Civilian And Military Flying Will Be Encouraged; Airport Expansion Also Is Planned

BY DEVON FRANCIS
Associated Press Aviation Editor

CLEVELAND, Jan. 12—A national aviation program, with decided emphasis on defense, was drawn up today by the first aeronautical planning conference in the 35-year history of American flying.

Intended to encourage both civilian and military flying, it encompassed airport expansion, increase in the army and navy reserve forces, and a detailed scheme to educate the youth of the nation in the rudiments of aeronautics.

Aid To Be Sought

Out of four days of discussion was expected to crystallize a move, under the auspices of the National Aeronautic association, to obtain some sort of government financial aid for private flying in both the glider and light power plane categories.

Predominant in the discussions, ending today, was the state of the national air defense.

In a paper prepared for presentation at a noon meeting, Maj. Gen. Oscar Westover, chief of the air corps, asserted, "no more difficult problem confronts the war department today than the subject of the reserve military aviator."

Men Are Needed

He said—as Maj. Gen. Frank Andrews, head of the general headquarters air force, did yesterday—that personnel needs "overshadow all others."

"If," he explained, "we could offer a certain number of the young graduates of our air corps training center permanent commissions in the regular army air corps, we could within a few years remedy the personnel situation so far as commissioned pilots, bombers and navigators are concerned."

Mercury Drops To 22 Degrees In City During Morning

Expected cold wave for the South Plains, predicted last night, failed to materialize although the mercury dropped to a low of 22 degrees at 8 o'clock this morning. An hour later it had risen to 26 degrees and with a bright sun, the mercury was expected to continue an upward trend.

State experiment substation this morning reported a minimum of 24 degrees, with a maximum of 65 Tuesday, a difference of 41 degrees.

Main line station of West Texas Gas company reported the 22 degree minimum at 8 o'clock.

Frank Fay Is Court Victor

(By The Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12.—Frank Fay, actor and master of ceremonies, has a date tomorrow afternoon to visit the home of his divorced wife, Barbara Stanwyck of the films, and chat with their adopted son, Dion.

Over-ruling Miss Stanwyck's contention that Fay was an unfit person to have custody of the five-year-old boy, Judge Goodwin Knight issued an order permitting Fay to take the child to his home every other Saturday, and to visit him every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon at the actress' residence.

Wanted To See Son

"I won everything I asked for," commented Fay at the end of the bitter court fight. "I merely wanted to see Dion."

There were certain stipulations in the court order. One of them provides that Fay may not see the child if he has liquor on him, "externally or internally." Neither may he have a friend around who has been drinking.

Miss Stanwyck and Fay have been quarreling about Dion's cus-

Railways Claim That Revenue Is Required To Aid Employment

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—The senate unemployment committee received testimony today that the nation's railroads could put 150,000 men to work if rail revenue swung back toward normal.

The estimate came from J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, in a prepared statement.

Pelley said a decline of business in the third quarter of 1937 after nine months of good business had reduced traffic to "very low levels" and net earnings even more.

"If traffic and revenue return to more nearly normal levels," he declared, "annual equipment programs could easily contemplate the installation of 2,000 new locomotives and 200,000 new freight cars per year. In 1937 railways installed less than 500 new locomotives and 75,000 new freight cars."

When railways increase their payrolls, Pelley added, employployment gains in other industries.

"Railway employment today is less by some 75,000 men than it was a year ago. If these men were brought back to work in railway shops and on the tracks, production of materials they could utilize would give employment to another 75,000 men outside the railway industry, thus supplying employment to a total of not less than 150,000 men."

Pelley's statement made no mention of the roads' request pending before the Interstate Commerce commission for authority to boost freight rates and passenger fares.

Chairman Byrnes (D-SC) showed interest, however, in exploring the possibility that approval of such increases together with a guarantee of sufficient financing might reduce the ranks of the unemployed.

Slayer Of Lamb County Sheriff Loses Appeal To High Court; Must Die In Electric Chair

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Jan. 12.—The court of criminal appeals today affirmed death penalties for Leroy Kelley, a negro convicted for the murder of Sheriff F. A. Loyd of Lamb county, and John W. Vaughn, given the extreme penalty for killing A. A. Edwards, San Antonio policeman.

The highest criminal tribunal said Kelley had had a fair trial and it had no alternative other than to follow the judgment of the trial court.

No Error Is Found

It rejected the defendant's contention the trial court erred in allowing O. B. Gordon, a witness, to testify Kelley drew a pistol on his (Gordon's) brother last March 20, 1937, the same day the sheriff was mortally wounded when he accosted Kelley.

"Such testimony would show conclusively to our minds that the appellant cared not for the rights of others, nor what duty he owed his fellow man," the opinion said.

Also, it found no reversible errors in the trial of Vaughn whose slaying of Edwards Jan. 16, 1937, aroused an intensive man hunt.

Evidence Is Allowed

The court ruled as admissible several elements of evidence objected to by defense, including testimony by the police radio station operator that he had broadcast the description of a stolen automobile occupied by two men and for which Edwards was searching when fatally wounded.

It rejected also a defense exception that discussion by the jury of the defendant's failure to testify constituted error.

The tribunal dismissed at request of the defendant an appeal from a 20-year term assessed Henry Elbert King in Hale county for fatally shooting E. F. McClendon June 25, 1937.

Fashionable Women Put Necks In Noose

CHICAGO, Jan. 12. (AP)—The fashionable woman will put her nock in a noose—of gold and silver—this spring.

One of the newest costume jewelry gadgets shown in shops today and indicative of the trend in accessories was a rigid rounded metal ring, about a half inch thick, that hugs the neck at the base and reminds one of those stiff gold bracelets popular a decade or so ago.

More flexible ones are made of gold and silver metal chain. They are designed to be worn snugly about the neck. Another style, of mesh, is reminiscent of Victorian dog-collars.

Texas Ranges Enter January In An Improved Condition

AUSTIN, Jan. 12. (AP)—Texas ranges entered January in improved condition and the outlook for spring grazing was bettered, the U. S. department of agriculture reported today.

The department said improvement was felt in all areas except the northwest Panhandle. Almost general rains fell over most of the state late in December but it will be necessary to remove cattle from Panhandle grain pastures unless good rains are received soon, the report said.

Hopes Waning For Safety Of Clipper Ship

Flying Boat's Gasoline Now Believed To Have Caught Fire As It Was Dumped

(By The Associated Press)

PAGO PAGO, Tutuila, American Samoa, Jan. 12—Hope waned today for the Transpacific Samoan clipper and her crew of seven which vanished mysteriously yesterday a few minutes out of Tutuila.

The belief grew here that the 21-ton flying boat's gasoline caught fire as it was being dumped into the Pacific ocean, and exploded the ship.

Three Minutes Out

The plane was only an estimated three minutes out of Pago Pago and dumping its gasoline preparatory to landing when last heard from at 8:27 a. m. yesterday (3:27 p. m. Eastern standard time).

Oil slick was reported found on the water 12 miles off Tutuila island. In the same vicinity a column of smoke was reported sighted yesterday. The feeling here was that the smoke marked the death trail of the clipper and her crew.

No further word came from the ship itself since preparations to land were reported by Captain Edwin C. Musick, 43-year-old veteran transoceanic aviator who was on his last flight with the clipper in Pan American Airways' new Honolulu-to-New Zealand service.

Search Through Night

The naval aircraft tender Avocet put out from Pago Pago to maintain a night long search for flares and after daylight investigate the reported oil slick in an effort to determine whether it might mark the Samoan clipper's burial ground.

At that spot it scheduled a rendezvous today with a naval plane piloted by Lieut. T. B. Williamson who made a fruitless five hour aerial search yesterday, returning only at

Mile-Deep Dive In New Ocean Bottom Chariot Is Planned

BY CHARLES NORMAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 — One mile down to the unknown floor of the sea is the goal set by Otis Barton, designer of the bathysphere, for a new submarine apparatus he is building.

It will be on wheels and is called "diphrobenth," Greek for "chariot of the bottom." It is now in the blue-print stage at the Watson-Stillman Hydraulic Co. plant, Roselle, N. J., builders of the bathysphere. In the earlier diving chamber Mr. Barton and Dr. William Beebe descended half a mile in the ocean off Bermuda, the world's record dive.

"The diphrobenth," Mr. Barton says, "is being built to explore the ocean bottom to a depth of over a mile — not to observe life in the mid-depth of the ocean far above the bottom as was the bathysphere. On the bottom there is more unknown marine life than in mid-depth. It is the world's greatest mystery."

To Have A Camera

To probe this mystery the diphrobenth will travel on three wheels over the bottom ooze and coral bumps, towed by a steel cable. From one of its two fused quartz eyes will project a powerful shaft of light.

At the other will be a camera lens for a motion picture record. The chariot's eyes are set back to prevent the windows from shattering in collision with a wreck or coral reef.

By removing the camera and dimming the 2,000-watt bulb of the searchlight one or two observers will be able to descend in the diphrobenth's cramped quarters. The light would have to be dimmed because at full voltage its heat would be unbearable. There is also the danger that the heat may crack one of the quartz windows.

6,000-Foot Cable

The ocean off Bermuda again will be the setting for this new and more spectacular venture in probing the mysteries of the deep. Dr. Beebe's heavy reel winch and other equipment used in the bathysphere dives are in storage there, and at St. George's there is an experienced crew, veterans of the Beebe-Barton expeditions. In addition, Mr. Barton explains, it is possible to reach deep water off Bermuda by going out not more than 10 miles.

Like its predecessor, the new dcvice will be lowered from a barge towed seaward by a tug. A 6,000-foot spliced cable of 5-8 inch and 1-2 inch steel will lower and pull the chariot on the ocean's floor. An electric cable will control camera and light.

Asked what dangers he might face if he removed the camera from the diphrobenth and descended as an observer in the sealed compartment, Mr. Barton said:

"I would be in constant touch by telephone with those on the barge. If anything started to go wrong, I could signal it in time to be drawn up to safety. Of course, if the steel cable got tangled in a wreck, I might be down for good."

It is possible that Doctor Beebe may join the expedition when the diphrobenth begins its ocean-probing trundle, but for the time being Mr. Barton is going it alone.

The first descent of the sea chariot will take place without passenger, with the movie camera set to take pictures when the bottom is reached.

The diphrobenth, made of welded steel, will be able to withstand a pressure of 2,650 pounds per square inch 6,000 feet down. Its weight in the water will be 1,000 pounds. (The submerged bathysphere weighed a ton.) The in-

Opposition To Veto Proposal Is Appearing

House Votes To Provide The Authority; Amendment Said Necessary By Some Leaders

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—President Roosevelt's request for authority to veto individual items in appropriation bills encountered opposition in the senate today after an initial victory in the house.

