Scout Week To Be Observed In This City With A Banquet

Boys Scouts, Cubs, Senior Scouts and their adult leaders throughout the United States will commemorate Scout Week which begins Thursday, February 8, and continues through Wednesday, February 14.

E. W. Renner of this city who is district committeeman for the South Plains Council of Scouts, states that tentative plans for the observance of Boy Scout Week in this city include a banquet which has been planned for February 8. All members of Scout Troops, Cub Packs and dens, and parents will be invited to the banquet, and an interesting program will be presented at that time.

At the present time, there are 3 Scout Troops in this city, one Cub Pack, and several Dens. The banquet which will be held here is an annual observance of Scout Week.

Scouting is making a valuable contribution to preserving the values and advantages of American citizenship. Walter W. Head of St. Louis, president of the National Council, Boy Scouts of America, said in a statement for Boy Scout Week, which marks the 35th anniversary of the movement in America.

Head's statement follows: "The precepts and principals of Scouting as reflected in the Scout Oath and the Scout Law are the basic foundation upon which the Scout Program rests.

"More than twelve million boys and men have marched under the banner of Scouting and have there become familiar with the program of the Boy Scouts of America. Their lives have been enriched by this experience. They have become better boys, better men and better citizens.

"Throughout the world three million Scouts and Scouters in other Scout Organizations are dedicated to these same principles. "Scouts of the World—Brothers Together," the theme of our Thirty-Fifth Anniversary, emphasizes this world-wide influence of Scouting. It creates in our hearts and in our minds a keen determination to use every means at our command to make the Scout Program and the ideals of Scouting effective in the lives of ever-increasing number of boys."

The 'G. I. Bill Of Rights' Discussed At Council Meet

T. A. Barfield, local county agent, addressed women of the Home Demonstration Council Saturday afternoon, January 20. His subject was the "G. I. Bill of Rights."

In his discussion County Agent Barfield brought out educational aids which will be offered veterans. He stated that any veteran not over 25 years of age at the time of entry into the service shall be considered to have had his education or training impeded, and shall be eligible for and entitled to receive education or training. The education or training shall begin not later than 2 years after his discharge or end of the war, whichever is later; and no training under this program shall be carried on beyond 7 years after the war.

In commenting on loans for purchase or construction of homes, farms and business property, for veterans, Barfield stated, "Any veteran may apply within 2 years after discharge to the Administrator of Veterans Affairs for the guarantee of not to exceed fifty per cent of loan or loans, providing that the amount guaranteed shall not exceed $2000. Guaranteed loans shall bear an interest rate not to exceed four per cent per year, and the duration of the loan shall not exceed 20 years."

He continued, "The Bill makes provisions for medical aids and nursing care for wives and infants of men in armed forces. Complete maternity care is provided wives of service men, and a baby is entitled to free medical care during the first year of life. This is available to a wife of any enlisted man within the four lower pay grades."

Barfield asserted that honorably discharged veterans of all wars are entitled to a pension for disabilities incurred in or aggravated by their service in lines of duty; and reported that pensions are payable to vets for non-service-connected disability, provided the disability is held to be permanent and total, and provided, the annual income of the veteran, if single does not exceed $1,000, or if married, or with minor children, does not exceed $2,500.

The county agent explained the part of the Extension Service in the "G. I. Bill of Rights," which will advise and counsel with veterans in a way that will serve the best interests of the veteran at all times. They will assist the veterans to find places on farms in the county, and prepare general agricultural information for the use of veterans and others interested in going into agriculture in the county.

Barfield's talk was presented to council delegates in mimeograph form, and council delegates will take this information back to their own communities.

Among those attending the session Saturday were Mesdames Luth, er Peterson, Weldon Blair, and Nadine Hamilton of McCarty; Klyde Ray, C. F. Gowan, and J. H. Adkins of Central Home Demonstration Club; S. C. Motley of Sparenberg; Willie Schooley and R. D. Tickets are on sale now at the local cafes, drug stores, or from Mrs. Sam Allen, J. R. Earnest, or Dan Davis to the entertainments planned to raise funds for the Infantile Paralysis Drive in this county. These can be purchased from the amount of $1.00 to $10.00.

Arrangements have been made to hold the entertainments on Wednesday, January 31, when a President's Ball will be held in the Recreation Hall in the City Park at 9 p. m. Chairman Earnest reports that forty-two games will be held at the Williams and Plaza Hotels as well as at the Knights of Pythias Lodge. All of these events will benefit the Infantile Paralysis Drive and will begin Wednesday night at 9 p. m.

Donations to the Infantile Paralysis Drive can be turned over to Chairman Earnest, Mrs. Sam Allen, secretary of the campaign, or to Dan Davis.

Officials are hoping that many citizens will attend the entertainments, and that a large sum of money will be raised here for the Infantile Paralysis Drive.

Chairman Earnest reports, "In the past 11 years the American people have contributed $29,562,742.54 to the foundation. This money has been raised through the celebration of President Roosevelt's birthday and the annual 'March of Dimes' campaign held each year since 1934.

"Success of The Foundation for Infantile Paralysis in meeting the emergencies of this year's epidemic of polio, the second worst in the history of the nation, is expected to have an important influence on people's attitude toward public health.

