BRACK CURRY EDITS WAXY DAILY LIGHT TUESDAY

Brack Curry, "World Comment" to most of our readers, has been Editor-in-Chief of the Waxahachie Daily Light for one edition, Tuesday, October 18, and sends a copy of the paper to us.

Brack edits a very creditable daily, and this edition is in line with the SMU journalism custom of having undergraduate students receive actual experience in the fields in which they have made their principal study.

Brack, besides writing the editorials, also has a column similar to "World Comment," which is entitled "Bracketed." Incidentally, in one of the articles he writes: "... has had five years' experience as political commentator for the Coryell County News, Gatesville, Texas. He served as editor-in-chief of his high school paper for two years before entering SMU in 1936."

METHODIST AREA MAY BE REUNITED

Methodists of central Texas are interested in the report that restoration of the Gatesville district of the Central Texas conference, abolished early in the year, may be considered at a meeting Monday at Fort Worth at which Bishop Iva Lee Holt, new presiding officer of the conference, will preside, and which will be attended by the nine presiding elders of the conference.

Waco will be represented at the Fort Worth gathering by Presiding Elder W. W. Ward, whose tenure of office expires this year and who will be returned to pastoral duties at the conference here next month. For some time the report as to the likelihood of the Gatesville district being reestablished has been circulated. This may be done by Bishop Holt of his own volition. It was abolished by Bishop H. A. Boaz, former presiding officer of the Central Texas conference, following a conference with his cabinet.

Plans for the approaching church year will be discussed by Bishop Holt and his cabinet at the Monday meeting.

VERNIE WOLF IS FFA REPRESENTATIVE IN K. C.

The chapter is paying his transportation expenses there and back.

were awarded 150, 100, 75, and 50 baby chicks respectively. He other four boys showing this division, G. E. Mangrem, Eddie Wiegand, Travis Harper, and Twiford Schloeman were each awarded 25 baby chicks.

NYA SELECTS OLD BOYD HOME FOR HEADQUARTERS

The old Mitch Boyd home in South Gatesville has been selected by the NYA for the headquarters for the 50 boys who will occupy the house under the NYA supervisor, Charles Sanderson. The house and property is now owned by E. C. Farmer and will be rented to the NYA.

The 100 boys, 50 local and 50 from the rural districts will be housed here in two-week shifts, or 63 hours in each month, and in 25 at a time shifts.

They will cultivate the 29 acres and take care of stock and other animals with which the farm will be equipped. An A&M man will be here to supervise the farm and stock work. It is planned to have the farm cooperative and that it will pay for itself.

In addition the boys will build and equip a shop for the local school system which will include equipment amounting to some $1,200.00.

New drives, walks and general other improvements will be made on the school yard. Men and women's room will be constructed at the football stadium, and repair work will be done on the Junior High, Grammar, and High school buildings.

SEVENTH GRADE AGRICULTURE NEWS

The seventh grade agriculture class of the Pearl high school met Monday, October 17, to discuss some farm problems. Among these were, "How to Get Your Water to Stay in a Seepy Tank," "What to Keep It In," and "How to Have Successful Orchards in This Country."

We decided that the most successful way to keep your water in a seepy place is to place a cement core in the dam at your tank and put it below the level of the tank water. We have also found that if you have a farm pond, it is better to keep your water in it.

We hope that the farmers of this county will successfully use these devices in their farm progress.—Mildred Faye Whatley, reporter.

FFA WINS FIRST PLACE ON BRAZOS VALLEY FAIR EXHIBIT

Gatesville Future Farmers won first place on their Community Exhibit at the Brazos Valley Fair held in Waco beginning October 15, and running through October 23rd. There were sixteen other communities competing, each having to show twenty-five different farm products. Included in the exhibit from Gatesville were the following products:

White corn, yellow corn, popcorn, oats, milo maize, hegari, ajax, sorghum seed, millet seed, alfalfa, peanut, millet and sorghum hay; sudan grass, broom-corn, cotton, pumpkin, pecans, honey, sorghum syrup, pears, persimmons, irish potatoes, sweet potatoes.

These products scored a total of 935 points out of a possible 1000.

In the educational division of the fair, the Gatesville Chapter showed the idea of "Proper Spacing Increases Yields," using as an illustration the practice of planting every row in corn as compared with that of planting two rows and skipping one. There was no competition in this division, each worthy exhibit receiving a blue ribbon.

