Sportsmen's Club Meets Friday

Special meeting of the Mitchell County Sportsmen's Club is scheduled for Friday night.

The 8 o'clock meeting will be in the clubhouse at Lake Colorado City.

A. W. Hubbard, secretary of the club, announced the special meeting Thursday and said all members were urged to attend.

Intermediate swimming classes are being planned at Ruddick Park's municipal pool, Aug. 10 through Aug. 15.

The classes will be for any persons who can swim twice across the pool, according to City Recreation Director Winn Talley.

Objective for the course will be to teach different strokes, and swimming forms. Instructors will be Jerry Brooks Teague, Jerry McKay and Eddie Schoolcraft.

VFW Has Hospital Bed, Chair for Use

Colorado City's Veterans of Foreign Wars reminded local citizens it has hospital beds, wheel chairs and crutches for public use.

P. C. Smith, service officer for the local VFW post, said now available for use are one bed and one wheel chair.

This equipment is at the post and can be secured by delivering parties by contacting Smith, phone RA 8-4471.

Tall Fish Story

Red Perry, left, and Earl Spiller hooked a catfish almost too tall and too heavy to carry home this week from Sugarlake, Mexico. But here they are displaying the shoulder-high, 65-pounder for official measurement by fellow Dowell Inc. employees at the local Dowell station after their return to Colorado City Tuesday morning.

BUT ONLY SMALL LOOT

Night Break-ins at 4 Local Businesses

A rash of burglaries and break-ins at local business firms erupted this week.

Break-ins were reported at an automatic laundry, automobile agency and a farm implement firm.

Attempt was made to enter at least one other establishment, but apparently were scared away without loot.

The spree of break-ins came as Police Chief Leon Yeager and city officials called attention to Burglary Prevention Week, an observance statewide designed to encourage precautions against residential burglaries while families are away from home or out of town.

Burglarized Monday night were Jay Adams Chevrolet Company, 877 E. Second, and Carter-Kelley Equipment Company, located just outside city limits on U. S. Highway 80 (to Sweetwater).

Approximately $10 in currency was taken from the Carter-Kelley firm, according to co-owner Jimmy Kelley.

Entrance was gained by climbing over a fence, then breaking a lock on the firm's shop door on the east side. After entering the building, the burglar went to the office area.

The cash register was opened and the soft drink machine was broken open. A sledge hammer was used to break the outside door lock.

The break-in was discovered at about 7 a. m. Tuesday when the firm opened for business.

Break-in at Jay Adams Chevrolet was discovered at approximately 7 a. m. However, no loot was believed taken there.

However, the burglar searched hard for money—ransacking drawers and cabinets, scattering papers and files over the office floor.

Entry at the auto agency was through the washrack area, where sheet metal was pried away from the building. After entering the service department area, the burglar

Anti-Burglary Week Lists Safety Rules

Police Chief Leon Yeager, seeking to keep house-breakings at a minimum, is calling attention to Burglary Prevention Week.

The observance is official this week in Colorado City by proclamation of Mayor Trevor Crawford. And the police chief wants to make it plain this is not just another "week."

Burglary Prevention Week is being observed here in conjunction with a statewide program by Texas Police Association to educate the public how they can help reduce burglary losses.

"Burglary losses are big business for some people," the chief emphasized, "and during the last year 650,000 burglary offenses were reported across the country—about 75 burglaries every hour, every day of the year."

"These are alarming figures," the chief continued, "but even more alarming is the fact most of these could have been prevented if the public had taken just a little more interest and care in their personal property."

People too often leave their homes for an evening, week end, or vacation without a thought to precautions recommended by their police department, Yeager said.

Windows are left open... keys left under the door mat or in the mail box... a completely dark house or, even worse, lights are left burning 24 hours a day... and all are earmarks, police report, that tell a burglar "this place is a pushover."

Yeager said the war against burglary is two fold: the prevention of burglaries and the apprehension of burglars by police after they commit crimes.

"But primary responsibility for prevention is in precaution by the homeowner," Yeager said, "and only with the homeowner can this war against the ever-increasing burglary rate be successful."

Here are simple precautions listed by the police chief for everyone before leaving their house or apartment:

1. Close and lock all windows and doors, including basement, porch and garage. Use pin tumbler cylinder locks on all outside doors.

2. Leave a lamp or two connected to an automatic timer to turn lights on and off regularly, each evening. This makes the home look "lived-in" and is a good protective measure.

3. If you are going away for a week-end or for a vacation, notify local police officials as to the date you are leaving.

MRS. GUNN AT CUTHBERT

Postmaster Ends 32-Year Service

By ANNELLE HOLMAN

Record Women's Editor

With her retirement tomorrow as postmaster of the Cuthbert Post Office, Mrs. Julia Gunn will have completed almost 32 years of service.

She became postmaster for the Cuthbert office Sept. 10, 1927 — when Calvin Coolidge was president and Henry S. New was acting Postmaster General. Her service has extended under four other presidents — Hoover, Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower.

