

Rocket Set For 110-Day Trip

Plan Sweep
Over Venus

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Space scientists began final preparations Saturday for an attempt early Sunday to launch an interplanetary spaceship on a 110-day journey to the vicinity of the planet Venus.

A 10-story-tall ATLAS Agena-B rocket is poised on Pad 12, waiting the signal to blast off to start the Mariner 2 craft across 182 million miles of space for a brief encounter with Venus on Dec. 14.

Project officials pronounced everything ready for launching the mechanical explorer, Barriar 11th hour troubles, the big rocket will soar aloft Sunday, sometime during the first three hours after midnight.

If all goes right, Mariner 2 will pass within 10,000 miles of Venus on the intended target date and then zip on into endless orbit around the sun.

During a 30-minute sweep across Venus' sunlit side, Mariner 2's sensitive instruments, using high-frequency radio signals, will seek to penetrate the heavy cloud veil surrounding the planet and unlock secrets which have puzzled astronomers and scientists for centuries.

The signals will be radiated 36 million miles back to earth where computers and scientists will translate them into solid information about the mysterious bright planet whom the early Romans named after their goddess of love and beauty.

The findings could answer such questions as: How hot is the planet? How fast does it spin? Does it have a magnetic field? A radiation belt? Is its surface covered with water or is it a steaming jungle or arid desert?

Project officials believe the spacecraft's instruments will help substantiate a theory that life does not exist on Venus because of over-likely temperatures which earth-based devices have recorded as high as 615 degrees above zero.

Packed in Mariner 2's insect-like frame are six experiments. Two will operate only during the half-hour rendezvous with Venus. They are a microwave radiometer to study composition of the atmosphere and surface temperature and an infrared radiometer to record temperatures throughout the cloud-covered atmosphere.

Other gauges will operate throughout the nearly four-month journey and provide data on space between earth and Venus. They will measure magnetic fields, high energy radiation, solar plasma and cosmic dust.

Mariner 2 represents the United States' last chance until 1964 to rocket a probe to Venus to start an extensive program of interplanetary exploration. Venus and earth come into favorable relative positions in their orbits around the sun every 19 months.

The current 50-day opportunity period ends Sept. 13. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration scheduled two launchings in the period. Mariner 1 failed on July 2 when a faulty guidance equalizer sent the Atlas Agena-B off course and it was destroyed by the range safety officer after nearly five minutes of flight.

United Fund
Prepares For Annual Drive

Plans for the 1962 Scurry County United Fund Campaign are nearing completion. Ernest Sears, president of the organization, has announced.

Sears reminded that the United Fund directors had unanimously approved earlier dates for this year's campaign. The drive will begin Oct. 13 and continue through Nov. 3.

Directors felt that an earlier campaign would be more convenient for volunteer workers. Moreover, it will come at a time when, for the most part, the public will have relatively few other requests for contributions, and it will avoid conflict with the usual rush of the Christmas holiday season. Sears said it is hoped that the campaign will be completed successfully during the scheduled dates.

Sears also announced that E. H. (Ab) Williamson, who directed last year's campaign to a successful conclusion, will again serve as general chairman for this year's drive.

Williamson said appointments of division chairmen, the campaign goal and the list of participating agencies would be announced soon.

Finkbines Slated
To Leave Sweden

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Sherri Finkbine and her husband, Robert, are scheduled to leave Sweden Sunday morning. The Phoenix, Ariz., couple has booked tickets for a flight to London, Scandinavian Airlines announced.

The 30-year-old housewife and television performer left Carolina Hospital here Friday after recovering from the operation which ended her pregnancy. She had feared, and doctors are reported to have affirmed her fears, that the baby was deformed because she took the sedative drug thalidomide early in her pregnancy. She was reported physically fit but in need of rest and privacy.

Two More Blasts
Fired By Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission reported that the Soviet Union set off two nuclear tests in the atmosphere Saturday.

One blast was in the Novaya Zemlya area in the arctic and the other in the Semipalatinsk test site in central Siberia.

The arctic explosion was described as having a force of several megatons, equal to the blast of several millions tons of TNT. The AEC said the one in Siberia was of low yield. This would indicate a blast equivalent of less than 20,000 tons of TNT.

The AEC said both explosions occurred early Saturday.

Texas Areas
Cooled By
Welcome Rain

By The Associated Press

Drought—ending rains and fall-like temperatures comforted Texas Saturday.

For the first time in almost two months residents in wide areas of the state heard rain on the roof and watched crisp, cracked lawns drink up the moisture.

More showers and no ultra-high temperatures were in weekend prospect.

Late Friday a line of thunderstorms dropped a small twister at the Odessa area, raked the Fort Worth-Dallas area with heavy rain and winds, then early Saturday moved into parched South Central Texas.

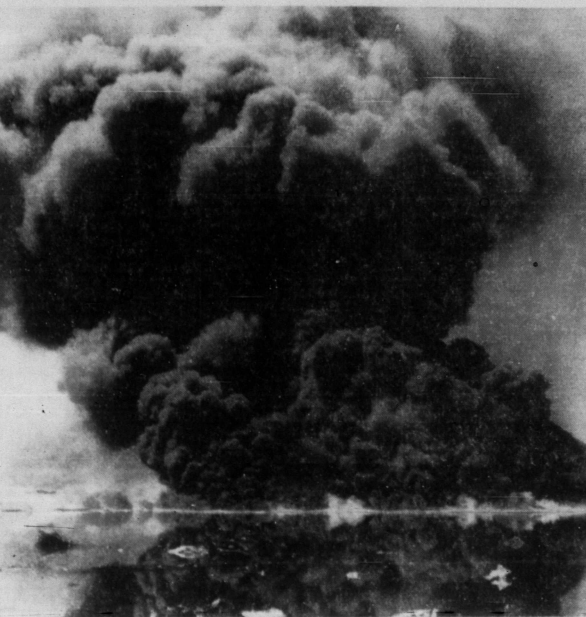

Austin, in its 55th day of dryness, got 4.35 inches.

San Antonio, where parts of the city had received no rain for record 53 days, got 1.57 inches. Pleasanton, south of San Antonio, got half an inch of rain—the first in 53 days. Nearby Pearsall and Charlotte measured two inches. Poteet had an inch. Junction got 1.22, Taylor 1.21, Blanco 2.25, Wimberly 3.01, Hutto 1.20, New Braunfels 1.68.

In other parts of the state Bonham had 1.41 inches, Dallas 1.80, Beaumont 1.41, Waco .72, and Midland .64.

At some points temperatures dropped more than 30 degrees. Early Saturday Dalhart had a chilly 52 degrees and Amarillo 53. Gainesville had a 32-degree drop in 35 minutes.

The Austin rain was the first since June 30 and broke the longest dry spell since 1921. Several families were moved to higher ground when Boggy Creek overflowed in East Austin.

SMOKY HORIZON—Billowing clouds of black smoke darkened the horizon south of Snyder yesterday as waste oil burned near the city dump grounds. In the photograph, the smoke soars upward and also is reflected in the pool near the city sewage disposal plant.

Havana Suburb Hit
By Bold Sea Raiders

By GEORGE ARFELD

HAVANA (AP)—Sea raiders shelled the Havana suburb of Miramar Friday night, hitting a hotel headquarters of Soviet bloc technicians helping Prime Minister Fidel Castro's government. Damage was slight, but near-panic swept the hotel as sleeping guests were shaken out of bed by the midnight bombardment.

Castro promptly blamed the United States and "mercenary agents" (Cuban exiles) who operate with impunity from the coasts of Florida.

A revolutionary Cuban student group in Miami boasted the ill-starred Bay of Pigs invasion in 1961 was the first of a series of attacks on the island.

A spokesman for the group said the bombardment, most dramatic anti-Castro move since the ill-starred Bay of Pigs invasion 18 months ago, was made because of the arrival of Communist bloc personnel in Cuba.

"The Russians are on our soil," he said. "We cannot stand and do nothing."

The U.S. government rejected Castro's charge of American involvement but said it had evidence the Miami-backed student group staged the naval attack.

The U.S. Coast Guard was ordered to seize the two private motor launches the refugees were said to have used. The Justice Department in Washington launched an investigation for possible provocations under the Neutrality Act.

President Kennedy, weekending in Hyannis Port, Mass., consulted by phone with members of his staff in Washington.

Castro charged that several other buildings besides the hotel were hit by the shelling. He made no mention of any casualties.

The student group, the Director of Revolution Estudiantil, said its 1910-23-year-old sea raiders encountered return fire from the shore but escaped unhurt.

Residents of the suburban shore area, however, said gun batteries employed there were silent.

