First of ... 'J... ...r's rise

Editor's Note: The following is the first of a series of articles pertaining to Snyder native and movie actor Powers Boothe. Boothe is now awaiting the release of his latest film, due out this summer.)

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

Powers Boothe calls the acting assignment that gave him his chance "Jones," and he says it offered him the opportunity to have "a career out of the ordinary."

He tempers this statement with the word "chance," because as he puts it, "Every time you finish a film, you don't think you'll ever work again."

The Snyder native — a 1966 graduate of SHS — now stands poised at a new bend in his career, one which holds the potential to further separate him from the other "50,000 actors trying to make a living in Hollywood."

A summer release date is now set for his newest film, a movie directed by John Boorman, the same director responsible for such films as "Deliverance" and "Excaliber."

And Boothe says he is excited about this picture in a way different from the three other general release films to his credit and the one TV movie which originally gave him his "opportunity."

That film was "The Guayana Tragedy," the story of the rise and fall of the Rev. Jim Jones — who urged then followed some 400 religious cultists to their death in 1980. The part won him the Emmy award.

"After 'Jones' I was offered an unlimited chance to play maniacs," he said. "But I've tried to be careful with my career."

Last week, Boothe briefly put aside the pursuit of career — one which has already earned him a large share of fame — for a visit in Snyder with his in-laws, Russell and Barbara Yorgesen.

He brought with him his wife of 16-years, the former Pam Cole, also a native of Snyder, and their soon to be 2-year-old daughter, Parisse.

Now age 36, he left Snyder after

Suspect re-arrested

Bharat N. Bhakta, 30, was re-arrested Friday by police after charges of murder were filed against him by the district attorney's office in connection with the death Thursday of his wife, Kumud Bhakta, 25.

He was initially arrested Thursday on a charge of attempted murder. The death of his wife Thursday night prompted the new charge.

A new bond of $40,000 was set for him after his re-arrest Friday. Bhakta has pledged this amount and was released from jail late Friday.

His wife died at 9:25 p.m. Thursday, an apparent victim of strangulation. She was first taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital around 10 a.m.

...best state performance...

One-act wins...

State again

AUSTIN — An estimated crowd of 200 Snyder supporters were on hand here Friday night to hear SHS's one-act play presentation named State AAAA champion for the second year in a row.

The local production of "Romeo and Juliet" not only captured the state title for AAAA schools, player Dana Parham, in the role of Juliet, was singled out for the outstanding performance of the entire state meet.

Shortly after midnight Friday, judges announced her as the winner of the honor, presented annually by the Samuel French Publishing Company of New York.

Brad Vincent in the role of Romeo was honored also in the AAAA schools category, as he was named best actor for the division.

Other individual players from Snyder honored were Chelle Krueger, who portrayed the character of Juliet's nurse and confidant, and Patrick Malone, for his role as Tybalt.

Krueger won all-star cast honors while Malone was awarded honorable mention for all-star cast.

The win for the drama department, under the directorship of Jerry Worsham, was the 10th title for SHS at state. It also marked the 17th appearance at state for SHS one-acts, 16 of these trips under the guidance of Worsham, who took over the department in 1966.

The only state appearance for SHS minus Worsham's direction was in 1965, the year Powers Boothe led the local cast in its production of "The Importance of Being Ernest."

SHS was a state winner last year with its production "The Crucible."

The Samuel French Award for Dana Parham was also a Snyder tradition of sorts since her sister Marca won it in the identical role of Juliet at the 1977 state meet.

In the AAAA category, the second place winning play was Gregory-Portland's "Thieves." In third place was Brazosport High School's "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals."

Siren blast 'last resort'...

Spring storm warnings told

With the possibility of spring tornadoes again present, local weather watchers recommend that local residents monitor all severe weather conditions closely using television and radio broadcasts.

In addition, they note the city siren blast which indicates a tornado has been sighted in this county should be viewed as the "last" warning, not the first.

"Ideally, when they hear the siren, that's not the time to go to a place of shelter," said Fire Chief Terry Don McDowell. "They should already be there."

The only siren blast given in Snyder related to tornadoes is a continuous one, a cycling "up and down" warning. It is sounded when a tornado is considered to be a "threat to the city," McDowell said, adding, "It's strictly a last ditch effort."

McDowell is one of three local officials who may authorize sounding the siren. First in line is City Manager John Gayle, who is the official civil defense director for the city.

The other two are McDowell in his role as fire chief and Bill Stone as chief of police.

The local group of weather watchers is comprised of all county law enforcement officials — to include Department of Public Safety patrolmen, city police and county deputies — and members of the fire department.

These are placed on alert based upon bulletins from the National Weather Service that storm cells are present in the county. Watchers are generally dispatched to the general area of the storm cell.

They maintain contact through the normal radio channels assigned to each department, a network coordinated through the central dispatcher at the police station.

In the event of a tornado, McDowell noted that an underground shelter is always the safest place.

Individuals in houses should go to a central area of the structure — one without windows — and should remain as low as possible. If there is time, a covering of mattresses is recommended.

Regarding mobile homes, he said individuals should leave these and seek shelter elsewhere.

As part of the local emergency plan — drawn up by civil defense officials several years ago — 12 locations in the county are listed

City case due trial in 132nd

A district court jury has been summoned for 9 a.m. Monday for a civil lawsuit styled The City of Snyder vs Lloyd H. Merritt.

The city — acting as an insurance corporation under the terms of their self insurance program — is challenging an award made to Merritt by the Industrial Accident Board (IAB) in May 1984.

The claim relates to disabling injuries alleged by Merritt following a motor vehicle accident which occurred during his tenure as the city's animal warden.

Fort Worth Star-Telegram columnist George Dolan selected the winners. Runners-up and winner of $25 each were Mrs. Lorraine Barfoot of Hermleigh and Geneva Williamson.

Tom Burton, you may recall, is the fellow who lost his pants in front of a high school football game crowd.

Mrs. Barfoot who, pulling herself to her feet in church, hoisted four people in the pew ahead into the air.

Geneva Williamson was the one who was shackled by her purse straps to the locked door of her car.

George also had four honorable mention picks. Included were Betty Lou Flemming, who had the wrong coat altered; Donna Garvin, who was hard on panty hose; Eddie Williams, a teacher who now goes tieless to lay down the law to his students; and Caddye Claborn, who left no garbage unturned in her search for lost wedding rings.

Said Dolan: "I see why you picked a single judge...a panel would never have reached a decision. If Sid Caesar or Carol Burnett still had TV shows, their writers could find a full season's worth of comic situations among the entries.

"My compliments to all who volunteered their moments of embarrassment. Thanks to them, the real winners of this contest were the SDN readers."

Dolan was also impressed with the great response. "I tried a contest once, to pick the cheapest guy in town, and attracted one entry...and it was from the fellow who'd suggested the contest."

Not a bad idea...

Stenholm finalists are chosen

Five Snyder High School students will now advance to a region-wide art competition sponsored by U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm.

The local winners were chosen Friday in competition that included three counties represented by the congressman. The five will now be included among 35 entries from the 17th Congressional District advancing to a May 25 contest in Abilene.

From this event, a single winner will be chosen who will have their artwork on display in the White House reviews policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House, reviewing its policy toward Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista regime, says congressional Democrats have compromised the U.S. position in Central America by undercutting rebels fighting the Managua government.

"Anything from here on we will lay right at the door of the Democrats," Chief of Staff Donald Regan told reporters Friday after the White House announced that President Reagan had ordered the review by Secretary of State George P. Shultz and others.

Regan also said the review would include the question of continued trade with Nicaragua.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the Democrat-dominated House, which this week rejected the administration's appeal for $14 million to back the Contra guerrillas, "in a way has compromised the U.S. position as far as Central America."

Speaker will discuss hunger in Ethiopia

The director of an Ethiopia famine relief fund will be in Snyder Sunday evening to speak at the 37th Street Church of Christ.

The speaker at the 6 p.m. service will be Jerry McCaghren, director of "Bread for a Hungry World" which is headquartered in Fort Worth.

McCaghren has made numerous trips to Ethiopia to deliver food, and he is scheduled to make another trip in May. Churches of Christ have contributed more than $8 million to the relief effort.

McCaghren will show slides of the situation in Ethiopia. Randall Gray, minister of the 37th Street congregation, invites the public to attend.

Senate urging Reagan to cancel planned stop

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is urging President Reagan to reassess his visit to a German military cemetery where 49 of Adolf Hitler's elite SS troops are buried, but his chief of staff says the president will not change his plans.

"He's assessed and reassessed and reassessed, and we are going to Bitburg," White House chief of staff Donald Regan told reporters Friday.

The Senate resolution, co-sponsored by 82 senators, urged Reagan to change his itinerary and to visit instead a symbol of modern German democracy to honor "the memories of the millions of innocent civilians and hundreds of thousands of American and allied soldiers who suffered and died at the hands of the Nazis."

Several senators said the resolution, which passed Friday on a voice vote with no opposition, is a clear message to West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl to relieve Reagan of his commitment to visit Bitburg, a pledge that they said is severely damaging U.S.-West German relations.

Kohl has praised as "noble" Reagan's determination to go ahead with the visit.

The United States in 1899 ratified the Treaty of Paris in which Spain ceded Cuba, Puerto Rico, Guam and the Philippines to the U.S. for $20 million.

U.S. expel Soviet official, seek clarification of policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — After expelling a Soviet military attache from the United States, the Reagan administration says it's seeking clarification of Moscow's policy toward U.S. military liaison personnel in the wake of the killing of Major Arthur D. Nicholson Jr.

The attache, Lt. Col. Stanislav Ivanovich Gromov, was declared persona non grata Friday and ordered to leave the United States within seven days.

Assistant Secretary of State Richard Burt called in the Soviet embassy charge, Oleg M. Sokolov, to issue the order.