Mrs. Gunn, following her retirement, will be moving to Big Spring, leaving the post office home where she has lived and reared her family.

When she began as postmaster in 1927, the Cuthbert rural mail route was 24 miles long and it was delivered three times a week. Today the route is over 40 miles long and is carried six days weekly.

Mrs. Gunn says that there is certainly a difference in the service now and 32 years ago, more people and a larger route.

She sent her four daughters to college with the salary she made as postmaster. They all married now — Mrs. L. E. Richey of Lovington, N. M.; Mrs. Perry Mathis of Big Spring; Mrs. M. R. Pilgrim of Denton; and Mrs. Ed Havan of Grapevine.

A chapter of Cuthbert-Mitchell County history will be closed Friday when Mrs. Gunn leaves Cuthbert Post Office,

Conservation Or Poverty, State Soil Expert Says

Speaks Here at Tour Luncheon

An expert in Texas' soil conservation projects declared here Thursday farmers and ranchers can choose between the two: conservation in respect to laws of nature, or face poverty in their agricultural operations.

He drew the line even sharper, stating that the nation's agricultural permanency is at stake unless America gets busy to make the best use of every producing acre.

The speaker was O. F. Armstrong of Temple, field planning engineer for the non-governmental Texas Soil Conservation Board.

Armstrong was the final feature of a five-stop conservation tour program sponsored here Thursday morning by Mitchell County Soil Conservation District board of supervisors and Colorado City Chamber of Commerce.

Forty-four persons joined the tour which left Civic House at 9 a. m. and returned before noon for luncheon and Armstrong's talk in Civic House.

Armstrong cited statistics to emphasize his point that increased acreage yields — the net, not the gross — must be obtained if the nation is to make its agriculture permanent.

The statistics were a plain, but impressive comparison of agricultural land available for use and the population it must serve.

In 1950, he pointed out, U. S. had 3.1 acres of crop land per individual. By 1975, this ratio will have changed to 2.2 acres of crop land for every individual.

"And in the year 2000, which any of us here today may live to see," Armstrong said, "there will be 1.6 acres of crop land per individual."

"Will there always be a permanent agriculture? Will we in America always be a nation of surpluses, or will we be one of shortages?"

The question of permanency rests with the citizens of this community and others across Texas and the nation, the speaker said.

America, he explained, is depleting its land faster than any country in history.

Eighteen million acres of land, once farm and ranch land, have been converted to urban development within the last 15 years. The converting of agricultural land to cities, highways, air bases and other construction is continuing at rate of one million acres every year.

"Your soil conservation district directors," Armstrong said, "believe in producing the net yield, not the gross yield."

And, therein, the aim of conservation — better use of each acre — is tied not only to the permanency of agriculture, but also to the prosperity and development of each community.

"It's not how many acres we plant nor how many cows we run," he said, "but the yield per acre."

"It makes no matter how much we produce if we can't pay expenses at the end of the year."

"But if we can profit, then it is a blessing to the farmer, then to the merchant, banker and all the rest."

Soil conservation districts are dedicated to this better use of land, more yield to the acre and permanency in agriculture through a conservation program planned, studied, supervised and carried out entirely on the local level without any intervention by federal or state government.

"And your soil conservation district board of supervisors," Armstrong said, "are Christian men aware of the law of nature."

"And nature's law is the law of God."

"Take from the land, burn it out, buy shirt and cars — not putting anything back into the land, and you break a law of God."

"Break this law and there will be poverty."

Conservation district leaders also interested in the heritage for young people, the speaker said. That's because the young leave their homeplaces when those acres become a liability, instead of a heritage, through

DIXON PROMOTED

Theater Manager To Circuit Post

Elliott Dixon, local theater and house manager before becoming Rowley United's local manager of theaters.

Dixon became associated with Rowley United when the Dallas firm in 1937 purchased half interest in the theaters here. In 1950, he became manager for the company's local operation which now includes the Palace, Lone Wolf and Ritz.

Although he will begin his new assignment Aug. 10, Dixon said his family probably will not move to Dallas until fall. His engineer's assignment will include Colorado City.

Dixon has been active in Kiwanis, Chamber of Commerce and child welfare work. He is a member of North Side Church of Christ.

The promotion of Dixon is another advancement in a theater career which began in 1928 here in Colorado City as door boy at the Palace. His first job was from his uncle, the late Ross Dixon Sr., who then was owner of the local theater.

Through the years Dixon has handled just about every job and duty in theater operation and management.

Team Members Meet Aug. 25

First stockholders meeting of Colorado City Industrial Team Inc. is scheduled for Aug. 25 at 8 p. m.

Date for the meeting in Civic House was announced Thursday by Charlie C. Thompson, chairman of the non-profit corporation's organizational campaign.

Purpose of the stockholders meeting will be for adoption of the Team's charter and bylaws, election of the initial board of directors.

The stockholders meeting was scheduled following a session Tuesday night of the Chamber of Commerce Industrial development committee, sponsors of the Team's organization.

