Aid okayed in hard-hit Texas areas

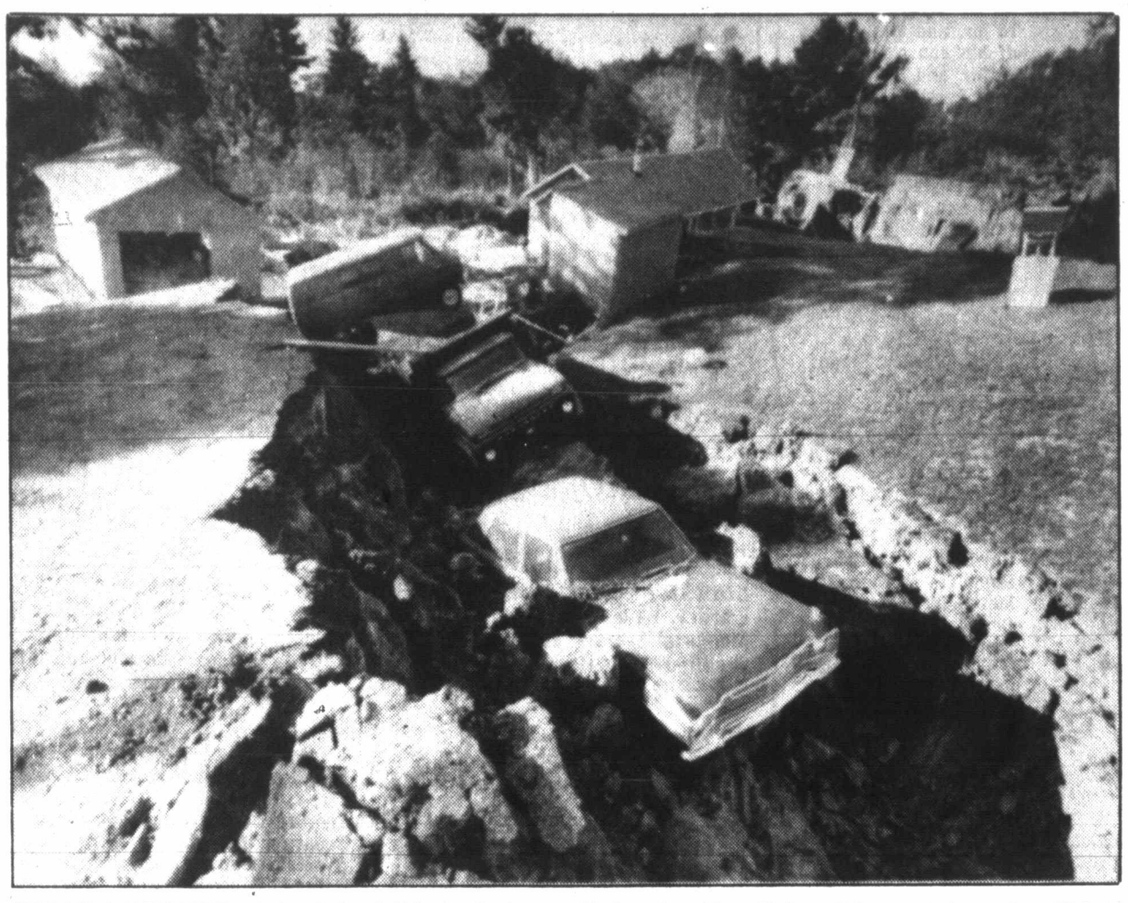

WASHINGTON (AP) — Up to $12.5 million in aid would be provided to areas of high unemployment in Texas over the next two years — including hard hit border areas — under an amendment attached to unemployment compensation legislation approved by the House, according to Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas.

An amendment sponsored by Hance to include the assistance for Texas was approved by the House before it passed the measure 327-92 on Thursday and sent it on for consideration by the Senate, Hance's office said.

The basic legislation would permit a 45-day extension for the "supplemental compensation'' unemployment program, which provides payments for workers who have exhausted their regular unemployment benefits.

The money provided for Texas in the Hance amendment would be targeted for areas of high unemployment, including the area of the Lone Star steel plant, which virtually shut down last year, and border communities whose economies have been devastated by last year's peso devaluations, Hance's office said.

Hance said that the $12.5 million would "not solve the basic economic problems of the Texas border region."

Economic index falls for first time in a year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's main gauge of future economic strength fell 0.1 percent last month, the Commerce Department said today. It was the first decline in a year and another sign of future slowing in the economy.

The forecasting gauge, the department's Index of Leading Economic Indicators, is a compilation of a dozen forward-pointing statistics covering manufacturing, employment, prices and other areas.

In a recent report on the gross national product, the government estimated that the economy in the third quarter was slowing to a still-strong 7 percent annual growth rate after racing at a heated 9.7 percent rate in the April-June period.

And since the leading index is designed to show economic changes that will occur in future months, today's report appeared to be another signal that growth will slacken for the remainder of the year and into next year.

The department also revised July's index to show a 0.8 percent advance instead of the previously reported 0.3 percent gain. Still, July's showing was much weaker than earlier this year, when strong gains of 3.1 percent in January, 1.7 percent in February and 2 percent in March foreshadowed the vigorous economic growth in the second and third quarter of the year.

Private and government economists have welcomed the economic slowdown as further insurance against a heat-up in inflation and interest rates, which could dampen the recovery.

Today's decline was the first since the 0.1 slide in August 1982 and worse than Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige had predicted. He said last month that future months would likely show increases of 0.5 percent to 1 percent — figures he said would be "consistent with the sustained economic recovery we would like to see."

Today's report said four of the 10 available indicators declined in August, with formation of new businesses contributing the most to the drop.

Reluctant Senators key to War Powers accord

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's authority to keep Marines in Lebanon for the next 18 months was won with the votes of several Senate Republicans who reluctantly supported a War Powers compromise out of party loyalty, not because they support the presence of the troops in Beirut.

"Unfortunately, it became a partisan issue," Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., said after a divided Senate voted 54-46 Thursday to approve the War Powers resolution now awaiting Reagan's signature.

The agreement provides specific, broad authority for Reagan to keep the 1,600 Marines in Lebanon as part of a multinational peacekeeping force designed to ease the civil war there and reduce the chances for a broader conflict in the Middle East.

Afterwards, Reagan said the vote is "a strong signal to the world: America stands united; we speak with one voice, and we fulfill our responsibilities as a trustee of freedom, peace and self-determination."

Democratic opponents said the resolution reminded them of the early days of the Vietnam War when the number of U.S. forces were gradually increased before it was clear what the U.S. mission in Indochina really was.

The 1973 War Powers Act, on which the resolution is based, was designed by its sponsors to make sure there were "no more Vietnams, no more undeclared wars, no more presidential wars," said Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark.

But instead of complying with the act and formally declaring that Congress has a role in deciding whether the Marines should stay in Lebanon, Bumpers said, "The president has done everything in the world not just to avoid the letter of the law, but the intent of the law."

The Democratic House approved the resolution on Wednesday and after minor changes were worked out between versions approved by the two houses, the compromise was sent to the White House for Reagan to sign.

The original version of the agreement was negotiated among senior White House aides, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., and other congressional leaders.

The only significant changes added in two weeks of congressional debate were to toughen and make more specific the requirements under which Reagan must keep Congress updated on what the troops are doing, and the progress of U.S. diplomacy in Lebanon.

There were three defections among the Republicans, Mark Hatfield of Oregon, Lowell Weicker of Connecticut and William Roth of Delaware. Two Democrats, Edward Zorinsky of Nebraska and George Mitchell of Maine voted for the resolution, which provides explicit congressional approval of Reagan's policies in war-torn Lebanon.

In the end, the Senate heeded the appeal of Baker, who said: "It would be a mistake of tragic proportions if the Congress were to withdraw them at this time."

In other action, the Senate approved on a voice vote the so-called continuing resolution that will finance the operation of some government agencies until Nov. 10 while Congress works to enact annual appropriations.

The 1984 fiscal year begins at midnight tonight.

A House-Senate conference committee, voted Thursday night to impose new restrictions on the ability of Interior Secretary James Watt to sell offshore oil drilling rights along the nation's outer continental shelf. The panel also voted to prevent Watt from selling coal leases until 90 days after a special commission completes its report on the Interior Department's mineral leasing policies.

A conservative Republican congressman, meanwhile, called on Reagan to fire Watt for last week's remark when he referred to the coal commission members as "a black,... a woman, two Jews and a cripple." Rep. Newt Gingrich warned Reagan that the House and Senate are likely to pass no-confidence resolutions against Watt.

The House voted 327-92 to extend for 45 days the supplemental unemployment benefits program for nearly 650,000 jobless Americans. Under the extension, idled workers could receive between eight and 16 weeks of supplemental benefits when their state jobless pay runs out. With a different version pending in the Senate, Congress must act by midnight tonight to keep the program alive.

The House gave final congressional approval to a bill to set up a government radio station to broadcast news to Cuba. On a vote of 301-109, the House approved creation of Radio Marti and authorized $14 million for the 1984 fiscal year and $11 million in the 1985 fiscal year.

A bill making it a federal crime to tamper with consumer products passed the House and was sent to the Senate for final congressional action. The legislation was drafted after seven Chicago-area residents were killed a year ago after taking Tylenol pain-relief medicine laced with cyanide.

Clinging to a straw

Cranston pins hopes on unofficial polls

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Alan Cranston is the straw poll man of the 1984 presidential campaign, his candidacy built upon contests that choose no convention delegates and that often don't accurately reflect public sentiment.

The straw poll season gets serious over the weekend with a big bout at the Maine Democratic state convention, and in October the scene shifts to Iowa and Florida.

Cranston's strategy has given the California senator some priceless moments of national attention. But so far, his victories haven't cut much ice with the political money men or the people who respond to public opinion polls.

Undeterred, Cranston is spending more than $50,000 and committing scores of campaign workers in a drive for Maine convention votes — and he's not the only one who takes this winner-take-nothing contest seriously. Former Vice President Walter F. Mondale is spending closer to $100,000 and has 60 full-time campaign workers in the state.

