FOURTH DEATH IN GERM CASE IS UNDER PROBE

Brother-in-Law Of Shepherd Died In Kansas 20 Years Ago

ORPHAN'S FOSTER DAD

Story Told Of Another Death Bed Wedding In Ill-Fated Family

CHICAGO, March 21.—A fourth death, that of Otto Graf, in Salina, Kan., 20 years ago, is being investigated by Judge Harry Olson of the municipal court, in connection with the alleged murder of William X. McClintock. Graf was a brother-in-law of William D. Shepherd, foster father of McClintock, now charged with murder.

After Graf's death Shepherd is said to have succeeded to the management of the drug business in Salina.

Julie Graf, daughter of a Colina banker and sister of Otto, is said to have been married to Shepherd when he was lying in bed with an injured neck, reported at that time to have been broken and when he is said to have believed he would die.

Charles R. Wyberick of Chicago, son of a former clergyman of Salina, already has conferred with Judge Olson and recalled Shepherd when the latter was living there.

Judge Olson's information is that Graf's death was sudden, but that doctors assigned heart disease as the cause.

The deaths of not only McClintock, but that of his mother, Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, who died sixteen years ago while Shepherd and his wife were living with her, and that of Judge Olson's brother, Dr. Oscar Olson, whose death occurred three years ago, have been declared by the judge to have been suspicious. That of Graf adds a fourth he has questioned.

Miss Isabelle Pope, fiancee of "Billy" McClintock, in testimony at the inquest said Shepherd had married Julie Graf when he was believed to be on his death bed. He is said to have told Julie, according to Judge Olson, that he had an insurance policy.

Otto Graf died on June 27, 1904, according to newspaper files in Salina stating that death was attributed to rheumatism of long standing and resultant complications. Shepherd at that time was employed by Graf.

Judge Olson was a friend of Emma Nelson when the Olson and Nelson families lived in St. Marys, Kan., when she was a little girl. She afterwards married William McClintock, who was wealthy and William X. "Billy" McClintock was their only child.

Shepherd returned to his cell tonight until Monday, at least, when attorneys will continue to fight out the question of his admission to bail in the criminal court of Justice Jacob Hopkins.

Meanwhile, Chief Justice Harry Olson, of the municipal court announced the subpoena of several witnesses to appear at the next hearing of the inquest in the death of the young millionaire, which is set for Monday morning.

FOREIGN WAR A LIKELIHOOD IN NEXT 20 YEARS

Rear Admiral Fisk Warns Against Impending Hostilities

NEW YORK, March 21. — There will be "increasing probability of a foreign war" during the next 20 years and therefore the United States "must always maintain a state of preparedness for war," Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fisk declared tonight in an address before the Politics club of Columbia university.

He explained that in his opinion the increasing foreign trade of the next 20 years "means increasing liability of conflict with competing nations, because of the enormous amounts of money involved" for the same reason he said he considered it "probable that wars on the ocean will be more frequent and tremendous in the future than they have been in the past."

Trade Competition

He discussed the "trade competition of the United States with both Japan and Great Britain in the far east" as a situation "containing fruitful seeds of conflict."

"The utmost we can do," he declared, "is to conduct our national affairs in such a way as to avoid armed conflict so long as armed conflict is avoidable, and yet in such a way that if a conflict comes we shall enter it on at least equal terms with our adversaries."

He said the United States "has never yet been able to maintain a state of relational preparedness for war because the fortunes of partisan have had an undue hold on the people, especially of the women."

Ill- Wilson Story

Admiral Fisk told, for the first time he said, a story which in his opinion explained the "basic cause" of Mr. Wilson's conduct as commander in chief of the army and navy.

He said that in 1913 President Wilson accepted an invitation to witness navy target practice in Chesapeake bay. Later, he said, President Wilson wrote the secretary of the navy that he would fulfill the engagement, "but he added that he was looking forward to it with the greatest possible dread."

Therefore, said Admiral Fisk, the request for the president's presence was withdrawn and he never went to the target practice.

"Some time after that," continued Admiral Fisk, "I spoke of this incident to ex-President Roosevelt.

"That explains many things," said he "the man is a physical coward." I answered that it seemed to me that it was merely a case of nerves."

Her condition is not grave but she a very sick woman. She will not be able to come to witness stand for several days. Most certainly she not be able to appear as a witness on the stand Monday

Such was the statement of the attending physician the Robertson home Saturday afternoon, given out wh it became certain that the prosecution in the Collier c desired her as a witness to refute statements made grueling her character and the character of her home defense witnesses.

The declaration of the physician came as a climax a day of rebuttal by the state in the trial of the form mayor for the murder of his youthful son-in-law in wh numbers of witnesses were called by District Attorn James V. Allred and swore that Mrs. Robertson's re tation was good; that they have never observed untow events of immorality at her home and that the repu tion of her home was not bad as defense witnesses testified.

Mother Is Defended

The state swung into action again Sat day afternoon in its efforts to send Fra Collier to the chair for Feb. 14th murder Elsie Logan Robertson.

Faced with the necessity of batter down a wall of evidence built by the defe in its bitter assault on the character of M Hattie Robertson, Buster's mother, Dist Attorney James V. Allred and his colleag brought a long line of witnesses to the st to defend where the defense had prosecut

Mrs. Robertson was thus defended after Frank ller had told the jury in the morning that his mind a blank when Buster Robertson was shot. It established a prima facia case of ...rder within two hours from the time the first witness ...s called. The defense, however, has never dis...ed that Frank Collier was the man who shot Buster ...bertson.

Mr. Collier's attorneys, W. F. Weeks, C. I. Francis and ...Y. She Lies On Sick Bed While State And Defense Battle Over Character

Mother of the dead Buster, for whose killing Frank Collier is now on trial for his life. Collier has contended she ran a house of ill repute. Rebuttal witnesses for the state staunchly deny the reputation of Mrs. Robertson or her home was bad. The subject of the controversy is very ill, neurosine being administered to her to quiet her in a nervous attack.

It's Not "Spike"

"Spike" Mackay, one of the best known and well-liked newspaper distributors in Wichita county, wants it distinctly known that he isn't the self-admitted, one time dope addict who testified in the Collier case the other day.

Jimmy Allred kept calling the boy on the stand "Spike." It happened that the boy's name was Mackay, but he interrupted Allred several times and told him his name was "Mac" Mackay, and not "Spike."

And "Spike" wants it known, too.

PRINCESS MARY TO SUB.

She Will Take Queen's Place While King's Wife is Gone South.

LONDON, March 21.—(AP)—Queen Mary's absence in the Mediterranean while King George is taking the rest cure will necessitate the appointment of some one to take her place at many public engagements, and the choice has fallen on Princess Mary (Viscountess Lascelles) because the Duchess of York is still away from London.

Princess Mary has been pretty busy the last week or two in various ways, getting into society habits again after a prolonged stay in her country home. She came to London to stay at her town house when the king first became ill, but at his special request she resided for the most part at Buckingham Palace. She spent much time in the sick room, greatly to the satisfaction of the royal parent, who is very fond of his only daughter, and who ceased chafing under his enforced idleness when Mary appeared on the scene. It was during this stay that the subject of representing the queen during her absence was broached and finally settled.

Since the king's health has improved, the princess is free to fulfill her engagements in connection with charity institutions and the opening of wards and homes for the care of mothers and babies, in which she and the queen are greatly interested. Several more of these engagements will claim her attention as the queen's substitute for the next five weeks, and according to present arrangements, the princess will make Chesterfield House, London, her headquarters.

LAY OFF NEW LOTS.

King Brothers are Surveying New Sites at Oklaunion.

OKLAUNION, March 21.—More evidence that Oklaunion is growing, and is in a direct line for stimulated business enterprises is the fact that King brothers are surveying and laying off additional business and residence lots in Oklaunion. All the old lots in the original townsite have been sold, and more are in demand. The entire townsite was owned by them, and they are now making new surveys for additional growth.

Residence lots are being laid off, and business lots will also be surveyed. A crew of men has already been at work, but the high wind of Tuesday and Wednesday caused a postponement. Lots to the north of the school, just north of the pavement and west of the hotel, are being surveyed for residence lots, while several business lots will be laid off south of the railroad, it is stated.

It is expected that the new lots ... sold, as houses are in demand, and several are planned on ... lots.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The proposed expedition of Kermit and Theodore Roosevelt into Turkistan has met with difficulties it was learned today, owing to the refusal of the viceroy of India to permit the party to use the pass from India to Turkestan. "I Paid For Their License"---Bouchie

Wallace Tells Of Elopers

After Judge Martin had opened court Saturday afternoon in the Frank Culliey murder trial the defense called Bouchie Wallace.

Wallace was sworn and Mr. Weeks took up the examination:

"State your name to the jury."

"Bouchie Wallace."

"State your age."

"Eighteen."

"Are you the person who went with Buster Robertson and Mary Frances Culliey on one occasion last summer, along about June, when they were married?"

"I am."

"Who was it that got you to go on that trip?"

"Buster Robertson."

"What did he want you to go to Oklahoma with he and Mary Frances for?"

"To buy them a marriage license and to carry them up there."

"Who bought that license?"

"I did."

"Why did you buy it?"

"Buster said he was too young and they wouldn't give it to him."

"Who paid for the license?"

"I did."

"Why did you pay for it?"

"Buster didn't have any money."

"Did you pay for it out of your own pocket?"

"Yes sir, I did."

"How much do licenses to get married cost in Oklahoma?"

"I think I paid $1.50 for that one but I'm not sure."

"And Buster said he was too young to get a license so you went along with him for that reason, did you?"

"Yes sir."

"How old were you at that time?"

"Eighteen."

"How old did you tell the clerk up there that issued you the license, how old did you tell him you were?"

"Twenty-one."

"How old did you tell him Mary Frances was?"

"Eighteen."

"What did you tell the clerk your name was?"

"Buster Robertson."

"Did you sign any names to any papers up there?"

"Yes sir."

"Whose name did you sign?"

"Buster Robertson's."

The state did not cross examine Wallace and he was dismissed. Although these facts did not go before the jury, he was brought here Thursday night in custody of a deputy sheriff who went to Dallas for him. He is under a pen sentence in that city for burglary.

With the completion of Wallace's testimony, Mr. Weeks rose and said "Your Honor, the defense rests with the exception of its rebuttal testimony."

BOUCHIE WALLACE

Realtors Shown New Colored Map Of Wichita Falls

Big Painting Is Completed By L. P. Hathaway; In Six Colors

J. P. Hathaway an artist of Louisville, Ky., has completed for W. S. Curlee and A. L. Huey, local realtors, a birdseye view map, 42x126 inches in six colors, which was exhibited at the meeting of the realty board at the Kemp hotel Saturday.

The great area included in the map extends from the head of Lake Kemp on the west to Byers and Henrietta on the east. The Red river bounds it on the north, with occasional glimpses of Oklahoma in the distance. Holliday and Dundee are shown on the south.

Lake Kemp, the diversion lake, Lake Wichita, as well as the smaller lake such as Tyson's and the Denver lake are shown.

Highways all over Wichita county as well as all the railroads leading into Wichita Falls are clearly outlined.

Wichita Falls itself as well as all the surrounding towns, oil refineries, oil fields, irrigation canals and various farms appear much as they would to an observer in an airplane, except that they are much more clearly defined.

There are two inserts in the map made in colors. One depicts a model irrigation farm with water flowing down the rows. The other is a close up view of Lake Kemp also in colors, showing the dam and the lake with its flotilla of pleasure craft.

The map is made primarily for the purpose of advertising to the world our great irrigation project. It has been offered to the chamber of commerce and it is hoped that it will be shown on a reduced scale in a booklet issued by them advertising Wichita Falls and this section of Texas.

The map when framed will weigh over 200 pounds.

The expense of making this map is borne entirely by Messrs Curlee and Huey and is a labor of love for the city of Wichita Falls.

It will be on exhibition soon and even those who feel quite familiar with the country surrounding this city will be able to learn at a glance many facts which they have missed.

Otto Stehlik of Stehlik and [illegible] and J. M. Bland of J. M. [illegible] & Co., were the principal [illegible] at the regular meeting of the [illegible] Falls Real Estate Board Saturday noon.

Mr. Stehlik spoke concerning [illegible] proper regard property owners should have as to true valuations. In this connection he stated that the Real Estate Board should educate the public to properly appreciate property values and that the board members and their agents should "tell them when they were wrong—when their were too high."

Mr. Bland addressed the realtors concerning a very interesting subject, the matter of an increased valuation of property in Wichita school district as contemplated by the business council and the school board. He said that he was very much in favor, personally, with the Summers system recently installed. Investigation had revealed, he said, that the school board did have it within their power to have two sets of valuations, one for Wichita Falls, the other for the school district, stating that the school district was an independent one.

In speaking of the importance of floating the school bond stress was laid on the need for more schools and better schools.

Attention was called to a large painting showing Lake Kemp and Wichita valley irrigation project.

According to members of the board, and Fred L. Haskett of the chamber of commerce ,the biggest problem confronting Wichita Falls and "boosters" of the irrigation project is "selling the irrigation idea to our own people here in the city and county."

Despite the fact that test after test, numerous chemical analysis and practical experiments on farms in the effected district proving that the water of Lake Kemp is ideal for irrigation uses—the fact yet remains that outsiders coming here to investigate seem easier to "sell" than the local citizenship.

Sell the irrigation idea and keep on selling it seemed to be the "key note of these civic builders.

United North And South's Calahan Has Blowout At 1,000 Ft.

BOOM DEVELOPS

Second Well Near LeFevre District Will Be In This Week

LOCKHART, Mar. 21.—A blowout at 1,000 feet in the United North & South Oil company Callahan No. 1, which broke through 9-inch casing, is yielding what is reported to be 40 degrees gravity Beaume oil each time it is bailed has thrown Caldwell county into a wilder state than was experienced during the opening of the original Luling field. The test is five miles southwest of Lockhart.

44 Square Miles Leased for Million.

The entire district between Lefevre and Storye Brewer No. 1, a 100-barrel well at 1,252 feet, located 10 miles northeast of Lockhart, and the United North & South's Callahan No. 1, covering 44 square miles, is being leased up and several million dollars have been paid for acreage.

Efforts to remove the broken casing have proved futile. A packer and screen was successfully set on five 3-16 inch casing at 2,200 feet before the blowout occurred.

Next Well on Sand Before End of Week.

In the Brewer district, Eagle Drilling company Beaty No. 1, an east offset to Lefevre and Storey's well, was well under way and expected to reach the pay sand early next week. Sun Oil company Gomillion No. 1 was spudded Friday and a half dozen others are expected to start immediately after.

The White Oil company has ordered six rigs to be placed on their acreage near the Brewer well. Flanagan Drilling company, which has contracted for water from Lockhart parties, is distributing seven miles of 2-inch pipe to the field. The line will use the M. K. & T. right of way to Plum Creek, three miles east, and then turn due north to the field four miles.

Doheny Squabbles Over Million Dollars

LOS ANGELES, Calif., March 21.—Another long drawn-out legal battle looms with the filing this week of an equity suit to recover $904,551.62 income taxes from the Doheny interests alleged due the government. Allegations contained in the bill of complaint filed in the U. S. district court set forth failure on the part of the Doheny interests to disclose in their 1919 income tax returns, $2,089,680.98 profits resulting from transfer in that year of the assets of the Doheny Pacific Petroleum company to stockholders of the Pan-American Petroleum of California.

Defendants named in the suit include E. L. Doheny Sr., E. L. Doheny Jr., Mrs. Carrie Estelle Doheny, J. C. Anderson and Olin Wellborn Jr.

Through an agreement with the Pan-American Petroleum & Transport company, it is charged the defendant stockholders received 55,000 shares of its common capital stock valued at $4,007,812.50, together with cash and other considerations amounting to $417,239.79, or a total consideration of $4,425,052.29, in return for their interest in the Doheny Pacific Petroleum company, which, in turn, was transferred to the Pan-American Petroleum of California, a subsidiary of the parent organization.

It is further alleged that the total amount received for the transaction was turned over to the above-named defendant stockholders of the Doheny Pacific Petroleum and that they, with the exception of J. C. Anderson, transferred their Pan-American Petroleum & Transport stock to the Petroleum Securities company, a holding company owned by the members of the Doheny family.

The deficit was discovered, according to the federal attorney, by an audit ordered by the internal revenue commissioner, and the equity suit was instituted.

Salt Dome Gives 10,000 Bbl. Well

Houston, Texas. March 21.—(AP) By far the biggest gusher yet developed in the new south Liberty field, 45 miles east of Houston in Liberty county, roared in late yesterday.

The well, Peer Oil corporation's No. 1- Harrison-Liberty, came in for 10,000 barrels (estimated) open flow from 3,447 feet and just below a rock mantle six feet thick, affording an excellent casing seat. The flow was put on one inch and five eighths inch chokes and actually gunged 3,408 barrels pipeline oil 22 gravity and 80 degrees temperature, regulation standard heavy green oil and indicating long life and great volume.

Location is 100 feet north and a direct offset to the discovery well and on D. J. Harrison 5 1-2 acre lease.

World's Largest Fuel Oil Marketer Insists That Its Use As Combustible Under Boilers Is Misuse

Doheny Says Largest Power Production Should Be Idea In Crude Refining.

LOS ANGELES, March 21.—Despite the fact that he is the largest marketer of fuel oil in the world Edward L. Doheny insists that the use of fuel oil as a combustible under boilers is a misuse of it.

This is a bold statement to come from a man who is reported to hold contracts for the delivery of 40,000,000 barrels of fuel oil a year, but it is Doheny's opinion, based upon the necessity for getting greater power production per barrel of oil.

With petroleum production in the United States slowly declining, and the use of fuel oil rapidly increasing, nearly all of the major marketing companies are trying to get a higher percentage of gasoline, distillate and diesel out of their crude.

Big Return in 1924

The extent to which fuel oil has been adopted in this country may be gathered from the fact that the United States required 375,000,000 tons of all kinds of fuel in 1924 and that 47,000,000 tons of that supply consisted of fuel oil. Last year the oil fields of the United States produced 732,407,000 barrels of petroleum and the refineries of this country turned out 332,000,000 barrels of fuel oil.

In fuel oil consumption last year ocean transportation took the lead, requiring 65,000,000 barrels. The railroads of the country ran a close second, utilizing 55,000,000 barrels. It took 50,000,000 barrels to supply the electric power generating plants. The petroleum refiners used 41,000,000 barrels to furnish the heat with which to operate their stills. Gas manufacturing plants ate up 32,000,000 barrels of fuel oil.

With the demand for fuel oil strong and the price good, refiners were until recently anxious to obtain fuel oil contracts. Now the big marketers are exerting every effort to get more combustion engine fuel out of their crude.

Builds Synthetic Plants.

To this end Doheny recently began work on two big synthetic gasoline plants—one at Terminal, across the river from Tampico, Mexico, and the other at Watson Junction, near Los Angeles harbor. At each place Doheny has a big refinery.

By utilizing the synthetic process, Doheny says, he can get 50 per cent more gasoline from crude oil than he has been able to get under the old refinery system. When asked if this would not withdraw a part of the fuel oil supply from the transportation world, he admitted that it would and expressed no regret thereat.

"The use of residium from a refinery still, as a combustible under a boiler is a misuse of the product," he declares. "As long as seven years ago I wrote a report to the directors of our company in which I deplored the conversion of merchant vessels from the use of coal to the use of steam generated by fuel oil furnaces. At that time I cited the greater efficiency of fuel oil after its conversion into products for use in internal combustion engines. My objection cannot be extended to the Diesel engine, for diesel is a use to which coal cannot be adapted."

Get Big Percentage

Speaking of oil conservation, Doheny makes the broad assertion that the modern refinery gets more than 100 per cent out of each barrel of crude oil.

"From the bottom of the well to the storage tank in which refined products are kept there is absolutely no loss except in inconsequential amount which may be lost during the moments which intervene between the bringing in of the well and the harnessing of it to the pipe line.

"From that time on the well organized refining concern not only saves all of the oil, but whenever any fixed gasses arise from the oil in any of the storage tanks, from crude or refined, it is picked up by vacuum pumps and carried to absorption plants, where the gasoline is recovered and the fixed gases are used as fuel under the boilers.

"Inasmuch as oil is sold by the measure, and since most of its products are higher than the crude, and its heavier products are more or less porous, there is recovered from the modern refinery more than 100 percent of what is run into it, although some of the fixed gases are utilized under the stills and boilers."

Wilbarger Tests Get Well Under Way During Week

Quarter-Mile Eastward Extension Features South Vernon Pool

A quarter mile eastward extension of the 1,300-foot producing horizon featured activity in South Vernon during the week just past while the Waggoner pasture saw a little further rounding out in the wildcatting campaign that is unique in the history o fthe oil industry in that it involves about 65 wildcat tests on one man's land—the farmer usually considering himself more than lucky if he can get a single test on his farm.

Humble's No. 6, Castlebury, was the extension well, a probable 250 barrel producer from sand topped at 1,289 feet. The Atlantic's two tests in the adjoining 40 acres to the east are both drilling at about 1,00 feet and should be down during the week, while just south and east Gulf Production company has lost the hole in its No. 1, Zipperle, after an unsuccessful fishing job at 1,090 feet and is skidding 20 feet east for the next well.

Three Wells Drilling To 2,200-foot Sand

In the central part of the pool three wells on the Ray-Massie Winnipeg and Bridwell-Heydrick leases are drilling well past 2,000 feet for the 2,300-foot pay sand and should be completions within the week.

On the pasture there are four derricks now in the Levy group southeast of South Vernon, Gulf, Atlantic, and Levy Morton all having drilling offsets to the single producer, none of which have more than started.

Last week saw ten derricks over the entire domain in one stage or another of construction, among these being Beatty No. 1 NW of SW of section 47, block 2, Waggoner, spudding; McLester et al No. 1, Waggoner, section 20 block 14, moving on; Schoonmaker et al No. 1, Waggoner, SW of NW of NW of section 27, block 4, derrick building; Root et al No. 1, Waggoner, SW of SE of section 52, block 14, spudding; Consolidated-Staley No. 1, Waggoner, section center of J. Poitevent survey, abstract 531, rigging up cable tools; Consolidated No. 1, Waggoner, section 2, block 4, spudding; No. 1, Waggoner, section 7, block 4, rigging up; Shamrock Oil company No. 1, Waggoner, SW of SE of NE of section 45, block 4, derrick moving on; McKana et al No. 1, Waggoner, SW of section 48, block 14, spudding; McKana No. 1, Waggoner, NE of W half of section 31, pattern on ground.

Atlantic's Redrilling Progressing Nicely

Atlantic's redrilling job is progressing even better than expected, the well—the old Atwood-Reeves hole in section 24, block 14, having been pushed 1,600 feet in less than two days. The drilling was slowed up to minimize the danger of ruining the walls of the hole.

Directly between this well and the Noble well Murchison and Fain are drilling past 765 feet in their No. 1, Waggoner, SW of SE of SE of section 32, block 4. Depths on other wells follow; Wells et al SE of NW of section 21, block 14, digging at 950 feet; Levy-Kane et al, No. 1, Wheeler, SW of NW of NE of section 56, block 14, pipe froze at 1,600 feet, total depth 1,675 feet; Burton Ruff No. 1, Waggoner, drilling at 1,340 feet with casing following the bit, SE of SE of section 49, block 14; Gulf No. 1, Waggoner, NE quarter of section 50, block 14, fishing for 125 feet of 13-inch at 1,463 feet; Bridwell-Heydrick No. 1, Waggoner, section 104, block 14, drilling at 1,675 feet; Kleeden-Smith et al No. 1, Castlebury, SW of SE of section 67, block 14, digging at 400 feet; Gulf No. 1, S. Waggoner, SE of SW of SW of section 5, Magee Kneas survey, abstract 519, digging past 1,934 feet.

Keys-Eslick et al during the week encountered a sand showing oil at 1,428-32 feet in their No. 1, Waggoner, located in section 37, block 14, but passed it up, drilling last at 1,470 feet.

North Wilbarger Is Far From Inactive

North Wilbarger is far from inactive, there being five drilling wells there, four derricks and rigs, and possibly five or six actual locations made. The wells and their last reported depths are Simms No. 1, Collins, section 7, block 10, supdded and shut down for water; Texhoma No. 1, Covert, section 7, block 16, drilling at 1,060 feet; Allday Drilling company section 24, block 16, drilling at 1,810 feet; Hamilton-Shadbolt et al No. 1, Neal, section 34, block 11, drilling at 1,800 feet; Duke, et al No. 1, Archer, section 9, block 16, spudding. Derricks and rigs are Texhoma-Holmes No. 1, Flanicken, section 5, block 16, Holmes -Freeman-Merrit No. 1, Richardson, section 39, block 15, derrick building.

OLNEY DISTRICT EXPERIENCES LISTLESS WEEK WITH FEW BIG WELLS AND LARGE EXTENSIONS

Water Shortage Still Unrelieved Over South Archer And North Young Counties

Another week which failed to lighten the burden of the drouth on field activity and provided only minor extensions and few wells of a size to make them of consequence provided a very listless seven days for the Olney area, including north Young and south Archer county.

Norton and others gave the Gambrell pool a slight westward extension, their No. 1, Doctor Hamilton swabbing better than 200 barrels a day from sand just at 1,200 feet. Sun company's No. 1, Jeske, BBB&CRR survey, abstract 826, just north of the Texhoma's Morrits Phillips producer was showing badly at last reports, on the sand at 1,182 feet to 1,184. The well was being tested yesterday afternoon.

Perkins-Green Testing Good Sand on Powell.

Perkins and Green appear to have good bet in their No. 1, Powell, located in the northeast corner of the west half of block 1586, TE&LCO survey, northeast of Spring Creek, waiting for casing with a seat at 1,342 on sand at 1,344 1-2-47 feet. The sand looks good, although encountered rather low.

Cook and McElreath et al, failed to make a well in sand at 1,426-29, northeast of Megargel, after bailing a little oil from the sand at that depth, and coring broken sand and shale at 1,429-30 feet and passing out of their pay altogether at that depth.

The biggest extension of the week came in the Panhandle-Pace-Muse No. 1, Rogers, in the northwest corner of their lease in the northwest quarter of block 1,506, better than 2,000 feet south of Harmel pool production, and good for at least 125 barrels on the pump from sand encountered rather high just below 1,200 feet.

Carey District Takes Back Seat Past Week.

For the first time in several weeks the Carey district failed to lead in number and size of wells completed East end development is being held up pending standardization of two important tests there. An attempt to spread production several locations to the south is seen in the Petroleum Producers No. 1, Hausler "B", drilling below 1,000, just east of the old Egger and Krog abandoned hole.

In the Litchfield pool Simms completed a 400 barrel well in its No. 7, Carpenter, and obtained a good producer in its No. 1, B, Carpenter. Murchison and Fain's No. 1, Haygood, offsetting Lee Wilson's well to the west is in for a nice well, swabbing better than 400 barrels from sand at just below 1,000 feet.

