Ask Us

Q—Has the city filed condemnation on properties along 37th St. yet?

A—No. Latest word is that the city is waiting for the appraisal figures to come in from an outside appraisal firm, Garrett Russel and Associates of Dallas, before proceeding. Those figures should be in at any time.

In Brief

Ship targeted

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush recommended today that Congress mothball the battleship USS Wisconsin, which the Navy had planned to make the centerpiece of the $150 million Corpus Christi homeport.

The president's budget for fiscal 1992 suggests that the USS Wisconsin, which fired the first shot in the Persian Gulf War, be decommissioned in September.

Rep. Solomon Ortiz, a Corpus Christi Democrat, said there is still hope for keeping the Wisconsin, given its performance in the Persian Gulf, and even if it is mothballed, there is still hope for the homeport.

"We don't have to have the USS Wisconsin to open up our homeport," Ortiz said this morning.

Iran makes surprise offer for peace

While U.S. and Iraqi forces continue to exchange fire

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) — U.S. and Iraqi forces today traded fire across the desert frontier, and Iran's president made a surprise offer to hold direct talks with both Iraq and the United States to try to end the Persian Gulf War.

Allied warplanes, meanwhile, pounded Baghdad before dawn today. Witnesses said communication centers, government offices and industrial installations were hit — some of them for the second and third times since the war began nearly three weeks ago.

U.S. officials disclosed today that the battleship USS Missouri used its 16-inch guns in action for the first time since the Korean War, targeting prefabricated concrete bunkers that the Iraqis were moving into Kuwait.

The newspaper of Iraq's ruling party boasted the Baghdad government would drag the allies into a drawn-out ground war by staging more attacks like last week's Iraqi push into the Saudi town of Khafji.

"Combat on the Saudi periphery should be based on the hit-and-run tactic formulated by our ancestors," the newspaper Al-Thawra said today.

For the moment, Iraqi forces appeared to be in a defensive posture. The U.S. military said Iraqi troops were deeply dug in, seeking shelter from punishing allied air attacks. Those attacks continued today, with F-15s and Tornados roaring north into hazy skies from a Saudi air base.

The allied air strikes have been so effective that senior Iraqi officers are moving their headquarters into schools because "they know we're not going to attack civilian targets," the commander of Operation Desert Storm said.

Asked whether that inhibited the air campaign, Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf said today, "in all probability, yes." But he said he was not concerned.

The general also said he hopes Iraq's claim of 321 civilian casualties from allied bombing was correct.

"I'd hope that reflects exactly what I've been saying all along," (see IRAN, page 8)

Bush sends Congress $1.45 trillion budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush today sent Congress a $1.45 trillion budget that he said prepares America for "a rapidly changing world." But the document is likely to be remembered more for its record deficits than for any new initiatives.

The spending plan for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1 seeks more money for the war on drugs, space exploration, education and highway construction. But the increases are mostly modest, in some cases amounting to only small pilot programs.

The budget acknowledges that the country is mired in a recession but unlike past presidents, Bush offered no government spending initiatives to fight the downturn. Instead, he said his budget focuses on efforts to improve America's long-term competitiveness.

Bush said his budget "lays the groundwork for a brighter future, protects our national interests and helps create the conditions for long-term economic growth and prosperity."

To pay for the programs being increased and to help reduce the budget deficits, the administration is seeking to save $46.6 billion over five years by cutting such government programs as Medicare, farm subsidies and student aid.

The administration did not propose any tax increases to help narrow the deficits but instead called for a tax cut in capital gains, the profits earned from the sale of investments. This proposal stirred heated controversy over the past two years with Democrats charging that it is a giveaway to the rich.

The administration also proposed allowing penalty-free withdrawals from individual retirement accounts for first-time home buyers and creation of a new tax-free family savings plan, both ideas rejected by Congress from last year's budget.

In a reprise of the "new federalism" proposals put forward by Ronald Reagan and Richard Nixon, the administration provides a laundry list of $21 billion in federal programs it seeks to turn over to the states along with the money to pay for them. The list included everything from aid to public libraries to sewage construction (see BUDGET, page 8)

At Towle Park...

Field named in Cates' honor

Scurry County Commissioners this morning named a girls' softball field in Towle Park in honor of a long-time worker in the U.S. Girls Softball Association program in Snyder.

The field was unanimously named in honor of Dale Cates, a long-time girls' softball volunteer leader who died on Aug. 8, 1990.

Cates, who was employed by E.L. Farmer Trucking Co. in Snyder, worked in the girls' softball league for 14 years, serving as a Division IV coordinator, board advisor, coach and all-stars coach.

Cates had two daughters who participated in the program, and his wife, Lavada, was also involved as a volunteer. Mrs. Cates still lives in Snyder and is secretary to the superintendent of Snyder Public Schools.

In the only other agenda item, commissioners heard a report from Terry Hefner of the Soil and Water Conservation District. Hefner told the court that a multi-county Resource Conservation and Development project has been approved and would be announced nationally later in the day.

Scurry County is included in the project and Charlie Henderson, a vice president of West Texas State Bank, will represent the county on the board's executive committee. (see COUNTY, page 8)

Blood drive slated at Towle Park Barn

United Blood Services of Lubbock will hold a blood drive from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m. Tuesday at Towle Park Barn.

"The armed services blood program has asked all participants in the American Association of Blood Banks' National Blood Exchange, which includes United Blood Services, to provide blood and blood products for Operation Desert Storm," a spokesperson from UBS said. "Our nationwide network of UBS has committed to sending 530 pints of blood per week to McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey. At this time, UBS of Lubbock will be responsible for sending 27 pints a week. This is not an emergency. The purpose of this plan is to augment the military blood program while community blood centers continue to meet the needs of area patients."

In appreciation for voluntary blood donations, each participant will receive a coupon for the following: a DQ sundae from Dairy Queen, a malt or milk shake from Sonic Drive In, a medium drink with the purchase of a dessert at Whataburger, a small soft drink and potatoes ole' from Taco John's, a medium drink with any food purchase at Wal-Mart, a 99-cent meal with the same meal at the regular price at Long John Silver's Seafood Shoppe, a dollar off at Golden Corral Steak House and a dessert of choice at McDonald's.

Every tenth donor will receive a six-pack from Coca Cola Bottl- (see DRIVE, page 8)

Speech tournament...