Mondale's main pursuer, Sen. John Glenn of Ohio, insists he won't compete in straw polls, but his rivals say the Glenn organization is working hard in the state. And Sen. Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina, who disdained straw polls until he decided he might do well here, is also active in Maine.

Mondale knows his front-runner status could be damaged by a disappointing showing in a straw poll.

He campaigned in Maine on Tuesday and exhorted his supporters to "please vote" at the state convention. "There's going to be so much press, so many TV cameras ... This is now the political season ... It's all coming together this Saturday in Augusta."

What prompts men who claim to possess the wisdom and judgment to be president of the United States, to devote so much time and treasure to political exercises of such dubious value?

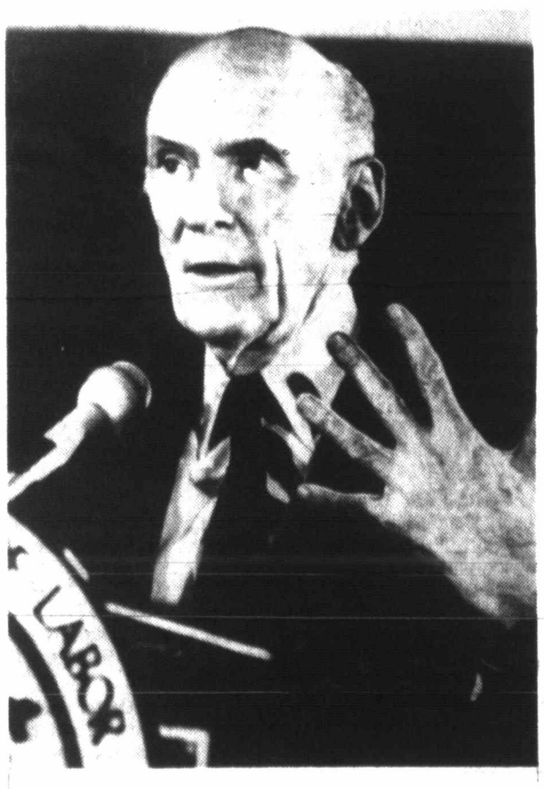

Matt Flynn, Wisconsin Democratic Party chairman, put it this way:

"People itch for some inside information ... some contest where someone wins and someone loses. That itch is satisfied by a straw poll."

"They enable a candidate without a national constituency to show some strength," said Dave Nagle, Iowa Democratic Party chairman. But Nagle also conceded that straw polls are "notoriously unreliable."

Democratic national chairman Charles T. Manatt says the straw polls are "subject to manipulation and not necessarily reflective" of statewide Democratic attitudes. But he's failed to impose his view on state officials.

In the 1980 presidential campaign, three straw polls — among Democrats in Florida and Iowa and among Republicans in Maine — got wide attention. The 1984 campaign straw poll wars began in California last January before moving to Massachusetts, Wisconsin, Alabama and New Jersey.

Alan Cranston on the campaign trail

Any candidate with a sharp eye can find a straw poll to call his own.

Former Gov. Reubin Askew won by a landslide when the Manchester, N.H., Democratic Committee, held a straw poll at its annual picnic last July. Askew received 1,066 votes. Glenn was second with 34 and Cranston had 23.

Askew and Cranston were the only candidates to appear at the picnic, and Askew was the only one who had done any organizing.

One reason for the growth of straw polls is that they generate excitement, attention and increase ticket sales for party conventions and dinners.

Flynn said the Wisconsin balloting was "a very, very efficient and useful way for me to organize my party and increase membership and funding." The June convention drew 2,200 delegates, compared to 800 in previous years, and attracted 300 reporters rather than the usual dozen.

"It was the most exciting convention our party's ever had," he said.

Gray County receives more travel dollars

Travelers who made a stop in Gray County last year left behind an estimated $16.5 million in the cash registers of local businesses, according to a nationwide study of travel and tourism.

The estimate of money spent in Gray County by "travelers" during 1982 includes the estimated payroll of local jobs directly related to travel, and includes the money spent here by people on any trip of at least 100 miles from home.

The travel study was done by the U.S. Travel Data Center in Washington, D.C. The study was commissioned by the Texas Tourist Development Agency in Austin.

According to the study, Gray County had 405 travel - related jobs with an estimated payroll of $3.3 million during 1982.

According to the study, travel expense poured in $13.7 billion into the Texas economy last year. The state total is a nine - percent increase over travelers' spending during 1981. The state increase compares to a 1.8 - percent growth in the travel industry nationwide, the study says.

While the number across the nation fell two percent, the number of Texas jobs related to travel rose to 283,917, a four - percent increase, the group reported.

The Travel Data Center reported the figures related to travel do not include the money spent by visitors from other countries.

Pilots say national strike last resort

By MICHAEL L. GRACZYK

HOUSTON (AP) — A proposed nationwide pilots walkout would be a "last resort" to point up the need for government fare regulation, a pilots leader said, as Continental Airlines pledged to keep flying despite a separate strike called for Saturday.

The executive board of the Air Line Pilots Association gave permission Thursday for its president, Henry Duffy, to ask pilots if they would support a nationwide shutdown of air transportation. Duffy would determine the timing and length of the shutdown.

Duffy said the walkout would be geared to focus attention on the difficulties airlines have felt since routes and fares were deregulated five years ago. He said it would take several weeks to explain the board's decision to ALPA members and for a vote to be taken.

Once armed with pilots' approval, Duffy said he would ask a congressional committee to set minimum fares for airlines. If Washington ignores the plea, Duffy said he would call a shutdown as a "last resort."

In addition to Continental's filing for reorganization under bankruptcy court protection, Eastern Airlines has said it needs 15 percent wage concessions from workers or it too will seek to reorganize. And Trans World Corp. said it was considering shedding its money-losing Trans World Airlines subsidiary.

Industry officials and workers alike have blamed the red ink in part on the cutthroat competition that followed the government's deregulation of airlines in 1978.

The ALPA board's action closely followed Continental's unions call for a walkout at 3 a.m. CDT Saturday. The airline has cut its work force by two-thirds and slashed the pay of the remaining workers by about 50 percent.

A resolution adopted by Continental's pilots charged the airline with implementing unsafe emergency work rules and engaging in "surface bargaining in a blatant attempt to union bust."

The executive board of the pilots association voted to collect $130 or $140 a month from each of its members to establish a fund for striking Continental employees.

Continental spokesman Bruce Hicks said the airline's service will be unaffected by the strike. He said the carrier only needs to retain 350 of its 1,435 pilots to keep its planes in the air.

Meanwhile, in Miami, Eastern said Thursday it has agreed to get a second opinion on whether the carrier will have to go to bankruptcy court if employees refus the pay cut it is urging.

The analysis by the New York banking investment firm of Lazard Freres & Co. was recommended by William J. Usery, Eastern's new labor consultant, who said that while he is convinced Eastern needs an immediate influx of cash, the unions aren't.

Eastern spokesman Richard McGraw said the study would begin immediately and take three to four days.

Pilots want to end boycott

LONDON (AP) — The international airline pilots' federation today urged an early end to the 60-day boycott of flights to Moscow that was imposed by many national pilots' associations after the Soviets shot down the South Korean airliner.

The action by the International Federation of Airline Pilots' Associations (IFALPA) came as some air links with the Soviet Union were already being restored with the end of a two-week flight ban imposed by a dozen Western countries.

IFALPA said in a statement released by its headquarters south of London that it recommended to its member associations that the ban on flights to Moscow be lifted as of midnight Greenwich Mean Time on Sunday (8 p.m. EDT Saturday).

Soviet fighters shot down the Korean Air Lines Boeing 747 on Sept. 1 when it strayed over Soviet territory on a flight from New York to Seoul. All 269 on board were killed.

The two-week ban on flights to and from the Soviet Union imposed in response to the attack ended Thursday.

Local library heritage center

Lovett Memorial Library has been designated a Certified Texas Heritage Resource Center by the Texas Heritage Project of the Texas Historical Foundation.

Friends of the Library recently presented the library with a brass plaque commemorating the heritage collection, located in the Texas Room at the north end of the main reading room.

Funds for the purchase of the latest materials completing the Texas Heritage Collection were given in memory of Dorothy Overton by her husband, Dr. M. C. Overton, Jr.

The Texas Heritage Project initiated the establishment of Texas Heritage Resource Centers across the state to provide Texas history teachers, students and the general public easier access to books and materials about the state.

Lovett Library's collection contains books, maps and atlases. The Texas Heritage Project will add other materials to the local resource center as they become available.

Reagan fails in foreign policy poll

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time since President Reagan took office, significantly more Americans disapprove of his foreign policy than approve of it, according to a New York Times-CBS News poll published today.

In addition, the survey of 1,587 adults showed most believed the United States has a crucial interest in the struggle in Lebanon, and that even more think U.S. forces should be withdrawn if the alternative is to send more troops.

The poll, conducted Saturday through Wednesday nights by telephone, found that 47 percent of adults disapprove of Reagan's handling of foreign affairs, while 38 percent approve.

That was the first time the poll had found the disapproval rate exceeding the approval rate by more than the potential sampling error of 3 percent.

In a June survey, 36 percent disapproved of the president's foreign policy, and in a poll earlier this month 40 percent said they disapproved.

The survey traced the higher rate of disapproval to Reagan's response to the Soviet downing of a Korean Air Lines jet with 269 people aboard, and the perception by many Americans that U.S. military involvement in Lebanon resembles the early U.S. entanglement in Vietnam.

The poll indicated the number of Americans approving of Reagan's response to the shooting down of the Korean airliner had risen but was still exceeded by those who disapprove. Those believing Reagan was "not tough enough" with the Soviets dropped to 46 percent from 56 percent earlier this month, while those who felt his response was "about right" rose to 41 percent from 36 percent.

While respondents said by 2-to-1 that the outcome of the Lebanese struggle is important to U.S. interests, they also believed by a 2-1 margin that this country became involved in Vietnam in the same way it has become involved in Lebanon.

The poll showed that by 3-1 the public believes U.S. Marines should be withdrawn from Lebanon rather than reinforced if it becomes apparent they cannot achieve their goals without more troops.

