Gulf weathering Hurricane Gilbert

Tornadoes still threat

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Thousands of Gulf of Mexico residents huddled in public shelters and boarded-up homes or fled inland as Hurricane Gilbert, packing 120 mph winds, stormed ashore in Mexico, sparing the Texas coastline from its fiercest punch.

"I think the precautions that were made were very good," Brownsville Mayor Ygnacio Garza said. "Everyone took the threat of the hurricane very seriously. And even though we may not get the brunt of the hurricane as we expected, there's still the danger of tornadoes out there so we're still waiting it out."

Nearly two dozen tornadoes were reported in the South Texas area around Brownsville as Gilbert made its way ashore, flipping over cars and mobile homes and tearing the roofs from buildings. Some injuries but no deaths were reported. Police in nearby Harlingen said the windows of 20-30 cars in a parking lot were shattered by high winds or a tornado.

Michael Janskowski, 18, was taping the windows of his Brownsville apartment when a tornado ripped a hole in his roof.

"It was like a gray mass of dust, I'd say about 10-20 feet up above the apartment complex," he said, describing the twister as making a whirring sound. "It made a hole in the roof and the water is leaking it and the sheetrock is coming down. There is glass and debris everywhere."

A tornado watch included 20 counties in south central Texas and eight counties adjacent to coastal waters, according to the weather service. In addition, flash flood watches were posted for wide areas of south Texas.

Gilbert, which earlier this week was the most powerful storm ever seen in the Western Hemisphere, weakened somewhat after ravaging the Caribbean and leveling Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula. Despite the decline in winds from 175 mph to 120 mph at landfall, the storm was responsible for at least 66 deaths and billions of dollars in damages.

The U.S. coast avoided a direct hit as the eye of the storm failed to make an expected turn to the north and came ashore in Mexico at 4:35 p.m. CDT some 120 miles south of Brownsville in Tamaulipas state, said Mark Zimmer, meteorologist at the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla.

At 8 p.m., the center of Hurricane Gilbert was near latitude 24.4 north and longitude 98.1 west or about 110 miles south-southwest of Brownsville. Highest sustained winds were at 110 mph.

Midland already answering call to assist its neighbors

Hurricane Gilbert, the week's international news-maker, is creating waves of concern and relief in Midland — 700 to 800 miles from where the storm first hit the mainland in Mexico about 120 miles south of Brownsville.

Indirect spinoffs of the hurricane are to breed thunderstorms and heavy rainfalls in Midland and West Texas tonight and Sunday.

Meanwhile, Midland International Airport has become a haven for both military and corporate aircraft based from Meridian, Miss., to Brownsville.

A Hurricane Gilbert relief station has been set up by the Blessings for Obedience Soup Kitchen at Midland's Volunteer Park just off Big Spring Street near downtown Midland.

By late Friday night, more than 11,000 pounds of clothing, food, water and juices, and medical supplies had been gathered by volunteers and transported to Midland International Airport for shipment to hurricane-ravaged Jamaica in the West Indies and to Corumel southeast of Mexico.

"That's what it looks like now," said Ray Randall, an amateur radio operator (HAM) and a Blessings for Obedience volunteer. "We have kept our ears glued to radio, trying to glean information," he said Friday night. A Budweiser beer distributor has delivered "a whole semi-truck load of water and juices" to the airport for transporting to the islands, he said.

Randall said he is working in putting together water-purification systems to fly to the islands.

"We are Christians," Randall said of Blessings for Obedience, "and we are all missionary minded. We are just interested in being involved, and half of us would like to go to the mission field. We're doing what we can to help."

At Volunteer Park, at group of men associated with the Spanish outreach mission, Outcry in the Barrio, are donating their time and labors to the Blessings for Obedience effort.

"We are the servants out here, receiving packages of food and clothing," said a volunteer, who would identify himself only as Brother John. "It's an act of brotherly love," he said. "We are becoming socially conscious."

Another volunteer, who said his name is Brother Joe, said that the men are serving "the mercy of God — doing God's will. We serve God, and we are doing God's will by helping our neighbors."

State prepares for winds, rains, tornadoes

By DAVID PLESA
and STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — As the brunt of Hurricane Gilbert struck south of the border Friday evening, Texas emergency officials braced for high winds, extremely heavy rain and flash floods from the Rio Grande north into the Hill Country.

Saying emergency workers had "done everything we can do at this point," coordinator Robert Lansford warned that Gilbert could spawn tornadoes inland and tides seven to 10 feet higher than normal along the coast as it moves north through the state.

"We have a different problem now than what we had anticipated" when early forecasts predicted Gilbert would hit the Texas Gulf Coast, Gov. Bill Clements said after a briefing from the State Emergency Management Council. "Over the next couple of days, the whole state will have severe weather."

Clements' staff said it probably won't be safe for the governor to tour the storm-damaged areas until Monday.

George Bomar, meteorologist with the Texas Water Commission, forecast a possible 12 to 15 inches of rain for today from the lower Rio Grande Valley to as far north as Fort Worth with as much as 8 to 10 inches falling in 100-mile-wide bands on either side of the storm's track. In 1978, Hurricane Amelia dumped 30 to 35 inches on the Hill Country over a day and a half.

The hurricane probably will be downgraded to a tropical storm later today. By Sunday afternoon, Bomar said, Gilbert should be a "high pressure cell" near Abilene.

Because Northern Hemisphere hurricanes spin counter-clockwise, the worst weather tends to hit northeast of the storm's eye. That means Gilbert could inflict the heaviest damage via flash floods in San Antonio and the rocky Hill Country west of Austin. Clements ordered 1,000 members of the Texas National Guard on alert to help handle the expected flooding.

Austin offers many shelter from storm

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The first round of coastal evacuees settled in for another night in American Red Cross shelters here Friday as Austin emergency workers prepared for a second wave of refugees from the winds and waters of Hurricane Gilbert.

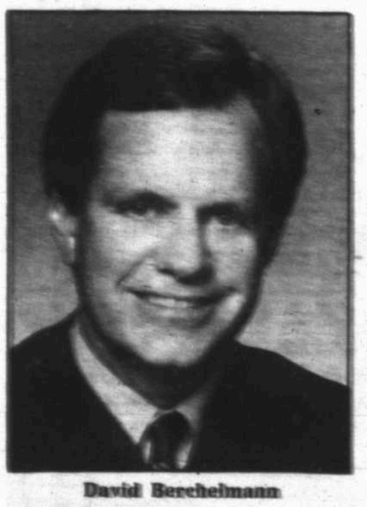

By mid-afternoon, about 700 people had settled into shelters in three Austin high schools, a tiny percentage of the 64,000 sitting out the storm in 126 Red Cross centers across the southeastern third of Texas.

Robert Lansford, coordinator of the State Emergency Management Council, estimated as many as 200,000 or more will have left their Gulf Coast homes this weekend, with many staying in hotels, private homes and parks. He reported that traffic flow on major highways leaving the coast for inland was running 30 to 50 percent above normal throughout the day Friday.

Pauline Damian and seven family members from Freeport were the first to arrive at the shelter at Austin's John H. Reagan High School Thursday evening. Damian said her crew would stay here until Red Cross officials tell them it's safe to return to their home near the Brazos River.

Appeals court candidate visits Midland

David Berchelmann

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

The state's highest criminal appeals court must shoulder part of the blame for problems engulfing the Texas criminal justice system, a state district judge from San Antonio said Friday.

David Berchelmann, judge of the 290th Judicial District who is seeking election to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, made a one-day stop in Midland to garner local support for his Republican election campaign.

Speaking at a press conference Friday morning on the steps of the Midland County Courthouse, Berchelmann described the Criminal Court of Appeals as a body in "disarray" from lack of leadership and liberal policies.

"Sitting as the final criminal judicial authority in our state, the nine judges on this Court have turned our law enforcement apparatus upside down. Using their governmental authority outlandishly, making law instead of interpreting law, these judges have turned a once effective and efficient system of law enforcement, prosecution and judgment into an administrative nightmare.

"The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has slept through our criminal justice nightmare. Choosing to dream away our security and yawn at Texas' most basic needs," Berchelmann said.

Lashing out at the court's opinions on prison reform and criminal procedure, Berchelmann said Texas Criminal Court of Appeals judges have refused to provide leadership to the criminal justice system in the state, binding the hands of law enforcement and confusing prison management.

"Crime rates in our state are rising at an incredible rate," Berchelmann said, citing Texas Department of Public Safety statistics which back claims that a major crime occurs in Texas every 25 seconds.

As district judge, Berchelmann instituted the first community service program in San Antonio, in which first-time offenders are ordered to do volunteer work as part of their probationary sentence.

Berchelmann supports the construction of half-way houses to ease prison overcrowding. He also advocates the operation of prisons by the private sector "if they prove they can do it effectively."

WEATHER SUMMARY

Storm again strikes Mexican coast

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — Hurricane Gilbert powered into Mexico's eastern coast Friday for the second time in three days, forcing thousands of residents from their homes after killing at least 17 people on the Yucatan Peninsula.

Heavy rains from the storm also drowned eight people in Honduras, where officials said about 6,000 people were homeless and 27,000 acres of crops were destroyed.

The eye of the hurricane crossed onto land at 5:35 p.m. EDT (4:35 p.m. CDT), sweeping ashore 120 miles south of Brownsville, Texas, the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla., said in a statement. Brownsville is just across the Rio Grande from Matamoros, a city of 280,000 people.

Gilbert — a 450-mile-wide hurricane with winds of 120 mph — made landfall just north of La Pesca, a fishing village on the Gulf of Mexico. The coastal plain in that zone is sparsely populated.

The mayor of Soto la Marina, 20 miles inland from La Pesca, was contacted by The Associated Press as the storm struck his town of 8,000 residents.

Mayor Hinojosa Cortina said the situation in Soto la Marina was "getting worse with every passing minute. There are very strong winds. It's all dark. There is no electricity and no water. Trees have been uprooted."

Cortina said some residents had fled the town in advance of the hurricane but many remained. Other town officials said 3,000 people from fishing villages along the coast were given shelter in Soto la Marina.

Many streets in Matamoros were flooded and officials said about 5,000 people fled their homes in low-lying coastal areas.

At 9 p.m. EDT (8 p.m. CDT), the eye of the hurricane was near latitude 24.4 north, longitude 98.1 west, or about 110 miles south southwest of Brownsville, the National Hurricane Center said.

It said Gilbert was moving toward the west-northwest at 12 mph. The report said flash floods and tides of 7 to 11 feet above normal were expected near and to the north of where the storm came ashore.

Monterrey, an industrial city with a population of about three million, is the closest major city that could be affected. It is 210 miles northwest of La Pesca but Sierra de Tamaulipas, a small mountain range between Monterrey and the coast, should blunt the hurricane's strentth, said Mark Zimmer, a meterologist at National Hurricane Center.

He said the range should break up circulation of hurricane and accelerate drop in wind speed, which naturally occurs when storm moves over land. But Zimmer said he expects very heavy rains as warm hurricane winds rise into cooler mountain air. This could cause flash floods and mudslides, he said.

The hurricane struck the Mexican coast first Wednesday morning, roaring into the Yucatan Peninsula.

About 300,000 people were homeless in Yucatan State and 10,000 more were homeless in Campeche on the west coast of the peninsula, the government news agency said.

Hurricane warnings continue

Associated Press

Hurricane Gilbert slammed the Texas-Mexico coast south of Brownsville Friday and weather officials said its presence on the Texas coast would spawn thunderstorms, flooding and tornadoes in some parts of the state.

The calm eye made landfall about 120 miles south of Brownsville at 4:35 p.m. CDT in Tamaulipas state in Mexico.

Hurricane warnings remained in effect for Texas from Port O'Connor to Brownsville and from Brownsville to Tampico, but the hurricane watch from Port Arthur to Port O'Connor has been cancelled.

The lower Rio Grande Valley and the lower coast also were under flood and flash flood watches.

Long before the storm arrived, however, the Texas coast began experiencing its wide reaching effects. Gusty winds, showers and thunderstorms and high surf stirred the coast.

At about 4:30 p.m., rainfall totals were around 1 1-2 inches in Deep South Texas with Brownsville reporting 1.48 inches between 7 a.m. and 1 p.m. Friday.

In other parts of the state, clouds from Gilbert kept skies overcast from the Big Bend region to northwest Texas. Across West Texas, skies were generally clear.

Winds across the state also were influenced by the hurricane. Winds wer mostly from the east and southeast with southwest winds in the Panhandle.

Speeds varied from higher than 40 mph on the southern coast to 10 mph to 15 mph in the Panhandle.

Temperatures around the state were in the 70s and 80s this afternoon. Extremes at 3 p.m. ranged from 92 degrees at Wink to 79 degrees at Kerrville.

Temperatures were expected to range from the 70s to the 90s on Saturday.

NATION

Hurricane Gilbert pushed clouds and thunderstorms across the Gulf of Mexico coast on Friday, pelting the area with rain and causing local flooding.

Violent weather surrounding the hurricane spun off more than a half-dozen tornadoes in the Brownsville, Texas, area Friday, blowing over at least two homes and slightly injuring one person.

Thunderstorms related to Gilbert also spawned tornadoes Friday afternoon at Fort Rucker and Daleville in Alabama. Strong thunderstorm wind gusts caused damage to trees and house roofs at Houma, La.

The calm eye at the heart of the hurricane made landfall about 120 miles south of Brownsville, at 4:35 p.m. CDT, in Mexico's Tamaulipas state.

The National Weather Service said tides near the hurricane center will be as much as 11 feet higher than normal.

Odessa man pleads guilty to cocaine-related charge

From Staff Reports

An Odessa man who said he sold cocaine to help out a friend pleaded guilty Friday in federal court to "use of a telephone" to arrange sale of the drug on May 5, 1987, in Odessa.

The man, David Williams, could be sentenced up to four years in prison and fined $250,000 when he is sentenced by United States District Court Chief Judge Lucius D. Bunton at noon Oct. 12 in federal court in Midland.

Williams, a 34-year-old warehouse leader and a graduate of Texas A&M University, told Bunton that he had talked by telephone to a man identified as Antonio Franco in setting up the sale. Later, he met the man, who turned out to be an undercover agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, at an Odessa baseball park.

"I was doing it for a buddy of mine," and not for the money, Williams said. "He had set me up (and) ... got me stuck in the middle."

The cocaine reportedly sold for about $2,100. Williams was arrested at the ball park on The University of Texas of the Permian Basin campus, according to Assistant U.S. Attorney Thomas Beery. Williams previously had had dealings with Franco, Beery said.

Williams' defense attorney in the case is Windel "Hoot" Gibson of Midland.

Robert Dorn viewed the effort as "People helping people. That's what it is all about. There is no such thing as having 'too much' or 'not enough' that you can't share. The people of Midland are really responding."

The American Red Cross and The Salvation Army in Midland have dispatched disaster-relief units to San Antonio and Austin, said Elvis Curb, executive director of the American Red Cross chapter in Midland.

The Red Cross has opened up nationwide toll-free telephone lines for people who wish made monetary pledges to help out in the relief effort. The English-language line is 1-800-453-9000, and Spanish-language line 1-800-453-4487, Curb said.

"It is for all of victims of the hurricane," Curb said, "not only in Texas and Mexico, but in Jamaica and the Cayman Islands. We do have international Red Cross people down on the islands working.

As the hurricane made its landfall early Friday night, the Red Cross already had set up 240 shelters along the Texas coastline," according to Richard F. Schubert, president of the Red Cross, a humanitarian relief organization.

More than 80 Red Cross chapters are "involved in hurricane preparedness and response actions," he said. In Jamaica, the Red Cross has mobilized 2,500 volunteers to work with the Jamaican government in shelter management and in the distribution of foods, blankets and lanterns to the thousands of people who were made homeless by the hurricane.

"We have had several folks coming by the office with cash, checks and money orders" keyed to the relief efforts, Curb said.

Military and corporate aircraft from Brownsville at the southern tip of Texas to Meridian, Miss., have been flown to Midland International Airport for safe harboring from the hurricane.

Midland was selected because of its remoteness from the hurricane and, from the military's standpoint, because Rich-Air South, a fixed-base operator at the airport, holds a military fuel contract, according to Ken Day, a supervisor for Midland's Department of Airports.

"Right now, we have about 15 (Beechcraft) T-34s, Navy single-engine turboprop trainers from the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station," Day said. The aircraft were flown in Wednesday and Thursday, he said.

The airplanes are parked on the apron at Rich-Air South.

Rich-Air manager Chuck Davis said that about 60 military and corporate airplanes flown in for safekeeping are either hangared there or are parked on the apron.

On Thursday, more than 100 planes, including the Air Force jet trainers T-37 and the T-38, were there. The T-37s and T-38s from Randolph Air Force Base in San Antonio and Laughlin AFB in Del Rio refueled and moved on.

"We like to help out in relief efforts," Davis said. "We try to be as civic-minded as possible."

Aircraft flown to Midland as the hurricane move inland include multi-engine jets and turboprop aircraft, such as the Grumman Gulfstream, Lockheed Jetstar, Learjet and Cessna Citation.

A vintage Hawker Hunter, a British jet fighter, and an old T-33, a trainer version of the Lockheed F-80 Shooting Star, from the Texas Gulf Coast are hangared at the airport.

The National Weather Service at Midland International Airport is calling for a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms today, a 50 percent chance of the storms and "possibly heavy rains" tonight, and an 80 percent chance of thunderstorms and heavy rains Sunday.

Weatherman Constantine Pashos said that the impending storms would be "indirectly associated" with Hurricane Gilbert, which is or will be setting or inland storms and heavy rainfall.

"There will be some heavy rains with them (storms)," he said. "I don't know that they will be severe."

STORM

By 11 p.m., the hurricane warning for the Texas coast from Port O'Connor to Brownsville was downgraded to a high wind warning. Coastal flood warnings were posted for the entire Texas coast because of gusty winds and heavy swells.

Shortly after the storm made landfall, a police team headed for South Padre Island — a barrier island off Brownsville along the coast — to survey the damage.

But stormy conditions prevented the officers from crossing a 2.6-mile causeway that links the mainland with the island.

"They found they couldn't get there and they came back," city spokesman Paul Rosamund said. "They encountered some high winds that made it dangerous to drive and the DPS (Department of Public Safety) advised them to go back."

The storm continued to move inland to the west-northwest at 12 mph and was expected to follow that path through midday Saturday, then turn gradually toward the northwest. Due to the large size of the hurricane, only a gradual weakening of the storm was expected through late Saturday. Tides were predicted to top 7 to 11 feet above normal.

Highest winds recorded in Texas were 82 mph gusts at Padre Island, the weather service said.

At the time of landfall, tropical storm force winds extended outward up to 250 miles to the north and 200 miles to the south. Squalls from the storm were expected as far as the upper Texas and Louisiana coasts.

Some inland areas were expected to get as much as 20 inches of rain.

Meanwhile, some 125 shelters holding 50,000 people were open in a four-county area of South Texas around Brownsville, American Red Cross spokeswoman Barbara Lohman said.

Texas' southernmost city resembled a ghost town Friday, with many of its 100,000 residents fleeing to schools, auditoriums and churches.

SHELTER

Remembering Hurricane Alicia in 1983, Damian said "it wasn't a question" of staying on the coast this time. "We'd stayed during Alica and we said, 'Never again,' " she said.

"It was awful. When we walked out the front door, it looked like the world had ended."

Hillary and Lillian Shelton left their home "right on the coast" at Port Lavaca, retracing what has become a familiar hurricane evacuation route to Austin. "I'm used to these," Lillian Shelton said. "When they say 'go,' you go."

Standing at one of four emergency checkpoints on the outskirts of the city early Friday afternoon, Austin police officer Ed Price said few refugees had stopped for directions during his shift. Price said most of the first wave had already arrived, but he predicted "holy terror" on the roads today as the sight of the storm convinces more people to flee.

Hurricane Allen in 1980 brought 3,100 evacúees to Austin shelters in a similar two-wave cycle, said Diane Wheeler, spokeswoman for the Red Cross in Austin. Some leave their homes right away, she said, while others wait until "the palm trees start bending."

The Austin shelters provide food, cots and nursing care for the refugees, although managers at two of the shelters reported a temporary shortage of food and bedding. "Last night a lot of them had to lay on the hard floor," said Lillian O'Starr, shelter manager at Reagan High School.

Families clustered in groups of up to nine or 10 around the gymnasium at Reagan early Friday afternoon, waiting for their promised lunches. Jocole DeBoufant, a professional clown, entertained the children while several adults watched the storm news on the television.

Wheeler said the Red Cross would keep the refugees informed of the hurricane's progress and demise and tell them when state officials believe it's safe to go back home. "We're trying to help calm the people by keeping them advised," she said.

Storm named for former Corpus Christi man

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Hurricane Gilbert, the storm threatening the Texas Gulf Coast, is named for a former Corpus Christi resident.

He is Gilbert Clark, 65, who grew up in Corpus Christi and has been a hurricane forecaster since 1955. He is senior forecaster at the National Hurricane Cente in Miami, Fla.

"I had been naming hurricanes, and made up a (10-year) list in 1969 that they used until 1979. That's the year they switched from all women's names to using both men and women," Gilbert told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

Clark said he had been naming hurricanes for the U.S. government, but that the procedure changed in 1979.

Clark's name was placed on the list, he said, by friends who wanted to honor the veteran meteorologist.

STATE

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials said they would monitor the packed state parks in the Hill Country. Most of them are full with refugees from the coast who could be in more serious danger now than they were at home.

The governor at first dispatched 1,000 guardsmen to the Gulf Coast to help residents there survive the expected storm surge and 120 mph winds at landfall. Although Gilbert came ashore around 7 p.m. Friday in Mexico about 100 miles south of the border, Lansford predicted the Brownsville area would sustain 75 mph winds through this evening.

Lansford said tropical-force winds could reach as far north as San Antonio early today. More than a half dozen tornadoes were reported in the Valley by Friday evening. A cool front moving down from the Panhandle was also expected to spawn more tornadoes as it crosses the hurricane's path.

Clements said the Texas emergency management team shared weather information with the government of the Mexican state of Tamaulipas, where Gilbert hit land. He also said he is asking the U.S. government to provide aid to Tamaulipas.

The governor said disaster declarations, which speed the way for low-interest clean-up loans, must start with requests from individual county commissioners courts. Clements' office then funnels those requests, which will start by Monday noon at the earliest, on to the federal government for approval.