The retaliatory move was made because of the Soviet Union's refusal to renounce the use of force against U.S. liaison personnel, despite what the United States thought was just such an agreement.

"They have said that in killing Major Nicholson, the Soviet sentry was acting in accordance with military manuals," said a State Department official, who spoke on the condition he not be identified.

"In other words, they have apparently reserved the right for their people to continue to use force against our personnel."

Asked whether the matter could adversely affect U.S.-Soviet relations, the official said that remained to be seen. "The issue as far as we are concerned is not behind us. We will continue to press for a clarification of the Soviet position on this question.

"In particular we will want to reach an understanding that the Soviets will not use force against the American military liaison mission and we will also continue to press for compensation and an apology," he said.

The official refused to say whether the matter would be discussed between Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko when they meet in Vienna on May 15. But the official said the State Department would continue contacts at a high level with the Soviet Union.

A second U.S. official, who also spoke on the condition of anonymity, said consideration was given to expelling a number a Soviet diplomats, but he said that might have led to massive retaliation by Moscow.

Asked whether the administration expects the Soviets to retaliate by expelling a U.S. diplomat from Moscow, the first official replied:

"We have told the Soviets that we do not wish to get into a fruitless cycle of retaliation and counter-retaliation that would only worsen the situation."

Note in bottle is Vietnamese couple's ticket to freedom

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A former South Vietnamese soldier said he was "the most lucky man in the world" after arriving with his family for a tearful meeting with a couple whose bottled message floated 9,000 miles to Thailand and answered their prayers for freedom.

"Welcome to the United States of America," Dorothy Peckham said in a quavering voice Friday at Los Angeles International Airport as Hoa Van Nguyen and his family arrived after an 18-hour flight from Singapore.

Nguyen, 31, told reporters through an interpreter that he was "the most lucky man in the world."

He arrived with his wife, Joang Kim, 27, whom he met at a refugee camp in Thailand, their 16-month-old son, Hoang Gia Thai Nguyen, whose name means "Souvenir of Thailand," and Nguyen's brother, Cuong Van Nguyen, 17.

The brothers were making their way from Vietnam in a rickety riverboat in 1983 when Nguyen spotted the bottle off the coast of Thailand, where they took refuge. It had been cast into the ocean by Dorothy Peckham on a Christmas 1979 cruise to Hawaii with her husband, John Henry Peckham, and contained a dollar bill and a request to use the money for postage to write back.

Nguyen said "a sixth sense" prompted him to fish the bottle from the sea.

His response to Mrs. Peckham's note prompted a correspondence between the two families and the Peckmans, from the Los Angeles suburb of Whittier, finally decided to sponsor the family in the United States.

At the airport, Peckham, grinning widely despite tears streaming down his face, took the sleeping baby in his arms. Nguyen then gave the Peckhams a picture he drew in the Thai refugee camp.

Farm banks said generally in good shape

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal regulators say the nation's farm banks are generally in sound shape, despite earlier fears that many of the institutions would go belly-up as the financial crunch on farmers continued to worsen.

Consequently, Congress was told on Friday, rural banks do not need the kind of emergency aid given savings and loan associations three years ago when they were in trouble.

Despite some failures, "the great majority of farm banks are in good shape," J. Charles Partee, a member of the Federal Reserve board of governors, told the Senate Banking subcommittee on financial institutions. "They are well capitalized and have positive earnings."

So far this year, 27 banks have failed — 16 of them agricultural banks, defined as those with one-fourth or more of their loan portfolios in farm loans. "It may well be that more will be driven to the point of bankruptcy," Partee said.

Sen. James Exon, D-Neb., is proposing that the government extend to farm banks the same kind of help offered savings and loan institutions in 1982.

In the previous instance, savings banks suffering from a surfeit of low fixed-rate mortgages at a time of sky-high interest rates were offered "net worth certificates" that shored up their capital positions on paper and allowed them to continue operating with less equity than normally required under federal regulations.

But Partee and other regulators said the present farm bank plight is not nearly that serious, and insisted adequate tools already are in place to deal with the problem. Those include helping farm banks merge with stronger, more diversified institutions and offering loan guarantees through the Farmers Home Administration, the Agriculture Department's lending agency.

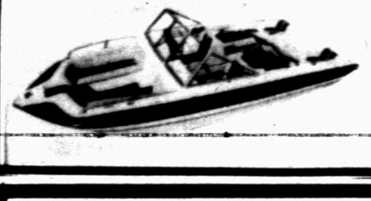

Margaret L. Egginton, deputy to the chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., said extending net worth certificates to agricultural lenders would be merely "a paper prop-up" that would help neither the bank nor its community. It would instead leave "a crippled institution with depleted real capital and a large portfolio of bad loans to collect," she said.

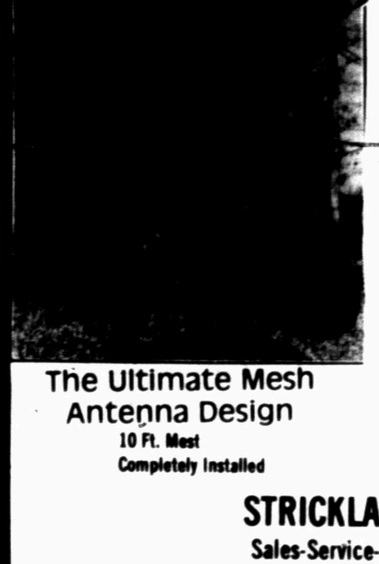

The Fed has been saying for months that while agriculture is suffering, farm lenders started out in a generally more secure position than the banking industry as a whole. The stress has at most brought the sector down to the level of non-farm banks, government analysts say.

Farm problems, concentrated in the Midwest, are due mostly to low crop prices stemming from huge surpluses and slack demand and to the squeeze effect of high interest rates and falling land values.

The Agriculture Department estimates that some 229,000 commercial, so-called "family farms" are facing serious difficulty. Together, they owe just under half of the nation's total $212 billion farm debt.

The financial stress among farmers has sent their lenders swarming to Congress for help. President Reagan on March 6 vetoed money to buy down interest rates for farm borrowers, and financial institutions now are pressing for a new federal land holding company to prop up the value of their farmland.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Cancer removal must be total

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor removed a pea-sized spot from my forehead and it was found to be malignant. He sent me to another doctor, who made a much deeper cut and also removed a large area from my left temple. There was no more cancer where the first one was removed, but the area on my temple also was malignant.

I could not understand why he didn't perform more surgery or go deeper. He said I should come back in a month. I can't see how it could heal itself, but I'm afraid it might get worse.

DEAR READER — Skin cancer usually is much more benign than cancers of the internal organs. Most skin cancers grow quite slowly and take years to develop.

The second doctor probably removed additional skin from the forehead to be sure that all of the cancer had been removed. He cut out all of the affected area on your temple.

In the usual procedure, a pathologist checks the tissue to be sure that all of the margins are of normal tissue, which means that all of the cancer has been removed. Often a surgeon doesn't have to go exceptionally deep to remove a skin cancer.

Skin cancers do not heal themselves, but your doctor probably is fairly certain that he removed all of the cancer. He wants to see you in a month to be sure that there are no adjacent areas involved. If there are, he will remove those, too.

Skin cancer is common. If one skin cancer develops, it means that large areas of the skin have been exposed to factors that can cause skin cancer. The sun is the major factor. One may continually develop new cancers because of this; if these are treated early, they usually can be removed easily and without complications. That crop of skin cancers is cured, but that won't protect you from the next crop.

I have discussed the various skin cancers and how to prevent them in The Health Letter, Special Report 28, Skin: Aging, Spots, Cancer and Sun, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Every vitamin preparation I have seen has 400 units of vitamin D. If I take one of those tablets, will any vitamin D from another source become an overdose?

I take two calcium tablets a day and each has 33 units of vitamin D. I drink about two glasses of milk and eat a bowl of cereal.

I need the calcium, so I've been omitting the vitamins because I'm afraid of getting too much vitamin D. I'm 61 and eat a very sketchy, irregular diet, since I live alone and don't like to cook.

DEAR READER — The exact toxic level of vitamin D has not been established. The range is not great, but a rule of thumb is that one can take up to 1,000 units a day without creating a problem. This 1,000 units includes the vitamin D in various foods, such as your two glasses of milk. Although many foods have been enriched with vitamin D, one can still take a standard daily vitamin pill that contains 400 units of vitamin D. Your eating habits suggest that you need it in addition to your calcium.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently my home health nurse rushed me to the hospital, thinking I was having another stroke. My right side was paralyzed and I had skipped heartbeats, very low blood pressure and was almost in a coma. My blood pressure dropped from 200 over 110 to 96 over 48. I had oxygen in the ambulance and blood-thinner I.V. in the emergency room. I was diagnosed as having a TIA. What is a TIA?

I am 50, a diabetic and have a history of heart problems, strokes and chronic health problems. The arteries in the front of my neck and in the back of my head are clogged.

DEAR READER — A TIA is a transitory ischemic attack, which means that your brain had a temporary period of not getting enough blood. That can involve any area of the brain. So it can produce the same symptoms as occur from a stroke, from paralyzed limbs to loss of speech. The difference between a stroke and a TIA is duration. The transitory attack lasts only a few hours at most, and often just a few minutes.

If one has some blocked arteries and one's blood pressure falls, there may not be enough pressure to provide circulation through the partially blocked arteries, and the TIA symptoms will occur.

I suspect, from your comment about clogged arteries, that you have seen a neurologist. If not, you should. Anyone who has had a TIA needs a neurological evaluation. In some cases, but not all, surgery can be quite successful in improving circulation and preventing a future stroke.

To help answer your questions, I'm sending you The Health Letter 16-6, What You Need to Know About Strokes. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor says that I have sarcoidosis and that it can be treated with only one medication, Prednisone. What can you tell me about this?

