Three-Day Christmas Celebration Claims Over 500 In Nation

(By The Associated Press)

Violent deaths marred the nation's three-day Christmas celebration with a total cost of more than 500 lives. A national survey placed the figure today at 508.

The toll was approximately the same as that for last year, but in 1937 Christmas fell on Saturday and there was only a two-day observance.

The automobile was the biggest single death factor, accounting for at least 395 fatalities.

Twenty-two persons were killed by fire; 19 died by suicide; 12 in railroad crossing crashes, and six drowned. Homicides and miscellaneous accidents were responsible for the remainder.

Ohio led the death parade with 42, other large state tolls included Texas 40, New York 39, Pennsylvania, and California 35 each, Michigan 28 and Illinois 22.

Five states—Nebraska, Nevada, Rhode Island, Vermont and Wyoming—and the District of Columbia, reported no violent deaths.

Italian Troops Are Reported Moving On French Zone

BY RALPH HEINZEN
United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Dec. 27—Heavy troop movements from Italian East Africa towards French Somaliland were reported today in two Paris newspapers.

Pertinax, writing in L'Ordre, and Me. Genevieve Tabouis, writing in l'Oeuvre, asserted that contingents of Ascaris, the native soldiers of Italian East Africa, had been moved up to support a force of between 600 and 700 Italians who six months ago occupied six frontier posts which France claims to be on its side of the border.

Have Strong Force

Both writers, who enjoy international reputations as commentators of foreign affairs, said that recent reports indicated that the Italians had 91,000 Italian troops, 150,000 native troops and 130,000 "working soldiers" in East Africa, against only a small force in French Somaliland.

Wide asphalt military roads had been built from Italian Eritrea to the French Somaliland border, it was asserted.

As these reports were published Premier Edouard Daladier completed his diplomatic program by asking Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary of Great Britain, to stop here on their way to visit Premier Benito Mussolini at Rome in mid-January.

Will Not Concede Land

It was understood that Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet wanted to emphasize that they were not prepared to concede any French territory to Italy and that they did not agree to any Italian effort to get Adolf Hitler of Germany and Chamberlain to "mediate."

The invitation to Chamberlain and Halifax was the third part of Daladier's diplomatic program.

First was the note delivered in Rome yesterday, acknowledging an Italian announcement that the French-Italian accord of 1935 was no longer in effect, and asserting in return that France is prepared neither to concede territory to Italy nor to grant additional privileges to Italians resident in Tunisia.

Secondly, Daladier in the second day of conferences with Erik Labonne, French resident general of Tunisia, completed arrangements for a visit to Corsica and Tunisia calculated to show Italy that France is thinking of defense, rather than concession.

German Press Raps At U. S.

(By The Associated Press)

BERLIN, Dec. 27 — The Berlin Nachtausgabe today led a chorus of nazi afternoon newspapers representing the Pan-American conference at Lima, Peru, as a failure for the United States.

Under such headlines as "the dollar rolled in vain" and "Roosevelt had bad luck at Lima," this nazi organ declared:

"Roosevelt, in closest collaboration with certain Jewish banks of New York, for years has been pursuing a policy of conquering South America with dollars. . . . In Lima, however, Roosevelt had bad luck. He had worked on South America with strong financial means. . . . He could not even scare the South American states with the alleged 'nazi danger'."

Completely Into Camp

"Roosevelt went completely into the camp of the Jews, of money democracy, of the imperialistic conquest of South America."

Propaganda Minister Goebbels' newspaper Der Angriff declared "the Lima failure is extremely embarrassing but has a sobering effect on the United States." It added, "the United States' frontal attack failed on account of the resistance organized especially by Argentina."

Two Plainview Youths Badly Hurt In Holiday Mishaps

Battle Lines To Be Drawn By President

Control Of Demo Party Will Be Big Issue; Changes In Policies Will Be Asked

BY LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27. The 76th congress, elected last month in the first major New Deal political reverse, meets one week from today for a prolonged contest over control of the Democratic party.

Anti - administration Democrats are maneuvering to divert the New Deal to less experimental paths leading directly to the nomination of a conservative presidential candidate in 1940. None is yet certain whether President Roosevelt will compromise or fight. Neither is it established that conservative Democrats will go through with their plan to regain controlling voice in party affairs. That each desires party control is undisputed.

To Define Battle Lines

Mr. Roosevelt will define the general battle lines in two messages to be delivered during the first week of the new congress. On Jan. 4 he will deliver his annual message to a joint session of house and senate. The budget message probably will be read to congress by clerks the following day.

The nature of Mr. Roosevelt's recommendations and especially his spending plans for the next fiscal year will determine partly how far conservative Democrats will carry their rebellion.

It is known that the president will devote more than customary attention this time to foreign affairs. There are indications that the administration is approaching the new year and the new congress with national solidarity for national defense a major 1940 objective.

To Force Changes

Conservative Democrats, however, are planning to force some changes in Roosevelt domestic policies, notably the method of spending relief money. On the issue of relief and related questions hot 1940 political conflicts are expected. Economy and budget balancing are to some extent factors in the approaching spending wars. But congress appears to be less economy-minded than determined that the spending prerogatives consistently voted to Mr. Roosevelt since March 4, 1933, shall hereafter

Farm Program Being Studied

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—A bipartisan group of senators and representatives from agricultural states is being formed to sponsor a "cost-of-production" farm program in the new congress.

Senator Frazier (R-ND) said today members had suggested that this group, including both Democrats and Republicans, agree on a specific program and then confer with Secretary Wallace before offering the legislation.

Conservation Favored

"Many members favor retaining the soil conservation part of the present act and junking the crop reduction features," said Frazier, who had supported many administration measures.

Although the downturn of farm prices in the last two years has centered attention on farm legislation again, few members of congress here in advance of the session were offering specific proposals.

DALLAS, Dec. 27. (AP) — Athletic Director P. C. Cobb of the Dallas high schools today announced a record-breaking gate of $22,600 for the Corpus Christi-Lubbock schoolboy championship grid game played here yesterday.

Five per cent of the gross will be deducted for the Interscholastic league, necessary expenses paid and the two schools will split the remainder on a 50-50 basis, Cobb said.

As Lubbock Dropped Title Game To Corpus

Howard Martin (No. 38) is shown in the top photo packing the mail through the Corpus Christi line in the state championship game yesterday at Dallas. Martin, who replaced Leete Jackson at halfback, was Lubbock's most enthusiastic offensive star, even outshining Webster in short gains during the second half. He has gotten by several Corpus tacklers, and only Hinnant, the Bucs' great center, is in front of him. Lubbock's all-state fullback, Walter Webster, was not as outstanding in the title game as he uniformly has been throughout the season, but he played a good game, at that. Here he is (lower photo) in the fourth quarter, applying his famous stiff-arm in a dash for for a first down. Photos by James Laughead of the Associated Press.

(By The United Press)

OCEAN PARK, Cal., Dec. 27.—Sylvester Kirby, 35, who stuck his right fist inside a lion's mouth to prove his courage, was minus that hand and arm today. The lion clamped its jaws tight.

