PLAYING IN THE RAIN — Herald Staffer Marie Homeyer took a break this morning to aim a few well placed drops at photographer Danny Valdes. Bill Fryrear, experimental weather station research leader, said the weather station gauge recorded only .22 of an inch of rain. He said that north of town the rain was more abundant. The clouds began to open around 10 a.m.

Motel fire in Ohio claims life of 4 children, 5 adults

CAMBRIDGE, Ohio (AP) — Fire swept through a crowded two-story Holiday Inn in this eastern Ohio city today, killing at least nine persons, authorities said. Others escaped by smashing windows and leaping to the ground below.

Authorities at first thought 10 persons had died in the blaze. But Gayle Ogden, a spokeswoman at Guernsey Memorial Hospital, said a woman who suffered a heart attack and was believed dead was brought back to consciousness.

The bodies of four children and five adults were taken to three funeral homes in the area. Officials did not release identities on the victims and said some of the bodies were severely charred.

Guernsey Memorial Hospital officials said 61 persons were treated for injuries and 11 were hospitalized with cuts and broken bones.

A baby was found safe in the arms of an unconscious mother, lying in a pool of blood.

In Columbus, Gov. James A. Rhodes this morning called the fire "a tragedy for our state."

Trapped guests were seen banging on windows and screaming after the fire broke out about 3 a.m.

One youth picked up an iron bar and began smashing windows. Passersby found an old scaffold and rescued others.

Only four of the motel's 104 rooms were unoccupied, but the exact number of guests in the motels was not immediately known.

Most of the dead were found in hallways of the 10-year-old brick and wood structure. Fire officials said the blaze apparently started somewhere in the rear of the building.

The building was badly damaged but not destroyed.

Brown Clary, 18, and Rodman Blazvick, 18, were in the motel's lounge playing pinball when Blazvick smelled smoke.

"He told me the hotel was on fire," Clary said. "I thought he was joking."

But when Clary looked down a hallway, he saw smoke drifting along the lights and "an orange glow" in the ceiling.

The two young men sounded a fire alarm. They ran back into the lounge to tell a motel employee to call the fire department.

Then they began alerting the motel patrons. "I picked up an iron bar about three feet long," Clary said. He used the bar to smash first-floor room windows.

"There was a lot of smoke in the rooms I broke into," he said. "A lot of them would be up against the window, beating on the window, screaming."

Outside, the two came upon a young woman sprawled in a pool of blood on the ground and clutching a baby. The woman had apparently jumped from her second-floor window.

"The baby was lying in his mother's arms," Clary said. "The baby was all right. Rodman kept direct pressure and kept her from bleeding to death."

"There was blood all around her," Blazvick said. He said he recalled his Boy Scout training and applied pressure to stop the bleeding.

House publicly censures Diggs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House today publicly censured Rep. Charles C. Diggs Jr., making the Michigan Democrat the first member of the House to be so chastised in more than 50 years.

The vote to censure was 414-0 with four members voting "present," meaning they were on the floor but chose not to take a stand on the issue.

Diggs was among those who voted present.

The vote came after members of the House Ethics committee said Diggs had brought discredit to the House by using his clerk-hire allowance to enrich himself.

But the committee members argued that Diggs should not be expelled for his actions and urged the House to approve the censure.

Diggs presented no defense. Instead, he yielded his time to Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, who commended the ethics committee for doing a difficult job.

There was little fire in the oratory preceding the vote. Most committee members defended their decision to censure, rather than expel, Diggs.

Rep. Richard Cheney, R-Wyo., told the House that "Diggs has dishonored himself and more importantly, he has dishonored the House."

But while Cheney said he felt Diggs should resign his seat, as the only honorable course of action," he argued that the House should not override the votes of Diggs' constituents by expelling the veteran legislator.

Diggs was re-elected to Congress last year. His re-election came only months after he was convicted in federal court of mail fraud and of making false statements. He currently is appealing that decision.

Censure is the strongest punishment the House can impose short of expulsion. Two Republican-led efforts to expel the former chairman of the House Black Caucus have failed.

North Carolina man, 18, arrested

Kidnapped child rescued Monday

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — As tears streamed from her parents' eyes, little Caroline Thompson hugged a playmate and smiled at reporters after her rescue from the teen-ager who allegedly abducted her from a hotel parking lot.

The blue-eyed, blond 5-year-old clung to her father as she left the Myrtle Beach, S.C., police station where she had munched contentedly on a hot dog and asked for a chocolate milkshake following the ordeal that ended in that resort city Monday.

"She's fine," said Rachel Thompson, her voice cracking and her eyes red from crying, who along with her husband Russell was flown by chartered jet to Myrtle Beach where they were reunited with their daughter and met some neighbors who had been vacationing there. "She wanted to have her picture in the newspaper a while back but we didn't know it would be like this."

James Keith Tucker, an 18-year-old High Point, N.C. man whom officials said was on parole for an earlier auto theft conviction, was arrested Monday evening and charged with kidnapping and car theft. Tucker was to be arraigned in Florence, S.C., today before a U.S. magistrate.

FBI Special Agent David Brumble of Jacksonville, Fla., said before the rescue that authorities believed the man only meant to steal the car, and did not plan to abduct the girl.

The Thompsons returned to Daytona Beach several hours after Caroline was found and were whisked by police to the Holiday Inn where the incident began Saturday — hoping finally to begin their vacation.

The parents had remained at the hotel in Daytona Beach until word came that their daughter was safe.

At a motel news conference on their return, Mrs. Thompson said she was thankful that the abductor took care of her child.

"He didn't hurt her in any way and tried to comfort her by telling her that he was taking her to her mother and daddy at home," she said.

Asked how Caroline reacted when she saw her parents again, she said: "She was just as normal as ever and is just beginning to understand that many people have been looking for her."

Caroline, cradled in her father's arms, appeared sleepy and said nothing.

The Dunwoody, Ga., family's two-day ordeal ended when Donald and Edith Howell of Goldsboro, N.C., told FBI agents they noticed a man and Caroline as they checked into a Myrtle Beach motel Sunday.

But it wasn't until the couple saw pictures of a suspect and Caroline on television Monday that they realized she was the missing girl.

The Howells quickly notified police, who spotted a man driving the Thompsons' late model Oldsmobile station wagon near the motel.

The car zoomed away, officials said. One patrolman took two shots at the tires, police said, but failed to stop the car. The high-speed chase through Myrtle Beach ended seven miles later, when Patrolman David Smith used his cruiser to block the speeding station wagon.

The little girl and the family's two dogs were safe in the back of the car.

City manager to present seal coating pact to county dads

City Manager Don Davis announced today that he will present a new proposal to the county for a streets improvement project in the city.

Howard County Commissioners indicated at their last regular meeting that they would be unwilling to provide labor for the project. But since then, they have indicated that they might be willing to change their minds, said Davis.

He and City Attorney Elliott Mitchell have since drawn up a new proposed contract for approval by the commissioners' court.

"I will send a copy to (County Judge) Bill Tune within the next day or two, and I hope to meet with the whole commission soon," said Davis, this morning.

The proposal project would provide seal coating for 96 blocks or 5.64 miles of streets in the city if the county provides employees to do the work. The city can provide $10,000 from its operating fund, and $8,500 from its revenue sharing fund for the project.

"Even if the county does not provide labor, we will go ahead with the project, and seal coat as many streets as we can afford," said Davis.

Under the new proposal, the city would pay for materials and supplies, while the county would provide labor and equipment.

Action/reaction: Manslaughter laws

Q. What is the difference between voluntary and involuntary manslaughter?

A. Voluntary manslaughter is defined as a voluntary act causing the murder of an individual. Involuntary manslaughter is an act causing the death of an individual under the influence of sudden passion arising from an adequate cause. Adequate cause may include resentment, terror, anger or rage. Also included under involuntary manslaughter are deaths due to accidents caused by an intoxicated driver, according to Texas Penal Code 1904 and 1905.

Barbara Walters also meets up with a number of interesting people in her show at 9 p.m. on ABC. Employed as Industrial Arts Instructor was Mark McLean. Originally from Alpine and a 1978 graduate of Sul Ross State University, McLean has one year of experience in Lubbock.

The board employed Bobby Gene Fishback of Coahoma as assistant band director. Fishback is a 1978 graduate of West Texas State University and has been in the insurance business in Amarillo.

The board amended work changes on cafeteria additions which include new floor tile and fresh paint in the old dining hall and kitchen.

In other action, the board adopted a student handbook, heard a report from Superintendent Richard Souter on a recent school board workshop in Lubbock and authorized Souter to look into purchasing school board liability insurance.

In a discussion of the 1979-80 school budget, the board voted on the intent of the district to raise taxes as is required in articles 29c and 6252-17 of the Texas Property Laws.

According to the board's report, the intent to raise taxes, required to school districts, is misleading in most cases due to increased valuation since last year. Also, most taxpayers who signed up for the tax relief Homestead exemptions will have not a tax increase.