DEAR READER — Sarcoidosis has been known for years, but it is still a mystery disease. No one really knows what causes it. It is characterized by nodules that are caused by some type of immune-inflammatory reaction. The nodules are called granulomas. They are not cancerous. The nodules may disappear, but new ones appear in other places. The process often is discovered during a routine chest X-ray.

The nodules commonly affect the lungs and the fibrotic changes in the lungs may lead to respiratory problems. As sarcoidosis progresses, the lung disease may progress, causing increased problems in breathing.

The process may involve the heart and cause electrocardiographic changes, or even heart failure. Almost no part of the body is totally resistant to the nodules. They can occur in the bones, liver, eyes, salivary glands and nervous system.

Sometimes a patient will have acute symptoms, but then the whole process will go into remission and the patient apparently will be free of the disease. It also can involve a slow chronic change from the infiltration with the nodules. Despite its appearance, the overall death rate is only 3 to 5 percent. That is quite low when compared to the death rate in heart disease or any number of other diseases.

Prednisone is universally prescribed to help control the inflammatory nodules, but other medicines are being investigated.

Last in series of 3 luncehons slated at Cornelius-Dodson House

The last of a series of spring luncheons in the Cornelius-Dodson House will be held at noon Thursday.

Women interested in attending are invited to make reservations by calling June McGlaun, president of Historic Scurry County, Inc., at 573-9742, or Jean Everett, Lois Bartels or Dora White. Reservations are due by noon Tuesday and are limited to 20 because of the seating space available. Tickets are $6.50 per person.

"We have been well pleased with the response to the luncheons and are considering plans for additional luncheons," Mrs. McGlaun said. "Proceeds are being used for additional furnishings for the Cornelius-Dodson House, and we have already purchased some glassware."

New furnishings also include four card tables, gifts from Mrs. Buford Sterling, Mrs. Max Drum, Mrs. J. D. Hinton and four members of the HSC board of directors. Gifts given as memorials include flatware from Mr. and Mrs. Jack McGlaun and a crocheted table runner from Mr. and Mrs. Jess Everett.

Memorial gifts are welcome at any time and checks can be sent to Mrs. McGlaun at 3207 42nd Street. She will send acknowledgements to the donor and the family or individual designated by the donor.

"We would like for those attending Thursday's luncheon to bring a copy of a recipe or recipes for the sesquicentennial cookbook now being prepared," Mrs. McGlaun added. "Each recipe should have the name of the donor and we request that there also be a brief note about the history of the recipe--how it came to be a family favorite, for example. The recipes need not be typed. Recipes for the book can be mailed to Jean Everett at Route 3, Snyder."

The Cornelius-Dodson House, located on the grounds of the Scurry County Coliseum, can be reserved for special occasions by calling Mrs. McGlaun or Mrs. Everett.

World War II flier gets belated honors

BEACON, N.Y. (AP) — The funeral was 42 years late, but the sorrow was fresh and vivid today as 1st Lt. Francis G. Peattie was welcomed home at last from the battlefields of New Guinea.

"It's really amazing how spontaneous the feelings of grief are after all these years," said George Peattie of Dallas, the bombardier's brother. "Apparently all you do is somehow bury them inside you, but you never get any scar tissue formed. You find they are just as fresh as when it happened."

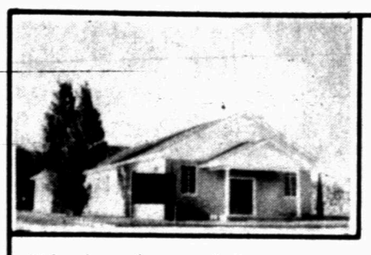

Francis Peattie went down in a B-17 over New Britain on July 26, 1943.

U. S. to allow one author in country

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has relented on its refusal to admit Canadian author Farley Mowat to the United States, but Mowat says he's still displeased with the way he was treated.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service, acting on a request from the Canadian government and following consultation with the State Department, said Friday that Mowat will be allowed to come into the country to promote a new book.

"In the interest of international harmony, we are permitting Mr. Mowat to come to the United States to complete his business," Alan C. Nelson, commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said in a statement. "This action should meet Mr. Mowat's needs while still preserving the interests of the United States government in this matter."

But Mowat said the U.S. response was not good enough.

"I'm not satisfied with that," the author said in a telephone interview Friday from his Port Hope, Ontario, home.

Detained American may be adviser

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Two Americans captured in a pre-dawn raid on an isolated ranch near the Nicaraguan border may have been acting as military advisers to rebel forces fighting Nicaragua's leftist government, a Costa Rican official said.

Interior Minister Enrique Obregon Valverde on Friday identified the Americans as Steven P. Carr and Robert Thompson. Their ages and homestowns were not immediately available.

Two Britons, a Frenchman, and nine Nicaraguans also were arrested in the raid Wednesday near the village of Las Delicias de Pocosol 12 miles south of Nicaragua.

Col. Rigoberto Badillo, a Rural Guard commander, said troops found a large cache of arms and ammunition, including rifles, bazookas, machine guns and grenades, at the ranch. He said the Americans and Europeans apparently were acting as military advisers to the Nicaraguans in the camp.

U.S. Embassy sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said those arrested conceivably could be charged with illegal possession of firearms and violation of Costa Rica's neutrality law. But no charges were announced.

Johnny Campos, vice minister of public security, said the National Security Council would review the case Monday.

The ranch where the men were detained is managed by an American named John Hall, who in the past has been linked to rebels under the command of Eden Pastora, the head of the Revolutionary Democratic Alliance.

WTC again schedules camp for cheerleaders

Western Texas College will host its annual cheerleader camp from June 17-20, Mickey Baird, WTC Student Activities Director, has announced.

The camp is primarily for high school, middle school and junior high school cheerleaders. The students will be trained in such areas as cheers, chants and pon pon routines as well as pep rally planning, uniform selection and fund raising.

WTC has held cheerleader camps since 1974, with personnel from the All-Star Cheerleader Conference of Kansas City, Mo. providing the instruction. Squads attending may stay in the college dorm and have meals in the college cafeteria or commute daily from home if they live close enough.

Schools interested in sending cheerleading squads are invited to contact Mrs. Baird at WTC or call 573-8511, to make reservations or to obtain additional information.

Western Texas College sets freshmen success sessions

Students planning to attend Western Texas College as fulltime freshmen seeking degrees in the 1985-86 school year are requested to attend one of three Freshmen Success Seminars planned in the summer.

At the seminars, students can pre-register for the fall semester and academic advisors will be available to help students in the selection of courses. Placement tests will be given to students who do not have ACT or SAT scores on file and there will be a $5 charge for that test.

Seminars are scheduled from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on June 27, July 18 and August 8 and the student may choose the one he or she prefers to attend. For more information call 573-8511, ext. 394.

As of 1985, it is estimated about 100,000 cellular phones are in use in the United States. Industry reports indicate the number of cellular units in service by 1990 will reach at least 1 million. And by the end of the century, this is expected to rise to between 30 and 40 million units, meaning that 20 to 25 percent of the cars in the United States will have cellular telephones, according to AT&T.

Hogs knocked from SWC lead

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) - Baylor knocked Arkansas out of first place in the Southwest Conference baseball race with a 7-6 victory in 10 innings Friday night.

The victory, before 2,010 fans at George Cole Field, raised the 18th-ranked Bears to 13-6 in the SWC and 41-10 over all. The eighth-ranked Razorbacks dropped to 12-6 in conference play and 32-11 on the season.

The win put Texas, 9-5 victors over Texas A&M on Friday, into the conference lead.

The Bears scored the winning run in the top of the 10th, when Brad Meyer, the last man in Baylor batting order, drew a lead-off walk from Arkansas reliever Tim Dietz. Kyle Todd sacrificed Meyer to second. Meyer went to third on a passed ball and scored on a wild pitch, giving Dietz his first conference loss. He is 2-1 for the season.

Pro basketball roundup...

Erving keys 76ers; San Antonio wins

by The Associated Press

The Philadelphia 76ers started off on the right foot, and when they needed a finishing kick, Julius Erving was there to give them one.

"That was the old 'Doc', somebody got him mad out there," Washington forward Greg Ballard said in admiration after watching Erving take charge at the end to lead the 76ers to a 106-98 victory over the Bullets in the National Basketball Association playoffs Friday night.

The victory wrapped up their Eastern Conference first-round series 3-1 and sent the 76ers into the semifinals against the Milwaukee Bucks, who also finished off the Chicago Bulls in four games with a 105-97 decision.

In other playoff action, the San Antonio Spurs beat the Denver Nuggets 116-111 and the Houston Rockets edged the Utah Jazz 96-94 to each force a fifth game in their Western Conference series on Sunday.

Erving scored 14 of his 25 points in the fourth quarter after Philadelphia had all but lost an 18-point lead.

Washington, which trailed 61-43 with 49 seconds left in the half, pulled to within 72-68 before Moses Malone made two free throws for Philadelphia to close out the third quarter. Erving then scored six points in a 10-4 Philadelphia streak at the start of the final period for an 84-72 lead, and the 76ers led by at least six points the rest of the way.

Moses Malone added 18 points, Andrew Toney 17 and Charles Barkley came off the bench to contribute 16 for Philadelphia.

Jeff Malone and Frank Johnson, who played the last two playoff games after missing 32 contests because of a foot injury, scored 13 points apiece in the final quarter for the Bullets. Malone led Washington with 24 points.

Spurs 116, Nuggets 111

Mike Mitchell scored 37 points to lead San Antonio over Denver and stave off elimination. Point guard Johnny Moore also aided the Spurs' cause with 17 points and 16 assists.

Moore put the game away for the Spurs in the closing seconds after Denver's Calvin Natt scored a basket to cut San Antonio's lead to 113-109 with 30 seconds left.

