District Federation To Meet In Odessa For 1943 Convention

Sidelights Of Convention...

Up until the Good Neighbor luncheon Wednesday noon, it looked like the district women had jobs a-plenty. After attending the luncheon, we'd say it was a super-super job.

Mrs. NORMAN READ of Coahoma, who was one of the hostesses to the luncheon, made little woven crocheted favors in the shape of Mexican men for each of the delegates and visitors. Total registration was some 119, so imagine the job that she had.

Incidentally, the luncheon consisted of Mexican food and place cards were pieces of candy made in the shape of enchiladas. Menu programs were also decorated with pictures of a Mexican scene. The tables which were decorated with the flags of South American countries were as colorful and pretty as could be. It even moved the outgoing president, Mrs. J. C. CUNNINGHAM of Fort Stockton, to try out her Spanish on the group to the amusement of everybody present.

Credit should go where credit is due—so they say—and we think the Big Spring women should all be congratulated on putting on a mighty well district convention. The job was a big one, but it was superior to many state affairs that are held.

Miss Laneous Night Meeting Held At Baptist Church For The Third Prayer Service

Notes
By MARY WHALEY

Juvenile delinquency, a touchy and unsolved problem, has reared its head again, so the authorities tell and war-minded adults are shaking their heads over the situation.

There seems to be a general attitude that the adults have enough on their minds now without the young fry acting up and causing trouble.

Of course, the class without always are full of advice to give on how to rear the young 'uns and they, without any experience at all to point to, can always come forth with the right approach.

Being so qualified here are a few ideas we drop without charge, un-protected by patent rights, and expecting no one to heed. But it could be that—

The oldsters are so busy worrying about the war that they have shunted their children in a corner and read the war news, complained about taxes, and gloomed from breakfast to bedtime over the "situation."

They have been gone from home at night taking courses in war work, drilling with the home guard, and had no time for listening to children's stories.

They have lived in a world apart—one that they comprehend and left their youngsters with questions unanswered and war talk unexplained. To a young one growing up and with no previous experiences in such a world, it must seem like the end of all they have been taught, the last of a normal life.

Father takes his feelings out in talk and drilling, mother in nutrition courses, older sister in first aid, and older brother joins the army. Small fry is left alone and bewildered and tries being bad to get his share of attention.

Power Of Prayer Described By Evangelist

Prayer can shake the world, the Rev. Elmer D. Henson told a crowd attending the First Christian church revival Wednesday evening. The meeting, said the Rev. Homer W. Haislip, pastor, continues to grow "in interest and enthusiasm." Services are held twice daily at 10 a. m. and 8 p. m.

The most thrilling story in the early church is told in the fourth chapter of Acts where a miracle had been performed on a lame, and the disciples called to account. They were threatened and then released, and then had a real prayer meeting, said the Rev. Henson.

"Things began to happen," he said. First, the place was shaken. Jesus prayed prayers that shook heaven and earth. Paul, prayed, and a jail crumbled about his feet; the Christians prayed and Peter was released from prison. Martin Luther prayed and all Germany trembled; John Knox prayed and Scotland was shaken; Wesley prayed and the complacent English church was shaken; Thomas Campbell prayed and the frontier was shaken. Real prayer shakes places and makes evil tremble and flee away.

"Second, they were all filled with the Holy Spirit, for prayer is the only avenue through which the Spirit can come to men... If we say words and the Spirit does not, we have not prayed."

"Third, they spoke the Word of God with boldness... Today a Christian must speak up, bear witness and testimony of his faith in Christ," he declared. Results now would be similar to that early day when "they had one heart and soul, a unity. They had all things common, a spirit of love. Grace was upon them; they were redeemed."

der Secretary of War, is in a spot to make Harry Hopkins in his big WPA days look like a miserly pik-er. As chief of Army procurement, Patterson will disburse some $21,000,000,000 in the next fiscal year.

That means dishing out about $1,750,000,000 a month, $58,000,000 a day, $2,416,000 an hour, $40,200 a minute. His monthly spending will be almost three times that of the country's total outlay for the Spanish-American war and his daily spending will be $23,000,000 more than our entire expenditure in the war of 1812.

Civilian Trainees Wanted In Technical Jobs; Steno Posts Open In Washington

The civil service commission has announced that as a result of the tremendously expanded post employment training program of the war department thousands of civilian trainee positions in aircraft and engine mechanics, ordnance inspection and signal corps equipment repairing will be filled in Louisiana and Texas within the next few months.

Indicative of the trend toward increased employment of women in trades and technical positions, it was emphasized that women as well as men are eligible for and will be appointed to these jobs. Test training courses have proven the suitability of women for employment in skilled manual occupations which were formerly confined almost exclusively to men.

Original appointment as trainees will be made at $900 to $1,020 a year. Promotions may be made upon successful completion of training courses of three months, six months or longer to jobs paying from $1,260 to $1,620 per year. Further promotion is possible later.

Plane Motor Wanted For Prison Class

AUSTIN, March 5 (AP) — The state penitentiary needs an airplane motor.

A discarded one, either radial or in-line type, will do, said State Senator Clem Fain of Livingston who explained the motor was needed to facilitate instruction in aviation mechanics, one of many vocational courses offered short-term convicts.

Fain declared the penitentiary educational program of which the aviation mechanic course is a part, had proved its value in the rehabilitation of prisoners several of whom obtained jobs in defense industries following their release.

As chief of the Army's eight supply services, Patterson will direct the spending of some sixteen and a half billion dollars. In addition he will supervise the expenditure of more than four billions in leasing funds for military supplies for troops of the United Nations.

Under Patterson's supervision are three major and five minor purchasing agencies of the Army. The "big three" are the Ordnance department, $7,385,000,000; the Air Corps, $5,000,000,000 and the Quartermaster corps, $1,554,000,000.

Judge Patterson, a soldier-hero of the first World War, went to camp at Plattsburg, N. Y., for a military "refresher" course following the fall of France in the summer of 1940. He was a buck private, paying his own way to train for national defense, when President Roosevelt appointed him Assistant Secretary of War.

A captain and a major of infantry in the World War, he won a Distinguished Service Cross for a daring daylight raid with two non-commissioned officers.

And He's A Southpaw
Under Secretary Patterson is a slight, wiry man; calm, plainspoken and unassuming. He is left-handed, an expert shot and keen about the Garand rifle. He has pitched hay, milked cows and run a tractor on his 70-acre farm on the Hudson river.

He was born 51 years ago in Glens Falls, N. Y., birthplace of Charles Evans Hughes, on Lincoln's birthday. He was appointed a federal judge of the Southern New York district by President Hoover in 1930. President Roosevelt promoted him to the circuit court of appeals in 1939.

and typists are urged to apply for these places. The entrance salary for either position is $120 per month and the opportunities for rapid advancement are excellent for women with ability.

Appointees are assured of reasonable living accommodations in Washington. A government agency has been established for assisting newcomers to find rooms. Room with board ranges from $40 to $50 per month.

Information concerning all civil service jobs may be obtained from Lindsey Marchbanks, civil service secretary, at the Big Spring post-office.

A Stormy Night, A Sunny Day—Potluck Supper Is Fun To Have

FOR THAT EXTRA TOUCH, try these white capped rolls.