Scant damage was visible at the hotel. A Czech physician living there said nobody was hit. He said near panic of guests started from their beds seemed a greater danger than the gunfire.

The Communist paper Hoy said nine rooms of the hotel were damaged. Other buildings reported hit were the Chaplin Theater, where Castro has made some of his flashiest television speeches, and several homes.

Castro paid a visit to the hotel Saturday.

He made no mention of casualties, but said the buildings "received multiple impacts of perforating explosives, imperiling the lives of their inhabitants."

He said the attack was launched at 11:30 p.m. with "numerous 20-caliber cannon firings." Apparently he meant 20-millimeter, relatively light weapons with about a 4-inch bore. The ships were reported to have stood little more than a half mile offshore.

In terms similar to those he used in denouncing the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion 16 months ago, Castro said, "The treacherous surprise attack shows the cowardice, the criminal and piratical spirit of its authors."

"We make the government of the United States responsible for this new and cowardly attack on our country and we denounce before the people of the world the preparation of this attack."

The President of the United States, that our people will adopt all the necessary measures to confront the danger," he said.

The Cuban revolution, which could not be defeated by the economic blockade, nor by the repeated military actions, nor by direct attack organized by the United States, will be able to resist and repulse direct attack as well.

SNYDER
AREA OIL

Scurry County gained locations for two more field wells 17 miles northwest of Snyder.

Both will be drilled by Texaco, Inc. and are located in the Corann (San Andres) field. Both are located in section 604, block 97, HATC survey, and are contracted to 2,500 feet.

The No. 45 J. A. Fuller spots 1,650 feet from south and 980 feet from west lines of the section and the No. 46 Fuller is located 990 feet from south and 1,470 feet from west lines of section 604.

Gordon Knox & Associates of Midland have completed No. 1 Nall, Southeast Mitchell County, a wildcat, from the Canyon sand pay to make it a dual discovery.

From perforations opposite that section at 6,232.6 feet, the wildcat produced 17 barrels of 42-gravity oil on a 24-hour potential, flowing through a 13-64-inch choke. The pay had been fractured with 8,000 gallons. Gas-oil ratio was 1,650-1.

The dual strike is 18 miles southeast of Colorado City and 4-mile northwest of the McCabe (Cisco) pool. It is 660 feet from north and 154 feet from section 8, block 12, HATC survey.

The Strawn reef section was potentialized in late July for a daily flowing potential of 238.28 barrels of 48.3-gravity oil flowing through a 13-64-inch choke and perforations at 6,068.30 feet.

Ryan Consolidated Petroleum Corporation of Dallas has scheduled No. 1 Tice Hughes, 4-mile west outpost to Fisher County's one-well Barbara Moore (Noodle Creek) field.

It spots 12 1/2 miles northwest of Rotan and 990 feet from the most northerly north line and 660 feet from the most westerly east line of J. R. Hastings survey. Contract depth is 4,200 feet.

The field opener—Norman O'Neil Corporation's No. 1 E. G. Murphy—was completed in mid-July to flow 305.76 barrels of 42-gravity oil daily through a 3/4-inch choke and perforations at 3,836.90 feet.

Forest Oil Corporation of Midland completed No. 2 Clifford Williams as the second producer in the East Garza (Glorieta) pool, two miles northeast of Post in Fisher County.

It finished for a daily pumping potential of 90 barrels of 36-gravity oil, plus 23.5 per cent water, from perforations at 3,465.75 feet, after 500 gallons of acid.

The location is 1,767 feet from north and 1,919 feet from west lines of section 1, block 3, K. Aycock survey. It is a southeast offset to the same firm's No. 1 Williams, the pool discovery.

Texaco has completed No. 3 Roger Smith, and others, as a producer in the Rough Draw (Noodle Creek) field, six miles northwest of Rotan in Fisher County.

It has a potential of 53.22 barrels of 41.6-gravity oil and 48 per cent water, pumping from perforations at 3,697.370 feet. Section had

Ben Bella's
Regime Is Forced Out

ALGIERS (AP)—A junta of guerrilla colonels forced Ahmed Ben Bella's Political Bureau of power Saturday and plunged the eight-week-old nation into a new and dangerous crisis.

In a dramatic announcement to the Algerian people, the Political Bureau declared it could no longer carry out its duties in the "anarchy and general insecurity" created by the rebellious officers of Military Zone 4 occupying the capital.

In what might be its last official act as the nation's de facto provisional government, the bureau also put off indefinitely the Sept. 2 elections for an Assembly and withdrew the list of assembly candidates it had previously agreed on with the zone commanders.

Only 23 days after wresting power from Provisional Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda, Deputy Premier Ben Bella and his four friends on the Political Bureau were reported planning to flee the city.

Ben Bella's only opponent on the bureau, Acting-Foreign Minister Mohammed Boudiaf, resigned and thus seemed to align himself with the guerrilla commanders.

Brave Cubans Accept Challenges To Flee Castro Rule

EDITOR'S NOTE—Two fearful challenges face the poor attempting to flee Castro's Cuba: first they must escape the Cuban militia patrols ashore and aloft, then they must face the perils of a cruel sea. This is the story of one tiny boatload of brave men and women who accepted the challenge.

By JUAN MILIAN

As told to Marilyn Lane

MIAMI (AP)—What I am going to tell you is the truth. I swear it. To safeguard others in Cuba who are trying to get out I must change some information on our departure from Cuban shores.

Also I must leave out the place we left and certain incidents that occurred before our leaving. Other than these things, all the facts are true.

We are hungry in Cuba.

Our rations consist only of beans and rice. The only vegetables we are are potatoes, which only once in awhile. All of us were undernourished. Adults could get along on the food available but babies need special foods. They need fruit, which we never see, milk, which is scarce, and meat, which is nonexistent.

Worst of all, there is no medicine. The only medicine you are allowed, if you are sick, is one aspirin. People die on the operating tables because of the lack of plasma. There are no medicines to stop bleeding and many injured people bleed to death inside.

My boys were going hungry. Little Juan, 4, refused beans and rice. He was hungry for food. He became thin. He had an attack of asthma and we were helpless. We could not get the medicine he needed. It was while he was sick that I decided to make plans to leave.

My other son, Manuel, would eat beans and rice. He was only 2, but strong. I knew soon he too would refuse to eat.

I had thoughts of leaving before. I had never tried such a trip. I fished only close to the shores and until Fidel never even thought of leaving Cuba.

I was told that I must join the militia. I refused. They wanted me to participate in the Communist party. I refused. I am not a religious man. I could not denounce my God. It wasn't just me, there were hundreds of us who refused. Our days were numbered.

One by one I contacted the few men I could trust. I can not tell you anything about them, about their background. I can only say they are courageous men, who have worked against Fidel. There are five.

I contacted them secretly, for each block in our town has a militia man on the corner who keeps up with the activities of each person on his block.

You cannot say hello to the man who lives next door to you, because the militia will ask what you are talking about. So mouth to mouth, in secret, one by one we passed the message. Two of the men's wives were also in great danger. The men would not leave without them. So they came with us.

I am a fisherman. I never realized that one day this would save our lives. My boat was 19 feet long. It was wood with a fiberglass bottom. There were no seats in the boat. I had one motor on the boat, 35 horsepower. I managed to get another, a spare in case of a breakdown.

Little by little we started taking small quantities of gas to the coast. The place that we were to leave from was some distance from where we lived. The men walked there at night carrying the gasoline. They buried it on a sand bar.

There was very little food we could save from our ration. But we did manage to put some aside. This we hid also.

As soon as we had enough gas hidden our plans were complete. I selected a night and told my friends we could no wait any longer. The longer we delayed the greater risk of discovery. Some one might be tempted to tell their loved ones goodbye. They might hunt to their old parents that they would be leaving.

I went fishing as usual that day

I cleaned my boat and left it as I always did. I waited until dusk and went back to the shore. I hid for the secret cove where the others were waiting.

That morning my wife and sons had left the home where we lived. She told the militia man they were going to visit relatives, that her husband was coming to get her. My friend had secured a car and he picked them up. He drove as far as he could, until the road ended at the mountains.

They left the car there, another friend was waiting. All day they walked crossing the mountains. They had to hide from the militia and keep the babies still. It was a hard walk even for a man.

We shoved off—and turned away from our homeland.

One of the men pressed a compass into my hand. The militia had confiscated all of their guns before. But a friend we must leave behind got it for us, somehow. We had one can of corned beef, one package of crackers and 10 gallons of water. With luck we should approach land by morning.

Our destination—Miami.