SHS students take sweepstakes again

For the second consecutive year, Snyder High School won sweepstakes at the Ben Brock Memorial Speech Tournament.

Twelve area high schools competed in the day-long event Saturday, held for the third time at Western Texas College.

Students competed in a wide range of events, including debate, poetry interpretation and extemporaneous speaking.

Snyder High School received a total of 154 points, followed by Big Spring with 88 points and Colorado City with 80.

James Beauchamp, Tom Galyean and Jennifer Purcell of Snyder were among the students winning first place.

Individual awards going to

Snyder students were as follows:

—Poetry interpretation: Amy Beaver, second place.

—Prose interpretation: Jennifer Purcell, first place; Emily King, second place; Sara McDonald, third place.

—Informative speaking: Tom Galyean, first place; Courtney Lowrance, second place; Tonya Mauldin, fourth place.

—Persuasive speaking: James Beauchamp, first place.

Also competing from SHS were Christy Christenson, Jannet Nitsch, Blair Williams, Julie Zeck and Mindy Robertson.

Kay Hopper serves as the Snyder High School's Speech Team Coordinator.

Report says arms dealer's ties to Iraq being scrutinized

DALLAS (AP) — Federal agents are investigating whether a Chilean arms dealer with close links to Saddam Hussein modified a commercial helicopter and brought it to Fort Worth for testing before trying to sell it to Iraq.

The 206L-III LongRanger was reconfigured in Chile so it could be transformed into a gunship as part of a low-cost alternative to U.S.-built military attack helicopters, U.S. Customs Service agents in Dallas say.

However, Carlos Cardoen, who operates one of Chile's largest private weapons manufacturers, denies any wrongdoing. He has not been charged with a crime.

Cardoen, 49, furnished Iraq with cluster bombs during the Iran-Iraq war and is the prime target of a U.S. Customs probe in South Florida into possible shipments of munitions, lethal chemicals and military technology to Iraq. The Dallas Morning News reported Sunday.

Such shipments would violate the United Nations embargo imposed after Iraq invaded Kuwait last August.

The helicopter, built by Fort Worth-based Bell Helicopter Textron Inc., remains locked in a storage hanger in Dallas while Customs officials decide if they can seize it.

"That helicopter is of interest to us," said Wayne Frandsen, assistant special agent in charge of the customs service's Dallas office. "We have an ongoing inquiry into it and the individual responsible for bringing it into the country."

Bell has no direct involvement in the modification project, officials said.

Drillers said pulling out of Gulf of Mexico

HOUSTON (AP) — Europe's North Sea could soon have more working drilling rigs than the Gulf of Mexico as a glut of rigs in U.S. waters drags down the daily rental rates, analysts say.

While the Persian Gulf War has focused renewed attention on the need for domestic energy sources, most of the industry's major players — including Rowan Cos., Western Oceanic and Global Marine — have in the past year moved some of their most prized rigs out of the Gulf and into the offshore industry's newest hot spots, including the North Sea, Asia, Venezuela and Mexico.

Analysts say the Gulf of Mexico is glutted with drilling rigs.

Today, 73 of the Gulf's 206 rigs are out of work, dragging down rental rates, or day rates, to their lowest level since the 1986 bust.

A standard jack-up rig in the Gulf today produces between $11,000 and $12,000 a day.

USX, steelworkers come to agreement

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The United Steelworkers' tentative agreement with USX Corp. reclaims pay concessions made in the early 1980s and protects members from corporate shakeups, union negotiators say.

"If things are followed through, it's a great one for all of us, working and retired," said Philip DeNunzio, president of Local 4090 in Braddock.

Both sides announced the settlement in Pittsburgh early Sunday, about an hour after a midnight Saturday strike deadline.

USX negotiator Thomas Sterling said the pact will serve the company's interests, but the country's largest steelmaker declined to confirm details until union members reviewed them.

Union spokesman Gary Hubbard said printed contracts could be distributed to 27 local presidents as early as Tuesday.

If the presidents approve the agreement, it will go to the union's international committee and 20,000 workers at mines and mills in the Great Lakes region and Alabama.

Moneywise, we got up to where the other companies are. We were being treated like second-class steelworkers," said Art Springer, a member of Local 1557 at USX's Clairton plant.

Of note, said chief union negotiator Andrew Palm, is a promise from USX to tell the union if anyone makes a takeover bid. That way, the union could decide whether it wanted to make its own offer.

USW President Lynn Williams said the clause was hashed out when he called USX Chairman Charles Corry just 1½ hours before the deadline.

The deal came after two daylong extensions of the original strike deadline, midnight Thursday. Workers at USX plants in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota and Alabama had prepared to set up picket lines.

"We knew that in those two extra days that we were boring in on something. We could smell it," Palm said. "Anybody can strike, but we felt we could do this without striking."

Said Sterling, the USX negotiator, "A strike would have been costly and competitively damaging, causing deep economic hardship for our people and our company, as well as disruption in our ability to serve our customers."

USX's primary products are oil and natural gas. It created separate steel stock Thursday, leaving open the option of selling its steel mills, ore mines and coke plants.

Palm said the contract allows workers to spend up to $2,500 of their bonuses to buy shares of the new steel stock in a repurchase program.

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I experience heart palpitations about four times a year. I've worn a Holter monitor and have had an EKG done while having the palpitations. Since I don't experience dizziness or lightheadedness, my doctor says they are harmless and he's prescribed Calan 80 milligrams. Sometimes the Calan doesn't work, and I must go to my local emergency room for IV Calan. My doctor feels I'll have to be placed on medication for the rest of my life. Isn't that rather drastic since the palpitations appear to be harmless?

DEAR READER: Palpitations are periods of forceful, rapid or irregular heartbeats. Everybody experiences them on occasion. By and large, they are a harmless annoyance that is worsened by stimulants (such as caffeine), nicotine, stress, anxiety and fatigue. These benign palpitations rarely cause symptoms, other than a mild feeling that something's not right.

In patients with heart disorders, however, palpitations may indicate a tendency toward runaway heart rhythm. Called ventricular tachycardia, this arrhythmia (irregularity) can progress to life-threatening cardiac standstill. Therefore, the significance of the palpitations must be determined in the context of underlying heart disease and symptoms that result. Such a judgment can usually be made after an examination, cardiogram, Holter monitor (24-hour continuous cardiogram), and — in some cases — a stress test.