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE, Wide World Features Writer
It doesn't have to be fair weather for good neighbors to get together for a potluck supper. A stormy night, in fact, can make the party all the merrier. Each person may contribute something in the way of food or service in the kitchen and dining room. The hostess gets the house ready, puts out table settings and possibly furnishes coffee and trimmings — although she may have to let the guests bring their own sugar. There are many tempting dishes to be served for such gatherings. Escalloped Oysters Benedict: To serve 6, mix 1-2 cup butter, melted, with 4 cups rolled dried bread or cracker crumbs, 3 tablé-

WHITE CAPPED ROLLS
2 cakes yeast
1-4 cup lukewarm water
1 cup milk
1-4 cup shortening
1-2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
5 cups sifted flour
Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add shortening, sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add flour to make a thick batter. Add yeast, eggs, and lemon rind. Beat well. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until satiny. Place in greased bowl, cover and let rise until doubled in bulk (about 3 hours). Pinch off portions of dough and roll under hand until about 15 inches long and slightly less than 1-2 inch thick. Starting at center, wind each strip of dough loosely, round and round. Let rise about 2 hours. Bake in moderate oven (375) 20 to 25 minutes. Frost and sprinkle with chopped nuts. Makes about 3 dozen rolls.

Frosting
3-4 cup confectioners' sugar
1-4 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon hot milk
Blend milk with sugar until icing is soft enough to spread easily. Add vanilla.

spoons chopped pimientos, 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-2 teaspoon paprika and 2 tablespoons minced parsley. Using 1-3 quart oysters of medium size, sprinkle a 1-2 inch layer of crumbs in buttered baking dish. Cover with layers of oysters and add 1-4 cup milk or strained oyster liquid. Cover with more crumbs, oysters and milk. Repeat until the dish is full. The top layer should be oysters. Bake 30 minutes in moderate oven.

Macaroni Creole: Simmer 5 minutes, 1-3 cup each chopped green peppers, celery and onions in 4 tablespoons butter. Add 4 cups cooked macaroni, 2 cups tomatoes, 1 crushed bay leaf, 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1-4 teaspoon powdered cloves and 1 tablespoon minced parsley. Simmer 5 minutes. Pour into buttered, shallow baking dish and cover with 2-3 cup grated or finely sliced cheese. Bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Serves 6.

Cornburger: Brown a pound of hamburger with 4 tablespoons bacon fat. Add 2 cups corn, 1-2 cup diced cooked celery, 2 tablespoons each chopped onions, green peppers and celery, 1-2 teaspoons salt and 1-4 teaspoon paprika. Pour in 1 cup milk—or liquid from canned corn, 1 beaten egg or 2 yolks and 3 tablespoons butter, melted. Pour into buttered baking dish and cover with 2-3 cup buttered crumbs. Bake 35 minutes in moderate oven. Serves 8.

Savory Fillet: Four 2-3 cup diced bacon in large-sized frying pan, cook slowly until crisp. Remove and simmer 3 tablespoons each celery, green peppers and onions in the bacon drippings. Add 3 cups tomato juice, 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 1 crushed bay leaf, 1-3 teaspoon powdered cloves, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1-4 teaspoon poultry seasoning and 1 cup uncooked rice. Bring to boiling point, lower heat and simmer covered 30 minutes. Remove cover and boil 4 minutes. Add 1 pound cleaned shrimp and the cooked bacon. Bake in buttered baking dish 15 minutes in moderate oven.

Maybe It Isn't Practical, But— Indians Chew Guayule. And Spit Rubber-Balls

By JOHN LEAR
WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. (Wide World)—The Indians of the southwest chew the leaves of a desert shrub and spit rubber balls.

Get enough Indians chewing at the same spot and you could help solve the wartime rubber shortage.

This shrub is guayule (pronounced wuh-yoo-lee). While men first learned of the guayule in 1819, when Cortes in Mexico observed what Christopher Columbus had observed before him further south—Indians playing with bouncing balls. The presence of the shrub in the United States is supposed to have been discovered by accident. Cows grazing in the dry lands of the southwest died mysteriously. Autopsies showed rubber pellets in their stomachs.

A German scientist is responsible for bringing guayule to attention as a possible source of rubber. He started commercial experiments with it in Mexico long before there was a Hitler. His work began around 1878, after prices of rubber from Brazil, then the only source went sky high.

The scientist had trouble with processing experiments, however, and abandoned the idea after an Englishman, Sir Henry Wickham, brought prices down by a more direct method: smuggling rubber seeds out of the Amazon valley and planting them in an organized way in the East Indies.

The scientist's work was carried on by the Intercontinental Rubber company, by plant breeding, increasing the rubber content of guayule, and improving machinery to plant, harvest and process. The rubber company was not able to bring the price of guayule rubber down low enough to compete with tree rubber.

During this price squeeze, which began in 1922, guayule looked like a natural for those who wanted to get rich quick. It was planted widely in the southwestern United States. But in four years, just the time it took to harvest the first guayule crop, East Indies natives smuggled tree rubber westward and broke the monopoly there. Prices crashed. California acres planted in guayule became more profitable as building lots. The Intercontinental Company kept on with experiments on its 1,000-acre plantation at Salinas, Calif., as well as in Arizona and Texas. The shrub was easy to grow. It needed only 6 to 12 inches of rain a year, and thrived on dry heat. Lack of moisture built up the rubber content. Continued selective planting increased the rubber in the average shrub from 10 to 22 per cent of the dry weight.

As a result, the only existing supply of high test guayule seed in the world was in Intercontinental's hands when Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor made it necessary for this country to obtain rubber from sources other than our normal ones in the southwest Pacific.

Unfortunately, the available supply of seeds would plant only 45,000 acres this spring. If these were planted, there would be enough seed next spring to plant 450,000 acres.

Miracles cannot be expected from guayule any more than from other rubber sources. "It would require several years to make the guayule shrub an important commercial source of rubber," the tariff commission reported last September.

Guayule could, however, produce some rubber for use next year if the pinch were tight enough to demand it. The 45,000 acres of seed now available would yield 1,500 tons next spring. This would cost 80 cents a pound, as much or more than synthetic rubber and three to four times the current price for tree rubber.

The most economical time to harvest guayule is at the end of four years' growth. The same 45,000 acres would give 21,800 tons in 1946, at a cost of 15 to 19 cents a pound—lower than the present tree rubber price.

He'ps For Housewives

Here is an easy and safe way to launder dainty lace collars: Make up a hot suds with mild soap or soap powder, put in fruit jar, add collars and cover with lid. Let soak 5 minutes and then shake gently several times. Rinse thoroughly in 3 cold rinse waters. Carefully shake out the collars and let dry on turkish towel. Press on wrong side with warm iron.

If you wear rubber or canvas work gloves when cleaning silver, dusting and doing general house straightening, you will find your hands will be much softer. This is especially advised during cold weather and when the wash water is hard.

To prevent marks and wrinkles on velvet gowns hang them on padded hangers and allow plenty of closest space. Inspect frequently to make sure that they have not slipped or been pushed over against clothing stored in the closet.

Cream cheese mixed into boiled dressing makes tangy covering for plain, frozen or jellied fruit salad. Try some chopped mint in French dressing served with lettuce salad when there is lamb on the menu.

When bananas are to be cooked select those a firm, yellow and slightly greenish on the tips. Bananas for eating should be a golden yellow in color and with brownish flecks scattered over the skin.

For a piquant cocktail stick, stuff three inch stalks of crisp, tender celery with white cream cheese to which diced shrimp and salad dressing have been added. Chill until serving time.

When pie crust is baked, before filling is added, do a good job of pricking the crust with a fork, all over the bottom and on the sides of the unbaked crust. This will prevent blisters in the crust.

