Dan Moody To Answer Borah's Charges In Address At Dallas

DEMOS' WRATH CRASHES UPON BORAH'S HEAD

ATTACKED WILSON

Moody Cites Draft Utterance While Glass Explains Price Fixing

AUSTIN, Oct. 23 (AP).—Governor Moody said here late tonight that he will go to Dallas to make a speech Saturday night "answering United States Senator Borah."

DALLAS, Oct. 23. (AP)—W. A. Thomas, state Democratic campaign manager tonight announced that Gov. Dan Moody would be in Dallas Faturday night to answer the speech delivered here last night by United Stat.s Senator William E. Borah of Idaho.

Details of the address will be arranged tomorrow, Mr. Thomas said. He refused to enlarge further upon his announcement, which was issued through campaign headquarters.

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 23. (AP)—U. S. Senator Borah's p:olitical appearance in Texas and the claim of friendship for the late President Wilson attributed to him, were sharply attacked in a statement late today by Governor Moody.

The governor has been asked to reply to Borah's Dallas speech in an address of his own there, Oct. 25, but said again today that he had made no engagement.

"I don't believe we need this kind of spell binder to arbitrate the family difference that exists among Democrats in this state," the governor said of Borah, who spoke under anti-Smith auspices in favor of Hoover for president.

"Last week I said I regretted the importation of an enemy of Woodrow Wilson to disseminate Republican propaganda in this state, which had so loyally supported President Wilson and his policies. I notice that Senator Borah says that he had been misunderstood and that he was not an enemy of Wilson. When Senator Borah made his speech in April of 1917, condemning the selective service act and terming it Prussianism, militarism and contrary to the fundamentals of a free country, he did not talk or act like a friend of Wilson, then the undisputed leader of a mighty nation."

"Senator Borah," the governor continued, "could not see the wisdom or philosophy in the law which Wilson knew full well it contained. Time and experience have sustained. President Wilson's judgment and proved that Senator Borah was mistaken.

"In 1919, when Lodge, Johnson and Borah organized to throw stumbling blocks in the way of President Wilson and earned the name of the battalion of death, Senator Borah neither acted nor talked like the friend of Woodrow Wilson. Wilson was far-seeing enough to discern the possibilities of a world freed from war in which international differences would be settled upon principles of law and equity rather than by an appeal to arms and force. Borah could not envision such a thing. Worn out by seven years of faithful service as war president, Woodrow Wilson was driven by Borah into a speaking campaign which precipitated the b: ak in his health from which he never recovered."

CORRUPTION

Judge Lets Woman Off, Considering G. O. P. Scandals

EL PASO, Texas, Oct. 23. (UP)—An aged woman's theft of a 15-cent pair of socks means nothing to a Democratic judge when he compares it to "Republican corruption," the jurist said today in setting free a prisoner.

The woman, a 75-year-old Mexican, admitted her guilt. Magistrate R. E. Sherman dismissed the case, saying: "If the Republican party can get away with millions, a Democratic court like mine ought to be able to overlook the theft of a 15-cent pair of socks."

Sherman was a delegate to the Democratic national convention at Houston.

HOSPITALITY OF CITY PRAISED

Texas Ad Clubs Close Convention Here

With words of praise for Wichita Falls and its entertainment for the convention of the Tenth District of the International Advertising association, delegates boarded trains Tuesday afternoon for their homes. It was an early adjournment, and came after Pete Michael of Houston had been elected in the morning instead of in the afternoon and the talk by W. D. Cline was cancelled in the afternoon to allow the delegates to catch the train.

Harrison Talks

Hubert M. Harrison, manager of the chamber of commerce, made the final address of the convention when he spoke on "Community Advertising." Mr. Harrison emphasized the necessity of small towns with limited funds for advertising, first making a survey of what they had to advertise and then advertising close to home.

"In this way the greatest benefit is obtained, for the money spent is placed where it will do the most good and where it will bring returns for the investment," he said.

R. Allen Frost, general counsel of the Outdoor Advertising association, preceded Mr. Harrison and made a humorous talk in which he referred to previous speakers as "having polished this gem we call advertising."

The new president of the district was not at the convention, illness in his family having called him to the north.

Two Wichitans, W. S. Abbott and J. B. Price, were elected to the directorate of the organization.

Officers Elected

Officers and directors named, in addition to President Michael and Directors Abbott and Price, include: Lorry Jacobs of Dallas, first vice president; E. C. Taulbee of Waco, second vice president; A. D. Collins, Houston, secretary treasurer, and the following directors:

Mother of R. B. Creager Dies at Brownsville

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Oct. 23. (AP)—Mrs. Catherine Renfro Creager, mother of R. B. Creager, Republican national committeeman for Texas, died here today at the home of her son.

Mrs. Creager was a native of Texas, born in Huntsville 78 years ago. She married Frank A. Creager a Confederate captain, and the couple moved to Waco, where they stayed for several years, moving to Brownsville in 1884. Her husband died 15 years ago.

U. S. Senator Norris To Come Out For Smith

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 23. (AP)—That United States Senator George W. Norris will come out "flatly and unqualifiedly" for Gov. Alfred E. Smith for president in an address he is to make at the city auditorium here Saturday night at 8 p. m. was announced here today.

G. O. P. VICTORY PREDICTED BY DR. SANDEFER

800 Hear Hoover Speech By President Of Simmons U.

GOV. SMITH ASSAILED

Prohibition and Religion Discussed in Rally At Auditorium

"Herbert Hoover will be the next president of the United States," declared Dr. Jefferson Davis Sandefer, president of Simmons university, Abilene, who addressed a crowd of anti-Smith Democrats Tuesday night in Memorial auditorium. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Wichita Falls anti-Smith club and about 800 were in attendance.

Dr. Sandefer, who said he had no apologies to make for bolting the Democratic party the first time in 38 years, declared he is against Governor Smith because of the prohibition question. He said, while he regrets that the religious issue has gotten into the campaign, bolting Democrats of the south are no more bigoted or intolerant than Catholics who have, bolted the Republican party in favor of Governor Smith's candidacy.

Clark Introduces Speaker

N. H. Martin, president of the anti-Smith club, presided at the meeting and Dr. Sandefer was introduced by G. at. Clark. Mr. Clark declared he owes no apology for being against Governor Smith and for bolting the party.

"I broke out of the pasture once before when I refused to vote for 'Ma' and Jim and I have no apology to make for that, either," Mr. Clark said. "I did what I thought was right for my family and for my state.

"The world has made progress because of the bolters that are in it. The Pilgrim Fathers were bolters and if it hadn't been for them we likely would be in slavery in the old country."

The auditorium was devoid of heat Tuesday night and many persons left the hall before Dr. Sandefer completed his address, on account of the cold. The auditorium was uncomfortably cool and many persons, particularly women, sat through the meeting with their coats on.

Before introducing the speaker Mr. Clark said he understood he was expected to answer statements

Dead Woman Identified By Jewels; Husband Held

BUTLER, Pa., Oct. 23. (AP)—Jewelry found with a woman's bones in the ashes of an abandoned house near here was identified today as the property of Mrs. Earl Jones, 33, of Butler, and county authorities arrested her husband.

Mrs. Jones was reported to have disappeared from her home Friday night. The abandoned house was destroyed by fire the same night. When the ashes of the building were searched Sunday, the bones, a wedding ring, two diamonds and a wrist watch were found. No one had lived in the house for two years.

Five Sent to Austin After Dog Bites Them

PARIS, Texas, Oct. 23. (AP)—Five persons who were bitten by a dog at the home of Mrs. Burse Childers at Roxton, near here, today were on their way to Austin to take treatments at the Pasteur institute.

The five were: Mrs. Childers and her daughter, Minnie; the two children of Willie Moore, and Marion Baughman. The latter three were visiting at the Childers home when the dog attacked them. The animal later was found dead under a neighbor's home.

WOMEN TO MEET

Democratic League Calls Conference Here Thursday

A called meeting of members of the Wichita County Woman's Democratic league and all Democratic women who care to attend will be held Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock at Democratic headquarters, it was announced Tuesday by Mrs. G. B. Smedley, chairman.

Plans for the political rally November 2, under the auspices of the Woman's league and for the radio program to be given Monday night over station KGKO will be made at the meeting, it was stated.

The Wichita County Woman's Democratic league was organized a week ago to aid in the campaign of the party's candidates. The membership of the league is now more than 600, according to Mrs. Bernard Martin, secretary.

SMITH'S GREAT CHANCE COMES

'Warrior' Elated At Chance To Debate Issues

By FRASER EDWARDS

ALBANY, Oct. 23. (US)—To all appearances, Governor Smith must have leaped out of bed bright and early this morning, taken one glance at the newspaper headlines over Herbert Hoover's speech in Madison Square garden last night, and given a joyous whoop.

Instead of being crushed by Hoover's charge that he was promoting a program of "state socialism" with regard to farm relief, prohibition and water power, the Democratic standard bearer had the air of a man completely satisfied with the situation when he appeared at his daily press conference in the executive mansion.

For the Republican nominee has created just the situation which the governor himself has striven to create. From the beginning he has been anxious for an opportunity to "come back to Hoover."

Best in Debate

He has invited it in every speech and now he believes he has it. He is admittedly at his best in a campaign debate with an opponent and he proposes to make the most of his opportunity.

The casual, carefree candidate, who frequently converts press conferences into a friendly chat, was missing when the governor met a score of correspondents. In his place was a brisk, business-like Al Smith, with his fighting blood aroused. He bounced into the room with a crisp "good morning," seated himself, rubbed his hands vigorously and said:

"Now, gentlemen, shoot and do it

Gate Too Small, League Refuses to Fight Stribling

DALLAS, Oct. 23 (AP).—A scheduled 10-round bout between Young Stribling of Atlanta, Ga., and Jack League of San Antonio here tonight was called off when League refused to enter the ring. League's manager announced his fighter would not go on unless guaranteed more money.

Stribling was ready to fight and expressed regret at the situation. He knocked League out three years ago at San Antonio.

Slaying Suspect Keeps Details to Himself

BIG SPRINGS, Texas, Oct. 23. (AP)—From his cell in the Howard county jail A. A. Bergdorf, held for the slaying yesterday of Charlie Wallace, 23, of Dallas refused to divulge details of the argument that resulted in the shooting of the Dallas man.

Witnesses cleared circumstances surrounding the affray by statements that Wallace and a companion were sitting in their automobile at a filling station when Bergdorf drove up. He is alleged to have ordered Wallace to get in his car and drive it. When Wallace refused the shooting started.

Murder Trial Exhausts Special Venire of 150

CAMERON, Texas, Oct. 23. (AP)—A special venire of 150 had been exhausted and 11 jurors had been chosen here late today for the trial of Will Neal Baggett, charged with murder for the fatal stabbing of his stepson-in-law, Aubrey A. Beatty.

From questions asked prospective jurors, the state indicated it would ask the death penalty.

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Oct. 23.—Eight hundred howling, cheering, applauding Electrans rallied to the cause of Gov. Alfred E. Smith in a Democratic meeting in the Grand theater here tonight.

Intolerance of the Catholic religion was flayed as were those preachers who oppose Governor Smith in the pulpit. Supporters of Hoover were flayed by R. E. Taylor who said, "If you are for Hoover you are for the thievery of the Teapot Dome."

Quaker "Fighters"

H. R. Wilson hit the anti-war beliefs of the Quakers with a little poem—

"In Flanders fields where poppies grow,
There lie no Quakers."

R. H. Cook opened the meeting and introduced Mrs. Luther T. Hoffman, wife of a Wichita Falls attorney and prominent club woman and Democratic worker.

Mrs. Hoffman talked on the ideal family and home life of the Smith family, and of the governor's home-loving virtues.

"This is my first attempt at a political speech this year," Mrs. Hoffman said.

"This year is a crisis year which means either a triumph for democracy or a surrender to the enemy. I want to know that in the heart of every Democratic woman is implanted the will to do her best for democracy.

"Governor Smith has a clean record, and he has supported many bills for the good of women. The only things the opposition can say about him are that he is wet and that he is a Catholic."

Declaring it a privilege to talk at a Democratic rally on behalf of such a great cause, Mr. Wilson said it was his duty and the duty of all Democrats to defend Governor Smith and the ticket against the anti-Smith Democrats.

"I have never scratched a Democratic ticket, and by the grace of God, I never will," he said. "Some people think there is only one man running and that he is Sir Herbert Hoover.

For Common People

"Governor Smith is the greatest representative of the common people since Andrew Jackson, and there are only three things his enemies

900 Wichita Falls Housewives Attend Second of Series of Lectures by Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood

Interest in the cooking school being conducted daily by Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, noted culinary expert, in the Memorial auditorium received impetus with the second lesson Tuesday afternoon when about 900 housewives of the city and trade territory were in attendance.

The school will last through Thursday, lessons beginning each afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The Record-News and Daily Times are sponsoring the school which is the fifth consecutive annual food demonstration to be conducted by Mrs. Chitwood in this city.

Class members are requested to bring notebooks in order to take recipies as they are given by the demonstrator. Recipes will not be published in the newspapers.

Color in Foods

Notebooks of all sizes and descriptions were seen at the Tuesday lecture when more than ordinary interest and enthusiasm was shown in the lessons on the expedient method of preparing and cooking colorful appetizers.

Fancy sandwiches and artistically colored salads were demonstrated by the expert. Stuffed and rolled sandwiches suitable for parties and for informal luncheons were prepared on the plaform.

Fancy salads demonstrated included the novel tomato rousse, the

Companionate Marriage Venture Rocking Along

GIRARD, Kan., Oct. 23. (UP)—After nearly a year of companionate marriage Josephine Haldeman-Julius and Aubrey Roselle are very happily married, according to a statement to United Press by E. Haldeman-Julius, father of the bride, and a well known Girard publisher. Josephine Haldeman-Julius is finishing her last year in high school while her husband is working in his father's creamery in Girard.

Redwater Bank Resumes Business After Robbery

TEXARKANA, Texas, Oct. 23. INS)—The Guaranty State bank at Redwater, Texas, 16 miles southwest of here, was entered by robbers early today. The safe was opened by the use of an acetylene torch and all cash but a few pennies was taken. No estimate of the loss was given but was understood to be several thousand dollars.

The bank resumed business at noon today after obtaining a new supply of money from Texarkana.

ONE ARREST IN REEVES COUNTY SLAYING CASE

TYLER FARMER SHOT

Smith County Man Victim Of Mysterious Attack In Darkness

TOYAH, Texas, Oct. 23. (AP)—The bodies of two men, one of them unidentified but apparently from California, have been discovered at widely separated points in Reeves county.

The body of Henry Allenby, formerly of Ada, Okla., was found in a clump of bushes beside the railroad track within the city limits. Allenby had been beaten over the head with a blunt instrument and had been dead for 10 hours or more. One arrest has been made and more are expected although no formal charges have been filed.

Within 10 hours after the discovery of Allenby's body hunters stumbled upon the skeleton of an unidentified man seven miles north of here. The remains are those of a large man who apparently had been dead about 10 months. The bones were unclothed, but a hat was found about 10 feet away which bore the name of a Los Angeles clothing store. Several of the teeth had been filled and it is hoped to establish an identification through dentists. In the meantime County Attorney William L. Kerr is communicating with Los Angeles authorities.

TYLER FARMER'S BODY IS FOUND

TYLER, Texas, Oct. 23. (AP)—The body of R. R. Shipley, 32, farmer, was found in a pasture near his home, about 16 miles west of Tyler, late last night. There was a bullet wound in the back of the neck.

Officers said investigation showed that Shipley left his home early yesterday to go to a neighbor's home, and was passing along a narrow trail at the time of the shooting. They said the bullet wound indicated he had been fired upon at close range with a shotgun.

As far as could be learned, Shipley was not armed when he left his home.

BROWNWOOD MAN SHOT TO DEATH

BROWNWOOD, Texas, Oct. 23. (AP)—R. B. Johnson was held under $3,000 bond today after an examining trial for the slaying of W. J. Prince, 53, who was shot to death near Brownwood last night.

Witnesses testified at the hearing that Prince was threatening Johnson with a shotgun when Johnson fired. Prince, they said, then fired at Johnson, slightly wounding him.

MEXICAN SLAYERS ARE BEING SOUGHT

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Oct. 23. (AP)—Of four Mexicans who comprised the Orient railroad section crew at Barnhart yesterday, two are dead, one is held by officers and a posse from surrounding towns and officers from a dozen West Texas counties today were scouring the country between here and the Rio Grande for the fourth.

Manuel Carrasco and Gregorio Cortes are dead, each with a half dozen axe gashes in their heads. Juan Martinez is being held by the Irion county sheriff, and Juan Jasetene, who Martinez says killed the two men, is being sought by authorities.

TWO HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Men Struck By Own Car After Collision

Jeff McDaniel and Ellis Crawford of Sherman were injured shortly after 6 o'clock Tuesday night in an automobile collision about three miles this side of Iowa Park.

Machine Halted

The two men were struck by their own car when another machine collided it as it was parked on the highway. Crawford has a broken leg and other injuries, and McDaniel is suffering from bruises and cuts.

The two were driving toward Wichita Falls when they stopped to repair their machine. As they worked on it, a car driven by D. D. Moniger, oil operator, 1104 Alma street, ran into their car causing it to hit the men, cacording to Mr. Moniger.

"The car was parked on my side of the road without any tail light so that I did not see it in the darkness," Mr. Moniger said.

Tells of Accident

"I also was blinded by the lights of a passing car. I got out of my car immediately after the accident, laid the injured man at the side of the road and started my car in order to take the men to a doctor. My car was damaged and by the time I started it, another machine had taken the men to the hospital. I went to the John B. Barber filling station at Iowa Park and made a report of the accident so the constable there could have it, and then I came back to Wichita Falls where I inquired at the Wichita Falls General hospital. They told me the case was not there, but I left my name for reference."

The men were given emergency treatment at the hospital, and hospital attaches reported they were resting well at an early hour Wednesday morning.

Bert Acosta's Wife Wins Weekly Alimony

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (US)—Mrs. Helen B. Acosta, of Hemstead, L. I., was today awarded $100 a week alimony and $350 counsel fees by Supreme Court Justice Durham pending trial of her suit for separation from her husband, Bert Acosta, the trans-ocean flier.

Message to Mars Is Followed By Receipt of Mysterious 'Answer'

LONDON, Oct. 24. (Wednesday). (UP)—A tired and busy radio operator in the Central Telegraph office inserted a carefully punched tape in an automatic wireless transmitter at 2:19 a. m., and Dr. Hugh Mansfield Robinson's serious and semi-official attempt to communicate with the planet of Mars was underway at the cost of 38 cents a word.

A skeleton staff gave only passing attention to the busy machine as it clicked out the code words "love to Mars from earth" and forced the dots and dashes out over the powerful Rugby wireless station.

Exactly eight minutes later, three men sitting in the home of Prof. A. M. Lowe, one of Britain's best known young scientists and writers, received a long and mysterious wireless message in the Morse code. Professor Low who has encouraged Robinson's experiment put expressed skepticism, admitted he did not understand the message but Robinson claimed it was a reply from a high-powered Martian radio station—probably one situated in Oakalonga, the capital of Mars, according to Robinson.

"It was very mysterious, but it is hardly likely that it was a message from Mars," Professor Low said.

Former Denton Banker Sentenced To 18 Months in Prison For Swindle

PARIS, Texas, Oct. 23. (INS)—L. H. Schweer, former cashier of the First National bank of Denton, today was sentenced to 18 months in Leavenworth federal penitentiary when he pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with misappropriation of approximately $11,000 of the bank's funds.

Schweer was indicted on four counts and sentenced to 18 months on pleading guilty to each. The four sentences were made concurrent, however.

Schweer in replying to questions propounded by the court declared that "every dollar involved in the charges against me have been applied as payment of interest on land notes covering land purchased in Denton county." The investments were unfortunate, he said.

BURLESON CITES 'MOULDY BUNK'

Prosperity By Legislation Impossible, He Says

AUSTIN, Oct. 23. (INS)—Declaring that it is all "baloney" to claim that any party can bring prosperity through legislation, and that "many morons fall for such bunk," Albert S. Burleson, postmaster general of the United States during the Wilson administration, today issued a final statement in behalf of the national Democratic ticket.

"As the campaign nears its end," Burleson said, "Republican spellbinders once more drag out the 'mouldy humbug' that the Republican party brings prosperity and the Democratic party panic.

"Within recollection, America has suffered three hurtful panics. The great panic with its 'black Friday' of the early 70's came at a time that makes it impossible, by misrepresentation or by specious reasoning, to avoid Republican responsibility therefor.

"The Roosevelt panic of 1907, most violent and disastrous, came after 10 years of Republican rule under the sky-high tariff laws, and of course can't be charged to Democratic control or low tariff laws.

"The Harrison panic of 1892, which broke after Mr. Cleveland was inaugurated in March, 1893, gathered its full force before the election of Cleveland. The pinch of the panic had manifested itself to such a degree that Mr. Windom, the Harrison secretary of the treasury before Cleveland was elected, because of the demoralized condition of government finances resulting from the approaching hard times, had ordered prepared the plates for issuing government bonds to replenish the treasury.

"These facts cannot be denied, and yet the effect of this persistent Republican propaganda is such that a man of the intellectual honesty of Representative Theodore Burton seems to have at last fallen for it. With the textile industry languishing; with thousands of mill hands idle or on part time; with coal mining in a state of collapse; with agriculture prostrate we are near a panic now and would be but for the safeguard of the federal reserve bank of Democratic origin."

Suuport of the administration and policies of President Younggreen was voted in a resolution which was unanimously adopted as was one of appreciation of Wichita Falls' hospitality.

President Younggreen delivered one of his three major addresses of the year at the morning session.

He visioned the future of advertising as a super-proposition. He spoke of it as a specific proposition that must have intense and deep study and that must be approached with clean hands.

A resolution was adopted calling on the president to name a committee to send a token of remembrance to Jerry Roemer for his years of effort on behalf of the association. Mr. Roemer is now in a Colorado Springs' hospital.

U. T. Prof Speaks

W. J. Reilly, professor in charge of the study of markets at the University of Texas, discussed the studying of markets in connection with laying plans for advertising.

Lorry Jacobs, publicity man for the Southland Life insurance company of Dallas, spoke on "Selling Co-operative Life Insurance Advertising," and said that national and sectional co-operative advertising campaigns by life insurance companies probably will be seen in the United States in the near future.

The present co-operative campaign by a group of Texas companies probably will be seen in the United States in the near future.

The present co-operative campaign by a group of Texas companies was held up by Mr. Jacobs as evidence of what is possible along these lines.

Borah Flayed By Democrats

turned to Senator William E. Borah tonight as Senator Carter Glass continued his fight against attempts to exculpate Herbert Hoover from responsibility for fixing the price of wheat during and after the world war.

Speaking before a large audience here and over an extensive radio hookup, Senator Glass specifically attacked Borah's repeated defense of Hoover, declaring "the proof presented to sustain the dental is not only inadequate, but positively unworthy of any frank person."

Explains Letters

"Senator Borah undertakes to exculpate Mr. Hoover by asserting that the price of wheat was fixed at $2.26 per bushel by advice of the national agricultural advisory committee; and by implication, justifies the action by saying Carter Glass, secretary of the treasury in the Wilson cabinet, cabled the president in favor of reducing the high cost of living in the country!" Glass said.

"My letters to the advisory committee and my cables to the president were written five months after the price of wheat had been fixed by Mr. Hoover. And as for my responsibility to President Wilson, the Idaho senator should be literally ashamed of the suggestion.

"I commend to him his own language, uttered on the floor of the senate when he was protesting against letting Hoover spend the $100,000,000 which Wilson was securing for the starving populations of Europe. Hear him:

Eliminate President

"'They say this money is to be turned over to the president. Now, let us be honest and eliminate the president. We know that it is absolutely impossible for the president to know anything about the details of this expenditure. With the stupendous burdens resting on his shoulders which now are there, with the difficulties which confront him, with the fearful task which is his, do we suppose for a moment that he will be familiar with a single detail of this matter?'"

Glass pointed out how, if it was impossible for the president to supervise the expenditure of $100,000,000, it was much more impossible for him to follow the processes by which Hoover arrived at $2.26 as a fair price for American-grown wheat.

GUN AND TIRE TAKEN IN TWO THEFTS

A 12 gauge Remington automatic shotgun was stolen from the home of C. A. Parker, 2915 Cumberland avenue, Tuesday afternoon while members of the family were out of the house, according to reports received at police headquarters.

A spare automobile tire valued at $50 was stolen off a truck parked in the driveway of the home of A. E. Lowe, 1713 Fillmore street, it was also reported to the police.

In the Monday night burglaries thieves who sledged off knobs of three safes obtained only $9 for their trouble, police stated, and only $2 of this amount was in cash. The rest was in stamps.

The $2 "job" was "pulled" at the Citizens Lumber yard, 1419 Eighteenth street, where yeggs were unable to reach the inner compartments of the company's safe. Chief of Police Frank Burns said the robbery doubtless was the work of amateurs.

Seven dollars worth of postage stamps were taken when the door of the Texas Brick Supply company's safe was forced at the south end of Scott avenue. Burglars forced open the outer door of a safe at the Taylor Foundry company, 1320 Sibley avenue, but abandoned their efforts when they failed to open the inner door.

Chief Burns said the three burglaries likely were committed by the same person or persons as the same system of entrance into the buildings and into the vaults was used at each place.

No house robberies were reported to the police Tuesday.

Sunday night there were three burglaries. Thieves entered the Franklin school in the Country Club Estates addition and took a quantity of foodstuffs. Jewelry, a small bank and several other articles were taken Sunday night from the home of Floyd Billingsley, 1825 Elizabeth street.

The first fruitless burglary occurred Sunday night when thieves entered the Brown Cracker and Candy company, 200 Barwise street, but failed to get anything.