Evidently, in your case, your heart was pronounced normal. Thus, you may choose to ignore occasional bouts of palpitations. But try to avoid situations that seem to trigger them.

Nonetheless, I am concerned that you have required intravenous drugs to stop your palpitations. This suggests that, for some reason, your attacks last longer and are more troublesome than simple palpitations. From your description, I suspect you are experiencing episodes of supraventricular tachycardia, a common condition marked by prolonged bursts of rapid pulse. Although these attacks are not hazardous to your health (and do not reflect heart disease), you may wish to take medicine continuously to prevent them.

Calan (verapamil, a calcium-channel blocker) is an effective medicine for preventing supraventricular tachycardia and other types of rapid heartbeat. It is available in a long-acting form (Calan-SR), which is taken only once a day. This is not particularly drastic treatment, although it may have to be continued for months or years. I suggest you follow your doctor's advice. If you decide to use medicine, you'll need more than 80 milligrams of Calan a day; this dose appears to have been too low — otherwise you wouldn't have needed additional IV therapy. Ask your doctor about this.

Your Birthday

Feb. 5, 1991

Unless someone offers you a definite proposal, partnership arrangements might not be your cup of tea in the year ahead. You may be much more fortunate in independent endeavors.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It is never wise to totally disregard the opinions of associates, but if you have justification for believing you are right and they are wrong today, be your own person. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's important that you accurately gauge the intent of a friend who requests your opinion today. This individual may want an endorsement rather than an honest analysis.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You might become involved in an endeavor that has promising potential today, but it could be presented in a manner which disguises its true worth. Don't take serious matters at face value.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Decisions you make today should be predicated on their long range benefits rather than on their immediate probabilities. The former will have greater significance than the latter.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your ideas should prove good today if they are carried through to fruition, but don't deceive yourself into thinking they are grander than they actually are. Be a realist.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You should do rather well in your commercial affairs today, provided you do not take undue risks. Operate along traditional, proven lines instead of gambling.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you are too difficult to please today, people with whom you'll be involved might lose heart and give up trying. It's important you properly acknowledge their efforts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're a good thinker today and what you conceive will have good chances for success. By the same token, you're also a good talker and you could replace discussions with productivity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Lady Luck tends to favor you in most of your involvements today. However, in financial matters she may insist that you earn what you get.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It all depends on what you consider a good day. If you think material success is superior to social success, you should be pleased with events.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If there is a clever scheme you wish to consider implementing, it is best you keep it to yourself before you do so. If you don't, there is a chance another will use it first.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Proceed cautiously today in matters that could become costly if not handled properly. If you act without thinking, your financial position may get bruised.

Africa's population of 670 million, still mostly rural, is projected to double in 24 years.

Sunday School teacher kills intruder

HOUSTON (AP) — At the age of 72, the last thing Inez Harris McGrew wanted to buy was a gun. But the Sunday school teacher listened to her stepson as he nagged her to learn to use it.
Mrs. McGrew, a retired nurse, now says she's glad she took those lessons because instinct took over when an intruder burst into her brother's home. Mrs. McGrew shot him four times in the chest, killing him before he could complete his lunge for her throat.
The incident took place about 5:20 a.m. Saturday.
Maurice Howard, 34, paroled in September after serving time for forgery and drug-related convictions, was pronounced dead at the scene, authorities said.
The homicide will be referred to the district attorney's office, but no charges are pending, Belk. "They were protecting their home and they were in fear of their life," said Sgt. J.W.

Banking on a combination

By James Jacoby
Today's North-South were using traditional bidding methods, with the jump to three hearts showing four-card support plus opening-bid values. After South had cue-bid four diamonds and North had shown the ace of spades, South was off to the races. When he discovered his side had all the prime cards, he bid to take all the tricks.

Wranglers to host WTC roundballers

The Western Texas College Westerners, with their backs to the wall as far as post-season possibilities are concerned, travel to battle defending Region V basketball champion Odessa College tonight.

WTC's Lady Dusters, fresh from a good showing, despite a 65-50 loss to No. 3 Howard last Thursday, will tangle with the Lady Wranglers in the evening's early game.

The Westerners upset OC, 96-87, when the Wranglers came to Snyder in December.

"I'm sure they'll remember that," said WTC coach Tony Mauldin.

Western Texas fell to Howard, 100-96, Thursday night, in spite of a frenzied rally that came very close to an upset.

Sophomore Dominick Byrd pounded home 26 points to lead WTC followed by Jeff Shelley's 22.

The Westerners are 16-11 on the season and 3-6 in Western Conference games. Odessa boasts a 19-6 mark in all games and a 6-3 league slate including a 97-91 victory over New Mexico Junior College Thursday.

Coach Kelly Chadwick's Dusters played as well as they have all season in their loss to Howard on Thursday.

"I was real proud of them," the coach stated. "They all played real hard."

Navasota freshman La Shunta Jackson canned 14 points to lead all scorers for Western Texas.

The road for the 8-17, 1-6 Dusters doesn't get much easier as they take on Odessa on the Lady Wranglers' home court.

Odessa swamped WTC, 80-49, on Dec. 3 in Scurry County Coliseum.

The OC women are currently tied for the conference lead with a 6-1 record. They are 21-1 overall after trouncing NMJC Thursday, 92-67.

SHS golfers stay at home

Snyder's Lady Tiger golf team, the defending Class 4-A state runner-up squad, cancelled plans to participate in the Lubbock Invitational Tournament Feb. 1.

According to coach Milton Ham, the decision was made based on the number of days the University Interscholastic League would allow athletes to miss school for sports events.

Ham and the SHS golfers will compete Thursday and Friday in their scheduled San Angelo tournament, according to the coach.

Kelly leads AFC to 23-21 win

HONOLULU (AP) — The Buffalo Bills had a super Sunday.

They could only wish it had come a week earlier.

Turning the Pro Bowl into a Bills' showcase, Jim Kelly, Thurman Thomas, Andre Reed and Bruce Smith led the AFC to a 23-21 victory over the NFC in a well-played contest that went down to the wire.

Miami defensive end Jeff Cross horned in on the Bills' show at the end, preserving the victory by blocking a 46-yard field goal try by the Saints' Morten Andersen with seven seconds remaining.

Voted the MVP of the all-star game, Kelly completed 13 of 19 passes while splitting duty with AFC starter Warren Moon of Houston.