"An important phase of the foundation's work has been an educational program to inform people of the dangers of polio, the necessity of prompt diagnosis and adequate treatment, and the precautions to be taken to insure good health."

Earnest further points out that polio research has aided those wounded in war. He states, "Soldiers suffering arm or leg wounds that involve injury to the nerves are receiving better treatment because of researches in nerve regeneration carried on under the auspices of The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

"The situation is a dramatic example of how studies in one field bring results in others that to the layman would not seem related at first glance."

Join in the Infantile Paralysis Drive here, and help to put it over in a successful manner and provide funds for those needing care.

Over-All Picture of Dairy Situation Reviewed Here

In presenting an over-all picture of the dairy business, E. W. Renner, local manager of Lamesa Creamery quotes Tom G. Stitts, Chief, Dairy and Poultry Branch, Office of Distribution of the War Food Administration, Washington, who recently outlined the "War Food Administration Butter Program," devoting his remarks more to the dairy program rather than the butter program. Stitts described briefly what had been accomplished in the securing of stocks of evaporated milk without any federal regulations and summed it up as a very fine job done by the industry—50,000,000 cans last year—nearly 80,000,000 cans this year.

SELLERS Grocery and Market

THINK OF US AS THE STORE THAT THINKS OF YOU

PHONE 212

South 2nd and Bryan

What about 1945? Total military and lend-lease requirements of dairy products will be the equivalent of from 22 to 25 billion pounds of fluid milk, depending, of course, on the rate of demobilization and the extent to which lend-lease goes. That the program has been successful Dr. Stitts pointed out that (a) it has made possible the supplying of our own and our allies needs, (b) our civilian population has enjoyed a per capita consumption of dairy products equal to that of normal years, of course, high in some items and short in others, (c) with national income at an all time high, the prices of dairy products have remained reasonable.

WFA requirements for the coming year will be practically the same for dairy products as in 1944 in spite of the end of the European War now pegged for that year. The extent of increased milk production will be restricted only by labor as Dr. Stitts sees it.

Pointing out that the objective of the various food orders was to secure enough supplies for the armed services and lend-lease with the least possible disturbance to industry, Dr. Stitts felt that the program had amply justified itself in securing the highest production, highest consumption at right prices, and good distribution enabling more people to get a fair share.

The strain on the dairy industry has been felt in most sections, and butter has been hard to obtain at times, partially because of seasonal changes, but authorities do expect some increase in the product.

The Lamesa Creamery pledges their assistance in supplying the needs of the citizens with dairy products. They are distributors of Espuela Butter and ice cream, manufactured at Spur. The Spur Creamery has owned the business here since 1939, and E. W. Renner, who has had a vast experience in this field, has operated it for several years.

They sell milk wholesale and retail over this area. You will always find the personnel at Lamesa Creamery ready to assist you in any way they can, and you will find their products healthful, tasty, and wholesome.

This firm was set up in October, following the purchase of the Bryant property in September, and the quarters were remodeled to accommodate the feed and hatchery business. Since Ray C. City Folks Bitter at French Farmers EINRHOVEN, Holland (AP) - From Normandy to Holland bitterness toward farmers exists and now denied to hungry city people their antagonism is greater than ever. City dwellers say farmers were the only class to prosper during the Nazi occupation. They charge that although the Germans forced farmers to hand over much of their crops they paid good prices in occupation money. In Normandy under German encouragement at liberal prices, agricultural harvests increased more than 35 per cent over pre-war production, according to French government estimates. An economics expert with the U. S. embassy in Paris, says French records disclosed that in the earlier days of the occupation there was a great urban trek to rural areas every weekend to stock up on food supplies unavailable in Paris markets.

A MARINE SISTER
There are sailors, and soldiers and the aviators keen,
As fine a group of fighting men as one has ever seen.
But for me I have a soft spot in my heart for the boys in forest green.
The dashing, gallant leather-neck—the United States Marine.

I will never be a first lady nor grace a magazine,
I'll never be world famous nor will I be a queen.
But I would never change my place with any that I have seen.
For you see I am the sister of a United States Marine.

Bonds Buy Lenice In Federal Court

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Federal District Judge Tillman D. Johnson was inclined to be lenient when he learned the defendant, convicted of stealing tools from an ordnance depot, bought two war bonds a month although supporting five children. He assessed a $100 fine, but urged the man not to cash in his bonds. "Bring five bonds to court as security and you can have one year to pay the fine," the judge ruled.

How Connie's Legs Foiled The Germans

By GLADWIN HILL
AP Newsfeatures
PARIS—She is a slim, dark girl named Constance. The other night she walked into one of those plush, mirrored black market restaurants where a dinner costs $20. She walked with all the aplomb of the bejeweled collaborationists dolls who are regular patrons.
This is odd because Constance is something quite different. She was a private secretary before and during the occupation and now she graces—or runs—the office of a high French official.
A little group of leaders of the clandestine press had assembled to pay her a luxurious tribute. This is why.
When the Germans came, Constance was working in a radio station and it was pretty hot for anyone who didn't want to play Nazi ball. She and the boss got out and set up business behind the false front of a textile firm.
Their office was one of the coordinating points of the under-

Soldier Hairdos Chase Mosquitoes

ST. LOUIS (AP)—American soldiers in Pacific island jungles now may primp and shoo mosquitoes with a single motion.
A chemical company here has this explanation for a heavier-than-expected demand for dimethyl phthalate, intended as an insect repellent for use by the armed forces.
"A soldier trying to ward off insects plastered the stuff on his hair. He learned it kept the insects away and also kept his hair in place, drying without desidual traces."
"Word went the rounds and dimethyl phthalate is now an accepted hair dressing—in the jungles."