Charges Against Girl In Convent Lifted

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (INS)—Up at Graymore, convent of the Franciscan Sisters of the Atonement, at Garrison, N. Y., Natalina Mirenda, 19, is free today from any obligation ever to come out again into the world which she fled.

At the request of Asst. Dist. Atty. Wm. Kier, a charge of manslaughter brought against her following the death of a child whom she ran down last Oct. 5, was dismissed today in Bronx traffic court and her bail of $1,000 was discharged.

CHEST PLEDGES SOUGHT

With the announcement that the curtain is falling on the 1928 community fund year, the headquarters of the fund in the Memorial auditorium is sending out Wednesday statements of amounts past due on pledges.

Miss Myrle Neely, secretary of the fund, said in announcing the statements that they were being sent to delinquents only, and that the money is badly needed.

CANADIAN DIVIDED ON CANDIDATES

B. F. Dutton, 1400 Harrison street, is in receipt of a letter from his brother, G. W. Dutton of Prairie Grove, Canada, in which G. W. Dutton said that Canadians are hoping for the election of Gov. Alfred E. Smith as they believe this will result in the discontinuance of tariffs on cattle and wheat which would let their products into the United States free and cause the value of Canadian lands to boom. "I would profit greatly by it as it would increase the value of my farm here in Canada," the letter said. The letter further went on to say that the writer favored the election of Herbert Hoover because of his dry stand.

Boy Given Life Sentence For Murder of Benefactor

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 23. (UP) —A 15-year-old boy who shot and killed his benefactor was sentenced today to life imprisonment in the Oregon penitentiary.

The boy, Rex Mead, had been befriended by E. D. Dewey while the latter was employed by a Portland newspaper. Upon his retirement Dewey continued his interest in Rex, took him on outings and helped him in various ways.

Negro Baptists Open Convention

The general Baptist convention of Texas, one of the oldest and largest organizations of negro Baptists in the south, will open its 53rd annual meeting at the Mt. Pleasant Baptist church Wednesday at 12 o'clock. Rev. W. D. Davis is pastor of the church and Dr. S. R. Prince of Fort Worth is president of the convention.

The laymen's group, presided over by Prof. C. H. MaGruder of Houston, grand secretary of the U. B. of F. of Texas, held its meeting Tuesday. The purpose of this division is to enlist the laity of the race in active Christian service, it was stated.

"The religion of the Lord Jesus Christ will furnish the only successful solution to the many perplexing problems now confronting us, and the enlistment of men in Christian service and in service to humanity must be preceded by enlightenment," Dr. Prince told the meeting Tuesday.

Tuesday night's service included music by the large convention chorus under the direction of R. H. Burnett, and addresses by Prof. W. B. Campbell, president of the St. Johns Orphanage and Institute of Austin, and Dr. A. A. Lucas of Waco.

Many Wichita Falls Artists Enter "Discovery Week" Contests Here

An effort to discover talent in dancing, singing or dramatics is the object of "Discovery Week," which will be observed at the Olympic theater, under the direction of Alec B. Ross, beginning Oct. 29.

Entries have been made from every art studio in the city, and a number of professional persons have agreed to enter the competitive appearances of the week, Mr. Ross said Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Ross is at the Olympic theater daily from 3 to 4 o'clock to take entries and to give information concerning the show week.

"Discovery Week" is sponsored by the Brown Theatrical agency of New York and Chicago for the purpose of acquiring new talent for the show. Henry Brown, head of the theatrical company, is touring the country in the present project and will be in Wichita Falls during the week designated for the local try-outs.

About six acts will be presented each evening of the week at the Olympic, the winning act to be chosen each evening by Mr. Brown Each of the six winning acts will be presented on the corresponding evening of the next week when theaters will charge for the show.

The act chosen by Mr. Brown as showing the greatest talent will be presented at the Majestic theater on the interstate vaudeville bill for two evenings.

From acts presented, Mr. Brown may choose one which he considers worthy of further training in the studios of the Brown Theatrical company. Two Denver dancers were thus chosen and are now studying in the Ned Weyburn studios in New York according to Mr. Ross.

Milkman Nemesis To Hubby; Seeks Divorce

CHICAGO, Oct. 23. (US)—Despite he had moved three times in two years to "get on another milk route," Harry W. Feldman in a divorce action filed today alleges "a handsome milkman stole my wife." Feldman related his wife tired of his moving and moved herself—"to the milkman's house."

Airplane Damage Suit Is First in Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 23. (UP) —An airplane damage suit, the first of its kind in Oklahoma, opened in district court here today.

The Air Service corporation, plaintiff, asks $500 for alleged damage done to a parked Travelair plane when struck by A. L. Everette, National Transport manager, during a night landing last summer.

Everette claimed that the Travelair was parked in the runway. Attorneys for Air Service contend it was not.

Shooting of Pro Agent Baffles Investigators

CHICAGO, Oct. 23. (AP) — The shooting of Thomas Ryan, federal prohibition agent, while he waited to testify in a liquor case in federal court yesterday, continued to baffle investigators for the department of justice today, although three men were seized for questioning.

MERCURY ON UPWARD TREND

First Norther Comes To Early End

Higher temperatures prevailing over Northwest Texas and Wichita Falls Tuesday and Tuesday night marked the early end of the first cold weather of the season. At 8 o'clock Tuesday night the temperature here was 72 degrees, as compared with 54 degrees at the same time Monday night. Forecasts by The Associated Press indicated continued mild weather for the next two days.

Reports from railway dispatchers showed temperature in Oklahoma generally about 10 degrees lower than in Wichita Falls. In other sections, however, there was little difference noted.

Clear skies with no wind, and temperature ranging around 75 degrees was reported by the Fort Worth and Denver along its lines, while practically the same conditions were revealed by the Wichita Valley dispatcher along the route of that railroad.

City and Lions Club to Join In Drive For Permanent Zoo Building

Plans for a permanent winter quarters building at the Lions club municipal zoo in Scotland park will be rushed forward and construction will start in the next few days if it is possible to do so, it was learned Tuesday from Dr. R. H. Graham of the Lions club and George D. Fairtrace, city manager.

Mr. Fairtrace said he wanted to do everything possible as soon as possible to guard against a freeze injuring the animals, and that the city would work with the Lions club on the proposition that a better animal house might be erected soon.

Doctor Graham said that the Lions club is busy getting donations and will be glad to work with the city and the city manager.

"We don't want to see a temporary building erected, and we do want to work with the city on it," the doctor said.

"The Lions will be working on the proposition Wednesday, and may discuss it at the Wednesday noon luncheon. Either then, or later in the day when we have completed more of our work, we will go over the ground with Mr. Fairtrace that we may have as good a foundation as possible to work on."

Monday night, the Wichita Falls city council authorized the city manager to use $2,000 either for labor on a permanent zoo house in conjunction with the Lions club which is getting together the materials, or else to use the $2,000 for a temporary winter building to protect the animals this winter.

HEAD ACHED, EYES BURNED, STOMACH OUT OF ORDER

MANUFACTURE of Thedford's Black-Draught began in 1840, and many people tell of having taken it all their lives when in need of a laxative or cathartic. The following statement by Mr. W. A. Bruce, of Seneca, S. C., is typical of the experiences described by thousands of Black-Draught users:

"I am 44 years old, and I might say," relates Mr. Bruce, "that I have taken Black-Draught, at intervals, all my life.

"I remember that, when just a small child, my mother made tea from Black-Draught and gave it to me.

"As I grew up, when I needed a medicine for biliousness, or for constipation, I would take Black-Draught.

"A few years back, I noticed that if I took the least cold, and my stomach was out of order, I would have very severe headaches. The cold seemed to settle there. My eyes would burn, and I would suffer a good bit of pain. I took Black-Draught for this, and I do not have that trouble now.

"I found, too, that there was no use suffering from constipation, as I once did. Black-Draught relieved me, and I am feeling fine, now. I have never found a better medicine of the kind than Black-Draught, and it is all I take now.

"I recommend Black-Draught to others, and have had them tell me how much good it did them."

Many men and women have written that they have found Black-Draught helpful when taken as a laxative in addition to quinine in cases of common colds.

Every purchaser of a new Ford is entitled to Free Inspection Service for the first 1500 miles

THE modern automobile is a finely built piece of machinery and it will stand a lot of abuse. Considering the work it does, it gives surprisingly little trouble. But there isn't a car made that will not run better and longer if given proper care.

The first few hundred miles are especially important because that is when the mechanism of your car is being broken in. Proper attention during this period will lengthen its life and prevent unnecessary trouble later on.

We are particularly interested in this matter because we believe it is our duty not only to make a good automobile, but to help the owner get the greatest possible use over the longest period of time at a minimum of trouble and expense.

With this in view, the entire Ford dealer organization has been specially trained and equipped to service the new Model A car.

Furthermore, we have instructed every Ford dealer to give the following Free Inspection at 500, 1000 and 1500 miles:

Check battery
Check generator charging rate
Check distributor adjustment
Check carburetor adjustment
Check lights
Check brakes
Check shock absorber adjustment
Check tire inflation
Check steering gear
Change engine oil
Lubricate chassis

No charge is made for labor or materials incidental to this service, except, of course, where repairs are necessary through accident, misuse or neglect. The only charge is for new oil.

See your Ford dealer, therefore, and get this Free Inspection of your new car at 500, 1000 and 1500 miles. Find out, too, how little it will cost to have your car given a thorough going-over at regular periods thereafter.

A periodic checking-up, together with oiling and greasing every 500 miles, will add months and years to the life of your car and mean more economical and pleasurable motoring every mile you drive.

SHRINE PLANS FALL ACTIVITY

Crowded Program of Trips And Parties Arranged

Plans for the largest season of fall activities ever held by Maskat temple were completed at a meeting of the divan and executive officers Tuesday morning at the temple, according to Albert Ellis, recorder.

The first of the fall activities will be a Halloween party given at Maskat temple on Oct. 30 by the Arabic patrol. The entertainment will also be open to all Master Masons and their families, with the admission proceeds going to a fund to send the uniform bodies of the Shrine to the imperial council in Los Angeles next June.

Halloween Party

Several special stunts have been arranged for the Halloween party with prizes being given for the best costumes, special events and the waltz. Refreshments will be served at midnight.

The Maskat temple club room will be decorated in Halloween colors and effects with the Little Rovers, local orchestra, furnishing music for the event.

Paul Whiteman and orchestra are scheduled to appear at the Memorial auditorium on the Shrine program for Nov. 6, under the auspices of the Maskat temple band. Tickets will be on sale for the concert at the auditorium.

The first "good will" trip of the season will be made to Childress on Nov. 10. The Maskat chanters, band, patrol and divan officers will make the trip, with a dance and entertainment completing the program.

A special program will constitute the activities of the Shriners for the regular monthly meeting on Nov. 13.

An entertainment for all nobles and their ladies will be given at Maskat temple on Nov. 20. This entertainment with its full program will probably be broadcast over station KGKO, Mr. Ellis stated.

Fall Ceremonial

The second and final "good will" trip of the fall season will be made to Bowie on Nov. 25. A sacred concert entertainment will be featured in the occasion.

The closing fall activity and gala event for the local Shriners will be the regular fall ceremonial at the Memorial auditorium on Nov. 28 and 29. Registration for the event will be held in the recorder's office at Maskat temple from 9 until 4 o'clock on Nov. 28.

The program will open officially at 11 o'clock with a business meeting in the Maskat temple auditorium. A street parade will be held at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The first section will begin at 7 o'clock and is open to all Shriners and their ladies. A Shrine motion picture, "The Equal Chance," will feature the first section program.

Special entertainment for both the Shriners and their ladies will be furnished from 8 to 11 o'clock on the opening night of the ceremonial.

The ceremonial will end on Thanksgiving day with the Shriners attending the Wichita Falls High school and Amarillo football game at Athletic park in a body and concluding the program that night with a dance at Maskat temple.

Women Artists On KGKO Tonight

A program of pianologues and readings by Miss Marguerite Fisher and Mrs. Lloyd Taylor will feature the Wednesday program of station KGKO. They will be on the air at 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

The program for the day will be as follows: 8:30 a. m., bargain hour; 9 to 10 a. m., musical program and shopping hour; 12 to 1 p. m. and 5 to 5:45 p. m., musical programs; 5:45 to 6 p. m., Honey Boy and Sassafras; 7 to 7:30 p. m., Miss Fisher and Mrs. Taylor; 7:30 to 8 p. m., Spanish trio; 8 to 8:30 p. m., Honey Boy and Sassafras; 8:30 to 9 p. m., Wichita Falls Male quartet; 9 to 10 p. m., program of musical numbers by remote control from the salesroom of the Noble and Kolb Radio company.

The Thursday feature will be Miss Ruth Muse, the "Texas Personality Girl," who will broadcast at 8:45 o'clock. Friday noon the Majestic theater orchestra will broadcast a musical program.

Arms Meeting Soon Unlikely–Coolidge

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23. (INS)—President Coolidge does not foresee any strong possibility of another general naval disarmament conference before 1931, when the powers are to meet to revise the Washington arms treaties, it was declared at the White House today.

Further, he doesn't believe that the publication of the terms of the Franco-British accord will alter conditions to bring about a conference.

However, the president saw one encouraging sign in the Franco-British agreement, in that both France an Britain have changed their attitude on naval limitation, and having changed their minds once, might change again to reconcile the differences between the Franco-British and the American position.

Maximum Penalty Asked For Toral

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 23. (UP)—The death penalty will be asked for Jose de Leon Toral, assassin of President-elect Obregon, when he goes to trial next month, according to a formal notification which has been presented to judicial authorities. It is understood the trial will start Nov. 5 but no official date has been set.

Lesser penalties will be asked for the dozen alleged accomplices of the assassin, only one of whom will be with Toral.

Juan Corres Nieto, federal district prosecutor, said Madre Concepcion, the nun who is charged with being the "intellectual instigator" of the crime, will hear a demand for the maximum sentence for her when the trial opens. The maximum for women is 20 years in prison.

Nieto will recommend to the court that the other 11 men and women implicated in the assassination be held for prosecution on lesser charges.

Austin Man Asks Work For Information On 'Assimilation'

AUSTIN, Oct. 23. (AP)—W. W. Nelms, official court reporter of the court of criminal appeals, wrote the following telegram today to Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican campaign, New York:

"Please wire me, my expense, whether the Republican party has assimilated the Ku Klux Klan, or the Ku Klux Klan has assimilated the Republican party. Many good Hoover Democrats and atheist Christians anxious to know."

JOE ROBINSON TALKS IN IOWA

Hoover and Curtis Called Reactionaries

SIOUX CITY Iowa, Oct. 23. (UP)—A drive for the vote of progressives was launched here tonight by Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic candidate for vice president. It was delivered in the 11th Iowa district, which is the center of Democratic strength in the state of Mr. Hoover's birth.

Hoover and Senator Curtis were called "reactionaries," by Senator Robinson. The Republican platform, he said, proposes continuance of reactionary influence.

"Mr. Hoover admits that he most intends to carry out the Coolidge policies—whatever they may be," Robinson added. "No one can hope for reforms which progressives usually are interested in under such a political regime."

Automobiles which met Senator Robinson at the train today carried stickers quoting Senator Curtis' declaration to an Iowa farmer, "you are too damn dumb to undegstand" and tonight Senator Robinson's sallies at his particular opponent drew great demonstrations.

"The record of Senator Curtis discloses him to be the king of standpatters," Robinson said.

"He voted for the McNary-Haugen bill three times, and then reversed his attitude at the last minute and accomplished the final defeat of the bill. He voted to seat Lorimer and Newberry. He opposed the resolution advising the president to call for the resignation of Secretary Denby."

Quoting articles published in Chicago and Omaha papers Senator Robinson declared the fair interpretation of them means that Secretary of Treasury Mellon, the second richest man in the United States, intends to buy the election away from the Democratic national ticket.

Pensylvania negroes, Senator Robinson asserted, should resent the statement in the same articles by a Republican leader, that the negroes would be satisfied to vote for Hoover for 50 cents and a drink of gin.

Vote stealing at the polls by Republican election officials also was cited by the Senator as part of the Republican plan to hold Pennsylvania.

Much of Senator Robinson's address here was given to a full discussion of the farm relief problems which he said he thinks the Iowa farmers understand too well for the welfare of the Republican party.

HUGE CHEMICAL COMBINE LOOMS

Project Placed Before Justice Department

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23. (US)—Negotiations for the formation of the largest industrial chemical corporation in the world through the merger of the Grasselli Chemical company of Cleveland, with the E. I. Dupont de Nemours company of Wilmington, Del., are nearing completion, it was learned here tonight.

The project already has been placed before the department of justice to determine whether it can be consummated without violation of federal anti-trust laws.

Though government officials declined to comment, it is understood there is no present objection to the plan from an anti-trust legal standpoint.

Officials of the Dupont company placed the plan, which contemplates their purchase of common stock of the Grasselli company, before the justice department last week.

The planned unification will join two of the oldest and most prominent industrial chemical families.

The Duponts started as manufacturers of powder and explosives more than 100 years ago.

Branches of the Grasselli family, which control the company bearing the family name were interested in the chemical industry as far back as the 16th century. Moving from Italy to Alsace-Lorraine, and later to the United States, four generations of the family in the United States have found this industry the main source of their occupation and fortune.

The present Grasselli Chemical company of which T. S. Grasselli is president, was established in Cincinnati in 1839.

In addition to the operation of 25 manufacturing plants, the Grasselli company owns large tracts of land containing zinc ore and pyrite deposits—raw materials essential to the conduct of their business.

It is understood that other chemical units eventually may be drawn into the combination.

The last balance sheet disclosed that the Grasselli chemical company carried its properties as worth a total of $56,223,123.45.

In addition to more than 60 industrial chemicals, it produces zinc, explosives and fertilizers.

Industry-Labor Cooperation Told

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (AP)—Increased co-operation of labor in American industry with improved compensation was described in addresses which formed a major part of the discussion today at the annual meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers. The employment relations committee in its annual report said that per capita earnings had shown a slight increase in the past year while a consistent drop in voluntary employment turnover was noted.

It also reported that a study disclosed 389 plans of employe representation, embracing 529 companies, in the United States with many times that number of industrial establishments profiting by informal methods of co-operation between employes and management.

Edward S. Cowdrick said the $45,000,000 paid annually by American industry to retired veteran employes was economically spent since it provided a means of ridding industry of the superannuated and at the same time made for greater loyalty and contentment on the part of the working force.

Shadow of Tallest Building Gives Added Worry to Structure's Planners

CHICAGO, Oct. 23. (UP)—Adequate space between skyscrapers so that light is not cut off is necessary in constructing buildings in large cities, Napoleon Picard, president of the corporation constructing what will be the world's tallest and largest buildings, said today.

"One objection raised against the skyscraper is that light is cut off by high structures throwing lengthy shadows," Picard said. "The only way of meeting this objection is by wise planning which will permit adequate space between skyscrapers."

Picard's company is building the Chicago apparel mart on the shore of Lake Michigan.

"The shadow which will be cast by the 880-feet of this building," he said, "has been carefully studied and we are informed by experts that this shadow will not deprive any portion of the city of Chicago of adequate light. The tower atop the mart will have a permanent free space of 462 feet to the north, 225 feet to the east and to the west and 284 feet to the south.

"Estimates which have been made show that, due to the penumbra effect the shadow cast by the 880 feet will be negligible to the observer on the street or in nearby buildings. At seven times the building's length the shadow will become very indistinct. From noon on the shadow will fall on the waters of Lake Michigan and an airplane observer during a setting sun, will be able to distinguish a shadow one mile long over Lake Michigan."

POWER PROBE DELAY LOOMS

Bond Officials Refuse To Give Information

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23. (AP)—An indefinite delay of the investigation of power utilities by the federal trade commission was threatened today by the refusals of officers of the Electric Bond and Share company of New York to give information about company expenditures as called for by the Walsh senate resolution.

Ralph B. Feagin, a vice president, and A. E. Smith, comptroller and assistant secretary, again declined to produce the operating expense ledgers of the company or to testify concerning any payments made "to influence or control public opinion on account of municipal or public ownership of the means by which power is developed and electrical energy is generated and distributed." Robert E. Healey, commissioner counsel, phrased some of his questions to seven witnesses in the language of the Walsh resolution to be told without exception that answers were refused "on advice of counsel."

Forum Departments Receive Wichita Woman's Play With Enthusiasm

A large and appreciative audience received with enthusiasm the play, "The Inspiration," written by Mrs. Ben G. Oneal which was presented at a joint meeting of the drama and writer's departments of the Woman's Forum Tuesday afternoon.

The stage, under the direction of Miss Alice Welty, local artist, was beautifully decorated, carrying out the orange and black color scheme. Two large black heads of modernistic type were very effective against the grey background and orange and black pillows and two high backed chairs gave an artistic touch.

Miss Marguerite Fisher, who directed the play, took the leading role of Gertrude Brown with finished technique, and at dramatic moments of the play her acting was professional. At times she brought tears to the eyes of the audience.

Miss Eva Catherine Rayzor as the sister of Gertrude played the part well, bringing out the humorous situations of the play and yet remaining the devoted sister and believing in the accomplishments of her artist sister, Gertrude.

Mrs. J. T. Harrell as Mrs. McCormick, had a difficult role and yet one she played in a manner that would do credit to many professional actresses. Mrs. Harrell, who has been declared very fine in character parts, has the ability to throw herself into a character with such finish that her own personality is soon forgotten and only the character lives before one on the stage.

Mrs. Charlie Reid, who had the part of Mrs. Van Alystine, was especially good in a character, the delineation of which aroused sympathy of the audience as well as the other actresses.

Other features of the program were original poems written by Mrs. H. F. Weldon and Mrs. E. C. DeMontel. Mrs. John B. Rhea gave a dramatic interpretation of Barrett Browning's poem, "Lady Geraldine's Courtship."

Following the program an informal reception was held and tea was served in the dining room where Mrs. Hubert Barr and Mrs. W. F. Pagan presided over a beautifully decorated tea table. Red and orange zinnias were used on the tables together with white candlesticks and silver tea services.

Members of the receiving line were Mesdames W. J. Nelson, Rhea Howard, Ralph Maricle, T. A. Hicks, J. D. Bright, W. P. Lowery, Guy Raley, Bernard Martin, Ben G. Oneal, H. O. Cravens, E. C. DeMontel, W. H. Sanford, W. H. Casson, Nydia Young, Wayne Somerville, H. B. Van Emden, E. W. Wade, G. M. Holt, J. E. H. Ralley, W. F. Pagan, J. P. Bowen and Miss Nira Dent.

In the absence of the drama department chairman, Mrs. Claud Russner, Mrs. E. W. Wade, former chairman, had charge of the program.

O' These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (US)—A young married man went to the police station and wanted to know what he could do about a wife who refused to get his Sunday dinner, who said she was going to leave him and told him where he could go.

A police officer parked the husband outside his own home and he went in and talked to the girl. In a little while the wife came out and threw her arms around the husband's neck and laughed happily. The officer was a bachelor.

Maybe that's what is wrong with marriage. The right men for it stay single.

In California where people are always delightfully original, a man gets a divorce because his wife is in love with "the entire navy;" "she has a sweetheart on every ship" the husband testified, and the girl smiled.

The judge gave him a divorce and her the freedom of the seas, which the husband said would make her happy.

"If we could just fly away some place together." For a thousand years men have been saying it, but this year they are doing it. A lady in—California again—asks a divorce and damages because a young woman furnished the plane with which she and the lady's husband "flew away."

The girls buy the single men automobiles which are safe enough, but when they are married men they give them planes, and crawl into the back seat.

Three wives sued their husbands yesterday, asking for divorce, one because the husband read the kind of books he liked, which were not high brow enough for the wife; one because he chose his own neckties and they were loud; and one because he had bad manners.

The poor soul who couldn't even buy the kind of ties he liked, with the money he earned, said: "I didn't think they were loud, I thought they were just colorful."

What if they were loud? Wouldn't you like to see him try to tell her what to wear. If the judge is as understanding as most divorce judges, he will give the lady a divorce for the husband's sake. It's been done before.

Rehearsing a love scene for opera, Marie Jeritza fell violently into the arms of Edward Johnson, and they both fell to the floor.

Which reminds one of what so many women do figuratively.

Mr. Johnson was substituting for Gennaro Barra, who, the press agent says, "slipped in his tub and wrenched his ankle."

You don't suppose the lovely Jeritza will have to have extras, like Dempsey does in his picture play, so that when one falls another can be hurried in?

Girls Best Men In Skating Marathon

CHICAGO, Oct. 23. (US)—Endurance of women is greater than that of men it was indicated tonight when three girls remained on the floor in a roller skating contest that has been under way seven weeks. All the men have dropped out.

When the contest started 1,192 hours ago, 56 men and 23 girls entered.

Charles Switzer, the last man, quit the floor today.

"The big quitter," was the way the girls described him as they skated on and on.

VERY BAD CASE OF ECZEMA

Broke Out in Small Pimples. Cuticura Healed.

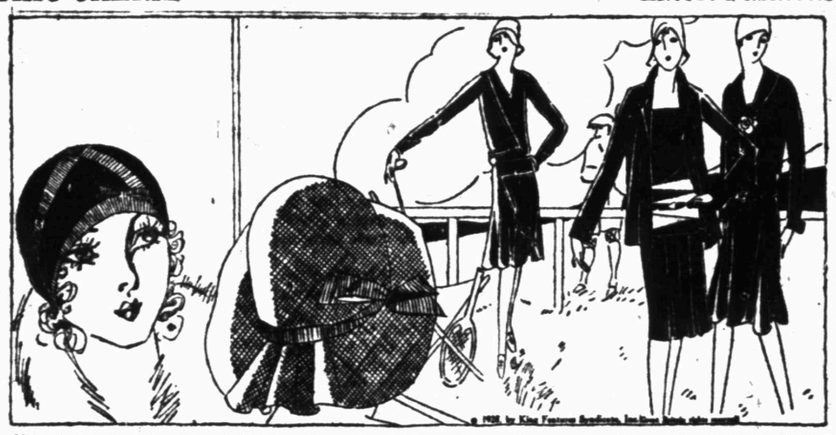

"I had a very bad case of eczema. It started on my hands and spread to my face and body. It broke out in small pimples and itched when I got warm. The irritation caused me to scratch and then the eruptions would scale over. My hands were an awful sight. The trouble lasted a year or more.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. I purchased more, and after using two cakes of Soap and one box of Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Cora White, Box 116, Crawfordsville, Ark.