The Nuggets were playing aggressive defense, keeping the Spurs from getting the ball into play. But Moore grabbed a long pass and ran downcourt alone and made it 115-109. He added an extra point from the free throw line second later to seal the victory.

Rockets 96, Jazz 94

Houston's "twin towers" - Ralph Sampson and Akeem Olajuwon - scored 18 points each as the Rockets staged a second-half comeback to beat Utah.

Western finishing up stint at Hardin-Simmons rodeo

ABILENE – Western Texas College was hoping to accumulate some big points here Saturday in the Hardin-Simmons NIRA Rodeo.

"It's still a little too early to tell how things are going," said WTC Coach Bob Doty. "Tony Hecksher and Bliss Mayhan have drawn some rank, hard to ride horses in the bareback. I wouldn't have picked those two horses if I were picking," he grinned. "Van (Hale) ought to place in the bull riding. It looks like Tarleton has drawn pretty well. Hadley Reed for Tarleton is winning the bareback and is second in the saddle bronc."

WTC's best performance so far has been Tania Whatley's 4.1 which leads the breakaway roping.

Niki Moist is in third place in the goat tying with an 11.5 while Hale is tied for second in the bull riding with a score of 74. He is also fourth in the saddle bronc riding with a 60.

Also, Don Eddleman is winning third in the calf roping with an 11.1.

Western took a lot of no-times and no-scores, however. Having no luck were Gary Rowe in the calf roping, Mike Carillo in the bareback, Tobin Tate in the saddle bronc, Chris Carpenter and Glen Jordan in steer wrestling and Jason Phillips in the bull riding.

Two performances were to be held Saturday, one at 2 p.m. and the other at 8 p.m. Scheduled to compete for Western were the following students. The number in paranthesis refers to afternoon (a) or night (n) performance.

Calf roping: Jeff Reynolds (a), Ben Reynolds (a), Tobin Tate (n), Donnie Yorks (n).

Bareback: Tony Hecksher (n), Bliss Mayhan (n).

Breakaway roping: Canita Cass (n).

Saddle bronc: Bliss Mayhan (n).

Steer Wrestling: Gary Rowe (a), Donnie Yorks (a).

Barrels: Canita Cass (n).

Bulls: Tobin Tate, Bliss Mayhan (a).

Western Texas to host rodeo schools in May

Western Texas College will sponsor a pair of two-day rodeo schools in May, said WTC Coach Bob Doty.

Breakaway roping and goat tying will be taught in the first session, set for May 22-23. Calf roping will be taught in the second school, set for May 27-28.

Tami Noble, All-Around champion in the Southwest Region of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association for 1982, 83 and 84, will be the goat tying instructor. Betty Gayle Cooper, three-time winner of the Women's Professional Rodeo Association All-Around Championship, will teach breakaway roping.

James Zant, who won the NIRA national roping championship for WTC in 1982, will be the calf roping instructor. Zant was American Junior Rodeo Association champion in 1979.

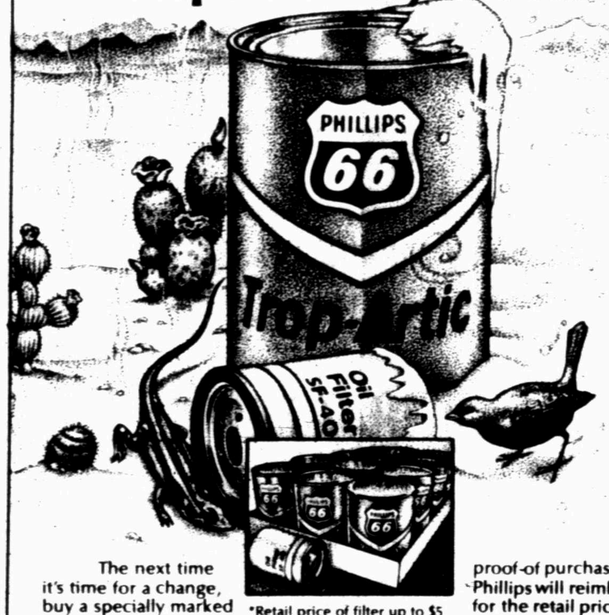

Fees for the May 22-23 schools will be $125 per event. Fees for calf ropers in the May 27-28 session will be $175 per person. A $75 deposit for either school is due by May 15 and is to be sent to Doty at Western Texas College, Snyder, Tx., 79549. Students must also show proof of insurance.

Both schools will be held in the Scurry County Rodeo Arena on West 30th St. and stalls will be available there for $10.

A minimum of 10 students will be required for each school and students who enroll are asked to call Doty at (915) 573-8511 or 573-8912 on May 17 for status of the schools.

"We plan to have fresh, good quality stock at each school," said Doty. "We will be using video to tape performances and we will also be watching tapes of top ropers and roping. Girls may enroll for both breakaway and goat tying but there will be some overlap in the schedules. Persons who would like additional information may call me."

Fall to Pecos, 2-1...

Tigers tumble from title race

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

Snyder's string of eight consecutive district baseball championships came to an end here Friday night, lost in the wake of a 2-1 defeat to Pecos. The Tigers can still retain hopes of making the playoffs, but even those hopes are slim.

"The kids fought hard tonight," said assistant coach Roland Herrera. "It was the thing that has haunted us all season - our baserunning. We just haven't been that smart on the bases."

Snyder had three runners put out on the basepaths, including two that were tagged out at home plate. Whether the runners coming home were waved in or whether they came in of their own accord was unclear.

Trailing 2-1 into the bottom of the sixth, the Tigers got things going when Michael Long led off with an infield single. Jimmy Cain followed with a fielder's choice that put Long in the dugout, but Brad Holcomb reached on a hard-hit ball to shortstop Erasmo Acosta. Acosta couldn't handle it, and Michael Carter - running for Cain - advanced to second base. Ricky Hunter followed and hit a line drive into left field. Carter took off from second and rounded third, but was out by several steps as Sonny Orona got the ball to relay man Elias Peyan who threw a strike to catcher Lance Windham.

The seventh inning repeated Snyder's woes. Pecos pitcher Israel Avila gave up a lead-off single to Charles Bollinger, then got Justin Webb and Jay Mayo to pop up to centerfield. Jimmy Velasquez followed with a well-hit double to right field and Bollinger scampered around the bases and headed for home. Outfielder Larry Avila chased down the ball and got it to second baseman Roy Medley, who gunned the ball to Windham again in time to catch Bollinger at the plate.

The loss puts Snyder at 16-6 for the season and 5-3 in District 2-4A play. Pecos raises its records to 15-3 and 7-1.

The defeat leaves Snyder two games out of the runnerup spot with only two games on the schedule. Pecos - which hosts Fort Stockton on Tuesday and Andrews next Friday - would have to lose both of its final contests for Snyder to get back in the race.

Andrews leads the district with an 8-0 mark. The Mustangs defeated Lamesa 11-4 Friday.

The outcome here overshadowed a gutsy pitching performance by Bollinger, who came in in relief of Webb, and some good fielding by the Tigers.

"The kids played real hard. We played with them, we just couldn't get those key hits we needed when we needed them," said Herrera.

One of Snyder's best defensive plays came in the first inning when Peyan slapped a double for Pecos and tried to extend it to a triple. Centerfielder Bobby Velasquez grabbed it and fired it to Bollinger who was playing shortstop at the time. Bollinger then zipped the ball to third sacker Chris Fryar who put the tag on Peyan.

Pecos got both of its runs in the second inning. Welman Bauer started things off with a one-out single up the middle. Orona walked, and Windham reached on an error to load the bases. Designated hitter Roger Garcia followed with a single that pushed two runners in.

Snyder's lone run came in the fifth when Israel Avila walked home Holcomb. Holcomb had reached on a walk, gone to second on a single by Hunter and to third on a walk to Bollinger. The bases were left full when Avila got Jimmy Velasquez looking at a third strike to end the inning.

In all, Snyder left 11 runners stranded, including one on third base in the third inning, and two in the fourth inning.

The Tigers came up with nine hits and drew five walks off of Avila, whose record goes to 6-0 with the win. Avila struck out five batters.

Webb pitched the first two innings for Snyder. He allowed two hits and two walks and struck out one batter. Bollinger gave up four hits, issued three walks and struck out five.

Hunter keyed Snyder's offense. The junior catcher was three-for-three with one walk. Jimmy Velasquez went two-for-three with a walk. Long, playing his first varsity game after being moved up from the JV. was two-for-three. Webb and Bollinger got Snyder's other two hits.

"We had some kids that really played well," said Herrera. "Charlie kept it mixed up real well. I just wish the results could have been better for him. Ricky (Hunter) did a great job at the plate and we were real pleased with Michael Long and Brad Holcomb who came in a did a fine job."

2-4A glance

Andrews and Pecos solidified their bids for the District 2-4A baseball championship Friday night.

Andrews defeated Lamesa 11-4 to remain undefeated in district play with an 8-0 record. Pecos edged Snyder 2-1 and kept its second place standing with a 7-1 record.

A score from Friday's Monahans and Fort Stockton game was unavailable. Monahans, Fort Stockton and Lamesa have already been eliminated from the playoffs.

Pecos' win over Snyder puts the defending champions out of the race for the title. With a two-game lead over Snyder, Pecos needs only one more win to eliminate the Tigers from playoff consideration.

Junior varsity finishes '85 with some impressive stats

Snyder junior varsity baseball team concluded its season recently with a 7-8 record.

Scott Lanier led all Cat hitters with a .432 average. Michael Long, who hit .360 and has since been moved up to the varsity, led in hits with 18.

The team continued to share honors as Van Echols led the Cats in getting on base. Echols hit .308 for the season but reached base 67 percent of the times he went to the plate. An interesting statistic is that of Terry Garza, who hit only .167, but got aboard 58 percent of the time.