Kirby is a spieler on the Ocean Park amusement pier. He boasted to other employes outside the lion taming concession that he was not afraid to place his hand inside a lion's mouth "because they won't bite me."

To prove it, he stuck his fist through the bars and into a 3-year-old male lion's mouth. The lion clamped its jaws on his wrist and clawed his arm so badly that it had to be amputated above the elbow. Kirby was in critical condition in a hospital.

The concession owner ordered the lion killed for fear the taste of human blood might turn the beast into a killer.

Two engineers, carrying portable broadcasting equipment, were at the scene with May. Radio Sets Harmonize With Furniture

The new radio consoles, like this one, are designed to take their places in the best of rooms as real pieces of furniture.

Never again will you have to look for a dark corner in which to put the radio. The new consoles are absolutely different from the old high and awkward pieces—they are good to see as well as hear. They are real furniture.

Most important in new radio progress is the horizontal chest proportions instead of the vertical lines of the old consoles. It is now possible to arrange really attractive groupings of furniture which will include the radio instead of leaving it out.

One example of a charming arrangement is in using the horizontal radio in the center of a wall group, with a picture or mirror with wall sconces above it and a group of bric-a-brac on its top. Where there is no fireplace, the radio ca nthus become easily—and safely—the chief center of interest in a room.

In buying a radio, it is possible to concentrate on wood finish and design as well as on tone.

John Hopkins Professor To Hunt History Of Medicine

BALTIMORE, Dec. 27. (AP)—Seeking background for a history of medicine slated to occupy him for a decade, Dr. Henry E. Sigerist, John Hopkins university scientist, will leave next November for Egypt, hoping to delve more than 3,500 years into the past.

The start of his search in the land of the pharaohs is logical, Dr. Sigerist said Monday, since the Egyptians had a system of medicine earlier than 1600 B. C. and even then were using drugs still in use today.

Czech Nation Loses Third Of Area In A Year; Is Almost Destroyed

Autonomy Is Almost Lost

BY HANS THOMAS
United Press Staff Correspondent

PRAGUE, Dec. 27—The year 1938 made Czechoslovakia the vortex of a political whirlpool that threatened to drag an entire continent to destruction.

The year saw armies march across established boundaries, saw war closer and human passions more inflamed than at any time since the World war.

A year that was scheduled joyously to mark the 20th anniversary of the foundation of Czechoslovakia saw it deprived of one-third its territory and 35 per cent of the population. In the opinion of many it also marked the end of real independence.

On Feb. 20, Adolf Hitler ushered in seven months of uncertainty and tension by announcing that Germany no longer could tolerate "maltreatment and oppression of German minorities in other countries." Three weeks later his gray-green columns poured into Austria.

Nearly Circled By Germany

Strategically as well as politically, the annexation of Austria weakened Czechoslovakia's position. It virtually was surrounded by Germany, and a precedent had been set for the solution of a minority problem.

Shortly after the Anschluss the Christian Socialists and the German Farmers parties merged with Konrad Henlein's Sudeten German party, leaving only the Social Democrats outside the Nazi bloc. Then all German cabinet officers left the government, which for the first time since 1926 found itself without a German member.

On April 24, Henlein first publicly announced his famous Eight Carlsbad Points, which were destined to be the axis around which the dispute revolved until September. These points demanded complete autonomy for the German areas and the right to profess the National Socialist ideology, as well as a reorientation of Czechoslovakian foreign policy toward Germany and away from Soviet Russia.

Premier Milan Hodza declared these points unacceptable in principle but declared his readiness to negotiate further. The right of assembly was reinstituted and elections were set for May 22 and 29.

Army Party Mobilized

On May 21 the Czechs carried out a surprise partial mobilization. On this same day two Sudetens who, disregarding a command to halt, rushed past a Czech customs guard, were shot and killed at Eger. A major crisis seemed imminent.

Shortly thereafter Father Hlinka and his Slovak Peoples' party started a vigorous campaign for Slovak autonomy. They based their demands on the "Pittsburgh Treaty" signed in Pittsburgh in 1919.

In June, Prague submitted the draft of a Nationality Law which contained administrative reforms and alterations in the language law. Henlein refused this proposal. Then England sent Viscount Runciman to Prague on an "unofficial trip" to act as mediator between the two chief parties. Arriving on Aug. 3, his first attempts to obtain a working agreement were unsuccessful. Because of his efforts, however, the government submitted its last famous "Fourth Plan," which contained practically an acceptance of the most important of the Carlsbad Points. The Sudeten German party adamantly refused to consider anything less than complete and unconditional acceptance.

Benes Appeals To People

President Benes on Sept. 10 personally broadcast an appeal to the entire population to accept the "Fourth Plan." Two days later Hitler demanded the right of self-determination for the Sudeten Germans. The die was cast.

That night riots broke out throughout Sudeten territory. Sudetens began to flee to Germany and there the Sudeten German Free Corps, which had as its avowed purpose the "recovery of their homeland by force of arms if necessary.

Tension was approaching the breaking point. Warrants were issued for the arrest of Henlein and his chief aides. Martial law was proclaimed throughout the entire Sudetenland as disturbances and riots increased.

And then, as all the world thought Europe was unalterably on the road to war, as mobilization measures were being gradually taken in all the countries involved, as the world was—from one day to the next—buoyed up by optimism or crushed by the certainty of despair. It was the night of Sept. 20 that the British and French ministers awakened President Benes to tell him the fate of his country had been sealed.

Cabinet Gives Approval

The Czech cabinet hurriedly met and decided to accept this judgment but emphasized that this could occur only along regularly followed legal lines. With incidents increasing and Hitler pressuring for action, things looked blacker than ever.

On Sept. 22, Hodza resigned and Inspector General Jan Syrovy assumed the premiership. His was a strong hand, and the next day the entire Czechoslovakian army was mobilized.

The four powers met at Munich on Sept. 29. The conference set the date for dismemberment on Oct. 1.

From that point on, Czechoslovakia, which had been one of the factors in preserving the European equilibrium, ceased to exist.

Coal Association Supports Tax On Petroleum Imports

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27. (AP)—The National Coal association said Monday that Representative Dirksen (R-Ill) had protested to the state department against any trade agreement with Venezuela which would "freeze" the excise tax on petroleum imported at the current rate of half a cent a gallon.

Dirksen wrote the department that more than 23,000,000 barrels of oil were imported from Venezuela in 1937.

"This displacement of coal, when translated into terms of losses to the coal industry, coal miners, the railroad industry and railroad workers would mean an annual loss of perhaps $25,000,000 and thousands of jobs," he said.

The Emperor Montezuma of the Aztecs was said to be unusually fond of cocoa; he drank at least 50 cupfuls of "chocolatl" each day, while his household consumed two thousand more cupfuls.

DALLAS, Dec. 27. (AP)—Two armed men who kidnapped R. F. Hazelwood, a taxicab driver, forced him to accompany them on the holdup of a beer tavern, then bound him hands and feet with his own belt and necktie, were captured by state police last night.

They surrendered meekly at a filling station in Richardson, where they were attempting to hire a mechanic to remove the governor which restricts the stolen cab's speed to 35 miles an hour.

