a week. Of course, we weren't using the truck we will be racing in. It's a brutal course and will test your limits."

The race will be covered by ESPN and broadcast at a date to be announced later. The Beal team competed in the event last year and finished.

Spencer said that of the 330 race entries, only one-third is expected to finish the race.

"The Baja takes its toll. There is no question about that," Spencer said.

COM's Stroman heads all-star list

FORT WORTH — Monica Stroman led the City of Midland Swim Team with a win in the Texas All-Star Qualifying Meet held here at the Wilkerson-Greines Athletic Center over the weekend.

The meet is held annually to choose swimmers for All-Star teams to represent North Texas. Teams from El Paso, Austin, Fort Worth, Dallas and many others competed in the competition.

Stroman made the team automatically with her win in the 13-14 200 freestyle with a time of 1:58.54.

To automatically qualify, swimmers must finish in the top three in their event or top five in the 50 freestyle.

Stroman also automatically qualified in the 200 individual medley and 200 butterfly on an evaluation of overall swims by the North all-star coaches.

Amber Goodwin and Celeste Skidmore both qualified for the team in the 11-12 girls in the 50 free. Goodwin placed second with a 26.49 while Skidmore was fourth with 27.20.

Kevin Williams qualified in the boys 11-12 in the 50 free with a fifth place time of 26.91.

Also making the team for COM was Howard Flowers, who finihed second in the boys 15-16 200 backstroke with a 2:00.65.

COM coach Ted Carson has been chosen to coach the North 11-12 boys at the All-Star Dual Meet, which will be held at Southern Methodist University on Nov. 22.

Trinity's Stone 2nd team all-state

Kristyn Stone of Midland's Trinity School has been named to the Texas Association of Private and Parochial Schools (TAPPS) 1992 Class A all-state volleyball team. Stone is a junior from Kermit.

Trinity's Nicki Holloway of Midland was named with Stone as a member of the TAPPS Class 8A all-district volleyball team earlier.

The 1992 season was only the third in which Trinity competed in girls volleyball at the high school level.

Jeffers sinks ace

Joe Jeffers produced a hole-in-one at Green Tree Country Club's No. 5 North hole, using a 5-iron from 189 yards out.

Jeffers was playing with Arnold Brown, Foy Cox, Frank Petro and Bob Emerson.

Deion Sanders fine reports uncertain

ATLANTA (AP) — Neither the National League office, the Atlanta Braves nor Deion Sanders' agent could confirm Tuesday a published report that Sanders had been fined $1,000 for dousing a CBS analyst with water.

"I have not heard anything about it," Dorsey Parker, a public relations assistant in the NL's New York office said. "Our officials are all out in Arizona and they could have easily released it out there, but I haven't heard anything about it."

Asked if he could confirm the report in Tuesday's Atlanta Constitution, Sanders' agent, Eugene Parker, said, "No I can't. They called me and asked me. I told them I couldn't discuss it."

The newspaper reported that NL president Bill White had fined Sanders $1,000 for the incident and that Sanders had appealed.

During the Braves clubhouse celebration of their NL pennant-clinching seventh playoff game victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates, Sanders dumped water on Tim McCarver three times as the CBS analyst was interviewing players after the game.

Brown's rib broken

ARLINGTON (AP) — Kevin Brown, who became the Texas Rangers' first 20-game winner since Ferguson Jenkins in 1974, revealed Tuesday he has a fractured rib.

Brown, who finished sixth in the American League Cy Young voting, said a recent exam found a fracture in a rib near the left shoulder blade.

Brown had discomfort in the area much of the season, but still won 21 games, second-highest in franchise history.

The righthander said doctors have prescribed rest and no throwing. But that should not affect his preparations for next season. He usually doesn't begin pre-season throwing until mid- to late January.

"It's something I had and pitched with, so it can't be that bad," Brown told The Dallas Morning News.

Five Midlanders on first team

Staff report

■ 4-5A ALL-DISTRICT VOLLEYBALL

Midland Lee senior Tanisha Mills and Midland High senior Shena Salcido paced local players selected to the 1992 District 4-5A All-District volleyball team as selected by league coaches.

Mills, who helped Lee gain its first volleyball playoff berth in almost two decades, was named as the league's outstanding hitter while Salcido was named the best overall defensive player.

Abilene High senior Barbara Pyle, who helped lead the Lady Eagles to the district championship, was named as the league's most valuable player. Abilene Cooper senior Aimee Goble was named as the outstanding setter in 4-5A.