Nicholson-Fraley Put Wildcat on Pump.

Nicholson and Fraley put their No. 1, Prideaux on the pump and for a day or so had a small flowing well from sand around 600 feet. The well looks as if it should be good for 25 or 30 barrels. Two offsets and near by tests are probable. The well is located in the extreme southeastern part of Archer county some distance from production.

Swastika development received a nice impetus westward with the completion of Clark-Harbin-Bladridge's No. 7, Echols, for a 300 barrel well, and extension to the west of about 400 feet of the producing area.

Mexico Gets 700 Wells During 1924

TAMPICO, Tamps, Mexico, Mar. 21—Seven hundred wells were drilled in Mexico in 1924 for an estimated initial production of 931,730 barrels daily. This excludes about five wells drilled by Mexican Eagle and Mexican Seaboard on the Isthmus of Tehuantepec and in the state of Chiapas. Of these 279 were commercial wells, 277 dry, 111 salt water wells, one a gasser and 92 others abandoned for various reasons. Only 77 of these were in the south, or light oil district, the others being in the north, or heavy oil area.

The best wells brought in were Mexican Seaboard No. 50, Cacalilao, for 35,000 barrels in January, and its No. 99, same hacienda, for 30,000 in September; Transcontinental Petroleum (Standard Oil of N. J.) Nos. 76 and 91, Cacalilao, in June for 10,000 barrels each; No. 118 Cacalilao and No. 13, Paciencia in October for 25,000 and 20,000, respectively, and No. 12, Paciencia in December for 30,000 barrels.

Magnolia Gives Mirando A Mile Extension East

Webb County Test Has Hole Partially Full Of Oil

LAREDO, Mar. 21.—Magnolia Petroleum company has opened what is believed to be a mile extension to the east of the Mirando City-Schott district.

There, No. 3 on block 8, survey 592, Los Ojuelos grant, in Webb county, Texas, has 300 feet of oil standing in the oil from a sand at 1,876 feet. Casing was set at 1,868 feet and bailing began this morning.

The well is exactly one mile southeast of Mirando City and just east of the large gassers of Duggan, Magnolia and Misko Refinery companies. It opens a district that heretofore has been considered dry. Leases are changing hands rapidly with Magnolia the best buyer.

Oklahoma Has 887 Drilling Wells

The total field activity during the past week in the Oklahoma oil fields was represented by 1,490 operations, according to the current issue of The Oil Weekly. This is a slight increase, due to 102 completions, the largest of which was reported by Wewoka-Cromwell district from the Gilcrease-Papoose and Cromwell pools.

The largest part of this total is found in the 240 drilling wells in the Wewoka-Cromwell districts.

SMACKOVER CRUDE CUT

SHREVEPORT, La., March 21.—(AP)—Effective today the Louisiana Oil Refining Company, followed by the Atlantic Oil Producing company and the Shreveport-Eldorado Pipe Line company posted a 15 cent reduction on all grades of Smackover crude. Cotton Valley was also cut to $1.10 by the Louisiana Oil Refining company meeting the Standard's price.

Standard Companies Enter So. America

Anxious to acquire other oil properties in view of the scarcity of new oil lands in the United States, the Standard Oil companies are entering South America. Col. Robert W. Steward, chairman of the board, Standard of Indiana, recently sailed for South America in pursuance of this policy.

Standard Oil is taking over the Colombia Syndicate which holds concession on 1,000,000 acres in Colombia bordering holdings of International Petroleum Co., Ltd., of Canada, which have been proved among the richest oil deposits yet discovered. Atlantic Refining has already made a bid for these properties and Standard of Indiana is mentioned as another bidder for the Colombia Syndicate. Standard Oil is laying a new pipe line into the Colombian fields.

Three and one-half miles south and west, but in Crockett county, and about 12 miles east and south of Barnhart, the Kanawha-Angelo University No. 1, in the southeast quarter of section 9, block 32, was last reported drilling below 2,200 feet, after setting 8 1-4 inch pipe at 3,100 feet. Charles Denney of Putnam is waiting on a wire line before spudding No. 1, D. E. Hughes on the south bank of Spring Creek, 21 miles west of San Angelo, Irion county, and three miles northeast of Sherwood. It is in the center of the east half of block 734, Seb Waltz survey.

University No. 1, in the northwest corner of the northeast quarter of section 13, block 8, two miles south of the Big Lake field, is drilling up four joints of 6 5-8 inch casing down to 3,467 feet. The World Co. Powell No. 1, in the center of section 2, block BB, Crockett county, about five miles southwest of Cosden's test, is fishing for 27 joints of 8 1-4 inch pipe at 2,460 feet. Pete Hoffman No. 1 University, in the northeast corner of section 23, block 11, Reagan county, five miles west and south of Big Lake, is shut down for repairs at 2,040 feet.

Several geological parties are at work in Sterling county and the play is expected to center in that county this summer, located just north of Reagan county. Some six or seven tests will be drilled after the geological work is completed, it is expected.

30th District Courtroom Has Been Scene Of Many "Historic" Murder Trials In Wichita in Past Years

THE transfer of the Collier case from the 30th district court room to the 78th district across the hall—necessitated by the opening here Monday of federal court, removes it from the room in which the four most sensational trials of modern years have been held.

First Was Toussaint

It is an odd fact that all the murder cases now labeled as more or less "historic" have been tried in the 30th district court room. Since the present court house has been built, the chambers and public hall on the west side of the second floor have heard all the "big cases." This room is now shared jointly by Judge H. R. Wilson of the 30th district court and Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court, who is now trying the Collier case.

The first murder trial to attract more than passing interest to this particular court room was the one in which Henry Toussaint was tried for slaying his father in the fall of 1920. In the summer of 1922 Toussaint was tried, convicted and sentenced to death by a jury in the 30th district court. H. F. Weldon, now an attorney here, was presiding judge and H. R. Wilson, who followed Judge Weldon to the bench, was district attorney.

Got Venue Change

Toussaint later gained a new trial and a change of venue to Jones county where he was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment. He is now in Huntsville.

Major W. L. Culberson's trial on a charge of murder growing out of the death of a man named Lamar was held in the same room early in 1923. Culberson charged Lamar, who was a phonograph salesman, had debauched his home and that when he had gone to his place of business to talk matters over with him, Lamar made a motion for his hip. Culberson, a hero of the world war, decorated by Pershing and Foch and cited for bravery, was in court 10 days. The jury in his case was finally discharged, standing 11 to 1 for acquittal. The charges against him was eventually dismissed.

Wayne Adams, too, was tried for murder in the 30th district court room. This case was the least notable of any of the others, but it was of sufficient interest to fill the room every day it was in progress. Adams was charged with having shot a man who lay in his tent in the oil fields. The jury, however, returned a verdict of not guilty.

And Now Collier

And now Frank Collier has gone through at least the letter part of his trial in the same room. Concluding testimony and arguments will be heard in another, but the main start was made where the others were.

All charged with the same offense—murder, the three preceding trials have ended differently. Toussaint got the extreme penalty—death; Adams got off scott free; Culberson got a hung jury.

Janitors Will Be Glad for Finish.

There is one crowd of sturdy yeomen around the court house who daily heap anethma on a public that insists in listening to a recital of the Collier case.

That group is the one known as "janitorial," and which is charged with massaging the floors and otherwise improving the building's appearance each night.

Armed with brushes and buckets, floor-sweep and ire, they invaded the court room Saturday afternoon at the conclusion of the day's labors and rolled up a mountainous pile of newspapers, magazines, banana peel, orange covers, egg shells, empty pop bottles, scattered salt and pepper, apple cores, candy wrappers, bread crusts, chewing gum balls, pop corn et cetera ad infinitum.

It was a real job, clearing away the rubbish—relic of the crowd's mad struggle to gain and then retain seats.

Flapper Amazed How Jury Sleeps.

"Why, do they have to sleep here too?" an amazed flapper, bobbed hair, cream colored hose and skirts of lofty elevation gasped Saturday morning as the 12 jurors in the Collier case filed down from their quarters and took seats in the jury box.

She was assured they did and some of the wise ones around her giggled at such a colossal display of ignorance. She can be forgiven, though, for there are no doubt plenty of others who don't know even the rudiments of jury conduct. And there are still others who are not aware of the care the state of Texas takes of jurors while they are in service.

The court house is provided with two large and commodious jury rooms each on the third floor above the two main court rooms. Twelve comfortable cots, chairs, tables, steel lockers, bath facilities and other accommodations are at their command. The rooms are airy, well ventilated and well heated in wintry weather.

Off duty, which is all the time they are not in the jury box and up until such time as they begin their deliberations on a verdict, the jury's time is its own. Cards are permitted, smoking, of course. They may read anything except press or other reports of the case on which they sit in judgment. Not a line is permitted of that. The sheriff and the bailiff in charge of the jury are obligated to carefully delete all publications taken to the jury room in order to see nothing reaches them.

Meals are taken at a boarding house, cafe, or any place at which arrangements may be made. Thrice daily the 12 men go in a body. They sit at a single table where no one else is permitted to eat.

Traveling to and from the table they still must keep their ranks compact and, above all—they must not talk to or be approached by any one.

This is a paramount rule in every court. Tampering with a jury is a sin little less grave than murder itself and every precaution is taken to guard against such a possibility.

Man Phones To Ask of Verdict.

Notwithstanding the reams of publicity the case has received in the newspapers and the thoroughness with which it has been covered, some there are who don't know yet just where it stands.

A man phoned The Record News office at 10:30 Saturday night to inquire if the Collier jury had reached a verdict yet.

Outside Press Representatives Here.

Two out of town newspapers have staff correspondents covering the trial at present. John Sneed of the Dallas News and Siliman Evans of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, both veteran Texas journalists, are now in town. Larry Jacobs of the Dallas Dispatch was here a few days early in the week.

Other Dallas and Fort Worth newspapers are being protected by Wichita Falls reporters covering the trial for the local paper.

Introducing The "Thirteenth Juror"

The "thirteenth juror" in the Collier case has a task about as difficult not a juror, of course, but is the only man allowed in the jury room and the only one who has direct contact with the men.

In this particular instance he happens to be Deputy Sheriff Bates, who is acting as court bailiff.

Bates it is who must keep his charges in line at all times and see that they walk according to law and the dictates thereof. As shepherd of his flock, he has an exacting and important task.

But his duties do not end with the handling of the jury. During the progress of the case, he it is who summons witnesses, carries the dockets and attends to such other matters as judge or attorneys may wish.

Bates is a court officer important in the extreme and he has already won the approbation of all concerned for the efficient manner in which he has discharged his duties.

Four-day-old Baby Is Looking for Home

Have you a home and want a baby? In room 335 of the Kemp hotel there is a baby that wants a home.

He is a black haired little boy of four days, and has been traveling since he was ten hours old, hunting for a home. He is accompanied by Captain J. T. Lynn, manager of the Lynn Orphan Home of Fort Worth.

Captain Lynn has been in Wichita Falls at other times when he has placed some homeless child in a good place to live. The baby he now has with him, he obtained several days ago and is now trying to find some foster parents for it.

The guardian stresses that only christian people who own their homes need apply for consideration. He will release the baby only through adoption.

Fowler Bible Class Has Birthday Party

The Fowler Bible class of the First Presbyterian church entertained Wednesday with a pretty birthday luncheon.

Peach blossoms and other spring flowers were used in the decorations. Canary birds added to the decoration scheme. Twelve tables were arranged with favors representing the month the guest was born.

During the serving J. S. Pitman played "The Stars and Stripes Forever," this being followed by a continuous sing-song. A song for every month in the year was sung and speeches were made about them.

After the last course was served the guests formed a circle around the room and sang, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds." Dr. Grafton closed the affair with a prayer.

This is the first birthday party that the Fowler class has ever had but from now on it will be an annual affair. The members think that it is a good way of becoming acquainted with all of the members of the church.

The following committees were named; Finance, Kell and Randle; food, Kell, Gaffney, Apple, Butts, Gose, Stewart and Bell; decorating, Roberts, King, Nateley, Thompson, Hyer, Butts, Bolding and Nickel; and program committee, Pitman and Smith.

There was a full house and the proceeds amounted to $200, half of which will go to the girl's expenses on their trip to Austin, where they will attend the state clothing contest; the ladies' portion will be used for the improvement of Hardin Home park.

The directors were Miss Landis, instructor in the D. E. department of the school, and Mrs. Glenn Kincaid of the University club, who served at the piano throughout the evening, accompanied by three other instruments, directed by the Travis orchestra. About 50 people, all local citizens, took part in the play, including 20 odd tiny tots.

Car Beautiful At Model Home—A Nash Sedan

"A beautiful car for a beautiful home." Pictured above is The Record News Home Beautiful as it now appears, showing the official car of the Home Beautiful parked on the side. The lower view is a picture of the model garage which will house the Nash Sedan. "The interior trim work has delayed us quite a bit," said M. D. Walker, builder of the home, yesterday, but with this material being rapidly turned out, the Home Beautiful will be ready for exhibition within a very few days. The new Nash Sedan is a typical companion for the Home Beautiful and could aptly be called the "car beautiful." All those who inspect the home and garage will have an opportunity to see at close quarters one of the most beautiful automobiles in America.

Ponds Laundry to Wash Home Linen

The owners of the new home will have an actual demonstration of just how practical and economical it is to "send it to the laundry." Arrangements have been made with the Wichita Falls laundry to handle all the laundry from the home during exhibition week.

"Less than ten years ago, the laundry was almost solely a 'collar and shirt' business," said Mr. Pond of the Wichita Falls laundry. "Today more shirts and collars are being laundered than ever before but they form only a small percentage of the laundry's total volume. For today all the clothes of the family are washed and ironed by this modern clothes cleaning institution. The whole family bundle is cared for.

"Yet there are so many different varieties of family service that each family is assured of the kind of service it wishes, at a price it can afford to pay. If you desire, you can have everything washed and ironed—the whole bundle returned ready for use. You may have any one of a number of semi-ironed services, or, if you prefer, your clothes will be simply cleansed thoroughly and returned to you damp ready for ironing at home.

"All the facilities of the Wichita Falls laundry will be placed at the disposal of the owners of the Home Beautiful," continued Mr. Pond, "and they, like thousands of other Wichita Falls families, will find it an easy and efficient way to care for laundry worries. Every article, whether it be kitchen towels or the finest of linens or lingerie is handled in a painstaking and careful manner, washed through many changes of rain-soft water."

In addition to radio entertainment, the home beautiful will have a beautiful upright Packard piano, furnished by W. E. Floyd, local representative of the Packard Piano company.

Equip Home With Quick Meal Range

Whoever the lucky owner of The Record News Home Beautiful may be, they will have the opportunity of preparing their very first meal upon the Quick-Meal gas range, which will be installed by the Noble Little Hardware company.

"Owners of the new Quick-Meal are highly enthusiastic over the new model ranges," said an official of the Noble Little company yesterday, "and we are placing the very finest of all in the Home Beautiful. The Quick-Meal range is not only a thing of beauty, but is one of the most practical helps to housekeeping.

"Easy to clean and keep clean—plenty of heat for every purpose and a perfectly even baking oven are features of the Quick-Meal range. Quick-Meal construction assures the owner of a range of a long and useful life and at the same time with the minimum consumption of gas. A kitchen equipped with a Quick-Meal range is never hot and stuffy, but is a cheerful and happy workshop for milady who deserves the best in kitchen equipment.

Noble Little will also furnish the dishes and utensils installed in the Home.

Party in Home Will Benefit Day Nursery

Who would like to give a party in the Home Beautiful during the week of its opening to the public?

The Record News has decided to offer the Home Beautiful to some individual during exhibition week for a party or entertainment. The Home Beautiful will be placed at the complete disposal for one evening of some lucky person who wishes to use the beautiful home for an attractive and novel entertainment.

Here's the offer: Any person or society is eligible for the party privilege in the Home Beautiful, provided they are residents of Wichita Falls. Bids are offered to all interested and the person or society making the highest cash bid will be awarded the use of the Home Beautiful and the special party feature for one evening. All bids must be bona-fide offers and must be mailed to the Home Beautiful Editor of The Record News.

The entire amount of money paid The Record News for the use of the Home Beautiful will be turned over to the building fund of the day nursery, which is being fostered by the Kiwanis club. The expected opening of the Home Beautiful will take place on March 29 unless unforseen delays occur.

Maid service, refreshments and musical entertainment will be furnished for the party or entertainment.

Piggly Wiggly Stores Will Furnish Food

"Will there be anything to eat in the Home Beautiful?" This inquiry has come to the Home Beautiful editor a number of times of late.

The pantry, refrigerator and bread box will be equipped by the Piggly Wiggly, with a complete stock of fresh groceries, meat and bread. The first purchase of food by the owner of the Home Beautiful will be made at the nearest Piggly Wiggly store where the new owner will be the guest of C. C. Wyatt.

Flood Lights Ready For Home Beautiful

Work has been started on the installation of the monster flood lights which will be turned on the Home Beautiful this week and will keep that home in the "broad daylight" 24 hours in the day.

The Wichita Falls Electric company, who are installing the flood lights are making arrangements for a continuous bath of light to be focused upon The Record News Home Beautiful. Everyone who is interested in home building is urged to drive by the Home Beautiful, 1826 Pearl street and see the beautiful home.

The Electric company is also working on the installation of the Serv-el—the famous electric refrigerator for home use. They are planning to install one of the most attractive and practical models in the line and will demonstrate its advantages at the home, during the exhibition week.

Hoover Sweeper Will Clean Home Floors

The Record News Home Beautiful will be kept beautiful for all time with the Hoover Suction Sweeper, which will be installed in the home by the Perkins Timberlake company.

"Not only does the Hoover afford home protection on the rugs and floor coverings and protection from the dangers of dust and dirt that lodges on the floors, but with its handy attachments is able to clean thoroughly the furniture and draperies," said an official of that company yesterday. We are glad indeed that we will have an opportunity to dmonsetrate what a splendid household necessity the Hoover really is.

In addition to the Hoover, the Perkins Timberlake company will furnish the linens for the entire home.

Maxwell to Furnish The Home Beautiful

"Beautiful homes deserve beautiful hardware."

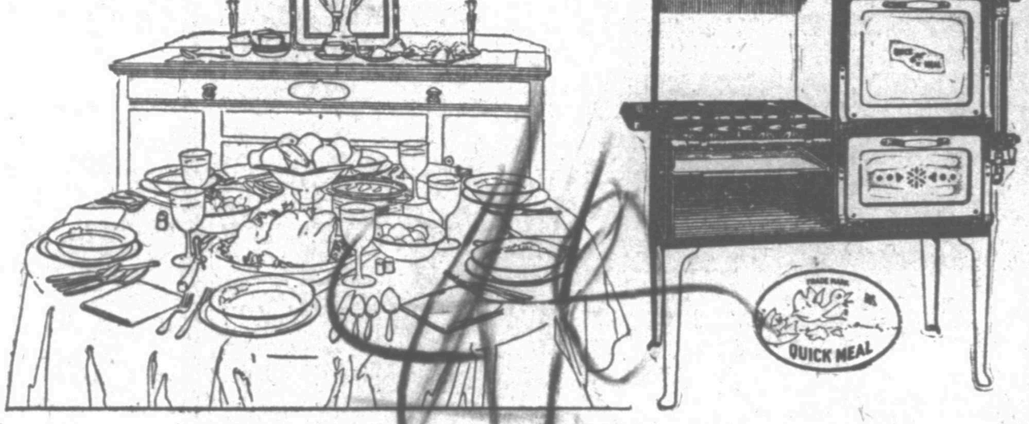

This is the modern adaptation of the famous Corbin slogan to the Home Beautiful. Few people note, on first glance at a home, the actual hardware that goes into a home. The better harmony with the rest of the home that is maintained the less conspicuous are the hardware features.

"The Home Beautiful is being equipped throughout with Corbin hardware," said Mr. Maxwell of Maxwell & Son Hardware company. "When Corbin hardware is installed in any home the worries of the home owner are over, as far as the hardware is concerned. For Corbin hardware and builders' supplies, manufactured by one of the pioneer manufacturers of good hardware will outlast the ordinary home.

Beautiful in appearance, accurately and solidly constructed, and offering a wide range of patterns, Corbin is the first choice of leading builders everywhere."

"Buster Said He Drank, Gambled," Says Defendant

Collier Didn't Know Whether Gun Was Loaded

The courtroom was full, as usual when Judge Martin rapped for order promptly at 9 o'clock. It was noticeable that, with no classes in session in the high school and junior college, many of the spectators of the morning were students. Girls comprised a large part of them.

Mr Collier had been sitting near the bar after he came to the court house. He conversed for a few minutes with friends and then, shortly before 9 o'clock, went into an ante-room with Fred Weeks.

His examination started with the time he went to the Duke home on Bluff street the night of the shooting.

"Mr. Collier, what time was it on the night of Feb. 14 you went to the Duke residence on Bluff?"

"Well, it was some time after 7 o'clock I think."

"When you went there Mr. Collier, did you take a pistol with you "

"No, sir, I did not."

"Where was your pistol when you went to that place?"

"It was at home."

"Had you ever been carrying that gun?"

"No sir, I never did carry it at any time."

"Did you know or have reason to any kind about you?"

"No sir, I did not."

"Did you kno wor have reason to believe that on night you would have any occasion to see Buster Robertson or Mrs. Robertson?"

"No sir, I had no idea there would be any occasion for our meeting at all that night."

"You ate supper at Mrs. Duke's home that night, didn't you Mr. Collier?"

"Yes sir, I did."

"At the supper table or before you went to supper, was anything of any nature at all said about Buster Robertson?"

"No sir, his name was not mentioned at any time."

"After you had finished your meal, what was said, if anything, about Buster?"

"My wife talked to us about him a little."

"Your wife said something about Buster."

"Yes sir."

"Was Mary Frances there at that time?"

"Yes sir, she was."

"Now Mr. Collier, tell the jury what it was your wife told you."

"My wife told me in the presence of Mary Frances that she (Mary Frances) had asked her if Buster could come to see her that night and that she (Mrs. Collier) had said he could not."

"Who said he could not come to see Mary Frances, your wife?"

"Yes sir."

"When she told you that, did you say anything as to your approval or disapproval of what she had done "

"Yes sir. I said he certainly could not come to see Mary Frances and that I didn't want him around the place at all."

Mr. Collier stated that after that conversation he had gone into a back room of the house, a sleeping porch, and had played solitaire. He said he had no telephone calls and had gone back to the room to get away from an argument between Mary Frances and her mother. He said they had quarreled over the refusal of Mrs. Collier to allow Buster to come see the girl. It was about 8:30 he thought, when he went to the sleeping porch and started to bed.

He left, he said, when he heard a commotion in the front part of the house and heard someone call "Frank." His wife was running out of the front door and he seized his hat and coat and followed her.

"At that time, Mr. Collier, did you know your wife had a gun?"

"No sir. I did not."

He testified he did not know where Collier had obtained the weapon; he did not know the cause of commotion and that Mary Frances was nowhere around. He didn't know where she was.

Out in the yard, he related, events transpired just as Mrs. Collier had said they had. She was on the stand Friday afternoon and gave her version of the shooting and its preceding events.

Mr. Collier said he wrested the gun from her and that it was then he told him Buster was coming to get Mary Frances and take her back to her home. She also told him, he testified, that Buster had seduced Mary Frances before they were married and that he had been up on the sleeping porch with her 10 or 12 times.

"You didn't know until that time, then, did you Mr. Collier, that Buster had seduced Mary Frances and that with the exception of that one night Mrs. Collier found him in bed with Mary Frances that he had been on the sleeping porch with her, did you?"

"No sir, I didn't know it until then."

"What did your wife do after she had told you those things?"

"She got into the car."

"Did she say anything?"

"Yes sir."

"What was it?"

"She said she thought we ought to go home and try and find Mary Frances and keep her from going to the Robertsons."

"Did you get in the machine with her?"

"Yes sir, I did."

"When you got in the car there at Mrs. Dukes, did you have any intention at all of going in the direction of the Robertsons or in trying to find Buster or his mother?"

"I certainly did not."

"What did you intend to do?"

"I wanted to find Mary Frances and take her home."

"Then Frank, tell the jury what it had on you, how it and if it bothered you in when your wife told you did about Buster and being together on the and about his having seduced her before they were married."

"It nearly made me crazy and it tore me all to pieces. I cried and I judge that I must have acted like a crazy man because I guess I went clear out of my head. I don't know what I did or said."

Wife Had The Gun

"You said Mrs. Collier had the gun when you left the house?"

"Yes sir."

"And you took it away from her out there in the yard?"

"Yes sir, I did."

"What did you do with it after you got it?"

"I guess I must have put it in my overcoat pocket."

The story of how he and his wife had ridden to their home at 904 Lamar, going from the Duke home at 904 Bluff to Bluff and Tenth, then east on Tenth to Lamar and then north to their house in the middle of the block, was related here. He and his wife kept a sharp watch for Mary Frances but did not see her, and when they got home, found it locked and dark with still no sign of the girl they re-entered their machine and drove away again.

"After you had gotten into your car again, Mr. Collier and left your home, where had you started?"

"I guess we had started for the Robertsons."

"Why did you start to the Robertsons and what did you think you'd do there?"

"We were trying to find Mary Frances."

"Were you keeping any lookout at all for Buster Robertson?"

"No sir, I had no idea at all we'd see anything of him."

"Well Mr. Collier, if you had found Mary Frances, what did you intend to do with her?"

"We'd have taken her back home with us."

"You'd have taken her to your own home and wouldn't have let her go to Buster's, is that correct?"

"Yes sir, we'd have locked her up if we had to to keep her from going to that house."

"Now, Mr. Collier, you say you drove around again to the Duke house, the place from where you started, and then kept going on south down Bluff?"

"Yes sir."

"And you kept looking for Mary Frances but couldn't find her?"

"Yes sir."

"As you got to the corner of Bluff and Eighteenth streets, did any one wave at you?"

Mr. Weeks said [illegible] and Eighteenth, although [illegible] at Bluff and Seventeenth, the subsequent events transpiring.

"You [illegible] waved?"

"Yes sir, [illegible]"

"Who was it?"

"Buster and Mrs. Robertson."

"What did they do that last tell the jury now?"

"They came [illegible] the car and Buster ran up and said 'where's Mary Frances; where's Mary Frances'?"

"You say Buster ran up to your automobile and asked you where your daughter was?"

"Yes sir, he did."

"Now tell the jury, Frank, what was the condition of your mind during that drive down to Seventeenth and Bluff; how did you feel and were you in a normal condition after hearing what your wife had told you about Mary Frances and Buster?"

"After my wife had told me what he had done to my daughter I lost my head and my self control; I guess I didn't know anything."

"Mr. Collier, had you ever shot that gun before?"

"No sir."

"Had you ever had it in your hand before?"

"No sir."

"Did you even know whether it was loaded or not?

"No sir."

"Do you know how many shots you fired that night?"

"I do not."

That simple testimony was all Mr. Collier gave on his direct examination concerning the actual shooting of Robertson. He was not pressed by Mr. Weeks for further details.