CHRISTMAS SPEAKS

VFW Accused By Veteran Of Spending For Legislation

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27. (AP)—Edwin O. Perrin, commander of the American Veterans association, accused the Veterans of Foreign Wars yesterday of sponsoring veterans' legislation so costly that it would ultimately necessitate use of funds urgently needed for national defense.

He said VFW had issued to its local posts a prepared radio "interview" calling for pensions for World war veterans unable to find work. The script, he added, also put the VFW on record as favoring pensions to all needy widows and orphans of veterans regardless of whether the veterans died of a service-connected cause.

Perrin, whose statement said he heads some 13,000 veterans, declared that the proposed legislation was the initial step toward universal pensions.

Westerners Soundly Licked As Corpus Wins State Title, 20 To 6

Wild Walter Webster And His Mates Are Throttled; Famed Power Fails In The Pinch

BY HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Staff Writer

DALLAS, Dec. 27. — The Corpus Christi Buccaneers, rugged youngsters who polish off an opponent without taking the time to get a drink of water, ruled the Texas Interscholastic league in football today and Harry Stiteler, who leads them, sits atop the schoolboy coaching field.

Yesterday the Bucs rolled over a powerful Lubbock team 20-6 to bring the first championship in 19 years of trying to the gulf coast city and to climax one of the greatest records a coach ever compiled.

Often had Corpus Christi knocked at the door but couldn't get the proper answer. Yesterday, however, they had all the answers themselves as the Buccaneers throttled Wild Walter Webster and his Westerner mates most of the way while the razzle-dazzle, driving, pass-pitching backfield led by Bill Dolan and Emory Nix roared to three touchdowns and ran up 300 yards from scrimmage along with 49 in the air.

It was Stiteler's first season as a coach of a class A team and it brought his record in five years as a high school mentor to 55 victories, 1 loss and 2 ties. He won four district championships and three regional titles in four seasons as head of Smithville's class B elevens.

Given Long Contract

Stiteler was rewarded for his work in bringing Corpus Christi to the finals with a contract for four and one-half years. He signed it before the game with Lubbock.

Corpus Christi this year won 13 games and was tied once. It rolled up 466 points to 85 for the opposition.

Stiteler placed a team on the field at the Cotton bowl that had finesse, power and speed. It was one of the truely great teams of Interscholastic league history. It was unusual that during all its games not a single player ever took a drink of water on the field. That was Stiteler's idea.

Loses 19 Players

Stiteler, in looking toward next season, found that he had lost 19 players from his first string but that 9 were returning and among them were Pat Hall, as fine an end as ever trod a schoolboy gridiron, and Jack Hinnant, mighty center. James Fulton, tackle; James Cooper, Ray Clark and Johnny Hale, guards; Jimmy Crocker, center, and Charles Cain and Dickie Haas, backs, are the other seven.

A crowd estimated at 21,000 watched the Bucs score two touchdowns before Webster and the Westerners could gather themselves, then clamped down on the desperate passing Lubbock team the remainder of the way. The game was played on a field made heavy by rain throughout the week despite the fact that it was covered Sunday.

Lubbock Stages March

Dolan made one touchdown, Jesus Garza passed to Hall for another and Nix passed to Garza for the third, Cooper added two points, Lubbock marched 80 yards for its touchdown with Howard Martin and Webster leading the way. Webster went around end for 4 yards and the counter.

Lubbock was jittery at the first of the game, fumbles getting them into bad holes, one of which led to the initial touchdown.

Corpus Christi made 14 first downs and Lubbock 8. Lubbock gained 211 yards from scrimmage and 39 passing. Punting by Webster and Hall was sensational.

Lubbock has 9 first-stringers back next year, including Leete Jackson and Pat Farris, starting back and tackle respectively. The others are Clifton Hill, end; James Herriman, guard; L. A. Storrs, center; and Jack Lovin, Howard Alford, Francis Bearden and J. B. Privitt, backs.

Lubbock Beats Itself

Consensus of the press box was that Lubbock was beaten by its own superiority complex—by haphazard quarterbacking, a disregard for the weather and underestimation of Texas high school football in general, of Corpus Christi in particular.

Corpus Christi, which knocked at the championship door in 1934, only to be repulsed by the great Amarillo Sandies, 48-0, protected more than its own record today that of its fine coach, Harry Stiteler, the ex-Aggie.

Corpus Never Lets Up

Featured by Emory Nix, the Buccaneers' fine field general and all-around, triple-threat star, Corpus Christi ganged on the Lubbocks from the start and never let up. Pat Hall, the Buc end who this week will be named on the All-State high school team, joined Nix and his backfield mates, Dolan, Matthews and Garza, to make life miserable for the Westerners, and all the Westerners could do was to take it. They took it rather gracefully, but with utter disregard for the time clock.

Beaten back into their own tracks in the first half, the Westerners came back with a rush in the third period. Apparently they had heard some dressing room lectures that hit home. They drove 76 yards, to the Corpus 9-yard line, but failed to score.

Drive 80 Yards For Score

They came back a few minutes later with the same determination, and drove again, 80 yards, for a touchdown. It was the only touchdown they scored. And Corpus Christi scored three.

Walter Webster, All-State fullback (it'll be in the paper next Thursday afternoon, official from the Associated Press, along with the names of Jerry Nash and Joe Pytell), was partly his old self and partly not. He made a good showing nearly every time he was called upon to carry the ball, or make a tackle. He did the latter perfectly; he did the former almost perfectly, and if he had been called upon more frequently, he would have done better. As long as Webster was carrying the mail and getting anything like creditable blocking, he made yardage. Corpus Christi had made plans relative to Lubbock's passing game, and the plans worked.

Their Plans Clicked

Pytell and Jerry Nash, and Harnest Winter and Wayne [illegible], did themselves proud for the Lubbock side today, but the Westerner eleven couldn't do enough to forestall the South Texas plans to make a fool out of West Texas.

"The best team ever to come out of South Texas," Coach Weldon Chapman said of the Buccaneers a week ago after seeing them defeat Temple, today defeated the best team ever to come out of Lubbock high school since the league was organized.

For Nix, Dolan, Matthews, and Garza, in the backfield, and Hendricks and Hall, the great Corpus ends, and for Salyers, a guard, and Vrazel, a tackle, and most especially Hall, the end, go all the credit this department can bestow for fine work in the Corpus Christi championship football lineup. They performed well, and they deserve a lot of credit.

The weather, bad from the start, was worse as the game proceeded, and at the end it was a raging gale, comparable with the best gales West Texas can offer.

In defense of the Westerners, it must be said that the Lubbocks were playing on a muddy, slippery field for the first time this year, and under the most adverse weather conditions.

Corpus Christi, too, has had fair weather for most of its games, but the fact that the Buccaneers survived the wintry blasts from the north and withstood the water is conducive to warm feelings, despite the outcome of the game, to the Buccaneers.

Duke Blue Devils Will Make Final Public Appearance Before Trotting On Grid

BY HENRY McLEMORE
United Press Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 27—Duke's mixture ends today.