"I would have loved to have won the MVP a week earlier (in the Super Bowl), but this feels good," Kelly said.

The Bills had 10 players, most of any team, in the Pro Bowl game. The Giants topped the NFC with seven representatives.

Buffalo's Andre Reed had four receptions for 80 yards, tops in the all-star game, and caught a 20-yard scoring pass from Kelly. Bills running back Thurman Thomas rushed for a game-high 38 yards on seven carries and also had 36 yards on four receptions.

And Buffalo defensive end Bruce Smith was the defensive star for the AFC with three quarterback sacks and a blocked field goal.

The winning pass to Givins capped an AFC comeback from a 21-13 deficit 9:49 into the final quarter.

After Givins scored, Jim Everett of the Los Angeles Rams drove the NFC from its own 29-yard line to the AFC 28, but Andersen had his kick blocked for the second time in the game.

"We had a chance to pull the game out at the end, but we came up short," said Everett, who replaced the injured Joe Montana on the NFC squad and completed 13 of 18 passes for 138 yards while sharing duty with starter Randall Cunningham of the Philadelphia Eagles.

Cunningham threw the ball well, too, completing 6 of 11 for 168 yards.

Moon was 6 of 11 for 72 yards

Taekwondo...

Locals claim tourney honors

Local yellow-belt Jamie Juarez captured two first-place trophies for his Snyder team in Saturday's West Texas Taekwondo Championships at Scurry County Coliseum.

Juarez took first position in both forms and free-sparring categories in the event, which drew over 300 martial arts competitors.

Overall Snyder's squad, sponsored and trained by West Texas TKD Academy, claimed nine firsts, 16 second places and 11 thirds.

In team competition, Amarillo wound up tied with the Keller crew at the end of the day for the overall title. Amarillo took first by virtue of more individual firsts awarded.

Behind Keller was the Ruidoso, N.M. team.

Other local students who finished well in the event include Shane West, who notched a first-place while playing the first and third quarters for the AFC.

Phoenix Cardinals rookie Johnny Johnson had a fine game for the NFC, scoring on runs of 1 and 9 yards and picking up 32 yards on 10 carries.

"It's an honor to play in a game like this, when I grew up watching a lot of these players," Johnson said. "It also was a great feeling to contribute by scoring two touchdowns."

The first half was low-scoring with the AFC getting a 26-yard field goal from Kansas City's Nick Lowery in the opening quarter, then Johnson putting the NFC up 7-3 with a 1-yard dive in the second.

Lowery's 43-yarder made it 7-6 in the third quarter, then Johnson scored on his 9-yard run to put the NFC ahead 14-6.

Kelly brought the AFC to life in the final quarter, hooking up with Reed to make it 14-13 early in the period.

Houston.

Texas' juniors, 16 and under, will have their state championship event in Dallas, May 11.

The United States Taekwondo Seniors National Championships is scheduled for May 4 in Portland, Ore. Cincinnati will host this year's junior national tourney, July 4-8.

Winnie Mandela to go on trial in S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A relaxed, confident-looking Winnie Mandela, accompanied by her husband Nelson Mandela, went to court today to face assault and kidnapping charges that black activists call harassment by white authorities.

If the charges stick, however, they could threaten the credibility of Mrs. Mandela's husband; his African National Congress; and even talks with the government on ending white rule.

At today's opening session, Mrs. Mandela and three co-defendants appeared in court. Four other defendants who reportedly skipped bail did not appear, and prosecutors said they would seek warrants for their arrests.

Mrs. Mandela, wearing a yellow and blue plaid jacket, laughed and looked relaxed as she waited for the start of the hearing with her husband, the vice president of the ANC. Other ANC officials and a group of friends and relatives packed into the small courtroom along with journalists.

A group of black women dressed in the ANC's black, green and gold colors packed the back of the courtroom. Asked how she was feeling, Mrs. Mandela said, "We in this family, unlike other people, will speak in court."

'I-30' defendant seeking separate trial

DALLAS (AP) — One of the seven defendants in the so-called "I-30 Condo Trial" says he was deceived by some of his associates and is ready to tell a federal court jury that they are guilty, according to court records.

Former Garland developers D.L. "Danny" Faulkner and James L. Toler and the five other defendants are scheduled to be retried in Dallas Feb. 11 on charges that they conspired to steal $135 million from five financial institutions by inflating land values.

Spencer H. Blain, former chairman of the failed Empire Savings and Loan Association in Mesquite, made the statements in a motion requesting that his trial be separated from that of the other defendants.

In the motion, Blain contends his defense will cause jurors "to

Mrs. Mandela stood silent with the co-defendants as prosecutors said they needed more time to provide information requested by the defense. They were granted a convict certain, if not all, of the co-defendants."

The case, which revolves around the condominium boom in eastern Dallas County in the early 1980s, has been pending for more than three years.

It is among the first and largest fraud cases resulting from the collapse of scores of Texas thrifts in the 1980s.

Defense lawyer Michael Fawer, who represents Faulkner, said Sunday that all seven defendants have asked for separate trials. He said he believes Blain is suggesting guilt on the part of others as a way to win court approval for a separate trial.

"I'm a little taken aback by what he (Blain) is suggesting, but I guess he is desirous of getting a severance at all costs," Fawer said. "I don't think it will happen. I can understand that four-hour recess. The accused were not asked any questions and made no statements.

The charges of state prosecutors stem from allegations he'd want to be separated. So would we."

Fawer said he is not aware of any deception by his co-defendants concerning Blain.

"I certainly don't know anything that he (Blain) is going to be able to point a finger at us on," Fawer said.

Prosecutors declined comment on the remarks by Blain.

The other defendants are land appraisers Paul D. Tannehill of Canton and Arthur Formann of Hondo; Paul A. Jensen of Ogden, Utah, who formerly controlled Lancaster First Federal Savings and Loan Association in Dallas County and Bell Savings Association in Belton, and Rockwall resident Kenneth E. Cansler, a former assistant high school football coach who received more than $10 million after he went to work as a condominium salesman for Faulkner.

that four youths were taken to Mrs. Mandela's home and beaten in December 1988. The youngest one, 14-year-old Stompe Seipei, was killed.

The youths had been accused of having sexual relations with a white Methodist minister, and Seipei was accused of being a police spy, according to prosecution charges.

