WHALE BITES GIRL — Shamu, a 7,000-pound killer whale at San Diego's Sea World, clamps teeth on leg of secretary Annette Eckis. The 22-year-old girl had fallen off the creature's back during a ride at the marine park, then suffered leg punctures when Shamu bit her. Annette, who had ridden the whale previously, said she thought he was playing. "He could have tightened his bite and pulled me to the bottom of the tank," she said. Her injuries were slight.

BROWN PAPER BAGS MAY FADE JUNE 15

Smith Signs Booze Bill

AUSTIN (AP) — Public sale of liquor by the drink became legal in Texas today for the first time since national prohibition shuttered the bars in 1918.

Gov. Preston Smith signed the bill into law at 11:48 a.m.

Clerical technicalities in the Senate kept him from signing the bill Tuesday.

The bill, first one approved by a Texas legislature since prohibition days that would legalize public sale of mixed drinks, got a final legislative okay Tuesday from the Senate, 21-10. The House approved the measure Monday 104-44.

The governor's signature automatically sets up local option elections May 18 on sale of mixed drinks in all or part of 46 counties. These areas voted wet last Nov. 2 when the state Constitution was changed to allow mixed drinks. These areas already have legalized sale of whisky, wine and beer under present laws.

The governor's signature also opens the door to any of the other 208 counties to hold their own local option elections. Election petitions could be presented county commissioners courts as early as May 10, which in turn could order the elections in 20 to 30 days.

TOURIST TRADE

Officials of the Texas Alcoholic Beverages Commission (TABC) estimated it would be early June before the first legal public sale of a mixed drink could be made—plenty of time for the summer tourist trade.

The TABC meets Thursday for a regular session that will include discussion of additional manpower needed to enforce the new law.

The new bill requires places that sell mixed drinks—which now may be publicly called "saloons"—to pay $4,500 in state license fees, prorated over three years, then a $300 annual renewal fee.

The new drinking spots may choose between two types of service—a bartender pouring drinks from a standard size bottle or a waitress serving "mini-bottles," containing not more than two ounces.

The new bill will not generally affect regular private clubs in either wet or dry areas because they are governed by a separate set of TABC rules.

Neither will the bill affect Texans who still prefer to purchase whisky, wine or beer from package stores and other firms for off-premise consumption.

The votes this week in the House and Senate climaxed efforts begun Aug. 24, 1935, when Texans voted repeal of prohibition, with strict local option. At the same time Texas' liquor control system was set up.

NEXT BIG STEP

The next big step toward relaxing the old prohibitionist attitude toward sale of liquor came in 1959 when the state Supreme Court ruled that any subdivision of a dry county could vote itself wet. Before that all wet-dry elections had to be countywide.

Then in 1961, the private club law was passed. It allows sale of mixed drinks under certain conditions to "club members." Club members technically already own the liquor and pay only for the service.

In 1968 a mixed-drink referendum was placed on the Democratic and Republican primary ballots and was approved statewide by a margin of 30,000. All big city counties went wet except Jefferson (Beaumont-Port Arthur).

Then in 1970 voters approved the Constitution change that took out the prohibition against "open saloons," and authorized the legislature to legalize sale of mixed drinks after local option elections. The vote was 979,868 to 914,481.

Col. Atkinson Is Assigned To Sheppard

Col. A. W. Atkinson, presently wing commander at Webb Air Force Base, is to become vice commander of Sheppard Technical Training Center, Wichita Falls, Aug. 1.

The announcement was made today by Lt. Gen. George B. Simler, commander of Air Training Command. It previously had been announced that Col. Atkinson would have a new assignment. He is to be succeeded here by Col. Malcolm E. Ryan Jr.

Colonel Atkinson became wing commander at Webb April 1, 1970. Prior to that he had served as deputy commander for operations here.

A large portion of Sheppard's primary mission is incorporated into the 3750th Technical School. The school is comprised of 15 student and four instructor squadrons. Training at Sheppard is conducted in the departments of transportation, aircraft maintenance, civil engineering, missile and communications, comptroller and field training.

At the end of fiscal year 1970, Sheppard was the second largest of the four Technical Training Centers and third largest of 16 Air Training Command bases. The base population including personnel assigned to field and mobile detachments exceeds 19,000.

TOYAH ISSUE

Texas Open Meetings Law Upheld

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The state 4th Court of Civil Appeals upheld today the Texas open meetings law in the first appeals court test of the statute.

The 3-judge court returned a ruling in a case involving a West Texas school dispute.

At issue was the annexation of the Toyah, Texas, School District by the larger Pecos-Barstow Consolidated School District.

The Toyah district appealed the decision of Reeves County District Judge J. H. Starley, who ruled in favor of the annexation and declared it valid.

Toyah claimed the tiny West Texas School district was annexed in a private session.

The appeals court reversed the lower court's ruling and declared the annexation order is "ineffectual."

The appeals court held that the annexation meeting "was not held in conformity with the statutory mandate."

The Reeves County Board of School Trustees ordered the annexation on March 5, 1969.

When the case was argued before the court here March 18, 1970, observers said it could lead to a landmark decision for Texas on the so-called "public-right-to-know" theory of the Open Meetings Act.

The court found that exceptions to this law did not apply to the annexation meeting and said that the Reeves board "was authorized to act only at a meeting which was open to the public."

Toyah lawyers A. R. Archer Jr. and Max Ramsey maintained that the annexation order was illegal because the public, they charged, was deliberately barred from the final meeting held on the issue.

Archer told the court that the general population of Toyah — a town of only 294 residents — was not allowed to attend any part of the meeting.

Only lawyers, board members of the school districts involved and the Reeves County trustees were allowed in the meeting, Archer said.

He also argued that the Reeves trustees voted on the annexation in private. He said the trustee chairman advised everyone else to leave before the vote was taken. Ramsey charged because the public was barred the annexation meeting was "the most direct and flagrant violation I think you could find."

Foreign Aid Package Tops $3 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon asked Congress today for a massive overhaul of the U.S. foreign aid program and an increase in military and economic assistance abroad.

White House officials said the President's new foreign aid package amounts to $3.3 billion in the fiscal year starting July 1.

"Foreign assistance is quite clearly in our interest as a nation," Nixon said in a special message outlining his proposed new aid system

"We are a people whose sons have died, and whose great statesmen have worked, to build a world order which insures peace and prosperity for ourselves and for other nations," he said.

PROPOSES SPLIT

"We are aware," the President said, "that this world order cannot be sustained if our friends cannot defend themselves against aggression, and if two-thirds of the world's people see the richer third as indifferent to their needs and insensitive to their aspirations for a better life."

Nixon proposed a split in the former one-package aid legislation—one measure for international security aid and a second for international economic development and humanitarian aid.

In reporting that the combined Nixon request would amount to $3.3 billion, the informed members of Congress listed this as about $500 million more than Nixon sought for foreign aid last year and $800 million above what Congress actually voted.

WIDE REFORM

The two new aid bills being proposed by Nixon are not exactly comparable with previous bills because they involve such a sweeping reform of the existing U.S. foreign aid set-up begun after World War II.

For international security, Nixon called for $1,993 million for the coming fiscal year, including $705 million for arms aid given to foreign countries and $510 million for easy term military sales plus $778 million for economic aid called supporting assistance.

'You Lead The Parade,' Hill Tells Local Youth Leaders

Young people at the sixth annual Zale's-Herald Youth Achievement awards banquet Tuesday evening were characterized as the drum majors of their generation.

See Story, Page 6-A

"You lead the parade," Calvin Hill, star running back of the Dallas Cowboys professional football team, told the 32 finalists out of a field of more than four score nominees: "You are out in the front; you set the direction of the parade; you set the gait."

Selected for the top awards in Big Spring, Coahoma, Forsan and Sands (Ackerly), were:

Jeffrey Talmadge, son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Talmadge, 2709 Carol, Big Spring High School.

Arlene Milliken, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Milliken, 205 North Main, Coahoma High School.

Gloria Jean Dodd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dodd, 2114 Warren, Forsan High School.

Larry Don Shaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Shaw, Knott Route, Sands High School.

The awards were presented by Sidney Lipshey, vice president of the Zales Corporation, with the aid of Hill. Each received a plaque and wrist watch in addition to the handsome gifts which Zale's had presented to each of the 32 finalists.

Earlier Lipshey had saluted the young people, declaring that "when I see such a fine, clean-cut group of young people like you, I have a lot of faith and confidence in the future of our nation."

He contrasted their appearance with the hopelessness he had seen behind the Iron Curtain, and told them that this is still and land of opportunity.

"The opportunity is the same as when Zale's started as a tiny store in Wichita Falls in 1924; when Zale's made Big Spring its 21st store in 1947; and today when Zale's has 1,400 stores."

The nominees and the finalists, said R. W. Whipkey, Herald publisher and master of ceremonies, represent the 99.9 per cent of young people who are deserving, ambitious, concerned and hard workers. Among the nominees and particularly the finalists, he said, "there was a common thread of respect for home, school, church, country as well as interest in others and a willingness to help."

Hill, a graduate of Yale, and now an off-season student in Perkins School of Theology at SMU, told the young people they could do anything they wanted to do.

He cautioned them that their drum major instincts could be corrupted by selfish desires, "and when the drum major puts himself first, the whole parade suffers. I challenge you to wake up with a dedication you are going to serve others."

Entertainment for the party given by Zale's at the Big Spring Country Club was furnished by the Meistersingers of BSHS. Special guests included Mrs. Jerry Avery, Mrs. Jimmy Taylor, Curt Mullins, the Rev. Byron Orand, Dr. M. W. Talbot, Leon Miller, and Maj. Phil Raign, Big Spring, and Wendell Shive, Coahoma; also Mayor Arnold Marshall, Big Spring, Mayor Jack Cauble, Coahoma, Mayor Earl Newcomer, Ackerly, Supt. W. A. Wilson, Coahoma, and M. B. Maxwell, Sands; Principals John F. Smith, Big Spring, Bill Easterling, Coahoma, Ronnie Gandy, Sands.

Mom 'Can't Blame Them' For Slaying

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tears streaming down her face, the 21-year-old mother of an infant boy who was tied to a cross and kicked to death said of two young brothers, "I can't blame them."

Police say the brothers, aged 7 and 10, have confessed to the slaying of Noah Alba, 20 months.

"It was hate and resentment that caused them to do this," Melanie Alba said after viewing the battered body of her son Tuesday at the morgue.

"They were punishing themselves," Mrs. Alba said.

"I know some little kids who don't get any love, so they destroy things . . . children have an inherent sense of right. If they feel they're not treated right they seem to blame themselves.

"To kids, what's the difference between a puppy or breaking a toy?

"I can't blame them . . . I just can't find it within myself to blame them."

Police were unable to establish any motive for the tot's killing. A citywide search for him ended Monday afternoon when police were led to a basement where they found the child's beaten body, bound by rope and wire to a makeshift cross. An autopsy found a ruptured spleen and internal bleeding as cause of the death.

Police Detective Dan Driscoll said it was the younger of the two brothers who led police to the site. Noah had been missing since last Wednesday.

No Election Here On Open Saloons

Howard County will not be required to hold a local option election on the liquor-by-the-drink issue May 18. The election must be held only in those counties which approved the liquor amendment in the Nov. 3,1970, general elections.

The liquor issue was defeated locally by a margin of 4,534 against to 2,427 in favor of the "open saloon." The other requirement for the local option election is that in addition to approving the amendment, the county must already permit the sale of alcoholic beverages.

All-Black Areas Erased

TYLER, Tex. (AP) — A federal judge today ordered three all-black school districts in East Texas dissolved and told the State of Texas not to allow district boundary changes which would create or maintain dual school systems based on race.

U. S. Dist. Judge William Wayne Justice further ordered the Texas Education Agency to re-examine school transportation systems and stop bus routes "which, by intent, inaction or inadvertence would maintain or encourage segregation."

Split Decision In Abortion Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ruling for the first time on an abortion law, the Supreme Court today upheld prosecution of doctors in the District of Columbia but authorized them to end pregnancies for the sake of the expectant mother's "mental health."

The split decision also made prosecution more difficult by reading the turn-of-the-century abortion law for the District as requiring the government to prove the abortion was not for therapeutic reasons.

The decision dismissed claims that the law was so vaguely written it could not be understood by doctors.

In other actions today, the court:

—Ruled that a conscientious objector to the draft must declare his claim before he receives his induction notice.

—Held that the United States may turn away refugees fleeing Communist countries if they settle temporarily in another country on this way.

It was on "vagueness" grounds that a federal judge here, Gerhard A. Gesell, ruled the 1901 abortion law unconstitutional in 1969 while dismissing an indictment against a physician who operates a clinic three blocks from the White House.

MOTHER'S LIFE

Justice Hugo L. Black, speaking for the court, said the term "health" in the statute is neither imprecise nor uncertain.

Under the law, written by Congress, doctors may not perform abortions "unless the same were done as necessary for the preservation of the mother's life or health."

Lamesa Farmer Dies In Crash

LAMESA (SC) — George W. Jones, 55, Lamesa, was killed early Tuesday morning in a one-car accident about 15 miles east of Seminole on US 180.

Jones apparently died instantly when his late-model pickup failed to make a slight curve and slammed into a tree. Authorities said it took an hour to extricate his body from the truck.

Justice of the Peace W. E. Cox Jr., Seminole, pronounced him dead at the scene. A passing trucker found the crash about 2:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Services will be at 3 p.m. Thursday in the First Baptist Church with the Rev. Dorman Kinard, pastor of Crestview Baptist Church, and the Rev. Gene Hawkins, pastor of First Baptist Church of Seminole, officiating.

Burial will be in Lamesa Memorial Park under direction of Branon Funeral Home.

Jones had lived in Dawson County since 1924 and was a farmer in Dawson and Gaines counties.

Survivors include his wife, Edna; one daughter, Jill Jones; and one son, Jason Jones, all of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Jones, Lamesa; two sisters, Mrs. Lois Prather, Lamesa, and Mrs. Jim Thomas, Conroe; and three brothers, Lee Jones and J. L. Jones, both of Seminole, and J. H. Jones, Welch.

Pallbearers will be Harvey Kemper, Luke Wilcher, Jake Cohorn, Luther Lee, Jerry Kelly, John Wheat, Frank Perucca and Alton Addison.

GIVING THEM TIME TO PERFORM USUALLY DEADLY OPERATIONS

Neurosurgeons Say They Can Cool Off Your Brain

HOUSTON (AP) — A new technique of cooling the brain to a point of pseudo-death offers the promise of surgery for patients who previously were beyond hope, two Chicago neurosurgeons said here Tuesday.

Dr. Robert G. Selker and Sidney K. Wolfson Jr. said they have developed a method of chilling a patient's brain and body so completely that blood supply to the brain can be cut for as long as an hour.

This "suspended animation," they said permits surgeons to operate on brain leisons which previously offered no hope of repair.

RESEARCH STAGE

The surgeons said the technique has been used on only two patients and is still in the research stage.

Dr. Selker said in using the new system the patient's body is cooled to about 85 degrees. The brain leison, or damaged area needing repair, is then exposed.

The patient's heart is stopped and a chilled saline solution is injected into an artery in the patient's neck.

Blood is forced from the brain and the organ's temperature is dropped from the normal of about 98 degrees to 55 degrees within five minutes.

"This slows the metabolism processes so that the oxygen and nourishment in the brain tissue is enough to allow the patient to tolerate a lack of blood in the brain for up to 60 minutes without damage," said Dr. Selker.

BRAIN CHILLED

At normal temperatures, the brain would start to deteriorate within four minutes without blood or oxygen, he said.

While the brain is chilled, he said, it shows no signs of life. Signals on an electro-encephalogram, which measures brain function, are flat, indicating no activity.

The surgeons said as the brain drains of blood it makes a spectacular color change, from the normal deep red to an almost clear color.

Then, said Dr. Wolfson, the surgeon has about 60 minutes to repair the damaged brain area.

Once the repair is completed, the heart is restarted and the cold solution dissipates throughout the body. The heart rate slowly increases, he said, as the body warms up. The saline solution passes from the patient's body through the urine.

Dr. Selker said the chilled solution lowers the temperatures of all the patients' organs along with the brain. The heart is cooled to about 27 degrees.

"All of the organs of the body are cooled in proportion to their sensitivity to a lack of oxygen," he said.

SO SIMPLE

Dr. Wolfson said the technique will be particularly useful in treating patients with cerebral aneurysms, which is a ballooning of weakened artery walls in the brain.