In addition to the required $5,000 exemption given to all taxpayers and $10,000 for citizens over 65 and disabled citizens, the Coahoma I.S.D., is allowing an additional $4,000 exemption from the full market value for taxpayers over 65.

A taxpayer on full market value of $25,325 at 60 percent assessment was paying $250.72 in 1978, according to the board's report. With the proposed change in the assessment rate, the same taxpayer will pay $251.53 in 1979 if he signs up for the Homestead exemption.

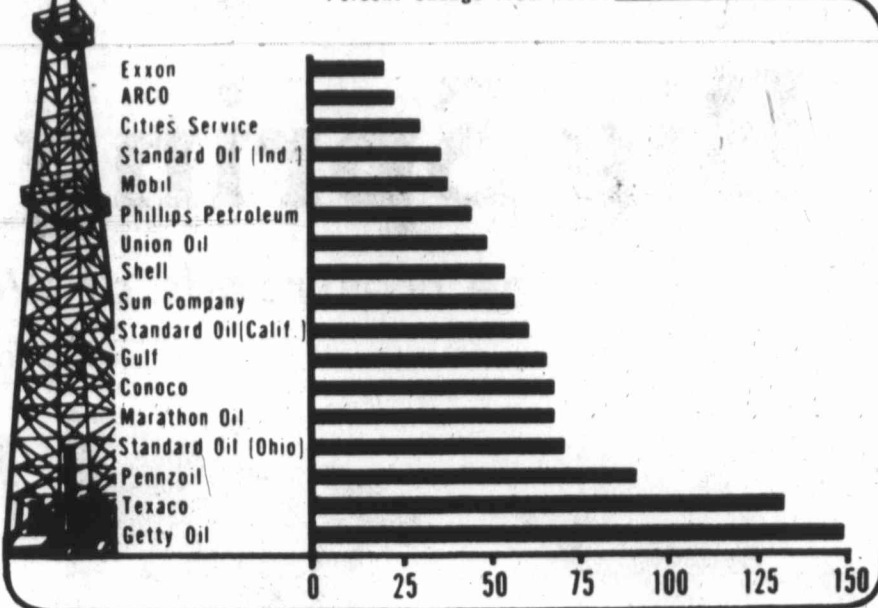

Signing up for the Homestead exemption will in most cases, according to the report, offset the increase in taxes. All property owners are entitled to the Homestead exemption.

The board also discussed increased costs of salary, maintenance and operation, and increased capital outlay for improvements to the district.

Califano considering New York Senate race

COPYRIGHT 1979 FIELD ENTERPRISES, INC.

WASHINGTON — Within a week of being fired from President Carter's cabinet, a badly shaken Joseph Califano began passing the word to Democratic leaders of his intense interest in running for the Senate from New York next year.

Califano told the Democrats that he was off on vacation to sort things out after being sacked as secretary of health, education and welfare (HEW). He added that although he always had thought he never would seek elective office, he was now giving serious consideration to running for the Senate seat held by four-term Republican Jacob Javits.

Califano is a native of Brooklyn but has not lived in New York since coming to Washington as a young Defense Department lawyer in 1961. A Joseph A. Califano has an unlisted telephone in Brooklyn. But there is no record of a registered Brooklyn voter of that name.

This dim connection with his native state is not a major handicap to Califano's Senate ambitions, considering New York's recent political history. Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan had not lived in the state for several years prior to getting elected in 1976 (though he had maintained his New York voter registration). Prior to his election to the Senate in 1964, Robert F. Kennedy had not lived in the state since his boyhood and had never voted there.

A more serious obstacle for Califano is the Catholic vote. He angered fellow Catholics as HEW secretary by opposing tax credits for parochial school tuition.

Counteracting that, Califano's positions at HEW probably won him support among women, blacks and handicapped persons.

Motor vehicle registration deadline reminder issued

Any car owners whose motor vehicle registration expires in July should not drive their cars after midnight today until a registration sticker is acquired, according to County Tax Assessor-Collector Zerah Bednar.

If a three-part renewal card was not received from Austin the registration can be acquired by bringing the Texas Title and a 1979 License Receipt to the Automobile Department at the Court House.

A 20 percent penalty is required if the vehicle has been operated on the streets after the midnight July 31 deadline. If it has not been operated an affidavit so stating is required.

Farabee back on budget board

AUSTIN — State Senator Ray Farabee of the 30th Senatorial District has been reappointed by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby to serve on the Legislative Budget Board and the Texas Coordinating Commission for State Health and Welfare Services.

Farabee said he is pleased that he will again be serving with Abilene Sen. Grant Jones and Paducah Rep. Bill Healy on the Budget Board.

The Legislative Budget Board is the primary House and Senate joint committee which reviews each state agency and governmental unit budget requests and formulates the budget for the state.

In addition to the reappointment, Farabee serves as chairman of the Senate Jurisprudence committee and as a member of the Natural Resources and Finance Committees.

"Each of these appointments should provide greater opportunity for service to our area," Farabee said.

Bandit robs mourners

OAKLAND PARK, Fla. (AP) — About 28 people who came to a funeral home here to mourn the death of a woman found themselves on the floor, their pockets being emptied by an opportunistic robber.

But police said the man's freedom was short-lived Saturday. A mourner managed to call them during the robbery and Ronald Gene Palmer, 21, of Oakland Park, was arrested hours later with dollar bills still sticking out of his pockets, police said. They said he was charged with armed robbery and carrying a concealed weapon.

Highway use tax return must be filed just like

August 31, 1979, is the date by which most owners of large trucks, truck-trailers, or buses must file a Federal Highway Use Tax Return, Form 2290, the Internal Revenue Service said today.

The tax year for the Highway Use Tax begins July 1, 1979, and runs through the following June 30, 1980. Vehicles placed in service after July must have Form 2290 filed with the taxpayer's Service Center by the last day of the month following the month a vehicle is used on a public highway for the first time.

According to the IRS, the tax generally applies to single unit trucks weighing 10,000 pounds or more, 2-axled truck-trailers weighing 5,500 pounds or more, 3 or more axled truck-trailers regardless of weight, trucks of 9,000 or more pounds equipped for use in combinations, and buses with a gross weight of more than 26,000 pounds.

Revenue from the Highway Use Tax Program assists states in financing the Interstate Highway System, but the tax is imposed on those vehicles using any public highways, city streets, state roads and interstate roadways.

Form 2290 and the free IRS Publication 349, "Federal Highway Use Tax on Trucks, Truck-Trailers, and Buses," are available from IRS District Offices.

Andrews mayor pro-tem hit with two theft indictments

ANDREWS — Andrews mayor pro-tem Jake Donaldson was one of two men indicted by an Andrews County grand jury Monday on two counts of theft of service over $200 but less than $10,000.

lengthy investigation by Phillips Petroleum Company investigators and the district attorney's office.

The indictment against Donaldson reportedly involves the theft of oil field pipes. The councilman had been employed by Phillips for 20 years. He reportedly was dismissed three weeks ago.

Some of the contestants have taken a good lead in certain events before arriving for the Finals, and others are still competing so close that only a few cents could keep them from winning the Championship. Be careful if you are a collector

Are you trying to beat inflation by collecting precious stones, rare coins, stamps and paintings by people you think may one day be famous?

An investment expert at Texas A & M University says if you do you should brush up on your homework because there is a great deal of fraud edging up these days.

THE NUMBER one investment buy last year came in the little-known oriental ceramics market, according to Dr. Larry Crumbley of A & M. Other leaders on the investment list were, of course, the big money items of diamonds, paintings by the old masters, and gold. Stocks and bonds were rated well down the list, behind farmland, housing and silver.

Rare stamps and coins attracted the collectors in increasing numbers, too. Crumbley said that estimates of stamp collectors in the world ranged to more than 17 million and there are almost half that many coin collectors.

Crumbley says that if there is any money to be made, it is in the rare pieces or, in the case of diamonds, investment grade only.

Inflation is causing unusual activity among the collectors, the investment expert said. Everytime inflation takes off, people have a tendency to take on more liabilities, hoping to pay them off with cheap dollars.

The idea is not bad, according to Crumbley, except when you start believing you know something you really know nothing about. Buying a rare stamp or precious stone is nothing like buying a refrigerator.

What many people do not realize is that it is often much easier to buy than it is to sell, especially if one has paid too much in the first place.

CRUMBLEY SUGGESTS you deal with someone you can trust and that you develop a working knowledge of the potential investment market. It might also be wise to check the Dunn and Bradstreet report on the firm at the local library or bank.

Don't believe any claims about money back guarantees, certification, appraised evaluation or replacement value unless the claims are in writing on the company's letterhead, Crumbley advises.

Even then, such claims could be bogus.

The person who is taken in has one thing in his favor: Texas has a stiff consumer investment fraud law. Known as treble damage, if the lawsuit is won the winner can collect three times the damage awarded by the jury. He can, that is, if the guilty party has any assets to begin with.

"Hi! My name is Miss Texas and my game is winning beauty contests. I'm here to see how much wool I can pull over the judges' eyes, because if they knew the real me they would never select me as the winner."