Come sundown, and the Blue Devils of Durham will have made their final appearance before the public until they run out on the Rose Bowl turf on January 2. Because tomorrow the Dukes begin the secret practices that Coach Wallace Wade has ordered, and they will be as private as the thoughts of a clam, or a hermit's sunbath.

No Pictures Allowed

No pictures. No poses. No notebooks. Burly guards have been assigned to all gates and given orders to bounce anyone with even an ounce of Peeping Tom or eavesdropper blood in his veins.

Before the workouts begin Wade personally will beat the bushes and trees that shut Brookside park from the outside world, and his assistants will strafe any airplanes, balloons or gliders that swoop too low.

Wade wants peace for his team, and is going to get it at any cost.

"I have been to the Rose bowl four times," he told me, "and I know that only a 'no' man can hope to put a winning team on the field. By a 'no' man I mean one with enough will power to refuse the thousand and one invitations that a visiting team receives in California. They'll kill you with kindness out here if you aren't careful. The only way to protect yourself is to quit mixing, quit seeing people, and get off secret work."

No New Formations

Wade made it clear to me that he didn't expect to teach his team any new and startling plays while they worked in their secluded rendezvous. There will be no magical formations perfected, no new systems of attack or defense devised.

"We'll play the same game in the Rose bowl that we have played all year," he said. "I have been coaching long enough to know that you can't take a team and make it over in two or three weeks. Our secret workouts will be along the same lines of the practices we had in Durham. But we like peace and quiet. You wouldn't like someone looking over your shoulder while you wrote a story, would you? No, and an automobile salesman wouldn't care about having fifty or sixty persons gathered around him while he tried to sell a car to a customer. I wouldn't mind a small and orderly group watching our practice. I wouldn't even mind Howard Jones watching it, because he would stand on the sidelines, out of our way. As for him learning about our play — well, I guess he already knows pretty much what to expect."

Wade wasn't happy about his team's condition when I talked with him last night. The practice of yesterday found them slow and uneven, he said, and the score from Berkeley, where California licked Georgia Tech by a pair of touchdowns, had showed them exactly what they were up against in the Trojans of Southern Cal.

Lucky To Beat Tech

"We were lucky to beat Tech 6 to 0," Wade said, "and here a team that Southern California beat handily licks Tech much more soundly than we did. It all looks very bad."

I interrupted to say that Coach Bill Alexander of Tech had told me that Duke could have beaten his Engineers more thoroughly had the Blue Devils had to.

"Bosh. Kind bosh on Alex's part," Wade answered. "We had an awful time beating Tech. Didn't score until the second half, and might not have scored at all if Alex's boys hadn't fumbled."

When I started to leave Wade I told him that I planned to buy a black beard and a pair of gum-soled shoes, and sneak in and see his team practice.

"You won't get in that way," he said. "If you really want to get in, come disguised as a 190-pound, hard-running halfback who can hit the line and pass. Then you'll be welcome."

World Champ Appears Here

He's such a tiny squirt, you half expect to see the heavy ball yank him off balance and send him headlong down the gleaming alley. But Gene Gagliardi, 1937-38 American Bowling Congress World's Champion, who appears here at the Lubbock Club bowling alleys on Thursday at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and again at 8 that night, will tell you that size has absolutely nothing to do with it.

Gene, who is a mere five-four in height and weighs a scanty 125 pounds, says that timing and accuracy will do more to make a good bowler than height and brawn.

Big Slice Of Cash

The little New York Italian skyrocketed to fame when he crashed the maples for a 749 triple to annex the National singles and a big slice of the $185,000 prize money offered by the American Bowling Congress.

Even before this memorable feat, Gagliardi was recognized as a great maple artist. He had compiled an average of 214 in the Classic League, had rolled 12 perfect "300" games and defeated the country's greatest pinsmashers in match play.

To Offer Lecture

In addition to meeting local star pinsters in match games at his evening performance, Gene will offer a lecture and free instructions in the afternoon.

He is one of the best trick shot artists and will offer the same program which he made for the movies last fall during his engagement here. He promises to make two strikes with one ball, also every difficult split known to the game.

Texas Tech Red Raiders Will Put On A Show Wednesday

DALLAS, Dec. 27. (AP)—Rain, snow or sleet, the Texas Tech Red Raiders will put on a show for the public tomorrow.

The Raiders, training here for their Cotton bowl game with St. Mary's Jan. 2, will hold "open house" regardless of the weather, Coach Pete Cawthon said today. The public appearance has twice been postponed because of rain.

Yesterday the Techs romped through a two-hour scrimmage in the mud of Ownby stadium at Southern Methodist university.

The 1935 solar eclipse in the south polar region ended a day earlier than it began, and, although it was an eclipse of the sun, was seen at its height at midnight.

The percentage of pedestrian deaths, compared to total acident deaths, increases with the size of the city.

Raiders Like Hard Work

DALLAS, Dec. 27. (UP) — Texas Tech's Red Raiders had grown so fond of strict training today they placed their student manager, Harris (Tadpole) Cheek under punishment for overeating.

Cheek returned from a Christmas visiting excursion and was made to weigh in. Squad members were alarmed to find him 11 pounds overweight.

Gets His Punishment

Today he began his prescribed punishment of arising at 6:30 a. m., going to the kitchen of the apartment-hotel where the Raiders headquarter, and watching the chefs prepare breakfast.

The joker was that Cheek's place was eliminated from the Tech breakfast table and his only morning nourishment until he regained his trim figure would be the aroma of the kitchen.

The Raiders plunged with a new fervor into their drills as they prepared to meet St. Mary's in the Cotton bowl Jan. 2.

Waco High Tigers Lose To Chicago Eleven, 14-0

WACO, Dec. 27 (AP)—Texas schoolboy football teams have made a remarkable record in intersectional play this year but didin't finish up so well as the Waco high school Tigers lost to Fenger high of Chicago here yesterday, 14-0.

Don Griffin played sensationally to score both touchdowns and keep the Tigers worried throughout the game with his fine runs. Dudzik, another outstanding Fenger star, kicked the extra points.

Waco never got past Chicago's 40-yard line as the Tigers lost their first intersectional game in history and took their worst trouncing on their home field in 20 years.

Gaels Are Tapering Off; To Board Train On Thursday

MORAGA, Calif., Dec. 27 (AP) — St. Mary's began tapering off the heavy drill today, preparatory to boarding a train Thursday morning for the Cotton bowl game with Texas Tech Jan. 2, at Dallas.

Coach Slip Madigan said that if the Techmen have not thoroughly scouted the Gaels, it is their own fault. The Gaels, en route to Fordham two months ago, staged a scrimmage on the Tech practice field at Lubbock before 400 witnesses, including most of the Tech players.

Tech Cagers Advance In Tournament

BY AUSTIN BEALMEAR

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 27—Basketball teams from Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas and Missouri remained in the running today as the firing was resumed in the Oklahoma City all-college tournament, but 15 teams were on the other side of the fence, defeated in yesterday's opening round.