Midland High also landed senior Laura Baressi on the first team as were the Lee senior players of Carrie Zamora and Courtney McHugh.

Second team honors went to MHS junior Michel Ann Thompson and Lee junior Heather Huff.

Players earning honorable mention honors were Lee junior Tera Mander and Emily Hayes, who is a sophomore, and MHS seniors Alisha Gonzales and Stephanie Saxon.

This was the first year that the UIL has allowed three teams from each Class 5A district to gain the playoffs. The first three to gain advancement under this format from District 4-5A were district champion Abilene High, second place Abilene Cooper and third place Midland Lee.

Tascosa downs AHS

Staff report

BROWNFIELD — Abilene High, the last of District 4-5A's volleyball playoff entrants, was swept away by powerful Amarillo Tascosa here in a Class 5A Regional playoff Tuesday night, 15-2, 15-2.

The Lady Eagles, the 4-5A champions, finish the season with a 23-8 record. Tascosa, which defeated Midland Lee in the first round of the postseason, is now 27-7 as it heads into the Class 5A Region I tournament this weekend at Abilene Christian University's Moody Coliseum.

Other Region I winners were Amarillo High over El Paso Coronado, Keller over Grapevine and Mansfield over Flower Mound Marcus.

GIANTS: Florida representatives vow to take matter to court

From 1C)

San Francisco, the major leagues and a group of investors led by Safeway Inc. chairman Peter Magowan for interfering with their deal. San Francisco, in turn, filed a suit Tuesday, even before the vote was announced, to block any legal action by St. Petersburg.

Perhaps more importantly, Florida Sen. Connie Mack vowed to ask Congress to rescind baseball's antitrust exemption.

"I don't believe the antitrust exemption was ever intended to control the movement of franchises," Mack said. "It's time to end all doubt and revoke baseball's abused antitrust privilege."

"The NL did today what they believe very strongly to be in the best interest of baseball. ... The NL did what it thought was right," said Bud Selig, president of the Milwaukee Brewers and chairman of baseball's executive council. "You're damned if you do, you're damned if you don't."

Tuesday's vote, after seven hours of meetings, never moved past the first stage. NL owners voted 9-4 against the sale, six supporting votes less than the 11 needed to send the action to a decisive ballot by American League owners.

"In doing so, the (National) league reaffirmed baseball's long-established preference for the stability of its franchises," Selig said.

No breakdown of the votes was released although Carl Barger, the head of the expansion Florida Marlins, said he voted in favor of the move. Based on interviews with owners and officials, it appeared the Chicago Cubs, St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Phillies joined the Marlins in voting in favor of a move.

The owners did not consider the $100 million package put forward as a counter offer by Magowan's group. But Lurie said he would honor the rejection of the St. Petersburg offer and congratulated Magowan and his supporters for coming up with a package good enough to force the question and "to keep the Giants in San Francisco."

"I know the feeling you have today," said Lurie, who saved the Giants for the Bay area himself 16 years ago.

Lurie said he had been given 10 days to consider the Magowan group's offer.

TEXAS A&M (9-0, 4-0 SWC) at HOUSTON (3-5, 1-3 SWC), Thursday, Nov. 12, 7 p.m., ESPN national telecast — The series: A rivalry where the home field advantage has been evident, this series enters its 31st renewal over 40 years Thursday. The Aggies have a 15-12-3 overall advantage and top the Cougars 9-7 in SWC arrangements. The Aggies have won 7 of 8 SWC tussles in College Station while the Cougars are 6-2 in the Astrodome against A&M. Houston's 36-31 triumph inside the dome in 1990 over the Maroon and White represented the highest-scoring game in series history while the Aggies outfasted the Cougars 27-18 at Kyle Field last year. A&M's 43-16 victory in 1985 at home over UH was the Aggies' widest margin while the Cougars prevailed 33-0 in 1978 at Houston for their most prolific verdict. ... The coaches: Texas A&M's R.C. Slocum is 36-9-1 (fourth year, all with the Aggies) overall, 23-4-1 in SWC contests, and 2-1 against the Cougars. UH's John Jenkins is 17-13 (third season, all in Houston) overall, 11-9 in SWC action and 1-1 vs. A&M. Slocum's all-game and SWC winning percentages lead all conference active coaches at .793 and .839, respectively. Jenkins has been part of three

Tark gets first NBA win

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — David Robinson scored 29 points, blocked 10 shots and grabbed nine rebounds Tuesday night, giving coach Jerry Tarkanian his first NBA victory as the San Antonio Spurs defeated the Milwaukee Bucks 104-98.