I often wonder how an audience would react if one of the contestants in a beauty pageant were to say that in her opening remarks. I imagine a very stunned audience would be the result.

swimsuit competition and the like.

All through the televised pageants the emcees keep reminding the audience that the judges are looking at the girl's personality and poise more than at her looks. The contestants' personalities are as false as the way a lot of them look — geared to what they think the judges want to hear and see, not what they really think and feel.

IONCE WAS suckered into entering a local beauty contest in Navasota the summer after I graduated from high school. Never again! None of us was really coached but we were given little tidbits of advice on how to "carry" ourselves in front of the judges. Always make eye contact with the judges and don't cross your legs while in the interview was just some of the advice.

The interview with the judges is what I really couldn't believe. I don't remember too many of the questions but somehow the one that still sticks in my mind five years later is, "What would you tell your teen-age daughter when she is about to go out on her first date?" Now, to a girl who's fresh out of high school and worried about her first day at college, that seems rather far in the future and something too abstract to come up with a realistic answer. But, of course, not too much about a beauty contest is realistic, is it?

The girl who won the contest fits the typical image of a winner, in my opinion. She was the girl in high school who was the cheerleader and the homecoming queen, winning those honors by turning on the charm and the personality when the voting started.

WINNING BEAUTY contests has become just as competitive and just as high paying as the world of professional sports. The only difference is that in sports you can't fool anyone for very long if you really don't have the ability to play. In a beauty contest, the best actress is usually the winner.

While I was working for the college paper at Texas A&M, a girl we knew became Miss U.S.A. During a staff meeting it was the topic of discussion. The reporter assigned to write a feature story about her balked because she didn't know if she could stomach an interview with the newly-crowned beauty — everything about her, the reporter said, was as fake as a counterfeit bill. Her teeth had been capped, her hair was dyed blonde, her Texas accent was rehearsed and most of all she was a snob, the reporter said.

During the interview the girl said that as long as she could remember she had been training for beauty contests. (Preparing for a beauty contest can almost be compared to spring training in football.) Exercises to get in shape, learning the strategy that will make judges like your personality, eating the right foods to keep that figure that will win points in the

SALT blooper

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — A reading of the fine print in the SALT II treaty after it went to the Senate has revealed, to the horror of supporters of the arms control pact, an uncanny repetition of the worst U.S. blooper in the 1972 SALT I treaty.

The 1972 mistake, not discovered until long after ratification, failed to pin down specific limits on the size of a replacement for the SS-11 intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM). Now, in a new negotiating blooper discovered as Senate ratification debate begins, SALT II does not clearly define the size of Moscow's mainstay SS-19 ICBM, which it sets as the limit on the size of any new missiles.

That history should be so badly replayed is explicable only by this fact: the Russians simply refused to agree on a specific definition of the size of the SS-19. This adds new evidence that U.S. negotiators, under orders from Washington for an agreement at almost any cost, bowed to the iron will of their Soviet counterparts.

IRONICALLY, THE 1979 mistake occurred in an effort to correct the effect of the 1972 negotiating blunder. By failing to pin down the size of the new Soviet ICBMs, SALT I contributed to the vulnerability of land-based U.S. missiles. Limiting future Russian ICBMs to the size of the SS-19 is an effort to protect the land-based U.S. missile force.

But if there was no agreement on the size of the SS-19, how can Moscow legally be held to the terms of the treaty?

The answer: it cannot, any more than it could be forced to comply with the clear understanding of limits on "new" missiles in the 1972 treaty, negotiated by Henry Kissinger.

Kissinger relied, to his later dismay, on what he called the "safeguard" of Soviet assurance "that no missiles larger than the heaviest light missile that now exists can be substituted." In 1972, that was the SS-11. But after SALT I took effect, the SS-11 was replaced by the SS-19, which almost was half again as big.

President Carter's negotiators retraced Kissinger's slippery footsteps, relying on their own understanding of the size of the SS-19. The Soviets typically refused to agree or disagree with the U.S. definition.

The State Department virtually admits that it could not nail down the Soviets. Its "detailed analysis" of the treaty, sent to all senators, spells out this country's position: the U.S. "considers" the SS-19 to have a launchweight (weight in the silo) of 90,000 kilograms and a throw-weight (weight of the warheads) of 3,600 kilograms. These are key measurements of size.

"These figures are based on our estimate for the SS-19," the senators were told. "The Soviet Union did not respond to this statement (but) the U.S. will regard these figures as the limits for the one new type of ICBM permitted to the United States."

But will the Russians? Realists here doubt it, anymore than in 1972. Kissinger learned the hard truth slowly, as U.S. monitors in Iran began to accumulate data on the true size of the new SS-19 being tested to replace the old SS-11.

Trapped by Soviet duplicity three years later, Kissinger found himself lamely explaining away the sudden appearance of the big SS-19. "We obviously did not know in 1972 what missiles the Soviet Union would be testing in 1974," Kissinger told a State Department press conference on Dec. 9, 1975.

BUT THERE WAS no way to stop SS-19 development. Moscow blithely kept insisting its new missile was just a slightly updated model of the old SS-11. Now, following SALT II, the Russians have a loophole to sustain their own version of a "legal" follow-on missile to the SS-19 by claiming that the U.S. definition of the SS-19's size is simply wrong, and that Moscow never agreed to it.

This would not come up if the Russians played fair and square. But they play to win; they take advantage of whatever opportunity is granted.

Discovery of Soviet deception on the SS-19 by the Nixon-Ford administration long after SALT I took effect depended on America's ally, Iran. But the true size of the SS-19 almost certainly would have eluded U.S. intelligence for even longer had it not been for U.S. monitoring stations in northern Iran, just south of the main Soviet test range.

Those stations no longer exist, and the U.S. is not close to duplicating them. This enhances strong probability that the one new Soviet missile permitted under the treaty will not only greatly exceed limits set forth by U.S. negotiators but will not reveal its full launch-weight and throw-weight until it has been tested repeatedly — ready to enter the Soviet missile force.

This undermines the SALT-sellers' argument that the treaty, while not accomplishing all that much, does no harm. To the contrary, this new revelation of non-Yankee bargaining suggests that the Soviet Union, under SALT II as under SALT I, will loophole its way to nuclear supremacy while Americans play by the rules.

Nobodies can be recognized, too

How can you tell one non-achiever from another?

Simple. Look them up in "Who's Nobody in America," a new register that the San Diego-based Nobody Press plans to bring out.

To be eligible for inclusion, a nobody merely has to have achieved nothing. There is the formality of an application form, but all that requires is the summing up of an individual's mediocrity in 25 words or less.

And if you believe what you should know better than to read in the people magazines and columns, there are plenty of somebodies who should find that last part no strain.

Second hand smokers

Art Buchwald

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — I attended a World Conference on Smoking and Health last month on my way to China, and it was very fascinating to hear the attacks on the weed. One of the items on the agenda was the plight of the Passive or Involuntary Smoker, as opposed to a person who smokes.

The conference, of course, came out in favor of the Involuntary or Passive Smoker, otherwise known in anti-smoking circles as the Secondhand Smoker, since this person doesn't smoke but gets it all from the one who puffs.

SUCH VARIED pressure groups as GASP (Group Against Smokers' Pollution) and ASH (Action on Smoking and Health) are working to ban smoking in public places, insisting that nonsmokers shouldn't be penalized for someone else's dirty habits.

But there is another side to the story. Smokers believe that Involuntary Smokers are just getting a free smoke from the cigarette addict.

One of them, Morris Phillip, complained that every time he lights up a cigarette, the nonsmokers try to get as close to him as they can so they can breathe the fine aroma into their lungs.

"I buy the cigarettes, I pay the taxes on them," he complained, "and then a bunch of freeloaders inhale everything I'm puffing out. It isn't fair."

"LIFE IS UNFAIR," I told him. "If you think you have it bad, what about cigar smokers? It costs at least a dollar for a good cigar. You light it up after dinner and set up a smoke-screen. Immediately everyone in the room takes a free sniff and then starts coughing on you. Heaven knows how many germs they're spreading when they do it."

"Pipe smokers have to put up with the same thing," Phillip continued. "A can of tobacco costs a packet. The pipe smoker may take 15 minutes to fill his bowl — first pouring the tobacco in, then tamping it down and finally, after much debate, lighting it in his cupped hands. It's as beautiful to watch as a tea ceremony. But when the pipe is finally lit, does the pipe owner get to enjoy it in solitude? No, he doesn't! People start buzzing around hoping to get a cheap nicotine high by putting their noses as close to the pipe as they can."

"Why don't they leave us alone when we're smoking?" he said. "I don't mind the occasional nonsmoker trying to fill up his own lungs with my smoke — once in a while. But what I deeply resent is the guy who gave up smoking for good and gets his kicks from those of us who are still at it. If he doesn't smoke, the least he could do is spring for a pack once in a while for someone who does, particularly if that person is blowing the clouds his way."

"Secondary smokers," I said, "are like that. They can sit next to someone secretly enjoying every refreshing smoke ring and never have to worry about getting nicotine stains on their teeth."