This night of all nights it was that God was on our side. We had lost our old enemies, high winds and rough sea. The sea was flat and calm. It was impossible to guess how far we had traveled. I couldn't even judge our speed forward. I could only hope that land was close.

We finished the food and water that night.

Around 9 o'clock on the fourth day, going by the sun, the man on watch saw a ship. As it drew closer we were struck with terror. It was a Russian cargo boat.

So we were left to drift. The seas were still rough, but the wind died down. We took the coverlet from around my small boys and fashioned a sail from it. We tied it onto a long pole with a piece of rope and nailed the pole to the boat.

So with their sail set and the stars as our guide, with all our faith in God, we prayed to reach Miami.

As we saw dawn coming on the third day we were still in good spirits. The sun had not been as hot as we had expected, the day was overcast. This was a sign to us that God was on our side.

TWO-CAR SMASHUP—Harry Edward Legende of Midland escaped with only slight injuries late Saturday morning when his 1960 Renault was in a collision at Thirty-seventh Street and Avenue M with a 1955 Pontiac (background) driven by Emil Schulze of Route 2, Hermleigh, traveling east, was attempting to turn left onto Avenue M when the collision occurred. He was uninjured. Legende was taken to Cogdell Hospital by Bell Ambulance, where he was treated for minor cuts and bruises and released. Highway patrolman Royce Stowe investigated the mishap.

Rotary Rig Count Rises

Rotary rig activity showed a sharp gain last week in the Permian Basin oil fields, according to Reed Roller Bit Company's Friday survey.

The active rig count increased by 45 to a total of 233. This compares with 190 for the previous week. However, the total still is less than that of a year ago when 255 rigs were turning.

Scurry County's rotary rig count increased from one to four, while Fisher County was up from 10 to 11. Borden County remained unchanged at one. No rotary rigs were reported running in Mitchell, Garza and Kent Counties.

Lea County, New Mexico, continued as the Basin leader with 38 rigs making hole. Other more active counties included Andrews 20, Crane 14, Ector 15.

According to the Florida Alcohol Rehabilitation Program, the oxidation of methyl alcohol (wood alcohol) in the body produces formic acid, which can severely damage the optic nerve. This makes methyl alcohol dangerous for consumption. Ethyl alcohol is the type used in alcoholic beverages.

DEGREE CONFER

TOWLE BELLES—Comely young ladies were abundant here yesterday during the running off of the Snyder Invitational Swimming Meet at the Towle Park Pool. This trio was snapped during the morning while the preliminaries were being staged. Directing the meet, which hosted swimmers from as far away as Houston, was pool manager Joe Chapman.

HAVE GUN, WILL START—Playing an important role in any swimming meet is the official starter. That job of yesterday morning fell to Bubba Fleming, who is shown with megaphone and gun in readiness.

LOST SOMETHING?—These young ladies also worked in an official capacity during the day-long swimming meet, acting as timers for the individual lanes. Peering intently into the pool, each is armed with a stopwatch and saw to it that the times posted were complete and accurate.

Swimming Meet Won By Lubbock

Lubbock swimmers splashed their way to victory here Saturday in the Snyder Invitational Swimming Meet held at the Towle Park Pool.

Ranking as their nearest competitors were Midland and San Angelo, as teams from a wide area of West Texas battled for points during the day-long competition.

AAU medals and trophies went to the winning individuals and teams.

Host Snyder placed a total of four swimmers. Finishing highest up on the ladder were Jamie Stehley and Mike Shearburn, both with "thirds." Miss Stehley landed hers in the 50-meter junior breaststroke, while young Shearburn got his in the 50-meter midgut butterfly stroke.

Other Snyderites placing during the day's competition included Suzanne Shearburn, who was fifth in the 100-meter girls intermediate backstroke, and Alex LeFeuvre, a sixth-placer in the boys junior 50-meter breaststroke.

Directing the meet operations was pool manager Joe Chapman. Winning performers and their times in the various events will appear in Monday's edition of the Daily News.

Wayward Hop Instrumental In Card Win

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Julian Javier's bad-bounce single drove in the winning run in the ninth inning Saturday and gave Larry Jackson and the St. Louis Cardinals a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the first game of a day-night doubleheader.

Shortstop Dick Groat was felled by Javier's smash, which followed singles by Jim Schaffer and pinch hitter Red Schoendienst. The ball hit Groat's nose.

The Cardinals ended a three-game losing streak at the expense of Bob Friend, the Redbirds got 12 hits to five for the Pirates.

Jackson boosted his record to 11-10. Friend lost his 12th to go with 14 wins.

Bill Leckonby directed Lehigh's football team from 1946 through 1961.

Mets Played By Dodgers

NEW YORK (AP)—Jim Gilliam hit a home run and three singles and Ron Ferranosi pitched one-hit ball through 4-2-3 innings of relief as the league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the New York Mets 8-2 Saturday.

A crowd of 21,065 saw the Dodgers inflict the 21st defeat of the season on Roger Craig, the Mets' starter. The tall right-hander allowed 11 hits and five runs before he was taken out for a pinch hitter in the seventh inning. He has won seven.

Tommy Davis, Willie Davis and Ron Fairly also hit homers for the Dodgers, who collected 15 hits, reaching relief pitcher Ken MacKenzie for three runs and four hits in the eighth and ninth innings.

110 Golfers Cram Dallas Open Field

DALLAS (AP)—A field of about 110 that does not include Arnold Palmer, Gary Player, Bill Casper, Dow Finsterwald and Bobby Nichols but plenty of stars capable of pulverizing Oak Cliff Country Club's par will play in the $35,000 Dallas Open.

The tournament starts next Friday and runs through Monday with $5,000 first money.

Earl Stewart, the home pro who astonished the links hotshots by winning the tournament last year although Palmer was in the field, said that the best bet "other than myself" to take the top money is Jack Nicklaus, the former collegian who won the National Open his first year on the tour.

The 6400-yard Oak Cliff Country Club Course with a par-70 is in fine condition as far as the fairways and roughs go, but the greens will be bumpy and slow because of a fungus growth that did great damage before it was eradicated.

Nicklaus' game is suited to this course," said Stewart. "He is a long driver and a great putter and those are the two things that will go best on the course."

Stewart was not counting himself out of contention, however. In fact, Stewart said he had a most excellent chance of again winning top money.

There will be a $3,500 pro-amateur Wednesday while Thursday will be given over to practice. Target golf again will be installed—a player can win money for hitting the approach shot within 10 feet of the hole. There is $1,500 for this.

Entries in the tournament include Gene Littler, the year's second leading money-winner; Joe Campbell, George Bayer, Doug Sanders, Gay Brewer, Mason Rudolph, Rex Baxter, Johnny Pott, Don January, Jack Burke, Bill Collins, Art Wall, Billy Maxwell, Charles Sifford, Ken Venturi, Bruce Crampton, Dave Ragan, Jon Gustin, Jim Ferrier, Dan Sikes and Dave Marr.

There will be others but they will not include Sam Snead, the man who won this tournament twice, Palmer and Player, the PGA champion, will not be here because of a television series they are filming. Nichols won't either for the same reason. Entries close Monday.

Looking Back

30 Years Ago
Scurry County has been termed the leading county in Western Texas.

Snyder, the county seat of Scurry County, is a thriving city which had a population of 2310 in the census enumeration of 1910, which has since been augmented and its prosperity is founded on the solidarity of resource hitherto pointed out.

Oil activity in the county was stepped up two notches this week. Announcement was made by Ohie Bristow and Jim Cantrill that a well is to be spudded in soon on the A. C. Martin place, five miles northwest of Ira.

We wrote last week on mechanical cotton pickers. We find one of the most scientific approaches to this age-old problem of harvest has been made by Charles H. White, an Illinois inventor. His patented mechanical cotton picker utilizes an electric eye that selects only full ripe bolls to pick.

In the time of a growing anti-Stevenson sentiment over Texas because of his views on the Tide-lands, Scurry County Democrats had made no move today toward officially withdrawing support from the national Democratic nominee for president.

About 20 persons have already moved through qualifying rounds at the Country Club for the first time golf tournament ever held there. J. T. Hammett, pro-manager, said this morning.

Russell Yorgensen, Snyder accountant, has low score of the qualifiers so far with a tally of 86. Hammett said, adding that the Snyder golfers who shoot lower scores have not yet been out to qualify. He expects the regular shooters, Donald R. Scott, Pat Seaton, and Manning Davis, to qualify early this week. All three, Hammett said, shoot around par most of the time.

Supervisors To Operate Refinery

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP)—The manager of the strikebound Mobil Oil Co. refinery here said Saturday the company plans to operate the refinery with 30 supervisory and technical workers.