Respondents rated the Sept. 1 downing of the Korean jet the most important current foreign policy issue, with Lebanon second and Central America third.

On another topic, the poll found that 89 percent of adults believe the United States should remain a member of the United Nations. Only 20 percent said the U.N. should move its headquarters out of New York, while 65 percent said it should remain.

Tropical storm fizzles after washing up against East Coast

DEAN FOSDICK
Associated Press Writer

Tropical Storm Dean, pushed by 60 mph winds that whipped waves and eroded North Carolina beaches, washed up against Virginia's Eastern Shore today and quickly broke apart without causing major damage.

Forecasters had predicted local flooding and up to 4 inches of rain as Dean bore northwestward across Chesapeake Bay and inland Virginia. But by 8 a.m., the rain in Norfolk had turned into drizzle and the winds dropped to 40 mph.

"It's sort of broken up," said Jack Main, weather forecaster in Norfolk. "It's dissipating rapidly. I can't even see it on the radar."

Meanwhile, an off-again on-again tropical storm in the Pacific named Narda was expected to pass well south of the Hawaiian Islands.

Preceded by squalls with near hurricane-force winds, Dean hit land at 7:15 a.m. EDT between Cape Charles and Onancock, on the peninsula that hangs from the lower end of Maryland and forms Virginia's Eastern Shore.

At 9 a.m., it was in the northern Chesapeake Bay, moving northwest at 10 mph and weakening. Norfolk received one-half inch of rain and Richmond received 1.29 inches.

The storm had meandered up the Eastern seaboard most of Thursday, slowing considerably by midnight, and hit land farther north than expected.

Storm preparations in Tidewater Virginia cities were, for the most part, unnecessary. The storm caused a little street flooding in low-lying areas and blew some sand along the beach, but otherwise little damage was reported.

Ochiltree to study County jail load

PERRYTON (Spc) — Ochiltree County Commissioners have approved a study to determine whether the county jail will hold extra prisoners expected as a result of Texas' tougher drunk-driving laws.

The commissioners voted this week to spend $25,000 to study the jail in the new fiscal year. The $25,000 is a part of a $65,000 budget funded through federal revenue sharing funds in next fiscal year. The commissioners did not announce who will study the jail and any prisoners brought in by tougher DWI laws.

In other action this week, commissioners:

— heard a resolution from the Perryton Chamber of Commerce asking commissioners to expedite improvements at the Perryton Municipal Airport. Officials with the Texas Aeronautics Commissioners previously told county officials that the runway at the Perryton airport should be lengthened 900 feet. The chamber asked the commissioners to make the airport improvements soon. An upgraded airport might help attract new business and industry to the area, the resolution says.

— heard from a construction manager that building of the county agricultural barn is two weeks behind schedule.

— heard discussion that a new fire truck is needed for the volunteers in the Wolf Creek area.

— approved two requests from General Telephone to cross county roads in Precincts 2 and 3 and approved a pipeline crossing for Anadarko Basin Land Service in Precinct 1.

— heard commissioner Myron McCartor explain that a chlorinator for drinking water at Wolf Creek Park was finally installed.

— authorized Sheriff Joe Hataway to advertise for bids for a new radio console for the sheriff's office. Bids on the radio will be opened at 9 a.m., Oct. 13.

— discussed job qualifications and descriptions for a supervisor for the county shop.

— told Auditor Bob Bond to make any needed, minor bookkeeping adjustments in the county budget, unless the future paperwork involves transferring money from one fund to another.

— asked Richard Haley to come up with rules for use of the county-owned rodeo grounds.

— approved $40 per month more in gas allowances for five county employees, retroactive to April 15.

— and approved paying county bills totaling $105,921.

McLean increases city tax rate

McLEAN - The McLean city council has voted to raise city property tax rate to 26.5 cents per $100 valuation, an action which will increase city revenue by more than $1,000, according to City Secretary Stella Lee.

With a property valuation of $12,430,134, the new tax rate for 1983-84 is expected to generate $32,939.85, an increase of $1,047.23 above last year's revenues of $31,892.62.

The effective tax rate for 1983-84 is 26.098 cents. Councilmen increased that by about 1½ percent.

The budgets for the next fiscal year were discussed at the council's meeting this week. Councilmen decided more study was needed and tabled any action until its next meeting.

In other action the council gave final approval to an ordinance revising trash collection rates. New rates will go into effect Oct. 1. Councilmen also voted to allow McLean schools to use the city's factory building for the annual Halloween Carnival and approved a cost overrun for installation of overhead doors for the old library building by using revenue sharing funds.

More herd reductions likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Livestock producers, already cutting their herds because of this year's drought, may opt for even further reductions in their inventories if market and weather conditions fail to improve, Agriculture Department analysts say.

The situation could flood the consumer market this fall and winter with more meat than expected, leading to lower retail prices. But that would also tighten the meat supply for the rest of next year even more than expected once herd liquidation has run its course.

"Near-record meat supplies had been forecast since early summer, but drought from mid-July through mid-September is further boosting the fall and winter volume and raising additional uncertainties about future supplies," the analysts said in a livestock outlook report issued Thursday.

"In fact, even higher grain prices or the failure of recent rains to generate favorable fall and winter grazing conditions would actually expand red meat supplies," the report said.

The situation has prompted a number of Farm Belt congressmen to pressure Agriculture Secretary John Block for increased federal aid to ranchers hit by the drought.

In restaurant murder puzzle

Authorities trying to fit pieces together

KILGORE, Texas (AP) — Authorities say they could have part of the puzzle of who murdered five people after abducting them from a fast-food restaurant, but Texas Rangers must help put the "bits and pieces" of evidence together.

"We're at the point now ... where we've got a tremendous amount of bits and pieces," said Kilgore Assistant Police Chief C.R. Headen. "Now is the time to coordinate them and bring them together."

He told the Longview News-Journal that two Rangers from Dallas will help coordinate their own investigation with those of the Rusk County Sheriff's Department and Kilgore police.

"The whole purpose is to tighten the cohesiveness between the two investigations," said Headen. "To me, this is a significant move, and the time is appropriate."

Headen said authorities are not discouraged because no major leads in the investigation have surfaced.

"I'm very optimistic, as I've stated all along," he said. "We will continue to intensify the investigation as time goes on. Whatever needs to be done will be done. We're still getting a lot of calls and information that has to be traced down.

"I don't feel any pressure from the community," he said. "I feel our people understand what the situation is."

Last week, three men and two women were abducted from a Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant in Kilgore in Gregg County.

Opie Hughes, 39; Mary Tyler, 37; David Maxwell, Joey Johnson and Monte Landers, all 20, were shot to death at close range in the back of the head after their abductions Friday night.

On Saturday, their bodies were found in a rural area 12 miles south of town in Rusk County.

Rusk County District Attorney William Ferguson requested that the two additional Rangers be called in.

"In something like this somebody needs to be in charge," Ferguson said.

A $25,000 reward has been posted by the company that owns Kentucky Fried Chicken for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killers. Local businessmen have said they would match the reward.

Police said $2,000 was missing from the restaurant.

Police chief investigator Doyle Williams one and possibly two psychics were to be used again by the Rusk County Sheriff's Department to try to gain new leads in the case.

Williams said a female psychic he would not identify provided no new information after she was taken to the field on Wednesday.

He said Rusk County officials also are questioning people about a light-colored van seen several times Friday night near the field where the bodies were found. But he said the vehicle has not been linked directly to the slayings.

Tests have shown that blood found at the restaurant was human blood, Headen said. It previously was thought to be chicken blood.

He said the blood was found in a nine-inch wide pool behind the counter and in drops leading to the kitchen and office.

Headen said the blood may have come from a cut or nosebleed before the abductors arrived or during an assault afterwards. A cap was found on the floor, but a serious struggle didn't seem to take place, he said.

Justice of the Peace James Barrett said at least two weapons fired 11 shots into the five bodies, which were found fully clothed.

He said Maxwell, Landers and Mrs. Hughes all were shot twice in the head. Mrs. Tyler was shot once in the head and once in the back, and Johnson was shot in the head, neck and right side.

All the victims were found lying side by side except Mrs. Hughes, who was 200 feet away. Officials speculate she may have tried to run away.

GIFTS TO LBJ LIBRARY — Former heavyweight boxing champion George Foreman donated his title belt and robe to the Lyndon B. Johnson Library in a ceremony Thursday at the library in Austin. Accepting the donation is former first lady, Mrs. Lyndon Johnson. The gift was made in recognition of what the Job Corps, started during Johnson's administration, has done for Foreman. Cisneros contempt hearing is postponed

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A judge has postponed a contempt of court hearing for Mayor Henry Cisneros who traveled to Washington for a meeting of a Bipartisan Commission on Central America headed by Henry Kissinger.

A hearing had been scheduled for today to determine whether Cisneros should be held in contempt for failing to give a deposition requested by lawyers of the local United States Football League team.

San Antonio Gunslingers attorney Marynell Maloney filed the contempt motion Monday after Cisneros failed to appear to give a oral deposition concerning the team's stadium lease, currently the subject of several lawsuits.

The mayor said he never was served the appropriate papers, and he called team officials "a bunch of snakes" after receiving a copy of the contempt motion.

Ms. Maloney reacted Thursday by saying she plans to file a libel suit against the mayor today because of Cisneros' "unwarranted and inflammatory" comments about the team's ownership.

State District Judge Peter Michael Curry said he decided, with agreement by both sides, to postpone the contempt hearing until Wednesday.

"I don't want to have to find the mayor of San Antonio in contempt of court," he said. "He's suffered enough already just having to be around Henry Kissinger and Richard Nixon. That's what I told the lawyers for the USFL team."

The local USFL team, headed by South Texas rancher-oilman Clinton Manges, has become embroiled in several suits and countersuits over its planned use of Alamo Stadium.

"The people of San Antonio, in judging me and Clinton Manges, can judge who is above the law," Cisneros said.

Ms. Maloney said Cisneros was served a subpoena Sept. 15 to appear at her office Sept. 23. Her motion for contempt accused the mayor of having a "cavalier attitude" toward the law.