Dale Ellis added 23 points for the Spurs, who won their seventh-consecutive home opener. Lloyd Daniels contributed 21 points and Sean Elliott scored 18.

The Bucks, who lost for the first time in three games, were led by Brad Lohaus and Alvin Robertson with 19 points apiece. Frank Brickowski added 15.

San Antonio led 97-93 with 1:01 to play when Robinson came up with an offensive rebound, hit a layup and added a free throw when Brickowski drew a foul.

Timberwolves 118, Mavericks 104

MINNEAPOLIS — Doug West scored 15 of his 23 points in the first half, when Minnesota built a 21-point lead, and the Timberwolves earned their first victory.

It was the initial win of Minnesota's Christian Laettner, the NBA's third-overall draft pick. He had 14 points, 12 rebounds and five blocked shots.

Chuck Person and Micheal Williams, also in their first seasons with the Timberwolves, scored 24 and 20 points. Minnesota (1-2) was coming off a 121-119 overtime loss to Golden State.

Walter Bond, a free agent from the University of Minnesota who starts for Dallas because guard Jim Jackson — the league's fourth-overall draft choice — hasn't signed, scored 25 points.

■ NBA ROUNDUP

Derek Harper added 23 for the Mavericks (0-2).

Cavaliers 131, Bullets 92

RICHFIELD, Ohio — The Cleveland Cavaliers, making 14 of 15 baskets in one stretch, tied a team record with 46 points in the third quarter as they routed the Washington Bullets.

Larry Nance blocked six shots in the quarter, setting up a series of easy baskets that helped the Cavaliers expand a 60-46 halftime lead to 106-74. Cleveland's five starters went 13 for 15 in the period, led by Mark Price's nine points on 4-for-4 shooting.

Washington never recovered, falling behind by as many as 41 points in the fourth quarter. The Bullets are winless in three games.

All 12 Cleveland players scored in the game, and nine reached double figures. Price led with 17, and John Williams had 16.

Knicks 99, Nets 96

NEW YORK — Patrick Ewing had 23 points and 13 rebounds, and the unbeaten New York Knicks survived a late rally by New Jersey to beat the Nets.

New York matched its largest lead at 91-80 with 6:24 left in the game, but the Nets rallied behind the shooting of Derrick Coleman, Kenny Anderson and Drazen Petrovic.

Coleman led the Nets with 30 points, Anderson scored 24 and Petrovic 16.

The Nets, with Chris Morris scoring nine points and Coleman eight, led 30-22 after one quarter despite Ewing's 13 points.

Heat 110, Celtics 106

MIAMI — Glen Rice scored 27 points and hit four free throws in the final 14.6 seconds as the Miami Heat wiped out a 14-point third-quarter deficit and defeated the Boston Celtics.

The Celtics used a 16-4 run featuring seven points by Dee Brown and five by Reggie Lewis to cut a large Heat advantage to 104-102 with 17.3 seconds to play. Rice then sandwiched two free throws on each side of a basket by Boston's Xavier McDaniel to make it 108-104 with 8.1 seconds left.

The Celtics' Sherman Douglas hit a layup with 2.6 seconds to go and Miami's Bimbo Coles added two free throws with 1.2 seconds remaining for the final score.

Hornets 112, Magic 108

ORLANDO, Fla. — The Charlotte Hornets offset a 35-point, 13-rebound effort from Orlando Magic rookie Shaquille O'Neal for the win as Johnny Newman scored 23 points and Kendall Gill added 22.

The Magic were held to two points in the final 6:30, and O'Neal was held scoreless the entire fourth quarter.

O'Neal scored 13 of his points in the first 7:10 of the game. By halftime, he had 20 points and seven boards.

Jazz 118, Nuggets 109

DENVER — The Utah Jazz, trailing by 19 early in the second period, staged runs of 14 and 12 consecutive points in the middle of the quarter to take charge and beat the Denver Nuggets.

The Nuggets, shooting 64 percent in the first period, built a 36-19 lead, with Chris Jackson getting 11 of his 27 points.

Erving, Walton among Basketball HOF nominees

Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Dr. J's next house call could be at the Basketball Hall of Fame.

Julius Erving and Bill Walton head a list of 10 players and one contributor nominated Tuesday for the Basketball Hall of Fame.

Erving and Walton, who led UCLA to two NCAA championships and Portland to an NBA title, were nominated in their first year of eligibility. Both retired in 1987.