CHIC CHERIE — Latest Fashions

Cherie's hat is a beret made tidy and trim by having its flopping top stitched down close under bands of grosgrain ribbon. The hat with the ripple or ruffle in the wide backbrim belongs to Diana and both hats are anchored to the spot because Diana and Cherie are suddenly realizing that sports clothes have gone into mourning. Why? Probably because all of a sudden everyone grew tired of bright-colored sports clothes. These three costumes are all of black jersey, which is one of the really smart fabrics for autumn. The dress to the left is lightened by colored applique, the suit by the same means, the dress to the right has white flowers. So, of course, they each bought a black jersey dress. Cherie's is a straight affair with a jabot and cuffs of black and white spotted silk. Diana's is trimmed with white faggotted collar and cuffs and is stitched to look as though it had a bolero. The natural waistline is marked with a belt with a metal buckle. These are all one-piece dresses even though they may look as though they weren't. Except is ensembles or jacket costumes the two-piece dress is about gone. What are they doing? They are using their sports dresses to listen to campaign speeches over the radio—for if that isn't sport, what is these days?

Ideal Mating Improbable Because Both Sexes Expect the Impossible

"The Feminine Ideal of a Perfect Mate Is as Impossible of Realization as the Masculine," Says Dorothy Dix, "and it Is Because Men and Women Expect the Impossible of Each Other That Marriage Is So Very Often a Failure."

A woman who has been married six years and who says she's never had a single peaceful day in them wants to know how to please a hypercritical husband. She says: "My husband is very particular about his food, and complains if everything is not perfectly cooked, yet after I have spent hours over the stove preparing a dinner to his liking, he grumbles because I smell of the kitchen.

"He says I don't read enough, and then when I read complains of my wasting my time over novels instead of looking after the house.

"He finds fault with me because I am not stylishly dressed, yet when I want a new gown he complains of my extravagance.

"He says I'm not companionable enough, yet when I go out with him he shows that he's bored to death and wishes that I had stayed at home.

"How can I please such a man as this?"

You can't. A lady angel from heaven couldn't. The only way to deal with that kind of a disgruntled grouch is to let him alone, and go along and do as you wish without referring to him. He wouldn't be pleased, anyway, so you might as well please yourself.

The man has an aggravated case of a very common failing among husbands, and that is of expecting the impossible from their wives. They demand that their wives shall be lightning-change artists, who can be household drudges one minute and society butterflies the next; who can do the cooking and washing and ironing and sewing and mending and baby-tending for a family, and yet always appear with beautifully manicured, lily white hands and dressed in party gowns of silk and lace, and to be able to hand out a line of bright and entertaining small talk when hubby comes home.

Of course, this is utterly unreasonable. The woman who does her own work is bound to have rough and work-hardened hands. She is bound to be tired and nerve wracked. It takes money and leisure and ease of body and mind for a woman to be able to keep herself calm and serene and beautifully dressed and up to the minute in conversation.

Honestly, when you see what men expect of their wives, it does look as if there was a good deal to say in favor of polygamy. Certainly, being a wife is a two-human job, for if any man got what he thinks are his just deserts in matrimony it would require a wife to look after his physical comfort and to bear and rear his children for him and another wife to entertain him and go about with him, always to look like a living picture. Both ladies would have their hands full, believe me.

The law of the land and the high cost of living preventing this simple solution of the problem, a man falls back upon the expedient of expecting his wife to combine all sorts of antagonistic qualities in her one person, and to be able to turn out a greatly varied performance. He expects her to be Mary Ann in the kitchen and Queen Ann in the parlor, to be able to get a dinner with one hand and play the piano with the other, to dress like a fashion plate and spend no money.

He even marries on this platform. He picks out for a wife a silly little debutante who rolls her eyes at him and asks him foolish questions, and then he is horribly disappointed in her because she isn't a wise, experienced, broad-minded, sane woman. He selects a girl because she is beautiful and dainty and helpless, and then complains if she isn't practical and economical and a good manager. He will even marry a professional woman and then feel himself ill-used because she knows more about temperament than she does the proper temperature to bake bread.

Yet the very man who expects the impossible of his wife is not illogical enough to look for miracles anywhere else. He wouldn't buy an automobile and expect it to turn into a church organ. He wouldn't pick out a steak in a butcher shop and expect to find it converted into ice cream when he got home. He wouldn't expect his dog to burst suddenly into song like a canary, but he does expect just as incongruous things to take place in a woman as soon as the marriage ceremony is read over her.

Nor are men alone in expecting the impossible of the ones they marry. Women have a talent for that, too, and nine-tenths of the complaints that you hear from wives are simply the result of ladies demanding that their bread and butter shall also be caramel cake.

You hear plenty of women, resplendent in imported finery, sighing because their poor, dear Johns are so absorbed in money-making that they haven't time to attend Broadway cicles and Ibser matinees. Sometimes these wives even go so far as to consider that their husbands' lack of soulfulness justifies them in having long-haired, high-browed affinities with whom they can discuss the whatness of the ain't and other throbbing propositions.

You see other women married to literary or artistic men who lament that they have more companionship than dollars, and who are dissatisfied because their husbands can't make as much money as a Wall street broker.

In short, the feminine ideal of a perfect mate is as impossible of realization as the masculine. No man is at once a great moneymaker and an idealist; no man can make a fortune in the grocery trade and hold his wife's hand at the same time any more than a woman can be both a leader of fashion and a household drudge.

It is because men and women expect the impossible of each other that marriage is so often a failure.

Symphony of Former Farm Boy Of Nebraska Proves Best of Season

Revival of Verdi's "Ernani" by Metropolitan Proves Another Mystery for Progressive Music Lovers

By LEONARD LIEBLING
Universal Service Music Critic

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Of the three American symphonic compositions heard here so far this season, Wagenaar's First Symphony, Whithorne's "Fata Morgana," and Hanson's "Nordic Symphony," the last named must be considered the best.

Wagenaar spoke with a well-dictioned but strongly European and uncriginal voice; Whithorne discoursed abstrusely and vaguely in the accents of DeBussy and Stravinsky; but Hanson's utterance was frank, fresh, youthful and lusty, with no intention of complex thought or display of constructive skill.

Hanson, born on a Nebraska farm and descended from Swedish stock, recollected his early outdoor life and the Nordic songs and stories he had heard as a child from his parents. Out of those memories he made his Symphony. One movement he inscribed: "To My Mother," another is labeled: "To My Father."

Source of Inspiration

If all our American composers went for their inspiration to the source of what they know best and feel most deeply, this nation might not be long in having a truly national and racial expression in music. It has always been a mystery why for many years our own creators of symphonic scores found it necessary to travel so far afield for inspirational material, often even to the realms of fable, mythology and ancient foreign history.

Recent successful orchestral works by our native sons show a more definite tendency, and a welcome one, to root nearer home. There are, for instance, Moore's "P T. Barnum," Goldmark's "Negro Rhapsoby," Whithorne's "New York Days and Nights," Carpenter's "Skyscrapers," Hadley's "North, East, South and West," Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" and Converse's up-to-the-very-minute "Flivver 10,000,000."

In that general direction lies the salvation of American composers and the hope that they will find a musical style and idiom of our land and people. Their motto should be:

"Our own tonal language, the musical vocabulary of Beethoven Brahms, DeBussy, Stravinsky Strauss and Schoenberg hereafter goes for Sweeney."

By the way, Stravinsky recently told a Paris interviewer that the object of a composer is to try to think new thoughts. Most of the truly great composers, however, have thought new thoughts without trying and did not even know that that was their object.

Another Mystery

The Einstein theory, it is said, is understood by only four persons. That is exactly three more than understand why Guiullo Gatticasazza plans to revive Verdi's mildewed "Ernani" at the Metropolitan opera this season.

Is it to make a vocal holiday for some of the vociferous singers at that institution?

"Ernani" is not bad—nothing by Verdi is bad—but its style is hopelessly antiquated for the ears of progressive music lovers. Ah, there lies the answer, perhaps. Progressive music lovers constitute only the atomal part of the audiences at the Metropolitan.

Otto H. Kahn admitted recently that the regular operatic repertoire is growing terribly rusty, but evidently he did not consider "Ernani" one of its very rustiest examples due to a certain melodic attractiveness and some brilliancies of orchestration.

If, on the other hand, you were to ask me to suggest some other mould-covered opera more suitable for revival than "Ernani"—well, I should prefer to try to explain the Einstein theory.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. —"Just recently," said the Long Island commuter, "I read in the papers where proponents of the two nationally known card games, bridge and poker, were engaged in a heated discussion over the relative popularity of these forms of amusement. Frequenters of the Long Island railroad, however, apparently have not heard of either of these games, for on almost any train traveling from or to Jamaica, one may see a dozen card games in full swing—none of them bridge or poker.

"The choice of Long Island commuters, it seems, has a more Teutonic leaning and pinochle is the word of the day. "A hundred aces" and "Forty Pinochle" are just as familiar on this road as 'Dummy and I'll buy two' are on more sophisticated lines. And woe to the man who would speak lightly of the ancient and honorable pastime.

"The games are not without their interest either for many times one will see a group of onlookers, who had forsaken their seats for the privilege of watching the play.

"Some mornings a strange face will be seen among the players, but the next day the same strange face will be found at the far end of the car very much absorbed in a newspaper and not the least bit interested in cards."

The old Cuban lady sighed as she stood at the window and looked out. All her life she had lived in an obscure Cuban village; now she was very old and her American-wed daughter had bid her come and live in her New York apartment.

It was a bleak winter day, drab and sorrowful, and the Cuban lady thought with regret of her southern home and its brilliant tropical colors and heat.

A few white flakes fluttered past the window, followed by a sudden rush of snow. The old lady gasped, hand to her heart. "Dios Mio," she cried out in her terror. "Daughter, quick—Come here." Oh, God have pity, the sky is falling."

"New York, New York, it's a queer combination," said Mr. Kalamazoo. "They're digging up Lexington avenue round about Sixty-fifth street and at night instead of having electric lights or even lanterns along the trenches they've dug, here are queer looking urns with kerosene and rope wicks, burning every few feet. They remind me of pictures you find in history books of Roman lamps.

"It's right picturesque to see a double row of lamps down the middle of the street burning in the dark like little bonfires, but when a taxicab cruises around the corner and just about sidewipes one, you get the crazy contrast. You'd never find that anywhere but in New York."

Precinct Committeewoman Mrs. Em Pash spoke aloud at Tiptown last night. "Well, I stopped t' kill a couple of strangers an' I was nearly an hour gettin' my car started again," said Ike Soles last night, when his wife hopped all o'er him.

A Lesson From the Hickman Case

OUT IN California the other day a young man with a noose about his neck was dropped through a trap as the penalty for a brutal crime. The story of the execution was widely read. There was not much dissent from the justness of the penalty. But we wonder how many readers stopped to think that society had its part in the responsibility for the criminality of Edward Hickman. A statement issued by Charles L. Chute, general secretary of the National Probation association calls attention to the dereliction of society—the school, the community and the state—in the life of Edward Hickman. It is a statement which ought to start a lot of thinking.

"Hickman showed abnormal mental characteristics while in school in Kansas City," says Mr. Chute. "If the schools had employed a visiting teacher or psychiatrist, his abnormal behavior might have been checked and he would not have been permitted to go on and commit the frightful crime which so shocked society. To the school is given a very unusual opportunity of checking up on behavior trends of its pupils, at a time when the best preventive work can be done. Many schools, however, are more interested in seeing that the boy passes his grades regularly than they are in determining the state of his mental health. The boy's mother was insane and spent some time in a state institution. After her release the state made no attempt to do follow-up work in an effort to prevent mental disease among the children. The father early left the home, leaving the mother to bring up the children as best she could. Had there been a well organized family court in the community, this case might have been handled in such a way that the father would have been brought back home and taken his part in giving the children a more normal home life. Hickman needed wholesome guidance and leadership. His home was broken, and society made no attempt to re-establish it."

The community erred again, states Mr. Chute, when the boy was brought up for his first offense—that of the forgery of checks totaling about $100. Because of his age the case was heard in the juvenile court. Before the hearing of the case the boy spent several weeks in a county jail. The probation officer investigated the case as best he could, but no special study was made. The juvenile court had no psychological clinic to halt potential criminals. If Edward Hickman had received a careful psychiatric examination and a thorough social investigation when he appeared in the juvenile court for forgery, his abnormal make-up would have been discovered and his subsequent criminal career could have been prevented.

Full of pathos is Hickman's statement in which he admitted that execution for the crime would not only constitute just punishment for him as a murderer, but would center attention on conditions that permitted him to perpetrate the deed. If this youth can make such a comment, how much more should the school, the community, and the state realize their failures and mistakes? The time is now at hand, comments Mr. Chute, for us to put these lessons into practical working form. If we do not do so, there will be similar crimes laid at our door. We cannot plead innocent a second time. We must accept the fullest measure of responsibility if, knowing the weaknesses that exist in our institutions, we do not set about at once to correct them.

Gang Government

SOME interesting news has been coming out of Chicago lately, if you have happened to see it—and this doesn't refer to the campaign news, either.

Chicago has a group of 16 men on trial on charges of terrorism in the spring election. These men come under the wings of the Ellers, father and sons, powers in Chicago politics. The accounts of the trial are worth reading.

For instance: one witness told of voting 20 times for the machine at the election. Another, an election booth watcher, told of being kidnaped by men in an auto who were accompanied by a policeman. Another described a house used as a "jail" to accommodate kidnaped workers. And, in addition, another man waiting to testify was trailed from the prosecutor's office and slugged by unknown assailants.

All of this, worse luck, isn't particularly startling. We have heard it before. Other cities have had "repeaters," election day violence, crooked cops and machine-hired plug uglies.

But it is extremely important, as an additional symptom of the most menacing development that has appeared in American civilization in decades.

That development is the rise of a new kind of invisible government—the rule of the gang.

Gang rule is absolute over its subjects. The man who disobeys its laws dies—by sawed-off shotgun or machine gun. The man who even protests its policies may die also. The man who refuses to pay tribute dies—or sees his home or place of business destroyed by a bomb.

The gang government is rich. It can spend staggering sums to see that the regular, legal government does not bother it. Read about the Philadelphia patrolmen who had $100,000 bank accounts if you doubt it. It can provide $50,000 funerals for such of its leaders as fall in the course of duty. It can take over whole segments of the political machinery.

The thing has reached a condition where it is positively threatening our whole political and social structure. The "state within a state" has actually, in some places, been more powerful than any other force. Its power grows instead of diminishes.

Nothing in America today is more important than that this be tackled and beaten down. We have the votes to do it; and surely this nation of efficiency, prosperity and action can find the will to do it. If it can't—if we continue in our attitude of careless indifference—we are due for more trouble than any of us would care to think about.

ANOTHER PLEA FOR SMITH

The unwarranteed assault with a deadly weapon upon an officer of the law here last Saturday by a man who has been repeatedly convicted of prohibition law violation is indicative of the condition that has grown up in recent years under prohibition. It is a by-product of prohibition which Governor Smith in his campaign is bringing to the attention of the people in the hope that it will be remedied.

The Room Under the Stairs

The Baffling Story of a Man Who Read of His Own Murder

By HERMAN LANDON

Copyright by G. Howard Watt — Serialized by Ledger Syndicate

Synopsis of Preceding Installments

Thomas Dean, successful young novelist, has hidden from the world his old name Paul Forrester, because the latter was connected with a self-defense killing out West, and Dean still carries the scar of that encounter. But a series of circumstances swirls him into a vortex of mysteries. First he reads a deathbed confession of the murder of Paul Forrester five years before, made by Martin Lamont, western business man, on a visit to New York, and witnessed by Dennis Littleby, famous lawyer, and Dr. Jonas Ballinger, well-known doctor. Then a mysterious lady, Viola Gray, visits him and Lieutenant Shane finds the remains of the murdered man in "The Room Under the Stairs," of Dean's deserted family home. A watch marked "P. F." completes the identification, although Dean finds pieces of another watch crystal at the scene of the murder. Later an attempt is made on his life by Freddie Mills, a hired assassin, and Dean's subsequent appearance alive produces a startling effect on both Miss Gray and Dr. Ballinger. Finally, after Dean has heard a woman's screams through the crying man's telephone, Lamont is murdered, and Dean trails the lawyer to a hidden room in the latter's house. There he finds Shirley Lamont, the dead man's daughter held a prisoner and is discovered by Littleby, who warns them both and mysteriously vanishes. Trapped together they can find no way out of the secret room. Meantime, Lieutenant Shane finds Miss Gray in "The Room Under the Stairs" at the old Forrester home and shares her discovery of an important piece of paper. Together they set out for Littleby's house. Trapped together Dean and Shirley are nearly suffocated by a gaseous cloud that descends on them in the secret room, but a sudden ring at their telephone shows that Littleby is willing to make terms. Appealing to his chivalry, the lawyer forces Dean to suicide to save the girl.

The $15,000,000 Shot

He chuckled elatedly, but in a moment his face clouded. He had managed the last part of the enterprise with an ease that was amazing, but also a little disquieting. His appeal to Dean's chivalry had been a spectacular thing, savoring strongly of the melodramatic, but it had seemed the logical course to adopt under the circumstances. He had merely put into practice that profound knowledge of human nature on which he had always prided himself. It had been a psychological maneuver, depending for its success on the sentimental impulses that, in Littleby's estimation, characterized the average type of man, the type to which Thomas Dean belonged.

Yet, despite all his careful calculations, Littleby had felt somewhat stunned when the shot boomed out over the wire, testifying that the exeprirment had succeeded. He had scarcely dared to hope for such a gratifying outcome. There had been about one chance in a hundred that Dean's sentimental imbecility would stand the test, but it had been well worth trying. It offered an easy and pleasant way of meeting a disagreeable necessity. Littleby's nature shrank from coarser tactics, and it was his rule of conduct to try subtler methods first. If they failed, one could always resort to more direct measures. To a mind like his, there was a soothing distinction between suicide and murder, yet, in this particular instance the net result would have been the same in either case.

Yes, he reflected, it was infinitely better than Dean should have died by his own hand than by another's. Freddie Mills' for instance.

Mills was a highly useful person, but he had his limitations, and one could not always depend on him. The difficulty was aggravated by the fact that a man in Littleby's position could not have direct dealings with a common thug. The unpleasant details had to be arranged through a middleman, and that always increased the risk.

Littleby recalled the scene in Lieutenant Shane's office when he came face to face with Dean. Luckily he had been warned only half an hour earlier that the attempt had failed, so he had betrayed no surprise. But even then he had not known that Freddie Mills was the man who had been assigned to the task. That discovery had come later, through a hint dropped by Dean himself when he made a flippant allusion to Freddie Mills' famished condition. Then, by a process of putting two and two together, Littleby had guessed the truth, and it had been a simple matter to send a trusted agent out to Dean's place and release the imprisoned thug.

Now that difficulty was removed, thanks to a sagacious appeal to a man's sentimental weakness, Littleby could congratulate himself upon having disposed of the matter with subtlety and finesse, without resort to violence or sordid tactics of any kind, tactics that were to be scrupulously avoided except in a case of absolute necessity and which then always left him in a state of morbid depression. Yes, the method he had adopted, and which had succeeded with such surprising smoothness, was infinitely the better.

"Fifteen millions!" he repeated, but his voice quavered a trifle over the last syllable. Once more he was assailed by doubts—foolish doubts, in all likelihood. Suppose Dean was shrewder than he had credited him with being? Suppose Miss Lamont, with the quickness of wit a woman sometimes displays in a crisis, had furnished the inspiration for a clever hoax? What if Dean had fired the bullet into the ceiling or the wall? Such would have been the logical strategem in a dilemma of that kind, provided either Dean or the girl had been in a condition to think logically.

Littleby's darkening gaze moved toward the telephone. His face began to clear again. He had heard the shot, Dean's broken cry, the fall of a body, the girl's shuddering moan. All could have been faked by a bit of clever acting, but there had been no time between the delivery of Littleby's ultimatum and the firing of the shot for Dean and Miss Lamont to plan anything. No impromptu acting could have been so convincing, no matter how clever the actors. The cries, Dean's as well as the girl's, had been real. Littleby, with all his senses on the alert against trickery, had been positive of that. Dean had cried out just as a man would in the shock and agony of feeling a self-inflicted bullet tearing through his body, and Miss Lamont's exclamation had been one of genuine horror.

No, there could be no mistake. Dean, his faculties dulled by the sinister vapors of arselene, had yielded to the instincts that governed this type. Littleby resolved that his misgivings were due to nothing else than the astounding ease with which he had managed the episode. Yet, to remove every particle of foolish doubt from his mind, it would be just as well to investigate. After that he could sleep in peace and dream of fabulous wealth.

It seemeed only a minute or two had passed since the shot boomed out on the wire. His mind had worked quickly, crowding each passing moment with speeding reflections. Now he stepped through a door along the side of the bedroom, remaining in the adjoining room barely a minute, just long enough to touch a lever or two. When he came out he glanced at his watch. Then his gaze moved upward, trying to visualize the scene in the room upstairs, where Miss Lamont was alone with the lifeless body of Dean. The lights were again burning up there, the flow of arselene had stopped, and inside five minutes every vestige of the vapors would have been sucked out of the air by a simple mechanism which he had set in motion. It would be quite safe for Littleby to enter and satisfy himself that all was well.

He waited a few minutes, then armed himself with a pistol, and silently left the room. He moved hurriedly toward the stairs, as if anxious to relieve his mind of a troublesome matter. Now and then he glanced back, but only for a moment. There were times, especially at night, when the vastness of the house had a subtly alarming aspect. His imagination conjured up figments of dread which, in the light of day, his logical mind would deride. He hastened upward, but in the center of the stairs he paused, seized with an inexplicable tremor. The servants had long ago retired to their quarters, occupying a separate division of the house. There was no one else, so he could not account for the sound he had heard, like the furtive closing of a door.

He listened intently, gripping his pistol in one hand as he leaned over the stairway railing, but now the sound was gone. Through the gloom he glanced toward the room where the body of Lamont lay. Somehow he thought the sound had come from that direction. It seemed incredible, and yet— With an effort he stifled the oppressive feeling that had come over him, and continued upward. He was a little nervous, he told himself, and his imagination was playing him tricks. Yet, on the whole, he wished the body of Lamont had been taken away. He could not understand why it had not been removed soon after the officers left. Official red tape, perhaps, or maybe the investigation had taken a turn of which he was kept in ignorance.

Again he stopped. Another sound, brief and indefinable, came to his ears. With a little mutter and a forced shrug he continued on his way. The old house was always full of queer noises at night. It was natural enough, yet they had a vaguely disturbing quality.

At times he almost hated the house because it inspired him with fears of which he was ashamed. He looked forward with relief to the day when, certain matters having been finally adjusted, he could sell it and move away.

Down the corridor he went, silent as a shadow, the tips of his shoes gliding soundlessly over the floor. The darkness was so intense it made his eyes ache, but he cautiously refrained from making a light. A few hours ago Dean, as it afterward appeared, had followed and watched him as he went to visit his prisoner in the hidden room, and the consequences had nearly upset a deftly woven plan. But Dean had failed to learn the whole secret concerning the mechanism of ingress and exit besides. Dean was dead now and could no longer harm him. Yet there might be others, so it would not do to let his vigilance relax. Despite all his efforts to shake it off, an impresion of stealthy pursuit lingered in his consciousness. The sounds he had heard in the stairs, whether real or imaginary, seemed to haunt him with their echoes. The sensation communicated a tremor to his hands as, guided by the sense of touch, they moved systematically over the woodwork.

All at once his fingers paused; he shrank back with a little gasp. He could hear it quite distinctly—a measured foot beat on the floor below, not far from the room where Lamont lay dead. As if to substantiate what might otherwise have been but a vagrant fancy, a loose board squeaked somewhere under someone's foot. He was tempted to draw back and investigate, but already a beam of light fell through an opening. It would take only a moment or two to satisfy himself that Dean was dead.

He advanced on tiptoe, then stopped, looked, and his tense face relaxed momentarily in a glow of intense relief. He took it all in at a glance—a motionless form on the floor, Miss Lamont, with loosened hair tumbling about her face, staring down into a rigid countenance, the telephone lying where it had fallen a few feet away, an arm flung wide in a gesture of death.

"Dead!" he heard the girl in low, hollow tines sounding as if they were wrung from a terrified soul. "Dead! My God!"

He was anxious to be on his way, but the spectacle held him. With a curious shrinking motion, as if at once repelled and fascinated, the girl stroked the cheek of the man lying on the floor. There was something infinitely tender about the simple gesture, but it had also in it a touch of dread and awe.

Suddenly, with a hoarse cry, the girl raised the hand that a moment ago had caressed the recumbent man's face. Even from a distance Littleby could see that it was streaked red—a moist, vivid red. He withdrew silently as she started to erase the stains from her fingers, closed the opening, and moved down the hall. He would have been entirely at ease once more but for the peculiar sounds he had heard on his way to the hidden room. He had almost forgotten them, so engrossed had he been in the scene he had just witnessed, but now they recurred to him in all their disquieting significance.

He moved forward cautiously, anxious to let no slip deprive him of the advantage he had won.