"What can you do?" I asked Phillip. "Whenever a nonsmoker sits next to me, I tell them, 'I'm sorry, but I paid for the smoke in this cigarette, and I would appreciate it if you moved somewhere else so you get none of the pleasure from it.'"

"What if they won't move?"

"Then I move. We primary smokers are sick and tired of being bugged by secondary smokers, particularly when they start wheezing and sneezing and having a good time at our expense."

Why diuretic use has to be monitored

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have swollen ankles and have been taking a drug called "Dyazide." What do you know about this product? Can a person lose a lot of body potassium with extra urination? I read this somewhere and wondered if I should stop. I have had leg cramps and feel weak. — N.S.

This commercial product is a combination of two drugs — triamterene and hydrochlorothiazide. The two drugs work together, each acting as a diuretic (removing excess fluid in the body). A special feature of the triamterene is that it minimizes the total potassium lost. Potassium is one of the vital body minerals. Because of this characteristic the triamterene is called a "potassium-sparing" drug, a term you may have heard before.

Such combination medicines are effective in controlling swelling (edema) and are also widely used for control of mild high blood pressure.

Now, about your potassium. People using diuretics frequently require potassium supplements, although from the above discussion you can see why you may not. There is another factor to consider. Doctors frequently prescribe more than one kind of diuretic. If this is true in your case you may indeed be on the low side, potassium wise. Report your symptoms. Normally, however, there is potential danger in a patient taking potassium supplements while taking the potassium-sparing medicines. The danger is a buildup of the substance in the body.

You can readily see from all this why patients on diuretics should be seen occasionally to have their dosages evaluated.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have been told that, properly used, the good old condom is still the best birth control method around. True? — Mrs. P.W.

You said it — "properly used."

I have to agree that all things considered the condom is effective, although the pill remains the most certain method. The pill would certainly rank first were it not for the fact that many women, for one reason or another, cannot use it.

The condom is effective in preventing venereal disease. The pill offers no VD protection. The condom is gaining new respect among some doctors concerned about rising VD rates, especially among the young. The booklet, "Twelve Methods of Birth Control," discusses these matters in greater detail and if readers want a copy, they can order one by sending 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Donohue: How about giving "Reach for Recovery" a plug. It sure helped me after my mastectomy. More women should know about it, but I find that few do. — Mrs. P.W.

Agreed! Consider a well-deserved plug given. It is a valuable program for women who have had breast surgery and I endorse it. Women who are interested may check with a local branch of the American Cancer Society.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I was told that my drinking water contained impurities and am concerned. Why can't our officials keep our drinking water safe with all the tax money they get. What can one do by himself? — T.R.

I am not sure I know what you mean by the word "impurities" and I am not convinced that you do either. If you mean what I think you mean you should have no fears. All water (unless it's distilled) contains certain impurities. These are naturally-occurring elements present in nature — calcium, magnesium, iron, etc. These will not hurt you.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: When a young adult rejects God, what should Christian parents do? — Mrs. T.A.

DEAR MRS. T.A.: This can be a heartbreaking time, but you can be sure God is even more concerned about that young person than you are. That is one reason we can have hope, because God is still at work. "Behold, the Lord's hand is not shortened, that it cannot save; neither his ear heavy, that it cannot hear" (Isaiah 59:1).

That is why the most important thing you can do is to pray for a young person who has rejected God. God alone can bring that person back. We may not understand completely how He uses our prayers to do that, but we are told to pray, because He "is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think" (Ephesians 3:20). This does not mean that our prayers will be answered in the way we want them to be immediately. But your hope is in God, that His Holy Spirit will work in the heart of this young person to draw him back to God.

You also will want to do all you can to keep the lines of communication open. This may not be easy, particularly if the young person has not only rejected God but has rebelled against parents also. (Rejecting God and rejecting parents often go together.) But you must do all you can to let this young person know that you still love him, even if you disagree with what he is doing. Be careful in communicating your feelings to him; it would be easy for you to sound as if you were simply condemning him for what he is doing. He will probably know that you disagree, but you also need to let him know that you love him — just as God loves him, in spite of his rejection of Him. Incidentally, if you feel you have done something wrong toward him, do not be afraid to confess this to him. Sometimes this will be very helpful.

There may seem to be little you can do directly at this stage of the life of a young person. But many young people have come to a deep faith in Christ because of the continuing love of parents who prayed for their children.

Hearings open Monday

PUC lawyer questions TESCO's reserve quota

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Electric Service Co. is trying to charge its customers for an unusually large excess generating capacity, a state Public Utility Commission lawyer suggested Monday.

Allen King questioned why the Fort Worth-based company needs the capacity to generate 50 percent more electricity than its customers require at peak hours of a summer day.

At the first day of commission hearings on TESCO's $88 million requested rate hike, King cited other companies' backup power supply.

TESCO's customers in 48

counties eventually pay for a utility's reserve capacity, the lawyer said.

Houston Lighting and Power has an 18.7 percent power backup, Gulf States 13 percent and El Paso Electric Co. 23.3 percent, King said.

"Isn't this an unusually high reserve capacity?" he asked Wes Taylor, TESCO vice president for engineering.

"These are very unusual times for electric utilities," Taylor said.

TESCO and other utilities in the Texas Utilities system are converting from natural gas and oil power plants to lignite and nuclear fuels, Taylor said.

The conversion program accounts for some of the additional reserve capacity, the executive added.

King did not suggest how much extra capacity the company should maintain but indicated customers might be paying too much for the 50 percent reserve.

The commission staff has recommended a $27.5 million hike. Residential customer bills would increase by an average of $5 monthly if the company figure is approved. The hearing is expected to last seven to eight days.

Opponents of TESCO's rate request include Fort Worth, Burkburnett and Hurst; the county commissioners of Midland and Tarrant counties; the Texas Municipal League and the Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now (ACORN).

King also questioned Taylor about the company's request to maintain a 2 million-barrel fuel oil inventory for backup.

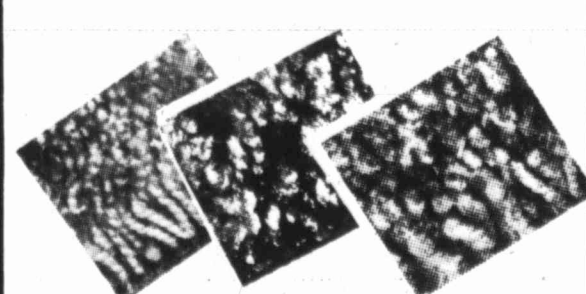

The utility commission approved only 1 million barrels in fuel oil reserves during TESCO's rate case last October. The company was granted a $40.4 million hike, but had asked for $110 million.

King said the commission staff thinks TESCO should be allowed to charge customers the cost of maintaining only a 1 million-barrel reserve.

Gas lines vanishing

NEW YORK (AP) — The gasoline crisis, which just a few weeks ago forced Americans into long lines at service stations around the country, seems to have all but disappeared.

But analysts say its disappearance is not as mysterious as it might seem. It's just that supply has once again caught up with demand.

The supply of gasoline is improving because the effects on oil supplies of the Iranian revolution and a drop in U.S. oil production last winter are substantially subsiding.

When they were unable to get the crude oil to make as much gasoline as they needed, oil companies had to allocate what gas they could make — about 90 percent as much as last year. Under federal rules companies then had to give priority customers as much as they got a year ago, with the rest divided up among service stations. This meant that many stations were getting about 80 percent of what they got a year ago.

Because gasoline that couldn't be bought also couldn't be burned, consumption was cut sharply.

"In essence, you had rationing," said Larry Goldstein, an analyst at Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, a group supported by the oil industry.

Lines and gas station closings proliferated because of the sudden cutback in supply. But once Americans got used to the smaller amount of gasoline available, they drove less and the situation stabilized, analysts say. Fears of shortages and the effects of higher prices also decreased consumption, say analysts.

But the higher prices did not, as has been suggested, ease the shortage by freeing up hidden supplies of gasoline, analysts say. Rather, consumer resistance to the higher prices cut demand, taking pressure off supplies.

Beware of the boa

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Car thieves who stole a two-door, white-and-blue sport sedan in the city's Mission District may have got more than they bargained for.

The car's owner, who asked not to be identified, said a live boa constrictor was in the back seat of the auto when it was taken Saturday night.

He urged anyone who comes near the car — thieves included — to "use caution as there is a scared, live, 4½-foot boa constrictor running around inside it."

Town egged into another

VINELAND, N.J. (AP) — The home of the annual spring dandelion festival is cooking up another one — the first annual eggplant dinner and festival.

Vineland Mayor Patrick R. Fiorilli is promoting an eggplant bash on Aug. 10 to celebrate Cumberland County's production of up to one-half of the eggplants produced in the United States.

Fiorilli says he will cook the entire gourmet dinner himself and will provide free Alka Seltzer "for those of little faith."

Unlike the dandelion festival, which features dandelion wine, Fiorilli said there will be no eggplant wine at his dinner simply because "We haven't gotten around to inventing an eggplant wine yet."