The mayor has taken exception to the Gunslingers' deal with the San Antonio Independent School District for the use of Alamo Stadium. South Texas Sports gets the rights to the facility for up to 50 years.

Special session to come after committee reports, White says

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White says the only thing keeping him from calling a special session of the Legislature is a report from the Select Committee on Public Education.

"As quickly as they can bring that report back ... then we'll be able to move as quickly as we can into a session," White said Thursday at his regular weekly news conference.

He said that could be as early as December or January, but if it comes after that, he said he would wait until after the May 5 primary elections.

White said he and Dallas entrepreneur H. Ross Perot, chairman of the select committee, had agreed to move ahead "swiftly," but White said, "This is more than just an effort to raise teachers' salaries.

"This is an effort to try to give permanent improvement to lay a foundation for the long term into the next century, and I think that's worth three or four months, or five or six months of effort."

White also applauded the agency that regulates public school athletics, the University Interscholastic League, whose director on Wednesday called for a reduction in sports programs.

"The UIL has recognized their responsibility to constrain interscholastic sports to a point that it's reasonable," White said. "We're not going to do away with interscholastic sports — that's a vital part of our educational process. At the same time, it's not the dominant reason for those people to be in school."

He said the schools need athletic programs that give children exercise at an earlier age, and later, programs for students who aren't big enough or fast enough to be on the school football team.

"We're not dealing as much as we should with the physical development of children through the elementary years," he said. "They just don't get the physical exercise they need."

White said he talked with Perot on Wednesday and came away convinced that committee members "are moving as fast as they can. I've urged them to continue to move swiftly."

White also called for an "exhaustive inquiry" into reports of brutality in the state's prison system and said the reports were true, those responsible "are going to be dealt with harshly."

He was referring to a confidential report written by a federal court-appointed monitor and published Thursday by the Dallas Times Herald. It accused "high-ranking unit officials and staff" of various incidents of beating and otherwise mistreating inmates.

"Let me have some time to inquire into that and I will make an inquiry and (get a) report from the Department of Corrections to see that there is an exhaustive inquiry made into the nature of those complaints," White said.

Dallas withdraws South African welcome

DALLAS (AP) — A member of a South African business delegation banned from city hall because of the nation's apartheid policy says that more American investment in his country's economy — a move sought by the group — could bring about change.

Ken Hobson, chamber of commerce general manager of Durban, a South African coastal city, said investment would help change his country's stance more quickly than withdrawal of economic support.

"Our attitude is positive. We've expected it (the controvery which arose), particularly because the disinvestment question is in the fore in the states," Hobson said. "We believe a greater involvement of the U.S. in the South African economy is more likely to bring about change than disinvestment."

Hobson spoke at a meeting Thursday between the South African trade mission and Mayor Starke Taylor, which had been moved to a hotel when some city council members and black groups complained that use of city facilities amounted to approval of the country's apartheid policy.

"I think one thing you should bring out is that we are not all white. We do have black businessmen with us," Hobson said in opening comments at the "Mayor's Breakfast" and official welcoming for the delegation.

Taylor moved the meeting Wednesday, shortly before council members approved a resolution which banned the welcoming of "any country which practices apartheid."

Mayor Pro Tem Fred Blair sponsored the resolution.

Blair, a black, said the city "considers it inadvisable to allow even the appearance of city support for the government or business practices concerning racial relations in the Republic of South Africa."

The trade mission by 16 Durban businessmen to promote business ties includes several U.S. cities.

Hobson said four members of the 16-member delegation are black.

Jeremy Whysall, the head of the South African mission, said that the mission was in Dallas strictly for business and their trip did not have political overtones.

"It's great to be here in your city," Whysall said. "This is the first trade mission from our country over here. We are here to sell. We are here to buy."

Shoe manufacturer Harry Neicker, a black member of the delegation, said he did not fault anyone who protested the groups' visit. But Neicker said South Africans should deal with their own domestic problems without interference from others.

"The cornerstone of every individual in this country is to have his own opinions," he said. "We are aware that South Africans have a bad image in this country and that they have problems, but so does the rest of the world.

"I have a situation that I have to live with," he said. "I have to make the best of a bad situation."

Blair said he was pleased with the resolution, even though it was not passed unanimously. He had criticized the mayor's breakfast with the delegation since it was announced last week.

"This is a very, very important issue," he said. "We identify with the suffering perpetrated on the people of South Africa of color and will not stand idly by and allow tax-paid facilities to be the headquarters of these kinds of welcoming ceremonies."

Day-care center to continue operation

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — The owner of a suburban day care center where an infant girl was abducted last week says he will continue to operate the facility despite a state order revoking his license.

Jack Doshier, owner of Jack & Dee Doshier's Learning Center, said he will appeal Thursday's order by the Texas Department of Human Resources revoking the facility's state license.

Doshier has 30 days to appeal the revocation.

Three-month-old Jessica Davis was found abandoned last Friday in the laundry room of an Irving apartment complex. Jessica was abducted from the child care facility, located in this Dallas suburb, on Sept. 19 by a woman claiming to be her aunt.

Police said they have no suspects yet in the abduction.

"The decision was made in light of the severity of the violation," said DHR spokesman Bill Buchanan. "By negligence of the center's staff, the infant's life was placed in jeopardy."

Doshier said he was not surprised by the state's action.

"We did violate two enrollment requirements," he said. "They had to do this."

The center received a telephone call, before the infant was abducted, from a woman who said she was "Jennifer's" mother, requesting that the center release her daughter to her "Aunt Susan."

An attendant had a 1-year-old named Jennifer ready when the woman posing as an aunt arrived, but the woman pointed to Jessica and took her instead.

Buchanan said the agency, which supervises Texas day care centers, conducted a "lengthy and detailed investigation" of the incident.

The DHR said investigators determined that the center violated state standards when the attendant gave Jessica to a person not authorized on her enrollment form.

The agency also found that the center did not have on file an enrollment form for Jennifer, whom an attendant was preparing to release to the abductor.

Doshier said the mother of 1-year-old Jennifer never had completed an enrollment form.

Prison population dropping

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas prison population, which peaked at 37,775 in April, has dropped at a rate of 353 inmates per month since May, according to a house committee chairman.

Rep. Ray Keller, R-Duncanville, said Thursday the decreasing number of inmates is due to "excellent work" by the Board of Pardons and Paroles in implementing new state laws.

The Texas Department of Corrections population as of Tuesday was 36,419, the lowest since the December 1982 count of 36,149, according to Keller.

"The board has really gotten with the program laid out by the Legislature this year. They are obviously trying to do what the Legislature wants done and they are getting results," he said.

The 353-per month drop since May is "in sharp contrast with the doomsayers' predictions of monthly growth of 500 inmates a month."

"The best thing about these new population figures is that we have passed the summer, the toughest months, in good shape. The resitution center program is just getting started and we will soon see its effect," Keller said.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Civil service reform not easy

When a system or institution reflexively resists even the most elementary and obvious of reforms, when it finds itself pushed into something very close to defending the position that merit should have absolutely nothing to do with rewards and incentives, it's a pretty good bet that the system has become so ossified and arrogant that it has ceased to have much concern for the goals it was supposedly established to pursue, that is has become concerned only with selfish interests.

On the evidence, the U.S. civil service system seems to fall into that category.

Since he was appointed to head the Office of Personnel Management (formerly the Civil Service Commission), Donald J. Devine has patiently pursued a few modest reforms that have made him, arguably, the most hated man in Washington.

Within the civil service structure, federal workers may advance to higher grades to get higher pay, and may also be granted in - grade pay increases that supposedly reflect above - average performance. In practice, those "merit" pay increases are virtually automatic. Supervisors often grant "merit" pay raises even to workers whose performance is obviously substandard. This has been going on so long that many federal employees consider those pay increases a sacred right.

When Devine introduced a modest, carefully - crafted system for basing ingrade raises for general - schedule (GS) employees on performance, he must have felt as if he had ridden full tilt into a windmill gone mad.

It mattered little that his proposals would also have introduced performance as well as seniority into reduction - in - force (RIF) decisions, minimizing the adverse impact previous RIFs have had on women and minority employees. It mattered little that the idea of pay - for - performance is the standard in almost every sector of the economy except the federal government. Federal government employee unions and their friends in Congress acted as if they had been ambushed.

Devine's plan wouldn't eliminate merit pay increases. It would simply tell federal employees they would have to be competent and effective to get them. Perhaps - just perhaps - it would have offered incentives to those who strive to do above - average work, to give a little push to those who have felt little need to do anything more than slide by and stay away from controversy.

Devine's plan has met roadblocks in Congress, bureaucrats willing to claim it's illegal, and a storm of opposition instead of the welcome it deserves. If this modest reform is unable to clear the hurdles that official Washington has placed in its path, those who feel cynical about the federal government will have ample reason to believe that their feelings have been reinforced.

Where was ACLU in this case?

NEW YORK (NEA) - Hardly a week goes by, it seems, wihtout another battle between some group of college students and their adversaries in the university administration or elsewhere. Almost invariably the local liberals - the ACLU, or what have you - are to be found on the side of the students. This has happened so often that some people have been misled into supposing liberals are just naturally fond of college students. Out in Minnesota, however, a situation has arisen which suggests that liberals' fondness for college students depends on how closely the students toe the liberal line.

Like many institutions of higher learning, the University of Minnesota has chartered a Public Interest Research Group (or PIRG). These PIRGs were invented by Ralph Nader, and are organized on a statewide basis in many states. The individual PIRGs and the statewide PIRG organizations engage in various sorts of political activity, practically all of them liberal because that's what Nader is. For example, the statewide Minnesota PIRG (hereinafter MPIRG) hired the lawyers for the three students who opposed linking federal student aid to compliance with the draft registration law.

In many places, including UM, the local PIRG is financed by a small fee which the school includes on the student's bill. This system is called a "negative check - off," because the student is charged the fee unless he checks a box four times a year, while registering, indicating that he doesn't want to pay it. Most students go along, leaving the box unchecked. This yields impressive sums of money. In the case of Minnesota, fees collected at UM provide more than 80 percent of MPIRG's entire budget.