Almost at the foot of the stairs, he drew in his steps and clutched his pistol a little more tightly. In the dim light he could vaguely distinguish two figures, a man's and a woman's, the former tall and broad, the latter short and slight. The woman was speaking in a subdued whisper:

"There's a light in his bedroom, but he isn't there."

After a moment's hesitancy Littleby moved silently down the remaining steps, touched a button above the newel post, producing a glaring light, and inquired in unctuous accents:

"Looking for me, madam?"

The Two Visitors

At the sound of the quietly spoken words, coming so abruptly out of the stillness, the woman who had previously spoken, whirled round with a cry of surprise. Behind her, twirling his soft hat with a diffident air, stood Lieutenant Shane.

Littleby regarded them with a sarcastic twinkle in his eyes. If a few moments ago he had been gravely disturbed, his present appearance did not show it. He returned the pistol to his pocket.

"Ah, Miss Gray," he murmured. "Believe we have met before. This is indeed a pleasant surprise. Hello, lieutenant. Always glad to see friends, even at 5 o'clock in the morning."

Shane grinned in a shame-faced way, as if secretly perturbed.

"Guess I owe you an apology, Mr. Littleby," he said awkwardly.

"An apology?" echoed Littleby, apparently greatly puzzled. "Why?"

"Well, it isn't strictly according to the rules to break into a man's house in the dead of night. It would be about as much as my job is worth if you should report me to headquarters.

"I took a chance—and it seems I've lost. That's all there is to it. The responsibility is all mine."

"Don't you believe him," chimed in Miss Gray, quickly recovering her self-possession. "By using the proper technique a woman can make a man do anything she wishes. Lieutenant Shane growled and fumed at first, but finally yielded to persuasion. It was all my fault."

Under his breath the lieutenant mumbled something that sounded suspiciously like a "damn."

Littleby wagged his head bewilderedly. 'I fail to understand a single word, but, whoever is at fault, I grant absolution right here and now. Am I to understand, lieutenant, that this visit isn't official?"

"You understand just right, Mr. Littleby. I was playing a wrong hunch."

"The hunch was mine," said Miss Gray firmly. "I bullied and bamboozled Lieutenant Shane into helping me find him. But it seems he isn't here. We've searched the whole house. Last of all we looked into your room. I saw a light, but you weren't there. That's the whole story. By the way, Mr. Littleby, it would be a good idea to get a new lock for your back door. Any simpleton can pick it—even I."

Littleby blinked his eyes in acute perplexity. "Let me get this straight, please. It seems you entered my house in a somewhat unconventional manner. You were looking for somebody. Whom, may I ask?"

"Mr. Dean," said Miss Gray. "Mr. Thomas Dean, the famous novelist."

"Oh, Dean." Littleby smiled, but in the next moment a look of gentle reproof crossed his face. "You went to all that trouble looking for a man who isn't here? It must have taken you all of two hours to make a thorough search. If you had but rung the bell in the accustomed way I could have saved you a lot of needless bother."

"We didn't like to disturb you," explained Miss Gray. "As a matter of fact, Lieutenant Shane wanted to do exactly what you have suggested, but I disapproved. You see, there was just a possibility that, if we had come straight to you and asked you whether Mr. Dean was in the house, you would not have told us the truth."

Littleby started impressively. The young woman was smiling in a way that seemed to soften the barb in her words.

"What a droll idea! Dean was here in the afternoon, as a matter of fact—just about the time of the unfortunate death of poor Lamont—but he left soon afterward, and I haven't seen him since. Won't you step into the drawing room? We can chat there."

"No, thanks," said Miss Gray. "Lieutenant Shane is mad as hops, though he tries hard not to show it. I must take him out and tame him." She paused, studying the lawyer's dignified garb with a sly eye. "I am so glad to see you are fully dressed and that we didn't get you out of bed," she added sweetly.

"At 5 o'clock in the morning one can't expect to find a man presentable as a rule. Or do you sleep with your clothes on?"

Littleby frowned for a moment, but her impudent levity carried its own extenuation.

"You forget, my dear young lady, that a most tragic occurrence took place in this house a few hours ago. Under the circumstances I was in no mood for sleep—with my clothes on or otherwise."

"I understand. It must have been a dreadful shock. You knew Mr. Lamont a long time, didn't you?"

"Since both of us were young men."

"Then you must have known him very well. He was just an ordinary mortal, wasn't he?"

Littleby's gaze narrowed a trifle, as if he were wondering what lay hidden beneath the young woman's flippant airs and roguish smiles.

"Alas, yes," he murmured. "Just an ordinary mortal."

"He didn't, by any chance, possess the happy knack of being in two places at once?"

UPHILL FIGHT IN MINNESOTA

Al Has Strong Support But Many Enemies

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 23. (UP)—There are 12 electoral votes in Minnesota which Gov. Alfred E. Smith could make good use of but whether he will get them is in considerable doubt.

Outside of the state the impression prevails in many quarters that Minnesota is Smith's, but investigation does not support this assumption.

Smith has the support of a powerful team in Minnesota—Frank Murphy, one of the men who put the McNary-Haugen bill through congress twice in the face of White House opposition; J. F. Reed, who resigned as head of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation to work for Smith, and former Senator Magnus Johnson, who, according to Miss Victoria McAlmon, in charge of Democratic speakers, "is the most illogical and most effective" of the pro-Smith stumpers. The bellowing "by golly" of Magnus hits the Scandinavian voters just right, Miss McAlmon says.

Letters Circulated

Also in Smith's favor is the anti-Hoover feeling effectively sown in this state by Republicans during the pre-convention fight by Claude H. Mackenzie, now Republican national committeeman, who fought for Lowden. Democrats are circulating a letter bearing Mackenzie's signature which said Hoover is not a friend of the farmer and that in 1917 he "was practically an English citizen." Mackenzie's assistant dictated and signed the letter in Mackenzie's absence, according to Republican headquarters.

Furthermore, while the state never has gone Democratic in a presidential election, it has been curiously indifferent to partisan feeling and quick to turn out a protest vote. Smith, insofar as he is a protest candidate—and in the farm belt he embodies the protest of the frustrated farmer—is favored by the psychology of Minnesota voters.

Against Smith, however, are very strong currents. While the state is not strong in its party loyalty, it is unfamiliar with the Democratic party which usually has had only the meagerest organization here. Only by accident are Democratic state officials elected. The state does most of its insurging within the Republican party and not by swinging to the Democratic party.

Many Obstacles

Smith has not entirely won the confidence of the farmer. His refusal to accept the equalization fee outright has caused some skepticism which the Republicans are not failing to aggravate. Minnesota, furthermore, has had recently dramatic evidence of the value of the protective tariff on dairy products. Farmers are abandoning wheat and going in heavily for dairying. The Underwood tariff on butter was 2½ cents a pound. The Fordney-McCumber tariff raised it to 8 cents and through pressure of Minnesota congressmen, President Coolidge raised this to 12 cents under the flexible provision. Last year Minnesota produced 275,386,000 pounds of butter. The tariff increase of the Republican administration added $26,161,000 to the value of this butter.

Furthermore Republicans have sent out thousands of official copies of house bill 7261 introduced by a Tammany congressman, Weller, of New York, consisting of four lines proposing to repeal the Fordney-McCumber tariff on milk and cream and placing them on the free list. This is damaging Governor Smith in this state.

"Smith was oversold to the farmers in this state," Mackenzie told the United Press, "and there has been a consequent disappointment. Farm leaders were misled into believing Smith would endorse the equalization fee and when he failed to do it in his prescription at Omaha, he fell flat."

Democrats say religion is hurting Smith in this state. Joe Wolf, Democratic national committeeman, told the United Press that if Smith's religion was to be held against him Hoover's faith also ought to be taken into consideration.

Relief from Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you relish food and digest it properly

Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing.

Mr. James F. Campbell, of 1012 W. Fifth St., Little Rock, Ark., says: "I had bloating after eating. My rheumatism was so bad I could hardly raise my arms. Now I can eat anything and do a good day's work."

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you.

"I MAY GET MINE, BUT I'M GOING TO CARRY ON!".

By DAN THOMAS
NEA Service Writer

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Oct. 23.—His buddies have gone—called by the Grim Reaper.

Twice Lieut. Irving Woodring, only surviving member of the famous army stunt team, "The Three Musketeers," saw bodies of his pals lifted from twisted masses of wreckage which had been airplanes. Twice he nursed a sorrow known only to those who have witnessed the death of comrades.

But Lieutenant Woodring is carrying on just the same—carrying on so that the name of "The Three Musketeers" will continue to live.

"My buddies gave their lives for 'The Three Musketeers.' The least I can do is to carry on—for them," says Lieutenant Woodring.

How They Died

The leader of "The Three Musketeers," Lieutenant J. J. Williams, was killed at Mines Field, Los Angeles, in September. His motor stalled while he was flying upside down at a very low altitude and the ship crashed before he could right it. A short time afterwards Lieut. William J. Cornelius was killed when his plane crashed into another one during daily maneuvers at Rockwell field, here.

"More than anything else I want to get two more men and keep the name of 'The Three Misketeers' alive in the army," Lieutenant Woodring told me. "I feel very badly over the death of William and Cornelius, but it is nothing I can hold against flying. And it in no way makes me think flying is unsafe. The boys got a tough break from Lady Luck—that's all.

"No, I am not afraid of being killed and I don't think that any army fliers consider 'The Three Musketeers' a bad omen. I personally intend to keep right on stunting just as I have always done. Some day I may get it, too, but I don't think so, and I'm not worrying about it.

"A man who can't stunt a plane has no place in the army. Stunting is not dangerous tom-foolery. It is essential to good flying and absolutely necessary in a pursuit squadron. Every stunt we perform is a necessary maneuver in war time."

Lindy Joins Musketeers

After the death of Lieutenant Williams during the national air meet in Los Angeles, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh joined "The Three Musketeers" and led them through their daily stunt performances for five days.

"I enjoyed flying with Colonel Lindbergh as a leader," says Woodring. "It is a pleasure to fly with a man who loves aviation as Colonel Lindbergh does. It was a little difficult to go through the maneuvers the first day, but as soon as we became used to Colonel Lindbergh's flying and his signals it was easy. For a man who pilots pursuit ships as seldom as he does he is a remarkable flier.

"Only once during the five days we flew with Colonel Lindbergh did we face any trouble. As we were coming out of a dive I saw Colonel Lindbergh pull his ship up sharply. I followed, figuring that something was wrong, but not knowing what."

The writer was an eye witness of the incident Woodring mentions. Lindy, Woodring and Cornelius were diving from about 3000 feet. As they swooped down to within 150 feet of the ground two navy bombers were just taking off. Lindbergh apparently did not see the navy planes until he was nearly on top of them. Then he pulled his ship up sharply, his companions following and all of them missing the navy planes by a scant few feet.

Like most aviators, Lieutenant Woodring is a man of very few words. He doesn't like to talk of his own exploits.

Escaped in Parachute

"The national air meet in Los Angeles was to have been one of the high spots of our careers as a team," he says. "There was a certain amount of rivalry between our team and 'The Three Sea Hawks' of the navy. It was our chance to steal the limelight from them. Then Williams ran into tough luck and was killed.

"The air gods seemed to have been against us, though, because it was only a short time later that Cornelius was killed here. We were flying in regular squadron formation over the field here when Cornelius, who was leading his element, crashed into Lieutenant R. B. Williams, who was piloting the rear plane of my element. I didn't see the crash, as it was behind me, and Williams told me afterwards that he didn't see Cornelius coming until their planes crashed together. Both men jumped with their parachutes, but Cornelius' chute got caught in his plane and he went down with the wreck."

Few men who have seen their closest pals laid to rest would have the courage to carry on. Lieutenant Woodring is, for "The Three Musketeers"—and the memory of his buddies.

A FRIEND YOU WILL NEED

When you're sunk in the mire of the river of doubt,
And you needed true pals who would pull you out,
It was then you remembered the worth of a friend,
Who would stick by your side from beginning to end.

But whenever you rode on the wave's highest crest,
With a gay, happy heart singing songs in your breast,
It was then you forgot one who shared your load,
And whose friendship and love stood the test of the goad.

Don't forget your old friend, though he's humble and plain,
For there'll soon come a day when you'll need him again;
Just remember your friend; in your treatment be fair;
If your load grows too heavy, he'll carry a share.

Give just the treatment when sunbeams are out
That you'd give, were you sunk in the river of doubt.
—John Self Elliott.

Communication With Mars Will Be Sensation, London Doctor Confides

LONDON, Oct. 23. (UP)—Dr. Abraham Wallace, West End physician who has assumed the role of Dr. Mansfield Robinson's scientific adviser, told the United Press today that the attempt to communicate with Mars by radio might "create the greatest scientific sensation of the ages."

"I am certain that regular communication between Mars and the earth is bound to come," said Wallace.

Robinson will send two messages over the powerful radio station at Rugby tomorrow and then wait half an hour for a reply which he expects to get in eight minutes. The message, written in code, will say, "God is love," and "Love to Mars."

Dr. Wallace insisted that the experiment had been considered reverently.

"If the Martians reply, every region in the world will be affected," he said. He added that Martian spiritualists had reached a high stage of development and that anyone understanding the Morse code would hear their message, "if atmospheric conditions permit."

Wallace added that the Martian knowledge of the Morse code has been proved by various instances of wireless reception of signals from Mars.

The experiment, he explained, is designed to prove physically the contact that the spiritualists claim has been established by them.

Are You Nervous? Take Capudine

High nerve strain results, sooner or later, in high blood pressure and serious injury to health. Headache, neuralgic and rheumatic pains and periodic pains are caused by high nerve strain.

The next time you feel nervous or suffer from pain try the improved method of relief—two teaspoonfuls of Capudine in a little water. It soothes the nerves and stops the pain. Being liquid, Capudine acts almost instantly—much quicker than tablets and powders. Capudine does not upset the stomach and contains no habit-forming drugs. At all drug stores—30c and 60c sizes.—Adv.

White CAKE

½ cup Crisco
1 cup sugar
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
3 egg whites
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon salt

Cream Crisco with sugar. Stir in alternately milk and sifted dry ingredients. Fold in thoroughly stiffly beaten egg whites. Add vanilla and turn batter into two greased layer pans. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 20 minutes.

Ice with cocoanut or maple icing, or Crisco white icing.

Crisco White Icing

2 cups confectioners' sugar
2 tablespoons Crisco
3 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon almond or lemon extract

Cream Crisco with part of the sugar and salt. Add milk and rest of sugar and flavoring. Mix well.

Do you know of a more severe test for a shortening than in cake-making? Eggs, sugar, milk—each has its own natural flavor which join to make a delectable, full flavored cake. Unless your shortening is delicate, how can you expect the cake to be delicately flavored?

Crisco makes a perfectly flavored cake with an even texture—and whiter than you've ever thought possible. Taste Crisco—its sweet flavor will delight you.

"I prefer electric refrigeration. Now it's easy to vary menus and give meals added zest."—Mrs. Chitwood.

GENERAL ELECTRIC Refrigerator

The modern homemaker who has a General Electric Refrigerator has found to her surprise that it's just as easy to make a luscious mousse as it used to be to make an uninteresting rice pudding! She finds that an aspic is a welcome change from soup—and less fuss to prepare.

In a word, the drudgery of planning menus is now spiced with the thrill of developing new surprises. Left-overs come back to the table in unsuspected disguises. And even ordinary salads and fruits become crisper, better-flavored when they are thoroughly chilled.

As for the refrigerator itself—it is quiet, absolutely sanitary, easy to keep clean (the up-on-legs models make it so simple to mop the floor underneath). All its mechanism is safely enclosed in one hermetically sealed steel casing. You should study the various models—from a point of view of their revolutionary design as well as the conveniences they have to offer you.

REQUEST FOR SPEAKER FAILS

Noted Talkers Too Busy In Other States

DALLAS, Oct. 23 (UP)—Requests of the Texas Democratic central campaign organization for nationally known speakers have been turned down by Democratic national headquarters, it was announced today by W. A. Thomas, campaign manager for Smith Democrats in Texas.

The assurance that former Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma would be sent here following the appearance of Senator William E. Borah, Republican, has been withdrawn, Thomas stated.

"National headquarters has told us that they feel Texas is safely Democratic and that speakers are too badly needed in other sections to be spared," Thomas said.

Reports from Austin quoting Gov. Dan Moody as saying that he had made no engagement to speak in Dallas or any other place and that he had not been invited officially to speak, gave Thomas deep concern.

"Governor Moody was invited by C. C. Renfro, chairman of the speakers bureau," Thomas stated. "I supposed he knew the invitation was from Renfro in this capacity."

Renfro said he had invited Moody, but that it was likely the governor had not realized the invitation was an official bid from the Democratic organization.

"I am going to invite him again, officially, to speak for the national ticket," Renfro said. "I understood from him that he was ready to speak for Smith in reply to Senator Borah."

Hoover Democrats and Republican leaders held a conference this morning and planned an intensive campaign in Texas in behalf of the national ticket. The conference was attended by R. B. Creager of Brownsville, Republican national committeeman; Eugene Holte of Seguin, state Republican chairman, and Alvin S. Moody of Houston, chairman of the anti-Smith Democrats.

Farmer Kills Himself During Death Probe

OSBORNE, Kan., Oct. 23. (AP)—While grave diggers were disinterring the bodies of the family he was alleged to have murdered, preparatory to a murder trial scheduled to begin here tomorrow, Fred Kaser, young farmer, shot and killed himself at his farm home near Covert today.

Kaser was at liberty on $60,000 bond, charged with killing his brother, Albert Kaser, with the latter's wife and their six children and burning their farm house the night of last May 31.

Houghton to Stump Middle West States

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (UP)—Alanson B. Houghton, Republican candidate for United States senator from New York, will campaign through the Middle West in an effort to keep so-called German vote in line for Herbert Hoover, according to an announcement made by H. Edmund Mashold, Republican state chairman.

Prisoner Killed In Riot Among Inmates

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Oct. 23. (UP)—James McFarland, 27, Los Angeles negro convict, was dead and Robert Sterling, 24, Stanislaus county negro, today occupied a cell in solitary confinement as the result of the second slaying at Folsom prison within a week.

Sterling, according to prison officials, struck McFarland in the head with a shovel following a quarrel over their work in the stone quarry. McFarland's neck was broken and he died instantly.

Girl Tries to Kiss Boy, He Resents it and Lambasts Her

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 23. (INS)—Dewey Woods, 29, doesn't like to be kissed.

Evelyn Lanier, pretty Memphis girl, tried to kiss him, according to police, and faces a charge of disorderly conduct.

The youth will face a similar charge because he knocked her down when she attempted it.

18th Indictment Against Carnes

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 23. (INS)—Another indictment—the eighteenth—was returned by the Fulton county grand jury today against Clinton S. Carnes, treasurer of the Baptist home mission board, accused of embezzling nearly $1,000,000 from the board.

The latest bill charged embezzlement of bonds valued, according to the current market at $12,908.88 and appropriating the proceeds to his own use.

Solicitor General Boykin stated there would be no increase in Carnes' $150,000 bond. Other indictments will be sought, Boykin declared.

Moody Plans Hunting Trips During Winter

AUSTIN, Oct. 23. (AP)—Gov. Dan Moody will be in fine fettle to wrestle with the 41st legislature when it gets under way next January. He said today he intended to do considerable hunting, after the deer season opens Nov. 16. The recent cool snap inspired him to fondle and oil his collection of shooting irons, he said.

"I have enough invitations to keep me hunting constantly from the middle of November to Jan. 1," he said.

SMUGGLING OF RUM CONTINUES

U. S. and Canada Fail To Check Traffic

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23. (UP)—Efforts to end liquor smuggling from Canada by interchange of customs information between the two governments has failed, Prohibition Commissioner Doran said today.

He has notified Canadian authorities that daily reports on liquor clearances for the United States will not be needed by the treasury hereafter. He asked the Canadian government to make weekly reports, however, for his statistical bureau.

"The Canadian customs department made daily reports on all liquor shipments legally declared for export to the United States but when these were received by our forces each evening the illicit cargoes already had been smuggled in," Doran said.

"It only takes rum runners about 15 minutes to dart across the lakes from Canada to the United States, and they took pains to get going before we were notified they were heading for the border."

Doran said liquor smugglers were making a joke of the clearance declaration statute in Canada and often they gave names of prominent Americans; one rum runner calls himself Lincoln C. Andrews—former assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement, whenever he exports whisky to the United States.

"There has just been a shakeup in the customs border patrol along the Canadian boundary and we expect to obtain better enforcement results in that section from now on," Doran said.

Carnival Giantess, Emaciated, Is Dead

'Royalist' Leader Reveals His Plan Was to Have Been Joke on City Dads

DALLAS, Oct. 23. (UP)—A hoax within a hoax was revealed here when Richard Potts, self-styled secretary general of the "Royalist League of America," unveiled the whole scheme for laughing at the city commission, which denied him the use of the city hall auditorium last Sunday.

Laughing at his mythical Royalist party, but still contending for the right of citizens to use the auditorium for free speech, Potts told his story.

"I was not going to speak. I was only going to read a tirade on democracy, describe it as weak and distracted, and then advocate a benevolent monarchy," Potts said. "I intended to say I believed the British government formed the best model the world ever produced and then refer to the Democratic system as imprudent.

"If I was not arrested by this time I would have gone further and when I had completed I intended to tell the audience the talk was not original but I had been quoting verbatim from the address of Alexander Hamilton in his speech before the constitutional convention."

Leaves Bride on Boat And Leaps to Death

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 23. (AP)—Refusing to grasp life preservers and lines thrown him after he is alleged to have leaped from the deck of the Canal street ferry boat, J. R. Glenn, a native of West Virginia, was drowned last night in the Mississippi river.

Glenn, it is said, left his 18-year-old bride, whom he had married about three months ago, on the top deck of the ferry, leaping over the railing and into the river, after he had calmly handed her his hat.

Despondency over the death of a former wife and their child was given police as the probable reason for Glenn's action.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn came here last Friday from Pensacola, Fla.

Old Prospector to Keep Old Habits Though Rich

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Oct. 23. (UP)—The decision of the United States supreme court, declaring in effect that the Anaconda Copper Mining company must pay him millions of dollars, will not change the life of George Campbell Carson, he said here today.

The veteran prospector, who for years sought pay dirt in Death Valley, expects to realize between $20,000,000 and $40,000,000 as the result of the ruling that the Anaconda company infringed on his copper smelting patent.

Kansas Corn Crop Moves to Market

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 23. (INS)—The new Kansas corn crop is beginning to move to market, according to reports received here. The first corn marketed at Smith Center in the heart of the big corn belt brought 65 cents a bushel Monday and was of good quality.

Kansas this year has the biggest corn crop raised for more than two decades and the weekly report of the state board of agriculture states that it has all matured without damage and indications point to very little soft corn being marketed this fall.

DANIELS ASKS WORK TO QUIT

Former Navy Chief Says Fall Still in Power

WAYNESVILLE, N. C., Oct. 23. (UP)—A demand that Herbert Hoover ask the resignation of Dr. Hubert Work as chairman of the Republican national committee was made in a speech here last night by Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy.

Daniels said if Dr. Work did not resign the Republican party in consequence must accept the responsibility of his renewal of the Salt Creek oil lease to the Sinclair interests. The contract was renewed last spring by Dr. Work who then was secretary of the interior.

"The latest exposure of secret leasing of oil lands shows that Albert B. Fall is still, in fact, secretary of the interior, and that the Republican national committee must have a new chairman if that party expects to retain the confidence of even its most loyal standpatters," Daniels said.

The outstanding issues of the campaign are "corruption and favoritism," Daniels said.

"That Salt Creek transaction should insure the Republican party an excursion up Salt river on Nov. 6. It is evident that so far as the matter of parting with oil lands belonging to Uncle Sam is concerned, Albert Fall still dictates the policy of the Coolidge administration, minus the little black bag and the conspiracy of corruption."

PURE
Georgia Cane Syrup
See this long-famous Syrup demonstrated at the Cooking School this week. Mrs. Chitwood has tried many Cane Syrups, but after years of use and testing she heartily recommends Nigger in de Cane Patch as the best.
It is a pure, old-fashioned country product. Scientifically and sanitarily made the open pan way right on the plantation in the heart of the best cane country. Positively no adulteration; no chemicals used; not a city compound.
Invitingly delicious, and wonderfully wholesome on Hot Cakes, Waffles, Biscuits, and in cooking.

Jackson-Adams Campaign of 1828 Shows Politics Has Changed Little

By ALFRED P. RECK

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23. (UP)—Whispering campaigns are not new with the present political battle, according to 110-year-old copies of the National Intelligencer of Washington, one of the nation's leading newspapers in 1828, now on file in the congressional library.

In the campaign 101 years ago the contest between Jackson and Adams appears to have been fought almost entirely on personalities, if the editorial columns of the National Intelligencer can be taken as a criterion.

The main whispering story about Adams was that he called a revolutionary war soldier an "old rascal" and threatened to have him horsewhipped from the White House steps.

Jackson's enemies countered with a tale of how the famous general shot five soldiers in cold blood after the battle of New Orleans.

Called Ungentlemanly

Many and varied were the epithets passed in the campaign of 1828, the least of which was that Jackson and his supporters were not gentlemen.

In several respects the Jackson-Davis campaign was similar to the 1928 campaign. Party lines were split by prejudices and leaders shifted from one party to another.

The editor of the National Intelligencer called Jackson supporters "Hessions"—a fighting word in the trying days of early American independence.

He charged other editors with supporting Jackson while knowing the "interests of the country require the re-election of Mr. Adams."

"Partisans of this class may be ranked with Hessians who fight for whichever cause their masters are for," the National Intelligencer editor said.

The anti-Jackson committee of Virginia issued a bitter campaign document starting with the words, "although we know our opponents are not gentlemen—"

Jackson's Reply

Jacksonites replied with the charge that during the war of 1812 Adams accused New England citizens with siding with the British.