The house voted to provide the authority by an amendment to the $1,414,968,515 independent offices appropriation bill, which it passed yesterday and sent to the senate. The bill followed the president's recommendations for a $44,000,000 slash below this year's funds.

Resolution Considered

As the veto proposal reached the senate, a judiciary sub-committee was considering a resolution by Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) to extend the same authority by a constitutional amendment.

"We might as well face the fact," said Vandenberg, "that most responsible legal authorities agree this change would require a constitutional amendment."

Senator Glass (D.-Va.) said he favored such an amendment. Senator Adams (D.-Colo.) called the house proposal "an effort to evade existing constitutional provisions."

Fight Whole Idea

Some senators declared privately they would fight the whole idea of vetoing individual appropriations on the ground that it would be an invasion of congressional power.

Under the present system, in order to block an undesired appropriation of $1,000,000, the president might be forced to veto a $1,000,000,000 bill providing other funds which might be needed immediately.

If authorized to cut out or reduce an individual item, he could approve the remainder of the bill. The house proposal would let congress disagree with any changes within 60 days.

The house, in approving funds for independent federal agencies in the fiscal year beginning next July 1, added $150,000 to the recommended $37,087,000 appropriation for the

Seven Victims Are Identified

(By The Associated Press)

BOZEMAN, Mont., Jan. 12.—Identification of the bodies of seven of the 10 victims of the Northwest Airlines plane crash 14 miles east of here proceeded slowly today.

Relatives and friends gathered at a Bozeman mortuary, while officials continued their investigations into the cause of the tragedy.

Some Are Dismembered

Coroner Howard Nelson of Gallatin county said some of the bodies were dismembered.

The coroner expressed belief all bodies would be identified, although it was necessary to rely on the few articles of clothing that withstood the tremendous heat generated when the gas tanks of the plane exploded as it crashed Monday onto the Bridger mountains.

The coroner said chevrons on the sleeves of Pilot Nick Mamer and Co-Pilot F. E. West, both of Spokane, served to identify their bodies at the scene of the crash.

A belt buckle found on another body, the coroner said, was identified by Kenneth and Russell Levin, of Butte, Mont., as that of their brother, Lloyd Levin of Detroit.

The bodies, each wrapped in tarpaulin, were carried four miles by bobsled from the scene of the crash and transferred to a truck

Cooler Cars For Hot Weather Are Promised To Motorists

(By The Associated Press)

DETROIT, Jan. 12.—The automatically refrigerated automobile to make summer driving comfortable will not be long in making its appearance, L. W. Child, air conditioning engineer, said today in a paper prepared for delivery at the annual meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

He suggested the use of a non-toxic gas and an engine-driven compressor, much like the system in the average household mechanical refrigerator, to give the motorist a cool ride in 100 degrees of temperature at midday.

Too much speed and too little visibility for the driver are built into America's automobiles, Charles Harnett, New York state commissioner of motor vehicles, told the society last night.

He noted high hoods, low driver's seats, narrow rear windows, corner posts and divided windshields as factors in obscuring vision.

Japan Plans To Extend Control Over Sectors Seized In Undeclared War Against Chinese

(By The Associated Press)

Evidences increased today of Japan's designs to extend her administrative control over those parts of China under her military domination.

In Tokio, a highly placed foreign observer predicted Japan shortly would recognize the new Japanese-dominated Peiping regime as the legal government of China. Some quarters believed this—and not a declaration of war—was the decision of yesterday's imperial conference.

Regime Keeps Pace

The Peiping regime arranged to keep pace with Japan's North China armies by taking over control of Shantung, China's "sacred province."

Informed London sources disclosed Britain had rejected a Japanese effort to close the Yangtze river to all non-Japanese merchant shipping. Britain told Japan she would move her ships wherever she saw fit in China waters.

Battlefields in the Orient and Europe were relatively quiet.

Japanese columns in southern Shantung province, having captured the walled city of Tsining, reported the way open for fresh ad-

Husband Is Jailed In Wife's Slaying

PUEBLO, Colo., Jan. 12 (AP)—District Attorney Ralph L. Neary said that Everett Hughes, held here today after his admission he shot and secretly buried his wife, may claim he acted in self-defense.

Neary said Hughes stated last night at Walsenburg, Colo., near where he watched officers exhume his wife's body, that he shot her with a .22 caliber rifle when she rushed at him with a pistol in a bedroom of their Pueblo home.

Neary said Hughes related he shot his wife the night of Jan. 3, kept her body in the house for three and a half hours, then took it by automobile to a point 17 miles east of Walsenburg where he dug a grave on the prairie and buried the body.

Hughes was arrested Monday at Las Vegas after Pueblo officers started an investigation in Mrs. Hughes' disappearance.

Review Of Best Seller Attracts Two Hundred Sixty; Study Club Reorganized

Tech Dean Lectures On Wilkins Book

An audience of 260 persons heard James G. Allen, acting dean of men and assistant professor of English at Texas Technological college, review "And So—Victoria" (Wilkins) at a benefit lecture given Tuesday night in the basement of the First Presbyterian church. The woman's auxiliary sponsored the review.

Mr. Allen gave an adverse criticism of the book which he described as having been written as a "best seller and for Hollywood." The author tells a good story, according to Mr. Allen, but neglects plot for incident. "Mr. Wilkins dissipates his work, sacrificing a simplicity of style such as Hardy's that he might have employed to write excitingly of intricate passages that make up a melodramatic novel."

The critic believes the characterization is interesting but unreal and that an over-emphasis has been placed on the sordid aspects of the Hanoverian reign.

Mr. Allen was introduced by Mrs. R. A. Studhalter.

The last review in the current series will be given February 7 when Dr. O. A. Kinchen of the history department at Tech college reviews "Northwest Passage" by Kenneth L. Roberts.

Job Hunting Is No Joke To Seeker

BY JOAN DURHAM
AP Feature Service

Joker questions, designed to throw applicants for jobs off their guard, aren't fair and are not used by the really modern employment director.

Marion Boyd, who has charge of interviewing as many as 3,000 applicants a day for a department store, says the joker questions may be "all right for criminologists, but we just never fall back on them."

Try To Be At Ease

This is Miss Boyd's system:

For the preliminary interview, each applicant faces an interviewer through a little window and is checked on size and general appearance. Information on whether the applicant wants part-time work or depends on the job for a livelihood is noted.

The final interview is called the "rail" interview because a railing separates the preliminary and final applicant groups. Every attempt is made here to put the applicant at ease.

"Yes, I do keep a mirror tilted down so I can get a look at the applicant as he or she comes in," admits Miss Boyd who often has been mistaken for Billie Burke. "That gives me a head-to-toe impression and tells me whether there's a flair for fashion — or the person is just neat and well-groomed.

"But it also gives the applicant a chance to look at her hair when she takes off her hat — and pat stray strands into place."

Should Have 'Sparkle'

Miss Boyd first chats with the applicant a minute or two — mentions the person who sent the applicant, perhaps. Or, if it's a former employe, she talks about the department that employe was in before.

"I notice, incidentally, how he walks and sits . . . whether he slumps or not . . . and how much vitality or 'sparkle' he has," Miss Boyd continues. "We use that term 'sparkle' a lot.

"I watch for mannerims. Is he well-coordinated? Does he drop things? Is he ill at ease—or poised?"

Often applicants talk themselves out of jobs, she says. Because they find someone who'll listen to their story they go into it in great detail —wiping out their chances.

Sometimes, too, voices eliminate them—rasping, coarse voices.

Two other sure-fire elimination factors are shifting eyes and complaints about "shot" nerves—as an excuse for leaving a former job.

Chamberlain's Lotion is a fixture in offices everywhere. One reason for its popularity among all business girls is that after using it, papers never stick to the fingers. Chamberlain's, a clear, golden liquid, dries quickly. Above all, it is never sticky, greasy, gummy nor "messy." Because it satinizes, it helps keep dainty fingers lovely, skin smooth and attractive. At all toilet goods counters.

CHEST COLDS

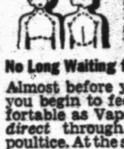

Relieve Their Misery This Proved Way

WHEN there's a cold to treat—especially if it's a chest cold—that's no time to experiment. Relieve the misery with the treatment that has been doubly proved for you.

Here's What To Do: It's best to stay in bed and get lots of rest. Eat lightly, drink plenty of water, and keep elimination regular. And use your dependable Vicks VapoRub without delay.

VapoRub has been proved by everyday use in more homes than any other medication of its kind—further proved by the largest clinical tests ever made on colds. (Full details in every VapoRub package.) Only Vicks give you proof like this.

VapoRub is direct external treatment. No "dosing"—no stomach upsets. Just massage it on throat, chest, and back. Then—to make its long-continued double action last even longer—spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warmed cloth.

No Long Waiting for Relief to Begin...

Almost before you finish rubbing, you begin to feel warm and comfortable as VapoRub goes to work direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are carried direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath.

This double action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation and coughing—helps break local congestion. And long after restful sleep comes, VapoRub keeps on working.

Housing Plans Are Drafted

BIG SPRING, Jan. 12. (Special)—Directors of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce discussed informally, at their luncheon session Monday, tentative plans to remedy the housing shortage in the city. No definite plan of action was agreed upon, and the organization's housing committee, headed by Merle Stewart, was instructed to study the problem with the view of making a future report.

Stewart was to go to Fort Worth tonight for conferences with Federal Housing administration authorities. C. of C. leaders expressed the view that a campaign to promote building of small homes by established residents of the city who are now renting would help the situation by increasing the number of home owners and at the same time clearing rental property for those who are in the city temporarily or who are not in position to build.

Cooperation Planned

Discussed was a program of cooperation with lumber firms and other building interests whereby an "example" home could be built to demonstrate actually what the cost factor would be. This "example" project would be designed to stimulate interest among prospective home builders.

Committee chairmen for the new year were approved by the directors. These include: trade extension, V. A. Merrick; highways, G. C. Dunham; industrial, Cliff Wiley; agriculture and livestock, Fred Keating; convention, Cal Boykin; civic and beautification, Edmund Notestine; safety and fire prevention, Bill Tate; tourist development, Tom Pendergraft; petroleum, Obie Bristow publicity, Joe Pickle; housing, Merle Stewart; Greater Big Spring planning development, Dr. G. T. Hall; membership, Ted Grobel; welcoming, Carl Blomshield; aviation, R. F. Schermerhorn; legislation, Thos J. Coffee; July 4 celebration, Ray Simmons; amateur programs, Shine Phillips.

Financial report of the manager was approved. Eighteen attended the session, presided over by Dr. P. W. Malone, president.

Higher Rates Are Opposed

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 12. (AP)—Age-old enemies of the range—cattle and sheepmen—banded together today in presenting final arguments before a regional Interstate Commerce commission hearing opposing a proposed 15 per cent increase in railroad freight rates.