He said using the current system of the heart-long machine, many aneurysms could burst if repair was attempted. This could result in serious bleeding and damage to the brain.

In the chilled brain, however, the ballooned artery will not bleed should it burst since the artery is filled only with a saline solution. With the threat of bleeding removed, the surgeon is able to repair the artery more safely and, perhaps, even perform an artery transplant, a technique not possible with current brain surgery systems, the doctors said.

Dr. Wolfson said the technique is so simple that it doesn't require large medical teams, such as needed for the heart-lung machine, and it avoids the complications of controlling blood coagulation, or clotting, one of the major difficulties with the heart-lung machine.

BEYOND HELP

Development of the new technique, says Dr. Selker, is "about where the heart-lung machine was when they first started. Once (the chill system) is perfected, it will be the treatment of choice for aneurysms."

The doctors said aneurysms in the brain which cannot be repaired under the present methods often burst and cause permanent brain damage for thousands and thousands of patients annually.

Both of the patients selected for the new technique were suffering from brain tumors and were beyond help. Each showed improved function after the surgery, but both died weeks later from pre-existing tumors.

The new technique was tried on the patients only after long research with laboratory primates, the doctors said.

Dr. Selker said it will be at least two to five years before the new technique has been sufficiently tested to permit its general use.

The surgeons described the new technique in a paper presented at the meeting here of the American Association of Neurological Surgeons.

Cost-Of-Living Increases Part Of SS Overhaul Voted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee has approved automatic cost-of-living increases as part of a Social Security overhaul that also would improve benefits for widows and extend medicare to the disabled.

Other changes voted by the committee Tuesday would revice medicare to cost patients more for short illnesses, but less for very prolonged ones.

The changes in the Social Security cash benefit schedule alone would cost an estimated $1.5 billion a year, with the total bill for the package still unestimated.

TOO HIGH?

Committee spokesmen said a payroll tax increase, still to be computed, is inevitable and that if the cost is too high, some revisions may have to be reconsidered.

The changes were approved for inclusion in the committee's combined Social Security-welfare reform bill.

The proposals, potentially affecting more than 26 million persons, include:

—An automatic increase in benefits when the cost-of-living rises 3 per cent in a year, with an accompanying tax increase.

—An increase from $1,680 to $2,000 in the amount a pensioner may earn wtihout pension reduction.

—Bigger benefits for widows.

—Higher ultimate benefits for those choosing to work beyond 65.

HELP FOR WIDOWS

—Bigger benefits for persons quitting work before retirement age but intending to draw their benefits later.

—A higher minimum monthly benefit for persons long employed in covered jobs. The minimum benefit of $70.40 could be as high as $150 a month for one who worked 30 years.

—A better break for certain working couples who now draw less than a couple whose equivalent income was earned by just the husband.

—Medicare eligibility for the disabled after 24 months of retirement.

—A freeze on the medicare premium charged for a doctor's services. Future increases would be allowed only in proportion to increases in basic Social Security benefits.

—A readjustment of medicare hospital benefits, costing more for persons hospitalized from 30 to 60 days, but providing more coverage for very long illnesses.

Opening lead: Three of ♡

An imaginative discard by East in today's hand overcame the favorable distributional feature which nature had presented to South in his three no trump contract.

West opened the three of hearts which was, perhaps, not the soundest choice. Holding a weak hand with no visible side entry, it is usually advisable to make a play for partner who is marked with the missing high card strength, and may thus have a better chance to profitably develop his own suit.

In the present case, if West had chosen to lead the jack of spades for example, he would have reaped a rich bounty. South's ace is driven out immediately, and now he must let the opponents in once more in diamonds. Another spade lead thru the queen allows the defenders to win four tricks in that suit which together, with the two hearts and one diamond adds up to a tidy 300 point profit.

With the heart lead—a nimble performance was required of East. The latter put up the king and continued the suit. West played the ace and another heart to drive out declarer's stopper. East realized that West could cash his established hearts only if he had an entry in the diamond suit. East's king of diamonds was of no use to him, located as it was in front of declarer's holding; therefore, in an attempt to get out of his partner's way, East discarded the king on the third round of hearts.

South was unable to establish his diamond suit without letting West in with the jack, and the latter cashed out his hearts to defeat the contract. If East retains the king of diamonds, declarer can cross over to dummy in clubs to lead a low diamond and then permit his opponent to hold the trick when the latter plays the king. When South regains the lead, his ace and queen of diamonds will drop West's jack and South is now in position to run nine tricks.

HCJC Cast Rehearsing 'Death Of A Salesman'

Fresh from good showings in the one-act play and forensic divisions of the Texas Junior College Speech and Theater Association, (TJCSTA), the Hawk Players at Howard County Junior College have turned their full attention to the April 29, 30, and May 1 performances of "Death of a Salesman," by Arthur Miller.

Finishing touches are being made to the elaborate two-story set as rehearsals move into the last two weeks before production.

Mark Shaver, TJCSTA state champion in oral interpretation, plays the role of Willy Loman, the aging salesman around which the modern tragedy revolves.

Linda, Loman's loving and understanding wife, is portrayed by Belita McCravey, Synder freshman, a veteran of the fall semester's presentations of "Star-Spangled Girl" and "Hamlet."

Chris Gilbert, who played Hamlet for the one-act play contest held in March and won all-star cast honors, is Biff, Loman's oldest son.

Other members of the cast are Marshall Horn as Happy; Richard Derby, Bernard; Phyllis Hagen, the Woman; Randy Hatfield, Charley; Rowan Settles, Uncle Ben; Mike Colclazer, Howard Wagner; Debra Tate, Jenny, Glen Scott, Stanley, Debbie Coffee, Miss Forsythe; and Marjorie Carlton, Letta.

Dan Shockey, speech and drama instructor at HCJC, is the director of the Hawk Players. He will be assisted by Rowan Settles, who is both assistant director and stage manager.

The remainder of the cast will function as stage crew, properties crew and will take care of lighting, sound, costumes and make-up.

The play will be presented in the HCJC Auditorium. Tickets are $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for students, and HCJC students will be admitted with their activity cards.

Still No Contact With Valley Reds

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong mines ripped through two busloads of South Vietnamese civilians Tuesday in different parts of the country, killing 24 and wounding five, the national police reported.

A spokesman said 14 civilians were killed and two wounded in one incident on the central coastal plain 265 miles northeast of Saigon. The second mining occurred in the Mekong Delta 50 miles southwest of Saigon, and 10 civilians were killed and three wounded, he said.

Only light and scattered battlefield activity was reported.

Maj. Fen. Pham Van Phu, commander of the 1st Infantry Division, said more South Vietnamese troops had moved into the A Shau Valley for the drive in that enemy infiltration corridor and supply center. But there still was no contact with the enemy after eight days of reconnaissance operations, said Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, a spokesman for the South Vietnamese command.

The 30-mile-long valley is on the Laotian border 375 miles north of Saigon.

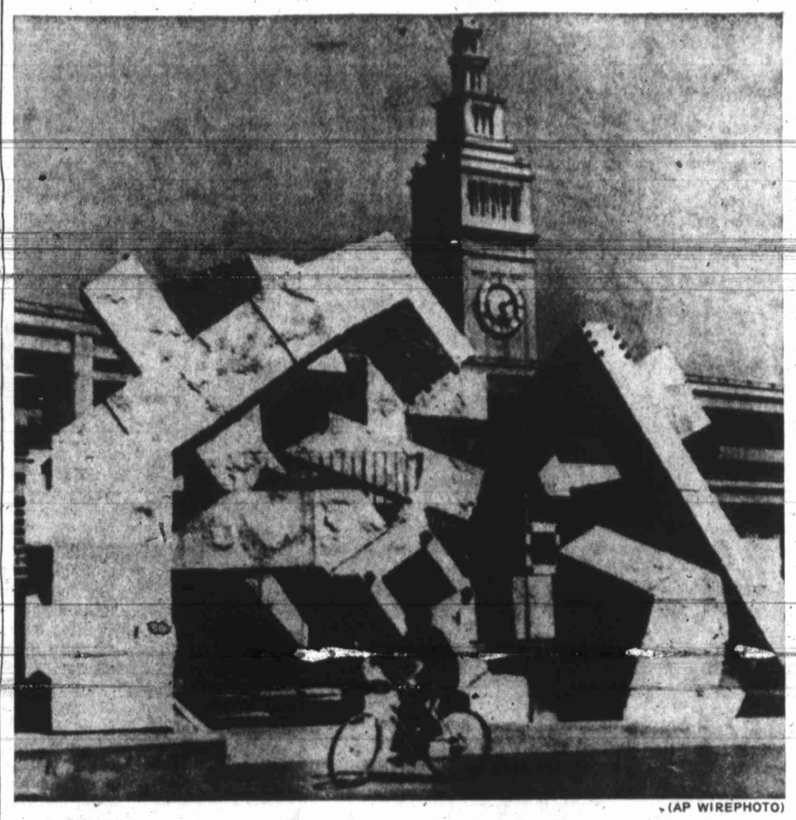

Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam commander of the northern military region, told Associated Press correspondent J.T. Wolkerstorfer at Hue: "We have some battalions in the A Shau Valley." He would not say how many. At least one battalion of U.S. troops from the 101st Airborne Division is also reported operating in the valley.

American sources told Wolkerstorfer the allied troops were looking for small caches of weapons and equipment which had been reported in the valley. One informant said the troops also would sweep along the Laotian border.

U.S. B52 bombers struck about 40 miles north of the A Shau. Nine of the big bombers dropped 270 tons of bombs in the northwest corner of the country.

13 Americans Killed In Fire

BANGKOK (AP) — The families of three servicemen were among 13 Americans killed in a fire at the Imperial Hotel, officials said. Twenty-four persons died in the blaze early Tuesday.

The U.S. Embassy said eight of the Americans killed were Staff Sgt. John F. Seay of Greensboro, N.C., his wife Mary, son John, 5, and daughter Cary, 5 months, and the wife and three children of Lt. Col. Herbert Matsuo of Honolulu—Wanda, 12, Michael, 13, and Lawrence, 9.

Matsuo was in an Army hospital at the time of the fire, and another son, 11-year-old Wayne, escaped from the hotel and was in good condition at an Army hospital today, the embassy said.

The embassy said the names of three members of another American family who died in the fire would be released Thursday, after their next of kin were notified.

The Seays were trapped in their room and suffocated, an embassy spokesman said.

Thai police added the names of two more dead Americans: Gerald Farrow of New Jersey, home address available.

According to the police list, the other dead included Egyptian and Chinese airline crew members, a German tourist and two Thais.

Four bodies had not been identified.

The fire broke out about 4 a.m. Tuesday after an explosion in the ground-floor coffee shop and it burned out one wing of the downtown hotel.

Officials on Tuesday said 25 persons had died in the fire, but this was reduced to 24 today.

FTC Fights Merger Of Two Drug Houses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission, picking up a politically sensitive antitrust case dropped by the Justice Department, has challenged the merger of two drug houses into the nation's third largest pharmaceutical firm.

The FTC said Tuesday the acquisition of Parke, Davis & Co. by Warner-Lambert Co. eliminates competition between the two firms which had combined assets of $971 million in 1969.

The merger had been opposed by Assistant Atty. Gen. Richard W. McLaren, chief of the Justice Department's antitrust division, but he was overruled by Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst last November on the eve of the merger.

NO EXPLANATION

The Justice Department gave no explanation for its decision not to bring suit but its statement noted that Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell was once a member of the law firm representing Warner-Lambert.

Another former partner of that law firm is President Nixon, who also is a close friend of Elmer H. Bobst, Warner-Lambert's honorary chairman. Bobst was among the six largest contributors to the 1968 Nixon-Agnew campaign.

Reached in Seattle where he was attending a Senate Commerce Committee hearing, McLaren said "It's gratifying to see the FTC prosecutor has reached the same conclusion I did and that they'll fight the merger."

Prior to the merger Warner-Lambert was the 12th largest U.S. drug manufacturer and Parke, Davis ranked 14.

In New York, Stuart K. Hensley, chairman of Warner-Lambert, denied the merger violated antitrust laws.

More Good News

The Industrial Foundation took the wraps off Tuesday from the latest industry for our community, the Big Spring Dress Company, a member of the IBJ family of women's garment manufacturing.

This is the second industry that the Foundation has announced within nine months, a remarkable record for aggressive and successful endeavor. Although the Foundation is not letting up in its efforts to attract still more industry to our area, what it has accomplished thus far more than justifies the faith and effort put into it.

The new garment plant, to be located in a 24,000 square foot building acquired by the Foundation, will employ around 125 people within a year's time, and possibly may grow to 250 or 300 employes, according to Seymour Thum, IBJ secretary, who came here to sign the contract. He indicated that it will be the ability of the community to supply ample skilled labor that will determine the size of the work force.

In a sense, this is part of the partnership between Big Spring and the new firm, for we must help recruit trainable workers who will be productive and dependable. The degree with which we succeed in this responsibility may reflect in the future on other efforts to obtain industry. Right along side capital and facilities is a good labor pool as an element in industrial progress.

But we have the potential to provide the skilled workers needed, and these should come from a bracket which will greatly stimulate the economy. The resulting payrolls will not stimulate regular business, but the supporting services which are in ratio to on-the-line workers. Of course handlers, transport firms, etc. will benefit, too, plus the addition of another institution contributing its portion of taxes.

The announcement Tuesday, coupled with that Monday when the Medical Center Memorial Hospital expansion was disclosed, makes this a week to remember. Following on the heels of rains, this should create a new and confident atmosphere in the community.

Needed Reform

Recently in South Texas when the case against two officers of a bank was called to trial, it developed that a member of the state legislature had become a part of counsel for defense. The trial judge had no choice but to order a continuance; to have done otherwise would have been a reversible error.

Unfortunately, this is not an isolated instance. The law governing this should be reformed so that the presiding judge will have greater latitude in continuing or proceeding to trial with cases involving lawyer-legislators as counsel. Most legislative work is not that pressing, and judges ought to be able to require convincing proof of a critical need for attendance in the legislature at that moment.

Obscene Callers

Robert E. Ford

Today we hold a small school for telephone repairmen — those fellows way up in the air atop poles in the heat and cold or down in tunnels under the pavement.

The lecture's subject is "How To Dial a Telephone."

You will note, Mr. Repairman, that a telephone dial has 10 holes.

Somewhere in the vicinity of those openings there are printed letters or numerals.

Pick a combination of numbers.

Plunge your pinkie into your selected number and rotate the movable dial as far as you can do so. Clockwise.

Keep dialing numbers or letters until you've turned the dial seven times. You then should hear a sound like buzz-buzz-buzz.

NOW THAT wasn't hard, was it? That should be easy for a highly trained, experienced telephone man to understand.

Perhaps it's too easy. It's like a Ph. D in mathematics fouling up his income tax form.

This lesson was inspired after our household began receiving mysterious calls.

The callers at first refused to answer to our "hello."

They panted into the telephone just like any obscene caller. This was on hot summer days. On cold days they chattered their teeth at us. Some how, chattering didn't sound too obscene.

"JUST SOME psycho picking numbers at random," we remarked.

That went on for some months and finally became tiresome. So we decided to call in the policemen's obscene call squad or get an unlisted number.

Actually, we'd been wanting to have a secret number for some time. You're absolutely nobody unless you have an unlisted telephone. And you really are the ultimate in status if you can get an unlisted zip code number.

All of which brings to mind a conversation between the Associated Press' retired sports writer, Harold V. Ratliff, and baseball's destroyer of the English language, Dizzy Dean.

Dean: I had the phone people take out my unlisted phone.

Ratliff: Why would you do a thing like that?

Dean: Nobody never called me.

RATLIFF: How many people did you give the number to?

Dean: I didn't give it to nobody. What's the point of havin' a unlisted number if you give it to people?

But the mystery telephone calls eventually became more intimate. "Hello there, honey," or "Hey there, doll," the callers would say the instant the receiver was lifted.

One day the wife answered.

"Hello there, sweetheart," said the voice.

"I beg your pardon." Frost flaked off her voice.

"Isn't this the telephone company?"

"It certainly is not"

"SORRY, MA'M."

With that clue, a little discreet inquiry revealed that the number used by the repairmen is one digit from ours.

Obscene call listeners sometimes are as strange as the callers.

An incident in Pittsburgh not long ago and duly reported by The Associated Press demonstrates.

A woman complained of a persistent obscene caller. The phone company asked if she could keep the man talking long enough for it to trace the call.

"Sure," she replied. "I talked to him for 45 minutes the other night.