All went well until this past spring, when a loose coalition of relatively conservative students acquired a voting majority on the board of directors of the PIRG at UM and followed this up by electing chapter officers and taking over all eight seats reserved for UM on the board of MPIRG. Then, it being time for UM's Regents to renew the university's "contract" with PIRG, the new PIRG board asked that the terms of the contract first be renegotiated in certain particulars. Specifically, they wanted to replace the negative check - off system, which is offensive to many students, with an affirmative check - off" under which students would be billed for the PIRG fee only if they checked a box requesting this.

Well! Great was the hullaballoo. One would think the UM PIRG board's wishes would be honored in such a matter; after all, the 1982 - 83 edition of MPIRG's descriptive brochure declares that "each new generation of college student" shall have "the opportunity to reshape and modify an organization that is distincly theirs." But then the Soviet constitution guarantees free speech, too.

First the university's Regents rejected the new board's request as untimely and renewed the contract, including the negative check - off feature. Then the MPIRG board unseated all eight of its new UM directors, citing their opposition to a negative check - off as the reason. Finally, the MPIRG board gave itself the authority to determine who shall sit on local PIRG boards, including the obstreperous one at UM.

(Connoisseurs of the totalitarian temptation will enjoy the blunt language of the latter provision: "..a determination by the State Board that the local board does not suit the needs of its student body shall be grounds for refusal by the State Board of Directors to recognize the legitimacy of the local board as constituted and to take such action as may be necessary and appropriate to reconstitute a legitimate local board." Jawohl!)

Whether or not UM's Regents will consent to see their students manhandled in this way remains to be seen. One Regent has been moved to demand that the MPIRG board justify its actions. Lawsuits threaten.

But meanwhile, what an interesting demonstration of that famous liberal affection for independent - minded students! And where is the ACLU?

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Sept. 30, the 273rd day of 1983. There are 92 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Sept. 30, 1946, an international military tribunal in Nuremberg, Germany, found 22 top Nazi leaders guilty of war crimes and sentenced 11 of them to death.

On this date:

In 1906, the New York Central Railroad began using electric locomotives.

In 1954, the first atomic-powered vessel, the submarine Nautilus, was commissioned by the U.S. Navy.

In 1970, the United States and the Soviet Union signed pacts designed to avoid accidental nuclear war.

And in 1971, Richard Nixon became the first U.S. president to visit Yugoslavia.

Ten years ago: West German Chancellor Willy Brandt cut short a visit to the United States and returned to Bonn to deal with a political crisis.

Five years ago: Scores of people, mostly civilians, were reported killed around Beirut, Lebanon, in fighting between Lebanese Christians and Syrian peacekeeping forces.

One year ago: McNeil Consumer Products Co. ordered the recall of Extra-Strength Tylenol after people died from taking capsules laced with cyanide. Seven deaths eventually were attributed to the poisoning.

Today's birthdays: Actress Deborah Kerr is 62. Author Truman Capote is 59. Actress Angie Dickinson is 52.

Thought for today: "Advice is like snow. The softer it falls, the deeper it sinks into the mind." — Samuel Coleridge, English writer (1772-1834).

Sharks may provide cancer cure

Many people die of cancer than of any other disease, but this may not long be true. A substance has been discovered which stops the growth of cancer in rabbits. In man? It is still too early to say, but there is ground for hope.

The substance is a protein found in the cartilage of sharks. And sharks are peculiar in that their entire skeleton is cartilage; they have no bones. This may explain why sharks never have cancer, though other fish do.

Dr. Robert Langer and Anne Lee, graduate student, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, state that the substance - it is still unnamed - "significantly inhibited" vessel formation around tumors implanted in rabbits.

In the experiments by Langer and Lee, tumors were transplanted into the eyes of rabbits and some of the rabbits were treated with the substance taken from shark cartilage.

After 19 days, all the untreated rabbits had large tumors forming under the cornea, but all the rabbits whose eyes were treated showed no signs of expanded tumor. The tumor cells were still there but had not formed masses as had those of the untreated rabbits.

The cancer - inhibiting substance in sharks is found also in calves, but in minute quantities. It is far more plentiful in sharks. And sharks, of which there are some 300 species, some small and other ranging up to 50 feet long and weighing tons are found in all the oceans, as well as in tropical rivers and in Central American lakes.

If the substance proves useful in treating cancer in human beings, sharks may suddenly become of great value and be eagerly sought. Since sharks feed largely on smaller fish, such as mackerel, reducing the number of sharks in the sea might result in an increase in the abundance of mackerel, cod, etc.

But sharks, too, are eaten by many people, especially in Europe, South Africa and South America. Called "flake" instead of shark, it is the chief kind of fish used in making the Englishman's "fish n' chips." Shark - liver oil contains valuable Vitamin A. Shark skin makes a valuable leather. But the shark is a menace to swimmers and has a bad reputation among all who go to sea.

If the shark affords man a practical way of inhibiting, and perhaps curing cancer, it will come into its own as one of the most useful of God's creatures.

Lebanon, El Salvador similar

There is a basic similarity between what the U.S. is doing in Lebanon and in El Salvador, but not the one Washington keeps trying to sell.

The official line in both cases is that American involvement in the respective conflicts is in support of threatened legitimate governments.

The reality in both cases is that functioning governments, legitimate or otherwise, do not exist.

What the U.S. government is attempting to do in both cases is create governments to its liking out of antagonistic interest groups.

In El Salvador, the "government" that has Washington's political blessing and material support consists of a president at the head of a powerless administrative apparatus, a constituent assembly elected to write a new constitution, and the military establishment.

The civilian authorities do not control the military, which is nothing unusual in Latin America. But neither do the generals and colonels have the civilian political apparatus firmly in hand - certainly not that part of it taking orders from the far - right assembly president, Roberto D'Aubuisson.

As a matter of fact, the commanders don't even have complete control of the military. Elements moonlighting as "death squads" are responsible for most of the civilian deaths in the 4 - year - old civil war.

An additional element in the mix is the Salvadoran oligarchy, a tiny elite that long ran the country as a private business and would go to almost any lengths, including elimination of a large part of the Salvadoran population, to maintain a reasonable facsimile of the status quo.

That's El Salvador, and it is almost simplicity itself compared to Lebanon where the major interests so murderously involved are the Maronite Christian Phalange communities including non - Phalange Maronites, Shiite and Sunni Moslems, and the semi - Moslem Druse, most of which are supposed to be part of a "legitimate" Lebanese government but most of which are now shooting at each other.

Washington's efforts would appear to have the best chance in El Salvador. There are fewer parties to the conflict, political processes are functioning to a degree and foreign intervention is less of a factor. Nicaragua, whatever aid the Sandinistas may be providing the Salvadoran rebels, is not Syria.

The preferred solution, now that the Reagan administration has backed off a bit from its initial gung - ho effort at a military solution, is a centrist coalition that could hold its own against extremes of left and right. As it was originally hoped during the Carter administration.

Hopes are that an upcoming presidential election will produce a broadly based government meeting those specifications. But experience to date along that line is not too encouraging.

Last year's constituent assembly vote produced a massive turnout - and momentary euphoria in Washington - but the favored moderates were runners - up. It would be unwarranted optimism to say conditions for moderation in El Salvador have improved significantly in the interim.

So much for El Salvador, which relatively speaking has to be considered the good news. The government builders have much less to work with in Lebanon, where they are backing a single faction.

Gemayel is president because Lebanon's byzantine constitution stipulates that the post is to be held by a Maronite. The other major religious and ethnic interests are also allotted roles, but most no longer accepted Lebanon.

And Syria doesn't even accept Lebanon.

So long as Washington backs the Gemayel operation as the legitimate government, there would appear to be no hope of it being accepted by other functions, the majority of Lebanese, for many of whom the Phalange means the Beirut massacres.

The Phalange, on the other hand, will accept no other arrangement. It's a Lebanese stand - off.

It is just conceivable that despite the heavy odds, Washington will manage to build governments to its reasonable liking.

And if not? It ought at least be prepared with another explanation of what it is doing in El Salvador and Lebanon.

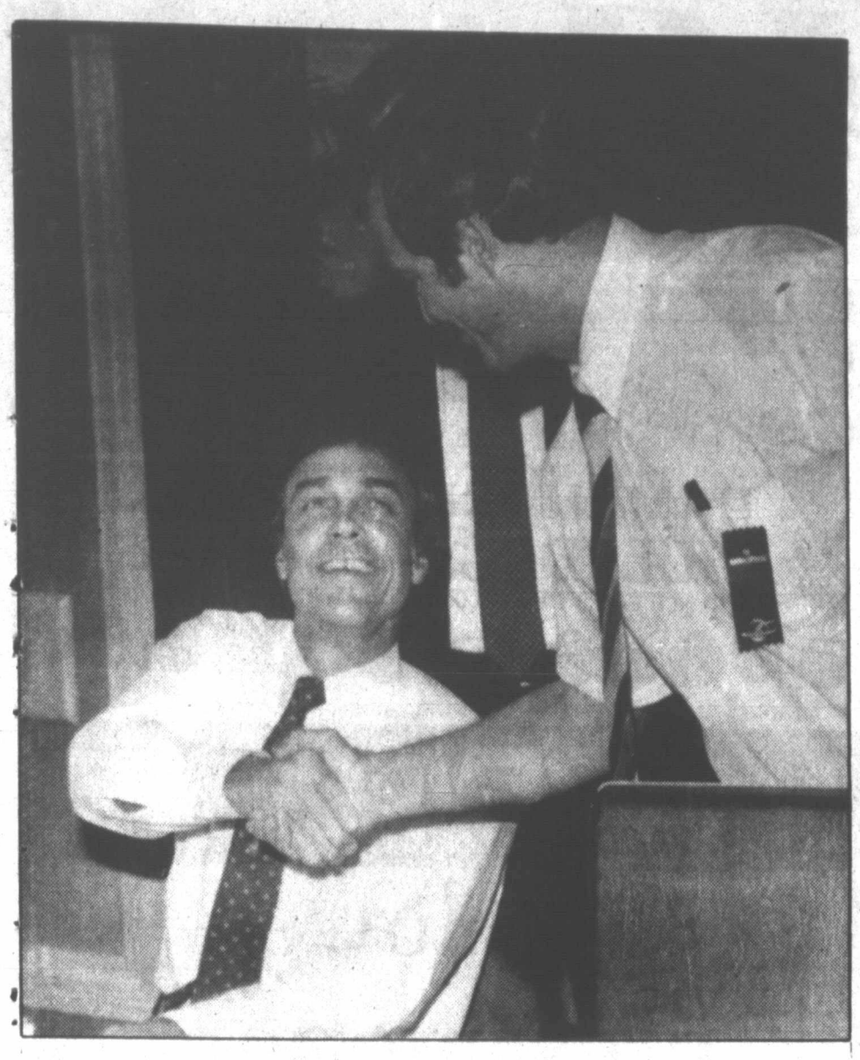

Needle points

Former Chicago Mayor Jayne Byrne didn't have to worry much about standing in unemployment lines after the voters turned her out of office. She was quickly hired as a consultant by a company that received a $250,000 low-interest city loan in the final days of her administration. Strictly a coincidence, of course.