Jerry Richardson, head of Mrs. Mandela's disbanded unit of bodyguards, the Mandela United Football Club, was convicted of murder in the case and is appealing a death sentence. A judge has ruled Mrs. Mandela was present during the assault.

Mrs. Mandela has said she is innocent.

For many blacks, especially the militant young, Mrs. Mandela is "Mother of the Nation," a fighter who calls for the violent destruction of apartheid. The flamboyant activist has long shocked foes and delighted supporters with blistering attacks on the official system of racial separation and on anything else that displeases her.

The ANC has said the trial of Mrs. Mandela "constitutes a blatant harassment" by white authorities.

Mrs. Mandela's critics say she is a power-hungry prima donna whose taste for fame, clothes and good living belie her activism. Some speak of a desire to rule South Africa.

Investigators say...

Light pole blocked controller's view

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Federal investigators probing the deadly collision of a USAir jetliner and a commuter plane found that the control tower's view of the crash was blocked and a radar system was out of order.

As the last of the 33 victims of the airport runway crash were pulled from the wreckage Sunday, investigators discovered more problems with the air control system at the busy airport. Another 68 people survived the Friday night crash.

The air traffic controller who gave the USAir Boeing 737 permission to land while the Skywest Metroliner was on the same runway was talking to another controller moments before the accident, Jim Burnett of the National Transportation Safety Board said Sunday night at a news conference.

He also said a tape from the "black box" used to record the cockpit conversations aboard the USAir jetliner was examined Sunday, but it might be of limited use.

"We have quality problems — I gather of a serious nature — with the cockpit voice recorder due to some mechanical malfunction and perhaps tape condition," he said.

That could make it difficult to reconstruct the crew member's conversations during the crucial moments before the jetliner landed Friday.

Its landing crushed the smaller Skywest plane and the two went into a fiery skid before smashing into an unused building near the runway.

A federal investigator visiting the control tower found four light poles illuminating a ramp area blocked the view of the crash site, Burnett said.

"One of those structures was dead in the middle," he said.

Investigators today planned to test visibility from the tower and the air by placing another small plane on the runway and videotaping it under day and night conditions. A helicopter will retrace the approach of the USAir jetliner.

The control tower was equipped with a ground-scanning radar designed to check for aircraft on runways, but it was inoperative for at least 18 hours before the crash, Burnett said.

In 1989 the Federal Aviation Administration recommended that the tower supervisor used the surface detection equipment at night "and at any time in which any part of the runway was not visible," Burnett said. "That was to help avoid runway incursions" of the sort that resulted in the tragedy.

Identification of some victims could take days or even weeks, officials said.

"It's been a very trying time for the families," Los Angeles County coroner's spokesman Bob Dambacher said. "They feel helpless."

On Saturday, the NTSB released highlights of about five minutes of conversation between the control tower and pilots just before the crash.

On the tape, tower traffic showed USAir Flight 1435 twice asked the controller for permission to land and received no response.

About two minutes before the crash, a controller directed commuter Skywest Flight 5569 with 12 people on board to enter Runway 24-Left for takeoff, and the tape had the same controller giving the USAir pilot permission to land on 24-Left.

Burnett, who gave an oral account of the tapes, would not say whether the controller had erred.

USAir officials said 21 people died on its aircraft, but only released the name of a pilot, Capt. Colin Shaw, 48, of Washington. All 12 people aboard the Skywest plane were killed.

Despite raging flames and choking smoke that filled the jet's interior, 68 people survived the USAir crash.

Among those needing medical treatment, 12 people remained hospitalized today, including the first officer of the USAir plane who was in critical condition with burns, respiratory burns and fractures, said USAir spokeswoman Agnes Huff.

A 46-year-old male was arrested at 6:00 p.m. at Wal-Mart for Class C theft.

A report for Class C assault was filed at 5:47 p.m. after Brenda Blackwell of 1913 Coleman reported that threats were being made against her.

A gas drive-off was reported at 4:49 p.m. from East Side Fina. Two San Angelo men were identified in the incident.

Firemen respond to weekend call

A small grass and building fire were extinguished by Snyder firefighters over the weekend.

Units responded to the call at 3:40 p.m. Sunday at Keller St. and Ave. R to find a storage building owned by B.L. Lavendar and surrounding grass area on fire.

According to fire officials, the fire was started from burning trash. The building was completely destroyed in the fire.

grants. The president said he hoped Congress would select $15 billion in programs from this target list. The proposal to turn the programs over to the states "moves power and decisionmaking closer to the people," Bush said.

But overhauling the entire budget were the forecasts for the largest deficits in U.S. history. The budget said the deficit for the current fiscal year would hit $318.1 billion, meaning that through this year the government will be going into debt at a rate of nearly $1 billion a day.

For fiscal year 1992, the president's budget forecasts that the deficit will decline slightly to $280.9 billion. That figure still would be far above the record of $221.1 billion set in 1986 and would dwarf the $25 billion that the administration had predicted just a year ago.

The administration blamed the flood of red ink on the recession and on the huge costs of the rescuing insolvent banks and savings and loans.

White House Budget Director Richard Darman pegged $105.5 billion of the 1991 deficit increase on the financial system bailout and said another $87 billion was caused by falling government receipts, due primarily to the recession.

Wal-Mart scholarship applications now due

Officials of the Snyder Wal-Mart store have announced that a $1,000 Wal-Mart Foundation community scholarship will be presented this spring to an area high school student. The scholarship, payable over a one-year period and awarded to a college or university bound student, will be based on the student's scholastic and academic achievements, extra-curricular and work activities, as well as financial aid.

Rick Blackwood, store manager, said, "We are proud to offer this annual scholarship to a deserving area student on behalf of our store and the company. This is one of the many efforts by Wal-Mart stores, Inc. to support education and enhance the opportunities of our area youth as well as contribute to the quality of life in the communities we serve."

Blackwood explained that a team of judges, consisting of area businesses and community leaders, will evaluate the applications and conduct student interviews before making the final selection.

Interested students may obtain applications from their high school counselor. Applications must be returned to their school by the third week in February.

The Snyder Wal-Mart scholarship is one of over 1,600 scholarships totaling over $1.6 million being given by the Bentonville, Ark.-based retail chain throughout its 35-state trade territory.

Hefner said a variety of community-improvement projects can be approved for federal funding. All applications must first be recommended by the commissioners court.