When we determined that we were one digit away from a very active number, we comment, "The easiest way will be to have our number changed. I'll have the phone company do it today."

"Oh no you don't claimed the wife.

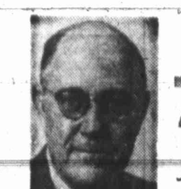

"No one else ever calls me honey".

It took a dozen roses to divert her mind to less touchy subjects.

'I GET THE FEELING WE'RE NOT GETTING ANYWHERE'

A New Time

Around The Rim

Joe Pickle

This has been a reluctant spring, but it's here at last. And now that showers have come, the season suddenly is preening in its new dress.

THE EVIDENCE is more distinct early in the morning when sometimes there is a lazy breeze, sometimes a still crispness. In either event, the symphony of the mocking birds announces the beginning of a new day and a new spring.

THERE MUST be some magic by which they space themselves, for you are never out of earshot of several of them. While other birds carry on the tapestry of the composition with their twittering, which rises and falls like unulating musical waves, the mocking birds pick up the theme with exciting trills, sharp and shrill chirps, staccato clucks, rolls that sound like growls or the croak of a frog. The stars of this production deliver an arpeggio, or slide down the chromatic scale with breath-taking runs, then shoot skyward from their perch and flutter softly with lungs bursting in song. The lesser lights flit unhurriedly from one perch to another, as though searching for a better podium.

THIS IS THE most exotic moment for trees. Natives, like mesquite, adorn lacy foliage so delicately green that it would blush yellow with slight encouragement. Several other trees also have these pastel shades, which are punctuated by the darker hues like elms. Willows arch their spangles, new mulberry, and pecan leaves have a sheen, mimosa and native walnut put tufts on the end of limbs and twigs. Chinaberry trees come out timidly, as if unsure of the weather or afraid to leaf before blooming, but the locus trees are prolifigate with blossoms and the little wisteria trees billow with cascades of purple bunches. The pyracantha are sprinkled with blossoms, and photenia have their hands full of clusters.

THE SMALLER plants are in all stages. Yucca, such as Spanish dagger, pushes up crowns of blossoms on sturdy spikes. Cautious bear grass is taking on a faint shine but holding back its spikes. Cactus are freshening but not hastening to bloom. Here and there are a few wildflowers, which somehow defied the drouth. Clumps of yellow primrose or buttercup are appearing along with bits of rock daisies and kindred types, a bit of guara here and there, straggling bits of wild verbenea, a patch of tansy asters.

OFTEN THIN cloud banks rim the horizon, and long gray fingers extend between pale rays which point to the spot of the imminent appearance of the sun. The dark silhouette of the cloud melts into burnished billows where jagged patches of light herald the dawn of a new day.

President's Side

David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — One of the most palpable weaknesses in the American system of communication between the government and the people was revealed again last week. It explains why so many persons are uninformed and why, when they read fragments of criticism without having received the complete background of governmental action, misunderstanding arises and misrepresentations develop.

The President of the United States agreed to be interviewed at the banquet of the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington. Six newsmen asked the questions, and the querfes and answers were broadcast live over three major radio networks — but not over television.

THE INTERVIEW was heard well in many places. But, unfortunately, some radio stations even on the networks didn't carry the interview at all, as they preferred to present the play-by-play of baseball teams popular in their area or other programs.

Anyway, lots of potential listeners might have said: "Well, I'll read it in the morning papers." But anything which lasts an hour at night isn't likely to be transcribed in time for morning papers to print except in summary form.

THE NET RESULT is that, even with the wide reach of communications media of all kinds in America, a very important talk with the President did not get published in full in newspapers which could have made certain the entire public would have received the views of their chief executive.

With respect to maintaining some of our troops in Vietnam indefinitely, Mr. Nixon said:

"AS FAR AS our presence in South Vietnam is concerned, I am speaking of an American force, of a residual force, and of an air presence, as long as they (North Vietnam) do retain prisoners, no American president could simply remove our forces and remove the threat to them.

"We have the responsibility, as long as there is one American being held prisoner by North Vietnam, to have some incentive on our side to get that man released, and that is why we are going to retain that force until we get it, and I think it will work in the end."

THE PRESIDENT made it clear that he wishes to pull out all American troops at the earliest possible time provided that North Vietnam shows some sign either at the Paris peace conference or through diplomatic sources that it is ready to conclude the war. Mr. Nixon summed the situation up this way:

"The goal of American policy on Vietnam is a total withdrawal with no residual force. But, as long as the prisoner issue remains unsettled, and as long as they (North Vietnam) hold prisoners, and as long as the South Vietnamese have not yet developed the capacity to defend themselves, to take over from us the defense of their own country — a capacity that they rapidly are developing — we will have forces there."

THESE ARE positive statements. They tell the American people why a definite formula planned by the United States for withdrawal depends on the willingness of the North Vietnamese to recognize the obligation to release their captives, thereby hastening the end of our participation in the war.

Shocking Suggestion

John Cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Stark's suggestion for reducing industrial pollution was shocking. "Throw a few chairmen of the board in jail," the California banker told a meeting of environmental law enforcers.

Only then, he elaborated later, would industry realize that it must stop polluting, that it cannot continue to ignore local regulations on the theory that the petty fine is cheaper than the solution.

It's like the motorist who risks a $2 parking ticket because the parking lots charge $3, he said.

Few possibilities are likely to be received more grimly by corporation officers, who feel their weekend should be rewarded with a walk on the golf course rather than a sunning in the jailyard. Few images could be worse.

Oh yes, there was a fleeting concern that soon merged with amusement over speculation some months ago that if students could rebel against faculty, why couldn't young middle management revolt against the corporate president—lock him up the boardroom and announce a takeover in the interests of shareholders and the public?

Stark's suggestion is more realistic. He would have corporate officers charged with felonies for violating pollution laws, with penalties up to five years in prison.

He cites the case of an industrial plant on the Sacramento River.

"For years they pumped dirty water into the river, violating a 50-year-old fish and game control law," he said.

"The fish and game people cited them over the years and they treated the citations like traffic tickets. They'd appear in court and pay. Then the district attorney's office stepped in and the judge fined them $2,250."

More importantly, Stark related, he put them on probation for 12 years. "Now the plant manager is on probation just as if he stole a car. He has to test the water now, because he can get a year in the cooler."

Stark, 39, is a maverick by most traditional business standards. He is concerned about corporate responsibility, on controlling pollution, on ending the war in Vietnam. He plans to march against the war on April 24.

But he is shaped also by tradition, and he owns the rather establishment-sounding name of Fortney Stark Jr.—Pete is a nickname. A native of Milwaukee, he went west to attend Berkeley, liked the area, and with seven or eight local businessmen in Walnut Grove, near Oakland, he formed Security National Bank.

That was in 1963, when he was 31. Stark still heads the bank, which has grown to more than $80 million in assets, partly reflecting the rapidly growing suburban area in which most of its business is done.

Nixon's 'Principle'

Andrew Tully

WASHINGTON — As the mob gathers to march Richard Nixon to the political gallows, a malicious irony is discernible. Critics who have long proclaimed that Nixon is bereft of principles now base their opposition to his Vietnam War policy on the fact that he insists upon standing on principle.

THIS THEME is the thread running through public utterances submitted by a wide range of actors in the "Dump Nixon" movement. Without exception, they are blasting away at the President's position that the principled way to end U.S. participation in the Indochina conflict is to give South Vietnam a fighting chance of survival. Yank the American troops yesterday, they cry, and the hell with the South Vietnamese. Or, in a variation on the theme, they demand that Nixon publicly set a date certain for complete withdrawal and thus squander the last hope of forcing the enemy to negotiate a peace settlement.

THE CURIOUS THING is that none of these critics, all men of sophistication, will give Nixon what would seem to be an obvious benefit of the doubt. Certainly the President has set a date, in his mind, for total withdrawal. One White House aide says flatly it is Oct. 1, 1972. If he is merely guessing, the date still seems utterly logical. There is a Presidential election the following month, and Nixon promised during the 1968 campaign to get the troops out during his first term.

BUT NIXON IS on unchallengable ground in refusing to tip off Hanoi. That is called diplomacy, an art that has been sorely neglected in this era of the big mouth. Quite simply, the President must save some cards to play in the game to win the release of American prisoners-of-war.

ASIDE FROM the principle involved, Nixon's position is unassailably pragmatic. If his opponents permitted reason to prevail, they would find it impossible to quarrel with the President's comment that publicly announcing a date for total withdrawal "would serve the enemy's purpose and not our own." One may be sure such an announcement would set off wild rejoicing in Hanoi — rejoicing and the swift formation of a program for taking over the South the day after the last American GI departed.

As for principle, Nixon puts it better than any columnist could do. The simple issue, he says, is "Shall we leave Vietnam in a way that, by our own actions, consciously turns the country over to the Communists? Or shall we leave in a way that gives the South Vietnamese a reasonable chance to survive as a free people?"

IT SEEMS TO ME his opponents are underestimating Nixon. They roam the country proclaiming in effect that the President is afflicted with a death wish — that he is determined to lose the next election and is pursuing the wrong Vietnam policy toward that end. It is not necessary to take sides to suggest that this may turn out to be the Democratic Party's biggest mistake of the campaign.

Picking On Peckinpaw

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that a college admissions director gets tired of hearing:

"If your job is to admit kids to college, why do you spend so much time rejecting them?"

"It's another letter from a parent saying he'll bomb us if we don't take his son in, Mr. Peckinpaw. But since it's anonymous, as usual, we wouldn't know it if we did admit him."

"How does it feel to play Russian roulette with youthful lives?"

"My son may not be a genius, Mr. Fred L. Peckinpaw, but no matter how hard I cudget my brains I can't recall any geniuses named Peekinpaw."

"Look at it this way, sir. If you give my son a chance, he's bound to get better. There's no other way for him to go."

"Keep me out of this jerkwater college if you want to, but let me tell you one thing: I already got a lot of buddies going to school here, and if you don't let me in—well, there'll be a lot of windows busted."

"As your wife, Fred, I warn you that you'll have a lot of burned meals coming to you if you don't admit Myra Snodgrass' son. Why, she was the dearest friend in my sorority. I just can't imagine her having a dumb son. If he is, he certainly takes after his father."

"After you admit my Millicent, I do hope you can assure me that she'll have a place of her own to park her car. It makes her very nervous if she doesn't."

"Listen, Fred, here's a list of five young horses you've got to open the gates for. As football coach, I can tell you right now that unless I get all five of them, we're not going to build that new stadium in our lifetime."

"He may not be bright enough for our standards, Fred, but his father is a member of the board of curators, and I think we are bright enough to see where that leaves us."

"If a kid's high school grades are all that count in getting into college, why do you need an admissions director? A computer could do the whole job in five minutes."

"I know my record doesn't look too good. But you are going to admit me, aren't you, Papa? If you don't, you know what mother will say when you get home."

My Answer

Billy Graham

A few weeks ago I asked a friend to drive me to town in his car. We had an accident and I was injured. I have been told to sue him to collect from his insurance. Would this be right?

P.R.

It is perfectly all right for your friend's insurance to pay for your hospital and doctor's bills, but you have no moral right to sue him for other damages, although you may have the legal right to do so. Your friend took you in his car at your request. He was doing you a favor. Just because he has insurance to cover accidents does not give you a moral right to sue for, and possibly receive, money which does not belong to you. I am perfectly aware that there are many such lawsuits today, but that does not make it right. It is just as dishonest to take undeserved money from an insurance company as it is to take it from an individual. One of the dangers of the society of which we are a part is falling into patterns of thought and living because most people think and act that way. Our first responsibility is to God and to His moral laws and the rightness or wrongness of some particular course of action must be determined in the light of God's laws, not man's. You may lose a few dollars this way but you gain something infinitely more precious. The Bible says: "For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?"

A Devotion For Today . . .

"You will bear witness for me in Jerusalem, and all over Judaea and Samaria, and away to the ends of the earth." (Acts 1:8 NEB)

PRAYER: Give us this day, O Lord, obedience and courage to bear witness for You where we are, where people know us. May we also be fit for a more widespread witness. Amen.

MISS DENISE ESTES
Awarded Miss Lubbock title

Denise Estes Wins Pageant

The brunette beauty and musical talent of Denise Estes of Big Spring proved to be a winning combination Saturday when the 18-year-old Texas Tech freshman was named Miss Lubbock for 1971.

Miss Estes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Estes, 1609 Osage, is a former junior Miss Big Spring.

Miss Estes, a piano student of Mrs. Ann Gibson Houser for many years, is attending Tech on the largest scholarship for piano studies given by the university. For Saturday's talent competition she played a selection by Brahms.

A Spanish major at Tech, Miss Estes has a 4.0 grade average for the semester.

Thirteen contestants vied for the city title although the pageant is not a preliminary to the Miss Texas Pageant. Lubbock withdrew from the Miss Texas event in 1969.

Miss Susan Ledbetter, the title holder for 1969, crowned the new Miss Lubbock who was cloaked in a crimson and fur cape. First runner-up was Dolores Salas, 19, a sophomore at Tech, who will be next in line to officially represent Lubbock during the year should circumstances interrupt the reign of the new title holder. Second runner-up was Miss Donna Patterson, 19, also a sophomore at Tech. Lanthia Ligion, a Tech student who works with the mentally retarded was named Miss Congeniality.

The pageant was under the direction of the Lubbock Jaycees.

Lt. J. Saint Tells Work Of 'Army'

"Churches today are getting more and more involved in social problems," said Lt. Joseph Saint of the Salvation Army to St. Mary's Guild Monday in St. Mary's Episcopal Church parish hall. "This is not good," Lt. Saint continued, "because the church life is likely to be neglected. The first love is serving God, and saving souls is the church's first obligation to God."

Lt. Saint gave a slide presentation showing various activities of the Salvation Army. It is concerned about the elderly and members visit many nursing inns in an effort to cheer the residents and make them feel cared for "even though they are old." They also provide child care centers for children from broken homes. They offer groups where girls are taught homemaking, first aid and child care, as well as camp programs to provide recreational training interlinked with spiritual training.

"The Salvation Army serves from the cradle to the grave," said Lt. Saint. "They never turn anyone away, because they feel that anyone who is down and out needs to have someone who cares, and that is what the organization is all about. It is a most rewarding occupation."

Lt. Saint explained that the kettle was chosen as the organization's symbol because "everyone at one time or another gets into hot water."

Mrs. Ray Boren, chairman, presided, and the devotion was by Mrs. John Hodges. The next meeting is at 2 p.m., May 17 in the parish hall. Mrs. Lee Hanson will be the hostess.

Grant Enables YMCA To Re-Open Facility Study

The YMCA board of directors at their Tuesday meeting passed a resolution thanking the Dora Roberts Foundation for the gift of $40,000 to the YMCA new building addition fund.

The board discussed the new building addition proposal and asked the long-range planning committee to make a further study of the proposed new facilities. The addition will cost in excess of $100,000.

Special reports were heard from a number of persons. Sam Dawson, program director at the Lakeview branch of the YMCA, reported on the programs there and said the average daily attendence was 98 persons. He also discussed upcoming summer programs.

Delnor Poss, chairman of the physical education committee, reported on physical education programs, attendance and special events including the swim meet in San Angelo April 17-18.

The plans of the Hi-Y and Tri Hi-Y clubs were reported by Kent Fish, president of the Hi-Y council. The annual recognition banquet is planned for May 4, he said, shortly after the clubs return from a trip to Six Flags May 1.

A series of swimming lessons for children in the special education program was announced by Curt Mullins, YMCA executive director. These lessons are being provided during April, May and June.

Mrs. Clyde Thomas, president of the board, and Tito Arencibia, board member, will attend a world service tour to the Mexico City YMCA April 29-May 2.

The board accepted a number of memorial gifts made during the month.

The next scheduled meeting of the board is May 18.

Local Post Office Seeking One-Day Air Mail Delivery

Postmaster Frank Hardesty announced Tuesday that the Big Spring post office will participate in a program making rapid, dependable air mail delivery the first "National Service Goal" of the U.S. Postal Service.

The improved air mail service program is the first phase of a master plan for upgrading the postal system, Hardesty said. The service goal becomes effective April 22 with other National Service Goals to be announced later.

Hardesty said that under the plan, ZIP Coded air mail deposited by 4 p.m. weekdays in the "air mail only" courtesy collection box outside the post office, or in the "air mail only" slot inside the post office, will be delivered the next day in most principal and intermediate towns and cities within a 600-mile radius of Big Spring, and in virtually any principal city in the Continental United States within two days of deposit.