They testified unanimously against increased charges which they said would bring "general economic ruin" to their industry. Livestock growers and wool producers told of frugality which they said was necessary during the past eight years because of rising production and shipping costs and declining prices for their products.

Losses Are Shown

Testimony today concentrated on annual statistics showing cattle and sheepmen suffered extensive losses from 1929 to 1935 and that they are just beginning to realize a modest profit.

Railroad attorneys heard their roads attacked by R. C. Rich, Burley, Idaho, president of the National Wool Growers' association, who said:

"The demand for the increase is based on the need of most inefficient railroads."

He warned that increases might force some railroads into government ownership and that granting of the higher rate "might bring disaster to both carriers and woolmen."

Testimony condemning the proposed increase and pointing to the "havoc it would bring to the industry," was also given by Harry W. Snyder, Billings, Mont., president of the Montana Wool Growers' association; C. J. Stauder, Fowler, Colo., large scale sheepman; John Curry, San Francisco, secretary of the California Cattlemen's association; Everett L. Burke, jr., Genoa, Neb., livestock raiser.

Credit for introduction of the cigaret into English society is given to Laurence Oliphant; it did not become popular, however, until 1870.

Range-Building Practices Have Improved Grazing Conditions In Donley, Agent Reports

CLARENDON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Range-building practices have improved grazing conditions in Donley county and otherwise benefitted ranch lands, says County Agent H. M. Breedlove. Seventy-nine dams built will impound 4,822,308 acre-feet of water. Dams scattered over 300,000 acres of grazing land were staked off so that watering places would more evenly distribute grazing regions and thus conserve pasture grass.

Labor employed in constructing dams removed 153,000 cubic yards of earth and tank projects on various ranches include large dams built by W. J. Lewis, C. T. McMurty, F. A. Finch, and McMurty & Chamberlain and stock farmers have cooperated with smaller reservoirs.

Pasture ridging is being generally practiced and 131,358 feet has been completed. Grass is spreading across pasture contours and a storage of moisture is assured. In cooperation with soil conservators cattlemen have thrown up protective terraces guarding agricultural lands and controlling erosion on farms, and compliance figures show 31,200 feet of spreader terraces and spreader dams completed.

Range fences totalling 1,172 rods were constructed where it was necessary to carry out deferred grazing, and 7,991 acres were reseeded under the program. More than twelve hundred acres of fine grazing land were recovered from prickly pear, cactus and mesquite.

Rodent eradication with benefit payment has progressed and prairie dogs kangaroo rats exterminated from 2,165 acres.

Practically every rancher in Donley county cooperated in the range improvement program under the agricultural conservation act and stockmen face the new year with better ranges.

Compliance forms on approximately 90 percent of all range land in the county are in the hands of the state board and cattle raisers are looking forward to better grazing conditions.

Paved Road To Caverns Being Expected In Near Future

Announcement by Gov. Clyde Tingley of New Mexico that bids would be opened Thursday on a 26-mile dirt road section west of Hobbs, N. M., on U. S. highway 62, means Lubbock probably will have a paved road this year into Carlsbad and its famous caverns.

There are 31 miles of paving west from Hobbs, and 12 miles of paving east from Carlsbad already completed. The new road will save a number of miles in distance.

Right-of-way matters in New Mexico have been adjusted and there is nothing standing in the way of letting contracts.

Meantime, work on the highways from Carlsbad to the Texas line south, connecting with a Texas highway into El Paso, is progressing. It is reported in New Mexico dispatches that the sector south of Carlsbad may be completed before the one east.

For every 100 sweatshops, 100 opticians, and 100 fried fish shops in England in 1901, there now are 170 of the first, 200 of the second, and 276 of the third.

Girl Seeks To Dodge Tragedy

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 11 (AP)—Lillian Cassanova returned last night to the home she fled with Jack Morgan last May, hoping to forget the tragedy in which her escort killed Dwight L. Faulding and later met death himself during a yachting cruise off the Pacific coast three weeks ago.

The attractive 18-year-old girl stepped from an airliner and said she was going to surprise her father, Louis Cassanova.

Miss Cassanova, a third year high school student, said she left New Orleans last May with Morgan and went to Los Angeles.

"I loved him until he beat me on the yacht after he shot the owner," she said. "We were not married."

The girl calmly described events which followed departure of the yacht from San Pedro, Calif., Dec. 20.

"I believe Jack was crazy," she said. "A few hours after we left San Pedro he shot Faulding and threw his body overboard. Then he took the wheel himself and for the next five days he made everybody take orders from him. He beat me several times and my right ear still pains me from a kick in the face."

She then told Robert Horne struck Morgan with a marlinspike and helped George Spernak cast his body overboard.

There will be two eclipses of the sun and two of the moon this year.

Tech Raiders Seek To Avenge Defeat By Wildcats From Abilene

Undeclared War Now Being Staged Between Two Major Baseball Leagues

SPORTS

LUBBOCK, TEXAS, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 12, 1938

Second Battle Of Series Is Set Tonight

Texas Tech and Abilene Christian college basketball teams clash tonight at 8 o'clock in the second and concluding game of a two-tilt series at Tech Gymnasium. A curtain raiser, featuring the Tech freshmen, begins at 7.

The game will find the Red Raiders with their backs to the wall, hustling to gain at least a split series with the invaders from Abilene. Last night's opener went against the home club, 32 to 22, as A. C. C. took an early lead and held it throughout the game.

Riddle, Wildcat forward, crammed in three field goals and a free shot to lead the winners and take individual scoring honors. Elmer Tarbox, reformed football ace, scored three field goals late in the game to lead the Techs and take second place.

Raiders Shoot Wildly

A superior passing game meant victory for the Wildcats. They handled the ball nicely, passed accurately, and made their goal shots count. Techs firing wildly at the basket, missed enough simple shots to win two games, but were outclassed on the floor.

Excitement of the game reached high pitch when Coach Bugs Morris of ACC and Huffman of Tech sent in their second teams, complete new lineups, early in the second half. For nearly ten minutes the reserves fought briskly and kept the crowd of 1,500 in an uproar. Red Ramsey, Tech football captain, led the Tech brigade during this interval, scored but two points, but made himself known at all times.

Subs Play Fast

Huffman's starting lineup of Henderson, Tarbox, Garrison, Captain Paul Morris and Rex Williams registered but three field goals in the first half, came back to score a field goal and a free shot to start the second half, then Huffman inserted five new players, led by Ramsey. The crowd kept up a continual roar for the popular Ramsey, who was all over the floor at once, just as he was all over the gridiron. With him were Dudley Aiken and George L. Webb, two more off the grid squad, and C. Williams and Truman Neal.

The subs kept up a dizzy pace, on the floor and shooting at the basket, until just before the finish when Huffman sent in the regulars in an effort to stem the tide and go ahead.

But Tech was never able to climb closer than 8 points to the Wildcats. At that time, the score was 14 to 22, but Price, ACC reserve center, made three points to spurt further ahead, and the issue was never in doubt after that.

The Raiders scored first, Henderson looping a field goal in the first half minute of play. Riddle made a free shot and Black a field goal to give the Wildcats the lead they never gave up.

After Black's field goal, Reese added another, and Captain Johnson another for a 7-2 lead. Garrison made Tech's second field goal, followed by four quick field goals by Jones and Riddle, the latter making all three of his two-pointers at that time. Paul Morris made Tech's third field goal, and the Wildcats added two free shots before the half ended.

Tech led off again as the second half opened, Morris winking a field goal, then a free shot. But Beauchamp, who had started with a completely new ACC team in the second half, and Price made free shots and McKeever added a field goal for a 21 to 9 lead.

Then Ramsey, leading the Tech Reserves who had just entered the game, sank a long one from the side. Webb followed with a free shot, but it was rubbed out by Stronquist's free goal, which was followed by C. Williams' field goal, then by a free goal and a field goal by Price. Hastings added a field goal as A. C. C. took a 27 to 14 lead. Elmer Tarbox started his string of three field goals then, but between his first and second, A. C. C. added three points, Johnson and Hastings scoring. Then Tarbox again, then Henderson, with Johnson adding a Wildcat free shot between them. Johnson made another free shot, for his fourth of the evening, and Tarbox ended the scoring of the day with a nice field goal.

Southwestern Open Tourney Is To Be Conducted In El Paso

EL PASO, Jan. 12. (AP)—Plans for a southwestern open basketball tournament, to be held here Feb. 28-March 2, were completed today when the 20-30 club agreed to sponsor the event.

Sixteen teams, including University of Arizona, New Mexico Aggies, New Mexico Mines at Socorro, Stephen F. Austin, and Texas Mines along with many independent teams have tentatively entered. The winning team will have its choice of going to the National A. A. U. tournament at Denver March 12 or to the National Intercollegiate tournament in Kansas City March 5-7—all expenses paid.

Fight Tourney To Continue In City

Golden Gloves boxing, the best ever staged in Lubbock, continues apace, or even apacer, next Monday night at the Auditorium with finals in the City tournament.

Even that will be "only the beginning," because the Avalanche-Journal District Golden Gloves tournament will follow on Feb. 7 and 8.

Boxers will flock to the District tournament from all over West Texas and parts of New Mexico. Those who looked good, even in defeat, during the City events, will return to carry the campaign toward the State and National tournaments.

Heavyweight Finals Monday

Winners in all of Monday night's bouts, plus finalists in bantamweight and heavyweight divisions, in which small fields are registered, will return next Monday night for continuation of the City tournament.

Next Monday night's card, which will be conducted at the Auditorium, will be highlighted by the heavyweight finals, in which Babe Ritchie, defending his Golden Gloves title won last year, will be paired with big Bob Bryant, former all-round athlete of Olton High school who'll be a sophomore at Texas Tech next year. Bryant, who will be making his first appearance in local Golden Gloves, figures to give Ritchie considerable competition for the district title.

Judging from the manner in which the preliminary show was received by boxing fans Monday night, the house will be crowded for next Monday night's event.

Tickets Are On Sale

For the benefit of fans who wish to reserve ringside seats in advance, tickets have been placed on sale at the three downtown agencies—Sam Rosenthal's Hub Clothiers, Hotel Hilton lobby, and Hotel Lubbock Drugstore.

Boxers who competed last Monday night are urged to keep themselves fit and be ready to "go to town" in the City finals. Appropriate prizes will be awarded winners in the City tournament.

Entries for the District tournament, dates Feb. 7 and 8, are acceptable now. The newspaper entry blank will continue to be printed at intervals, and all amateur boxers over the territory who did not compete in the City tournament but who wish to line up for the District event are urged to fill and mail them immediately.

