Ohio 'Bad Actors' Placed In 'Prison Within Prison' To Terminate Disorder

RECALCITRANT MEN HERDED INTO STOCKADE

1,000 Unruly Convicts Held In Two Specially Made Enclosures

PEACE IS PROMISED

Tension Reaches Peak As Riot Inciters Are Put In Wire Cagers

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 30. (AP)—Ohio national guard officers inspecting the white city in Ohio penitentiary tonight discovered the beginning of a hole which was being dug in the wall leading to Warden P. E. Thomas' residence.

The officers found the hole and a three and a half foot crow bar in the basement of the prison.

By HARRY W. SHARPE

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 30. (UP)—As tense a period as ever was known in an American prison appeared to have passed its crisis safely tonight when 1,000 recalcitrant Ohio state penitentiary prisoners were herded into two special enclosures, with floodlights and machine guns trained upon them.

As the last man passed into the pens—to remain until all threat of revolt has passed—Col. Robert Haubrich, commanding the 118th Ohio national guard infantry and in charge of the prison, turned to an aide and said:

"The war is over."

Warden P. E. Thomas added:

"I believe things are in shape now to work out our problems in orderly manner."

Prison Within Prison

The special enclosures were resorted to at the end of nine nerve-trying days since the fire April 21, which cost 322 lives. Each hour, almost each minute, there had been danger of an outbreak without parallel in prison history. It was decided finally to confine the 1,000 men considered leaders of disorder in prisons within a prison, where every move could be watched.

One of the enclosures is a stockade in the prison yard, built of wood, 14 feet high, and with three strands of barbed wire surmounting it.

The other is the old prison warehouse, around which was placed a thick barbed wire entanglement such as was used in front of world war trenches.

The movement into the enclosures started at 6 o'clock tonight, after dinner. It was completed shortly before 7:30.

Latest Flareup

What authorities hoped was the last flareup from the prisoners occurred this morning. The 1,000 men in "white city"—cell blocks A and B—refused to leave their cells to go

FISHERMEN OUT TO WIN PRIZES

Scores at Lakes When New Season Dawns

Wichita Falls' annual exodus to lake and stream for the opening of the fishing season was away to an early start Wednesday, and early Thursday night the vanguard of the anglers' army was drawn up at the various water fronts waiting for the official opening at one minute after midnight.

Those who dropped their lines into the water as May 1 rolled around were chiefly crappie fishermen, and those seeking catfish or crap. Bass fishermen, on the whole, were compelled to wait somewhat impatiently the coming of day in order to have light for the casting of plugs or flies, or for trolling.

A fairly steady stream of cars rolled out all day Wednesday toward Diversion lake and Lake Kemp, while many camps had been pitched in the vicinity of Lake Wichita. Campers also were scattered around the shores of Diversion and Kemp, and many anglers were reported in Seymour for the fishing afforded at the big lake. Shortly before midnight scores were waiting at the piers at Lake Wichita, and were scattered out down the dam. High winds at the three lakes continued to keep the waters unsettled, although anglers hoped for better weather by morning.

Thirteen prises are posted for opening day fishermen this year by The Record News and Daily Times and sporting goods dealers of the city. Eleven persons, who catch the largest bass and crappie, will participate in the awards. All fish must be weighed in at the lobby of the Times building company before 6 o'clock May 2.

B. Whiteside, Duluth, Minn., millionaire head of the Douglas Oil company.

Whitesides' suit is the largest boundary suit in Texas' history, it was believed here. The petition named 125 defendants and the suit even named his own company.

SECOND DEEP TEST PLANNED

First Hole Spudded in Nine Miles From City

Spudding in of a first deep oil test nine miles southeast of this city and announcement that a second test probably will be started within the next weeks signalized the actual beginning of operations by the Deep Oil Development company of this city Wednesday.

The location on which a 24-inch standard bit began its work Wednesday is about one mile south of the town of Jolly in Clay county on the Merry Brothers and Perrine block. It was said at local offices of the company that the Phillips Petroleum company had acquired a half-interest in the block, and has charge of drilling operations. The hole is being sunk by the Moran Drilling company of Wichita Falls, it was stated.

According to members of the oil fraternity, the first test is located upon a most promising structure, its geological selection having been based upon plane table work, subsurface and magneto-meter. It is 300 feet from the west line and 1720 feet from the south line of section 61, H. T. & B. R. R., abstract 230, which is about nine miles from this city. This tract was acquired by Merry Brothers and Perrine last August, according to officials of the Deep Oil Development company. The local company has acreage on all sides of the test, outside the Merry Brothers and Perrine block, it was stated.

Information given Wednesday indicated that from 3,000 to 3,500 feet of 10-inch casing will be set in the well, larger and heavier than any string of pipe ever before set in this community. Much interest has been taken in the drilling equipment set up for the Deep Oil Development company's first well. Standard tools replace the rotary rig usually employed in this district; the derrick is all-steel, on a concrete foundation, and has a concrete cellar.

Pretty School Ma'am Denies She Smoked and Drank to Attract Boys

ROLLA, Mo., April 30. (UP)—The conduct of a grade school teacher who reputedly attempted to be popular with young men in her social set by smoking and drinking, was told a rural jury here today, hearing the case of the Rev. Paul Bennett, evangelist, charged with criminal libel.

Bennett, who admitted "in my younger days I drank so much that I laid on the grounds in the Shepherd of the Hills country and whooped like an Indian until I got the faith," sat nervously in the crowded little court room jammed to its capacity with members of his congregation and with friends of Miss Olive Warren, pretty school teacher of Newburg. Miss Warren brought criminal libel charges after Bennett, in a civic campaign, had distributed handbills charging she drank and smoked.

Miss Warren on the stand denied Bennett's charges.

She denied allegations of Miss Lois Drew, who lives on a farm near here, that she had smoked while on high school parties. Testimony of Glenn Fullbright, that he "had gone on several parties with Miss Warren, where she did some drinking," was also refuted by the pretty English teacher.

Miss Warren said she taught school for the past eight years, the last five at Newburg. She is the daughter of a former state representative and was a popular student at Springfield, Mo., teachers college when enrolled there.

'MASTER MOVE' TO HOLD VOTES TOLD SENATE

Letter Urges Maneuver to Secure Southern Support

DEFEAT PREDICTED

Wagner Brands Nominee as 'Blind Slave to Precedent

By FRASER EDWARDS

WASHINGTON, April 30. (US)—Prospects of the confirmation of Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina, faded today with the amazing disclosure that partisian politics played a part in connection with his nomination for the supreme court by President Hoover.

A startled senate listened to the reading of a letter to Walter H. Newton, secretary of the president, from Joseph M. Dixon, assistant secretary of the interior, in which he urged Parker's appointment as a "political master stroke" to hold North Carolina permanently in line for the Republican party. Hoover carried North Carolina by 40,000.

Letter Read

This damaging document, injected into the third day's debate on Parker by Senator McKellar, Democrat of Tennessee, goes a long way in confirming the claims of southern Democrats that political considerations played a part in the nomination of the North Carolina jurist.

It gives the southerners, who have been wavering because of the racial issue in the case, the excuse they desire to vote for rejection of Parker. At the close of the day's session the consensus was that Parker will be turned down by the senate when the vote comes at the end of this week or the early part of next.

Speaking as a "native born North Carolina Republican" and expressing sympathy for the North Carolina Republicans "who have borne the banner, in season and out, under tremendous discouragement," Dixon, a former senator from Montana, stated:

"I believe Judge Parker's appointment would be a political master stroke at this time.

Believed 'Final Straw'

"If in the midst of overwhelming demands upon your time and his, these considerations could be presented to President Hoover, I believe they are worthy of serious thought."

The Dixon letter, which appears destined to become famous as the final straw against Judge Parker, was dated March 13, and the appointment was sent to the senate on March 21, eight days later.

Senator Walsh, Democrat of Massachusetts called attention to the fact that the late Justice Sanford, whom Parker was named to succeed, died on March 10 and added that the "letter was written before his body was hardly cold."

Appeal to Dixie

Walsh also charged that he had seen telegrams from Republican leaders in the South to Republican senators urging them to support Parker's confirmation as a means of strengthening the G. O. P. organization in Dixie.

In placing it in the record, McKeller said he was reluctant to do so, but was moved by the fact that Sentor Fess, Republican of Ohio, had injected partisan politics into the debate. McKeller declared that Parker did not "measure up" as a lawyer; that his decision in the "yellow dog" contracts case was "puerile" and that this statement regarding the colored race "indicated nothing but a desire to be confirmed.

Wagner Leads Fight

"I would respect him more if he had stood by his guns," declared McKellar.

Lack of broad statesmanship essential to membership on America's highest tribunal was the nub of Senator Robert F. Wagner's attack upon the jurist.

In a careful analysis of Parker's judicial record, the New York

Sen. W. D. McFarlane of Graham Announces for Post in Congress

Solon Points to Long Record in Texas Legislature as Basis For Candidacy in Opposition to Guinn Williams

Sen. W. D. McFarlane of Graham Wednesday announced his candidacy for congress in a formal statement addressed to the citizens of this district. The candidacy of the Graham solon is in opposition to that of Guinn Williams, incumbent.

In making his announcement, Senator McFarlane pointed to his long service in the Texas legislature and said he would compare the record he had made in the Texas legislative body with that which Representative Williams had made in congress.

Senator McFarlane's announcement in full follows:

I desire to announce my candidacy for congress subject to the action of the Democratic primary in July.

Four years ago I presented to you the record I had made in your service in the 38th and 39th legislatures, and on that record made you give me a majority of nearly 4,000 votes in this district; for that I thank you from the bottom of my heart. Armed with your commission as your state senator, I went into the 40th legislature; there I took up the legislative matters that were pressing for solution.

SEN. W. D. M'FARLANE

Education

The increase of the per capita appropriation for the support of the rural schools, it was then $12 per capita and we increased it to $15 and in the 41st legislature we were able to increase it to $17.50. I think, fellow citizens, that too much consideration cannot be given our noble boys and girls, the fathers and mothers of the next generation, the record shows that I have not been either silent or idle along this line.

Highway

We increased the gasoline tax from two cents in the 40th legislature to three cents, one-fourth going to the public schools but the opposition was able to get it reduced back to two cents after September, 1929, until it was again put into the legislative hopper in the 41st legislature, where we made it four cents per gallon, one-fourth (¼) going to the public schools; in the 41st legislature we were able to reduce the license on automobiles and trucks and give that money to the counties for use on their lateral roads.

Taxpayer and the Tax-Spender

We had the ever recurring battle with the tax-spender, each trying to pile up appropriations which cannot be met without increasing taxation. It is the battle that never ceases in a legislative body, the tax lobbyist is never silent, never idle, never "asleep at the switch." The "hatchet brigade," the members who try to keep down appropriations were active also with the result that we succeeded in paring down the appropriations asked more than $10,000,000 as the records will show.

Tax Remission Bills

In the 40th legislature we again met the tax remission lobbyists seeking remission from state taxes for five counties, Tarrant, Dallas, Starr, Tyler and McLennan with the promise that if these remission bills were passed, three others, Hunt, Panola and Burleson would ask a like remission. The above five counties were asking a remission of state taxes on $488,376,873 of property, which with those already remitted would have made nearly 8 per cent of the total valuation of the state. These bills passed the senate over my vote and best efforts. I made a speech against it in the senate, and had it printed at my own expense, copy of speech herewith enclosed, and sent it over the state. The sentiment thereby created met the efforts of the lobbyists, and notwithstanding their special train and banquet at Dallas and Fort Worth their bills were defeated and tax remission for the time stopped.

The 41st Legislature

This was and is one of the most remarkable sessions of the legislature. At the regular and first and second called sessions the legislature passed the regular appropriations. The cry for more and better road upkeep and construction had brought about a cry for a bond issue for road construction and many persons were favorable to this method. We who thought it bad policy to burden the taxpayers with such bond issue passed the four cent per gallon gasoline tax. We also reduced the license fees on automobiles and trucks and gave the revenue therefrom to the counties where paid, for the construction and upkeep of the lateral roads, of the counties. One-fourth of the gasoline tax goes to the school fund which enabled us to make the per capita apportionment for the rural schools, $17.50 and with the government apportionment of $7,500,000 gives over $50,000,000 per annum for the construction and upkeep of the highways of the state which, in my judgment is all that the highway commission can economically spend each year and renders a bond issue unnecessary.

The Penitentiary Relocation

At this session the condition of the penitentiary became acute. We have had crime and criminals since the foundation of the state government, will always have them, so anything done along this line should take into account that the question is a permanent one. The state in the management of its convicts, through the past years had bought 78,000 acres of land for the use of the convict system. When bought it was mostly unimproved, we paid long prices for it but it is the most fertile land in the state. Forty-five thousand acres of it have been cleared by convict labor, about 33,000 acres are yet uncleared. Inadequate provisioin has been made for the housing and confinement of the convicts, but of this I would call attention to section 6182, and 6183, revised statutes. They give the penitentiary board almost unlimited power and among other things provides that:

"The board shall make proper provision for the safe and speedy transportation of convicts from the county where convicted to the prison system, at the least expense to the state, by the sheriffs of the respective counties, etc."