The next question inquired if he knew how long it was from the time he first learned from his wife of the seduction of their daughter until he met Buster and his mother on the street corner. He said he didn't know for sure but that it couldn't have been long—six or seven minutes, perhaps. He reiterated under close questioning from his attorney that the first knowledge he had of Buster's relations with his daughter was that night in the Duke front yard as he took the pistol from Mrs. Collier.

"Did you ever ask Mary Frances or Buster if they had ever had relations together?"

"Yes sir, I did."

"You asked Buster if her had, did you?"

"Yes sir I asked Buster if he had ever had any relations with Mary Frances and he said he had not. Later I sked Mary Frances the same thing and she said no."

The manner in which Mr. Collier first found out about the marriage of Buster and Mary Frances was the next taken up. It was established they were married on June 15, 1924, at Walters, Okla., and that Mr. Collier and his wife did not learn of it until January of this year.

"Who told you of their marriage?"

"Mary Frances did."

The details of that revelation, he said, came in the Collier home early one morning. The witness testified he had been negotiating a loan with an insurance firm for whom he was local agent and that he wanted the money to send Mary Frances away to school. He had just received a letter from the company indicating the credit would probably be extended and that he had given this information to his daughter, telling her at the same time it looked like he could send her away to school. Christian college, "in Missouri" was the point he had in mind, he testified.

"When you told Mary Frances you were getting ready to send her away to school, what did she say to you?"

"She said that she didn't want to go away, that she and Buster were married and that she wanted to stay here in Wichita Falls."

The witness then related how, after learning of the marriage, he had instructed Mary Frances to phone Buster and have him come to the house that night to "talk things over."

Buster came up that evening and Mr. Collier, among other things, asked him how he was able to obtain a marriage license since he and Mary Frances were both under age and since he (Collier) had not given his consent to the marriage.

He said Buster told him that he and Mary Frances had gone to Walters with Bouchie Wallace and that Wallace had obtained the license for them.

Mr. Weeks then started out " by Bouchie Wallace I presume you mean the man who was subpoened for your defense and who is now—" but he got no further for an objection from the state shut off further questioning. Judge Martin sustained Mr. Allred's protest and the matter was not pushed.

Buster told him, the former major said, that he knew the marriage was illegal. He also said Buster had admitted to him that he drank and gambled and was not fit to be the husband of Mary Frances. He had had no chance to make good, the witness said Buster told him, because his father and mother had separated and that "an orphan didn't have much of a chance."

Mr. Collier said he questioned Buster closely regarding his family and home affairs and that Buster told him, in reply, that his mother had always had "to get money any way she could." Buster told him, the witness said, that Mrs. Robertson had been married when she was 13 years old and had had her first child when she was 14. She had had ten in all, the witness declared Buster said.

"Did Buster tell you he had ever talked to his mother about conditions

Boy And Girl Marriage Under Age Illegal, But Legal After Living As Man-Wife, He States

W. W. Fischer, Attorney, And District Court Clerk On Stand In Collier Trial Saturday.

F. W. Fischer of the legal firm of Fischer and Fischer took the stand and was questioned by Fred Weeks for Frank Collier's defense Saturday, this section of testimony at the trial having to do with the annullment suit of Mary Frances and Buster Robertson.

"Mr. Fischer, you are a licensed practicing attorney?"

"Yes sir, I am."

"How long has you practiced?"

"Fifteen years."

"Have you practiced law in Oklahoma?"

"I have."

"When did you come from Oklahoma to Texas?"

"In 1919."

"Since then have you practiced law here?"

"Yes."

"Are you a member of the firm, Fischer and Fischer?"

Tells Oklahoma Law.

"Yes sir."

"You are familiar with the marriage laws of Oklahoma?"

"I am."

"Tell the jury of the marriage law then, and in June, 1924, referring to whether or not an official issuing a marriage license is authorized under the law to issue a license for a girl under the age of 18 years without the consent of her parents."

"An officer is not authorized to issue a license to a girl under 18 or a boy under 21 without the parent's consent," stated Mr. Fischer.

"If an official of the law, due to ignorance of age, or through mistake issued a license for a girl under 18 or a boy under 21, without the parents' consent, tell the jury whether the marriage may be voided, and may be set aside."

"Such is the law, and the marriage may be set aside."

The witness was then passed to Jimmy Allred, district attorney, who took up the questioning

"Is the marriage law practically the same in Oklahoma as in Texas?"

"Yes sir."

"When a boy and girl are married under those circumstances have lived together as man and wife is not the marriage then valid?"

"No, the parties concerned could void it if they so desired."

Would Be Legal.

"But if the parties that consummated the marriage did not want to void it, the marriage would be legal, wouldn't it?"

"Yes sir."

"If the parties to the contract agreed, and did not desire to set the marriage aside and wanted to live together as man and wife the marriage would be legal?"

"Yes sir."

Mr. Weeks then asked the witness, "If the parties concerned didn't want to live together and filed suit for annulment, the fact that they had had relations would not prevent annulment, would it?"

"No sir," Mr. Fischer answered to his last question on the stand. He was excused and A. F. Kerr was summoned to the witness stand.

Before he was questioned, however, the defense asked that Bouchie Wallace be summoned. The bailiff was so instructed by Judge Martin and Mr. Kerr was questioned by Fred Weeks.

Stating that he was clerk of the district court, and had held the position for 14 years, he testified that on January 17 he was clerk of the 79th district court where Judge Guy Rogers presided. He said that on January 17, 1925, he had filed Mary Frances' suit for annulment and the waiver of appearance, "exhibit B," purported as signed by Buster Robertson, both on the same day.

He had custody of records that showed the disposition of this and similar cases, he stated, and told the court and jury that the annulment suit was still pending Feb. 14, 1925. He also stated that the suit was to come up in the March term of court, convening the first Monday in March.

On Cross Examination.

Jimmy Allred then took the witness, asking, "Mr. Kerr, records show the suit still pending February 14. This suit is brought by Mary Frances Robertson for the annulment of her marriage to Elzie Dogan Robertson. On the night of February 14, there had not been rendered judgment annuling the marriage, had there?"

"No sir."

"There had been no judgment showing the marriage null and void?"

"No sir."

"Do the records show a cost deposit of $5 made by Frank Collier?"

"Yes, $5 or $10, I don't remember which."

Fred Weeks then asked the witness to tell the jury whether the suit was dismissed or pending, but an objection was sustained. A short recess was granted.

Ex-Mayor Under Terrific State Bombardment

Cross-Exam. Of Collier Bitter And Pitiless

District Attorney Allred and Bernard Martin held an earnest conversation in their chairs before the state cross-examination of Frank Collier began Saturday morning and after they had come in from an earlier conference in an ante-room. They were granted a brief recess by Judge Martin. During the time they were gone Mr. Collier sat stoically in the witness box and looked at the crowd.

Mr. Martin did the examining of the witness.

He started out with the early visits of Buster to the Collier home. Mr. Collier said he had known the boy about two years, meeting him first at the house when he came with Mary Frances. Neither Mr. Collier nor his wife had ever been particularly impressed with the youth, Mr. Collier said, and while "he guessed he was an average boy" he had never deemed him exceptionally agreeable.

Asked if Buster had not come frequently and regularly the first two years, Mr. Collier said no, he had not. He said he and his wife objected from the first to his coming but that upon the invitation of their daughter he continued to appear now and then. Both Buster and Mary Frances were fond of dancing and were better than the average. Part of the time, he said, he declined to allow the boy to come around, and then seeing that this had no effect in keeping him away, he later permitted him to come, hoping that by continuing they might finally have a falling out themselves and thus break up their romance.

This failed, he said and Mary Frances continued to meet Buster by having dates with other boys, who would come to the house to get her and then take her to see Buster. He said he thought Buster usually sent the boys to their home and that they did not come on Mary Frances' request.

"Through all that, then, Mr. Collier," Mr. Martin asked, "you saw a deep seated and constantly growing love between Buster and Mary Frances, didn't you. For two years back you saw that affection and attachment growing; isn't it a fact that you did?"

Didn't Think it Love.

"Well, no sir. I thought Mary Frances had better judgment than to care for the boy to want to go and marry him."

"You thought she had better judgment than to do that, but you saw she loved him just the same, didn't you?"

"No sir, I didn't think she loved him."

"Well how did you explain the regard and attachment she had for him then. He kept coming to see her and she was always glad to see him, wasn't she?"

"He was a good dancer and Mary Frances enjoyed dancing; I thought maybe she just enjoyed dancing with him and that that was why she wanted to go with him."

Questions and answers regarding the school day meetings of the two then came and Mr. Collier denied he and Mrs. Collier had ever driven out to the Junior college and left some money with Buster to be given Mary Frances for lunch. She had gone away from home that morning without getting any change. Mr. Martin implied by his questions, and he wanted to make sure if the former mayor and his wife had not gone to the school grounds, found Buster in the grocery store near there and given him some money for the girl. He flatly denied this, and also denied that on another occasion he had taken some school books Mary Frances had forgotten to carry when she left home and given them to Buster at school to be given to the girl.

When Mr. Collier denied that there was so Mr. Martin asked:

"Do you swear it is not so, Mr. Collier?"

"To the best of my knowledge and belief it is not so."

Buster "might have been agreeable to some people," but he was not to Mr. and Mrs. Collier, he said when questioned as to the meetings he had with Buster in his home. This led up to the matter of punishment visited by Mr. Collier on his daughter for her association with the boy.

He admitted he had whipped her "over Buster," and then Mr. Martin asked if it was before or after she was married that he had done this. Mr. Collier was not certain, and said he had whipped her two or three times and couldn't remember exactly when it was. He thought, however, it must have been after she was married last June.

"In spite of those whippings you gave her, Mr. Collier, Mary Frances and Buster continued to go together did they not?"

"Yes, they were together some."

"And you failed to crush their love by those whippings and these other methods you tried, isn't that so?"

"Well, I didn't think they loved each other; they were together, though."

Tells of Visits

The times Mr. Collier was supposed to have allowed Buster to come to his house and see the girl were next touched on. He said, in reply to questions, he had never given his consent to the boy's coming once or twice a week, although he did show up that often.

"Didn't you once tell Mary Frances that if Buster kept coming to see her she'd have to give up her pretty clothes and would have to stop dancing altogether?"

"No sir, I did talk to her and Buster about their dancing and said I thought they were just infatuated because they could dance well together. I asked them to give up their dancing and they agreed they would stop—and did stop."

Mary Frances went to several dances with other boys, he said, but he didn't know whether she and Buster danced together or not.

This brought their actions up to last Christmas and the holiday season when Mr. Collier said he didn't know whether Buster had come to see the girl during that time or not. They were friendly and attached, though, Mr. Martin indicated in his questions.

"You knew, didn't you Mr. Collier that Mary Frances and Buster were friendly and that she gave him a little present at Christmas and also gave Mrs. Robertson a little present—a little vase, don't you know that?"

"No, I didn't know she gave him anything and I didn't know about the vase."

"You paid for it didn't you?"

"I reckon I paid for it all right, but I didnt know anything about its being bought."

An objection was made by Weeks to this and was sustained by the court. While the argument was in progress, or rather after it had subsided, Mr. Collier voluntarily spoke up and said he had never heard of the Christmas present before.

He then said it was either the fourteenth or fifteenth of January that Mary Frances told him she had been married and that the same night was the first time Buster had come down at his request to talk things over.

"Isn't it a fact, Mr. Collier, that you had suspicions about Mary Frances being married before she told you?"

"No sir, I didn't have any."

"Isn't it a fact that you knew about a note that was found in your house and which Elzie had written to Mary Frances. Didn't you see that note?"

"No sir, I don't know anything about such a note. I don't remember anything like it at all."

"You don't. Well, I'll refresh your memory a little. Isn't it a fact that your wife found a note in your house, written by Elzie to Mary C., in which he spoke to her about the little home they were going to have some day?"

"No sir, it is not; I never saw or heard about such a note."

He was then asked if he was not "mad" at Buster for having married Mary Frances secretly. He said no, he wasn't mad, but that it broke his heart and hurt him greatly. A long period of questioning failed to shake him in his declaration that he was not mad, although he said he did not "feel very kindly."

Discuss Annulment

The questioning was then switched to the annulment proceedings started by the defendant, and upon that issue the state dwelt for perhaps 20 minutes. Every conceivable angle of the thing was brought out by Mr. Martin, the final result of which left Mr. Collier firmly asserting he had obtained from Buster Robertson an agreement for the suit and that he had never told after time. The defendant, however, continued to deny such an arrangement and stated that Buster and Mary Frances agreed to the annulment without such a promise.

Collier answered steadily all questions, showing no excitement but frequently a little impatience at Mr. Martin's insistence. His voice was low and he leaned forward in his chair as though tired, his face showing heavy wrinkles.

Mr. Martin questioned the defendant carefully as to all details leading to and surrounding the shooting.

"Don't you remember the screams of Mrs. Robertson or her calling, 'don't murder my child'?"

"No, I don't remember."

"Could she have said that?"

"I guess so."

"Didn't you fire into the boy's body from the ground?"

"I don't know."

"Don't you know whether or not you stood flat footed on the ground when you shot him?"

"I don't know."

"You don't deny being on the ground after he talked to you?"

"The only thing I remember after he asked for Mary Frances was when the officer asked me for the gun."

"Don't you remember the mother screaming 'please don't shoot him any more, he's already dead'?"

"I don't remember anything about it," Collier persisted doggedly.

"How was it that you shot two shots over the heart and the others in the side four inches or more from the spine?"

"I don't know, I don't know w he was shot."

"Do you deny that you shot with the gun right against his h the first time?"

"I don't know, I may have."

"Do you deny that the gun right against his overcoat once?"

"I don't know."

"Do you deny that you shot when he was on the ground?"

"No sir, I don't deny it, I know."

"Isn't it true that Buster d make a move to hurt you when shot him?"

"Not that I know of."

"Isn't it true that you knew boy was afraid of you?"

"No."

"You never threatened him came back again to see Frances?"

"No sir."

Which overcoat pocket did you the gun in?"

Witnesses Staunch In Defense Of Mrs. Robertson

Rebuttal Hears Insistence Her Character Good

Frank Collier's defense rested at 1:34 Saturday afternoon—with the exception, of course, of rebuttal testimony. Only one defense witness was called to the stand in the afternoon session, that one being Bouchie Wallace, who was in the chair less than 5 minutes.

With the closing of the defense, the state immediately launched an attack designed to blow up the defense claims that the homes maintained in Wichita Falls by Mrs. Hattie Robertson were places of immorality and were not such as a girl of moral worth should not visit. To that end they called a number of witnesses to the stand during the afternoon and sought to prove by them that Mrs. Robertson's general reputation for virtue and chastity, as well as that regarding her as a peaceable and law abiding citizen was good.

Neighbors of Mrs. Robertson when she lived in the 600 block Lee street, in the 2000 block Ninth and the 1300 block Eighteenth came in long procession to tell, under questioning from Mr. Allred and Mr. Martin, that they had lived near her or had had some dealing with her and they they had never found anything out of the way in her own conduct or in the way in which she maintained her homes.

Questioned In Detail.

With these witnesses, the defense dealt in detail and from each sought information as to just how intimately they knew Mrs. Robertson. The rigid cross examination, conducted by Mr. Cummings, went closely into their relationships with the woman whose character has been attacked.

The first person brought to the stand was Mrs. J. F. Henry, who testified that she lived at 305 Cleveland avenue, Amarillo, Texas. Her testimony as to the general reputation of Mrs. Robertson went in over the protests of the defense, but it probably cut but little figure either way.

Mrs. Robertson had once lived in Amarillo, it seemed, and Mrs. Henry had known of her there. Before the questioning of her had gone very far Mr. Weeks and Mr. Cummings objected because she said it had been a number of years since she had heard of Mrs. Robertson.

She had never known Mrs. Robertson personally, she said, and it had been probably 12 years since Mrs. Robertson was in Amarillo. Mr. Weeks, in his argument to Judge Martin, held that the court on Friday had limited the defense to a certain period of years over which evidence would be admissable and that the testimony of this witness was covering a period too far back to be given consideration.

Judge Martin overruled the objection, to which an bill of exception was taken and Mrs. Henry said that so far as she knew, Mrs. Robertson's reputation in Amarillo was good.

On cross examination the witness admitted she wasn't even sure as to whether she had ever seen the witness or not. She did not know, of course, what Mrs. Robertson had been doing since her removal from the Panhandle city.

Simple answers of "yes" or "no" were hard to get from the next few persons to take the stand and state, defense and court labored long and unanimiously in an effort to get answers confirming to the law. The difficulty came up when the state called for answers to the question "do you know the general reputation of Mrs. Hattie Robertson as to whether or not she is a peaceable, law-abiding citizen; and do you know her reputation as to virtue, chastity and morality?"

Lawyers Labor Hard.

The form of the question naturally calls for but one of two answers—"yes" or "no." The law decrees that it shall be answered in that way. After that, if a positive answer be given, the witness is asked whether that reputation is good or bad.

Three witnesses in a row took the stand yesterday, however, and had a hard time trying to understand they must not tell what the reputation was until they had first answered as to whether or not they knew what it was. Mr. Allred and Mr. Martin patiently explained time and again; the defense attorneys made suggestions; and finally Judge Martin himself made some explanations.

K. Anderson, contractor living at 506 Lee street, and who testified he was 55 years old was the second state witness to appear. He said he knew Mrs. Robertson when she lived on Lee street and lived within 200 feet of her home for about four years. He understood that her business was that of running a tailoring shop.

"Now, Mr. Anderson, do you know the general reputation of Mrs. Hattie Robertson as to whether she is a peaceable and law abiding citizen; and by general reputation; I mean what people who know her say about her; and, do you know her general reputation as to her being a woman of virtue and chastity?"

"Why, it's good."

The defense, of course, objected.

"I don't want you to tell what it is, Mr. Anderson, but answer 'yes' or 'no,' do you know her general reputation?"

"It's good," and Mr. Anderson, half rising in his seat gave a crescendo inflection to the last word that carried far and wide.

Finally, after more labor on the part of the district attorney, the witness answered "yes" to the question as to knowing her reputation. Then he said it was "good."

The defense made about five objections during this, and was sustained each time.

Asked if he had ever seen Mrs. Robertson doing anything about her home on Lee street, such as working, he elaborated in some detail to the effect that he'd seen washing hanging on the line behind her house at night and on Sundays, and that he thought she later took these clean clothes to her tailor shop for repairing and pressing.

Mr. Cummings took the witness in hand on cross examination.

"Did you ever go into Mrs. Robertson's house when she lived on Lee street?"

"No, I never did."

"And you never were around her much at all, were you?"

"Why, no sir, I never did see a lot of her."

"You aren't out much at night and weren't around her place after dark, were you Mr. Anderson?"

"No, I'm not out much at night any more."

"You said you were 65 years of age, I believe?"

"Yes sir."

"Well now, with a man of your age, most of the women you know have pretty good reputations, don't they?"

"Well, I've heard some that weren't up to that."

The court room tittered slightly and then shut up, evidently mindful of the warning Judge Martin had issued Friday that any more disturbances would bring closed doors for the rest of the trial.

The examination proceeded and Mr. Cummings inquired if the witness had ever seen Mrs. Robertson after she moved from Lee street. He said he saw her once, the day her son was buried. He said he knew nothing of the houses she kept on Ninth street and Eighteenth street. Neither had he seen any woman staying around Mrs. Robertson's place on Lee. He did not know a man named Banks nor one named Rousey, and couldn't say if Rousey had ever visited Mrs. Robertson's house or not.

Red Headed Niece Again.

A "red headed niece" came to the fore here, as did a bed in the back yard of the home on Lee. Evidence stating that one was there was introduced earlier in the trial. Mr. Anderson, after a long period of argument in which the jury moved out of earshot and at the close of which the evidence was admitted, said if a red headed niece of Mrs. Robertson's had ever stayed with her there he didn't know it.

Asked if acts such as were reported to have gone on at Mrs. Robertson's house really happened he would still think Mrs. Robertson's reputation good he said he guessed he would not.

Following Mr. Anderson was W. E. George, city attorney of Wichita Falls, a practicing attorney before the Wichita county bar and the one who filed the annulment proceedings against Buster after Mr. Collier had learned of the marriage. The state, during its cross examination of Mr. Collier in the morning, had sought without success to bring from him an admission that when the annulment papers were filed, he had told Mr. George substantially that "Buster and Mary Frances are just kids; when they get a little older it may be different."

The lawyers split hairs over this question. Mr. Collier and his attorneys contended all along that the former mayor had never agreed to a marriage between Buster and Mary Frances, even if their love endured when they grew older and Buster "made good." On the other hand, the state set up the contention that such an admission had been made.

Mr. George told of the visit of Mr. Collier and Mary Frances to his office one day in January and of the conversation he had had with Mr. Collier relative to the marriage then existing. Mr. George could not remember exactly what the that-time mayor's remarks to him were but said that to the best of his recollection, Mr. Collier said Buster had voiced no protest against the filing of the suit. He said that he had told all he knew of the entire affair to the grand jury when he was summoned before it. The grand jury minutes, which Mr. Allred had at the table, were then given him and he was asked to read his testimony.

Declare State Scored.

In substance, it was that Mr. Collier had told him Mary Frances and Buster were "just kids then and were too young to be married: if they wanted to marry again in a year or two it might be different."

Mr. George said that was a correct report of Mr. Collier's statements to him so far as he could remember.

When the cross-examination came, Mr. Cummings pressed Mr. George as to whether Mr. Collier had said he would make no objection to the marriage in a year or two and the witness said he recollected nothing at all of a statement to that effect.

R. T. Holeman Called.

R. T. Holeman, who said he now lived at 1708 Austin but who had formerly resided at 507 Lee street, came next. For 10 years he had operated a grocery store in the 500 block Lee street and had lived for two and a half or three years within 60 feet of Mrs. Robertson's home. He knew her general reputation, he said, and when asked to state whether it was good or bad said he "would have to say it was good."

The same thing applied to both her reputation as a peaceable and law abiding citizen and that with reference to her virtue or chastity. Mrs. Robertson came to his store, he said, and because of the proximity of their two houses he had occasion to observe her frequently at her own home.

The witness testified on cross examination, he "had heard several persons discuss Mrs. Robertson's reputation," but when pinned down by Mr. Cummings was unable to recall who they were. He knew nothing of the back yard bed, nor of the visits of Rousey to the place. Neither had he heard or seen anything of the red-headed niece from Olney that Rousey testified visited Mrs. Robertson's home.

"Is the name Viola Wilburn familiar to you, Mr. Holeman?" he was asked.

"No sir; I never heard of it before."

"Do you know Rousey?"

"Yes, I think so."

"Did he, to your knowledge, ever visit Mrs. Robertson's while she lived on Lee street?"

"I never saw Rousey hanging around there at all."

The witness said, finally, all he had ever heard about Mrs. Robertson was that "she had a hard time making a living." He had never been to her houses on Ninth and Eighteenth streets, he testified.

"What do you mean, nothing out of the ordinary?"

Before the witness could answer, an objection was interposed from the defense. When it had been overruled Mr. Morgan said he sometimes saw three or four around the house.

Mr. Cummings asked the witness if he knew Sis Downing, Mrs. Mullins, Mac McKay, Tadlock, Box, Banks and Windham, names which figured in the defense testimony and he said he had heard of none of them. He would not testify that he knew they never were at the home.

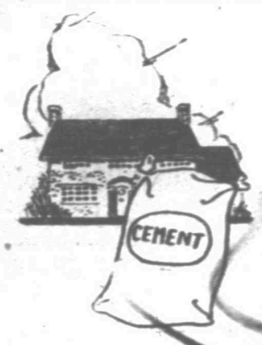

A 10 minute recess was granted at

A Thrifty Soda Pop Hustler On Hand At Trial

THE crowd that was waiting when court opened at 9 o'clock in the morning was still on hand when it convened again at 1:30. There were probably not 50 people out of the entire throng behind the rail and in the gallery that forsook their seats. They munched sandwiches, fruit and candy; drank soda pop, which an enterprising concession dealer, brought to the court room, read the papers and magazines; and amused themselves as best they might.

In the meantime, 50 or more persons in the lobby outside the room waited in a vain hope that sooner or later they could slip in and find some place to sit and listen. Most of them were disappointed. Those inside proposed to stay—and stay they did.

Economy In Home Ownership

Why Enrich a Landlord

If there was not a big profit in buying and renting houses and apartments the landlords would not be in the business—why should you help to make one rich? Own your own home and use the profit you hand over to the landlords to help pay for it.

You've been putting money into the pockets of the landlords for years and what have you to show for it? A lot of rent receipts, that's all.

We Furnish Everything

You don't have to go on for months and sometimes years paying for a small plot of ground that is not bringing in one cent and you are continually paying out for taxes and interest before you can start your home; we'll sell you the lot, furnish the lumber, build the house and insure it for you, all-in-one—you move right into your own home—the easy installments will involve practically no larger outlay than you are paying right now to the LANDLORD.

COLLIER DIRECT

in their home or whether he ever approved or disapproved the things that went on there?"

"He said he knew that women were there in the house that were not the right kind, but that his mother had to get money in some way so he guessed maybe it was all right."

The divorce of Mrs. Robertson and her husband, Collier said Buster told him, came after Mr. Robertson had objected to his wife "going out with other men. There was also some kind of shooting scrape before the divorce, Mr. Collier said the lad had told him."

One of the very important parts of his testimony came at this point when the annulment petition filed by Mr. Collier a few days after hearing of his daughter's marriage was brought up.

"You say, Mr. Collier, that when you learned of Mary Frances' marriage you called Buster to your home, or had Mary Frances call him, and talked to him there?"

"Yes sir."

"Did he agree to anything in those talks and did you mention anything to him about annuling the marriage?"

"Yes sir, I told him I thought it ought to be annuled and he agreed to it."

"He agreed to that himself, did he?"

"Yes sir, he did."

"Did you ask him to stay away from Mary Frances after that and did he consent to let her alone?"

"Yes sir, he said he'd stay away from her and they would not try to see each other any more."

"After that, Mr. Collier, did you ever give your consent to his coming to see Mary Frances?"

"No sir, I did not."

"On the night of the shooting, Mr. Collier, did you agree with any one to go to Mrs. Robertson's house and see her or Buster?"

"No sir, I did not."

"Did you have anything to talk to Mrs. Robertson about?"

"I did not."

"Did you want to see Mrs. Robertson or Buster?"

"No sir I didn't want to see either one."

This ended the direct examination and Mr. Collier was turned over to the state for cross-questioning. He had been on the stand 25 minutes in the morning which, with the half hour in which he was examined Friday afternoon made 55 minutes in which he was actually in the hands of his own attorney.

COLLIER CROSS-EXAMINATION

"Isn't it a fact that Mrs. Robertson picked up her boy's head, placed it in her lap, crying, 'you've killed him in cold blood'?"

"I don't know," came the accustomed answer.

"Isn't it a fact that Bob Windham touched you on the arm and said 'don't shoot him any more, he's dead'?"