Adams supporters said Jackson wanted to raise a standing army of such size as to destroy all civil government and personal liberty. They circulated the story that Jacksonites said if the general was not elected they would put him in the White House by the aid of 50,000 bayonets.

"The Jacksonites Huzza is heard in the villages and streets, shops, and taverns," a New York correspondent wrote to the paper. "But out on the farms the people are thoughtful."

When Jackson negotiated the Chickasaba treaty in 1816 he attempted to procure for himself land valued at a million dollars, the National Intelligencer editor said in the columns of his paper.

Claims of victory were made on all sides. Maine voted on Sept. 7 but it took until Sept. 15 for the first word of the result to reach Washington. Adams was ahead by a few votes.

Adams supporters started shouting victory but returns from other states showed Jackson elected by an overwhelming majority.

"The very prisons were raked and criminals were dregged to the polls," the National Intelligencer reported.

On Nov. 18, the editor acknowledged the Jackson victory. In his editorial of that date he said:

"The contest is over. Sufficient returns have been received to leave no doubt that a large majority of electors chosen are friendly to the elevation of Andrew Jackson to the presidency.

"Should he live therefore to enjoy the honor, it may be regarded that Andrew Jackson of Tennessee is to be the next president of the United States."

HICKMAN URGED CHRIST TAUGHT

Letter Written Before Execution Published

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 23. (UP)—High schools should teach the principles of Jesus Christ and give more attention to the development of character, Edward Hickman said in a letter written just before his execution last Friday in a California prison for the murder of Marion Parker.

The letter, addressed to Jerome Walsh, Hickman's attorney, was written at the request of Miss Annette Moore, member of the Kansas City board of education. She wished to gain Hickman's observation on the public schools and their teachings.

"Every high school boy and girl throughout the United States should be taught, while in the impressionable age, that the wages of sin is death, and that the only salvation comes from our Lord Jesus Christ by the Holy Spirit," the letter, made public today, said.

"While in the high schools the boys and girls should accept Jesus Christ as their Lord and Savior, praying humbly and persistently for the grace of God through the Holy Ghost, which cleanses the soul and enables them to live in hope, faith and charity of God. During these times of new conventions, when there is a tendency to challenge the deity of Christ and set up mock ideals, our nation's hope lies in the development of true manhood and womanhood among the young people. There is now no regular course for the followers of Jesus Christ in any high school supported by the public tax."

8-Year-Old Wanderer Gives Advice

Tiny Boy Blew His Savings for Eating

By SAM LOVE

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 23. (UP)—His life's savings squandered in high living since he ran away from home, Vincent Titus, 8, sat in the Bergen street police station today and philosophized for the benefit of Mrs. Mary O'Reilly, police matron, on his misspent career.

"My advice to other boys," said the 50 pounds of remorseful prodigal, "is, don't hit the road."

Vincent took it on the lam, as the phrase goes in trampish circles, from his home at 211th street and 94th avenue, Bellaire, Queens, three days ago. At that time he had $5, saved penny by penny over a stretch of several years during which he had been a respectable, home-loving member of the younger set in Bellaire.

Sleeps on Bench

Then the wanderlust got him. Today he was found sleeping on a bench in the Long Island railroad's Flatbush avenue station. And he was penniless.

"I foolishly spent it all in the last three days," he said, "eating in coffee pots. I knew better, but I couldn't help it."

"Just why," asked the matron, "did you pick out the railroad depot to sleep in?"

"I'm afraid of cops all over the country," replied Vincent. "You get to be that way. But I'm not afraid of the railroad police.

"I made the biggest mistake of my life," he continued, "in spending that money foolishly. Three days ago I had $5. Now it is all gone."

"Did you go to Coney Island?"

"No, I'm sorry, but I didn't know where it was. Coffee pots got my money."

Scorned the Woman

"Sure you didn't spend it on girls?"

The prisoner frowned.

"No. They are foolish. All they want to do is dance. I have kept away from girls.

"I've never been in any trouble before, but I'm glad I got arrested this time, because I might have met some bad company and then got into trouble. I didn't see any bad company, though. But I regret one thing. I never should have spent that $5 foolishly."

Elder members of the Bellaire clan of Tituses, notified by the police, sent word they were coming to claim Vincent.

Approval of Hardeman Highway Plans Expected

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Oct. 23.—Plans and routing for Highway No. 51, north and south through Hardeman county, are expected to be approved by the state federal authorities from Quanah to the Pease river. Bids will be advertised for soon after approval, according to R. S. Reed, county commissioner.

This highway was designated about 18 months ago, and is to be paved with state and federal aid in addition to remainder of funds from the $600,000 bon issue now being expended on paving highway No. 5 east and west.

The routing north from Quanah to Red river has not yet been definitely determined. It is believed that an entirely new bridge will be erected over Red river to connect with highway No. 7 in Oklahoma, instead of purchasing the present toll bridge from Austin Bros.

School-Owned Buses Exempt From $4 Tax

AUSTIN, Oct. 23. (AP)—Motor buses owned and operated by common school districts are not subject to the $4 seat tax imposed by the motor bus law on commercial buses, Paul D. Page Jr., assistant attorney general, held today.

Head COLDS Checked this Modern Way

HEAD colds are not so dangerous in themselves. But, if neglected, they mean increased discomfort, and often lead to serious trouble.

At the first sneeze, place some Vicks up each nostril and snuff well back. Also melt some in a bowl of hot water and inhale its healing vapors. This quickly opens the air-passages.

To get the benefit of the healing vapors all night, rub Vicks on the throat and chest at bedtime. It is then the warmth of the body that releases the vapors. At the same time, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice.

PENCIL EXPERT 'ELECTS' HERB

Anti-Smiths Have Texas In G. O. P. Column

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Oct. 23.—The ease with which Texas can be "carried" for Hoover by the pre-election pencil-and-paper experts is being demonstrated here in a set of figures which are being widely handed about. Half a dozen experts on election possibilities are seemingly willing to accept the authorship of the figures, though the basic scheme of computation seems to have been hatched in either Republican state campaign headquarters or in the anti-Smith campaign.

The computation gives Hoover a 30,000 lead in Texas, based on allegedly conservative computation. Where the catch is hidden is not revealed in the figures themselves.

The computation begins on the theory there will be 750,000 votes cast Nov. 6. It assumes four out of every 10 votes in the state will be cast by women, and that of the women's votes, seven out of 10 will be for Hoover. This would give Hoover 210,000 votes to 90,000 for Smith.

It assumes of the 450,000 votes to be cast by men, six out of 10 will be cast for Smith, giving Smith 270,000 to 180,000 for Hoover, and making the totals 360,000 for Smith and 390,000 for Hoover.

Democrats, in commenting on this admit its general plausibility, but do not admit the election will go within 90,000 votes of this result. They figure Smith to win by from 60,000 to 100,000 in Texas.

They question that as many as 300,000 women will vote in the state, asserting that farm women in general are more old-fashioned and do not care to exercise the ballot, and that city women, except the welfare workers are indifferent to the ballot. They are inclined to put the total woman's vote at nearer 200,000, thus reducing Hoover's prospective 70,000,000 to a reduction of 30,000 for Smith. With other factors equal that would leave Smith ahead.

Lone Voyager Around World Leaves Gibraltar

GIBRALTAR, Oct. 23. (AP)—Edward Miles, lone voyager who is on a trip around the world in a 37-foot schooner, left Gibraltar late today for Algiers. His route will take him through the Suez canal. Miles left New York last August and reached Gibraltar after a 35-day voyage.

Cotton Exchange Keeps Trade Unit 100 Bales

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (AP)—The New York cotton exchange today defeated by two to one vote a resolution to reduce the unit of trading in cotton from 100 to 50 bales. Two separate propositions were presented, one to maintain the present unit of 100 bales but to permit trading in 50 bales, based on a 100-bale unit, and the other to change the unit of trading to 50 bales.

H. T. Federer, manager for the Dent theaters, expressed himself as not entirely satisfied with the criticism given "The King of Kings" in this column Monday morning. Said it should have been written with the large number of superlatives the picture calls for instead of merely mentioning that the production deserves 'em.

And this column agrees with Mr. Federer. But it is too late to rewrite that which was insufficiently written yesterday.

It should be said, however, that "The King of Kings" is a picture that no person in the city can afford to miss. That overworked expression sounds trite, but it has lost none of its force in the present use—no one paying the admission price to see the production can say that he is sorry that he attended. Those who believe that they do not care for pictures of the life of Christ are due a big surprise, for they will find themselves interested in the episodes shown of the Great Teacher. This is easily one of the super-pictures being produced here this season and is running the entire week at the Strand theater.

Jim Jefferies, one time heavy-weight champion, is coming to the Majestic theater on the Thursday-Friday vaudeville bill.

Jeffries will recall the days when women combined long skirts with long hair, automobiles had no side doors, presidents went lion-hunting instead of fishing and champion boxers were fighters and not movie stars.

The former champion does not spare the rod when he lectures to younger athletes and his rules for keeping fit wound guarantee prowess but might exclude much that would make life entertaining for the average youth. His boxing act will give plenty speed and gusto and will mean genuine entertainment and laughs. Jim Jeffries appears with four other acts for Thursday and Friday.

It sets a person to wondering why either May McAvoy or Conrad Nagel would want to be single in "If I Were Single," the Warner Brothers picture which will show at the Olympic theater through Wednesday. Myrna Loy, not so long in pictures, also appears in this show.

◇ ◇ ◇

Milton Sills stars in "The Crash." the First National picture of railroad romance at the Olympic theater which begins Thursday. Sills has lost none of his popularity since his first appearance in movies following his sudden change from professor.

Political Speeches Taboo In Texas Senate Hall

AUSTIN, Oct. 23. (INS)—Rev. Aticus Webb of Dallas, superintendent of the Texas Anti-Saloon league, was advised today by R. B. Walthall, chairman of the board of control, that the senate chamber is ont available for political speeches.

Webb wrote asking for official vertification of reports that the board of control had refused to allow the use of the chamber by Rev. John Roach Straton, New York minister, for a political address in behalf of Herbert Hoover.

Cashier of Failed Bank Found Shot to Death

OCALA, Fla., Oct. 23. (AP)—H. W. Hoffman, cashier of the Bank of Citra, which closed Saturday, was found dead today at the home of his wife's parents at Anthony, near here. He was shot through the heart. A pistol lay by the body.

Huge Bank Deposits Called Bribe Profits

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23. (UP)—District Attorney John Monaghan today attempted to link the discovery by his investigators of 15 deposits in one bank totaling $10,246,220.48 with profits of bootleggers and bribes to police officials.

The names used for the accounts, four of them running more than a million dollars each, were fictitious, the district attorney believes. All the accounts have been closed, the last one on Jan. 1 of this year.

Winkler County Wells Vie in Production

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Oct. 23. (AP)—Two new Winkler county oil wells today vied for leadership in production. One was the Southern Crude Oil Purchasing company's No. T-90-3 Hutchins, and the other was the Empire Gas & Fuel company's No. 1 Leck, which produced 2,010 barrels of water-free oil in its first 24-hour open test.

BEAR ATTACKS PARK WORKER

Yellowstone Employe Hurt By Enraged Brute

LIVINGSTON, Mont., Oct. 23. (AP)—Knocked down and severely clawed by a grizzly bear, Ben Merrifield of Molt, Mont., an assistant caretaker at the Canyon hotel in Yellowstone National park, was recovering today from his injuries. More than 300 stitches were taken in the gashes inflicted by the animal.

Merrifield had gone to an outbuilding near the hotel for gasoline when he met the grizzly which, standing on its hind legs, knocked him down with one sweep of the paw. Unarmed, Merrifield decided to remain motionless until the bear left. The animal stalked off after clawing its victim about the face, head and left leg.

During the park season the grizzlies are fed regularly, but after the park closes the feeding is stopped and they frequently become ferocious.

Valley View Girl Given Money Won at Fair

The note was based on the principle that stations in British territory must be licensed by Great Britain.

GRAND OLD MAN

James Amm of New York Is Patriarch of Oil Industry

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 23. (UP)—A grand old man of the oil industry was chosen here today by 'old timers" of the oil business meeting here in connection with the International Petroleum exposition.

The sage selected today was James Amm, a New York millionaire, who has spent 65 years of his life in the oil industry.

Six Die in Fire At Hobo 'Flop-House'

CHICAGO, Oct. 23. (INS)—Six men were burned to death here today and seven others probably fatally burned when a raging inferno of fire swept a four-story hotel here today.

The hotel, known as a "flop house" for hoboes, and constructed in a flimsy fashion, burned so quickly that many of the victims were trapped in their cots and others found all exits blocked by the fast-spreading flames.

The latest death victim who died in a hospital was identified as John Henry. Others were burned beyond recognition and were carried to the county morgue.

St. Albans' Ashes to Be Scattered in Canada

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 23. (UP)—The ashes of Edward St. Albans, Laredo oil man, will be scattered from an airplane over the Canadian Rockies in British Columbia, his widow announced today. St. Albans died in an airplane Sunday while en route from Laredo to a San Antonio hospital. The body was cremated today following funeral services here.

NEW CHAIN IS SAUNDERS' PLAN

'Sole Owner' Forms Giant Corporation

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 23. (UP)—Clarence Saunders, founder of Piggly Wiggly corporation and nationally known chain store grocer, today announced plans for a national system of chain stores to have $250,000,000 backing.

Saunders announced the formation of the Clarence Saunders corporation, a holding company similar to Piggly Wiggly, with backing by eastern and northern capitalists totaling more than a quarter of a billion dollars, at a preliminary meeting of stockholders in his present company. It is to be formally ratified at a meeting to be held Friday.

Saunders already is head of a corporation operating 365 stores in 210 cities in 17 states, and bearing his trade name, "Clarence Saunders, Sole Owner of My Name." The new corporation will immediately take over stores in Birmingham, Kansas City, Denver, San Antonio, Louisville, Little Rock, Memphis and other cities, Saunders said.

Cutters Leave to Aid Distressed Oil Tanker

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 23. (UP)—Coast guard cutters Mascoutin and Manning left here today to assist the tanker Vada, reported stranded off Nagshead, N. D., with a crew of 31 on board.

Coast guard headquarters has reported the steamer in no immediate danger. She was believed to have lost her way in a fog and gone aground on the outer edge of Diamond shoals.

Back-to-Nature Exponent Searches For Converts to His Living Plans

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 23. (INS)—Expecting to live 162 years, Dr. St. Louis Estes, 69 years old, New York physician and national head of the back-to-nature movement, was in Los Angeles today seeking converts to his system of scientific living. He is accompanied by Mrs. Estes and their five children, ranging in ages from 11 months to five years.

Pointing out that he was an invalid for 48 years; blind two years and baldheaded 18, Dr. Estes gave credit for his present robust health to raw foods and sunshine. He hasn't eaten a cooked meal for two years, he said, and now has perfect eyesight and "enough hair to bob."

Crippled and paralyzed and not expected to live, Dr. Estes declared he regained his health by studying babies and patterning his life, for a year, after theirs. Drinking raw milk from a bottle and lying around in the sunshine "turned the trick," he said.

Since then, the physician added, he has never eaten a cooked meal, nor have Mrs. Estes and the children. The youngsters never wore clothing until they were three years old, and according to Dr. Estes never have been ill.

No Other Low-Priced Six Like This

The Cabriolet • Body by Fisher
Bumpers and Wire Wheel Equipment Extra

Study as thoroughly as you please the entire range of automobiles produced today, you must finally conclude that in all the world there is no other low-priced six like Pontiac.

For of all the sixes available at as little as $745 only Pontiac offers bodies by Fisher—a 186-cubic inch engine—the cross-flow radiator—a fuel pump—the famous G-M-R cylinder head. Only Pontiac offers such stamina and long life. And only Pontiac offers special factory equipment including six wire wheels and tires with the two spares cradled in fender wells at slight additional cost.

Pontiac efficiently overlooks engine temperature by a thermostat which blocks the cooling system until the proper operating heat is reached.

With all these exclusive features Pontiac Six has established itself as foremost among all low-priced sixes. And with good reason, for where else can you find such advantages for as little as $745?

2-Door Sedan, $749; Coupe, $745; Sport Roadster, $745; Phaeton, $775; Cabriolet, $795; 4-Door Sedan, $825; Sport Landau Sedan, $875. All prices at factory. Check Oakland-Pontiac delivered prices—they include lowest handling charges. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

¶Food for the home by all means should be clean and sanitary, especially does this apply to the milk and butter you feed the little ones.

¶I personally inspect creameries that furnish these requisites. The Producers Creamery far exceeded my expectations. I have never seen a plant of this kind in a more sanitary condition. It could almost be called one hundred per cent plus. Hot water and steam sterilization is applied to all machinery daily.

¶This is my fifth year to use Producers Creamery Co.'s products in my Wichita Falls school and I am happy to say that I am now using exclusively.

Windows of the Soul

The old adage that "the eyes are the windows of the soul" speaks volumes of truth. For what a dreary life it would be if we lived in darkness, groping about aimlessly. The average person does not fully appreciate his priceless gift of sight. Of all the five senses, sight is by far the most important. For by it we see our fellow man, his handiwork, our great cities, high mountains, and vast oceans. In fact, the greater part of our education is made possible by our ability to see and observe. Imagine the thrill you would have if you had been partially blind for a time and were made to see again. There are many people still groping; those unfortunates who, in a majority of cases, could be made to see and enjoy life as it really is.

Although most people regard their eyes as very remarkable organs, their construction and function are often misunderstood. A perfect eye is termed emmetropic; that is, it is considered to be optically perfect and should register a clear image of every object observed. When there is a structural defect and the eye is not perfect, it may be classed in three ways. First, when the eye is short and not normal in length, it is farsighted, or hyperopic. Practically everyone is born with this type of eye, with 80 per cent remaining so. Second; when the eye is longer than the normal in length, it is nearsighted of myopic. These eyes usually start out as farsighted but grow too long. Third, when the curative is not the same in all meridians, as a perfectly round ball would be, it is astigmatic. This defect can be present with either hyperopia of myopia.

The eyes, like the digestive system, are subject to great abuse in our modern way of living. We live in an age of stress and strain, consequently the human system is under pressure most of the time. Can you conceive of delicate organs like the eyes being driven to work 8 to 12 hours a day at close, confining work, when they are constructed to do only from three to four hours work daily, comfortably, and without strain? As contrasted to our city life with factories, office buildings, automobiles and theaters, our forefathers spent their lives out of doors. Thus their eyes were given more rest because their everyday work was not as confining as ours.

Eyestrain is one of the greatest drains upon the nervous system and should be checked before serious trouble begins. Such disorders as stomach trouble, headaches, dizziness and nervousness are but a few ways in which your eyes can affect your whole system if they are defective. Eyestrain is not necessarily accompanied by poor visison, and is not always recognized readily unless a thorough examination is made by one who is trained in its detection. This is the work of the optimetrist or eye specialist. His thorough knowledge of physiology and anatomy not only of the eyes, but of the whole body, places him in a position to judge whether or not eyestrain is present.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Sinus Trouble

Question—Mrs. A. F. asks: "Will you please explain the cause and how you treat sinus trouble? After one has it once are they likely to have it again? How can you prevent it?"

Answer: Most sinus trouble is caused by a general catarrhal condition perhaps brought into an acute form through some bacterial invasion to the mucous membrane. It can be prevented and also cured almost entirely through following the proper diet. I have a special article on sinus trouble which I will be glad to send you, but until you receive this article, eliminate all decidedly starchy foods as well as sugars and fats.

Bleeding Gums

Question—Mrs. H. M. R. writes: "Please tell me what causes my mouth, gums and tongue to bleed when I eat apples. Also, when eating grapes is it necessary to take out the seeds? I always swallow them and have had no bad effects."

Answer—You are undoubtedly suffering from pyorrhea or trench mouth and should see your dentist at once and have this condition corrected through local treatments. I advise using the entire grape, seeds and all, as this makes good roughage for the intestines.

Dizzy Spells

Question—Subscriber writes: "I have severe dizzy spells and pains in the back of my head. I have taken calomel and salts but my tongue is badly coated. I am 48 years of age. Is it just old age creeping on me, or is there anything I can do to relieve my trouble?"

Answer—You are a comparatively young woman and should not feel any infirmaties of age. It is unwise for me to attempt to diagnose your case through this column. What you need is not calomel and salts, but a good diagnosis in order to find out the cause of your trouble. It may be due only to billousness, or a toxic condition of your system, which can be easily cured through proper hygienic measures.

FAVORITE JOKES OF FAMOUS FOLK

As Told by Them to FRANK E. NICHOLSON

Walter Pritchard Eaton is known the country over not only as a lecturer and literary critic, but as the author of some two dozen books as well. The younger generation will recognize him as the author of numerous Boy Scout novels.

Walter P. Eaton

Eaton says that his favorite joke comes from Arkansas. "A waggish motorist," the story goes, "stopped before a house in the Booger Holler region.

"'Ah!' he ah-ed, 'raising your house, I see. I suppose—ha! ha!—that the baby dropped a nickel through a hole in the floor, and you are elevating the edifice in order to recover the money?'

"'I d'know why it's being raised, 'beux it hain't my house,' replied Lafe Lopp, a prominent citizen, 'but I got an idy that they bought the cellar from one of the big mail-order stores, and it wuz so long a-coming that they gave up expecting it; and now that it's yur they've got to boost up the house to slip it under.'"

British Financier Is Granted Divorce

LONDON, Oct. 23. (UP)—Sir Max Bonn, millionaire British banker, who was born in New York, was granted a divorce today from Lady Hilda Beatrix Bonn.

The divorce court granted Sir Max a decree nisi, on the ground of misconduct on the part of his wife.

Sir Max was born in New York in 1867, son of the late William B. Bonn. He has had a notable career in British merchant-financing and quasi-public service.

Because of the prominence of those involved, the case attracted wide interest. It was referred to as the "hush hush" case.

Thirteen lawyers fought the case, including seven eminent king's counsels, and it was estimated the lawyers' fees amounted to nearly $500,000.

$2,000,000 Mining Suit Settled by Compromise

MIAMI, Okla., Oct. 23. (AP)—Settlement of a suit over valuable mining land in the lead and zinc field near Quapaw, Okla., involving about $2,000,000, was announced today by Miami attorneys representing both sides of the litigation. A compromise stipulation filed in district court awards $10,000 to Charles A. Malsbury and associates of Joplin, Mo., and restores title to the 40 acres of land to heirs of the late Lisle Mishler.

Mrs. Lilla M. Mishler of Kansas City, formerly of Cherokee county, Kans., filed the original suit, alleging that Malsbury and his associates obtained the land from her husband "wrongfully and unlawfully."

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE "FAMOUS FIRST LADIES"

During Madison's second term war was declared against Great Britain. In August, 1814, the British army landed on the coast and made a quick march to the capital. The President and his cabinet retired to Virginia; but Mrs. Madison stayed behind in the presidential mansion, shudderingly straining her ears for the sound of the cannon at Bladensburg.

A carriage was ready at the door, filled with household silver and government papers, while Mrs. Madison awaited her husband's instructions.

A messenger arrived, bearing a scribbled note from the President. Mrs. Madison prepared to fly from the city.

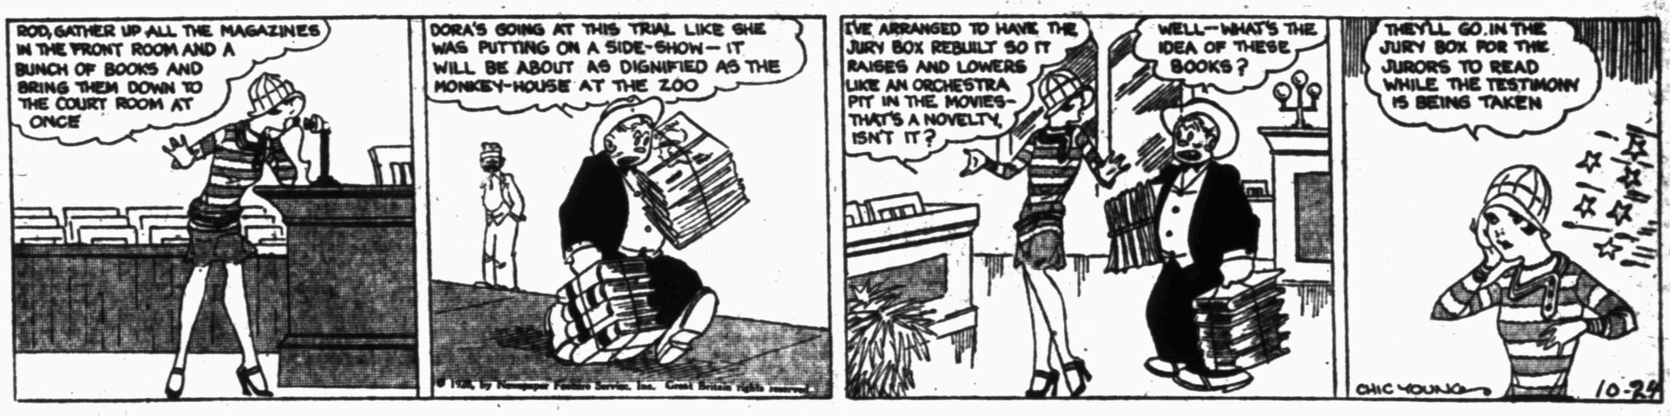

Just as she was about to depart her eye fell on Stuart's portrait of Washington, which hung in the state dining room. She tore the picture from the wall and ripped the canvas from its place. "Take care of that," she cried to some friends, "but destroy it before you let it fall into the hands of the British." The portrait is still a White House treasure.

M'CALLUM SEEKS NEW BACKS FOR VERNON CLASH SATURDAY

BAINS LOOMS AS NEW 'FIND'

But Clarence Is Inexperienced As Ball-Toter

By GORDON FULCHER

Seeking to uncover new backfield material before the clash Saturday with the Vernon Lions, Coach Bud McCallum continued to shift positions and work second-stringers Tuesday in his practice session with the Wichita Falls high school Coyotes.