King Cotton Fights For His Throne; Wedding With Plastics Adds New Life And Luster To Dixie's Old Monarch

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor
WASHINGTON — Restoration of cotton to some of its traditional prestige as King of American fabrics is under way in a national cooperative research program sponsored by the War Production Board. This work is in three sections.

Eight great chemical companies are making and testing synthetic resins to add to cotton to give new qualities to fabrics. These will be known as the high-polymer cottons.

In another section, cotton and plastics are combined to form materials nearly as hard and brilliant as polished stone, and of great tensile strength. These are the result of a new way of making cotton laminates.

The third section is the blending of a great variety of cottons than industry has tried heretofore.

The cotton research is directed and supervised by the National Cotton Council of America and the Industrial Consumers Products branch of the Office of Production Research and Development.

High polymer cotton means that synthetics which form large molecules are added to cotton. They blend with the cotton fibers to produce fabrics which wear longer and have greater strength. Suits made of high polymer cotton have been worn in the rain without losing their shape or creases, due to waterproofing by the polymer synthetics.

The synthetics also produce goods which may be flameproof, waterproof and which resist mildew, mold and other rot. Goods that moths will not eat are another possibility.

There have been difficulties in laundering these textiles, and in their stiffness. The new research has gone back to the original fibers and their reaction to synthetics before spinning, and this appears more promising on a solution of the drawbacks.

Two synthetics are giving good results. One renders cotton stronger, without requiring so much twisting in spinning. This process would reduce the spinning by about one-half, which means capacity for greatly increased output by a mill.

The other synthetic increases resistance to abrasion. In cotton laminate which made the hard materials, the WPB agency again has gone back to experimenting with the original fibers. Here, before woven cottons were used to make the laminates, the cotton serving the same purpose as steel in reinforced concrete.

The new research is making laminates with cotton fibers, without requiring spinning. These new laminates have more desirable properties than some with woven fabrics, they are apparently better adapted to certain applications than any other laminates. They are also cheaper than the woven cotton. They reach strengths up to 33,000 pounds a square inch.

Before the war 25 per cent of the laminates were made with cotton. The war raised this proportion to 75 per cent.

In the laminate researches a good deal of useful information is developing about the effects of spinning on strength of cotton goods.

Roy Chapman Andrews' expedition into central Asia (1921-1930) was the largest land exploring expedition ever sent out from America, comprising 40 men, 150 camels and eight motor cars. The cost of the work was $700,000.

Beauty Hint: Charm Has No Age Limits

By BETTY CLARKE
Associated Press Beauty Editor
The older woman who makes the mistake of trying to look a generation younger in many instances spoils her own matronly good looks by plastering her face with loud makeup and wearing fantastic hairdos.

Grey hair can be beautiful. And if a woman is smart she will endeavor to bring out its natural bright silver instead of disguising its color.

Today there is more emphasis than ever on the practicality and simplicity of keeping grey hair curled softly about the face. A revival of dips and waves for older women, emphasizing the cheek and forehead interest that was the vogue back in the marcel era, seems to be the current trend.

Elaborate pompadours and curl effects are finished, particularly for older women, says one New York hairdresser. He believes they were never flattering to the face.

herself is more suitable for wartime living, he believes. As for makeup, the deep brunette foundations and powders seem to be the most flattering to grey hair. However, if the skin is smooth and unlined the lighter pearly tones of makeup and the raspberry shades of lipstick and rouge are good.

TOWN and FARM IN WARTIME

"ESSENTIAL" AND "CRITICAL" DRAFT GUIDES

The guides set up by the War Manpower Commission for Selective Service in inducting men in the 26 through 29 age group make a nice difference between the "essential" industrial employment and that which is considered as "critical" to the war production program. Most smaller communities (excepting mining and specialized manufacturing towns) which are closely related to their agricultural areas will find that most of the men in the affected age group fall in the category of "essential" employment when they work in such fields as the following:

Agricultural services: Commercial poultry hatcheries, seed processing animal breeding, crop disease protection services, initial processing services of compressing, threshing, cleaning, curing and the like, irrigation services, farm repair and maintenance services, farm product assembly services, custom grist milling and ice harvesting. No "critical" employment is listed under the WMC guide for agricultural services. The production of packaging materials for shipping and preserving essential products is also listed as an essential class of employment.

In the category of "critical" employment, as it may affect the draft status of citizens of non-industrial smaller towns, is listed such work as the repair of automobiles, buses, trucks, tractor and farm equipment. However, it is intended that in the category of repair services consideration be given only to individuals qualified to render all-round repair services on the types of equipment included in the essential list. Types of repair service other than the above are deemed "essential."

