Volume XL.

Junction, Kimble County, Texas, Friday, February 22, 1924.

Number 44.

Attorney General Clegg
Former Democratic Senator Atlee
Pomerene of Ohio, named by President Coolidge special counsel with H. S. Strawn of Chicago to prosecute the Federal investigation in the oil lease scandal.

By a vote of 59 to 13, last Saturday night, the Senate confirmed the appointment of Mr. Pomerene by the President. Several days ago Mr. H. S. Strawn of Chicago was appointed but his appointment was not confirmed in the Senate, as it developed that he was connected with one of the Standard Oil Banks. President Coolidge later appointed Owen J. Roberts of Philadelphia, who will be counsel with Mr. Pomerene in the oil lease cases.

Radio reports Monday stated that Secretary Denby, whose picture appeared on this page last week, and who has heretofore refused to resign, had tendered his resignation to the President, effective March 10th.

1,369,954 VOTERS IN TEXAS IN 1924 NOW INDICATED.

Dallas, Feb. 16.—Poll tax receipts issued for 1924 number 928,295 in the 208 counties of Texas which had sent in their reports on or before February 16. This is an increase of 17.5 per cent over the 790,206 receipts issued in the same counties for the last election year, 1922.

Reports are to come from 44 counties yet and if these maintain the average increase shown by the counties which have reported, the total number of poll tax receipts issued in Texas this year will be 1,191,256 as against the 1,013,835 of 1922. These figures include only poll tax receipts; exemption certificates will add approximately 15 per cent, making the voting strength of Texas about 1,369,954.

JURY ACQUITS EMIL A. LOEFFLER MONDAY.

The case of Emil A. Loeffler, local and widely known business man, charged with the unlawful killing of Buck Gardner on the 7th of August, 1922, was called Monday afternoon, February 11th.

A special venire of 102 men were asked for by the District Attorney, which was exhausted and an additional 50 talemens were summoned for Tuesday.

The evidence was completed Wednesday afternoon, and a recess was taken until nine o'clock Thursday morning, when the arguments by attorneys began. District Attorney Christian opened for the prosecution, and was followed by County Judge Weaver H. Baker for the defense. In the afternoon, Coke R. Stevenson spoke for the defendant, while J. B. Randolph, who was assisting in the prosecution, closed.

The jury, composed of J. W. Little, foreman; George Cavanaugh, Ansel Baldwin, W. A. Chandler, O. D. Price, P. T. Hodges, T. J. Wooten, G. N. Walker, Roscoe Stevenson, Ray Amberson, Robt. Tomberlin and J. P. Jones returned a verdict of "Not Guilty," about 8:30 that evening.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK INCREASES ITS CAPITAL

At a recent meeting, the capital stock of the First National Bank was raised from $25,000 to $40,000, with surplus of some $12,000 in addition, which makes this bank one of the strongest financial institutions of the Hill Country.

Starting back in 1916, which by the way, is not so long ago, it has shown a gradual and rather rapid growth. The original capital stock was $25,000, which was the total assets of the institution. Since that time dividends have been paid at different times, and the bank has acquired the splendid building which it now occupies, and at the last published statement, has some $27,000 surplus.

The original directors of this bank were: Emil A. Loeffler, Horace E. Wilson, M. M. Moss, Frank Baker, T. S. Jones, Adam Murr and A. J. Moss, and the first officers were, Emil A. Loeffler, President; H. E. Wilson, Vice President; A. J. Moss, Cashier; and Roscoe Heyman, Assistant Cashier.

In 1918, Oren C. Reid, the present vice president and cashier, became identified with the bank and with the exception of Mr. Loeffler, who has been a director or officer since organization, has the longest service record with the institution.

In 1920, Coke R. Stevenson was elected president and became actively identified with this bank, and with the close co-operation of the other officers stockholders and customers, has carried it thru the past years of financial depression, until today it is in a splendid financial condition.

The present board of directors is composed of Emil A. Loeffler, Coke R. Stevenson, T. S. Jones, Oren C. Reid, Roy Blackburn, W. G. Loeffler and Otto B. Fisher. Messrs. Loeffler and Fisher were recently elected. The officers are: Coke R. Stevenson, president; Oren C. Reid, vice president and cashier; and W. G. Loeffler and Jas. A. Miller, assistant cashiers.