David Martinez had a spotless 2-0 pitching record for Snyder while William Foree saw the most work. Foree was 2-4 for the season and pitched 43 and one-third innings. He struck out 59 batters.

Coach for the junior varsity was Ricky Howell.

third quarter to help Houston erase a 49-38 halftime deficit. The 7-foot-4 Sampson gave the Rockets the lead for good midway through the third period when he jammed in a rebound, making the score 53-52. Utah center Mark Eaton, who set an NBA single-game playoff record of 10 blocked shots, fouled Sampson as he made the basket.

Utah's Rickey Green paced the Jazz with 22 points while Adrian Dantley had 20 and Griffith 18.

Milwaukee 105, Chicago 97

Terry Cummings scored 29 points, including six crucial free throws in the final seconds, and Sidney Moncreif added 23 to lead Milwaukee over Chicago.

Chicago, making its first playoff appearance since 1980-81, was led by Michael Jordan's 29 points.

Pentagon studying 46 possible sites

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty-six sites spread among nine states are now in the running to become possible bases for the new Midgetman intercontinental ballistic missile, the Pentagon says.

The potential missile bases were selected for further study from among more than 4,200 locations, the Pentagon announced Friday. Forty-four of the sites are on existing military bases, while the remaining two are on government reservations operated by the Energy Department, the Pentagon said.

All but two of the sites are located from Texas westward.

"While decisions on how or where to base the first missiles will not be made until late 1986, after completion of technical, operational and environmental studies, it is essential to begin these studies now.

Actor reflects on career to date graduation in 1966 to move first to Dallas and a college acting career at Southern Methodist University, then eventually to New York, where he performed in stage productions until leaving in 1979.

A Broadway play called "Lone Star," written by a fellow SMU grad, first brought him to the attention of "movie people," he said.

This attention took him to Los Angeles and "Jones." His other credits include the movies "A Cry for Love;" "Southern Comfort," directed by Walter Hill; the Phillip Marlow series shot for Home Box Office; and "Red Dawn," his last film, directed by John Milius and released last summer.

During a 1½ hour interview, he talked about a range of topics — his own career, including the soon-to-be-released film "The Emerald Forrest;" the current state of film making in Hollywood; the attraction that keeps him coming home to Texas; and the remarkable success of "guys from Snyder" in the world of TV and films.

"Most actors base their own value on whether or not their working," Boothe said. "I can't do that," a comment he offered in response to "why" he has made a relatively small number of films since moving to Los Angeles six years ago.

"I've come to realize that I'm the same person whether I'm acting or not. Film is a job. It's a job I love, but if I never make another film, I'm still the same person inside."

(In Monday's paper, Boothe discusses his latest film project and other factors regarding "how movies get made.")

House committee starts hearings

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — With an estimated $1 trillion bill hanging over their heads, a congressional committee has begun the first in a nationwide series of hearings on the problem of America's decaying road and drainage networks.

Ten Congressmen gathered here Friday for a helicopter tour of the area and watched as House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Fort Worth, pointed to the underside of a sadly aging overpass on the Trinity River.

"It hasn't fallen apart, but we need to do something before it falls apart," Wright said of the bridge.

Scurry County Folks...

By Linda Baylor

Betsy Griffin, Snyder Junior High School history teacher, is preparing for her second annual tour to Washington, D.C. as a sponsor for junior high school students.

The tour itself is sponsored by Lakland Tours of Charlottesville, Vir. Last year a total of 25 junior high students from Snyder made the trip, and this year 34 students are planning for it.

The tour group will leave Snyder Junior High School May 20 by chartered bus for Lubbock where they will fly to Dallas. After changing planes, they will fly into Washington. At each stop, according to Mrs. Griffin, representatives of Lakland Tours will meet them to help make the necessary connections.

The tour cost $600 per person but the fee includes air fare, motels, every meal of all you can eat, a movie at the Smithsonian and a boat ride. "All the kids need to bring is their spending money," explained Mrs. Griffin.

There are six students who have earned or are in the process of earning the $600 plus spending money. They are Jeff Mitchell, Charles Cribbs, Mike Price, Royce Hataway, James Henderson and Suzy Thraser.

Mrs. Griffin became involvd with Lakland Tours when Mrs. Clovis Bradford, her high school civics teacher at Cooper High School in Abilene, recommended her to the tour group several years ago. Mrs. Bradford is retired.

Mrs. Griffin explained that the tour group had asked her for three years that she sponsor a group of junior high school students on the Washington tour before she finally agreed to try last year.

"We will stay at the Marriott Hotel. They have planned activities for us including recreation. Everyone must be in their rooms by 11 p.m. and some off-duty Marines patrol the halls at night. You can't get out of your room without one of them being right there," she said.

Last year the Snyder group shared a bus with a group from Victoria. A total of 500 students from all over the United States, most of them junior high students, were in Washington on like tours at the same time Snyder was represented.

"The kids really like that because they get to meet so many different people," she said.

There will be some of the same things on the agenda this year as last year, but some changes have been made. For example, last year they had a side tour to Jamestown and the restored Williamsburg, whereas this year, the group will stay in Washington.

Last year they arrived on Memorial Day. Arlington National Cemetery had been one of the points they were to visit, but the president was there for the dedication of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and they were not permitted to enter.

This year, they will elect two of the students from the group to present during special ceremonies a black and gold wreath with "Snyder Junior High" on it. These same students will place the wreath on the tomb.

"We are assigned a personal charter bus and have the same driver all the time, so the kids can stay wherever they want to as long as they want. We are not pressed for time with the exception of the appointments for the FBI tour and the wreath ceremony in Arlington National Cemetery," said Mrs. Griffin.

She explained that a tour of the FBI had to be scheduled six months in advance.

Other adults attending include Mrs. Joe Ashley, Snyder Junior High School librarian; Chon Rodriquez and his son Michael; Thomas Gonzales who teaches at Central Elementary; Mrs. Jackie Nail and her son Jack; and Mrs. Griffin's husband Merle.

Some of the items on the itinerary include the Washington Monument, the Vietnam Memorial, the zoo to see the Pandas, the National Cathedral, the Supereme Court and the Library of Congress, in addition to Arlington National Cemetery and the FBI.

They will take a cruise down the Potomac River to Mount Vernon and then motor to Alexandria. They will eat lunch that day in the Art Gallery at the Smithsonian and then ride the Metro Rail to Crystal City for shopping and dinner. The evening will be concluded at the Marriott with a dance and recreation.

They will also see the Bureau of

Debra Browne, Line repeat wedding vows

Debra Rena Browne became the bride of John Todd Line in a double ring ceremony March 22 at 9 p.m. in the Ft. Worth home of Mrs. Malcolm O. Mayes, aunt of the bride. Dr. Thomas Jerrell Sutton, pastor of the Wedgewood Baptist Church of Ft. Worth, officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Mayes of Loraine and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill E. Line of Snyder.

An improvised alter accented with candles and fresh flowers served as the background for the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose a tea length dress fashioned of white brocade accented with a full length sheer net overlay. Miniature seed pearls added interest.

The scalloped neckline enhanced the sheer bodice. Sheer long tappered sleeves were accented at the wrist with a self-ruffle.

Her shoulder length veil was gracefully attached to a garland of flowers.

The bridal bouquet was fashioned of white carnations and accented with baby's breath tied securely with white satin ribbons.

Mrs. Mayes served as matron of honor. She wore a street length dress of pale blue silk. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations nestled in netting and secured with satin ribbons.

Rick Ator of Dallas served as best man.

The reception was held immediately following the ceremony. The serving table was covered with a white lace cloth and accented with candles. Crystal and silver appointments completed the setting.

Guests were served cake, fruit, nuts, mints and cranberry punch and coffee.

Following a Caribbean cruise, the couple are at home at 6302 Driftwood, Midland.

The bride is a 1983 graduate of Loraine High School and she attended Western Texas College. She is currently employed as a secretary for Patterson Drilling Company in Midland.

Line graduated from Snyder High School in 1976 and received his degree from the University of Texas in Austin in 1980. He is employed by Hinkle Distributors of Midland-Odessa.

Single ring ceremony weds Melinda Overhulser, Scott

Melinda Lee Overhulser and Darren Drew Scott exchanged wedding vows in the Trinity United Mthodist Church Feb. 14 at 8 p.m. with the Rev. Gene Greer, former minister of the church and currently of Abilene, officiating the single ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Overhulser Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Doyle O. Scott, all of Snyder.

A heart shaped candelabra featuring votive candles and accented with fresh greenery served as the background for the ceremony.

After the mothers were seated, Mary Lynn Hokett and Rebekah Thornton sang "Stuck on You", accompained by Cheri Stewart. The bride was presented for marriage with the traditional "Wedding March". While the newlyweds knelt at the kneeling bench, Ms. Hokett sang "The Lord's Prayer".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor length gown of taffeta styled by Alfred Angelo. Imported bridal net accented with Schiffli embrodery and Venice lace overlaid the bodice forming an off-the-shoulder neckline and was gracefully gathered into short puffed sleeves. Miniature seed parls and sequins added interest.

Tiny self-covered buttons enchanced the back of the gown. The skirt flowed into a chapel length train which was accented with a single strand of Venice lace around the hem.

The bride adorned her hair with fresh baby's breath accented with pastel ribbons.

Her boquet was fashioned of blue and pink silk carnation teardrops and accented with yellow and lavender daisies and white sweetheart roses. Satin ribbons in pastel shades gracefully secured the boquet.

For something old, the bride carried the wedding rings which had belong to the groom's great grandparents. They were carefully secured to her bridal boquet with satin ribbon streamers. She borrowed a pearl necklace from Tonya Bennett, a friend, and a white-gold and diamond cross pendent from Doylene Gilliland, sister of the groom.

Her gown served as something new and she wore the traditional blue garter which was made especially for her by Peggy Englis.