In the field of health and welfare services the critical classification is applied to physicians, surgeons, dentists, oculists, osteopaths, sanitary engineers, veterinarians engaged in farm livestock treatment, medical, dental and optical laboratories, pharmaceutical services, hospitals, nursing services, and institutional care. Into the "essential" class go mortuary services, auxiliary civilian welfare services to the armed forces, welfare services to civilians, church activities, accident and fire prevention services and structural pest control services. Only educational service considered critical is the United States Maritime Service Training Program; most others are listed as essential services.

In the forestry and lumbering fields the only critical classifications are those of timber tracts and logging camps, cutting of pulpwood, wood for tanning extract, sawmills, veneer and planing and plywood mills.

Substantially the guide system set up by WMC, which is in accordance with the Directive to Selective Service by the Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion, James F. Byrnes, reflects the intensified demands on American resources of men and materials to wage the war, and the fact that the past years of war have absorbed the more readily available resources.

EVEN TO THE YOUNGEST—Arms and back stricken with infantile paralysis, this eight-months-old baby received modern care and treatment at the Crippled Children's Guild, Buffalo, N.Y., through the assistance of the Stuben County Chapter of The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. America's contributions to the March of Dimes, January 14-31, make this work possible.

Economically and politically, the state merchant fleet has been a wartime treasure for Argentina. It has enabled this country to maintain a profitable export trade and, even more important, to obtain coal for which Argentina is dependent upon foreign countries.

history. It began 57 years ago when King Kalakaua granted the United States exclusive rights for its use as a coaling and repair station for American vessels. It was not until 1905, however, that the site was selected officially as the location for a principal naval base.

In 1909, work was started on a drydock that was not completed until 1919. In that year the navy recommended that a first class naval base, with facilities adequate enough to handle the entire fleet in time of war, should immediately be developed.

Within the war years, the navy yard construction program has boomed to make it one of the world's largest yards. In 1941, Rear Admiral William R. Furlong was named Commandant and he has directed the vast operations since that time.

Today, more than three years after the sneak attack that plunged the United States into war, Pearl Harbor Navy Yard is serving the highly important function of keeping the ships of the Pacific Fleet fit to fight. Admiral Furlong reports that there remains a need for skilled workers and again has appealed to patriotic citizens on the mainland who are not in essential war work, but desire an opportunity to play a vital part in the Pacific war effort to register at the nearest Civil Service Office for transportation to Pearl Harbor, and a war job.

Merchant Fleet Most Soldiers Carry Bibles

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Maritime-minded Argentines are worrying over the future of their war-born merchant marine.

The fleet now is being eyed by the original owners, who have indicated they might like their vessels back.

Sixteen Italian freighters immobilized in Argentine ports at the time Italy entered the war formed the nucleus; four Danish vessels, three French and three German were acquired later. In all, they add up to about 250,000 tons, not counting tankers operated by the state oil monopoly or various privately owned vessels.

WAR EXPENDITURES AT NEW HIGH

Evidence of the demand of a vast war effort is the fact that in December, according to the Treasury Department and the War Production Board, War Expenditures averaged $13,400,000 a day: A new high for the daily outlay. The daily rate last month was 14.8 per cent higher than in November.

CONSUMER FRONT LITTLE CHANGED

The consumer front remained little changed with continued tight rationing controls by way of fairer distribution of limited wartime supplies. Most consumers recognize that 1945 will be a "tight" year for most commodities. Retail prices on smoked porked loins and joint cuts have been cut by OPA by one to two cents a pound and retail cent-per-pound ceiling prices were established on both kosher and non-kosher cooked corned beef baskets. Owing to the critical manpower situation in the Mansfield, Ohio, area, Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., voluntarily stopped output of electric irons in its factory there (half of an authorized 157,000 irons had been completed).

Every town, every business district is asked by the government to turn off advertising signs, dim illumination and use electricity sparingly to save coal for winning the war.

PEARL HARBOR TODAY (Exclusive)

Pearl Harbor, T. H.—The scene of America's first setback also has been the scene of the nation's equally significant triumph—Pearl Harbor Navy Yard, Uncle Sam's greatest ship repair center. It is the locale of incredible accomplishments in underwater salvage, reconstruction, and refitting of war craft. It is the nerve center of the United States Pacific Fleet. It is the home of the city of ships, the heart-beat of the mightiest nautical power in the world's history.

Because the navy yard workers feel a personal obligation to enlarge on the yard's many distinctions, they have registered other spectacular accomplishments too: the Navy Department reports. They take pride in the fact that for some time the Pearl Harbor Navy Yard has averaged longer work weeks and more overtime than any of the 10 yards in the United States. In addition, they point out that 95 per cent of the employees invest in war bonds, with purchases averaging $1,000,000 a month.

Midland Five To In vade Lamesa On Tuesday Night

Lamesa's Golden Tornadoes are ready to begin their district championship games next Tuesday night, January 30, when Midland High School's Bulldogs invade this city. Midland was district winner last season and made the trip to the State Meet in Austin, where they lost in the first round to Sunset High of Dallas, the team which won the state championship. The Tornadoes are thus faced with stiff competition when they meet the defending champions on the local court. Midland has made an enviable record in practice games, having defeated Big Spring, Stanton, Andrews, Pecos, Wink, and losing only one game in a tournament with Odessa last week when that team won by a small score of 25 to 22.

nell, and the Sparsberg All-Stars all yielded to the local club in fast played matches. Lubbock has been the only team to defeat the Tornadoes since Christmas. The coaching and training received by the boys are showing up in smoother and more rapid court play. Midland defeated the Tornadoes by a small score last year in one of the most exciting games of the season and the Tornadoes are looking forward to their first game with considerably more than casual interest.