Asked if he had been in touch with officials in Washington, Clements said, "Every hour on the hour."

Archaeologists involved in Yellowstone fire battle

MAMMOTH HOT SPRINGS, Wyo. (AP) — Archaeologists work side by side with firefighters, trying to preserve historic sites at Yellowstone National Park that have been threatened not only by fire but by the bulldozers sent in to halt them.

Officials say they may never know just how many sites of old Indian settlements and traces of early white explorers have succumbed to the flames that have devastated nearly half the country's oldest national park.

"The problem in Yellowstone is that very, very little of the park has had an intense archaeological survey," said Sonya Capek, a park cultural resource specialist.

Lack of funds has prevented archaeologists from studying more than 1 percent of the huge park closely, said Ms. Capek. She said only 5 percent to 10 percent of the park has had any kind of archaeological survey, even a windshield review from someone in a vehicle.

The fires have burned mainly in thick, back-country stands of lodgepole pine, and Ms. Capek and other officials believe there probably were not many archaeological sites destroyed in those areas. Still, they can't be sure.

"Whether we've lost things that we don't know about, we just don't know," said Ms. Capek.

As thousands of firefighters battled the flames in the park this summer, each command organization for a major fire has had a field archaeologist, who can advise on what historically significant sites are threatened and warn firefighters where not to dig fire lines.

This week, Ms. Capek worked to mark one known site that is still threatened, a cluster of a type of Indian hut known as a wickiup located in an area of the park where fires are still relatively active. The cone-shaped dwellings date back more than a century.

Gulf escort policy may soon change

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration may soon change its convoy escort procedures in the Persian Gulf in what would be the first major response to last month's cease-fire in the Iran-Iraq war, defense officials said Friday.

Under a new plan, U.S.-flag tankers plying the waterway would be kept within a "defensive zone" by American warships but would not be accompanied every step of the way by a Navy vessel as is now the case, the sources said.

That change in procedure would allow a slight reduction in the number of warships deployed to the Persian Gulf — probably one fewer ship — but would increase the flexibility of the task force commander and allow the Navy's ships to operate at a lesser alert level, the officials said.

The sources, who agreed to discuss the matter only if not identified, said the change in procedure had been tentatively approved by the Pentagon and White House, but would not be ordered until allies with warships in the region and certain Mideast countries were consulted.

The Defense Department declined to discuss details of the plan on Friday but acknowledged in a statement:

"The administration is considering additional steps which ... (could be described as) modest modifications of our present method of providing protection to U.S.-flagged shipping in the gulf.

"The modifications currently under consideration do not involve any significant reduction in force levels. We are continuing to consult with our friends and allies."

The United States has 26 Navy ships assigned to its Joint Task Force Middle East, including 17 inside the Persian Gulf itself. As of Friday, the Navy had conducted 85 convoy operations since the summer of 1987.

Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci has said repeatedly the United States will not reduce its military presence in the region until it is absolutely convinced the cease-fire will hold and that American merchant ships aren't threatened.

According to the sources, Carlucci has approved the idea of "providing flexibility" to the Navy on convoys.

Senate may extend subminimum wage

By MATT YANCEY
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON — Senate Democrats offered Friday to expand slightly an existing subminimum wage for full-time students to head off what they called a "hire 'em and fire 'em" 90-day training wage backed by Republicans.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., offered an amendment to his bill raising the minimum wage from its current $3.35 an hour to $4.55 an hour by 1991 that would allow employers to hire up to 12 students instead of the six now allowed for up to 20 hours a week at 85 percent of the minimum wage.

Only about 100,000 students are now earning the $2.85 subminimum wage, according to Labor Department officials, compared with 515,000 students in 1978. Kennedy said his proposal would allow employers to double the number of students at the subminimum wage on their payrolls.

The tactic was aimed at heading off a Republican amendment by Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah to establish an 80 percent training wage for newly hired workers for up to 90 days.

Hatch indicated that Republicans were unwilling to vote Friday on Kennedy's student wage, putting off the key Republican-Democratic showdown on the politically volatile minimum wage issue until next week, eight weeks before the November election.

President Reagan, Vice President George Bush and Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., Bush's running mate, in the past have all conditioned any increase in the minimum wage to a massive expansion of the subminimum wage.

Bush, campaigning in Ohio, refused again Friday to specify how big of an increase in the minimum wage he favored.

"I don't know how much of an increase," he said, but repeated that any upward adjustment should be coupled with a differential for a lower training wage.

Quayle, silent on the subject in recent days, offered an amendment while the bill was still in the Senate Labor Committee in June to couple a minimum wage increase to $4 an hour over two years with a subminimum training wage. The amendment was never voted on.

Kennedy complained none of the Republican training wage proposals require employers to provide any training. He said the real purpose was to give employers a "windfall" lower wage in jobs that have turnover rates of up to 400 percent a year.

"Who honestly believes that it takes three months for someone to learn to mop a floor or change the sheets on a bed?" Kennedy said. "This is a pure and simple wage cut."

He said the Republican proposal would provide employers with a powerful incentive to "throw working families out on the street once every 90 days" and replace them with a new force of trainees.

"This is the hire 'em and fire 'em wage, maybe we can call it the churn 'em and burn 'em wage," Kennedy said. "The Bush push will turn America's working people into vagabonds and gypsies, thrown from job to job every three months. Can this be what George Bush means when he talks about a kinder, gentler America?"

Hatch called Kennedy's counterproposal for an expansion of the currently allowed student waivers a "not really very effective bureaucratic way of doing things."

"The purpose of the training wage is not to help full-time students," Hatch said. "The purpose is to open the door of opportunity for those who have nothing, who are undereducated, unskilled."

Hatch cited various studies estimating that increasing the minimum wage would cause the loss of between 200,000 and 800,000 new jobs over the next three years.

"The reason 16 million new jobs — 12 million of them at $10 an hour or more — have been created (since 1981) is because we haven't had an increase in the minimum wage," he said.

Discovery launch date announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — NASA on Friday scheduled space shuttle Discovery for a Sept. 29 mid-morning launch on the first mission since the Challenger accident.

The launch was set for 9:59 a.m. EDT but could come any time in the following three hours, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

The announcement was made after a meeting at NASA headquarters between administrator James C. Fletcher and Richard Truly, the head of the shuttle program. Truly briefed Fletcher on the flight readiness review held earlier in the week at Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

"I'm delighted to have reached this point," Truly said. "My hat is off to all members of the shuttle team whose tireless efforts have brought us here to the brink of America's return to manned space."

A launch date had been expected following completion of the review Wednesday. But Truly delayed any announcement because of the possibility Hurricane Gilbert could disrupt operations at the Johnson Space Center in Houston where shuttle flights are controlled.

NATION IN BRIEF

Brady sworn in for Treasury

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nicolas F. Brady took the oath of office Friday as the nation's 68th secretary of the Treasury, pledging to aggressively push Reagan administration economic policies.

With his wife Kitty standing at his side in the ornate Roosevelt Room of the White House, Brady, 58, was sworn in by retired Supreme Court Justice Warren E. Burger.

"Your leadership has produced the longest sustained period of prosperity in most Americans' memories," the Wall Street investment banker told the president after finishing the oath-taking. "Not only have the economic statistics turned out to be right, but what is more important is that they have meant better lives for Americans."

Brady, co-chairman of the Wall Street firm of Dillon Read & Co., who headed the commission Reagan set up last year to investigate the circumstances behind the Oct. 19 stock market crash, said the Treasury Department under his leadership would "do its homework" to advance Reagan's policies on taxes and spending.

Brady succeeds James A. Baker III, who left Treasury last month to become chairman of George Bush's presidential campaign.

Unused needles wash up

MARINELAND, Fla. (AP) — Two thousand unused hypodermic needles have been found along a 10-mile stretch of beach in northern Florida, the latest case of medical debris washing up on the state's shoreline.

For the last two months, wastes such as specimen tubes, drug vials and microscope slides have turned up on beaches between Pompano Beach and Fort Lauderdale, in southern Florida, and in the Panhandle area.

On Thursday, the needles, still in their plastic cases, were discovered on beaches around Marineland, 20 miles south of St. Augustine. The needles were the sort used for drawing blood samples for laboratory tests.

Flagler County officials collected the needles to keep beachcombers or bathers from stepping on them.

FAA orders new checks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration ordered airlines Friday to check takeoff warning alarms on all Boeing 727 jetliners because of questions raised in the investigation of a Delta Air Lines crash last month in Texas.

FAA officials said the directive to the airlines for a one-time check of the estimated 1,200 jetliners being operated in the United States was "purely precautionary." They insisted there is no evidence at this point to indicate the alarm, which warns of a false flap setting, malfunctioned in the Delta plane. Investigators have uncovered conflicting evidence as to whether the flaps were positioned properly.

A federal investigation has yet to determine what caused the Aug. 31 crash at the Dallas-Fort Worth airport, which killed 14 of the 108 people aboard the plane bound for Salt Lake City.

Construction debated

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Federal officials are proposing new rules aimed at preventing disasters like last year's collapse of an apartment building that killed 28 construction workers.

The U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration's proposed rules may not be implemented until next summer, after the administration evaluates comment on the plan.

The proposal applies only to lift-slab techniques, which were being used when the partially completed L'Ambiance Plaza collapsed.

The technique is a seldom-used method in which concrete floor slabs are poured on the ground, one on top of the other. After the slabs are cured, they are jacked upwards along vertical steel columns, then fastened at their proper levels.

An OSHA official, Roy Gurnham, said the rules clarify the requirement that all non-essential workers be cleared from a lift-slab building while the floors are being lifted.

POW search planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Vietnamese government has agreed to a joint effort to find the remains of U.S. servicemen missing in action during the Vietnam War, Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci said Friday.

However, House Republican Leader Robert Michel of Illinois urged the families of prisoners of war and missing troops to ignore the rumors that will be inevitable during the pending search.

About 2,400 U.S. servicemen have been listed as missing in action in Southeast Asia.

"We have to continue to press for an accounting of each and every one, even though the prospects of finding anyone alive diminish with the passing of time," Michel told a crowd of several hundred at a National POW-MIA Recognition Day ceremony on the steps of the Capitol.

"We must continue to seek the truth," he said. "But the two greatest enemies of truth are rumors and false hopes. Nothing could be more cruel to the families of MIAs and POWs than to lend credence to false rumors, to raise hopes without the facts to support them, to muddy the waters and confuse the issue."

NIH panel recommends funding for research utilizing fetal tissue

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — A National Institutes of Health advisory committee recommended Friday that medical research using tissue from intentionally aborted human fetuses receive federal backing.

Although all the votes taken by the 21-member panel of outside medical, ethical, religious and legal experts were tentative, the panel's chairman acknowledged at a news conference that he could not visualize a reversal of the fundamental recommendation.

The vote to "recommend that research proceed" was 19-0 with two abstentions.

The recommendation sets up a possible confrontation with the White House where one adviser to President Reagan has made clear he wants to push for an executive order banning federal involvement in such research. However, it remains unclear whether that stance by adviser Gary Bauer has direct support from Reagan or other top administration officials.

Health and Human Services Secretary Otis R. Bowen told reporters Thursday he has no intention of taking a position on the matter until NIH officials have conducted a full review and said that could take several months. Bowen said that while he is personally opposed to abortion, the procedure is legal and suggested it would be a "waste" not to use fetal tissue for treating Parkinson's and similar diseases.

Bowen also said it was unclear to him whether Bauer's memo reflected Reagan's wishes of the adviser's own.

The committee chairman, retired federal appeals Judge Arlin M. Adams, defended the makeup of the panel, which has been criticized by some anti-abortionists as being skewed in favor of allowing fetal tissue research.

Adams said he helped pick the panel and did so without knowledge of the members' personal views on abortion.

He said a reading of his own opinions while a judge would reflect that he was "very concerned about abortion."

"I didn't know how I was going to vote until I had heard the testimony," said Adams, who voted in favor of allowing the research.

Dr. Kenneth J. Ryan, head of the department of obstetrics and gynecology at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, acknowledged that fundamental questions about the morality of abortion were "in the background hovering over us all the time."

Ryan, chairman of the scientific issues portion of the committee meetings, said it was a testimony to the intellect of the committee members that even some of those with personal reservations about abortion were able to divorce those beliefs from the question of whether the remains from legal abortions could ethically be used in research.

"The key to the three-day meeting was "can you divorce the two," he said. "It was a kind of tug of war whether you could or could not divorce it."

After spending several hours Thursday night and most of the day Friday discussing the fundamental question of whether it would be acceptable ethically to use purposely aborted fetal tissue in research, the panel was left little time to consider details of the safeguards it concluded must accompany such a policy.

It did reach agreement that "a pregnant woman should not be induced to terminate pregnancy in order to furnish fetal tissue for transplantation or medical research."

INVITATION TO A PUBLIC HEARING ON THE ECONOMIC PLAN FOR TEXAS

A public hearing is scheduled for residents of this area to comment on the Strategic Plan for Texas' Economy.

This Strategic Plan is a "blueprint" for the development and diversification of the Texas economy. It is being drafted by the Texas Strategic Economic Policy Commission, which is chaired by Governor William P. Clements and includes the Lieutenant Governor, Speaker of the House and 15 civic leaders.

The Commission was formed by the 70th Legislature to develop a plan by January 1, 1989.

The first draft of this Strategic Plan is ready for public comment in a series of 20 public hearings across Texas.

You are invited to participate. Your advice and input are needed. Please attend this important hearing. This is an opportunity for you to contribute to rebuilding the Texas economy for the future.

Liberace's ex-lover ties drug dealer to 1981 slayings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Liberace's ex-lover provided some of the new evidence tying a Hollywood drug dealer to the 1981 Laurel Canyon slayings, for which the late sex-film star John Holmes once was tried, the Los Angeles Times reported Friday.

Scott Thorson, 29, who was Liberace's companion from 1977 to 1982, helped authorities build their case against nightclub owner and convicted cocaine trafficker Adel Nasrallah in the four Laurel Canyon beating deaths, the Times said, citing unidentified sources.

The killings allegedly were in revenge for a cash and drug robbery of Nasrallah, authorities have said, and Holmes admitted bringing the assailants to the Laurel Canyon home.

Thorson

Holmes

Holmes, like Liberace, died of acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Nasrallah, 59, who went by the name Eddie Nash, and former bodyguard Gregory DeWitt Diles, 40, were charged Sept. 8 with four counts of murder and one of attempted murder. They are being held without bail and face possible death penalties if convicted.

Four people were bludgeoned to death during the nighttime attack in the affluent residential neighborhood and a fifth was left for dead. She survived but was unable to identify her attackers.

Deputy District Attorney Dale Davidson, who is prosecuting Nash and Diles, said Friday that authorities have new witnesses in the case, but would neither confirm nor deny Thorson's involvement.

"And right now I'm most interested in protecting my witnesses and avoiding anything that might prejudice the case against Mr. Nash and Mr. Diles, so I can't ethically say anything one way or another," the prosecutor said.

Nash and Diles were scheduled to name attorneys and enter pleas in a court appearance Monday, at which time the prosecution will provide a list of its witnesses and an outline of its case, he said.

"The names of the witnesses will be out before long, but it would be wrong for me to be the first one to give them out," Davidson said.

Thorson, who sued Liberace for more than $12 million and wrote a kiss-and-tell book about their relationship, remained in jail Friday awaiting sentencing for a drug-related armed robbery. Telephone messages left for his lawyer, Deputy Public Defender Cathy Dreyfuss, were not returned.

Holmes, a heavy cocaine user, was the top pornographic film star of the '70s, often portraying a detective named Johnny Wadd. During his 1982 trial, witnesses testified that Holmes fenced property stolen by the murder victims to Nash, who exchanged them for cocaine.

A police detective testified that Holmes admitted taking killers to the house the night of July 1, 1981, to placate Nash, who allegedly was angry after being robbed of drugs and $10,000 by two of the victims two days before.

The robbery was allegedly Holmes' idea. And investigators contended the victims allowed the killers inside the house about 10 miles west of downtown Los Angeles because Holmes was with them.

Holmes never took the stand and was acquitted. He was later jailed for 111 days for contempt of court for refusing to talk to a grand jury. He agreed to testify before the secret panel in November 1982 after Nash was sentenced to prison for possessing about two pounds of cocaine valued at $1 million.

Holmes' grand jury testimony remains sealed, and Davidson said it can't be used against Nash or Diles.

The sex-film star died of AIDS complications in March, after reportedly granting deathbed interviews to police still investigating the killings. However, his statements apparently yielded little of use to authorities, and Davidson said the evidence used to file the new charges didn't come from Holmes.

Wyeth artworks back home

CHADDS FORD, Pa. (AP) — An exhibit of three generations of Wyeth family art was staged in palaces and ultramodern museums during its world tour, but James Wyeth says the works look best hanging in his hometown.

The exhibition of 115 works by N.C. Wyeth, his son Andrew and his grandson James opens Sunday in Brandywine River Museum in Chadds Ford. It is the final stop of a 1½-year tour that also included stops in the Soviet Union, Italy, Japan and England.

James until recently has answered to the family nickname of Jamie. But he now wants to be known as James.

Speaking at a press preview Friday, he said, "I've seen the paintings hanging in a czarist building in Moscow ... in a ultramodern museum in Tokyo ... in an old-style building in Cambridge (England), but it still looks a hell of a lot better here at home."

Chadds Ford, southwest of Philadelphia, is where N.C. Wyeth settled after traveling through the Old West during the late 1800s and early 1900s. Andrew and James were raised here, and many of their works explore the people and surroundings.

Other works examine the people and atmosphere of Maine, where the family has a second home.

The most celebrated Wyeth, 71-year-old Andrew, was scheduled to attend the press preview, but a touch of the flu and a "drained" feeling he gets when he completes a work caused him to stay away Friday, his son said.

Through the worldwide tour, people flocked to the exhibit in record-breaking numbers to get a glimpse of art that explores such American traditions and lifestyles as farming and Halloween.

But the collection also shows the enduring tradition of an artistic family, and James Wyeth said that is what appealed most to the exhibit's audiences abroad.

"It was the continuity that really struck them," he said.

The exhibit opened in Leningrad in March 1987 and was the first exhibit under the newest cultural exchange program between the United States and the Soviet Union.

"The people were really dying to see the art," he said. "At some openings, people just stand around with their backs to the paintings, but there they were almost pushing me aside to see the paintings."

Included in the exhibit are three of Andrew Wyeth famous "Helga" paintings, a series of nudes and other figure studies of the same woman that caused a sensation when its existence was disclosed two years ago.

When asked if he had any secret paintings, James Wyeth laughed. "Yes, of a lot of pigs," he said.

He posed for photographs before one of his more famous works, Portrait of a Pig, a 4-by-7-foot painting done in 1970. The pig is one of his favorite subjects and the exhibit displays several paintings of other farm animals as well.

Reagan plans Texas trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced Friday that President Reagan will visit the Johnson Space Center in Houston next week and campaign for Vice President George Bush at other stops in Texas and Florida.

It is "a possibility" that Reagan will appear with presidential aspirant Bush at a Houston fundraising event Thursday evening, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said.

He said the possible joint appearance in the state Bush calls home had not yet been "firmed up."

Reagan also is scheduled to attend a rally at Baylor University in Waco and appear at a private fundraising event for Beau Boulter, the Republican congressman from Amarillo who is opposing Sen. Lloyd Bentsen for his Senate seat, said Fitzwater.

Downed trees and power lines effectively block a road near Merida, Mexico, where Hurricane Gilbert crossed Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula. Many tourists were stranded.

British tourist with paperback rides out storm in rental car

By CHRIS ANGELO

CANCUN, Mexico (AP) — Richard Bowden of London came to this Caribbean resort to get a tan. He ended up spending a dark day in a rented car, reading a horror story as he rode out Hurricane Gilbert.

"There was a lot of corrugated material flying about all over the place," said Bowden, 35. "It was like being in an aircraft in turbulence. You felt the wind was going to lift you away."

Other tourists crammed into Cancun's hotels and shelters were becoming impatient by Thursday, the day after Gilbert blasted the Yucatan Peninsula with 160-mph winds and driving rain.

Food was in short supply, power was still out, the airport was closed and roads out of the city nearly impassable.

"Hysterical," one hotel receptionist said of the stranded vacationers.

About 6,000 tourists were trapped in Cancun when this normally idyllic resort of sandy beaches and warm, clear waters turned into a fury of waves and wind in the predawn hours Wednesday.

Bowden drove into Cancun Tuesday, only hours before the storm hit.

By then, tourists at the beachfront resorts were being moved into shelters and hotels in the old part of the city, about six miles away.

As the hurricane neared, Bowden also sought refuge in the city, but was turned away by hotels already jammed with guests from the luxury resorts.

As Gilbert roared into Cancun, Bowden said he curled up in his car with a book, a horror story involving a magic carpet.

"I got sick of it. If I'd had some postcards I would have written them to send to people, but I did not have any," he said.

Bowden said he watched as airborne debris zipped past his car. But even worse was the sound of two support lines of a radio transmission tower twanging "like a badly tuned guitar" in the wind.

Shortly after dawn, the storm still raging, he said he left the car, looking for some place to get a cup of coffee. Unsuccessful, he returned to the vehicle.

About 150 tourists who were given refuge at city hall had nothing but milk and cookies to eat.

"I think everyone's nerves are starting to get shot now," said Joseph Camuccio of Philadelphia, who had arrived in Cancun Sunday.

"Everyone is going to the same bathroom," he said. "There is no water or electricity. They (the toilets) don't flush or anything. Everybody wants to get out."

Some tourists said they were given virtually no warning that a dangerous storm was on the way.

Maggie Frederick of Petaluma, Calif., said she had just gotten dressed to go out for the evening Tuesday when there was a knock her hotel room door and a voice said: "You're being evacuated."

"I started laughing thinking they were joking," she said.

Tom Long of Effingham, Ill., who speaks no Spanish, said the language barrier added to the confusion. He and his wife, Jackie, were in Cancun to celebrate their fifth wedding anniversary.

Nabil Nachawati, of Arlington, Texas, said his two children, ages 3 and 5, took the storm well. When the sky began to darken, the two children curled up and went to sleep.

Gilbert latest catch in 'stormy' relationship

By CLAUDIA FELDMAN
Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — Soon 23-year-old Tammy Gilliam will decide if her Saturday night wedding — the one she's been planning since January and dreaming about since high school — will go on as planned.