Celery tops, one of the cheapest sources of vitamins and minerals, may be boiled with turnips, carrots, onions or cauliflower to give an interesting new flavor. The stock makes excellent soup, stew or sauce.

To raise the pile on chenille garments, after they have been laundered and dried, go over lightly with a soft brush. Handle carefully to prevent tearing or pulling out of threads.

Ex-Postmaster At Robert Lee Dies
ROBERT LEE, March 5, 1942—N. C. Brown, 83, former school teacher and postmaster here, died this morning. He served as postmaster about 18 years.

The widow and ten children survive. Funeral services will be Friday afternoon.

Rubber Trees Grow in Texas

Malaya is not the only spot in which rubber trees grow. The giant 19-year-old ficus tree, which Mrs. Don Gladney, Dallas, taps for its sap, is one of many varieties of rubber-producing plants and trees to be shown at the Gardens of the Americas flower show in Dallas March 21-29. This 40-foot tree is cut back twice a year because of its rapid growth.

Navy's Effectiveness Drives Axis To Rash U-Boat Tactics

WASHINGTON, March 5, 1942—The Navy's effectiveness in maintaining ocean supply lines despite enemy counteraction was credited today with driving the axis powers to rash tactics in their submarine campaign to divert U. S. fleet units to home waters.

Naval experts said the enemy seemed to be growing more reckless in attempts to create a panicky fear of coastal raiding activities here and in Latin America. They cited as an example the shelling of Mona Island, off Puerto Rico, where there was no conceivable military reason for the enemy to waste a shell or risk a ship.

Both the Germans and Japanese must be fully aware, it was said, that the steadily increasing flow of American munitions to the battlefronts in Europe, Africa and Asia will have to be broken up this spring and summer if the axis nations are to prevent its becoming an overwhelming flood of defeat for them.

One means of accomplishing this would be to force such a popular demand for unlimited coastal protection in the Americas that the Navy would be compelled to give up some of its offensive patrol and convoy duties for purely defensive activities in this hemisphere.

Into this strategy of panic, authorities here fit the current wave of U-boat attacks off the Atlantic coast, sporadic submarine assaults on west coast shipping, the shelling of oil centers in California and at Aruba, and the bombardment of Mona Island.

The three latter attacks, it was noted, gave indications of recklessness. The submarines which drew close enough to pour shells into Aruba, and Goleta, California, ran a grave risk of destruction for relatively small immediate accomplishment. The sub which shelled Mona Island, tourist and fishing resort and location of an NYA camp, could accomplish nothing at all directly except to show that United States territory could be bombarded.

Oil Allowable Change Studied

AUSTIN, March 5 (AP)—The Texas railroad commission scheduled an emergency conference today to study revision of authorized oil allowable for March.

The meeting was set as a result of a recommendation from Federal Petroleum Coordinator Harold Ickes that Texas production be cut to 1,388,000 barrels daily. Current production, is estimated at 1,478,000 barrels.

Chairman Ernest O. Thompson favored three additional shutdown days for March in order to bring Texas output within the revised estimate of the office of the petroleum coordinator which originally had estimated 1,510,000 barrels would be needed to meet daily demand in Texas.

Nine non-producing days have already been stipulated for March. Each additional shutdown would cut average daily production by about 60,000 barrels.

pepsia. The suffering became almost unbearable. My bowels were very irregular, causing my system to be filled with poison. My whole body was one pain after another. My joints became stiff and sore. Due to weak kidneys I had to get up several times a night. My nerves were shattered. I had no appetite. I became very run-down, and lost weight.

"Since taking Hoyt's Compound, I can eat anything without pain in my stomach. My food digests and the sourness and bloating have gone. My bowels are regular, my sleep unbroken. Hoyt's Compound is recommended by the Collins Bros. Drug Store and by leading druggists in this entire area.—adv.

Sudan Pastures Pay Dividends In Beef Cattle Production

Sudan pastures have been used by scores of farmers of Howard county for the past several years to produce beef. Some of them claim that they have found the Sudan acreage as profitable as the acreage planted to cotton on their farms.

The general method is to secure calves at this time of the year or a little later, run them on Sudan until frost, then give them a short feeding period of about 90 to 120 days and market them. In this way the outlay of cash amounts only to the cost of the calves plus a small amount for cottonseed meal.

Plans for this method of beef production must include 1) good calves and 2) the production of necessary pasture and feed. It is advised that good seed—proven by germination tests—be used, that Sudan be fenced to keep stock out of other crops, seed be treated to prevent smut, well-known and proven varieties of feed crops be planted for fall feeding. Since cane may be used for silage under AAA regulations, it may be used for roughage.

Early Planning Of Poultry Flocks Urged By Committee Head

If the farmers of Howard county expect to increase the size of their laying flock, it will be necessary to start planning now, advises Glenn Cantrell, who is chairman of the poultry committee of the Howard county war board. Mr. Cantrell has recently received 600 baby chicks as a starter for his fall laying flock.

He says that in addition to buying good stock, one of the most important things to consider when starting a brood of chicks is to have the brooder house clean and dry and to have the brooder set up and heated prior to the arrival of the chicks, since chilling will cause the chicks to grow off slowly. It is also important not to let the chicks get too hot as this will cause trouble in later days.

Among other things of importance, Cantrell added, are: 1) keep brooder house clean, 2) keep clean, fresh water out at all times, 3) use a good starter mash, 4) have green feed available and 5) provide plenty of minerals and vitamins in order to insure strong, healthy pullets.

Cantrell warned against dependence upon "cure-all" chicken remedies and antiseptics. Any member of the poultry committee, the county agent's office, or the home demonstration agent will furnish information on brooding chicks to anyone interested.

Early brooding of baby chicks is more desirable than later chicks, since the pullets will come into production in early fall and will be in full production for the high priced Christmas market.

Save Rain To Grow More Food, Advises County War Board

To increase food production, save the rain, advises the county USDA war board. Contour farming is one of the simplest means of saving moisture in this area.

Records at the Spur experiment station show that contour rows allowed an average of only .58 of an inch of runoff from a 10-acre field while straight rows allowed an average of 1.41 inches from the same size field.

These experiments have been in progress since 1927 on land that is so level it has only 1-2 foot fall per 100 feet — practically flat ground.

The sale of meat is prohibited in Egypt during three days a week because of short supplies, according to the department of commerce.

Stolen Tire Rolled Into Hands Of Law

An 11-year-old boy who stole a tire from an automobile in Big Spring rolled it right into the hands of the law.

Constable Jim Crenshaw had stopped at a filling station to service his car when the youngster rolled the tire up to the station proprietor to offer it for sale.

When approached by the officer, the youngster admitted stealing the tire, said he was led into it by the older boys, and showed the officer where they got it. The culprit was then taken to his home. "I just turned him over to his parents," the constable said. "I don't know what happened but from the look on the father's face I have a pretty good idea."

SCHOOL ABANDONED PHILADELPHIA, March 5. (AP) Because it would be unsafe in the event of an air raid, the 74-year-old George W. Vaughan elementary school building was abandoned today by the board of education. The board announced the three-story Brownstone structure had been found structurally unsafe.

REA Copper Allotment Criticized

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)—Top officials of the War Production Board were accused by a house committee today of "reckless disregard" for conservation of war-needed copper in allowing construction of Rural Electrification administration lines in Texas and Arkansas.

Chairman Donald M. Nelson was not spared in the report, which the house military affairs committee submitted to congress. It charged WPB Power Chief J. A. Krug had indicated to the committee Krug was "not amenable to congress." It said also that the committee members were "not favorably impressed" with WPB Chief Counsel John Lord O'Brien's attitude toward constructing the lines, allegedly duplicating private facilities.