"I don't know."

"Did he tell you he was an officer and ask you for your gun?"

"Yes sir.'

"Did you give it to him?"

"Yes sir."

"How do you know?"

"I remember."

"Did you tell him to phone your friends, or tell George Lawler to do it?"

"I don't know."

"Didn't your wife say, Frank, back up this car so she can see he is dead'?"

"I don't think so. I don't think Mrs. Collier was out of the car," the witness continued, "but she told me at one time to get back in the car."

"How do you know?"

"Well, Bob came back from phoning for the ambulance and she told me that. I was out of the car then, standing by the door of the car."

"After the shooting, didn't you lend your assistance?" asked Mr. Martin.

"No, I didn't do anything, Bob was there."

"Do you deny that Mrs. Collier told you to back up the car so Mrs. Robertson could see?"

"Yes, she didn't say that to me."

"Do you remember well enough to know she didn't?"

"I don't think she did."

"That's your best judgement, Mr. Collier?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then, you got in the car and drove Mr. Windham and your wife to the courthouse?"

"Yes sir."

"And you made bond that night?"

"Yes sir."

The prosecuting attorney asked him repeatedly if he, when he and Buster talked things over the night following Mary Frances' disclosure of their marriage, had not agreed that the two could be married again some day if they still loved each other as they grew older. Mr. Collier said he had not agreed to any such thing and denied he had ever told W. E. George, city attorney, who filed the annulment papers for him, that such an agreement had been reached with Buster.

Buster, he said, was agreeable to the suit from the start.

Juror Gets Letter

"Isn't it a fact that about a month before the killing Buster was there to see Mary Frances in your home and you saw Buster put his arm around her and that she put her arm around him and that he kissed his own wife in your presence?"

"Yes, sir."

"And the night that Jack Story and Margaret Smith were at your home, coming there on their way to a dance, didn't Mary Frances and Buster conduct themselves as before, and didn't you come down the stairway and get after them for it?"

"No, I didn't see anything like that."

At this point Judge Martin stated that he had received a letter addressed to one of the jurors, and that with the consent of the counsel and Mr. Collier he would deliver the letter provided the juror consented to Judge Martin opening and reading it to be sure that it contained nothing bearing on the case.

Mr. Collier and the attorneys consented, and Mr. Minnick, the juror, consented readily to a perusal of the letter by Judge Martin.

Continuing, Mr. Martin asked, "On the night you said Mary Frances was at a party at Mr. Gohlke's home, didn't you drive up in your car, see Mary Frances talking to Buster, and getting a crank out of your car, go into the yard?"

"Yes sir."

Collier's Mind A Perfect Blank At Time Son-in-law Was Killed; Remembers Nothing Until Officer Took Gun

HEREWITH is the cross-examination of Frank Collier as conducted by Bernard Martin for the state covering the actual killing of Buster Robertson, his son-in-law.

As shown in the testimony, the ex-mayor remembers nothing except that "I shot him" and he remembers he shot him because "I had the gun in my hand when the officer took it away from me."

Collier seemed to remember nothing after the car stopped and according to hiss tatement, Mrs. Robertson and Buster came to the side of the car, Buster asking, "Where's Mary Frances?"

"When Buster said something about Mary Frances not being there, did you open the car door and get out?" asked Mr. Martin after a long line of questions as to former incidents.

"I don't know."

"Why did you take the car crank with you?"

"I wanted to scare him away."

"Did you take the crank to scare him away?"

"I thought it would scare him more."

"Did you draw back your arm to hit the boy?"

"No sir."

"You didn't start to hit him with the crank?"

"No sir."

"Didn't you sort of draw back your arm, and didn't Buster duck and run?"

"Yes, I pulled my arm back to scare him and he ran."

"Didn't you intend to hit him really?"

"No."

Leaning forward tensely Mr. Martin asked in a low voice, "Mr. Collier, didn't you intend to hit that boy in the head with that crank if he didn't run?"

"No sir, I did not.' '

"Didn't you hit Buster with your fist at home one time and run him away from the house?"

"Yes, I hit him and told him not to come back."

"If you scared him away once with your fist why did you take the crank into the yard with you?"

"I thought I might scare him more."

"You were mad at him, weren't you?"

"No."

"Were you sore at him?"

"Well, yes."

"You saw him on the streets of Wichita Falls later, didn't you, and didn't he run from you afraid you'd get him?"

"No sir."

"Now," continued Mr. Martin, "when you came back from Austin they told you about Buster being found in bed with Mary Frances?"

"Yes sir."

"And the suit for annulment was filed at that time?"

"Yes sir, I thought that when the annulment suit was filed, he ought to stay away from her."

"You wouldn't even let him come in the front door of your home?"

"No sir, I told him not to come back."

"You knew he was afraid to come, didn't you?"

"I don't know."

"Isn't it a fact that you kept Mary Frances in seclusion, or in the constant presence of you or your wife all of the time after this?"

"No, I did not."

"Don't you know that Mary Frances was not permitted to go anywhere without you or your wife?"

"No, she went to places with her girl friends. There was hardly a day that she did not leave the house to go somewhere."

The state in cross examining Collier went carefully over the ground of the happenings at the Duke home the defendant's questions revealing practically the same information brought out in the examination by the defense. Collier denied that Mrs. Duke had been subpoenaed as a witness for the defense in the trial, and stated that he didn't know it if she left town purposely before the grand jury convened.

Later, Mr. Martin pressed vigorously the annulment suit, firing many times during the questioning, the inquiry, "Didn't you tell Mary Frances and Buster if they would annul the marriage you would permit them to marry again later?" The question was framed in many different ways and recurred time

"You knew from what Mrs. Collier said that she was as bitterly opposed to the marriage of Buster and Mary Frances as you were?"

"Well, yes."

Here the defense objected to questioning the defendant about the opinion of another person and Judge Martin sustained the objection.

Objection Sustained.

"Had she expressed her opinion on about disliking Buster,' continued Mr. Martin, 'but before Mr. Collier could reply, the defense made objection to the questioning concerning Mrs. Collier's hate, which was sustained.

This ended Frank Collier's cross-examination and he left the stand slowly upon being excused, making his way down to his attorneys.

"Don't you remember getting out?"

"I don't know."

"Did you get out as Mrs. Robertson and Buster walked up and did Mrs. Robertson walk right up to you, reach out her hand and speak to you and start to shake hands, and did you refuse to shake hands with her?

"I don't remember."

"Did you say, Mrs. Robertson, what are you going to do about Buster and Mary Frances?"

"I don't remember.

"Did she say, I'm going to do all I can to make Buster and Mary Frances a happy home?"

"I don't know."

"Did she say, "I assure you that Mary Frances will never be mistreated as long as she lives?"

"I don't remember."

"Do you deny it?"

"I don't know anything about it."

"Did you turn from her to Buster, and take him by the arm and say, Buster, you're the one I want to see?"

"I don't know whether I took hold of him or not."

"Do you know you shot him?"

"Yes, I shot him."

"How do you know?

"I had the gun in my hand when the officer took it away from me."

"How do you know the officer took it from you?

"I remember that."

"What else do you remember?"

"That's about all."

"Do you know that you reached out and caught hold of Buster and said, 'Buster, you're the one I want to see' and that Buster said, 'O mother, he's going to murder me?'"

"No, Sir, when my wife told me what he had done to my daughter I lost my mind—lost my head completely."

REBUTTAL

this point and Will Bryan, member of the city police force, was the next man on the stand.

He testified as to his length of service as a peace officer in the county, which was 15 or 16 years, and said he had known Mrs. Robertson about two years. He had had some tailoring work done at her shop on one occasion and also knew a couple of the Robertson children. Mrs. Robertson's reputation, as he knew it, was good.

"Did you ever have occasion to go to Mrs. Robertson's house after Mrs. George Lawler once phoned the city hall about a disturbance there?" he was asked.

He said he had gone on the raid after a report had come in, but he didn't know who sent it.

"All right, Mr. Bryant, just explain to the jury what happened on that trip."

"From the reports we got, it sounded like a wild party so when we got there one man went to the back and the other two to the front.

"We went up on the front porch and I put my hand on the door knob and pushed a little to see if it was locked."

"What time was that, Mr. Bryan?"

"It was about 2:30 or 3 o'clock."

"In the afternoon, you mean?"

"Yes sir."

"All right, go ahead."

"Well, when I pushed the door swung open and we walked right into the room. I went ahead and had got half way through the place when Mrs. Robertson came out of a door and asked us what was the trouble. We told her that was just what we were down there for, to find out, and that we wanted to look around. She said 'go right ahead' so we looked through the house."

"What did you find?"

"Well, there were two ladies in Mrs. Robertson's room and one of them was sitting on the side of the bed crocheting. There was a man in another room, but I didn't know him."

"Did you know either of the ladies?"

"I did not."

"Mr. Byran did you see any whiskey there that time?"

"We did not, nor smelled any either."

"Did you make any arrests?"

"No sir."

"Did you see anything at all out of the way?"

"No sir."

When cross examination started, Mr. Cummings asked who that man was he found in the house and the officer said he was told it was the husband of one of the women. He had brought her to Mrs. Robertson's to have a dress fitted, Bryan said he was told.

A warm rumpus developed between Mr. Cummings and Mr. Bryan when the attorney took exception to the manner in which the officer answered some of the questions put to him. At one point Mr. Cummings asked Judge Martin to compel the witness to answer a question put by him as to the length of time he (Bryan) had ever actually been with Mrs. Robertson. After figuring up the minutes Bryan testified he had been around the woman, once in the tailor shop and later in her house at the time of the visit of the officers, the lawyer thought they would total about ten. He asked Bryan if that were correct and it was a give and take affair for a few minutes.

Bryan said he did not know Mrs. Mullins, did not know Sis Downing but had heard of Tadlock and Box.

James Morgan, a grocer who lives in the 1300-block Eighteenth street, testified he resided next door to Mrs. Robertson and that in all his time there had never known anything out of the way as having gone on in her home. He was one of the witnesses who had difficulty getting his "yes" and "no" in at the right time. After the necessity of stating whether he knew Mrs. Robertson's reputation by simply saying "yes" or "no" had been explained he said "no," he did not know her reputation.

He had never heard it discussed and observed that "he didn't know if she had a reputation at all."

"Did you ever see any one in Mrs. Robertson's home violating the law?"

"No."

"Did you ever see anyone there drinking whiskey?"

"No."

"Did you ever see any drunk persons there?"

"No."

"Did you ever see or hear of any boistrous parties there "

"No."

"Did you ever see any large congregations of women about the place?"

"No."

"Did you ever see any large aggregation of automobiles parked outside the house?"

"Nothing out of the ordinary."

Skillful cleansing makes little clothes as fresh as new

"Where do they get so much energy?" spoke the lady who lived across the street.
"Where do they pick up so muchdirt I should like to know?"
"Why splashing through mud pudles and coasting down thrilling slides. We've forgotten how nice it is to be little, and how stupid it is to be grown up."
"It's very stupid when you have to think of the washing"—"Oh, well, a little dirt will come out all right. You should have seen little Jean's dresses when they came back today from the laundry."

Saints Rally In Ninth Frame To Nip Spuds

Top O' Morn Stuff

THIRD AND FINAL CLASH THIS AFTERNOON BETWEEN SAINTS AND SPUDDERS AT ATHLETIC PARK.

* * *

EVEN STEPHEN

Series stands even up. Wichita Falls stowed the first exhibition Friday, 7 to 5. Dropped yesterday's, 8 to 6.

* * *

Lefty Brown, the sturdy southpaw who came to the Spudders in 1924 from Paris, probably will assault the Saints from the hilltop.

* * *

Ira Morgan and Victor Pigg, pitchers and the last to arrive in camp, worked on the side during Saturday's game. It's not likely that either may step onto the rubber today, but—

* * *

CAL HITS 'EM HARD

For a while Saturday it seemed that they couldn't get Marty Callaghan out. The speedy Spudder outer gardner hit safely on his first three trips to the platter. Poled a single, a double, and another single. Scored three times. But he aviated to center the fourth and final appearance with the bludgeon.

* * *

NICK ALLEN, SKIPPER OF THE SAINTS, LIKES WALTER GOLVIN, SPUDDER FRIST SACKER. NICK DECLARED THAT WHEN GOLVIN PLAYED WITH ST. PAUL HE WAS ONE SWEET FIELDER.

* * *

Saints attempted a double steal on Jackie Reid in the third frame, but Jackie trapped 'em red-handed. Morse was on third and McMillan at first. Mac sneaked off, and lit out for second. Reid turned, feinted a throw for the keystone. The feint did the trick, for Morse set out after home plate with head down, and tearing in like a race horse. Reid then pivoted, and chunked to Cochlin at the platter, cutting the runner off by 15 feet.

* * *

ZERO IN ACCOMPLISHMENT A USELESS STUNT THAT DOESN'T MEAN THING IS A BASE HIT THAT'S MADE IN THE SPRING.

* * *

In these comical days what the governor of North Carolina said to the governor of South Carolina is about as important as what Jack Kearns says to the New York Boxing commission and vice versa.

* * *

ASK THE SPUDDERS

Buddy Gardner (no, Agnes, he's not an outfielder nor truck gardner) is a well-educated man. He says the difference between a collegian and a sandlotter is "I have it" and "I got it" and 50 points in the batting averages.

* * *

NOT COWBOYS

"Bob Osborn's presence on the mound will spur the Spudders into running away with those Saints," said a fan yesterday. What they didn't need was a spur, it was a base hit off Holtzhauser.

* * *

COMICAL LANGUAGE

It is bad enough for one to see
The word "mermaid" on printed page,
But lumping "merman" a fellow just
Boils over in righteous rage.

* * *

ETC., ETC., ETC.

Well, well, well! We see that Jakie Atz declares the Panthers this year are strongest yet—annual announcement. Seven other Texas league clubs yap. "Cats'll slip this year"—annual wheeze.

* * *

THE OLD CONFIDENCE

Jake's been confident five straight years now, also captured five straight pennants. Five annums in a row the other clubs have prophesied Cats can't make grade. What we need is a reversal of opinion on both sides, then maybe somebody else will get the flag.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION CLUB TABULATES FOUR RUNS WITH THREE HITS, TRIO OF PASSES

Holtzhauser Hurls Last Five Frames and Baffles Tannermen—Collins Cracks Homer

By BLONDY CROSS.

Exhibitions is exhibitions, and it's according to Hoyle, if you're going to exhibit at all you might as well exhibit all of it. So Allen's alleged Saints from St. Paul of the American association, just in keeping with the rules exhibited the well known ninth-stanza comeback along with the rest in Saturday's exhibition affair with the Spudders, toppling over a two-tally advantage to grab the festival, 8 to 6.

Little Jackie Reid, Spudder mite, opposed Big Tony Faeth, St. Paul giant, on the hilltop, and like David and Goliath, the midget Jackie came away the better. He chunked five couplets for the Tannerman and then departed lugging with him the heftier section of a 6 to 4 enumeration.

Robert Osborn, tall El Paso hurler who is expected to carry a goodly portion of the Wichita Falls mound burden this summer, ascended the hillock for his initial mound toil of 1925. Robert, of course, is not in condition yet. That's the reason Skipper Bud sent him into the affray yesterday—to give him a good workout. The big right hander found it difficult to get 'em across the pan. Therewith sits the crux of the situation, the clue to how come that dastardly deed done by the Saints in the ninth chukker, so-to-speak.

Because he couldn't hit the bulls eye and use all his stuff at the same time, Robert cut loose a couple of fast ones. Result: Mollwitz and Koenig singled in succesSon albeit had not Koenig's poke down the first base line caught Golvin moving in, the other direction, the spectavular Spud initial station master no doubt would have gobbled the drive with ease. But as it was the agate shot safe for a fairly immaculate blow. Roberts passed Covington, populating the paths at all three angles. Holtzhauser pecked a slow roller to Turgeon who tossed him out at first, but did not have time to make the play for home. Mollwitz scored. Covington and Koenig each moved up a notch. McGee bounded to Dorman at third who bobbled the ball just long enough to lose the play at the platter, but tossed to Golvin quick enough to cut the runner away from first. Sir Robert walked Morse and McMillan. Wade bingled through second. Covington and Morse counted. Robert then whiffed Allen, the third strike called by the umpire. Spuds failed in their half of the inning.

Fireworks in First.

The Saints failed to indicate in the opening round, but Bud's Spuds romped off to a rattling start. McGee, St. Paul lead-off man, bounced out, Distel on short to Golvin at the initial station. Midget Jackie passed Morse, but the Spudder inner works snapped into action on ground ball hit by McMillan to short, and jerked off a fast double killing, Distel to Turgeon at the keystone, Turgeon to Golvin at first.

Steppin' Marty Callaghan, Supd's phantom right gardner, punched a sizzler through second for a base, leading off in the Wichita Falls half of the inning. Distel popped out to Morse, but Fitzgerald lined a single to right center. Cal didn't hesitate until he arrived safely at third. The stage had taken on a perfect setting for the rotund Mr. Ping Bodie, Spud clean-up bludgeoner, to do the renovating act. The redoubtable Ping came through. He looked Big Tony's initial offering over with an expression of disdain, then tightened his grip on the old war club, and busted the second pitched squarely on the seam for a bullet two-cushion drive to left. Callaghan and Fitz tabulated. Turgeon aviated to left, and Golvin bounded out to second.

The Spudder lead didn't survive the second frame. Allen's adonises jumped on Reid, walloped a pair of safeties, and abetted a walk and a sacrifice fly, checked in for three runs. With one away, Collins was passed. Mollwitz smashed a hard one-baser to center. Young "Marky" Koenig, 20-year-old Saint stortstop, followed with a stiff poke to starboard that bounced over Callaghan's head and went for a three-bagger. Collins and Mollwitz scored. Covington hoisted a long fly to right, and "Marky" came in after the catch.

Spuds Tie It Up.

The Lone Star loopers evened the tabulation in the third. Callaghan led off with a crack that shook the left center wall. Cal drew up at second. He went to third on infield out by Distel, and scored on blistering crack for a single through second by Fitzgerald. Bodie lined a one-baser to right, but the Saints then cooled the attack for that inning. Turgeon bounced one to Koenig on short who tossed to Morse at second, forcing Bodie. Morse completed a twin murder by strong arming the pellet to Mollwitz at first a step ahead of the speeding Turgeon, retiring the side.

Pat Collins, St. Paul backstop who's built more like Stan Zbyszko the veteran Polish matman than he is a baseball player, broke the tie in the fourth. Patrick led the inning with a resounding swat that cleared the left field fence with 20 feet margin to spare and flopped into the jungle territory beyond.

Gang Comes Back.

But what's a slim one-marker lead mean? Nothing. Absolutely zero as far as Wichita Falls' Spudders are concerned, Texas league clubs will tell You. Tanner's swatsmiths came back in the latter portion of the fourth and punched Big Tony for a quartet of smashing safeties and a trio of golden scoring nuggets. After there was one down, little Freddy Dorman splashed a ringing triple to right. He scampered gaily to the platter in front of a terrific two-sack smack by Cochlin, next batter who poled the agate to port center. Reid passed away at the plate, but Callaghan pushed a single to right, checking Cochlin at the paying station. Distel then crashed into the limelight with a saccharine swat to left for two cushions, scoring Callaghan who breezed around the paths like a Charley Paddock in his prime. Fitzgerald flied out to center.

Holtzhauser Bad News.

When Umps Kane announced just as the Spudders came to bat in the fifth: "Holtzhauser now pitching for St. Paul," or words to that effect, the effect was there somewhere all right, all right 'twas bad news to the Texas leaguers. Holtzhauser trickled onto the rubber, smiled and then cruelly tantalized Bud's bruisers the remainder of the way. Not a safe clout and most certainly not a run did the homelings manage to squeeze over after Big Tony departed. Exactly 15 men faced Holtzhauser during the five stanzas. Three came up and three went down each round. He did walk Turgeon in the eighth, but caught him on an attempted pilfering foray, Holtzhauser to Mollwitz to Koenig.

Osborn relieved Reid in the sixth, straightaway got into trouble but came out of it in surprisingly efficient manner. He walked McMillan, first Saint up. Wade connected for a two-bagger to right center. McMillan galavanted to third. Then our Robert found the platter hard to locate again, so he gave Collins a ticket to first via the four-balls route. Sacks saturated and nobody down, but the tall El Pasoan tightened up the string and promptly whiffed Mollwitz and Koenig. Covington slapped a mean skinner a few feet to the right of the keystone, but Turgeon came to the rescue, dived almost headlong at the bounding pellet, scooped her up and though falling flat on his [illegible] managed to toss the apple to Distel at second, forcing Collins at the third out.

Robert struck out Holtzhauser in the seventh, and [illegible] McGee slipped to the floor again by speeding rifle-like drive hit by Morse, doubled Mac off first. Three [illegible] faced Osborn in the eighth [illegible] know the

Carpenter and Martin Settle Feud Monday

Light Heavies To Hook Up In Ten-Round Tilt

Knockout Expected Before Winner-Take-All Bout Goes Limit

DUKE BATTLES YOUNG

Slugging Trammel Heads Bill' With Rugged Tulsan

THE CARD

Duke Trammel, Fort Worth, versus Sid Young, Tulsa. Welterweights, ten rounds.

Moco Carpenter, Wichita Falls, versus Buster Martin, Wichita Falls and Tulsa. Light heavyweights, ten rounds.

Tuffy Bryant, Wichita Falls, versus Gabe Goodman, Denver. Bantamweights, four rounds.

Poor Boy, Wichita Falls, versus Kid Norford, Wichita Falls. Middleweights, four rounds.

Battling Sam, Wichita Falls, versus Little Ned, Wichita Falls. Lightweights four rounds.

All the principals of the cauliflower entertainment billed for Monday night in the Wichita theatre will stage special workouts Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Legion hall, announced Promoter Wofford Saturday. These drills will be put on by the boxers for the benefit of fans who may desire to get a line on their condition prior to the bouts.

That the card should prove a rousing pleaser, there is no doubt. Every pug on the program has battled in Wichita Falls rings off and on the past 12 months, and fight enthusiasts are well acquainted with their socking ability.

Young Rearing To Go

Sid Young, the Tulsan who has waged a pair of terrific battles in the local arena, has been camping on Trammel's trail for quite a period, and is rearing to get at the Fort Worth lad. The rugged Oklahoman beat Jimmy Guest and lost a close decision to Elmer McMullen here several months back. Both bouts went over big with the ringsiders. Since those two ventures into Texas territory the Sooner has stuck to his knitting in Oklahoma, sweeping everything before him. That he will give the powerful and popular Trammel a tough struggle is not doubted in the least. Young, in fact, thinks he can beat Duke. But any way it's taken, the tilt stacks up as a very promising slugfest.

The hatred of Moco Carpenter for Buster Martin, nee Anderson Martin, and Martin's lack of felicitation for Moco has been a favorite topic among fight bugs the past several weeks. Unpleasant memories have lingered in the mind of Martin ever since he threw up the sponge last summer in the Legion's open air arena to Carp. The chagrin and humiliation brought on that night has caused Martin to train hard from day to day with fond expectations of again corraling Moco into the hempen square, and once and for all wiping out that stigma placed on his fistic escutcheon that night.

Won't Go Limit.

Pent-up emotions, the desire to annihilate, a feeling that has been simmering in the breasts of both stalwart athletes for weeks are slated to break the flood gates and overflow in Monday's meeting. Ten rounds they're billed to fight, but there seems slight chance of the bout going that distance. Both pack wallops, both are human, and no human can stand for long before the crashing blows dealt these two huskies. One is almost sure to mingle with the rosin before the scrap has gone its limit.

Carp and Martin are to fight on a winner-take-all basis, an added incentive to get it over with in a hurry.

Little Gabe Goodman, Denver midget, has fought in Wichita Falls several times. His last appearance was made the past summer with Tabby Lee. Bryant, has been a driving, slashing preliminary favorite off and on here for more than a year. Bobby Burns, veteran pug and now Dallas ring promoter, believes that Tuffy has the makings of a great little fighter. There should be gobs of action in this four-rounder.

Poor Boy and Kid Norford, negro middleweights, are frequent preliminary attractions for Wofford, and usually give a good account of themselves. Battling Sam and Little Ned are another pair of dark boys who have appeared here several times in preliminary roles.

DES MOINES STOPS SHIPPERS

BEAUMONT, March 21.—Des Moines, of the Western league, won the first exhibition game of the year here today, 7 to 3. Joe Mathes, familiar Texas league figure and now manager of the Des Moines team, presented eight players who have served as regulars in the Texas league during the past three years. The Exporters engineered four double plays and the invaders one. Brilliant fielding by Lankford in center for Des Moines cut down several Beaumont safeties, but the fact outfielder retired before the close with an injured leg. Bernie De Viveros took first homer honors of the year when he rammed a four-ply swat into deep left field in the first inning.

Coyotes Romp On Burkburnett Team, 15 To 2

Jenkins And Hicks Wallop Agate To All Corners Of Lot

The Coyote baseball squad took the long end of a 15 to 2 game Saturday afternoon the college grounds from the Burkburnett nine.

The hitting of the two Coyote redheaded pair, Stacy Jenkins and Red Hicks, was the feature of the game. These two were responsible for five of the 15 scores made during the afternoon session of base hits.

Burkburnett only garnered five hits in the nine innings off the slants of three Coyote heavers. Coyal Francis, Junior high star of last season, held the visitors to no runs and one lone bingle in the four frames he toiled.

Four home runs were slashed out in the course of the nine innings. Stacy Jenkins, Dee Woodson and Lefty Lesley poled the non-stop knocks for the Coyotes, while Harrison cracked one for the yisitors.

The playing of Hicks behind the plate was sensational. He handled 12 putouts during the game. Three strikeouts in the sixth inning was the best Pitcher Perk Ray could do.

Athletic celebrities, including three world record holders and three 1924 Olympic champions, will be present in large numbers, assuring for the Texas relay games national prestige.

MOSLEY BUILDS STRONG NINE AT JUNIOR COLLEGE

Coach "Bubs" Mosley has amassed a sweet looking combination of ball chasers to represent the Junior college Indians in this year's fling of baseball.

Behind the bat he has two who are able to cope with the best in the class of the game they occupy.

Mike Caskey has proved his worth with the big mitt and has showed he has both stick and mitt ability to make the Indians a real catcher this season.

Ray Hershi, another maskman, is one who has showed his right to the use of the protective garb. Ray swings with a wicked cut and usually slaps the old agate on the beezer for many a ride.

First base will be well cared for by John Clary who is a demon on the field as well as a fair hitter. Clary is fast and full of pep that keeps the team in their hustling all the time to keep apace of this boy at first.

Jack Thurman, keystoner and lead-off man in the Indian lineup, is a youngster rated high in the playing and with a fast and sure method of scooping in ground balls. His hitting can be told in five words which are, "He is lead off man."

Two Pitchers.

Hood Kizziar, shortstop, and main cog of the infield, is one who pounds the ball hard and often and scoops in grounders with ease. Hood last year played short for the Texhomas, first half champs of the Twilight loop.