Only one first round game remained to chop the field in the championship bracket to 16 teams and that contest—between the Texas Aggies and Drury college of Springfield, Mo.—was to start today's activity before the second round got under way.

Longhorns Favorites

The Oklahoma Aggies, champions of the Missouri valley and winners of the tournament the past two years, and the Longhorns of Texas university established themselves as favorites to meet in the finals next Friday night.

The Aggies used 15 men in romping to an easy 38 to 17 victory over the Southwestern Oklahoma Teachers and ten of them broke into the scoring. Texas had an equally easy time turning back the Southeastern Oklahoma Teachers, 41 to 25.

Most other Texas entrants found the going tough yesterday.

The Emporia (Kas.) Teachers coasted to a 39 to 28 victory over Texas Wesleyan.

TCU Is Eliminated

The Central Oklahoma Teachers eliminated Texas Christian university, 52 to 45, in a game played at Comanche, Okla., but which counted in the tourney, and Northwestern Oklahoma Teachers upset the North Texas Teachers, 1937 semi-finalists, 30 to 26.

Tulsa university spurted in the closing minutes to take out West Texas State, 39 to 32.

Baylor, however, eliminated the Tempe (Ariz.) Teachers, 44 to 31, with the help of Grady Vaughn's seven field goals, and the only overtime period in the first round game when Texas Tech had to go into the extension to nip Phillips university, 25 to 23.

Westminster brushed aside the East Texas Teachers, 39 to 30.

Losers in the opening round were to start a series of consolation contests among themselves today and will be joined by other teams as they are beaten in the championship bracket.

Everybody plays at least once a day—the losers on a round-robin basis just for the practice and the winners in a single elimination fight for the title.

BUY NO ANTI-FREEZE

—until you read these facts about Du Pont "Zerone"*

A FRIENDLY WARNING: You cannot be sure of getting the best value in anti-freeze until you know what Du Pont has to offer in "Zerone."

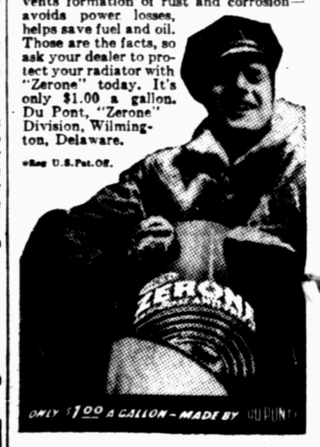

First of all, extraordinary anti-freeze protection. Scientific tests prove that "Zerone" would keep water from freezing solid even at 215° below zero. You'll never encounter temperatures like that, so you can be sure "Zerone" used in accordance with directions will protect your car in the coldest weather you'll ever experience.

The materials from which "Zerone" is made are so effective you need comparatively little "Zerone" to achieve protection. That's economy. Properly used, replacements of "Zerone" are little indeed—and that's economy, too.

Furthermore, scientific tests prove that the mixture of "Zerone" and water passes off engine heat better than water alone. That improves engine performance.

"Zerone" in a clean cooling system prevents formation of rust and corrosion—avoids power losses, helps save fuel and oil. Those are the facts, so ask your dealer to protect your radiator with "Zerone" today. It's only $1.00 a gallon. Du Pont, "Zerone" Division, Wilmington, Delaware.

Off-hand, we'd never have guessed that it's illegal to leave an elephant out in the rain all night—but some poor guy up in New York has been arrested for that very crime!

SPEAKING of elephants reminds The Plainsman that while he had a very nice Christmas and received a lot of nice gifts which were duly appreciated, he didn't get what he wanted most.

That was—and is—an elephant.

We have always wanted an elephant. But we've never had one and probably never will get one.

Of course, The Plainsman hasn't the slightest idea what he would do with an elephant if he had one.

But the fact remains that elephants interest and intrigue him more than any other animal known to man.

The writer can watch them, fascinated, by the hour, and never weary of the experience. In fact, one time at a circus The Plainsman stayed in the menagerie tent all through the regular performance under the big top, spending the time fooling with the pachyderms!

THERE'S no doubt about it, the "guest towell" ruins more otherwise perfect hospitality than anything else under the sun—especially for men.

Hostesses who are super-thoughtful and colossal in being able to anticipate a guest's every whim and fancy can make his otherwise pleasant visit a nightmare by hiding all her run-of-the-mill towels and substituting those delicately embroidered, unusuable guest towels that won't soak up water—and scare a man to death, to boot!

Especially if the male guest is a married man will he scringe at the idea of using a guest towel.

It's just against his training.

The chances are his wife has guest towels and before her guests arrive she tell her husband in no uncertain terms that he is not to use them. She'll tell him where the regular towels are hidden, so he can sneak them out and use them. But she'll threaten him with everything from divorce to bodily harm if he uses one of the fancy ones.

Hence, when he, himself, is a guest, it is only with fear and trembling that he'll use one of the darn things!

OUR tip to hostesses who would make themselves angelic in the eyes of male guests is that they furnish the visiting gent with real, honest-to-goodness towels — preferably of the Turkish variety so dear to the species—and let him have at them.

Aside from being afraid to soil a lah-de-dah, postage stamp size towel, the visiting male is not at all interested in the embroidery, lace or delicate texture of what he wipes his hands and face on.

He's looking for something clean to dry with—and that's all he wants!

You get to thinking, occasionally, that maybe, after all, this isn't such a bad old world to live in—and then some guy backs you into a corner to explain in detail the plot of the movie he saw the night before, and that you're planning to see that night!

"Insects are fast getting control of the earth," declares a scientists.

Yeah. Especially in the totalitarian countries!

SPEAKING of the totalitarian countries reminds us that while we've heard of the nazi war ministry, its propaganda ministry, its finance ministry and all its other bureaus and agencies, we've never heard much about what must be Der Furore's busiest department — the "protest ministry."

At least half of the official nazi family must keep busy writing and filing protests on what people in other countries have to say about the German situation.

Nazi protests lodged in this country, alone, must call for a terrific staff of workers.

Every time somebody gets on his feet and says what ought to be said about Hitler and his gangsters, the German state department files a protest.

Of course, the protests don't do any good—especially since we still have free speech over here and the right to think what we please—but they come on, anyhow.

It's a great thing for the cable companies!

IF there had been no "Black October" in the good year 1929; if there had been no depression, you would have made, between October, 1929 and now, $1,000 more than you have made.

Further than that, there would have been available for your family spending an additional $1,000 for every member of your family!

Hard to believe?

Yes, it is.

But it's facts, never-the-less.

According to statistics compiled for the Temporary National Economic committee, a total of 178 billions of dollars has been lost because of depression's onslaught.

That figure, broken down to apply to us all, indicates that the U. S. is poorer by $1,000 per person than it would have been had "good times" continued unabated.

Try that over on your piano!

THE late, great editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, "Marse Henry" Waterson, was most renowned for his ability to write prose—and especially the kind or prose, and on the kind of topics, most interesting to the people of Louisville and environs.

But that "Marse Henry" also could write gripping, thoughtful verse is indicated by the following, recently brought to light by his successor as Courier-Journal editor, Tom Wallace.

It is good.