She thinks it will. She told her mom that if she can get her hands on so much as a butane curling iron, the show will go on.

But if Hurricane Gilbert forces Gilliam and her groom, Ron Nau, to cancel, it won't be the first time the storm-crossed lovers have had to alter big plans because of the weather.

It won't even be the second time. The weekend of the couple's senior prom in 1983, their Houston neighborhood was mauled by tornado-force winds. Miss Gilliam readied for her big night without electricity or running water.

That August, Miss Gilliam, Nau and their friends made elaborate plans to celebrate her 18th birthday. Actually, Miss Gilliam stayed home with her family that night, grounded by Hurricane Alicia.

Gilbert is threatening to ground the young couple again. They have learned, however, to be philosophical.

"It's been hard," Miss Gilliam said, "but I'm trying not to get upset — to have a sense of humor about it."

"Look on the bright side," she added. "When Ron and I were planning the honeymoon, we talked about Jamaica and Cancun. Fortunately, we decided on Puerto Vallarta."

Other Houston brides scheduled to marry this weekend are making that same effort.

Michelle Sharney, 42, has devoted herself to wedding plans full time since June, and she joked she's taken dramatic, even superstitious, measures to keep those plans on track.

Somebody told her four glasses of vodka placed outside would keep the rain away, and those four glasses are outside her door today.

"We're going to get married one way or another this weekend," Ms. Sharney said. "We're not changing that."

She and her husband will fly to the Canadian Rockies for their honeymoon.

"We'll get away from the hurricane," she said, "and probably hit a blizzard."

On Wednesday, Carol Womack thought her heart was going to break. "It's the worst feeling in the world," she wailed to friends. "Brides shouldn't have to go through this mess."

As the weather forecasts improved, however, so did the spirits of Ms. Womack and her groom, Tom Murray.

"This isn't the first wedding for either one of us," said Ms. Womack, 36. "We just wanted to get married and get our friends together for a party."

As plans stand now, Ms. Womack and Murray will have their ceremony at 3 p.m. Saturday at a community center, and they'll stay there for the reception.

That's if Gilbert cooperates. If not, the couple isn't sure if the judge they've asked to marry them will be able to make the ceremony or if the cake and the band and even their guests will arrive in time. They're not even sure if the community center will be open.

The bride laughed guiltily. "Maybe we'll just go and get married in Las Vegas."

Other couples regretfully canceled their weekend wedding plans.

Oct. 8, said Cecilia Blevins. That's the new wedding date for her and her fiance, Mike Ganje.

"We'd been planning the wedding since March — we had to undo everything," said Ms. Blevins, 29.

That included uninviting guests and canceling the cake, the tuxes, the flowers, the beer, the table rentals.

"Nobody charged us anything," Ms. Blevins said, "except we'll have to go get another marriage license. They're only good for 30 days."

When the couple finally decided to cancel, Ms. Blevins said she was madder than a wet hen. "Then I got more worried about the hurricane than anything else."

A technician at Hughes Aircraft Company, El Segundo, Calif., tests a Geostationary Operational Environmental Satellite prior to its launch in 1987. The instruments has been used this week to track Hurricane Gilbert.

Food, water, shelter still principal needs in Jamaica

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — For hundreds of thousands of Jamaicans left homeless by Hurricane Gilbert, life was reduced Friday to finding clean water, something to eat and a dry place to sleep.

Four days after Gilbert hit the east coast, the country faced the formidable task of starting from scratch to rebuild what even before the storm was a weak economy with one out of four workers unemployed.

A state of emergency was in effect in disaster areas where nearly half the nation's 2.3 million people live. At least 26 people died on Jamaica as the storm swept across the Caribbean and Mexico's Yucatan peninsula this week before heading for Texas and the northern Mexican coast.

Gilbert severely damaged or destroyed 80 percent of the country's 500,000 homes and left a half million people homeless.

"The people are trying to do what they can do. They're trying to get some food and trying to get some shelter," said taxi driver Samuel Alice as his vehicle threaded its way through Kingston's debris-littered streets.

Work crews replaced snapped utility poles, cleared streets of debris and covered roofless government buildings with plastic sheets.

The Jamaica Broadcasting Corp. broadcast health bulletins urging people to boil their water.

Children bathed with soap at an open water hydrant in downtown Kingston, and people filled plastic jugs at a burst water main.

Many people stood in long lines to get into grocery stores guarded by helmeted soldiers and dogs.

Women and children balanced large water containers on their heads or waited patiently in line to fill cans of cooking kerosene.

The economy was struck a devastating blow, its banana and poultry industries were wiped out and tourism, the No. 1 foreign exchange earner, facing an uncertain future.

Prime Minister Edward Seaga has urged all Jamaicans to join the reconstruction and said it would require "the largest-scale international assistance we have ever mobilized," from $300 million to $400 million worth.

Seaga has estimated total damage at $8 billion.

The prime minister invoked emergency powers by declaring much of the island a disaster area and ordered the immediate reopening of gasoline stations and stores that sell vital supplies.

Also part of the emergency measures is a dusk-to-dawn curfew to prevent looting. Helicopters flew overhead with spotlights and armored personnel carriers rumbled through the streets during the night.

Seaga ordered the immediate opening of gasoline stations and stores that sell vital supplies.

President Reagan sent a letter to Seaga expressing his and America's "deepest sympathy for the tragic loss of life" from the storm, said presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater in Washington.

"The United States will play an active role in helping Jamaica rebuild for a bright and prosperous future," said the letter.

Tons of relief supplies poured into the country aboard U.S. military planes and countries from around the world have pledged assistance, including nearly all of Jamaica's Caribbean neighbors and Canana, Great Britain, France, West Germany and Israel.

Disaster aid running dry in record year

New York Times News Service

MIAMI — As Hurricane Gilbert left a legacy of human misery in Jamaica and other parts of the Caribbean, relief agencies already reeling from a record number of disasters around the globe worried that food and money might run out.

"It's the highest number of disasters we've had to deal with in any one year," said Oliver Davidson, operations director for the U.S. Office of Foreign Disaster Assistance, an arm of the U.S. Agency for International Development.

"We usually average about 40 disasters a year, but last year it rose to 54. With Jamaica this week, and today we learned of another earthquake and landslide in Papua New Guinea, that brings us up to 57," said Davidson.

He said the crises have depleted the U.S. agency's $25 million budget, and it has had to borrow $17 million this year and will need more.

George Wirt, a spokesman in Washington for CARE, the international relief agency, agreed.

"Mother Nature has been throwing disasters at a lot of Third World countries this year. There is some real concern that the pipeline (for food aid) may run dry," Wirt said.

Some countries — such as Bangladesh, Papua New Guinea and Ethiopa — have been struck by disaster more than once in the past two years.

Jamaica lost most of its crops and so have other areas hit by natural disasters, including Bangladesh, where more than 30,000 have been homeless since flooding began late last month, Wirt said.

"It's a double whammy. Not only have people lost their homes, but the storms have hit when the crops were in the fields," he said, "and there is some concern that the drought here this summer could eventually have an impact on our being able to feed them."

With U.S. grain production expected to be down by 31 percent this year, Wirt said, "Commodity prices have been driven way up, making grain hard to get. There are a lot of anxious people right now."

The Jamaican Red Cross asked for $10 million in emergency aid, said American Red Cross spokesman Brian Ruberry. The U.S. agency sent $250,000 in aid immediately and is seeking public contributions for the rest, Ruberry said.

The Red Cross is "currently helping about 500,000 people — that's about one-quarter the population of the island — with food, clothing, shelter and medical care," he said. "But the emergency aid is just the initial phase. Then comes the long-term process of helping to rebuild homes, which could take years."

The International Red Cross is appealing to other countries for $3.7 million worth of needed funds, officials of the Geneva-based parent agency said.

But the Hurricane Gilbert expenditures are dwarfed by relief efforts in Bangladesh.

Two-thirds of Bangladesh remains under water, and relief agencies are trying to halt an epidemic of diarrhea — 36,000 cases a day, according to Don Bjork, associate executive director of World Relief, Washington, sponsored by the 51 denominations of the National Association of Evangelicals. Resources are severely strained, Bjork said.

"Eight hundred million dollars worth of the Bangladeshis' crops are washed away, 2,200 miles of roads are gone, 250 bridges are out," Bjork said. "There's a concern that there will be a cholera epidemic. Ten million people are marooned and relief workers are trying to reach them."

The Red Cross has spent $6.32 million in Bangladesh in recent days, agency spokesman Ann Naef said in a telephone interview from Geneva.

"We have a number of operations going on at once — Sudan, Bangladesh, Ethiopia, the floods in the Sahelian countries of Africa — and it's stretching (our) personnel resources," she said. "When it comes to money, we don't feel overstretched, because the money we spend is determined by the response to our appeals, and so far the response has been good.

The scope of the problem "is taxing all our agencies," Bjork said.

Britain's Teresa Catlin smashes a forehand dur- ing her come-from-behind victory over Debbie Graham of the U.S.A.

The British are here

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

If Paul Revere is on his way, he's a little bit late.

The British aren't coming. They're here as the U.S quickly discovered to their horror on the opening day of the Maureen Connolly Challenge Trophy matches at the Racquet Club Friday.

Great Britain jumped to a 3-0 lead in the singles of the international matches for ladies under 21 before the U.S won the doubles, the final match which ended after sundown.

If the U.S. is to reclaim the Cup, it faces a Bunker Hill climb over the final two days.

Teresa Catlin, Valda Lake and Clare Wood came through with victories for Coach Ann Haydon Jones' team, which got off to the same kind of staff start it did a year ago at London's Queens Court in winning the Connolly Cup 6-5.

The U.S., seemingly headed for complete disaster, rallied in the day's final match as Jennifer Santrock and Halle Cioffi teams up to beat Monique Javer and Teresa Catlin, 6-1, 1-6, 6-3 in the No. 2 doubles match.

MISS WOOD, headed for the Olympics after this event, is the No. 2 British seed and she knocked off Halle Cioffi, the No. 1 seed of the U.S, 6-4, 4-6, 6-1.

If U.S. Coach Sharon Walsh Pete didn't know her team was in a battle for survival, she did after Cioffi, the NCAA finalist from Florida State, was defeated.

Lake earlier defeated Shauna Stafford of the U.S., 6-3, 6-1. Stafford is the NCAA champion, also out of Florida State.

The day's most startling turnabout came in the opener as Miss Catlin defeated Debbie Graham, the freshman from Stanford, in a match of No. 4 seeds.

Graham won the first set 6-0, "her serve was unbelievable. She didn't miss a ball," marveled Catlin.

The 19-year-old from Cambridge came back to win the second set almost as emphatically, 6-1, as Graham was plagued by a string of double faults.

"I was just trying to get into my rhythm," said Catlin. "She seemed to lose her confidence and eased up on her serve. That's when I got back into it. Then, she got back into her game...."

The result was an 8-6 third set won by Catlin.

INSTEAD of a tie breaker on the third set, the girls are playing it out, just like the old days. As a result, there could be some real third set marathons.

For Catlin, this is an encore Connolly appearance. Last year she won her singles and lost her doubles.

"The wind was a factor from one direction, but the heat was a problem," Catlin said. "Not the temperature. Just the heat coming up off the court. It made you wish for a cake of ice to stand on."

Lake, who contributed a crucial win last year, came through again Friday.

"As long as I got my first serve in, I was all right," said the 19-year-old Devonshire lass.

Stafford, trailing 4-0 in the first set, had her best run when she managed to get into baseline volleying game.. "She chased me around the court a lot, but I've been chasing a lot lately and I like that type of rally," said Lake, who figured a her vic-

Rebels topple Andress, 17-7

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

EL PASO — Midland Lee junior quarterback Vince Henderson had a career night Friday, rushing for 117 yards and throwing two long touchdown bombs to Jason Seber and James Brown, for a 17-7 victory over a surprisingly tough El Paso Andress Eagle team in a game that marked the end of non-conference play for both teams.

Henderson carried 20 times for 117 yards, but it was the two touchdown bombs, one 63 yards to Seber and one 49 yards to Brown, that broke the backs of the Eagles.

Henderson, playing in just his third varsity game, seemed to always be left open by the Andress defense, which elected to try and stop the fabled running duo of David Whiteside and Ferris Strambler.

Strambler, who had 180 yards rushing last week, was held to a meager three yards rushing while Whiteside was limited to 45. The Andress defense tried to protect the outside lanes, leaving Henderson open to romp.

"That is the nature of the wishbone offense. You've got to give somebody something," said Midland Lee coach Earl Miller. "Anytime someone puts nine men on the defensive front, the pass can be a dangerous weapon. It cost them the game in this one."

Midland's Will Sowders stretches for extra yards in Bulldogs' win over Lubbock Coronado Friday.

Bulldogs outscore Mustangs, 28-21, to go 3-0

Midland remains lone unbeaten in District 4-5A

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

The Midland High Bulldogs experienced the a little good and a little not-so-good Friday night in downing the Lubbock Coronado Mustangs 28-21. For the 'Dawgs, their third straight win left them as the only undefeated team in 4-5A with district play beginning next Friday.

Dwane Roberts rushed for 144 yards on 25 carries and scored two touchdowns to pace the MHS offense.

While the Coronado offense was constantly banging at the Bulldog door, the home team defense was able to effectively shut the Mustangs down when it counted most. By game's end, Coronado had produced just 208 total yards, compared with 388 for MHS.

"Coronado has a strong defense," Bulldog head coach Doug McCutchen said afterward. "They did a good job defensing us. They caused some problems because of their size and quickness.

"Offensively, though, when we had to have it, it went well for us."

The game was scoreless throughout much of the first quarter until running back Will Sowders ran in from five yards out with 3:25 left in the opening quarter. Shaun Savas' kick failed and the 'Dawgs led 6-0.

It was all Roberts in the second quarter. The senior running back rushed for two touchdowns — from nine and 11 yards — to put Midland High convincingly ahead 21-0 with just under eight minutes left in the half.

Before the frame ended, though, Coronado would put two touchdowns on the board itself to bring down Midland's lead to a mere eight points.

Senior back Scott Taylor scored first for the 'Stangs on a two-yard run up the middle.

And with just 16-seconds left in the second quarter, quarterback David Cobb found receiver Blake Abbott from five-yards out to make it 21-13.

Midland High would increase its lead to 28-13 with just over six minutes remaining in the fourth quarter when Page ran in from six yards out.

With an apparently secure advantage, the Midland High offense controlled the ball with time running out until a Jason Stone fumble gave Coronado the ball on the Midland High 16 yard line.

Coronado successfully converted the fumble into its final score when Taylor ran in for his second score of the night, a two-yard run with just under 90 seconds to play.

Midland High fell on the subsequent onside kick and ran out the clock to preserve its one-touchdown win.

For the Bulldogs, it was a mixed blessing. Even though they racked up another win, making them the sole undefeated 4-5A team, the game also marked the first time this season that the 'Dawgs allowed any points to be scored by the opposition. Midland High has now outscored the opposition 97-21.

For McCutchen though, concern showed.

"We're starting district play. You gotta go in a little concerned," McCutchen said of his team's surrendering three touchdowns.

Midland High opens the 1988 district season next Friday night at Memorial Stadium against the rival Midland Lee Rebels, 17-7 winners Friday night over El Paso Andress.

Plainview tops Steers, 34-16

JOHN FREY
R-T Correspondent

PLAINVIEW— Big Spring Steer Coach David Thompson summed his team's game against the Plainview Bulldogs when he said "I feel like I'm repeating what I said last week. We just squandered too many offensive opportunities."

The Steers knocked on the door early and often, driving inside the Plainview 20 three times in the first half, but came away empty.

Meanwhile, the Bulldogs scored on two of their three first half possessions. Not counting the end of the first half and the end of the game, Plainview scored on four of five possessions to defeat the Steers, 34-16.

"Offensively we moved the ball, but just can not punch it into the end zone," Thompson said. "That is a lack of experience on our part, but if we keep up the hard work we'll get this turned around and start scoring."

After Big Spring held the ball for over six minutes, Plainview took over on their own 26. From there, they needed just seven plays to score with the big strike a 49-yard halfback option pass from Stan Robertson to Wayne Jackson for the touchdown. Reg Martin's kick made it 7-0.

Again Big Spring went on the attack, driving to the Bulldog 17 only to run out of downs. This time Plainview used a long, sustained drive, hanging on to the ball for 7:14 before Ellison Collins scored on a 12-yard run. Martin's kick made it 14-0.

Tailgating taken to new peak

Battles

Maybe it was a Dickinson-Haverford or Swarthmore-Susquehanna game in Pennsylvania or, perhaps, before a Bates-Bowdoin game in New England.

They let down the rear door of the old wood-paneled wagon, unwrapped the ham and cheese sandwiches, broke out a few chips and washed it out down with coffee or lemonade from the thermos.

If anybody noticed, it was the first tailgate picnic in the parking lot before a football game.

A few years later, maybe it was at a Dartmouth-Cornell game that they introduced hotdogs to the fare and it had to be Georgia-Tennessee, or thereabouts, that chicken fried like it should be made its appearance.

Before long it had spread across the nation.

Around the SWC parking lots, not only are there the traditional tailgates, but the popularity of RVs has elevated it to another plateau.

Tailgates have come a long way since the war, but nowhere have they come as far as those at Columbia, S.C.

Oh, others have dabbled in parking/picnicking facilities, but no one has refined the art as they have at the University of South Carolina.

For their fans, the Gamecocks have built football parking condominiums, three of them within the shadow of 75,000-seat Williams-Brice Stadium. Think of it, 90 spaces at $7,500 each. Tough sell? It took a good part of the week to sell them out.

Stadium Park condominium offers an open-sided second story with flaps that pull down in case of rain.

""I love being right next to the stadium and being in my seat in four minutes," says one loyal, what else, Gamecock fan.

Cocks Corner, another parking-condo not 500 yards away, sold out in three days with prices starting at $6,500 and jumping quickly to $7,500. Some regarded it as an investment and bought two spaces. They have been gobbled up at prices ranging from $8,500 to $10,000.

At seven games a year and figuring $5 a game for parking, it would take only 188 years for a Cocks Corner condo owner to break even.

South Carolinians, however, haven't completely abandoned old traditions. The fried chicken picnic lunch remains popular for the parking lot fan.

Bojangles begins preparing at 6:30 a.m. and the average order is $35.

Tailgating is as big a deal as the game itself and the crowds beginn arriving early, unless they've got a condo.

Across from the stadium, in the State Fairground parking lot, members of the Gamecock Club can park in reserved places by donating amounts ranging from $250 to $2,500.

In the parking lot, a cold bite after the game allows the traffic to ease. At Cocks Corner or Stadium Place condos, the party is just beginning.

An elaborate postgame meal precedes listening to Coach Joe Morrison's post-game radio show. The tenants then can take in DJ shows or bands after the games, so the tailgating continues into the late hours. After all, there's nothing like making sure you get your money's worth.

Beating this week's spread....

The SWC....

Ole Miss plus 10 over Arkansas— Grudge battle might, just might, keep it respectable.

New Mexico plus 34 over Texas— 'Horns can beat this spread, easily, but Coach David McWilliams keeps it within bounds of reason...and then there's possible wet weather. A betting man would skip this one.

Baylor minus 4 over Iowa State— Bears may be class of SWC.

The big ones....

Columbia 22 over Harvard— Wounded Lions are dangerous, 41 straight defeats, but they've been saying that since the 1970s.

UTEP plus 10 over BYU— It's at Provo and Miners upset Cougars last year, but BYU in a state of euphoria.

Clemson plus 2 1/2 over Florida State— Tigers catch 'em at home.

Miami minus 7 over Michigan— Wolverines coming off heartbreaker and this only adds to Big 10 intersectional miseries.

Notre Dame minus 1 at Michigan State— I should know better, but....

Tampa kicker attacked, robbed

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Tampa Bay Buccaneers kicker Donald Igwebuike and a friend were attacked and robbed by at least four suspects early Thursday in the parking lot of a local nightclub, police spokesman Steve Cole said.

Igwebuike, 27, and Samuel Kanu, 26, suffered minor injuries and were treated at the scene at Boogey's Lounge. Both men had money stolen, and Igwebuike's watch was taken.

Cole said Igwebuike and Kanu were walking to their car at 12:25 a.m. when Igwebuike was struck from behind and fell to the ground.

Igwebuike suffered minor head bruises. He reported to practice with a lump on his nose and an eye injury.

McCamey downs Alpine

From Staff Reports

McCAMEY— The McCamey Badgers overcame a long first-quarter pass by Alpine with some aerial fireworks of their own in a 19-7 non-district win over Alpine here Friday.

The visitors got on the board first with an 80-yard bomb caught by Bohn Young in the first period. But that would be all the passing yardage accumulated by Alpine in the game, and McCamey held the guests to only 12 rushing yards.

The Badgers got going with a 10-yard touchdown pass from David Anglin to Chris Phillips in the second period, and the duo combined later in the period on a 30-yard scoring play. The senior Anglin had beaten out the junior Phillips for the starting QB position during pre-season drills.

Servando Venegas added an insurance touchdown for the Badgers with a two-yard run in the third period. The Badgers, 1-2, rolled up 292 yards rushing to grab their first win of the season.

McCamey faces a tough non-district test at Reagan County next week.

Texas A&M will have to wait to take out its NCAA-induced frustrations on the Crimson Tide after Alabama athletic officials on Friday postponed the contest.

SWC

The game had been scheduled for 3 p.m. Saturday at College Station, Texas, weather permitting. The game, postponed because of Hurricane Gilbert, will now be played Dec. 1, officials said.

Forecasts called for possibly heavy rain from Gilbert, which was bearing down on the South Texas coast.

A&M spokesmen did not immediately return telephone calls from The Associated Press on Friday.

Officials in Austin also were watching the weather's possible effect on the New Mexico-Texas game set for 7 p.m. Saturday.

The defending Southwest Conference champion Aggies, who now can play only for pride, meet unbeaten and 13th ranked Alabama of the Southeastern Conference at 3 p.m. on Saturday before the national television cameras (ESPN) in Kyle Field.

The SWC's remaining three unbeaten teams, Baylor, Arkansas and Houston are also in action in non-conference matchups, two on the road.