Also on the list for consideration by the honors committee are former NBA player Walt Bellamy, Richie Guerin, Dan Issel, Dick McGuire and Calvin Murphy, plus three women: former UCLA and Olympic star Anne Meyers, Soviet Olympic standout Juliana Semenova, and Eileen Banks Sprouse, an AAU star in the 1940s and 1950s.

Price leads Grand Slam

LA QUINTA, Calif. (AP) — A planned romp through the desert sunshine turned into a slogging, slow-moving exercise in patience and survival for the big four winners in the Grand Slam of Golf.

There were no chuckles, more like a recitation of chores, from Nick Price, Nick Faldo, Tom Kite and Fred Couples after the first 18 holes Tuesday in the two-day, 36-hole chase for $1 million by the men who won golf's Grand Slam events this season.

"Hard work. Very hard work," said the red-eyed Price, whose 2-under-par 70 was the best score of the day on the Jack Nicklaus Resort Course at PGA West.

As an indication of how difficult it was, consider that Price, the PGA champion, took sole control of the lead on the 18th hole with a bogey.

Couples, who shared the lead going to the 18th tee in something approaching darkness, snap-hooked his tee shot out of bounds and made double bogey.

Couples, the Masters title-holder, PGA Player of the Year and the leading money-winner on the American tour, shot 71, dropping three shots to par over the last two holes.

Faldo, the British Open winner, matched par 72 and the U.S. Open title-holder, Kite, shot 75 after a terrible day on the greens.

All four, subjected to wind and dust, a race against the setting sun and — at the end of the day — cold, straggled in with slumped shoulders, eyes red from the blowing dust and staring into the distance.

With only four men on the course, playing in a foursome, they barely beat darkness.

Astros court 'Wizard of Oz'

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros will make a contract offer to St. Louis Cardinals shortstop Ozzie Smith when the 13-time Gold Glove winner visits the Astrodome on Thursday, Astros general manager Bill Wood said Tuesday night.

"We'll make him an offer and see if we can grab his attention quickly," Wood told KRIV-TV. "We want to be aggressive. We want him to know that our interest is serious and not just for the purpose of having publicity."

New owner Drayton McLane Jr. took over operation of the club on Monday and underscored his intention of seeking help for the young Astros through free agency.

The Astros were disappointed in the performance of shortstop Andujar Cedeno last season.

Smith, 37, hit .295 last year and stole 43 bases. Cedeno hit for the cycle on Aug. 25, the first day after being recalled from the minors, but wound up at .173 for the season and had two stolen bases. He struck out 71 times in 220 at bats.

"We want to express personally, face to face, our interest in the man," Wood said of Smith. "We want to try to read his response and listen to what he has to say about the possibility of joining the Houston club."

ECKERSLEY: Only 4 relievers have won AL Cy Young Award points, Kevin Brown of Texas with nine points and Charles Nagy of Cleveland with one point.

(From 1C)

Hernandez won the Cy Young in 1984. Milwaukee's Rollie Fingers (1981) and New York's Sparky Lyle (1977) are the only other relievers to claim the AL pitching honor.

Eckersley, the second A's pitcher in three years to win the award, came to Oakland in 1987 intending to be a starter. After 18 years in the majors, he has emerged as one of the best closers in the history of the game. In the last five seasons, he has 220 saves in 246 chances.

This year, the 38-year-old right-hander converted all but three save opportunities as the Athletics won their fourth AL West title in five years.

"I had a good year," Eckersley said. "It was my year. Look, I made some mistakes and I still saved ballgames. I saved 51 ballgames. You can't take that away. It's not easy to do."

Eckersley's amazing year may be remembered more for the shocking way it ended.

In Game 4 of the AL playoffs with Toronto, Eckersley came on in the eighth with a 6-2 lead. Toronto scored twice before Roberto Alomar hit an Eckersley pitch for a two-run homer that sent the game into extra innings. The 7-6 win gave the Blue Jays a 3-1 lead on the way to winning the playoffs and the World Series.

Eckersley still winces when talking about Alomar's homer.

"People rely on you to close it out and when you don't it's devastating — and we all know what that is — the Toronto game," he said.

"But you have to go through the pain to go on. I shed some tears and now I'm looking ahead. I just want to work hard and come back next year and prove that I'm worthy of all this."

Eckersley began his major league career in 1975 with Cleveland, going 13-7 with a 2.60 ERA, and threw a no-hitter on Memorial Day 1977 against the California Angels. After being traded to Boston before the 1978 season, he became the first Red Sox pitcher in seven years to win 20 games.