"A mound a little higher graded—

A dab of printer's ink soon blurred and faded,
And then oblivion—that, THAT is fame."

Yesterday: The stage is set for Weeks to feature with The Swingateers. All principals are assembled in the Golden Bowl.

CHAPTER XXIX

Under the leadership of "Torchy" Stephens, immaculate in his tails and white tie, The Swingateers were in the groove. They were "sending" tonight in the glittering Golden Bowl of the Pacific-Plaza, sending it out of the world to the delight of the ickies and the whackies, to the utter happiness of the disciples of swing.

At a table alone sat Bob Tait, idly smoking a cigaret. To the casual observer he was indolently at ease. In reality every nerve and muscle in his body was taut. Since leaving Dannie Feeley earlier that day he had been on the run. He had posted "Torchy" that George Weeks was to have a spot in the night's dance program. He had reserved a table at the Golden Bowl—a very certain table, the one which had been directly under the wisp of gun-smoke which showed in Tait's candid camera shot taken on the night of Dombey's murder. And he had invited Nelda Starr to be his guest—and to bring Harris Rogers.

He saw Nelda and Rogers now, being led through the maze of tables by a waiter. The Starr girl was as strikingly beautiful as ever, and as she and Rogers neared the table Tait caught the scent of that perfume which had forever haunted him. He rose gallantly. "I'm so glad you could come," he said.

"It was nice of you," Nelda said, seating herself in the chair which Tait held. Rogers held out his hand. "How are you Tait? I'm glad to be here. Nobody can say you're not a good sport."

"The same goes for you," Tait said. "Sit down and I'll order drinks. I'm expecting some others, but I guess they're a little late."

A new voice sounded beside him. "Not me. Not when I hear somebody ordering a drink!" It was Dannie Feeley, looking really resplendent in his dinner jacket. Tait greeted him jovialy, introduced him to Nelda Starr. "And you already know Harris Rogers."

It was while Dannie and Rogers were shaking hands that Leonard Macy arrived. Expecting anything, Tait stood close to Feeley. "Dannie you've met Leonard Macy, haven't you?"

"I think so," said Dannie.

"Of course," said Macy urbanely. "Mr. Feeley and I have a lot in common."

"Well, I don't know what it is," said Feeley. "You're a millionaire and I'm not even close."

Macy laughed. "I referred to our interest in—crime."

Tait dived into the breach and requested that everyone be seated. "Here come Anne and Myrna . . . pardon me." He went forward to meet the two girls. His breath caught a little, seeing Myrna. As though anticipating his purpose tonight, she wore the same gown she had worn the night that Dombey was killed. She looked even lovelier than she had then, and Tait tried to believe that in her eyes was something especially for him.

"You know, Tait," Harris Rogers said casually when Myrna and Anne had joined them, "it's really splendid of you — but I can't restrain my curiosity. Why have you invited this particular group to hear The Swingateers tonight?"

Bob laughed. "Well, it's not so mysterious. We all have a connection with the band except perhaps Mr. Feeley here whom I invited simply because he's a very good friend of mine. Myrna, of course, has the greatest interest of all in the success of The Swingateers—and Anne is her best friend. Mine, too, I hope. Mr. Macy has an interest which is somewhat theoretical, but nonetheless real. Swing music as a modern phenomenon has always intrigued him. As for Miss Starr, I think she's perhaps the band's most confirmed fan." Tait paused. "As for yourself, Rogers, I don't think we should forget your guidance of The Swingateers over a long period."

Rogers raised his glass. "Thank you."

Macy spoke up. "I am glad to be here, Mr. Tait. But I don't believe I quite understood your reference to me."

"Why . . . I meant that you are interested in the psychological and physical effects of swing music on the human mind. I don't." Tait added with a laugh, "happen to agree with your theories. I thought perhaps some actual contact with swing music dancers and a swing band might revise your opinion."

"But I have been in the Golden Bowl before," Macy said.

Tait raised his eyebrows quizzically. "So? I didn't know that."

Rogers asked Myrna to dance. She glanced at Tait and he warned her with his eyes that it would be best for his purpose to be pleasant to the man she knew hated her. When Rogers and Myrna left the table Tait excused himself and sought "Torchy" on the band stage.

"Has Weeks shown up?"

"Torchy" grinned. "He's in the ante-room—with a bandage on his neck. You didn't have somebody try to discourage his appearance, did you?"

"You'd be surprised. Listen, 'Torchy'—when I signal from the table, let him play the song. When it's finished I'm going to make an announcement."

The band leader nodded his understanding, and Tait sauntered back to the table. He was relieved that the injury to Weeks hadn't been serious enough to keep him away. Tait wanted "The Cat's Meow" featured tonight, and he wanted Weeks to play it. He felt certain that Weeks was somehow double-crossing Harris Rogers—but in what way, he was not definite. At any rate, he wanted to watch Rogers tonight as Weeks went into the song.

When he reached the table, Nelda Starr looked at him indolently. "Why don't you ask me to dance?"

"I was about to do that very thing," Tait said, holding out his hands. As they drifted off, he added, "The band is going to play your song tonight."

Nelda's cool fingers touched the back of his neck. "That's sweet of you," she murmured.

They danced a moment in silence and Tait, acting to his utmost whispered, "That perfume is fascinating."

Nelda laughed. "You remind me of Harris. It fascinates him, too. Sometimes he puts a touch of it on his lapels because, he says, it reminds him of me. But I don't believe him. I think he wants to wear it and is ashamed to admit it."

Tait stumbled awkwardly in his stride. "I'm sorry, Nelda, I'm afraid I'm not a wonderful dancer." Then he added casually, "Tell me, Nelda, did you ever live at the Claremont? I would swear I've seen you there."

Nelda shook her blond head. "The Claremont? I don't believe I know the place."

She was lying, Tait knew. But why?

He danced by the band, nodded to "Torchy." The band swung to a stop, the lights went up, and a silver spot bathed the leader.

"Tonight," he said, "we have a special treat for you. A new member of our band—George Weeks—is going to play . . . 'The Cat's Meow'."

An excited murmur swept through the crowd.

COULD ITALY BE BLUFFING?

Statements contained in the government-controlled Italian press the last few days that Italy is prepared to do whatever is necessary to enforce her recent demands in the Mediterranean sea are identical with utterances in the same newspapers on previous occasions under similar circumstances.

Invariably, when Italy has wanted something that belonged to someone else, she has threatened that unless she got what she wanted, she intended to fight. That is the thought she undoubtedly intends to convey now, following close upon her demands for certain french territories in the Mediterranean and on the African coast.

On every previous occasion, there has been more than a suspicion that Italy was bluffing. But none of the bluffs, if they were such, has ever been called. The other nations in this international poker game have felt it the better part of wisdom not to risk the possibility there was no bluff. Result has been that Italy has gained her ends at no more cost than the exhalation of a little of the hot air of which their dictator, Mussolini, possesses limited qualities.

It is possible, of course, that the Italian bluff may succeed as easily once more. But the stakes are higher now and the greater probability seems to be that the Mussolini nation will have either to back up, or show that she actually possesses the winning cards.