Last year, as shown by their report, over 1,000 of the convicts were idle within the walls at Huntsville while more than 1,100 acres of cleared land of the state went uncultivated. We of course fed, clothed, guarded, furnished medical attention to these convicts. Knowing, seeing the crowded conditions of the penitentiary, why the penitentiary board did not have these more than 1,000 convicts build cell houses for the incoming convicts is more than any one has been able to explain, it is not only incompetence, but it directly violates the statutory duty of the board above quoted. But that is only one of the many instances of incompetence with which they stand convicted. With 45,000 acres of the best farm land in the state rent free, with 90 per cent of the convicts young men, fed the coarsest food, clothed with the coarsest clothing, can be worked continuously, all except 119 of the tubercular ones able to make their own living, why the penitentiary board does not make a profit from their labor, the tenant farmers of the state, who pay 1-3 and 1-4 of the crops they raise as rent, would like to know; it shows incompetence on its face.

The Results

I would like to tell you of the other things I did in your behalf, many of them I will when opportunity permits, but I will say that during the regular and five called sessions of the 41st legislature I was not idle a single minute, nor was I silent. I got very little first page stuff in the newspapes, one fighting the lobby seldom does, but the record shows that where ever your interests were attacked I was on the firing line in your behalf. I had as loyal a bunch of helpers, mostly in the house, as ever stood on a firing line and God bless them they couldn't be bulldozed, bullied or driven. Tax remission (for the present) defeated, tax reduction, as far as possible obtained, the bond issue yet not fastened on you, the oil jobbers and "realtors" have not as yet got your 78,000 acres of penitentiary lands.

I Want to Go to Congress

With the record of achievement I am asking you to promote me into a wider field of endeavor I want to put this record along side of that of my opponent, Mr. Guinn Williams who has represented you in congress for the last eight years. I will bring both records with me when I come and I hope to meet every voter before the primaries. Mr. Williams' record shows that while he has been your representative eight years, with the battle for industrial freedom in congress on, the record does not show that Mr. Williams has introduced any bill looking to industrial relief, has made no public appearance or speech in congress, has done absolutely nothing in the eight years except to draw his salary regularly. He did make a speech in behalf of a chain banking bill and voted with the Republicans in its passage, and he made a speech in favor of seating a contesting member of congress and has asked a few questions and that is all in eight years. No, I see that in the last few days, there is a bill in congress to direct the mint to coin 500,000 half dollars to commemorate the "Gadsden Purchase" the half dollar, if coined would simply be a keepsake or toy, it is like giving a tin whistle to a starving man. It is for you to say fellow citizens, if you are thoroughly satisfied with things as they are, if you think that industry and effort in your behalf by a young man does not deserve promotion, if you are willing for the special interests to frame the legislation and levy such tribute that you again send Mr. Williams to represent you. Why, fellow citizens, the record shows that since he has been in congress there has been 390 roll calls in the house on the passage of laws and that in 109 of them he voted present, had not the courage or interest in your behalf to form an opinion or vote for your interest. But, fellow citizens, if you want industry in your behalf, if you want your interests presented to the lawmakers, if you want your representative to cry aloud and spare not, then I would appreciate your commission to represent you.

WAR ENDS AT OHIO PRISON

Barbed Wire Enclosures Hold Bad Actors

to breakfast unless national guardsmen, instead of prison guards, accompanied them. They shouted and cursed in rage. It was decided to give into them, and they marched out peacefully in their lock step.

All day long, in the prison yard, carpenters were hammering away upon the new stockade, 240 feet square. It was completed late this afternoon.

Members of companies A and B, as they are called, were marched from their "white city" cells to the mess hall. Emerging, they were taken to the stockade. Outside they were searched. Fifty-one of the 700 men in these companies were segregated. The other 650 filed into the stockade.

Careful Search Made

The 50 men segregated were taken to the warehouse, and then companies C and D, regarded as the toughest men in the penitentiary, were taken in to mess. As they emerged, 300 of them, they were taken to join the other 50 men in the warehouse. Trouble had been anticipated, and they were searched minutely. However, there was no trouble at all!

As darkness fell, floodlights were turned on from their positions atop commanding posts which had been erected outside the stockade. Inside, there were only little tents, with cots. Outside there were militia sentries, with machine guns in position and tear gas bombs ready.

Machine guns also were trained on every point of possible egress from the warehouse. Eight hundred soldiers were there, altogether, to guard 1,000 convicts.

Determining that this should be the deciding move in the crisis, Colonel Haubrich ordered in additional machine guns and ammunition during the day. He and his men, as they surveyed the convicts moving about their lines of tents tonight, like prisoners in an ordinary war, believed they had the situation in hand, and that all that was needed was patience.

Norford, Refused New Trial, to Appeal Case

Overruling the defense contention that the court erred in failing to order a lunacy hearing before the trial of Jim Norford, 62-year-old negro who was given 10 years in the penitentiary by a jury which convicted him last week on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of his wife, Judge Allan D. Montgomery of the 30th district court Wednesday refused an application for a new trial for the aged negro. Bob Crain, of defense counsel, immediately gave notice of appeal.

Norford is also under indictment on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of Andrew Byrd, aged negro proprietor of a store near the Norford home.

DEMOS TO VOTE ON PROHIBITION

Party in Michigan to Decide Members' Attitude

DETROIT, April 30. (AP)—An attempt to define the attitude of Michigan Democrats on the prohibition question will be made at a pre-primary convention to be held at Jackson May 24.

Four platform planks on the subject will be submitted in numerical order, to the convention. They follow:

1—"The present prohibition situation is a nationwide farce. The Republican party has proven itself too cowardly to enforce the laws. On the other hand it has not the courage to advocate their repeal."

2—"The Democratic party of the state of Michigan pledges itself to the repeal of the 18th amendment to the federal constitution in order that each state of the union may again possess the right to regulate or prohibit the liquor within its boundaries in accordance with the traditional Democratic doctrine of states rights."

3—"The 18th amendment to our national constitution and the laws enacted to support it by the nation and by the states represents the highest social idealism ever enacted into the laws of any nation."

4—"We recommend to the congress of the United States that the question of the repeal of the 18th amendment to the federal constitution be submitted to the states and we pledge Democratic candidates in Michigan for the United States congress to vote for such action. As a direction to congress and the states, we favor nationwide referendum on the repeal of the 18th amendment in a separate election dealing with this question alone."

War Lesson Shows Way to Peace Time Success

A. E. F. Vet Wishes he had remembered three years earlier

© Comm. of Pub. Inf.

ON Armistice Day 1918, Mr. William E. Higgins of 2118—14th Avenue, Minneapolis, got the injury which taught him the most valuable lesson of his life. His battalion doctor gave him the right advice but he did not follow it at that time. Three years later a friend, noticing his run down condition, suggested that he try Nujol. That reminded him of what his army physician had told him, so he finally decided to give Nujol a trial. "Since that day" he says, "I've been a different person."

"Nujol," he continues, "has been responsible for what success I have made of myself in the business world, it has contributed to my health, my happiness, to my very joy of living. Without Nujol I should have gone on grumbling and complaining, muttering at fancied injustices, overlooking entirely that this world is just what we make it. Now I know what it means to get up in the morning smiling and rested—ready to do my daily work with zest; what it means to eat with no thought of the consequences; to live within the bounds of good health."

Our bodies, like any other intricate machine, need lubrication. Nujol is not a medicine; it contains no drugs; it is tasteless and colorless as pure water; it cannot hurt you; it forms no habit. All it does is to clean out regularly as clockwork—easily, normally—those poisons (we all have them) which make us feel sick and generally out of sorts.

It is hard to believe that anything so simple can do so much for you—but you can prove it yourself in a very short time, as millions of other people have done: get a bottle of Nujol at any drug store in its sealed package. It costs but a few cents and it will make you feel like a million dollars. Don't expect results over night from so simple and natural a treatment; keep it up for a couple of weeks, and you will have the answer. If you want to feel fine, start tonight—and remember to insist on Nujol!

CHILD HEALTH WORK URGED

grade pupils will have health games, songs and stories; and in addition to health talks in all rooms at the Huey school, a play will be given.

Representative of the educational direction being given in connection with celebration of "Children's Health and Welfare" are the themes to be written by fourth, fifth and sixth graders at the Benjamin Franklin school. The subjects are "Why Keep Health Day in Order to Be Good Citizens," "Why Have Health Day in May?" and "Picnic Luncheons and Health Habits for Vacation Time."

Similar programs have been prepared by the Austin, Alamo, Fannin, San Jacinto, Crockett, Sam Houston and the Booker T. Washington schools. A "vegetable parade" by the second grade will feature the program at the Fannin school. Teachers at the Crockett school will sit with their classes at lunch, and review principles of food selection, sanitation, etc., which have been included in training throughout the year.

The seven-day campaign for more attention to children's health in Wichita Falls opened last Sunday morning, and will continue through Saturday. It has been sponsored particularly by the local Red Cross offices, with Miss Pearl Rorabaugh, dietitian, and W. O. Beeman, chairman of the local board, active in organizing the movement here. The national observance is built upon the joint resolutioin of congress in 1928 designating May 1 as Child Health day throughout the country. Growth of the idea, according to Miss Rorabaugh, has been fostered by civic organizations, commercial agencies, and individuals in every community. Considerable has been given to the matter by all local service clubs during this week, it was announced. Heads of various civic bodies have aided in bringing the movement to the attention of practically the entire citizenship of Wichita Falls, it was said. Miss M. M. Thuman, school health supervisor in this city, has been active in arranging the many health programs which are being presented throughout the week.

WHY PEOPLE STAY SICK

Many People Neglecting Health

The Health Service doctors whose offices are at 727½ Indiana avenue, have made many examinations during the last 10 days. In fact there were days when it was physically impossible to examine every one who called.

While those who called were above the average in intelligence and courtesy, it was lamentable to meet so many persons who have really made and are unwilling to make a definite effort to obtain health. Bad health is usually the result of neglect or ignorance.

Educators, publishers, corporations and the best men in all walks of life are stressing the value of health examinations and the importance of early treatment of diseased conditions before they reach the hospital or incurable stage.

The Health Service Institute is trying to help the citizens of Wichita Falls and surrounding country reduce the high cost of sickness and are making their charges within the reach of anyone who is in earnest in their desire for health.

The Health Service doctors are affiliated with three large health institutes of the East and Southeast, at Newark, N. J., Atlanta, Ga., and Birmingham, Ala., which insures everyone who calls on them the latest methods for relief of deep-seated chronic conditions. With their enlarged quarters they offer every modern facility for the treatment of stomach and intestinal troubles, disease of the blood, nerves, rheumatism, diabetes, high or low blood pressure, diseases of the rectum and all conditions due to faulty metabolism.

Wasserman blood tests are only $3. Consultation is free. The Health Service Institute is permanently located in Wichita Falls. Office hours daily 9 to 5; Wednesday and Saturday evening 7 to 8; Sundays 10 to 12 only.—Adv.

Einstein's Theory Challenged Again

WASHINGTON, April 30. (INS)—The Einstein theory of relativity has been inferentially and conditionally challenged by Dr. Charles E. St. John of the Mount Wilson observatory at the Carnegie institute of Washington, attending the the annual meeting of the national acamedy of sciences.

Reporting on the "Michelson-Morley" experiment regarding the possibility of detecting orbital motion of the earth through the ether, St. John declared it was "admitted to be suitable for detecting a relative motion of the earth and ether, if it is accessible to observation," and declared observation of such a motion would undermine a fundamental postulate of the Einstein theory.

Successful After 10 Years' Search

Plainview Farmer Had Almost Given Up Hope When He Tried Argotane, Troubles Are Now Gone

"Honest, I've been trying for 10 years to get the relief two bottles of this Argotane has given me," declared E. F. Felty, a well known farmer residing on route 1, Plainview.

"Yes, 10 years ago," he continued, "I started having trouble with indigestion and from that time on I have certainly had my share of it. I kept taking medicine, thinking I I would get over my trouble, but I just kept on suffering. My appetite was no good and I had an awful burning and pains in and about my stomach. I got to where I was disgusted with medicine because nothing helped me. I was blue and despondent, I had no ambition and was just getting clean down and out as far as health was concerned.

"I was so miserable I just felt like I must get some relief some how, and when I saw so much in the papers about Argotane I decided to see if it would do me any good, and upon the recommendation of the friends who had used it, I bought my first bottle. Well, it's fine. My awful pain and distress went away before I had finished my first bottle. My appetite is like it should be and I sleep like a log. I may have gained some weight, too. I don't know about that. I feel like a new man, and Argotane is the cause of it. If anyone will inquire I certainly will tell them what this medicine will do. I'm satisfied there is nothing to equal it."

'Nose Counter' Duplicates Ben Hur Act

Enumerator Rides Disc Plow in Runaway

DODGE CITY, April 30. (AP)—Ed Virts wasn't expecting a snap exactly when he took the job as census enumerator. Still, he was hardly prepared to become a principal in an act combining all that was fine about Ben Hur with the charge of the light brigade.

Finding A. D. Long working in a field, Virts boarded his disc and, sitting abaft the beam, unfuried a farm schedule which the Kansas breeze instantly snapped taut, then whipped into the eyes of the lead team.