There will be 2 games with the "B" team starting at 7:30 p. m., Tuesday night. The first string will start their match at approximately 8:30.

Odessa will be in Lamesa on Friday night, February 2 for a couple of games. The next home game will be that with Big Spring on February 16.

Only three games are on the local card for the championship of the west half of this district.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hamilton and Miss Gienna Faye Bailey left Tuesday for Los Angeles, California, to visit with Kenneth Hamilton, who is in the Navy.

PROBE UNIVERSITY CONTROVERSY — Dean M. C. Huntley (left), of the University of Alabama, and Dr. Rufus C. They are shown at Dallas Jan. 23 before leaving for Austin where they said they would contact all persons directly affected by the current controversy at the university including the school's deposed president, Homer P. Rainey. Harris is chairman and Huntley secretary of the southern association's commission on institutions of higher education. (AP Photos).

SCHOOLS RECEIVE $1.00 PER CAPITA PAYMENTS HERE

An announcement from the county superintendent's office reveals that the schools in this county received a $1.00 per capita payment this week. Superintendent Humes states that this makes $11.00 per capita received by the county schools for the 1944-1945 term.

The following officers were elected: Glenda Wright, President; Lorraine Wise, vice president; Juanita Archer, secretary; and Lavonia Jackson, reporter. Mrs. Negy gave a demonstration on repairing hose, after which the club adjourned. The next meeting will be held February 5.

RATIONING OFFICE WILL BE CLOSED WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

An announcement from local War Price and Rationing officials states that the local rationing board will be closed all afternoon on January 31, 1945, in order to make reports. They state that this does not affect the gasoline panel meeting which will have their regular session at 3:00 p. m.

The last half of the last working day in each month has been designated all over the district as report making day and the local board will be closed in keeping with the regulation. Officials ask you to please transact all business accordingly. —BUY MORE WAR BONDS—

Surgical Dressing Room To Be Closed Here For A Time

The quota of gauze on hand at the Surgical Dressing Room of the Red Cross in this city was completed when a group of young women belonging to the Brasswell Circle of the First Baptist Church and others made six hundred seventy-five 4x4 sponges. Officials have been informed that there is a sufficient surplus of bandages in the Supply Room in St. Louis to justify the closing of all bandage rooms until further notice, possibly until Fall.

The surgical dressings program was begun locally in September 1942, with Mrs. Sam Jenkins as chairman. She served also as packer of dressings and day supervisor much of the time.

Mrs. N. H. Price replaced Mrs. Jenkins as chairman in the Spring of 1944 and since that time she and Mrs. Jenkins have served as the packing committee. It is felt that public recognition is due these women for their services in this field as well as the women who have given time regularly each week to this work.

Those who have served all or part time as day supervisors and given at least one afternoon each week to bandage making and supervision are: Mesdames Sam Jenkins, N. H. Price, Tom Wood, Elzie Burleson, C. J. Carlson, and D. W. Masengale.

Special mention should also be given Mrs. H. N. O'Neil who resides at 1094 North Second Street, who probably has more hours to her credit in bandage making than any other person. Mrs. O'Neil has averaged at least two days each week and usually more since the work began in 1942.

According to Mrs. Tom Wood, production chairman, press notice will be given when more gauze is received and the work begins again. The sewing division of the Red Cross is working on a quota of 144 army kit bags which will be filled before shipping time. The last quota of army knitting is reported to be almost completed.

Tornadoes Play Games Jan. 25-26

There will be two basketball games this week in the Lamesa gymnasium in an effort to keep the Golden Tornadoes in trim for district play which begins next week, according to an announcement from school officials.

On Thursday night, January 25, the former players of Tornado teams meet the current crop and on Friday night, the Sparsberg All-Stars play the locals in a return match.

The All-Stars are accomplished athletes and their games give the high school squad some fine experience.

These games have been announced for 8:00 p. m.

Cpl. O. Dickerson Visits In Home In Paris, France

Editor's Note: Mrs. Owen Dickerson of this city, received a post card recently from Mrs. Rosine Godard of Paris, France, which related the recent meeting of Cpl. Owen O. Dickerson and the French family. At the time the card was written, Cpl. Dickerson who is a member of the Medical Corps, was in France, but at the present time he is in Germany. Cpl. Dickerson has been in the service for the past 2 years, and overseas one year.

Cpl. Dickerson, who attended Lamesa High School, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Dickerson, of this city. His wife and one year old son, Jerry, reside at 208 South Second Street here. Two of his brothers are in service including Pfc. Herman Dickerson who is in Hawaii, and Pvt. Troy Dickerson, now stationed at Camp Hood.

Paris the 21st of September, 1944 Dear Mrs. Dickerson, I am glad to write and tell you that I met your husband, Owen Dickerson, a week ago. I showed him and his other friends who are in the same detachment around Paris. I know it quite well having lived here about 16 years.