The report was based upon hearings by a sub-committee headed by Representative Faddis (D-Pa.), one member of which, Representative Fitzgerald (D-Conn.) asserted in a minority report the sub-committee was "subjected to a lot of wild and careless statements by the power trust which the majority report readily accepted as correct."

A third report, embracing the "independent views" of Representatives Sparkman (D-Ala) and Brooks (D-La) who said it would be signed by four other members of the full committee today, criticized the sub-committee for not calling Nelson.

to the Defense Plant corporation's big aluminum plant under construction at Lake Cathartes, near Hot Springs, Ark.

The other phase of the hearings dealt with construction by the Brazos Electric Transmission cooperative and the Farmers Electric Generating corporation of a line from Texas' Possum Kingdom dam, west of Fort Worth, to Garland, Tex., site of two defense plants, and another from Garland to a proposed generating plant at Gilmer, Tex.

The majority report, approved by 17 members of the full committee, charged all three operations duplicated existing private facilities, and urged cancellation of the recently-started Arkansas line, which it said would "waste over three quarters of a million pounds of copper," charges disputed in the other reports.

The Texas line, the one to Garland from the dam virtually completed, entails the majority charged, a wastage of "close to 5,000,000 pounds of copper and vast amounts of other critical materials and generating and manufacturing equipment."

Birth Record Necessary For SS Benefits

Many inquiries and investigations have been made recently in regard to the procedure which should be followed by individuals in establishing their proof of age. A large number of such inquiries were made on the social security board. These requested information for ready reference when the time comes for them to file claim for federal old-age and survivors insurance benefits, according to Elliott W. Adams, manager of the Big Spring office of the board.

Meyer Making Experiments In Training

FORT WORTH, March 5.—Experimentation has been the keynote of Coach Dutch Meyer in the first half of spring football practice at Texas Christian university.

The experimentation has included variation of types of attack and personnel.

Single wing, short punt and double wing with a flanker back (favorite formation of the '41 campaign) have all come in for a lot of attention from Coach Meyer.

Uncertainty as to just what boys will make up the 1942 grid squad—because of the war—has caused the coaching staff to shuffle players and positions more than is ordinarily done in spring practice.

"We have looked pretty good at times, and we've looked pretty bad at times!" is the way Meyer sums it up.

"If the 40 boys who are out for practice now are still on the squad next fall, we'll have a pretty fair entry in the Southwest conference race. But that if it appears right now to be a pretty big one."

The first-string line-up has varied considerably from time to time, as experiments have been carried on. But a reasonably accurate listing shows the "A" team to be made up of nine lettermen and two sophomores. Four seniors and five juniors are included in the nine lettermen.

At ends are Capt. Bruce Alford, senior, and Paul Admire, sophomore; tackle, Derrell Palmer, senior, and Clifton Patton, sophomore; guards, Joe Rogers and Mike Harter, both seniors; center, Jim Woodfin, junior.

In the backfield, Frank Medanich, junior who played right half last season, has been running at tailback; Johnny Hall and John Bond, both juniors, at halfbacks; and Bob McCollum, junior, at fullback.

Man's Slayer Being Sought
DALLAS, March 5. (AP)—State and city police searched here for the slayer for Rudolph Canan, 25-year-old San Antonio mining engineer, after his car was found abandoned on a downtown street yesterday.

Canan's body was found Sunday night on the highway between Plano and McKinney. He had been shot through the head.

The car was believed to have been driven to Plano through Dallas from New Mexico. Blood smears were found about the car. Detective Inspector Will Wright said.

Detective Captain Fred Palmer of San Antonio said his men had confirmed that Canan negotiated with a San Antonio travel bureau to transport passengers to New Mexico. Travel bureau cards from San Antonio and Corpus Christi were found among Canan's effects.

Three Teams Land Places On City's All-Star Quint

Two members from the Crystal Cafe championship team, two from Cosden and one from Carnet, the runner-up, landed on the City-WPA recreational department all-star team for the city basketball last season.

Chosen for the first team were McCright of Cosden and Heuvel of Crystal at forwards, Hunt of Crystal at center; Bolden, Cosden, and Chapman, Carnet, at guards. On the second team landed eight men. Lyles (Crystal), Harlan (Carnet) and Martin (Cosden) were listed at forwards; Dawson (Carnet) at center, Carroll (Carnet), Vaughn (Vaughans), Asbury (Crystal) and Turner (Carnet), guards.

In the slow league, Smith (Lions) and Phillips (ABC), were placed as forwards on the slow league first team. Abernathy (Radford) went at center and Jowers (Radford) and C. Thomas (Sea Scouts) at guards.

On the second team were Richbourg (Radford) and Mims (Boy Scouts), forwards; Tucker (Sea Scouts), center; Lovelady (ABC) and Johansen (Lions).

Choices were based not only on the individual ability of the players, but also upon the consistency with which players participated in games. Some who were man for man better players had to be left off of the selections because they did not participate in all or as great a number of games.

SPORTS ROUNDUP
By HUGH FULLERTON, R.

RICHMOND, Va., March 5.—Sports report from the south: Big problem facing sports fans and writers here is how to take in all the events crammed into the next few days. As a sample, Ben Waxman of the News Leader flew to Raleigh, N. C., to get the Southern conference basketball tournament started today. Then he'll visit Norfolk for the Virginia Golden Gloves and will go from there to Charlottesville for the eastern intercollegiate boxing championships. Meanwhile there's the little matter of getting the baseball season warmed up and a brand new ball park ready for it and chaperoning the crack John Marshall high basketball team (which won 23 straight games after losing its opener) through the Duke-Durham eastern tournament and the southern states affair up at Glens Falls, N. Y. ... Who said anything about a 40-hour week? Make it 60 days.

Virginia ham-lets.—Williamburg—Carl Voyles, William and Mary grid coach, has broken the ice by asking permission from the rest of the conference to use freshmen next fall. The Indians have a tough schedule, including Harvard and Dartmouth who will use freshmen. Norfolk—Fred Apostoli, who is the senior athletic instructor at the naval base now, finally has a "shipmate" who can give him a tussle in the ring. Billy Soose has just arrived. Bob Feller, who wants to be regarded as just another sailor, takes his daily workouts with a punching bag or the golf driving nets. Richmond—Word here is that Virginia can have the P. G. A. golf tourney next summer if someone will put up $15,000 and the local divot diggers sure would like to see Sammy Snead and his five or six golfing brothers all shooting for the title.

Today's guest star.—H. G. Salsinger, Detroit News: "While the government set the clocks of the nation ahead an hour to prolong daylight and conserve electric power, the major league plan to use as much power as last year."

Sportpourri.—That news that Bernie Bierman will coach the Navy's pre-flight training school at the U. of Iowa may be the hottest thing that has hit the sports headlines in a long time. When he was recruiting up around Minneapolis recently Bernie interviewed practically the whole Minnesota athletic staff as well as a lot of former Gopher players. The whole North Carolina grid staff also has been making inquiries. We hear that's just one phase of the Navy's program of training sailors at colleges, so it looks as if there will be plenty of action in the stadia no matter what happens to the ordinary variety of intercollegiate sports. When the Weber junior college swimmers came to Colorado U. with a gal diving star, Colorado recruited one of their own to perform with an otherwise masculine team. Clark Griffith admits he's interested in a deal for Bobo Newsom because "if he gets in shape he can win for anybody."