Harry Lutz said this after a three and one-half hour meeting Friday with federal mediators failed to break the deadlock with the Oil Workers Union. The union is asking for job security provisions and wage increases.

"Mobil is still hopeful of reaching an agreement with the union," Lutz said.

The dispute came to a head 18 days ago when 400 union members struck.

KATHLENE GLOVER

Kathlene Glover Named 'Woman Of The Year'

Announcement is made of the selection of Kathlene Glover as "Woman of the Year" by the Scurry Charter chapter of the American Business Women's Association at its dinner meeting held recently.

Kathlene's business experience covers such fields as being an assistant photographer and keeping books for an appliance store before deciding to go into business for herself. In a small area shared with a music store and with a very limited inventory of buttons and sewing notions her business has had its beginning. Today, eight years later, Kathlene owns Glover's, one of Snyder's leading dress shops.

In addition to her work, Kathlene is an active member of First Baptist Church and Rebekah Lodge and as a hobby devotes any available time to helping others in anyway she can and to her four grandchildren.

As Scurry Charter Chapter's "Woman of the Year", Kathlene becomes a candidate for the national title of "American Business Woman of the Year", which is announced at the national convention of the American Business Women's Association, to be held October 19-20-21, in Houston, at the Shamrock - Hilton Hotel.

Scandinavian Pea Soup

1 pound (2 cups) quick-cooking yellow split peas
Cold water
Ham bone
1/4 teaspoon ginger
1/4 teaspoon baking soda (if needed)
Salt and pepper

Soak peas in cold water to cover overnight, soaking shortens cooking time. Drain; add 6 cups cold water, ham bone and ginger. If the water you use is hard, add baking soda; this gently until peas are tender—about 1 1/2 hours. Remove ham bone; cut off any meat, dice and return to soup with salt and pepper to taste. If soup is thicker than you like, it thickens after refrigeration—thin with stock.

CANDIDATES — These four girls, all of Snyder are candidates for Queen of the Spanish Fiesta which will be celebrated here on September 14, 15 and 16. The girls from left and their ages are: Josephine Ramirez, 17, Hope Rosas, 15, Eudelia Ramos, 15 and Rose Prendez, 15.

Secret Marriage May Be Costly Mistake

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

What a price one pays for a secret marriage!

"I fear that I've made a terrible mistake by getting married secretly," writes a 17-year-old girl, "I figured my parents wouldn't approve, so we eloped to another state. I have not had the courage to tell my parents because we have had a number of quarrels and I don't know whether I really love my husband after all. Should I tell my parents now or wait and see if my husband and I can make a go of it before I tell them I did the wrong thing? I don't like to admit it."

It is going to be difficult to make your marriage work on this basis. You are missing the joys that newlyweds should experience—the fun of planning the home, entertaining together, plotting their future. You are living for this or that moment of fun, but fear and uncertainty stand in your way.

Your parents could offer good counsel. Straightening out your marriage could give you a firmer foundation for affection and erase doubts. If your marriage is wrong, it would be time to dissolve it, so that you and your husband can find happiness elsewhere. No matter how much you loved each other when you married, considerable strain on your emotions has taken place, and it could be ruinous to your future happiness together. But it could work out perhaps if your parents gave their blessing and helpful assistance.

Here's a letter from a girl who feels she is neglected by her mother.

"Ever since I was a child, I have been seeking my mother's love. She never has time for me and when I ask her something important, she forgets to hear me out if the phone rings or some one drops into the house. She'd never think to ask me about it again."

Sometimes she says "I'll sleep on it" or "I'll think about it" but she never mentions it again.

"My mother is active in everything in our town. My father is on the road a lot. I have made friends with an older girl—she's 28, and my mother says she does not have a good reputation. She does not want me to see the girl or bring her to the house, but the girl is very understanding and always offers me very good advice. She's had a lot of bad breaks and people shun her. I will be 18 in three months. Don't you think I should be able to choose my own friends, especially since my mother doesn't pay any attention to me?"

Is it possible your mother is more alert to your problems than you think? Perhaps things you've tried to discuss with her were trivial and she thought they would resolve gracefully or that she'd like you to make some decisions on your own. She seems to be quite aware of your association with this girl, and has no hesitancy in expressing her opinion of her, obviously for your own good. You see the best in your own friend and people who have had bad breaks often have profited by the experience. But if she isn't your type, her counsel may be helpful to your own way of life. Aren't there girls of your own age who'd make good friends? Perhaps you are becoming too dependent on your mother, and she wants you to begin assuming responsibility.

Brunch delicacy: Cut bacon slices into crosswise, pieces; alternate on small skewers with mushrooms (fresh or canned) and broil. Serve with scrambled eggs.

Use two-thirds cup mayonnaise to one-third cup chili sauce when you are making Russian dressing.

Blueberry Dumplings

1 cup biscuit mix
1/4 tablespoon sugar
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup water
2 cups washed drained blueberries
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
Grated nutmeg

Stir together the biscuit mix and sugar; stir in milk with a fork. In a deep 8-inch skillet with a dome cover, stir the sugar and water together over low heat; add the blueberries and lemon rind and bring to a boil. Drop the biscuit dough, in 6 dumplings, over the blueberries. Cover tightly and simmer 15 to 20 minutes or until the dumplings are cooked through. Sprinkle dumplings with nutmeg. Allow to stand off heat for about 5 minutes and the blueberry sauce will thicken. Serve at one with cream. Makes 6 servings.

Miss Sturdivant, Mr. Stewart Exchange Wedding Vows

Before an archway formed with candelabras and greenery with baskets of white gladioli on each side, Gwendolyn Sturdivant became the bride of James Calvin Stewart II, in a candlelight ceremony on August 18, at 8 p.m.

Ralph Aycock, minister of the Hermelene Church of Christ read the double ring service.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Sturdivant, 318 Thirty-third Street. Mr. and Mrs. James Calvin Stewart of 1205 Twenty-eighth Street are parents of the bridegroom.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white tulle veil, stiletto length dress, fashioned with embroidered basque waist, round neckline, and full gathered skirt. Her gloves were white veil elbow length and came to a point over the hands. Her hat was of white chiffon velvet with a satin bow and small veil.

On the left shoulder she wore a gold crescent pin which was 105 years old and had belonged to her great grandmother. For something borrowed she carried a white lace handkerchief belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. M. A. Sturdivant. She wore a blue garter and a penny in her shoe for good luck.

She carried a bridal bouquet of a white mum surrounded with feathered mums and white satin streamers.

Mrs. Gail Bailey was matron of honor. She wore an orchid polished cotton dress.

Elvis Pinkerton served as best man and Ronnie Aubrey was candle lighter.

A reception was held in the home following the ceremony.

The table was laid with a white damask cloth. The three branch silver candelabra and the brides bouquet formed the center piece with appointments in silver and crystal.

Mrs. Herman Bond, sister of the bride, presided at the three-tiered cake topped with a miniature bride and groom, and Mrs. Robert L. Harlin, aunt of the bride ladled punch.

Carol Stewart, sister of the groom registered guests.

For traveling on her wedding trip to New Mexico, the bride chose a tailored suit of tan and white striped linen with white accessories.

The couple will make their home at 2010 Twenty-sixth Street, Snyder.

Out of town guests were Mrs. Herman Bond and John Stephen from El Paso.

Hot Day Cooking

Use your gas broiler for quick meals on hot days. Canned vegetables can be drained and placed in the broiler pan while meats cook on the broiler rack. Cook sliced tomatoes and fruit garnishes alongside the meat and directly under the broiler flame. According to the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association cooking experts, smoke and volatile fats are consumed as they rise into the gas flame, preventing excess heat and grease spatter.

Bette Davis Found Her Reward

THE LONELY LIFE. By Bette Davis. Lonely perhaps, but far from calm is Bette Davis.

The screen's renowned creator of portraits of tempestuous femininity whips into this account of all her own days with headlong impetuosity and combative candor.

"It has been my experience that one cannot, in any shape or form, depend on human relations for lasting reward," she sounds her truly satisfying. "It is only work that everything else down the drain." The helter-skelter etching that emerges may not be particularly nice, but it bristles with a scowling honesty that tells as much between the lines as chapter by chapter.

The actress—who acknowledges aid from Sanford Doby as assembling episodes into some semblance of editorial order—starts with unceremonious New England childhood, pitches across years of film frustration and gives her version of four marriage ventures.

The biographical flow is frequently halted for sharp Davis digressions into a range of diverse topics, ranging from aesthetic ideals of the artist to opinions about everyone around her.

Thunderclap intensity occasionally makes for disjointed and fuzzy pronouncement. This Donna Quixote may sometimes tilt blindly, but always with vivid vigor.