An elephant grew it

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 100 persons who took advantage of the Ringling Bros. Barnum & Bailey giveaway put up a big stink as they left in trucks and Cadillacs filled with elephant manure.

The circus has offered the free fertilizer to greenthumbs from New York to Los Angeles as it travels across the country.

"In New York, so many people wanted it that they ran out," said publicist Susan Reynolds. "It was amazing."

The manure — collected mostly from 18 circus elephants — was shoveled from bins into plastic garbage bags, cartons, boxes and burlap sacks Monday morning.

"One man dressed in a tie and suit drove up in a real fancy car and got a bag for a friend who's an organic gardener," Ms. Reynolds said. "A lot of true-blue organic gardeners showed up, too, but there were even ladies dressed up in all their finery who looked like they were on their way to lunch in Beverly Hills."

SALT II debate continues

Kissinger will testify before Senate today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who was involved in setting up the negotiations that led to two arms limitation treaties with the Soviet Union, is giving the Senate his view of the latest agreement reached by his successors.

Kissinger's testimony today before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has been awaited eagerly because of the influence he continues to have on foreign policy questions.

He was expected to discuss the SALT II pact, not only in terms of its specific provisions, but in the context of U.S.-Soviet relations and the roles the superpowers play in the world.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., one of several senators who have discussed SALT over repeated breakfasts with Kissinger, predicted the former secretary of state's views "will be decisive to moderates with serious concerns about the treaty as it stands now and the approach our foreign policy now takes."

As the chief foreign policy adviser to former presidents Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford, Kissinger played a key role in the negotiations that led to the SALT I agreement and the continuation of talks that resulted in SALT II.

Later this week, Kissinger will testify on the pact before the Senate Armed Services Committee.

On Monday, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance told that committee he has regularly consulted with Kissinger on the agreement.

"I have kept him informed fully," said Vance.

The secretary of state tried to assure senators of the administration's determination to increase defense spending by 3 percent a year above the inflation rate.

That is the size of the boost in arms outlays the administration has committed itself to in speaking with NATO allies.

Meanwhile, Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., Ind.-Va., declaring his opposition to the treaty, said he believes it would give the Soviet Union strategic superiority. Byrd is a member of the Armed Services Committee.

Also on Monday, the Senate Budget Committee voted to authorize a $13.4 billion increase in defense spending over the three years from 1982 through 1984.

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., who offered the proposal, said it was designed to assure deployment of five major strategic weapons systems — the MX missile, air-launched cruise missiles, the cruise missile carrier, Trident missiles and Trident-carrying submarines.

Domenici said his proposal "is not my effort to get additional strategic money so SALT will get my support."

Rather, he said, "It is a recognition of what probably is going to happen if SALT II is approved."

A growing number of senators have been pressing the administration to commit itself to increased defense spending. Many are following the position taken by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who said the treaty would be a useful step if the nation is willing to spend the additional money necessary to maintain military balance with the Soviet Union.

Uncle Sam wants you

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Uncle Sam wants Agatha K. McGhee.

Several dozen brochures have been sent by the Army, Navy and the Marines urging her to sign up. Last week, the Air Force joined the chase by sending her two enlistment forms.

But Mrs. McGhee doesn't feel she's quite what the military has in mind — she's a 64-year-old grandmother.

"I could be a cook all right, but I don't know about the infantry," she said.

Hospital for children

Treatment without charge

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — When Michael Farmer tumbled down the stairs five years ago, the boy's parents took him to a hospital to find out why his bruises wouldn't heal. They learned their son might die.

Within a year, St. Jude Children's Research Hospital doctors told Lynn and Robert Farmer their only daughter Leisa, like their son, has a rare, incurable blood disease. Telling parents their child might die — and telling the child — is part of a doctor's job at St. Jude.

"They don't lie to you," Mrs. Farmer said. Mike, now 12, and Leisa, 11, are still alive, and the 35-year-old housewife has learned to cope with the lethal illnesses of two of her three children. "At first it seems unspeakably cruel," she said, "but you learn to appreciate the truth. Knowing makes it somehow less frightening."

The hospital has treated more than 5,000 youngsters from around the world without charge since it opened 17 years ago. It was founded by entertainer Danny Thomas and is supported by grants and charity.

The children's illnesses — leukemia and other cancers, neuromuscular disorders and blood diseases — are catastrophic or the children wouldn't be there. St. Jude's doctors treat only children with potentially terminal illnesses. They try to keep the youngsters alive in hopes that cures may be found and they help the children — who've hardly lived — to face death.

There is no formula, but the preparation begins with the truth. "If you do not tell the patient what's really happening, then he cannot make the best of his situation," explained Dr. Morris Powazek, a clinical psychologist.

But dealing openly with death doesn't lessen the pain, so the seven professionals in the psychology-psychiatry department try to help the family cope.

Generally when a child is brought to St. Jude, the parents know he is seriously ill, clinical social worker Janet Payne said. Tests are run to confirm the referring doctor's diagnosis. Then, usually on the second day, the doctor tells the parents and child. It's never easy.

"I felt like somebody hit me in the face with a brickbat," Mrs. Farmer said. "They are as kind as possible but it's there in black and white. I felt like my whole world was collapsing."

On the third day "when some of the numbness was worn off," Mrs. Payne said, the parents are told of the psychiatric services. More than half seek help, she said. "Losing a child is such a special agony that there's not much anyone can do to ease it," said Mrs. Payne, 35, the mother of an infant daughter. "We try to provide support for the parents and kids and we support each other."

The explanation of death is tailored to each child, Powazek said, because a child's concept of death varies with his age.

"A very young child from 1 year to about 6... sees death as a separation, like being away on vacation," he said. "The child between 6 and 10 experiences the idea of death emotionally and sees it as a form of desertion by his parents."

"The child of 9 or 10, however, begins to think of death as adults do, understanding the finality...."

Play and parental counseling usually work with younger children.

"Although young children can't put their feelings into words, they will express fear and anger in games and drawings," Powazek said. The counselors' offices are lined with children's art.

Parents receive as much attention as the child. "Young children identify strongly with their parents," Powazek said. "Children have problems when their parents experience emotional difficulties. We try to help parents ventilate their feelings in a private and safe condition so they aren't left isolated at home."

Guilt — parents transferring blame for the child's illness to themselves — is one of the most common feelings.

"Parents look for a reason — anything," Mrs. Payne said. "They will ask if their child is sick because they didn't take him to the doctor soon enough or because they didn't really want another child. When they say they don't know what caused it, that's a healthy response."

With teenagers, the problems are different. "Teen-agers get angry," Mrs. Payne said. "Their illness is very personal, an insult. They resent being sick when their lives are just beginning."

Sometimes a hostile teenager won't take medicine or keep doctor's appointments. Counselors use crisis therapy in these cases, working closely with parents.

My son Dee has decided to move back to Big Spring and work in the store with me. Dee is 28, married to the former Lynda Lloyd (daughter of Judson and Velta) and they have two beautiful daughters. Dee and Lynda are graduates of Texas Tech and have both taught in the public schools. Dee was a band director and Lynda taught home economics.

My dad started the business in 1926 in Slaton, Texas with the proceeds from the sale of a model T truck. He moved to Sweetwater in 1928, one year after I was born. In 1937 he started a branch store here in Big Spring and with mothers help ran two stores. In 1944 my parents sold the Sweetwater operation because of the difficulty of obtaining merchandise and because they had to be separated for days at a time.

To celebrate the return of my oldest son into the business we are having a third generation sale. May I take this opportunity to invite you to come in and meet Dee, Lynda, my wife Evelyn and me.

Red hot Indians win eighth straight game

The Cleveland baseball team has been playing like a bunch of wild Indians since Dave Garcia took over as manager last week.

"I can't answer why we're so hot," said Garcia after winning his eighth straight game Monday night, a 6-5 decision over the Boston Red Sox. "I just know that when this club plays to its utmost, it can win a lot of games."

Garcia, who took over for the beleaguered Jeff Torborg last Monday added: "When you take a look at the nine guys we put out on the field, we probably have the best defensive infield in the league, and I think Rick Manning is the best defensive outfielder in baseball."

Gary Alexander came off the bench Monday night to slam a pinch-hit homer leading off the eighth off Boston reliever Tom Burgmeier, 2-1. Bobby Bonds gave Cleveland its eventual winning run later in the inning with a sacrifice fly.

Stone one-hits Brewers

Steve Stone allowed only one hit — a third-inning homer, by Charlie Moore — before needing last-out relief help from Tippy Martinez, and Al Bumbry hit a two-run homer in the Baltimore sixth to lead the Orioles over Milwaukee.

Royals stifle Blue Jays

Left-hander Larry Gura pitched a three-hitter and Darrell Porter drove in three runs to lead Kansas City's rout of Toronto. Gura, 7-7, allowed singles in the first and second before setting down 19 of the next 20 men he faced.