One ball-carrying prospect demonstrated quite a bit of natural ability when Clarence Bains, who has shown up well at end all season, began carrying the oval. Bains probably could be turned into a dependable back but his services at end would be seriously missed.

Bob Carstarphen, a plucky little reserve end, would no doubt be called upon to fill Bains' place if the latter is shifted to the backfield.

Other Lads Look Good

Jack Carstarphen, who has been doing duty as a reserve back, and Paul Dickey, a former Reagan junior high star, also showed ability in the array of reserve material.

Dick Hambrick, who has been on the injured list for three weeks, will be in condition for the contest Saturday, while Kenneth Mills, star fullback, is fully recovered from a neck injury sustained in the game last week with Electra.

Line work is by no means being neglected in the Coyote mentor's search for new backs and linemen are taking hard sessions under the direction of Assistant Coach Bill Morris. The forward wall will again be handicapped by injuries in Saturday's game.

Jack West, husky tackle who has suffered leg injuries since the first week of the season, is again on the injured list with damaged underpinnings.

More Cripples

Jud Bell, guard, is still suffering from a twisted knee sustained in the Electra skirmish and probably will not be able to resume his position in time for Saturday's game. Rollin Dixon, guard, completed the list of injured linemen Monday when he turned a weak ankle.

West and Dixon probably will be in shape for the clash with the Lions.

Interest among the members of the high school and Junior college student bodies in the Coyotes' game this week exceeds all demonstrations put on this season. A large pep squad, the high school band and numberless students are expected to attend the game, while more than 50 per cent of the teachers plan to be among the spectators at Vernon Saturday.

GRID ELEVENS PLAY AT NOON

South Carolina and Clemson Meet Tomorrow

By BRIAN BELL

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (AP)—A football game to be played at noon Thursday—an odd hour and an odd day for football—will not create much excitement generally but means much to the state of South Carolina. The University of South Carolina and Clemson college will play their annual game at the South Carolina State fair and the season will be made for one and ruined for the other, regardless of the schedule that is to come.

When the Gamecocks of South Carolina meet the Tigers of Clemson past performances are "thrown out" and anything can happen. Frequently it does. They have been rivals since the gay nineties with a slight hiatus in the naughty naughts, following a riot in 1902.

This year the State university and State Agricultural and Mechanical college meet without a defeat marring either's record.

Johnston Criticized For Ban on Betting

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 20. (UP)—Governor Henry S. Johnston today was criticized by Judge Asa E. Walden for ordering betting stopped in dog racing in Tulsa, while horse racing flourished in the same city.

Walden refused to stop dog racing in Wewoka although he held that dog races are a public nuisance.

Ray to Race El Ouafi Oct. 30 at Philadelphia

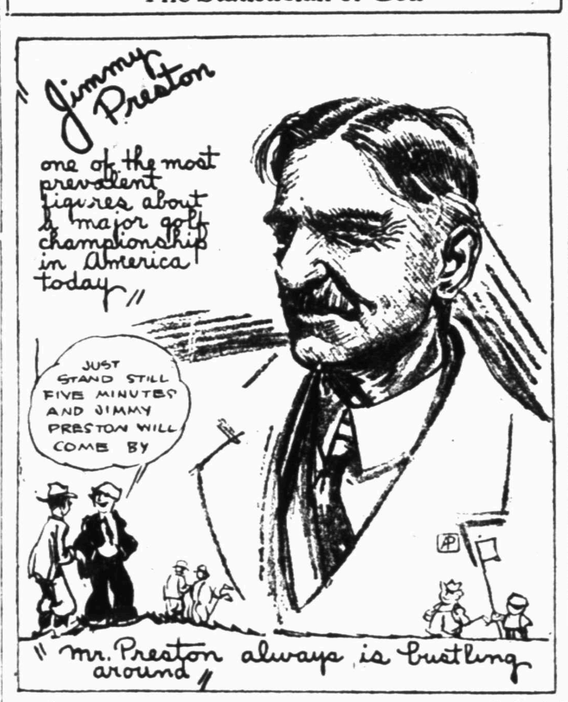

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (UP)—Joie Ray will continue his pursuit of El Ouafi's distance running honors in Philadelphia on Oct. 30, when they meet in a 16-mile race.

Disgruntled by his defeat in his first professional appearance, Ray kept his chest as inflated as ever as he promised to take the measure of the Olympic champion at the shorter distance next week.

A Philadelphia promoter after watching the race won by El Ouafi Sunday night, and observing the attendance—which was considerably less than 13,000 announced by the management—signed the runners, together with Arthur Newton of Rhodesia, to meet some local talents on Oct. 30.

The Statistician of Golf

By O. B. KEELER

One of the most prevalent figures about a major golf championship in America today is James T. Preston of Washington, and to say you don't know Jimmy Preston argues yourself unknown to a most grievious degree, which I trust you will have the good sense not to admit, when you finally make your belated appearance at one of the national championships and observe a tall, thin man with a magnificent nose and a bristling moustache bustling around the official scoreboard and the press section. Mr. Preston always is bustling around. We evolved a perfectly certain way of locating him at Virginia Hot Springs, where Mr. Preston was directing the statistical activities that are such a vital part of every golf tournament. It was I who wanted Jimmy at the moment. We all have got in the comfortable habit of asking Mr. Preston. We ask him—well, anything. And he tells us.

"Don't get excited," advised Bryan Bell of the A. P. "Just stand still five minutes and Jimmy Preston will come by. It doesn't matter where you stand."

Mr. Preston for many years before his connection with the United States Golf association and for 31 years to date has been head of the press gallery in the United States senate. He was director of the press galleries at the last two national conventions, in Kansas City and St. Louis. He is a nut on golf and a wheelhorse in the public links section of the U. S. G. A. And as a statistician Jimmy Preston is what popularly and flatteringly is known as a demon.

Just to afford you an idea, now.

Aware of the proclivities of golf writers for leaving their red books at home and asking each other abstruse questions as to what was the last time Miss Genevieve Hecker won the national championship and who beat her next year, Mr. Preston, as a light diversion and complete rest of the mind between the national conventions this year, compiled a book of his own from records in the Congressional library, giving in detail the complete record of every man who ever qualified in the amateur golfing championship of the United States—more than 1,100 of them—giving his performance in every national amateur in which he played. And after the battle of Brae Burn, having brought the gentlemen up to date with that campaign, he compiled another book on the ladies in their championship and brought it thoughtfully to Virginia Hot Springs.

"Quiet, children; teacher is about to open school!" observed Mr. Preston, tilting his chair backward and his spectacles downward, before a round white iron table on the lawn at the Cascades. And the children were quiet. We all ask Jimmy Preston—you have no idea how many questions arise at a golf championship. And Jimmy tells us.

Long may he bustle! What would a major tournament be without him? I shudder to think.

Many Big Grid Games Scheduled For Last Saturday in October

By BRIAN BELL

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (AP)—October coming in like a football lamb will leave with the roar of a lion as Saturday, Oct. 27, brings natural rivals together in many sections of the country. Few October afternoons have prepared a more bountiful feast for hungry followers of the autumn sport.

Especially in the East is the day rich in football color. Army and Yale, Princeton and Cornell, Dartmouth-Harvard and Syracuse-Penn State are only a few of the games in which interest is centered.

Moving west, Iowa and Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin and Nebraska-Missouri are some of the high lights, while in the South the season is in full swing with Vanderbilt-Virginia, Georgia Tech-North Carolina and Georgia and Tulane meeting in games certain to have a bearing on the success or failure of seasons.

Yale and Army have the matter of a 10 to 6 victory for the Elis over the Cadets, brought over by the Army as unfinished business from last year's program. A stunned Army team saw Bruce Caldwell toss a pass to Quarrier for a touchdown and later groaned as the great back kicked a field goal to make the Blue triumph complete. Yale in the same game stopped the crew of Biff Jones right on the goal line and there is some speculation as to whether this can be repeated. Yale has no Caldwell to throw passes this year and no Quarrier to catch them, but there is a Garvey who can run and a Decker who can place obstacles in the way of the other fellow dbing much running on an ambitious scale.

Princeton and Cornell, which resumed play last season after a vacation of 20 years, meet at Princeton with a thought of a busy afternoon at Ithaca a year ago when Princeton won 21 to 10. Cornell will enter the game with a rest of two weeks. Two great pessimists meet in the rival coaches Gil Dobie of Cornell and Bill Roper of Princeton.

Harvard fell before Dartmouth 30 to 6 at their last meeting, but indications point to a closer struggle this year and Pittsburgh may not be able to defeat Carnegie Tech 23 to 7, as was the case last year. These two teams will be playing for the championship of Pittsburgh among other things.

Pennsylvania has high hopes of reversing a 12 to 6 verdict in favor of the Navy last season when games were resumed between the neighboring teams after a lapse.

Minnesota defeated Iowa 38 to 0 last year and 35 to 0 the year before, but even the most partisan of the Minneapolis team's supporters will not expect these scores to be repeated. Iowa has Mays McLain, the big Cherokee brave, to throw against the Galloping Gophers from fullback, while Minnesota can counter with Bronko Nagurski, a converted tackle. In other years the fullbacks have played a prominent part in this game. Herb Joesting led the attack in the Gophers' last successes. Gordon Lacke did the major part of the heavy work for the Hawkeyes when Minnesota was taking as much as it gave in the annual clashes.

An up and coming Ohio State team meeting an aggressive Indiana outfit should make a sharp smart struggle. These two did not play in 1927. Michigan was two touchdowns better than Wisconsin in the last meeting, but the Wolverines, who have been having their troubles, probably will not be made favorites Saturday.

Nebraska and Missouri, traditional rivals, will charge at each other from the outset with the result as always in doubt. There is only one point's difference last year Missouri winning 7 to 6, and both teams are powerful this season. The Dakotas are all mixed up in a civil war, the University of South Dakota playing the South Dakota Aggies, while the University of North Dakota meets the North Dakota Aggies. The universities won both arguments last year.

Georgia Tech with another powerful team, should win from North Carolina's less experienced outfit, but the Tarheels can never be held lightly, and Vanderbilt, hailed as one of the Southern conference's best elevens, may have its hands full with Virginia, a team evidently able to rise above the handicap of injuries to key men. Georgia, evidently somewhat below its sensational form of 1927, seems likely to have some points shaved from its 31 to 0 defeat of Tulane in their last encounter, but should get the decision over the Greenies.

In the Far West, Washington and Oregon's Aggies will play at Seattle with no score from last year to vex the situation. The clash between Montana and Montana State was decided in 1927 by a close count of 6 to 0 in favor of the team from Missoula.

Few of the contesting teams, East, West or South, may regard themselves as "in" before the start and the goblins of Hallowe'en will get them if they don't watch out.

RUNYON WRITES OF ARMY-YALE

Says It Will Be Meeting Of Two Strong Teams

By DAMON RUNYON

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—There is much chatter about the Army-Navy game at New Haven Saturday.

I saw the Army gladiators against Harvard last Saturday, when they won by a score of 15 to 0. I regret to state that on that occasion, a low, mean suspicion entered my mind. A suspicion that I hope and trust was entirely groundless. But I dunno.

I have followed the sour science so long that my mind has become strangely susceptible to suspicion. I see untoward purpose in what may be quite innocent moves. I scent sinister motives in what may be entirely harmless, and unconsidered gyration. One gets that way following the sour science.

Thus at Cambridge last Saturday, glaring at the Army Gladiators working on the Harvardians, I felt stealing o'er me that same vague impression I have sometimes gathered while sitting at the ringside watching a couple of the lads picking flowers.

I half expected to hear some of the folks in the stadium start whistling the soothing strains of "Three O'clock in the Morning," after the manner of the galleryites when they think the lads in the ring are performing a waltz. I mean to say there formed in my bean the crude suspicion that somebody was "carrying" somebody down there on the Harvard gridiron.

I may be quite, quite wrong, but I think perhaps the Army didn't bear down on the noble young gridironers of fair Harvard. It seemed to me that after they got their 15, the soldiers "went along" with their earnest, but somewhat inefficient opponents. The football savants to the contrary notwithstanding, I thought the Army could have opened in the late rounds and completely flattened Harvard, instead of letting her go the distance.

Thinks Army Stalled

Now in the sour science when a gladiator "goes along" with an opponent, meaning that he doesn't knock him out, there is generally a motive. Sometimes it is a return match. Sometimes it is because they are friends. Sometimes it is because the superior gladiator couldn't get the match if he didn't agree to "go along," and sometimes he doesn't wish to mash up his hands.

I thought the Army "carried" Harvard mainly to conceal certain Army plays that General "Biff" Jones, the Army coach, wishes to use against Yale next Saturday. Yale scouts may have been glaring down on the field of action with notebooks in hand. I suppose that would be the logical explanation.

Then again perhaps the Army felt that if it knocked fair Harvard completely cuckoo, there might be a beef, or complaint from the clients, such as arises when a seasoned exponent of the sour science manhandles a setup. There has been some gab as it is, about the inhumanity of the Army playing those veterans of the Spanish-American war who are in its lineup, against the half-baked young collegians and perhaps the Army figured that a 55 to 0 score wouldn't have helped this situation.

Merely Speculating

I am merely speculating, you understand. As I say, I hope and trust my horrid suspicions are wholly unfounded.

Sometimes, you know, when a champion fails to promptly belt out a sucker opponent after trying the best he knows, the champ's friends and fond admirers alibi his failure by hinting that he was under wraps.

Maybe the Army was leveling all the way, and Harvard was just a little stouter than it thought. But after the first touchdown, I thought the gentlemen from the Hudson were merely practicing punches for a spell.

By way of showing what they could do when they desired, they later put on a 70-yard drive, and wound it up with an astounding forward pass from Mr. Red Christian Cagle to Messinger, for another touchdown. It was just a flash of power, such as happens when a setup happens to sting a party who is trying to carry him, and gets knocked down for his temerity.

It struck me that the Army young men got laid out with astonishing frequency. Every time you looked down at the field some soldier was stretched from north to south or east to west, and a little tea wagon that the Army is using as a medical transport, wore wheel ruts in the greensward.

These knockouts might argue lack of condition. They might suggest unsuspected hitting power on the part of Harvard. And then a baser mind might form the horrendous thought that perhaps the lads were stalling. I dunno. I am sure I dunno.

Army Looks Strong

It struck me that the Army has a first rate football team when it is under a drive. I haven't seen the manly cohorts of Yale, though I have picked them to lick all their opponents by large pluralities this season. Perhaps I should have held out the Army.

They tell me that the soldiers may be playing Princeton in a season or two, along with Harvard and Yale I see in this a plot on the part of the Army to demoralize the football east. They'll presently need older and stronger veterans than they've got to go through their schedule. They'll have to go back to members of Napoleon's old guard for recruits.

Without having any fixed views on the subject, it does seem to me that the Army takes a little advantage of the collegians in playing men of years of football experience against the less mature collegians. However, I cannot understand the Army argument that it is limited in its football material, and must play the men it gets.

And as long as the colleges seem glad to play the soldiers, with their gate-drawing potentialities, who am I to trouble my noodle about such things?

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

A MAN WRITES a letter and asks me why don't I say something about the University of Oklahoma football team. He signs himself as "Sooner," and so I infer he is a native of that fair neighboring state of ours. Well, Mr. "Sooner," I'll write something about your football team. I think it is a good football team. It must have been to have gone all the way to Omaha and beaten a good club like Creighton. And it fought Indiana, which I note is cutting some capers up in the Big Ten, off its feet and lost only in the last few minutes of the game.

◇ ◇ ◇

"Sooner" sends a schedule of the Oklahoma eleven on which he makes note that they are playing no setups. And indeed they aren't. After the two tough games they've had up in the north they still have a flock of bruising contests. They meet Kansas Aggies next Saturday at Norman and then follow in succession Iowa State at Ames, Nebraska at Norman, Kansas at Lawrence, Oklahoma Aggies at Stillwater and Missouri at Norman. Except for Nebraska I believe that is the hardest schedule undertaken by a team in the Missouri Valley region.

◇ ◇ ◇

OKLAHOMA and Texas resume grid relations next year at the state fair at Dallas. This is of great interest to football enthusiasts in this section. The clashes of the Steers and Sooners were features of southwestern football before they were discontinued after the game in 1923. I saw one of them in the days when Benny Owen was coaching his great elevens. Owen was a great coach. He is a unique character in the game. Benny has been at Oklahoma since about 1905. He retired as active coach last fall to assume the sole duties as athletic director. He is beloved at Oklahoma, as he should be. Oklahoma football and Benny Owen have been successful together.

Ad Lindsey is each of the Sooners now. He is an Oklahoma boy, but gained his football fame at the University of Kansas. Incidentally, Owen went to Oklahoma more than two decades ago from Kansas, where he was a player or assistant coach, I don't recall which.

IN 19 GAMES between Texas and Oklahoma, the Steers have won 11, the Sooners seven and one was a tie. Following are the results of previous Texas and Oklahoma grid engagements:

1900—Oklahoma	2	Texas	28

WHERE ARE THE GRID stars of yesteryear? The bard who penned that old saw about fame being fleeting must have been writing about heroes of the white-lined fields. Where is Grange? Two years ago, even last winter, he was a leading luminary of sport. He's in obscurity now. Recall the outstanding grid players of last year. Bruce Caldwell. He's the Yale star who was banned from the Princeton and Harvard games on account of ineligibility. To be sure he was in the public eye this year in making a big league baseball debut with Cleveland. But he's forgotten now as a gridder.

◇ ◇ ◇

CAN YOU NAME SIX outstanding stars of last season? Do you recall Gerald Mann and Joel Hunt? Perhaps. But how about Joesting? Can you name where and what he played? He was one of the greatest backs the Minnesota Gophers ever boasted. And Bennie Friedman? Michigan never had his superior as a master of open football and as a quarterback.

Record Election Bet In 7 to 4 For Hoover

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (UP)—The largest election bet yet recorded was placed with the brokerage firm of J. S. Fried, 20 Broad street, favoring Hoover for $70,000 to $40,000, a representative of the firm announced. At the same time a bet of $15,000, even, that Hoover would defeat Smith in New York state was recorded.

Girl Fatally Burned When Gasoline Blazes

PARIS, Texas, Oct. 23. (AP)—Burns received when a lighted match was thrown into a small vessel containing gasoline late yesterday proved fatal to Mazzie Lou Suddeth, infant daughter of Ernest Suddeth, of Roxton, Lamar county.

Mrs. Suddeth also was burned when she attempted to extinguish the child's blazing clothing.

Dailey Picks 29 Winners in 36 Games

Raises Average for Season to Mark of .807

Larry Dailey regained some points last Saturday which he had lost the previous week in his football prognostications. In 39 games last Saturday Dailey picked 29 winners and had seven losers and three ties, a mark of .806. This gives him an average of .807 for the season to date.

The games Larry forecast wrong last week were the defeats of Texas Aggies by T. C. U., Centenary by Baylor, Alabama by Tennessee, Virginia by V. M. I., Kansas State by Kansas, Holy Cross by Fordham and Colorado Aggies by Utah. The ties were Wisconsin and Purdue, Bucknell and LaFayette and California and Southern California.

One of Dailey's best forecasts of last week was in selecting Georgia Tech to beat Notre Dame, contrary to the opinion of a majority of critics, at least those of the east. Dailey picked Tech to win, 13-7; they won, 13-0.

He missed the exact scores on the Northwestern-Kentucky game by one point and on the Colgate-Michigan State melee by two points. He was close to the Army-Harvard score, which he forecast to be 13-3 and which resulted 15-0. Following are his forecasts and the results, the prediction named first and the actual score next:

Texas-Arkansas 13-6, 20-7.
Texas Aggies-T. C. U. 14-7, 0-6.
S. M. U.-Rice 13-0, 53-13.
Centenary-Baylor 14-0, 7-28.
Texas Tech-McMurry 16-0, 3-0.
Alabama-Tennessee 13-0, 13-15.
Georgia-Furman 20-0, 7-0.
Georgia Tech-Notre Dame, 13-7, 13-0.
Vanderbilt-Tulane 14-0, 13-6.
Virginia-V. M. I. 13-6, 0-0.
West Virginia-Washington & Lee 10-0, 22-0.
Minnesota-Chicago 13-0, 33-7.
Illinois-Indiana 14-7, 13-7.
Ohio State-Michigan 10-3, 19-7.
Wisconsin-Purdue 13-6, 19-19.
Iowa-Ripon 21-0, 61-6.
Northwestern-Kentucky 13-7, 28-19.
Kansas State-Kansas 12-6, 0-7.
Marquette-Okla. Aggies 13-0, 26-0.
Colgate-Michigan State 14-0, 16-0.
Nebraska-Syracuse 13-0, 7-6.
Oklahoma-Creighton 14-7, 7-0.
Amherst-Hamilton 7-0, 19-0.
Army-Harvard 13-3, 15-0.
Yale-Brown 14-0, 32-14.
Carnegie Tech-Washington and Jefferson 13-6, 19-0.
Dartmouth-Columbia 12-0, 21-7.
Holy Cross-Fordham 21-0, 13-19.
Princeton-Lehigh 14-0, 47-0.
Navy Duke 17-0, 6-0.
New York-Rutgers 24-0, 48-0.
Penn-Penn State 13-6, 14-0.
Pittsburgh-Allegheny 20-0, 29-0.
Williams-Rensallaer 10-0, 26-7.
Wesleyan-Rochester 13-0, 14-13.
California-South California 13-10, 0-0.

'LAW' IS LAID DOWN TO ACE

Hudkins Given Two Days To Accept Ring Offer

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (AP)—Ace Hudkins, Nebraska wildcat, was given two days' time today in which to signify his desire to climb back to the challenging post in the middleweight division. Tom McArdle, Madison Square garden, slapped that time limit on an offer to match the ace with Rene de Vos, Belgian star, for a bout December 10, with a shot at Mickey Walker's championship dangled before the victor.

A prospective heavyweight battle between Roberto Roberti and Knute Hansen fell apart today when it was announced that the Italian will sail soon for Italy to allow two broken ribs to mend in his peaceful native sunshine.

Nine Eastern Grid Elevens Unbeaten

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (UP)—Nine major football teams in the East retain perfect records without a defeat or tie, with Army, Yale, Dartmouth, and New York university standing out as the leaders.

The other five undefeated teams are Pennsylvania, Carnegie Tech, Cornell, Georgetown and Boston college. Princeton is also unbeaten but the Tigers have a scoreless tie with Virginia to mar their record.

Prominent Sportsman Dead After Long Illness

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 23. (AP)—J. Langford Stack, 56, internationally prominent sportsman, died at his home in Hollywood today after a lingering illness.

At the bedside when Stack died were his wife, Elizabeth Wood Stack, whom he remarried last September after a divorce seven years ago, and the couple's children, Bobby, 9, and James Jr., 12.

Stack was well known both in this country and abroad as a polo player and proponent of athletics.

DUNDEE BEATS LANGFORD

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23. (AP)—Joe Dundee of Baltimore, welterweight champion, won the decision over Walcott Langford, in a slashing 10-round bout at the arena tonight. Both fighters were overweight and Dundee's title was not at stake.

State Conference Elevens to Play

Daniel Baker Meets Simmons in Non-Loop Tilt

DALLAS, Oct. 23. (AP)—The coming week-end finds a lull in activities of the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic association and only two conference contests have been carded.

Stephen F. Austin Teachers, seemingly buried in the cellar with three setbacks journeys far across the state to meet the East Texas Teachers at Commerce. The former squad has dropped both games with T. I. A. A. elevens and the latter has won one contest and has been outscored in another.

In non-conference tilts Abilene Christian college, pacesetters of the lop with three victories and no defeats, engages Sul Ross at Alpine. Daniel Baker, also undefeated, faces one of the hardest games on its schedule in taking the field against Simmons university at Abilene.

Tribe Set For Game Tomorrow at Arlington

Coach Baggett sent his Wichita Falls Junior college Indians through a last hard workout yesterday in preparation for the game tomorrow with the North Texas Aggies at Arlington. This second conference scrap of the Tribe is expected to be one of their hardest of the season and Baggett has his charges ready to play their best football.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Doc Johnson of Pittsburgh states that when a person falls asleep he loses most of his dignity.

In that case he is still normal.

The Doc wasn't rapping the senate. Neither is he a peeping Tom. He is a scientist who knows dignity when he sees it.

He must be a student of that new business called behaviorism. Thanks to the scientists of the nation, we are rapidly becoming educated in puzzles without pencils.

We know nothing about dignity, but we do claim to be an authority on sleeping.

We would like to know how any man can look distinguished in a set of pajamas that make him look like the Graf Zeppelin with a puncture.

He may be asleep but he is still a lion. And you can act like a vegetable and still eat meat.