Plans for the Aug. 25 meeting and a final roundup in the Team's membership stock sale were discussed at the committee meeting.

A total of 170 firms and individuals have purchased stock as members in Team Inc., Thompson reported Thursday. Purchases total $12,310.

Final roundup in the campaign for Team Inc. members will be conducted by members of the chamber industrial committee and unit workers in the original drive.

Main objective in the roundup will be to complete contact assignments on approximately 90 prospect cards. Forty of these will be worked by unit members and about 50 will be handled by industrial committee members.

"Any person or firm not already contacted for the Team and who desires to participate with stock membership," said Thompson, "should contact the Chamber of Commerce office, phone RA 8-2211."

"With your call a person will be sent to you immediately to explain the Team's non-profit plan for assisting industrial development and to show you how you can aid this plan with your membership."

Leaders in the Team organization have emphasized repeatedly there are not enough workers to contact all citizens of the community, therefore, the request for interested persons to contact the chamber office.

Special prizes will be awarded at 7 p. m. and after Acres' 9 p. m. talk, according to Raymond Perdue, Lone Wolf manager.

In addition, free soft drinks, coffee and doughnuts will be served during the registration hour, from 6 to 7 p. m.

Rev. Fred Smith, pastor of Payne Baptist Church, will deliver the invocation, which will open the 8 p. m. business session. Welcome to the stockholders from the cooperative's service area will be by Ernie Larmer, Colorado City Chamber of Commerce manager.

REP. CARRIKER INQUIRES

County's Opinion Sought On Game, Fish Regulatory Plan

State Representative Max Carriker is wondering if citizens of Mitchell County desire the county to be placed under regulatory authority of Texas Game & Fish Commission.

The action was projected here during the recent drought period and obtained considerable backing from members of Mitchell County Sportsmen's Club.

However, the regulatory measure was never carried through the Texas Legislature.

But in recent weeks Rep. Carriker has been contacted in regard to the plan, he told the Record.

He reported that he was ready to seek the necessary legislative action, but wanted the sentiments of the local citizens before taking action in Austin.

One hundred three Texas counties this fall will be under the Regulatory Authority of State Game and Fish Commission, which has as its chief objective the management of wildlife resources in a county on the basis of scientific and research findings at the local point.

In counties not operating under the Regulatory Authority Act, the game and fish laws are set by the state legislature and are of a general nature, not pin-pointed to exact findings at the county level.

A. W. Hubbard, secretary of the Mitchell County Sportsmen's Club, said the proposal would be discussed Friday night at a special 8 o'clock meeting of the club at its Lake Colorado City clubhouse.

The club is holding a special meeting for other business, but the regulatory authority plan will be placed before members also, Hubbard said.

However, Carriker said he would "most certainly appreciate letters from anyone who would be interested, expressing their views on this subject."

Here is a capsule report on the Regulatory Authority and how it works:

Regulatory Authority for the Game and Fish Commission simply means that the people of a county, through their representative in the Legislature, have turned over the responsibility of conducting scientific research on game and fish problems, setting of open seasons and methods of taking wildlife resources, to the Commission.

In the interest of the hunting and fishing public and of the ranchmen and landowners, where game is raised, the Legislature provided a law which is adaptable to changing conditions and emergencies which might threaten wildlife resources. The Game and Fish Commission, as directed by this Regulatory Authority

ANNELLE HOLMAN'S

Personally Yours

In summertime we all wish that someone would invent some gadget to beat the heat, something to make us completely forget how miserably hot it is. . . . we wish that somebody would write a recipe for a dish that would relax the whole family and get the children's appetites back to normal.

"Many Colorado City housewives have special ways of partially overcoming the summertime heat and three of them offer their 'solutions'.

Mrs. H. Jene Steakley cooks lots of fresh vegetables—green beans, black-eyed peas, and squash given to them by friends to help her family ignore the summer time heat. One of the family's favorite recipes is for a congealed salad.

The ingredients are: one package of lime jello; one package of unflavored gelatin; one small can of crushed pineapple; one small package of cream cheese (or 1/2 carton of cottage cheese); 1 tablespoon of mayonnaise; the juice of one lemon; and a small can of pimento strips.

Mrs. Steakley's instructions are: Drain the pineapple. Use the juice as a liquid for the jello. Place the jello in a pan, add the can of pineapple, bring to a boil, and let it simmer. Allow the mixture to cool and then add cheese (if using cream cheese, soften with the pineapple liquid), and add the mayonnaise, lemon juice, and nuts. Congeal the salad and top it, if desired, with whipped cream.

The dish is a good summer meal when served with crackers, sliced tomatoes, etc., according to Mrs. Steakley.

Mrs. Parker Jarman offers a summertime hint if you are party-minded. For an outdoor party, why use dishes which you must wash?

Mrs. Jarman's advice for the ice cream lawn party is to use all white paper plates, napkins, and ice-cream dishes. And to cut down on last minute preparation, she filled the ice cream containers earlier, placed them in her deep freeze, and arranged the plates with spoons and napkins and tucked them away until party time came.