Baylor, the second ranked team in the nation in total defense, is at Iowa State in a 1 p.m. regionally televised (Raycom) contest; Houston, the nation's total offense leader, is at Missouri in a 1:30 p.m. clash; and Arkansas hosts Mississippi in a 7 p.m. regional rivalry at Little Rock.

In the other SWC game, Texas Christian hosts Bowling Green in a 7 p.m. matchup.

The oddsmakers rate 'Bama a two-point pick over A&M, Arkansas a 10-point choice over Ole Miss, Baylor a four-point nod over Iowa State, Texas a 34-point favorite over New Mexico, Missouri a two-point choice over Houston, and TCU a 17-point favorite over Bowling Green.

The Aggies will return three players who were injured in their Kick-off Classic opener against Nebraska. Tailback Darren Lewis, split end Rod Harris and strong safety Gary Jones will be back.

However, fullback Matt Gurley's knee injury may keep him from playing.

A&M coach Jackie Sherrill said he is concerned about stopping All-American running back Bobby Humphrey.

"It seems like every week we're playing a Heisman Trophy candidate," Sherrill said.

Sherrill will again employ his quarterback "troika" of Bucky Richardson, Lance Pavlas, and Chris Osgood.

Osgood said the team has become closer since the NCAA sanctions were announced, knocking them out of a bowl this year.

"People expect us to fall apart but we're getting closer," Osgood said.

Alabama downed Temple 37-0 last week while the Aggies were idle.

The Tide leads the series 2-1, winning 23-10 in 1985 in Birmingham. The schools have split two Cotton Bowl appearances.

"With all the problems we've had, I think the crowd will be extremely emotional," Sherrill said. "We'll be ready for this one.

"The week off has done us a lot of good. We're almost back at full strength physically and we've had plenty of time to prepare."

Irving memories haunt Simms

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Some of Phil Simms' worst quarterbacking nightmares have occurred at Texas Stadium.

The New York Giants' offensive leader has completed 190 passes for 3,071 yards and 22 touchdowns in 14 apperances against the Dallas Cowboys.

But something always seems to happen to him at Texas Stadium where the Cowboys and Giants meet at 3 p.m. on Sunday. The visitors have won only twice there since 1974.

In 1985, Simms had an Ed Jones batted pass returned by Jim Jeffcoat for a touchdown at Texas Stadium. The same thing happened again in 1987 with the same two players involved. He also injured a knee last year in Texas Stadium and sat out almost a month of the season.

The Cowboys have dominated the series, owning a 35-14-2 advantage. They won 16-14 and 33-24 last year. Dallas has won five of the last six meetings.

"We always seem to matchup well against the Giants," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry.

New York Coach Bill Parcells said "Dallas always attacks us well and the defense gives us problems."

One of the Cowboys' long standing records will be tied by defensive tackle Randy White.

White will tie Bob Lilly's record by playing in his 196th regular season games.

"That's a lot of games," said White, who is playing in his 14th and final season. "Lilly was an iron man. He played a lot of games hurt."

White has been hurting himself, battling a pinched nerve which limits his duty to pass rush downs.

The Giants, 1-1, lost a heartbreaker 20-17 to the San Francisco 49ers on Joe Montana's 78-yard scoring pass to Jerry Rice with 42 seconds left.

"It seems like one thing after another has happened to us," Parcells said. "It causes you some consternation as a coach. Sunday was a blow."

Giants' linebacker Lawrence Taylor is still on the NFL's suspended list.

Parcells said the Giants' defense has a tough chore ahead stopping Herschel Walker, who gained 149 yards in 29 carries against the Cardinals.

"Walker has just been terrific," Parcells said. "Dallas is using him a lot of ways. He can run, catch and block. They split him wide. If I had him that's what I would do."

Andrews edges tough Tornado

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

LAMESA— Despite missing most of the previous week's practices with a groin pull, Andrews halfback Mike Hernandez rushed for 160 yards on 25 carries, including 95 yards in the third quarter, to lead the Mustangs past longtime rival Lamesa 23-18 at Tornado Field here Friday.

Andrews, 2-1, blew several scoring opportunities in the first half but combined rejuvenated offensive line play with a hard-nosed defense to bust loose after the intermission.

Lamesa, 1-1-1, collected only 33 yards in the third period, while the visitors were able to put together two long drives.

The Mustangs drove 84 yards in only nine plays to erase a 12-8 Lamesa lead. Hernandez provided the big plays with a 44-yard run that got the ball into Golden Tornado territory — and a 16-yard touchdown run with 4:57 left in the period, his fourth of the season.

After Lamesa was again stopped on one series of downs, the Mustangs went back to work with a 16-play, 65-yard drive that ended. The Tors stiffened, however, and Amos Rosas' 20-yard field goal attempt was wide right.

It didn't matter, though. Lamesa was unable to get anything going in the second half, despite using three different quarterbacks, and Andrews got the ball back after three plays and a punt with plenty of time for one more drive.

Quarterback Robert Morris got the Mustangs going with a 24-yard option run, and Hernandez climaxed a 68-yard drive with a 12-yard TD run. Rosas added the extra-point kick to provide the final Mustang point.

Lamesa kept the outcome in doubt when tackle Joe Bailey recovered Elias Balderas' fumble at the Andrews nine-yard-line and sophomore fullback Keene Hunter went over from the one on fourth down with 1:56 left.

An onside kick attempt by Lamesa' Bryant Edwards failed to go the required 10 yards, however, and Andrews was able to run out the clock.

Lamesa got on the board first with a 45-yard touchdown run by starting quarterback Brock Cartwright four minutes into the first period. Cartwright overcame a lack of breakaway speed to elude several tacklers in the open field on his scoring run.

Andrews tied the game on the first play of the second period on a 13-yard pass from Morris to Stephen Hines, and the Mustangs got in front with a pass from Hines to Teddy Jennings for a two-point conversion. The TD was set up with a fumble recovery by Andrews defensive end Ronnie Seals on the Lamesa 14 — the Mustangs' third break of the half.

Seminole 6, Crane 3

From Staff Reports

CRANE — Wade Folmer's 31-yard field goal and a furious defensive charge weren't enough to push the Crane Golden Cranes past Seminole in a 6-3 non-district loss here Friday.

The Cranes held Seminole to 110 total yards, all on the ground, while Crane QB Rodney Lane spearheaded an attack that piled up 177 total yards. But Seminole took the win on a short TD run by Bryson in the third period.

From Staff Reports

IRAAN— Ozona's Lions roared with a 21-point second period scoring spreed to defeat Iraan's Braves, 23-13, here Friday night.

Henry Dominquez scored on three and two yard runs while George Yberra got loose on a 22-yarder.

Iraan's Jim Phillips ran 24 yards for a score to narrow Ozona's lead to 14-7 with 5:10 left in the half, but Dominquez got his second score 30 seconds before intermission.

Jay Kent scored on a two yard run with 6:42 as Iraan crept to 21-13, but a safety with 37 seconds left ended any doubt.

Iraan will be on the road for Wink next Friday.

Rangers stun Stanton

Buffs suffer first setback

STANTON — The Stanton Buffaloes suffered a disappointing first loss of the season versus their longtime rivals, the Greenwood Rangers.

Rangers fans packed the visitors bleachers at Buffaloes Stadium to witness their team's first win, making their record now 1-2.

After a scoreless first half, the Rangers began to dominate both offensively and defensively, scoring their first touchdown after only two and a half minutes of play and blocking every scoring attempt by Stanton, including a first and goal attempt in the third quarter. Greenwood's defense held the Buffaloes back for three attempts and then on the fourth down, Brad Holland was sacked by defensive tackle Jayme Tedder.

Rangers quarterback Randy Donnell came on strong in the second half, scoring both touchdowns for Greenwood. In the third quarter, he bursted through the Stanton defense for a 15-yard touchdown and then made a 20-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter followed by a pass for 2 to Sean Holcomb.

The Buffaloes sole scoring effort came in the fourth quarter on a 9-yard pass from Holland to Gilbert Reese and a 2-point pass to Randy Esparza

While the Rangers were having trouble in their passing attempts, successfully completing only 5 out of 13, they were clearly dominant in rushing, gaining a total of 263 yards. The Buffaloes, who had been averaging 144 yards per game, had only come up with 74 in this competition.

Next week, both teams are on the road, Stanton at Garden City and Greenwood at Muleshoe.e

Stanton will be on the road for Wink next Friday.

STEERS

The Steers threatened again on the passing of quarterback Rance Thompson, moving the ball to the Bulldog 9 with 1:20 left in the half. But the drive ended on the next play as the Steers fumbled on the five.

After halftime, the Bulldogs took control of the game, scoring twice in the first five minutes of the third period. On their first possession, they drove 70 yards with Robertson doing the honors from nine yards out for the score. Then on the second Big Spring play after the kickoff, linebacker Bill Mulder intercepted a pass and returned 15 yards for a score. Martin made it 27-0.

The Steers managed to get on the scoreboard on their next possession. After a long kickoff return, it took seven plays to score on a six-yard Thompson to John Wofford pass. Thompson then passed for the conversion to make it 27-8.

But Plainvew retaliated despite 30 yards in penalties on their drive. Quarterback J.J. Smith tossed a screen pass to Brian Brazier, who went in from 31 yards out on a fourth down.

Big Spring's final score came on a 65-yard run by wingback Tony Lewis and Thompson again passed for two points.

"We just need to get over the hump. We're playing good enough to win," Thompson said. "We're just not making the big plays when we need them. If we keep playing this way, we'll find a way to win and this would be a good time for that with district opening next week."

Carl Lewis owes it all to parents

Murray

It is a conceit of Americans that heroes, like Henry Adams' friends, are born, not made. Environment has nothing to do with it.

That may be true. But how come all the great vaudeville comedians and almost all early-day radio humorists came from the lower East Side of Manhattan? How come the great blues musicians came up the Mississippi out of New Orleans? Why do all the great actors and poets seem to come from England? Why do dancers come from Russia, tenors from Italy, skiers from Austria?

If environment is so irrelevant, why does virtuosity seem to grow in clusters in the same place? Does a rose grow in weeds? No, it grows with other roses. Genius does not flourish in a vacuum.

CARL LEWIS is one of the great athletes of the 20th Century. He may be on the verge of doing what no athlete has ever done before — win the 100, 200 and the long jump in two separate Olympics. Since he also runs on the sprint relay team, he could perform the astonishing feat of winning four gold medals in two separate Olympics.

So, did Carl Lewis just roll out of bed with this incredible ability? Oh, sure. And Caruso never took a singing lesson in his life. And Louis Armstrong just picked up a cornet one day and began to play "South Rampart Street Parade."

Lots of people are born with the ability to play the cornet or the piano — or to run fast or jump far. But to do it really well, to hit Broadway or Hollywood — or the Olympic Games — you have to be in the right place at the right time. You have to go where the state of the art is refining itself, where you have competition, motivation, inspiration. Skill withers if it's not repeatedly honed and tested and refined.

Carl Lewis, it may please you to know, was practically born on a running track. He didn't just come along one day to a wide creek and find he could jump it. He was in a long-jump pit almost as soon as he was out of a play pen. His first pair of shoes had running spikes in them. Carl was born to run. He was also taught to.

I HAVE this from an unimpeachable source. His mother. I had breakfast with the widow Lewis the other morning as she was passing through on her way to Seoul and the Olympics as part of the program in which Seagram's, the distiller, is sending the families of the 550 Olympians the '88 Summer Games, expenses-paid.

Willingboro, N.J., is not ordinarily thought of as your basic wellhead of track and field in this country. But when William and Evelyn Lewis moved there in the late '60s, they were already dedicated track and field enthusiasts. Mother, Evelyn Lewis, had been a member of the U.S. team, as a hurdler and long jumper, in the first Pan Am games, in Buenos Aires, in 1951. Father, Bill, had been a football and basketball coach.

Both were graduates of Tuskegee. At Willingboro, they founded the Willingboro Track Club. Initially, they brought Carl and his younger sister, Carol, along on the workouts because it was cheaper than hiring a baby-sitter.

"Carl practically lived in that long-jump pit," Evelyn Lewis recalls.

When he wasn't jumping in it, he was building sand castles in it. Carl's Aunt Freddie, Evelyn's sister, recalls that he and his sister had to be dragged off the pit when darkness fell. Other kids wanted to go home and watch television. Carl wanted to jump in the street lights.

"At the age of 14, he was winning the junior nationals with 20 feet 5 inches," Evelyn Lewis remembers.

CARL, who is now 6-foot-2, was late maturing. "He was small until the 10th grade when, at one time, he grew 2 1/2 inches in a month and a half," Evelyn recalls.

Growing pains inhibited his jumping and Carl began to work on his run-up, his speed intervals. People found them pretty astonishing. He was a gifted runner, but not the stylish runner he was to become. Both parents began to work on his form.

"If there was a flaw, it was his take-off," Evelyn, the former 80-yard hurdler, says.

But it soon became apparent to the Lewises that Carl was a fluid power runner who accelerated as he went along. They concentrated on working on that.

Today, a number of track filberts feel that if Carl had better action at the post, he would be as unbeatable as an ocelot. Evelyn Lewis is not sure she agrees. "Energy might be expended that he might need at the 80-meter mark," she feels.

The exploits of the children — Carol is one of only two female Americans to have long-jump more than 23 feet and has won four outdoor and as many indoor national championships in the event —and the pedagogy of the Lewis parents brought the track and field world flocking to Willingboro.

"We had all-comer meets with athletes from nine states," Evelyn reports. "There'd be 500 or 600 youngsters."

Carl had been a one-man track team. But he hated the hurdles.

"He struck a bargain," his mother says. "If he ran a 9.5 hundred and long-jumped 25 feet, he could drop the hurdles. He made it easily. He was always goal-oriented — academically and athletically."

Carl Lewis was practically world class when he left Willingboro for Houston where Coach Tom Tellez was able to re-refine the product. But Carl Lewis was as mistake-free a mechanic as a teen-ager could be by then.

THE LEWIS family suffered a devastating loss last year. Bill Lewis succumbed to cancer. Carl's 100-meter gold medal — and part of his heart — lies in the grave with him in New Jersey.

But, if Carl becomes the Olympic athlete for all the ages at Seoul and pulls down three or four more gold medals, does what no man has ever done, he will owe it all to a pair of dedicated parents who turned a little corner of New Jersey into a hotbed of track sports.

He got good for the same reason George Burns and George Jessel and Louis Armstrong and Al Hirt did. He was in an environment where he couldn't help it. Jean-Claude Killy couldn't help being a great skier. Carl Lewis couldn't help being a great long jumper.

The Russians are used to being beat by jumpers and sprinters who come from the sun belts of California, Florida, Georgia and Texas. This is the first time they will have been bested by something that comes out of the waving palms of Willingboro.

A policman searches early arrivals at Olympic Stadium in Seoul Saturday prior to opening ceremonies for the Olympic Games.

70,000 on hand for ceremonies

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Seventy thousand spectators calmly and patiently streamed through a battery of metal detectors and personal searches Saturday to view a ceremonial spectacular kicking off 16 days of what the South Koreans hope will be a safe and trouble-free Olympic Games.

No major incidents were reported.

Ticket-holders, in orderly single files hundreds of yards long, took a half-hour or more to gain entrance to the huge, gracefully curved Olympic Stadium.

Among other extraordinary measures, hard-eyed young security men clicked every tourist's camera and peered through every lens to test its harmlessness.

Korean security officials, on guard against terrorist attack, even checked flower beds outside the stadium for bombs.

"I took us 40 minutes to get in, but they have to do it," said Korean housewife Chung Hee-han.

"I think it's safer here than on the Manhattan subway," said Georgia Rose, a tourist from New York.

Unseen frogmen, sniffing dogs and a supercarrier or two cleared the way for the 16 days of sport in which the Koreans, most of all, are going for the gold in security.

"There won't be any trouble," promised Jeon Sung-ho, one of the young policemen guarding the Olympic Stadium. "We have prepared very thoroughly. This is too important."

Important enough for the South Koreans to have mobilized the biggest security force ever for a sports event — more than 100,000 police and soldiers directly guarding sites linked to the Summer Olympics. The Los Angeles Games, in 1984, had only 15,000.

If that's not enough, the Koreans have some friendly back-up offshore, elements of the U.S. Pacific fleet cruising up and down the coast.

The Koreans had a worldful of worries as the Olympics opened:

—Dozens of the 160 competing nations are the favorite targets of terrorists who kill in the name of causes ranging from Irish nationalism to Sikh fundamentalism. Security specialists will never forget the Palestinian terrorism at the 1972 Munich Olympics, when 11 Israeli athletes and officials were killed.

—Just 30 miles north of Seoul lies a hostile North Korea, blamed for a string of anti-South Korea terror attacks, including the apparent mid-air bombing of a Korean jetliner last year.

—Right here in Seoul, student radicals, veterans at firebombing, have denounced the Olympics as a political prop for ex-general and President Roh Tae-woo.

The possible dangers were enough to lead some nations to draw up contingency plans for evacuating their athletes from Seoul on short notice.

But the Olympics' security chief, Hwang Kyu-woong, said Friday that South Korea's years of preparation will protect the 22,000 athletes, officials and media, and the expected 2.7 million spectators from any harm.

For one thing, the security director said, the student militants, hundreds of whom marched in a noisy protest Friday, will never get near the Olympic sites. "When we get information about their plans, we'll just deploy police to stop them."

Hwang insisted, "Our biggest concern now is the traffic."

Olympic Games

The security focus fell on the Olympic Stadium, an architect's mammoth rendering of a graceful Korean bowl, for Saturday's opening ceremony.

Well-heeled Koreans reportedly offered $4,000 per $200 seat to get into the sold-out, three-hour extravaganza, featuring President Roh and a colorfully costumed cast of thousands, and to be run through a battery of metal detectors manned by combat policemen who spent earlier days in hand-to-hand battle with students.

Besides scanning each of the 70,000 spectators for knives, guns and other weapons, the security men were instructed to click a picture on every tourist's camera to test its harmlessness, and to seize all bottles.

"A broken bottle is a weapon," Jeon explained.

Dogs with a nose for explosives were sniffing around the sprawling stadium, and police used an electronic bomb detector to check banks of flowers.

Platoons of plainclothesmen were believed assigned to sit among the cheering crowds. If anything did happen, anti-terrorist commandos were primed to rappel by rope from the overhanging stadium roof and into the throng.

In the nearby Han River, Hwang said, scuba divers scoured the broad muddy waters for any sign of a terrorist attempt against the majestic 458-boat flotilla the led the opening-day schedule.

Out at sea, a U.S. Navy task force headed by the aircraft carrier Midway cruised on an alert pattern, and unconfirmed reports said a second force, led by the carrier Nimitz, was bound for Korean waters.

The U.S. government had announced it would it would make an Olympic show of force as a warning to the North Koreans. The 40,000-member U.S. ground force in South Korea is on "increased alert," and additional U.S. early-warning planes and F-18 jet fighters were dispatched to the peninsula. The Japanese also joined in the security cordon, ordering 280 of their coast guard patrol boats to inspect vessels and guard ferries headed for South Korea.

The South Koreans, who treasure the Olympics as their chance to excel on the world stage, are eager to show themselves capable of fending off any security challenge.

Prime Minister Lee Hyun-jai told his countrymen recently that "the future of the nation hinges" on the safety of the Games.

Pate, Weibring tied

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Steve Pate and D.A. Weibring shot their second straight 68s Friday to share the second-round lead at the $600,000 Bank of Boston Classic.

Pate and Weibring were at 6-under-par 136 after 36 holes after two trips around the Pleasant Valley Country Club, moving past first-round leaders David Frost and Donnie Hammond.

Frost, who shot a 70 after an opening-round 67, slipped into a third-place tie at 137 with Fuzzy Zoeller, who had a 69. Hammond struggled to a 73 and fell back into a six-way tie at 140.

Wayne Levi, the 1980 champion, Mark Brooks and Mark Calcavecchia all shot 67s and were at 138.

Bill Sander, who shot a 66, was tied at 139 with John Mahaffey, Tom Byrne, Joey Sindelar, David Rummells and Tom Byrum, who had 69s, and Wayne Grady, sho shot 68.

Weibring was alone on top for most of the day, but bogeyed the 16th and 18th holes. Pate also bogeyed the 16th, but birdied the 18th to earn a share of the lead.

Billingsley scores 3 as Permian breezes

From Staff Reports

ODESSA— Don Billingisey scored three touchdowns as Odessa Permian bounced back from a loss at Marshall last week to spank Amarillo's Golden Sandies, 35-14, at Ratliff Stadium Friday night.

The Panthers are 2-1 for the season.

Chris Comer got Mojo on the scoreboard early with a 45-yard run to end a 78-yard drive with 7:40 left in the first period.

Billingsley then took over to score on runs of three, three and 56 yards as the Panthers took a 28-0 halftime lead. The 56-yard run capped a 98-yard drive in seven plays.

Billingsley wound up with 143 yards in 14 carries, all in the first half, and Comer gained 119 yards in 12 rushes.

In the third period Robert Brown punched in from the one after a 63-yard drive for a 35-0 lead.

Permian opens District 4-5A play against Odessa High at 8 p.m. next Friday.

Durham returns to Reds roster

NEW YORK (AP) — Leon Durham of the Cincinnati Reds has successfully completed the initial phase of an intensive drug rehabilitation program and has been placed on the club's active roster, Major League Baseball announced Friday.

Durham, a first baseman, had been on the disabled list since July. The Commissioner's Office will continue to monitor his compliance with an aftercure program that includes testing.

The 31-year-old Durham is batting .218 this season in 124 at bats with four homers and eight runs batted in.

Amato sets track records at Reading

READING, Pa. (AP) — Winston championship point leader Joe Amato set new track records Friday to claim the No. 1 Top Fuel qualifying position for the National Hot Rod Association Keystone Nationals at Maple Grove Raceway.

After two of four qualifying sessions for the $591,000 event, Funny Car driver Ed McCulloch and Pro Stock champion Bob Glidden continued to hold the No. 1 positions in their respective categories.

Amato ran the quarter-mile in a record elapsed time and speed, 5.107 seconds at 284.00 mph. He broke his former track records, set in September 1987, of 5.118 seconds and 280.98 mph. Darrell Gwynn was second in 5.156 seconds at 273.55 mph.

Cougars fall to Mansfield

From Staff Reports

ABILENE — The return of Scotty Pugh proved insufficient for the Abilene Cooper causes Friday night as the Cougars dropped to 1-2 with a 28-14 loss to Mansfield.