Six Are Named To All-Star Squad
SEATTLE, March 5. (AP)—There are six men on the all star basketball team of the Pacific Coast conference, northern division.

Two centers, Ray Turner of Idaho and John Mandic of Oregon State, were so good both were awarded places on the all-division "quintet."

'41 Cage Champions Now With Uncle Sam
SAN DIEGO, Calif., March 5. (AP)—It isn't likely that San Diego State, winner of last year's national inter-collegiate basketball championship at Kansas City will romp off with the title this year.

Seven of the 10 1941 team members are in military service, an eighth is an aircraft worker and the other two expect to make it 100 per cent for Uncle Sam soon.

Phils' Chief, For A Change, Is Happy Man

MIAMI, Fla., March 5. (AP)—For possibly the first time any living man can remember, the manager of the Philadelphia Phils this spring is a happy exuberant individual who can scarcely wait for the baseball campaign to start. He is Hans Lobert, and Hans is full of beans.

Ordinarily, the manager of the Phils (while the last) is a silent, morose gentleman who would much rather be back home attending to his feed and grain business. But not this one. Lobert honestly wanted to manage the Phils, and he is going to have more fun out of it than an acre of monkeys. Boy, bring on those other National League clubs!

As a starter, or warm-up for bigger things to come, Hans has picked himself a fight with the President Larry MacPhail of the champion Brooklyn Dodgers. It's on the level. MacPhail, according to one close to him, is so angry at Lobert he's practically in a rage. That is the angriest MacPhail can get. Lobert is tickled silly about it.

"Who does this MacPhail think he is?" chortled the robust, elderly Hans. "He can't run men, even if they are champions. Why in hell should I let them use my park. I've got my own plans. I'll probably give MacPhail a real blast about tomorrow."

As a matter of plain, unadulterated fact, Lobert simply is being ornery about it. Brooklyn, forced to alter its plans, faced a three-day layover in Miami and didn't have a park to work in. The Phils have a beauty that they couldn't possibly have used all day. So the Dodgers asked for a lift, and Lobert, suspecting that Lobert had landed and was feeling truculent. Conceive their pain when Hans not only said no, but added something about it being a "bush league trick."

"I didn't say MacPhail was a bush-leaguer," Lobert says, virtuously. "I only said it was a bush-league trick for MacPhail to come down here and try to grab my park after he's already had a two-week start on us training over in Havana. Who does he think he is?"

"It's all right with me about cancelling the game we were going to play here March 11. We've booked one with the Giants on the 12th to take its place. Furthermore, I'm glad they've cancelled those two other games at Daytona Beach. They were going to run a minor league team in on us, anyhow, while the regulars were over playing on the west coast. I probably could make them play all three games if I wanted to, but I don't. Let 'em go, and let MacPhail get sore."

It is barely possible that the thing will be smoothed out. The Dodgers' chief scout, Ted McGrew, is in town doing some persuasive talking to President Garry Nugent of the Phils. Among other things, McGrew can point out that the Dodgers have at times been very nice to the Phils in a financial way, and this might sway Nugent. But it will take more than that sort of talk to make Lobert share his ball park.

12-Man Football Sponsor Is Now Without Job
OKLAHOMA CITY, March 5. (AP)—Os Doenges, the man who brought a hard-to-pronounce name and 12 man football to Oklahoma City university, isn't football coach anymore.

He will be succeeded by Jess Thompson of the Cameron Aggies at Lawton. His teams won three state junior college titles in as many years.

The twelfth man in Doenges' gridiron variation was the coach. He was supposed to call the play and then step back to see what happened so as to know what to do next time.

Somehow, it never worked out just right.

Van Wins First In State Play
AUSTIN, March 5. (AP)—Lanky Robert Stringer who accounted for 20 points in 20 minutes sparked the Van high school quintet to a 56 to 30 triumph over Geiseville in the opening Class A game of the Intercollegiate league championship basketball tournament here today.

No Tennis Balls For O.U. Practice
NORMAN, Okla., March 5. (AP)—The start of tennis practice at the University of Oklahoma resembled the preliminaries of a rummage sale.

Too late, Coach Leslie Hewes learned that sporting goods stores were fresh and permanently out of tennis balls. He sent his teams rummaging through their closets.

Practice began with one dozen balls, slightly worn.

DiMaggio, Wanting A Raise, Says 'Look At The Record'

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 5. (AP)—Joe DiMaggio, baseball's highest salaried player and No. 1 holdout, broke the silence surrounding his salary negotiations with the world champion New York Yankees today to tell why he has not signed for the 1942 season.

"I don't like to have to wrangle for my salary," he said, "but the only contract the club has offered me was for $37,000, exactly the same as I got last year."

"All I have told Ed Barrow (president of the Yanks) is that I think I deserve a raise. I didn't give him any figure, so it isn't true that I am holding out for anything exorbitant. I simply said to look at the record and see if I didn't deserve a raise."

The record, it might be mentioned, would show that DiMaggio had an incomparable batting streak of 56 consecutive games last season, had an average of .357, hit 30 homers, led the circuit in runs batted in with 125 and was voted the most valuable player in the American league for his part in leading the Bombers to their fifth world championship in six years.

"Did I get a bonus for my batting streak?" He repeated a question. "Hah. I did not. I didn't even get a pat on the back. Nobody even said thank you."

"The club made money last year; Barrow admits that. And it won the championship. Now it would be one thing if they offered me whatever raise they thought I earned, but I don't think it's fair to send me a contract for the same dough they were offering me a year ago."

"Yes, I know they say it is the usual procedure. But I don't like the 'usual procedure.' I don't want to have to argue for weeks every year for what the club ought to offer in the first place. What's the

Tyler School Headed After Another Title

TYLER, March 5. (AP)—The Tyler Apaches will go to Coosa Creek tonight to start a play-off for the Texas Junior college conference championship—but that's nothing new.

Here, in this one sport which they have been doing that for four years, never finishing lower than runner-up in the state tournament.

In fact, Tyler college has one of the greatest winning records in basketball to be found anywhere in the nation: 130 victories against 28 defeats in five seasons.

In 1933, Will Ward became coach of the Apaches. The team won the state title that year and repeated in 1939. In 1940 it was runner-up to John Tarleton and last season tied for the title with John Tarleton and Robert E. Lee.

In 1941 the team had a record of 26 victories in a row and this year had rolled up 17 before losing to Lon Morris.

"We've just been lucky, that's all," said Ward, proving his point by the Apaches' thirteenth victory that came not on Friday the thirteenth but the night after.

Leading the Tyler quintet is Big Buck Overall, who has scored 1333 points in three years. A knee injury has hampered him most of this season but he still was able to get 229 points in 18 games.

Tyler plays Robert E. Lee Junior college at Coosa Creek, returns here March 10 for the second game and a third, if necessary, will be staged at Huntsville March 13.

New Mexico Mines of Socorro last night staged an upset by defeating the New Mexico Aggies, 41 to 33. Peppardine outpointed the Texas Miners, 49 to 44.

Editorial— One Way To Solve The Problem Of 'Morale'

MORALE—Condition as affected by, or dependent upon, such moral and mental factors as zeal, spirit, hope, confidence, etc. (Webster's New International Dictionary).

That's a definition of morale, about which we are hearing and reading a lot these days. There has been great concern about the morale of the army and of the people.

We wonder if there hasn't been too much emphasis on "morale," or at least on the methods set up to boost and maintain it.