In addition to the above exhibits, other products were exhibited in the open classes of the agricultural division of the fair. Of the fourteen products entered, 12 were in the money. ## HORNETS TAKE MART TONIGHT IN SECOND CONFERENCE HERE

CHAMBLESS' MART MAULERS TO PROVIDE DISH FOR LOCAL HORNET SQUAD

It might be an oyster, or it might be something considerably tougher. But tonight at the local "Stadium, Gatesville Hi Hornets will again don their gear and go into action against another conference contender—this time Mart's Meandering Maulers.

Coming here with a very impressive record, with only six points on the credit side of their ledger, and one win this year, we'll say, that with even that very unimpressive record, this team is dangerous.

Not discouraging Coach Earle Worley one iota, it is safe to say Coach Harry Chambliss of Mart is one of the best in the business, and like our own Worley, the only thing that licks him is the final whistle.

Fans, folks, friends, foes, that's going to HAVE to take Mart—and it won't be any pushover. Not having the records we couldn't prove it, be from a partially reliable memory, we don't remember very many times when the score at the end of a Mart-Gatesville game was "in our favor."

This year we believe the Hornets will and can do the trick. Come out tonight, and see the job done.

There are a few injured on the Hornet squad, but they are more or less a minor character, and the squad as a whole is in top shape and have the proper mental attitude, as well as the will to go—and will go!

P. C. SCOTT PASSES

SPORT SCRAPS

By JONES

Our records show it's the Hornets vs. Mart tonite.

Our records also show it's Baylor vs. A&M Saturday.

This'll give fans of this section the biggest football week-end during this autumn.

With our neck out, as they say, we'll take the Hornets and this Bear fight, but'll give no odds.

Schedule says in 6-Man: Pearl at Turnersville—and that's all. Turnersville will have to be able to take it!

And it looks like Rice over Texas; TCU over Marquette; Pittsburg over SMU; Santa Clara over U. of Ark.

Yesterday Junior Hi Hornets took on South Junior Hi of Waco. The outcome probably was Waco.

Notice where Connie Mack is figuring on night base ball for the American League—one other sign of the dwindling popularity of the so-called American national sport, which has been going out for some time, but no one would admit it. With the free publicity base ball gets, anything ought to go over, but it doesn't seem to catch on, even with that.

Won't be any alibis from the Hornets Saturday morning—everything is good shape, and it looks like a real battle.

It's not sports, but those new chimes, bells or what you may call them, the band has adds much color to that organization. We like them.

HUMBLE OIL AGAIN HAS THREE BROADCASTS SATURDAY

Three broadcasts of football games involving five Southwestern Conference schools have been scheduled by the Humble Oil & Refining Company for Saturday afternoon.

This broadcast begins at 12:50 p. m., Texas time, with Hal Thompson at the microphone. Stations KRLD, Dallas; KTRH, Houston; and KTSA, San Antonio, will carry the game.

The Baylor-A&M game will be broadcast direct from Municipal Stadium in Waco at 2:20 p. m. over stations WBAP-WFAA, WOAI, KPRC, and WACO.

Humble's broadcast of the Rice-Texas game in Houston will also begin at 2:20 p. m. This broadcast will be carried over KZYZ, KGKO, KRIS, KRGV, and KABC.

WILL BRITAIN MOVE TO AMERICA?

The passing of the days since the temporary settlement of the European war crisis has continued to bring out interesting side-lights on the various countries involved. Rumors have been rather persistent in the news during the past few days to the effect that England definitely fears a major war under her present situation. Her greatest dread apparently lies in the fact of her decided vulnerability to mass aerial attack by the admittedly superior German air force. It has been brought rather forcibly to notice that at present there is no satisfactory method of defending London against air attack for several reasons.

Foremost among these reasons is the fact that bombing planes of high speed now can strike a neighboring country so quickly that the protecting air force can not get into the air and fight off the invader before they have dropped enough bombs to do untold damage in closely crowded areas. Secondly, bombers flying at high altitude can dump loads of high explosives several miles from a city and the forward velocity of the dropped missiles will carry them into the heart of the city; this leaves the bombing planes safely outside the range of anti-aircraft guns and they may never even come in sight of the target. Thirdly, the British Isles are small in area and have crowded into those few square miles millions of people who would be the easy target for European bombers, vital government buildings are concentrated in London—only a few minutes flight across the channel from the European shores. Important munitions factories and other vital producing and processing plants are all in easy range of bombers flying out of any European city. British ports could be reduced to a state of almost complete helplessness and life in the British Isles depends very decidedly upon the uninterrupted flow of commerce in and out of these ports.