The United States began building the Panama Canal in November, 1904. It was finished 10 years later.

Bidding At Antique Auctions

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The antique auction is a magnet to many women, particularly those who are on vacation trying their hand at bidding for the first time at country sales.

The theory is that anything bought at auction must be worth more than you pay for it. "Taint so."

Little country auction sales have far surpassed the expectations of people who have sold off household effects, finding that a chipped cookie jar bought 10 years before and ready for the junk pile brought handsome returns when auctioned off.

Country auctions are unpredictable and one who acquaints himself with the methods employed by the auctioneers and who understands the value of the merchandise can make excellent purchases.

Some basic tips for new bidders to keep in mind are these:

1. Always inspect merchandise before you bid on it. Most auctions permit review of the wares a day or two before the sale or for several hours before the sale if the auction is outdoors.

2. Is there anything shown that you need or want to collect? If not, don't bid. It's a good idea anyway to attend a few auctions to see how they operate before you make your first bid.

3. If you see something you want but don't know its value, try to estimate it before the auction. If it is an antique, visit a couple of antique shops and see what they are asking for comparable objects. Plan to bid from about 50 per cent of that figure up to 75 per cent of it, if you can't live without the item. If the piece is not an antique, decide what it is worth to you on the basis of what it would sell for new, and use that as your guide.

4. Avoid becoming emotional about the item when you are bidding. Auctioneers are like bird dogs in ferreting out a compulsive buyer. It is just good sales sense, they reason, to encourage anxious buyers and run up the bids. If you are in unfamiliar territory, an overzealous auctioneer may even call out nonexistent bids to raise yours. You could find to your chagrin that you've paid many times more than the article is worth because you've been intrigued by the spirited bidding.

5. If the object you've selected to bid on needs repairs, decide whether it is worth repairing and can be repaired. Nicked and broken furniture often runs into quite an investment, even though the purchase seemed like a bargain.

6. Decide how you are going to cart the object you've bought if it is a big. If you are away from home and must have it crated and shipped, the cost could be much more than you anticipate.

7. If you figure you're in an investment, don't ruin the object. Avoid sawing legs off an antique or painting over gold leaf. Once you've changed it, you have a different piece of furniture. There is no such thing as a remodeled antique. Paint and stain can be removed from old pieces to bring back the natural wood finish but major alterations or obliteration of design can ruin its value.

8. If an antique is bought for use in the home, don't buy it merely for historical value. It should be attractive and a flattering asset to your home as well, something to keep in mind when assembling old objects.

Scurry Co. Girls Recreation Ends 4th Summer Operation

For the fourth summer, girls in Scurry County have had the opportunity to participate in a supervised recreation program. The program was organized in 1959 when a group of interested citizens and the Chamber of Commerce recreation committee recognized the need of supervised recreation for girls in the county.

The program has been financed by the county and public schools, and has been conducted on both county and school properties, making use of facilities in the park system and school buildings. This summer, board of directors are: Guy L. Sullivan, president; Bill McLaughlin, vice president; Mrs. Lee Smyth, secretary-treasurer; and board members, Mrs. Harold Lack and Mr. Doug McGlaun.

Recreation director was Mrs. Dorothy Miller. Assistants were: gym-Misses Carol Bailey, Faye Cook and Linda Gayle Miller. Swimming instructor was Mrs. W. E. Henderson. Mrs. Vera High was the assistant in the Lincoln school gym. Miss Bailey also served as the tennis instructor. Mrs. Henderson directed physical exercise classes for adult women whose daughters were members of Girls Recreation.

Mrs. W. A. McGlaun was the art instructor. Linda Gayle Miller was the softball coach and also instructed in the lessons. Miss Sandra Autry instructed the girls in advanced and beginners twirling classes. Miss Becky Beatty instructed girls from Lincoln school in twirling as a part of her community service hours of Lucky 13 Club. Other girls in the same service were Charlotte Stewart and Judy Buchanan assisting with arts and crafts.

Mr. Dusty Moore and Nappy Brazier participated in a Kar Kare program for the girls 14 and over. Mr. Wayne Kennedy offered instruction in bowling.

The softball team played the teams at Hermleigh, tying two games, winning one and losing one.

The tennis team participated in the July 4th tournament in the park. Four hundred and two girls participated in the program this summer. A total of 2,743 visits were made to the gym. Activities in the gym were trampolines, table tennis, badminton, table games, wahoo, arts and crafts. The summer program closed with a swimming party and picnic in Towle Park.

YOU CAN GET into a reel argument any time a lawn tender extolls the benefits of a rotary power mower.

But the reel-type mower is regaining popularity after being greatly outnumbered in sales during recent years. Two of the reasons, according to Robert Wren of one of the pioneer mower makers (Petersen), which makes both types, are the safety factor and a neater cut.

The reel mower shears grass blades in the manner that a scissor cuts. The cut is clean and will seal quickly with little or no discoloration or dead fringe. The more blades in a reel, the finer the cut. You might have to cut more often, but to our way of thinking, if you cut less and more often you'll have a better-looking lawn.

MOWERS START MORE EASILY

Manufacturers also have been concentrating on easier grass disposal facilities for mowers and easier starting motor motors. The question of grass disposal also may lead to argument. The proponents of leave-the-grass-cuttings-lie-where-they-fall and the get-it-of-them school are firm. To those who say the cuttings are nutritious for the lawn, the other side replies that the cuttings take a long time to do any good and meanwhile they are harmful to the current grass crop and form thatch which not only promotes disease but spoils the lawn's appearance.

This brings us back to the thought that if you cut sparingly but more often, the cuttings will disintegrate more rapidly, and show less.

At any rate, the modern version of the canvas bag behind or at the side of the mower is an enclosed polyethylene catcher that also will act as a catcher's glove for stones picked up by the blades.

The emphasis on easier starting is due in part to the large number of women cutting lawns. One new starting device permits the operator to pull a rope that extends up the handle of mowers with two-cycle engines. The easier starting is permitted by release of compression in the first cycle of the engine which quickly reaches full power on the next stroke. And you are further away from the dangerous blades when starting the engine.

CHICKEN tastes extra delicious with a touch of curry and chili powder in the crisp golden crust. While cooking baste it with a tangy orange sauce and then serve on orange rice with avocado and orange slices.

Exotic Barbecued Chicken, Orange Rice And Avocados

It takes a unique recipe such as this for Chicken Avocado in Orange Sauce to make even an amateur chef look good. And that's exactly what it did for its author, Derwood Bannmann of Beecher, Illinois. Cooking is only a hobby with him but once he had concocted this marvelous dish, he entered it in a popular Cook-Off contest and went on to win a handsome prize with it.

You will note the judicious use of curry and chili powder that adds an exotic touch to the golden crisp crust on the chicken, while tangy orange juice and rind flavor the sauce and the colorful bed of rice it is served on.

CHICKEN AVOCADO IN ORANGE SAUCE

1-3 cup flour
1 1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon curry powder
1 teaspoon chili powder
1 (2-lb.) chicken, cut-up
1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted
1 medium orange, sliced
1 ripe avocado, peeled and sliced
Quilted cooking foil (broiling)
Line firebox with foil, add charcoal, light and let coals burn down until covered with gray ashes.
Put flour, salt, pepper, curry powder and chili powder in paper bag. Dip chicken pieces in melted butter and coat with flour by shaking in bag. Broil chicken 4 inches from heat 30 minutes or until meat pulls away from bones. Baste with butter and turn occasionally.

Meanwhile make Orange Rice. When chicken is done arrange it over Orange Rice on platter. Place avocado and orange slices in row down center. Spoon remaining orange sauce (from recipe below) over.

Serves 4 to 6.

ORANGE RICE

1 1/3 cups precooked rice
1/4 cups water
2 cups orange juice
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 cup pecan halves
Make two foil pans with double thickness of quilted broiling foil by turning up edges and mitering corners.
Place rice and water in one pan and cover with foil, sealing edges. Bring to boil, remove from heat and let stand 5 minutes.
Blend flour mixture (that's left in sack) with orange juice in the second foil pan. Heat until thickened. Stir in orange rind and pecans.
Fluff rice with fork. Poke holes in bottom of pan to drain if necessary.
Arrange rice on serving platter. Four most of the orange sauce over rice, reserving a small portion to spoon over garnish on serving platter.

To Get A Man: Don't Chase Him

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK — If you want to get a husband, don't go where the boys are. Don't even exert yourself to attract them.

Just make yourself so fascinating they flock to you, advises Helen Gurley Brown.

Oh sure, you say, nothing simpler.