The apparently somnambulant steeds galvanized. Enumerator Virts found himself asking Farmer Long what language he spoke, while being given a splendid opportunity to judge for himself.

The horses wheeled the disc around the field like a war chariot at a Roman circus, farm and unemployment schedules fluttering down like confetti at Mardi gras.

Finally the tide of battle turned and the dashing steeds were quieted.

"That's one bit of census information I can vouch for," muttered Enumerator Virts as he retrieved a farm schedule from beneath a clod and opposite the name of A. D. Long, wrote "four horses."

QUARTET ROBS HUGE PAYROLL

Goodyear's Alabama Plant Scene of Holdup

GADSDEN, Ala., April 30. (AP)—Four men armed with sawed off shotguns held up the paymaster and two guards of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company here today and escaped in a company automobile with between $15,000 and $20,000.

The bandits, described by Paymaster S. E. Berkenstresser as being young, well dressed men, were later reported to have been seen on the Atlanta highway.

Berkenstresser had drawn the money from a bank and the payroll car had neared the Goodyear plant with the guard 100 yards behind when two automobiles bearing the bandits crowded both company cars into a ditch.

Holding the paymaster and guards at bay with shotguns, the robbers obtained the payroll and sped away in the machine which had been driven by Berkenstresser.

One of the machines left by the bandits was traced to Birmingham where it had been reported stolen.

Miss Dix Tells Why 'Youth Craze' Is Not Sensible

Why the cult of youth that obsesses us all? Why do we spend millions of dollars a year on having our hair dyed, our wrinkles rubbed out, our faces lifted, and on synethetic roses and cream complexions? Why do we unoergo the horrors of semi-starvation in order to acquire boyish and girlish figures? Why is the one surefire compliment, that invariably hits the bull's-eye with every man and woman, to tell them how young they look, and to guess their age at 20 years under the real figure?

If youth was invariably beautiful, it would be easy to understand why we are all so determined to keep young at any cost, no matter how old we are, but not every youth is a Valentino, nor every maiden a Dolores Costello. Far from it. Taking it by and large the average of good looks at 20 is no greater than it is at 45 or 65.

Indeed, age improves the personal appearance of many people and it is no uncommon thing to see a weedy, gawky, lanky, stringbean sort of boy develop into a man who is a real personage by the time he is 45. Nor is it unusual for an ugly duckling girl to turn into a glorious swan at middle age, and we all know people who blossom into beauty in their old age just because their flesh is worn away so that you can see the loveliness of their souls, that is like a light shining through an alabaster vase.

It is easily understood why middle age may be more beautiful than youth. Youth has nothing but its physical perfection of form and color to stand on, and if it lacks these it has nothing, but age has a thousand camouflages to hide its defects.

It has acquired poise and grace and charm and intelligence to substitute for beauty. It has learned how to dress and how to talk. Nobody ever notices whether a man who is a spellbinder is short or tall, or fat or thin, or has a pug nose or a Grecian profile. Nobody ever notices whether the middle-aged woman who knows how to dress, and who has fascination of manners is really beautiful, or whether she just looks so.

Nor is youth the time of life when we are most attractive to our fellow creatures. It takes time to develop and ripen and sweeten a human being as it does a fruit, and a boy and a girl compared to a mature man and woman are as a green peach to a ripe one. No matter what it may become later on, 20 is immature in its judgment, narrow in its view, limited in its experience.

Try to talk to any young boy and girl and the conversation peters out in a few minutes because they are self-centered and have nothing to talk about except themselves, and nothing worth listening to has ever happened to them. Their high moments have been a football game, or a new frock. Their tragedy, not being able to have a sports car.

But most middle-aged people are interesting, even if they only talk about themselves, because they have experienced so much, they have seen so many strange things happen in this inexplicable drama we call life. They have seen birth and death and triumph and failure. They have wept and laughed, and they have only to dip into the inexhaustible storehouse of their memories to drag forth tales that hold us enthralled listeners.

If, then, youth has no magic that insures us beauty and fascination, why do we cling to it so frantically? Why do we so dread age? Chiefly, I think, because we labor under the superstition that we can no more escape the faults of old age than we can its gray hair and its stiff joints. We know that most old people are killjoys that every one dreads to have around, and we cannot bear to think of the time coming when our society will be avoided and we will be endured only as a matter of duty.

The remedy for this lies in our own hands. We can take the curse off of age by watching our step and refusing to fall into the vices of age. These are, roughly speaking, being repeaters, having bad manners, being arbitrary and tyrannical, being meddlesome and conceited.

There is no excuse, short of senility, why we should bore people to tears by telling them over and over again the same stories and letting everything that occurs remind us of something that happened to us 40 years ago. Nor is age an alibi for a man or a woman abandoning all of the amenities of civilization and saying what they please, and being as rude as they like, though many old people think that it is. Very few families are so blessed as not to have a grandmother or grandfather or an Aunt Harriet or an Uncle John who do not make life a terror for those unlucky enough to have to live with them.

Another fault which we regard as inseparable from old age is the mania for sticking fingers in everybody else's pies, and that is why the aged are persona non grata. They cannot see anybody doing anything, from giving a baby its bottle to flying an airplane, without telling them how to do it. They run all about them mad with their ceaseless advice and suggestions and that is why everybody avoids them as they would the plague.

And, worst of all, is the supreme egotism of age which makes old people feel that just because they have lived a certain number of years that they have some superior, mysterious wisdom that makes them know better than anybody else about everything, and fitted to decide the destiny of the universe. Also that their way is the only way, no matter if it has always ended in disaster.

Now, no matter how hard we try, we cannot keep young, but we can make ourselves lovely and attractive in age and we would get far better results if we spent more time in trying to improve our old-age technique than in trying to keep complexions and our waistlines.—DOROTHY DIX.

Clark-Couper Nuptials Said In Pretty Ceremony

One of the most attractive weddings of the season occurred Wednesday when Miss Anabel Couper became the bride of Arthur F. Clark in a simple but impressive ceremony at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Couper, 1813 Ninth street.

The ceremony was read by Rev. N. F. Grafton, pastor of the First Presbyterian church at high noon under a beautifully improvised altar before the fireplace. The sunburst shades, combined with snapdragons and calendula interwoven with maidenhair fern formed a veritable bower of beauty. Four tiered white candelabra were used on either side of the mantel and southern smilax was used in decorating the chandeller.

The bride was gowned in an ivory satin dress that was worn by her aunt, Anabel Couper, 31 years ago, and carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Warren Hastings, who acted as matron of honor, wore a white frock of mousseline de sole which was dotted with figures of tiny yellow daisies and carried a bouquet of peret roses. A yellow picture hat completed her attire. Mr. Clark was attended by Fred T. Couper Jr.

Pre-nuptial music was "All For You" sung by Mrs. C. Y. Tully, with Mrs. Luke McCrory at the piano. Mrs. A. M. Miller gave "At Dawning" on the violin and during the ceremony played "Venetian Love Song."

Following the ceremony the bride cut and served her wedding cake which was handsomely decorated with love birds and lilies of the valley. It was centered with a bouquet of white roses combined with baby's breath and lilies of the valley. The table was covered with a lovely madeira cloth and on the buffet was a bowl of delicately colored pink roses. Tall pink tapers were used on either end of the buffet. Pillar rose and English honeysuckle were used in the other rooms.

Immediately following the reception, the couple left for a short honeymoon after which they will be at home to their friends at 2105 Hays street. Mr. Clark is associated with the Hanover Oil company, here.

Keller led the opening prayer after which a business session was held. Plans were made to increase the membership of the society and plans were also made for socials and other events in the membership campaign.

The subject of the program was "Missionary Work Among the Negroes." There were 14 questions involved in this subject and discussions on these questions were given by various members. Mrs. Anna Rowe led the missionary prayer for the year book after which the meeting was dismissed. There were 15 women present.

The members of the Friendship class of the Methodist church were entertained with a tacky party at the church on Friday afternoon. The guests were met at the door by the group hostesses and were asked to use their maiden names in registering.

The program included a mock orchestra, a comic reading by Mrs. A. C. Hill; piano numbers by Mary Helen King and Nell Jackson. Two old time songs, "My Old Kentucky Home" and "Old Black Joe" were also sung. The spelling match caused much merriment among the ladies. Each guest was called by her maiden name and each one gave a penny for each inch in their waist measure. Mrs. L. P. Sadler was voted "the tackiest" present.

Refreshments consisting of doughnuts and soda water were served to 55 members of the class and the following guests: Mesdames Katherine Gilliland, Allene Slaton, Lucille Marlow, Elsie Shaw, Eva Lee Keesee, Mattie Tinnin, Jennie Harrison, Blanch Vaught, and J. N. Fulcher.

Mrs. Chester Johnson entertained the members of the Ace of Clubs Bridge club at her home at Sunshine Hill Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Terry Preston was the guest of honor. Three tables of bridge were arranged with Mrs. Joe Platt receiving high score and Mrs. John L. Wright, low.

Lovely refreshments were served to Mesdames C. Y. Gorman, Ray Usry, Tevis Bickley, Robert Scott, John L. Wright, Clyde Sanderlin, Terry Preston, Joe Platt, Bert Wright, Theo Youree, Eleant Stearns, and the hostess.

Mrs. B. V. Magee entertained the members of the Primo Bridge club at her home on North Wichita. Five tables of bridge were arranged with Mrs. A. S. Haaf winning high for the members and Mrs. Frank LeBus high for the guest. Mrs. W. H. Odgen received low score. Each were presented prizes.

A delicious salad and ice course was served to Mesdames Dwight Hoskins, W. H. Odgen, A. C. Bledsoe, J. R. Brewer, J. M. Hemby, C. R. Conyers, A. Fisher, Frank LeBus, guests; Mesdames C. P. Engelking, J. T. McDannald, A. S. Haaf, T. H. Parmley, George LeBus, John LeBus, R. P. Hall, J. H. Harris, I. K. Williams, J. A. O'Pry, W. D. Goldsmith, and the hostess, members.

Steve Rumore, vice president, presided over the weekly luncheon of the Rotary club in the absence of the president, J. G. B. Totten. B. M. Dinsmore and Rudy Scheurer were in charge of the entertainment and presented the Electra High school Girls Glee club, under the direction of Miss Claire McNay, in several numbers. Miss Marjorie Beasley also gave several readings.

It was also announced that new officers will be selected by the new board of directors at the next meeting.

The Woman's Bible class of the Church of Christ met at the church Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 with the teacher, Mrs. C. K. Orr, in charge of the lesson. The meeting was opened with the song, "Take Time to Be Holy." Mrs. Orr read and commented on the 12th chapter of the book of Mark. A new book will be used at the next meeting. Mrs. C. U. Beasley led the closing prayer.

Those present were Mesdames Hal Hughes, C. U. Beasley, Orville Richardson, Jacobs, Dave Daggs, Balk, Marion Bray, Amos Bates, Durham, Hardy Hall, Charlie Horton, C. Harvey, C. K. Orr, and Myrtle Greer.

'Necking' to Mean Better Marriages, Conference Told

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 30. (UP)—Increasing divorces and "necking" courtships are not signs of a decadent state but prophecies of a more ideal marriage state, Mrs. John A. Rice of Tulsa told delegates at the Oklahoma congressional church conference today.

"Modern courtships consists of an exploring personality and frank and honest advertising of wares," said Mrs. Rice. "Young men and women of today are looking forward to marriage founded on intelligent as well as affectionate basis."

"The current unrest of martial life presages a greater and more infinite marriage state," she said.

While divorces were heralded as a move for better life, the movies came in for a sound drubbing.

The Rev. W. H. Bickerson of Vinita, led the attack on Will Hays, film dictator. The pastor said Hays "has not done his job."

"He has made us promise after promise but has not cleaned up the movies," the Rev. Bickers said.

Great Britain Defies India Revolt Chief

LONDON, April 30. (INS)—The British government today issued a defi to Mahatma Gandhi, setting forth clearly it would not capitulate to the demands of the nationalist leader.

According to an exchange telegraph dispatch from Bombay, the government issued a communique declaring it had no intention of abolishing the salt tax.

Gandhi has based his "civil disobedience" campaign on this issue, and has openly violated the government's salt laws in an effort to force a showdown.

Lewis Admits Breaking Letter of Violation

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 30. (AP)—John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, today admitted violating the letter of an injunction of the Sangamon county circuit court forbidding him to oust Illinois state mine union officers.

Called to answer the charge of Harry Fishwick, president of the Illinois mine workers, whose organization had obtained the injunction, Lewis charged the Illinois miners first had violated it, and by quitting the union and forming a dual organization had "deserted the shelter of injunction."

Publication of Documents Bares Plan for English Drive on Belgium

Sensational Revelations Concerning Anglo-French Negotiations Before War Disclosed

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE

(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.)

LONDON, April 30.—Seven years before the outbreak of the world war in August, 1914, Britain was urged by France to have 300,000 men ready to invade Belgium against Germany.

This is revealed today in the publication of volume six of "British Documents on the Origin of the War" by the government stationer's office. The volume's 796 pages are crammed with sensational revelations which appear to belie Britain's claims of 1914 that she was forced into the war because of the German violation of Belgium neutrality.