New York Notices Huge Fight Boom

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The biggest fight boom the big town has enjoyed in many a year gains momentum tonight with homicide Henry Armstrong, featherweight king and most feared little puncher in the game, meeting Enrico Venturi, claimant of the European lightweight crown, at the Garden.

It's only five nights since the sensational knockout of Freddie Steele by Freddie Apostoli in the same ring, but so great is Armstrong's hold on the local imagination that Promoter Mike Jacobs is assured a hefty house. Fans who haven't taken an active interest in boxing since Tex Rickard's day are beginning to pour into the Eighth avenue arena again.

Betting Picking Up

As the result of a series of recent upsets, betting is beginning to pick up, too, and the odds layers are becoming wary. They are offering only 2-1 on Armstrong tonight, despite his record of 27 knockouts in his last 28 bouts.

Some fighter, everybody agrees, is bound to figure out a way to stave off the dusky destroyer, and some think Venturi might be the lad. The Italian will have three or four pounds on Hank, and he is fast as a streak and durable. He isn't much of puncher, but he can throw an awful lot of gloves.

Opening Dates For Baseball Are Set

NEW YORK, Jan. 11. (AP)—Major league openings for 1938 today were set as follows:

American league:

April 18, Philadelphia at Washington; New York at Boston.

April 19, Detroit at Chicago, St. Louis at Cleveland.

National league:

April 19, Boston at New York, Brooklyn at Philadelphia, Chicago at Cincinnati, Pittsburgh at St. Louis.

The day earlier openings of the American league were set to enable President Roosevelt officially to inaugurate the season in Washington and to allow baseball participation in the patriots' day celebration at Boston.

The all-star game at Cincinnati was set for July 6 with July 7 left open in case of rain.

Ellsworth Vines Is Victor In Battle With Fred Perry

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12. (AP)—Ellsworth Vines of America defeated Fred Perry of Great Britain in a three-hour battle here last night, opening their projected transcontinental professional tennis tour.

The score: 4-6, 13-11, 8-10, 6-2, and 6-3.

Most of a throng of 7,000 spectators, remained until past midnight to see the outcome at Pan-Pacific auditorium.

In a preliminary, Berkeley Bell, Austin, Texas, and Walter Senior, San Francisco, the other members of the troup, split their match. Bell took the first set, 6-3, but dropped the second and last, 4-6. A doubles match between the four was never held. It was too late.

Arkansas Will Battle Orient In Ring Here

It'll be Arkansas versus the Orient tonight when red-headed, short-tempered Sailor Moran clashes with the Japanese scourge, Tetsura Higami, in the main event of Sied Allen's wrestling card at the Auditorium. There are those who opine that the Sailorman from Bald Knob is the man to knock the props from beneath the screetching Jap, who has not lost a match here.

Higami will find it difficult indeed to gain a position necessary for the application of his famous "sleep hold," because the Sailorman has been around to several different ports, including those of Japan, and he has wrestled in several different languages. He knows most of the tricks of the game, including Japanese jui jitsu, and while he may be open to Higami's "button hooks," Moran will be looking for these and he's tough enough to shake a lot of 'em off. Well protected by even distribution of flesh, Moran will be harder to jab with thumbs than most grapplers.

All in all, it looks like a tough evening for Japan, and that'll be okay with a big portion of the fans. They like aggressiveness in their man-to-man battles, and Higami has refused so far to take the battle to his opponent. He plays a waiting, defensive game, which is not colorful at all until he clinches with his thumbs and lets go with his eerie war cries.

Moran Regular Here

Sentiment, no doubt, will swing to Moran's side. He is one of the most popular, yet one of the roughest and toughest grapplers over a long period of time ever to work here.

Moran and Higami will have to go some, however, to take the show away from the supporting card, especially the opening event which brings that unusually clever and likeable fellow, Otis Clingman of Amarillo, back to the public glare. Clingman, after a long absence during which he has worked in nearly every corner of this country and in Canada, introduced the flying tackle to wrestling in this league. It was, for a time, his most formidable weapon, and he could wreak great havoc with it, in a legitimate fashion, of course.

From "Old School"

He may have picked up other tricks during his travels about the country, but with his "old school" repertoire he still will be good enough to handle most of the tinears who work hereabouts.

Clingman takes on a newcomer, one Bill Venable, of the old South, in his preliminary appearance tonight. Venable, it is said, is some shakes as a grappler.

Cyclone Mackey, who looked good against Andy Tremaine last week, returns to do battle with Otto Ludwig, the big, ugly German who would be another Dutch Mantell, Danny McShain, etc., if he possessed the natural ability to carry out his ambitions.

GOLF PRO CHOSEN

DALLAS, Jan. 12. (AP)—W. R. (Bill) Mackenzie, who served as golf professional for the Dallas Country club from 1918 to 1931, will resume that post Feb. 15. He was elected last night to succeed George Aulbach, who resigned.

Sport Program Continues

By Collier Parris

BASKETBALL at Texas Tech again tonight, conflicting with wrestling at the Auditorium.

If you are fast on the get-away, you can see the main event of both shows, leaving the Tech gym in time to get to the Auditorium for the main spasm, between Sailor Moran and the Jap, Tetsura Higami.

Main eventers in the cage program are the Wildcats of Abilene Christian college and the Red Raiders of Texas Tech.

The teams opened the two-game series last night, and the result was not so hot from the Tech standpoint.

With all respect for the boys struggling to give Texas Tech a creditable ball club, and with even greater respect for Coach Berl Huffman and his sincere efforts, it must be recorded here that so far the Tech team looks poorer than any Matador aggregation we have seen. That goes back only as far as 1931, but it takes in quite a lot of space and time, at that.

Tech, in the vernacular of Bookie Row, just hasn't got it.

We reserve the right to do an about face when the second semester opens, and at least one new player is added.

Easketball, like any other game, is a game of breaks, and the Techs may start getting the breaks at any time, maybe tonight. They should play a better game against Bugs Morris' A. C. C. quintet than they did last night, having the advantage of a once-over. Regardless of the possible outcome, the boys should receive full support of the student body and the fans of town.

FOR THOSE WHO like their sports rough and tough, the wrestling show at the Auditorium tonight is recommended. Sailor Moran and Higami are capable of dishing it out and taking it, in large doses.

Then Otis Clingman is coming back tonight. We'll be glad to see old Otis, one of the most popular guys in the whole wrestling set. It has been said of him many times that he's "too good a guy to be a wrestler." But he likes to wrestle, and he's staying with it. He's on the preliminary card tonight, along with a newcomer, but for twenty minutes or less old "Squeeky" will be out there putting all he's got into his work. It never matters to Otis whether he's on the preliminary or the main event—he always "puts out."

Wrestling is due for a comeback here, after a few months of slack attendance, if Promoter Allen manages to keep Clingman, and guys like him, around the town. The fans'll turn out to things sporting in this town if there is any assurance of getting their money's worth.

JUDGING FROM the way the Golden Gloves preliminaries "took" the other night, room at the Auditorium will be at a premium next Monday night, and for the District finals on February 7 and 8.

This is just a warning to make your ticket reservation early. They are on rale at Sam Rosenthal's Hub Clothiers, the Hotel Hilton lobby desk, and the Hotel Lubbock drugstore.

Semi-finals in nearly all divisions and finals in all divisions will be unreeled Monday night, along with an exhibition or two. It should be a much better card than last Monday night's, and so far we haven't heard of much dissatisfaction over the opening card.

Some nifty scrappers emerged from Monday's prelims. Take boys like Pete Nachlinger, James Stotts, Jack Lovin, Buck Gregory, Clarence Little, Tommy Coats, Ed Morrison, Bennie Moore and several more, and they'll entertain anybody's boxing house.

In case of the first two mentioned lightweights, the only big "boo" given a judicial decision Monday night came when Nachlinger was judged winner over Stotts in their second round battle. Many thought Stotts, the hustling kid from Slaton, should have had the nod, after carrying the battle during the first two rounds. Nachlinger, it is generally agreed, won the third round, but many doubt that he had gained sufficient points in the first and second rounds to go with his third round victory. They're both good boys, and they'll both be in the district tournament, although Stotts is eliminated from the City joust. He may be brought back Monday night for an exhibition match.

Ed Morrison, Texas Tech middleweight, is the "Danny McShain" of the local boxing sets. He won so quickly and so decisively last Monday night that he had no time to get in his funny stuff, but he's a clown in most cases, and something of a villain, too. Maybe, in the finals, he'll get a chance to strut.

Methodists Losers To Baylor Cagers

DALLAS, Jan. 12. (AP)—The Southern Methodist university basketball team looked forward today to Friday night's clash here with the University of Texas Longhorns after the Methodists had dropped a game to Baylor last night 26-23. The Longhorn team, which opened the season by defeating Texas Christian university 33-21 at Austin, moves on to Fort Worth Saturday for another tilt with the Christians.

The Methodists, defending champions, ran into a surprisingly strong Baylor team at Waco last night when both squads made their conference debut. Baylor took charge shortly after the first tip-off and kept ahead through the game, with the score 16-11 at the half intermission.

Pete Creasey, Baylor, bagged nine points to take scoring honors. Norton and Dewell, Methodists, shared second honors with six points each.

Great Harvest In Excitement Is Looked For

BY PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—To the delight of the club owners, an undeclared war is raging between the two major baseball leagues.

The elated magnates are rubbing their hands like a flock of munition manufacturers in expectation of a bounteous harvest.

Relations Strained

It hasn't come to the point—yet—where the presidents of the two big leagues refuse to speak but the relations are strained thinner than soup in a one-armed restaurant. Rival clubowners, managers and players of the rival loops are feuding with such warmth they threaten to surpass the old Hatfield and McCoy scraps of 25 years ago.

Bragging by the American league started the feud. The junior leaguers licked the Nationals in the World series and then began to belittle their beloved foes by word and story.

Limit Is Reached

The limit was reached last year when the Nationals again got trimmed on all fronts and took the pot shots lying on their backs. Colonel William Terry of the New York Giants refused to congratulate Joe McCarthy of the victorious Yankees and right there the American leaguers called the National leaguers "poor sports."

One argument after another has left the two leaguers in a stew.

The National league, so claimed the American, tried to "hog" the baseball centennial celebration scheduled for 1939 by naming only Nationals on the committee.

The Nationals, charge the Americans, are trying to force night baseball.

List Being Posted

The American league annually puts out a list of its "washed up" ball players who are starring in the National.

The dead ball was all but agreed to by both leagues but the Americans suspected the Nationals were trying to force it on them, so they decided to stick to the lively sphere.

The New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals are fighting about their farm systems.

In the recent additions to the hall of fame, the American league believes the National acted in a high-handed manner by giving out the names of selections independently.

Added to all that is the current argument as to which ball player was the greater in 1937—Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees or Joe Medwick of the Cardinals.