But heavy sarcasm is lost on Mrs. Brown, who until she was 37 enjoyed the state of spinsterhood herself. Enjoyed is the right word.

"I think it's terrific being single as long as you're smart, interesting, fascinating."

"Of course you feel very alone sometimes, especially when all your friends are getting married around you."

"But if you want a husband, you'll get him—and a far better one at that—if you make it a secondary aim. First become a whole, complete person. Stop looking for a husband, and start looking for your own personality."

Theory in Book

Mrs. Brown realizes she sounds like Pollyanna on a soapbox. But her philosophy worked well for her and some of her friends. "Of course we WERE pretty sophisticated and not too gullible."

The down-to-earthness basics of her plan she put in a recently published book called "Sex and the Single Girl," in which she takes up everything from how to manage career, diet and apartment to what to feed the boyfriend for breakfast.

HELEN GURLEY

Mrs. Brown, who was born in Little Rock in a poor family, started out as a secretary and has worked up to advertising account executive. She belittles her looks but she's actually a very attractive brunette without an extra ounce—fat is for babies—in complete control of a soft, low voice and big brown eyes that gaze levelly at you.

Now 40—"I've never felt more alive, never had such a good time"—she says if she could do it, anybody can become fascinating and affianced.

"I'm no one special, at all. I had no college, no family background, no beauty. But what have I got? A lovely husband (motion picture producer David Brown), and some recognition as the highest paid ad writer in Los Angeles."

Singles Have No Excuse

This is the way you bring it off. "Every day you do everything you can to improve yourself, to succeed with trying—but in a quiet, nonbrassy way."

"A married woman can get caught up in taking care of children and home and let her personal development slump. But she does have those around her to love and protect her."

"A single girl doesn't have an excuse in the world. She has the time to make something of herself. All she needs is incentive. She should work hard at her job, do everything to improve her appearance, go in for extra curricular things such as learning French or reading the Great Books or taking up a sport."

"Instead of going out with the girls on Saturday night she should do extra work or win contests to make money so she can get better clothes or a handsome apartment or take a trip to Europe."

Can Have Plenty of Men
There's no doubt about it, she says, it helps to have money. And most single girls who learn how to handle the stuff will be in a pretty position financially by their 30s.

Even if she doesn't intend to marry she can have plenty of men around her. "Little girls looking for husbands are so selfish, so wrapped up in their own wants," she says. "A single girl needn't be without men depending on her,—not as a wife, but as a friend, a colleague to tell their troubles to. And if she does decide to marry she'll make a better wife for knowing so much about men."

A sheila is a girl in Australian slang.

Banana Pie Wins Men

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

To please the average American male, serve him banana cream pie. Then if you want to have absolutely top rating, make the filling half custard flavor, half chocolate.

For this pie, we used two excellent mixes for the filling, making two 8-inch pies that sliced into attractive wedges for party fare. Bake a rich pastry for the pie shells and you'll find it will stay crisp even after several hours of chilling. But don't make up the pies too far ahead of serving; if you do, the pastry is bound to get soggy.

On a cool day make up the pastry and line the pie plates with it, having a fairly high upstanding rim. Wrap and store in the freezer. The day of your party the shells will need only brief baking, and the fillings are prepared on the top of the range.

DOUBLE FLAVOR BANANA CREAM PIE
1 package (12 1/2 ounces) custard-

flavored dessert mix
2 3/4 cup light cream
4 medium bananas
2 baked 8-inch pie shells
1 package (4 ounces) dark chocolate flavor pudding-pie filling mix
Whipped cream (if desired)
1 tablespoon butter
Make up and cool the custard mix according to package directions for pie, substituting the light cream for part of the milk called for. Slice a banana into each pie shell and add half the custard filling to each; chill until set. Meanwhile make up the chocolate mix according to package directions for pie, stirring in the butter just before cooling; cool slightly and spread over custard layer in pie shells. Cover with saran or foil; chill until set. Just before serving peel the 2 remaining bananas; run fork lines down them lengthwise; slice crosswise. Arrange bananas over chocolate layer of pies. Pass whipped cream as a topping if you want to glid the lily. Makes 12 servings—6 wedges from each pie.

Sandwich Spread Uses Soup Mix

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Do you like to try new products in new ways? Some years back when the onion-soup mix and cream combination — served as a dip—was in its heyday were you one of its backers?

If so, you may wish to experiment with the new canned dry cream of mushroom soup mix. This dry product is not to be confused with longtime here condensed liquid cream of mushroom soup.

Here's one way, dreamed up by a cook and tested in our kitchen, of using this newcomer. The soup mix is put into a sandwich spread. Because we know some cooks are wayward—often leaving out ingredients that do not seem strictly necessary—we add a caution. Use all the green pepper called for in the recipe, and don't omit the tomato slices. The mushroom soup mix used "as is" in this spread is quite salty, and it needs the green pepper and tomatoes.

TUNA TOASTWICHES

1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/2 cup sour cream
1 can (1 1/2 ounces) dry cream of mushroom soup mix
1 large green pepper (finely chopped)
1 tablespoon minced onion
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 can (7 ounces) tuna
6 large hamburger buns
Medium or large tomatoes

HAMBURGER BUNS get a new filling—a tuna spread. Serve the sandwiches with iced tea or coffee for a porch lunch.

Neither East Nor West May Count On Dominating Africa

By WES GALLAGHER

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—How is the Soviet Union doing in Africa? The answer is not very well.

Nor are the Russians likely to do much better in the future. In fact, there are indications the Communist world is taking a second look at Africa and proceeding with caution.

This does not mean the Western world will win any popularity prizes. But its economic and educational ties far outstrip the East and show no signs of diminishing.

For the long haul, Africans seem determined to remain African without solid ties to the East or West. The cold war is looked upon as an excellent opportunity to get free help from both sides.

"Africa must take what is good from East and West. It is my belief that despite over 50 years of evils and misdeeds of European civilization, African societies remain the same. It is utter nonsense for either East or West to think that Africa could be made part of Russia or, for that matter, the West."

These quotations from an African columnist in a Kenya magazine reflect general African attitudes. The writer was discussing reports that Soviet agents were trying to buy the allegiance of union officials and legislators in Kenya, Zanzibar, Uganda and Tanganyika.

He added: "There is no place for Communist domination in the African society, and there is little or no hope of their stooges ever attaining much more than meager support."

The Soviet Union made a swift, massive grab for the Congo during Patrice Lumumba's regime, but its frustration there has led to more limited efforts. There are other competitors for influence in Africa, such as President Gamal Abdel Nasser's Arab bloc and Red China.

It would require billions upon billions of dollars in capital investment and many generations before Africa could become an industrialized society or exert any sizable influence in world affairs.

Eager Africans desiring to leapfrog into the 20th century overnight want aid on a scale and at a pace neither Moscow nor the United States can possibly meet.

At the same time, various forces were working against the establishment of states viable enough to provide a framework of evils and misdeeds of European civilization, African societies remain the same. It is utter nonsense for either East or West to think that Africa could be made part of Russia or, for that matter, the West."

A reasonable minimum requirement for survival of many of the newly created states would seem to be the future hope of economic self-interest of the people concerned to insure political stability.

Yet some states, like Burundi, are composed of hostile tribes in a small, barren land boasting a half mile of paved road and one full vote in the United Nations. Africa has 200 million people speaking more than 900 different languages and dialects, divided by scores of religions as diverse as Christianity and idol worship. This cultural separatism is being intensified as the continent is split and Balkanized on a scale and speed unprecedented in history.

And while economic survival would seem to be the first order of the day, many Africans are so fascinated with their new position in politics that they tend to overlook the plodding hard work needed to establish minimum economic stability.

Such factors not only limit the effectiveness of any aid furnished, whether by East or West, but they are likely to compound confusion by a high mortality rate among states and governments and forms of government on the continent.

The one place that the Soviet Union has spent relatively large sums in foreign aid, Ghana, is not turning out any better for them than some of the underdeveloped areas of Southeast Asia have turned out for the West.

It is estimated the Soviet Union has poured $150 million into little Ghana with its population of 6.7 million. They have the sympathy and support of Ghana's left-leaning President Kwame Nkrumah, who has jailed his political opponents and runs a one-party state.

Nkrumah inherited a better than self-supporting country about five years ago but managed last year to run over a $100-million trade deficit despite Soviet and Western aid. He has imposed higher taxes and forced savings, both highly unpopular.

The only other area where the Soviet Union has made any inroads is in small, poverty-stricken Mali and tiny Guinea. Even in these countries Soviet meddling in local affairs, plus disappointment with the amount of Soviet aid, has caused local leaders to take a second look at communism.