Pugh, who had been out with an injury since the opening week of tyhe '88 campaign, scored both of Cooper's touchdowns, ran for 51 yards and completed eight of 18 passes for 89 yards.

Mansfield quarterback Chris Whitfield threw for one strike and ran for a second in the first half. Mansfield completed its scoring in the last half when Kieth White and Robert Blowers ran for scores of 9 and 38 yards.

Ozzie Smith leaps over Cubs' Mitch Webster to complete a double play during action at Wrigley Field Friday.

Jeffries triggers Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Gregg Jefferies broke out of an 0-13 slump with three hits, including a game-winning single in the ninth inning, as the New York Mets beat the Montreal Expos 4-3 Friday in the National League East.

The victory maintained the Mets' 11-game lead over the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-5 winners at Philadelphia, and reduced their magic number for clinching the division to six.

After pinch-hitter Keith Miller reached on shortstop Luis Rivera's error to open the ninth, Mookie Wilson sacrificed and pinch-hitter Tim Teufel grounded out before Jefferies lined a soft single to center off Joe Hesketh, 3-3, who came on to start the inning.

Jefferies, batting .397, made out in his first two at-bats, extending his slump, but then singled in the fifth and seventh. He is 7-for-11 against the Expos this year.

Randy Myers, 7-3, pitched 1 2-3 hitless innings as the Mets won for the eighth time in nine games and for the 18th time in their last 23.

Ojeda gave up eight hits and tied a season-high with his fifth eight-strikeout game, his third straight and fourth in five starts.

Pirates 7, Phillies 5

PHILADELPHIA — Bobby Bonilla had three hits, drove in three runs and scored the tie-breaker on Sid Bream's eighth-inning single.

Bonilla opened the Pirate eighth with a single, stole second, took third on shortstop Jackie Gutierrez's error and scored on Bream's line drive to left to break a 5-5 tie.

Reliever Jeff Robinson, 10-5, pitched two scoreless innings for the victory. Jim Gott closed out the last inning for his 30th save. Greg Harris, 4-5 took the loss.

Cardinals 3, Cubs 0

CHICAGO — Jose DeLeon and Todd Worrell combined on a six-hitter and Willie McGee, playing for the first time in three weeks, tripled home a run to lead the St. Louis.

DeLeon, 12-8, won for the sixth straight time.

Cubs' rookie Mike Harkey, 0-2, allowed seven hits in eight innings as Chicago lost for the eighth time in nine games.

Giants 5, Astros 4

HOUSTON — Pinch-hitter Mike Aldrete's two-run single sparked a five-run sixth inning. Trailing 1-0, Aldrete hit for Kevin Mitchell with two outs and the bases loaded. He lofted a soft liner into shallow center that bounced off the glove of shortstop Rafael Ramirez, scoring Robby Thompson and Will Clark.

Thompson started things for the Giants in the sixth with a two-out walk, followed by a ground-rule double by Clark. Candy Maldonado was then hit by a pitch from Bob Knepper, 13-5, to load the bases and bring on reliever Larry Andersen.

After Aldrete's two-run single, pinch-hitter Ernest Riles singled in Maldonado from third, and Kirt Manwaring doubled in Aldrete and Riles.

Atlee Hammaker, 8-8, was the winner.

Craig Lefferts earned his 10th save.

Keough wins 12th

TOKYO (AP) — Former major league pitcher Matt Keough posted his 12th victory against 10 losses as the Hanshin Tigers downed the Hiroshima Toyo Carp 8-5 in Japanese baseball Friday.

The Kintetsu Buffaloes defeated the Nippon Ham Fighters 3-1. Ex-big leaguer Mike Easler homered for the Fighters, his 14th of the season.

The Nankai Hawks beat the Hankyu Braves 15-7 as Tony Bernazard, formerly of the Oakland Athletics, hit his 19th home run of the season.

Barrett ignites Red Sox

Boston squares series with New York

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox, spurred by Marty Barrett's tie-breaking double during a five-run fifth inning, stopped New York 7-4 Friday night and increased their American League East lead to 4½ games over the Yankees.

AL

The Red Sox, trailing 2-0 just eight pitches into the game, rallied to win for the ninth time in 12 games. Boston also ended comparisons to the 1978 Boston massacre, the Yankees' four-game wipeout at Fenway Park in September in the midst of their miracle comeback.

New York took the opener in the four-game series, beating Boston ace Roger Clemens 5-3 Thursday night. The Yankees bought the tying run to the plate in the eighth and ninth innings Friday night, but this time the Red Sox hung tough.

Wes Gardner, 8-4, settled down to allow just three hits after the first inning and Dennis Lamp relieved with one out in the eighth. Lamp gave up a two-run double to Dave Winfield and, after walking Jack Clark, was replaced by Lee Smith.

Mike Pagliarulo, the hero in the Yankees' victory a night earlier, hit a fly ball to deep right field that Dwight Evans caught at the fence. Willie Randolph led off the ninth with a single and Ken Phelps with one out. Smith retired Rickey Henderson on a short fly ball and got Claudell Washington on a grounder for his 27th save.

With just 15 games remaining, Boston reduced its magic number over New York to 12 for clinching the division championship. The Yankees lost for the second time in nine games.

The Red Sox, who grounded into three double plays in the first four innings, broke a tie at 2 in the fifth against Steve Shields, 4-5. Shields got the first two batters before Wade Boggs broke an 0-for-8 slump by beating out a single into the hole at shortstop.

Barrett, without an extra base hit since Aug. 19, lined a double down the left-field line and Boggs scored when Henderson was slow in retrieving the ball in the corner. Dwight Evans singled off the left-field wall, scoring Barrett, and a hit by a pitch and an infield single by Ellis Burks loaded the bases.

Carlos Quintana made his major league debut and drew a pinch-walk, forcing home a run. After Dale Mohorcic replaced Shields, pinch hitter Todd Benzinger capped the rally with a two-run single.

Gardner, a reliever until pressed into a starting role because of injuries in late June, had a career-high eight strikeouts while walking two.

Henderson hit a 3-1 pitch for a single to start the game and Washington sent a 1-1 pitch off the top of the scoreboard in left for a double. Don Mattingly then lined the first pitch to him for an RBI single to right before Gardner settled down.

Despite the 2-0 lead, New York rookie Al Leiter, winless since May 24, failed to get through the second. A single by Mike Greenwell, a walk and a hit batsman loaded the bases and Shields replaced Leiter.

Greenwell scored as Larry Parrish grounded into a double play and Jody Reed tied the score at 2 with an RBI single to center.

Jim Rice grounded into the 311th double play of his career in the fourth inning, tying the AL record held by former Boston star Carl Yastrzemski. The major league record for grounding into double plays is 328, held by Hall of Famer Hank Aaron.

Tigers 8, Orioles 7

DETROIT — Fred Lynn, traded from Baltimore to the Tigers last month, hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning kept Detroit's hopes alive in the AL East.

Detroit, which overcame an early 5-1 deficit, won for just the fifth time in 24 games.

Twins 5, White Sox 4

MINNEAPOLIS — Jim Dwyer and Gene Larkin hit consecutive home runs in the sixth and Kirby Puckett got a two-run double for his 1,000th hit.

Dwyer, who hit a grand slam in a 10-3 victory Thursday, led off the sixth with his second homer, making it 4-4. Larkin followed with his seventh homer against Shawn Hillegas, 1-2.

Puckett doubled and scored on Dwyer's single in the first. Puckett became the fourth player to reach 1,000 hits before completing five years in the major leagues, joining Joe Medwick, Paul Waner and Earle Combs. Puckett, who leads the majors with 206 hits, will complete five years on May 7, 1989.

Bert Blyleven, 10-15, went six innings and ended his four-game losing streak. Jeff Reardon went 1 2-3 innings for his 39th save.

Can Miami keep No. 1?

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press

College Football

Can Miami hold onto the No. 1 national ranking longer than Florida State did?

The Hurricanes will learn the answer Saturday when they visit No. 15 Michigan.

"We'll have a shot at them. It's not an insurmountable task. Don't write us off at all," Michigan coach Bo Schembechler says. "The thing that will hopefully help us is we're playing on our turf."

Michigan's 80th consecutive 100,000-plus crowd will be on hand for only the second meeting between the two schools.

Miami also visited Ann Arbor on Sept. 8, 1984, when Bernie Kosar threw six interceptions in a 22-14 loss, the Hurricanes' only setback away from home, other than bowl games, under Coach Jimmy Johnson.

They currently own a 13-game winning streak, 33 straight regular-season victories and a 19-game regular-season road winning streak.

Saturday's only other game between members of the AP Top Twenty finds No. 10 Florida State, a 31-0 opening-game loser to Miami, at third-ranked Clemson.

One game — No. 13 Alabama at Texas A&M — was postponed because of Hurricane Gilbert. It was rescheduled for Dec. 1.

Second-ranked UCLA entertains Long Beach State at night, No. 4 Oklahoma plays host to Arizona, No. 6 Auburn is at home against Kansas under the lights, No. 7 Georgia visits Mississippi State for a night game, No. 8 Notre Dame is at Michigan State and No. 9 LSU visits Tennessee.

In the Second Ten, No. 12 West Virginia entertains Maryland, East Carolina is at No. 14 South Carolina, Boston College is at No. 16 Penn State, Army is at No. 17 Washington, No. 18 Ohio State is at Pitt under the lights and Colorado is at No. 19 Iowa.

Three Top Twenty teams are idle — No. 5 Southern Cal, No. 11 Nebraska and No. 20 Oklahoma State.

MIAMI'S success on the road doesn't mean a thing to Schembechler. And he says it "doesn't mean anything to them, either. None of their players were around then."

To refresh your memory, Miami was playing its third game in 13 days. After winning its final 11 games en route to the 1983 national championship, the Hurricanes beat Auburn 20-18 in the Kickoff Classic and Florida 32-20. They were the defending national champions and they had a 13-game winning streak.

Do you believe in deja vu? Johnson doesn't.

"I think all the players are anxious to go up to Michigan," he says. "Michigan looks like a typical Bo Schembechler-coached football team. They're well-schooled fundamentally and they play with a lot of enthusiasm.

"They've still got an ourstanding football team. It just so happens that they missed a field goal at the end of the game against Notre Dame (last week's 19-17 loss). But I anticipate they'll be one of the better teams in the country at the end of the year."

Schembechler calls Miami "Without quesiton, the No. 1 team in the nation. I'm not so sure that they're not better than last year's national chmapionship team."

FLORIDA State's national championship hopes can't afford another loss and Coach Bobby Bowden is concerned about just staying in the rankings.

"We'll let the national picture take care of tiself," he said. "Our expectations did not permit us to have two losses in the first three games, yet that could easuly happen."

LEE

In the first quarter, Lee's Strambler mistakenly downed the kickoff on the one-yard line, thinking he was in the end zone. But Henderson drove his team 99 yards for a 7-0 lead, with the big blow the 63-yard bomb to Seber.

In the second period, Lee jumped to a 14-0 lead when Henderson dialed a perfect aerial display of 49 yards to Brown, who caught it on a dead run and skipped into the end zone on the one-play drive.

At the half, Lee had 159 yards rushing to Andress' 25 yards, but three Lee fumbles, one by fullback Jason Fletcher at the Andress two-yard line and two more by Henderson, stopped other Lee drives in the half.

Andress, trying to shake the stigma of El Paso team's pitiful performances against District 4-5A teams, proved to be salty in the second half, as quarterback Manny Avila completed 11 of 27 passes for 127 yards, one a 22-yard scoring strike to Tyrus Doctor in the third period to narrow the margin to 14-7.

Lee came right back and drove to the Andress 11-yard line, where junior place kicker Arthur Donnelly converted a 28-yard field goal that spelled doom for the Eagles.

In addition to Henderson's 117-yard rushing performance, Fletcher had 63 yards, all coming in the first half.

Andress coach Alan Sepkowitz thought his team played well, "but we sure would like to have a couple of Lee passes back. Those two plays killed us. We gambled a bit to stop their running game, but they beat us with two passes. We thought we did a good job of stopping their running game, but that little quarterback hurt us with some long runs."

The game leaves both teams with 2-1 records and both figure to make strong runs at playoff berths in their respective districts.

Lee opens against undefeated Midland High next Friday at Memorial Stadium in what will be a rocky sellout for the District 4-5A kickoff.

However, Miller was just happy to get out of El Paso with a victory. "I'll take a 17-7 victory in El Paso any time."

Lee was penalized 60 yards to the Andress five. Two years ago, Lee had a tough time beating El Paso Eastwood, 20-0, with over 100 yards in penalties.

The Eagles' Clifton Wright was the leading rusher for Andress with 47 yards. James O'Quin, who had over 1,200 yards rushing last year, was held to a minus 1 yard.

The Lee defense was stiff as nails in the first half, but the Andress passing game caused them a little trouble in the second half. Still, Blaine McAnally and Mike Pearson were outstanding on defense, giving Andress nothing up the middle.

Brown, in addition to catching a touchdown pass, played three positions in the game: wide receiver, fullback and defensive safety. He had 41 yards rushing in the fullback slot and an additional 49 receiving.

Midland Lutheran to host workshop

Midland Lutheran Church will host an "Equipping the Saints Workshop" today. The workshop is sponsored by the West Texas Conference, North Texas/Northern Louisiana Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m., and at 10:00 a.m. Opening devotions will be led by Chloe Reynolds, assistant to the bishop, NT/NL Synod, Dallas. Workshops are planned to assist and share ideas to make congregational committees more effective.

Dr. August Wenzel, executive director of Lutheran Theological Education in the Southwest, Austin, will conduct the "Administration/ Leadership Workshop" for council members and pastors.

"Ministry in Daily Life Workshop" will be led by Charlotte McCarroll, associate in ministry at the Lutheran Church of the Risen Lord, Odessa, and will be open to all members of the participating congregations.

Carol Leber, Director of Christian Education, Resurrection Lutheran Church, Plano, will conduct the "Education Committee Workshop."

Paula Rennegarbe, Associate in Ministry, Christ Lutheran Church, Odessa, will lead the Outreach-Evangelism committees in developing ways of being intentional about witnessing.

The "Stewardship Workshop" will be conducted by Pedro Caceres-Larreategui, ELCA Deployed Stewardship Staff in Dallas.

The Rev. G.L. Joe Dahl, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church in Clifton, will lead the "Worship Committee" seminar.

The youth committees will be guided by the Rev. Daryl Koenig, executive director of Youth Ministry, ELCA, Chicago.

Debra Mantey, Congregational Resources Representative from the Austin branch of Augsburg-Fortress Publishing House will make a presentation and will have a book display as well.

Congregations in the West Texas Conference are from the Midland, Odessa and San Angelo areas. Also participating will be congregations from the Rolling Plains Conference which extends to the Abilene area, and from the Panhandle Conference which extends to the Amarillo area.

AT THE CROSS

I had just finished an after-dinner address at a convention of medical doctors. Several were coming by, introducing themselves, and spending a few moments in general conversation.

One elderly physician approached with some difficulty, holding the arm of a younger doctor with one hand and gripping tightly onto his walking cane. His smile required his entire face to express itself.

We talked a few moments about a point or two I made during the address. It was then that I spotted a beautiful gold cross, rather large, dangling on the end of a long chain, presenting itself prominently on his chest.

"I see you have the cross, doctor," I said, smiling and gently touching it.

"Yes," he said. "And everything that goes with it," and he limped on his way, still smiling that big smile.

My eyes followed him through the crowd, as if transfixed. I thought: his "cross" is not his burden; not his limp; not his aging infirmity. No. His "cross" is in his face—his smile—not in his limp.

And that's where the CROSS always ends up: on our faces, expressing "everything that goes with it."

The old hymn is right: "At the cross, at the cross, where I first saw the light. . . ."

Southern Baptist moderates huddle on strategy

RELIGION

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Restraint tempered desperate words at a strategy session of Southern Baptist moderates about "where we go" in a denomination now run by fundamentalists.

"We are Baptists in a denomination that has stopped being Baptist," said Kirby Godsey, president of Mercer University in Macon, Ga.

The 900 moderate leaders of the coalition, the Southern Baptist Alliance, made no move at their meeting in Nashville, Tenn., last weekend to quit the 14.7-million-member denomination, although some speculated it eventually could happen.

For the time being, however, participants took lesser measures, launching such independent projects as alternative Sunday school lessons and theological education. They keenly lamented the control achieved by fundamentalists over the denomination, the country's largest Protestant body.

It "is wounded and just may be mortally wounded," said the Rev. Randall Lolley of Raleigh, N.C.

The Rev. Tom Grace of St. John's Baptist Church, Charlotte, N.C., said, "We now exist in a state of grief, grief over loss of our mother denomination."

Its historic principles "are in eclipse," Godsey said. "In the midst of these dreadful and frightening shadows of denominational eclipse we huddle together to find reassurance and light enough to sustain us."

The three-day meeting was called after fundamentalists last June won denominational rule for the 10th straight year.

They insist on a literal view of the Bible as "inerrant" — free of error historically, scientifically and religiously. Moderates allow for diverse interpretations.

The fundamentalist wing gradually has gained sway over church institutions through the appointive powers of a succession of fundamentalist presidents, the latest being the Rev. Jerry Vines of Jacksonville, Fla.

Sizing up the present status of moderates, the Rev. Cecil Sherman of Fort Worth, Texas, told the Nashville meeting, "We have been put out of the house. The game goes on, but we don't get to play."

The alliance has 36,460 members, including individuals and member churches, in 38 states.

Its board voted to publish independent adult Sunday school lessons beginning in January, for those dissatisfied with materials put out by the denominational Sunday School Board.

The alliance also decided to support a House of Baptist studies at Duke University, a Methodist institution in Durham, N.C., and a Divinity School at Lake Forest University in Winston Salem, N.C.

The moderates alloted $30,000 to support various causes purportedly spurned by the fundamentalist administration, such as peace making, housing for the poor, women in ministry and the doctrine of priesthood of the believer.

Moderates criticized several recent denominational actions under fundamentalist control, including:

— The Home Mission Board's prohibition of support to female pastors or divorced persons as missionaries.

— The foreign mission board's dismissal of a missionary, the Rev. Michael Willett, accusing him of "doctrinal ambiguity" for not holding a literalistic view of some miracles.

— A funding cut for the Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs, a religious liberty watchdog agency in Washington involving eight Baptist denominations.

— Tightened control over the Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Wake Forest, N.C., resulting in resignations of the president, most top administrators and some faculty.

The alliance's interim executive director, the Rev. Alan Neely, a professor at Princeton University, said the organization is not planning a new denomination but also is not ruling out that possibility.

"The future is uncertain," he said. "The alliance will remain active in its support for Baptist principles and the Baptist heritage of freedom until what we perceive as designed, concentrated, calculated oppression is relieved.

"We are simply trying to provide an arena for people who have been selected out, prevented, prohibited, blackballed by those in power to have a place to stand and can have some free air to breathe."

A straw poll at the meeting found 90 percent of the participants favored some change in relation to the denomination's "cooperative program" through which various agencies are financed.

Several particpants favored continued support for that unified budget, but also creation of foundations to finance causes not backed by the denomination but deemed important to moderates.

Others favored "designated giving" only to chosen denominational programs, with moderates putting other funds in escrow until fundamentalists agree to political changes in bylaws that enable factional control.

The proposals were to be considered at an alliance board meeting scheduled for Nov. 28-29 in Charlotte, N.C.

Continentals, a Christian musical group, will present a concert at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at St. Paul United Methodist Church.

Continentals to present concert at St. Paul's

The Continentals, an internationally recognized Christian musical group, will present a concert of inspirational and traditional Christian music at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 28, at St. Paul United Methodist Church, 4501 Thomason Dr., in the Fellowship Hall.

Featuring 24 vocalists and a 10-piece orchestra, the Continentals' two-part program will focus on themes of devotion, inspiration and worship, integrating a variety of popular Christian songs, hymn medleys and gospel music arrangements.

Cam Floria, Continental Ministries president and producer of the program, says the concert will appeal to audiences of all ages "in both music and content."

"We've divided the program into two parts," he explains. "The first follows the theme 'Run to Win,' and our songs are arranged to encourage people to persevere. We want to encourage adults to stay in the race, hang in there, see it to the finish. While to young people, we want to say 'run for Jesus and run to win.'"

Floria notes that the inspiration for this part came from the books of I Corinthians and Hebrews in the Bible. The message there, Floria says, is appropriate now more than ever.

"Christians need to be determined to work together, to be unified in our 'race.' We must perservere together against all opposition and odds."

The second part of the Continentals' program will concentrate on the worship of God.

"We need, as individuals and as churches, a renewed sense of worship," Floria says. "We must renew our sense of awe of having God in our presence."

To that end, Floria has compiled a selection of hymns and contemporary inspirational songs that explore the majesty of God, his provision of forgiveness and grace for believers, and his ever-present power in times of need.

"As Christians, we take so much for granted about God," Floria says. "The second part of our program will remind us of who He is and what He has done for us, though we don't deserve it."

Now in their 21st year of existence, Continental Singers and Orchestra will send 11 tours to perform in all 50 states and approximately 32 countries throughout the world. Each tour is made up of young people from all over the United States. They also oversee international groups located in Eastern Europe, Holland, England, Singapore, Latin America and Australia.

For those interested in touring with the Continentals as vocalists, instrumentalists or technicians, auditions will be held after the concert.

Calvary Assembly of God honors Rev. Reeves Sunday

Reeves

Calvary Assembly of God Church will be having a celebration Sunday to honor the Rev. Gayle W. Reeves and his wife, Nova Lena.

Reeves has been pastor of Calvary Assembly of God for 20 years.

The church extends an invitation to the public to come and join in the celebration and special services, which include a "Homecoming" for the church and many out-of-town guests who are coming.

The service will begin at 10 a.m. with the Rev. Floyd Jennings from Crane and the Rev. David Crispin from Alamogordo, N.M., as guest speakers. Reeves will give some history of the church.

The Tall City Quartet will be ministering in song.

Services will last until 12 noon. There will also be a dedication of the Family Life Center, the new addition of classrooms, kitchen, offices, and gym.

Reeves was youth director in Roswell, N.M., Crane, and Midland Calvary before becoming pastor in 1968.

He is also a member of the Ministers Association of Midland.

He has served as missions representative for four years, Sunday School representative for three years, and is currently serving as men's sectional representative of the West Texas District of the Assemblies of God.