Refreshments for Mrs. Jarman's typical party consist of ice cream, and cookies with three different toppings for the cream. With her early preparations, she has quick service when refreshment time comes. Clean Up? She has to wash the ice cream spoons.

Beat the heat suggestions from Mrs. Ed Richardson are to serve salad plates which are cool, simple and a full balanced diet, and the housewife doesn't have to cook in a hot kitchen.

Her favorite summertime pie—Lemon Ice Box Pie—has the following ingredients: one can of Borden's Eagle Brand milk; two eggs (beaten until fluffy); 1/3 cup lemon juice; grated yellow part of rind of one lemon; Place Eagle Brand milk in mixing bowl, add beaten eggs, lemon juice, and rind.

For the Graham cracker crust: 1 1/4 cups crushed graham crackers; three tablespoons sugar; 1/3 cup of melted margarine. Combine ingredients, press in pie plate; pour in the lemon custard. Place pie in ice box until set. Serve with whipped cream.

Mrs. Richardson's ideal summer menu is: grapefruit juice, tuna fish salad, fritos or potato chips; sliced tomatoes on lettuce, Ritz crackers, lemon pie, and iced tea (made with tap water and allowed to set for four hours).

Beat the heat? Some housewives have the solution—maybe not to beat it, but to at least be comfortable in the midst of it.

HIGH SCHOOL 1ST ASSISTANT

Christys Have High Football Interest

"Hobbies? Well, football leaves little time for anything else."

These were the words of Sam Christy, new Colorado High School coach and his wife, Susie.

Christy is first assistant and line coach in football and track.

The Christys, who moved this week to 1636 Austin Street, came to Colorado City from White Deer, where Christy was first assistant to Coach Otis Holladay for five years.

Before living at White Deer, Mr. and Mrs. Christy lived in Lamar, Arkansas, where he coached for two years, and in Danville, Arkansas, where he was coach for one year.

The Christys have two children—Beth Ann, age three; and Sam, age two.

Christy enjoys hunting and fishing and Mrs. Christy likes to fish.

Christy graduated from high school in Lake Village, Arkansas—the Breckenridge-Stamford type high school, football-wise.

Mrs. Christy graduated from high school in Belleville, Arkansas, and attended Arkansas Tech for two years.

Christy attended the College of the Ozarks—a small Presbyterian college in Clarksville, Arkansas—on a football scholarship. He and four of his high school football teammates went to the Ozarks college and played football together there.

Mrs. Christy is employed as receptionist by Sun Oil Company in Colorado City.

Antique Furniture Is Beauty Attraction of Burns' Home

The red carpets and red velvet drapes have been replaced but almost everything else in the home of Mrs. Douglas Burns of 304 East Fourth Street remains the same as it was 59 years ago.

The 15 room home was built in 1900 by Mrs. Burns' father-in-law, F. M. Burns, who was a local merchant. Mrs. Burns, widow of F. M. Burns' son, Douglas, lives alone in the house. F. M. Burns bought much of the unique furniture in New York City.

The large, white framed house has large porches, up stairs and down and had back with a grandfather's hand steps which the servants used. All of the furniture is of mahogany with the exception of 65 years old.

Other antique attractions found in the hallway are a gothic candelabra, a pen and staff used by F. M. Burns, and a miniature silver ornament bell which is 60 years old. The hardwood floors are of light oak with darker wood placed in a design.

Paintings throughout the house were done by Mrs. Lennie Burns Harrell, sister of Douglas Burns. The tapestries, as well as the paintings by Mrs. Harrell, are framed in old-fashioned gold frames.

The old time wood burning fireplace with a brass screen and brass wood basket is still used by Mrs. Burns.

The drapes of the spacious living room are of rose fabric with rose carpet. The gold chandeliers with round pointed lights add to the beauty of the room. A two-piece footstool, covered in black leather, is one of the oldest features of the room. A marble top walnut table with a child's chair, belonging to Douglas Burns, adorn the living room. The old fashioned glassed-in bookcases line the room's west wall.

The dining room of the Burns' home has the appearance of a china shop with its Bavarian china and Blue Willow dishes. The large table will seat 20 with its 20 matching chairs. An old fashioned tea service and after dinner coffee service are placed on their separate serving trays. The chandeliers are of cut glass rods which encircle each light, giving a chiming sound upon movement.

The dinner bell, which is approximately 60 years old, is centered with Douglas Burns' boyhood top and surrounded by copper pipes. The servants used this bell years ago to announce dinner.

The closed Butler's pantry now contains dishes but was once the location for the cooks to place food from the kitchen for the servants to serve in the dining room.

A large punch bowl, which centers the dining room table, is one hundred years old and

Cherished Relics

The home of Mrs. Douglas Burns of 304 East Fourth Street is filled with relics of 50 to 100 years ago. The nest of tables, center, are made allowing each one to pull out separately. On the first table is a candelabra which belonged to the late Douglas Burns' grandmother. The painting on the right was done by Burns' sister, Mrs. Lennie Burns Harrell. The corner chairs on each side of the table nest were covered with needle point cushions which Mrs. Burns made. The hardwood floors around the rose carpet are laid in a pattern.

once belonged to Douglas Burns' grandmother Bell. The antique bowl is blue with gold decorations.