Third base is alternated by two husky lads who work on the mound when not on the hot corner.

"Lanky" Crites is not only a fielder deluxe but a heaver of the same type. "Lanky" has the goods to deliver in either of these positions.

"Dummy" Deems, high school football and basketball star this year, is the second man for the same job as "Lanky" and another who struts his wares well at both positions.

In left field Evan Harris is the man who collects the flys that stray into that pasture, a mighty nifty ball hawk that gives all flye a run for their safety.

In center the cream of the outfield, Riley Rawls, takes in the old agate with ease as well as tros ses the ball with a mighty heave of his jungle timber.

Timmons Flashes.

Dosch, speedy right gard is another sweet looking m can rake in the flies with e ans is no bad man with the willow.

Other outfield timber who can both bat and field are Snodgrass and P who have not been in enough to show what is in them. In practice both looked to be exceedingly good material.

Other heavers to show good besides "Lanky" and "Dummy" are, Bill Kelm and Tally Timmons. Kelm appears to have the stuff in the way of curves and slants, but has not received his chance yet at mound duty and no definite opinion can be formed of this hurler.

Possibly the best showing this season on the mound has been that of Timmons. Tally has twice faced the Coyotes and is much respected by Coach Henderson's lads. In his first appearance on the hill he held the Coyotes to one hit in three innings and Thursday held them to two hits and one run in five innings. That's a total of nine innings, one run, and three hits. Not the least bad for this early in the season.

CUTTING BROTHERS WIN.

NEW YORK, Mar. 21.—(AP)—The Cutting Brothers, C. Suydem and Fulton of New York, won the national court tennis doubles championship this afternoon, defeating Jay Gould of New York and Joseph W. Wear of Philadelphia, who had held the title for six years. The scores were 6—4, 6—4, 0—6, 2—6, 6—2.

Kearns Couldn't Earn Coin Fighting So He Lets Jack Do It For Him

DEMPSEY'S MANAGER MET HIS WATERLOO IN SIXTH ROUND OF EMBROGLIO WITH KID PARKER

Champion Collector of Rare and Well Done Medium of Exchange Pioneer Of Big Purse Makers

Jack Kearns is best known as the bird who built up Jack Dempsey's bank account. Incidentally Kearns built a million or so for himself.

Kearns made a modest start in life. He was born in Michigan. Usually people say he is a native son of the Golden West, but that's "baloney."

Jack Kearns began boxing in the northwest, where he had 30 or 40 fights without disturbing the financial balance of the boxing universe. He beat a lot of good men too, and worked his way up to Kid Parker at Denver. At that time Kid Parker was touted as another Kid Lavigne and coming lightweight champion of the wide world. He flattened Kearns in six rounds at Spokane and on thinking it over our friend Jack decided that fighting was no business for a guy with brains. He stopped fighting, went to San Francisco and gathered a "stable" of half a dozen ham and bean fighters. While Kearns didn't make a fortune immediately as a manager he didn't starve to death either.

At that time Tim McGrath was one of the 'round town promoters in Frisco, operating anywhere from Vallejo to Milpitas as opportunity offered. To Tim went Jack Kearns, manager, asking employment for his stable.

"I don't care much for them bums," said Tim McGrath, "but if you want to take on a fight yourself I'll stick you in the main event and give you 40 smackers for your end."

"Who would I fight?" queried Kearns almost falling for the temptation as his mind flashed back to an overdue board bill.

"Well," mused Tim McGrath, who hadn't heard the news from Spokane, "I might get this here—now—Kid Parker down from Denver. He ain't so tough?"

Shipped to Australia.

Next day Jack Kearns herded his bunch of scrappers aboard a boat for Australia.

In Australia Kearns became very popular and his stable worked overtime. All went well until his best bread winner, Billy Murray, met a little known Australian middleweight—Les Darcy—and was knocked out in six rounds. Kearns liked Darcy's looks, became friendly with him, and proposed a trip to the United States. He offered to take Darcy over and get him a chance at the world's championship.

"And you'll win it, sure," said Kearns.

However Darcy wasn't ready to start. The war was under way and things were a little mixed. He decided to stay in Australia for a while longer and get more experience. Kearns beat it back to America and Darcy stayed and whipped Jimmy Clabby, Eddie McGoorty, George K. O. Brown, George Chip and a few others. He was easily the best middleweight in the world when he at last landed in New York expecting to meet Kearns.

Right here Kearns slipped a bit. He was on his way east when Darcy landed, and Tex Rickard went out to meet the steamer in a special tug, talking Darcy over and signing him to an ironclad agreement before Kearns showed up. However it might be noticed that since that time Tex Rickard has paid Kearns, as manager of Jack Dempsey, no less than $902,500, and it was Jack Kearns who fixed Dempsey's price. Rickard doesn't owe him anything.

Having missed connections with Darcy Kearns went back to California while he had the carfare. That's all he had. He never got Darcy to manage. Poor Darcy was driven around the country by politician governors who tried to make political capital by branding him a "slacker" for leaving Australia, and died of a broken heart at Memphis, Tenn. If Darcy had stuck to Kearns he might have been O. K. and a world's champion today.

In California Kearns heard of a young ship yard worker named Dempsey who looked good but preferred a steady job to irregular fighting of the ham and bean order. He hunted up Dempsey and made him a proposition.

Dempsey Refused.

"No, Mr. Kearns," said Dempsey. "I'm no good as a fighter. I'm bum. I'll never be a good fighter. Anyway my folks are hard up and I've got to work every day to keep 'em going. Eight dollars a day steady is better than being a bum fighter."

Later, under changing circumstances, Kearns was able to persuade Jack Dempsey to try fighting once more. Dempsey whipped Billy Meehan in Oakland and his end of the purse was $180. Kearns said he wouldn't cut in on that one. Dempsey wired $150 to his mother and enthusiastically turned to the profession that was to make him world's champion and the biggest money maker the ring ever knew.

It was Jack Kearns who made Dempsey the first millionaire fighter. Kearns, with success, developed a business shrewdness never known in ring affairs before. He and Dempsey had a hard time of it for a year or so, getting small purses and doing a lot of traveling around to fight. Then came the fight with Willard for the world's championship. Dempsey received $27,500 for that—his last small purse. After becoming world's champion Dempsey was in the dictating position, and Kearns did the dictating with a nerve that paralyzed all promoters but Rickard. Tex expected to get Dempsey and Carpentier for $165,000. Kearns told him flatly to offer $500,000 for the fight, and in five minutes convinced Tex that it would be good business. He got Dempsey $475,000 for the Firpo fight. He has picked up fortunes for both in moving pictures, stage tours and all sorts of odds and ends of income. Kearns and his nerve and vision have entirely changed all notion of what a champion in the ring is worth. It was Kearns' lead that made it possible for Benney Leonard and some of the other champions to get bigger money than any ring promoter ever dreamed of giving before Jack Kearns and Tex Rickard cut loose.

Can You Imagine Baseball Player Using Overalls?

Jimmy Austin Of Browns Disguised That Way In Florida

HE FOOLED ALLIGATOR

Veteran Convinced Young Robertson Will Stick At Third

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla., March 21.—Jimmy Austin, former third baseman of the St. Louis Browns and now righthand man to Manager George Sisler, is accepting the honors due him today.

He holds the unique distinction of being the only baseball player in the big leagues to turn in a bill to the boss for overalls.

Ball players are about as chummy with overalls or anything else that hints to effort around a ball park outside of playing baseball as a snake is with wings. Really, you can't realize the distance between a ball player and overalls until you've followed the first for years and worn the second yourself.

Well, Owner Ball and Manager Sisler of the Browns decided during the winter to send Jimmy down south early to look over the club's new training field here. When the Brown bosses inspected the site last fall it was mostly under water—an alligator swamp. The field was "filled" during the winter and a top dressing imported for the diamond. Jimmy was made minister plenipotentiary with unlimited powers to look over the achievements of the local workers and make any such changes or improvements as he saw fit.

Negroes Feared Gators.

Jim was well satisfied with what he saw with the exception of conditions along the right field border. The fill had been stopped abruptly a medium distance from home plate. Long flies to right were destined to drop in the swamp—and become dessert for the alligators. Austin decided that a 30-foot wire screen was necessary along the edge of the field to cut down the expense of buying baseballs. He bought the wire and sicked the colored help onto the job of putting it up.

"Not us," chorused said colored help. "The alligators can wait for them baseballs. They ain't gwanna get us." Jim pleaded but only wasted his breath. They had no desire to fall off the fence into the swamp while stretching that wire.

He had with him at camp as buddy George Blaeholder, a young pitcher. They decided to put up the screen themselves. But the baseball duds hadn't arrived yet and both of them sported new spring suits. So Jim took the drastic step of getting the overalls.

When Willis Johnson, traveling secretary, arrived later he started checking over the yearly bills. When he ran across the overall bill he swooned.

Believes in Robertson.

Right now Austin is convinced that for the first time since he quit third basing for the Browns—as few men have third based—the team has a first class man for the job and a man who will stick there for some years to come. That young man is Robertson.

Jim played part of the season three years ago. Since then Ellerbe, McMillen, Simon, Eddie Foster and Burke have all played at the last corner for varying periods. Foster, of course, was about through when he was grabbed to fill the vacancy caused by an injury to Ellerbe.

Robertson played most of the season—121 games—at third the last campaign. He looked sweet then. He looks better this year, opines Jim.

INJURY TO RABBIT TOUGH

Maranville's Loss May Cost Cubs Flag This Year.

Rabbit Maranville, star infielder, who went to the Cubs in the muchly discussed winter trade between Chicago and Pittsburgh, declared recently that the Cubs had an even break for the pennant in the older circuit this year, and that barring injuries they should come dangerously near copping the bunting. Three days after that statement was made Chicago's pennant chances were given a severe setback, as Maranville suffered a broken leg in sliding into second. He will be of little or no value to the Cubs this season and cannot be replaced without loss of strength to the club. There is a possibility that his injury will rob Chicago of a pennant.

OKLAHOMA A. & M. NINE STRONG THIS SEASON

Oklahoma A. and M. won the conference basketball title, and now Stillwater critics are of the opinion that the Oklahoma Aggie baseball team will be of championship calibre. They are boasting of their great pitching prospects at Stillwater, and pitchers win ball games.

McGREW WITH BLUES.

Slim McGrew of Yoakum, Texas, will play with the Kansas City team of the American association this year. He was purchased from Memphis. McGrew went from the Galveston team of the Lone Star circuit to Washington.

Toughest Grand-Daddy In the World Is Harry Gilmore, Scrapping Midget of Other Days.

By ROBERT EDGREN

"And I'm open," said Harry Gilmore of Chicago, "to fight any great grand-daddy in the world, Queensberry or London prize ring rules, five ounce, skin tight gloves or bare knuckles, anywhere from three rounds to a finish. Put that down."

Harry Gilmore is challenging the great granddaddies because he has just become a great grandfather himself, and the old man is feeling chipper. Not that Harry Gilmore is so old. He was only 71 March 9.

Harry Gilmore was a great fighter in the old days of John L. Sullivan, Jack McAuliffe, Jack Dempsey, the Nonpareil, Mike Donovan, Jem Mace and the rest of the ring history makers. He stopped fighting many years ago, but never left the game that was life to him. For many years he had a gymnasium in Chicago, where he developed scores of famous fighters and taught them how to fight. The Gilmore boxing methods are famous. At 70 Harry Gilmore felt young enough to make a new start, so he went west and settled in Los Angeles, where he is going to teach boxing and try to develop more champions.

His sons are still boxing. Tom was boxing instructor at the University of Chicago and is now with the Hamilton club. Fred was instructor at Camp Logan during the war. Harry instructor at Camp Bowie and is now with the Kimrock club in Chicago. The latest addition to the Gilmore family—whose recent arrival made Harry Gilmore a great grandfather, is a girl. So Harry doesn't expect much of her in the boxing line, although women are taking up boxing in the west and may soon be applying for boxing licenses.

Tough Game Then

Today Harry Gilmore is a quick, agile man. He delights in taking on a three round "set-to" with Fidel La Bara or some other youngsters. He hasn't a mark, for all his 55 years of boxing and many years of hard fighting with the "raw 'uns," except a slightly flattened nose.

"That was real fighting in the old days," Harry told me. "We didn't have fine clubs to fight in. We had to dodge the sheriff and fight out in the woods or in a deserted building. We didn't care much about the weights. It was most all London rules, with skin gloves or bare knuckles, and there wasn't a minute between rounds, the way most of you writers write it. We had only half a minute rest—that's the way the rules provided. Half a minute wasn't much sometimes in long fights.

"We didn't get half million dollar purses, either. I fought Jack Stewart of Canada once and we split the receipts, which amounted to $300. Stewart was the Canadian heavyweight champion—weighed 237 pounds and stood six feet two and a half. I weighed 128. This was back in '84. I stopped him in the third round—doubled him up with a hit in the pit of the stomach.

"I beat George Fulljames in '85. He weighed 127 1-2 and I weighed 124 ringside. I won in two rounds.

There was a bit of pride in Harry Gilmore's voice as he added: "It took the Nonpareil 22 rounds to beat him in '84. The Nonpareil, of course, was Jack Dempsey, the greatest of old time middleweight champions, who lost his crown to Bob Fitzsimmons.

The police came in, in this fight, it appeared, just as Gilmore dropped his man. The referee ran, and the rest ran—all but Fulljames. He couldn't run, being out.

Harry's biggest fight, perhaps, was with Jack McAuliffe for the lightweight championship of the world. The old man says McAuliffe was a wonder. He only wishes McAuliffe was a yuongster, fighting now. Benny Leonard could retire and not be missed.

Beaten By a Brick Wall

McAuliffe weighed in at 133 pounds, Gilmore 128. They weighed in Wednesday before the fight, and McAuliffe was overweight, but one of his backers deftly slipped a coin on a bit of chewing gum under the weights on the scales, and the fact escaped notice. The fight was the following Friday at 3 p. m., and by that time Jack was a few pounds to the good. They did that sometimes even in the old days.

"The fight was near Lawrence, Mass.," Harry Gilmore explained, "in the only quiet place we could find. There were 82 men to see it. They paid $25 each. The winner was to get that. Eighty-two spectators for a world's championship fight. Although fight, too. We fought along pretty even for 18 rounds. McAuliffe had a great left hand.

"In the 18th he led at me and I ducked under his hand and McAuliffe plunged forward and nearly fell over with the force of the blow. At the end of the round Arthur Chambers, my second, said: "'Too bad you didn't do that near the wall.' You see we were fighting beside a brick wall. I got the idea. If McAuliffe missed me like that again, close to the wall, he'd break his hand on the bricks.

"So I worked around near the wall and left him an opening, and he led that left. Somehow I didn't duck in time, or he was too quick for me. Instead of ducking under his left and letting him hit the wall I got the punch right on the chin and it knocked my head back against the wall so hard that it banged the senses out of me, and I fell forward toward McAuliffe, stiff, at full length, right on my nose."

Gilmore fingered the bridge of his nose gently. "That's how I got this dent," he said. "Broke my nose on the ground. I got by with a half-minute rest and came up again, but my nose was bleeding inside and made me pretty sick. By the 28th round McAuliffe was worse off, though he wasn't bleeding so much, and his second, Jack Dempsey, had to force him up on his feet to get him out for the round.

Killeen vs. Ferguson

"One of McAuliffe's friends ran around and whispered to my backer, Harry Phillips: 'It's a pity to have the little fellow killed—meaning me. And Phillips—who was John L. Sullivan's old backer—ran in and stopped the fight. It was a mistake. We were both on our feet and I was no worse off than McAuliffe. Why, in those days the winner always passed the hat around for the loser, and McAuliffe was so blind with both eyes closed that he couldn't go around with the hat. Harry Phillips was a game sport. He lost $2,000 on the fight, but he put $250 in the hat for me. They always passed the hat for a game loser. If a man wasn't game they didn't even wait for him to dress.

Among the famous boxers developed by Harry Gilmore in Chicago were Packey McFarland, Martin Duffy, Jack O'Keefe, George Blake, Frank Gerrard, Tommy White, George Kirwan, Eddie Santry, Harry Forbes and Jimmy Barry. Mike Gibbons trained in his gymnasium and Gilmore showed the shifty Mike his pet tricks of slipping and ducking. Mike passed the tricks on to Tom Gibbons, so Tom is a student of the Gilmore school.

"Say for me," said Harry, "that I think Tom Gibbons has the best chance with Jack Dempsey of them all. I don't say he'd beat Dempsey, but Tom knows how to give him a fight and he might win."

Having given me the story, Harry Gilmore, great granddaddy and challenger of any great granddaddy in the world, went down to the Newsboy's club to put on the gloves with Fidel La Barba, 17-year-old Olmpic bantam champion and prospective challenger of Pancho Villa. He can still travel with any of 'em for three rounds.

TAKES PITCHER TO TELL WHO'S REAL SLABMAN

Robby Believes Old Adage; That's Why He Has Strong Staff

RUCKER SELECTS 'EM

Grimes Picks Promising Youngsters And Tips Off Wilbert

By NORMAN E. BROWN.
Sporting Editor of Central Press.

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 21.—How does Manager Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyn Dodgers build up a great pitching staff year after year?

One answer to that logical query is:

Because he believes in the adage that it takes a pitcher to tell a pitcher.

Most of the men who have starred on Robinson's team in the year that his pitchers have been keeping the Dodgers in the National League race up to the closing days, have joined him partly on the recommendations of members or ex-members of his staff.

Take this year's crop of youngsters.

Nap Picks 'Em.

Old Nap Rucker's fame as a southpaw is well known to most fans. Nap did yeoman service for the Dodgers for many years. He was one of the best lefthanders the game has ever known. He knew ball players in general and pitchers in particular when he saw them.

Last fall Rucker looked over a youngster named Leo Williams. The boy was pitching for Jackson, Miss., in the Cotton States League. It was his first league experience. Before that he had played semi-pro ball around his home town of Atlanta, Ga.

Rucker decided the lad showed promise. He recommended Leo to Robinson and the Dodger boss proceeded to sign up the kid. Williams won something like 12 games in the Cotton circuit last season. Unofficial figures gave him 14 victories but this was cut to 10 in later averages.

Has Lots of Stuff.

He is slight in build, but he has lots of stuff and knows how to use it. He's a southpaw, too, which may have impressed old Nap. Incidentally Rucker spent some time coaching the lad after he saw him in action—figuring that the more he knew about pitching when he showed up at the Dodgers' camp the better chance he'd have.

Then there is Charlie Schwartz.

No one had heard of Schwartz when a bunch of harnstorming Brooklyn players blew into Great Falls, Mont., late last fall. He had pitched for his home team in the Cascade County League and had won 22 and lost four games. He was selected to pitch an exhibition game against the Dodgers. Dazzy Vance pitched for the Brooklyn crew. Schwartz turned the big leaguers back 2 to 1, allowing them but five hits.

Burleigh Grimes watched the young husky at work and immediately tipped off Robinson. The latter promptly took Grimes' word and signed Schwartz.

Guy Cantrell was signed by Dodger envoys after he had hung up a record of 21 victories and seven defeats for the Okmulgee team in the Western Association. Uncle Robbie had other word, relayed by Dazzy Vance, however, that the young man was about ready to go. Vance wintered in the west and talked baseball most of the time.

Grimes Tells Robby.

Burleigh Grimes helped Jack Fournier convince Uncle Robbie that Bill Doak of the Cardinals would prove a winner with the Brooklyn club.

Uncle Robbie himself is one of the shrewdest judges of pitchers in baseball, but he is awake to the fact that the men of the box, the men serving them up day after day or with a background of years in the box, must know something of the men in their own part of the profession.

HUNTSVILLE CLAIMS TITLE.

The Huntsville normal basketball team declares that Southwestern university did not play a representative basketball schedule, that Huntsville did and deserves the championship. Huntsville had a percentage of .833 in 12 games while Southwestern had a percentage of .889 in nine games.

HENDERSON CORRALS LIKELY SQUAD FROM WHICH TO PICK 1925 HIGH SCHOOL TEAM

Wealth of Material Turns Out for Berths on Coyote Nine—Captain Andree Star Pitcher

Coach Brooks Anderson should find his team able to produce a good winning combination, as good as any about this section of the state. The boys have proved the fact that they can hit, run, and field.

The Coyotes have three catchers that can produce. "Red Hicks is able to stand up with the best in north Texas high school circles in the catching department. This red-headed firebrand has the catching power, also the peg that will blot out many a runner this year.

Homer Doke is another splendid backstop with all the big qualities of a catcher. When this youngster hits the old horsehide the fans can rest easy that it is going for a long joyless jaunt over the country.

"Fat" Nantz, the third Coyote maskman, is another of the Hicks brand and holds the able ability to handle any of the hurlers Henderson can shoot to the mound.

At first base the Coyotes have three men able to step into the game at any time and produce a brand of baseball that is sure to make a hit. The three can whack the agate at a fairly good clip.

Harrold "Lefty" Lesley possibly comes first in line. Lesley is a fine fielder and has the stuff in him to go far in making the Coyotes a winner this season. Any time a fielder gets a ball in his reach "Lefty" snares it with ease.

Ralph Walker has played a splendid game at the initial sack, although somewhat slowed up by an injured leg. The big first sacker has also made a fine debut with the willow.

Verna Bullard, the third candidate at this position, has had little chance to show his class, but in the few appearances on the bag has showed up well and flashes a classy brand of fielding.

At the keystone bag the Coyotes have three more good men who have looked good in practice thus far, and should make the middle station safe from any mishap.

Miller Good at Second.

Claude Miller has been the main cog of the keystoners for the past weeks and is showing a steady improvement. Claude is a good man on base, hits as well as handling of ground balls. His war club is a fair percentage of the Coyotes punch.

Olin Harvey has been a continual menace to the safety of Miller's making the berth and is expected to give a stiff fight for the job. Harvey also packs a hard wallop and is well up in hitting.

"Blondy" Burks has also done some work at this station, as well as several others and looks good for a utility role if he fails to make the grade as a regular. "Blondy" can handle the slants of a pitcher, hit, run and field.

At short lies the real problem of who to take the cast of first stringer. Three men are lined up for this position and all three have shown a keen edge of playing.

Stacy Jenkins, last year star, is the flash of the infield. His sure fielding, accurate pegging, and brainy work on the diamond has made him a favorite for the position. Stacy also packs a healthy wallop with the stick.

"Peachy" Bland has also made a fine impression in the short field with his speedy handling of grounders and his deadly stick work that probably will drive in many a run in the pinch.

"Shorty" Rundell is also making a strong bid for the position and is going good. This short lad shows a fine system of scooping in grounders and getting them over to first in a speedy fashion.

Third base has two fine candidates and is a strong position on the inner works.

Neel Consistent.

Rufus Neel has been playing a consistent game at third and is the best choice for the job. Neel is a steady fielder and a fine hitter in a pinch, not of the slugger type, but of the base hit kind that so often wins a game where the slugger falls down.

Larry Roberson has been in the game fighting all the time and if any thing should go wrong with the hot corner Larry would be a good man to send into the breech.

The outfield stacks up nicely.

Dee Woodson, flashing fly hawk, is making the grade in fine style. The little fellow is taking his regular run after stray flies and doing his bit with the timber in good fashion.

Sewell Cox has made a nice showing in his first bow with the high school gang, putting his all in the game and this 'all" is a fine brand of baseball.

Johnnie McMahon, another of the Coyotes outer guard, has been showing he has the ability to make the grade in center, and has turned in many a classy catch from that garden. Johnnie is also a good man with the bludgeon and has been hitting regularly.

Four men are fighting it out for the sun pasture and are giving an interesting battle for the job.

Marvin Roberson is a classy fielder with a good wallop and looks like a good man for the job.

Frank Rougeley is another bidding strong for the position and has been in the game fighting since the first day out. Frank also shows promise as a stickman.

Ralph Woodson is putting up a stiff scrap for the berth.

Harrold McConnell is the fourth man for the job and looks good in his few appearances in the lineup, both afield and at the plate.

The pitching is a spot as well cared for an any on the lot with five men out for the jobs.

Ray Real Star.

Captain Bill Andree has been the leading pitcher for the staff and looks good for a fair amount of games this year. Bill is a right hander with lots of stuff. As a hitter the big captain is no slouch and should account for many a Coyote run.

Perkins Ray is another to show well in the role of heaver. Perk has a good variety of curves and plenty of smoke. This boy probably will turn in a number of good games this season.

Truman Seal is another member of the hurling corps and has strutted enough plain ability to make himself respected by the opposing batsmen.

Clifton Clay is a hurler of no mean amount of curves and slants in his right arm. Clay has been doing a great deal of the pitching in the short games this year and stacks up well with the others.

Coyal Francis, last year junior high star, is a worthy man on the staff who is bidding strong for a position. This lad will be a good man to use in any opening in the infield who not occupying the hill.

Gabbert Stevens and Harry Greer are two new athletes to show up but recently and have not been out long enough to iron out all the wrinkles.

POTTS ANDERSON COACHES

WACO, March 21.—One of the smartest football players ever to trod a southwestern gridiron will go to coach sports at Wayland Junior college, Plainview, in Charles "Potts" Anderson, famous Baylor university star. Anderson has signed a contract as athletic director and head coach of all sports at Wayland college and will take over his duties as soon as possible.

HUBER MAY MAKE GRADE.

Gilley Huber, according to reports, will make the grade with Philadelphia this year. Huber is a product of the sand lots of Waco, and played a great game with the Beaumont team of the Texas league last year.

Golf in America Growing Bigger And Better All Time, Says Gene

By GENE SARAZEN.
American Professional Champion.

Some day I expect to see arise from the great army of Americans now wielding golf clubs in every conceivable part of the country, a super linksman endowed with the grace and preciseness of Bobby Jones, the concentrated determination and competitive spirit of Walter Hagen and the uncanny driving ability of Abe Mitchell.

This bit of prophecy is born of amazement over the extraordinary progress the royal and ancient game has made in America in the last 20 years.

It has been a startling development.

It makes one wonder how far it is to go. Twenty years ago there were probably 300 golf courses in all these United States, most of them situated in the eastern territory.

Now there are more than 3,000 dotting the landscape from coast to coast, from border to border. It can only be estimated how many are actively engaged in the pleasure of smiting the little sphere. And one cannot help but look back and smile with a bit of satisfaction at those who in large numbers were wont to scoff and ridicule the great old game. I remember even as a kid when caddying, the derisive phrases there were ever being showered upon the golfer. He was always the butt of a jeer or a joke. The scoffers long since have put a silencer on their vocal taunts and probably are out at this very minute digging divots themselves.

Golf is gradually but surely becoming recognized as the game in America. And it seems that destiny cannot help but fashion a superlinksman from among the legions that are daily being drawn into the game. I expect to see him come as suddenly as was the coming of Babe Ruth into superdom, to throw a shadow on the brilliant deeds of baseball's greatest players. But the man I have in mind will send a greater thrill through the golfing world than Babe Ruth did through the baseball universe.