Emil A. Loeffler is away from the store this week for a few days rest.

This Week

By Arthur Brisbane

The enterprising insiders were really earnest workers, selling public property, while they had the chance. The charge is seriously made that naval coal fields in Alaska were transferred to the interior department later to be transferred to private owners, as were the naval oil fields, also that development of government coal fields was stopped to oblige private competitors.

When incorporation lawyer meets an oil scandal gentleman in the legal arena, he is apt to remember favors that some oil corporation has done him, and to lick the feet of the oil man instead of eating him up. Nothing could be sillier than to "prosecute" thieves corporations with lawyers that those very corporations have fattened.

William Jennings Bryan says that universities are "causing degradation of youth," by teaching evolution. He defies to open discussion with "the sons of apes," as he calls the evolutionists. Mr. Bryan will believe in evolution, he says, when you can make an onion out of a lily bulb or vice versa. It might interest Mr. Bryan to see the rough seashore plant that by evolution has been made into the modern cabbage. It would also help solve Mr. Bryan's problem if he would read enough of Darwin to know that Darwin never said that men descended from monkeys. He merely said that monkeys of higher type are nearer to man in construction than other animals.

Mr. Bryan can learn for himself that every bone in his body is duplicated almost exactly in the skeleton of a chimpanzee, including the rudimentary tail bone. That doesn't mean that a chimpanzee was the original Mr. Bryan.

DISTRICT COURT ENDS LAST SATURDAY, 16TH.

The February term of the Kimble County District Court adjourned Saturday, 16th, after disposing of a number of civil cases Friday and Saturday.

Asa G. Farmer, Oscar Camp and Alva Fisher were appointed jury commissioners and ordered to pick the names of sixteen men for Grand Jury service, and thirty-six petit jurors for the first week and a like number for the second week of the September term.

Among the cases on the criminal docket that were carried over from last term to this and continued to the fall term were those of Hugh T. Cross, on account of illness of the defendant's wife; Ira Shroyer, Frank Walston, and W. T. Bishop. Mr. Bishop was acquitted during this term of one of the two charges pending against him.

The Grand Jury found seven bills of indictment—five felonies and two misdemeanors.

Homer Fleming, who was taken to Burnett shortly after the examining trial following the Telegraph tragedy, was returned to Kimble County jail the first week of court and is still confined here. He was indicted by the Grand Jury last week and denied bond by the court. A habeas corpus proceeding in his case was set for next Monday in Junction. The court granted a change of venue to Llano County, and the defendant will be transferred to the Llano County jail, unless granted bond, until his trial, which is set for May 12th.

Juan Savor, a Mexican, was arrested recently by Sheriff Dee Gibbs and was indicted by the Grand Jury and is still in jail, unable to make bond.

Rumors were current last week that a summer term of court would be held here, but Judge McLean stated to this reporter that this was not necessary, and not even contemplated.

During this term of court there was not a conviction. The cost to the county was around $1,650.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe P. Fritz were in Kerrville on business last week.

William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of Treasury, who appeared before the Senate Committee to explain fees paid the law firm of which he is a member by the Delaney oil companies.

Mr. McAdoo, one of the candidates in the spotlight for the Democratic nomination, recently went from his home in California to appear before the Senate Committee investigating the Tea Pot Dome lease scandal. It developed that he had been an attorney for the oil concern involved in the lease and this may result in his stepping out of the race.

SATISFACTORY PROGRESS MADE ON NEW SCHOOL.

Contractor J. C. Ray, was in The Eagle office this week to have his name added to the subscription list, and stated that the work on the new stone school building was progressing in a most satisfactory way and that by the end of the week the first story of the building and the heating plant would be completed.

Mr. Ray, with his family, spent several days camping here last summer, and states that he will probably spend the summer here, even though the work on the building is completed.

SCABIES CONDITION IMPROVED LAST MONTH.

Sheep scab condition through out Texas is showing some improvement during the last month, according to the monthly report of J. H. Rascoe, formerly stationed at San Angelo, but now chief scabies inspector with the Livestock Sanitary Commission. The report reveals there were 19,961 animals infected, 6,604 exposed, 319,705 free from infection, 27,107 dipped one or more times, 339 inspections made, 46 special quarantined premises in the State, 4 special quarantines issued, 24 special quarantines released, 17 counties containing quarantine premises and 131 certificates were given for official movement. Edwards and Valverde Counties still remain under a blanket quarantine.