Mrs. Reeves closely assists Rev. Reeves in all functions of the church.

Members and friends of Midland's Calvary Assembly of God as well as colleagues and professional acquaintances of Reeves are invited to attend and participate in the celebration.

Baptist convention working to strengthen Sunday School

ODESSA — A Texas Baptist Regional Sunday School Convention will be conducted at Crescent Park Baptist Church Monday.

The Odessa convention is one of 27 being conducted across the state by the Sunday School Division of the Baptist General Convention of Texas to help strengthen Sunday School work in local churches.

"The Year of the Sunday School" is the theme of the convention which will interpret goals for a special year of emphasis on the basics which make Sunday School a strong outreach and evangelistic arm of the church.

Areas focused on as part of the emphasis include increasing enrollment, starting or strengthening weekly workers' meetings, conducting Sunday School preparation week, training workers in evangelism, leading people to receive Sunday School leadership diplomas, emphasizing outreach activities, creating new units, conducting Vacation Bible School, starting a new Sunday School and beginning or conducting outreach Bible studies.

Featured speaker for the Odessa convention is the Rev. Baley Stone, pastor of First Baptist Church, Odessa.

Age group, general officers and a variety of special-interest conferences will be offered during the convention. The Odessa convention features conferences for persons who attend hispanic congregations.

Schedule for the convention is 2 to 4:45 p.m. and 6:45 to 9:15 p.m. No registration fee is taken andf preregistration is not necessary.

For more information about the convention, call the Baptist General Convention of Texas, Sunday School Division, 1-214-720-0550.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

12 local church members named to honor society

The Society of Distinguished American High School Students has announced that 12 students from Midland's First United Methodist Church have been selected as members in its honor society for 1988.

Membership in the 20-year-old society is designed to be a national honor and incentive for top performance among high school students. To be accepted, candidates must excel in academics, extracurricular or civic activities.

Local students assepted as 1988 members include Donnie T. Artley, Melissa Ellis, Mary Foster, Jeff Howard, Kyle Lusby, Kevin Reynolds, Carolyn Sheffield, Shelly Slyker, Dinah Smith, Christine Carl, Brandy Kay Stapp and Kristin Wilson.

As members, these students will have the opportunity to compete for college scholarships through The Society's National Awards Program. This year, 140 colleges have earmarked more than $700,000 in scholarship funds for society members.

Additionally, the society sponsors members-only cash awards of up to $2,000 per recipient for higher education purposes, and its college referral programs recommend members for admission and grants-in-aid to 350 major colleges and universities.

Church planning social

First United Methodist Church, Main St. at Illinois in downtown Midland, will host an ice cream social and reception in honor of their new staff members and all the persons who have joined the church in the past year.

The event will be at 7:15 p.m. Sunday on the church courtyard on the Baird Street side. Activities begin with a time for singing of the old Gospel hymns led by Bob Booth, followed by an introduction of the new staff members and of the new church members, then concludes with eating homemade ice cream and chocolate cake.

The reception will be a time for persons to get acquainted with the new senior minister, the Rev. Dr. Russell C. Parchman, his wife Barbara, and daughter Kerri, as well as the new director of Youth Ministries, Robert Montgomery and his wife, Becky.

It is also an informal time for those united with First United Methodist during the past year to get better acquainted with the congregation.

Infant child care is provided. Visitors are welcome. For information call 682-3701.

A'Cappella Festival set

A capacity crowd is expected for the Washington Avenue Church of Christ's annual A'Cappella Festival held in the Globe of the Great Southwest Theatre on the campus of Odessa College at 7 p.m. Sept. 24.

The A'Cappella Festival has become a well-known event throughout the state for its presentation of gospel quartets and singing groups which perform their selections without the aid of any instrumental accomplishment.

Timothy Johnson, minister of the Washington Avenue Church of Christ, feels that many people today may not be aware of the beauty of the human voice by itself.

"In our world of varied musical styles and the increase of electronic instruments, we may sometimes forget that the original form of music started in our own voices," he says.

This year, the Festival will host the Psalms IV, Rejoice, A New Creation, The Lemley 4, Sonrise and Glorybound.

For more information, contact the Washington Avenue Church of Christ, 1014 N. Washington Ave., Odessa 79761, or call 1-337-1804.

Programs announced

The Business Women's Bible Study Groups of Midland meet each Wednesday at both 11:30 a.m. and at noon at two locations.

Wednesday, Linda Chaffin will be teaching on "Healing For a Wounded Spirit" at the downtown location, 312 E. Illinois Ave., one block east of the Reporter-Telegram building.

The Bible study in the ClayDesta area meets each Wednesday at both 11:30 a.m. and noon in the Twin Towers West building, downstairs in room LL100.

All women are invited to attend the Bible study at either location.

"The purpose of the Business Women's study groups is to introduce Midland women to Jesus Christ, to clearly present the truths of God's word, and to be available to pray with or for you," says a release from the Bible study group. "Both Bible study locations are led by several Christian women who are available for private counseling or ministry."

Jenny McLelland will give her testimony Wednesday at the ClayDesta Chapter.

Working women are encouraged to bring their lunch and attend.

66 gather for service

Holy Cross Lutheran Mission held its first public worship service Sept. 12 and 66 people, most of whom didn't know each other the day before, gathered at 5200 W. Illinois Ave.

A telemarketing approach was used in forming Holy Cross.

"First we made close to 16,000 dialups on the phone," says the Rev. John Rickert, pastor of Holy Cross. "We found close to 1,000 people who had no church home and were interested in our new church. This was followed by a series of mailings and a final phone call."

This method, developed by Norman Whan of the Friends Church, has been used successfully from coast to coast. Holy Cross, a pilot project of the Lutheran Church Missouri-Synod, is the first church to use it in Midland.

The results will be shared at the denomination's Great Commission Convocation in November.

"We are excited and thankful that the Synod chose Midland for this bold approach," Rickert says. "It fits well with the bold spirit of Texas."

Adult classes offered

Grace Presbyterian Church, 2801 N. Garfield St., is offering several adult church school classes this fall.

A "Growing with Grace" class will be offered beginning Sunday for four weeks. This class is offered for all those considering membership in Grace Presbyterian Church and those wishing to learn more about Presbyterianism. The class will be led by the Rev. Hawley L. Wolfe, pastor at Grace.

Mark Suneson will be leading a study in "Tips and Techniques for Teaching Yourself and Others." This class is designed to explore ways to make the Bible more meaningful. The class begins Sunday.

The WHEN Class began Sept. 11 studying a five-week series based on a book by Dr. James Dobson, "Parenting Isn't for Cowards." Nancy Lowe will lead this class.

All classes will meet during the church school hour which begins at 9:30 a.m.

Seven-week series begins

"Faith Maps: Tips and Guidance for the Christian Journey" is the theme for a seven-week series of classes, sponsored jointly by Midland Lutheran Church and Hope Lutheran Church, to be held at Midland Lutheran Church, 2705 West Michigan.

Classes are scheduled for 7 to 8 p.m. Tuesdays beginning Sept. 20 with fellowship to follow. Babysitting will be available.

"Down the Tubes," a look at the effect of television on our values, lifestyles and faith, will be led by the Rev. Jonathan Holmer of Hope Lutheran. The Rev. Charles Meyer of Midland Lutheran will lead a study, "Paul's Letter to the Romans." "Confidence" by Alan Loy McGinnis will be the topic of discussion led by the Rev. Marvin Koenig.

More information about these classes may be obtained by calling the Midland Lutheran Church office, 694-1373, or Hope Lutheran, 683-1936.

Group to meet Wednesday

The Businessmen's Bible Study Group, led by Johnnie Brown, will meet Wednesday in the Twin Towers at ClayDesta.

All men are invited to attend as Brown leads in Bible study and discussion.

"This group is supported by many Christian men who want to open up the truths of God's word to Midland men on such subjects as 'Finding Gods Direction For Your Life,' 'How to Walk in Victory and Not Defeat' and 'The Role of a Godly Man in Today's World,'" says a release from the group.

Larry Scoggin and Dean Rowe also assist Brown in this ministry.

Seminar to be Wednesday

The Living Way Foursquare Church, 415 Alta St., is presenting a seminar on "Demonology and Deliverance" at Wednesday's 7:15 p.m. service.

The information will be presented by the church's pastor, the Rev. Weldon Miller.

"This seminar is not to uplift the fevil or the doctrine of demonology, but rather to enlighten the Christians as to the subtle way he uses to deceive them, and then to show them from the scriptures how to get deliverance from Satan and how to recognize his snares," Miller says.

The public is invited to attend.

Prayer rally scheduled

The Rev. S.V. Ferguson will lead "A Prayer Rally for Our Country" from 6 to 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 1, at Greater St. Luke A.M.E. Church, 401 S. Adams.

A spokesman for the sponsoring lay organization says of the event, "The greatness of our nation grew out of God-inspired leadership. God will continue to bless America only insofar as we Christians, individually and collectively, pray for God's blessings. We owe it to ourselves and our country to do this."

All interested Christians are invited to participate.

District meeting slated

United Methodist women across the Big Spring District of the Northwest Texas Conference will gather Sunday for the Big Spring District Annual Meeting.

The meeting will take place at Means Memorial United Methodist Church, 311 NE 2nd, Andrews. Registration begins at 2 p.m. with the program to follow at 2:30 p.m.

Theme for the conference is "Faithful Action, Joyful Living." Special speaker will be the Rev. Bobby McMillan, the new Big Spring District Superintendent.

Study certificates will be given out to local UMW units. Joan Cunningham of Midland is serving as district president of the Big Spring District UMW.

Hostesses will be the UMW of Means Memorial UMC. A nursery will be provided.

Parenting course set

Greenwood United Methodist Church has started "Big People: Little People," a 13-week course on Christian parenting for parents with pre-school and elementary age children.

The class is being taught by Chuck Preston, a certified social worker and family counselor.

The class is held from 9:45 to 10:45 a.m. Greenwood UMC is located on Highway 307 and County Road 1110 S.

Relationship study taught

"Hidden Keys to Loving Relationships" by Gary Smalley is the subject of a five-week class taught at Trinity Presbyterian Church, 2800 W. Louisiana Ave., beginning Sunday.

"The public is invited to this class that will offer help in strengthening marriages and relationships with family and friends using the tapes by Mr. Smalley," says a release from the church.

The class, which concludes Oct. 9, meets at 9:30 a.m.

Singles Day planned

Crestview Baptist Church will celebrate Single Adult Day, "Singles: Committed and Free," beginning at 9:30 a.m. Sunday.

The celebration will end with the 7 p.m. Sunday evening worship service. Led by Crestview Singles, the service will include a drama presentation, singles choir, and a message by the pastor.

Breakfast and lunch will be served.

The public is invited to attend. For more information call 694-7701.

Neighbor Day planned

Fairmont Park Church of Christ, 3813 N. Midland Drive, is hosting "Neighbor Day" Sunday.

Bible class at 9 a.m. will be centered on "The Seed Has Life." The sermon for the worship hour at 11 a.m. is "It's Time for the Good Shepherd."

A free luncheon will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Child care will be provided at no cost.

Program set for Sunday

The Antioch Baptist Church Deacon and Deaconess will have their annual program at 3 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 25.

The Rev. G. T. Curry of Houston will be the guest speaker. The public is invited. For more information contact Jean Howard, 684-4997.

Bishops leaving party

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Two Roman Catholic bishops, including Hartford's Archbishop John Whealon, have announced they are quitting the Democratic Party because of its support for the right to abortion.

Whealon wrote in his column in the archdiocesan weekly that the party "has accomplished much for the nation" but "has abandoned the Catholic Church" and he was "unable in conscience" to stay in it.

He said the party "is officially in favor of executing unborn babies whose only crime is that they temporarily occupy their mother's womb."

Earlier, Auxiliary Bishop Austin Vaughan of New York said he was "dropping out of the Democratic Party because of its total unconcern for the fate of unborn children."

Argentina selling arms abroad to help pay for foreign debt

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Better known for its beef and grain, Argentina also produces jets and tanks and hopes to sell them abroad to help pay off its $56 billion foreign debt.

Arms sales have topped $75 million, and that is a fraction of what this primarily agricultural nation could receive if the United States decides to buy a jet trainer called the Pampa and Ecuador goes ahead with its purchase of TAM medium tanks.

An intermediate-range rocket also is being developed with financial aid from Egypt, conventional submarines are being built with technical assistance from West Germany, and negotiations are under way with an Italian company to co-produce military helicopters.

"We're not trying to convert ourselves into a huge exporter of weapons," Jose Maria Llados, secretary of production at the Ministry of Defense, said in an interview. "What we're trying to do is...take advantage of our existing industrial capacity."

Argentina has produced artillery and munitions for decades, mostly for its own use. The big projects — drone aircraft, submarines, jets, tanks, rockets — were begun by the military governments of the 1970s and early 1980s.

Following the defeat by Britain in the 1982 Falklands War and the election of civilian Raul Alfonsin as president in October 1983, the military budget has been halved to about $1.5 billion. Funding for weapons projects has dried up.

"With the industries in place, we had three choices: close them, export, or convert them" to civilian use, Llados said.

"The preference...was to export. We have a big foreign debt. We have to export in order to pay it."

Interest alone on the $56 billion owed to foreign governments, banks and lending institutions is a burden. This year interest payments will total about $4.6 billion.

Argentina's edge in arms sales is that it can — because of its technical infrastructure, educated work force and low wages in comparison with developed countries - produce relatively sophisticated weapons at a low cost.

The package of 56 medium tanks and 18 armored personnel carriers Ecuador is considering buying is priced at about $108 million, Llados said.

The single-engine, two-seater IA-63 Pampa jet trainer costs about $3.5 million.

"It's a lot of plane for the money," a U.S. Embassy official said. "We are interested."

The U.S. Air Force is seeking to replace its T-37 jet trainers that date back 30 years.

This beautiful patio and garden area was one of the stops on the recent annual Fall Garden Tour, sponsored by the Midland Association of Nurserymen.

With the dog days of summer drawing to an end and the cooler autumn season rapidly approaching, many gardeners feel that it's time to hang up the shovel and take it easy until spring. However, just the opposite is true.

First of all, with cooler temperatures and the improbability of wind and dust storms as in spring, fall can be the most enjoyable season to work in the lawn or garden. Many flowering plants, such as geraniums, chrysanthemums, roses, and lantana, to name just a few, are in their peak blooming cycles, and the good possibility of September and October rains can keep our spirits and expectations high.

Second, fall can also be one of the most rewarding seasons in the garden. Many gardening tasks performed this time of year can mean the difference between a beautiful landscape and a mediocre landscape throughout the rest of the year. The following is a checklist that will keep you active in the lawn and garden this fall and help you have the prettiest yard in the neighborhood next spring.

Planting trees and shrubs: A few years ago, nursery professionals across the country combined their efforts and influence to establish a national gardening program entitled "Fall is for Planting." This was done to inform gardeners everywhere of the advantages in planting trees, shrubs, bulbs, and many bedding plants this time of year. For one thing, plants go through minimal transplant shock because of cooler temperatures.

Also, much of the Permian Basin's annual rainfall usually comes in the fall, so proper watering practices, although still important, are not as critical as in winter, spring, or summer months. But, the most important reason for fall planting involves the root system of the plant.

Contrary to the beliefs of many gardeners, roots continue to grow throughout the winter months, even when the plants are dormant. By planting in the fall as opposed to spring, a plant will develop a deeper, more established root system and, therefore, can better withstand the extreme heat of the following summer.

There are a few common landscape plants used in Midland, however, which I refer to as "borderline cold hardy," such as pittosporums, oleanders, and windmill palms. Plants such as these should not be planted in the fall. Just remember, if you're not sure, ask a local Texas Certified Nursery Professional.

Planting Color: Many colorful bedding plants and bulbs can be planted during this season that will provide color now, this winter, and next spring. Although garden chrysanthemums may be planted in spring or summer, most nurseries will stock more varieties and better quality mums in the fall because of their seasonal popularity. This perennial (meaning that it returns year after year) plant comes in shades of yellow, red, lavendar, white, pink and orange, and also comes in a large variety of heights and flower types.

Pansies, one of the most popular plants for winter color, will be available in nurseries soon. These annual flowers also come in a large variety of colors, and many of them have "faces" or dark blotches on their petals that provide an even more spectacular showing. If properly cared for, pansies will bloom and thrive from fall to late spring. And remember, a little blood meal around your pansies when planting will get your plants off to a quicker start, and monthly blood meal applications throughout the winter will keep them blooming more profusely and with richer colors.

Two other bedding plants worth mention here are flowering kale and flowering cabbage, also known as ornamental kale and cabbage. In recent years, these biennial plants have boomed in popularity because of their extreme tolerance of hard freezes. They are grown for their brightly colored foliage, not for their blooms, and are available in shades of red, purple, pink, and creamy white.

Many spring flowering bulbs, such as tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, crocus, and Dutch iris, can also be planted soon. Most nurseries, already have these in stock, but don't get in too big of a hurry to plant them. Buying early can insure you of getting premium quality bulbs (the bigger, the better) but keep them in storage until November for planting. Use of bone meal or bulb food, planting depth, and sun exposure are all important aspects of bulb gardening, so be sure to ask a nursery professional concerning these details.

And be sure to support Texas agriculture by purchasing "Texas Grown" plants whenever possible. All the nurseries in Midland now depend heavily on Texas sources for their plants, many buy bedding plants from local Permian Basin growers, and a couple of us actually grow some of our own color plants right here in Midland.

Winterizing and Mulching: Other than a couple of late damaging freezes, the last three winters in Midland have been relatively mild. Because of this, many Midlanders have forgotten the two winters before that. In December of 1983, landscapes were dealt a severe blow when the mercury seldom rose above 20 degrees F for an entire two week period. Then, the next winter, on Feb. 1, 1985, the temperature dropped to -11 degrees F (an all-time record low). Many Midland homeowners suffered extremely expensive losses to their landscapes, but many of those losses could have been drastically reduced by proper maintenance practices.

Four things can be done to help protect plants from injury to cold temperatures. First of all, a winterizer fertilizer can be applied from September up until plants enter dormancy. This fertilizer should contain potash, which helps improve the cold tolerance of the root system and also hardens late top growth of plants. I recommend a winterizer with a 2-1-3 ratio, the last number in the analysis being potash. Not only should this fertilizer be applied to trees and shrubs, but lawns also respond by greening up and thickening quicker in the spring. Another helpful tip on turf grasses is to wait until late winter or early spring to scalp or cut low. Leaving the blades tall through winter helps to insulate the root system.

Secondly, mulching beds containing shrubs, roses, perennials, and annual winter color can also be very beneficial. Apply a coarse, textured mulch, such as Back-to-Earth Soil Conditioner (West Texas composted cotton burrs) in a two-inch layer throughout the entire bedding area.

Nurserymen's Fall Garden Tour informative, inspiring

The first annual Midland Fall Garden Tour, sponsored by the Midland Association of Nurserymen and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, was held Saturday, September 10.

A charter bus took tour participants first to the home of Wes and Jackie Perry. Bob Lanham, the tour chairman and a registered landscape architect, pointed out the many beautiful features of the Perry's landscape.

The Perry's sun room looks out on an attractive as well as a useful water feature surrounded by lush ferns and brightened by shade loving caladiums, impatiens, and colius. A second area in the landscape is more utilitarian with a greenhouse, play equipment, and a bountiful herb/vegetable garden.

Earnest Kiker and Victor Lucero with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service explained to tour members how to care for some of the plant material through proper watering, pruning, and insect control. The Perry's landscape is an excellent example of how to enrich an outdoor space to maximize its potential for usefulness as well as enjoyment.

The second stop was at the ClayDesta atrium for a guided tour by their interiorscape specialist, Donna Mularchek. Lunch was enjoyed at a restaurant in the atrium.

Ms. Mularchek discussed many of the tropical plants in the atrium and how to care for them. The atrium is well known for its large size and beauty, and tour members were treated to an inside look at dealing with the problems found in maintaining such a massive interior landscape in peak condition.

The last stop on the tour was at the home of Bob and Elie Davenport. This landscape demonstrated how the bright colors of tropical hibiscus and bougainvillea can be blended in with the soft color and texture of ferns to provide a very restful and peaceful area for outdoor enjoyment. A beautiful fountain surrounded by covered walkways provided a focal point for the landscape.

The Davenports make use of a variety of containerized plant material to provide changeable color and interest to their very intimate outdoor living area.

Nurserymen's association offers community services

The Midland Association of Nurserymen serves members of the green industry in Midland County as a trade association, but it also believes strongly in community service.

"We were formed in 1986 as a trade association to address some business concerns facing local nurserymen, but we have grown over the last three years to provide programs for the whole community as well as for the local businessmen who are our members," said Don Carlton, current president of the association.

"Our recent fall garden tour shows how we can combine fun and education for association members and the general public. I'd like to build an appreciation in the community for good landscaping, and on the tour we provided some exposure to the different types of beautiful and functional landscapes we have here in Midland. I also want to increase public awareness of the possibilities for fall gardening. Experts tell us that fall is the best time to plant trees and shrubs, and there are many colorful flowers we can enjoy during fall and winter, too," explained Carlton. "We can lead in the effort to make Midland a beautiful place to live all year long."

The group maintains the gazebo at Wadley-Barron Park with plantings of shrubs and seasonal color, and they plant to continue their partnership with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service to provide a winter series of educational programs on horticulture topics of interest to the homeowner as well as the professional nurseryman. New programs are planned in the areas of certification of nurserymen. Planning is also underway for a program on xeriscaping, or the use of native and adapted plant material in the landscape.

The association hopes to work more closely in the future with other local organizations such as garden clubs, Keep Midland Beautiful, and the County Extension Service to build community pride in our private landscapes as well as public areas.

Locally grown plants thrive in area soils, climate

Midlanders can take pleasure in a climate that permits colorful garden flowers pretty much year round, and now is the time to be thinking about the fall garden. It's easier too. Temperatures are cooling down a bit, making it more pleasant to spend time in the yard. And cooler temperatures make it a little easier to keep up with the necessary watering.

A good variety of plants are available locally. According to research based on tax receipts from the State Comptroller's Office, there's an estimated $2 million retail market for bedding plants in Midland per year. Less than 10 percent of these plants, however, are locally grown. The rest come mostly from East Texas growers, as well as from California, Colorado and Oklahoma.