Things began to go downhill for Eckersley in 1981, and in 1983 his record was 9-13. A trade to the Cubs in 1984 turned things around, but his growing struggles with alcoholism hurt his pitching. In 1986, he had a 6-11 mark.

Eckersley was traded to the A's in 1987, and pitching coach Dave Duncan decided he should go to the bullpen, where he saved 16 games with a 3.03 ERA. Earlier that year, Eckersley had joined Alcholics Anonymous to battle his drinking problem.

Chevron plans to slash 1,500 jobs

■ Officials: Oil giant needs to get costs in line with competitors, improve earnings.

N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — Chevron Corp. plans to cut 1,500 jobs, most of them in California, to reduce costs and boost earnings, the company said.

The San Francisco-based oil giant will cut its corporate staff by 1,000 and its information technology unit in nearby San Ramon by 500, officials said Monday.

Most of those cuts will affect jobs in the San Francisco Bay Area, but a few positions might come from the Los Angeles area, said company spokesman Mike Libbey.

Libbey could not provide figures on the total workforce size in Los Angeles.

Company officials said that they needed to get costs in line with its competitors and improve earnings, which total $1 billion so far this year.

"The cutbacks reflect a business environment that has required us to change our structure and eliminate work that's not absolutely essential to our business," Chevron Chairman Kenneth Derr said in a statement. "The future requires smaller internal service organizations that spend less."

The total reduction in operating cost will amount to as much as $245 million per year — $200 million from the corporation and $45 million from the technology unit.

About 550 of the 1,000 corporate jobs already are vacant due to early retirements, Libbey said. Overall, the 3,500-member corporate staff will be reduced by 29 percent.

Reductions at the information group, which is responsible for computer processing and such data as electronic credit card checks, will pare the 2,300-employee unit by 22 percent.

Libbey said the cuts will not affect customer service, but some shareholders will see changes in the information released to them. The company expects to discontinue the magazine that accompanies its quarterly reports as well as reduce the size of its annual reports, Libbey said.

Prices retreat

NEW YORK — Oil prices fell Tuesday in moderate trading as investors showed little willingness to change their positions before weekly supply statistics were released.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in December settled at $20.47 per barrel, down 15 cents, at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Local crude purchasers such as Scurlock Permian and Texaco Trading and Transportation lowered their posted price 25 cents to $19.

After the market closed Tuesday, the American Petroleum Institute reported higher supplies of distillates and gasoline, but lower stocks of crude. Refinery operations dropped off in the week.

Crude stocks fell 5.44 million barrels in the latest week to 326.88 million barrels. Distillates grew 733,000 barrels to 135.70 million barrels and gasoline stocks rose 2.06 million barrels to 208.35 million barrels. Refineries operated at 89 percent of capacity, down from 81.5 percent the week before.

Retailer earnings

Dillard Department Stores Inc. reported that its third-quarter earnings increased by 14 percent, compared with the same quarter a year ago.

Sales in comparable stores also increased by 10 percent over the third quarter of 1991, the company reported.

The Little Rock-based retail chain reported net income of $44.4 million, or 40 cents per share, for the quarter which ended Oct. 31, up from $39 million, or 35 cents per share, for the same quarter of 1991.

Total sales were more than $1.16 billion for the quarter, up 22 percent from the $954.94 million reported for the same quarter of last year.

At the same time, J.C. Penney Co. Inc. announced it earned $186 million in the third quarter, a nearly 60 percent increase in its year-ago profit, boosting year-to-date profit to $402 million.

The company earned $1.40 a share during the third quarter on sales of $4.34 billion. A year ago, J.C. Penney earned $116 million, or 92 cents a share, on sales of $3.94 billion.

Stocks slump

NEW YORK — Small stocks outperformed their blue-chip counterparts again Tuesday as investors continued to find gems among secondary issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials lost 15.40 points to close at 3,225.47. A late round of computer-triggered program selling ensured the key index closed at its session lows.

But advancing issues actually outnumbered declining ones by about 5 to 4 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Drop in new-car prices caps wholesale inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation at the wholesale level inched up a slight 0.1 percent in October as the biggest drop in new car prices in two years helped to offset large price gains for gasoline, fruits and vegetables, the government reported Tuesday.

Economists said the slight rise in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index, which measures cost pressures before they reach consumers, showed that the weak economy was keeping inflation well in check although there were a number of cross currents.