The report reveals the following concerning West Texas Counties:

Concho—Two inspections, 1,050 infected, 1,185 free, 1,038 dipped for infection and exposure.

Crockett—17 inspections, 37,450 free.

Edwards—37 inspections, 1,900 infected, 16,454 free and 1,960 dipped.

Kerr—One inspection, 11 exposed, and 11 dipped.

Kimble—13 inspections, 517 infected, 767 exposed, 4,890 free and 1,293 dipped.

McCulloch—Two inspections, 1,790 free.

Menard—Four inspections, 3,075 free.

Real—One inspection and 1,254 free.

Schleicher—Forty-five inspections, 34,560 free and 11 dipped.

Sutton—Twenty-six inspections, and 27,668 free.

INTERESTING STATEMENT REGARDING OLD MEXICO.

(J. E. H. Allen, Box 1869, Los Angeles, California.)

When one considers that this country was settled centuries ago and then look over these vast stretches of rich lands still undeveloped, a puzzle question arises: Why these conditions?
The people seem to be healthy,
and to judge from the great number of children the population must increase rapidly. Yet, but a shadow of new improvement or development is to be seen in a strip of several hundred miles. The soil is very productive. Springs, creeks and rivers of good, soft, clear water are plentiful. The tops and sides of the mountains are covered with a variety of good timber and the whole country
abounds with luxuriant grasses
with but little livestock to graze
in. Throughout the country for 1,000 miles there are more deer
than cattle and horses.

Corn comes first as the food
of the people and sells at 50c to 60c a bushel. It is grown without irrigation and with little or no labor beyond the planting in rows 2 feet wide with 2
to 4 stalks to the hill 15 to 20 inches apart. It yields from 30 to more than 100 bushels to the acre. Beans of 3 or 4 kinds come second in the line of food.
The variety of good foods, cheap and plentiful, grown here, is greater than you could find produced anywhere in the United States. There are a number of good and commonly used foods that are not found in the United States markets: one in particular in a banana 4 to 6 times the size of the bananas sold in the United States. These are generally steamed until done and then fried whole with the skin
on. They taste and look like a rich Georgia yam baked in a Dutch oven and as good or better eating. These monster bananas sell for 1c to 2c each in this section. Five varieties of bananas are grown.

The other very prolific food is two or three varieties of chy-cots. They taste and are cooked like squash. This caused them to be called in California
the South American squash.
While the leaf resembles the squash, they could not belong to the squash family as they are solid flesh and have but one seed. One vine will cover an arbor 40 to 60 feet across and thick fruited the size of a coffee cup. A fine vegetable served in different ways and, of course, very cheap. One other very common vegetable popular with all, especially the children, is a large, flat, whit turnip, but not called a turnip. It has a slight taste like the common turnip,
but is sweeter and is eaten raw
as you would eat an apple.

These are only a few of the good food products grown in that country that you never find on sale in the United States.
Also, they grow almost every variety that is grown in the United States. The largest wild pears I ever saw are grown in the States of Nayarit and Jalisco. While corn is a great food of these people, they never have or use any meal; the corn is cooked as you cook lye hominy, ground or mashed into a pulp or stiff dough, then patted with the palm of the hand into thin cakes and baked on an open iron. This is the universal bread of all. No salt or grease is added.

They have plenty of milk and cheese, but make no butter.
They have plenty of pork but no bacon. They use but little wheat bread except in cake of different kinds. They make much cane sugar, but never make or use syrup. A high grade of honey is produced, but little used. They are coffee drinkers and grow more than they use. The coffee is parched until black as ink, then pulverized and made very strong and almost thick as soup. They pour a small portion in the cup,
then fill the cup with hot milk.
Their method of carving beef is to cut the quantity and portion

from the quarter as it hangs on the hook. You may choose until nothing is left but the skeleton and this is chopped up and sold. Every part of the steer is skinned for the hide and all is sold on the market, even to the head and feet. The hog, sheep, goat and venison are carved in the same manner as the beef—whittled off as it hangs to suit you. The have no scale of measurements like our.
Pounds, bushels, pints, quarts,
gallons, yards, feet, miles, inches
and acres are unknown quantities to these people. The metric system is mostly used.