The carpet in the downstairs of the home is rose with the exception of Mrs. Burns' room which has a gray carpet with a rose floral design. The drapes are of rose.

The kitchen is one of the rooms which has had modern conveniences added. The wall paper is of red calico and the ceiling is in green. Red table and chairs add to the color scheme.

A love seat made of walnut and a desk which F. M. Burns used 45 years ago are among the cherished relics.

The furniture of Mrs. Burns' room is of mahogany. The spacious room contains a huge chest, two cedar chests, several tables, a poster bed, easy chairs, in rose, a modern convenience — the television, and other pieces of antique furniture. The light hanging from the ceiling is of mahogany.

Blind Man's Buff is KID STUFF!

This man never intended to be a highway hazard. But he's so intent on getting his family home, he hasn't noticed sleep closing in on him. Too bad! He'll learn too late that playing Blind Man's Buff behind the wheel is kid stuff. In just one second — at 45 miles per hour — he can run his car completely off the road or crash head-on into traffic! He may never get his family home. Competent drivers are quick to admit their limitations. At the first sign of drowsiness they "take ten" on the side of the road. For as every good driver knows, "There isn't a man alive good enough to drive in his sleep."

Pony Stars Drop First Game in District Meet

By BONNY GURLEY
Record Sports Writer

The C-City Pony All-stars dropped the first round of the District playoffs in Abilene Tuesday night, 4-1, to Pecos.

The game had been originally scheduled for Monday night but wet grounds prevented the contest of that date.

Errors proved to be the determining factor for Pecos who with a very fast group of base runners capitalized on C-City miscues to gather three of their four runs.

The first inning C-City hurler, Junior Garcia, hit the first two batters for Pecos, Bill Algie and Elias Natividad, and gave up a single to Jim McLain as Pecos took a 1-run lead.

Next two runs came with runners on second and third and an infield pop up hit to Garcia, who caught the ball, and tried to double up Natividad at third, but overthrew. Natividad and speedy McLain both scored on the error, making it 3-0 Pecos in the first inning.

Innings two and three were pitch duels with Garcia and McLain mowing down batsmen on strike outs. The only hit of the two frames was a single by Algie of Pecos in the third.

C-City broke into the scoring column in the fourth when catcher Martin Christian led off with a triple into the deep right field corner. Dale Walker lashed a single through the box to score Christian from third.

Pecos widened the gap to three runs again in the fifth when Scott Medanich singled to right, moved to third on an overthrow to second and scored as a passed ball careened off the backstop to the right field side of the plate to allow Medanich to score easily from third.

The scrappy C-Citians filled the bases in the last of the seventh with two away to see hopes die as Mike Andrews attempted to score from third on a passed ball that took a "Pecos" bounce and was thrown out at the plate to end the ball game.

The victory hopes haven't faded for C-City in the tournament yet. The tournament is a double elimination type in which a team must be beaten twice to be removed.

C-City will be shooting the works against the winner of the Monahans - Crane tilt Thursday and will fire the undefeated Charles Houston, ace righthander, in the struggle. If the locals should win this contest they would have to play a double header Friday night against the second-round loser of the winner's bracket.

The games are being played at the Pony Park on the Cross Plains highway east of Abilene.

Cosden Gets More Polyvis Plant Output

An agreement has been reached between Cosden Petroleum Corporation and Texas Butadiene and Chemical Corporation, New York, to license Cosden's process for the manufacture of polybutene at TB&C's Channelview Plant near Houston.

A successful demonstration run has been completed at Big Spring Refinery on TB&C feed stocks.

Concurrently, Cosden announces the completion of a major expansion of facilities for polybutene production at its Big Spring Refinery. Capacity has been doubled for this important chemical specialty used in the manufacture of lubricating oil additives, pressure-sensitive adhesives, caulking and sealing compounds, protective finishes, and industrial lubricants.

Since 1956, Cosden has marketed a complete line of isobutylene polymers under the registered trademark "Polyvis." Cosden will also market TB&C's entire output.

With Texas Butadiene and Chemical Corporation's butane cracking facilities, an almost unlimited supply of isobutylene is available for "Polyvis" production, according to Dan M. Krausse, senior vice president, Cosden Petroleum Corporation.

LITTLE LEAGUE ACTION

Giants Wham Yankees For Runner-up Spot

By BONNY GURLEY
Record Sports Writer

Little League came home from the all-star wars eager to play out the last week of their regular schedule.

Monday's action saw the league-leading Indians trounce the Tigers by the tune of 14-3.

Also Monday the Giants took individual possession of second place by defeating their chasers, the Yankees, 13-5.