"Generals at the front in war time have no time to think of such small matters as neutrality and international engagements."

This statement was made by the late Georges Clemenceau, "Tiger" of France, to King Edward VII of Britain, when the Tiger urged the British king in 1907 to have 300,000 British troops ready to go through Belgium as "a diversion against a German assault on France."

This is but one of the surprising revelations in the British publication.

Value of Concords

The value of European agreements, army and naval concords such as recently concluded at the London naval conference, is best demonstrated in this volume, which shows conclusively the Anglo-French agreement between their respective general staffs and the general plan for British violation of Belgian neutrality by landing troops in Belgium in the event of a Franco-German war.

This thesis may be best exemplified by a direct quotation which all London newspapers, except the government organ, the Daily Herald, carefully avoided—and even the Herald is a little blind to its import.

One Sir Francis Bertie, British ambassador to Paris, reporting to Sir Edward Grey, foreign secretary, on April 11, 1907, said:

"Clemenceau thought that the prime minister (then Campbell Bannerman) could not be aware of communications which passed between the French and British general staffs during the acute status of the Morocco crisis, when it had been contemplated that in the event of certain eventualities, 115,000 British troops would be employed in Belgium or elsewhere, in support of France."

King Edward returned this memorandum to Sir Edward Grey, with the marginal notation:

"Clemenceau held similar language with me. If we haven't a soldier to help France were she to be attacked by Germany, France would be unable to hold her own."

Talk With Clemenceau

Sir Edward Goschen, writing from Marien-Bad to the foreign secretary on Aug. 29, 1908, details a talk with Clemenceau, whom he met there, quoting the French statesman as follows:

"You (England) may sink the whole German navy, but how about us. We shall, in any case, have to bear the brunt and shall go to the wall unless you give us military assistance."

As far back as April 8, 1911, Col. W. E. Fairholme, British military attache at the Paris legation, reported to the British ambassador a conversation he had with the late Marshal Foch, then commandant of the staff college of the French army. According to Fairholme, Foch said:

"War with Germany will come, and big events may be expected after 1912. I am firmly convinced of the urgent necessity for an understanding between the British and French governments regarding the form which their joint action should take in event of a Franco-German war."

It appears from the documents that France increased her demands for British support from 115,000 men in 1907 to 300,000 in 1908, after Sir Edward Grey had appeared hesitant.

Q.—What is the system of liquor regulation in Sweden called? What are its purposes?—A. H.

A.—The present system of restricted liquor traffic, devised by Dr. Ivan Bratt, was put into effect in 1914, replacing the Gothenburg system, which abolished the saloon and established certain hours when liquor could be sold. Three main ideas run through the Bratt system: Reduction of the general ration of distilled and spiritous liquors through a central control, denial of liquor to alcoholics and persons who are known to abuse drink, and elimination of all private interest in the liquor traffic. Under this law Sweden now derives a revenue of 110,000,000 kroner from the liquor traffic. Bootlegging is unknown. There is no enforcement problem.

Q.—Please give some information about the dance called the cotillon. —L. M.

A.—The cotillon is a dance of French origin, and is performed to quadrille music. It was a fashionable dance at the court of Charles X, where it had been adapted from a peasant dance. At first for one, then for two performers, it soon became a ronde dance, in which form it was introduced into England. There are hundreds of possible figures in the modern dance, and the accessories are most elaborate. The cotillon is begun by a small number of couples, who occupy the floor while the rest of the guests sit about the ballroom. These couples select others from among those seated, and after going through a figure, all take seats and are replaced by other couples until the whole company has danced that particular figure. Another method is for each set of couples to dance a different figure.

Q.—Where is the biggest airport in the world?—E. S.

A.—Tempelhof at Berlin, Germany, is the largest.

Q.—Does Canada find it necessary to wage war on insects which attack crops?—G. H. M.

A.—It does. Some of the chief insect enemies are grasshoppers, the wheat stem sawfly, wireworms, the pale western cutworm and his ally the red-backed cutworm, the bertha armyworm, the early cutworm, the Colorado potato beetle, the imported cabbage butterfly and the root maggot.

Q.—Who was the author of "Damaged Goods?"—K. W.

A.—Eugene Brieux.

Q.—Are there cafeterias in England?—C. F.

A.—Self-service restaurants, called cafeterias in this country are practically unknown in Great Britain.

Q.—Can anybody vote more than once in the Literary Digest prohibition poll?L. L. B.

A.—There is no way of preventing the casting of more than one vote if a person receives more than one ballot. The Digest states it has discovered some sporadic instances of duplication in the general poll, but adds that it believes there is less repeating than there is in the average national election.

Q.—Who was the first man to fly over the Alps?—P. E.

A.—George Chavez made the first successful flight in 1910. He followed the Simplon Pass and made a flight which remains a high light in aviation, but lost his life through a mishap in landing his plane.

Q.—On which syllable is the word moron accented?—N. E. L.

A.—The word, when meaning a person whose mental capacity has been arrested during development, is accented on the first syllable. When spelled with a capital letter it is the name of a town in Spain and the accent is on the second syllable.

It was prepared by George M. Warren, an associate hydraulic engineer of the United States department of agriculture. It is profusely illustrated, and is the last word on cellar location, construction, and rehabilitation.

Now that the senate has passed a bill authorizing reimbursement of $764,143 spent by New York City on troops sent to defend Washington in the civil war, you may expect England to sue the city of Boston for tea dumped into the harbor after a celebrated party.

"There's no such thing as complete silence," declares a scientist. Then we should like to know what it is that follows the request of a loan from a Scotchman.

Add victims of this machine age: the three Chicago bandits who, when confronted by the evidence of a "lie detector," confessed their crimes.

Advice From Overseas

IT SEEMS to be the chief function of visiting Europeans to give advice to the United States. Since we are gradually learning how to ignore such advice, and since the giving of it seems to give pleasure to the donors, the whole system is all very nice. However, it might be well for our advisors, now and then, to get their facts straight.

A few days ago two distinguished European journalists were in Washington. Entertained at a dinner party, they arose afterward to speak their minds.

One of them, Andre Geraud of Paris, had this to say:

"Your present position is unexampled in the history of the world. Recently you only had to take the trouble to file a request to get from proud England a 50 per cent share in the imperium of the seas."

The other, Wickham Steed of London, said this:

"You have asked and obtained only parity of strength. You have not sought parity of responsibility."

Those two remarks—worth noticing because they represent so well the condescending attitude of most Europeans—seem to us to be somewhat wrong-end-to.

Some one should tell these visitors that America did not "ask" for naval parity. America granted it.

In 1921 the United States had, in warships built, building and appropriated for, the most powerful navy on earth. No other nation was able to build up to us. If this country had desired it could have kept itself in first place without the slightest difficulty.

But America did not chose to do so. Voluntarily, at the Washington conference, it threw away millions of dollars worth of new warships and gave up the chance of having unchallenged naval dominion.

That needs to be remembered. We are being told, too often, that we are too intensely nationalistic, too selfish. Let the visiting Europeans bear in mind that we gave parity; we did not ask for it, or "file a request." This "proud Britain" that M. Geraud speaks of was very glad to get parity.

And what is this talk about "seeking parity of responsibility"? It does not, really, mean anything; but what the gentleman evidently had in mind was that it is somehow our duty to embroil ourselves so thoroughly in Europe's various intrigues that we would inevitably become involved in the next war that breaks out over there. Perhaps he can demonstrate that that is really our solemn duty, but it will take some tall talking.

It is just as well that this country has developed a knack for letting this advice pass in at one ear and out at the other. Regardless of that, however, our self-appointed advisors really should get their facts straight.

Peanut Politics

IT IS not quite 11 months since the senate passed the Norris resolution to end the "lame duck" sessions of congress.

As to the merits of this resolution there can be no argument. There is no valid reason for allowing congressmen defeated at the polls to spend an additional 13 months in office. There are all kinds of very weighty reasons against it.

But the Norris resolution still slumbers in the house of representatives, which in former years has killed four similar resolutions.

The house, however, has managed to do this much; continuing to ignore the Norris bill, it has sent to committee an identical resolution fathered by a Massachusetts member. Apparently the house finds itself unable to put off the passage of this needed reform any longer; but by sidetracking the Norris resolution it is trying to take from the Nebraska senator the credit that is due him.

It has seldom played a pettier brand of peanut politics.

For Perfumed Streets

THE bright ideas of some of our foreign visitors certainly do provide a fillip for the imagination, now and then.

One George Klotz, a Parisian perfumer, visiting New York, comes to bat with the following gem:

The famous sidewalks of New York, says M. Klotz, smell badly. Why, therefore, should not the city install huge perfume atomizers on each fire plug, spraying sweet scents into the air and making of each street a highway of olfactory delights?

Why not, indeed? The idea has great possibilities. And an excellent place to start, it seems to us, would be, not New York, but the stockyard district of Chicago. If the scheme works there it is the inspiration of the century.

CARESSE ⚜ A Complete Novel By RUTH TAYLOR

"Mr. Branard, you haven't enough money to buy Shady Lawn inn."

SYNOPSIS

Caresse O'Neill, daughter of the owner of Shady Lawn Inn in the village of Riverton, is jilted by her sweetheart, Ted Branard, son of the town's wealthy banker, on the day of the wedding. Caresse insists on continuing the party which had been arranged in her honor, and telephones Billy, a New York friend, to come down and bring two other friends as escorts for Miriam Nowell and Bess Parker, her best friends. They later go to a nearby roadhouse.

A few weeks later Caresse and friends are riding on a lonely road when the car gives out of gas near the old Morton place, which they believe abandoned. They go to the house, find a lighted lamp and a grand piano, and start dancing. Suddenly the door opens and the owner, Lee Deering, enters, to confront them.

Caresse's friends slip out of the house while she tries to explain their presence to Deering, and Caresse accepts his invitation to muffins and coffee before she returns home.

Deering becomes a boarder at Shady Lawn Inn and his friendship with Caresse develops rapidly. Teddy Branard returns suddenly, and calls on Caresse. She forces him to take her to a local roadhouse as a blow at Ted's father.

CHAPTER V

Teddy Branard had reason to worry about the effect on his parents of his being seen with Caresse O'Neill on the evening of his return from his trip.

He made it a point to be late for breakfast the next morning. That would give the governor a chance to get away. He would be off for the golf links. Or he would motor into the city. Teddy knew it was a serious matter that would keep his father away from golf or business on days laid out for each.

His eyes opened wide with astonishment, and his demeanor was sheepish when he entered the breakfast room overlooking the terrace, and found his father and mother still at the table. Their breakfasts were finished, and they were obviously waiting.

He saw them too late to retreat. He came in jauntily and slid back a chair, waving the butler aside.

"Morning, mother! Down early, aren't you? Thought you couldn't get through the day without breakfast in bed? Morning, governor. The skies fallen, or has somebody made divots all over the golf course? Bring on the melon, Johnson," he told the hovering butler.

Cyrus Branard did not speak until the serving-man was out the door. From the corner of his eye Ted saw his mother sniffling. He wished she would not do that. It made her nose red, and if there was anything he hated it was a fat woman with a red nose.

He made an effort to say something, to be his nonchalant self. His father sternly interrupted him.

"I'm informed you were out riding last night," he opened up, formidably.

Ted half choked on a bite of melon, as he looked up innocently.

"Who? Me? Why—er—so I was. Nice night."

"—with that—er—that O'Neill girl," completed his father.

"Caresse?" asked Teddy, surprised. "Why—er—come to think of it, so I was. Had to show her the car. Dandy car, that, governor. You ought to see her take the Long Roads hill. I—"

His father glowered.

"I hope you have not forgotten why I gave you that car," he interrupted. "It was so that you—"

"—wouldn't marry Caresse on Wednesday. Well, I didn't, did I?"

"And now—now"—his mother buried her face in her handkerchief and wailed her protest—"now we'll have to do it all over again!"

"Why? I don't need another car."

She looked up from her handkerchief, and her eyes flashed at him.

"You know what I mean, Ted Branard. I should think you'd have some regard for your social position, and—"

"Social position be hanged! What good's it ever done me, I'd like to know. But I haven't married Caresse!"

"Who knows what you might do!"

"I might do a lot with a new motorboat, if I had one. Nothing will keep a fellow's mind off other matters like getting out with a good boat and a clear stretch of water," hinted Ted.

"Is this another hold-up?" demanded Mr. Branard, scowling darkly.

"A holdup? Me? Governor. You shouldn't talk that way about your only son and heir. I was only suggesting—"

"My heir!" exploded Mr. Branard. "I—I'll disinherit you, sir!"

"All right," said Teddy, carelessly. "Go to it. Grandmother didn't disinherit me. I'm of age, too, and—"

The entrance of the butler left Cyrus Branard's unspoken retort on the tip of his tongue. His face purpled with his effort to hold back his remarks, and he buried it behind his paper. At last he spoke, without lowering the paper.

"How much will that boat cost?"

"Ah!" said Teddy, triumphantly. He laid down his napkin and rose as his mother rose. "I'll find out, governor, and let you know. Nice of you. I'll remember it."

"That boat will be for you—alone. Understand?"