Robert Weintraub, senior economist on the Congressional Joint Economic Committee, may have issued the difinitive comment on the reappointment of Paul Volcker as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, to wit: "It's only right that Bolcker be around when the inflation he's laying the groundwork for comes.

According to the English magazine, "The Economist," among the 23 crimes punishable by death in the Soviet Union are speculation, selling for profit and offering shoddy goods. No accurate figures are available, but "it is recokoned that some 400 successful businessmen are still disposed of each year by shooting."

Addis Ababa, capital of Ethiopia, now has a 10-ton, 24-foot high statue of Lenin. That will get the country's economy moving again, fer shurr.

VOTE TO STRIKE — Larry Baxter, left, chairman of the Continental Pilots Master Executive Council, and Pete Lappin, the vice chairman, shake hands after the group voted to call a strike against Continental Airlines at 2 a.m. Saturday. The group met in Houston Thursday. (AP Laserphoto)

Continental vows to keep flying despite planned employee strike

HOUSTON (AP) — Continental Airlines officials have vowed not to let their service be interrupted by a Saturday strike declared by its pilots and flight attendants and supported by the Air Line Pilots Association, whose members fly for 46 other carriers.

The Continental workers, angered that their salaries have been cut by approximately half since the airline reorganized under federal bankruptcy laws last weekend, voted Thursday to strike at 2 a.m. Saturday.

Shortly after that decision, the executive board of the Air Line Pilots Association authorized its president, Henry Duffy, to ask pilots for 46 other air carriers if they would support a walkout to dramatize the plight of deregulated airlines.

ALPA spokesman John Duffy has called Continental, which has lost $471.9 million in four years, "the latest symptom in a disease that is plaguing the industry."

Duffy would determine the time and length of the shutdown, if it approved. He said such a walkout would be a "last resort" and would be sought only if Congress refused to take action to stabilize fares.

The resolution adopted by pilots of Continental, formerly the nation's eighth-largest airline, charged the carrier with implementing unsafe emergency work rules and engaging in "surface bargaining in a blatant attempt to union bust."

The executive board of the Air Line Pilots Association voted to collect $130 or $140 a month from each of its members to establish a fund for striking Continental employees.

"There's never been a strike benefit like this one in the history of the association," said Larry Baxter, who represented Continental pilots at that meeting. "There's never been a response like this because there's never been a problem like this."

Flight attendants left the door open for a settlement, said Marilyn Wade, spokeswoman for the Union of Flight Attendants in Los Angeles.

"We are willing to negotiate at any time," Ms. Wade said, adding that the union was willing to grant concessions "that will allow the company to remain profitable and still maintain basic safety, health and seniority guarantees."

Continental spokesman Bruce Hicks said the airline's service will be unaffected by the strike. He said the carrier only needs to retain 350 of its 1,435 pilots to keep its planes in the air.

"Many more than enough ... have affirmed to us their willingness to continue flying despite such a call by the union," he said.

Hicks said the carrier had received similar assurances from flight attendants, although he could not say how many were contacted or said they were willing to work.

"We are and have been fully prepared to operate as we have been expecting this reaction by the union leadership," Hicks said.

Hicks said the company believed a strike would be "totally illegal under the Railway Labor Act. Obviously the company would have the ability to get an injunction."

Continental's first flight Saturday will leave Fort Lauderdale, Fla., for Houston at 7:46 a.m. EDT.

Duffy said ALPA's executive board will ask pilots to vote on the question of a nationwide walkout to focus public attention on the difficulties airlines have experienced since routes and fares were deregulated in 1978.

He said it would take several weeks to explain the council's decision to the nation's pilots and for a vote to be taken.

Once armed with their approval, Duffy said he would ask a congressional committee to set minimum fares for airlines. If Washington ignores the plea, Duffy said he would call a shutdown, an action he called a last resort.

Duffy said he hopes the government will make a proposal to stabilize ticket prices.

"We've had fare wars, suicidal fare wars" since deregulation, Duffy said. "We're now facing more and more failures. We think safety in this industry will be irreparably harmed as more and more carriers suffer financial damage and fail."

Weather hinders hunt for slayers of bankers

RUTHTON, Minn. (AP) — Police slogged through heavy fog today searching for suspects in the ambush killings of a bank president and a loan officer who were lured to a vacant overgrown farm which their bank had repossessed three years ago.

Officials refused to say if they knew the identities of two men seen fleeing the farm in a 1978 white pickup truck after the Thursday morning slayings.

The truck's Texas license plate was traced to James L. Jenkins, the dairy farmer on whom the tiny Buffalo Ridge State Bank had foreclosed in October 1980.

In Luverne, about 25 miles away, two men authorities believed to be the suspects used a check drawn on the account of a James Jenkins to buy 100 rounds of .30-caliber ammunition about five hours after the 9:10 a.m. killings, a gun dealer said.

Neighbors said Jenkins had moved to Texas after the foreclosure but had recently returned and bought some land near Hardwick, about 30 miles south of Ruthton in southwestern Minnesota.

Bulletins were issued in Wisconsin, Iowa and South Dakota, but Lincoln County Sheriff Abe Thompson said late Thursday there was "a good possibility they are still in Minnesota."

He added that heavy rain and thick fog "are making it darn difficult to do much."

The victims, 42-year-old Rudy Blythe and 37-year-old Deems "Toby" Thulin, were the only officers of the Buffalo Ridge Bank, which, according to Lincoln County Court records, had bought the farm in August 1981 after Jenkins filed for bankruptcy.

Blythe, the bank's president, had gone to the two-story wood-frame farmhouse with his wife, Sue, after receiving a call Wednesday night from a man expressing interest in buying it. Thulin, the bank's vice president and loan officer, met them there.

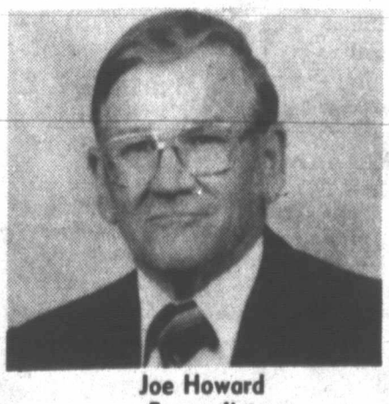

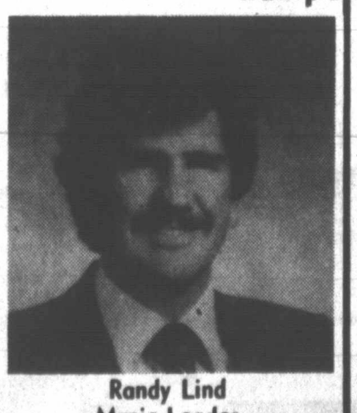

Noticing people hiding at the farm, Blythe sent his wife to get the sheriff from Ruthton, said Ruthton Mayor LeRoy Burch.

Deputies hastened to the farm, which is posted with a "For Sale" sign, and found Blythe's body in a ditch and Thulin's body halfway out of a car.

An off-duty, part-time police officer, who did not want his name used, said he had passed the farmhouse Thursday morning and saw two men, one wearing a stocking cap, leaving in a 1978 Chevrolet pickup.

In Luverne, gun dealer Harvey Ball said two men whom Thompson identified as the suspects appeared calm as they asked for 100 rounds of ammunition. Ball said they told him they were hunting deer.

BEIRUT'S AIRPORT REOPENS — Anxious moments for many as the first plane, belonging to Middle East Airlines, approaches touch down in Beirut Thursday. Leftist Druse militiamen had earlier threatened to shoot. They did not, however, and 120 passengers alighted safely. (AP Laserphoto)

Prime minister urges new coalition

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan today reported disagreements over the site of a planned Christian-Moslem reconciliation conference and said a new "unity cabinet" should be formed to preserve Lebanon's cease-fire.

"The real guarantee of the cease-fire is the unity of the Lebanese. Unity makes it final and lasting," said Wazzan, a Moslem, who serves with Christian President Amin Gemayel.

Wazzan spoke in an interview with state-run Beirut radio and television about moves to stabilize the five-day-old cease-fire, which halted three weeks of civil warfare in Lebanon's central mountains and Beirut's outskirts.

Wazzan did not elaborate on the disagreements over the site for the national reconciliation conference. But other officials, who declined to be named, said Syrian-backed opposition leaders favor holding the dialogue at the Arab League headquarters in Tunis, while Gemayel's administration prefers the presidential palace in suburban Baabda east of Beirut.

A four-man committee representing the Lebanese army and warring Christian, Druse and Shiite Moslem militias is discussing arrangements for reopening highways linking Beirut with Syrian-controlled central Lebanon and the Israeli-occupied south.

The committee, in charge of overseeing the truce, on Thursday arranged the reopening of Beirut's international airport, a move hailed by most political factions as a sign of return to normalcy.