Monday's opener saw the Indians score a run in the second inning on a pair of fielder's choices and a walk, then really exploding in the third by scoring six markers in an outbreak that was highlighted by home runs off the bats of Jimmie Curry and Jim Petty.

The Tigers scored one in the third but were shut out the rest of the evening.

The Indians continued their torrid pace at the plate by getting three straight safeties in the fourth to produce a run and then collected four more in the fifth with Possum Mann doubling home three of the runs.

The final game of the evening was another hit fest with the Giants getting 12 base blows, mostly with people on base.

David McKay provided most of the power for the Giants having a perfect night at the plate, going four for four. Two of his hits were extra base knocks, a triple and a homer with mates aboard in the fourth and fifth frames.

The Giant batsmen chased pitcher Wayne Parham in the third and continued to blast reliever Reggie Noble. Skipper Warren went the route for the winning Giants and gave up only five hits.

Closing Our Eyes To Our Own Industry

For real learning, there is no better way than "seeing for yourself." And that is the main reason for conservation tours like that sponsored here today by Mitchell County farmers, ranchers and businessmen.

Our only gripe about the tour program is the fact not enough persons saw for themselves. Not enough farmers, ranchers or businessmen. But that is not a discredit to the tour sponsors — Mitchell County Soil Conservation District and Chamber of Commerce agricultural committee.

Conservation is a life and death matter for our agricultural industry. Too many of us, however, figure it is something for the other fellow or we know enough about it already... and we leave the educational tours and programs to somebody else.

Agriculture, though, is a five million dollar cash business for Mitchell County farmers, ranchers and merchants every year. It affects every business within the county. Therefore, its conservation isn't a remote problem or pro-$30,000 for brush control work, $10,400 gram to any person, but instead is a vital one.

The tour today showed individual conservation projects on the land at five different farms within a few miles of Colorado City. These included both immediate and long range action for improvement of soil, plus best use of available land.

There is an important point about these conservation projects which must not be overlooked. They cost money—cold cash, in fact, just like remodeling of a retail store, installation of equipment in a garage or service station, or another business or industrial improvement.

For instance, last year within this local area approximately $42,900 was spent in terrace construction at rate of about $150 per mile. Dirt fills cost about $4,290 more and leveling of old terraces figured $6,900. That brought the total terrace work to about $54,090. Farmers and ranchers paid another for seeding range areas to grasses and about $2,400 for special pasture planting.

Sixteen dirt ponds for livestock water cost $16,000; five miles of diversion construction for water control had a expense tab of $4,000. There were more. Like the $8,400 for pipe line for livestock water; $4,000 for waterways construction; $16,000 for two sprinkler irrigation systems, and $4,480 for additional fence construction in relation to the projects.

The entire bill amounted to $150,000. And that total includes only the on-the-spot construction and material costs. It doesn't include the farmers' and ranchers' own time applied to the projects, the added expenses in his operational costs, nor wear and tear and expenses in relation to their own equipment and tools used on the jobs.

Certainly, the work in conservation is not enough within our community. We need more so our natural resources for a multi-million dollar industry can be conserved, replenished and made the best use of acre for acre.

At the same time, though we need the general education that time and expense, study and consistent work, plus expert technical know-how is necessary for every worthwhile soil conservation project. This we learn from tours and programs like that which so many of us missed today.

SHINNERY PHILOSOPHER

There's Art (and Work) in Laziness

Editor's note: The Shinnery Flats Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Bone Hollow Creek discusses a topic he no doubt is an authority on, laziness.

Dear editor:—One of the troubles with the world today is that it has to have an explanation for everything.

You take laziness. You'd think the word lazy means what it says, just lazy. But psychologists have to go into a long regiminaire explaining the deep psychological causes of it.

For example, I read in a newspaper yesterday afternoon while I was resting under a shade tree out here on my Johnson grass farm—well, technically I wasn't resting, at least I hadn't done anything to make me tired, what I was doing was just sitting there because I wanted to—where a prominent British surgeon has been analyzing laziness.

According to him, "laziness implies a lot of intelligence. It is the normal, healthy attitude of a man with nothing to do. We should study its techniques."

This is what I'm talking about. Thunder, laziness doesn't imply a lot of intelligence, you can be lazy whether you've got any sense or not. You can be dumb and be lazy, and you can be intelligent and be lazy.

Some of the busiest people I know ain't very bright, and some of the brightest people I know ain't very busy. And as far as it's being a "normal, healthy attitude of a man with nothing to do," I can tell you real quick that British surgeon doesn't know the first thing about laziness. Anybody can be lazy if he hasn't got anything to do.

The real test of laziness comes when you can practice it when you've got plenty to do, when you're snowed under, when you're three weeks behind with your plowing and the work is stacking up and you're able to look at your tractor with great moral strength of character and pick up your fishing pole and head for the river or the lake.

Furthermore, if while you're fishing you're being gnawed by your conscience, if you keep thinking you ought to be back on your tractor going up one row and down another contributing to the surplus, you ain't really practicing laziness.