Mostly oxen are used on the farms. The yoke and bow are not used. Instead, a straight beam is fastened across the fore head with rawhide straps. No whip is used, instead a long bamboo rod with straight and hooked steel point fastened on the end. They use no lines and the oxen are well controlled.

The coffee farms are a jungle
of coffee brush and bananas
to 12 or 15 feet high. Bananas are planted with the coffee
to shade the coffee. The coffee pods are green, when ripening
they turn to a red brown with two grains in each pod and grow thick on the clustering limbs of the bush. They are picked by hand, spread out to dry, then hushed by machinery. The coffee
we use is produced for market
with very cheap labor—
about 50c a day with food and lodging not included.

I saw no natives chewing tobacco and no chewing tobacco for sale, and bulk smoking tobacco hard to find. All smoke,
men and most of the women and children. Cigarettes are the universal smoke, though lots of cigars are used and all made of different grades and prices
by home growers and factories.
They don't "roll their own."
You can buy a good cigarette, 15 to the package, for 21c the package, though some sell for 10c and 15c (or one-half in United States money.)

The many lunch stands in the open surrounding the market
places on the plazas will serve a good lunch for 15c to 20c,
with butter, eggs and chicken
if wanted, and the best oranges
you ever ate for a penny each.
On the extension of the Southern Pacific railroad from Tepic
South, a distance of 100 miles,
to connect its line for an all-rail to the City of Mexico, all common labor on this work is paid 1 1/2 pesos a day of eight hours without board and lodging. This equals 75c United States money. A good portion of this road is tunnels through the Sierra Madre mountains and estimated to cost $15,000,000.
It will take about three years to complete it. The common people of this country are clever,
accommodating, agreeable,
and generous. They are people who love flowers, music and children, and these characteristics of any people are sufficient praise for their goodness.

NO INDICTMENTS RE-TURNED IN EDWARDS CO.

The Grand Jury which convened Monday, was discharged
Wednesday morning, having reported no bills of indictment, according to men of the jury.

Judge Jones paid Edwards
County some nice compliments on the fact that the citizens of our county are so law abiding,
and that there is no meanness
of any kind going on. Edwards
County jail is still empty.

Some of our citizens who have been here a long time say it is the first time in their memory
when the grand jury brought no
indictments. And Judge Jones says he has been on the bench
nine years and it is the first time in his experience that a grand jury brought in not a single indictment. Edwards County is distressfully quiet and law abiding.—Edwards Co.

SELECTION OF EGGS FOR INCUBATION.

(Extension Service of A. & M. College.)

In securing eggs for hatching the most important consideration is the health and vigor of the parent stock. Satisfactory results may be expected by carefully selecting eggs from any good standard-bred variety, provided the following points are kept in mind:

1. Choose eggs from birds which have been kept in sanitary premises; had a generous supply of green food, such as sprouted oats rye, barley, wheat, lettuce or cabbage, in addition to the necessary amount of grain and dry mash the month before the eggs are to be used for incubation. Hens that are lacking in green food, lack the necessary vitality that will produce strong healthy baby chicks.

2. Gather the eggs twice daily, handling them as little as possible. Keep them as nearly as possible in a uniform temperature of 55 to 65 degrees, turning them daily. When turning the eggs be sure that the hands are clean, and touch them as little as possible. Better still, place eggs in a regular paste board box and turn it over each day.

3. Remember that fresh eggs are best for incubation. Occasionally good results may be obtained from eggs that are 10 to 14 days old. Never set eggs that are spotted, dirty, stained, or that have knots, ridges or rough places. Choose clean unwashed sound eggs with firm shells that are well formed and uniform in size, shape and color. Average size is about two ounces.

Each egg that a hen lays depletes her vitality. Therefore, everything being equal, the first eggs that a hen produces just after the moult should produce stronger and more vigorous baby chicks than those that are produced later in the season. The good layer that moulted late in the fall will begin early in the year, the eggs that should be used for the early hatch.

Early spring is nature's most favorable season. By hatching chicks early they have the advantage of a longer growing period than those hatched late in the spring or summer. Hot weather retards the growth of chicks, and are therefore less liable to resist the diseases and insects that appear as the summer advances. Given the same care and attention, chicks that are hatched in February and early March, will weigh more, be stronger and more vigorous and fewer will die of disease than those that are hatched in May. A chick develops more rapidly the first six weeks of its life than any other period of growth before the warm days appear.