Resignation Of Hutchins May Mark New Break Between SEC And Stock Exchange, Flynn Says

BY JOHN T. FLYNN
NEA Staff Correspondent

Behind the resignation of Robert H. Hutchins, president of Chicago university, from the board of governors of the New York Stock exchange, lies an incident which may mark the end of the brief period of good relations between the Stock Exchange and the Securities Exchange commission.

FLYNN

Hutchins' resignation came as a bolt from the blue. But behind it is a good deal more than the dissatisfaction of one member of the board.

The incident was precipitated by the S. E. C. itself. In the investigations following the default of Richard Whitney, former president of the exchange, testimony revealed other members of the exchange knew of Whitney's plight before it became public. These men who stand high in the councils of Wall Street and in power in the Stock exchange itself.

Public Obligation

Among them were E. H. Simmons, another former president of the exchange, and members of the Morgan firm, which is a partnership firm on the exchange.

According to the S. E. C., it was the duty of these men, at least one of whom was a member of the Business Conduct committee, to notify the board of governors of the facts within their knowledge. This, according to the commission, is looked upon as a duty of the most commanding character.

Since no one notified the proper authorities, Whitney was permitted to continue operating as a broker and also was permitted to continue to make efforts and in some cases successful efforts to get further loans, to the great loss of those who were victimized.

Whitney himself was expelled from the exchange. Later he was convicted and jailed. His firm was broken up. The exchange itself underwent a revolution. But the S. E. C. has contended the job had not been finished until the higher-ups who failed to report Whitney's defalcations were also dealt with under the rules of the exchange.

Apparently the Exchange was permitting this matter to ride along until the S. E. C. put the whole subject down on its doorstep and demanded action.

What Will Happen

The action considered therefore at the meeting to which Hutchins refers in his letter of resignation was whether Thomas Lamont, Morgan partner, and E. H. Simmons, a member of the board and Business Conduct committee, should have been censured or penalized in some way, under the rules of the exchange, for not reporting the facts.

The commission apparently looked upon the incident as a test of whether or not the exchange can enforce its rules against its most powerful members. The board of governors voted to do nothing, taking the position that no rule was broken by Mr. Lamont and Mr. Simmons. The S. E. C., it is said, feels the test has proven conclusively that the rules are made for the small fry and not for the big shots.

The big question in Wall Street now is, will the S. E. C. begin to turn the exchange?

Special Train Back Today

Tired, bedraggled Lubbockites were back at home this morning to work, rest and recover from disappointment of the Westerners' 20-6 loss to Corpus Christi Monday afternoon in the Cotton bowl in Dallas.

The Avalanche-Journal special, bearing more than 200 fans, arrived at 6:15 o'clock this morning from the state finals game. Others were expected to return hourly by automobile.

To Remain For Week

Still others had announced intentions on leaving Saturday and Sunday that they would remain in Dallas through this week to be on hand to see Texas Tech's Red Raiders battle St. Mary's Galloping Gaels in the Cotton bowl Monday.

Two Avalanche-Journal Cotton bowl specials will be run this weekend. First will leave the Santa Fe station Saturday night. Another will be run Sunday night.

Definite schedules are expected to be completed by Wednesday.

The Westerners, first Lubbock High school representative to get past the quarter-final bracket of the state schoolboy race, were due to leave Dallas early this morning by bus.

They will arive here late this afternoon.

Tabor of the Texas Highway patrol to a cafe in Ralls, where it was identified as loot taken there Monday morning before the break-in here. The youths were arrested Monday by highway patrolmen at Big Spring and held in county jail.

Missing Fugitives

tatered overalls was stretched out on a cot.

"Hello," May said. "I came in to get warm."

"Howya," the man said.

"Are you a farm hand?" May asked.

"Yeah."

"What's the name of this place?"

"I don't know," the stranger answered. Suddenly he raised himself up on his elbows and blurted: "I'm the guy you're looking for."

He said he was Roberts — a suspect in a Nebraska city holdup — and pulled up one leg of his overalls to show a bullet wound in his leg. He said the police had shot him 15 minutes earlier when he was escaping into the cornfield. He had no weapon.

Wanted To Get Warm

"I just crawled in here to get warm," he said.

May is 33, slightly built and weighs only 135 pounds. He was not armed. But he continued the questioning and assured himself he was talking to Roberts. Then he hurried outside, summoned his engineers, and set up the broadcasting equipment in the shed. He began questioning Roberts on the air before police were aware of the capture.

"Come on, fellow," he said; "Say something."

"Nothing doing," Roberts said "I'm not going to say anything."

Later, as Roberts was being taken away to a hospital, May thanked him for the "break which had enabled him to obtain the scoop."

"You bet," Roberts replied.

Another Is Found

Thirty minutes later Sedlacek and Jones were talking to the landlady at a rear door. They heard a noise at a basement window, investigated, and found Brown, near collapse from cold and hunger.

"I'm half frozen and want to get warm," he said. The reporters summoned police.

P. S. The embarrased police evened the score this morning by capturing Romano and Erwin in haystacks near Gretna.

Congress Fight

be restored to congress.

The method proposed to restore to congress spending authority, which would extend from the treasury doors to the actual expenditure on relief and other projects in the field, is to "earmark" forthcoming funds for specific purposes. The New Deal spending system has required congress to vote large lump sum appropriations to the president —those sums have been called "blank checks"—upon which the White House drew to allocate money to the states or to local communities.

An almost immediate showdown is coming in the new congress on the questions of administration spending and "relief-in-politics." The works progress administration is going broke again, rather more rapidly than had been expected. It will be necessary next month for congress to appropriate new funds to pay the unemployed from about Feb. 7 to June 30, 1939, when the current fiscal year ends. Mr. Roosevelt probably will ask for that appropriation next week in his budget message. The earmarking dispute will begin then and will continue for final decision later in the session when congress will appropriate relief funds for the next fiscal year.

WPA Administrator Hopkins has been promoted from the spending line of fire to be secretary of commerce. It seemed reasonably certain that Hopkins would be a casualty in the spending battle if he were left in charge of WPA when Mr. Roosevelt returned to congress for more money next month.

Must Defend Himself

Hopkins will have to appear before the senate committee of which Sen. Bailey, D. N. C., is chairman, and defend himself directly against charges of administering political relief and indirectly against fostering the so-called primary election "purge" directed at conservative Democrats. Bailey is a hard fisted, aggressive anti-New Dealer.

There are administration men on the committee and possibly a majority of them. But when Bailey and Sen. Sheppard, D., Tex., Clark, D., Mo., McNary, R., Ore., Johnson, R., Calif., Vandenberg, R., Mich., and White, R., Me., gets through with Hopkins he will know he has been through the mill. Sheppard and White are members of the senate committee which investigated and condemned WPA on charges of playing election politics.

More than 14,000,000 eggs were "harvested" this year in Montana fish hatcheries.

Final Visit In Series To Civic Clubs Being Made

Lubbock men today are making the final of a series of visits paid civic clubs of this area for purpose of spreading information on plans for Cotton bowl festivities in Dallas Jan. 2 and encouraging attendance of the bowl game.