Parrott blanks Angels

Mike Parrott pitched a four-hitter and Willie Horton knocked in six runs with two homers and a single to lead Seattle over California. Horton's 18th homer of the season, only his second hit in 25 at bats, came in the sixth inning off Angels starter Jim Barr, 7-7.

Tigers continue Ranger skid

Al Greene's sacrifice fly in the eighth inning led Detroit over Texas. The game was highlighted by the appearance of Mickey Rivers as a Ranger. Rivers, obtained earlier in the day from the New York Yankees in a trade, ignited a two-run rally with a single to center in the seventh when the Rangers tied the game 4-4.

Yankees explode by White Sox

Willie Randolph keyed a five-run sixth inning with a separate triple and Lou Piniella crashed a solo homer to power New York past Chicago.

Goltz, Twins defeat A's

Right-hander Dave Goltz pitched a six-hitter and Ken Landreaux hit a two-run double, as the Twins beat Oakland, Goltz, 10-7, struck out five and walked none.

IN THE LEAD — Lisa-Marie Allen of Garden Grove, Calif., skates into first place in the women's competition during two minute short program Saturday night at the National Sports Festival in Colorado Springs.

Powell overcomes Oerter

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — John Powell won the discus at National Sports Festival II, but Al Oerter continues to strike blows for anyone who ever spent a glum 40th birthday.

However, youth also had its day at the Festival Monday.

Tracee Talavera, a 4-foot-9 12-year-old who at 74 pounds weighs about 200 pounds less than Oerter, captured gold medals in the balance beam and uneven parallel bars after winning the all-around women's gymnastics title earlier.

"I thought I would do OK here, but not as well as I've been doing because I haven't worked on my routines that much," said Talavera, who with her coach lives in Eugene, Ore.

Oerter, a veritable track and field fossil at 42, came out of retirement three years ago after not touching the discus for eight years. No matter that he had won four Olympic gold medals — his was a pipe dream, many said.

Since then, Oerter, who has two daughters in college, has thrown farther — over 219 feet — than he ever did in his 20s and 30s, and placed second to Powell Monday with a strong 211-8 heave.

Powell, who won with a toss of 214 feet, was himself retired before Oerter's success fueled his resolve to return.

Eller traded to Seattle

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — "Football is football. It doesn't surprise me at all," said veteran defensive end Carl Eller after learning the Minnesota Vikings had traded him to Seattle.

The Vikings traded Eller, 37, plus an undisclosed draft choice to the Seahawks Monday for defensive tackle Steve Niehaus, Vikings spokesman Jeff Diamond said.

Eller, a five-time All Pro during his 16-year National Football League career, says he will miss his teammates and miss being a Viking.

But Eller, who failed to show up when the Vikings opened training camp last Wednesday, said he's also happy to leave.

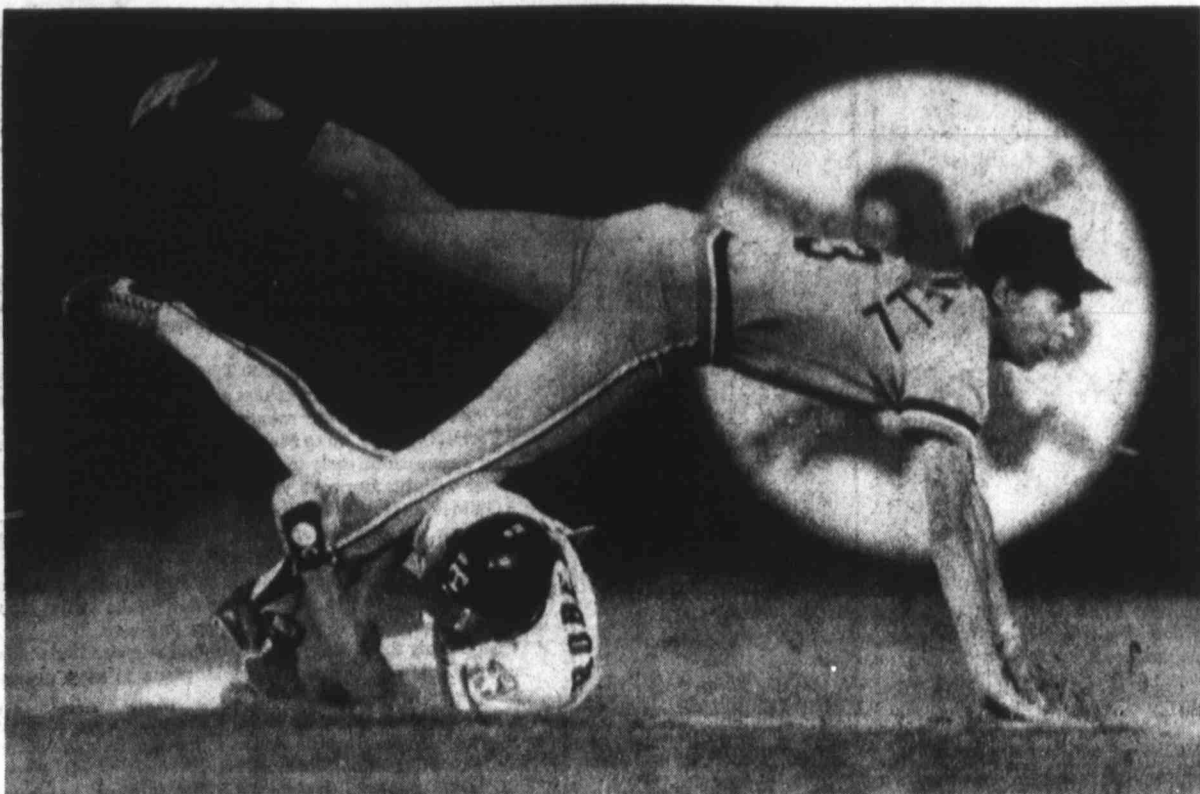

"It relieves me quite a bit," Eller said. "I did have problems with (Vikings General Manager) Mike Lynn and I knew having to play this year with those feelings was going to be very tough. My dealings with him have become a very big factor in everything."

Eller said he was happy to be going to Seattle because the Seahawks' coach is Jack Patera, a Vikings assistant from 1969 to 1975.

"I think Seattle is an acceptable alternative," Eller said. "I do think that Jack is aware of what it's like to deal with me and understands me. But I'll be starting fresh."

"I think he'll set a tremendous example for our young defensive linemen," said Patera. "We don't have anyone who can rush the passer as well as Carl."

BREAKING UP DOUBLE — Detroit Tigers' Alan Trammell flies over Dave Roberts of the Texas Rangers as Roberts breaks up a double play in the third inning of Monday night's game at Arlington Stadium. Tigers' pitcher Jack Morris relayed a hit by Texas' Nelson Norman to Trammell, forcing out Roberts but the throw to first was too late to get Norman.

Yankees didn't like Rivers moodiness, lateness

Bad habits forced trade

CHICAGO (AP) — Mickey Rivers' moodiness and propensity for lateness and missing team flights apparently led the New York Yankees to trade him to the Texas Rangers for three minor leaguers and another player to be named later, a team official says.

The official said Rivers was AWOL at least 10 times in the last 3½ years and that the team always covered for him. Even when the fleet center fielder showed up, the Yankees never knew if he was ready to play, the official added.

Rivers, often called the man who "makes things happen," for the two-time defending world champions, was traded to the Rangers on Monday for outfielder-first baseman Gary Gray, outfielder Mike Hart, infielder Domingo Ramos and a player to be named later.

General Manager Cedric Tallis said the move was made to "make it easier for (Manager) Billy Martin, although not the traditional illustration similar to other

Oliver incensed over Rivers trade

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Al Oliver, who will be replaced as the Texas center fielder as soon as the newly-acquired Mickey Rivers arrives, blasted the Rangers front office Monday, saying: "This trade disrupts the team regardless of how good Rivers can play."

Oliver, who has been told he must shift to left field after tonight's game, said: "I am tired of being moved around. I have a better arm than Rivers. This team had all winter to trade for a center fielder."

The Rangers put Oliver in center field to start the season after they traded Juan Beniquez to the New York Yankees. The Rangers got Rivers Monday from the Yankees as an exchange for three minor leaguers and a player to be named later.

"This trade is totally uncalled for. Contending teams just don't do this kind of thing in July," Oliver said.

Oliver, his eyes flashing, held court in the Rangers clubhouse. He said, "There are a few people (in the Rangers front office) that I would like to jack around physically, but the fact is that that would get me put out of baseball."

Cowboys trim roster

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys reduced their roster to 76 Monday by trading two free agent rookies and releasing four others.

Al Pitts of Michigan State was traded to the Chicago Bears for an undisclosed draft choice, and wide receiver Mike Kirtman of San Jose State went to the Buffalo Bills also for an undisclosed draft pick.

Pitts was a sixth-round draft choice by Cleveland last year, but was released by the Browns.

Defensive back Ken Randle of Southern Cal, running back Adger Armstrong of Texas A&M, defensive lineman Mike Beal of Kansas and middle linebacker Paul Suhey of Penn State were placed on waivers.