Take the army. The observers were worrying some months ago about its morale—but you don't hear anybody worrying now about the morale of General MacArthur's men, or of the valiant airmen and aviators who are battling in the Pacific. Their morale is very good, thank you; and you can depend on American youth to prove its mettle in time of test.

Now, the concern is for the public. We're worried about whether to continue this or that type of athletics; whether to institute this or that recreational program; whether there is enough amusement to keep up the people's spirits.

Well, there are ways of boosting morale rather than through entertainment. A busy people have little time to fret about their state of mind, and Heaven knows this country needs to be busy. Full activity in behalf of such worthwhile war efforts as the Red Cross, assistance for soldiers and sailors and their families, the units devoted to home defense—this activity creates automatically a zeal that is one factor in morale. Daily prayer—which this country more than ever is recognizing as an essential—is the best thing we know of to inspire hope and to strengthen the spirit. And hope and spirit are strengthened, too, by an appreciation of the freedoms which we are fighting to maintain.

And work—real productive work which we are called on to do—builds hope and confidence. When we have produced, we are confident that we have the power to defeat the enemy and to return again to peace and honorable living.

Let us appreciate the blessings that we have; let us walk closer with God; and let us stay busy at the tasks put before us. And our morale will be unquestionable and unquestioned.

SHOW BOAT GIRL

By ROBERTA COURTLAND

CHAPTER ONE
LAMP'S OUT!

"Old A's sure growling," said Gran, peering anxiously out of the window, against which the fury and storm of an early spring rain was hurling itself spitefully. Beyond the little ancient cabin perched high on a bluff above the twisting, twisting yellow river, the trees bent their newly-leaved branches humbly before the fury of the wind.

"I know," answered Melissa anxiously as she pulled on her oilskin slicker and tucked the warmly red-dish masses of her curls beneath the brim of her ancient sou'wester hat. "The boys on the river will need plenty of light tonight."

Gran turned swiftly, her wrinkled old face lit with anxiety, her old eyes frightened behind their old-fashioned steel-rimmed spectacles.

"You ain't goin' to take the boat out tonight?" she pleaded.

"Of course not," answered Melissa soothingly. "I'll walk around to the Point—it's not far. I'll be back by the time supper's ready."

Gran watched her pick up the coal-oil can and protested, "But you just filled and cleaned the lamp this morning."

Melissa nodded. "But it's just the sort of day for some moonshiner to decide that the best grade of coal-oil to keep his mash at the right temperature is the kind that Uncle Sam furnishes the lamp tinders," she answered cheerfully.

She let herself out into the fury of the spring storm and gasped as the wind all but lifted her off the flat stone that made the step of the little cabin. She paused for a moment to look down at the furious yellow river, a great, snarling yellow beast that roared and screamed as it hurled itself between its banks, reaching lawlessly for lowlands, biting viciously at the cliffs that men had thought could keep the Mississippi chained.

But darkness was close at hand and she had a walk of almost a mile to light the lamp that, set high above the steep cliff at the Point, formed a beacon for the guidance of river-pilots and others who used the great river as a thoroughfare. So she set off at a brisk pace, head tucked against the fury of the wind.

Through dripping woods, along a narrow path that had been cut by the feet of her father, her grandfather and her great-grandfather on their way to tend the lamp at Black Point, she hurried as fast as she could. To her sharp relief, the lamp had not been moved since morning, when she had turned out its flame, cleaned its glass and filled its basin fresh.

She lighted it and fastened it high on the pole that held it, so that its small yellow flame, burning steadily through the mist and storm of the black Mississippi night, would tell the river-pilots when they were in danger of losing their course.

She stood for a moment, her task finished, and looked from the high cliff-bank down at the writhing, twisting yellow river. The old Mississippi was a majestic sight at any time; but now, swollen with heavy spring rains, with the rising waters in its tributaries, it was a fearsome sight that made Melissa shudder a little as she looked down at the wicked yellow tongues that snapped and bit at the base of the cliff on which the Black Point lamp was burning steadily.

And then, because darkness was close at hand, she turned and hurried back toward the little cabin, the windows of which shone a homely welcome to her through the thickening dusk.

She had been born here in this little old cabin as her father had been before her, and his father before him. Her grandmother had come to this cabin as a bride; and the cabin had been old then Built of logs, fastened together with hand-made pegs, there was not a nail in it. Sturdy and staunch and weather beaten, it would cheerfully offer shelter to other generations as she had.

As she thrust open the door and the wind blew her into the main room of the cabin, the fragrance of home-cured ham sizzling in an iron skillet brushed her nostrils, and Gran said anxiously, "You're back. Everything must have been all right."

"It was, thank goodness," Melissa answered as she shed her oilskins and mopped her dripping face with the coarse towel hanging on a nail. "It's a grand night for staying close to the fire, with a good book."

"Supper's ready," said Gran happily, as she always vastly relieved that Melissa had made her trip to the lamp and returned safely.

During supper the fury of the storm increased; and when they went to bed, a little before nine, the sturdy little house was being buffeted by a screaming wind that made Melissa's nerves crisp and tingle a little. But she was tired and fell asleep almost instantly.

She had, of course, no way of knowing what awakened her, nor how long she had slept; but she came to herself with the sharp, instinctive knowledge that something was wrong. She sat up in bed and listened. The storm seemed to have lessened a little. She drew back the curtain beside her window and peered out into the darkness.

For a moment she didn't realize what was wrong. And then the realization struck her, even as she slid out of bed and began to dress with fingers that flew at their task.

Gran, always a light sleeper, was awake, demanding swiftly, "What's wrong, Lisa? What're you doing up?"

"The lamp's out!" said Melissa briefly, and reached for the big flashlight that was always kept close at hand.

"Oh, my God—a cave-in," whispered Gran, in a tone sharp with panic.

"I'm afraid so, darling—but don't worry. I'll get the lantern up—"

Melissa had gone before she finished the last word, and Gran's protest followed her as she raced out of the house, pulling her slicker about her, buttoning it with her free hand, her flashlight tucked securely under one arm, the emergency lantern provided for such a moment as this held tightly in her hand.

The thing that every Mississippi lamp-tender and his family dreads all else is a cave-in. The river, licking at the base of cliffs and bluffs, eats away the earth until suddenly the bank folds in on itself and slips down into the water, where only a bit of dirty yellow foam marks its passing.

And since the lamps that guide river-boats are fastened to the tops of these bluffs and cliffs, that means that for the time being the guiding lamp is out; and swiftly as is humanly possible the emergency lantern must be swung from a tree as close as possible to the spot from which the lamp had been accustomed to burn.

Out of the Storm

Melissa's father had lost his life in a cave-in, as had her grandfather. But the memory of that did not deter her now as she hurried as fast as she could along the narrow path their feet had made, on her errand. Lamp-lighting had been a part of the family life for four generations; and deeply instilled in Melissa was the thought that the light must be kept burning, at no matter what cost to herself.

Fortunately there was a tree near the edge of the broken, jagged lip that showed where the cliff with its steadily burning lamp had gone down. Climbing the tree so that the light could be hung as high as possible, that its feeble yellow glow might reach its absolute limit, was not easy in that storm; but, gritting her teeth, and wincing a little as the skin of one palm was torn and a knee badly scratched, Melissa reached the goal she had set for herself and wedged the lantern securely in place, drawing a little sigh of relief as the light glowed steadily forth.

She could take her time about the return trip to the cabin except that Gran would be frantic with worry until she got back. She drew a long, hard breath, buttoned the oilskins more snugly beneath her coat and set out, the round white beam of her powerful flashlight cutting like a sharp knife through the thick gloom.