By hatching chicks early, surplus cocks may be marketed for early broilers and fryers at a maximum price. The early maturing pullets will lay early in the fall and be broody the following spring. They will also lay heavily at Thanksgiving and Christmas times when eggs are selling at a premium. Both cockpicks and pullets will be read for fall fairs.

RAINS OF THE PAST WEEK.

On Monday of last week a light rain fell over most of the county, while almost an inch fell in the Roosevelt section of the county.

More light showers were reported over the country Sunday and Monday, and almost an inch fell at Junction, and in most every part of the county. Radio reports show that the rains were pretty general over the entire State and north into Oklahoma.

Rains at this time have practically assured a good season for planting and the outlook in this section of the State is very promising.

TOURISTS

Down in Kimble County, a rancher has caught the vision of money to be gained from the tourist crop getting larger as each year this section is becoming better known as the play grounds of Texas and the Nation. He's establishing a tourist camp on his farm, providing shelter, and all adequate camp facilities. The fishing is fine and other other things are made attractive to the tourist, the rancher himself providing for policing of the camp. Of course he'll charge a nominal fee for the convenience he provides, because he'll have a few hundred dollars invested. No doubt, such a service will be appreciated by the tourist, who likes the great out of doors providing it is made as convenient as possible for his outing. The Kimble rancher will not only profit himself, but his neighbors as well and he'll be capitalizing on an asset of this country that the citizens as a whole haven't recognized.

San Angelo's tourist camp here with its conveniences has proven its worth many times over. A camp further out from town on somebody's ranch where there is plenty of good shade on the banks of the living Conchos, where the fishing is fine and where the mosquitoes haven't yet taken up habitat, might also prove profitable, enough so, perhaps, to attract individual capital to the undertaking as has been done in Kimble County.

The above recently appeared in the San Angelo Standard as an editorial, a week following a reprint of the article in The Eagle about the Hardeman-Estes Camp houses on South Llano.

It was gratifying to see that a paper of the circulation of the Standard would take this article from our paper and broadcast it over such a wide area.

Of course, The Eagle would take no part in giving publicity to any camp at which it was even presumed that the tourists would be charged exorbitant prices for accommodations, but we feel that no one in this county would even attempt to do so, and we know that they could not "get by" with it very long, so we are still advocating more camp grounds where a charge is made. The visitors had much rather pay a reasonable price for accommodations than to come here and secure camping places free that do not have any accommodations.

We have here the most wonderful country in the State. Why not cash in on it? People are going to be here by the thousands this summer. They will want good places to camp and fish. If you have a desirable place that can be made into a small camp at a nominal cost, think the matter over and decide to improve it and thereby add to your income this summer.

We recently received a copy of the Rising Star X-Ray, which carried the announcement that this live weekly in Eastland County had been purchased by our good friend, M. S. (Doc) Sellers, formerly of McCulloch County.

Editor Sellers sold the Brady Sentinel several weeks ago and has been traveling over the country considerably since that time. We think he really wanted to buy a paper somewhere in the Hill Country but was unable to find any newspaper owner in this section that was willing to sell, so he did the next best thing, viz.: bought the newspaper of his old home town, which by the way, is close enough to the Llano Rivers, for him to make two or three trips down here during the summer.

During the years he was the moving spirit of the Sentinel, he built up one of the best weekly papers in West Texas, and we know that the people of Rising Star and the country around will find in him a man that measures up to their highest expectations in the way of a newspaper man.

Good luck, Doc.

In another section of this paper will be found an article about preparations and precautions necessary for producing early chickens. If this article will cause even a few farmers to decide to raise a good many chickens more than they will need, for the summer, we will feel that the space used by this article was well paid for. In a few months the highways will be filled with cars and the river banks will be dotted with camps. These people have to eat. It's foolishness and bad business to have to buy eggs and chickens from the outside and bring them here to supply the demand as was the case last year. Kimble County has the land to raise all kinds of feed and conditions are almost ideal for raising chickens, so it's up to us to produce hundreds of "fryers" for the trade this summer.

Now's the time to begin. And there's money in it.

The road leading out of Junction to the county seats of adjoining counties are reported to be in a better condition than ever before. A drag is kept on the Sutton County end of the Sonora road and the distance of 65 miles between Junction and the Sutton County capital can easily be made in three and one half hours.