Hurricane Andrew, which devastated crops in South Florida, contributed to big increases for various fruits and vegetables while gasoline costs were boosted by a new federal regulation requiring cleaner, more expensive gasoline for many urban areas.

But economists noted that even with these one-time price jolts, wholesale prices have risen just 1.9 percent at an annual rate so far this year and the so-called core rate of inflation, excluding food and energy costs, actually fell in October for the third time in the last five months.

"The industrial sector has essentially been in recession since 1989 — three times longer than a normal downturn — and that has basically snuffed out inflationary pressures," said David Jones, an economist at Aubrey G. Langston & Co., a New York securities dealer. "Inflation is just not a problem for the economy at the moment."

Normally, a weak economy and low inflation would translate into further interest rate cuts by the Federal Reserve.

While some economists said they still expected additional rate cuts, others were not sure, saying the central bank may be hesitant to do more until the outline of President-elect Clinton's economic stimulus package is better known.

"I think the Fed will sit on its hands for the next few months. They want to see what Clinton is going to do and how adverse an impact it will have on the budget deficit," said David Wyss, an economist at DRI-McGraw Hill Inc., a Lexington, Mass., forecasting firm.

The 0.1 percent rise in wholesale prices, the smallest since a similar August increased, followed a 0.3 percent September advance.

ASU sponsors seminar on oil, gas ownership

Staff report

Angelo State University will host a seminar on "Oil, Gas and Mineral Ownership" Friday and Saturday in the Houston Harte University Center.

The seminar is co-sponsored by the National Association of Royalty Owners. It is designed to offer basic information and instruction regarding oil, gas and mineral ownership.

The seminar will begin Friday, with registration from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m.

Dr. Lloyd Vincent, president of ASU, and Richard Chapman, vice president, NARO, will provide welcoming remarks.

The first session will be "Texas Land Titles" from 10 to 11:50 a.m. and presented by Jim Moore, business development specialist with the Small Business Development Center at ASU. He will give a historical overview, types of estates in land, legal descriptions, oil and gas maps, conveyances and transfers, real estate records and determining ownership.

After lunch, he will present "Overview of Oil and Gas Law" covering the rule of capture, correlative rights and types of ownership interests.

From 2:10 to 3:10 p.m., Craig Porter, an attorney with the San Angelo firm of Shannon, Porter, Johnson, Pfluger & Davis, will present "The Oil and Gas Lease" giving an overview of the typical lease.

He will be followed by P.B. Shannon, also an attorney with the firm, who will analyze an oil and gas lease and its provisions.

From 4:30 to 5 p.m., Moore, Porter and Shannon will participate in a question and answer session.

Friday evening, Dr. Vincent and his wife will host a reception and light buffet at their home.

On Saturday, the seminar gets underway at 9 a.m. with a session presented by Tim Nicholson, a geologist and petroleum consultant, on "How an Oil and Gas Prospect is Generated." He will discuss the types of oil and gas reservoirs, prospecting methods, current and future developments.

He will be followed by Wana Dee Box, records manager for ASU's Robert G. Carr and Nona K. Carr Scholarship Foundation, who will discuss "Mineral Management" covering such topics as division orders and record keeping.

From 11 to 11:30 a.m., Shannon will give a session on ad valorem taxes and join Box, Nicholson and Moore in a question and answer session from 11:30 to 11:50 a.m.

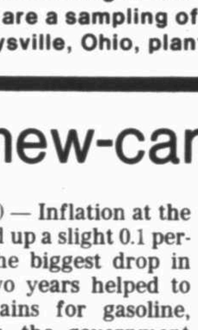

The seminar will conclude with a luncheon from noon to 1:15 p.m. featuring keynote speaker Frank Pool, president emeritus of Pool Co., which he established in San Angelo in 1947.

Athletic Supply opens second Midland store

By Mella McEwen

Opening its doors this weekend in Midland Park Mall is ATHLETIC SUPPLY.

McEwen

The new store will be the company's second in Midland and eighth in West Texas. The first, in Tierra Del Sol shopping center at Midkiff Road and Cuthbert Avenue is Athletic Supply's last free-standing store.

Athletic Supply, found in the former Mothercare and D'Carroll's location next to Musicland, will carry athletic clothing and baseball, football and tennis equipment and athletic shoes. The new store will be 3,000 square feet.

Athletic Supply first opened in Odessa in 1946. There are two Athletic Supplies each in Midland and Odessa and one each in Big Spring, Hobbs, Lubbock and Wichita Falls. The two Midland stores employ 15.