"Postmaster General Winton M. Blount has said he expects every postal employe to join in meeting this challenge in order to achieve a performance of at least 95 per cent by July," Hardesty said. "It will be the first of several major, definite plans that we have on the drawing board for comprehensive service improvements."

This first goal will apply to nearly 500 towns and cities with airports and flight schedules that make next-day and second-day delivery possible. Hardesty explained that dependability, as well as speed of delivery, will be stressed.

For this program to work, however, Hardesty emphasized the importance of customer cooperation in depositing air mail in the outside courtesy box, or the inside air mail only slot, to facilitate the handling of this mail.

While the new service goal will apply directly and only to the major cities and towns, he said, many smaller communities also will find their air mail service expedited because much of the air mail is channeled through nearby major offices.

Communities which will receive next day delivery service will include all principal cities within a 250-mile radius of Big Spring and many other cities of further distance.

Bus Ruling Doesn't Apply To Big Spring

The Supreme Court rulings Tuesday on busing should have no effect on the Big Spring school system.

The rulings approved the use of court-ordered busing of public school children as a means of desegregating schools and held that fixed racial ratios are not required in all the schools of a community.

"I don't believe it will have any effect on us at all," said Lynn Hise, assistant superintendent for instruction. "We are already busing all the students who live more than two miles from their schools."

Court-ordered busing of school children as a means of desegregating schools is not going to happen in Big Spring unless the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) decides that the Big Spring Independent School District is no longer in compliance with the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Hise said.

A letter dated Aug. 15, 1966, from HEW approves the Big Spring school system's compliance with the nondiscrimination requirements of Title VI of the 1964 act. Unless HEW revokes that act, Big Spring officially has no problems with discrimination.

"Any person can request a transfer to any school in the Big Spring system," said Hise, "but the transfer will not make the individual eligible for free transportation to the school even if it is more than two miles from his home."

The Big Spring school system has 7,572 students this academic year. The ethnic distribution is seven American Indians, 515 Negro, 18 oriental, 1,637 Spanish surnamed, and 5,395 others.

Put Vigilantes In Offices?

CAIRO, Ill. (AP) — A white citizens group that advocates tough law-and-order measures has been voted into control of the four-man City Commission of this racially troubled community at the southern tip of Illinois.

A spokesman for the leading group in the black community, the United Front of Cairo, said after Tuesday's election that voters "put vigilantes in offices."

White community leaders declined comment.

The four commission candidates endorsed by the United Citizens for Community Action edged a biracial slate backed by Mayor A. B. "Pete" Thomas and overwhelmed the Front's single black entrant.

Thomas defeated, 2,152 to 356, the Front's candidate for mayor, Alphonso Farmer. The mayor is a voting member of the commission, which has the power to pass ordinances and supervise city departments.

Enlisted Men Get Aid In Passing Civil Tests

A federal project to help service men with less than six months of active duty left to serve, enter a position in the civil service has been initiated in Big Spring in conjunction with Webb AFB and the city post office.

The program is oriented toward the post office work in civil service and involves a 36-hour course held three hours a day, four days a week for three weeks.

"The program is set up by the Transition office at Webb for those service men interested in postal work after leaving the service," said Charles A. Dickson, examiner in charge of the classes.

"The purpose of the program is to instruct these men in the material on the civil service test which will help them to pass the test."

The first class began Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. with 10 men from the base enrolled. "This is not new in the nation, but is the first program of its kind in Big Spring," said Frank Hardesty, Big Spring postmaster.

"In 1968 an effort was made by the post office and Webb toward the initiation of the program, however, there was not enough interest generated at that time. We feel there is more interest in it now and already there are eight men enrolled for the next group of classes," said Hardesty.

Hardesty explained the possibility of the men obtaining jobs in the post office here is remote, but that there is a very large demand for workers in the larger cities.

Seedtick Takes On Importance

TEMPLE, Tex. (AP) — Few people in the Trinity River Basin ever heard of Seedtick, Tex.

But there's a new forestry program under way at the site of the old town. It may have a profound influence on the Trinity's 1.6 million-acre woodland resource.

Seedtick was a rowdy sawmill town on the Angelina River southwest of Nacogdoches at the start of this century when the great East Texas virgin forest was being felled.

After the cut-out, the old lumber companies moved on; the once thriving town disappeared as the second growth forest emerged.

All you can see today is a dim outline of the old wagon trail leading to the sawmill, the remains of a water well, and a few pieces of broken glass.

Because of its highly productive soils, however, the forgotten Seedtick has suddenly taken on new importance.

It is now the carefully selected site for a new pine orchard which hopefully will help produce genetically improved pine seedlings for what is being call the South's third forest.

Experts are saying that the South's annual timber cut will have to double in the next 30 years.

Meanwhile, the area's 198 million acre forest is expected to shrink by 10 million acres.

If these figures hold true for the Trinity, the basin's woodland production will increase while the 1.6 million acre forest resource losses some 83,000 acres to urban and industrial development, recreation, and other uses.

Foresters think the only way to double production on less acreage is to find ways to grow seedlings with superior growth traits.

Actor's Son Wins Draft Decision

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal appeals court has reversed the draft conviction of Christian Winslow Hayden, 23-year-old son of actor Sterling Hayden.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals' decision said young Hayden properly had claimed conscientious objector status from the first time he registered in 1966 with his Los Angeles draft board.

The board had rejected his claim and ordered him to report for induction. He later was convicted of failure to report for induction and of failure to report for a preinduction physical.

HOW VD IS DETECTED—IV

'High Index Of Suspicion'

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.
(Fourth of seven columns)

There isn't any blood test for gonorrhea. This may come as a surprise to many readers. Most, perhaps. Everybody knows that a blood test is required in nearly all states before one can get a marriage license.

The popular assumption seems to be that this test is designed to detect venereal disease. It isn't. It is a test for only ONE form of VD, syphilis. It does NOT detect gonorrhea.

It is beside the point that a blood test for gonorrhea is being sought. We don't have it now, and we'll have to get along with what we have, not what we hope to get later.

The test that WILL show gonorrhea in women, the culture, takes a couple of days to complete. It is not cheap, although it is not prohibitively expensive, either.

In the clinics, equipped for such tests, it is being done quite economically. But the individual doctor doesn't have such facilities in his office.

He does, however, have an alternative. Dr. Leonard Shapiro, in his Sandoz Lecture a few weeks ago, described how the Philadelphia health department developed a kit (the Thayer-Martin Selective Media test) with which a private physician could take a sample from a patient, then mail it in a small tube to the laboratory. Then he added:

"I'd also like to share with you something that is very, very new and I think is going to be your answer in private practice. It is called 'Transgrow,' a variation of the Thayer-Martin Selective Media."

The kit will stand whatever jarring it encounters; and the culture will start growing while it is in transit, which saves time.

Thus the physician can have a reliable method of testing without a laboratory near at hand.

The average private physician must, however, exercise what Dr. Shapiro calls "a high index of suspicion."

In other words, the test will have to be USED.

But there's no use relying on just your doctor's "index of suspicion." It is up to the woman who has had sexual contacts — and the more of them she has, the higher her index of suspicion must be — to know that a test by culture media is the only way she can be sure that she isn't spreading venereal disease.

Remember that Chicago study I mentioned earlier: Of 2,000 pregnant women, 7.3 per cent were infected with gonorrhea without knowing it!

The male, as we've already stated, usually knows it fairly promptly if he acquires "a dose of clap," i.e., gonorrhea. He is uncomfortable enough so he usually gets prompt treatment, and we can only hope that there's enough decency left in the world so he won't go around spreading the disease.

But for the woman, it's different. She MAY develop a vaginal discharge, in which case she should go to her doctor (or to a clinic) without delay.

But even when she has no symptoms whatever, she still has to remember that she can have gonorrhea anyway — the statistics tell us how frequent this is, and what a hidden peril this is in our venereal disease epidemic.

The one-man and one-woman pattern isn't what spreads much VD. If it occurs, it can be treated, and so long as there are no contacts outside that couple, there is safety.

But once there is "somebody else" in the picture, VD can be introduced.

Sexual "permissiveness," and "liberation," and so on may all sound very fine, but it is exactly the pattern that is spreading venereal disease at such a horrible rate.

The way things are, Dr. Shapiro isn't overstating the need for a "high index of suspicion."

Until all of us, public and physicians alike, start being suspicious any time the POSSIBILITY exists — meaning that a sexual contact has occurred — we aren't going to accomplish much in fighting VD.

12 Youths Confined Illegally?

SHERMAN, Tex. (AP) — A federal judge studied Tuesday a motion by state institutions and others to dismiss a case involving a dozen juveniles confined in state reform schools without benefit of legal counsel.

Ten girls and six boys not directly connected to the case testified Monday that no lawyer represented them when they were sent to reform school.

The witnesses further said that they did not understand that they waived their right to legal counsel during the proceedings against them.

The session before U.S. Dist. Judge William Wayne Justice was a pre-trial hearing in advance of the trial to be held in August.

The 12 bringing suit are seeking a permanent injunction to prevent confinement of juveniles without their having legal help. They term it a class suit — applying to all juveniles held in Texas correctional institutions. But Judge Justice has not ruled on whether the suit will apply to all persons in the position of the 12.

Only three of the original 12 are still confined. The others are free under habeas corpus writs.

The suit was brought through the El Paso Legal Assistance Society and the Youth Law Center in San Francisco.

It alleges the 12 were confined in violation of the 5th, 6th and 14th Amendments to the Constitution.

UT Nursing School Grant

AUSTIN (AP) — An official of the University of Texas system says a federal grant of $1,278,124 to assist in the construction of a building here for the UT nursing school (system-wide) will make it possible "to expand the graduate and undergraduate nursing programs at Austin much sooner than expected."

"It is most gratifying to learn that the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has seen fit to provide $1,278,124 in funds to assist in the construction of a new building in Austin to house many of the programs of the University of Texas nursing school," said Dr. William Knisely, UT system vice chancellor for health affairs.

"The UT system administration realizes that the funds are being made available during a period when federal assistance for many projects is being either curtailed or abandoned altogether.

The new building will provide classrooms and laboratory facilities for both the graduate and undergraduate nursing schools maintained on the UT Austin campus, as well as offices for the nursing school's system-wide operations. In addition to the two Austin programs, the UT system nursing school has clinical nursing schools in Galveston and San Antonio, and an undergraduate school in El Paso will accept its first student in the fall of 1972.

Frank Sinatra Jr. Says It Ain't So

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Blood tests of Frank Sinatra Jr., a woman who claims he fathered her child and the year-old infant have been ordered by a Clark County District Court judge.

Carol Sue Edmondston, 28, charged in a paternity suit that the entertainer is the natural father of her son, Victor Randolph, who was born in Chicago last April 20. She requested payment of birth expenses and support for the child until he becomes of age.

ONE out of two families will have someone in the hospital this year! It could be you — or some beloved member of your family—tomorrow...next week...next month. Sad to say, very few families have anywhere near enough coverage to meet today's soaring hospital costs. These costs have doubled in just a few short years.

Stop for a moment. Think how much a long stay in the hospital will cost you or a loved one. How would you ever pay for costly, but necessary, X-rays, doctor bills, drugs and medicines? Many have learned the hard way that public and private insurance pays only 40% of the nation's total medical care bill. What would you do if your pay check stopped, but living expenses kept going on the same as ever? The same rent, phone, food, all the day-to-day expenses that never stop.

What is the average breadwinner to do? We believe we have the answer in our National Home plan that . . .

Pays you $500.00-a-month tax-free cash whenever you are hospitalized.

What a blessing it is when you know you have $500.00 cash coming in every month when you go to the hospital. You get your $500.00-a-month cash — tax-free — as long as you are confined in the hospital. You are covered from the very first day for accidents and from the sixth day for sickness—even for life, if necessary! Most everyone has some insurance or savings to take care of a one to five-day hospital stay. Since we provide lifetime benefits, this "deductible" feature enables us to give you broad coverage at a lower cost than would otherwise be possible.

Now, this low-cost plan from National Home enables you to enjoy this protection at once, FREE. Yes, we will provide the first month's coverage for your entire family without cost . . . to prove the value of this wonderful tax-free cash protection for you and your loved ones. Then, you may continue at National Home's regular low rates.

The added protection you NEED!

All benefits of this $500.00-a-month plan are paid directly to you, in tax-free cash, in addition to whatever you may receive from your insurance with any other company! Use the money as you see fit—for hospital or doctor bills, mortgage or rent payments, to replace savings—or any necessary, but costly, expenses not covered by other hospital policies.

Everything costs more these days (need we tell you?) and hospital care is certainly no exception! While 7 out of 8 Americans have some hospital insurance, most have found it does not cover all bills that pile up when sickness or accident strikes. That's why National Home developed this low-cost plan that helps you pay hospital costs or other expenses.

We can never cancel your policy!

You can count on this wonderful protection no matter how old you become or how many times you collect from us. Your policy guarantees that we can never cancel your protection for any reason whatsoever. It is Guaranteed Renewable for Life!

And that's not all. Suppose you have a growing family — this policy (NH10-669). . .

PAYS $500.00-A-MONTH CASH for each accident or illness. Coverage for accidents begins the very first day in the hospital; sickness coverage begins the sixth day in the hospital.

PAYS $250.00-A-MONTH CASH for the first three months, when you're 65 or over. And a full $500.00-A-MONTH CASH thereafter—even for life. Coverage for accidents begins the very first day in the hospital; sickness coverage begins the sixth day in the hospital.

PAYS $300.00-A-MONTH CASH if a covered child is hospitalized for injury or illness. Coverage for accidents begins the very first day in the hospital; sickness coverage begins the sixth day in the hospital. And the benefits continue for as long as necessary.

PAYS $2,000.00-A-MONTH CASH when both husband and wife (under age 65) are hospitalized at the same time for accidental injury for as long as both remain in the hospital—even for life, if necessary.

PAYS $400.00-A-MONTH CASH for a registered nurse at home if your doctor has you hire one within five days following a covered hospital confinement of five days or more.

PAYS up to $2,000.00 CASH for complete accidental loss of limbs or eyesight.

65 OR OVER? YOU COLLECT IN ADDITION TO MEDICARE BENEFITS

We have designed this plan as a valuable addition to whatever is paid by Medicare—or health insurance you may have with any other companies. In fact, combined public and private insurance covers only about 57% of the total medical costs for people 65 or over. Remember, all checks will be sent directly to you (not to the doctor or hospital), to give you that "extra" help just when you need it most. Use the tax-free cash any way you see fit. In addition to any benefits you may receive from Medicare, this National Home plan pays you at the rate of $250.00 a month for the first 3 months, and $500.00 monthly while hospitalized thereafter...even for life if necessary!

Pays you $300.00-a-month cash whenever any dependent child is hospitalized.

When you choose Coverage for Children, all your unmarried dependent children from age one month through 18 years are covered, too! What's more, any newborn children you have in the future are covered automatically at the age of one month —at no additional cost to you. And whenever any of your children go to the hospital, this National Home plan pays you at the rate of $300.00-a-month cash, for as long as necessary. Children are covered for accidents from the first day and for sickness from the sixth day.

Pays you tax-free cash Maternity Benefits, too.

With this plan, you can also collect cash at the rate of $500.00 a month for every day you are confined to the hospital for pregnancy, childbirth, or even miscarriage. You get this cash, which is yours to use as you see fit, when Coverage for Children and Maternity Benefits have been added to the basic plan.

Pays you $400.00-a-month cash for a Registered Nurse at Home.

Here's a wonderful "get well" benefit of this National Home plan: You collect cash benefits at the rate of $400.00 a month when your doctor has you employ a full-time registered nurse within five days after you come home, following a stay in the hospital of five days or more for which benefits were payable. You are paid for the same number of covered days that you were in the hospital—even up to 12 full months!

Double Cash Accident Benefit.

When you and your insured spouse are hospitalized at the same time for an accidental injury, this National Home plan pays you an EXTRAORDINARY DOUBLE CASH BENEFIT. You receive not $500.00 but $1,000.00 a month. Your spouse receives not $500.00 but $1,000.00 a month. That's $2,000.00 in all, in cash payments to you every month (when under age 65) starting the day you enter the hospital for as long as you both remain there.

Pays you up to $2,000.00 cash for these accidental losses...

The accidental loss of limbs or eyesight can be terrible. But if such loss occurs any time within 90 days of the accident, you collect $1,000.00 for the complete loss of a hand or a foot or the sight of an eye—and $2,000.00 for loss of two limbs or the sight of both eyes.

Waiver of premium benefit.