I was born in New Orleans, Louisiana, and stayed there for 8 years. All my mother's family are still there. We took some pictures and your husband asked me to send them to you, but as for the moment, we can't write letters. I will send them a little later.

My mother would have liked to have had them all stay for lunch with us, but they only had time to stay for breakfast, which we finished at 12:30. We passed a very nice time together.

We took some photos in the dining room. I hope they will come out so that I can send them to you. I will be so glad to do so. With my kind regards, R. Godard.

Sergeant G. Keathley Sacrificed Life In Grim Battle In Italy

Editor's Note: The article printed below was sent in by the War Department and concerns S-Sgt. George Keathley, who was recently killed in action. Sgt. Keathley's wife is a resident of this city and is employed at The Vogue.

At the time of his death, Sgt. Keathley was attached with the Fifth Army in Italy, having been overseas since December of 1943. He entered the service on May 15, 1942 prior to which time he was employed with the soil conservation service here. He was holder of the Combat Infantryman Badge, and Bronze Star, and had campaign ribbons from Africa and Italy. Mrs. Keathley has received a letter from the government stating that the award of the Purple Heart would be presented for wounds he received in Italy which resulted in his death.

Born November 10, 1907, Sgt. Keathley was the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Keathley of Olney. He attended Olney High School, Cameron Junior College in Oklahoma, and A. & M.

"Please write my wife a letter and tell her I love her, and also that I did everything I could for her and for my country. So long, give 'em hell for me. I'm done for."

With these words on his lips, Staff Sergeant George D. Keathley, an Infantryman whose widow, Mrs. Geneva Keathley, lives at 502 Miller Street, Lamesa, died on the rocky western ridge of Mount Altuzzo, Italy, last September 14, after a feat of arms with few parallels in this or any conflict, the War Department disclosed today.

mortally wounded. With deep reverence, his company commander, Captain Maurice E. Peabody, Infantry, of Charlotte, North Carolina, declared:

"Only God will know what gave him the power to carry on the last 15 minutes of that decisive battle."

The report of Sergeant Keathley's fight to the death is based on reports of Captain Peabody and of two of the Texas Doughboy's comrades, Technical Sergeant Charles J. Dozier of Frostproof, Florida, and Private First Class Albert E. Wilson, of 1077 Valparaiso Avenue, Menlo Park, California.

Sergeant Dozier told how at 5:45 a. m., on September 14, the company moved forward and upward in the attack on Mount Altuzzo, encountering intense enemy automatic weapons and mortar fire, but continuing the advance against stiff German resistance.

At 8:30 a. m., the Doughboys were 50 yards from the top of the ridge, which was their objective. The enemy then launched a savage counterattack, which was repulsed. Enemy snipers infiltrated around both flanks of the forward line. Another German counterattack was launched and smashed.

"At 11:30 a. m.," said Sergeant Dozier, "a third counterattack was launched, which we also repulsed, inflicting huge casualties upon the enemy. At this time, all officers and non-commissioned officers of the second and third platoons had become casualties, and Sergeant Keathley, who was the platoon guide of our first platoon, assumed command of the second and third platoons. The ammunition supply was low and there was no way for it to be replenished from the rear before darkness.

"We were still subjected to intense enemy sniper and mortar fire, but despite this fact Sergeant Keathley reorganized the entire position, going from man to man and placing each man in the most advantageous position.

"He then visited each casualty lying in the vicinity, on the barren hillside, giving what first aid he could and collecting their vitally needed ammunition."

Then, Sergeant Dozier went on, Sergeant Keathley again went from man to man, issuing the ammunition he had collected from the dead and wounded and speaking words of direction and encouragement.

Throughout this period German sniper and mortar fire was ceaseless. At 2 p. m., the enemy hurled another counterattack. In strength of approximately two companies, the Nazis drove furiously, charging from the front and both flanks, utilizing the advantage of commanding ground, throwing potato masher grenades, supported by a terrific mortar barrage and directing intense automatic weapons and small arms fire against the Doughboys.

"We were fighting against great odds," said Sergeant Dozier, who at that time was a squad leader, "and I later learned that we had been given up for lost, but each man was fighting for all he was worth. We were not only fighting to hold our position but we were fighting for our lives."

"We were fighting hand to hand with a fanatical, desperate enemy for now, Sergeant Keathley was doing a wonderful job. I could hear him shouting orders and encouragement to his men as he dashed from one position to another. The men trusted him and carried out his orders expeditiously and effectively.

"The enemy was still throwing potato mashers. Suddenly one burst at Sergeant Keathley's abdomen, spluttering it. Yet he never stopped fighting. Holding his wound with his left hand, he continued shouting orders, determined that the enemy would not take his position."

"He would take his left hand away from his wound, enabling himself to accurately fire his rifle at an attacking German. The men knew his plight and it inspired them to such a degree that they were determined to fight to the last man."

Sergeant Keathley fought for 15 minutes after he had been hit, refusing to lie down. At last, with the help of American artillery, the enemy was forced to withdraw leaving many of their number killed or wounded.

"When all the enemy had withdrawn," Sergeant Dozier went on, "Sergeant Keathley sank to the ground, his life ebbing away. I rushed to his side and helped him to a sheltered spot on the hillside. He then held up his right arm and asked me to take off his watch, which was a present from his wife, and to send it to her."