J. A. Fortenberry and Joe McIlhaney were to attend a luncheon of Levelland Rotary club; Charles Still and Wyatt Hester, Post Rotary club, and Earl Collins, Seagraves Rotary club.

The good neighbor committee of the chamber of commerce sponsored the visits.

FOR SHORTER HOLIDAYS

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) — When mothers with children as many as eight in a family petitioned the school board it was decided to shorten both Christmas and Easter holidays here.

Holiday Mail Being Moved

Delivery was being made today by postal workers of all undelivered Christmas packages and letters that were not delivered by Saturday noon, or that had reached here since that time.

Long lines of patrons stood at two general delivery windows, with notices of undelivered packages. There had not been any one at home when the first attempt was made, postal workers said.

Carriers left the office just a little late, but with well-filled pouches, representing the accumulation of Sunday and Monday, of Christmas cards and letters. The two-day mail was heavy.

Less Than Expected

Undelivered parcels were arranged in bins, in alphabetical order, for prompt serving. Postal officials said there were less on hand than they had expected.

An unusual amount of undelivered Christmas cards were on hand, mostly with insufficient postage and which could not be forwarded for that reason. There were many cards in sealed envelopes, with one cent postage, for delivery in another town. All such sealed envelopes require first class postage, 3 cents.

Cards or letters, other than first class, require prepaid postage before being forwarded, it was explained.

Cold Wave

roofed buildings, uprooted trees, and disrupted power and communication lines. Part of a hospital roof at Latrobe, Pa., was torn away and 75 patients were left in darkness for more than half an hour when power lines snapped. Airlines cancelled passenger flights across the Alleghenies.

A 50 mile north wind scattered a haze of dust in central and northern Oklahoma and shattered windows in Oklahoma City. Two women were injured by falling glass. Temperatures throughout the state dropped below freezing.

Temperatures in the Canadian northwest ranged to 22 below zero. At the same time Miami, Fla., was almost sweltering by contrast with a temperature of 78. But by Wednesday, weather forecasters said, northern Florida may get freezing weather.

Maximum Strength Of Norther To Be Seen In Texas Tonight

(By The Associated Press)

Clear, freezing weather which touched a low of six degrees at Dubbock, prevailed in Texas today.

Only in a narrow strip bordering the coast did above-freezing temperatures make a stand against the severe norther which raced into the state yesterday.

The U. S. weather bureau in Dallas predicted the current cold snap would reach its maximum strength tonight and then moderate. Freezing temperatures will be felt even to the coast, it is forecast.

Fair skies were dominant today except along the coast around Brownsville and spots in East Texas. Typical temperatures reported by the bureau were: 6 at Lubbock, Amarillo 14; 20 at Wichita Falls and Abilene, 30 at El Paso, 22 at Dallas, 26 at Palestine, 27 at Austin, 16 at Borger, 30 at San Antonio, 32 at Del Rio and Houston, 34 at Port Arthur, 36 at Galveston and Corpus Christi and 46 at Brownsville.

to operate WPA until July 1. Furthermore, opponents of Hopkins confirmation believe the report may give them some ammunition.

Senator Tydings (D-Md), renominated over President Roosevelt's opposition, called today for an overhauling of the present relief system. He told reporters this was one of five main issues before congress. The others, he said, were "reasonable national defense," agriculture, finance, and international relations.

"In the future relief—and all government appropriations — must be formulated more on a pay-as-you-go basis," Tydings said.

Coincident with Tydings' comment, Senator King (D-Utah) said he would propose that congress junk the present relief program and substitute a system of outright federal grants to states in need.

Glass Coating Is Discovered

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Dec. 27 (AP)—Discovery of a coating that makes glass invisible was announced today by Dr. Katharine B. Blodgett, noted woman scientist.

Ordinary thicknesses becomes as air, and reveal how much human eyes have been missing in looking through even the finest glass. Practically pure glass transmits about 92 per cent of light, against more than 99 with the new coating. A coated pane is visible only by its dimly outlined edges.

No Reflection Seen

The glass never reflects from any angle whatever, no matter how strong the glare. Clock, dial face and show case glass and windows appear not to exist. Eyeglasses would not bother the wearers with reflection of stray beams from side or behind.

New feats in photography seem possible. Normally a camera lens cuts out 8 per cent of light. With some better types of cameras, using three or four lenses, this means a loss of 25 to 35 per cent of the light reaching the plate. Coated lenses would give that much increase in light.

An incredibly thin film on both surfaces of glass is the secret of this scientific miracle. The film is about four millionths of an inch, one quarter the wave length of light, in thickness.

Dr. Blodgett is of the General Electric company's research laboratory. Her work is an example of "pure" science that seems not to have the remotest practical value, suddenly doing something revolutionary. The impractical thing was finding that an oil film a single molecule thick can be spread on the surface of water.

This discovery was made by Dr. Irving Langmuir of General Electric, winner of the Nobel prize in chemistry. Miss Blodgett is his associate. They found that by dipping a piece of glass through the floating film, the single-molecule layer would transfer to the solid surface. Each dip adds one layer. Glass is dipped usually 44 times to build the thickness of a quarter wave length of light.

The chemical formular of the coating is not made public and the process is not on the market nor its products for commercial sale. In the last six months Dr. Blodgett has found about half a dozen chemicals to render glass invisible. The problem has been to get one that would not wipe off. Unofficially it is reported that has been done.

Aged Woman Is Killed When Car Swerves To Miss Dog

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP)—"Mother" Ellen Wilson, 65, went happily about preparing a belated Christmas dinner, intending as usual to distribute candies and the trimmings among the neighborhood children who loved her.

Everything was ready except the cream for the coffee, so she raced out to the grocery, with a black mongrel pup she had taken in tagging at her heels and her friends of the children's aid society wishing her a Merry Christmas. She was their godmother, in charge of the parties there for children, playing the piano or making rhymes for them.

Mother Wilson and the little dog were crossing a street when with a shriek of brakes, a motorist swerved to save the dog. Mother Wilson was dragged 20 feet.

She was dead when the ambulance got there.

Legalization Of Lotteries Is Proposed To Congress

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—Legalization of lotteries was proposed to congress today by Lewis B. Perkins, attorney for the Society of the Liquidation of the Public Debts.

He suggested that states could painlessly meet relief costs and decrease taxes by licensing and taxing the lottery business.

Specifically, he proposed that congress allow use of the mails for lotteries where no state laws are contravened.

Amputator Of Own Hand Recovering

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 27. (AP)—Henry Donnett was recovering last night from shock suffered when he was forced to amputate his right hand with a jackknife after it became caught in a steam boiler.

Doctors were still solicitous over his condition, but they believed the 32-year-old janitor of Central High school would soon be as well for his experience as if expert surgeons had performed the operation.

A stoker in the high school boiler room clogged Sunday night. On duty alone, Donnett sought to remove the obstruction. A plunger fell on his hand, pinning him near the hot furnace.

Donnett used his pocket knife to sever the hand. Then he applied a tourniquet and fell unconscious. After three hours he managed to notify police who took him to a hospital.