Debi Burns of Snyder, friend of the bride, served as maid of honor. Terry Glasscock of Snyder, friend of the bride, was the bridesmaid and Tonya Terry, also of Snyder and a friend of the bride, served as the flower girl.

The bride's attendants were attired in matching dresses fashioned of embossesed lavender taffeta. Ruffled sweetheart necklines and short puffed sleeves accented the bodices.

The maid of honor and the bridesmaid carried matching boquets of long stemmed silk roses accented with fresh greenery and secured with pastel silk ribbons of various lengths.

The flower girl carried a white wicker basket filled with white silk rose petals which were sprinkled in the aisle as the bride approached the altar.

The groom's attndents included Steve Sorrells, best man, Todd Sorrells, groomsman, both of Snyder and friends of the groom. Ushers were Reed Scott, brother of the groom, and Billy Overhulser, brother of the bride.

The groom and his attendents wore matching tuxedos of black with white ruffled shirts and black bow ties. They each wore a boutinere fashioned of silk flowers done in colors which matched the bride's boquet.

Randy Overhulser, brother of the bride, served as ring bearer. He wore a navy colored jacket over khaki trousers. A blue shirt and matching tie completed the outfit.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall.

The bride's table featured a three tiered cake adorned with pastl flowers. A crystal punch bowl and appointments and a silver tea service graced the table. Pastel colored napkins engraved with the couple's names and wedding date completed the setting.

Tonya Bennett and Tina Romero presided at the bride's table and alternated at the registration table.

The groom's table featured a chocolate horse shoe shapped cake and a brass coffee service. Mints and nuts were also served.

Robin Sharp and Lisa Tucker, both of Snyder, assisted the guests at the groom's table.

Following a brief weekend trip, the couple is at home in Snyder.

The bride is a student of Snyder High School and will graduate in May. The groom is a 1984 graduate of Snyder High School and has attended Western Texas College. He is currently employed by Central Tire and Automotive.

"I wish I could encourage parents to send their kids after they have finished the seventh grade," said Mrs. Griffin. "In the eighth grade they study American History and they will have already see all of these places." She added that she felt the association of seeing and then studying would help the students "grasp the facts."

To pre-treat spots on soiled garments before laundering, Family Circle magazine suggests using an empty roll-on deodorant container refilled with a liquid detergent. It's a snap to use, the amount of detergent is easy to control, and the rolling action itself helps to loosen the dirt, the magazine says.

Changes could affect VCRs

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Commercial zappers and time shifters of the world, take note: Engineers are inventing ways to broadcast television shows so that video cassette recorders cannot tape them.

This quest is still in the tinkering and talking stage. But if the technology succeeds and if it is used (the second "if" is especially big), it could crimp Americans' new-found freedom to watch what they want when they want.

So far, the television and movie producers have financed at least three projects to accomplish this.

"We're serious about it," says Allen Cooper, vice president of the Motion Picture Association of America. "We need to protect our copyright. Without our copyright, we own nothing. If a system is developed that works and we can implement it, I think it would be broadly used."

The goal is to find a way to send programs over cable or the air so that people can see them on television but can't record them.

"Unrecordable video refers to generating a television signal that you can watch on a standard TV set without any scramblers or gizmos or boxes, but it blows a tape recorder out of the water," says Andrew Lippman of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Working with a $125,000 contract from Columbia Pictures, Lippman says he's invented a way to twiddle ever so slightly with TV signals so this very thing happens.

These are the signals that feed millions of video cassette recorders that whir away obediently in living rooms across America. A quarter of all U.S. homes, according to one estimate, will have VCRs by the end of this year.

One of their most important uses — along with playing rented movies — is storing up TV shows that air today so they can be watched tomorrow, next week, next month, whenever the whim strikes. This is known in the business as time shifting. And it leads to what the producers see as the twin evils of VCRs — commercial zapping and library recording.

When an ad comes on the screen, many viewers touch the remote-control scan button, speed up the tape, and soundlessly watch the soap sellers and cat food kitties jerk foolishly around the screen. In a flash, the message of the people who paid for the show is gone.

"To the extent that zapping goes on and the proportion of VCR owners grows, the value of television as an advertising medium deteriorates substantially," Cooper says.

That's one reason why the program makers are intrigued with the idea of unrecordable video. Another is the prospect of thwarting people who copy movies — illegally — off pay cable channels and watch them over and over.

Producers make money by recycling movies. When they finish their run in theaters, the cable movie channels pay to show them. But if lots of people record them off the cable for their home libraries, the value of the films goes down. They are worth less money to the networks, because fewer people will watch them when they are shown with commercials. And anybody who's recorded a movie for free isn't going to pay $80 for a prerecorded cassette.

One answer to this — though perhaps not the final one — is Lippman's invention.

"The idea is that we alter the timing of the television signal," he says. "TV runs at 30 frames a second. When you watch TV, you're really watching still images.

"We've devised a modification of the TV signal so that it doesn't any longer run at 30 frames a second. It runs slightly slower and occasionally slightly faster. Basically, in doing so we're exploiting resiliency.

"The job of a TV set is to do the best it can in making a picture of whatever junk you feed into its antenna. VCRs are not quite as good as that. One reason is that they are mechanical instead of electrical, and because of its mechanical nature, the tape recorder is fundamentally not as resilient as an electronic device like a television set."

In other words, a TV works fine when the signal speeds up and slows down. It can cope with a sloppy signal. But a VCR cannot. It needs a steady 30 frames per second.

Tinker with the signal just a little, Lippman says, and the VCR records the show in black and white, not color. A bit more, and the picture seems to breathe; it grows and shrinks on the screen. After that, the picture turns to snow.

"If the color goes away, that's probably sufficient," says Lippman. "You don't have to do much to a movie to make it unwatchable — or at least not pleasantly watchable — when you can rent a cassette for a dollar."

AT&T says it paved the road to cellular telephone service in 1924 when it provided mobile radio telephone service in New York City police cars. By 1946, mobile telephone serevice became available for private and commercial users.

Editorials-Columns-Cartoons-Kid Stuff-Look Back-Letters

You might as well hear about it from us first.

Dr. Lamb's medical advice column — a daily feature of the SDN — is in danger of being gone like the goose.

But before you reach for the telephone and the inevitable telephone calls we're going to receive, know that it's not entirely our fault.

Dr. Lamb is part of a package the SDN subscribes to called the Newspaper Enterprise Association (NEA for short). Other stuff you may or may not read from NEA includes the bridge column by James Jacoby, Berry's World, Astro-Graph and the Sunday editorial cartoon immediately below this column.

So anyway, last March 27 our mailing packet from NEA contains the following information — the syndicate was preparing to announce a new "physician-columnist."

Reference was then given to "more than a decade" of "Larry Lamb's columns."

We had to think a minute who in the heck Larry Lamb was, then we shuffled through the latest batch of NEA material and realized that the full name had always been there on the column's standing head, "Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D."

It was then the full truth hit home. "Good Grief! They're dumping Dr. Lamb."

We then returned to the letter for further clues. It was noted that "we have made note of a steady slide in...use of Dr. Lamb's column during the past six years."

Followed by, "And in your comments you also told us that your readers were looking for a doctor more sensitive to consumer issues, women's problems and the medical-moral dilemmas so prevalent today."

For the record, we personally never told 'em nothing so they'll have to find someone else to blame for the good doctor's demise.

We had noticed a certain number of reoccurring themes in Larry's column of late, however. For instance, halitosis, foot odor and impotence, to name a few, and to be honest with you, none of these made us want to jump right in.

On the other hand, we know folks that read Dr. Lamb daily and with great expectation and, according to them, helpful results for their life.

Killing a long-running newspaper feature can be a bag of kittens that keeps reappearing at your doorstep. But we thought the whole deal was pretty cut and dried until this past week.

To complicate things, Dr. Lamb sent notice that he and NEA had indeed parted company, but that he's now hooked up with some company called News America Syndicate. These columns will be for sale beginning June 3, but at an unspecified cost.

Meanwhile, NEA will provide medical advice from a Dr. Gott beginning May 1. And the SDN will receive Dr. Gott with the usual NEA package at no extra charge.

Dr. Lamb, on the other hand, has sent a sheaf of free columns to run until June 3 — when the freebie ride ends and newspapers will presumably have to pony up more cash.

Along with his cover letter, Larry commented, "I would not like to disappoint (the readers) and cause concern."

He adds in a somewhat ominous note, "I'm sure you do not want a lot of concerned readers either."

Well and good. Then Thursday we received another letter from NEA stating that Dr. Lamb is under contract to them until June 2 and all releases of his stuff have to come from them.

This followed by a letter from Dr. Lamb Friday saying he understands NEA is spreading tales that he is still under contract and it ain't necessarily so.

Our only comment is, some of life's decisions are easy and some of life's decisions are hard. And some days it doesn't pay to open your mail.

John Dunnam

EDITORS NOTE: Bill McClellan is filling in for John Dunnam this week. Dunnam is off. But, you probably already knew that.

Hi! I'm not John Dunnam and I'm proud of it.

Actually, John and I have reached a trade agreement for this week's column. He's working on my sewer and I'm writing this column. There's a correlation there somewhere, but I'm not going to go into it.

Anyway, I'm worried. I'm afraid John Dunnam is going to get the last laugh. Bear with me now.

Ever read the warning on a can of motor oil? Probably not. No doubt you were raised in a generation where oil was oil. You put it in your car, a little in the lawnmower and maybe dabbed the squeaky parts of your garage door every now and then. It worked just fine, there were no big decisions to make, and the only thing you even considered was which brand to use...as if it mattered.

Nowadays, oil isn't just oil anymore. There's high-detergent oil to keep the inside of your engine clean, multi-grade oil to counteract the engine temperature, all-weather oil to fight off changes in the climate, and high-viscosity oil, which does the same thing the old oil did only with a fancier name. By now, you've probably learned which type your car is supposed to use. Or maybe you just pick up whatever's cheapest. But you still might not have glanced at the side of the can.