She had gone halfway to the Man About Manhattan— This Guy Cantor Never Seems To Be In Hurry

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Yesterday between 1 p. m. and 1:43 p. m. Eddie Cantor got out of bed, pulled a dressing gown over his red figured pajamas, downed a goblet of citrus juice, knocked over three poached eggs, toast, coffee, hot cereal, confirmed an appointment with Edward G. Robinson, conferred with his managers, made a date to rehearse a new song, discussed the sale of naval relief tickets, commented on the news, defined the missions of actors, especially comedians, in war time, and submitted to an interview—all in 43 minutes.

The man with the Wednesday radio show and the Musical Comedy hit, "Banjo Eyes," on Broadway, did all this easily and unhurriedly, as though he himself were a machine equipped with push-button station changers. You know how they work. If you push a new button, you get a new tune.

I pushed a button marked "Jack Benny":

"A very swell guy. A very liberal guy. Not long ago I sent him a telegram, asking for money for some refugee kids. He wired back, 'Dear Eddie, I got your wire but I was disappointed. You didn't ask for half enough.'... And he doubled the request.... Jack Benny is a very swell guy, a very liberal guy, and a very great comedian."

I pushed a button marked, "Actors in War Time."

"I'm going to see Eddie Robinson in a little while. Next to Cary Grant and one or two others he's given more money and time to the USO than anybody else. On one occasion he gave a hundred thousand dollars, and you know how he explained his reasons for doing it? He said, 'This is a small down payment on the privilege of being an American.' Cary Grant has given enormous sums of money to the war effort. Melvyn Douglas has done the best, the most constructive job of anybody in Hollywood."

I pushed a button that asked, "What About Melvyn Douglas?":

"Once upon a time, in California, there was a fruit grower's strike. Melvyn Douglas committed the crime of donating a sum of money to the children of these strikers, so that the little children wouldn't starve. That's why they called him a Pink, a Communist. If you feed a hungry child, you're a Communist. Some people can't forget that their ancestors once

Hollywood Sights And Sounds — Life Could Learn Lot From Movies

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Life ought to take lessons from the movies.

On heroes, for instance. In the movies heroes do things for noble causes. Likely as not, they talk about the noble causes, and in the best words dialogue writers can string together. Heroes look like Jon Hall, or Errol Flynn, or Fred MacMurray.

Jon Hall is on the set of "Eagle Squadron" and so is Pilot Officer John M. Hill of the real Eagle Squadron who doesn't look like Jon Hall and isn't tall like a hero. Pilot Officer Hill is here on leave, to technical-advise the movie story of his outfit. He's 23 and the reason he's here is he was cracked up on an English beach after a channel fight.

Pilot Officer Hill, a cheery fellow, will answer your questions cheerfully. Why did he join up? "Aw, just for the hell of it," he says. He was already a flier, back in Kansas City, when the Eagle Squadron was born, and he went over.

How is it, first time up in a fight? Scary? "First time up? You're scared every time up—but when you get up you're so busy you don't have time to be scared."

How many Nazi planes has he shot down? He parries. So far as anyone at Universal knows, he hasn't shot down any—or he may have shot down 50. "People get a mistaken idea sometimes," he says, "about air fighting today. We go out like a football team—the man who shoots down a plane is like the fellow who makes the touchdown. Could either do it without the rest of the team?"

Now let's translate this into movie dialogue of a sort which (I hope) isn't in "Eagle Squadron":

"Why'd I join up? (Far away look in eye) I'll tell you. I saw things being done that weren't decent... I saw a world enslaved. ... I saw all the loveliness and beauty of life at stake..."

First time up? "I was afraid. Stark terror. I was young. I wanted to feel again the rain on my face, the wind in my hair. I wanted Mom! I didn't want to die! But then I remembered... A Voice came to me from 'way back... Of the people by the people, for the people; the Voice said, 'I forgot fear. I plunged on and—I bagged a dozen enemy ships!'"

How many? "A dozen. It wasn't anything. They were coming at me, from above, below, to right, to left! I saw my Buddy in the sky looking down. My Buddy that those brutes had killed. My Buddy who was young and didn't want to die! My Buddy said, 'Get 'em, Joe—for me.' And I plunged on and—I got 'em!" (Business of far-away look again: "Poor Devils. ... Maybe they were somebody's Buddies too. But—I hate 'em, I tell you, I hate 'em!" (Business of rising hysteria, maybe a tear of two): "I hate 'em all! They can't be men, like you and me—they must be beasts of evil—beasts who would trample on the Flowers of Civilization and strike down all that is good and fine and decent like... like my Buddy!"

Life's got a lot to learn from the movies.

DANGEROUS BAGGAGE

BY ELEANOR ATTERBURY

Chapter 34
BATTLE

Sharon was still standing at the window when she thought she heard the sound of a car on the road above the house. Flinging open the sash, she leaned out, and this time distinctly heard the sound of an engine.

Voices in the living room behind her stopped short. They had heard that engine's purring too.

A moment later the growl of another motor up the grade. Then another! They had found the trail. It was Tom, all right, he-had rejoiced. But what if he didn't follow the false clues of that abandoned car?

She drew back, glanced frantically about the bedroom as if some brilliant scheme might be written on the bright wallpaper.

Sharon stood there by the window for at least an hour. The sun had burst over the last jagged ridge, stanted warm rays at her now. But with every moment, Sharon's hopes turned to despair.

Then she saw someone. A man so far down the ravine, she couldn't be sure at first that he wasn't a figment of her own imagination. Moving slowly up the river channel, he'd stopped, stood looking up the steep incline straight towards the house! But not seeing it, of course, Sharon realized instantly. He was turning away. In another moment, he'd have gone!

Francis, now, she turned back to the little room made one last desperate search for ideas—found none! Snatching up the hand mirror from the dressing table she hung open the window, turned the mirror toward the sun. Years ago, when she was a little girl, she'd signalled her chum so,

The man in the ravine still stood looking up the hillside. He turned once as if to go back along the way he had come. Sharon repressed a little moan. She could follow the reflected beam of sunshine only a little way down the steep slope.

At last he seemed to notice. For several moments he looked directly toward the little stone house. Then, abruptly he turned, walked out of sight.

Sharon sagging to her knees, dropped her head on her arm and wept quietly. It was too much to have hoped he'd really see it. It only made her despair more unbearable now!

Her tears spent finally, she took up her post at the keyhole again. Goodwin and the Countess—their calm confidence in their own cleverness drugged Sharon's hopes into apathy so that when the miracle did happen she was afraid to trust her own senses!

At first, she was aware of the persistent call of some bird. Nothing like any song she'd heard before. Edgy, she lifted her head from the window sill, looked out. There it came again. Nearer this time. Then, again. Nearer.

Then she saw Tom. Not really, of course—just dreaming that she looked out there on that ravine—and saw Tom. He stood almost hidden by shrubbery. He was smiling now.

Eons later while Sharon counted the seconds—the first shot came down from the ravine. Sharon wondered about that, raved back to the window to see.

From the next room, she heard Goodwin shout, "Edda, there's someone in the ravine. Watch this door while I take a look at the back. It may just be someone hunting jackrabbits."

More shots from the ravine and this time they were answered from the stone cabin. After that, Sharon couldn't tell where the reports came from. She could only fling herself face down on the floor and pray that this time Tom would not hold his fire because of her.