Should you—the policyowner—be hospitalized for 8 consecutive weeks or more, this National Home plan will PAY ALL PREMIUMS that come due for you and all Covered Members of your family while you are confined to the hospital beyond the initial 8-week period. And your protection continues just the same as if you were paying the premiums yourself. Then, if you leave the hospital and must return for the same condition before you have resumed full normal activities for 90 days, we will again pay any premiums while you are in the hospital—for the total confinement! This means you pay no premiums, yet your full protection remains in force.

These are the ONLY exclusions!

Your National Home policy covers every kind of sickness or accident except conditions caused by: act of war; any mental disease or disorder; pregnancy, except as provided under the Maternity Benefit provision; and any sickness or injury you had before the Effective Date of your policy . . . during the first 2 years only.

This last item is a real help if you already have a health problem. If you are sick before you take out this policy, you will even be covered for that condition after the policy has been in effect for 2 years. Meanwhile, of course, every new condition is covered.

Nationally known and respected.

This is the kind of outstanding protection you may have seen in Reader's Digest, Parents', National Geographic and other leading publications. The special plans offered by the National Liberty Corporation group of companies are today helping policyowners in all 50 states — and many foreign countries — paying benefits at the rate of more than $1,500,000.00 a month. In addition, our Company has a RECOMMENDED rating from Best's Insurance Reports, one of the foremost insurance authorities in the nation.

Fast, reliable claim service when needed most.

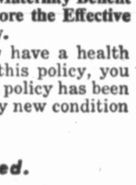

You never really know how good a policy is until you have to make a claim. That's why we think you'll be interested in what some of our National Home members have to say. Their comments—quoted below—are typical of the hundreds of expressions of appreciation we receive from policyowners every week.

"Received your checks totaling $585.68 for injury. I appreciated your kindness and promptness in the claim. It certainly came in handy and I had less worries knowing I had this protection. You certainly paid all the benefits stated in the policy without question." MRS. ANGELA B. HARDY, Abbeville, Louisiana

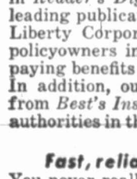

"You folks were very prompt in sending the money when my wife went to the hospital for surgery. Thank you so much." HAROLD DOYENBORG, Zanesville, Ohio

"I was more than satisfied with the way my claim was handled. One couldn't ask for better service and the 'get well soon' message was one of the nicest thoughts on your part. I thank you sincerely." MARGUERITE LINDAU, Duluth, Minnesota

Outstanding Americans like these Recommend this Coverage.

DR. E. STANLEY JONES, internationally known evangelist, author, missionary statesman: "In offering low-cost health insurance by mail, you are rendering a valuable service to thousands of people who have no other opportunity to avail themselves of such protection. It's reassuring to know that policyowners insured by the National Liberty group are receiving more than $1,500,000.00 a month in benefits."

JEROME HINES, leading bass with the Metropolitan Opera Company: "It seems to me that the concept of health insurance by mail is a very sensible one. It's quick, easy and economical. Nobody makes surprise visits to your home to ask personal questions. There's no medical examination. And costly processing charges are eliminated. This means more protection at less cost. I congratulate National Home Life Assurance Company for meeting a real need."

National Liberty commended in the Congressional Record of the United States Congress

It is to be commended on its leadership and vision in this field of human welfare."

Why you must act before the date shown on your Enrollment Form—just a few days from today.

Why do we give you so little time to enroll in this plan? Because this is a guaranteed enrollment offer, we can open the enrollment only during a limited time period—with a firm deadline date for everyone. To provide you with this broad coverage at these rates, we must receive your Enrollment Form during the same period as all the others.

As soon as we receive your Enrollment Form we will rush your policy to you by First Class Mail. When your policy arrives, examine it in the privacy of your own home. It is a very short document and you'll be pleasantly surprised to see there is no fine print. Show it, if you wish, to your doctor, lawyer, insurance agent, or some other trusted advisor.

Here are your low rates.

The following rate chart shows how little it costs after the first month to cover yourself, your spouse and any adult dependent. Naturally, at these low rates, we can issue you only one policy of this type. Each adult, 16 or over, pays the rate shown for his or her age.

Age at Enrollment	Monthly Premium per Adult
16-44	only $2.95
45-49	only $3.40
50-54	only $3.75
55-74	only $4.35
75-79	only $5.00
80-84	only $5.55
85 and over	only $6.65

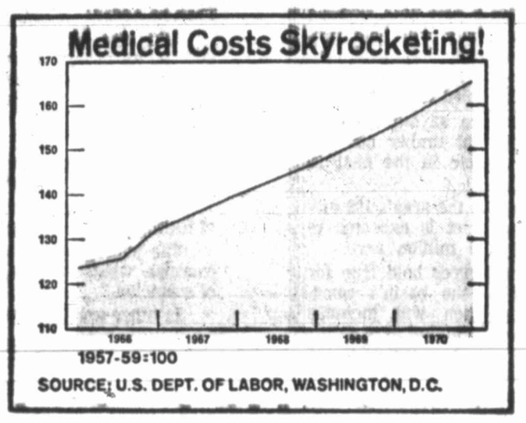

Only $1.55 more per month covers all your unmarried dependent children . . . from the age of one month through 18 years. Newborn children are covered automatically at the age of one month — at no additional cost. And then if you wish, just add $1.15 monthly to that, and you're covered for Maternity Benefits, too.

NOTE: The regular monthly premium shown here (for age at time of enrollment) will not automatically increase as you pass from one age bracket to the next! Once you have enrolled in this National Home plan, your rate can never be changed because of how much or how often you collect from us—or because of advanced age—but only if there is a general rate adjustment, up or down, on all policies of this type in your entire state!

YOUR QUESTIONS ANSWERED ABOUT THIS NATIONAL HOME PLAN

1. How much will I be paid when I go to the hospital?

You will receive cash at the rate of $500.00 a month ($16.67 a day). When you're 65 or over, you collect (in addition to any Medicare benefits) $250.00 a month for the first 3 months, and $500.00 monthly while you remain continuously hospitalized thereafter. And you collect cash for an accident even if you're in the hospital for only one day. Coverage for illness begins the sixth day—and benefits are paid in full for as long as you're hospitalized . . . even for life, if necessary.

2. Do you pay me cash when my children go to the hospital?

You collect cash at the rate of $300.00 a month whenever any of your children (age 1 month through 18 years) go to the hospital—if Coverage for Children is added to the basic plan. Coverage for accidents begins on the first day—sickness on the sixth day. And if you have a growing family—as soon as any newborn child is one month old, he, too, is covered—automatically . . . at no additional cost.

3. When do I start to collect hospital benefits?

This new plan (NH10-669) covers you from the very first day for accidents and from the sixth day for sickness—even for life, if necessary! Most everyone has some insurance or savings to take care of a one to five-day hospital stay. Since we provide lifetime benefits, this "deductible" feature enables us to give you broad coverage at a lower cost than would otherwise be possible.

4. Will you pay me cash benefits for pregnancy?

Yes, when Coverage for Children and Maternity Benefits have been added to the basic plan. You collect cash at the rate of $500.00 a month for pregnancy, childbirth or miscarriage that results in a hospital stay.

5. Suppose I'm hospitalized for a long time and can't meet my premium payments?

If you—the policyowner—are hospitalized for 8 consecutive weeks or more, this plan will PAY ALL PREMIUMS that come due for you and all Covered Members of your family while you are confined to the hospital beyond the initial 8-week period. You aren't expected to pay us back, either.

6. Now tell me what's the "catch"—what doesn't my policy cover?

Get ready for a welcome surprise. Your policy covers everything except conditions caused by: act of war; any mental disease or disorder; pregnancy, except as provided under the Maternity Benefit provision; confinements within a U.S. Government hospital or a nursing or convalescent facility; and any sickness or injury you had before the Effective Date of your policy—but even this last "exclusion" is done away with after you've been a policyowner for only two years. Everything else is definitely covered.

7. What are the requirements to enroll in this National Home plan?

You must not have been refused or had cancelled any health, hospital or life insurance due to reasons of health; and to qualify during this Enrollment Period—you must enroll before midnight of the date shown on the Enrollment Form.

8. Besides saving money—are there any other advantages to joining this plan during this Enrollment Period?

Yes. A very important one is that you don't need to complete a lengthy, detailed application—just the brief Enrollment Form in the corner of this page. Also, during this Enrollment Period there are no extra requirements for eligibility, and no "waivers" or restrictive endorsements can be put on your policy!

9. How do I enroll?

Send no money. The first month's protection for your entire family is FREE. Simply complete and mail the brief Enrollment Form to: National Home, Valley Forge, Pa. 19481.

NO-RISK OFFER

We will send your National Home policy by mail. Examine it carefully in the privacy of your own home. Show it, if you wish, to your own insurance agent, doctor, lawyer or other trusted advisor. If you decide, for any reason, that you don't want to continue as a member of this plan, return the policy within 15 days after receiving it and you will be under no obligation of any kind. Meanwhile, you will be fully protected while making your decision!

WAITING — With an American flag tied upside down to a tree and the Capitol Dome glowing in the background, veterans opposed to the war in Vietnam gather on the Mall Tuesday night in Washington. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger has issued an order barring the group from camping out on the Mall, but so far they have remained and no effort to remove them has been made.

Justice Burger Bans Vets From Camping Near Capitol

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vietnam veterans demonstrating against the war have vowed to stay at their camp grounds on the Mall despite an order by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger banning their use of the grounds.

Burger issued the order without comment Tuesday after the battle-dressed veterans staged mock search-and-destroy missions on the Capitol steps, lobbied with congressmen and placed two wreaths in Arlington National Cemetery in memory of Vietnam war victims.

News of Burger's ruling was carried to the 1,000 veterans at their campsite Tuesday night by one of their lawyers, former Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark.

"We won't go," the veterans shouted as Clark cautioned disobeying the evacuation order would bring arrest. The Justice Department says enforcement of the order will begin late this afternoon.

Burger, in overturning a federal Court of Appeals decision, barred camping on the Mall—the tree-lined area between the Capitol and the Lincoln Memorial—until the question is considered by the Supreme Court.

Alllowing Vietnam Veterans Against the War to camp on the Mall or other U.S. park property here, the Interior Department contends, would set a precedent for other demonstrations. The department noted another anti-war group is attempting to draw 75,000 for a rally in Washington next week.

Such camping, the government argued, "would cause a serious problem in maintaining public order and could lead to substantial public-health and sanitation hazards, with inevitable environmental pollution."

The protesters had been barred Monday from entering Arlington National Cemetery as a group. But John Metzler, cemetery superintendent, said Tuesday there had been a misunderstanding and let the veterans enter.

Patricia Stone of Brookline, Mass., whose 19-year-old son was killed in the war, and veteran Bob Maland of Albuquerque, N.M., placed wreaths under a cherry tree. One wreath was marked "allied," the other, "Indochina."

Cocaine Trial Links Official To Conspiracy

DALLAS (AP) — The tangled story of intrigue and threats surrounding an alleged international cocaine conspiracy, entering its third day today, has now touched Texas with a charge that an official in the state capital helped smooth the drug's entry into the United States.

A senior federal narcotics agent testified Tuesday that Robert L. Robertson, 47, former head of a Dallas aviation firm and one of the accused, told him that he had to pay $7,500 "to a certain official in Austin" every time he made a shipment. The agent said Robertson did not name the official.

NAME THE PLACE

Charles J. Karadimos, of Boston, Mass., regional director of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs for Texas and Oklahoma, testified Robertson told him he had connections in South America and the United States for getting contraband into this country.

He said Robertson offered to supply 100 kilograms (approximately 220 pounds) of cocaine a month at a price of $200,000 "delivered to any place we wanted." Robertson also said, according to the witness, that Joaquin Him Gonzalez, 42, traffic controller at Panama City's international airport, was the key figure in all contraband moving north and south.

Him Gonzalez, a Panamanian citizen, was arrested by U.S. narcotics agents in the Canal Zone. Hs arrest spurred diplomatic protests in Washington.

Karadimos told the court how he met Robertson by posing as Charles Rocca from Buffalo, N.Y., a high figure in organized crime. Ronald David Watkins, the ex-convict turned informer who touched off the investigation when approached with an offer to buy cocaine, acted as the contact man, the officer said.

$10,000 DOWN

Karadimos testified that Robertson told him of an earlier partnership he had with James D. Vicars, 40, of Hurst, Tex., and two other men not indicted, to fly contraband south from Panama. A plane used in this venture crashed on the Chile-Paraguay border but was later repaired. Robertson told Karadimos he then sold it to Him Gonzalez.

According to the federal officer's testimony, Robertsen told how he was approached about smuggling emeralds into the United States from South America, but later found that the contraband was cocaine. An outlet for the drug was arranged in New York City.

Robertson, the testimony continued, brought three suitcases of cocaine from Chile in May last year. He delivered two cases to a man named Manuel in Oklahoma, who was acting as agent for a New York firm, receiving $10,000 as a down payment. He claimed he was still owed money over the deal, according to the witness.

Robertson was said to have left the third suitcase in his airplane, but he became alarmed when FFA officials came around, and passed it on to Vicars. Vicars is alleged to have approached Watkins, the informer, with an offer to sell the cocaine and narcotics agents got on the trail.

Soviet Space 'Daydream'

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Cosmonaut Georgy T. Beregovoy predicted today that manned orbital space stations with interchangeable crews "will become common" within the next 10 years.

"Let's daydream a minute," Beregovoy said in an interview in the newspaper Trud, or Labor. "In the next 10 years, I think long-term orbital stations will become common. Big space facilities beyond our earth.

"Scientists and specialists ships would cruise between the stations and earth carrying relief crews. Such stations would be very valuable for scientific research, as well as for the every-day life of human beings."

Beregovoy piloted Soyuz 3 in orbital manuvers with the unmanned Soyuz 2 Oct 26-30, 1968. Trud also interviewed Cosmonauts Vladimir A. Shatalov and Pavel R. Popovich.

None of the astronauts mentioned the Soviet spacecraft launched Monday, an "orbital scientific station" called Salute. Western experts and Soviet sources said the satellite was another step toward establishment of a manned orbital station.

The Soviet government has been silent about Salute since Monday evening. But other sources in Moscow said they expect at least two more spacecraft and several cosmonauts to be sent up to join in a complex space "spectacular."

Vietnam Veterans Trickle Home Unheralded

No Bands Playing, No Crowds Cheering For Johnny Marching Home

By JOHN WHEELER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

They trickle home every day, unheralded. They are the Vietnam veterans, the nation's young returned from yet another war.

No bands, play, no crowds cheer. At best, the ex-GIs find apathy, except within the close circle of family and friends. And even here the debate sometimes races across living rooms over whether the conflict and the sacrifices were worth it, or even moral.

As the veterans tell it among themselves, few in the United States care that they braved and passed through a hell where the dying and pain and terror and disgust were as real as in any war anytime.

But the apathy is best, they say. Because at the other extreme are the charges by those who stayed home — and some who went — that the vets were bloody accomplices of the nation in what they call its most shameful hour.

Many of the new veterans — too many, the experts say — are bringing home terrible burdens of guilt, anxiety and frustration, drug addiction and a hatred or denial of American society and its institutions which they say used them so harshly during their service careers.

Want To Forget

Most simply want to forget the war. Many want to drop out of society, often with harder drugs, in hippie communes or that ultimate dropout, suicide. The suicide rate for veterans apparently is soaring along with that of other youth in the same age bracket.

Vietnam has been a most untypical war. The veterans who are returning also do not fit easily into stereotypes from the past, even though outwardly the overwhelming majority are slipping back with comparative ease into civilian life. Moreover, their problems are not typical — drugs, joblessness, the feeling that all the death and destruction have accomplished so little.

Donald Johnson, a decorated World War II combat sergeant who now heads the Veterans Administration, said: "The veterans are not only a tremendous natural resource, they are an important and significant force in America if for no other reason than because of their numbers."

More than 2.5 million men were sent to Vietnam, where 45,000 died. Some 200,000 will be partially or wholly disabled for the rest of their lives.

An Associated Press nationwide survey of veterans found its sampling generally supported the VA's optimism. The survey also indicated that fears voiced by Johnson and other experts were well founded — that from a small minority there may come serious problems and even dangers for society.

"Vietnam and the Army were unfortunate things that happened on the way to my 25th birthday," one vet said.

As pleased as they are with the over-all record of veterans so far, psychiatrists, social workers and VA officials say the seeds of danger have been implanted in a minority which is made up largely of blacks.