In Edwards County the road is excellent coming this way to the Greer ranch, and a considerable amount of work has been done between this ranch and the county line.

Towards Menard, many recent improvements have been made. Of course, on each of these roads there are still places that will be more or less difficult to negotiate when the roads are muddy.

On the highway of heaviest travel, towards Kerrville, the road bed is said to be in excellent condition and the maintenance funds available will assure its availability for rapid travel from now on.

In this issue will be found the opening speech of former Lieut. Governor Lynch Davidson of Houston. This was received last week but space was not available.

A careful reading of this speech will be worth the time of any voter, whether you expect to support Lynch Davidson or not.

LITERATURE WANTED.

Publicity that is accorded West Texas by the press throughout the country, to which should be added that of the railroads and other agencies, is causing increased numbers of inquiries in the general and Fort Worth offices of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. Assistant Manager Homer D. Wade, in charge of the Fort Worth office, states that there is never a day that he does not have many inquiries with reference to West Texas, and he is very anxious to have West Texas towns send literature to be placed in the racks in the Fort Worth office. He requests that every member town of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce that has booklets or circulars with reference to the resources and possibilities of the town to send same to him. This will not only be of material assistance to the town but will aid in giving exact information on inquiries.

At his residence north of town, last Sunday, Rev. Skaggs united in marriage, G. R. Kiser and Miss Myrtle Adams. The couple were accompanied by two friends, Messrs. Hight and Smitherman, of the Yates community. Mr. Kiser lives near Castell in Mason County, while the bride, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Adams of Yates, was born and reared in this county.

Two very old citizens of the community were present at church services at Eight-Mile Sunday, the 9th, when services were conducted by Rev. Skaggs. Uncle Jack Riddle, who is nearly 90, and Uncle Joe Ramsey, who is past 80, were the two, and it was an enjoyable meeting for them because they have been friends from boyhood. In 1858 they crossed the Texas Plains together. Mr. Riddle makes his home with his son, Joe P. Riddle, on North Llano, and Mr. Ramsey lives in Junction.

Our good friend Lee P. Miller of San Antonio was here last week. If he continues to make the rounds until August of this year, he will round out 42 years as a traveling salesman in this section, all of which time he has been visiting Junction merchants. His first bill of goods sold in Junction was to H. H. Allen in 1881. He knows all the old timers in this whole section of the State, and recounted numerous interesting experiences of his early visits to this country when it took four mules to pull his hack loaded with sample cases. One example of progress is the Kerrville-Junction Highway. On this recent trip he said he passed a place on this road where more than thirty years ago his four mules had stalled in the mud for more than five hours. On this trip he passed the spot at thirty miles per hour, yet it was raining at the time he passed over it this last time.

STATE TAXES COMPILED
BY REPRESENTATIVE

Declaring himself an original supporter of women's suffrage, he said that woman's complete equal rights with man under the statutes of this land should be established. "I would further protect and exempt woman from obligations that would bring unnecessary burdens upon the mother of the race," he added.

"A lifelong prohibitionist, I am against any plan, program or scheme that undertakes to rehabilitate the liquor traffic. And I favor the stern enforcement of the prohibition laws of the state and nation. No greater curse ever beset the human race than its arch-enemy, liquor.

"The extinction of our yellow pine forests is imminent unless vigorous steps are taken to stop it. They must be conserved and reforestation must be conducted on the cut-over areas."

"Protection of the people and the products in the river valleys of Texas against periodic overflows was urged by the speaker. He disapproved of the states providing the necessary resources to combat the river floods, unless they could not be done otherwise. "The better course," he said, "would be for the state to reserve and hold unto itself unequalled control, sovereignty and possession of its great tributaries and distributaries, first-class corporations operating therewith. Through a constructive program by which the public welfare is protected, capital can be induced to make the waterways of Texas one of the greatest Discussing the problem of the farmer and its solution, Governor Lynch Davidson urged the farmer's need of the co-operation of every business and professional man in the country in marketing his products to the end that a large and substantial portion of their sales should be made through co-operative associations. These associations provide ways and means of marketing produce as the markets call for them, and greatly improve the producer's financial status. I shall promote and assist such associations in every possible way.