Yet, all the fighting and shooting is a great thing for the national pastime unless it goes too far and the rivals try to "expose" each other—if there is anything to expose." Crowds should be larger, play should be better and competition keener and harder in all inter-league games, from spring training tests to all-star games to World series.

Loan Officials Are Reelected

L. C. Denton was re-elected president, W. M. Ross vice president and R. S. Rodgers secretary-treasurer at the annual stockholders meeting of Lubbock National Farm Loan association at Hilton hotel here Tuesday afternoon.

Denton and Ross were reelected for terms of three years each; Arthur Dean and E. N. Harrison for two years terms and Alvin B. Allen for a one year term. Following this year, directors will serve for three years each, under a new "stagger period" plan.

Rodgers Gives Annual Report

Secretary Rodgers gave his annual report of operations for the past year, showing it to be in excellent condition, with a reserve of $2,245.61 and a surplus of $14,149.25 and no obligations. Loans outstanding at the end of 1937 were: 911 federal land bank loans for $3,135,590; 614 commissioner loans for $1,029,800.

At the close of business Jan. 10, 1938 the association had only 29 delinquent federal land bank loans or 3.17 per cent of the total outstanding.

Operating Twenty Years

The association has been operating continuously since July, 1917 and has made a total of 1,073 land bank loans for $3,856,490. It has also made 664 commissioner loans for $1,121,750. The association endorses all the loans it makes and in its 20 years of operation has had less than a dozen foreclosures and to date has never sustained a loss on any loan.

Directors, after electing officers, named Denton, L. C. Ellis and Baxter Honey as the loan committee to pass on applications.

A letter was read by Secretary Rodgers from A. C. Williams, president of the Federal Land Bank of Houston, parent organization. Homer E. Thompson, assistant county agent, discussed briefly the county agricultural outlook and the need for soil and moisture conservation.

Cooper Makes Talk

Wade W. Cooper, secretary-manager of the Lubbock Production Credit association explained the purpose and procedure of production credit loans. He also invited those present to the annual meeting of that group Feb. 21.

William D. O'Brien, district supervisor of the Federal Land Bank of Houston discussed briefly the system used by the land bank at arriving at a fair valuation of farm property, submitted as security for loans.

Charles C. Fagg, superintendent of the South Plains Electric Cooperative, explained the operation of that organization and the plan of the REA for supplying electricity to rural districts.

Man Is Confirmed For Federal Post

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—E. Roy Yoke won senate confirmation to be collector of internal revenue for West Virginia today despite an objection from Senator Holt (D-WVa.) that the appointment was "personally obnoxious" to him.

Holt told the senate Yoke once had said his father should be "stood up against a white wall and shot until his blood stains the wall."

In addition, Holt said, Yoke encouraged a mob which once stoned his mother.

The youthful senator contended Yoke's dislike of his family was based on his father's "conscientious objection" to American participation in the World war.

Splits With Holt

Senator Neely, Holt's Democratic colleague from West Virginia, split with Holt over the nomination, urging that it be confirmed.

He said that Yoke did not admit he ever said Holt's father should be shot and denied that he ever "encouraged a mob to attack Mrs. Holt."

Neely asserted that "the high feeling" in wartime led many persons to "say things they would not say now."

Holt, a frequent administration critic, insisted he was "not interested in any way with the patronage" and suggested Neely name any of the "500,000 other Democrats in the state of West Virginia."

Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminants, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the virus-laden mucus and toxins. Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package.—(adv.)

Here's right smart footwork for right smart starting in the cold: Down with your clutch pedal before you do anything else. Then your starter and battery don't turn the gears, but only the engine, which is just that much easier to do.

ALREADY there has been some talk around and about concerning the various gentlemen who are running for governor.

There will be more said, as time rolls along and we come closer to July 23.

But in ruminating over the political layout a thought suddenly struck The Plainsman — and it is such an interesting thought that he can't resist passing it along. It is:

Wonder why there has never been any discussion about Tom DeBerry as a possible governor of Texas?

It is entirely possible that some of our readers have never heard of Tom DeBerry.

To those who have missed such a treat, we hasten to tell them that Tom is quite a boy.

And we hasten to add that this state and this nation would be a whole lot better off if there were more Tom DeBerrys in official positions.

IT WAS only a week or so ago that Tom returned to Austin from a two-year lapse spent in browsing about his Red River county home.

Courtesy of Governor Allred, who perhaps had mislaid his Wichita Falls telephone book from which he has made so many appointments, Tom became a member of the Board of Control.

But that's not important, yet.

What is important is Tom's long service in the house and the senate through which he indelibly marked himself as truly great.

While he knows Tom DeBerry's record from "A" to "izzard," The Plainsman knows the Sage of North Texas only casually, from a personal point of view.

We have no ulterior motive in telling the world about Tom. We do it only because more people should know more about him.

So we're passing on a brief sketch of ex-Senator DeBerry which appeared in a recent issue of The State Observer, an Austin weekly given over to political and public affairs. The Observer, having Tom down to a gnat's eyebrow, printed the following remarks about him.

TOM DEBERRY, born on a farm near Bogata something like a half-century ago, is a cotton trader by profession, a politician by avocation; he is unmarried; slight in stature; his health is none too good.

Behind him is a heroic story, which DeBerry doesn't mind having told. In all sincerity, he believes the dramatic episode in his life may help some other person over a rocky road. It is a story told many times and one that bears repeating.

"A bunch of boys, in Tom's younger days, were whooping it up on Independence Day. It was quite a celebration — with sticks of dynamite for firecrackers.

"The dynamite slugs were tied to a rope, stretched between two poles. The idea was for each to light a stock, then run like everything. Somehow, something went wrong; one lighted his fuse before the others. DeBerry alone saw it. There was no time to shout a warning. He could have done one of two things —run himself; or grab the stick, get it away from the six on the rope. He grabbed.

"For days, Tom's mother thought he was going to die. Tom himself wanted to. Even after he recovered a species of health with his eyesight nearly gone, his hearing poor, his body scarred, his arms hurt, it was none too pleasant being alive. And during those days, DeBerry recalls, there was only one thing that made him keep his grasp; his mother's faith. That's as near as he could put into words his own personal Gethsemane.

"Quite the most remarkable thing about Tom, in view of his background, is that nobody ever pitied him — at least not since he started coming to Austin.

"He's not that type. What he lacked in physical strength he more than made up in ready, dry wit, the colloquialisms of a North Texas cotton trader, the talk of the 'Splivins boys'.

"He came to Austin, some 16 years ago, as the sworn defender of the 'Splivins boys'. Tom himself is one of the 'Splivins boys', the rank and file of good Texans who live on the farms and take their politics seriously. And to see him defending them, his good eye gleaming, his good arm gesticulating, and his more than good tongue telling a lot of homely truths is a sight which capital folk have missed in the past two years. About DeBerry in debate, it can be said without the necessity of putting one's tongue in one's cheek: he asks no quarter and gives none.'

DEBERRY served his apprenticeship of three terms in the house, then went across the hall for an eight-year tenure before voluntarily retiring. When he got to the senate he procured himself a front row seat and proceeded to make himself into an expert parliamentarian, sensing that a knowledge of the inner workings of the senate machine was the first requisite to getting anything done for the 'Splivins boys'.

"The DeBerry anecdotes are numerous. There was the announcement he made to his fellows one afternoon: 'Mr. President, I want to announce to the senate that on tomorrow I shall do my best to skin the senator from Wise (Grady Woodruff) alive.' And he did.

"He had a pet aversion to the predominance of attorneys in the senate. Here's how he expressed it one day: 'Senators, I wouldn't want 25 farmers in this senate; I wouldn't want 25 doctors; I wouldn't even want 25 DeBerrys. Twenty-five of any kind of men is just too dam' many in this senate.'

"During the two years he was out of the senate, DeBerry was retained by a group of royalty owners and operators of the Talco field to represent them in Austin. Lobbying is the name for it. But nobody ever thought of DeBerry as a lobbyist in the approbrious sense. He kept his record clean: in the senate he had fought many times for a higher natural resources tax, and in appearances before the senate committees, on behalf of his clients, he never once protested a tax increase on oil. That was, he explained, made plain to his clients when they hired him.

"A few months ago, after he had been appointed to the board of control, but before he took the office, he was asked whether he would retain his representation of his oil clients. No, he answered, there was no law against it, maybe, but it wasn't right. Then he added a typical DeBerryism: 'There never was a so-and-so born who could run a good race with a watermelon under each arm'."

THERE, above, is a good description of honest Tom DeBerry; of wise Tom DeBerry; of patriotic, lovable Tom DeBerry.

And come to think of it, maybe that description explains why there's never any rumors that Tom DeBerry might be running for governor.

Maybe it's because the people who are forever following a 'flash in the pan' stumble over, without noticing, possibilities like Tom DeBerry.

Stranger conditions have prevailed!

CAST OF CHARACTERS

ROBERT BARRY — hero, explorer.

MELISSA LANE — heroine, Barry's partner.

HONEY BEE GIRL — Indian; member of Barry's party.

HADES JONES — pioneer; member Barry's party.

Yesterday: Bob and Melissa are escorted down and out of the cavern and into a lost world — a world of strange ancient Indians who know no English and who worship the sun.

CHAPTER XVIII

Robert Barry was a trained scientist, specializing in the antiquities of man, fascinated always by their history, their manners, customs, languages. Because North American man seems literally to have been cradled in our Southwest, Bob Barry had centered his studies there. He knew many things from books and professors, many more from work in the field. And — common sense taught him not a few.

"Remember the feller starving to death in Paris, 'Lissa?"

"What are you talking about?" she laughed at him. They had maneuvered to get more food, and a couple of hours of rest and sleep.

"The American who saved his life with a pencil," Bob resumed. "He was trying to make the cafe waiter understand him. Finally in desperation he sketched a picture of a cow, and so had a sizzling T-bone steak for dinner."

She laughed again. "Will you order T-bones now?" she suggested. "And you might draw a chicken and a bakery and a dish of peas, if your art is dependable."

He grinned, but he was serious too. He had some ideas. They had been resting inside a windowless room, on floor beds made of grass and woven fiber blankets. Brown folk peered in the lone door from time to time. Evidently these watchful ones saw when they awoke, for a crowd greeted them outside again.

For two hours and more, then, Bob Barry "conversed" with the man who had accepted the watch. He was what he appeared to be —

The leader, or chieftain. He wore more clothes than the others, but clothing in general evidently was not a bother to these folk. His pieces were ornamental, marks of distinction and rank.

Bob's hunch was right. The brown chief could understand much of the sign language which is universal among wilderness people. It is not always the same in every nation, but there is invariably a similarity. Close observers can "interpret" it readily, for after all it is communication reduced to the simplest of motions, about the things common to all. Bob could understand more of it than he could "speak," which is usual with any foreign language. But he labored at it, not unpleasantly, for most of the afternoon.