Johnson and other VA officials emphasize one of their major concerns is for the fate of Negro GIs pouring back into civilian life. Charles A. Stenger, head of the VA's Vietnam Era Committee and chief of psychology of the medical, surgical and neurological hospitals, says: "I am very surprised there is so little acting out violence by blacks. They are very bitter in the sense they feel the need to strike back. Black veterans ask themselves if they really count as persons in our society. They served and sacrificed and were more likely to see combat proportionately than whites. And then they came back to the ghetto just when they believe things will be different because they have done their bit for their country."

VA officials say jobs are the single biggest issue with today's veterans. Labor Department statistics show unemployment among young veterans is nearly double the national figure. For Negroes, the rate is 16.2 per cent, about triple the national figure.

Job Crisis

The job crisis has led to a multifront attack headed by the White House and involving the Pentagon, private business and the Labor Department. Although officials claim some successes with the programs, they have yet to blunt, let alone reverse, soaring unemployment trends.

Under the GI Bill, veterans are entitled to maximum unemployment benefits. Officials say many not only have used this benefit but have exhausted it and have had to resort to welfare. They often live with families, friends or in crash pads and abandoned buildings. Large numbers of vets are so little interested in dealing with the establishment they have not even filed for jobless benefits.

"The problem," one Washington official said, "is that Negroes are too often poorly educated and still run into job discrimination." But another factor enters the picture, too, according to the Concerned Veterans from Vietnam, a national vet self-help organization funded by the Office of Economic Opportunity and headquartered in Chicago. It claims 28,000 members. A spokesman said the organization had been told by the Defense Department that 80 per cent of "bad paper," or less than honorable discharges, now are being handed out to Negroes who make up only about 12 per cent of the military.

"Look at it this way," an official said. "A guy goes looking for a job and he's black, not too well educated and carrying bad paper. Now what kind of chance does he have?" The answer appears to be not too much.

Willie, a 21-year-old with a undesirable discharge after going AWOL in the Army, says things just can't go on the way they are for him, his wife and three children. "I got no job, can't get no benefits or into no school. If it goes on like this, I'll have to start rippin' off people. Now ain't that a hell of a life goal? But what can I do?" 'Ripping off' is a catch-all street term for holdups, muggings and the like.

'Bad Paper'

Willie spoke in a rap session with four other young men all with "bad paper." They all were bitterly angry with society and their voices rose with their indignation. Alan said, "Eventually they're going to push me into a corner. I know they will. How much can they tack on a guy?"

Concerned Veterans, a predominately Negro organization, the National VA and others want somehow to channel Willie, Alan and thousands of others in the same situation into productive and socially useful lives. The competition, says Browning, includes the Black Battery, the Black Army in Readiness and other "ghetto guerrilla" organizations which need and seek the ex-GI's military expertise. Browning said many jobless veterans, with less than honorable discharges including those with combat experience are joining extremist groups "because they feel there isn't much else."

One of the reasons they feel there isn't much else, Browning said, was a case like that of Willie Williams, 22, who went to Vietnam twice, the second time as a volunteer "so people might think I was worth doing something for when I got out. But I guess not, not even with my honorable discharge," says Williams. The young Negro vet has a wife and 3-year-old daughter, two years of a high school education and no job for the past six months. "What kind of system is it that treats me like this? I go fight for my country and nobody helps me. Public aid pays my food and rent, but I haven't even got carfare left over to go look for work."

"I don't want handouts, I want work. But if something don't happen, then there may be violence. I definitely would like to take part in it to show people we got to have help and respect."

So far, at least, law enforcement officials say fears have proved unfounded that young veterans would turn their guerrilla warfare savvy against society either for radical groups on the right or left or in small angry bands. "Which is not to say they won't," one lawman added quickly.

At the University of California in Berkeley, cradle of the student revolutionary movement, the president of the student body and a spokesman for the most powerful antiwar group said veterans were notable for their absence.

That does not mean there are no radical veterans on the war and other social issues. Take Chris Soares, 25, an ex-Marine from New York who is one of the most vocal members of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War. Soares spoke eloquently for an immediate end to the war during the recent Detroit "inquiry" by the organization which claims upwards of 5,000 members. Soares' souvenirs from the war include a highly visible nervousness and constant pain from a leg wound that permanently crippled him.

"I joined the Marines because an uncle said they had the best training and so it was the best bet if I wanted to survive. Enlist, sure. I was patriotic and loved my country and still do.

"After our outfit got hit, I spent months in the hospital, and I started thinking about the war. I saw more and more mutilated guys coming in, like a freight train unloading every day, you know. Then I wanted to know why.

"The Cambodian invasion and the shootings at Kent State really did it, though. I became a real militant and we got a petition up in the hospital by more than 200 GIs to Nixon saying we deplored the thing because it just sucked in another country and now it would be more Cambodians along with more Americans and more Vietnamese getting killed."

'Make It Change'

Soares and many with similar views don't rule out eventual large scale home front violence to stop the war. But he repeatedly emphasized fighting the system from the inside to make it change, "not by running off to Canada or Sweden. What does that accomplish?"

The strains of anger, bitterness, frustration and a sense of personal defeat which run through some veterans leads VA administrator Johnson to say that not only could they turn to violence but "their frustrations and anxieties could lead to serious mental health problems we do not now see. We may in a couple of years."

But so far over-all serious mental disorders among GIs run at about one half the rate for World War II vets, thanks, VA medical experts say, to a better medical understanding of combat and other stresses among men.

Yet, suicides among veterans and others in their same 20 to 29-year-old age group indicate a startling increase of about 50 per cent over what one expert said could be expected based on past patterns. The trend continues upward.

Statistics as yet cannot say whether Vietnam service plays a role in that trend.

'Ultimate Dropout'

A VA medical source termed suicide as the "ultimate dropout," that final step after switching off reality with drugs, alcohol or apathy fails. Dropping out, says Dr. Stenger, has proved a serious problem among some vets. He said the mood has proved an especially serious problem in getting VA help to the veterans who need it and especially to those who need it most.

"Many simply won't seek help or treatment because they hate any organized form of society," he said. "They see the VA as an extension of the military, which we certainly are not. They won't take advantage of things due them because they fear they will have to pay the system again."

To combat the problem, the VA for the first time has abandoned its policy of waiting for the veteran to seek out his benefits. Now half a dozen programs are under way, including counseling in Vietnam to impress on the veterans what their rights and benefits are and the desirability of taking advantage of them. Still the participation rate is below World War II and Korean War levels.

Drug Program

Another of the VA's newer programs is aimed at the drug problem which has spurted at an alarming rate, particularly in the use of heroin and other hard drugs. But, indications are that the VA drug program, which handles only men seeking help in curing themselves, is falling far behind actual need.

John Sheehan, head of the Manhattan VA Hospital, said, "We can handle only 20 addict bed patients at any one time, and we have 125 men on the waiting list to come in. We are concerned; we believe we should be able to bring in an out-patient program until the beds open up." Sheehan has a request pending in Washington to start.

Pete, a likeable ex-infantryman is one of those drug statistics. His problem: heroin.

"Me, I began on drugs in Vietnam," he said. "I was on pot first and then I started mainlining opium. Man, it's like a thousand needles when that stuff goes off in your body. I started because I was scared, and when I was on the stuff I didn't care what was happening. Seven of the eight men in my squad were using opium. We needed it. It just sort of blotted things out. Sure, the officers knew we were using stuff, they're not stupid. But they never did anything."

Pete lost both legs to a mine.

Now 21, he returned to the United States with his drug problem and spent more than a year and a half in hospitals. It was here he switched to heroin when they stopped shooting him with morphine and other painkilling drugs. "We were buying the stuff from pushers right in the hospital."

Pete eventually turned himself in and now is hopefully on his way to a cure in an East Coast hospital. "I'll never turn back," Pete says.

Most Never Try

The Petes who turn themselves in are only the small visible portion of an iceberg that has trapped thousands of veterans. Most will never try to turn themselves in. Many will lose the courage to take the cure by the time hospital space is open to them. Many, very many, will die one day of their habit.

The VA hospitals, where Pete and more than 800,000 veterans are expected to be treated this fiscal year, are a cornerstone of $8.6 billion annual VA program. They have come under fire from both Congress and Vietnam Era patients. The VA has responded by challenging the former and instituting a thoroughgoing overhaul of routine, staff attitudes and even the menu to ease gripes on the latter.

The VA says that while the average case load is expected to rise steadily, modern treatment methods make for a faster turnover and that waiting lists are down to 3,000 men annually from 1,826 in 1966.

William C. Wyman, 20, of Boston, Mass., can testify that speedier turnover can be a relative term. Wyman was serving on a voluntarily extended tour when his jeep hit a mine that ripped off both his feet, broke his left leg in two places and sprayed sharpnel into his jaw. Today he's still in the hospital, waiting for doctors to decide whether still another operation must be performed.

How does it go with the disabled, how do they feel about the war now, those who next to the dead gave as much for their country as a man can?

"Generally the disabled have high hopes," Wyman said. "A couple of GIs gave up in Boston. That decided me to push on. You give up and you might as well be dead. Twenty years old is kind of too early to give up."

And the war, was it worth it?

Wyman: "Nah, we should have gotten it over with long ago one way or the other. Proud of my service? No, not really, but I'm not ashamed either, like some guys are. I want to be a photographer, you know, travel around a lot and see the world. Hell, these won't stop me," he said pointing to where his feet should have been.

Pete, who must fight a drug problem as well as contend with a crippled body: "I'm not for the war, but I don't want an immediate pullout, either. After all the blood and death, to get nothing would be some kind of crime. And having seen what the Communists do to people first hand, I never want to see it in America. Bitter? Yeah, bitter about the Communists. But I was proud to go to Vietnam. Today I'm still very proud."

Some Bitterness

But bitterness does crop up often, particularly among the disabled, a VA Hospital chief said. "It is not like World War II for these kids. There aren't any parades. Society sometimes forgets what they have given. So they wonder, 'Is this all I get for what I've done?' But even with all that, most are proud they served their country. Very few wish they had gone to Canada."

No one really knows what part the apathy or hostility that greets any vets at home plays in their present mood. But many suspect it to be significant and voice criticism of old-line veterans groups such as the legion and VFW and the business community.

Johnson, himself a past commander of the American Legion, said: "I'd like to see the established veterans organizations do more especially in the metropolitan areas. They could do a lot more."

Those who did go to Vietnam will continue to return for years. The indications are that even with a major upswing in the economy some of the darker trends now being noticed will accelerate.

"The problems we see now are often disturbing," a VA official said. "And there is room to talk about potential dangers to our society. In coming years we may have to drop the word potential."

CUBANS IN EXILE WATCH AND WAIT FOR ANOTHER CHANCE

'We're Ready To Fight And Free Our Country'

By ISSAC M. FLORES
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Juan Jose Peruyero sat in his dusty, cluttered office in a rundown section of Miami where he operates his automobile paint and body shop. He reminisced, and looked into the future.

"I will go again—all of us will, someday. And next time we'll finish the job. There'll be no quitting or excuses. We're ready to fight again to free our country."

U.S. Army Capt. (Ret.) Hugo Sueiro Rios limped out and held the front door of his neat three-bedroom home open for a visitor. He grinned a greeting, settled down on a soft couch and quietly told about his recent past in South Vietnam, and his dreams for the future.

'MY LIFE'

"Cuba is my life. I've never stopped fighting for it. It's been a long time, but the struggle we started then continues. We have a spirit of unity that will prevail — soon."

Tomas Cruz, a tall dignified Negro who fights racial discrimination as readily as he does communism, paced the floor and gestured emphatically.

"I am an optimist as well as a realist about my homeland," he says. "The Nixon administration has to act. Something will happen soon, possibly this year. And I am ready . . ."

Ten years ago, these three displaced Cubans and some 1,500 of their countrymen were in a Guatemalan training camp run by the American CIA. On April 17, 1961, they hit the beaches in the disastrous invasion of Cuba at the Bay of Pigs.

Those who weren't killed were captured by Fidel Castro's troops. They spent 20 months of confinement in fear, confusion and bitterness.

RANSOMED CUBANS

Today, these ransomed "freedom fighters" pursue their more prosaic vocations, in exile. Now, they go about making a daily living and providing for their families—as cab drivers, accountants, lawyers, salesmen, mechanics and fighting men for the U.S. armed forces.

Sueiro was a youth of 21 when he led the 2nd Infantry Battalion of Brigade 2506 onto Playa Giron, the beach leading from Bahia de Cochinos, or the Bay of Pigs.

Today, he has a plastic plate in his head and partial paralysis of the left side of his body as a result of a Claymore mine explosion in Vietnam. He served with the 82nd Airborne Division and was a logistics officer with the 25th Infantry Division when wounded.

He is studying accounting at the University of Miami while supporting his wife and two children.

Along with more than 200 of his countrymen, he joined the U.S. armed forces in March, 1963, following the release of all but nine Brigade prisoners by the Castro regime. Castro demanded and got $53 million in American food and medicines for their freedom.

"We expected to return rapidly to Cuba after the Special Officers Training Course in Ft. Benning, Ga.," says Sueiro.

WERE MISTAKEN

"We were badly mistaken. After President Kennedy was killed, there was a change in the political situation in this country and we were told another invasion of the island was impossible. Many of our people got out of the armed forces, maybe half. But many of us remained, or returned after quitting."

Why?

"I feel that besides fighting communism, I was keeping myself ready for any possible return to Cuba in a fighting capacity."

He says the Brigade was formed "of all kinds of people — students, former Army personnel with Batista or Castro, college graduates and peasants, laborers — all with different political beliefs and ideas.

SPIRIT OF UNITY

"But Fidel Castro achieved one thing for us. He made it possible for Brigadistas to become unified. This spirit of unity continues to exist among the men of the Brigade, be they dedicated family men tens of thousands of miles away, or here in ordinary jobs.

"Their thinking is here, at the center of activity, the Brigade."

Assault Brigade 2506 exists not only in the minds of men such as Sueiro, but as a physical being in a second-floor walkup above a photographer's studio on West Flagler Street, in the heart of the Miami district known as "Little Havana."

Still active are its leaders, then and now, Jose Perez San Roman, Manuel Artime, and others.

Its current president is a stocky, nervous barber who learned his trade in Castro's prisons. He led a team north of the Bay of Pigs to set up the first combat post. The team's mission was to head off Castro's troops and keep them from reaching invasion troops coming ashore.

"The air attacks from American planes on the carrier Boxer were to guarantee our movements at the start," he says. "When these attacks were called off, we were unable to jump where we wanted. We landed in a swampy area and were unable to set up our post. This contributed to the over-all defeat."

Manuel Artime, perhaps the most familiar name among all the Bay of Pigs personalities, is today a man of some mystery in Miami.

Artime was the civilian "political chief," who reportedly arranged for CIA sponsorship and recruiting for the Brigade. He was the liaison between the uniformed fighting men and their Cuban exile political backers and CIA leaders.

MYSTERY MAN

He is in the import-export business, friends say. But others claim that he continues to make the contacts necessary for another large scale invasion of the Communist island.

Artime declines interviews, as does Perez San Roman, the Brigade's fighting leader at the Bay of Pigs. "Pepe" Perez San Roman, now 40, is working in Miami for a trucking firm.

'WE'RE WAITING FOR CHANCE TO GO BACK'
. . . Havana Harbor, as it appeared in the 1940's

His second-in-command, the widely respected Erneido Oliva, is an official in the Office of Spanish Speaking Relations in the District of Columbia government in Washington.

HEROIC CAPTIVE

Cruz, a salesman-collector for a home products firm in Miami, was commander of a parachute company in the 1961 assault. His colleagues hold him in high regard for a face-to-face encounter with the bearded Castro while they were prisoners.

During the televised show trials in which the invaders were sentenced to 30-year prison sentences, the Cuban premier singled out the lanky Negro and asked:

"What are you doing here? As a black man, don't you know that we have wiped out discrimination in this country? You can go anywhere, swim at any of the clubs, do what you want."

Cruz retorted: "I didn't come here to go swimming. I came to free my country from communism.

He is president of the Spanish Baptist Brotherhood in southwest Miami and active in the church, which he proudly says is 95 per cent white.

Antonio Gonzalez, an advertising salesman for television station KWAZ in San Antonio, Tex., was an infantryman when Oliva led them onto Playa Larga, Long Beach, near Giron.

REFORM NEEDED

"There is no doubt that social reforms were needed in Cuba (before the Castro takeover)," Gonzalez says. But Castro "is subjugating the Cuban people and we could not stand idly by."