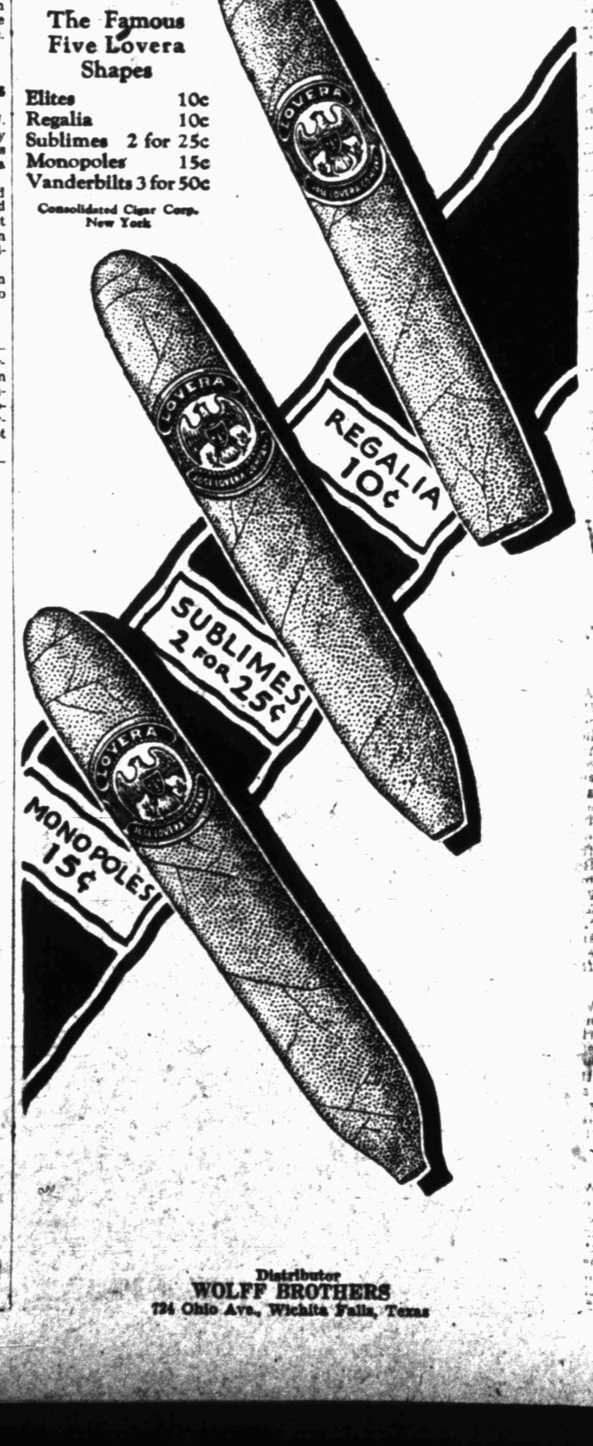

We fail to see the Doc's object in making a news reel out of comatose debility. Like most college lecturers we can safely state that he can get plenty of sleeping subjects right in his schoolroom.

For we will be asleep.

JEFFRIES TO SEE RING GO

Former Champ Attends Tonight's Bout Here

ABOUT THE BOUTS

Dempse Moore vs. Warnie Smith, boxing, 10 rounds.

George Barnes vs. Bulldog Joe Turner, wrestling, finish match, best two falls of three, N. Y. commission rules.

Guest of honor: James J. Jeffries, former world's heavyweight boxing champion.

Perhaps the regular customers at the weekly sports card staged by Promoter Alex B. Ross are wondering why the program this week set the show for Wednesday night instead of for the usual Tuesday.

The one-day change in date was made by Ross in order to time the card with the visit in Wichita Falls of James J. Jeffries, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, who yesterday wired Ross from Amarillo that he would be in Wichita Falls Wednesday to visit with him. Jeffries appears here Thursday and Friday on a vaudeville program and Wednesday being a holiday for the former king of the ring, he decided to spend it in Wichita Falls looking around.

The feature number of Wednesday evening's program will be a 10-round boxing go between Dempse Moore, Wichita Falls light heavyweight, and Warnie Smith of Ponca City, Okla.

Moore appeared here last week to knock out Joe Hewitt, Babe Hunt's sparring mate. Smith, however, is a boxer of 10 years' experience and will be about the toughest proposition the Wichita Falls battler has yet tackled.

To give the wrestling fans their quota of entertainment, Ross will present George Barnes and Bulldog Joe Turner in a finish match, two best falls out of three, New York commission rules.

Two four-round boxing matches will constitute the preliminary card.

AROUND THE RING

By CHARLES W. KUNKLEY

CHICAGO, Oct. 23. (AP)—Successively the welterweight and middleweight champion, Mickey Walker aspires to annex his third world's boxing title.

The New Jersey bull dog is determined to win the world's light-heavyweight championship now held by Tommy Loughran.

Deep, down in his heart Walker is convinced he can lick the clever Philadelphian and is equally convinced that he can stow away any one of a half a dozen leading heavyweight contenders, foremost among them Jack Sharkey.

Walker's achievement in knocking out Armand Emanuel, the San Francisco light heavyweight who outweighed him by 12 pounds, has set him in line for a match with Loughran. Walker finds himself in a spot where Tex Rickards wants the match for Madison Square garden and Jim Mullen, the Chicago promoter, is equally hot after it. Walker is a warm favorite with Chicagoans.

In stopping Emanuel, Walker accomplished something that Loughran was unable to do. Emanuel extended the Philadelphian as Loughran was never extended before in their 10-round contest. He finished the job that Loughran was unable to complete.

Walker honestly believes that he can knock out Jack Sharkey or any other heavyweight contender. The big fellows, he says, are easy for him to hit and they fall if you hit them.

"I do not say this boastfully," the New Jersey bull dog says, "but I am convinced that I can stop Sharkey and would like to fight him right in his home town, Boston. I never have any trouble with these big fellows. I know that Sharkey would be pie for me."

Jack Kearns, Walker's pilot, shares Mickey's views as regards his ability to knock over the heavyweights. He says Walker would handle them as did Joe Wolcott and Sam Langford.

Did you know that Eddie McGoorty, once a hurricane in the middleweight ranks, is running a small hotel and restaurant in Hurley, Wisconsin. . . . Pinky Mitchell, elongated Milwaukee welterweight, is conducting a boxing school in the one-time "beer city" and thinking of retiring. . . . Big Bill Tate, once chief shock absorber for Jack Dempsey, is a deputy sheriff in Chicago. . . . Jim Mullen's middle name is Code, but the Chicago promoter doesn't know why. . . . Emil Thiery, former manager of Packey McFarland, is a race track handicapper for a Chicago paper. . . .

Harmony Rules At Michigan U.

Yost and Wieman Deny Differences Exist

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 23. (UP)—Athletic Director Fielding H. Yost and "Tad" Wilson, head coach, following a harmony meeting of University of Michigan football coaches today issued a joint statement denying published reports that there was a difference between the two.

The statement signed by Yost and Wieman said the reports were "utterly without foundation."

Rumors had been current on the campus recently that Yost was going to resign and later reports were that Wieman would quit. The statement today was accepted as a denial of both reports. The basis of the rumors was said to be football defeats in early Michigan games.

AMERICAN INJURED

VIENNA, Oct. 23. (UP)—An American, Anton Rainer, was reported in the press today to have been among the Jewish students injured during the anti-Semitic rioting in Budapest yesterday. After a prolonged demonstration during the night, anti-Semitic students sought to raid the ministry of education but were dispersed by mounted police, dispatches said.

New Air Mail Lines

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23. (UP)—Two new international air mail lines, one from Winnipeg to the twin cities and a second from Toronto to Buffalo, N. Y., are being considered by postal officials of the United States and Canada, Second Assistant Postmaster General Glover said today.

U. S. Supreme Court Hangs Up New Mark in Disposing of Cases

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23. (UP)—The U. S. supreme court has set a record for itself—and a precedent for lower federal courts—by disposing of more than 250 appeals out of 800 filed in the first three weeks of its annual term.

Only two opinions have been announced. By perusal of the hundreds of briefs filed, however, the court has been able to skim through the entire docket and clear the decks for action on the remaining 250 cases it deems worthy of further consideration.

Probably not more than 100 will be formally argued, as 80 per cent of the cases are rejected and dismissed before this stage is reached.

A dozen more cases will be heard this week, and the court will adjourn Monday for a three-week recess to consider the cases under advisement, which also include a half dozen carried over from last term, one of which is the famous Chicago water diversion case.

Meantime, scores of other petitions for review are pouring in. Cases on the court's docket by the end of the term in June will number 1,000 or more.

The important pending cases affect a dozen vital economic factors of American life. In addition to the subway fare case, three street car fare cases from Los Angeles, Philadelphia and Baltimore, are on the docket.

The lake cargo coal rate decision, involving an economic conflict of the first magnitude between northern and southern coal operators, the goal of which is the entire Great Lakes cargo trade, is scheduled to be taken up for argument in the next few months. The O'Fallen railroad valuation case, which may decide the entire structure of valuation on which the Interstate Commerce commission fixes freight rates, is set for hearing in January. An Interstate Commerce decision lowering rates from California eastward on that state's huge grape crop, appealed by the railroads, also is pending.

World's Largest Airships May Take Off From Station At Once

NAVAL AIR STATION, LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 23. (INS)—Thousands of Americans may have the privilege of being witnesses to the unique and historic spectacle of the world's two largest airships taking off simultaneously from the landing field here Thursday morning. This became known today when Lieutenant-Commander C. H. Wiley, acting commandant of the navy dirigible Los Angeles, announced that midnight Wednesday has been set as the zero hour for the station personnel's liberty. This means that, provided weather conditions and wind are favorable, the Los Angeles will be taken out of the hangar and moored on the stub mast some time between minight and dawn, preparatory to a take-off at daybreak.

Although the Graf Zeppelin is expected to be ready for a take-off late tonight, officers of the ship and naval officers here announced that the air liner will not start on her midwestern flight before Thursday morning. Commander Wiley, therefore, indicated the possibility of the Graf Zeppelin and the Los Angeles taking off the same morning.

Soldier of Fortune, 98, Takes First Plane Ride and Predicts Big Things

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 23. (INS)—"Flying is the only mode of travel for my generation," said Gen. C. H. Montgomerie y Agramonte, 98 years old and a veteran of five wars, today after his first airplane ride.

"I was up in a balloon 66 years ago," said the venerable general. "But this was my first airplane ride and the airplane certainly has the old gas bags stopped for traveling purposes."

General Agramonte began his career as a soldier in the Crimean war where he fought with the British forces. He witnessed the charge of the light brigade and was wounded at Sebastopol. He has been a soldier ever since, engaging in the American civil war, the Spanish war, the Indian wars and the Philippine campaign.

"Business" Light At Wichita Courthouse

In the office of Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk, only five warranty deeds were filed for record and only two marriage licenses were issued.

Business was lightest in the office of Miss Eunice Jackson, district clerk, who had no suits filed in any of the three district courts.

Flight Passenger Returns To Europe By Steamer

PARIS, Oct. 23. (UP)—Frederick J. Gilfillan, who was a passenger on the transatlantic flight of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin, returned to Europe by steamer today with criticism of the discomforts of dirigible crossings.

Gilfillan, who is an American resident of Lucerne, Switzerland, came from New York to Cherbourg aboard the Mauretania in 124 hours, compared with 111 hours in the air aboard the Graf Zeppelin.

Polish Textile Strike Settled By Concession

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 23. (UP) The great textile strike of the Lods district had been settled today and the workers were back in the factories.

It was revealed that some concessions had been made to the demand for an increase in wages of 20 per cent. A general five per cent increase was allowed, while concessions will be made in special cases.

In addition, it was provided that loans of a fortnight's wages would be made to individual workers by the employers, the money to be repaid in installments.

Tennant 'Willing' For Solons to Decide Issue

AUSTIN, Oct. 23. (AP)—Roy I. Tennant, purchasing member of the state board of control, is "perfectly willing" that the 41st legislature decide the question of whether the board or highway department shall determine what road machinery shall be bought, he said today.

He said he has not heard whether the highway department intends to follow the board's preferences as to equipment in dispute in the proposed $500,000 buy which has hung fire for several weeks, or to do without machinery.

Poland Bars Foreign Vaudeville Performers

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 23. (UP) The government decided today to forbid foreign vaudeville artists and cabaret performers to come to Poland. Those now in the country were ordered to leave.

The reason given was that high salaries commanded by foreign artists disturbed the balance of trade.

BOY "LEGGER" FREED

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 23.—Arraigned on a charge of selling liquor in speakeasy alleged to have been operated by his father, 13-year-old Edward Bronikowski was freed when it was shown that he had a good school record. His father was fined $250 for possessing liquor.

Investigation of Deaths of Baby Grandsons of Guggenheim Pushed

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (AP)—Police and the district attorney today continued their investigation in the deaths of two young grandsons of the late Daniel Guggenheim. Several persons who saw the boys fall from the roof of the Hotel Surrey to a low building adjoining were questioned by detectives and it was announced that they would repeat their stories to the district attorney.

The boys were Terrance, 4 years and Benjamin, 14 months, sons of Milton S. Waldman, an associate editor of the London Mercury. The witnesses said that they had seen the mother with the children on the roof, where she had gone to visit the apartment of a friend.

Mrs. Waldman, now under care of physicians, has said that she was holding the younger child while sitting on the parapet when Terrence, in an attempt to climb up beside her, broke her hold. Both children then fell to their deaths.

Police have indicated that they will question Mrs. Waldman further when her physicians permit.

PUPILS WELL DRILLED

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—More than 6000 pupils at Morris high school filed from the building in an orderly manner and cleared it in three minutes when fire broke out. Seventy-four class rooms were emptied.

Mexican Resource Study Completed

EL PASO, Oct. 23. (AP) — Mexico City dispatches to El Continental report a study of the resources of Mexico has been completed by a delegation of the Bankers' association in the Mexican capital.

The study was made with the object of determining the country's ability to pay its foreign debt.

"Some kind of an agreement has been reached between the bankers' representatives and the Mexican government that will affect the making of subsequent payments after 1931, consisting of 40,000,000 pesos annually during a period of 40 years," El Continental states. It is pointed out however, the new agreement will not be in force until Emilio Portes Gil takes office as president of Mexico.

Game Warden Chases Men 200 Miles; Collects

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Oct. 23. (AP)—When a game warden said he had pursued the two men for 200 miles through West Texas, Fred H. Mott, Oklahoma oil man, and J. C. Fowler, his associate, were fined $10 and costs here today for hunting without having procured a non-resident license.

KIDNAPER SCARE

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 23.—An 8-year-old girl playing the "mother" role threw a residentional section here into a "kidnaper" scare by borrowing a seven weeks' old baby to take her doll's place in a carriage from 1 p. m. until twilight. Police and Mrs. John Chaney, the worried mother of the baby, searched for the child, before it was found sleeping peacefully in the doll carriage.

300,000

3,000,000

IN 1920 the number of American families owning more than one car was about 300,000.

Today the families owning a second or third car are estimated at 3,000,000.

While the number of cars in use has doubled since 1920, the increase in "two-car" ownership has been tenfold!

This is a sound economic development. Two-car ownership provides the transportation needed by the man in business and gives to his family larger companionship and widespread opportunities. No other possession costs so little in proportion to the benefits conferred.

The used cars offered by General Motors dealers vary in name, body style and price. But each has a value to some family—and particularly to a family needing a second or third car to meet the requirements of all its members.

Examine the stocks of used cars in the hands of General Motors dealers and, when you find the car you want, buy it on the convenient GMAC Payment Plan.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (AP)—The cotton market was less active today and fluctuations were more or less irregular but in a general way opening advances on relatively steady cables and low temperatures in the southwest was followed by decline under southern selling and realizing. December contracts sold off from 19.81 to 19.45 and the close was at the lowest, with the general market barely steady at net declines of 18 to 21 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 7 to 14 points, with October selling up to 20.10 and March to 19.73 on covering or rebuying by recent sellers which was evidently influenced by reports of frost at some points in the southwest and prospects for light frost tonight in North Alabama and North Mississippi. Some trade buying was also reported, but the early demand was quite readily supplied, and the market soon turned easier on an idea that temperatures had not been low enough to cause any real damage to the crop, the outlook for warmer weather in the Southwest, and talk of probable heavy ginning returns to Oct. 18.

After showing net declines of about 16 to 24 points, the market steadied up several points from the lowest during the early afternoon on an idea that the buying by the trade had improved the technical position. This view was probably reflected by covering but the demand failed to broaden on rallies of 9 or 10 points from the lowest, and the market weakened again in the late trading under southern hedging and renewed liquidation.

At one time October appeared to be selling within 11 or 12 points of December but the premium broadened to about 19 points at the close compared with 21 points at the close of the previous day. A private report was published which estimated the ginning prior to Oct. 18 at 8,223,459 bales but also estimated that it might represent about 60 to 61 per cent of the total crop. Port receipts today 123,296. U. S. port stocks 1,885,695. Exports 11,283, making 1,853,746 so far this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 23. (AP)—Cotton prices worked lower today following an early advance, under selling prompted by the failure of the predicted frost to materialize in the west and to the issuance of a bearish private ginnings report. Although there was a moderate rally around midsession the market weakened again in afternoon trading and December contracts which had rallied from low of 18.96 to 19.07 traded off to a new low at 19.05 where it closed, net 21 points lower for the day. The general market closed steady at net declines of 20 to 22 points.

Liverpool cables were higher than due at the start here and first trades showed gains of 2 to 6 points. Prices continued to advance after the start under a moderate demand promoted by the relatively firm cables and December contracts traded to 19.23, January 19.25 and March 19.18, or 6 to 7 points net up.

The market soon turned easy however, when the weather map failed to show the predicted frost in the western belt. Selling on this factor coupled with hedging and liquidation in advance of the census bureau's ginning total soon carried prices below yesterday's closing levels. Later in the morning the decline was accelerated by a private ginnings estimate of 8,223,469, indicating ginnings for the last period of 1,300,000 bales, which if verified by the census bureau would be the largest total on record for that period. On this decline December contracts traded to 18.96, January 18.98 and March 18.92, or 26 to 27 points under the early highs and 20 points below yesterday's close.

Around mid-session trade buying developed on the decline and absorbed offerings and carried the price level 8 to 11 points above the lows, but in the afternoon there was a renewal of liquidation in advance of the census bureau's report and active positions made new lows for the day, with January at 18.96 and March 18.91, or 27 to 29 points under the highs. Final prices were at or near the lowest.

Oil Group Features Stock Activity With Atlantic Again Taking Lead

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (US)—Oils as a group featured a strong market today, while Steel common held leading place among individual stocks with advance of over 4 points. With the exception of the oils and coppers the market remained a highly specialized affair with individual influences most responsible for outstanding activity evidenced.

Atlantic Refining jumped 15 points to a new high record, while Pan American, Sinclair and other oils followed along. Chrysler recovered 4 points further while other motors remained irregular. National Bellas Hess enjoyed a sudden big demand and scored an 8-point advance, while Simmons gained 4 and Dunhill over 5 points.

Banks called $20,000,000 in loans but money held at 6 per cent with fairly good supply in evidence. Rails remained quiet again but better demand was evidenced for Missouri Pacific and a few others with support evidenced through the group coincident with advice of one firm that a rail market was in the making.

Control Oil Output

Oils responded to outline of progress made toward world stabilization at meetings of executives of leading companies here today. With a brighter outlook for control of output, it was thought, controlling interests in individual companies would be willing to go ahead with merger and dividend plans. Pan American benefited materially from this idea as earnings now warrant a $4 dividend rate while those in control desire it to enter the Standard Oil of Indiana organization completely.

Sinclair too responded to recent steady accumulation under similar influence. Skelly achieved a prominent place also coincident with estimates that earnings this year would run close to $4 a share. Standard Oil of Kentucky has been quietly accumulated for several weeks as the directors are expected to declared a 50 per cent stock dividend at their next meeting.

Alaska Juneau jumped into prominence in the metal group following quiet accumulation over the past few weeks. Those interested declared that the company now is operating in black figures after showing a loss for the last two years. This year, it is estimated, net will amount to $1,000,000, or $1 a share, and the outlook is for earnings of three times that much in 1929.

Metal Activities

The Nickel merger also influenced talk of other amalgamations of Canadian properties. Anaconda and Chile reflected increase in the latter's dividend to $3 as it is expected to be followed by a new and more favorable offer to the Chile minority by the Anaconda company. New ore body was mentioned in connection with consistent strength of Cerro de Pasco.

National Bellas Hess buying was attributed to the Chicago interests most responsible for the position of Montgomery Ward stock today. The management was contemplating split up of the shares, it was reported, while earnings were estimated at $12 a share. Simmons strength reflected added interest in the company by the Cutten group.

Consolidated was quietly taken again as a $3 dividend declaration is confidently expected Thursday. Warren Pipe climbed as buyers met profit taking coincident with report that Warren had perfected new pipe producing process also. Electric Auto Lite, Johns Manville and Carbide continued to reflect the bullish operations of Detroit interests who have been among those most responsible for recent market developments.

In the midst of the enthusiasm only a few thought about the shadow cast by the rather drastic break in stocks in Chicago, Monday. Advances in certain stocks of limited floating supply there have been even more sensational than those witnessed on the New York stock exchange. As a result there was no short interest so that when the banks and certain brokers suddenly demanded materially larger protection for such skyrockets the resulting liquidation caused a wide open break.

None knows what is going to prove the real test of this market and most feel sure that nothing will be done that would be apt to dampen prosperity enthusiasm for another two weeks. The Chicago scare, however, was a warning signal to the wise trader here.

Grain

CHICAGO REVIEW

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Oct. 23. (US)—With the exception of December corn grain futures closed unchanged or higher today. Wheat had a good advance and at the finish loked promising for a further upturn today.

At the close wheat was up ⅜c to 1c; corn was ⅜c higher to ¼c lower; oats were unchanged to ⅛c higher; rye was up ⅜c to ⅞c.

In spite of a higher cable from the Liverpool market wheat here opened about unchanged. It dragged during the early part of the session with the bears pounding it.

They could not make much of a dent in the price level, however. Their efforts became less persistent. Trade died away and the market rested at a standstill for repeated intervals between infrequent trades.

Late in the day the market began to firm up. There appeared to be no particular buying for long account. Scattered short covering probably accounted for the show of strength.

The local trade was as bearish as ever on wheat, but the market acted oversold. Again tomorrow it may work higher, in spite of the fact that it does not look like an attractive purchase to the cautious trader.

Corn did not do very much. Early it was distinctly weak, but all the futures came back later except the December.

Bears were selling that future on the theory that good weather will bring a big run of corn in here beginning next week. So it may, but still there would be nothing remarkably bearish about that in the opinion of this writer. In fact, if receipts increase the market may go right up in the face of them.

To me the corn situation looks very bullish.

The strength in corn appears to me to be supported by a sound situation in the cash market. Corn is wanted. Today the October future went up 3¼ cents while traders were trying to beat the deferred futures down.

Between now and election day corn, I think, will get under way with determination on the upside.

Every day that passes brings us nearer to the time for the government figures on corn reserves as of Nov. 1. This year these will probably be decidedly smaller than they were on Nov. 1 a year ago.

In the cash market wheat was steady; corn was 1c up; oats were steady; rye was ½c to 1c up; barley was steady.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 23. (AP)—(U.S.D.A)—Firm to slightly higher prices prevailed around the eleven market circuit on fat lambs and steady figures were maintained on aged stock; choice native lambs in Chicago topped at $13.50, while westerns at Kansas City and St. Joseph reached $13.35; the supply totaled around 63,200 a shortage of 14,500 from a week ago and slightly more than the same day last year.

A narrow shipping demand for hogs was partly offset by the increased interest shown by packers; several points reported values 10c to 20 under Monday's best time, but other centers were on a steady to strong basis; the day's extreme top of $9.60 was paid at Chicago, while at Omaha $9.35 was secured for choice butchers; aggregate receipts were estimated at 96,700, against 89,282 a week ago, and 107,541 a year ago.

Cattle trade was again slow with prices steady to 25c lower; the in-between grades of beef steers and feeders were generally 15c to 25c lower; packers displayed moderate interest in choice lightweight steers and yearlings but were bearish on weighty steers averaging around 1,175 pounds. Country demand was fairly broad for the better grades of lightweight stockers; choice yearlings in Chicago topped at $17.25 while choice mediumweight steers at Omaha scored $16.50; Kansas City secured $13.90 and $14.25 on choice white-faced stock steer calves averaging under 400 pounds. Total offerings approximated 49,0000, an increase of 1,000 over last Tuesday, but 6,700 less than a year ago.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 23. (AP)—Hogs—Receipts, 11,000; uneven, around steady; butchers, medium to choice $8.90@9.30; packing sows $7.40@8.40; stock pigs $8.00@9.35.

Cattle—Receipts, 13,500; calves, 3,000; beef steers slow, steady to 25c lower; other classes little changed; steers, good and choice $12.50@16.75; common and medium $8.00@12.50; fed yearlings, good choice $12.75@17.00; heifers, good choice $12.25@15.75; common medium $7.75@12.25; cows, good choice $8.15@11.00; common medium $7.00@8.15; vealers (milk-fed) $7.50@13.50.

Sheep—Receipts, 6,000; lambs steady to strong; sheep steady; lambs, good and choice $12.25@13.35; medium $11.25@12.25; ewes, medium to choice, $4.50@6.50.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23. (AP)—Hogs—Receipts, 33,000; butchers and light hogs 10@20c lower; butchers medium to choice $9.10@9.60; packing sows $8.25@8.50; pigs, medium to choice, $8.25@8.90.

Cattle—Receipts, 7,000; calves, 3,000; mostly steady on steers; she stock and bulls, steady; vealers 50c lower, largely $14.00; steers, good and choice, $14.00@17.25; fed yearlings, good choice $14.50@17.50; heifers, good choice $14.00@17.00; cows, good choice $9.25@11.75; bulls, good choice $9.50@10.75.

Sheep—Receipts, 12,000; steady; lambs good and choice $12.25@13.50; ewes, medium to choice $4.25@6.50; feeder lambs $12.25@13.30.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 23. (UP)—Hogs—Receipts 1,100; market steady to 10c higher; top $9.35; truck top $9.25; bulk good to choice 180 to 220 pound rail hogs, $9.00@9.35; bulk desirable 180 to 230 pound truck hogs $9.00@9.15; bulk 130 to 170 pound truck hogs $7.50@8.90; packing sows steady, mostly $7.00@8.00; pigs strong. Feeder pigs $7.00@7.50; fat pigs, up to $7.75.

Cattle—Receipts 4,800; slaughter steers practically lacking in fresh receipts, fourcar shipment desirable fat grassers held over from yesterday, $10.00, about 25c or more lower for two days; better grade fat yearlings very scarce, steady; few sales medium grades $11.50 down.