Nazarene captures church tourney

The Nazarene Superstars rallied from an 8-2 deficit to take a 10-9 victory over Salem Baptist in the finals of the church league fast-pitch tournament held last night at the City Park. Salem was hoping to become the first team to win both the regular season title and tourney title in five years.

Salem held a 3-2 lead after the first inning, and used a grand slam homer by Tony Gianetti to increase their lead to 8-2 in the fourth inning.

Nazarene battled back, however, scoring three runs in the bottom of the fifth to cut the lead to 8-5. Craig Olson's leadoff homer in the sixth then started a rally that tied the game, sending it into extra innings.

Salem took a 9-8 lead in the top of the eighth, but Nazarene scored twice in their half of the inning to win the game and the tournament championship.

Astros commit 7 errors in loss to Giants

By The Associated Press

San Francisco shortstop Roger Metzger watched the Houston Astros make seven errors and realized he'd seen it before — last year, when Metzger was with the Astros, they had done the same thing — set a team record for errors in a contest.

"(Giants reliever) Randy Moffitt came by and asked me if I had ever seen a major league team make seven errors and I realized I had, in my last game in an Astros uniform," said Metzger, who was purchased by San Francisco on June 15, 1978. "The only difference was, we came back to win that game."

There was no coming back for the Astros Monday night. Left-hander Bob Knepper held them to five hits and drove in four runs with a bases-loaded double and a bunt, helping the Giants to an 8-0 triumph.

Knight paces Reds attack

Ray Knight knocked in three runs with a pair of homers as Cincinnati beat Los Angeles for its seventh victory in eight games. Knight has driven in 22 over the last 16 games. Harry Spillman added a two-run double in a five-run Cincinnati eighth inning.

Cardinals split with Expos

Ellis Valentine celebrated his birthday with two home runs and Larry Parrish and Chris Speier added one each as Montreal salvaged a split of the doubleheader and remained first in the East by .002.

Keith Hernandez carried the Cardinals to victory in the opener, clouting the fourth grand slam homer of his career and adding a sacrifice fly to back the five-hit pitching of John Denny, 5-8.

Pirates rally by Mets

Ed Ott's tie-breaking RBI single sparked the three-run eighth inning that carried Pittsburgh past New York and kept the Pirates close to the Expos. Former Met Tim Lincecum, who had four hits, added a run-scoring single and Omar Moreno had a sacrifice fly in the eighth-inning burst that sent the Pirates to their fourth victory in five games.

Phillies nip Cubs in 10th

Manny Trillo's bases-loaded single in the 10th inning delivered Mike Schmidt with the run that gave Philadelphia its victory over Chicago and relief ace Bruce Sutter.

Sutter, 5-4 with 23 saves, gave up a leadoff single in the inning to Schmidt, who then stole second and advanced on a wild pitch before Bob Boone and Garry Maddox were walked intentionally to set up a force play. Trillo then followed with his single.

Mixed drinks tax nets Howard County $3,536

State Comptroller Bob Bullock announced Monday that Howard County will receive $3,536.18 from the state as remittance from the county tax revenue from mixed drink sales. The total Howard County tax revenue from mixed drinks sales was $23,574.50.

The city of Big Spring can expect $3,065.91 remitted from a total city tax revenue of $20,439.42.

Texas cities and counties receive a 15 percent rebate of the tax collected on mixed drinks sold within their boundaries under the law that legalized the sale of mixed drinks.

Gross receipts taxes on mixed drinks earned the state $14 million in revenue during the second quarter of the year.

Bullock said mixed drink taxes for the April, May, June period were about $1.2 million more than collected during the first quarter.

His office has mailed checks totaling $5.7 million to some 200 counties and 350 cities as their share of the 10 percent gross receipts tax.

Total taxes collected for the three-month period were $19.8 million and after deducting the city-county rebates the balance will go to the state's General Revenue Fund.

Last year, the mixed drink tax generated more than $65.3 million for state, county and city governments, Bullock said.

The mixed drink tax is collected by the Alcoholic Beverage Commission and the city-county share is rebated on a quarterly basis by the Comptroller's office.

Dawson County will collect $219.35 remittance on a total county tax revenue of $1,462.36 on mixed drink sales.

Mitchell County can expect to collect $268.86 on a total county tax revenue of $1,792.42 from mixed drink sales. Colorado City, Mitchell County seat, will collect $197.08 on a total city tax revenue of $1,313.88.

Vincent is being held in the Nolan County jail in lieu of $25,000 bond. Police said the incident occurred about 11:30 p.m., Sunday. Charges were filed with Justice of Peace Thomas Greene, who set bond.

AVOID EMBARRASSMENT WITH ROACHES... use Johnston's No-Roach today

Johnston's No-Roach quick, easy, effective

Some people never have the neighbors in ... and it is understandable. Who wants to take a chance on the neighbor spotting a cockroach clitting across a counter, or down a drain? So it is that thousands of housewives, all over America, never join a Kaffee Klatch, because they know they can never take their turns having the girls in.

Or can they? Of course they can. All they have to do is discover Johnston's No-Roach... the sure sure-fire answer to cockroach problems. Not to mention ants ... and silverfish... and spiders... and so forth. No-Roach, the household insecticide that keeps the promise of its name. The seemign magic about No-Roach is the ease with which it is used. You just brush it on anywhere that roaches or other crawling pests may assemble: across doorways, windowsills and baseboards; in cupboards and along the edges of kitchen cabinets. No-Roach dries to an invisible shield that is colorless and odorless. All the time you are serving coffee to the neighbors, No-Roach is killing cockroach eggs back in the nest... because every roach (or insect of any kind) that crosses No-Roach, picks it up on its feet and takes it home.

Do the neighborly thing. Serve the ladies on the block a cup of coffee in a roach-tree kitchen... thanks to Johnston's No-Roach. Johnston's No-Roach is available at Safeway, Furr's, Sav-U, Gibson's Foodway, Giant Discount and all grocery stores. Johnston's No-Roach is distributed by Winn Dixie of Fort Worth.

HUMAN TORCH — Australian fire expert Grant Page, 40, a twenty year veteran of stuntwork moves about wildly having poured a gallon of napalm over his head and body and lighted it to promote the movie "City on Fire" in Los Angeles Monday. Page's safety is aided by a special gel substance derived in part from the sap of the Australian Tee Tree which sharply reduces his body temperature.

Bundy draws electric chair

MIAMI (AP) — Twice deadlocked between life and death, a jury has voted to send smiling former law student Theodore R. Bundy to Florida's electric chair for strangling two sorority sisters. Now a judge must decide whether to take the jury's advice.

Judge Edward D. Cowart said he would announce today whether Bundy is to live in prison or die in "Old Sparky," the oak chair in the state's death chamber.

Bundy seemed unconcerned. "See you next trial," he said with a grin on the way out Monday after the jury recommended his execution.

The jurors were out for just under two hours. On the first ballot, six jurors voted for Bundy to live, said juror Mar Russo. Six voted for death. Another vote produced another 6-6 tie.

"Each time we voted secretly," she said. "The third time we came up with a majority." Jurors would not say what the final vote was.

Under Florida's two-stage trial system in capital cases, a unanimous jury vote is required for a conviction. But only a simple majority is needed for the jury's non-binding recommendation on a penalty.

Cowart gave no hint whether he would accept the jury recommendation. He has sentenced three people to death, once overriding a jury that recommended life in prison.

Florida electrocuted convicted murder John A. Spinklink on May 25, the first time in 12 years an inmate in an American prison was executed.

unwillingly. Bundy seemed without emotion when the jury's recommendation was read. As he had when he was convicted six days earlier, he remained serene, chewing idly on a mint and scribbling notes on a yellow pad.

Then he rose — but only to speak in calm tones. He wanted to make sure his family could visit him in jail. Cowart said they could.

Prosecutor Larry Simpson reminded jurors of Lisa Levy, 20, and Margaret Bowman, 21, who were battered, choked, and bitten in the Chi Omega sorority house in Tallahassee. Three other young women were beaten the same morning around the Florida State University campus.

Bundy wouldn't let his lawyers introduce results of his last psychiatric test, but public defender Margaret Good tried to depict a client with a troubled mind.

"The crimes were the product of delusion, disorder and compulsion," she said. She argued that the victims had not suffered. "They were sleeping," she said. "They felt no pain."

Later, she noted the defense has until Aug. 10 to file a motion for a new trial and said "We will file it before that time."

Bundy has other dates in court. He is due for trial in September on a charge of murdering 12-year-old Kimberly Leach, of Lake City, Fla., on Feb. 9, 1978. He is charged in Colorado with the 1975 slaying of Dearborn, Mich., nurse Caryn Campbell. He is still under a 15-year Utah prison sentence for the 1974 kidnapping of 17-year-old Carol DaRonch.

The FBI said in early 1978 that Bundy was sought for questioning in three dozen murders of young women. He was not charged except for the Utah, Colorado and Florida cases.

Sports junkies, attention!!!

Cable network will televise contests up to 19 hours a day

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sports junkies, hearken!