"Listen 'Lissa, we've stumbled onto something bigger and stranger than we could have hoped for in our wildest dreams." Bob was beaming when he joined Mary Melissa again. She had waited near the chieftain's house.

"Could you understand him, Bob? Did you learn much?"

"Plenty! It wasn't all easy, for him or me either, but we had a great talk. These people are not Indians. I'm convinced of that. I mean, not any tribes we know or have record of. They may be kin to the Hopis and Zunis and Acomas, but they're a tribe of their own, right enough.

"Why 'Lissa honey, know what that old chief told me? This is the answer to our main question. This tribe is the remnant of the cliff dwellers!"

"Really, Bob?"

"Yessir! Centuries ago, evidently, the ancestors of these villagers built Defiance Castle, and lived up there for protection. They farmed this valley, which has some springs in it; and the river courses on the other side of the cliff near our camp, remember? But enemies came raiding. They killed most of the other cliff dwellers, or took off the girls to be slaves. Probably the enemies were Yaquis, or Apaches.

"This castle, though, was hardest to attack, because it was so high and hard to get at."

"Then what happened, Bob?" The girl was intensely interested.

* * *

"These people, I mean their anscestors, made a smart move. They destroyed their front ladders, such as we built, abandoned their cliff home, and came into this hidden valley to live. The enemies didn't know about this valley, and there was enough rich soil here to support the few surviving cliff people. See?"

"Yes, but wouldn't the raiders find this valley in time?"

"No, they didn't. The raiders didn't live in this area. They came in from many miles away. When they thought all the cliff people had been killed or fled, they ceased coming."

"But Bob, why haven't white people found it? You say it's new to science, and these people are living as they did 500 years ago."

"Look around us, 'Lissa. See the great cliffs—there? And there? And on all sides? This really is a wide box canyon, a shut-in valley. As you know, this part of the Mexican border is very sparsely populated anyway. Few travelers would ever have cause to get over here. If one happended along, or if an aviator saw this valley and village, he likely would think it some obscure Mexican settlement of no importance. This may actually be in Mexico; I don't know exactly where the international line is along here. Remember, we are many miles from any white town. So you see, sweetheart, we have really stumbled onto a lost kingdom.

It was all sort of fantastic, but it made sense. The Lost People—Bob formally named them that,—were indeed a turn-back of the human calendar. Their kingdom would be a microscopic point on the vast map of the United States or of Mexico. And by a freak of geography and circumstance, they had remained completely isolated from all the rest of the world, unknown to it, and it unknown to them. Probably it could have happened nowhere else in North America save in this arid, almost unknown southwest.

Their box canyon would be one of 10,000 spots in the maze of mountains that make up Arizona, old and New Mexico. With a stream for irrigation and for drinking, the Lost People had existed here in a long self-sufficiency, a tiny utopia in its way, gentlefolk who through many peaceful generations had lost their fear of enemies and their inclination to travel or expand. They were content to live and rest here, zealous worshipers of the sun.

"At least that's the best I can do at interpreting the story old what'shisname told me," Bob concluded, to Melissa, "except for one rather important thing. In fact, I think it's extremely important to you and me, Melissa."

"What is it, Bob? What did he say about us?"

"Why these Lost People think we're messengers from their god, the Sun. We're pretty important, demi-gods or something. We brought them a watch, yellow and shiny, a piece of the sun, as you observed. Now they beg us not to destroy them, not to reveal them to their ancient enemies outside. See?"

"Oh!" I can't imagine all this. I just can't, Bob. It wouldn't be possible, if it weren't true!"

"Check, I agree. But here we are. Facts are facts. They never saw white people before, especially a beautiful white girl. You impress them tremendously, sweetheart. I mean, you're a greater sun god than I, because you're fairer, daintier, I imagine. They're going to stage a big party, a powwow and dance and all that, for our benefit. . . . Scared?"

Mary Melissa was so frightened at all this that she trembled a bit. But she dimpled at Bob Barry. "Never with you here, Dear?" she declared.

THE HAZARDS OF WINTER MOUNTAIN FLYING

The airliner tragedy in Montana emphasizes once more that even the safest air travel can never be made entirely safe until the hazards of weather have been conquered.

It was about this time a year ago that the nation repeatedly was shocked by similar tragedies. Almost without exception they occurred either at dusk or at night involving planes flying over mountains in the winter. These were the circumstances of the crash in Montana.

Of course, even in winter when reasonable judgment is exercised in adapting flying schedules to weather conditions of the moment, travel aboard airliners is relatively safe. That is to say, the chances against the individual passenger meeting tragedy on a given flight are extremely remote. But the record—this winter and more especially last—allows no room to question the statement that the air passenger takes inconceivably more chance than by choosing almost any other established mode of travel.

The Evening Journal has no desire to stand in the path of progress, nor does it put itself in the position of one who clings to the past because it is the past. It has no desire to dictate the mode of transportation for those outside the editor's immediate circle. But for them and for him, only life-and-death necessity would justify a flight at night over mountains in mid-winter.

Hollywood Chit-Chat

BY PAUL HARRISON
Journal Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 12.—Probably the dream of every beginning movie player is to get a good part and score a tremendous hit in his or her first picture.

That sounds dandy, but it's bad medicine. There are a number of people in Hollywood, notably including Wayne Morris, who can tell beginners that one of the very worst things that could happen to them would be overnight prominence.

It makes no difference how naturally modest a person may be; with sudden fame thrust upon him, he just can't keep his feet on the ground or his head out of the clouds. I remember Robert Taylor telling me how tough it was: the new social demands, the heaped praise, the interviews, the interferences with his private life.

And Tyrone Power, after his trip east—the hysterical adulation, the photographs, the remoteness of old friends, the inaccessibility of old haunts. A guy can stand only so much of that; then he either has to change or toss his bright new career out the window.

First a young player is naive. Then, with success, he finds himself clutching at his naivete for protection, finally casting it aside to enter the Great-I-Am stage.

If you had been applauded on the screen at a preview, swamped by autograph seekers afterward, thumped on the back by big executives, asked to one of the Countess di Frasso's parties, sent to New York for the inspection of writers and swooning fans — if all those things happened to you, you'd reach the point of bewilderment where you'd say to yourself, "Golly, I must be pretty good!"

Big For His Britches

Jon Hall is in that stage now, but blame Hollywood for it, not the newly celebrated he-man of "Hurricane."

Wayne Morris entered the I-Am stage a few months ago when "Kid Galahad" was released. To his everlasting credit let it be said that he now has come out of it.

But some of the handicaps remain, and it may be a few months before Hollywood gets over the idea that young Mr. Morris is a bit big for his britches.

Put into "Kid Galahad" with fine actors such as Humphrey Bogart and Bette Davis, he made a hit because the role of the bashful boxer fit him like a glove, and because everybody helped him. Basking in the huzzas that followed the picture, Morris began to feel that he could tell John Barrymore how to play a scene and make him like it.

Needed Help

Then came "Submarine D-1," and next a little item called "Everybody Was Very Nice." The latter was not an important picture, but it had a veteran director and a seasoned cast.

"Everybody WAS very nice," said Morris. "And it took me quite a few days to realize what was going on. If I was nervous, nobody said anything. If I made a mistake nobody bawled me out. The other people simply did their stuff so perfectly that I felt uncomfortable.

"Finally I realized that I needed the help of these more competent actors. When I began asking whether they thought this or that was the better way to do a scene, they were swell. Everybody had wanted to help me, but they were just waiting to be asked.

Pride Goeth, Etc.

"The worst moment of all is when you suddenly suspect that maybe you're not much good after all: that maybe your previous success was a fluke; that if you're not going to fall off your perch you've got to get in there and work ten times harder than ever before."

Morris now is working in "Men Are Such Fools," and working hard. He's out to show 'em that his former success wasn't a fluke. Also he's trying to earn consideration for the top role in "Brother Rat," when the studio gets around to putting that play into celluloid. Everyone hopes he gets it.

Nation's 1938-39 Deficit Expected To Reach Two Billion Dollars, Rodney Dutcher Says

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—If the official estimates of the 1938-39 deficit are neither more nearly accurate nor less nearly accurate than those for 1937-38, you can comfort yourself with the assurance that next fiscal year's deficit ought not to be more than $2,000,000,000.

Rodney Dutcher

Of course it might be worse than that and it may be considerably better. The uncertainties of the next 18 months make anybody's guesses practically nonsensical. All you can say is that budget-balancing is out the window for much further ahead than anyone can see daylight and that a period of heavy taxation is somewhere off there in that fog.

A year ago January the President pulled out his budget estimates and spoke cheerfully of a "layman's balance" for the 1937-38 fiscal year ending with next June.

Income Down, Costs Up

Now a deficit of $1,088,000,000 is expected because receipts have been nearly a billion dollars less than estimated and expenditures about $150,000,000 more. There is at least a fair chance that this deficit will be even larger by July, when the government will have stopped incurring it.

Business being what it is, the administration estimates a 1938-39 deficit of $950,000,000, but Mr. Roosevelt insists on pointing out that this is a drop of $138,000,000 from the presently estimated 1937-1938 deficit and that his deficits and deficit estimates keep right on dropping, depression or not.

So you can easily see that if the guess for next fiscal year is as good, or bad, as last January's guess, which was off by somewhat less than $1,088,000,000, the deficit for the 12 months beginning July 1, 1938, and ending June 30, 1939, will be at least a couple of billions.

Don't Be Too Sure

Mr. Roosevelt himself is the first to warn you that you mustn't put too much faith in the estimate of a mere $950,000,000 deficit for next year.

He may find it necessary—and there's plenty of indication that he will decide that it's necessary—to urge larger appropriations for the navy and army than the present budget contemplates. He is also frank to suggest that if the economic situation does not improve he probably will have to ask Congress for more than the billion dollars tentatively budgeted for work relief.

On top of that is the fact that Congress already is rebelling against those few divisions of federal expenditure where Roosevelt thinks it is wise to cut down.

Cuts Recommended

Next fiscal year's budget calls for reductions, as compared with the present fiscal year, which permit F.D.R. to point to an estimated saving of $539,000,000 in federal expenditures.

Congress may conceivably wipe out most or all of that intended saving and, judging from past performance, may even think of some new ways to spend money. For instance, no one now has more than a vague guess as to what the new farm program—whatever it may be like when finally enacted—will cost.

Finally there is the fact that the Treasury, in estimating 1938-39 receipts at $5,919,000,000 as compared with 1937-38's $6,320,000,000 and as against estimated 1938-39 expenditures of $6,869,000,000, is assuming that business for the calendar year 1938 will be practically but not quite as good as for 1937.