"I—ah—yes, sir. I'll promise to take along with me only those you vise yourself. Right, sir? Got to run along, now. Hope you enjoy your golf. Don't overdo it. You're looking a little peckish, governor."

His father's face threatened apoplexy as he knew himself unable to answer as he wished. He turned and followed the boy's mother from the room. They went into her morning room.

"It's a problem," he told her, there, when he had lighted his cigar and drawn several long puffs. "It's beyond me! This is the third time that boy has held me up for something he wanted, and always with a promise to keep away from that girl. Darn that money your mother left him, anyway! If it wasn't for that—"

"Do you suppose we could get him to go abroad?" asked Mrs. Branard, anxiously.

"He'd probably only get mixed up with somebody worse," he grumbled. "I'm stumped! Short of selling everything, and picking up and going to California, or something of that sort, I don't see how we're going to keep him away from that girl. She's got him hypnotized, that's all!"

"Why shouldn't they go?" suggested Mrs. Branard, as she glanced out the window at the big park surrounding the magnificent Branard home. "That would be more like it. Why should we be driven from our home by an Irish girl and her designing mother?"

Her husband considered the matter.

"That's an idea," he said. "Worth trying."

An hour later, Mrs. O'Neill, at the Shady Lawn inn, had a caller. She was surprised, when she answered the door herself, to see Ted's father standing on the threshold.

"I'll come to the point at once, Mrs. O'Neill," he told her, crisply, when she had taken him into the parlor. "I've come to buy Shady Lawn inn. It's for sale, I presume—at the right price?"

"Why, I—I hadn't thought—"

"I said at the right price," insinuated Mr. Branard. "I am prepared to pay you anything within reason but—"

"I didn't know you were interested in more property, Mr. Branard. And I don't think I would care to—"

"I'll give you fifty thousand," he said, quickly.

Caresse's mother's eyes flew wide open, and she caught her breath.

"Why—why—it's twice what it's worth! I don't know—I must think—Fifty thousand!"

The vision of what that might mean flashed before her. As yet she had not given a thought as to the reason the millionaire might want her inn.

"Fifty thousand," he repeated, and added: "Under one condition—that you and your daughter leave for California immediately, and that you do not return."

Mrs. O'Neill rose unsteadily to her feet. Her face was drained white, but her bearing held a dignity that even the wife of the millionaire could not match.

"So that's it!" she said slowly. "It is not enough that your son should publicly humiliate us, but now the father must come here to insult us. Mr. Branard, you have not enough money to buy Shady Lawn inn. As I once told you about my daughter's happiness. Neither are for sale—at any price. That is all, Mr. Branard."

He tried to protest. It was useless. Mrs. O'Neill would listen to nothing further. He was in a blind fury when he entered his car and went to report his failure to his wife.

Caresse's mother did not tell her of the offer of Teddy Branard's father. She felt that Caresse had had enough of humiliation from that family.

While before she had felt fearful because of the girl's renewed friendship for Teddy, she now felt it might hold something of justice. She did not want Caresse to marry Teddy, any more than she wanted her to before. She believed it would not be for Caresse's lasting happiness to be the wife of one so irresponsible, one so careless of the feelings of others.

She was confident, though, that Caresse was in no danger of marrying the millionaire's son. She decided that if it gave Caresse any pleasure to flaunt her power over young Branard that she deserved the right. She would not discourage her.

"And by the saints I'll help her," she muttered, grimly.

She set her teeth, and there was a furrow of determination between her fine brows as she plodded away to "set the dough" for the morrow's Parker House rolls.

"C'resse," said Mrs. O'Neill, the next morning, as Caresse, in her pretty little coolie coat, sat at the little table in the nook of a window in the kitchen, consuming the dainty morsels of freshly cooked rolls with her omelet, "tomorrow's your birthday."

Caresse looked up and grinned.

"Why remind me? Getting old, Moms. And here I'm still on your hands. Poor lady love!"

"It's not that, kittep, and you know it. You are a kitten. Haven't got your eyes open yet."

"Ought to," said Caresse, nonchalantly, and buttered a fresh roll.

"Ought to isn't is," pronounced mother. "But that's neither here nor there. It's not what I'm really getting at. What I mean is this: How'd you like a birthday party?" An old-fashioned birthday party?"

Caresse dropped her knife on the table and ran to her mother. She threw her arms about her.

"Oh, Moms! You darling! Could we really have one? Wouldn't it be too much work? I'll help!" She said it all in a breath.

"There, there, finish your breakfast. I guess it could be managed. Eat your victuals and get busy on the telephone. You won't have much time. Make up your mind who you want, and call 'em. Hand me down that cook book behind the clock. It's got a recipe for angel food. Takes 12 egges, but. . . . I do declare everything's that high! But the chickens are laying again, and—"

Caresse needed no urging. She flew to her task, leaving her coffee half drunk.

"It's going to be some party," she told Miriam, a little later.

The two girls sat in Caresse's room, planning. Caresse was sewing fresh maline frills on her sleeveless pink chiffon.

"I've invited about everybody," she went on, "and we're going to have angel food and cocoanut cake, of course, and salads, and Billy Tom's Jazz band."

"Teddy going to be there?" asked Miriam, curiously.

"Why not?"

"Oh, I don't know. I was just thinking."

"Don't strain yourself. Teddy wan't bite, and besides—"

She did not look at Miriam. She held the frock at arm's length to consider the frill she had set in place.

"C'resse, you going to make up with Ted? You going to marry him?"

Caresse laughed, but was noncommittal.

"You'd be surprised," was all she said.

TWO MEN DIE IN BURNING OIL

Explosion Liberates Stream Of Fiery Liquid

CHICAGO, April 30. (AP)—Two men were burned alive in oil today in an explosion at the refinery of the Dabros Products Corporation. Four others escaped unhurt, dragging with them a fifth, so severely burned he was not expected to live.

One of the 500-gallon stills was believed to have become overheated while oil was being poured into it, causing the explosion, which sent a column of oil through the metal roof and one side of the plant.

James Fleming, foreman of the exploding still, was one of those burned to death. In a laboratory 20 feet away, the body of Walter Kitch, 22-year-old Northwestern university graduate, was found.

PARKER CALLED 'BLIND SLAVE'

Wagner Attacks Judicial Record of Nominee

Democrat pictured the jurist as a slave to court precedent, which he followed "without question, without doubt, without thought, totally oblivious of its possible catastrophic effects upon the future."

Moreover, Wagner asserted that Parker's court decisions and political statements have demonstrated that he lacks of sympathy for the laboring man and the negro "for a better place in the world."

Wagner, who led the opposition on the third day of debate on the Parker nomination, as well as Senator Hastings, of Delaware, and Herbert, of Rhode Island, Republican defenders of the jurist, brought the race question squarely before the senate. Wagner said:

"Judge Parker's reference to the colored race is, to my mind, an insufferable and unjustified affront to millions of American citizens."

Hastings Leads Defense

After a review of Parker's decisions and qualifications, Hastings closed a lengthy defense of Parker with this defiant challenge:

"I do not propose to allow the colored people of this country to fix my judgment on how I shall vote on Judge Parker. The colored people of the South are not against Parker but only the colored people of the North and their organizations.

"I know that I will have to defend myself before the laboring men and the colored people of my state if I seek reelection, but I am perfectly willing to do that. I propose to follow principle and not political expediency and vote for Judge Parker."

COURT REFUSES SHOOK'S PLEA

Former Officer Fails in Appeal of Five-Year Term

The conviction of Tom Shook, former Electra police chief, given five years on a charge of robbery with firearms in connection with the Jefferson hotel holdup at Electra in June, 1928, by a jury at Graham several months ago, was affirmed by the court of criminal appeals Wednesday.

The appeal for a new trial denied by the court at Austin was filed following Shook's conviction in the 30th district court at Graham on a change of venue from Wichita county.

The court of criminal appeals also affirmed the conviction and 99-year sentence imposed by a Young county jury on J. M. Reese for the murder of Ed Langford.

Shook is also under a sentence of 30 years given by a Wichita county jury on a conviction for murder in connection with the fatal stabbing of Oscar Daugherty at Electra in August, 1928. An appeal from that conviction is pending before the court. Sam B. Spence, district attorney here, said Wednesday no attempt would be made to call Shook to trial on four other indictments against him until a decision has been returned on the appeal from the murder conviction.

The former Electra police chief escaped from the county jail here about two weeks after his arrest on the murder charge. He escaped officers in several states for more than a year, finally being located in Tennessee when Wichita county officers were notified of his arrest in connection with a slaying in that state. He was brought here to answer the several indictments against him in Wichita county.

Shook was transferred to the county jail at Dallas for safe keeping following his trial for the murder of Daugherty. He is at present a prisoner there, Sheriff W. G. Bralley said Wednesday.

CROSSED EYES

Expert Says Affliction Due to Fright or Colic

In an address to a group of 14 optometrists Wednesday night, Dr. R. M. Peckham, formerly an instructor in the University of Southern California, said that all eye trouble is due to toxic poisons that form on the nerves that lead from the eye to the brain. Crossed eyes are generally caused by fright or colic that causes the poison to form on the nerves, he said.

All cases of crossed eyes can be remedied without an operation by use of an instrument which exercises the eyes in a way that will straighten them, he declared.

DAN NORWOOD MAKES BOND

Charges Follow 30-Gallon Liquor Haul

Dan Norwood, arrested Tuesday night after the seizure of 30 gallons of whisky in an automobile on the road between Iowa Park and K. M. A. Wednesday afternoon was released under a $1,000 bond. Ray Harriman, alleged to have been an occupant of the same machine, Thursday voluntarily visited the office of Sheriff W. G. Bralley to make a similar bond on charges filed after the seizure.

Norwood was arrested when Charlie Gant, deputy sheriff, served him with a warrant growing out of another liquor charge already pending against him. When Harriman left the parked machine, the officers conducted a search which resulted in the discovery of the liquor and the filing of new charges against the pair Wednesday morning.

Norwood is to face his third trial on a charge of manufacture of whisky in Archer City in May, the case having been transferred for trial there after a Wichita Falls jury failed to agree several weeks ago.

Asparagus and Asparagin

Asparagus is one of the few perennial non-starchy vegetables which bear year after year. Although the plants are started from seed, they are generally planted into permanent beds which will continue to produce for as long as 100 years, although the best crops occur between the third and sixth years, and the beds are usually replanted after about 10 years, as the stalks became smaller in size after this time.

The young and tender shoots are familiar to everyone. The vegetable can be obtained fresh most of the year, although at certain times it is very expensive. The canned product may, however, be used during the months when you cannot obtain the fresh in your market. Although asparagus does not contain much nutritional value, it is valuable in the diet because it is rich in mineral elements, especially sodium, calcium, potassium and sulphur. Asparagus also contains an odorous substance called asparagin which stimulates the kidneys and usually passes out of the system quickly. It forms a fairly good test for kidney elimination, as the odor is readily discernible within a few hours after you have eaten a meal of asparagus.

In preparing this vegetable, it should be washed carefully to remove the grit. Sometimes a small amount of dirt sticks under the larger scales, and they should be removed, as well as the toughest part of the fibrous end. When serving asparagus whole, it is a good plan to tie the stalks in the bundle with all the tips even and cut off the root ends so that the bunch will stand on its base in the pan. Leave about two inches of water, and cover the vessel. The tips will then be steamed and unbroken. The juice may be used for soups and should not be thrown away.

Asparagus may be served either hot or cold, and if you wish a change try chopping up the raw tips and adding them to salads. Here are a few recipes which I know you will enjoy.

Asparagus and Milk

Wash the asparagus carefully and cut into half inch lengths, all except the part which is too difficult to cut readily. Place in a pot and cover with hot milk, add a pinch of baking soda, and cook over a slow fire for about 25 minutes. Season with a little salt and butter just before serving.

Baked Asparagus

Wash and cut the asparagus into lengths. Place in a casserole and add meat broth or milk to cover. Put on the lid and bake for 40 minutes. Remove the lid and add a tablespoonful of dextrinized flour for each cupful of asparagus. Return to the casserole and bake for 10 minutes longer.

Curried Asparagus

One bunch of cooked asparagus cut into inch lengths. Three stalks of finely chopped celery, a sprig of chopped mint or watercress, one sliced apple. Take a frying pan and melt three tablespoonfuls of butter in it. Add a rounded teaspoonful of curry powder, stir well, and add the celery, apple and mint. Cook celery with a cover on it, stirring occasionally for about 15 minutes, then add the chopped asparagus and cook for about 10 minutes longer. This makes a good dish to serve with meat.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Blow on Head

Question—C. T. writes: An icebox lid fell on my head a few months ago, making me dizzy at the time. On the fourth day I saw the doctor about it and he said nothing was wrong. There is a small lump on the side of my head and if I massage it, it seems to bring the pain to the surface and my forehead aches. I consulted another doctor, and he tells me he thinks there is a small blood clot. If the x-ray shows this, what do you advise me to do?"

Answer—If a blood clot has formed on your brain I would advise a fasting regime similar to that outlined in my cleansing diet course. It is possible, however, that you may have injured some of the vertebrae in your neck when the refrigerator lid fell on you. This often occurs in accidents to the head and may result in a sick and dizzy feeling. I would advise you to have a careful examination made by some good osteopathic doctor.