"His last words were 'Please write my wife a letter and tell her I love her, and also that I did everything I could for her and for my country. So long, Dozier, give 'em hell for me. I'm done for.'"

"He became limp in my arms and I saw a cloudy mist come into his eyes. I had to turn away, for I had witnessed the death of the bravest and most heroic man I have ever known, and one man who was undoubtedly responsible for preventing the annihilation of three rifle platoons on the western slope of Mount Altuzzo that day."

Private Wilson was a Browning automatic rifleman in the action on Mount Altuzzo. He was a witness to all of Sergeant Keathley's actions. He declared:

"After he was hit he could have quit fighting and perhaps saved his life, but he elected to do otherwise. Knocked down by the grenade, he rose to his feet, holding his shattered abdomen, shouting orders and encouragement to his men. As if defying the Germans to take his life, he would take his left hand away from his wound and use it to steady his rifle. His actions inspired us to fight with ferocity and determination."

Enemy casualties in the engagement the Texas Doughboy dominated included 90 killed, 105 wounded, and one captured. Many of the German dead and wounded fell before the fire of Sergeant Keathley's rifle, his comrades said.

THE Army Answers
Your Personal War Problems

Your questions on allotments, insurance, legal problems or other matters as they relate to Army personnel and their dependents will be answered in this column or by letter. Write Headquarters, Eighth Service Command, Dallas 2, Texas.

Q. How long will my son have to serve overseas before he is allowed to come home on a rotation furlough?

A. There is no specified period of overseas service after which rotation furloughs are granted. Considerations governing granting of such furloughs include the availability of replacement, facilities for transportation and many others. No soldier may go unless he can be spared from his organization. In selecting soldiers for rotation furloughs, however, commanding officers give preference to those who have served overseas longest.

Q. My husband has left for overseas. Will I get a 20 per cent increase in my family allowance to correspond with the 20 per cent increase he gets in his base pay for overseas service?

A. No increase is made in the family allowance of a soldier's dependents because of the overseas service of the soldier.

Q. Can my fiancé make me the beneficiary of his Army insurance when he is inducted into the service?

A. No. Under National Service Life Insurance regulations, the beneficiary must be either a wife, child, parent, sister or brother.

Q. When a cadet in flight training is appointed a flight officer, will his wife continue to receive a family allowance?

A. No. Dependents of flight officers are not eligible to receive the family allowance.

Q. Must a widow have been married to a veteran of World War I any specified length of time to be eligible for a pension?

A. Full information about a bill now in process to provide pensions for widows of World War I veterans may be secured from the nearest office of the Veterans Administration, which will administer such pensions.

Chemurgic Industries will Consume Large Amount Of Texas Products, Is Prediction Of V. H. Schoffelmayer

By BRACK CURRY
Associated Press Staff

Huge quantities of Texas farm and forest products will be fed to the chemurgic industries which will be set up in the near future, creating steady markets for the surplus products farms can produce.

Chemical industries are forging to the front, making every crop and every tree in Texas a potential raw material for modern industry, says the chairman of the Texas Chemurgic Organization, Victor H. Schoffelmayer.

Texas, as the nation's greatest raw materials state will play a leading part in the chemurgic industries which, he states, are turning from inorganic raw materials—minerals and metals—to organic chemicals or those which can be grown from year to year in ever renewable quantities.

Chemurgic is nothing more than chemistry and related sciences working for agriculture through science and research, says Schoffelmayer.

"Texas possesses the climate and the vast areas of fertile soils which under properly managed conditions can keep on producing a new type of chemurgic raw materials derived from solar energy and the water and carbon dioxide in the atmosphere," asserts Schoffelmayer.

"These raw materials will be with us long after our oil and gas wells and our mines have quit producing. That is why chemurgic is so vital—it makes use of what the land can grow year in and year out."

Stating that Texas agriculture, largest in the nation, is sorely in need of new thinking, new markets, new sources of income, Schoffelmayer forecasts that chemurgic will give farmers a market for established crops when these are put to new use as sources of cellulose and lignin, starches and sugars, proteins, resins, gums and waxes needed by industry.

"Farmers will grow new crops which will be developed at our research institutions to fit our needs in a rapidly developing industrial area which now must import many raw materials from other states or foreign lands, all of which might be grown in Texas," he says.

Petroleum, states Schoffelmayer, may be replaced by other fuels in time—fuels which can be renewed from year to year from the plants grown by the sun, air and water. The hydro-carbons of petroleum and natural gas have their counterpart in the carbohydrates of corn, rice, wheat, sawdust or molasses, he adds.

"All around us are native plants about which we know practically nothing," states Schoffelmayer. "Dr. C. L. Lundell, Southern Methodist University's noted botanist and explorer in Central and South America, recently showed me plants he had introduced in the Dallas area from which it is likely that rubber, rapid drying oils, insecticides, industrial protein, may be derived.

"Such crops will enlarge the farmer's program and will encourage crop rotation and help the land which has been severely hurt by growing cotton or corn to the virtual exclusion of other crops."