This situation which Britain faces has led to the further rumor that the government is considering the transference of the center of the British government from the crowded and susceptible London to the comparatively remote safety of Canadian shores.

This idea surely has its very apparent advantages. It would remove the vital government organization of the British Empire to a point separated by about 3000 miles of water from its nearest potential destroyer. Munitions and other manufacturing plants relocated in Canada on this side of the Atlantic Ocean would be comparatively immune to attack from the air by the hostile nations of Europe. This big barrier of water is gradually becoming of less and less importance but it will probably be a number of years yet before bombing planes can strike across it with the swift sureness that they can now negotiate the English Channel. Another feature of this plan stresses the possible importance of Roosevelt's recently stated policy which pledges the active assistance of the United States in the event that an attack is made by a foreign nation on Canada. No doubt Britain feels that this assistance from the United States would be very valuable in the event she found it necessary to protect her newly located government from the invasion of a foreign nation. Such a move would naturally lead to an even closer alliance between Britain and the United States than now exists and would be very nice indeed for the British.

Many observers of international affairs are of the opinion that Britain will be very careful not to embroil herself in any major conflict with the dictator nations until such a protective move has been made. Perhaps this explains the, shall we say, cowardly action of England in failing to call the bluffs of Herr Hitler in the recently passed Austrian and Czech crises. If Britain waits until she completes such a move Hitler should have ample time to help himself to all he wants of continental European territory. Time alone will tell.

CHAPTER II

THROUGH it all he continued to live a sort of hand-to-mouth existence that had no future. In fact, curiously enough, it was this privation that actually kept him alive for 60,000,000 admirers today.

At one time Fields somehow found himself elected secretary of the Orlando Social club. He didn't care much about the duties or the organization, but the job did give him a place to sleep. The club quarters were over a livery stable, a big, bare room that had a huge door opening into nothing but thin air.

In the summer, with the door open, it was comfortable. In the winter it was treated by constant exposure to cold.

While he was still secretary to the Orlando Social club, Fields got his first and only real job not connected with the theater. He had done odd jobs here and there, but this was a real position.

He became assistant to the driver of an ice wagon. The pay was small but it was at least regular and Fields was happy, comparatively, except for one thing. The shrill, catastrophic ringing of an alarm clock sent him stumbling out of bed each morning at 4:30 o'clock. He had to report at the ice factory at five.

of $5 a week. Fields was walking on whatever clouds were handy at the time. At last he was a real juggler and was getting paid for it.

The enthusiasm lasted just a week. From his first pay check the management deducted $1.50 commission, for being so kind as to give him a job. He had spent sixty cents daily in car fare going to and from the park. In short, it had cost him $5.10 to get a job which paid him $5. Fields solved the difficulty by resigning from the Orlando Social Club, and sleeping in his quarters at the park, thus eliminating the carfare expense.

The famous "Sliding Billy" Watwas freezing cold. Fields, without blankets, managed to get some warmth. He stuffed burlap sacks with straw and nailed them to the door. At night he would remove the floor from its hinges, spread it across two or more chairs, and sleep.

Snow, sleet and rain flurried in the doorway. In the mornings Fields would awaken, almost frozen. He would stay in the building until the sun — when it came out — had warmed the boards in the fence that surrounded the building. Then he would go downstairs, stand against the boards, and absorb this scant heat from the fence.

Years later, in Germany, Fields was ill. He called in a doctor who examined him carefully and asked if the comedian ever had had tuberculosis. Fields had no recollection of having had the disease.

After days of questioning and investigating, the distinguished physician — and he was an outstanding member of the medical profession — finally solved the riddle. Fields actually had suffered from tuberculosis. But the cold, the icy blasts he had encountered, and shrugged off as a matter of course in his early teens had kept him from succumbing to the disease. Privation had preserved Fields for posterity. Today tuberculosis patients frequently are

These early hours were the bane of his existence. Having acquired a bed, Fields was in no mood to abandon it at such early hours. He had gone without beds so long that to really be able to sleep in one was an event.

Carefully he studied the field. After examining all the various occupations he decided that only two professions were open to ambitious youngsters who liked to sleep late. These were banking and the theater.