America, I believe, has already gone beyond England in golfing science. The overwhelming defeat of her amateur stars in the last two years by America has convinced her that she is losing her standing as the capital of the links.

Every day the game draws its new addicts. Every day hundreds of golf bags are sold which means the need of hundreds of new caddies; thousands of more balls. It means more business for tailors, for haberdashers, for greens keepers, for the boot-maker and the golf instructor.

AGGIE MEETS COMBINED.

Smith-Hughes Day and Athletic Competition April 21.

COLLEGE STATION, March 21.—The Interscholastic meet and the Smith-Hughes school day have been combined into a two-day high school and academy competition by agreement with the athletic officials and the deans of the agricultural division of the A. & M. college. To make this arrangement possible the date of the Interscholastic meet has been changed from April 25 to April 21. Smith-Hughes day is scheduled for April 20 and this will enable the high school boys who come here to take part in the livestock, poultry, grain and farm shop judging contests of the vocational agricultural schools to remain over for the athletic competitions of the interscholastic meet the following day.

China's population is about four times that of the United States, according to latest estimates.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, March 21.—A secondary reaction swept over today's stock market in the final hour halting a rally which had carried over from the previous day and bringing about net losses of 1 to 5 points in final quotations.

The suddenness of the decline led to a rather general belief that it originated with professional traders who apparently took advantage of the impaired technical position resulting from the recent sharp rebound.

The Pan-American Petroleum issues, which have been in active demand in expectation of an early announcement of reorganization plans involving the formation of two separate companies, one to take over the Mexican properties and the other California oil lands bore the brunt of the selling pressure. The A and B stocks had touched new high levels on the movement at 81¼ and 83½, respectively, but they broke later to 77 and 77½, closing at the bottom prices for net losses of 3 and 3¼ points respectively. Traders, who had bought these stocks "for a turn" around their low levels last week were quick to take profits when the first signs of weakness appeared.

All the so-called pivotal industrials lost ground, U. S. Steel common showed a net loss of 1¼ at 120⅜. Baldwin fell back 3¼ to 123¾. American Can yielded 2½ to 174, and Studebaker closed nearly a point lower at 42⅜.

United States Cast Iron Pipe, which touched 199 in the early trading, later fell back to 190¼ for a net loss of ⅞.

Rails were mixed. Pere Marquette preferred advanced nearly 2 points and Frisco preferred 1, while Rock Island, Lackawanna, Norfolk and Western, Western Pacific and a few others fell back a point or two. Jersey Central broke 4 points on a few sales.

Foreign exchanges held relatively steady in quiet trading, the only feature being the establishment of a new high record for the year by Norwegian kroner at 15.50 cents.

NEW ORLEANS, March 21.—There was a fair volume of trading in today's short session but most of the business took the shape of evening-up of commitments for over the week-end with recent buyers doing most of the liquidating. After a steady opening despite the fact Liverpool cables came in easier than due, the market advanced 13 points on July and 5 on October owing to the absence of all rain or indications of early rain in the western portion of the belt. The final results showed a net loss of 6 points on July and 8 on October, the lowest of the day.

Despite the liquidation the market was more or less supported by reports of a good local spot demand and the rather liberal exports, but there was a marked lack of definite trend to values and apparently a disposition to await the official report on boll weevil emergence from hibernation due this week.

The market opened steady, first trades showing no change in near months and soon rallied on [illegible] May traded up 25.[illegible] and October to 25.[illegible] above yesterday's [illegible] evening. Young Girl Discovers New Gas Substitute

PARIS, March 21.—(AP)—Remarkable claims are made for a new automobile fuel named "irolene" after its discoverer, 15-year-old Irene Laurent, daughter of a well known French chemist. The product, which is understood to have for its basis a solution of sugar, is said to cost less and go farther than any other of the so-called substitutes for gasoline yet tried.

A party of prominent automotive engineers who tested the new fuel in a long run in an ordinary machine are quoted as expressing themselves as astounded by the results. The "irolene" used in the test was made the night before by the chemist Laurent in his own kitchen. The only modification made in the automobile was the attachment of a caporizer to the exhaust pipe. It is explained that the new fuel is non-explosive except in a state of vapor and that consequently the engine has to be run on gasoline until the fuel is sufficiently heated.

REWARD SAILOR HEROES

Give Medals To Men Who Saved Lives of Comrades in Accidents

WASHINGTON, March 21—(AP)—Secretary Wilbur has awarded silver life saving medals to three enlisted men for the rescue of comrades from death by drowning.

Two of them, Lester R. Craft, fireman, The Dalles, Oregon, and John H. Dolan, machinist's mate, Jersey City, N. J., jumped from the U. S. S. Cuyama in Seattle harbor last August to rescue a comrade who had gone under when a ship's boat capsized.

Casimir J. Garbinski, seaman, of Newark, N. J., swam from the destroyer Bainbridge to the rescue of the pilot and radio man of a plane from the cruiser Detroit which had crashed while chasing torpedoes.

BAIL AS PLANE TAXIES.

Officers Work to Keep Machine Afloat When Forced Down Off Shore.

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif., March 21.—(AP)—Ten men won a race with death last night when the battle fleet bombing plane 2-S-3, in which they were flying from Can Pedro to San Diego, threw a propeller and was forced down 20 miles off shore west of here, leaving them far from land on a sinking craft. Alighting in a fog, the plane's impact with the water sprung several bad leaks in the pantoons and the three officers and seven enlisted men aboard the craft bailed fantically to keep it afloat until it could be taxied to shore under power of the second motor.

MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE SUES.

Frenchman Says Movies Shouldn't Use Family Name, So He Asks Money

PARIS, March 21.—(AP)—A new vein has recently been opened in the proverbial "American gold mine" thanks to American film products in choosing French history as a background for scenarios. A Frenchman finds his family name used in a production and promptly sues for damages.

Two of the latest examples of this sensitive family pride have been furnished by a Monsieur Beaucaire and by the Duke de Brissac. Monsieur Beaucaire, who is a retired perfect, finds that the film in which Booth Tarkington's hero figures involves his namesake in adventures which he thinks throw ridicule and discredit on the name. He therefore called upon the producer to discontinue the use of the name and when the request was refused on the ground that Monsieur Beaucaire could not possibly claim to be a descendant of "a fictitious character" of Louis XV's time, Monsieur Beaucaire brought the question before a civil tribunal, which has not yet given its decision.

The Duke de Brissac complains that the film "Zaza" contains a character representing the Duke de Brissac, whose attempts to fascinate a fair lady despite his advanced age are used to move spectators to laughter. As head of the De Brissac family, the Duke demands compensation amounting to 100,000 francs for what he deems an insult to his ancestor. The producing company offered to change the name of the character, but the duke declares it is too late as the damage has been done.

DALLAS FLAGMAN KILLED.

Engine Jumps Switch and Runs Over Man Who Is Stopping Cars.

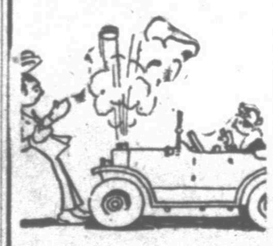

DALLAS, Mar. 21.—Samuel Kane, 65, a street crossing flagman at a Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway track in Dallas, was killed instantly late last night as he was stopping motorists. He was struck by a passing train. The watchman was swinging his lantern on a track at the side of the one on which the train approached. The engine jumped a switch and ran over him.

Salvation Army Has Grown During Year

A report just received by Commandant O. T. Johnson in charge of the local corps of the Salvation Army, describes the growth of the organization throughout the world during 1924 and lays particular emphasis upon the rapid spread of its missionary work in many distant fields.

The report has been prepared at the Territorial Headquarters, in Chicago, for distribution among all officers in connection with the Diamond Jubilee observance of the army, which occurs this year. Founded in 1865, as a small mission in the East End of London, the organization is now 60 years of age. In spite of this short span of existence, The Army Flak now flies in 80 countries and colonies, and its religious and social service activities are conducted in 75 languages and dialects.

dealer was then called to the stand. He knew Mrs. Robertson and had taken clothes to her shop to be cleaned. Her reputation, he told the state, was good, and he had never seen anyone drinking, carousing or carrying on in that manner in the shop. There was no one there but her little boy, asleep, he said.

Mr. Cummings on the cross-examination asked if the witness knew Tadlock, Box, Banks or Sis Downing, the witness answering that he did not.

W. S. Johnson a member of the city's "purity squad" since December 1923 stated that he had known Mrs. Robertson when he took her little sons home several nights when they remained on the streets after selling papers. He stated that there was nothing suspicious about Mrs. Robertson, and that her reputation as a law-abiding woman was good as also her reputation for virtue and chastity.

On cross-examination by the defense, Johnson stated that he did not know Tadlock, Box, or E. W. Windham, and had never heard that men and women met at the Robertson home for immoral purposes.

Mrs. Mattie Law of 1705 Bluff, denied that she had ever told Mrs. George Lawler anything reflecting on the reputation of Mrs. Robertson or her house. She had never seen drinking, carousing or carrying on at the Robertson house, she said, and had never noticed a great number of cars stopping there.

"What is your occupation?" asked Mr. Allred.

"I'm a seamstress."

"It is the custom for many people to visit your home and leave work there to be done, calling for it when it is finished, isn't it?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you notice that a great number of cars stopped at the Robertson home?"

"No more than usual for her work."

"Did you know Mrs. Robertson personally?"

"No, sir."

B. Y. Cummings conducted the cross-examination asking, "have you ever visited Mrs. Robertson's house?"

"No, sir."

"When women go for the fitting of a dress is it customary to take a man along?"

"No, sir."

Mr. Allred then took the witness, asking:

"Did any of the women who came to your home to have a dress fit bring men along?"

"Yes sir, sometimes."

Mr. Cummings then asked if she had ever seen men or women going in or out of Mrs. Robertson's house, the witness answering "no."

Many Others Called

E. W. Wood, shoe salesman for Sauls store, formerly of E. W. Wood Shoe company, had known Mrs. Robertson in a business way for five years, had taken clothes there for her to clean and testified to her good reputation. He had been only once or twice to her home on business and knew little of her home life.

Floyd Friberg, 31, dealer in general real estate said that he had sold Mrs. Robertson the Eighteenth street home accepting from her for the first payment a $500 check on the First National bank, as brought out in Week's cross-examination.

"Did she say anything about where she got the money?"

"No, sir."

He knew little of her home life, and answering an opening question by the state, said he had never told George Lawler that the people in the Ninth street neighborhood were glad to get rid of her.

R. F. Bryan, 2911 Tenth street, in the city for six years in the oil business, stated that he knew well the two sons, W. C. and Billy Robertson. He had been to the Lee street home 25 or 30 times with W. C., he stated, and declared he had never seen any one drinking or carousing there. He knew nothing of Mrs. Robertson's reputation. On the cross examination, he stated he had never been in the Eighteenth street home prior to the shooting.

Dewey King Called.

Dewey D. King, 26, wholesale dry cleaner for the Wichita laundry, told of frequent visits to the Robertson cleaning plant and later the Ninth street home to call for and deliver articles to be dry cleaned, by the laundry.

For more than a year, he stated, he called four times a day at the plant on Seventh street, and went to the home on Ninth and later on Eighteenth street once or twice a day regularly. He saw no drinking, carousing nor boistrous parties, he stated, and declared Mrs. Robertson's reputation as to virtue and chastity to be good. McCabe was the only one he knew of who had roomed at the Ninth street house, he stated, and said that Mrs. Robertson "soon got rid of him."

Mr. Francis took up the cross examination.

"You work for Gerald Pond?"

"Yes sir."

"You left clothes at Mrs. Rogertson's home to be cleaned, came back to deliver them, and left immediately?"

"Yes sir."

"Did you stay around to talk?"

"No sir."

"Did you ever visit socially at her home?"

"No sir, only on business."

"Did you keep books on the transactions of money paid to you by Mrs. Robertson for the cleaning of the clothes?"

"Yes sir, they're at the laundry."

Questioned as to what commission Mrs. Roberthon made on a suit of clothes, the witness hesitated, then said that when Mrs. Robertson received a dollar for cleaning and pressing a suit, the laundry got 35 cents and Mrs. Robertson 65 cents. He later said that she paid him $12.50 for one day's cleaning, and upon the request of Mr. Weeks said that he could produce the account books from the laundry.

Answering Mr. Weeks' question as to who stayed at the Robertson house, the witness told of the removal of McCabe by federal authorities for using dope. He mentioned "Slim" as one of the men who stayed there. Davis was mentioned as the man in whose name Mrs. Robertson ran the tailor shop.

"What was Davis doing there?"

"He was there to have his clothes cleaned."

"Did he sleep there?"

"I don't know, I wasn't there?"

At the uproar of laughter which followed this remark, the court room was severely reprimanded by Judge Martin who reminded the audience that they would have to be locked out of the court room if they could not restrain their laughter.

"Did you ever see a cot or bed in the shop?"

"No, I don't know whether Davis slept there or not. He was there every day for a time while he was repairing the shop after it burned."

"How often was Davis at the Lee street house?"

"How often was he at the Ninth street house?"

"I saw him there once or twice."

Patton, Leath and two women, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Mullins, were the only names he knew of other people he had seen staying at the Robertson home.

Recess Is Declared.

Mrs. G. C. Campbell of 1516 Britton street was the last witness to [illegible] in the afternoon session. Immediately following her testimony a five minute recess was declared after which Judge Martin announced court would adjourn until Monday morning at 9 o'clock in the 78th district court across the building. Judge Atwell, he stated, would use the 89th district court for the federal court next week, and instructions were given the bailiff to see that the jurymen were moved to quarters in the 78th district court.

Addressing jurymen, he told them to devote the remainder of the afternoon to rest and exercise but to keep together and avoid crowds as formerly advised.

Mrs. Campbell was most emphatic in her statements especially to Fred Weeks on the cross examination. Jimmy Allred opened for the state.

Stating that she had known Mrs. Robertson more than three years and that she had worked with Mrs. Robertson in her tailor shop over a year, the witness declared her to be a law abiding citizen with a good reputation with reference to virtue and chastity. Declaring that Mrs. Robertson worked long and hard for her eight children she emphatically denied the presence of wild parties, liquor or carousing.

"No, indeed not," indignantly.

Mr. Weeks then cross examined the witness and failed utterly to draw from her a statement as to when Mrs. Robertson moved away from Lee street, though he asked the question many times.

"Did you ever work for Mrs. Robertson in her Seventh street tailor shop when she lived on Ninth street or 18th street?"

"No sir. I worked before that."

The witness admitted knowing of Mrs. Bolin and said she had talked to her once or twice in the shop but that she knew nothing of the corset incident. She knew of no other women in Wichita Falls who knew Mrs. Robertson, knew of no women who took Mrs. Robertson riding inn a car, and knew of no men visiting her home.

"Do you know Mrs. Robertson's niece from Olney?, the red haired neice?"

"Yes sir."

"What was her name?"

"Mrs. Wilburn."

"Viola Wilburn?"

"Yes."

"How long did she stay."

"I don't know."

Further questions about the red haired neice Mrs. Campbell knew nothing about, but declared vehemently that she was a "perfect lady." At one time she turned to the jury stating that "Mrs. Robertson is a perfect lady, I haven't a thing against her."

"Were you thrown with Mrs. Robertson at any time in 1924?"

"No sir," the witness answered, saying something about being "very busy."

Mr. Allred then asked her if she knew anything about the ordering or delivery of the corset by Mrs. Robertson from Mrs. Bolin, the witness emphatically stating "no."

Court then adjourned for the day.

Pola Negri Leaves On European Tour

NEW YORK, March 21.—Pola Negri, motion picture actress, sailed today on the steamship Leviathan. She said she would be abroad about six weeks, visiting her mother in Posen, Poland, and enlarging an orphanage maintained by her at the same place.

Questioned of the veracity of the reports that she might marry while abroad, she pointed to a diamond ring on her right hand, declined to disclose the name of a "conservative American" to whom she alluded and then asserted she "would not" wed in Europe.

On mention of the recent marriage of Gloria Swanson, she made the comment:

Many Funerals In Twin Cemeteries At Murphysboro

Six Clergymen Are Kept Busy Throughout The Day Burying Dead

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., Mar. 21.—(AP)—Twin cemeteries, high on a hill overlooking desolate Murphysboro, were scenes of simultaneous funerals all day long and an army of 150 grave diggers was breaking fresh ground for the burial of victims of Wednesday's tornado.

Tower Grove cemetery and Saint Andrews cemetery had received more than fifty bodies up to 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The voices of as many as six clergymen could be heard giving their simple services over the dead at the same time.

The day was quiet and a bright sun warmed the soft wind which gently caressed the mourners in a manner so different from that of Wednesday when it rolled this city of life and homes by the hundreds.

Grave diggers in overalls rested their shovels at times to act as pallbearers while hosts of sorrowing people watched their loved ones being lowered into graves.

Amongst the funerals today was that of Frank Keough, a worker, who was burned to death in the fire at the Mobile & Ohio shops. His ashes were buried in the Keough family lot in a casket about a foot and a half long. Keough was identified by his watch found with his remains.

Ernie Hemblliffe, another shop worker, who was nearly evenly cremated, was buried in a small casket near Keough. He also had been identified by his watch.

Work at the Tower Grove cemetery was under the direction of "Hot" Mulinhill, the sexton, who was another of the persons saved from the fury of the tornado in an peculiar manner.

Mullinhill was working near the mausoleum when far to the southwest he saw the black cloud descending upon the town. He and a helper ran for the mausoleum and closed the door as trees, rubbish and debris began to descend.

The two men saw Murphysboro fall before the tornado through a small window in the basement of the building.

Bowie Club Leader A Welcome Visitor Before Woman's Forum

Peggy Piedmont's Letter

My Dear Kings:

ST. PATRICK'S greetings and the Old Fellows and Rebekahs' congratulations have offered sufficient excuse for a lot of social merriment the past week, Kitty, although our favorite event qualified mightiest yet. We find our own breath so fast gone we lightly, for others, the hour in ourself to credit, we can boldly step over the threshold. Thursday and evenings have literally been filled with informal affairs for visitors, for many have been here enjoying Wichita Falls' southern hospitality while the long distant east is preparing dress.

Reminder of the early spring season however hangs as silver edge this gaiety, numerous luncheons, afternoon teas, bridge parties and complimentary entertains. Afternoon teas have been also Marjorie Bell of Austin, who is the guest of Elma Mae. During the very moment of her arrival social activities in the honor are "packed full" and nothing else mattered during the week except the entertainment of the attractive visitor. Another guest, who shared her attentions, is Mrs. Womble of Springfield, Mo., who with her small daughter, Mallory, are here visiting Mrs. Womble parents, Judge and Mrs. R. V. Cummings.

- - - -

ONE of the prettiest affairs of the week honoring Marjorie Bell was the dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hastins Wednesday evening when Mr. W. was hostess the guests of the visitor. The table was beautiful with a cloth of filet and Madeira centered with a large bowl of red roses, spring flowers and ferns. Red rose also centralized the added table and at intervals were served. Besides the honor guest, guests were Bell of Longview, Dwight Kay, Bess Hodgson, Douglas Shell, Hilda Kay and Sidney Moore.

Reception Thursday complimented the visitor with an informal Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ben Lee, the table where arranged for bridge at the home of Mrs. W. H. Shell on Elizabeth street and other diversions suggestive of Easter were featured.

And then with so many delights to the attention in many Wichita Falls' homes, local evenings have been spent the entire week. The Mothers' Club home of Mrs. W. H. Shell on Elizabeth street and the Business Women's club home of Mrs. Bonnie Wilson, Lamar street, with entertainment with an Imagery, the latter of the Bowie school district, with entertainment with an Imagery, the affairs and meetings of the neighborhood Thursday evening in the most delicious.

- - - -

THE affair was in the form of an get-together dinner when the fathers especially were invited. Covers were laid for 60.

But any way, some thought was given to the get-together season when we are reminded and should spend some time together, spring time is here, and youth will have its way. But speaking of the spring, Kitty, have you noticed the street clothes lately? If you haven't you'd better get busy, because whether the eating of new spinach is really conducive to good health, or as other complainers are wont to say, gardens grow in Hollywood, the fact is the fact.

It started last summer when "Blossoms of the Hungry Heart" was in course of production, and the director, with Miss Florence Vidor, Ben Hecht and Clive Brook, were all found on the set, munching the succulent vegetable. Now this is fact not story, I hear. Some say it makes you pretty. If this woman really believes that, I bet you every last one of them starts to eating carrots whether they like them or not.

Talking about movie food, I suppose the rue I am always talking about it. I read the other day somewhere that Rudolph Friml, composer of "Rose Marie" and other great New York hits this season and many other popular light operas and songs, is writing a new opera which he will dedicate to Rudolph Valentino. Friml and the inspiration while he and Martha Mimar, the Hungarian violinist, were visiting the star on the "Camel" set in the United Studios.

- - - -

THERE happened to be a picnic on the set. Friml sat down and immediately began to improvise. Valentino said Martha Dell called that the most glorious music. The composer told them it had come to him because the fragrance had gone to his head.

Strange as it seems, Rudolph Valentino's fellow-lodger from the Hotel Colleges of Agriculture in Italy. His early surroundings may be an scientific interest (maybe that's why carrots are popular with movie stars). Now like there are theaters with free parking and tourists' camps where they could cover the stopping over patrons' cars, are visiting these cities.

Just a little gentleness of Miss, you'll agree, please, is essential to one on the honor March guide, which I have likening Hastin' move for an event, and they being with these accounts of wedding parties, of which one attended in the plans which the many Bowie in Hour. Although pronounced and bridal ceremonies are glittering parties.

Now no flirting, Kitty friend. If you going to glow your fingers in the new flowers, for I know your mouth itself therefore, and one at once. And this one thing you to the Hastins Bridals, who is found on one of Wichita Falls' greetings attendants, and of the corner of bridges in the cradle of not began when she was a school girl here.

- - - -

HER wedding to Russell Foster, popular alike in local social circles of the younger set, and one of the city's most prominent families, is announced in table plans some time in June. Complimentary attentions from friends of both families have already begun and the intervening months from now until the event they are expected to bring forth many more.

But speaking of weddings, never before has the coming of spring brought so many of interest. Another couple will become in early and fanciful circles when engagement is announced of Miss Dorothy Hamilton and Mildred Cockrill. Those interested in the news from prominent families and they are both popular in Grace Methodist church circles.

A group of entertaining girls from other Texas cities (mostly from Austin) will visit friends in the city over the week-end, and when Bowie brings the party Hilda Mae Gilmer, of Austin, home from their wedding trip. Hilda Wood Hampton brings home his bride, Maud Hildreth, another Austin girl, and Charles Bowie brings home his bride, Dorothy Hamilton Hadfield, of Seymour. The latter honoree has been here and the local set of brothers and sisters-in-law to the Wichita Falls. She is charming and they will all be happy to have her home now for all time.

ANOTHER June wedding I would like to tell you about but do not have an announcement has not yet been made, and friends of the principals decline that it might take place much sooner than that time they do hope they will wait until the time set so that they may participate in the numerous delightful pre-nuptial affairs.

I see from your card, dear, you are having me to tell just what month and what number and whether it is to be a church or at home, and friend of mine while I am not allowed to reveal it, I thought you might guess for yourself. But if you have another, but spring, is there and Hilda will assess the good friendship this time of year, and I feel sure as I am writing to the set and going that if I didn't tell myself and you along as the guild be the first one being what a night it—

S.M.U. Glee Club Offers Excellent Concert Program

Twenty-Four Students Will Be In Wichita Falls Next Wednesday

WHEN the Glee club of Southern Methodist university from Dallas visits our city next Wednesday it will mean much more than that our people will have an opportunity to hear a program of good songs. The program announced will doubtless give that opportunity. But it will mean much more than that. It means that we will have brought to our city, to our public schools and to our Rotary an hour of jolly, enthusiastic, talented students from one of the largest educational institutions in our state. It will mean that every excelsior student who attends the concert will have brought their to him the good old college days—the happiest and most fruitful period of his life.

If the above statements were not borne out by the mere fact of the coming of 24 university students, it would be guaranteed by one item on the program. This is a comedy sketch called "The Struggle of Modern Youth Her An Education, or Who Stays Which?" The scene of the sketch is laid in a fraternity house living room, and the actors are the members of the club who give in this little play a cross-section of student life—what the students are off duty and just having a good time. This little play introduces not only some special music, but three of the best amateur comedians to be found anywhere. Those men are Ben McGlothlin, just naturally funny; Hubbard Hardy as the "Jew," who cannot stand jazz and other such vulgarities, and Frank Watt as the negro cook. When this sketch is given we may expect not only some clever acting but some real college pep and a lot of laughter. The program follows:

DR. CANTRELL SPEAKS TO JUNIOR HIGH MOTHERS

"The people of Wichita Falls must understand the tax valuation. They must understand the need of more teachers in the school and in have more teachers, it means more money or less salary for the teachers, said Dr. J. W. Cantrell to the members of the Mothers club of the Junior high school in their regular meeting.

He also stated that there was an increase of 500 children in the schools this year over last. In the high school and Junior college there are over 1,300 here and next fall he said that 90 per cent of the freshmen going from Wichita Falls to universities find because of the fact that they are not used to caring for themselves. The mothers are realizing this more every day and also is the reason that it is so essential that we have a good college here.

Mrs. Ira L. Cain talked to the club on "Juvenile Protection". Mr. Hermine Vaughn sang "Darling" by Rogers and Mrs. Milford Pearce read "Home" by Ellen A. Goss.

Mrs. Potter Gives Review Of Book On "Adam Bede"

Bowie Speaker Addresses The Women's Forum Thursday Afternoon

Presenting the original review of George Elliot's masterpiece, "Adam Bede" was submitted to the judges in the Texas federation of women's club literary contest last year, and which won the first place in the contest, Mrs. W. R. Potter of Bowie appeared before the women's forum and their guests Thursday afternoon at the W. W. C. A. under the auspices of the literary department. The review was given in 2,500 words according to the rules of the contest, also dissibell are follows: the cause, incentive, motive, plot, effect and general impression of the story.

Mrs. Potter said in part: "My first impression of Adam Bede was, that story is true to life. One gets the impression of a powerful interest that has studied life and from this study has learned that moral laws are certain facts and that we must answer for the transgression of these laws. We see plainly how the sins of one person can reach out and blight the lives of many innocent persons. The story leaves one filled with mingled feelings of satisfaction and regret. Perhaps the purpose of the writer to show the overwhelming distress that overtakes the sinner is better portrayed in the way the book ends, but one cannot but have a feeling of extreme pity for Hettie. Her error was great but one can but with that her repentance had brought her more temporal happiness. There is a ripeness of experience and a profound insight into the soul of humanity that compels a train of thought on the part of the reader. It was just that Arthur Donnithorne should always suffer remorse and that Adam Bede should overcome his great sorrow to the extent of being happily married and a useful citizen. That Dinah's faith and self sacrifice should be rewarded by a permanent happiness and that the erring Hettie should be punished. (only Arthur Donnithorne should have been more severely punished than she).