It tells you that repeated contact with oil, especially used oil, causes cancer. The big C.

So far so good.

I acquired a 1970 Plymouth Duster from John several months ago. How I acquired it is not of importance, but you can bet that he got the best end of the deal. Let me tell you why.

This thing, this green glob I use for transportation, uses a lot of oil. I mean a LOT of oil. You don't calculate miles per gallon of gas with this thing. You measure quarts of oil per mile. Besides, the gas gauge doesn't work anyway. The oil light does.

This thing uses so much oil, puts up such a cloud of smoke, that in embarrassing moments I've told people I'm spraying for mosquitoes. And there are a lot of embarrassing moments, believe me.

The only thing good about this condition is that I'm seldom bothered by tailgaters. Other drivers seem to either want to get around me very quickly, or else they drop back and find an alternate route.

That's not much of a consolation when I know I'm flirting with cancer. I mean the label says

SDN Week in Review

SUNDAY
April 21

A City of Snyder ordinance related to removal of junked vehicles is now being used as a model for such ordinances both statewide and across the nation, it was reported Sunday.

Regarding this, a booklet outlining the local ordinance is now being distributed to other municipalities which request it by a division of the Texas A&M University system.

A record number of 294 pre-kindergarten children were enrolled last week in the Snyder school system, it was reported Sunday.

By campus, the numbers were 43 at Central; 53 at East; 33 at North; 53 at Northeast; 54 at Stanfield; and 58 at West.

MONDAY
April 22

Rain amounts from weekend thunderstorms were reported Monday. The heaviest shower of 1985 fell in Snyder Sunday, accompanied by pea-sized hail, thunder and lightning.

The official rain total from Sunday was 1.28 inches in the city. The rainstorm Sunday was preceded by golf-ball sized hail which skirted the northern edges of the city Saturday between 3 and 4 p.m.

TUESDAY
April 23

Scurry County sheriff's officers are investigating the theft of a pickup from a local business early Tuesday morning, a theft possibly linked to a similar incident occurring in Abilene.

Employees of Caprock Pump and Supply — located northwest of Snyder near the intersection of Farm Road 1611 and U.S. Highway 84 — called authorities around 8:40 a.m. to report the theft of a 1982 Chevrolet pickup from their company yard.

Elections conducted Tuesday finalized three places on the Snyder High School student council.

Officers elected were Don Osborn, president; Jon Traylor, vice president; and Kima McLarty, secretary.

WEDNESDAY
April 24

Snyder High School industrial arts students have captured numerous awards in regional contests and project judging in Abilene, it was reported Wednesday.

Leading the SHS effort were industrial bowl team members Stacey Browning, Brandy Hickman and Brian Sitton, who placed second in the the contest to qualify for state competition in Waco in May.

Three juniors from Snyder High School have been singled out for their scores on the National Merit Scholarship exam — an honor considered the first step toward scholarship recruitment by U.S. colleges and universities.

It was reported Wednesday that the three had scored among the top 50,000 out of some 1.1 million juniors from across the U.S. who took the test this past fall. Those honored were Lisa Barkowsky, Thomas Brown and Timothy Curfman.

THURSDAY
April 25

The four appointed members to the newly reorganized Scurry County Industrial Foundation were announced Thursday morning.

Accepting the posts are Joe Fowler, R.C. Patton, Bill Davies, and Gene Cutler, all appointees. They join fifth member Mort Ewing.

On the same day it was officially organized, the newly formed Scurry County Industrial Foundation put its tenant industry King's Highway on notice that it now considers the lease agreement between the two in default.

The five-member board — reduced from its previous 12-member makeup — authorized contacting King's Highway officials informing them that it now lays claim to all "fixtures and equipment" remaining in the Industrial Foundation building.

The Cogdell Memorial Hospital board of managers voted to retain an attorney and file civil lawsuits in 132nd District Court in an attempt to collect four bills characterized by administrators as uncollectable.

The move Thursday to legal action is part of an ongoing effort to improve the hospital's financial condition. The four bills approved for legal action each total in excess of $1,500.

FRIDAY
April 26

The death of a 25-year-old Indian woman Thursday has prompted the arrest and an expected charge of murder against her husband, Bharat N. Bhakta, 30, manager of the Strayhorn Motel, it was reported Friday.

The victim — Kumud Bhakta, age 25 — was initially admitted to Cogdell Memorial Hospital at 10:01 a.m. Thursday. Time of death was not until around 9:25 p.m., however.

Her husband was arrested at 2:35 p.m. Thursday, then released from custody later in the afternoon after posting a $15,000 bond.

Look Back

By Noble B. Young

FIVE YEARS AGO

Western Texas College President Robert Clinton today — April 22 — announced the hiring of Larry Dunnaway as the school's head men's basketball coach. Dunnaway, Central Texas Coach-of-the Year at San Marcos High last year, will replace Nolan Richardson, who resigned to assume the head coaching position at The University of Tulsa.

Scurry County United Way drive chairmen for 1980 named Monday — April 21 — were Frances Wiman and Margaret Drum.

10 YEARS AGO

With about 17 percent of the registered voters participating, Scurry County residents yesterday — April 22 — abolished the office of county school superintendent by a vote of 848 to 686. Although the office will not officially cease to exist until Jan. 1, 1979, Roy Carter — who won the office last November with a campaign promise to close it — said he hoped to have the business of the office transferred to the county judge's office, no later than September 1.

15 YEAR AGO

Snyder Chamber of Commerce board members today — April 22 — announced two appointments to fill vacancies created by the departure from the city of Jimmy Melton, who served as a director and as chamber treasurer. H.F. Clark was appointed treasurer and Loren Sullivan — manager of the Snyder J. C. Penney Store — was named to fill Melton's vacant director's seat.

20 YEARS AGO

Owen H. Ivie was named today — April 22 — to succeed Col. E.V. Spence as general manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District. He has previously served as assistant general manager of the district — holding that position since October of 1959 — and has been associated with the water district since January of 1953.

"The Importance of Being Ernest," the Snyder High School entry in the UIL regional one-act play competition in Odessa Saturday — April 24 — captured first place honors in the contest. Powers Boothe was named best actor of the regional meet while Cindy Hale and Jay Don Rogers were named to the all-star Cast.

Letters to the editor

To the editor,

When the "No Pass, no play" mandate (along with the rest of H.B. 72) was approved, I was very much against it. Like most Texans, I didn't like the idea of a bunch of legislators telling me what to do.

However, after reading 42 percent of Snyder's junior high students and 33 percent of the high school students had failed at least one class, I have decided that the legislators knew what they were doing.

Whether you have a child in Snyder's school system; whether you have a child who failed; or even whether you are a parent is not the point of this letter. We must be involved with the children. We must change our attitudes that say sports and other UIL events are as important or even more important than a child's clases.

This newspaper could help by changing some of its attitudes. In Friday's article concerning the high school failures, the writer stated, "The list of UIL events still scheduled this school year is now fairly small, however." The writer may not have intended to sound like it, but I got the distinct impression that it was acceptable to have such a high number of failures since many students wouldn't be participating in UIL events anyway.

It's time we all realized the future of our cities, counties, state and country lies with the children of today. We must push math, science, English, etc., in order for our country to remain as great as it is.

Yours truly,
Susan Buchanan

Lutheran church fights declining numbers

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Holy Cross Lutheran Church, with its modest brick sanctuary and playground, survived the urban decay on Toledo's north side and turned to modern marketing techniques to reverse a decline in membership.

Church leaders hope to make Holy Cross a model for urban churches, using a computer program that targets prospective church-goers much the way commercial firms pinpoint likely customers.

The neighborhood is plain but prosperous, a grid of shaded streets, small yards, bungalows and apartment buildings for young families, retirees and singles. Many walk each Sunday to Holy Cross Church.

A decade ago, many thought the church was dying along with its working-class neighborhood that was seriously afflicted by factory closings and a declining economy.

"This was a neighborhood where people started families 40-50 years ago and never moved," says the Rev. Timothy Seeber, who watched the decline from Holy Cross. "Now there are new families coming in — your beginning families are coming in here because the homes are older and they're nice homes, but cheaper."

Seeber put his college degree in sociology to use second guessing that change with a computerized system.

"Most denominations are kind of helpless in how they can help a church in a changing community, where a mission is as great as it's ever been, but because of a change in economics and sometimes race, they don't know how to reach out," says the Rev. Reuben Schmidt, a retired Cincinnati minister who spearheaded a pilot demographic program for the English District of the Lutheran Church's Missouri Synod, about 130 congregations in industrial cities.

Holy Cross is a model for those churches because it has done things right, Schmidt says.

To compile the Holy Cross plan, Seeber and church members used census data and other statistics to plot characteristics of the 54,000 people living within three miles of the church. The numbers were put into a computer at Concordia College, a Lutheran school at River Forest, Ill., and produced a numerical description of the church congregation and its neighborhood.

"The fact that about 26,000 of the people living within a threemile radius are not going to church anywhere is a challenge to us and to all other churches," Seeber says.

"There are 1,200 single mothers raising families near the church. We have a day-care and a school here and we've also been pushing education quite a bit ... We're going to try and find ways to provide more help, some support for people in that situation."

Seeber says the Holy Cross congregation peaked in 1960 at around 900 people. From then until 1975 it declined to about 500, before beginning a comeback.

"It's been going up slowly, but it's been steady, since then," he says. "Now we're probably at about 625."

The minister is comparing community data with an outline of church membership trends to see if it is keeping pace with the neighborhood.

"At the end of that, what we have to do is come up with a statement of purpose — what do we feel God has called us to do in this place," he says. "A lot of it is getting people in the church to do the same kind of planning that businesses do."