This means that it is betting on a very definite pickup from present business levels. The fact that this is by no means a sure bet furnishes the chief element of guesswork in the estimates, both from the standpoint of anticipated receipts and possibly enlarged relief expenditures.

Federation Of Women's Clubs Sued By Former President

HOUSTON, Jan. 12. (AP)—The Texas Federation of Women's Clubs was sued for debt today by Mrs. J. W. Fincher of Houston, a former president of the federation.

In a petition Mrs. Fincher asked judgment for $2,500. The amount the petition said, represents $1,50[illegible] principal and interest and attorney's fees on an unpaid note of the federation.

Mrs. Richard J. Turrentine of Denton is the president of the federation. The headquarters of the federation is at Austin.

More than 1000 varieties of orchids were exhibited by one grower at a London horticultural show.

Ask The Master Psychologist
Dr. La. Rose, Ps. D.

How to obtain Love, Happiness, Success being loved and admired for yourself alone, capturing the hearts and friendship of all about you, can bring you more happiness than all the jewels and fine clothes you could wear . . than all the wealth you could spend in a lifetime. Without friendship and love, life would not be worth living, for admiration and affection are the breath and heart beat of all human happiness. Within you is a power that controls your destiny. It is in every woman and man, but few discover it. Those who do are blessed with the key to Life's Happiness. With all my heart I urge you to bring forth this innate charm that is yours Develop it, and you will attract to yourself those things that make life worth while. You are helpless in the hands of women who have learned how to use their hidden powers of attraction. You have these powers. You can discover and develop them and swiftly make yourself irresistible to men . . even in competition with women far more attractive-looking. You can win and hold the love of the one you want. So if in doubt, ask the man who knows.

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP) — Selected groups achieved narrow advances in today's stock market but most leaders held about even.

Near the fourth hour gains and losses of fractions to around a point were scattered throughout the list. Rails, utilities and gold mining stocks appeared in favor and most of the advances were recorded in these groups.

Large blocks changed hands in an active opening with the tendency to the upside. Later profit realization entered the picture and activity slowed.

Higher much of the time — extreme gains were shaved in many instances — Consolidate Edison, American Water Works, Public Service of New Jersey, Santa Fe, New York Central, Great Northern, Dome Mine, McIntyre Porcupine, International Nickel and American Can.

Chrysler, with a large force returning to work in the company's plants today, went counter to the general trend of motors with a small gain. New York traction issues likewise held fair advances.

Lower were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Texas Corp., Anaconda Copper, Allis Chalmers, Montgomery Ward and International Harvester.

Foreign markets sagged, with trans-Atlantic issues generally lower at the close. Commodities pointed lower and bonds were mixed.

relocation of the engine is "perfectly feasible" and "inevitable." Harnett said:

"With the engines placed in the rear, drivers will have better vision, and good sight is all-important in safe car operation."

He expressed belief the solution for increasing traffic accidents lay in "taking unnecessary reserve power out of the car."

Tennessee valley authority. Efforts to replace a $123,000,000 cut in CCC funds failed, as did other attempts to change the bill's provisions.

The senate still was listening to southern members talk against the anti-lynching bill.

Senator Byrnes (D.-S.C.) told his colleagues yesterday that "the negro has come into control of the Democratic party." He said the south has remained loyal to that party because it believed northern Democrats would support it when "problems affecting the negro and the very soul of the south arose."

Votes Are Picked Up

Senator Connally (D.-Tex.), leader of the opposition, said the southerners "have picked up several votes" since the filibuster began.

The house labor committee considered today the possibility of trying again to enact a wage-hour bill, which the house sidetracked during the special session.

Senate and house conferees on crop control legislation were making progress. They agreed yesterday on wheat provisions, and then took up the corn section.

which arrived here late yesterday.

Postmaster Harry H. Howard of Bozeman said two postal inspectors from St. Paul would attempt to identify the body of Walter Ton, a St. Paul postal inspector.

Meanwhile, postal inspectors took charge of six sacks of badly charred mail.

Investigation Continues

A. D. Niemeyer of Seattle, a department of commerce inspector, said a half-day investigation had not convinced him whether the pilot was attempting a forced landing in the almost uninhabited mountain area.

A. C. Larsen and Glenn White, who were cutting timber about 200 feet from the small clearing in which the plane fell, told officers it came down without its motors running, bursting into flames as it struck.

Special Luncheon To Be Held By Life Underwriters Here

Delegations from a dozen or more South Plains towns have advised they will attend the special luncheon of South Plains chapter of the Texas Association of Life Underwriters at which Ross Priddy of Dallas, widely known Texas insurance man, will be principal speaker at the Hilton hotel at noon Thursday, according to information given this morning by Chas. A. Whitacre, chapter president.

Priddy's subject will be, "Slave or Master." He will come to Lubbock from Big Spring and go from here to Amarillo.

Archie Copeland, supervisor here for Gulf States Life Insurance company, for which Priddy is Dallas branch manager, will preside at the luncheon and introduce the speaker.

Members of the chapter have been invited to bring special guests to the luncheon to hear the talk, Whitacre said.

West Texas Teachers Are To Hold Big Spring Session

The West Texas Teachers association will meet in Big Spring March 11 and 12 instead of March 4 and 5, as originally planned, according to R. E. Garlin, Texas Technological college professor of education and president of the association.

Dates were changed because of a conflict with the department of school administrators of the National Education association, which will begin March 1, at Atlantic City, N. J.

During the first half of 1937, American movie-goers numbered 90,000,000 a week.

Clipper Plane Still Missing

sundown.

English officials were reported to have sent out a ship to scour the many islands in nearby British Samoa.

Natives throughout all the Samoan islands were asked to post lookouts on mountain peaks.

Absence of word by radio was regarded with foreboding. The clipper was equipped with kites from which an aerial could be flown to permit her radio to send if she landed on water and transmission was blocked by island mountain peaks.

The clipper had taken off for Auckland, New Zealand, but scarcely two hours out discovered a leaky oil line and turned back.

It was just three minutes out of Tutuila when the message was received that the fuel load was being dumped. Fully loaded the plane weighs approximately 43,000 pounds, making it exceptionally difficult to land.

Theory Is Scouted

In San Francisco Pan American Airways officials scouted the theory the gasoline caught fire.

The disappearance was the first mishap of any of the Pan American clippers which have been flying the Pacific, from California to Manila and Hong Kong, for two years. Never before was one even forced down.

Two hopeful reports, both emanating from Apia, British Samoa, failed of substantiation. One was that the clipper landed in Apia harbor. The other was that a searching plane had found the clipper and a boat put out from Pago Pago to the rescue.

The story the plane was down and safe was persistent. A report was received in Dunedin, New Zealand, all the crew was safe on the plane 74 miles west of Apia. Observers pointed out this might have resulted from a misconstruction of the first unconfirmed report the clipper was down at Apia, which is 74 miles west of Page Pago.

Plan Extended Campaign

With government forces in firm control of Teruel on the Spanish civil war's southern Aragon front, Madrid-Barcelona commanders prepared for an extended campaign to crush the insurgent regime. The opposing armies, however, merely held their front lines intact.

Strife spread back to the Mediterranean when, in another "piracy" attack, the Dutch freighter Hannah was torpedoed by an unidentified submarine seven miles off Cape San Antonio. The San Antonio lighthouse reported the vessel went down. Her crew was saved.

Camille Chautemps, France's coalition premier, advanced a "social peace" plan to avoid strike difficulties which have troubled France for many months. It proposed three principal points:

1. Employers' complete freedom to hire, but labor's participation in deciding on discharges.

2. Continuance of labor arbitration, strengthened by obligatory acceptance of accords where both sides have agreed to an arbitrator.

3. Denial of workers' rights to strike except after a majority vote and absolute ban on occupation of factories and picket lines.

More than 250 persons had been arrested and special police patrolled the streets of Vienna after a night of fighting between Austrian nazis and monarchists who would make Hapsburg Archduke Otto emperor.

The 1,143 men and women of undisputed loyalty to Joseph Stalin who are Soviet Russia's new red parliament met for the opening session with instructions from home to tell Russia's No. 1 man "all his counsel and all his advice we deem to be law."

Precautions have been taken in the design to prevent the electric cable from being forced inside by sea pressure, which occurred in the bathysphere in June, 1930, endangering Mr. Barton and Doctor Beebe. The electric cable will enter the steel ball through tapered insulators.

Mr. Barton estimates the total costs of building and launching the diphrobenth as follows: $6,000 for construction, $500 for transportation, and $2,500 for the expedition.

"Unfortunately," he says, "there is no commercial angle in this. I wish there were. It's in the realm of pure science, I'm afraid."

A bald, oldish young man of 38, he talks intensely with a rush of words, sketching aspects of the diphrobenth as he talks. He is afraid you won't understand the sea chariot if he doesn't do this. He is a paleontologist who started out to study fossil bones and turned to fishes—"it's the same line," he explains. He is unmarried.

Ground Breaking Ceremony At New Hospital Is Scheduled

Medal For Risking Nazi Ire

Isadore Gennett, right, New York newsdealer, on his return from a tour with American Legionnaires receives a medal from Harry H. When a Nazi officer noticed that the wreath bore a Jewish War Veterans' ribbon, Gennett was grilled for three hours.

City To Sell Entire Stock Guinea Pigs

Wanta guinea pig?

The city must dispose of practically its entire stock of about 50 pigs and they are to be sold at about one-third of the usual market value.

The reason, as explained by Miss Dora Snyder, city bacteriologist, is that the pigs become unsatisfactory for required laboratory purposes after a lapse of time and it now has become necessary to obtain new stock for the city laboratory. They are entirely healthy and are satisfactory for pets, she explained, however.

The city, after having purchased the pigs at a net cost of about $1 each for several years, started raising its own about a year ago. Other previous attempts at breeding them had been unsuccessful until Luther Bundrant, city hall custodian, was placed in charge of the rodents.

tody for several months. The court order ended four days of legal bickering that was high-lighted by an affidavit filed by Miss Stanwyck's attorneys, suggesting that Fay be subjected to a psychiatric examination.

Not Believed Insane

Yesterday, however, Miss Stanwyck testified in court that she didn't believe Fay was insane when she was his wife. "And I don't think he is insane now," she added.

Fay's lawyers brought the name of Robert Taylor, screen Adonis, into the case in an effort to show that Miss Stanwyck didn't want Fay around because she frequently entertained Taylor. The actress admitted that Taylor visited her home often and that he played with Dion.

The court intervened at this juncture with the admonition: "I don't care how many times Mr. Taylor visits Miss Stanwyck. That is their personal life and has no place in this proceeding."

Miss Stanwyck told the court she divorced Fay because he drank to excess.

Beaumont Gets High Ranking

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP) — Beaumont, Tex., ranked first among the nation's principal cities reporting reductions in traffic deaths during 1937.