There is poverty and misery everywhere in Africa, such as the vast 100-year-old slum in Lagos, where over 300,000 people live in a 20-block area of shanties with out sewers of running water. Communism has usually capitalized on such conditions but there are difficulties for the Soviet Union other than just the vast sums of money needed. For instance, there is the matter of communication. Radio and television are not much good if the vast bulk of people have no receiving sets.

In both the spoken and written word there is the problem of language. Over 500 languages and dialects are spoken. Illiteracy is very high. Politics in Africa follow family and tribal lines where customs and feuds are more important than support or non-support of modern ideologies. If one tribal leader favors communism, opposing tribes would be inclined automatically to oppose it.

Politicians heading the new nations are intensely nationalistic. So are their followers. They are not inclined to dilute this nationalism by submitting to outside discipline such as communism demands. Racism also is strong and in Africa you can't tell a white capitalist from a white Communist. Both have the same disadvantages in trying to influence anyone.

Economically there are other difficulties for the Communist countries. Long-time colonial ties have solidified trade channels from most of Africa to the European countries. The colonial powers also manufacture goods that African needs and back them up with a pipeline of spare parts.

The Soviet Union has a brotherly (?) competitor—Red China. In Accra, the Chinese held a trade fair and built a pavilion. Afterwards the Chinese gave the pavilion to the government as a gesture of friendship. This spurred the Russians to build a bigger pavilion for a bigger fair and this also will be given to Ghana as a friendly token.

Much has been made by the Soviet Union of its Patrice Lumumba University in Moscow for African students but here, too, they seem to be a poor runny-up.

Even in Ghana, the proportion of university students going abroad each year breaks down about as follows: 1,300 to England, 1,000 to the United States, 300 to the Soviet Union, and 10 to Red China. Several hundred others are dispersed in Western European universities.

And those coming back from Moscow are not all converts. Many complain on the counts. In the Soviet Union they say they encountered both segregation and discrimination. They were segregated in Lumumba University with other Africans for study, instead of being spread among several universities. Because the Russians want them to return to Africa as leaders, they don't make it easy for African students to mix with Russian girls or make a career in the U.S.S.R.

Another competitor in the "educational" field is Nasser with his African Association, formerly the African Institute in Cairo. Nasser's aim is to try to promote Pan-African unity or the unity of the Arabs in North Africa with the Islamic south. Nasser has had trouble achieving his goal of Arab unity and there are few indications his African Association has been any more successful with African youth.

In sections of Africa the status symbol and fierce desire of any tribe or family is the ownership of land. The Mau Mau fighting in Kenya was primarily sparked over the white settlers owning large areas of farm land desired by the Africans. Now, with independence, Africans demand such lands be broken up and given Africa for small individual farms. Britain is setting aside funds to buy out many of the settlers and turn the land over to the Africans.

Probably nowhere in the world would the Communist practice of collectivized farming, with the state taking over the land, fall on more hostile ears than it would in Africa.

Junior Editors Quiz on CEMENT

QUESTION: How did cement originate?

ANSWER: People usually confuse "cement" and "concrete." Let's clear the difference before we answer the question. Above, Bill is helping two workmen build a garage of concrete blocks near his house. He's bringing water to the man with the hose. This man takes the dust-like powder called "cement" from the bags, mixes it with water, sand, and gravel. This mixture being concrete. It will be passed to the other man to bind the concrete blocks together. Cement and concrete were originated by the ancient Romans. They used lime and ashes from volcanoes for the cement. The Romans used a layer of concrete under the stone of their famous roadways. (A) Later, the secret of concrete was lost but was rediscovered by an Englishman, John Smeaton, in 1756. A natural stone which made fine cement was discovered in a region called Portland, and this led to the finding of similar deposits in New York state. "Portland cement" then became very widely used.

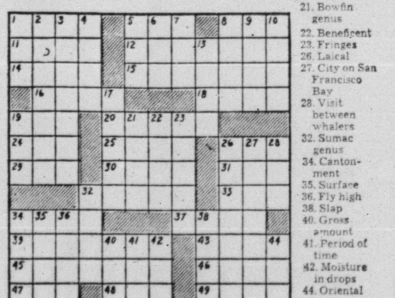

FOR YOU TO DO: Many bridges, roads and large buildings make use of concrete (B), but they use an even stronger kind called "reinforced" concrete. Can you guess what is put into the concrete to make it stronger?

(Judy Bucham of Muskegon, Mich., wins $10 for this question. Mail yours or a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper.)

AN EXQUISITE marriage of flavors is the outstanding feature of this Shredded Potato-Carrot Casserole. It's the perfect mate to wed with a standing rib roast or steak.

Meat And Potatoes A Man's Dish

Little wonder that the potato is a man's vegetable. Adventure, some Spanish explorers found it growing in South America and introduced it into Spain during the middle of the sixteenth century.

Sir John Hawkins introduced it into England during that same period, though it was neglected until Sir Francis Drake reintroduced it. Sir Walter Raleigh raised potatoes in Ireland. And Parmentier popularized it during a food scarcity in France.

It is natural that the potato should be popular with the men in your home. Doubtlessly a potato dish pops into mind when you plan a roast beef or steak dinner.

Shredded Potato-Carrot Casserole is a new dish to add to your potato recipe file and one that will please the major domo as much as his tried and true favorites.

Fine shreds of potatoes and carrots are combined in a white sauce then baked in a moderate oven. Flakes of golden Cheddar are sprinkled over the dish for the last half hour of baking, melting to a luscious goodness over the finely blended vegetable mixture.

Shredded Potato-Carrot Casserole
Buttered shallow baking dish.
1/2 quart
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons salt
3 cups milk
3 cups (4 medium) shredded raw potatoes
1 cup (2 medium) shredded raw carrots
2 tablespoons grated onion
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
Preheat oven to 325 degrees.
In a saucepan melt butter over medium heat; blend in flour and salt. Cook 1 minute. Remove from heat; gradually blend in milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Mix in potatoes, carrots and onion. Pour into baking dish. Bake 1 1/2 hours. Sprinkle cheese on top and bake 30 minutes longer. Makes 6-8 servings.

Fruit And Wine Jelly

1 large package (6 ounces) strawberry-flavored gelatin
2 cups boiling water
1/2 cup pineapple syrup (from canned tidbits)
1 1/2 cups dry white wine
1 cup drained pineapple tidbits
3/4 cup honeydew melon balls
Pour boiling water over gelatin; stir until dissolved. Stir in pineapple syrup and wine; chill until slightly thickened. Fold in tidbits and melon balls; turn into a glass serving dish—at least 1 1/2 quarts. Chill until set. Serve from serving dish. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

FLOWER HINT

Bringing the beauty of the flower garden into the home, while one of the joys of living, can present problems because of the constant danger of spilling water from vases. A good way to solve this is to use surface window sills, tables or other places where you set flowers with a waterproof and stainproof material such as ceramic tile. The many colors of ceramic tile available today make it possible to choose a shade that will complement the colors of your favorite flowers.

Hemmingway's Sister Portrays The Family

AT THE HEMINGWAYS. By Marceline Hemingway Sanford. Marceline was the eldest of the six Hemingway children, a little more than a year older than Ernest, who became famous.

What she has written is a story about the whole family in the period from 1888 to 1928, with some extra emphasis on Ernest's early life. But the really major figures of the book are the Hemingway parents.

So far as Ernest is concerned, she sheds a little more light on his youthful experience with the Red Cross in Italy, and on his connections with the Kansas City Star and the Toronto Star.

She doesn't hesitate to portray Ernest's "lack of responsibility" in a rather shiftless interlude in 1920, and she makes it quite clear that the selfishness of Ernest's early writings caused a rift between him and his parents. Aside from that, however, she has little to say about his writing career.

As a chronicler of Ernest's growing years she has much more first-hand information than her brother Leicester, whose "My Brother, Ernest Hemingway" was published last February. The youngest of the tribe, Leicester was born when Ernest was 16; most of his reminiscences are about his hunting and fishing contacts in later years. The official Hemingway biography is being prepared by Carlos Baker.

Marceline's book is subtitled, "A Family Portrait," and it is illustrated with many snapshots. Much of it is concerned with the father, Dr. C. E. Hemingway, a physician and obstetrician who finally drove himself to a tragic end in a combination of overwork and neglected illnesses; and the mother, Grace Hall Hemingway, a talented singer and voice teacher who became a painter in her later years.

Besides its interest for what it says about Ernest, this is a detailed study of a big family in the early years of this century.

100 Times A Day

Did you ever stop to think how many times a day you turn on a water faucet? According to the Association there are more than 130 uses for hot water in the average home and turning on the spigot more than 100 times a day is not unusual. Eighty per cent of all the water used by the average family is hot water. GAMA says. That's what makes the modern high speed gas water heater the most important appliance in millions of American homes.