Side by side with the downfall people who take part in the story of Adam Bede we find men and women with beautiful ideals and the contrast is emphasized by the exquisite adherence to truth in describing both groups. It hangs down upon the conscience of the reader with painful weight and tenacity. Surely the world will ever esteem the recipient of such a doctrine of duty and fairness as is expressed in Adam Bede as one of our great benefactors.

Who can read this incomparable story without longing for a more purely ideal order of existence? Who can read the incomparable story without turning the searchlight within and resolving to give more love and sympathy and less criticism and indifference?

Howe—About Men and Mice—Manners For Old Fellows—False Feminine Ideals

BY ED HOWE.

If some friend or another can, without any ill feeling on his part, tell you that you are a fool, you should be grateful for the information. It might be worth a million dollars to you. If I knew myself to be a fool, I would want to know it, and I would be grateful to the friend who told me.

It is one of the marvelous things in the universe that, as a rule, we do not know ourselves.

It is one of the marvelous things in the universe that, as a rule, we do not know ourselves.

There is no doubt that nature intended men should live on the earth.

There is no doubt that food was provided for him.

Nature has certainly provided the necessary supplies now must have while growing to maturity as it provided wood for until the fire.

Nature is so anxious to keep mating the as prosper age as it is to supply nourishment for plants. Children have stunning nature in the infinitely wide of various kinds, birds, and insects, and the wiggly, destructive ones.

Every carefully nature finds the destructive activities. It does not do much the plants and insects and bugs that annoy, keep off the creatures.

The observation we have about is common often it is not fully.

A great many sluggishness fail. But the Good Gentlemen have no difficulty in finding a remedy. "Let the government," they say, "build more roads; that will not fail."

One of the best Jimmy institutions continued as strong plan for common sense. It was so fine, so reasonable, so intelligent, so important, that it was adopted with enthusiasm.

While in the theatre of mind, I commend to you in the same publication, and may arrange a strong plan for every form of cultivation and company. Formerly "organ" were printed to represent the different sides of questions, and they were always fanatical in supporting their causes. Lately editors have become "independent," and are timid; and all sides of questions.

If one writes makes out an elaborate argument that Reading line was of importance to the country, and another writes an argument that Reading line was of no importance to the country, the reader is left in a condition of mind that is very unsatisfactory.

The man in the wrong in a controversy is the one who makes the explanations into a long meaning slogan, and this practice is followed by the majority of writers.

It is my belief that the man who can write a plain statement of facts, and who can tell a story, will always be in demand, and will be well paid for his labor the protection of people who can't take a joke.

Potash And Perlmutter Discuss How To Be Happy

"Well, Mawruss, I see where they've now got the honor system in Texas prisons," Abe Potash declared the other day. "The convicts are supposed to work eight hours a day and after that, they can do as they please with their time—the only requirements being that every convict should be back in jail promptly at midnight and shouldn't park his car within 10 feet of a fire hydrant."

"You mean to say they ain't locked up at all?" Morris Perlmutter exclaimed.

"They are locked out—not up," Abe said, "because naturally Mawruss, people who live in Texas jails, ain't going to leave the place open all night and have all kinds of tramps come strolling in and perhaps stealing the prisoners' jewelry and wallets."

"But suppose a Texas prisoner stays out all night and don't show up for work the next morning, Abe," Morris inquired, "do they punish him by turning him out of the jail permanently and making him become a regular unconvicted citizen of Texas again?"

"Say, for all I know, they may send him to jail in the neighboring states of Arizona and New Mexico where they still consider that the convicts should ought to be locked up to prevent them stealing from the citizens and not that the citizens should be locked out to prevent them stealing from the convicts," Abe said.

Bad Publicity Work

"Well, after all, Abe, when people was put into jail for only such old fashioned crimes like murder and robbery, y'understand, jailers didn't have such confidence in prisoners like they do at present," Morris remarked, "but if I was Gott noll huten living in Texas, Abe, I wouldn't feel nervous about prisoners roaming the streets who had been convicted under the anti-cigarette law, the seven foot bed sheet law, or even the law which makes a man a criminal for brewing beer containing two per cent alcohol instead of one half of one per cent. In fact, I would even go so far as to allow such prisoners to have a hatchkey and let themselves in and out of jail whenever it was necessary for their comfort or convenience, Abe, because with the big quantity of laws that a respectable man could accidentally break nowadays and in that way get himself into jail, Abe, it's only right that penitentiaries should be made safe or anyhow comfortable for democracy."

"At that, Mawruss, in spite of the fact that jails is being run for the comfort and convenience of prisoners nowadays," Abe said, "a whole lot of people are putting up a big fight to keep themselves from going there. You would think the way ex-Secretary Fall's friends are standing by him that there was some difference between a jail and a home for the aged, and Dr. Cook spent as much time and money trying to avoid what is today only a rest cure under federal supervision as if being in prison was still a matter of working on a rock pile, y'understand."

"Seemingly the superintendent of prisons of the state of New York also thinks that a false impression of jail is being held by people who are in danger of going there," Morris observed. "I see where he issued a statement the other day that wardens of prisons in the state of New York shall no longer be allowed to give out interviews to newspapers telling about the social activities of their jails. It seems that wardens of New York state prisons was furnishing the wrong kind of publicity to the Press Associations, with the result that the attendance had fallen off considerably, and I don't blame the superintendent, Abe, when you consider what wonderful publicity the Texas prisons are getting."

Prize Contests For Convicts

"Take a jail representing an investment of several million dollars, like Sing Sing, for instance," Morris continued, "and if the public reads in the newspapers once in six months that in a soccer football game between the Lifers and the Trusties, the Lifers won by a score of 19 to 0, y'understand, that's as much as leaks out in the way of publicity. In Texas on the other hand, if Governor Ma Ferguson ain't offering a prize of three hundred and fifty dollars for the best ball of cotton grown on a Texas prison farm or recreation camp, then the newspapers come out with a statement how twenty Texas convicts were allowed to go home for their Christmas vacation, and one way or another, Abe, Texas will soon have practically the entire convict business of the United States."

"She's welcome, so far as I am concerned, Mawruss," Abe said, "because while I may have old fashioned and back-number ideas about such things, the way I feel about it personally is, that the place for a murderer to spend Christmas—merry or otherwise—is in jail. It may be true that a certain proportion of murderers—say one-tenth of one per cent—are committed in a spirit of fun, y'understand, and that an occasional highway robbery and holdup happens out of sheer playfulness on the part of the highwaymen, understand me, but I am in favor that such humorists should be kept in jail if only for the protection of people who can't take a joke."

"There's lots of people in Texas who was convicted of so much as smoking a cornsilk cigarette, who would appreciate a prize for growing a bale of cotton, and there is also plenty of hardworking bookkeepers and dry goods clerks in Dallas and Houston who can't afford to take a Christmas vacation even if their bosses would give them one," Abe continued. "So therefore, Mawruss, why not hand out rewards and vacations to the unconvicted citizens of Texas first, and then if there are any rewards and vacations left over, give them to prisoners who have been convicted under the Texas law which makes it a Texas crime to play cards on a railroad train?"

"Maybe," Morris suggested, "if all crimes were regular crimes, all prisons would be regular prisons, but when the same prison holds at the same time murderers and cigarette smokers, highway robbers and beer drinkers, forgers and automobile parkers, y'understand, in order not to make it too hard for cigarette smokers, beer drinkers, and automobile parkers, it is bound to be too easy for murderers, highway robbers and forgers."

"As it is today, Abe, in states where they have anti-cigarette laws and anti-card playing laws, a murderer or a highwayman stands a chance to meet some very nice, sociable and respectable people in jail. In fact, Abe, it ain't impossible that some forgers and highwaymen might actually have committed their crimes for the purpose of going to Western States prisons and getting acquainted with intelligent liberal minded fellow convicts who are serving time for being guilty of habits that are perfectly innocent in England, France, and Italy."

"Well, speaking as a resident of New York State, Mawruss," Abe declared, "I am agreeable to the proposition that Texas prisons should be made so comfortable that all the murderers of New York will be attracted there."

"More than that, Abe," Morris concluded, "it would suit me if the States Prisons of New York would have to advertise for murderers and get no replies."

But I am in favor that such Humorists should be kept in jail if only for

Divorce Is Denied Wife of Cattleman

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 21.—(AP)—The divorce and alimony suit of $200,000 granted to Mrs. Nancy Janes against her husband, John N. Janes, wealthy Texas cattleman, was set aside today by Judge O. A. Lucas in circuit court here. The court held that the divorce and alimony judgement by Judge E. E. Porterfield August 28, 1923, was invalid since the divorce action had been set for trial in December, 1922, on a petition of Mrs. Janes. Judge Lucas ruled the divorce action should have been reinstated in the court term in which the dismissal was made. The court ruled the reinstatement of the case was after the term had elapsed.

Judge Lucas gave his decision in contempt of court proceedings which Mrs. Janes had brought to tie up a trust fund of $100,000 in the name of Janes at the Commerce Trust company.

The case probably will be appealed.

FATHER GIVES U PCHILDREN.

Says He Will Not Desert Them, But Will Provide for Mother Too.

SAN ANTONIO, Mar. 21.—A millionaire father surrendered to his divorced wife in the fight for possession of their two children, when he declared in the seventy-third district court Saturday that he will seek their custody no longer.

"But I will not abandon them," the father said. "I will provide for them and for their mother."

Rayford W. Alley, millionaire lawyer of New York, was divorced from Ruth Lipscomb Alley in 1923. The two children, Ruth and Rayford W. Jr., were given into her custody, with the understanding that he was to have them three months and that Ruth was to be under the care of a New York doctor.

Fable of Unflinching Heroine —By George Ade

Once there was a Good Woman who next to Mary Queen of Scots, probably suffered more than any other Prominent Lady of whom we have Record. It will be recalled that Mary started out as a proud Monarch, and finished up as a Martyr, while Mrs. Wambo started out as a Democratic Fixture and finished up as a Gazelle. The unfortunate Queen of Scots had her head cut off. Mrs. Wambo did not go quite that far, but she underwent a Major Operation, which seemed just as important, and which was preceded by as much Suspense, Doubt and Trepidation as that which racked the Royal Prisoner.

Mrs. Wambo, before she got into the Jam, had been married so many Years that she had concealed all the Records and changed the Subject when some carless Friend began to dig up Dates. She owned up to remembering the Spanish-American war, the Details were blurred because she was so young at the Time.

Whatever may have been her Vintage, she had a holy Horror of looking old, or feeling old, or acting as if on the Retired list. She referred to the older Bridgers as "Girls" and would warn any Bachelor, on the slightest Provocation, that her Husband was jealous.

She had a pair of Scales in her Bath Room and had tried a Facial Mask and six or seven Years ago had learned to walk loose and slouchy, like a Leading Lady in a $3 show. Also she wore a one-piece Contraption which concealed her Knee Caps unless she had to sit in a Steamer Chair.

Exit For the Seven Sutherland Sisters.

She had a perfectly laudable Ambition to keep on looking an Ingenue until they chopped her down. When she got red in the face after dancing continuously for about forty Minutes she kidded herself that the High Color was the Flush of Girlhood instead of a warning against Apoplexy.

She wore Beads and took a swing at a Golf Ball once in a while and used to sit out in the Evening and sing with the College Boys before the Ukelele was pushed aside by the Saxophone and Cross-Word Puzzle.

From this Preamble it will be evident that her name should have been Mrs. Ponce de Leon. If there was any Fountain of Youth, she wanted to hunt it up and dive in, headfirst.

It happened that one morning Mrs. Wambo awoke and discovered that the Seven Sutherland Sisters had become a Joke. It may be remembered that these Girls had Tresses which swept the Ground and were copious all the way down. When all of the seven were bunched, the View from behind was like that of Niagara Falls.

Mrs. Wambo recalled, that in her Seminary Days, it was the longing of every Sub-Deb to be a Sutherland, so that when the Mop was let down it would reach to the Ankles. In fact, it seemed that Long Hair had been the Rage from the Days of Eve, Cleopatra and Lady Godiva. The last named, for instance, certainly would have caught cold if the Modern Style had been in Vogue in Coventry in the 11th Century.

Imagine the Shock which came to Mrs. Wambo when she learned that the Flappers, instead of wearing it down to the Ankles, had decided to wear it only as far as the first Cervical Vertebra. Some modern Joan of Arc, residing in Paris, had taken a tip from the Dutch Kids and Buster Brown and had amputated the whole Works just below the ears. It seemed that within 24 hours all the Cuties in the world were throbbing with Excitement and wondering if they would dare to follow Suit.

The Situation Looks Grave.

The answer was not long delayed. All of the Young Ones fell for the Fad. Within a short time the Village Barber Shop ceased to be the Place at which the local Bootlegger studied the Pictures in the Police Gazette. It became a Salon—the Social Center of the Community, congested, for Hours at a time, with the very Pick and Flower of young Womanhood. Prominent Citizens who did not know how to shave themselves began to resemble Ernest Torrence, all bushed up for a Western.

Hairpins and Side Combs suddenly became a drug on the Market but all the Factories making Toilet Soap began to work Night Shifts.

When the new Craze began to sweep the Woodlands and Prairies, Mrs. Wambo spoke right up and said it was Terrible. She pulled the Old One about a Woman's Chief Glory being in her hair and she couldn't imagine what some of the Young Girls were thinking of when they sacrificed a Top-Knot on which they had been working for Years. Mrs. Wambo stuck to her Waves and Frizzes and the artificial suffing and any suggestion that some day she might join the great Sisterhood of Bobs would have given her the Hibby-Jibbies. Besides, she and the other young Matrons who tolled at the Card Tables every day predicted that the whole Thing was just a temporary Craze and some of those who had fallen would be in an awful hole when the styles shifted back and they tried to wear it long again.

As Month after Month passed by and the Number of Victims increased and Rumor had it that Elsie Janis, Carrie Chapman Catt, Elsie Daniels, Ethel Barrymore, Bebe Daniels, Queen Mary, Glenna Collett and Galli-Curci had succumbed the situation began to look serious. It seemed that a good many Girls who were no longer Kittens and who, in the Old Days, would have been knitting instead of Jazz-Jumping, had been clipped and were shamelessly exhibiting their Necks for the first time.

Signs of Wobbling.

Mr. Wambo begin to notice that the Missus, instead of saying that any Woman beyond 30 who got shingled was a Hussy, began to stall and ask Questions. She wanted to know of him if he thought it was Dignified of a Woman who had a Daughter in Smith College to trim herself up like a Soubrette and try to step out when she should have no ambition except to create a Home Atmosphere for her Husband and Children. Mr. Wambo was twice foxy and said he thought that the Modern Woman had a Right to do anything which could not be stopped by the Police. He had read the Signs and seen the Handwriting on the Wall. He knew that Friend Wife was getting ready to Fall, and, when the Time came, she wanted to be pushed and make out that she had been talked into it.

She showed him in the paper where Mrs. Pillsbury of Rockfill, Penna., had been Bobbed at the age of 82 and said it made her look and feel Forty Years younger and she wanted to know if he didn't think it was ridiculous but he said that Mrs. Pillsbury was satisfied, he thought, with Great.

Then there came a Day when she pulled a false Card and ... Lib and Gert were both all ... to go to a Place in the Un... Central Building where there was a man who had learned it in New York and who could advise one as to which Style would be the most becoming. She had no intention of going but it was a Fact that a great many Women ... so much older than She had ... done over and you'd be surprised at what a Change it made. Mr. Wambo, a Diplomat of the First Water, said that no matter what she ... to the Hirsute Crop she would ... look like a Million Dollars to him and if she wanted to make the Supreme Venture to go ahead and he hoped that her Conscience would be her Guide.

No Ether Used.

Weeks before the big Event every one but Mrs. Wambo knew that she was slipping. She kept on protesting that the Whole Thing was silly but the Fact that she couldn't talk about anything else proved that she was a Marked Woman.

Finally she hung the whole Responsibility on to Wambo. She said that if he insisted on it, she would go ahead and have it done.

Then came the tense Weeks during which she was trying to decide whether to have a Boyish Bob or a Shingle or a Terrace Effect or the Fish-Hook Dingle Dangles or some Scallops.

On the Day when she went to the Union Central Building the Sun stood still and traffic was suspended. She refused to take any Anesthetics and went through the Ordeal absolutely alone except for Lib and Gert Ella and Jess. After it was over she didn't know whether to go and sit in Peacock Alley or hurry Home and hide in a Closet.

Just after she took the Fatal Step a Convention of Hair Dressers in Atlantic City decreed against the Bob, but it was a False Alarm. Mrs. Wambo is now High Priestess of the Cult and will tell you what a Relief it is not to be Compelled to hang your head out of the Bath Room Window for Hours at a Time.

Fox and Brown Head Chevrolet Organization

NEW BUILDING NOW OCCUPIED BY AUTO FIRM

Show Room One Of Best In City, Located At 806 Travis Street

A change of ownership was effected in the Chevrolet organization the last of February when the Chevrolet franchise was purchased from Pool Chevrolet company. The new owners are G. D. Fox and O. E. Brown, forming the firm of Fox-Brown Chevrolet company. The new home of this organization is the spacious new building located at 806 Travis, recently erected by R. C. Cato, general contractor of this city. It is a modern building throughout, designed and specially built for this line of business. The show room is one of the best in the city affording ample room to display the new model Chevrolet cars. The service department is modernly equipped with all the latest necessities for the careful handling of cars and is in charge of an expert mechanic, specially skilled in Chevrolet products. The building is in an ideal location, being away from the congested district and time limit parking zone. The electrical fixtures were installed by the Economy Electrical company. Interior decorations and painting was done by Chas. E. Watson Paint company. The plumbing was laid by C. A. Kaufman and cement work by Z. G. Benson.

Fox Senior Partner

G. D. Fox, general manager of the Wichita Window Glass company, is the senior partner in the Fox-Brown Chevrolet company. Mr. Fox came to Wichita Falls fourteen years ago, is well known in business circles of the city, having been connected with this company for the past twelve years, where he entered as shipping clerk on the opening of that industry. Securing promotion rapidly he soon attained the position of general manager.

Mr. Fox is also a member of the Rotary club, well established in business circles, active in church and social affairs and it is felt will remain with the Window Glass company, leaving the active management of the Chevrolet company to his junior partner of the organization, O. E. Brown.

Mr. Brown is a Wichita Falls product, born and reared in this city and is proud of it. He is a veteran automobile man and needs no introduction to the automobile row in this city, having been connected with McFall Brothers, Dodge Brothers dealers, for the past eight years in the capacity of office manager. Mr. Brown says that with the assistance of B. L. Curry, their service manager, formerly an "efficiency man" in repair work with the Chevrolet Motor works of Detroit, they will be one of the best Chevrolet organizations in the state and their motto is going to be "service to their customers."

Nothing will be left undone when Chevrolet cars require repairs to put their very best efforts into giving 100 per cent satisfaction.

Modern Machinery.

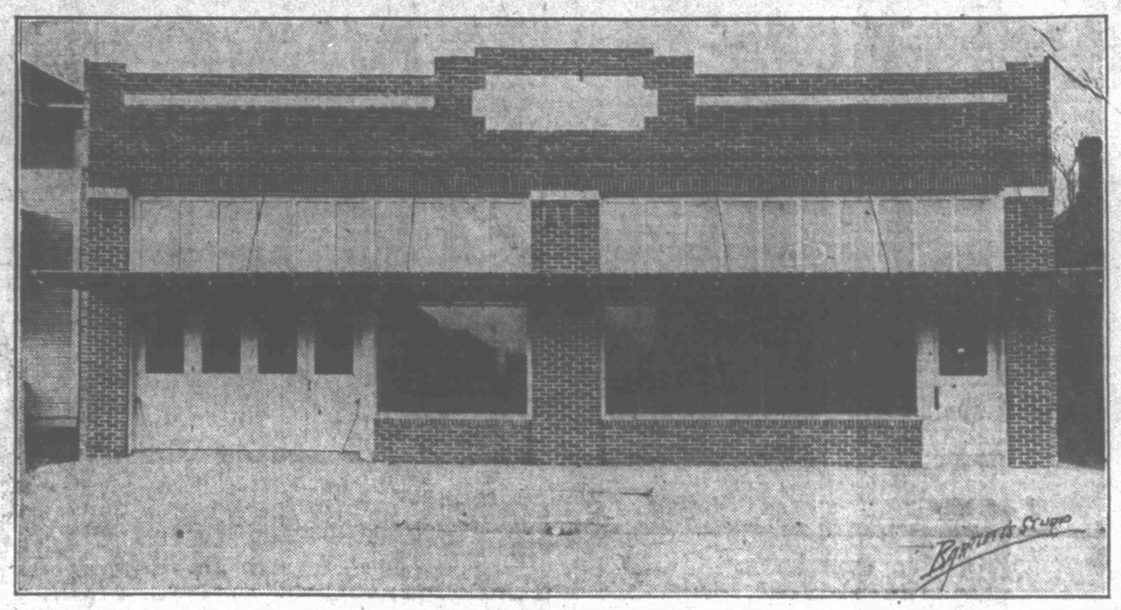

All modern machinery has been installed, such as electric valve grinding machines, electric cylinder reamers and burnishers, series of overhead tracks where no extra steps will be taken in transferring motors, etc., from one department to another. All of this machinery has been designed as time savers and Mr. Curry states that Chevrolet cars will receive the same attention and efficient service as could be had at the factory.

New Studebaker Brougham Six Is An Excellent Car

The Low Body And Beautiful Lines Lend Good Taste To Good Motor

Replete with smart appearance and distinctive features not common to cars of its class, and with a quality of chassis and body construction that arrests immediate attention, the new Studebaker Standard Six, four-door Brougham comes to the market this week as the newest of the new body types which this company has created.

Its body is low to the ground. Its appearance is distinctive. And within its four-door body are seats of full width and a roominess which gives that comfort and ease of riding which all motor car buyers seek.

Bodies are built with full metal panels, except for leather-covered back and rear quarters. The ornamental top bows and oval rear quarter and back windows give it a personality that stands out.

Above full balloon tires with 5.25 inch casings, this new Brougham is mounted on the Standard Six chassis of 113-inch wheel base — ideal for traffic—with a 50 horsepower engine carried on its own subframe as a unit with the transmission.

The entire ignition is water-proof; even the spark plugs are protected against rain or a careless car washer. Electric wiring is carried in metal-covered conduits. The single-plate clutch gives ease of operation, and gear shifting is silent and smooth.

Off the steering wheel has gone the spark advance control; the engine automatically times its firing to its own speed and the driver has one less thing to watch, and one less source of trouble from forgetfulness.

The entire lighting control has been mounted on the steering wheel, at finger tips, so one's eyes need not be taken from the road in passing other cars at night; there is no need to grope on the instrument board, down under the wheel, for the light switch.

While experimental balloons carrying nothing but instruments have risen 22 miles, those with human freight have gone only four.

Fords Supply the Moderate Families

Families of moderate or limited means, who heretofore hesitated about purchasing cars, are coming into the automobile buying field in greater numbers than ever before, if records of the Ford Motor company's weekly purchase plan may be taken as an indication.

The plan, launched not quite two years ago, was started chiefly to give such people an opportunity to enjoy the benefits and pleasures of motor car transportation and those taking advantage of it are growing in numbers every day. It is simple, the prospective purchaser making weekly payments of an amount best suited to his individual means, these payments becoming part of a bank account until such time as the purchaser has sufficient sum to take delivery of his car.

Details of the operation of the plan, as just given out by the company, show that from a comparatively few daily enrollments during the first month, the number has steadily risen until now, more than 700 people are enrolling every day throughout the country, a rather remarkable public endorsement of the plan.

The records also show that there are at present more than 110,000 persons on the weekly purchase plan roll and that more than 165,000 already have received their cars under the plan.

These figures seem to bear out predictions made when the plan was inaugurated, that it would exert a wide influence toward lessening extravagant buying with its consequent embarrassments, and instead afford a practical means for car ownership in which all members of the family can participate.

Because of growing traffic, the state railways of Italy have ordered 1,870 cars and plan to add 2,800 more cars and forty locomotives.

That is the announcement made by R. H. Smith of Vernon, manager of the Vernon Electric and Ice company,

Gardner Auto Is Latest Holder Of High Gear Record

In a stock Gardner touring car Tom Savage Jr., recently established a high gear record for Lookout mountain near Denver which, it is claimed, has never before been equally by any car. In 24 hours of continuous driving, Savage covered a distance of 452.7 miles at an average speed of 18 5-6 miles per hour on one quart of water, 3 1-2 pints of oil, and 21 gallons of gasoline.

R. H. Kenney and E. H. Roemle of the Denver Post, who acted as official observers, sealed the car in high gear, using seals Nos. 6617, 6619 and 6620. These same men checked the running time for each of the 41 laps, and at the end of the trip signed an affidavit asserting that all seals remained unbroken.

The car was then driven to Gardner headquarters in Denver for an inspection by Cadillac, Studebaker and Hudson-Essex service men who certified that it was a standard stock model in every respect and pronounced it in perfect condition despite its grueling grind.

upon his return from San Antonio, and it will be greeted with much interest by all the people in this community.

Before power and lights can be supplied the patrons at Oklaunion and Harrold, it will be necessary to add several power units at the power plant. This work is now being done and when this is completed, and the line built, the two communities will then have power and lights.

German shoes are being worn extensively in Canada.

ANIBAL NAMED NEW ENGINEER FOR OAKLANDS

Department Head Formerly Was Connected With Cadillac Company

A. R. Glancy, president and general manager of the Oakland Motor company, announces the appointment of B. H. Anibal as chief engineer, succeeding Benjamin Jerome, resigned.

Mr. Anibal has been associated with various motor car units of the General Motors corporation for 12 years, starting in 1909 in the engineering department of the Olds Motor works, where he assisted in the designing of the famous Oldsmobile Limited.

Knows Cadillacs.

For the 10-year period from 1911 to 1921, he was intimately connected with every engineering development of the Cadillac Motor Car company, including the introduction of the first eight-cylinder car in this country. He also assisted in designing the 1912 four-cylinder Cadillac, which first introduced electric starting and lighting in the industry. His various positions at Cadillac included designer, assistant designing engineer, engineer in charge of motor design, assistant chief engineer and chief engineer.

Resigning from Cadillac in 1921, Mr. Anibal accepted the position of chief engineer of the Pearless Motor Car company, where he remained until a year ago, when he became consulting engineer for the Studebaker corporation.

At Washington.

During the late war he represented the Cadillac engineering department at Washington in working out problems of design and engineering in the development of the Liberty motor. His war work also included service as assistant chief engineer of the aircraft division of General Motors corporation.