Hefner said examples of projects which could be funded are libraries, parks, ball diamonds, road projects, road erosion projects, rural communications systems, rural water systems, rural fire hydrants, waste disposal, and industrial development.

Commissioners announced a series of inter-governmental meetings this week. At 7 p.m. today, commissioners will attend a community meeting at the Hermleigh Community Center. One project set for discussion is the county-owned Hermleigh Water Works.

At 1 p.m. Tuesday, the court will meet with the administrative staff of Western Texas College to discuss services in which the college and county jointly participate.

At 7 p.m. Thursday, the court will again meet in the college board room, this time with Snyder City Council. Topics of discussion will be joint projects of the two governmental bodies.

County Judge Bob Doolittle presided. Commissioners present included Duane Davis, Roy Idom, C.D. Gray Jr. and Jerry Gannaway.

Richards ready to deliver State of the State address

AUSTIN (AP) — Schools, the budget deficit and ethics — thorny issues all — likely will be spotlighted by Gov. Ann Richards when she delivers her first State of the State address to the Legislature this week, aides say.

The speech, scheduled for noon Wednesday in the House chamber before a joint Senate-House session, will be Richards' first major address since her Jan. 15 inauguration.

Although her staff didn't expect the final draft to be completed until early this week, aides said the speech should contain specifics on Richards' plans for the next four years.

"It is going to be a very detailed outline of what she hopes to accomplish in the next several years. She will hit all the high points," said Bill Cryer, the governor's press secretary.

"It's going to be, I think, a powerful speech," he said. "I think there will be some surprises, too."

Cryer said he expects the address to detail proposals for education, the budget, governmental ethics reform, insurance reform, the state's regulatory agencies, health and human services.

A former teacher, Richards insists that education is one of government's most important jobs.

But Texas public education is in crisis. The state Supreme Court twice has ruled the school funding system unconstitutional for failing to provide equitable spending on poor school districts. The governor and Legislature face an April 1 deadline for reform or the courts threaten to take over.

The budget is a looming problem as well, with a $4.5 billion deficit being projected for the 1992-93 budget years.

Talking about that last week, Richards herself gave a hint about the upcoming speech.

"There is a mood in state government among elected officials to conserve, cut back. I'm going to be making a State of the State (address) ... in which we are going to propose some opportunities where we think there are economies," she said.

Richards campaigned on the theme of a "New Texas," and aides say she already has shown the direction in which she wants government to go.

During her first weeks in office, Richards has appointed women and minorities to top state posts: the Railroad Commission, the University of Texas and Texas A&M boards of regents, and as head of the State Board of Education.

To emphasize the importance she places on overhauling government ethics laws, she named former congresswoman Barbara Jordan as her special counsel on ethics and personally testified to a Senate subcommittee considering an ethics reform bill.

The governor last week signed into law a bill to cut $139.5 million from current spending and to audit all state agencies to see if more economies can be found.

And she has led the charge for creation of a state lottery, which experts say could raise another $731 million over the next two years.

"She has hit the ground running, and clearly she's going to expand on these things," Cryer said.

Lucy and Desi film criticized

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Lucie Arnaz criticized as distorted a forthcoming CBS movie about her parents, Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz, that includes scenes of her father's reported infidelity. "Lucy & Desi: Before The Laughter," scheduled to air Feb. 10, also focuses on the couple's career conflicts.

Recession makes budget starting place only

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush's fiscal 1992 budget is an impressive-looking document, but its presentation to Congress today only starts a process that war and recession will shape unpredictably.

Some of the traditional big fights between the White House and Congress — over such questions as how to split federal dollars between defense and domestic programs — were decided in last year's budget agreement.

But other questions remain wide open and will be unanswerable until the condition of the economy and the shape of the war with Iraq are more clearly defined.

These include decisions about which domestic programs should be increased or slashed, whether any taxes should be raised or reduced, and whether the government needs to take expensive steps to ease the recession.

Hovering over the year's budget deliberations will be the federal deficit. The shortfall is expected to hit a record $318 billion in fiscal 1991, which ends Sept. 30, and to fall to no lower than $281 billion next year, White House budget chief Richard Darman has said.

"As the deficit increases, it has a very chilling effect on whether Congress is willing to enact new programs that might be costly," Senate Budget Committee Chairman James Sasser D-Tenn. said recently.

The deficit will influence this year's budget debate, but it will not utterly dominate it as it has for the last several years.

Since 1986, the Gramm-Rudman law has set a series of annual, gradually declining deficit targets that were designed to force the White House and Congress to whittle the shortfall away.

The law never accomplished its goal as this year's record budget gap attests. But it did end up focusing each year's fiscal debate on a search for spending cuts and tax increases that would reduce the deficit.

That's all changed now. In the five-year budget deal Bush and Congress finished last fall, the old mechanism was basically scrapped.

The new goal is to limit spending. The law now forbids increases in benefit programs like Medicare, or tax cuts, unless lawmakers can find savings elsewhere to pay for them.

It also caps spending for domestic, defense and foreign aid programs and prohibits transferring money from one of those broad categories to another. That means that if Congress decides to boost spending for one military project, another Pentagon program will have to be slashed equally.

It is at that level that budget fights will occur.

Bush's budget calls for only slight increases in certain education, health care and housing programs. The Democrats in Congress may want to do something else, but they won't be able to cut the defense budget and use the money to beef up domestic spending.

The wild cards are the Persian Gulf War and the recession.

Dear Abby

DEAR READERS: The Pentagon has set up special 24-hour, toll-free telephone numbers to be used by relatives of people in the military seeking information about the status of family members stationed in the Persian Gulf:

ARMY: 1-800-626-1440 (Immediate Family Members Only)
AIR FORCE: 1-800-253-9276
MARINES: 1-800-523-2694 (Immediate Family Members Only)

COAST GUARD: 1-800-367-8724

NAVY: 1-800-255-3808 (Immediate Family Members Only)
NAVY: 1-800-732-1206 (Other Relatives and Friends)

Callers will be asked for the spelling of the service member's last name. They should also be able to provide as much information as possible about rank, Social Security number and military unit. The above phone numbers may often be busy, so call back until you establish contact.

DEAR ABBY: Several women in our office would like your opinion on an issue that is causing a lot of controversy in our office.