Then, as suddenly as the firing had begun, it was all over. The peaceful morning quiet fused quickly over the shattering echoes. And the sound of Tom's voice, steady, cool, in the next room.

"All right Goodwin, just keep them up until we get the bracelets on." Then, "Don't move please, Mrs. Goodwin, until you're ordered to do so."

Fighting her way back through a great roaring that deafened her, Sharon heard someone calling her. "Sharon! Sharon, honey! What have they done to you?"

It was Tom. She tried, but at first couldn't answer. Couldn't even open her eyes.

When she did, she was looking straight into his.

"Tom!" she whispered, and tried to smile.

Tom's arms tightened and, lifting her gently, he carried her out to the long sofa in the living room, laid her on the cushions. Then, sitting down beside her, he took both her hands in his.

"I've got a lot to say to you, Sharon," he began earnestly. "I don't know where to begin."

She smiled, and the color began to seep back into her white face.

And with the kiss Tom pressed against her lip, the clouded darkness of yesterday's despair gave way to the glorious break of a new day.

Tin Can Collection In Dallas Area Urged

DALLAS, March 5 (AP)—H. H. Johnson of the Shredded Steel company, which will operate a plant here for utilizing waste tin, suggested that housewives within a radius of 100 miles save cans, to be collected for processing. The plant, to be built by the Defense Plant corporation, will shred tin cans into metal flakes to be used in copper recovery. Similar plants will be built in Houston and Kansas City.

Senators Dissatisfied With Treasury's New Tax Proposal

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)—Chairman George (D-Ga.) called the senate finance committee together today for informal discussion of the new tax program as evidence appeared of senatorial dissatisfaction with the treasury's recommendations for unprecedented increases in individual and corporate income levels. The treasury program received a generally favorable reception from members of the house and means committee when it was outlined Tuesday, but apparently the reaction would be less cordial in the other wing of the capitol. Senator Taft (R-Ohio), a finance committee member, brought the cloak room criticism into the open with an assertion that the treasury was following an "unwise policy" in proposing a 55 per cent increase which would drain off 55 per cent of the earnings of corporations with more than $25,000 net income annually. Moreover, Taft told reporters he doubted that individual taxpayers could assume the staggering burden of $3,200,000,000 in new levies which the treasury called for from this source. It was likely, he added, that congress would have to soften these increases and turn to new forms, such as a sales tax, in order to produce the needed revenue. The Ohio senator said it was his opinion that if the $3,060,000,000 additional corporation taxes proposed by the treasury were imposed, there might be a consequent stifling of business progress that would be reflected not only in the manufacture of essential civilian goods but in war production as well. The treasury suggested an increase from the present 7 per cent to 31 per cent in surtaxes on the earnings of the larger companies. This would be in addition to the normal 24 per cent tax, which would not be increased.

Herald Carrier Boys Set Fast Pace In Distribution Of Defense Stamps

On a per-boy basis, the little merchant carrier boys of The Big Spring Herald are doing the best job of any newspaper route boys in the state when it comes to stamp and bond sales. On the basis of latest reports in the American Newsboy, the 20 carriers for The Herald had sold an average of 245 stamps (10-cent issue) per week. For comparative purposes, all bond and stamp sales by the boys are broken down into 10-cent denominations. Nearest approach on the boy average was at Amarillo, where 78 newsmen averaged 239 stamps per week. The state average stood at only 93 1/2 stamps per week. In the only city in this territory reporting beside Big Spring, San Angelo showed a weekly average of 31 stamps per boy.

To Check Colorado On Mail Delivery

COLORADO CITY, March 5 — Notification has been received that Colorado City will be rechecked by postoffice authorities March 9 and 10, for free city mail delivery. When first checked several months ago, the town fell short of meeting requirements concerning house numbers and mail boxes. Since that time the Colorado City chamber of commerce has conducted a house-to-house canvass in an effort to remedy these shortcomings.

Transportation To The East Oil Industry's Big Headache

AUSTIN, March 5 (AP)—One of the biggest aches to rack the best minds of the oil industry continues without sign of subsiding. That's the problem of how to get crude oil and gasoline from the great producing areas of the southwest gulf to other coastal regions of the United States and elsewhere in the world, especially to the eastern seaboard of this country. Axis submarines have been torpedoing units of the tank ship fleet which normally carries on this big transportation job. The government is utilizing some in other roles. The entire industry production, refining and retailing is affected. But officials of large and small oil companies have their heads together. Federal and state government regulatory agencies are working on the situation. Oil circles are far from despondent. "One way or another, the problem will be met," said Olin R. Culberson, member of the state railroad commission, administrator of oil in Texas, largest crude producing state in the nation. Culberson took a whack, however, at people who opposed construction last year of a huge pipeline from the gulf to the east. "The industry should now realize the folly of not having built the pipeline from the southwest to the east," he asserted. Indicative of the stress, the Texas Company this week announced it was curtailing sharply production from its own wells and the purchase of crude from other producers in Texas, New Mexico and Louisiana. W. S. W. Rodgers, president, said both crude and refined products,

Local Stock Trade Strong

Volume in sales and numbers sagged slightly at the Big Spring Livestock Commission Co. weekly sale Wednesday, but the market remained steady to stronger. A total of 500 head moved through the ring for an aggregate of $16,000. Top of the day was in light stockers, which sold up to 14.00, about two cents above the selling a week ago. Bulls moved out at 7.50-9.25, a quarter stronger on the top. Fat cows brought 7.50-8.75, with the top three-quarters up from last week. Fat yearlings drew 8.00-10.50, ranging 6.75-8.00. A few hogs put through the ring brought 12.00-12.50, and a handful of lambs went at around 10.00.

cabin before she became conscious of a sound above the storm that was alien—a sound that for a moment froze her in her tracks, while her heart thumped with a sudden terror to which she was entirely unaccustomed. The woods all about her were alive with small game; hunters had even taken a few bears some miles inland; and the dread Black Swamp a mile away was known to be the haunt of huge alligators. But she'd never been molested on this path— Could it be that the storm had driven some evil thing from its lair? There! It came again—a long drawn out, mournful sound. An animal? Something human? It was hard to tell—but whatever it was was between her and the cabin. So much the sound had told her. She knew, too, that her flashlight made her clearly visible to whatever it was— Her heart knocked against her ribs, and for one of the few times in her life she knew actual terror that made her palms cold with sweat and that swelled the tongue in her mouth until her throat closed against any sound— Something plunged lumberingly toward her through the darkness. She swung the beam of her light upon it, and her knees knocked together in a sharp emotion that was midway between relief and fear, because the round white beam of her light showed her a man, not an animal, coming lumberingly towards her, swaying, stumbling, clutching at the bushes as he came. She saw that he was young; that he was dressed in hunting clothes that were torn and mud-stained as though he had plunged through briar patches and fallen in the mud. "Thank—thank the Lord—" he stammered as he came closer and propped his swaying body against the trunk of a huge live oak, peering through the darkness that lay beyond the round white beam that seemed to pin him against the blackness behind him. "Take that thing out of my eyes, can't you? You're blinding me. Who the devil are you?"

Colorado Mapping Defense Program

COLORADO CITY, March 5—A complete defense set-up for Colorado City is being worked out by members of the local defense committee and chairmen of the various divisions. Nat Thomas, local defense chairman, said this week that the town has been divided into 10 zones for air-raid shelter and other purposes. Divisions have been made to include approximately 500 residents each. Future shortages of some consumer goods now being purchased in heavy volume are not likely to be substantial in relation to normal demand, the department of commerce reported.