"I advocate warehouse corporations by districts and commodities, controlled by the producers themselves, organized upon a basis whereby its securities against stored products will be as marketable as government bonds. Such organizations properly conducted would soon restore the agriculturist to his rightful state of prosperity."

encouragement and assistance to the other producing industries of Texas was promised by the candidate; such as live stock raising, mining, oil producing, and fruit growing.

Cheaper and better transportation was stated by the speaker to be the master key to the producer's situation. Discussing railroad transportation, he declared that freight rates are too high, indicating this was due largely to stringent legislative regulation. He favored any reasonable program that will bring about improvement of the conditions of the railroads as a means of reducing freight rates.

ment and the consequent disaster to hundreds of thousands of West Texans living along its line. Lynch Davidson was credited with preventing a year ago, was referred to as an example of destructive legislation. He has done my best to get these people from such a catastrophe, and shall continue to do so," he said. Moreover, when I am Governor, my every effort and influence will be exerted toward the lessening of this bureaucratic regulation and interference with the transportation systems of the country. It is by these tokens we can get a reduction in freight rates."

Having spent his younger days in different ranks and exposing his life in battles, battles, he proudly declared that he speaks labor language. He expressed admiration of its progress, and lauded its accomplishments. "I believe in the right of labor to organize for its own protection," he said. "I believe in the right of every citizen to work when and where he will, without interference or hindrance of any kind on the part of any individual or corporation," he said sympathetically, more sincere in that sympathy, more ready to promote its welfare with due regard to every other citizen of Texas, than I, as Governor.

The functioning of our public health department must be carried on accurately and scientifically, the speaker declared. He lauded the benefits to mankind of the

GRAND JURY REPORT.

THE STATE OF TEXAS,
County of Kimble.

In the District Court of Kimble County, Texas, February term, 1924:

To the Honorable J. H. McLean,
Judge of said Court:

Your Grand Jury for the February Term, A. D. 1924, of the District Court of Kimble County, Texas, would respectfully present to the Court, as the final report of said body, the following:

We have carefully examined all violations of the law that have come to our notice.

We have failed in some instances to procure witnesses, and in many instances witnesses have failed to give us the truth concerning facts we believed they were in possession of.

We have examined the Court house and grounds; also jail and its surroundings. We believe the toilet belonging to the court house, on the east side of the court house lawn, is a public nuisance and recommend to the Commissioners' Court that better and more sanitary accommodations be provided.

We find the names of certain persons painted on the walls of the cells inside the jail; we recommend that these be erased.

The inmates of the jail report to the Grand Jury that they are well cared for, well fed and provided with comfortable places to sleep.

We have returned seven indictments—5 felonies and 2 misdemeanors.

We have examined the reports of Justice of the Peace, Precinct No. 1, and find them correct.

We wish to express our appreciation of the services of the District and County Attorneys rendered us in the examination of witnesses, as well as all other matters where their services were of value to us.

We respectfully submit that we have concluded our labors, and ask to be discharged.

W. C. Bradshaw,
Foreman.

Mrs. George Vierling, Jr., is visiting her mother, Mrs. Stevens in San Antonio.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our gratitude to the people of the Segovia neighborhood and those from Junction, who assisted in finding our little daughter when lost on last Sunday afternoon, February 10th.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Cole.

To The Voters of Kimble County—

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for County and District Clerk, subject to the action of the Democratic primaries; and promise, if elected, to perform the duties of the office to the best of my ability.

Heyman Drug Company

Junction, Texas,

This Winter---

HAS Been a rather favorable one, but we find that those who produced plenty of feed stuff last season have found a good use for it and their livestock have come through in much better condition than they would without the feed.

WE CAN'T Expect every winter to be as favorable as this. The next one may be severe and stock will suffer unless we have plenty of feed available. It is out of the question to think that we can afford to buy feed at high prices, away from here, then pay heavy freight charges, and get any benefit from it in the way of dollars and cents. It just can't be done. Our past experience has shown that.

THERE Is plenty of available land in this county to raise every load of feed stuff that we need, and as was our policy last year, we are urging all ranchmen and farmers to raise plenty of feed stuff in addition to what cotton they can handle profitably.

EVEN With a mild winter, those who had a surplus of feed have found a good market and a fair price, and it will be this way again. What you don't need, you can sell. Let's produce more and buy less.