The airport, where 1,600 U.S. Marine peacekeepers are based, reopened after Druse fighters dropped their threat to shell the terminal and reached agreement with the truce committee to guarantee security on all access roads to the terminal.

Motorists stopped cars on busy streets, joining other Beirut residents who craned their necks on sidewalks or balconies as the first airliner, a Middle East Airlines flight from Saudi Arabia, circled the downtown districts four times before landing.

Before the airport opened, Shiite Moslem gunmen detained two U.S. Army technicians for about two hours after they made a wrong turn in a jeep off a main road in southern Beirut and wandered into an area controlled by the Amal militia.

Marine spokesman Maj. Robert Jordan said the two soldiers — an officer and an enlisted man attached to the Marine contingent — were released unharmed with their weapons and vehicle and returned to the Marine compound at the airport.

Reagan meets with Mubarak

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, meeting today with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, is continuing his pursuit of a stable cease-fire in Lebanon and praising Egypt for its efforts toward that end.

Mubarak, who called this week for a total Israeli withdrawal from Lebanon without waiting for a pullout by Syrian and Palestinian forces, has nonetheless been supportive of U.S. efforts to broker a cease-fire in the civil war that has torn Lebanon's plural society and threatened to isolate Syria from its Arab neighbors.

A U.S. official, briefing reporters Thursday on Mubarak's visit on condition he not be identified, said Reagan would express his appreciation for Egypt's support in the recent search for an end to the fighting between Syrian-backed Druse militia and Lebanese government forces.

"The Egyptians have been quite visible in envoys being sent back and forth, as well as their public statements," the official said, adding the United States has been grateful for that help.

But at the United Nations earlier this week, Mubarak added his voice to that of Syria and Saudi Arabia in calling for a unilateral Israeli withdrawal from Lebanon.

He added, however, that "all forms of foreign intervention should be terminated" as well as "all designs to partition Lebanon and to turn it into spheres of influence and control."

The administration official discussing the agenda for the Mubarak meeting said the two presidents also would "look beyond the current Lebanese problems" to explore options for a broader Middle East peace.

Smoking snuffed out on insurance firm's premises

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Cigarettes are being snuffed out for good at the Provident Indemnity Life Insurance Co. as it joins a small but growing group of companies that have kicked the habit, banning smoking on their premises.

"We've just all of a sudden come to the realization that what we've been told for all these years is true," said Joseph Reese, 55, president, chairman and an ex-smoker who stopped nine years ago. "It (cigarette smoke) is harmful to people."

Like most smokers trying to quit, Provident cut back gradually.

Smoking at desks was banned more than a year ago. A cessation program was offered to the 30 or so of the company's 110 home office employees who smoked. Smoking at the office eventually was limited to one hour a day in the cafeteria.

That hourly grace period ends today. Reminders around the office include a miniature owl holding a message board that reads, "Please don't smoke. It's not wise."

While government agencies have regulated smoking for years — including bans in movie theaters and among firefighters — a total ban is rare in private industry.

Paul Pfeiffer, general counsel to the Action on Smoking and Health group in Washington, said only a handful of companies, perhaps 15 or 20 in the entire nation, ban smoking on their premises. The number excludes those where smoking may present the risk of explosion or other hazard.

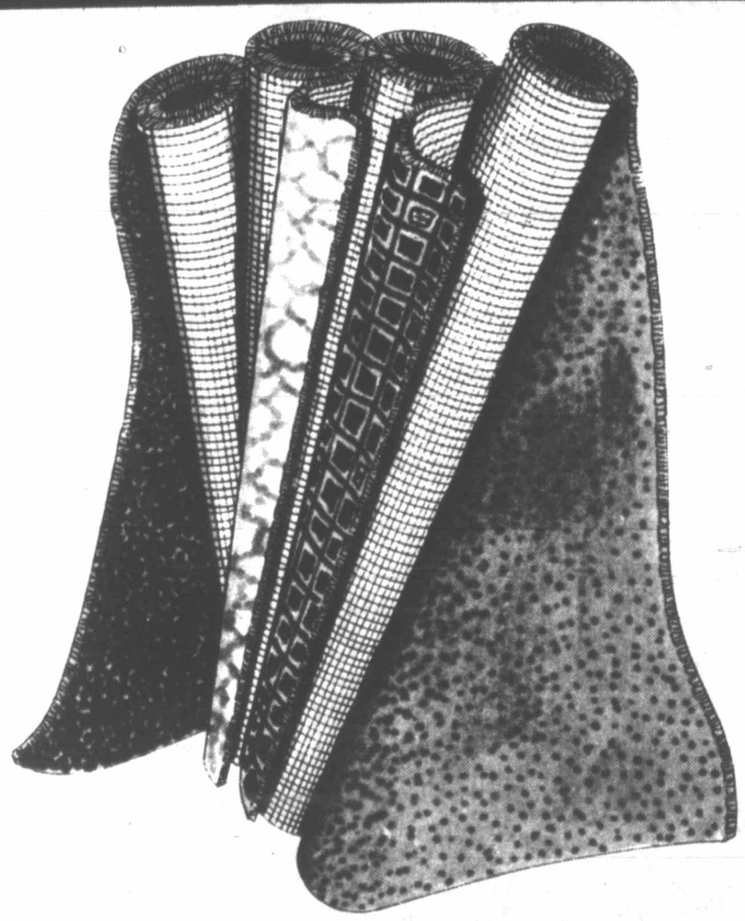

More common, Pfeiffer said, are segregated areas for smokers and non-smokers, company-sponsored quitting programs, or rules that smoking is permitted only in a lounge or cafeteria.

Total bans, however, are "a growing movement," Pfeiffer said.

"When you see it's real money that can be saved ... a smoker on the job takes a lot of breaks to smoke, he's not as efficient, not as healthy," he said. "So businesses are now looking at this ... and they are saying that non-smokers are preferred."

Choosing a mate

By George R. Plagenz

A 16-year old girl, known as the prettiest girl in the town of Fabrizia, a village in southern Italy, killed herself with a shotgun recently rather than marry a 32-year-old man she didn't love. The marriage had been arranged by the girl's mother.

You might think of arranged marriages as something that went out with the Dark Ages — or at least the Middle Ages. But contracted marriages are still common in some parts of the world.

Our sympathies in the Italian tragedy are all with Maria, the girl who shot herself. Who would want to have her or his mate picked by an outside party? Marriage should be entered into by two people in love. That is what we are inclined to feel.

Yet there are marriage counselors today who are willing to admit that the arranged marriages of the Old World were, on the whole, more successful than the average marriage of today.

Parents, these counselors point out, may often have more wisdom in these matters than youth who tend to be impulsive and to select a partner on a more superficial basis — chemistry, convenience or circumstance.

A rabbi, commenting on the workability of the old arranged marriage, says "For 4,000 years Jews were married off by their parents... and it tended to work out."

He adds, "I often wonder how our modern homes with their tensions, their squabbles and their high rate of divorce prove the point that marriage by free choice is a change for the better."

Mark Twain once commented that "a Jewish home is a home in the truest sense." For the most part, says this rabbi, the Jews known by Twain were those whose marriages had been arranged by their parents."

Romance and courtship did not play a large role in biblical times. Most marriages were arranged between parents of the couple. But, historians say, bride and groom were not simply thrown at each other in a loveless match. Directly or indirectly, their comments and conduct often alerted parents to which family to contact.

In the case of Jesus's parents, according to Professor Walter Maier of Western Michigan University, what probably happened was that "one day Joseph asked his parents if he could marry the village girl, Mary, who was his distant relative. They discussed it among themselves and Mary's parents before giving him their answer."

But can a good marriage result when love is not the primary consideration? Marriage counselors say it is possible to "learn to love."

"Even the 'spontaneous combustion' kind of love may emerge when two partners make an effort to love each other," comments one counselor. "In a matriarchal or patriarchal society, when you know you are expected to love the partner who has been picked for you, if often works out that you do fall in love."

The Bible says that when Isaac brought Rebecca home, "he came to love her." Rebecca had been picked for Isaac by the family servant.

Why is it that young people (or older people too for that matter) who come to their own decisions on whom to marry often make choices that don't work out? Sometimes, counselors say, it is because they dismiss out of hand all those reasonable considerations which were weighed when families arranged the lives of their children.

None of these counselors is suggesting that we go back to arranged marriages. In our individualistic Western society, young people would not permit it. We are children of a new age when to be a free and self-determined person is the first consideration.

This leaves society with the problem of how to stabilize marriage and the family. Many experts on the family don't believe society can long survive the disintegration of marriage. They feel that if we let loose of the family, we will lose one of the last opportunities for developing and maintaining our sanity.

"I only wanted her to be happy," said Maria's grieving mother after her daughter had killed herself. Would the girl have been happy with a 32-year-old husband her mother had picked for her? She might have been. That is one of the things that makes her suicide such a tragedy.

Yet, as children of the "new age" ourselves, we understand Maria more than we understand her mother.

Religious Roundup

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the wake of indications by Democratic leaders of "general support" for the U.S. Catholic bishops' pastoral letter rejecting nuclear warfare, a bishops' spokesman says the letter is not politically partisan.

It was "written carefully so that it would stand as a measurement of every political position on the arms race but not be open to partisan usage," says Msgr. Daniel F. Hoye, general secretary of the National Conference of Catholic bishops.

However, he says the bishops intended for the letter to be given attention by both major political parties as has been the case.

Democratic National Chairman Charles T. Manatt on Wednesday told a Georgetown University audience the letter generally reflected a "basic consensus of our party." Hoye says President Reagan and other administration figures have termed the letter a contribution to public debate on the issue.

But Hoye added that "the principles articulated and policy judgments made in the pastoral letter" — such as condemning any first use of nuclear weapons and a "strictly conditioned" acceptance of deterrence only so long as progress is being made to reduce arms — "go beyond the position taken by either of the major parties."

The Rev. Bryan Hehir, director of the U.S. Catholic Conference peace and justice commission, has said the letter will keep the nuclear question before the American public as one of the central issues by which any candidate or party ought to be judged, and in that sense ... will have an impact" on the 1984 presidential election."