Anibal Duarte, a Miami optician, was one of 28 men who were separated from the rest of the prisoners during their trials and told they were to be shot. The group included Artime, Perez San Roman and Oliva.

"They scared some of us so badly that after a while we were sort of saturated with fear, and we got to where we didn't care about their threats. When they said they were going to kill us, my thoughts were, 'Go ahead. Do it.'"

Duarte was part of a 10-man commission, along with Peruyero and Sueiro, which was authorized by Castro to come to this country in 1962 to bargain for the prisoners' release.

Another member of that commission, Eloy Perez Tamayo, is now a U.S. Army major serving in Vietnam.

HEALTH CHIEF

One of its most respected members is Dr. Mario Diaz Roussellot, public health chief of Havana before Castro took over. Diaz Roussellot fought at the Bay of Pigs as a common soldier. He is now head of the screening unit of medical services at Freedom Gate, the reception center for Cuban refugees arriving in Miami.

Rafael Guas Inclan, vice-president of Cuba when dictator Fulgencio Batista fled the advancing Castro guerrillas, lost his son in the Bay of Pigs invasion. The youth died fighting rather than surrender, says Guas Inclan.

Receiving a newsman in the dark and shabby meeting hall where a number of oldsters noisily played dominoes. Guas Inclan expressed bitterness at what he called United States failure to meet its commitments.

'A TRAMPOLINE'

"The United States of today has lost much of its prestige regarding our country . . . It should know that Cuba is only a Russian trampoline to this country," he says.

While grateful to this country for its shelter and generosity, it is difficult for them to understand Washington's attitude of maintaining the status quo in regard to Cuba. Brigadistas and most of the other exiles bemoan U.S. inaction.

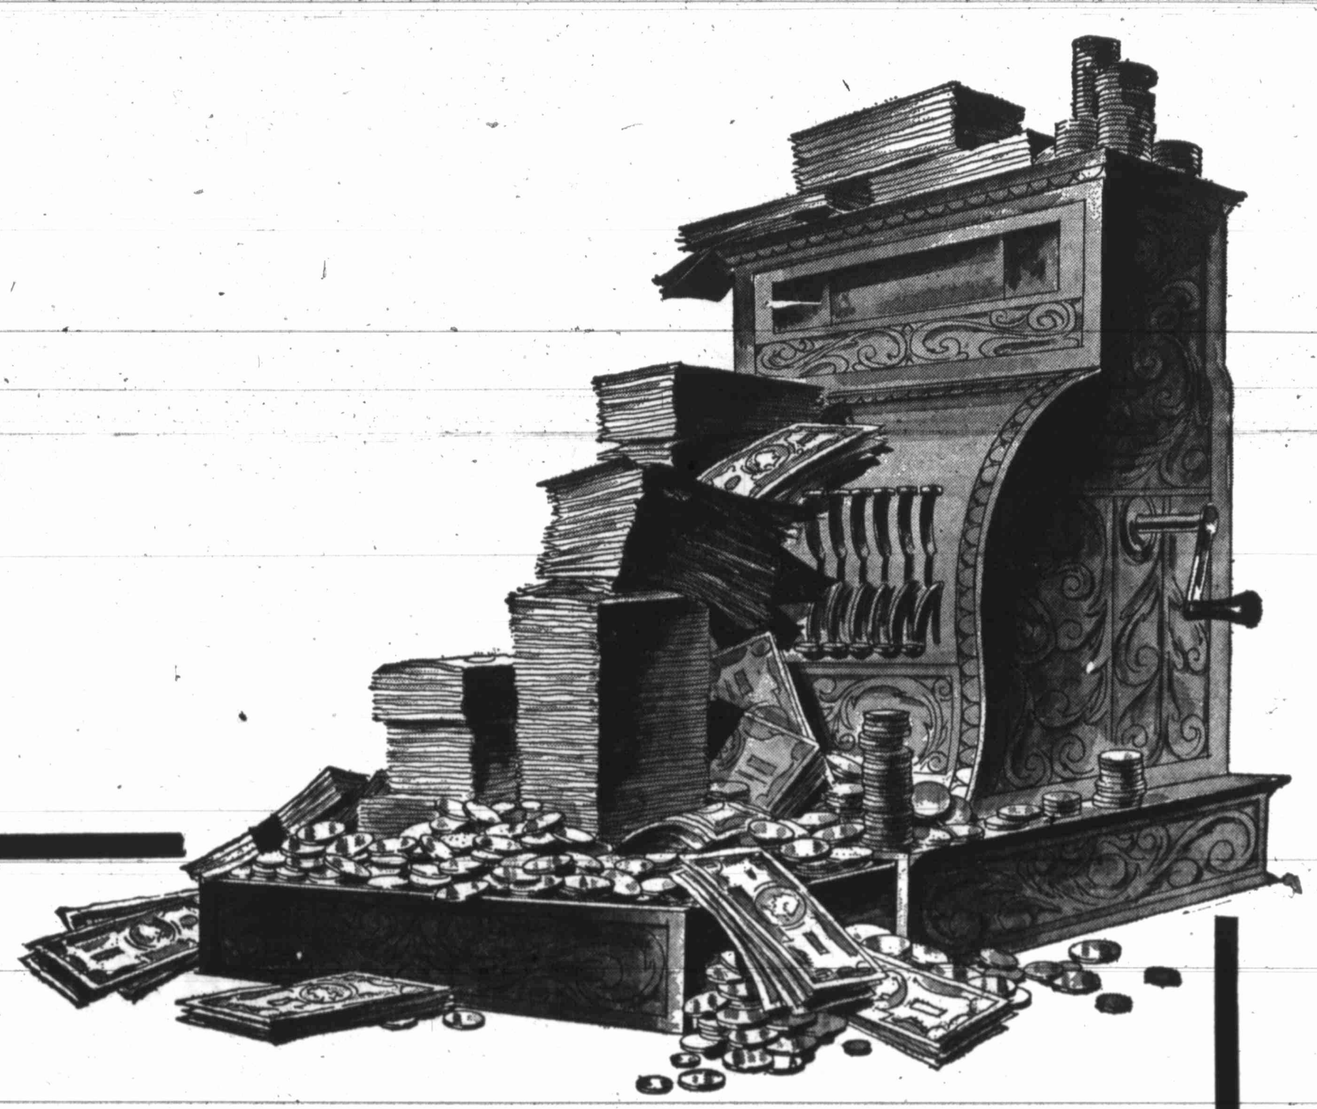

They do anything to encourage and even provoke a confrontation with the Castro regime.

Their great hope is for Cubans on the island to rise up against Castro so they, and the United States, will have an excuse for another invasion.

Meanwhile, they wait. And hope. They argue among themselves, as Cubans will.

But theirs is a common goal — to return.

Hates Her Son

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A while back you had a letter in your column from a woman who had a baby boy; but she had wanted a girl so desperately that she couldn't love the baby no matter how hard she tried. She confessed she even had thoughts of killing herself and killing the baby.

I am in a similar situation. After four years of marriage and a baby boy, now 3, my husband and I decided on a trial separation. While we were apart, I lived with another man and became pregnant by him. While pregnant I went back to my husband, told him the truth, and now we are reunited and happy again. My husband said he would let me decide whether I wanted to keep the baby or adopt it out. I first decided to adopt it out, but at the very last minute I changed my mind and kept it.

The baby is 3 months old now. He is very pretty and advanced for his age, but I just can't love him. My husband treats him like his own true son, but I hold so much resentment against the boy I can't stand to hold him or feed him. Now I wish I had given him away while I still had the chance. I know he deserves to be wanted like my first son is, but I keep wishing he would die, so I wouldn't have to raise him.

You recommended an adoption agency for the other mother. Can you do the same for me? I live near Worcester, Mass. Thank you.

WISH I WERE DEAD

DEAR WISH: Yes. Please send me your name and address. It will be held in the strictest of confidence.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl. I have gone with boys since I was 12 and I have fooled around a lot but I am still a virgin (technically) and of that I am very sure.

I recently went to a clinic and the doctor there told me I had syphilis. I am being treated for it now. Abby, if you think this will help other girls who think they can't get syphilis unless they go all the way, I am telling you THEY CAN! I did. Maybe I should explain that I did some real heavy petting, and that is how I got it.

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Your letter is well worth printing, and I thank you for wanting to share with others a lesson you learned the hard way.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I belong to a card club which meets once a month on Saturday night. We play bridge and then the hostess serves. We are through with refreshments at about 1 a.m. which should be late enough for anyone, right? Not this group! The men sit down again and play cards for another two hours while the other three women gossip, and I fall asleep.

There are only four couples, so without us there wouldn't be any club. If I stay up until 3 a.m. I am no good the following day. It's my turn to have the party next. How can I get them to go home at a reasonable hour?

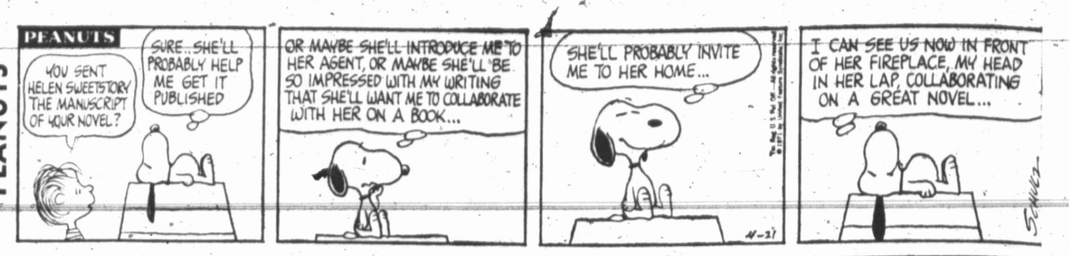

SLEEPY

DEAR SLEEPY: You can't, without making yourself very unpopular and inhospitable to boot. Obviously you're mixed up with a bunch of night owls, so since they're rarin' to go, let 'em, and YOU go to sleep.

* * *

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Potassium Needs

Your Good Health

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What does potassium do for the body? The doctor handed me a list of foods containing potassium and said I should include them in my diet. Since then I have heard of four people taking potassium, but they don't know what for.—J.S.

Potassium, an element very similar to sodium, is, like sodium, one of the necessary minerals.

A proper balance of (chiefly) these elements is called the body's electrolyte balance.

Ordinarily this is something we don't have to worry about — sodium and potassium are common in many foods, and the body gets all it needs.

On a temporary basis, loss of fluid (and these minerals) can result from diarrhea in a small baby, or, for another example, loss of fluid because of being severely burned — serum oozing from the burned areas carries away the minerals, too.

In either case (and some others not common enough to mention here) the first necessity in treatment is to restore fluids and the lost minerals. Technically it is called restoring the electrolyte balance.

The correct electrolyte balance is important to the body in general. As for one important aspect — the potassium has much to do with what is called the excitability of muscle tissue. That is, a lack of potassium results in a weakness of all muscle tissue — including such vital muscle tissue as the heart muscle, along with others. Obviously important!

However, potassium deficiency isn't the sort of thing that is often encountered, the concern over it being primarily related to the use of diuretics, to rid the system of excess water. With excessive use of these drugs, a loss of potassium can occur. It can be supplied either through diet or in tablet form — foods especially rich in potassium are, among others, prunes, citrus juices, bananas, potatoes, raisins, and figs.

Why your four friends all should be taking potassium would be only a guess unless, perchance, they have all been on diuretics for a long time.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: About eight years ago my brother was hospitalized as the result of heavy drinking. His liver and pancreas were severely damaged.

He was told alcohol would cause a recurrence. Please tell me what will happen now that he is consuming something like a quart of wine a day. It is a sherry and only 20 per cent alcohol content, but alcohol is alcohol.—Mrs. M.W.

It's the old sad story. A drinker is scared into giving up alcohol. His liver recovers somewhat, and probably so does his pancreas.

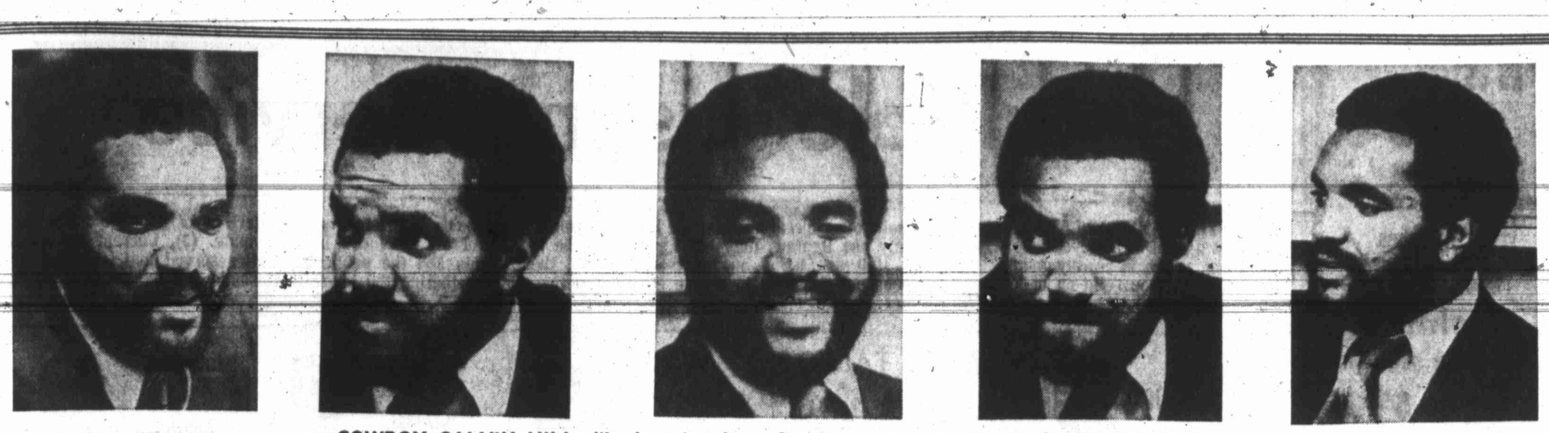

Then, feeling better, he goes back to drinking. And what ultimately happens is just what you think will happen.

"Bad Breath Can Be Corrected" is the title of Dr. Thosteson's booklet explaining the causes and cure of bad breath. For a copy write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Campuses Quieter

DALLAS (AP) — Dr. Duncan Wimpress, president of San Antonio's Trinity University, says American college campuses are quieter this year because students have seen violence is both frightening and non-productive.

"Blowing up buildings won't enhance their education," says Wimpress. "Students now realize this."

COWBOY CALVIN HILL: "It doesn't take a flaming genius to play professional football."

Grid Ace Won't Preach

By TOMMY HART

Calvin Hill looks for the Dallas Cowboys to improve in 1971 but thinks it'll be tough to repeat as divisional and conference champions simply because the pressure bears down on defending winners in the NFL.

The star running back of the Cowboys, who fulfilled a speaking engagement here Tuesday night, lost his starting role to durable and determined Duana Thomas last fall after gaining Rookie of the Year honors in the NFL in 1969.

Whether or not he can regain his spot in the regular lineup is a moot question. He could be moved to tight end, people close to the team say. He's prepared to play anywhere. Better resistance to injury will help his sales pitch.

Hill also yielded something else a couple of months ago — his status as a single man. Following the 1969 season, he was named Bachelor of the Year in Dallas but he took unto himself a bride shortly after Christmas.

The native of Baltimore, who is now taking a reading course in SMU's Perkins School of Theology, says he never expects to fill the pulpit as a minister.

"I never imagined myself as a preacher," he said. "More than likely I will go into some sort of social work after I leave football."

Although Calvin is attending a Methodist school (under a scholarship arrangement), he was raised in the Baptist church and still is active in that affiliation.

Only 24 years of age now, with his best years in football ahead of him, Calvin has no target date for retirement from the game.

Although he attended prep school at Riverdale Country School in New York and went from there to stardom in Yale, Hill is still a Baltimore fan in all things athletic.

He was especially thrilled when the Bullets defeated the New York Knickerbockers in the NBA playoffs Monday night.

"I root for Baltimore all the time except when they're playing the Cowboys," he told a group of high school reporters here Tuesday. "I have a lot of friends on the team."

After the great Hugh McElhanny saw Hill play in 1969, he remarked:

"He has what you can't teach. He has such natural ability, a natural built-in change of pace. Because of his long strides, he appears to be coasting. He looks slow, then wow! He puts it on the floorboard."

The sophomore jinx may have hit Calvin last year, because he was used sparingly. Blame his troubles on a variety of physical ailments. He watched the Super Bowl game at Miami from the sidelines.