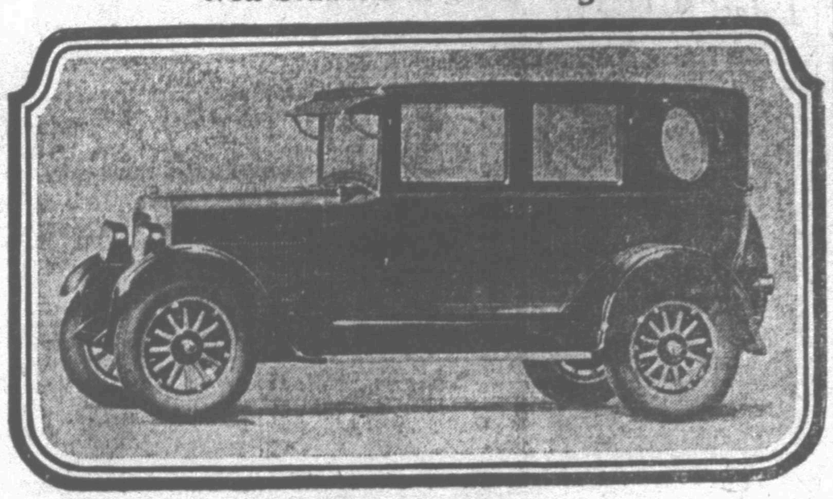

Mr. Glancy points to Mr. Anibal's remarkable record in engineering, particularly with Cadillac, as an indication of the kind of work he will be called upon to do in refining the Oakland Six to an even higher degree of mechanical efficiency.

POLICE GET HUPS.

Minneapolis Officers Purchase Six New Cars for Use.

The city of Minneapolis recently purchased for its police gun squad a fleet of six new four-cylinder Hupmobiles, according to word received here by officials of the Motor Sales Co. Hupmobile distributors. These cars replace six similar cars bought three years ago which had traveled 700,000 miles in the gruelling twenty-four-hour two-day service given them. "When the time came to purchase new automobiles members of the gun squad were unanimous in asking for Hupmobiles," said a Motor Sales company official.

Chevrolet Plays Big Part In Long Automobile Tour Of Rhodesia, North Africa

Within a few months the fly tests and the cooking utensils will have been strapped on the car and that new species of traveler — the auto tourists—will be on his way to live in the open and see the hidden glories of this country as they are seen only in a gypsey kind of wandering.

If you chance to be one of them and think that there are many irksome duties connected with primitive living in the open, hark to the tale of a 2,000 mile trip of Mr. and Mrs. L. Blake Jolly in the Broken Hill country of northern Rhodesia, Africa. Mr. Jolly is chief recruiting agent of the Rhodesia Broken Hill Development company, Ltd., North Rhodesia, Africa.

Even the worst roads you may have encountered are vertiable primrose paths of down compared to the bush country in the land of the tom-tom and the teetse-fly. The Jollies encountered every type of annoyance and adventure in their journey of more than two months.

At the time of this trip, the middle of last summer, the Chevrolet touring car they used was the only one in their country and the only car that ever successfully left Broken Hill and got safely through to Lake Tanganyika.

Food for two weeks had to be carried, beside complete cooking and sleeping equipment, while gasoline and extra food had to be sent on ahead by 40 carriers. In addition to the tremendous weight of equipments four persons were carried in the car through tracks cut through the brush full of pits and holes."

Only Footpaths.

The first day out the only road was a native foot-path, at times hardly visible and every few miles a dambo (plain) was encountered, which is very marshy ground with a bog in the middle and which becomes a veritable river in the rainy season. Often a native boy had to be sent ahead to reconnaiter and then the car was piloted through.

Though the diary of the trip contains more than 3,000 words, only the most interesting extracts will be taken.

On July 22, grass from six to seven feet high, intermingled with bushes, was encountered, to say nothing of ant hills and holes which shook the car to the very limit. The sun was so hot that the gasoline had to be completely covered by the equipment.

On the following day the car became stuck in a bog and it was necessary to send back for a dozen natives to push it out. It never rains but it pours, it is said, and next 12 foot elephant grass was encountered which filled the radiator with grass seed, so that it was necessary to stop every few miles and dislodge the seeds to prevent the motor from boiling. Later this same day, the party ran across a great bush fire—flames from horizon—and only avoided danger by hitting a large patch of ground where the grass had already been burned.

Baboons Are Scared.

The next day the only thing exciting was [illegible] eling a jackel, a wild cat and phython crossed their path and a group of haboons which the superstitious natives never kill for fear of bringing bad luck.

"The next day," writes Mrs. Jolly, "my husband went over the car which had extraordinary little the matter with it."

Mrs. Jolly explained in her diary that they often encountered great patches of burnt down timber land. The natives burn down miles of trees to fertilize the ground—a lazy way to prepare the ground instead of hoeing it.

A raft made of old gasoline cans ferried the Chevrolet across a river the next day. Two days later another river was encountered and the wheels of the car went through a bridge up the axle and it took two hours to pack the car and get across. Ab six miles further the same day second bridge was encountered, the same strenuous exercise needed to get the car out of the rot timbers.

The party camped under Mo Sunza, the highest mountain in nor ern Rhodesia, after strenuous work the bridges. In the smal settlem where they unpacked for the ni there were 40 Airdales which w used to hunt lions.

About two days later they struc bad belt of teetse-fly and it was they could do to keep the bites off dog—the bite of the teetse-fly b fatal to a dog.

Cut Down Trees.

The following day the party had cut down a number of trees and b a 200-foot stretch of cordurory r They shot some delicious pheas for lunch.

For 25 miles the next day the was hardly ever out of low gear, the journey was continually up—sand hills, which made the go most difficult.

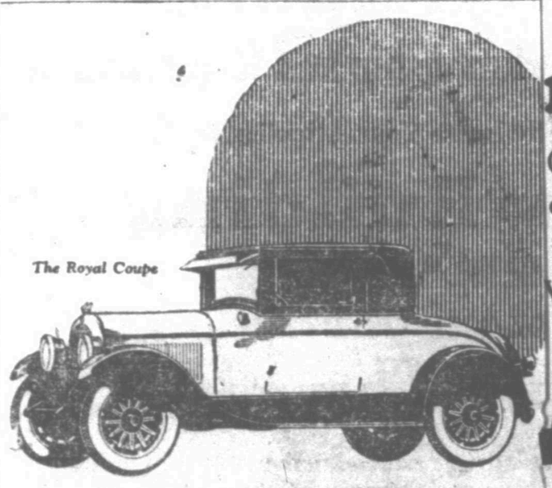

Killing a zebra, walking fire m to hunt game only to find a solit pelican, crossing more bridges helping a sick man to go 100 mile a doctor constituted the outstand adventures during the remainder the trip.

"In conclusion," writes Mrs. J in her diary, "I must pay a trib to our Chevrolet car. It has b simply, marvelous and considering tremendous load and the roughness the country which we have travers it is more than a fair test of power and durability. We have sp extraordinarily little on repairs an is now in excellent condition after strenuous trip of more than 2,0 miles."

Twelve Months Service Clinches Its Superiorities—

The Chrysler Six has given the motoring world something more than new results.

The car that created a new first-year production record, when more than 32,000 were built in the effort to satisfy the demand in 1924, has been in the hands of owners about one year.

How do these owners feel about the Chrysler Six today? How has the car behaved in actual daily service over a period of months? What is the present position of the Chrysler Six and its effect on the industry?

These are pertinent, sensible questions and any observant and unprejudiced person can answer them for himself.

For it is a notable fact that Chrysler owners who have been driving for months are as enthusiastic about their car as the men who created the year-[illegible] Chrysler delivered the same results and when first revealed a new conception of performance, it has demonstrated a dramatic [illegible] road, track and hill its staunchness and stamina as well as its brilliance. But more important than [illegible]its as records with its flashing performance after months of steady daily service grim as it was the day it was built.

Returning the confirmation of the soundness of Chrysler engineering and construction puts the finishing touch on the Chrysler position in the industry. Ask Chrysler owners and also men handling other lines of cars what they think of the Chrysler Six. You will find that it is their to both the advantages and the competitive handicaps that inevitably fall to the supremely successful in any line of industry.

WALTER P. CHRYSLER'S

TRAFFIC TALKS

LOS ANGELES USES PEDESTRIAN TUNNELS

CLEARING the congestion will solve the traffic problem.

This is the deduction reached by the Traffic Planning and Safety Committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

A study of accidents on streets and highways shows that the rate of motor fatalities in proportion to population is greater in the large cities.

Lew R. Palmer, of the Equitable Life Assurance Company, is the authority for the statement that the total motor fatalities are higher per 100,000 population in the 500,000 and upwards cities than in any other group.

* * *

Here are proposals originating in Los Angeles for the bettering of street traffic conditions:

Pedestrian tunnels are one of the most striking measures being put into effect. One has already been constructed on Sunset Boulevard and it is recommended that 50 more be put into effect in school areas and other locations where traffic is congested.

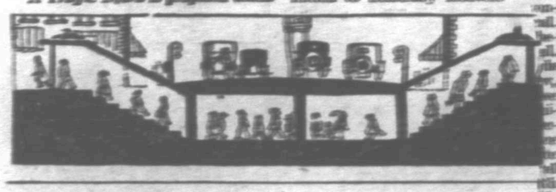

A Traffic Board is proposed which will be a technical organization making a careful study for the constant relief of congestion.

Crosswalks are being dictated by paint line marks at all intersections in the central traffic district and in certain crowded areas at the middle of any block over 400 feet in length.

Safety Zones. In addition to those now provided at car stops, zones of the raised platform type are proposed for other heavily crowded streets where the roadway extends sixty feet in width.

* * *

Wm. Phillips Eno, Chairman of the Board of the Eno Foundation for Highway Traffic Regulation, Inc., says that much of the delay in standardizing traffic regulation has come from conflicting proposals set forth in a mass of all embracing ordinances framed by incompetent officials. "It has been my experience that traffic cannot be controlled by an elaborate set of rules, knowledge and application, and no improvement may suggest itself that is directly contrary to the provision laid down in the ordinance," he wrote recently in a report submitted to Secretary Hoover.

Only Best Steel Used In Building The Better Buick

Frame Is Constructed Of Highgrade Tested Material

The discovery of steel was followed by a tremendous revolution in manufacture, and the more modern discovery of heat treatment has had an effect that is almost as far-reaching, particularly where strength, resistance to wear and lightness are important factors. It is literally true that without heat treatment the modern automobile could never have been brought to its present high state of efficiency.

Plain carbon steel of good quality has the properties of strength, ductility and resistance to shock. By the scientific use of heat treatment these properties can be greatly improved, and in recent years alloy steels have been developed, which, after heat treatment, give results vastly superior to those of the best heat treated carbon steels. Thus, by making certain parts of stronger and tougher steel, it is possible to increase their durability and at the same time decrease their weight.

Raw Material First.

The upbuilding of the steel structure naturally starts with the raw material. For example, a large percentage of the heat treated parts entering into the makeup of Buick cars are made from drop forgings. The drop forgings, in turn, are made from bar stock, built to specifications at some of the large steel mills. Now, just any bar stock at all cannot be used for any and all forgings. The work the finished part is to do must be taken into consideration by the engineers so that the bar stock may be ordered with the right percentage of carbon, or special alloy to give the required quality of toughness, hardness, etc., after heat treatment.

The bar stock is made from castings, or ingots. These ingots are heated and passed between large rollers while hot, and as they are rolled and elongated by this action the coarse grained structure existing at the casting temperature is refined, blow holes are welded up, thus giving the material a close-knit character of great uniformity. The temperature at which the rolling is finished is just above the critical point, so that the bar stock when ready for shipment not only contains the correct percentage of carbon or alloy, but its structure is very much improved.

The science of heat treating centers about the critical point of the metal, but experience and research have shown the engineers how this treatment can be varied in its application to suit the conditions that each of the parts must encounter in service. For example, the principal requirement in the drive shafts in the rear axle is toughness—i. e., the structure of the steel should be uniform throughout and not too hard.

Gear Uniform.

On the other hand, a differential gear should not be uniform throughout. The teeth should be extremely hard, to resist wear, while the interior structure should be very tough. After the gears have been forged and machined they are case hardened. This operation consists of placing the gears in sealed tubes containing a material capable, when heated, of imparting a high percentage of carbon to the outer part of the gears.

In the case of many heat treated parts that require machining operations to complete them, the practice is to machine them before heat treatment, while the material is still soft enough to machine readily. In this event the heating, instead of being done in furnaces, is done in great pots and heated lead, which insures the proper penetration of the heat to every part of the metal, but absolutely prevents the formation of scale on the outside of the part.

After heating, comes the quenching operation, which must also be suited to each individual part. Some parts are quenched in water, while others that might be warped from the hardening strains, are quenched more slowly in a special grade of oil.

"Drawing" Is Final.

The last phase of heat treating is the "drawing" operation, in which the parts are heated at a very low temperature. Drawing is a sort of annealing process, to relieve some of the hardness resulting from the quenching operation with a certain degree of toughness. In the case of gears with extremely hard teeth, the heat is kept just high enough to toughen and remove strains without having any appreciable effect on the hardness of teeth.

With heat treating equipment and methods such as are found in the Buick heat treating department great uniformity in the quality of the finished parts is assured. And because heat treating raises the elastic limit (working load) of the steel to a really wonderful degree, it is possible by the use of heat treating to actually reduce the weight of moving parts at the same time that their strength is being increased. A series of exhaustive tests in the engineering department determines the minimum strength that a given part will encounter in service, to which is added a liberal margin for safety's sake.

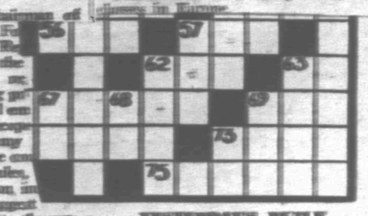

In addition to the tests given in the manufacturing departments, a certain percentage of each lot of heat treated parts is tested in our engineering laboratories, to see that production is running uniformly in accordance with specifications.

NICKEL PLATING ON OLDSMOBILE SHOWS WEIGHT

Innovation In Bathing Gives Uniformity in Thickness

Heavy nickel plating, of a uniformity of thickness never before achieved, is being used in all nickeled parts on Oldsmobiles since the recent installation of a new plating method at the Olds Motor Works, Lansing, Michigan. The new process not only gives a heavier and more uniform plating [illegible] going.

The principle innovation in the new method is an endless chain which conveys the articles being plated through the plating tanks at a set speed. This gives each part just the exact time in the plating bath that will give the best results. Heretofore the length of time was guaged by workmen, and was, therefore, subject to human errors.

Parts to be plated come from the presses to the plating room where they are first polished with soft emery on a leather wheel. They then are rinsed in a cleansing solution, after which they are attached to automatic conveyors that carry them through a tank filled with copper plating solution. This copper plating bath consumes 15 minutes and the conveyor is regulated to make one complete circle of the tank in that time.

The parts are then buffed on a cloth wheel, cleaned and given a second copper plating to make sure that all portions are sufficiently well covered. The parts are then rinsed and placed in the [illegible] is a satisfactory increase over the enrollment for the corresponding month in 1924, when but 561 were enrolled.

STUDENTS HURT AT HAVANA

HAVANA, Cuba, March 21.—(AP)—Eight students and three policemen were injured at noon today when several hundred students gathered in front of the presidential palace as a protest against fines given three students this morning as a result of arrests in connection with a proclamation against the Hay-Quesada treaty celebration last Wednesday.

nickeling tanks where automatic conveyors make a complete circle of the big tanks in 30 minutes.

Plating by this new and scientific method gives exactly the thickness of nickel required and insures uniform thickness throughout. The possibility of the workmen slighting the time of plating when operating on a piecework basis is entirely eliminated.

Three men using the new equipment can plate in a day 300 pieces of each of the eight nickeled parts on Oldsmobiles, radiator shells, control levers, accelerator pedals, brake levers, brake lever latch rods, carburetor choke bodies, radiator crank hole caps and top holders.

Tire Business for Year Promises Much

Jene Segall, general manager of the Segall Tire company, wholesale and retail distributors for Goodyear tires and tubes is very highly elated over the outlook for the tire business of this year. He is good authority on automobile tires and will be glad to tell you why this is going to be a "Good year". Mr. Segall says that practically all tires are victims of abuse and states: "One of the foremost tire experts in the country is authority for the statement that more than half the tires returned for adjustment are nothing less than the victims of abuse, and are not defective as claimed by the purchaser.

"This is a rather broad statement, and if true, it would appear as though the tire user in general might, with profit to himself and the tire companies, be enlightened as to the proper care of his tires," says Mr. Segall.

Relief Workers Accompanied By Funeral Dirges

Physicians Labor On While Others Bury Those Who Are Dead

CHICAGO, March 21. — (AP) — Groups of busy relief and rescue workers here and there a funeral dirge and many corps of physicians swiftly and deftly treating the injured, dotted the panorma in stricken sections of five states which on Wednesday yielded to tornado, storm and fire more than 800 dead and 3,000 injured.

The epilogue of the element's visitation was enacted today in many community burials and scores of private services. Where there was no minister and the trappings of funeral formality were unobtainable, a rough box, a small bunch of flowers and a reading of scripture was substituted. Individual ceremonies were attempted everywhere but in the more congested locations the demand was too great except for brief rituals.

Burials Are Pitiful.

Pitiful were the stories of burials. Neighbors would read the penciled name on the wooden box, affix the name to a cross or temporary head stone and carry it to the grave. Women, men and children helped, turning from one group of bodies, or a funeral procession to another, lending aid.

Military forces are thrown about the Indiana sector to keep them out. Sightseers will only hinder relief. At Benton and other southern Illinois towns the same word went out. Authorities there added that should any succeed in entering they would be put to grave digging and reclamation, although it was not in the form of an invitation.

As the complete lists of dead begin to come in an increasing number of women, children and infants are shown among the dead. In West Frankfort alone nearly 40 of its dead were babies. The Associated Press re-checked its casualty list tonight to find it carried 783 names, with no duplications. There is the possibility that in transmission or in the frenzied early complications some casualties might have been incorrectly included.

The early notes of optimism and encouragement for rebuilding for the future were sounded by one of Murphysboro's heaviest losers.

S. P. To Be Rebuilt.

At Princeton, Ind., good news was in the announcement that the Southern railway shops would be reconstructed as well as the Heinz factory.

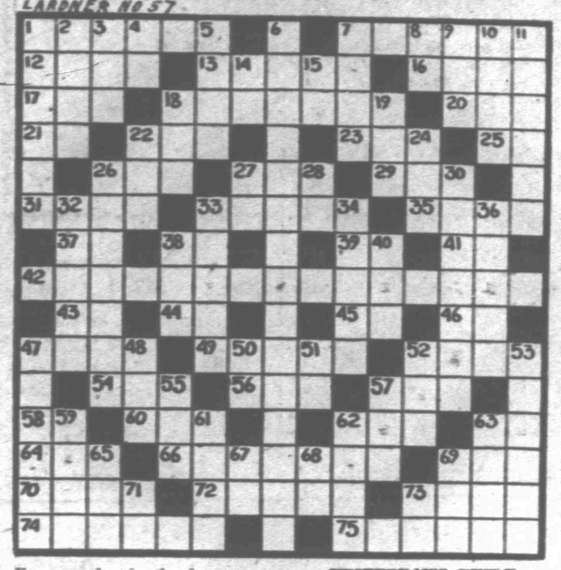

Reports from Murphysboro and West Frankfort indicated their homeless and destitute were being well cared for, permitting relief workers to look into the smaller communities. Through the devastated areas the homeless were still estimated beyond 10,000.

PRACTICE "MR. BOB"

HARROLD, March 21.—Work is progressing on "Mr. Bob," the school play to be presented by the students of the Oklaunion high school on April 10. The books have been received, and rehearsals have been going on now for some time. Rehearsals are now being held at night, and the work gone into in earnest.

Cross-Word Puzzle

LARDNER NO 57

Every number in the form represents the beginning of a word, reading either horizontally or vertically. If there is a black square to the left of the number, the word is horizontal; if above it, the word is vertical. The same number may of course begin both a horizontal and a vertical. The definitions for the correct words to fill the form are found below, with numbers corresponding to those on the form. Run through the definitions till you find one that you recognize, and put it in its proper place on the form, one letter for each white square. This will furnish several cross clues to the words linking with it at right angles. Continue in this manner till the form is completely filled. If you have solved the puzzle correctly it should read both horizontally and vertically with words corresponding to the definitions.

ONE-QUARTER OF OTHER FUEL COST

Unless one has had experience with manufactured gas, he is likely not to realize all the advantages of the splendid supply of natural gas given the people of Texas.

Foremost, of course, is the matter of price. Manufactured gas is usually made of coal, and the price of it must be based on the price of gas-making coal. In Texas this price would have to be about double the price of natural gas, in the larger places, and almost prohibitive in the smaller towns.

It has not been found practical to transport manufactured gas any considerable distance, so it is not likely many of the smaller places could be supplied with it at all.

Next, and of almost equal importance, is the much greater value of the same volume of natural gas for heating purposes. Manufactured gas usually contains about half the heating units of natural gas per cubic foot. While people use the manufactured article much more carefully because of its higher price, the same careful use of natural gas would make it cost only about one-quarter of the price of manufactured gas at the present figures.

Surely such a cheap and well served commodity is worthy of your careful conservation.

"The Everlasting Christ" The Heart of The Lesson

(Luke 24: 36-53)

36 And as they thus spake, Jesus himself stood in the midst of them, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you.

37 But they were terrified and affrighted, and supposed that they had seen a spirit.

38 And he said unto them, Why are ye troubled? and why do thoughts arise in your hearts?

39 Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have.

40 And when he had thus spoken he showed them his hands and his feet.

41 And while they yet believed not for joy, and wondered, he said unto them, Have ye here any meat?

43 And he took it, and did eat before them.

44 And he said unto them, These are the words which I spake unto you, while I was yet with you, that all things must be fulfilled which were written in the law of Moses, and the prophets, and in the psalms, concerning me.

45 Then opened he their understanding, that they might understand the scriptures.

46 And said unto them, Thus it is written, and thus it behooves Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day.

47 And that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jarusalem.

48 And ye are witnesses of these things.

49 And, behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you: but tarry ye in the city of Jarusalem, until ye be endured with power from on high.

50 And he led them out as far as Bethany, and he held up his hands, and blessed them.

51 And it came to pass, while he blessed them, he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven.

53 And were continually in the temple praising and blessing God. Amen.

State Convention Brings In That Amount To Local Merchants

The state I. O. O. F. convention, that met in the city during the first three days of the past week, was worth over $250,000 to local merchants.

It was estimated that at least this sum was spent by the 3,500 delegates to the seventy-two hour meet, as shown by the bank clearings for Wichita Falls for the days of the convention.

On both Thursday and Friday, directly as a result of the business brought in by the convention, the clearings for each day went over $600,000, which is unusual for this time of the year, according to clearing house officials.

The total for the past week showed a slight decrease for the clearings of the preceding week, but were still well above the average. The decrease was $66,442.26, the two totals being $3,308,590.70 and $3,375,032.96, respectively.

TO THE VOTERS:

In announcing my candidacy for Fire and Police Commissioner, I wish to inform the public as to my platform and my appeal for their vote.

I stand for law enforcement. If I am elected to this office I will not recommend to the City Council for selection as Chief of Police any man who has served in that office in this city in the past, nor will I recommend any man for that office who is not already a citizen of Wichita Falls.

If elected I will not employ any man on the Police force who is not a bona fide citizen of Wichita Falls, holding a tax receipt for the current year.

I believe that the traffic regulation with reference to the ranking of cars on the wider streets, works a hardship upon too many people and I will, if elected, seek to work out a parking plan which will be satisfactory to the majority of our citizens.

If elected I will handle the people's money in just as economical a way as I possibly can, with as few men as is safe for the city and with a view if possible, to lowering the city rate.

If elected, will give more attention to cleaning out the crooks and gangs than worrying the public over technical auto violations and other minor violations.

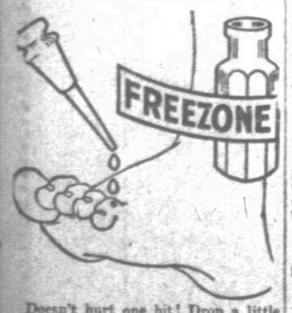

Respectfully yours,

Odd Fellows Are Wort h$250,000 To Wichita Falls

State Convention Brings In That Amount To Local Merchants

The state I. O. O. F. convention, that met in the city during the first three days of the past week, was worth over $250,000 to local merchants.

It was estimated that at least this sum was spent by the 3,500 delegates to the seventy-two hour meet, as shown by the bank clearings for Wichita Falls for the days of the convention.

On both Thursday and Friday, directly as a result of the business brought in by the convention, the clearings for each day went over $600,000, which is unusual for this time of the year, according to clearing house officials.

The total for the past week showed a slight decrease for the clearings of the preceding week, but were still well above the average. The decrease was $66,442.26, the two totals being $3,308,590.70 and $3,375,032.96, respectively.

Daily clearings for the past week, as reported by the local clearing house, are as follows:

TO THE VOTERS:

In announcing my candidacy for Fire and Police Commissioner, I wish to inform the public as to my platform and my appeal for their vote.

I stand for law enforcement. If I am elected to this office I will not recommend to the City Council for selection as Chief of Police any man who has served in that office in this city in the past, nor will I recommend any man for that office who is not already a citizen of Wichita Falls.

If elected I will not employ any man on the Police force who is not a bona fide citize nof Wichita Falls, holding a tax receipt for the current year.

I believe that the traffic regulation with reference to the ranking of cars on the wider streets, works a hardship upon too many people and I will, if elected, seek to work out a parking plan which will be satisfactory to the majority of our citizens.

If elected I will handle the people's money in just as economical a way as I possibly can, with as few men as is safe for the city and with a view if possible, to lowering the city rate.

If elected, will give more attention to cleaning out the crooks and gangs than worrying the public over technical auto violations and other minor violations.

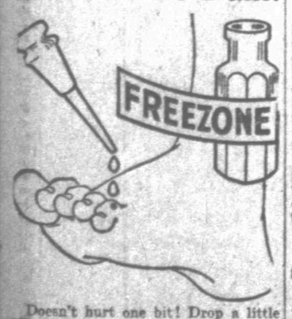

Respectfully yours,

J. B. FITTS

RADIO CAN RUN TRAINS

Man Tells Rail Club that Engines Can Be Operated Without Crews

NEW YORK, March 21.—(AP)—It is now possible to operate electric trains by raido from a central control office, G. Y. Allen of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company, told the New York Railroad club last night.

"It is entirely feasible," Mr. Allen said, "t ostart a train without a crew, run it at full speed over clear tracks, slow it down or stop it, start it up again and open its doors by signals of an automatic block system."

The radio features of this system, he added, are of the "carrier current" type waves which travel along the power lines of the railroad instead of spreading out through the ether as in ordinary broadcasting.

The system is now being used by electric power and street railway companies to control distant switches and fo rconversation between points on the system.

It consists of a bomb which been within a certain radius of an airplane "responds to the magnetic influences which give the bomb immense velocity toward the plane."

No amount of maneuvering by the piolet, according to tre description of the newspaper, will enable him to escape and the plane is doomed. The bomb is lounched from the ground.