Anemia

Question—O. D. asks: "What special food if any should predominate in the diet of an anemic person?"

Answer—Anemic patients should use plenty of cooked and raw non-starchy vegetables together with a fairly liberal supply of protein food, such as lean meat, eggs, etc.

Forty Not Too Late

Question—G. C. writes: "Kindly print in your column if it is safe for a woman of 40 to bear her first child."

Answer—Only in exceptional cases is it unsafe for a woman to have a first child after 40. Usually there is no danger if the prospective mother will train herself properly for this important event. I have prepared a special series of articles dealing with the care of the prospective mother, and I will be glad to send them to the one who has asked this question, or to any others interested.

Committee Delays Enforcement Plan

WASHINGTON, April 30. (INS) Two days after President Hoover sent a special message to congress asking action on his law enforcement program, the house judiciary committee today postponed action until Tuesday, on the Wickersham crime commission's court reform proposals with indications the plan to permit federal commissioners to try petty prohibition law cases will be rejected.

Attorney General Mitchell appeared before the committee in secret session and neither endorsed nor disapproved the commission program to improve prohibition enforcement.

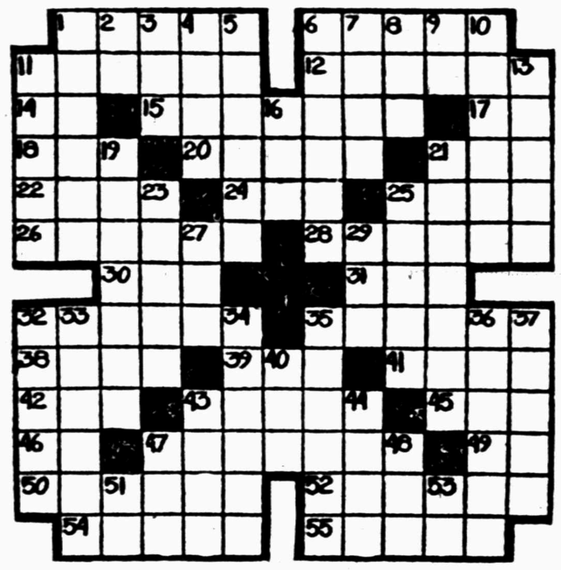

The committee recommended additional federal circuit judges for the third circuit, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware; the fifth circuit, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas; and two district judges for the District of Columbia.

Lumbermen Appeal To Hoover for Help

WASHINGTON, April 30. (UP) —President Hoover was appealed to today by representatives of the lumber industries to appoint a timber conservation board to deal with overproduction which, they said, "is threatening the forest industries with chaos."

Acting as spokesman for the American Forestry association, George W. Sisson Jr., of the American Paper and Pulp association, told President Hoover overproduction is causing wood waste, depression of forest land values, discouragement of industrial reforestration and elimination of land from tax rolls.

HOUSTON BUFFALOES TAKE OPENER FROM SPUDDERS, 13 TO 4

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED D. THOMPSON

It has just occurred to us that the Texas league, in banning the broadcast of its games, was impelled not by business reasons solely, but also by a great and noble affection for the one class of men who truly can classify as the world's most ardent fans. To-wit, the barbers.

Pause and reflect. Do you remember the old days when a barber shop was the noisiest place on creation; where a gent couldn't recline in masculine majesty and get a shave without having to listen to the purring voice of a broadcaster? And when the barber, whose very soul is baseball, didn't get a chance to put in a word, because the broadcaster was saying everything the barber wanted to say?

The barber shop, under the ruling, has taken on new dignity, and the downtrodden barber has once again come into his own. He can dissect the home team to his heart's content, he can talk straight through a shave, haircut and shampoo without having an outsider rudely interrupt him through the channels of the skies. The result is restored happiness, both to the barber and the customer, for the barber is able to talk, and the customer is able to hear him.

Ponder also on this fact. We have heard that many men of tricky nerves couldn't stand the racket the radio hurled into the barber shops and were either mowing their own hair on the back porch, or letting their hair grow, depending on the individual ability to wield a pair of scissors over the lawn of one's scalp.

Think of what the league ruling has meant to society in consequence. Should the barber shop din have been allowed to flourish, our church pews, business offices and places of public gatherings would have been occupied by men whose mop would have been either shaggily cut as the result of their untrained efforts to shear themselves, or, what is worse, their hair would have been hanging down about their shoulders in a most unmanly fashion. The former class would suffer the possibility of being jeered at, while the latter would have been constrained to accept the role of oddities. Both would have been branded as outcasts, and as the result our city would have suffered the downfall of some of its most prominent citizens. For the law of the land is that we must obey the conventions.

The Texas league, therefore, has cheered the hearts of the barbers, pacified the nerves of his customers, and kept the tide of civilization from wasting itself on the rocks.

And as the spring gets springier and springier we get sillier and sillier, world without end.

Seriously, though, Helen is a sweet girl, but she has freckles, and one of them is on her nose.

Which would be all right, only the rest of them are grouped right around her nose.

And she thinks the Houston Buffs are buffet salesmen.

STOUT PITCHES 3-HIT GAME

Fast Curve Artist Gets 11 Strikeouts

By FRED D. THOMPSON

The Houston Buffaloes gave a big snort and rode rough shod over Milt Steengrafe and Dick Florrid yesterday, collecting 17 hits off the two hurlers to win the opener of their series here, 13 to 4. It was a ragged game the Spudders played, six errors, including two each by Levey and Kloza, figuring prominently in the scoring. And while the Buffs were slugging hard and taking advantage of every bungle, slim little Allan Stout pitched a peach of a three-hit game for the visitors, sending 11 Spudders back to the bench via the strike-out route.

The teams meet today at 4 o'clock in the second game of the series.

Got Late Start

The Spudders didn't score until the fifth. Bettencourt grounded out, third to first and Euller walked. Bradbury singled to right, sending Euller to second. Florrid walked, filling the bases. Levey grounded out, third to first, Euller scoring, Bradbury taking third and Florrid second. Storti singled through short, scoring Bradbury and Florrid. Fitzgerald popped to the catcher, closing the inning. In the next frame Bettencourt connected for a home run over the left field boards, but, alas, no one was on base. It was the last tally the Spudders managed, for after little Stout had allowed the three hits in the fifth and sixth he tightened up and gave no more.

Meanwhile the Buffs started scoring in the second and continued to do so at intervals which were very frequent. Kaufmann walked, stole second, and scored on Selph's triple to left. The latter scored when Morrow forced Felix at third, Euller unassisted. Two more runs came in the fourth, which Felix opened by beating out a bunt down the third base line. Hunt fouled to Bradbury, but Morrow singled to right and took second on the throw in, Felix and Morrow scoring. Mishkin flied to Kloza.

Holm Hits Homer

Steengrafe was sent to the showers in the fifth after Holm had sent a homer over the left field wall and after Selph's clout to left had scored Kaufmann, who had reached first on Levey's error. Selph's clout was a single, but he reached third when Kloza muffed the ball Florrid relieved Steengrafe. Felix popped to Levey. Hunt grounded out, Levey to Burns, Selph scoring. Morrow singled to left. Stout smote to Levey who threw wild to first, Stout taking second and Morrow stopping at third. Hock flied out to Fitzgerald to close the riot.

Mishkin got to second when Kloza muffed his knock in the sixth, and scored on Holm's single to right. Holm was out stealing, Bradbury to Storti. Kaufmann strolled and Selph hit into a double play, Storti to Burns. Mishkin also started the works in the eighth, the next period in which the Buffs tallied. He walked, went to second on Holm's sacrifice, took third when Kaufman was thrown out, Florrid to Burns, and scored on Selph's single to left. Felix singled through short, Selph advancing to third. Hunt singled to right, scoring Selph and sending Felix to third. Morrow forced Hunt, Fuller to Storti.

Stout Hits 'Em

And they got three more in the ninth. Stout, not content with starring in the box, connected with a double to left. Hock grounded out, Storti to Burns, Stout taking hird. Mishkin singled to left, scoring Stout. Holm sent one zipping to center, and when Fitzgerald muffed it Mishkin scored and Holm went to second. Holm was safe at third when Euller dropped Florrid's throw from the box. Kaufman sacrificed, scoring Holm. Selph grounded out, Levey to Burns, and the period ended.

Two strikeouts and Bradbury's fly to right then retired the Spudders in short order, and the game was over.

Mr. Stout's fast curve amazed the Spudder batting order, apparently, the wiry little hurler even performing the feat of striking out three in a row in the third inning.

MAXIE WINS OVER JOHNSON

Rosenbloom Gets Decision In 10-Round Bout

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, April 30. (UP)—Maxie Rosenbloom, New York light heavyweight contender, won a popular 10-round decision from Larry Johnson, Chicago negro, before a crowd of 13,400 here tonight. Rosenbloom weighed 172¾, Johnson 175.

Rosenbloom, who won on a foul when they met here March 10, had little trouble slapping and cuffing his way to victory. Johnson was very tired at the finish after wasting most of his energy in a futile attempt to land his vaunted right on the New Yorker's chin.

Tuffy Wins Decision

STADIUM, Chicago, April 30. (UP)—The educated left of Tuffy Griffith of Sioux City, Iowa, and his nimble limbs, won for him tonight a decision over Jack Gagnon of Boston after 10 fast rounds before an enthusiastic crowd of 20,000 fight fans.

There were no knockdowns in the battle, in which Griffith had hoped to avenge decisively his recent six-round technical knockout at Gagnon's hands. Gagnon weighed 187¼ to 187 for Griffith.

Work on Road to Start

EL PASO, Texas. (AP)—A unit of the $50,000,000 proposed international highway which is to link the interior of Mexico with United States is to be started by the Mexican government this month. The unit, 60 miles long, will connect Juarez, Mexico, with El Porvenir, in the interior.

Sprint Champs To Perform at Columbus Meet

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 30. (AP)—Headlined by the meeting of the four fastest college sprinters of 1929 the seventh annual Ohio relays will be held in Ohio State university's big stadium here May 2 and 3. More than 1,500 athletes from 70 universities and colleges and 125 high schools in 25 states will gather for this closing of the relay season.

The spotlight, however, will seek out four speedy-legged boys—George Simpson of Ohio State, the national collegiate champion at 100 and 220 yards and holder of the official world's record of 9.4 seconds for the century with starting blocks; Eddie Tolan of Michigan, the A. A. U. champion; Claude Bracey of Rice Institute, national collegiate dash champion in 1928, and Cy Leland, Braceys' arch rival from Texas Christian university, who has defeated him several times this spring.

These boys ran one-two-three-four in both the 100 and 220-yard events of the national collegiate meet last June, Simpson winning both with Leland fourth, while Bracey and Tolan were two-three in the 100 and three-two, respectively, in the furlong. Their presence is assured, as well as that of other dash champions who are not so well known except in their own back yards.

The dash stars will race in a 100-yard dash open to all competitors, but the six university relays, special hurdle and field events and a dozen other relay races for colleges and high schools will make both days busy ones.

Last year 16 records for the meet were broken. The national collegiate quarter-mile record fell to Illinois, the world's record for the 480-yard shuttle hurdle relay to Ohio State and Simpson tied the then world record of 9.5 seconds for the 100-yard dash.

Eight Stars Remain in Play After Second Round of Women's Golf Meet

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

TEXARKANA, April 30.—Eight feminine stars, including the defending champion, Mrs. F. E. Pharr of Texarkana, fought their way through second round matches today and remained to contend for the championship of the Texas Women's Golf association.

Mrs. Pharr, almost a top heavy favorite since the tournament began, was in brilliant form today to turn back Mrs. C. O. Collins of Fort Worth, 3 and 2. She recorded an 85 on the treacherous Texarkana country club course, the lowest score so far turned in, and was never down to the Fort Worth player.

The seven other survivors of today's round were Miss Hilda Urkantke, Austin; Mrs. Theo. Von Knoop, Houston; Miss Anna B. Thompson, Fort Worth; Mrs. L. W. Magruder, Waco; Mrs. I. S. Segall, Dallas; Mrs. G. B. Stuart, Texarkana, and Mrs. C. C. Cary, Dallas. They alone remained of 32 that qualified for the championship flight Monday.

Contending with Mrs. Pharr in gallery interest as the event reached the quarter-final round was Anna Bland Thompson of Fort Worth, a 16-year-old high school youngster and a last-minute entry.

She won her second match today at the expense of Mrs. Charles Hunter of San Antonio, 4 and 3. After losing the first hole, Anna came back to win the next five and take a lead which she never relinquished.

Anti-Sport Talk Is 'Piffle,' Dean Says

MOSCOW, Idaho, April 30. (AP)—Not until football teams of western colleges and universities began to defeat those of the East was there a cry that an over emphasis is being placed on college athletics, it is charged by Dr. Charles M. Thompson, dean of the college of commerce and business at the University of Illinois. Talk to the contrary, the educator said, is "piffle."

Thirty years ago when the "Big Three" dominated all American football, Dr. Thompson was an undergraduate at Harvard. At that time, he says, eastern cities went stark mad over the game, and no comments, such as Carnegie Foundation reports, were heard.