Which team does he expect to give Dallas the most trouble in the NFC's Eastern Conference next fall?

"They'll all be rough," he said. "Washington will be better with a new coaching staff. We weren't able to beat St. Louis last fall. Philadelphia will improve. The New York Giants are expecting to be better."

Calvin's weight ballooned up to 245 pounds, an increase of almost 20 pounds, but he's running and lifting weights to pull it down. A linebacker weighing 245 pounds might be considered small but for a running back that ballast might be a little too much, even for one like Hill, who stands 6-4.

Hill doesn't think a man has to be a "flaming genius" to play professional football. For that reason, he feels IQ tests given incoming players might be overrated.

He gravitated toward Yale because it was in the area and the "Ivy League atmosphere was there." At Yale, he distinguished himself not only as a running back but a tight end and linebacker. In track, he broad jumped 25-1½ and executed a triple jump of 51-5¼. As a freshman running back, he once scored five touchdowns in a game against Princeton.

Before being whisked away to speak at the Youth Achievement dinner here, Hill took stock of the half dozen schoolboys who had gathered to interview him and smilingly remarked:

"I should come to Big Spring more often, with all the attention the press is giving me."

Bovines Try Again Today

MIDLAND — Midland used 11 hits and took advantage of Big Spring's uneven defensive play to defeat the Steers, 8-4, in a District 5-AAAA game here Tuesday.

Big Spring returns to competition in Abilene against Abilene High at 4 o'clock this afternoon and plays its next home game Saturday against Permian.

David Carter likely will move from shortstop to the mound for Big Spring today, as the Longhorns seek their first win in two second half starts.

Big Spring collected eight hits off Bill Wiley, the Midland hurler but trailed from the second inning on, after the Bulldogs had plated three runs.

Roddy Caffey collected the only extra base hit for the Steers, a double.

Randy Womack waxed warm at bat for the Longhorns, collecting three singles. He also scored twice and drove in a run.

John Sevey started on the mound for Big Spring and worked until the fifth, when Rickey Steen took over.

Pete Shaffer, Grady Ray and Tommy Brewer were others who powered home runs for Big Spring.

Over-all, Big Spring is 5-14 while Midland is 11-9.

Ex-Steer Mentor Departs Menard

Jack Gray, former Big Spring coaching aide, has resigned as head coach at Menard High School and has been succeeded by Roland Gladden. Gladden is a graduate of Odessa Permian High School.

Gladden coached at Odessa Bonham Junior High for three seasons, during which time the club won all 24 starts.

He later became a junior varsity coach at Midland High School. Roland played his college football for East Central State College in Ada, Okla.

Niekro's Knuckler Conquers Corsairs

By The Associated Press

Phil Niekro lost his knuckleball in Atlanta last summer, found it in Arizona last fall, retained it in Florida this spring . . . and gave it to the Pirates in Pittsburgh Tuesday night.

The Niekro knuckler was jitterbugging to perfection and the Pirates managed only six hits as the Atlanta Braves posted a 2-0 victory on Hank Aaron's two-run homer off Bob Moose in the first inning, the 598th of his career.

"One of his knuckleballs was taking off and the other—the bottom was dropping out of it," said Pittsgurgh slugger Willie Stargell. "I was just looking for the one in between."

The Pirates never found it and show a mere six runs and 21 hits in their last five games, mere peanuts for the powerful Bucs.

GIANTS BEATEN

Elsewhere in the National League, St. Louis ended San Francisco's nine-game winning streak 2-1, Cincinnati edged the New York Mets 3-2 on Johnny Bench's two-run homer in the eighth inning, Philadelphia nipped Montreal 1-0 behind Chris Short's three-hitter, the Chicago Cubs downed Houston 3-1 and Los Angeles whipped San Diego 6-2.

American League scores were Detroit 7, Baltimore 6; Oakland 4, California 0; Minnesota 5, Kansas City 4; Washington 7, New York Yankees 2; Boston 4, Cleveland 1 and the Chicago White Sox 7, Milwaukee 1.

The Gjants seemed a shoo-in to run their winning streak to 10 when they sent ace Juan Marichal against Reggie Cleveland of St. Louis, who had lost all six of his major league decisions.

Arnold Palmer Gets Nod In Tourney Of Champs

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, winner of two tournaments this year, was installed as a 6-1 favorite today to win the $33,000 first prize in the Tournament of Champions golf tournament.

The odds were quoted by Las Vegas' legal bookies, who made South African Gary Player a strong No. 2 choice at 7-1 in the 72-hole event that starts Thursday on the demanding La Costa Country Club course.

Other leading contenders in the elite, 35-man field include Jack Nicklaus, Masters champion Charles Coody, England's Tony Jacklin, the U.S. Open title-holder who has an affinity for winning the big ones, and defending champion Frank Beard.

The select field, made up of the winners of regular pro golf tour events from the past 12 months, is lacking only two of the game's great names—Billy Casper and Lee Trevino.

Casper had to withdraw, at the request of the state department.

Originally, he was scheduled to serve as a member of the official party for King Hassan II of Morocco on a state visit to this country. The trip was cancelled, but the king requested Casper visit him in North Africa this week.

Trevino, the 1970 leading money winner and Vardon Trophy champion, failed to win in the last 12 months and is not eligible.

Palmer, playing some of the best golf of his life, is the season's leading money winner with more than $100,000. He has been driving extremely well and it's that fact as much as any, that stamps him as a leading contender.

RACING HIS BUNT — Baltimore Oriole Jim Palmer races with his bunt in the second inning of Tuesday's game in Detroit. The bunt went foul and with two strikes already against him, he struck himself out. The Detroit Tigers took the game 7 to 6.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Big Spring High School track mentor Glenn Petty says that, of all the events he coaches, he least likes the long jump.

Petty states he's seen too many boys suffer heel, groin and hamstring muscle injuries in the endeavor and even the best of them are susceptible to hurts.

A long jumper sails through the air and comes down hard on his feet, bunched in a knot trying to cushion his landing. True, he lands in sand but the impact is hard and catches him at a disadvantage, when his first instinct is effort and not safety. The results are sometimes dire.

West Texan Norm Cash has long since established his right to play in the major baseball leagues but he's been trying hard to live up to an image he established in 1961.

He hit .361 that year to lead the American League in hitting. He's been doing something wrong at the plate ever since, because he hasn't been able to hit .300 in any one season since that time.

John P. Carmichael, the Chicago sports columnist, tells a story about Chuck Tanner, currently managing the Chicago White Sox, who kept ragging a waitress to stock up on apple juice each time he'd show up for breakfast.

"Why don't you get some apple juice?" he'd say, "It's the greatest thing you can drink. Better than orange juice or anything else. Doctors all over the world recommend it for athletes."

Worn by Tanner's refrain, the lady took time on her day off to spend her own money for a jug of apple juice. The next day, the waitress proudly waited for Tanner's petition.

"Apple juice!" snorted Tanner, when approached by the woman. "Who in the hell drinks apple juice? It's the worst thing you can take. Doctors all over the world are against it."

The lady, suddenly realizing she had been 'had,' took a belligerent pose and announced, in unladylike terms, the "fatherless gentlemen" were going to drink that bleep-bleep apple juice or it would be poured over their bleep-bleep heads. They drank.

No wonder ex-Rice quarterback Frank Ryan quit pro football for that job in Washington.

His pay as director of computer operations for the House of Representatives reportedly will be $36,000 per annum. Ryan holds a Ph.D. in mathematics.

When the Washington Redskins obtained Bill Kilmer from the New Orleans Saints, Ryan realized his chances to play diminished.

Fernando (Trompoloco) Rodriquez gained a flakey reputation in the major leagues because he wore a golden earring on occasions.

When he played here in the early 1950s he became well known for quite a different reason. He was perhaps the fastest pitcher ever to perform in the old Longhorn league.

Rodriquez climbed off a plane here and charged the hill that night against a Vernon team which had Jittery Joe Berry as its manager and a menacing lineup of hitters.

Trompoloco rushed third strikes past 17 batters in his debut here. His curve ball was hardly discernible but he had no need for it.

His speed was such that most hitters stood in the remote corners of the batter's box, rather than risk injury. He was just wild enough to keep the sluggers from digging in. Most batters went to the plate, as a matter of fact, intent on floating like a butter-fly, praying for their safety.

One of the league's leading hitters, after facing Rodriquez for the first time and fanning three times, lamented, on his way back to the dugout:

"I never even saw most of his pitches. As far as I am concerned, he might have been going through the motions of throwing and the catcher could have been faking it by pounding his mitt. I doubt if the umpire saw it, either."

Eight Teams Set For Church Loop

Church Softball league commissioner Joe Dobry said eight teams would compete in the circuit this year. Play gets under way May 4 in Comanche Trail Park.

The eight teams and their managers are:

Crestview Baptist, Bill Scott; Westside Baptist, Jack Owens; First Baptist, Ron Plumlee; Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic, Francis Johns; St. Paul's Lutheran, Gus Graumann; First Church of God, Tim Mosteller; Trinity Baptist, A. C. Pettus; and First Assembly of God, Don Houghton.

Double-headers are scheduled two nights a week, with the first game down for 7:30 p.m. and the second for 9 p.m.

A concessions stand will be in operation at the park during league action.

Mrs. Babe Ruth Rooting For Aaron In Homer Bid

ATLANTA (AP) — If Willie Mays or Henry Aaron surpass the 714 career home run record set by Babe Ruth, the widow of the legendary slugger says no one will cheer louder than she.

And, Mrs. Ruth said Tuesday, if the Babe were here he would be cheering just as loudly.

"It won't hurt my feelings at all. And it wouldn't bother the Babe either. It would be a great shot in the arm for the game, something to keep it alive. And Babe, as much as he dearly loved baseball, would like to see it happen I'm sure," Mrs. Ruth said in a telephone interview with The Atlanta Constitution.

"He was proud of his accomplishments. But he wasn't vain in the sense that he would get angry when somebody's figures were more than his. He was too big of a person inside to let anything like that bother him."

Mrs. Ruth, the former Clara Hodgson of Jefferson, Ga., said the Babe would be especially pleased if his record were broken by someone with the character of Aaron or Mays.

"Both gentlemen are tremendous credits to the game," she said. "They are high class individuals who have given baseball so very much. And they are both great players."

Both Mays, the only man other than Ruth to pass the 600 home run mark, and Aaron, who is closing in fast, are off to fine starts this season.

Pro Title At Stake In Series

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A gritty band of ailing and aching Baltimore Bullets, a "team of destiny," against the awesome, high-powered Milwaukee Bucks . . . that's the way the National Basketball Association championship playoff series opens tonight.

The Bucks, led by Lew Alcindor and Oscar Robertson, are heavy favorites to win the nationally televised ABC-TV first contest and the best-of-seven game series.

But the Bullets, their confidence soaring after eliminating the 1970 champion New York Knicks Monday night despite injuries to three regulars, think this is Baltimore's year.

After surviving the gruelling road they have had to travel to these finals, the long-starved Bullets feel ready to follow in the footsteps of baseball's World Champion Orioles and football's Super Bowl champion Colts, Baltimore's other major league teams.

BS Merchants Win 2 Games

STERLING CITY — The Big Spring Merchants swept a softball doubleheader, 9-5 and 12-6, here Tuesday night to even their won-lost record at 4-4.

Claude Fryar and Steve Devalle each drove out two hits for the Big Spring team in the afterpiece.

Berkeley Busing Results In Higher Achievement

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — While some American communities were fighting efforts to desegretate their schools, the university city of Berkeley three years ago voluntarily launched an elementary school busing program designed to balance classrooms racially.

In so doing, Berkeley became the first city of more than 100,000 population with a significant black population to desegregate schools by busing. Forty-four per cent of the city's 113,000 residents are black.

Today, critics have found busing did not live up to their fears, and supporters have learned it did not meet all their expectations.

SURVEYS SHOW

School officials say surveys show that community opposition to busing is waning—about 52 per cent opposed it three years ago and fewer than 30 per cent today.

Also, school officials say test scores show the quality of education has improved for everyone—black, white and Asian.

The busing of 3,560 elementary youngsters began Sept. 10, 1968, according to a plan that school officials and a citizens' commttee had developed.

The plan's key concept was that formerly white schools in the city's hill area would serve kindergarten through third grades, with whites walking to school and blacks riding buses, while black flatlands schools would serve grades 4-6, with blacks walking and whites riding buses.

The city was broken into four "attendance areas," each including a black neighborhood and a white neighborhood, and assignments to the 14 elementary schools were worked out by computer. The assignments reflected the community's racial composition: Chicano 3.4 per cent, other white 43.3 per cent, black 44.7 per cent, American Indian .1 per cent and others 8.5 per cent.

PERFORMING WELL

"Our achievement in the primary grades—the youngsters who have been with us all the way—is higher than it ever was in predesegregation Berkeley," says Dr. Richard Foster, the superintendent of schools.

"I would contend that up through the eighth or ninth grades our kids are performing as well or better than they did before. Also, there are more multiethnic friends among students and parents than ever occurred before."

The city's three junior highs, for pupils in grades 7-9, had been desegregated in 1964 without busing—the students must walk, get rides, use bikes or public transportation.

Senior high pupils have always attended the city's one high school, Berkeley High. Black Panther cofounders Bobby Seale and Huey P. Newton are among its former pupils, and racial tensions and separations have traditionally been strong thre.

Foster says a large part of the problem now at Berkeley High is that students have been mixing there for the first time, and that poorer quality preparation for blacks has left them segregated by achievement the way they are by homes.

Trustees To Set Dates For Bids

Trustees of Howard County Junior College will meet Friday noon at the college to consider setting dates for receiving bids on furnishings and equipment for the Horace Garrett Applied Arts building.

Dr. W. A. Hunt, president, has been in Austin, to obtain final approval on all items in which the state also will participate. The new building, which is progressing rapidly will house the vocational-technical division.

Abilene Police Did Not Need Search Warrant

AUSTIN (AP) — Abilene police did not need a search warrant to go through the pockets of a man they suspected was about to make a marijuana sale, The State Supreme Court ruled today.

Without issuing a written opinion, the court said it found no reversible error in lower court decisions forefeiting the man's 1970 van-type truck to the state.

Texas law enables authorities to take over vehicles used to transport illegal drugs or bootleg liquor.

Robert Paul Moore fought the seizure in Abilene's 42nd District Court on grounds that officers did not have a warrant when they searched him and looked ins[illegible] his van.

Leaders Pressing Lon Nol To Form New Government

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Other Cambodian political leaders urged Permier Lon Nol today to continue in office and form a new government, but he was too sick to receive their emissaries.

Premier since August, 1969, Lon Nol resigned on Tuesday, giving his health as the reason. He had a stroke in February and recovered only partially duing two months under treatment in Hawaii. He also suffers from diabetes, kidney trouble and high blood pressure.

Although Lon Nol's younger brother, Lt. Col. Lon Non, said Tuesday that the premier had resigned to clean house and would form a new government, foreign observers in Phnom Penh believe the 57-year-old general's resignation is genuine and likely to be permanent.

Brig. Gen. In Tam, president of the National Assembly, and Ung Sim, the president of the Senate, told a joint session of both houses that Chief of State Cheng Heng had asked them to urge Lon Nol to form a new government. But they said the general was too ill to see them.

Speeches by members of the two houses underlined the high regard political leaders have for Lon Nol. A joint committee prepared a resolution to proclaim him a national hero and a marshal of the army. He is already Cambodia's only four-star general.

Leading contenders to succeed Lon Nol are his deputy premier, Sisowath Sirik Matak, who headed the government while the premier was under treatment in Honolulu; In Ta., a soldier-politician popular in the northeastern province of Kompong Cham, and Son Ngoc Thanh, former leader of the Free Khmer movement which first opposed Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the Cambodian ruler deposed by Lon Nol in March, 1970.

Dean At Stanford Lands New Post

NEW YORK (AP) — Bayless Manning, dean of Stanford University Law School, will become the full-time president of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Chairman David Rockefeller announced Tuesday that Manning, 48, will succeed both Grayson Kirk as president and George Franklin as executive director.

Kirk, president emeritus of the board, was named to a new position as vice chairman. The position of executive director will be discontinued when Manning takes office in September.

The council, founded in 1921, publishes the quarterly review "Foreign Affairs" and books. It also holds off-the-record meetings at its New York headquarters with leading statesmen and scholars.

He was identified as Army Spec. 4 Benny E. Hart, husband of Mrs. Carolyn J. Hart, 228-A Hickory St., Levelland.