MR. GATTIS in Tierra Del Sol shopping center has unveiled a new walk-up window at the rear of the restaurant.

B.J. Elliott, general manager, said the restaurant has discontinued home delivery and is striving to boost carryout sales at both the drive-through and walk-up windows.

To boost to-go sales, he has begun a policy whereby if the order is not ready 15 minutes after it is called in, it's free. To avoid a logjam at the drive-through window, Elliott had the walk-up window installed and promises it is well-lighted and well marked.

In addition, the restaurant has begun offering a Gattis birthday package for children where, for $40 for 10 children, Gattis provides two large pizzas, free drinks, birthday cake and ice cream, five game tokens per child and a helium balloon and hat. The birthday child also gets a Gattis T-shirt.

Also for the children, Gattis will give those in sixth grade and under who bring in a report card with six "As" or "Es" a free buffet and drink.

On the move is ADVENTURE SPORTS, which is now located in the Courtyard shopping center on Midkiff Road across from Midland Park Mall.

Adventure Sports previously rented space from Stovall Scuba before moving to its larger store.

Operated by James Welty, who had been with Ski & Skellar for 10 years before going out on his own, Adventure Sports sells specialty sporting goods such as snow skis, ski wear, boots, snowboarding, windsurfing gear and the latest in fad T-shirts.

Plans are to add a big line of swimwear — including Speedo racing suits — after the first of the year and possibly hiking clothing and gear.

Rental equipment for skiing is brand new this season and the store also plans to rent snowboards and windsurfing equipment as well. The store also will sell used equipment and take trade-ins.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Larry Donaldson has opened his public accounting practice in the Midland Executive Center, 310 W. Illinois Ave., Suite 138.

Formerly a partner with Tidwell & Co., Donaldson will provide service in individual, corporate, partnership and fiduciary tax return preparation; income and estate tax planning; accounting, bookkeeping and small business consulting. He also will provide electronic tax return filing beginning with the 1992 tax returns.

Midlander Cindy Morris has begun MY STORY BOOKS, offering personalized children's books with the specific child as the star of each story, for ages up to 10 years.

There are 15 titles, including birthday and Christmas or Hanukkah stories, sports stories, ABCs, and stories featuring dinosaurs, mermaids and teddy bears. Cost is $10.95 plus tax and the books can be completed in 15 minutes.

She has a stand at all three Albertson locations and she rotates visits between the three and will be at one of the stores in person on Wednesdays through Saturday from noon to 6 p.m. Or she can be reached at 567-7770.

Mella McEwen is a business/oil writer for the Reporter-Telegram.

Honoring Those Who Served

Our hearts and sincerest gratitude go out to every man and woman who has served this great land. Their devotion to duty and country does not go unrecognized. On Veterans Day we remember and honor these heros. Please join us in this special salute.

The Permian Basin Vietnam Veterans Memorial ROLL CALL

A roll call of the more than 200 names in 27 West Texas Counties already submitted for the Vietnam Veterans Memorial is scheduled for today at 11:00 a.m.. The ceremony will be held at the site of the memorial near the Confederate Air Force facility at Midland International Airport. The 2-acre site is adjacent to the Armed Forces Reserve Canter on Wright Drive.

BGCT delegates adopt sex-value resolutions

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Texas Baptists adopted resolutions Tuesday targeting homosexuality as a "distortion" and emphasizing abstinence in sex education.

Sex values dominated debate among more than 6,000 delegates at the 107th annual Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Leaders also voted to ask their executive board to siphon $800,000 from the State Missions Commission budget to build Christian schools in inner-city neighborhoods. Its 1993 budget is just more than $8 million.

"The inner city schools are the ones where you have a lot of gang violence and many other problems," said Harvey Starling, pastor at the Second Chapel Baptist church in Garland. "You put a Christian influence in there, and it will always help."

Joel Diaz, pastor of San Antonio's Westlawn Baptist Church, said he hopes the executive board will endorse the plan he proposed, to help show Baptist can compete with other denominations.

"Catholics have put us to shame," Diaz said. "Wherever Catholics have opened a church, they have opened a school."

Earlier Tuesday, delegates adopted a resolution that said homosexuality violated the biblical ethic of fidelity in marriage and abstinence outside of marriage. The same document condemned adultery, incest and pornography.

Another resolution on teen-pregnancy called for parental involvement in teaching sex in schools.