The occasion for the remarks was a visit made by Dr. Thompson to the University of Idaho at Moscow.

Battle of the Overlooked To Feature Flyweights

Now Wolgast and Frankie Genaro will fight a main bout at the Madison Square garden May 28 that threatens to pack the house.

Robins Resume Heavy Hitting, Beating Giants

NEW YORK, April 30. (AP)—The Brooklyn Robins picked up their heavy hitting today where they left it Tuesday and pounded out their third straight victory over the Giants by a 9 to 4 score.

The Robins started off with three hits and four runs off Carl Hubbell and made 11 hits before they finished. The Giants could do nothing with the delivery of Dazzy Vance and collected but six safe blows. Two of their runs came on Pat Crawford's home run in the seventh and Brooklyn errors gave them two more in the ninth.

Hubbell retired after he had yielded six runs in three innings and Ray Lucas provided some nice relief pitching. Babe Herman hit a home run in the fourth for two of the three runs off Lucas. Score:

High Foot Is Latest Nag to Be Classed as 'Kaintucky Darby' Cinch

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, April 30.—Mr. Warren Brown, the Chicago sports editor, assures me that High Foot is a mortal cinch to win the Kentucky derby, which this year we must one and all speak of at all times as the "darby," because the Earl of Derby himself, in person, will be present listening in on us.

To tell the truth, I have been privately practicing on the pronunciation ever since I heard that the English nobleman for whose fame the Kaintucky darby, and all other darbys, except the brown, were named, will be on hand. I get mixed up sometimes, and find myself calling it the "dubby," which is strictly Kentuckyese, and then again I fall into the error of the New York pronunciation, which is "dooby." But in the main I'm darbying it right smartly.

Mr. Brown hasn't asked me not to pass his tip on High Foot around, so I do not feel obligated to keep it secret. I gather from what he says that all Chicago is in it, anyway, which strikes me as treason, or at least infidelity, to the Chicago-owned steed, Dedicate, which is my favorite for the big heat. However, my confidence in Dedicate is unshaken by the High Foot tip when I recall that those Chicagoans haven't been right since Abraham Lincoln was assassinated.

It isn't even teetered by the fact that Dedicate got a fine royal Amerikan plastering down in the blue grass Saturday from the good Kunel Edward Riley Bradley's darby candidate, Buckeye Poet, and J. M. Camden's Sydney. Darby hosses were getting licked all over the country Saturday.

As a matter of fact, I am glad to see Kunnel Bradley suddenly step forward with a likely darby prospect. The Bradleys are the pride of the Kaintucky hard boots, and when the kunnel hasn't at least a Chinaman's chance in the darby, a lot of heat is removed. The chart informs me that Buckeye Poet, which is by good old Black Toney, raced as if much the best, and won going away. The race was at a mile.

Breezing Thru, another Bradley, was fifth behind Sydney, Dedicate, and Ray Blades, and began dropping back after going five furlongs. Dedicate, which won a race at the Lexington course a few days previous, followed the pace closely, but couldn't improve his position. Another darby candidate, Tannery, beat a fair field with ease over the futurity course at Lexington on Saturday.

Over in Maryland the same day, a flock of Darby and Preakness possibilities, including such as Michigan Boy, Swinfield, Full Dress, Skirl, Ned O., Woodcraft, and Cubby Coot, tottered home behind the Seagram stable's Sweet Sentiment in the Chesapeake stakes.

The effete East, which has been somewhat subdued about the darby, since it became a certainty that the Whitney marvels, Whichone and Boojum aren't to go, has chucked out its chest again over the performance of a steed called Gallant Fox in the wood memorial stages at Jamaica Saturday.

This gallant fox belongs to the Belair stud, owned by Mrs. Henry C. Phippe and Ogden L. Mills. He is eligible for the darby, as well as the Preakness and the Belmont, and after seeing him bounce around a mile and 70 yards ahead of Crack Brigade, Desert Light, Gold Brook and Spinach, the eastern turf folks decided that they've got a darby winner sure pop.

Earle Sande straddled Gallant Fox, and the nag won by plenty of daylight from Crack Brigade, Desert Light, which finished third, was one of the red hot favorites in the winter book for the darby, but after the race Gallant Fox had dropped to 4 to 1. Spinach, which belongs to William Ziegler Jr., is another hide that a lot of folks fancied for the darby, but he ran as if he isn't quite ready.

Of course one race doesn't make a darby winner, and the big stake down in Ol' Kaintuck may be snatched by some ruck runner of Saturday. Anyway, we will know more about some of the eastern darby candidates after the running of the Preakness in the forepart of the merry month of May over at Pimlico.

Meantime, down in Loueyville, at the course at Churchill Downs over which the darby will be run on May 17, High Foot, and a lot of other darby candidates are being worked out daily. My operatives stationed there report that Mr. Brown's office is in rare condition, and looks mighty good. It is generally a fair 3 to 1 bet at this particular point that no horse named for the darby gets to the post, but that would be a bad price against High Foot just now—bad for the layer. Only accident can keep him out.

There is another nag down there that the Kentuckians think well of—a thing called Gallant Knight, owned by the Audley farms. This one has been working well, though you can get plenty against it in the future book. The Warm stable, which owns Victorian, winner of the Agua Caliente handicap, has a candidate in Billy Champ, which is at the Downs, and is drawing good reports.

His victory on Gallant Fox was a comeback for Earle Sande, and it is said that he will ride the steed in the Preakness, and also in the darby, if all goes well. I hope and trust that Gallant Fox will get to the post at Loueyville if only for this reason.

Twice the great rider has straddled darby winners. He drove Zev home in 1923, ahead of Martingale and Vigil, and he rode Flying Ebony in 1925 when Captain Hal finished second, and Son of John Third. In that year, Sande, foremost horseman of the day, had no mount until the night before the race, when he came upon G. A. Cochran, owner of Flying Ebony, looking for a rider.

This year Flying Ebony has a son going to the post in the darby—Flying Heels. You haven't heard much of Flying Heels in the darby discussions lately, but don't overlook him entirely. He is little but he is all horse, and if Dedicate does not win it, I wouldn't be surprised to see Flying Heels emulating the example of his pappy. But these darbies are hard to guess. You don't really know how hard.

Finland is reported to have made remarkable economic progress in 13 years of independence.

PRIMO BANNED IN NEW YORK

Commission Revokes Man Mountain's License

NEW YORK, April 30. (US)—Primo Carnera, Venetian jumbo, who has annexed thousands upon thousands of good American dollars for his abbreviated appearances in the ring, can ply his trade no longer in New York.

The New York state athletic commission so ruled today when it revoked the man mountain's license. With Carnera were ousted, his Coterie of managers, sub-managers and other attendants.

Although in no way conjunctive, the action of the New York commission followed a similar ban placed on Carnera by California because of scandal following his bout with Leo Bombo Chevalier in Oakland a few days ago.

Those ousted with the Italian include Leo See, legal manager; William Duffy, official contract signer; Walter Friedman, discoverer of the ring's leviathan; and Frank Churchill, who represented Carnera on the Pacific coast.

Robert Perry, motion picture character actor who tossed in the towel in Oakland that caused all the talking; Bob Lega, another second, and Tim McGrath, manager of Chevalier," were also placed on the ineligible list.

This action makes it impossible for any of the ineligibles to be granted a license in any capacity should they apply for one in this state.

Bobby Jones Makes Movie of Drive

WASHINGTON, April 30. (US)—While the entire eastern seaboard was trying to locate Bobby Jones Saturday, that worthy was paying a quiet visit to this city for the purpose of recording for history the first of a series of motion pictures.

In company with George Sargent, who represented the Professional Golfers association, Jones was presented at the studio of C. Francis Jenkins, inventor, where he faced the fastest motion picture camera in the world.

The purpose of Jones' visit was to have the camera portray the perfect drive and driving form of the champion. The camera takes 2,200 pictures per minute.

The film thus recorded on the regular motion picture screen shows all of Jones' movements at 16 pictures per second. This gives a slow motion ratio of exactly one-two-hunndredth of one's actual speed.

Professional golfers have long been of the idea that as Jones gets and has gotten the best and most consistent performances, his form must be the most correct. The P. G. A. men are hoping to have the entire Jones' series recorded. In this way the slow motion pictures will definitely establish the correct stance, swing, impact, follow through and the entire method in which Jones accomplishes results.

Only the driving swing was recorded Saturday. It is expected that when Jones returns from England and the continent he will record here the remaining strokes in herrepertory.

"HEAVY DUTY"
tells you what it is—
but not how fine it looks!

When Goodyear puts the words "Heavy Duty" on the side-wall of a tire, everybody knows those words mean extra strength, extra service, extra wear.

But in its new Heavy Duty balloon, Goodyear now puts something more—an outward beauty quite as superior as its inner excellence.

This great new tire is ruggedly handsome, massively proportioned, and around either side-wall below its extra-thick and extra-safe All-Weather Tread runs a single identifying stripe of silver.

A striking feature is the way in which the outer rows of All-Weather blocks are prismed down into the side-walls, as fresh and unhackneyed a modeling as distinguishes modern sculpture.

Goodyear builds this new Heavy Duty balloon tire for those who want to drive fast and far without worry, and are willing to pay a little extra for that privilege.

If you want to dress up your car and soothe down your anxieties, go see the nearest Goodyear Dealer, and have him change over your tires to new Goodyear Heavy Duty balloons today!

Goodyear can give you greater tire values because Goodyear builds more than 1/4 of all the tires sold in America, the remainder being divided among some forty manufacturers. "More people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind."

Stocks Recover Early Losses As Vigorous Rally Ends Nervous Day

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, April 30. (US)—Vigorous rally at the close of another unsettled session made up all of early losses in active stocks today. Rush to take cover in Steel and belief that the poor showing in first quarter reports had been well discounted were the main influences to the final recovery. The improved demand for Steel especially influenced more bullish sentiment throughout the street. Stel finished fractionally lower but Radio gained a fraction, Radio Keith 4⅝, Fox 1¾, Loews 2½, Warner 2¼, American Can 1⅝, Westinghouse 1⅞, Consolidated Gas 1, Public Service 1¼, New York Central 1, Texas Corporation 1, Atlantic Refining 1, American Tobacco 5, and Vanadium 6 points. Total trading increased to 4,500,000 shares. Call money appeared in good supply but the official rate remained at 4 per cent throughout.

The mid-week Steel reviews added to the talk of price cutting in the Steel industry as they confirmed reports that producers had been shading prices. They told of price weakness becoming more pronounced although operations of leading companies were being held up to the level of the previous week due mostly to sustained demand from automobile manufacturers. It is the policy of shading prices to certain consumers without official announcement thereof or any change in price to other buyers that undermined confidence in the Copper industry. If the Steel makers follow the same erroneous policy they will find themselves in the same position as the Copper producers and will have to effect two more cuts before consumers will be sure that the price situation has been corrected entirely. While the earnings of the Steel Corporation for the first quarter were better than expected they were offset by indications that lower net would be shown for the current quarter.

Announcement of advance in gasoline price was the one piece of outstanding good news and continued demand for the Oil stocks reflected belief that further favorable developments were likely in the near future. It is expected that California will further benefit such companies as Standard of California and Mexican Seaboard which already feel the influence of other developments. Advance in the price of Mid-Continent Crude should be announced either this Saturday or a week from that day at the latest. Leaders of the industry believe that they have the situation in hand now so that price advances will not result in too burdensome production.

National Air Transport enjoyed some demand as a result of announcement that it had won the legal battle with United Aircraft. There is pool work in several of the aviation stocks coincident with the aviation show. However, the industry faces similar readjustment to that experienced in Motors, Refrigeration, Radio and other industries when in their infancy. A few companies that are well financed and ably managed are able to go through such period but the majority fall by the wayside. Group work is under way in General American Tank. Electric Bond & Share interests continue to talk bullish on United Corporation and others of their pets but their activity is clouded by the reactionary character of the general market.

Inquiry in leading Copper circles indicates that the further cut in the price of the metal to 12 cents a pound is not far away. One of the most powerful leaders when asked as to the outlook, declared:

"I don't think there is much difference between the condition of the Copper business and that in other lines. We all are going through a period of depression and I do not believe that any particular industry or line of business is responsible for it or its continuance."

Sterling remained irregular in a generally quiet and unsettled foreign exchange market. Cotton rallied on receipt of more bullish weather advices. Wheat and other grains remained reactionary as further bearish crop advices were received from private sources.

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, April 30 (AP)—Good demand continued today for wheat, corn and sorghums on the cash grain market. Barley was slow and cane seed were firm for the scant offerings. Mills bid $1.11½@1.12½ for ordinary No. 1 hard milling—another loss of around 1½ cents. Some export business was reported but no bids available here.

Bids and offers on coarse grains delivered Texas common points, freight paid, as follows:

Corn—No. 2 mixed 94@96c; No. 2 white 96@97c; No. 2 yellow 97@98c.

Oats—No. 2 red 55@56c

Barley—No. 2 nominal at 73@74c.

Sorghums—No. 2 milo per hundred pounds $1.88@1.90; No. 2 kaffir $1.59@1.61.

Cane Seed—Bulk country run red top per hundred pounds, according to type, germination, origin and clean-out $4.25@4.60.