Laziness is something very few people have the strength of character to acquire. I'm not a complete success at it yet, but I'm working on it. It's not something you acquire in one week. It takes years.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

LOCAL BUSINESS

Audience Is Key To Sales 'Pitch'

By ROY V. FOX
Record Co-Publisher

The nation's most famed retail advertising specialist, Clyde Bedell, has said that "there's no bargain on earth a merchant can buy—like newspaper white space."

Bedell bases his opinion on the fact that the newspaper is the only advertising medium which pays the cost of assembling an audience for the advertiser.

In newspaper advertising the merchant does not have to pay extra to distribute his message to the consumer. He does not have to gamble his money on methods of attracting an audience.

The job of attracting and holding the newspaper reader is the function of the news department of the newspaper.

The guarantee of a large and consistent readership comes automatically with the purchase of newspaper space. All advertisers, regardless of their size, are assured of the same potential audience at no extra cost.

However, the advertiser stands the cost of securing an audience for his message when he uses other forms of advertising. In direct mail advertising the cost of reaching a prospect is very high because the advertiser must pay for printing, addressing and mailing costs.

The cost of reaching the circulation list of the typical small newspaper with a four cent postcard is more than the cost of a full page ad in the same newspaper.

In radio and television advertising, the advertiser is expected to select and pay for a program into which his advertising message is wedged. He gambles as to the size and type of audience the selected program will reach.

But as Mr. Bedell points out, the newspaper audience is always present, making it possible for the merchant to concentrate on selling his products.

BIBLE COMMENT

Riches Are Above Material Wealth

One of the most striking things about the teaching and various incidents in the life of Jesus concern standards of value, aims and purposes in life.

Those that are ordinarily accepted and acted upon are either definitely challenged or revealed as inadequate and lacking in comparison with life at its best.

Take, for example, the case of the successful farmer in Luke. In our time, this New Testament farmer would probably be regarded as a commendable citizen. He did what the average successful farmer would do: Planned for larger things, built new and better buildings, and he showed sense also in planning to do what many successful farmers fail to do.

He was going to enjoy what he had built up. He wasn't just going to keep working, like those who have got the working habit and can't stop. What was the matter with that? A successful farmer could do it all without incurring any displeasure or adverse criticism on the part of his fellowmen.

But in the eyes of God, as Jesus said, he was a fool.

With all his success two things about him were wrong. He was a poor economist. He didn't take into account the uncertainty of his own life and the certainty of death. And he didn't build anything really worth while with all his wealth and his success.

As the parable says, he was not rich toward God. His treasure was all for himself. And Jesus added that everyone who acted that way was like him.

One might ask, what does it mean to be rich toward God? One thing is certain. It has a lot to do with one's fellow man. The whole New Testament is a textbook in being rich toward God.

Strictly Fresh

Too many motorists forget "horsepower" is named for an animal that can kick the stuffing out of one if it is misused.

It's not so much that autos are overpowered; trouble lies in the fact that so many drivers are under brained.

If alcohol and gasoline were a good combination for powering an auto, they'd long ago have been combined at the refinery, rather than in the driver.

The man who boasts that he knows all there is to know about operating an auto is the most dangerous person on the road.

Weaving in-and-out of traffic is a do-it-yourself way of looming your own shroud.

Oklahoma In Financial Crisis Despite Sales, Income Taxes

By VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association

Tired reading about the Texas legislature?

Well — my friend — you're not alone. Seems like most everybody feels that way — including many members of the House and Senate.

Okay, then for a little diversion let's look north and see what has been going on in our neighboring states.

Oklahoma's legislators also faced a financial crisis. How did they meet it? First they cut some needless expenses, eliminated waste and duplication. Then they appropriated for 18 months instead of 24. But they did not increase any existing taxes. Fortunately for them, financially at least, Oklahoma voted in liquor and they now have some brand new tax income — or will very, very soon.

Oklahoma, it must be remembered, has a state income tax and an across-the-board two per cent sales tax — two things Texas doesn't have.

Putting the state in a better light, collecting-wise, Oklahoma legislators swiped Uncle Sam's idea and added a state withholding tax. This to assure more collections from their income tax.

Six months of continuous session has just been ended in the Sooner state. Although their financial problems are solved for the next eighteen months, after that a sizeable hike in taxes is expected.

Texas legislators have met almost continuously since January 13. They may even have to go into a fourth special session. But if they do, they will earn the wrath of the old folks whose pensions stop in mid-August unless a sizeable tax bill is enacted. There is no doubt about it in Texas, the people are disgusted. And the legislators are disturbed.

There is much talk that many of them will not be re-elected. Undoubtedly there are some who don't ever want to return to the legislative halls.

Many of the senators and representatives have tried hard to formulate a tax program that would care for the needs of the state. Their efforts have been stymied.

During the past six months there has been talk of a unicameral legislature, like Nebraska's. Also there has been talk of a special election to let the public decide on taxes — especially sales taxes. Some officials feel that the public, if it had its say today, would vote for a sales tax — and thus take the monkey off the backs of the legislators. But so far no one has had the courage to introduce such a measure.