Beginning in September, an all-sports cable network will begin televising sporting contests for up to 19 hours a day. By December, the network hopes to go 24 hours.

On a typical Sunday this autumn, by switching from the sports network to commercial TV and back, fanatics will be able to watch football from 5 a.m. Sunday to 1 a.m. on Monday. I see trouble here.

The instigator: The Entertainment and Sports Programming Network, Inc., out of Bristol, Conn. Or, ESPN, as it will come to be lovingly known (hated, perhaps).

Oh, it won't be just football. There will be other, say, lesser sports on ESPN. Darts, for example. The Pony League World Series. Gaelic hurling. Volleyball.

If all goes as planned, ESPN will provide 8,760 hours of nonstop sports.

My wife won't like this. The pusher here is one William F. Rasmussen, who at first only wanted to supply Connecticut sports junkies with University of Connecticut events. Then he discovered he could buy a spot on RCA's Satcom satellite, and send sports around the country for the same price.

"Our transmissions go by satellite, so it can't be received by cable stations that don't have earth (receiving) stations," says Dennis Randall, ESPN promotion director.

No matter. Already, ESPN has signed deals with about 600 cable systems, which service more than four million homes.

The cost to the cable system makes the sports network hard to refuse. Cable systems pay ESPN only $2.40 per subscriber to get the service for five years.

ESPN will make its money on advertising. The firm has already signed the biggest commercial contract in the history of cable TV, a $1 million deal with Anheuser-Busch, giving the beer company a one-eighth sponsorship of all of ESPN's NCAA events.

NCAA sports will comprise the bulk of ESPN's program (about 65 percent), including many NCAA football games this fall. ESPN will tape-delay some of the games, to avoid conflicting with ABC's TV contract with the NCAA.

But ESPN will also deliver tennis, women's golf, water polo, and, as mentioned

Can't you imagine it? Sunday night. You're bleary-eyed from 36 hours of TV football. You should be in bed, but there's that last, important throw of the dart coming up...

Sounds crazy, but there are signs that ESPN will work. For one thing, Getty Oil liked the idea enough to sink $10 million into ESPN for controlling interest in the company. And a couple of weeks ago, Chet Simmons quit his job as chief of NBC Sports to assume the ESPN presidency.

"There are people out there," says Randall, "who watch sport after sport after sport."

I know, Randall. I know.

TWEEN 12 and 20

Lucky to be rid of two-timing louse

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a respectable 17-year-old girl and I would never do anything that I would regret. Here is my problem. For the last six months, I have been dating a guy who is 22. Last night he finally convinced me to make love with him. Then we told each other our secrets. I was shocked and told him to get lost when he told me that he had several girlfriends on the side. One of them is 14. Today I'm sorry that I told him off and I want him back. Do you think I should? — Karla, Big Spring, Texas. Karla: I personally think this guy is a two-timing louse and you did well in telling him to get lost. I'm always suspect of 22-year-old men who date 14-year-old girls. Dr. Wallace: I have been dating a guy that I care for very much. I miss him so much during the day that I call him at work but I only talk to him a few minutes. Last week he told me not to call him because he is always busy. Now I get the feeling that he doesn't much care for me. He doesn't call me or take me out anymore. What should I do? — Connie, Tacoma, Wash. Connie: It's obvious that this boy no longer cares for your company. So, don't waste your time brooding about him. But when you meet another datable guy, don't call him at work. It's not fair to the boy or his employer. Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 and 20, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Female athletes taking on weights

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Over the years there has been a popular assumption that since men who lifted weights developed big, bulky muscles, women who lifted weights would develop the same way. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Women have 10 percent more fat than men in their total body weight, which makes it physiologically impossible to build the same muscle masses as males, says Seventeen Magazine's August issue. Also, women don't produce the male sex hormone testosterone, which promotes muscle growth.

So though the myths persist, young women are learning to ignore them and are now taking to weight training in growing numbers.

Among the female athletes who use weights are tennis players Margaret Court, Martina Navratilova and Billie Jean King. "There's a feeling that women don't want muscles, that it will make them less feminine, but we're overcoming that," King says. "Weights give you definition instead of flab. They keep my mind and body together, ease tension, help me feel better and get along with less sleep."

While lifting weights may add pounds to the frame, that doesn't mean fat. Experts stress that muscle is twice as dense as fat, so numbers can be deceptive. At Indiana University, where all ten of the women's intercollegiate teams now use weight training, the girls of the athletes' thighs and calves were measured before and after the program began. According to Marge Albohm, a trainer at the school, "There was a gain in strength and muscle tone, but no appreciable increase in bulk. In fact, many times the thighs and calves were smaller."

Weight training for women is no longer taboo, and athletes' performances are improving because of it. Besides, Albohm says, "A well-toned body is much more attractive than one that's skinny or fat."

HAUTE COUTURE FASHION — A Per Spook rust suit composed of a straight high waisted skirt and a silk blouse, to be worn with buckskin boots, was presented last Thursday by this Paris based Norwegian designer as part of his Haute Couture Fall Winter 79-80 collection.

Dear Abby

Brotherly Love

DEAR ABBY: Six years ago I lent my brother $1,000 because he was in a tight spot. It was married at the time and so was he. I didn't ask him to sign an IOU. Neither did I ask for interest on my money.

He promised to pay me back within a year, but never did. I would have been satisfied if he had paid me a few hundred dollars at a time just to show good faith, but he ignored the debt as if he never owed it. In the meantime he bought his wife a new car. Now they are buying a boat!

I called him up and reminded him that he should pay his honest debts before buying luxuries. He replied by saying if he had known I was that hard up he would have managed to repay me before this. I am not hard up and he knows it. I lost my cool and said, "It's not the money — in fact, you can skip it; it was worth $1,000 to me to find out how lacking in character you are!"

Now my brother claims he doesn't owe me anything because I let him off the hook by a remark I made in anger. Does he owe me or doesn't he?

BIG HEARTED SISTER

DEAR SISTER: When you told him he could "skip it," you let him off the hook, verbally. But, morally, he still owes you.

DEAR ABBY: How about a repeat on undressing in the closet? My wife undresses in the closet and always has. When we make love, it's lights out, and under a sheet. Must I go to a peep show so I won't forget what a woman looks like?

POOR ME IN ESTHERVILLE

DEAR POOR: No. Try the beach.

CONFIDENTIAL TO S.A. IN GARDEN CITY: A closed mouth gathers no feet.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet, "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Your pocketbook is a grab bag

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Don't let your purse get carried away with your springtime spirits. Discourage a thief by following the following tips:

- Carry a purse that buckles or zips securely. If the purse has a flap, keep the flap side toward your body.
- Choose a shoulder bag with a short strap and hold on to your bag tightly. Purse snatchers look for the person who swings her purse loosely.
- Show an air of confidence when walking down the street. Purse snatchers tend to prey on shy types. Beware of strangers who ask for change or matches. While you're busy rummaging in your bag, it could be yanked out of your hand.
- Have your keys ready when you go to open your car or house door. Fumbling in your purse gives a thief a chance to approach without warning.
- Never hang your bag on the back of a restaurant chair. Hold it on your lap instead, and take it with you if you head for the ladies' room.

D-FW airport 'sets people off'

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — Negotiating the nation's largest airport, with its maze of signs, lines and procedures can be enough to drive you crazy, or at least reduce you to a babbling example of a mind gone awry.

Officials at Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport say that 20 to 30 people each year are taken from the airport and involuntarily committed to hospitals for psychiatric examinations.

"For some reason, they come here and something sets them off," said Karen Collins of the Airport Community Services agency. "In a large institution such as this, you have to make so many decisions and sometimes it just sets them off. It's usually because something in their plans has gone wrong. They've missed a connecting flight and that upsets them, or they've lost a ticket."

Those who snap usually are intelligent and well-read, Mrs. Collins said Monday, but they're not always travelers. She said some of those detained are area residents drawn to the airport for unknown reasons.

"It's open all night and a lot of people just end up here," she said. "Normally, they just want to be around people. A lot of what they are seeking is just someone to talk to."

"The airport seems to be a location where a lot of mentally disturbed people like to gather," agreed Airport Police Chief Tom Shehan.

Mrs. Collins said the most common symptom of the troubled is a tendency to ramble incoherently, either to themselves or to others. "Usually they are talking religion or the CIA," she said.

She cited the example of a university professor who slipped into another world as his stood in line ready to board his flight.

"He was talking to himself," Mrs. Collins said. "He was talking outer space and rattling off all these mathematical equations. When he was taken into a private office for questioning, he started to disrobe and became delirious."

The man came to his senses long enough to identify himself, she said. His wife later said he had been under tremendous stress in recent months, but had no history of mental illness.

Shehan related a more bizarre example. "This guy jumped a fence and ran out onto an active runway," he said. "By the time we caught up with him, he was a blithering idiot. He didn't know where he was, what he was doing there, or even what his name was."

Mrs. Collins thinks it could happen to anyone.

"All of us are a little crazy," she said. "Given a set of circumstances, who knows how we would react."