The census bureau disclosed today Beaumont had 63.6 per cent fewer deaths from accidents within the city limits than in 1936.

Hartford, Conn., with a population of 164,000, showed a 63 per cent decrease. The 128 leading cities reporting registered an increase of 7 per cent. The total in 1937 was 9,964, compared with 9,308 in 1936.

An Erratic Record

Texas as a whole had an erratic record.

Dallas, El Paso, Galveston, and Houston had increased traffic deaths. Fort Worth showed no change. Port Arthur and San Antonio had fewer fatalities.

Deaths from accidents in city limits in 1937 and in 1936, respectively, with percentage of change, for the Texas cities named in the report included: El Paso 23, 16, and 43.8.

Deaths in each city of accident victims hurt outside city limits, totaled with those hurt inside, during 1937 and 1936, respectively, with percentage of change, included: El Paso 49, 30 and 63.3.

Bids On Seagraves Project Opened; No Contracts Let

Seagraves city officials who opened bids on construction of a sewer system and disposal tank and water service extensions, have not let the contract, according to R. H. Forbes, division freight agent of the Santa Fe, who attended the opening yesterday. Last night the city officials had not completed checking of figures.

Three bidders, Panhandle Construction Co., of Lubbock; Burney & Co., Dallas and Walsh and Burney, San Antonio, had submitted bids on all types of construction. All of them had come within the $100,000 bond issue for the work.

Secret Of Success Told By Showman

BY CHARLES NORMAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—You are backstage in a big Broadway night club.

You watch the chorines go through their paces—blondes, brunettes, redheads, they prance like colts. One, two, three, tum-tum-tum—lightly their feet patter over the stage as the lines break and swirl to the wings.

The tide of girls sweeps past two men talking together. The shorter one is wearing a grey double-breasted suit with black stripes. The jacket is open, revealing a sweater. A light green felt hat tilts backward on his head and a cigarette juts at an angle from his mouth as if it were a cigar. You recognize Billy Rose, the impresario. He looks young for a fellow who has put on "colossal" shows in Fort Worth, Cleveland, New York. You decide to ask him how old he is—among other things.

Billy Rose turns, says "hello" and shakes hands. You follow him up winding stairs to his office.

Likes Beginners

"That was Arthur Garfield Hays you were talking to, wasn't it?" I ask.

"He's my lawyer," says Rose, "because I play chess with him. He handles my business because he can beat me."

He sits down behind a desk full of glitters.

"Shoot," he says.

"How do you pick your girls—for the chorus, I mean?" I ask.

"I glorify wholesomeness," he says, not batting an eye. "I often pass up a pretty girl because she looks a little tired, a little blase. I like girls to whom the theater is still a novelty, still exciting.

"Of course, I observe the regular things—straight features, good teeth, good limbs, a ready smile. But if a girl looks tired and interesting, she's not interesting to me. I have found there are dividends in wholesomeness."

Works Hard

Billy Rose used to be a songwriter—remember "Barney Google" and "Without A Song"? There were hundreds more. He did the words. They're still bringing returns—$18,000 a year, he says, from the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

With the opening of the French Casino under his management, he completes a circle on Broadway. It was in 1934 that he started the Casino de Paris, a restaurant-theater. Now he's back in the restaurant-theater business.

"There's no glamor at the stage door of a motion picture cathedral," he says. "You can't make a date with the girl in reel seven. I believe in flesh-and-blood entertainment. I'm backing up my belief with a fistful of thousand dollar bills."

Not only money but hard work goes into his shows. Eighteen hours is an average day at the theater for him while a show is in rehearsal. After it's put on he stays in bed.

Did he think he had something the late Ziegfeld didn't have?

"The girl show formula," he replies, "C'son't change. Ziegfeld remains unsurpassed. The only thing is, I spend more on a show. He spent $200,000—I've spent $500,000. It doesn't mean my shows are better—they're just bigger. That's my credo—make it novel and then do it bigger than anybody else.

An 'Old Kid'

"I owe a lot to John Murray Anderson, my director, and Carlton Winckler, my stage director. You see, these daffy projects of mine are only possible with tremendous technical help."

Mr. Rose was getting voluble, and at this point your correspondent nearly put an end to the conversation by saying:

"What about Fanny Brice and Eleanor Holm Jarrett?"

"No comment," said Rose, clamping down on his cigarette.

And the future?

"I'm an old kid at 37," he says. "By 40 I ought to be washed up. It's a silly business for a man over 40. After that? Maybe it will be a world's fair on wheels."

Local Meters Are Favored

Fate of parking meters in Lubbock will rest with members of the city commission at their semi-monthly meeting at the city hall Thursday afternoon following the election Tuesday at which a majority of 20 votes out of 1,040 cast favored retention of the devices.

The tabulation showed 527 votes in favor of the meters and 507 against. Six ballots were mutilated. The election was one of the closest in history of Lubbock.

Not Legally Binding

The result is not legally binding upon the commission, the poll having been called in obedience to a gentleman's agreement among commissioners in an effort to determine by election the attitude of the citizenship toward the devices.

While a majority of members said today that they will keep "an open mind" on the subject until it has been thoroughly discussed at their regular meeting, city hall belief was this morning that the small majority in favor will lean the officials toward retention of the meters, just as any majority against would have caused them to order the devices out.

It was the expressed opinion of city hall observers this morning that the "stay at home" vote Tuesday would have been in favor of the devices by a very large majority.

Can Still Be Ordered Out

However, if the commission should choose, it still would be within terms of its conditional contract with Dual Parking Meter company of Oklahoma City, manufacturer of the meters, if it should order the traffic devices out. The election, nevertheless, has cleared the way for a final disposition of the meter proposition when the commission holds its semi-monthly meeting at the city hall Thursday afternoon.

Judges of the election were W. E. Ballew, S. M. Wilson and R. Bush Smith. Clerks were Mrs. H. E. Blocker, Mrs. J. J. Barham and Eastin Wolffarth.

The poll has written the climaxing, and perhaps the final chapter, in a parking meter controversy which has been a disturbing element in municipal affairs more than 14 months.

Installed Here In 1936

Meters first were installed in November, 1936, when the city commission agreed to their purchase at $58 each with the stipulation that they were to be paid for with 85 per cent of the revenue they produced. Another provision of the conditional contract was that the city commission could order the devices out if the official body deemed them unsatisfactory after a test period.

The original plans for a test were blocked when, after a few days, a group of business men obtained a temporary injunction in December, 1936, against their further operation. The devices were taken from the streets and were not returned until last Aug. 27. They were put back into operation then after the city commission had decided they would be adjusted so as to establish a two-hour parking limit instead of the one-hour limit set for the test blocked by the courts.

Total In Operation 603

The installation last Aug. 27 involved 350 meters, but the number subsequently has been increased. The number now in operation is 603.

Another adjustment of the contract with Dual Parking Meter company also provides that only 75 per cent of revenues will be applied on the purchase price, the remainder being retained by the city to meet collection and maintenance costs. Total cost of the meters now in operation approximates $35,000 on which more than $8,000 has been paid or is available for payment to the manufacturer. Total collections have been slightly in excess of $11,000.

All revenue from the devices will go to the city after the purchase price has been paid.

Program Of Singing Group To Be Broadcast From Church

First of a series of programs will be broadcast over radio station KFYO by remote control from Central Baptist church Thursday night from 8:30 to 9 a. m by the newly organized Plains Radio Singing convention, according to announcement by M. L. Kelly, president.

Preceding the broadcast an hour of singing will be conducted by C. O. Pendley, choir director of Central Baptist church. All singers of the South Plains are urged to be ready to help in carrying out programs each week, Kelly said.

Phone connections will be had to the church to care for requests and dedications.

Program committee is composed of: Pendley; D. A. Wilson, Liberty; T. M. Nelson, Shallowater; P. O. Brock, 504 Avenue R; and J. G. Hufstedler, 1609 Avenue E.

Traffic Ordinance Plans To Be Discussed Here Tonight

Plans to urge that Lubbock's new traffic ordinance be printed and made available to the motoring public will be discussed at a meeting of Lubbock Safety council in the commission chamber at the city hall tonight at 7 o'clock, according to O. B. Conley, president.

Officers, directors and committee members especially have been invited to attend, Conley said.

One plan to be discussed will be the suggestion that the ordinance be put in such form that it can be distributed with new license plates as well as being made available for general distribution.

Warnings For U. S. Offered

CLEVELAND, Jan. 12 (AP)—Four outstanding aviation experts voiced warnings last night the nation may find itself inadequately equipped with armed aircraft and personnel if war comes.

Speaking before the first national aeronautic planning conference, called to coordinate all flying activity in the United States, Maj. Gen. Frank M. Andrews said, "we are woefully short of our requirements in both officers and enlisted men."

Expansion Urged

In charge of the general headquarters air force, General Andrews also recommended expanded airports and airways flying aids to permit readier movement of warplanes in emergencies.

Similar beliefs were expressed by James Doolittle, speed and research flier; Commander Charles E. Rosendahl of the Lakehurst naval air station, and Col. Melvin Maas, flying congressman and member of the marine corps aviation reserve.

The planning conference, under the auspices of the National Aeronautic association, originally had the announced purpose of fostering the development of all types of flying but support of the national defense program has been the dominant theme in two days of discussion.

The conference is expected to go on record as its closing session in favor of some sort of government subsidy for military flight training in colleges and universities. Most of the several dozen aviation associations in the country, including the national intercollegiate flying group, are represented.

Great Party Being Planned For 1973

AMARILLO, Jan. 12. (AP)—The Amarillo Lions club laid plans today for a mammoth party Tuesday, June 5, 1973 at 3 p. m.

The place will be under the Avery Rush pecan tree, as yet unplanted, in the children's grove in Thompson's park.

C. W. Whittington, Amarillo real estate man, will be the host—in spirit, he says, because be "likely will not be there."

Whittington donated $37.50 today to the club to be invested in bonds, the principal and accrued interest of which will furnish funds for the party, which will be in commemoration of the semi-centennial of the founding of crippled children's work in Amarillo.

Avery Rush, past president of the club, said he would plant the pecan tree soon.

San Antonio Men Are Awarded Contract On Water System

Walsh & Burney, San Antonio contractors, were low bidders and were tentatively awarded a contract to build a $34,000 city water system for Seminole, Harry N. Roberts, local engineer and city engineer for the town, said this morning.

The contractors indicated they had an outlet for the bonds voted by citizens some months ago. They were given until Feb. 15 to dispose of them and if it has been done at that time, a contract will be signed.

Bonds voted included $10,000 tax bonds and $24,000 revenue. Low bid was $31,500 for the work.

Seminole's commission opened the bids Monday afternoon. F. D. Stark is mayor and A. J. Roach is city clerk.