The unwed daughter of one of our co-workers is having a baby, and some of the girls think it would not be proper for her to have a baby shower. (They say that only close friends and family should be involved in a shower for a baby born out of wedlock.)

We read your column daily and value your opinion. What do you think?

CONFUSED IN THE OFFICE

DEAR CONFUSED: In many offices, co-workers are regarded as "family," and I, for one, would not judge the mother-to-be because of her marital status.

A baby born out of wedlock is as deserving of a baby shower as one born of married parents. And probably more in need of one.

DEAR ABBY: I can't get over the letter from the middle-aged man who was bemoaning the fact that his middle-aged wife of 16 years had confessed on her wedding night that she had had four previous boyfriends (lovers) before she married him. His whole life was "haunted" by these thoughts of his wife's premarital affairs, and he kept wondering what his wife was thinking about while he was having sex with her — and if perhaps she was comparing his performance to the other men she has had.

Well, I have news for this guy. In all likelihood, the only thing on his wife's mind during sex is whatever work she had left undone at the office that day, or the upcoming visit to the school guidance counselor about Johnny's grades, or where they were going to get the money to pay the IRS come April 15, or how she is going to squeeze her mother-in-law's grocery shopping between Janie's acrobatics class and Saturday night's choir practice.

Did he marry his wife solely for sex? And suppose he does actually run into one of her old lovers — does he actually believe the guy will even remember her name after 16 years, let alone bring up the subject in conversation? Let's face it, Abby, if the sparks were that terrific 16 years ago, it only confirms his excellent judgment in getting a ring on her finger and a permanent commitment from so desirable a female.

MRS. G.J. IN OCALA, FLA.

DEAR G.J.: Thanks. You make an excellent point.

Youth saves baby

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A Lubbock toddler was reported in good condition Sunday night after being saved from drowning by her 11-year-old cousin.

Chris Carr, Heather's cousin, quickly leaped into the pool and pulled Heather to safety.

She was taken to Methodist Hospital as a precautionary measure although paramedics said she was in good condition at the scene.

"We were all getting ready to leave and turned our heads for just a second when she toppled in," the boy's mother, Pam Carr, said.

Heather "already was purple and not breathing," Mrs. Carr said when she pulled out of the pool by Chris.

An adult at the party performed cardiopulmonary resuscitation on the child and revived her immediately, Mrs. Carr said.

Desert Storm Update

DAY 19

Around the gulf

War developments in brief:

□ U.S. and Iraqi forces Monday traded fire across the desert frontier in northern Saudi Arabia. The Marines said neither side's ground forces breached the border in Monday's skirmishes.

□ President Hashemi Rafsanjani of Iran on Monday offered to meet Saddam Hussein for talks on ending the Persian Gulf War, and said he is also willing to resume official contact with the United States to that end.

□ Allied warplanes pounded Baghdad before dawn Monday. Witnesses said communication centers, government offices and industrial installations were hit.

□ A U.S. Marine UH-1 Huey utility helicopter crashed Sunday in eastern Saudi Arabia, killing all four crew members, military authorities said. An Air Force B-52 bomber crashed Sunday in the Indian Ocean, apparently because of a mechanical problem. Three crewmen were rescued; three were missing.

□ The U.S. military said investigators have determined that seven Marines were killed by a missile fired by an American warplane during tank fighting along the Kuwaiti border last week.

□ The allied air war passed the 40,000-sortie mark Sunday.

□ Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said should Saddam remain in power after the Persian Gulf War ends, the allies might want to maintain sanctions to prevent him from rebuilding his military.

□ Americans answered President Bush's call to prayer and went to church Sunday to ask God to protect U.S. troops at war. Bush prayed at a chapel service at Camp David, Md.

□ The White House reacts cautiously to reported offer by Iran to mediate Persian Gulf War.

□ The dollar fell against most major foreign currencies Monday in early European trading. Gold prices were higher.

U.S. troops in Saudi desert expect more ground fighting

KHAFJI, Saudi Arabia (AP) — The signs of war are everywhere at the end of the road to Khafji: burned out armored vehicles, some still carrying corpses; nervous Saudi patrols, missile-pocked buildings, the occasional staccato of gunfire.

On and off the road that leads to this coastal town, everyone talks about Khafji, the manifestation of a war they cannot see but constantly hear in the roar of jets overhead and the rumble of distant bombing.

"I hear it got pretty messy up there," says Frank Lammachio, an Army helicopter pilot found at a makeshift desert airstrip hidden off the north-south highway that leads to Khafji.

Lammachio, on his way to a new forward base just south of the Iraq border, thinks Khafji will soon be an afterthought.

"There's a lot more blood to come," he says. "I wish I didn't have to say that, but it's true."

With a few detours, a drive to Khafji from Dhahran, about 200 miles to the south, brings one a kaleidoscope view, not of war but of the people waging one.

Only at Khafji, a few short miles from Kuwait and thousands of Iraqi troops, can one view firsthand the death and devastation. Most troops are prohibited from visiting.

At the few phones along the way, newly arrived troops form long lines and wait patiently. For most, this will be their last call home before they see war firsthand.

"I'm going to tell my wife I made it here safely, but not

Arab weapons success worries Israeli officials

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — News item: Saudi F-15 pilot shoots down two Iraqi attack planes. Reaction in multinational coalition: Cheers for first double kill of the Persian Gulf War.

Question: If the Israelis want to see Iraq defeated, why aren't they smiling?

Looking ahead to possible future dangers, Israeli planners see the Arab success with advanced U.S. weapons as confirmation that Israel may lose its technological edge over its numerically superior foes.

This could lead to a new and immensely expensive Middle East arms race after the war. But it also could be a reason for Israel to welcome moves toward arms control, especially if they limit chemical weapons and long-range missiles now threatening the Jewish state.

"Much as I applaud the Saudi pilot for shooting down the two F-15s, it only demonstrates the capability the F-15 has," said Col. Raanan Gissin, a military spokesman. "It could maybe also penetrate our airspace."

Israel has argued hard with the United States and other Western countries for more than a decade against the selling of advanced weaponry to the Arabs, often the same equipment in Israel's arsenal.

That voice is muted now that the Saudis are using the American F-15 Eagle interceptor and the latest U.S. tanks — as well as the British Tornado attack planes — to pummel Saddam Hussein's forces.

Iraq currently tops Israel's list of enemies, and the Israelis hope the war will destroy Saddam's military power.