Although local suppliers concede that a wider variety of types of plants as well as more varieties within plant groups are available from growers in other areas, there are several distinct advantages to locally grown plants. These plants are conditioned to our climate and water and, therefore, transplant shock will be minimized. Also, they will suffer less transportation damage. Since they travel from the greenhouse to the store more quickly, they are more apt to arrive in prime condition.

Local growers include La Casa Verde, Lanham's, and Alldredge Gardens, who grow for retail, and Windswept Farms of Midland, a wholesale grower.

Some of the fall plants for color are mums, pansies, ornamental cabbage, ornamental kale, snapdragons, calendulas and dianthus.

Mums will bloom from mid-September into November here. Be sure to buy garden mums rather than pot mums (which have been forced for indoor blooming) for the yard. Garden mums have smaller blooms and will bloom naturally in the fall and spring. They should be cut back to about three to four inches after blooming in the fall and again in mid-summer after the spring blooms. They can do well in either full sun or semi-shade and need light, rich, well-drained soil. Fertilize mums for maximum development.

Garden mums come in four, five and one half, six and six and one half inch pots. Many colors are available. Typical fall colors include red, purple, yellow, orange, bronze, white and lavender. For the longest blooming season in your yard, it's best to buy plants when budded, but not in full bloom.

Pansies are another Midland favorite. They will bloom from October through the winter until April or May. They usually come in four or six inch pots. The two most popular types are the Majestic Giants and the Universal or Crystal Bowl Pansies.

Majestic Giants have large blooms-an inch and a half to three inches in diameter-and a great variety of colors, all with a "face" or a "blotch" in the center.

Universal or Crystal Bowl Pansies have blooms from an inch to an inch and a half in diameter. They're available in solid colors (no "face" or "blotch"). With more blooms per plant than the Majestic Giant, they're preferred for areas where solid masses of color are desired.

For Midland winters, pansies do best in full sun. Fertilize occasionally and pick off fading blooms to encourage new blooms.

Ornamental cabbage and kale are becoming increasingly popular for winter color, lasting from November until April or May. Similar in appearance, ornamental cabbage has smooth leaves while ornamental kale has ruffled leaves. Both come in white, pink or red-all with green outer leaves. Transplanted from four or six inch pots into the garden, they will grow 10 to 12 inches tall, making a spectacular display of color. They are not edible, however, and do best in full sun.

Snapdragons will provide color from October until the first hard freeze (they'll take some frost.) Many colors are available in cell packs and four inch pots. Snapdragons will grow to a height of 12 to 24 inches and do best in full sun to semi-shade.

Calendulas in shades of yellow and orange will also bloom from October until the first hard freeze. It may winter over and bloom again in the spring. Dianthus comes in delicate pastel shades of pink, salmon and rose, as well as deeper tones of red, scarlet and white. Plant dianthus in full sun to semi-shade.

With so many possibilities for local gardeners, Midlanders can enjoy the beauty of colorful yards all year long.

Dwarf plants new on the home gardening scene

After many years of pruning the aborvitae and spreading juniper from the front door, homeowners appreciate the advantages of dwarf plants. In search of replacements for the overly large doorway plants, plant breeders have introduced many new, exciting and useful dwarfs compared with the larger, more common shrubs which reach six and eight feet high and wide.

In the nursery trade, a dwarf is three feet or less in ultimate height. The homeowner, or grower must plant with the ultimate size in mind to allow ample growing room and eliminate the constant chore of pruning to keep the plant in its proper size.

Dwarf plants are best used in small, detailed areas where they can be observed at close range, such as patios and entrance areas. The small sizes are not significant in back borders or distant plantings. The dwarf are in demand along sidewalks, beneath low windows and near detailed gardens, such as rock gardens, pool gardens and planter box plantings.

The wide versatility and adaptability of dwarf plants add to their popularity. Dwarfs are adaptable to fully shaded areas, open sun pot and tub plantings, clipped borders, ground covers and for formal and informal plantings. Because of their size, they mix well in group or mass plantings, or in combination with other plants. The dwarf plant can also be used as a single specimen or accent plant.

Many of the larger old standards now come in dwarf size. Dwarf junipers, dwarf pyracantha, dwarf nandina, quince, bamboo, barberry sasanqua, crape myrtle, pomegranite, yucca, pittosporum and a number of dwarf hollies are now available.

Some dwarfs which reward the grower with seasonal bloom are dwarf crape myrtle, lantana, Japnese purple honeysuckle, Indian hawthorne and flowering quince. Others, such as pyracantha and dwarf hollies produce attractive berries or fruit.

Fall is a great time to make those changes. Consult your local nursery or landscaper for those plants best suited for your yard.

PURSLANE

To be replanted annually, popular purslane comes in a variety of colors. This quick growing plant needs full sun, and is ideally suited for hanging baskets or ground cover.

TEXAS BLUE BELL

This hardy perennial blooms continuously through summer. From May to the first frost, this popular flower blooms for five to seven days, dies and reappears. Colors for this beauty are white, pink and blue.

AUTUMN JOY SEDUM

area. This not only provides winter insulation to the roots, but also breaks down to provide much needed organic matter to our sandy, Midland soils.

The other two maintenance practices that can help protect plants from cold injury are to water plants thoroughly and to cover exra-sensitive plants before a hard freeze. Covering plants reduces the wind chill factor, and a couple degrees of temperature could be the differrence between the life or death of a plant. But don't cover with plastic. Use old sheets, blankets, burlap, or any other fabric material, and be sure to uncover plants during the daytime as temperatures rise.

Winter Weed Control: Many gardeners have the misconception that pre-emergent weed preventers should be applied only in the dead of winter, but they may be applied anytime of year, depending on the type of weeds to be controlled. One particular weed common to this area that can cause winter misery in lawns is rescue grass, also referred to by some gardeners as wild rye. This weed sticks out like a sore thumb, especially in Bermuda turf, from mid-winter to spring. Even though it isn't noticeable until later, much of it actually germinates in the fall while Bermuda is still green. A granular application of Balan in September and again in February will prevent rescue grass from becoming a problem. This may be used along with a winterizer, and should be watered in after applying.

Ground cover plants substitute for lawn grasses

Although grass is generally regarded as the most desirable ground cover for the home landscape, there are situations where it may not be the most practical landscape covering.

In steeply sloping or heavily shaded areas where grass does not grow well, other methods of covering the soil must frequently be selected. One of the most satisfactory methods is the use of ground cover plants.

These plants range from woody vines to dwarf shrubs, depending on individual needs.

Some of the more prominent uses of ground cover in typical situations are to cover bare areas of ground, prevent soil erosion, give variety to yard or garden, regulate foot traffic in the yard or garden when used as edging for pathways and to unify unrelated shrubs and flower beds in the landscape.

In addition, ground covers are frequently used under or around trees where grass grows poorly or where exposed tree roots make mowing a problem. Ground cover plants eliminate the need for mowing as well as concealing exposed tree roots.

Many posssibilities for living ground covers are now available. For shade or partial shade, consider vinca, Algerian ivy, English ivy, monkey grass, liriope, ajuga and hypericum. Asiatic jasmine, monkey grass, creeping junipers, purple leaf honeysuckle, day lillies, santolina, sedum, dwarf yaupon and dwarf nandina are good for sunny locations.

Proper soil preparation is needed before planting ground cover plants. Dig the soil at least six inches deep. Rake thoroughly to remove grass roots. Spread two to three inches of organic material such as peat, well-rotted manure or leaf mold over the ground and spade it into the soil.

It is essential to remove all grass to be assured of a weed-free planting area. Once the ground cover is planted, it is difficult to eradicate undesirable weeds and grass.

On rocky or uneven soil where the entire area cannot be worked thoroughly, dig individual holes deep enough to back fill partially with the soil mixed with organic material before setting plants.

Use a mulch such as pine needles or pine bark to hold the soil in place until the planting is established.

Plant ground covers anytime during the growing season. Fall and spring plantings give best results if potted or canned plants are used. Keep new plantings well watered until they become established.

Landscaping: A good investment for homeowners

One of the most often overlooked aspects of the home is the outdoor living space, particularly the landscape. Selecting the right plants for your home should take as much thought as selecting drapes, wallpaper, furniture or carpeting. Yet, landscaping is often regarded by the homeowner as incidental or of secondary importance at best.

To some homeowners landscaping is for others. It is enough to keep the lawn mowed and occasionally watered so that it doesn't die completely. Plants around the house become a nuisance. Remember your home landscaping reflects the kind of person you are. A neat, well-groomed, functional outdoors reflects a person's pride and well-being. It usually means that the homeowner enjoys his home both inside and out, and living is meaningful and fun.

What about the cost of plants? While $30 may seem like a big price to pay for a tree, just consider the worthwhile investment you have made. While many things depreciate in value, plant materials in the home landscape increase in value. A $30 live oak or pecan tree may be worth ten times the purchase price after 10 to 15 years.

A well planned home should reflect a minimum investment of the value of your home. For example, if you have an $80,00 home, approximately $8,000 should be invested in the outdoor landscaped living area. The average homeowner is probably shocked at such a figure; however, this investment includes many facets of the landscape, such as fencing and paving for patios, etc., and not just plant materials.

Weed control a frustrating task

Correct identification, selection of the proper control product and proper application are essential for successful weed control in home lawns. Knowledge of plant characteristics and growth habits is helpful with both identification and control.

There are three basic kinds of weeds: grasses, broadleaves and sedges.

True grasses have jointed hollow stems; the leaf blades have parallel veins and are several times longer than they are wide; the root systems are fibrous; most seed heads are similar to small grain. Rescuegrass and foxtail are typical grasses.

Broadleaf weeds often have showy flowers; the leaves have a network of small veins originating from a principal vein which divides the leaf in half' a strong main root called a taproot is usually present. Dandelion and wild lettuce are common broadleaf weeds in our area.

Sedges are grass-like plants with three cornered stems which bear leaves extending in three directions. They are neither true grasses nor true broadleafs. Purple nutsedge is an example.

Several additional groupings could be made but from a control standpoint, determination of life span–annual or perennial–is most important.

Annual weeds germinate from seed, grows, matures and dies in less than 12 months or when killed by heat of frost. Crabgrass, henbit, sandbur and resuce-grass are annual weeds are effectively controlled with preemergence herbicides (products applied to the soil to stop growth from seed.) Winter annual weeds starting their life cycle this fall can be controlled with an October application of the pre-emergent products available through a local nursery. Annual weeds with start their life cycle in late spring and early summer will need preemergence in the early part of next spring.

Perennial weeds live more than two years. Oxalis, dandelion and clover are some of our more prominent perennial weeds. Unlike annual weeds, perennials do not respond to preemergent controls. When these weeds appear , postemergence (applied to the growing plant after emergence) controls work effectively of applied within 30 to 45 days after emergence.

The confusing part of postemergent controls is that different products are needed for grasses and broadleafs. Thu. it becomes important to know whether the target weed is a grass or broadleaf. Common broadleaf products available at local nurseries include Weed-B-Gone and Trimec. They will work well on most broadleaf weeds but are worthless when applied to crabgrass or sandbur. MSMA and DSMA will handle grassy weeds, but give poor to no control on broadleaf weeds.

Fall is an excellent time to battle weeds in home lawns. Fall's cooler temperatures reduce the risk of herbicide phytotoxicity to desirable turf; fall weed growth encourages rapid uptake of control products. Fall is the logical time to start next year's weed control through the use of preemergent products.

Additional advice about weed control can be obtained through the County Extension Service, your local nursery or a local lawn care service.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: If you do your part, you will get even better than you give. Romance warms up for the young-of-heart in January. Marry in June. Invest money in safe places. It is time to put a limit on entertainment spending. Give those credit cards a rest! A handsome opportunity could drop in your lap if you travel. Financial rewards come from a variety of sources. Generosity and a forgiving attitude improve your chances for a meaningful, lasting relationship.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: author Samuel Johnson, actors Mel Stewart and Robert Blake, reclusive actress Greta Garbo, actor Jack Warden, Cubs infielder Ryne Sandberg, actress Claudette Colbert.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You are in a loving mood. Someone's affection has made you more mellow than usual. You want to share your good feelings. A celebration is in the offing. Keep the guest list short.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Football captures your attention, but could cause a rift with others. Be fair when setting up a new family budget. Do not scrimp on something you are buying for your partner.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You will shine when you go out socially this weekend. Worship in the way that suits you best. Make your own religious decisions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You always come through for others. Give them a chance to do something special for you. A good Chinese or Japanese meal would really hit the spot this weekend. Relax at home.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A new form of entertainment provides a welcome change of pace. Spice up romance and your social schedule. A phone call could prove to be an inspiration.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): In your heart of hearts you know what must be done to build a successful relationship. Romance is exciting, but may not last. Business affairs could cause temporary frustration. Do not fret.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Beware of creating the wrong impression while trying to attract the attention of someone who intrigues you. Shuffle the cards and add more variety to your leisure-time activities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Act with confidence. Deep down you know what a special human being you are! Quit playing cat-and-mouse or romance will pass you by. Travel to the mountains or sea for fun.

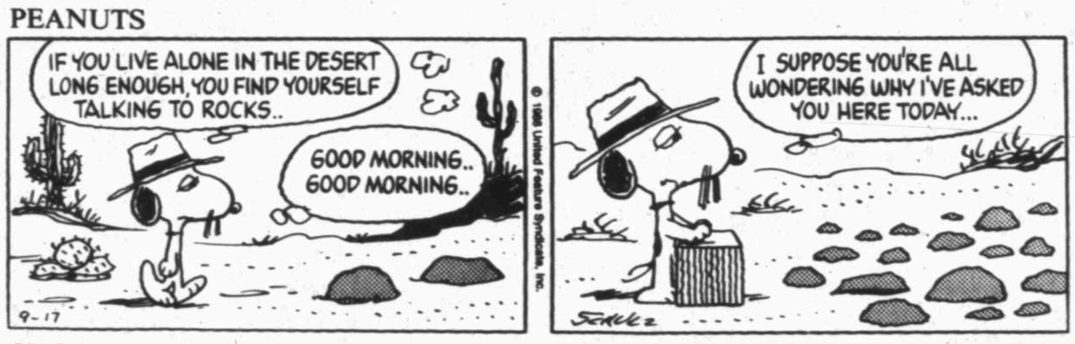

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The die is cast and no amount of battling will change a legal decision. Make the best of things and preserve the dignity of your family. Be more understanding with a young person.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You are practical and obstinate but must realize that work could be done better in a different setting. You find yourself attracted to someone you ordinarily would think too eccentric. Go slow on romance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your unconventional approach to a family money matter works well, surprising most of those involved. Be more affectionate and playful with those you love. Plan a special outing for romantic partner.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Acceptance and love help you turn a negative situation completely around. Seek spiritual guidance if still questioning. A hobby may demand more time than you have. Try something else.

Harper wins suit against Lorimar

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A jury decided Friday that Valerie Harper was right and Lorimar Telepictures Corp. was wrong in the dispute that ended her role in the "Valerie" television series, awarding her nearly $2 million in damages and a share of the profits.

Harper

The jurors gave Miss Harper and her husband, Tony Cacciotti, who worked as a supervising producer for the show, $1.85 million in general damages.

The jury found that Miss Harper also is entitled to 12.5 percent of the adjusted gross profits of the series for the 1987-88 season — even though she was no longer on the show for most of the season. The contract would have run through 1991.

Her lawyer estimated that her share of last season's profits could eventually amount to as much as $15 million if the show is syndicated.

Jurors found that Lorimar had acted with "oppression and malice" in firing her. But the jury declined to grant her and her husband any punitive damages.

Miss Harper, who was engulfed in a sea of well-wishers and reporters as she left the courtroom, said she felt "vindicated."

Lorimar attorney Donald Engel called the verdict "a mixed bag" and said that from Lorimar's standpoint, "It could have been worse." He said he was pleased that no punitive damages were awarded, and added that in a case that pitted an an individual against a big corporation, "We didn't do so bad."

Lorimar sued Miss Harper, claiming she breached her contract by quitting the NBC show "Valerie." A countersuit by Miss Harper and her husband contended she was wrongfully fired from the show.

Lorimar offered extensive testimony depicting Miss Harper as a temperamental star who wanted complete creative control. Miss Harper testified she wanted input on creative decisions but was not trying to wrest complete control.

She had stressed that she brought the concept of the "Valerie" series to NBC and expected to help shape the episodes. She claimed the writers and producers changed the show to minimize her role and focus on the teen-age boys in the series.

Sandy Duncan replaced Miss Harper on the show, which was retitled "The Hogan Family."

NEW YORK (AP) — A version of the Moscow Circus has begun its tour of the United States with Cossack horseback riders, juggling Siberian bears, Sumatran tigers, high-flying acrobats on stilts and clowns who are graduates of the official Soviet Circus University.

At least one act in the show which opened Thursday at Radio City Music Hall needs to go back to school. Most of the children in the hall were invited, Pied Piper-style, to come up on stage to witness a juggler who shamelessly begged his audience for "one more chance" to successfully complete his bungled trick.

The show began with the Chernievski acrobats who do flips on tall stilts, starting out on a teeterboard and landing on a table-size mat.

Spectators who go to the Moscow Circus for the Russian bears weren't disappointed by the Zolkin family and their 12 trained animals ranging in age from 6 months to 11 years. At one high point of the act some of the bears and trainers simultaneously juggled balls with their paws and feet.

Fans of trained animals also ooed and aahed while Nikolai Pavlenko lackadaisically coaxed his 17 tigers through their paces, without the help of a crackling whip.

In a finale which is worth waiting for — the circus runs on for more than three hours — Tamerlan Nugzarov and his riders sent 12 Caucasian horses galloping at full speed around the Radio City stage.

The collection of 11 acts from the more than 100 local government-sponsored circuses throughout Russia is the first traveling Moscow Circus to tour the United States since 1978.

Linkletter

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Entertainer and author Art Linkletter says he loves to interview children and women over the age of 70.

"Children don't know what they're saying and old women don't care," he told about 450 people Thursday at a retirement center's seminar on "Growing Old: Making the Most of It."

Linkletter, 76, said children survive depressions, sorrows, successes, joys and failures for which "we've earned an honorary doctorate of life." But he said some experience a loss of identity and self-esteem when they grow old.

If that's the case, those people have to create something to live for, Linkletter said.

"Risk failure. Try something you've never tried before," he suggested.

Michener

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (AP) — When James Michener sits down to write his Caribbean novel, he puts on music from Jamaica, Barbados and Mexico.

"I play them all the time to remind myself what the characters are listening to," he says.

Michener, 81, says he should finish the novel late this year and has to plans to retire.

"As long as the old brain keeps functioning, I know the desire will always be there," he said. "I can hardly wait to get up in the morning, to get back to work."

Michener, whose 34 books include "Alaska," "Centennial," "The Source," and "Tales of the South Pacific," made his comments Thursday when he returned to his childhood home for the dedication of an arts center in his name. He and his wife, Mari, lent the center 15 mostly abstract expressionist works.

Starker

DALLAS (AP) — Janos Starker, one of the world's leading cellists, was in fair condition Friday after being hospitalized with chest pains.

Starker, 64, was to have had a reunion this weekend with the Dallas Symphony Orchestra, where he had played first cello. He was admitted Thursday to Baylor Medical Center.

PARIS (AP) — Actor Gerard Depardieu and pianist-conductor Daniel Barenboim were among those awarded the French Legion of Honor by President Francois Mitterrand.

At presidential Elysee Palace, Mitterrand on Thursday paid tribute to Depardieu as "a model actor who has left his stamp from year to year on French cinema."

Depardieu rose from an unemployed tough to one of France's best-known film stars.

Others receiving the award in the ceremony included cabaret singer Barabara, journalist Leon Zitrone, former French Resistance fighter Claudine Baumann, architect Paul Andreu, diplomat Andre Ross and former secretary-general of the Foreign Ministry Guy Dubail.

Storm may stall effort to clean up Texas beaches

AUSTIN (AP) — Plans to clean up Texas beaches with thousands of volunteers on Sept. 24 may be postponed because of Hurricane Gilbert, coordinators of the event said Friday.

In four previous cleanups starting in September 1986, volunteers have removed 733 tons of debris from Texas beaches.

Linda Maraniss, regional director of the Center for Environmental Education, said Friday, "We have a serious problem in the Gulf of Mexico that we did not plan at all."

She said the CEE had been working since May on the Sept. 24 cleanup, but "Mother Nature's decided we've got Gilbert out in the Gulf."

Ms. Maraniss told a news conference that she, Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro and others would watch the hurricane over the weekend, then Monday or Tuesday "decide what we think is the safest thing to do."

"So right now, for all the 'Beach Buddies' and the thousands of volunteers who had planned to come and help on the 24th, I guess the message is we're on hold, and that's probably the safest thing we can do," she said.

Mauro, head of the Adopt-a-Beach program, said, "Obviously we're just going to have to wait and see how bad Gilbert is before proceeding with our plans for the cleanup.

"But the upcoming beach cleanup could be more important than ever. The fact is that thousands of volunteers are already organized — we have an apparatus in place, and we may play a very important role in putting the coastal areas back on their feet again."

Ms. Maraniss noted that in a report released by the CEE on Friday, plastic bags, numbering 66,694, ranked No. 1 among items removed from coastal sites in the previous four pickups. Plastic bottles were No. 2, with 63,881.

More than 200 foreign labels were removed, and 160 of those had labels in Spanish or that said "Made in Mexico," she said.

Mauro said two years ago only Texans seemed interested in cleaning up beaches. But "now the beach problems are on the cover of Newsweek and Time, and both presidential candidates — even George Bush has said one of his priority items is to clean up our beaches."

"I'm disappointed we're not going to be on the beaches next weekend," Mauro said, "but I do think after the hurricane is finished with its business, we can tap the volunteers and the good feelings of Texans and clean up our coastal areas a lot faster than we have in the past.

"And I hope this turns out to be an opportunity and not a disaster."

Asked if that meant the cleanup definitely would be postponed, Mauro said, "I think it's up in the air — we haven't made a final decision."

STATE IN BRIEF

Inmate indicted in death of prisoner

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A state prison inmate was indicted in connection with the alleged gang-ordered death of a fellow prisoner, bringing to eight the number of people charged in the case.

Special prison prosecutor David Weeks said the Texas Syndicate, one of the most powerful prison gangs, ordered inmate Joe Arredondo's death after he returned from a furlough without the drugs he promised to deliver to gang leaders.