Short Order Cooks Like Variety

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
WHAT'S AN interesting quicky prepared menu, one that's just a little different?

Like many other cooks in America, when we're in a hurry we often make use of the new soups for a first course. But we doctor them up. Our latest turnabout: an envelope of cream of leek soup mix (also used for vichyssoise) becomes cream of cucumber soup. One of the best features of this combination—it may be served hot or cold. Our own preference is for the former, but decide for yourself. Another aid to fast cooking are skewers used under the broiler or in a hot oven. Recently we tried the following recipe for a skewer dish, inspired by Swiss cuisine, to serve after the cucumber soup. It is an interesting combination of liver, slab bacon and sage. New potatoes boiled in their jackets are a perfect accompaniment to the meat.

CREAM OF CUCUMBER SOUP
1 envelope (1 1/2 ounces) cream of leek soup
2 1/4 cups water
8-inch cucumber (pared and coarsely grated)
1 cup milk
1/4 teaspoon salt
White pepper to taste
Turn soup into a medium saucepan; gradually stir in water; bring to a boil stirring several times. Add the cucumber (there should be 1 1/2 cups) and the milk; cover partly and simmer 5 minutes. Add salt and pepper. Serve hot or chilled. Makes four servings.

SWISS LIVER BROCHETTES
1 pound liver (sliced about 1/4-inch thick)
Fresh sage leaves or dried crumbled sage
4 to 8 slices slab bacon (cut about 1/4-inch thick)
Baby beef liver is fine to use; cut the slices into about 1 1/2-inch pieces. Place a sage leaf (or a little dried sage) on a piece of liver; fold in half. Insert folded liver pieces alternately with matching-size pieces of bacon on skewers. Lay skewers across a shallow pan so both ends rest on pan edges. Bake in a hot (400 degrees) oven 20 minutes. Baste liver a few times with pan drippings. Makes 4 servings.

Independent Trinidad Faces Big Problems

By ROBERT BERRELEZ
PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (AP)—This hot, lush land of calypso balladeers and steel drum bands, becomes independent next Friday—a new little nation with problems.

The haunting African rhythms of the calypso singers will celebrate the end of 160 years of British rule. The island, with its little ward Tobago 20 miles to the northeast in the brilliant blue Caribbean Sea, will become the nation of Trinidad and Tobago. It is no bigger than Delaware.

Trinidad has little in common with its Latin neighbors except tropical geography. Its population of 830,000 is a mixture of many races and nationalities, dominated by people of African and East Indian stock.

Like Jamaica, which became independent Aug. 6, Trinidad will remain within the commonwealth, but as a fully autonomous partner. Few Trinidadians seem to entertain any doubts about their ability to govern themselves.

Both Trinidad and Jamaica enjoyed wide latitude in self government under Britain. Except for foreign relations, defense and some features of fiscal policy, Trinidad's leaders had full control over the island's affairs. Both Trinidad and Jamaica have well organized civil services.

From the southwest tip of Trinidad it is only 16 miles across Serpent's Mouth Strait to the South American mainland. Tourists, traveling through verdant hills, alive with tropical flowers and luxuriantly plumed birds, can see the Venezuelan coast.

Compared with the bulk of Latin Americans, Trinidadians are prosperous. Per capita income in 1960 was about $600, one of the highest in the hemisphere.

The gross national product doubled in the past decade to a 1960 total of about $435 million. Exports and imports in 1960 totalled $294.5 million and $301.8 million, respectively, double the 1951 figures. This resulted in a headache familiar to economists: a balance of payments deficit.

Trinidad is the world's 17th biggest producer of crude oil, which now amounts to 43 million barrels annually. It also produces cocoa, sugar, rum, coconuts and coffee. Economists say it must diversify this agricultural production to cut down on food imports. Trinidad buys 80 per cent of its food through including fish. The country has other problems. One has to do with the racial mixture. Since the island was discovered in 1498 by Columbus, it has attracted settlers from probably every ethnic group in the world.

Today Negroes are in the majority, but a faster birth rate likely will make the East Indians dominant by 1970. They now compose about 37 per cent of the population.

There has been little intermarriage.

Some among Port of Spain's lower laboring classes, Negroes and Indians, accuse one another of all sorts of devilry. They express distrust of one another, some preferring the white man's rule.

Looming importantly in future Trinidad-U.S. relations is the U.S. naval base at Chaguaramas, valued at about $100 million. The Navy acquired a 99-year lease on 18 square miles in World War II. In 1961, negotiations with the twice dissolved Caribbean Federation brought agreement from Washington to reduce the lease rights to 17 years. The new government may want another look at the treaty.

The astute, Oxford-educated prime minister, Sir Eric Williams, 50, has not been averse to whipping up political fervor against the naval base, but even his critics say he has carefully guarded against letting nationalistic feeling develop into Yankee-gone-home excesses.

He has reason to be wary. He is eyeing Britain's negotiations with the European Common Market, and has been saying Trinidad should be prepared for bad news if Britain joins. In that case Trinidad would have to seek new markets quickly.

The United States is the likely candidate for increased trade. Americans do a profitable business here, shipping in 15 per cent of Trinidad's purchases while taking only 9 per cent of exports, according to the last available figures.

Apart from the naval base, the U.S. contribution to Trinidad's economy is significant. U.S. investments are estimated at $300 million. The giant Texaco oil base is valued at about $300 million.

French Assets In Algeria Wasted

By ANDREW BOROWIEC
ALGIERS (AP)—Several billion dollars of French assets in Algeria are wasting in the post-independence chaos and stagnation.

These assets represent 132 years of French investments in what was one of the most thriving of French territories.

Two months after the proclamation of independence, little is being done to put Algeria on its feet.

In the industrial zone east of Algiers, two of 32 French-owned factories are working.

The French embassy says 700,000 Frenchmen are left in the country, out of a million a year ago. Hundreds more leave daily, chased out by lawlessness and uncertainty.

Once thriving Oran looks like a ghost town. Perhaps 50,000 of 200,000 Europeans remain.

Vineyards and farms are going to waste in the rich western Algerian belt from which most farmers have fled. Many of their modern managers were assassinated by guerrilla troops.

In the fertile Mitidja Plain south of Algiers, things are better. Many farmers stayed behind to pick grapes in September, but most will leave later.

Perhaps half Algeria's average annual wine production will be met this year. The country normally produces nine per cent of world production.

French agricultural assets in Algeria are estimated at well over $1 billion. The value of industrial enterprises is slightly less, about $1 billion. Transport and construction firms in French hands represent sent $400 million. There is no official estimate of other commercial enterprises but they are believed to represent more than a billion dollars.

Much of the stock and equipment was looted in the early post-independence days. Some enterprises succeeded in shipping stock and tools to France but later shipments were banned.

The new Algerian authorities appeal to Europeans to return and "help us make Algeria prosperous." Chaos prevents most Europeans from trying.

Refugees from Algeria crowd the French port of Marseille, searching vainly for jobs, business opportunities and housing. Others join other exiles of the Riviera, southwestern France on the Paris region.

Hearing Finished On Marshall Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate Judiciary subcommittee hearing on Negro Thurgood Marshall's judgeship nomination, submitted Jan. 15, came to an end today.

The subcommittee still has to vote and make its recommendation to the full committee.

Marshall, former lawyer for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, has been nominated by President Kennedy to be a judge on the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The Negro, who successfully argued the school desegregation case before the Supreme Court, has been sitting on the circuit bench since Oct. 23 under a recess appointment.

Sudden Snowstorm Closes Trail Ridge

ESTES PARK, Colo. (AP)—A sudden snowstorm Thursday closed trail ridge, the nation's highest continuous road, for six hours.

The snow began shortly after noon and let about two inches high, within three hours. Drifts up to 14 inches were reported. Trail ridge is just west of here in Rocky Mountain National park.

The road was last closed the weekend of June 16 and 17 because of snow.

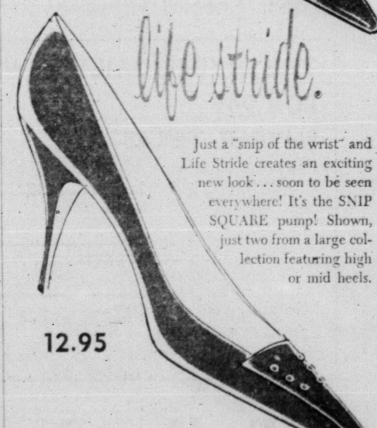

Foreign investment in Israel more than doubled last year.