Through chemurgy such ordinary farm products as corn, wheat, grain sorghums, cotton and cottonseed, pine trees or oaks and cedars, rice straw, castor beans and their stalks, okra seeds and okra fiber, citrus fruit wastes and perhaps Johnson grass and common weeds can be converted into industrial raw materials, explains Schoffelmayer.

In half a dozen southwest Texas counties along the Louisiana border are 2,000,000 tons of cut-over long-leaf pine stumps containing all kinds of chemicals from turpentine and rosin to pine oil, camphor and road conditioning agents and having left almost pure cellulose as a by-product, he says.

Says Schoffelmayer: "If I tell you that a ton of ordinary East Texas pine sawdust can be made into 1,100 pounds of table sugar as good as any you eat every day, and that from this same sugar scientists are making 50 to 60 gallons of ethyl alcohol, or that the same sawdust can be converted through bacterial action into edible yeast which our livestock can eat the same as they do cottonseed and with as good results, then you will begin to see what chemurgy offers."

Deep East Texas can grow tung oil, which we import at the rate of 200,000,000 pounds a year from the Far East, he asserts, adding that the Gulf Coast should be an important tung oil producer, the various industry's most highly prized rapid drying oil.

"The problem of agriculture for 20 years has been the problem of what to do with the surplus wheat, surplus cotton, surplus cattle, potatoes, chickens, eggs, and dozens of other products whose values sink to a low ebb," he said.

"If chemurgic industries are encouraged in Texas and in the nation we will not have these periodic periods of depression because there is too much cotton or wheat. We will use them chemically and convert them into useful articles of commerce."

"Chemurgic, as you can see from all this, is the thing our young soldier boys will welcome when they come back from foreign wars. They will want to be absorbed by industry. Agriculture alone can not find jobs enough for these millions of returning soldiers. We must have new industries, chemurgic industries, which will be set up all over Texas and the country and give steady employment along new lines."

Why, asks Schoffelmayer, should Texas ship most of its raw materials to eastern mills for processing? "We need to do our own processing," he declares. "For nowhere in this nation can chemurgic industries have greater assurance of success than right here in this great empire—Texas."

CHURCH OF CHRIST

WELCOMES YOU

O. H. TABOR, LOCAL EVANGELIST
PAUL FOUTZ, ASSISTANT EVANGELIST

Corner North First and Travis

One Creed—One Church—One Way

The preaching of different creeds, different churches and different ways is very confusing to the average mind. Christ foresaw that the cry in the latter times would be, "Lo, here is Christ," and "Lo there," but he added: "Believe it not." Mk. 13:21. We can see how this is fulfilled today when the many churches and many ways are presented to men, hence, our theme: One creed, one church and one way.

1. THE ONE CREED

The Bible is the ONLY creed that God ever gave to man. The excuse for forming another is, it simplifies the Bible and puts it in a form more easily understood. Now you can see how that reflects upon God. The argument for the Bible alone as the only creed is proven by the following facts:

1. If a creed has more than the Bible, too much. Rev. 22:18.
2. If it has less than the Bible, too little. Rev. 22:19.
3. If it is just like the Bible, not needed.

2. THE ONE CHURCH

Christ said he would build it; Matt. 16:18. Christ is head of the Church; Col. 1:18. Christ is the Saviour of the church, Eph. 5:23. There is just one body, which is the church, Eph. 4:4, Eph. 1:22-23. All who will hear the commands of the Lord Jesus and do them are added to the church. Acts 2:47. Now the church that you read about in the New Testament was not founded by men, hence, does not belong to men. That church contains all of God's children. No obedient person is on the outside for as soon as one becomes obedient to the Lord he is added to the church. When Jesus comes again he will take his bride, the church, to be with him throughout eternity.

3. THE ONE WAY

Some will tell you that there are many ways to glory, but the Bible speaks of only one way. Matt. 7:13-14; Jno. 14:6. This way is not by men and their creeds but by Christ and his cross. We should be content with the way that Jesus has opened up for us. When men leave the revealed way and follow in their own way they are certain to miss heaven. If one follows a way not revealed in the New Testament; takes a name not found there, and subscribes to a creed that some man formulated then how can he expect to reach heaven. Believe the ONE CREED—BE ADDED TO THE ONE CHURCH and thus WALK IN THE ONE WAY.

THE SEAL OF SCIENCE

SOLID FOUNDATIONS are being constructed for the days of reconversion and a gradual return to an industrial peacetime economy. Testing and research programs have been geared to preparing for future eventualities both on the basis of demands of the immediate postwar period and for meeting any challenges that change may bring in the period to follow.

Research, quite naturally, plays the greater role in these endeavors, for a growing and constantly advancing progressive technology provides the fundamental concepts for meeting the challenge of change. Vigorous prosecution of an accelerated research program has brought technical advances of great significance and its stimulating effect will undoubtedly elevate them to constantly higher levels. Thus the Laboratories Approval Seal, which for many years has distinguished gas appliances of merit, will continue to be a symbol of technical competence and workmanship worthy of the public confidence which it enjoys—for Research Lights the Way!

If your gas appliance displays the Approval Seal of the Testing Laboratories of the American Gas Association, you may rest assured that that appliance has met the rigid requirements and tests to which it has been subjected. The Seal of Science is for your protection.