While Toledo is representative of subtle economic changes, the one other church in the pilot program — in Chicago — typifies racial changes that have left many churches empty since the 1950s, Schmidt said from his home in Angola, Ind.

"Number one, they begin to pull out of an area and go to suburbia and they forget the people in the community they served before," Schmidt says. "Or they decide to stay, but are oblivious to the fact that the area is changing and try to carry on as usual, which leads to declining membership and, eventually, closure."

In 1974, the unmanned Mariner 10 spacecraft — on its way to the planet Mercury — sent back the first pictures of the planet Venus taken from space.

Dutch museum gets few visitors

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Marinus van Hattum runs what is probably the least popular museum in town.

By his own count, the exhibition hall he maintains in the basement of the city's Free University gets only 10-15 visitors a year. And that's in a good year, what with 50 other museums in the city competing for the tourist's attention.

But van Hattum doesn't care. The way he sees it, somebody has to keep the 200-year-old genius of Willem Bilderdijk alive.

The free, but by-appointment only, museum contains the 120-volume collected works, family portraits and mementoes of Bilderdijk, one of the most eccentric — and unread — giants of Dutch literature.

"I like the period, so I like his writing," said the thinly bearded 38-year-old van Hattum recently, gesturing toward one of the many smiling portraits of his spiritual mentor.

"Life was uncomplicated. It was tranquil. I'm happy when I am busy with Bilderdijk and his contemporaries."

Bilderdijk's works — most of them turgid poetry — are meticulously studied by a few scholars of 18th-and 19th-century Dutch literature, but more often groaned over by secondary school students assigned excerpts of his epic work, "The Demise of the First World."

Although the most famous portrait of Bilderdijk depicts him holding a bound version of Demise, which van Hattum explains as "a political work that describes a mythological world before Adam and Eve," the work was never finished.

Bilderdijk was "a disappointed man," according to van Hattum, and that sentiment is expressed in his works, usually rhyming treatises ranging from linguistics and geology to theology and philosophy.

McFarlane bringing results

By R. GREGORY NOKES
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert F. McFarlane didn't even rate a footnote in Henry A. Kissinger's two volumes of memoirs, but now that he holds his old boss' job, he's managed to do something even Kissinger couldn't.

He's achieved peace — not between the Soviets and the Americans, but between the office of White House national security adviser and the State Department. It took him a year to restore order.

During Richard Nixon's era, Kissinger was finally put in charge of both of those discordant bureaucracies in an effort to impose peace — and they still continued their intramural combat.

The same old disarray characterized Ronald Reagan's foreign policy until ex-Marine McFarlane landed in October 1983 as Reagan's third national security adviser. Now Foggy Bottom and the White House are moving in the same direction.

One big McFarlane accomplishment: Forming a partnership with Secretary of State George P. Shultz, he ended the discord that paralyzed the administration's arms control bureaucracy. Until that was done, the administration was in no position to do business with the Soviets.

The just-below-the-surface warfare between Shultz and Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger came to an end just in time for the administration to forge a united stand to take to Geneva, Switzerland.

"For the first time in a long time, we've got a team working together," says one top White House aide, who asked not to be identified by name.

McFarlane has made himself a man to be reckoned with, not because of any special closeness to Reagan, but because of what he knows — the issues, the bureaucracy and the Congress, where he served as a staff aide during the Jimmy Carter interlude between Republican presidents.

He's still not well known outside the inner corridors. He wears a solemn face in public but friends tell of a mischievous sense of humor. To his friends, he's known as "Bud" McFarlane.

He's methodical, cautious. He works from 7 a.m. late into the night — sometimes 17 hours straight. His memos are military-like in their precision.

Early on in the Reagan days, McFarlane, then at the State Department, was sent to troubleshoot the MX missile controversy in Congress.

"I didn't know who Bud McFarlane was," recalls Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., now chairman of the House Armed Services Committee. "He was very quiet, not a very authoritarian type, and I said, 'This doesn't look like the kind of guy who can do the job'."

But McFarlane impressed Aspin, who quickly concluded that he "was by far the best person to deal with." The deal they worked out kept the MX alive.

McFarlane has kept on impressing, although he joked in a recent interview that, "My wife says I'm the only person to go back to the same office he was in 12 years ago and call it a promotion." When he moved into Kissinger's old job, he was assigned to the office he'd occupied as a Kissinger assistant.

Shultz didn't get along with Reagan's friend, William P. Clark, who was McFarlane's predecessor. Because of bickering, Shultz at one point threatened to quit.

But Shultz has benefited from the relationship he's developed with McFarlane.

"Irritation between those two jobs is almost inevitable, but in this particular case, it hasn't happened," says Lawrence Eagleburger, a former undersecretary of state for political affairs who has worked closely with both men.

Says Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee: "Both Shultz and McFarlane are low-key personalities who are just right for the president."

McFarlane, a U.S. Naval Academy graduate who put in two tours during the Vietnam War, is one of three ex-Leathernecks in senior positions, giving rise to jests that the Marines are trying to rescue Reagan's foreign policy. The others are Shultz and White House Chief of Staff Donald Regan.

When McFarlane took over, conflict raged between the State Department and Pentagon on arms control, U.S. policy in Lebanon and ways of combating terrorism. Leaks were a means of combat.

Like Shultz, McFarlane is regarded as a pragmatist and has sided with him against hardliners.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It will be necessary to consider your own interests today when making decisions. Unfortunately, your choices may not be what's best for your companions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A co-worker may have a rather sharp tongue today and he or his comments could be annoying. Pretend you didn't hear and go on to something else.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll benefit more in a final analysis today if you think in terms of what's best for all concerned instead of "What's in it for me?"

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Guard against tendencies today to jump to conclusions before all of the facts are in. Hasty assumptions could be way off the mark.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Much can be accomplished today if you don't attempt to do things in haste or try to handle two difficult tasks simultaneously.

Dear Abby

Wife Needs Faith to Conquer Strong Feelings for Priest

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Your advice is usually good, but you were dead wrong when you advised "A Sinner in My Heart" to switch to another parish when her ex-boyfriend ("John") returned after 16 years to become her parish priest. Although "Sinner" says she's happily married, she admits to having strong feelings for John, and suspects the feeling is mutual because he cannot look her in the eye. Meanwhile she is consumed with guilt because she can't bring herself to confess to him that she is lusting after him in her heart.

Abby, we do not solve our problems by running away from them. If "Sinner" switches to another parish, she would create more problems than she would solve. How would she explain the sudden switch to her family?

Better for her to stay where she is and face the music. Her "strong feelings" will pass with time if she will pray for strength and diligently practice the art of self-control.

Both she and the priest should be able to engender sufficient faith and determination to bring them victoriously through this crisis.

THE REV. C.W. KIRKPATRICK,
HATFIELD, MASS.

DEAR REV. K.: And what if they aren't victorious? All right, instead of switching to another parish, "Sinner" should have another priest take her confession. Imagine what could ensue should she confess to her priest that she is lusting (in her heart) for him while he possibly is lusting (in his heart) for her? Priests are human, too. Why tax an already difficult situation by making it more difficult?

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more letter on the cowboy hat issue?

After my husband started teaching at a junior college in eastern Wyoming, he asked one of the instructors native to the area what the custom was concerning the wearing of cowboy hats.

"They never take them off in class," said the teacher.

"You're kidding," said my husband. "Do they take them off in church?"

"They never go to church."

"What about funerals?"

"They never die."

CARLA KELLY,
SPRINGFIELD, MO.

DEAR CARLA: Right! Old cowboys never die (they just lose their range). And now that we've uncorked the issue of the 10-gallon hat again, hear this from a reader in Texas who wants to set the record straight:

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the statement credited to Bum Phillips when he was asked why he removed his cowboy hat at Houston's Astrodome: "My mama taught me that a gentleman always removed his hat when he enters a home, and the Astrodome is home to me." Your reader was wrong on all three counts.

The hat wasn't a 10-gallon cowboy hat, it was a houndstooth sports fedora; the man wasn't Bum Phillips, he was Bear Bryant; and the place wasn't the Astrodome, it was the Superdome.

DEAR ABBY: I have decided not to pay the $200 insurance bill on my house. I'm letting others pay it for me, so please send me a $20 contribution to help pay this bill. I am sending this request to nine others, but I'm sure only you will respond, as the nine others will probably tell me that if I don't care enough about my $150,000 house to spend $20 a month to protect it, I can go whistle Dixie.

And while you have your checkbook out and are in a generous mood, please send another $20 to public TV, as I have decided to join the 90 percent of those who enjoy this service and let others support it for me.

HARRY HOWE,
ST. PAUL, MINN.

law abiding citizens. We try always to take care of our own business and not bother others unless they first harrass our family.

My husband works long hours in the oil field and I work in Colorado City at the hospital. So many days we are not in town during daylight hours. Therefore we must do some of our outside work either early or late. Much to our surprise one of our neighbors reported us for mowing our grass during early morning hours. I must say that this was sometime around 7 a.m. It was daylight and the first time in two weeks my husband had been in town during daylight hours.

We did not intend to upset anyone but it has lessened our opinion of some of the people in this town.

I must say that we are hard working people and we pay our taxes like most people do. We do not live off the government and we intend to continue to carry on our lives just as we have in the past.

If whoever turned my husband in for mowing the grass during early morning hours does not have enough backbone or pride to face us with this complaint then why bother.

To my knowledge there is no city ordinance specifing when a person can mow their grass. If there is such an ordinance I wish someone would tell us. I also did not know that a person had to ask permission from their neighbors as to what time of the day a person does their yard work. I have always felt that when a person lives in town with houses close together that there are going to be some things that bother us. We must learn that we do not always have our own way with what goes on in our neighborhood. We must learn to be tolerant of others and try to get along with our fellow man.

Thank you.