After covertly watching a few bankers at work, Fields hurriedly abandoned all ideas of going to work in a financial institution. Bankers, it appeared, were too "nice." They had to be dressed up all the time, wore collars and ties and in other ways were harassed by many necessary evils.

Thus there remained for our hero only the theater, and the theater, to Fields, meant just one thing — juggling. He had been practicing incessantly. He had a few good routines and believed he could handle a job. He was just 15 and he answered an ad.

An amusement park at Norristown, just outside of Philadelphia, was lining up a new bill. Fields applied, showed his juggling act and was hired — for the munificent sum son got Fields his next job. He saw the youngster in action at Norristown and arranged to have him on the bill at the Fortescue Pier in Atlantic City. Fields got $10 a week and "cakes," a truly magnificent sum.

His job turned out to be more than he had bargained for. Oh, he juggled. Sometimes as many as 20 times a day. But there was a catch in it. The entertainment provided by the management was free. The singers, jugglers, acrobats and what-not who made up the bill were supposed to entertain the customers while they bought food and drinks.

When customers were scarce, Fields would doff his costume, climb into a bathing suit and prepare to drown. Swimming out beyond the breakers he would shout loudly for help. A curious crowd would watch him be "rescued" and then would troop into the beer garden to see him be revived. Once inside the on-lookers became customers.

It was swell business for the management but Fields swallowed a lot of salt water.

After a season at Atlantic City, Fields decided to take New York by storm. New York took him, instead, but Fields didn't give up.

THE ROAD TO COMFORT

Before Winter's First Blast

FIND OUT YOUR HEATING NEEDS

You just can't imagine the healthful comfort of a home completely heated with advanced-type gas equipment until you have lived in one. In it there are no chilling drafts, cold layers of air at floor level nor hot spots — temperature is held even and uniform throughout.

Now check your heating equipment. See if it is adequate to do a thorough, complete heating job. Perhaps just one or two pieces of the advanced-type equipment will be enough to bring it up-to-date. But, whatever your home needs, now is the time to install the equipment — before winter's first blast. Any budget can afford the easy terms that are available.

NATIVE SWISS YODELERS TO APPEAR HERE OCTOBER 24TH

A unique concert of native Swiss Music and Yodeling is to be presented in Gatesville public schools on Monday, Oct. 24, at 3:00 p. m., according to announcement by the school.

Three brothers recently arrived in the United States from their native land, Lucerne, Switzerland. They are Jose, Louis, and Fritz Studer. Their mission to this country is to bring to us some of their wholesome Swiss folk music and to acquaint American audiences with the manners and customs of the Alpine people.

These three brothers, jovial ambassadors of good will and smiles, are making their first long tour in the Southwest. They made a short tour during the summer of 1938.

With a beautiful stage background of Alpine scenery, and wearing colorful native Swiss costumes, this charming trio carries you into the heart of their picturesque land.

They are an unusually versatile group of musicians and entertainers. They play such instruments as the bass viol, three accordions, six clarinets, and concertina. Each of the brothers plays two or more instruments; each is an expert yodeler. Solo and harmony yodeling is featured.

High lights of the concert are the brief talks given by Jose describing the unique customs of his native land and people and also his Swiss dance.

Mildred Louise Davis, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Davis of Ireland has been attending school for five years and now started on the sixth year here and during all that time, she has not missed a day in school. The weather never gets too bad for her. She is a good student and believes in making every day count. What do you think of this for a record for a girl only twelve years old?

The Baptist Church had a big day last Sunday with dinner on the ground, and Rev. Preboth of Waco, the pastor of the church with an interesting message Sunday night and other interesting speakers from Waco for the day made the day all a pleasant one indeed. Rev. Howard of Waco will conduct a training school in the Baptist Church for the week and ten guest speakers will be present at different times to speak which will add very much to the interest of the school.

The Top Road.

The Top Road from Highway 84 to Oglesby is completed, and traffic turned upon it. The construction is the same type as that of "Bottle Boulevard" from Gatesville to the McLennan County line, and we're proud of it. That's not all. We've got Main street fixed the same way. We're moving up town faster than any little town we can call to mind. We invite the people at large to drive by and help us admire these new improvements.

PIE SUPPER

There will be a pie supper given by the Methodist Church at Ft. Gates Tuesday night, Oct. 25.

Fun program will be given including such things as blackface comedian, songs and music.