Soundings by the some of press indicate that a sales tax might very well be acceptable to the people — that the people fully realize the dilemma — that they at least would go along with a reasonable sales tax, although they might be firmly opposed to an income tax.

Maybe a special election on the subject of a sales tax is the answer. At least the public would have a say in the matter and our senators and representatives would not have to face the criticism they now fear.

Wish somebody had thought of that earlier, don't you? An election could have been held on the subject at much less expense than that incurred in financing three additional special sessions, all of which actually centered around that very topic.

NEW BUILDING. — While the Senate and House are busy trying to find a way to finance the state's future operations, governmental buildings still are being erected around the Capitol. In fact, they are beginning to dwarf the major edifice.

Occupancy of the first of these buildings to be completed has just been made by the Texas Employment Commission. Its six hundred employees now are housed in the $2,400,000 structure.

A total of 11,000 pieces of office equipment were moved out of eleven downtown Austin locations into the new six-story building.

TEC began some 24 years ago with a staff of 25 employees in the state headquarters and 50 local offices. Now employed are 2,300 persons, with 93 local offices throughout the state.

GOVERNOR SIGNS. — A bill by state Senator Bill Fly extending the time for removal of the offices of the State Board of Insurance from the International Life Building in Austin has been signed by Gov. Price Daniel.

The Commission rents

some 10 floors of the building. However, the rent is paid by the various insurance companies in Texas.

Earlier Senator Fly secured passage of a bill calling for the removal of the Insurance Commission from that building and the construction of its own office headquarters. Work has not yet been begun on the new building.

Other bills signed by Governor Daniel include one by Sen. Hubert Hudson, authorizing certain water districts to waive immunity from liability for negligence of its agents; a bill by Sen. Charles Herring relating to monies appropriated to the State Board of Barber Examiners; and two bills dealing with hunting and fishing. One, by Rep. Sam Parsons, would authorize the Game and Fish Commission to allow fishing and hunting of migratory waterfowl on lakes and rivers located upon a common boundary with other states. The other, by Rep. Zeke Zbraneck, related to the catching of catfish from the Trinity River.

TRINITY PROJECT. — An application from the Trinity River Authority to "appropriate" 840,700 acre feet of water per year from the Trinity River and to store 1,579,000 acre feet, or nearly a two-year supply, has been received by the State Board of Water-Engineers.

Hearing has been set for Monday, August 31.

The Trinity River Authority propose to build a dam six miles southwest of Livingston in Polk County.

Its request calls for 95,200 acre feet of storage devoted to municipal use; 672,600 acre feet for industrial use; and 72,900 acre feet for irrigation

$100 MILLION YEARLY

Careless Hauling Costs Stockmen

Careless hauling and handling of livestock can cost producers a lot of money, says U. D. Thompson, Texas A&M Extension Service animal husbandman.

A recent USDA study shows the loss from careless hauling of livestock amounts to about $100 million annually for the nation.

Four major causes account for most of this loss, says Thompson.

First, almost a fourth of all trucks hauled either too many or too few livestock. Animals shouldn't be crowded but the load needs to be fairly snug to avoid shifting. Marketing agencies and most truckers have charts which tell how to load according to type of animal and available floor space.

Second, only half of the loads were partitioned by type of animal. Horned cattle were seldom partitioned, resulting in much bruising and crippling. Partitions need to be put up between animals of different sizes and types.

Third, almost 30 per cent of the trucks had little or no bedding, leaving the danger of animals slipping or falling. Floors need to be "sleep-proofed" with sand, shavings or sawdust, and a straw covering should be used to absorb moisture.

And fourth, the animals weren't handled properly when loaded and unloaded. Some truckers and farmers too-used clubs, shovels and sticks. More than half the hogs and a fourth the cattle were mishandled as a result. Thompson says the only proper way to urge livestock along is with canvas slappers or electric prods, as clubs will injure the flesh.

In order to avoid losses, Thompson urges growers to make sure their livestock are hauled by reliable truckers.

And be on hand when your cattle, hogs or sheep go into and out of the truck. Until sold, it's still your livestock. Producers eventually pay for these injuries, despite hauling insurance, he adds.

Local Seaman In Full Scale Naval Review

James E. Gilstrap, seaman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Gilstrap of Route 3, Colorado City, serving aboard the destroyer USS Cushing, took part in a full-scale naval review and visit to San Francisco, Calif., July 17-20, after completing a major exercise held off the California coast.

The 15,000 men and 26 ships of the U. S. First Fleet were reviewed by Admiral Herbert G. Hopwood, USN, the Commander-in-Chief of the U. S. Pacific Fleet, as they passed under the Golden Gate bridge.

The exercise which preceded the San Francisco visit involved fast-moving aggressive attack carrier teams which struck at simulated mainland targets as naval air patrol squadrons and submarines held the defensive roll.

Exercises of this type are designed to give advance training to personnel preparing to make cruises with U. S. Seventh Fleet in the Western Pacific.