But afterward, Israel will still face radical foes.

There may not be much danger that Libya would receive top-notch Western arms, but Syria could claim them as a reward for having joined the anti-Iraq coalition, Gissin said in an interview.

where I'm going," an Army tank crewman from a base in Germany said Sunday. "She heard about the fighting at Khafji. We all figure there'll be more, soon."

At Khafji, Saudis and Qataris did most of the fighting, driving Iraqis from the Saudi frontier town with some crucial help from U.S. Marines. Eleven Marines died in fighting farther west.

"People dying brings it all home," said Army Reserve Sgt. David Halem, who got here a day before the war began. "It's very real now."

Still, Halem has the innocence of many of those found along the road to Khafji. His thoughts are still far from the fighting a few short miles to the north.

"My wife just had a baby," said Halem, a refueler with the 380th Quartermaster Company of Evansville, Ind. "Four days ago."

Thousands gather to support troops

By The Associated Press

The U.S. troops involved in the Persian Gulf War have the unwavering support of their country, as demonstrated by weekend rallies drawing thousands of supporters and telephone polls of average Texans.

Thousands gathered Sunday at rallies in Beaumont and Killeen, waving American flags and homemade signs listing the names of loved ones deployed overseas. The day before, thousands more huddled at parades and rallies in Dallas, Katy and White Settlement.

A poll conducted by The Dallas Morning News showed 88 percent of area residents favor U.S. military strikes against Iraq, but the public's resolve could ebb if the fighting drags on for several months.

The telephone poll of 606 residents, with a margin of error of 4 percentage points, showed 65 percent would back Operation Desert Storm for more than three months. And, 44 percent said they would support combat lasting more than a year.

An estimated 2,000 Southeast Texans gathered in Beaumont Sunday, while 5,000 braved the cold weather in Killeen to show their support for the half-million U.S. soldiers fighting in the Middle East.

Relocated Kurds remember past cruelty by Iraqi people

DALLAS (AP) — Relocated Kurds, members of a loosely-knit Middle Eastern ethnic group, are pinning their hopes for a homeland on an American victory over Iraq.

But so far, leaders of allied forces have not commented publicly on prospects for Kurdish independence or whether they would demand a postwar change in Iraq's treatment of Kurds.

Kurds occupy the area known as Kurdistan in Southwest Asia, which includes portions of southeast Turkey, northern Iraq and northwest Iran.

Iraqi troops reportedly have killed thousands of Kurds in recent years, including at least 5,000 reported felled by chemical weapons.

Some Kurds who have immigrated to the Dallas area are urging the ouster of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

"I believe that the U.S., first thing, should get Kuwait back to the Kuwaiti people," said Arian Gilly of the Dallas suburb of Carrollton. Gilly is a former Kurdish militiaman.

"Then, they want to run Saddam Hussein from power and give Kurdistan back to the Kurds," he said.

Mohammed Gardi, 50 who fled Iraq in 1974 and moved to Dallas nine years ago, detailed his years among Kurdish insurgents as a freedom fighter. He said he hoped the Kurds would be granted their own country in the Middle Eastern region that they inhabit.

"America needs a friend — a Kurdish friend," said M. Barzani, who shares the last name and home village of the resistance's legendary leaders.

"When we go back to Kurdistan, I will dance and I will tell that Arab, and I will tell that Turk, 'Come dance with me.'"

"We don't want revenge. We want freedom."

Gilly, 34, told police last week that two Arab men threatened him with a gun at his apartment, apparently because of his anti-Saddam sentiments.

Dallas has one of the nation's largest Kurdish populations, numbering 300 to 400, said Gilly and Gardi, who are both U.S. citizens.

The men, who said most Kurds emigrated from Iraq for jobs when the economy here was strong, said no formal Kurdish organizations exist in Dallas, but an efficient informal network conveys social and political news.

The Kurds were targets of chemical warfare by Saddam, who has been accused of stockpiling the weapons for possible use against the Israelis and U.S.-led allied forces in the Persian Gulf.

British forces in the region were warned this week that Saddam has authorized front-line commanders to use chemical weapons at their discretion, the (London) Sunday Times reported.

AT A GLANCE

19-year-old Houston woman fights as soldier in Israel

HOUSTON (AP) — Jessica Lee's friends are hoisting their book bags and hiking across college campuses while she is strapping on a gas mask and marching across Middle Eastern deserts.

Ms. Lee, 19, is a soldier in the Israeli Army.

She holds both U.S. and Israeli citizenship, and was drafted along with all Israeli men and women to serve two years in the army. In fact, Ms. Lee said joining the army was the main reason she applied for dual citizenship 18 months ago.

"I saw all my Israeli friends going to the army and it sounded really exciting and I wanted to do something to help the country," Ms. Lee told The Houston Post.

But she added, "My whole concept of what the army was, was a big dream. It was a lot harder."

Ms. Lee said that while she never considered joining the U.S. military, she feels a strong loyalty to the United States.

"This is my home country," said Ms. Lee, whose father is a U.S. Navy captain. "This is where I was raised. I could never do anything against America."

When she signed up, Ms. Lee, like the thousands of American military volunteers in nearby Saudi Arabia, had no idea she would be fighting in a real war or be under regular Scud missile attacks by Iraq.

Ms. Lee could only say she is based in a rural area near one of Israel's borders. Army restrictions would not allow her to be more specific. Although she is in a combat infantry unit, women in the Israeli military do not fight unless their base is attacked, she said.

For now, she is grouped with other immigrant soldiers, working alongside people from Hungary, the Netherlands, Australia, Argentina, South Africa, Switzerland, France, England and even Iran.

It wasn't until Ms. Lee was in the Tel Aviv airport Jan. 22, waiting for her flight to the United States for two weeks' leave, that she actually heard the bombs fall for the first time.

"That was really scary," she said.

Ms. Lee, whose family immigrated from Poland and Austria to Houston five generations ago, said she first went to Israel to study when she was 15. She went back a year later for a five-week summer camp sponsored by the army to give Americans a taste of an Israeli soldier's life.

"She said she was inspired by other foreign soldiers whom she met on previous trips."

"Hopefully, my doing it will inspire others to do it," she said.

Asked if she's ready to die for Israel, she said, "I prefer not to think about it. There's always a possibility, but it's not a very big possibility."