It urges lawmakers "to support programs which have a major goal of keeping children from becoming parents through the teaching of abstinence and the provision of appropriate sex education."

"We have got to teach these children what sex is and convince them of what they need to do," said Kim Snyder of First Baptist Church of College Station.

In other action Tuesday, the Baptists announced a plan to provide relief to Somalia.

Cosmonauts adjust to American life

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Two Russian cosmonauts said Tuesday that they are beginning to feel right at home as they train at NASA's Johnson Space Center for a mission aboard the space shuttle Discovery.

"We have been surrounded by our counterparts and felt their warmth and care, and we are very thankful for that," Vladimir Titov said through a translator. "We are certainly thrilled to participate in this mission, since this is quite a new direction for us."

Titov and Sergei Krikalev arrived in Houston last week for an intensive training program, and both met briefly with reporters Tuesday at the space center.

One will be chosen to fly aboard Discovery on a research mission scheduled for November 1993, while the other will serve as a backup. The voyage will be the first U.S.-Russian space endeavor since 1975, when three astronauts and two cosmonauts docked their orbiting Apollo and Soyuz spacecraft.

"It is too early to say anything definite about our future life and training in the United States, but we can already say that there is something different and a lot in common," Krikalev said.

"We are very happy that the first contact during the Soyuz-Apollo mission was followed by our cooperative work now. Hopefully, the experience of cooperation we gain here would lay the foundation for the future work between our cosmonauts and scientists, and will be followed by other endeavors," Titov said.

The cosmonauts' participation in the shuttle program is part of a cooperative agreement between the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Russian Space Agency. The agreement also calls for the flight of a U.S. astronaut aboard Mir and a Mir-shuttle rendezvous.

"Certainly, this is a historic moment. It's the first opportunity to bring our two nations together to train and get ready for a space shuttle mission," said NASA astronaut Kenneth Reightler, who will pilot Discovery during next year's shuttle mission.

Titov, 45, and fellow cosmonaut Musa Manarov hold the world record for space stays. Titov remained in orbit aboard the Mir space station for 366 days in 1987-1988.

Krikalev, 34, logged a 312-day space flight aboard Mir from May 1991 to March 1992 and caught international attention when he was in orbit while the former Soviet Union dissolved. He also has made a 151-day flight.

After three months of intensive training to get the cosmonauts familiar with the shuttle, the pair will begin mission-specific training with the rest of the crew.

The two cosmonauts' families will arrive in Houston on Nov. 21, Titov said. Both men are married; Titov has a 17-year-old daughter and a 7-year-old son, while Krikalev has a 2-year-old daughter.

"I anticipate that there would certainly be some difficulties in the adjustment of our children and spouses — the new roads, the traffic, stores and going to school," Titov said.

NOTICE OF SALE
THE STATE OF TEXAS
BY VIRTUE OF AN ORDER OF SALE
COUNTY OF MARTIN

Dated November 5, 1992, and issued pursuant to a judgment decree of the District Court of Martin County, Texas, by the Clerk of said Court on said date in a certain suit No. 4466, and styled County of Martin et al vs. Mary Reed Maker, AKA Mrs. Ernest Maker and Ernest O. Maker Estate, and to me directed and delivered as Sheriff of said Court, I have on October 30, 1992, seized, levied upon, and will on the first Tuesday in December, the same being the 1th day of said month at the Courthouse door of said County, in the City of Stanton, between the hours of 10:00 o'clock A.M. and 4:00 P.M. on said day, proceed to sell for cash to the highest bidder all of the right, title, and interest of the defendants in such suit in and to the following described real estate levied upon as the property of said defendants, the same lying and being situated in the County of Martin and the State of Texas, to-wit: Lot-1, BLock 11, Original Townsite of the City of Stanton, Martin County, Texas being that property more particularly described in Vol. 145, Page 688 of the Deed Records, Martin County, Texas.

or upon the written request of said defendants or their attorney, a sufficient portion thereof to satisfy said judgment, interest, penalties and costs; subject, however, to the right of redemption, the defendants or any person having an interest therein, to redeem the said property, or their interest therein, at any time within two years from the recordation of the deed in the manner provided by law, and, and subject to any other and further rights to which the defendants or anyone interested therein may be entitled, under the provisions of law. Said sale to be made by me to satisfy the judgment rendered in the above styled and numbered cause, together with interest, penalties, and costs of suit, and the proceeds of said sale to be applied to the satisfaction thereof, and the remainder, if any, to be applied as the law directs.

Dated November 5, 1992, at Stanton, Texas.