Dionicio "Danny" Duran, 36, serving a life sentence for theft and possession of heroin convictions in El Paso, was indicted Thursday in connection with the December 1986 stabbing death at the Texas Department of Corrections' Ellis I Unit.

One of the eight persons indicted in connection with Arredondo's death is Luis Sandavol, 25, a prison guard accused of unlocking a door to the hallway where Arredondo, 33, was killed.

Although Duran did not participate in the killing, he allegedly was involved in planning the murder, Weeks said.

Sematech invites Reagan

AUSTIN (AP) — The Austin American-Statesman on Friday quoted a source close to Sematech as saying that President Reagan is expected to attend the mid-November opening of the semiconductor consortium's $75 million research facility.

"It's anticipated he will come. Everyone is planning on his coming," the unnamed source said. "It looks good."

However, the newspaper also quoted an unnamed White House spokeswoman as saying she was unaware of a planned Reagan visit. "As far as I know," she said, "there has been no trip to Austin announced."

Scouts honor Clements

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements has been presented a distinguished leadership award by the Boy Scouts of America in recognition of his years of service and financial support to the Boy Scouts' South Central Region.

As a youth Clements attained the rank of Eagle Scout, and he now serves the Boy Scouts the South Central Regional Advisory Board and the National Council Executive Board.

Texas attorneys notified

AUSTIN (AP) — Delinquent notices have been sent to some 4,555 Texas lawyers who have not paid their attorney occupation tax, State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Friday.

"About 90 percent of the state's attorneys have filed returns and made timely payments, earning the state more than $4.1 million for the General Revenue Fund," Bullock said.

The tax is due on Aug. 1, and Bullock said according to records in his office, 34,996 of the 39,551 attorneys required to pay the tax had done so by the first part of September.

The 1987 Legislature authorized the $110 annual tax on attorneys licensed to practice law in Texas. This is the first time attorneys have been required to pay an occupational tax in Texas, Bullock said.

Inactive attorneys are exempt from the tax. Active attorneys who are exempt include judges, district attorneys, attorneys employed by the state and attorneys who are nonresidents or who are not continuing their legal education.

TCJC chancellor named

FORT WORTH (AP) — Tarrant County Junior College trustees appointed C.A. Roberson chancellor of the school district after a three-hour closed door meeting Thursday, officials said.

Roberson will become only the second chancellor at the school since it was founded in 1965.

Chancellor Joe B. Rushing announced in May he would retire Feb. 1, 1989. Rushing has been the only chief executive of the three-campus junior college, which with some 26,500 students ranks as the seventh largest higher education institution in Texas.

Roberson, 58, has been with TCJC since 1966. He joined the campus as vice president of business affairs, advancing to vice chancellor for administration in 1970 and to executive vice chancellor in 1974.

Bill Lace, director of college relations, said board members met in executive session at their regular monthly meeting before voting on Roberson's appointment.

Billboard suit dismissed

TYLER (AP) — A federal judge has dismissed a lawsuit by six Tyler men against Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox over several billboards attacking divorced fathers who do not pay child support.

Judge William Wayne Justice dismissed the civil rights suit by plaintiffs Stephen F. Brewerton, Rodney Hendricks, Jeff Slye-Nelson, David Lewis, Angelo Navarro and Gary Ponder on the grounds they did not state a claim on which he could grant relief.

The men claimed the billboards violated their First and 14th Amendment rights because they do not mention mothers who do not pay child support.

The billboards read, "Who's bad?. Fathers who don't pay their child support, Jim Mattox."

Bond sales approved

AUSTIN (AP) — The Austin City Council has approved the sale of $34 million in revenue bonds for water and waste water projects.

The 30-year bonds were sold at an interest rate of 7.85 percent, a figure that the city's acting finance director called "a very good rate."

Earl Hoenes, acting director of the Financial Services Department, said the city got the good rate Thursday because of good timing in the financial market and because two bond-rating firms had affirmed the city's rating for revenue bonds recently.

The bonds, which were sold to the New York investment firm of Dillon Reed, will be repaid through water and waste water rates.

Study shows UT students unconcered about AIDS

AUSTIN (AP) — A majority of students in a survey of attitudes at the University of Texas at Austin were found to be sexually active but either surprisingly ignorant of, or unconcerned about, their chances of contracting AIDS.

"Ninety-four percent consider themselves not at high risk," Demetri Vacalis, director of emergency medical services of the Student Health Center at UT-Austin, said Thursday.

In a recent health center survey of 670 respondents to 2,000 questionnaires, Vacalis said, 55 percent of sexually active UT students reported they never used condoms despite publicity about their effectiveness in preventing transmission of the virus that causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Vacalis reported the results of the survey Thursday to a conference by the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board. The conference is considering health and legal issues that confront colleges in the epidemic of the primarily sexually transmitted AIDS virus.

UT-Austin students apparently feel secure in the erroneous conviction that AIDS is a disease affecting only gay men or intravenous drug abusers. Seventy-six percent of respondents favored mandatory testing for homosexuals, Vacalis said.

Only a small fraction of the respondents expressed interest in helping to care for people with the disease, he said.

Vacalis said a third of the survey's respondents also erroneously believed that it was possible to contract AIDS from toilet seats, almost half were fearful of being near an AIDS patient who sneezed and more students feared contracting the disease from mosquitoes, although experts have said that is impossible.

Vacalis said the UT-Austin survey also found 11 percent of male UT student respondents reporting they have had sex with a prostitute. That could be a prime means of heterosexual spread of AIDS on campus, Vacalis said.

SMU begins fund-raising effort

DALLAS (AP) — The annual fund-raising campaign for Southern Methodist University has begun, with officials hoping to raise $6.5 million for library books, teacher salaries and other operating expenses.

The 1988-89 sustentation campaign began Thursday with a goal of $100,000 more than last year's amount.

"SMU has received positive marks on many fronts because of the strong leadership of (President) A. Kenneth Pye," Billie Ida Parker, a Dallas philanthropist and chairwoman of this year's drive, said.

Community helps 9-year-old beat cerebral palsy

PALESTINE (AP) — Lori Campbell is a straight A student. She does her homework as soon as she gets home from school. She's already talking about college. Her classmates and teachers adore her.

The difference is that Lori, 9, can't walk or talk because she has cerebral palsy, a condition resulting from loss of oxygen to the brain.

Despite her disability, Lori has overcome a lot of odds. When she was eight months old, one doctor said she would never be able to do anything.

"The first therapist that we were seeing in Tyler told me 'She'll never crawl. She'll never be able to use her hands. She'll never be able to use her feet,' " said Lori's mother, Pam Jones of Elkhart.

After the pessimistic prognosis, Mrs. Jones took Lori to a neurologist she had worked for before Lori was born. "He told me not to let anybody put a stopping point on her," she said.

The family took his advice and Lori has exceeded all expectations.

"She learned how to crawl," Mrs. Jones said. "She learned how to sit. She can feed herself. She can dress herself, and she can go to the bathroom by herself.

"As far as any limitations in her future, I don't see any because she's just going to make progress. She's very hard-headed, determined and independent. She tries anything she thinks anybody else will try."

The community helped Lori jump her last hurdle: a sophisticated computer to help her communicate and do schoolwork. Her family is not poor, but could not afford the $4,500 communication aid that therapists recommended.

The Palestine Kiwanis Club donated $1,000 and set up a special bank account, encouraging individuals to round out the balance.

Palestine firefighters and police officers raised almost $700 for the fund in a charity basketball game earlier this summer.

Less than a month after the account was opened, it contained almost $2,500. Then a miracle happened. Tammy Mays, a computer consultant living in Elkhart, offered to donate the Word Plus Equalizer. The $2,500 already raised was designated for badly needed software and a printer.

Kiwanis Club president Dick Terry organized the Lori Campbell Fund and said he was concerned at first about reaching her goal.

"I think this is a demonstration of what can be done in a small town when everyone pulls together," Terry said.

Mrs. Jones recalls surprise and excitement in the family when Terry told her the computer had been donated.

"I couldn't believe it. I still can't. It's a godsend — an answer to all our prayers," she said.

Lori and her sister, Amy Jones, 6, were excited too. "Lori was giggling. Me and her were," Amy recalled.

Lori's father is Bobby Campbell of Frankston. Her stepfather, Joe A. Jones, works for Bill Hardy Tractor Sales in Slocum.

Lori had started out four years ago with a less-sophisticated lapboard that she has now outgrown. Her new computer has changeable software that can advance along with technology.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Three Americans hurt in brawl with Libyans

GLYFADA, Greece (AP) — Two Libyan workers stabbed three U.S. servicemen Friday during a brawl outside a bar in this Athens seaside suburb, police and embassy officials said.

The Americans "were injured in an unprovoked altercation," a U.S. Embassy statement said.

"The servicemen were treated for injuries at Hygea hospital and released," it said. "The two attackers have been charged with aggravated assault and battery. No charges were placed against the victims."

A police spokesman identified the Americans as Sgt. William Carlisle, 24, Airman Kabil Martinez, 24, and Airman Michael Sisler, 20, all serving at Hellenikon Air Force base next to Athens airport. Their hometowns were not available.

"This is not a terrorist act," the spokesman said on condition of anonymity. "Reports we have show that it was an early-morning brawl outside a bar. The Libyans were apparently drunk."

He identified the Libyans as Gamal Liandamil, 22, a hotel employee, and Idris Benahmed, 22, an electrician.

Ethiopian jet crashes

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — A state-owned jetliner carrying 104 people ran into a flock of birds, crashed and burst into flames shortly after takeoff, killing at least 31 people, the airline and sources said Friday.

Thirty more people were injured and two people were missing in the accident Thursday near Bahar Dar, close to the source of the Blue Nile on Lake Tana's southern shore in Gojam province in the northwest.

The Ethiopian Airlines Boeing 737, which originated in Addis Ababa, was on a scheduled domestic flight when a flock of birds was sucked into both engines after it took off from Bahar Dar airport, the airline said in a statement.

The pilot tried to turn the plane back to Bahar Dar, but failed and crashed into marshy ground 14 miles south of the airport. The plane skidded on its belly for about 500 yards before the fusilage broke into two, the airline said. Sources said the craft immediately burst into flames.

Seventy-one people escaped from the burning wreckage, 12 of them seriously injured and 18 with minor injuries, the airline and the sources said.

Pope urges peace effort

MAPUTO, Mozambique (AP) — Pope John Paul II urged the Marxist government Friday to make peace with guerrillas and offered to let the church mediate in this war-torn country, where 6 million people live on the edge of famine.

"In the face of this lamentable situation, when the opportunity arose, I have never ceased to repeat, 'No to violence and yes to peace,'" the pontiff told President Joaquim Chissano after arriving from neighboring Swaziland.

"The efforts of my brother bishops in Mozambique have always received my backing," John Paul told Chissano, who was baptized a Roman Catholic but now is non-practicing. About one-eighth of Mozambique's 11.7 million people are Catholic.

The bishops have been urging Chissano's government to start negotiations with anti-Marxist rebels of the Mozambique National Resistance, known by their Portuguese acronym, Renamo. The government has refused to negotiate and has criticized the bishops for advocating talk with "armed bandits."

Polish talks continue

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity chief Lech Walesa and Interior Minister Czeslaw Kiszczak talked for six hours on Friday and Walesa announced later that round-table talks would start soon on the future of his banned labor movement.

Polish state television said such talks would begin in mid-October.

"Our positions got closer. I am satisfied," Walesa said after the meeting, which included about two dozen advisers, broke up at about 9 p.m. (3 p.m. EDT).

The meeting was the second in two days between Walesa and communist authorities and was intended to set terms for a broad "round-table" meeting of social groups that would consider Solidarity and trade union pluralism.

Burmese demands made

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — Insurgents who have fought the government for four decades say they are throwing their support behind the massive anti-government campaign and want to be included in any interim leadership formed to restore democracy.

Tens of thousands of demonstrators marched through the streets of the capital again Friday, demanding the resignation of President Maung Maung's one-party government. Many gathered later in the day outside the U.S. Embassy to listen to speeches and songs about democracy, a Western diplomat said.

Gorbachev discusses Vietnamese posts

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev said Friday that Soviet forces will abandon a strategic naval base in Vietnam if the United States pulls its armed forces from bases in the Philippines.

In a key foreign policy speech, the Soviet leader announced that the Kremlin has frozen its nuclear weapon stocks in Soviet Asia. He also responded to U.S. allegations that a Siberian radar violates a superpower arms treaty by suggesting the station be used to study space.

Gorbachev made the 1½-hour speech during a meeting with Communist Party and local government workers in the city of Krasnoyarsk, 2,000 miles east of Moscow and the site of the controversial radar. The official Tass news agency carried a summary.

A seven-point plan "aimed at strengthening security in the Asia-Pacific region," highlighted the speech, the first major address by Gorbachev since he returned Monday from a six-week vacation.

It was the first time Gorbachev focused on relations with Asia since a July 28, 1986 speech at the Pacific port of Vladivostok.

In that speech, Gorbachev called for a summit with China and peace in the region. Friday's speech reiterated the call for a summit with Beijing and urged Japan not to increase its military strength.

"Aware of the Asian and Pacific countries' concern, the Soviet Union will not increase the amount of any nuclear weapons in the region — it has already been practicing this for some time — and is calling on the United States and other nuclear powers not to deploy them additionally in the region," Gorbachev said, according to the Tass summary.

"If the United States agrees to the elimination of military bases in the Philippines, the Soviet Union will be ready ... to give up the fleet's material and technical supply station in Cam Ranh Bay."

The Pentagon describes Cam Ranh Bay in Vietnam as the Soviets' largest naval deployment base abroad, threatening U.S. military presence in the Philippines. U.S. officials in Bangkok said about 7,000 Soviet personnel are stationed there.

The United States maintains six bases in the Philippines. The two major bases — Subic Bay Naval Base and Clark Air Base — are the largest U.S. military installations outside the United States, but American-Filipino talks on an agreement to review the final two years of the leases, which expire in 1991, have stalled.

In Washington, President Reagan commented on Gorbachev's proposal regarding the bases.

"I haven't had an opportunity to go into it in detail in what it is he's proposing, but I look forward to doing that because certainly we want to do anything we can to help bring about a better relationship between our two countries," Reagan told reporters.

On Thursday, Secretary of State George P. Shultz said talks in Manila on compensation for the bases and other issues "basically aren't going well."

Gorbachev proposed "that a center for international cooperation in the utilization of space for peaceful purposes be set up on the basis of the Krasnoyarsk radar station," Tass said.

Although his wording was vague, Gorbachev appeared to be offering to dismantle or convert the 30-story radar. The U.S. government says the installation violates the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile treaty and is a major obstacle to talks in Geneva toward halving long-range missile arsenals.

"Speculation about the Krasnoyarsk radar station continues," the Soviet leader said in remarks carried by Soviet television. "It's turning out to have a slowing effect on the Geneva negotiations."

The move would also put more pressure on the Reagan administration to act on Soviet complaints the United States is violating the ABM treaty, particularly by its Star Wars program for a space-based missile defense.

"Our concern over the construction of the U.S. radar stations in Greenland and Britain remains. Experts say that they are a downright violation of the ABM treaty. We expect that Washington will take appropriate measures in response to our initiative," he said.

The Soviet Union offered last month to dismantle the radar equipment if the United States agreed to commit itself to the ABM treaty for nine or 10 years.

Asked about Gorbachev's proposal on the Krasnoyarsk radar, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater reiterated the U.S. position that the facility must be dismantled because it violates ABM treaty.

The United States has maintained the radar violates the treaty because it is not at the edge of the country, pointed outward, as the pact stipulates such a radar must be.

WORLD

Soviet policy proposals listed

MOSCOW (AP) — Here are the seven foreign policy proposals on the Asia-Pacific region made Friday by Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev in his speech in Krasnoyarsk, as summarized by the Soviet news agency Tass:

First. Aware of the Asian and Pacific countries' concern, the Soviet Union will not increase the amount of any nuclear weapons in the region — it has already been practicing this for some time — and is calling upon the United States and other nuclear powers not to deploy them additionally in the region.

Second. The Soviet Union is inviting the main naval powers of the region to hold consultations on non-increase in naval forces in the region.

Third. The U.S.S.R. is suggesting that the question of lowering military confrontation in the areas where the coasts of the U.S.S.R., the PRC (People's Republic of China), Japan, the DPRK (Democratic People's Republic of Korea), and South Korea converge be discussed on a multilateral basis with a view to freezing and commensurately lowering the levels of naval and air forces and limiting their activity.

Fourth. If the United States agree to the elimination of military bases in the Philippines, the Soviet Union will be ready, by agreement with the government of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, to give up the fleet's material and technical supply station in Cam Ranh Bay.

Fifth. In the interests of the safety of sea lanes and air communications of the region, the U.S.S.R. suggests that measures be jointly elaborated to prevent incidents in the open sea and air space over it. The experience of the already existing bilateral Soviet-American and Soviet-British accords as well as the U.S.A.-U.S.S.R.-Japan trilateral accord could be used during the elaboration of these measures.

Sixth. The Soviet Union proposes that an international conference on making the Indian Ocean a zone of peace be held not later than 1990. Preparatory work for it is known to have been completed, in the main, at the United Nations Organization.

Seventh. The U.S.S.R. suggests discussing at any level and in any composition the question of creating a negotiating mechanism to consider Soviet and any other proposals pertaining to the security of the Asia-Pacific region. The discussion could be started between the U.S.S.R., the PRC, and the United States as permanent members of the United Nations Security Council.

Postal changes sought

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican postal workers want the government to sell the mail service to private owners, according to the Mexico City newspaper El Universal.

Postal union representatives said workers fear the mail system's history of inefficiency, combined with increased competition from private postal companies, could put the federal mail service out of business, El Universal said.

Check out the vital statistics.

The new Eagle Premier has more passenger room than Cadillac Seville or Audi 5000.*

More standard horsepower than Ford Mustang LX or Pontiac Grand Am.

A smaller turning circle than Porche 928-S4 or Ford Escort GT.

More cargo volume than Rolls-Royce Silver Spirit or BMW 735i.

It comes with a fully independent suspension while Chevrolet Camaro Z28 IROC and Saab 9000 Turbo do not.

Plus, it's backed by a 7-year/70,000-mile powertrain Protection Plan. Which is much longer than anything offered by Ford, Jaguar, or Alfa Romeo.

Introducing the 1988 Eagle Premier. A North American-built car with European sophistication and handling.

TRUCKS

Number 1 owner-pleasing truck in America!

MAZDA B2200: MAZDA IS BEST OF ALL COMPACT TRUCKS FOR THE SECOND YEAR IN A ROW!†

For the second straight year, Mazda beat Toyota, Nissan and everybody else in customer satisfaction – and now our '88s are here to please you! Even our lowest-priced B2200 sets surprising standards for handling, riding comfort, quiet and room you don't expect in a low-priced truck. And it's big on value – 5-speed overdrive, steel radials, tinted glass, full carpeting, double-wall bed, and more, all standard – and a lot of fun to drive!

Projected retained value after five years

Oldsmobile Cutlass Ciera	44%	Nissan Maxima GXE	54%
Mazda 626 Touring LX	55%	Peugeot 505 DL	36%
Mercury Sable GS	52%	Saab 900	50%
Honda Accord LXI	60%	Audi 80	55%
Pontiac Bonneville SE	49%	Volvo 240 DL	71%

AFTER FIVE YEARS, THE VOLVO 240 OFFERS THE MOST PROTECTION AGAINST EROSION.

According to The Complete Car Cost Guide, the Volvo 240 DL is projected to retain a full 71% of its value after five years.* A higher percentage than all of the cars listed above.

Which is not surprising. Because the Volvo 240 is famous for its durable construction. And it makes sense that when a car is built to hold up well over the years, its value should do the same.

Along with durable construction, the 240 also offers a high standard of safety engineering. Which includes a steel safety cage that surrounds and helps protect the passengers. Specially designed "crumple zones" front and rear. And a roof so strong its pillars can support the weight of six Volvos.

So see us for a Volvo 240 today. You'll not only have a car that could be of great value years from now, you'll have a car you can value the very first day you drive it.

VOLVO

Invest in a proven performer.

Daihatsu Charade may be the best tested car ever brought to America from Japan. It's been winning rallies, economy runs and popularity all over the world for the past decade. Daihatsu comes to you as a thoroughly tested and proven performer. The features we developed out of rally racing bring a new sophistication to small cars. The record of performance speaks for itself:

- Car of the Year Japan
- Four-time Rally Champion East Africa
- Three-time Rally Champion Monte Carlo
- Rally Champion New Zealand
- Rally Champion Malaysia
- Rally Champion Finland
- World Economy Record Paris
- World Economy Record Singapore
- World Economy Record Australia
- Car of the Year Thailand
- Most Popular Car in Australia

Not only do you get proven performance, but Charade gives you quality and workmanship that you thought came only in more expensive cars. The level of luxury is unprecedented for a small car. Think of it as luxury condensed.

CLX MODEL
$168.28 MO.
$700 DOWN, 12.9 APR, 60 MONTHS, SP $7695 with approved credit

The interior reflects style and craftsmanship. It is perfectly color-coordinated throughout. Door trim incorporates seat material on top and carpet material on the bottom for a perfect interior match. There's a rich cloth liner overhead. And the fold-down center armrests on the CLX add extra comfort.

Versatile, fold-down rear seat triples cargo space.

Every Charade comes with tinted glass all around: windows and mirrors. For an extra touch, there are swing-out quarter windows in the rear.

Charade is low and wide for a small car. The extra width gives you a surprising amount of interior room. Charade's wide track gives you far more stability on the road than other small cars, especially when cornering.

Wide stance for stability.

Charade is quick, with multi-point EFI, fully independent suspension and stabilizers in front and rear. The five-speed transmission is butter-smooth for easy shifting.

Charade is affordable to buy and affordable to own. Daihatsu Charade has an EPA rating of 42 MPG highway and 38 MPG city. That is one of the best mileage ratings in the country.

Get behind the wheel of a winner! Test drive Charade today! Daihatsu may be new to America, but we've been in business in Japan since 1907. The name is pronounced Di-hot-sue. It means Large Enterprise.

Charade has been tested, raced and proven around the world. It is the logical evolution of a dedication to performance. You know what they say. "Racing improves the breed."

You'll think the world of Daihatsu.