Dealers also quoted as follows, basis delivered Texas group one: No. 2 mixed corn 91½@92½c; No. 2 white 93@94c; No. 2 yellow corn 94@95c; No. 3 white oats 50½@51½c; add one cent for oats delivery group three.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 30. (AP)—Prospective big deliveries on May contracts tomorrow acted as a bugbear to wheat today, and lower prices ruled. Quotations on May wheat here outdid the bottommost record heretofore touched this season. The outlook was that first of the month deliveries of wheat in Chicago would total 5,000,000 bushels and there were indications of liberal sized deliveries also at Minneapolis and Kansas City. The bulk of the grain thus disposed of at the three markets named was expected to be taken over by government sponsored agents.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, ½-1⅝c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed irregular, ⅜c off to ⅝c up, oats ¼-⅜c down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 50c.

Estimates of new export business from North America totaled 1,000,000 bushels.

Corn and oats were responsive to wheat weakness, but country offerings of corn were small, and reports indicated that warmer weather is needed over the corn belt to permit germination of the crop.

Provisions sympathized with downturns in the value of hogs.

Closing indemnities: Wheat, May .99⅛, 1.04½; July 1.02⅞-1.03; 1.06⅝-½; Sept. 1.06⅝-⅞, 1.09⅞-1.10; Dec. 1.11⅞-⅝, 1.14⅛. Corn, May .79, 81½; July 81⅞-⅞, 83⅞-⅞; Sept. 83½, 85⅝; Dec. 77⅝, 78⅞.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, April 30. (US)—Wheat's resistance to bear news in the early trading and stubborness at times in the face of rather aggressive local selling led many in the trade to believe that most of the bearish factors have been discounted. However, those who look at the market in this light still see little chance for more than a trading market in view of the quiet world trade and generally satisfactory crop conditions in most countries.

Dearth of speculative activity itself tends to repress buying demand in the corn pit. Its independent action of today, if continued, undoubtedly will attract further interest on the buying side.

Despite relief of the dry spell, two crop reports contained some bullish implications. The Santa Fe report said Kansas prospects are below a year ago with a maximum probable crop of 130,000,000 bushel. The Winnipeg Free Press reported 60 to 75 per cent of the acreage seeded in Western Canada, but stressed unfavorable soil conditions in Saskatchewan, which province contains about 60 per cent of the country's wheat area.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, April 30. (AP)—(U.S.D.A.)—Further strength developed around the 11-market circuit on fat lambs with fed lambs at some of the river points advancing 25@50c. FLOODS CAUSE HEAVY DAMAGE

Kansas and Missouri Areas Inundated

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 30. (UP—Heavy rains of the past three days, which at times reached torrential proportions, have flooded sections of the Southwest and have caused much damage reports received here indicated.

Small streams were out of their banks in Southwestern Kansas today. The downpour was responsible for the derailing of a Missouri-Pacific train near Independence, Kan., in which the engine crew was slightly injured.

The Verdigris river near Independence has risen 20 feet in the last 24 hours and was reported rising at the rate of eight inches an hour today. The Elk river in Kansas left its banks and Ely City was reported inundated. A deluge has sent the Caney river out of its banks in Kansas and threatened to leave its banks in Oklahoma. Reports said the rise today was 10 inches hourly.

Rain was reported virtually over all of Kansas and forecasts were for continued showers. P. Connor, government weather forecaster here, predicted the storm would end within the next 24 hours.

The Caney and Neosho rivers in Northwestern Oklahoma threatened to overflow their banks. Swollen streams in the neighborhood of Picher, Okla, menaced homes in the lowlands. Bridges over the Caney river on the Bartlesville-Dewey pavement were flooded.

In Texas reports indicated streams near the coast were remaining near overflow stages. Heavy rains in that area had sent them out of bounds early this week, marooning motorists and menacing home owners.

Coogan, of Sayre, to build and operate a carbon black plant in the local gas field. Application for the permit was made by Coogan last August and was strongly supported by the chamber of commerce and individual lease and royalty owners.

Investigation reveals the fact that only one carbon black plant is being operated in the state, said plant being located at Wewoka, while in Texas there are many such plants. In the vicinity of Borger there are 11 plants, employing more than 1,000 men. It is Mr. Coogan's purpose to immediately start negotiations for a plant to be operated under his permit.

BOY 'GANGS' NEED LEADERS

Creighton Tells How to Guide Spirit of Youngsters

Drastic need for more adult leaders in order that the natural "ganging" of boys may be utilized for citizen-building purposes was stressed by Frank B. Creighton, local Boy Scout executive, in an address on "Boys" before members of the Optimist club Wednesday noon.

"This program is not a boy problem, but a man problem," the speaker said. "These youngsters will gang together inevitably. Unsupervised, this natural tendency is vitally contributory to crime. Supervised, it becomes the most potent factor in building manhood."

Mr. Creighton also expressed opposition to a five-day working week, charging that "leisure time is time for trouble, and more leisure time means more crime, and the further growth of commercialized recreation."

Four-sided development of the physical, moral, mental and social phases of life is requisite to the most successful training of a boy, the speaker said.

Rev. R. E. Day of Bryan, evangelist in revival meeting now in progress at the Lamar Avenue Baptist church, spoke briefly and Joe Trussell of Brownwood, singer for these services, gave a solo. Mrs. Trussell played his accompaniment.

Solo numbers by R. E. Shepherd, accompanied by Mrs. Shepherd, also were included in the program. Members of the club voted to attend in a body the funeral of Clinton Lee Bailey at the First Baptist church Wednesday afternoon. Dr. C. L. Bailey, father of the deceased, is a member of the Optimist club.

Bert King, Arch Smith and Bob Flechtner were appointed as a program committee for the coming month.

Five Planes Land At Staley Field Airport

Landings of five planes on cross-country trips at Staley field Wednesday were reported by officials of the Wichita Falls Air Transport company, operators of the field.

R. B. Kuteman, flying an Eagle-rock plane, arrived from Dallas and returned.

A Monocoupe from Dallas en route to Stamford was landed by J. S. Roberts.

F. Dowd's Travelair, flown by Jack McInch, arrived here from Abilene, and took off for Kansas City.

George A. Bendix, flying a Curtis-Robin of the Standard Oil company of New York, resumed his trip to El Paso after stopping at Staley field from Tulsa.

A Fokker Super Universal, flown by an official of the Fokker Aircraft company, came here from Little Rock, Ark.

Will of G. L. Foster Filed for Probate

The will of G. L. Foster, aged Iowa Park man, who died suddenly while sitting in church several weeks ago, was filed Wednesday with Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk. An application for admittance of the will to probate was also filed with Judge John P. Marrs of the county court.

Mr. Foster's will directs that all of his real estate in Wichita county shall go to his nephew, M. P. Hester. The sum of $1 is left to Mrs. Emma Hester, a sister-in-law. All the remainder of the estate is bequeathed to Bell Nelson and Mina Worington, sisters of the deceased. G. Heiserman, an old friend of the dead man, is named independent executor without bond. The value of the estate will not be known until an inventory is filed, Judge Marrs said.

MAJESTIC: "Benson Murder Case," Philo Vance story with William Powell in character. Eugene Pallette and C. H. Calvert in usual offices. "Down With Husbands," comedy. Sound news.

STRAND: "Son of the Gods," with Dick Barthelmess and Constance Bennett. Last day. Making the most of a Rex Beach story. Autumn chapter of "Silly Symphonies." Sound news.

STATE: "Road House Nights," with Charles Ruggles, Helen Morgan and Fred Kohler. The latter carries the gun. Sound shorts. Talking news.

GEM: Ricardo Cortez and Nora Lane in "The Haunted Ship" (London); "Home Brewed Youth," comedy.

An interesting modern situation, a sudden killing, quickly constructed mystery, various clues implied, and a surprising denouement—"The Benson Murder Case," now showing at the Majestic, builds up this recipe as have the other S. S. Van Dine "Philo Vance" stories. But this dramatized version shows variations from the established type. Both in the period of mystery-building and the unfolding, the machinery of the murder, rather than the identity of the guilty party, constitutes the principal element of mystery. Rather than tracing through a labyrinth of psychological reactions, as in the two former Van Dine tales, to trap an unsuspected character, the genius of Philo Vance in this case is called upon to unravel and explain merely the means used in disposing of Tony Benson.

Another variation from type lies in the acceleration with which the drawing together of dramatic lines for the climactic solution is accomplished. Having established with unusual promptness the circumstantial cases against five characters, the production moves with even greater haste to a scene in which Mr. Powell, with an interesting but extended monologue, explains everything. Condensation of the play may have been wisely chosen by its director in view of the fact that it follows closely upon "Green Murder Case" and "The Canary"—for unquestionably they are of a type. This picture reveals that its makers recognize the public's quickly-formed habit of picturing the detective and police sergeant of Van Dine mysteries in the persons of Powell and Pallette. Characteristic phrases merely started in the player's speech are left to be taken for granted—and they are. Witness also the closing chorus of Messrs. Vance and Heath: "Well, it didn't surprise me a bit." Merely the sergeant's modesty.

The piece contains some excellent photography in reproduction of the country lodge on a stormy night. Its situation has a large hand for seizing instant interest in that the stock market crash is remembered here more or less vividly despite the recent million-dollar rains. Aside from Powell and Pallette, watch Paul Lukas in another outstanding characterization.

Bellevue Man Gives Horned Owls to Zoo

Three young but thoroughly alive "horned" owls were added to the roster of the Wichita Falls Municipal zoo Wednesday, the gift of O. A. Richards of Bellevue, according to Charles Bunnenberg, superintendent of the park department.

The "horned" owl is so designated, according to Mr. Bunnenburg, because of his peculiarly rampant ears, which project their points boldly upright from the head much in the manner of horns. They are about the size of the better-known "hoot" owls. With Wednesday's addition, the zoo now has six of this variety.

'Greeks' and 'Turks' Ready For Lions Club Contest

Inspiration of a call to battle issued in the Greek tongue was utilized by the "Greek" contingent in a membership attendance contest as part of the program given at the weekly meeting of the Lions club Wednesday noon at the Kemp hotel.

A. H. Fell was drafted from the local citizenry by the "Greeks" to deliver a plea for loyalty to members of their side in the language commonly heard in and near Athens. Following the address, L. V. Abernathy, captain of the Greeks, declared his hosts inspired by its appeal to resist the opposing "Turks" with Thermopylean courage and tenacity throughout the contest.

Walter Taylor and J. J. Jenkins were named to head a horseshoe pitching team which is to be entered in a league organized here recently.

Members of the club will hold their next meeting on Thursday night, May 8, instead of on Wednesday, in the form of a picnic at Scotland park. Proceeds will be applied to defraying expenses of the Lions club boys' band on its trip to the state Lions convention at Austin in May.

Chinese Civil War Takes Fresh Start

SHANGHI, April 30.—General Chiang Kai-Shek, president of the Nanking government, today abandoned his fabian policy and prepared to assume the offensive against his enemies in another renewal of Chinese civil strife.

It is reliably reported that the Nanking government is launching a "big push" northward along the railways leading to Peiping, from Nanking and Hankow. The offensive is scheduled to get under way Friday. Peiping is now in the hands of the rebel generals, having been taken over some time ago.

New Motor Truck Rates Go in Effect Thursday

New freight rates for motor truck lines' service recently announced by the motor carrier division of the state railroad commission will become effective on May 1, according to an order from that department received at the local chamber of commerce Wednesday.

The new rates originally were announced to take effect on April 1, but postponement of their application was ordered by the motor carrier division at Austin. Various truck operators and shippers recently have received the impression that still further postponement would be made, it was said, but Wednesday's order states definitely that the new rate schedule will be in force on and after Thursday, May 1.

LAST TRIBUTES PAID YOUTH

Zundy Pupils Honor Memory of Young Bailey

The students of Zundelowitz Junior high school paused in their activities at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon to pay tribute to the passing of one of their number, Clinton Lee Bailey, who was prominent in the school for his ability as a declaimer and in other activities. Eight teachers from the school and 250 of his classmates were dismissed to attend the services at the First Baptist church at which a number of the students acted as honorary pallbearers.

The 13-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Bailey, 1907 Lucile street, was representative for Wichita Falls in a declamation contest of the district interscholastic league last year. Dr. O. L. Powers, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiated at the services. A large number of friends of the boy and his parents attended the services and accompanied the body to the Rosemont Burial park for interment. The Merkle Undertaking company had charge of the services.

Joint Administration Of Ford Estates Asked

An unusual legal question arose Wednesday afternoon in the office of John P. Marrs, judge of the county court, when the attorney for the estates of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford, both of whom died here within a period of a few months, called to ask if both estates could be administered at one time. Judge Marrs stated the case was the first of its kind ever to come to his attention.

The judge told the attorney he was inclined to believe both could be administered at the same time and with only one court action, since the property of each of the deceased was held jointly. No opinion was given, however, on the exact legal aspects of the question. Judge Marrs' report will be given as soon as he has determined the rulings concerning such cases, he said. Mrs. Ford died here several months ago, her husband's death occurring last Sunday morning. The aged couple had been pioneers of Wichita and Archer counties, having lived in this section almost half a century.