Natural Gasoline Work Continues

Special to The Record News

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 23.—The research work of the Natural Gasoline Association of America, conducted for the past two years is to be carried over another year, with Dr. G. G. Brown of University of Michigan in charge. This was decided Tuesday by directors in meeting here. They voted to ask manufacturers in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Louisiana and Arkansas to voluntarily contribute three-fourths of one cent a gallon on their own production to pay for the 1928-1929 research work.

Because of the oil exposition now on, the California Gasoline convention at Los Angeles in November, and the American Petrpleum institute meeting in Chicago in early December, the fall meeting called for Fort Worth has been abandoned and instead a plant operators' meeting will be held at either Eastland, Ranger or Breckenridge in January.

UNITED DYEWOODS CORPORATION

(Five-Year Record)

The United Dyewoods corporation is a holding company controlling subsidiaries engaged in the production of dyewood, quercitron bark, logwood extracts and other dyestuffs. The plants of these companies are located at Chester, Pa., and Mobile, Ala., and have a capacity of 70,000 tons of dyewood and quercitron bark annually. The company also has subsidiaries in France, Jamaica, Scotland and Haiti with about 140,000 tons capacity. The concern also deals in analine colors in conjunction with a Swiss firm and also sells a fire extinguishing chemical.

The best year of the corporation was in 1922. For the next four years profits declined but improvement was noted in 1927 when the net income was about $213,000 or $5.40 a share on the preferred. This compared with $3.89 a share in 1926.

There is no funded debt. Capital stock outstanding includes $3,950,000 in 7 per cent cumulative preferred of $100 par value and $13,918,300 in common of $100 par. Each class has equal voting power unless 6 consecutive quarterly dividends on the preferred shall have been omitted when it has sole voting power. Nothing has been earned available for the common stock in the last two years.

On the preferred, dividends have been paid regularly. On the common, the last payment was 1¼ per cent July 1, 1924. The balance sheet of the parent company only showed as of January 1, 1928, current assets of $330,662, current liabilities of $2,296 and net working capital of $328,366. Subsidiaries had current asset of $5,759,722, current liabilities of $2,084,813 and net working capital of $3,674,909. Book value of the parent company common was $104.85 a share.

On that date the parent company carried on its balance sheet investments in subsidiaries at $18,483,000 exceeding by about $7,300,000 the total assets shown in the consolidated balance sheet of the subsidiaries for the same date.

RUNNELS WELL 350 BARRELER

No. 3 McMillan Comes in From 2,513 Feet

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Oct. 23. (AP)—Runnels county's latest oil producer, the Vacuum Oil company and Thoers' No. 3 McMillan, flowed 350 barrels by heads in 24 hours ending at 7 a. m. today.

Yesterday, the well was drilled into pay sand at 2513 feet, and it was heading hourly today.

This well is 561 feet east of Vacuum and others' No. 3 McMillan, the discovery producer, which now makes only about 45 barrels daily, with water, although its initial production a year ago was higher. These wells, and No. 2 McMillan, 500 feet south of No. 3 and a smaller producer than the discovery well, are in Domingo Diaz survey 553, eight miles northeast of Ballinger.

Oil from No. 3 McMillan tests 35.5 gravity in the tanks, and is free from water.

French Press Surprised At Secrecy of Note

PARIS, Oct. 23. (US)—Outspoken surprise that so much mystery should have been thrown about the Anglo-French pact is shown in the Paris press, commenting on the revelations contained in the official publication of the documents yesterday by Downing street and Quai d'Orsay.

NEW LEGION CHIEF DIDN'T GET TO FRANCE

(By NEA Service)

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 23.—The new national commander of the American Legion is one of those unhappy Americans whose services during the world war were highly essential but not at all spectacular or exciting.

Col. Paul V. McNutt, the 37-year-old chieftain of the soldiers' organization, knew too much about field artillery for his own good. Because of his knowledge the army authorities kept him at San Antonio, Texas, where he just won election to the legion's highest office, training artillery units. He was considered one of the foremost theoretical field artillery instructors in the country—and that was just his hard luck.

Colonel McNutt is youthful to be a national commander; but then, he has traveled far for his years in other ways, too. He is dean of the Indiana University School of Law, and has been granted a year's leave of absence from that post to carry on the duties of his new legion office. He won the appointment three years ago, having the distinction of being the youngest man ever made a dean at Indiana.

Born in Martinsville, Ind., in 1891, McNutt studied at Indiana university, graduating in 1913, and went to Harvard to study law. He finished his law course in 1916, returned to Indiana to become an assistant professor of law, and on the outbreak of the war joined the army, receiving his training and commission as artillery captain at Fort Benjamin Harrison.

He was assigned to San Antonio, and spent the remainder of the war there, having won promotion to a lieutenant colonelcy. He is now colonel in the reserves and commander of the 326th field artillery.

It was in San Antonio that Colonel McNutt met his wife, then Miss Kathleen Timolat. They were married there in 1918, and their recent trip to the legion convention at San Antonio was a tenth anniversary of their honeymoon.

Phone Your Classified Ads to

Our courteous ad taker will receive your Classified Ad and help you to word it, then our collector will call the next day. These accounts are "accommodation accounts" for the convenience of our patrons in transacting business over the telephone.

Classified Ad patrons desiring to have ads charged must have a telephone listed in their own name. No book record is made by the publishers on account of the great number of transactions, hence the necessity of collecting promptly.

Correction of errors in Classified Ads must be made before the second insertion. No allowance will be made for more than one incorrect insertion.

Cancellations and adjustments regarding errors should be telephoned to the Classified Ad Department between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m.

Morning paper up to 6 p. m. for the following morning.

Sunday paper up to 7 p. m. Saturday night.

THE CLASSIFIED DEPARTMENT IS OPEN ON SUNDAYS
from 4 to 6 p. m. And telephone orders for classified ads to be inserted or to be discontinued will be accepted. Exceptions: Want ads will be accepted over the telephone for all excepting the following classifications: Situations Wanted and Wanted to Rent. Ads for these classifications are cash with the order and will not be accepted over the telephone.

The Times reserves the right to classify all Classified Ads under the appropriate headlines and to revise or to withhold from publication any ads deemed objectionable.

Texas Woman Freed In Check Scheme

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 23. (UP)—Mrs. Lucille Inez Miller, 23, wife of C. J. Miller, Houston, Texas, held here since Saturday by Sangamon county authorities pending investigation, was en route home today. Mrs. Miller was placed under arrest at Auburn, when, it was alleged her husband attempted to pass a bogus check. When police sought to question the pair, Miller, who at first refused to divulge her identity, finally told police she and her husband left their ranch near Houston several months ago to take a motor trip and that they ran out of funds.

FARM EXPERT DIES

JENA, La., Oct. 23. (AP)—W. H. Coleman, 63, secretary of the LaSalle parish farm bureau, was found dead in his office here today. Death was attributed by a coroner's jury to natural causes, probably a heart attack.

SANDEFER SEES G. O. P. VICTORY

Hoover Next President, Says College Head

made at a recent Democratic meeting. He made no direct statement as to the speakers he was referring to or to statements they had made. He said they were "friends of his and honest men" but "like the Irish often do" they had gotten 'het' up over the questions in the campaign.

"I come to you without any apologies in that I am for the first time in my life supporting the head of the Republican ticket," Dr. Sandefer said in opening his address, which was radiocast by KGKO. "I think by the time I have finished you will understand just why I am taking this position."

Explains Stand

The speaker read an excerpt from a newspaper report of a speech delivered here Monday night by Rep. Guinn Williams in which Mr. Williams was quoted as saying Herbert Hoover refused to allow shipment of canned milk to hungry children of Germany. Dr. Sandefer declared the statement had long since been disproved by members of the German ambassador's service at Washington.

"I've made more speeches, my friends have said for the Democratic party than any other man in the west who was not a candidate and I have had some background as a Democrat. I can remember my grandfather, who thought Republicans were in the same class with the Biblical publicans, but I have not the slightest doubt my father would cast his ballot in November the same as his son, Jefferson Davis, will in November, if he were here."

Doctor Sandefer scored politicians whom he said were lambasting ministers of Protestant churches in the South who have taken the stump against Governor Smith. "I am not a minister," he said, "and the public mind that provoked prohibition was provoked by these agencies which the politicians now are lambasting.

"I have heard that in Texas there are three ministers of my persuasion who are supporting Mr. Smith. Two of the ministerial brethren are between 75 and 80 years of age and they are not active in the ministry and because of their age they ought to be excused for what acts they might do.

"I have been told that one minister I educated also is for Mr. Smith. I have educated 1,000 ministers and 999 of them are supporting Mr. Hoover and I thank God and take courage.

"I have been through twenty-odd states during the last few months. I have no interest in this or any other campaign except what little good I might do and in justice to my Protestant friends I want to give a few facts to which you are entitled. I have conferred with persons of all activities trying to arrive at an equitable estimate of the political mind.

In Hands of Wets

"I found in my visits to many large cities that wet Catholic Republicans early last spring aligned themselves with the Democratic organizations and a combination of wet forces captured many conventions because the laymen were asleep at the switch. If I have intelligence enough to interpret, I found that our party, my party, had literally fallen into the hands of the wet forces to defeat the 18th amendment, headed by Tammany hall of New York City.

"I found, and I want my Catholic friends to know that I regret the Catholic question has gotten into this campaign, that whole Catholic communities that have voted the Republican ticket all their lives have registered, lining up 100 per cent for Governor Smith. In California I have a sister who is a member of the election board and she pointed out whole communities of Catholic Republicans who transferred their allegiance from the Republican to the Democratic party. And only two reasons are given.

"They said, without hesitancy, 'I am wet and it is because I want more liquor with more kick in it and Mr. Smith more typifies our ideas and Mr. Smith is a member of our church.' They say it will be the first time they have had a chance to vote for a Roman Catholic for president.

"If the Protestants of the South exercise as much 'bigotry' and 'intolerance' and throw their votes behind Protestant candidates like the Catholics will do for Smith, Mr. Smith will not carry the southern states. I'm saying that to defend the Protestants whom the politicians are accusing of intolerance and bigotry and I don't believe there has been intolerance expressed by the Protestants of the South in this campaign against Smith.

"Mr. Smith in his Oklahoma City address said Democrats who are opposed to him in the South because of his religion. Mr. Smith can't understand the language in the realm of prohibition, temperance and civic righteousness of which he knows little.

Defines Hoover-Democrat

"There never has been a law and there never will be a law on prohibition that will suit the liquor gang," he declared as he traced the efforts toward the enactment of the 18th amendment.

"I have been asked to define a Hoover-Democrat and here is my definition:

"A Hoover-Democrat is a Democrat who has the mental process to pitch his vote above that of his party when the machinery of his party fails to give him a platform and a candidate in keeping with the high ideals of his party."

Here Doctor Sandefer read a copy of what he said was the Encyclopedia Brittanica's definition of Tammany hall. "If it is not true," he said, "why doesn't some member of the organization sue the encyclopedia publishers for a million dollars?

"Governor Smith reflected that background as governor of that imperial state. I want to pay a tribute to Mr. Smith, for nowhere in the world except America can a boy without education become governor of a state and head of his party. Mr. Smith went partly through college and graduated from Tammany hall and he owes Tammany for every office he ever held. In spite of the superb leadership Governor Smith has he has never been able to get away from Tammany hall environment.

"They say it makes no difference in prohibition who is elected president of the United States. If that statement got out up north Smith would not carry a single state. The only hope of Mr. Smith is to get the bolting wet Republicans."

SAN ANGELO BAKER GLAD IT CAME HIS WAY

Orgatone Beats Any Medicine He Ever Saw for Troubles Like His, He Says

"I am certainly glad Orgatone came my way," says Ed S. Cole a well-known baker employed at Herrings Brothers Bakery and Grocery, residing at 117 N. Main street, San Angelo, Texas in an interview, recently.

"My health had been broken down and bad for two years," continued Mr. Cole, "my stomach was all upset, my food would sour and about two months ago I got poisoned from some food or other and I was in what I might call an awful fix. I had sharp shooting pains through my left and right side, especially at night, and I want to tell you I suffered intense agony. I was constipated and at times would nearly die with headaches. I was in a miserable shape and got to where I almost had to quit work.

"I began to pick up in just a day or so after I began taking Orgatone and I have been gradually improving ever since. My stomach feels stronger and I can eat and digest many things now I couldn't eat before without suffering afterwards. I'm not constipated like I was, my headaches are broken up and my appetite is enormous. My side is feeling alright now, my general health has greatly improved and I'm getting better right along. I have suffered a long time and have tried many different kinds of medicine but Orgatone beats them all. I could never get the right relief until I began taking it, therefore, I have the best of reasons for thinking it the best there is."

Genuine Orgatone is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by Allison's Drug Store under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative who is meeting the public daily and charges nothing to explain his views on health and hygiene.—Adv.

Screen Siren Passes Out When Acquitted Of 'Intrusion'

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Oct. 23. (AP)—Mae Murray, the actress, fainted in police court here today just as she was acquitted on a misdemeanor charge brought against her by Jack Donovan, actor and architect.

Donovan had charged that Miss Murray forcibly entered his house, on March 15. The actress maintained she had permission to visit the place and Judge Spencer ruled there was nothing to support Donovan's accusation.

HUNTING TRIP FATAL TO FIVE

Four Men Searching For Dead Boy Killed

TUCSON, Ariz., Oct. 23. (UP)—The hunting trip of a Tucson youth ended fatally for five persons today. The body of William Hyatt, 18, missing since early Monday, was found a few hours after four men had died in an airplane crash while searching for the hunter in the Catalina mountain section.

Those who died when their plane caught fire and crashed into Canyon Delo Oro were George Peck of Tucson, the pilot; Clifford Nelson, and Harod Whitman, deputy sheriffs, and Bruce McIntyre, 19, of Omaha, Neb. McIntyre was a student at the University of Arizona at Tucson and was the son of George O. McIntyre of Omaha.

Hyatt's body was found at 4 p. m. in the hills near where discovery of the motorcycle he had been riding caused apprehensions for his safety.

Red Cross Will Rebuild 25,000 Porto Rico Homes

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23. (US)—Over 25,000 homes in Porto Rico demolished or damaged in the monster hurricane of last month will be rebuilt by the American Red Cross, it announced tonight.

The reconstruction plan was revealed by James L. Fieser, acting chairman and Ernest J. Swift, in charge of insular and foreign operations of the Red Cross, upon their arrival here from a survey of the devastated island.

Philadelphia Girl May Ride in New Flying Boat

BERLIN, Oct. 23. (UP)—Miss Mildred Johnson of Philadelphia may be a passenger on the travemunde "Rostra," newest of flying boats, which started tests today for a proposed transatlantic flight by short stages. The plane was designed for freight and passenger service.

If the tests at the Rohrback aeroplane works field are satisfactory, the ocean flight may start late in November, with intermediate stops at Vigo, Spain, the Azores and Bermuda or Halifax, according to company officials.

NOTED AUTHOR DROPS DEAD

George Barr McCutcheon Dies at Luncheon

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (INS)—George Barr McCutcheon, author of "Beverly of Graustark" and other novels, dropped dead this afternoon while attending a luncheon of the Dutch Treat club at the Hotel Martinique. He was 62 years old.

McCutcheon was a former Indiana newspaper man and was formerly president of the Authors' League of America.

The famous novelist was 62 and had been in ill health for two years. The luncheon was that of the Dutch Treat club, an organization of writers, artists and editors. Appearing in his usual health, McCutcheon ate and joked with those at his table, who included Loren Palmer, Arthur Train, Burns Mantle, Robert L. Dickey and William P. Beazle. After coffee he arose from the table and went to the smoking room, where he collapsed and died almost immediately.

McCutcheon had written at least one novel a year for more than 30 years, many of them popular successes, but he was best known for his "Graustark" novels. The kingdom of his imagination was laid in the Balkans. The first "Graustark" novel was written in 1901, and the author sold it outright for $500. Since then, the romantic love and adventures in "Graustark" have been the theme of musical comedies, plays, movies and an entire school of minor novelists.

McCutcheon was born in Tippecanoe county, Indiana, and attended Purdue university. He became a newspaperman, an actor, and for a brief period worked in a circus. He was a brother of John T. McCutcheon, famous cartoonist on the Chicago Tribune. Mrs. McCutcheon, who is ill at their New York apartment, survives him.

Smith's Great Chance Comes

as fast as you can. I am working on the Boston speech and I want to try to finish it today because we leave early in the morning."

"Governor, have you any comment on Mr. Hoover's speech?" was the first question.

"Did you hear it, Governor?"

"No, I read it."

"Are you going to reply to it in Boston?"

"I will give you a copy of the Boston speech before I make it."

Noted Reference

"Governor, were you not interested in that part of Mr. Hoover's speech in which he said he wanted to keep the government from competing with private enterprise and then listed among the three things which he wanted to keep the government away from, farm relief, prohibition and water power?"

"I noticed that," said the governor with the flicker of a smile and then took a firmer grip on the cigar between his teeth.

"When are you going to talk on his speech?"

"I don't know."

"You will, though, won't you?"

"Oh, yes," a bit grimly.

The conference adjourned promptly and the governor hurried upstairs, eager to be at his Boston speech. Although the governor was noncommital as to when and where he will reply to Hoover, those who know the Smith mind say that he will lose no time in doing so and that it probably will be in Boston tomorrow night.

While the governor is keen for battle, his advisers do not discount the effect of the Hoover speech. It raised the old boogy of government operation and brought back memories of the war when the government ran almost everything which entered the daily life of the people.

C.-C. Jobbers Select Candidates For Board

Five candidates from which two will be recommended to the nominating committee of the chamber of commerce for directors, were named at the meeting of the jobbers and manufacturers division of the chamber of commerce Tuesday afternoon, according to J. W. Chatham, secretary. Selection of the two from the group of five candidates will be completed within a few days, Mr. Chatham said.

A report of the South Plains celebration program scheduled for Nov. 20 and 21 was given by Mr. Chatham. Price for the round trip ticket including meals has been reduced to $43.25, according to the report. The South Plains ticket committee will meet next week to plan a sales campaign in the city and vicinity. The schedule as reported by Mr. Chatham has undergone no change from previous arrangements.

Akin and Gray Chief Speakers At Business Women's Banquet

Mayor J. W. Akin and Harry Gray were princpal speakers at the banquet given by the Business and Professional Women at the Y. W. C. A. with their employers as their guests Tuesday evening.

Mayor Akin spoke on the "Law of Compensation" and Harry Gray's topic was "Efficiency and Supervision." Other talks were made by Finley Weldon, Dr. O. T. Kimbrough, Jack Barnard and Laverne Somerville. R. E. Shepherd, accompanied by Mrs. Shepherd, gave three vocal numbers. Miss Arnie Smith, president of the club, acted as toastmistress.

This event celebrated the annual nationawide banquet sponsored by the National Assembly of Business Women of the Y. W. C. A. Three hundred clubs of business women in organizations of the Y. W. C. A. in 47 states of the United States and Hawaii gave banquets on this same evening at the same hour, following similar programs. Five thousand business girls attended the banquets. Telegrams of greetings and best wishes were received by the local club from the business girls at Houston, Galveston and Fort Worth.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gray, Mayor and Mrs. J. W. Akin, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Shepherd, Mr. and Mrs. Kinley Weldon, Miss Myrle Nelly, Miss Arnie Smith, Mrs. Mary Crain, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kimberlin, Miss Winnie Ballard, Mrs. Joella T. HUGHES TALKS IN MISSOURI

Former Secretary of State Compares Records

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Oct. 23. (UP) Herbert Hoover's training as secretary of commerce and administration of governmental affairs has given him necessary qualifications for the presidency, Charles Evans Hughes declared here tonight in his first campaign speech for the Republican nominee.

"For nearly eight years," the former secretary of state said, "Hoover has been secretary of commerce of the United States and has come into direct contact with every economic problem that we have. Let us have perspective. The truth is that the American people now have the opportunity of putting at the head of our government a man whose broad knowledge and executive capacity are recognized throughout the world."

"It is a poor argument that we should select a governor because of his intimate knowledge of state affairs, but should not choose a president because of his rare and intimate knowledge of national affairs.

"While Smith has been working at Albany, Hoover has been working in Washington. It is said that Smith is a quick learner. So is Hoover. In his knowledge of the problems of the nation, Hoover starts years ahead. If Smith were elected, it would take him years to learn what Hoover knows now."

Hughes praised the Coolidge administration, saying its success was due to sound policies, which have contributed to "a degree of prosperity which has excited the wonder and envy of the world."

"We are electing a successor to an able, conscientious and highly esteemed president. There is always partisan carping at an administration, and also, and inevitably, honest disagreement on the part of many with policies and action.

"But I believe that rarely if ever, in our history has there been such general contemporaneous approval of an administration as of that of President Coolidge."

Health Advocate To Speak Here

Clifford (Happy) Goldsmith, author of many health epigrams, will be the principal speaker on the Wednesday program at the Optimist club, according to a Tuesday announcement. Mr. Goldsmith is known as "the Will Rogers of the health field."

He will address the club on selling young people on the importance of dress in the business world. He is brought here under the auspices of the Wichita Falls Zone Association of Master Plumbers. Mr. Goldsmith represents the Cleaners Institute of New York and is speaking in several Texas towns with the cooperation of the state board of health.

He will address students of the Reagan Junior High school at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Auditorium Given Publicity By League

The League of Texas Municipalities is giving recognition to the Wichita Falls Memorial auditorium in the next issue of its official magazine, it was revealed in a letter received Tuesday by W. E. McBroom, city clerk.

Information on the operation of the building was asked. A request for a picture of the building to accompany the information on the building was turned over to the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce.

DEMOS LIST FOUR RALLIES

Clara, Megargel, St. Jo And Byers to Hear Talks

Four major Democratic rallys were announced Tuesday at the county Democratic headquarters in the Hamilton building.

The first is to be Wednesday night at Clara and will be addressed by Harvey Harris, Wichita Falls attorney. This meeting will be held in the Clara school house and was announced Tuesday night in the Clara school at a musical.

E. R. Surles and P. B. Cox will address a rally at the Byers community house Friday night at 8 o'clock.

Arrangements already have been made by Mayor D. L. Dowd of St. Jo for B. H. Wilson and Mark Logan of Wichita Falls to speak in St. Jo at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Bernard Martin and W. M. Moore are scheduled to talk at Megargel the night of Nov. 1. The arrangements for this meeting were made by T. T. Mead of Megargel.

High Gravity Oil In Well Near Ballinger

ABILENE, Texas, Oct. 23. (AP)—A report from Ballinger indicated today that oil flowing from Vacuum and Thoers No. 3 McMillan well in Runnels county is of the highest grade of any production in the Central West Texas "sweet oil" belt.

Production of the new well totaled 380 barrels of 45.8 degrees gravity crude for 24 hours. Grade of the oil previously was given as 43.5 degrees.

Injunction Seeks To Restrain Radiocasters

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23. (AP)—Proceedings for an injunction have been filed in the District of Columbia Supreme court by the San Angelo Broadcasting company, Inc., of San Angelo, Texas, against the federal radio commission, to prevent the granting of a constructive permit or a broadcasting license to H. L. Ragsdale of Georgetown, Texas.

12 Persons Arrested In Liquor Raids

TEXARKANA, Ark., Oct. 23. (UP)—A dozen people have been arrested and 1,000 gallons of wine and 50 gallons of whisky have been confiscated in raids being made on liquor law violators here by George Bausewein of Fort Smith and six deputies from the sheriff's office here.

RENEW THAT FIRST LIEN COMING DUE WITH A—

UNION CENTRAL LOAN

Under the Union Central Plan, 10 and 15-year City Loans may be obtained so that you pay an agreed small amount each six months, which is but little more than the interest on an ordinary loan. A part of each easy payment is credited on the principal, so that when the last note is paid the debt is canceled. You do not assume any stock obligation.

$52.68 Semi-Annually ($8.78 per Month, if You Wish to Pay Monthly) Pays Principal and Interest on Each $1,000 Borrowed

Each semi-annual payment is the same. Each payment is represented by a separate note. Each note includes the interest charge for the six-month period and a payment on the principal.

Such a desirable loan removes the possibility of having to renew a short-term loan at a higher rate, or of having renewal, abstracting, recording or brokerage expenses in the future. And you have the privilege of paying the loan at any time without notice.

Electra Rally Draws Crowd

can bring against him, his religion, Tammany hall and prohibition. Many have been sidetracked on Smith's wetness, but I say that both nominees favor the 18th amendment and I refer you to Governor Smith's telegram to the Houston convention that he would enforce the constitution if elected.

"Tammany is not Catholic. Every officer but one is protestant.

"Suppose conditions are as bad as O. B. Colquitt says they are—is it not a Sunday school compared with the gang that sits across the table from Sir Herbert Hoover?

C. C. McDonald said that Herbert Hoover was a "flat tire" that no number of Democrats and Republicans could inflate.

"Hoover said prohibition was but an experiment and hoped it would succeed," Mr. McDonald said.

"The Republicans stole thousands of dollars from the Texas farmers last fall by Jardine's prediction of a cotton decline.

"The point in this is that it is time for the South to quit thinking about prohibition and start thinking about food and clothing."

"Herbert Hoover favors the packers and allowed extortion and profiteering," Mr. Taylor said.

"I am a Baptist, but I hope the preachers of Electra do not make melting pots of their pulpits. Politics destroys the pulpit. We need men of courage to denounce the men who defame the pulpit with political harangues.

Youth Kills Sweetheart; Turns Gun on Himself

CURTIS, Neb., Oct. 23. (UP)—Miss Catherine Carter is dead and her sweetheart, Kenneth Lanham, is near death with two bullet wounds in his head that it is thought were inflicted with the same gun that killed Miss Carter. The girl was dead and Lanham was delirious when found in their parked car on a lonely road near here. A coroner's jury decided that Lanham had killed the girl and then shot himself. The couple lived here.