WILMETTE, Ill. (AP) — The U.S. Baha'i Office of Public Affairs says Iran's newly declared ban on all Baha'i institutions and activities "is an act of genocide ... intended to extirpate a religious community."

The statement says that Iran, by making Baha'i organizations and service to them a crime, has created conditions in which the community's "survival will be impossible."

But in keeping with a Baha'i principle of obedience to law, the U.S. office says Iran's Baha'is have "immediately dissolved their national assembly and some 600 local assemblies."

An Added Touch of Beauty

Robert Louis Stevenson said:

"The world is so full of a number of things,
I'm sure we should all be as happy as kings."

God's world is filled with loveliness, but we need to add our own touch of beauty, so that we might be builders of a better world with Him. Each of us was given talents which would enable us to contribute to the world and mankind something great and lasting and beneficial. May each of us use these talents to the Glory of God. Add a touch of beauty to your life this week by attending church.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

One year later Tylenol is No. 1

EDITOR'S NOTE — At first, the very mention of the name, Tylenol, invoked caution, if not fear. Seven had died from a diabolic killer's insertion of a deadly poison into the popular pain reliever. That was one year ago. What has happened since in the search for the culprit? And what has happened to Tylenol?

By BRENDA C. COLEMAN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (A The $100,000 reward still stands. Grief-shattered families are piecing their lives back together, and a pain reliever briefly under alarmed suspicion is again the No. 1 seller in its field.

Thursday, Sept. 29, marks a year since seven unsuspecting Chicago-area victims reached for Extra-Strength Tylenol and met random death by cyanide poisoning at the hands of an anonymous killer.

It was quickly established that no tampering occurred at the manufacturer's plant. But who and where remains a mystery. A dozen detectives doggedly work on a trickle of new leads and volumes of old evidence, sifting for a key to the killing spree which ended as abruptly as it began.

In the aftermath, families coping with losses — sons, a daughter, a wife or a husband — try to redefine the word "normal" in their lives.

"I just go day after day," says one of the survivors. "I have to — I have to raise my kids."

Teresa Janus, 29, still lives in the pink brick ranch house in suburban Arlington Heights where her husband, Adam, died. "The Janus Family" is still written on the mat in front of the door, but the phrase now refers only to Teresa, her 5-year-old daughter, Kathy, and her 3-year-old son, Tommy.

For the mother, there is little solace in talking about the past. The poisonings cost her not only her husband, but also her brother-in-law, Stanley Janus, and his wife, Theresa. Each swallowed contaminated capsules from the bottle Adam had bought.

"It hurt me — very bad," is all Teresa will say, still shy and less comfortable speaking English than her native Polish.

In nearby Elk Grove Village, the pain also lingers. For Dennis and Jeanna Kellerman, losing their 12-year-old daughter, Mary, precipitated a double nightmare. "Cranks and crazies" plagued them after the case made national headlines.

The Kellermans have since declined interviews and screened their calls with a tape recorder.

Other families have had to develop similar methods.

Two of the victims were mothers of young children: 27-year-old Mary "Lynn" Reiner of suburban Winfield had just given birth to her fourth, and 31-year-old Mary McFarland of suburban Elmhurst was rearing two.

The last victim, 35-year-old Paula Prince, was a flight attendant who had just returned from a three-day stint when she bought a bottle of Extra-Strength Tylenol on the way home.

Her family "is still upset about it," a sister-in-law says, adding "there's nothing you can do about it. You can't bring them back. And it doesn't look like they've solved it."

Johnson & Johnson, parent company of the makers of Tylenol, has asked for dismissal of four lawsuits claiming negligence and totaling $40.1 million in damages from its subsidiary McNeil Consumer Products Co. and the Chicago-area stores where the fatal capsules were sold.

Although Johnson & Johnson officials didn't get the "fast arrest" they hoped would help revive Tylenol's good name, they are standing by their offer of $100,000 for information leading to an arrest and conviction.

Law enforcement authorities say they have not given up.

"I'm not discouraged," says James B. Zagel, head of the Illinois Department of Law Enforcement, which estimates having spent about $1.25 million on the case. "I still think there's a lot of productive work to go. I've seen a lot of cases solved 18 months after the crime. I've seen cases solved that looked very hopeless. And this doesn't look hopeless."

There have been no serious suspects. James W. Lewis, accused of trying to extort $1 million from Johnson & Johnson, was never implicated in the killings. He is to be tried on the extortion charges in Chicago, probably in mid-October.

Meanwhile, Zagel directs 10 investigators who are sifting through the 57 volumes of evidence generated by a multi-agency task force that numbered more than 100 in the beginning.

Former Attorney General Tyrone Fahner, who acted as spokesman for the task force before his defeat at the polls last year, says he still meets with Zagel about every two weeks to exchange ideas.

"We all have the nagging feeling that if the right button is pushed, we'll find the right person or persons," Fahner says.

Zagel says he hopes the the first anniversary of the deaths will generate renewed interest and possibly useful information for authorities.

Federal lawmakers are near agreement on a proposal to make tampering with over-the-counter medicines a felony, punishable by sentences of 10 years to life in prison, with possible fines into the tens of thousands of dollars or more, congressional staffers say.

Similar legislation came "within a whisker" of enactment earlier this year as part of an omnibus crime package, but President Reagan vetoed the measure, for reasons largely unrelated to the Tylenol case.

Now, lawmakers are ironing out differences between anti-tampering bills sponsored separately by Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and Rep. William J. Hughes, D-N.J.

"The whole thing is borne out of the Chicago deaths," says Mark Goodin, press secretary to Thurmond. "There is extremely wide bipartisan support for the legislation, and for maximum possible sentences."

Pre-teen youth runs his own model train business

ROSSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Descending the steps into the Underground Railroad, you might mistake 12-year-old Pete Gossett for a customer of the model train shop — until he rings up your purchase.

Gossett is the nation's youngest authorized dealer for William Walthers Inc., a Milwaukee-based model railroad distributor, and perhaps the youngest hobby shop owner in the country.

It seemed like a logical step in the life of a dedicated train buff.

But Gossett cannot explain his love for railroads, real and model.

"I tell everybody I've never been able to figure that out," explains Gossett, who wears a striped engineer's cap.

Photographs of locomotives cover the walls of his train shop, and models of all shapes and sizes fill the display cases. A huge model railroad layout fills half the room.

Gossett's personal train collection includes more than 70 locomotives and 100 cars, from the tiny Z gauge to the most popular HO scale. He finances those personal purchases from his $6 weekly allowance and "a small savings account losing more money every day."

His interest in railroads dates back to the plastic train his parents bought him when he was a baby.

"We'd prop him on a pillow — that's how little he was," his father recalls. "You set (the train) on a plastic track and it went 'chinga changa, chinga changa, chinga changa.'"

Gossett progressed from toy trains to electric scale models and, finally, to his own business in downtown Rossville.

His hobby shop has strong family ties. It is located below his parents' Village Frame Shop in the small east-central Illinois community, and for the time being, they are also financing the Underground Railroad.

Gossett and a 12-year-old helper make all the stock selections, ranging from model paint in colors like "mud" and "grime" for authentic weathering, to complete train sets.

"We could have bought him a car a lot cheaper than what we have socked into this," his mother joked. "We have had a lot of people who think he's selling trains out of his garage. They don't realize he's a serious businessman."

Satellite Center aided through United Way

By Reed Echols
Of the United Way

The Pampa Satellite Center, a United Way agency, provides a weekday program for twenty men and women with mental handicaps. The center includes study, social activities, grooming, scouting, a cooking program and a sheltered workshop.

Each client receives educational goals to reach toward. These include money, time, reading and counting skills. The sheltered workshop provides work for each client. They are paid according to their productivity. Payday is one of their favorite days.

They have many special days at the Satellite Center. Trips are made each year to Austin and Dallas where the group competes in Special Olympics. They prepare for these competitions by exercising, playing basketball, jogging and walking at the Pampa Youth Center. Each Thursday they have lunch and then bowl several games at Harvester Lanes.

Give your Fair Share the United Way.

Satellite Center groups can be seen at nearly every concert, play, travel film and rodeo that comes to this area. They make frequent trips to Amarillo to take advantage of social activities and entertainment.

The center has had many success stories. Two of the clients will soon complete five years of employment with Ingersoll - rand. They are productive citizens no longer requiring state assistance.

Another client, upon enrollment at age 31, had never had access to any type of services. She and her widowed mother were mostly confined to their home. Soon after enrolling at the Satellite Center, this young woman displayed increasingly acceptable behavior, and she and her mother now attend church and other social activities.

The Satellite Center has been housed for the past 16 years in the First Presbyterian Church. They are currently working on a building fund to construct a 4,900 square foot center to be housed at Somerville at Wells streets.

Ruth Harmon directs the center's activities aided by two assistants and a number of volunteers.

"Our goal is to enable the mentally retarded adult to become as independent as his potential will allow him," Harmon said. "He then becomes a productive citizen who is able to contribute to his community and feel the self - esteem we all desire to attain."

This goal is becoming a reality thanks to the Satellite Center staff, volunteers and gifts from the United Way.

Dear Abby

Grammarian uncovers bedroom controversy

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A friend and I are having a difference of opinion. Does a person "make a bed" or "dress a bed"? Please settle it.

FOR ACCURACY IN SPEECH

DEAR FOR ACCURACY: Speech is a method of communicating a thought or idea. Speech at its best is communicating simply and clearly.

When someone says, "I'll make the bed," I understand what the person means. "I'll dress the bed" sounds pretentious. (One dresses himself, a doll or a chicken.)

The word "make" is used in any number of ways: to make believe, make do, make good, make book, make fun, make eyes, make sport, make hay, make love, make waves, and to make a mountain out of a molehill, of which this is a dandy example.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I've never seen in your column. "Bobby" and I have lived together (happily) for three years. He's a beautiful, caring man, and I know he loves me, but he won't marry me for a reason you're not going to believe. He's afraid of the blood test.

Ever since he was a young boy he's been terrified of needles — so much that he hasn't been to a doctor for 10 years.

I'm pregnant now, and Bobby is delighted. Our child will have his name, but I won't. I hate the thought of being an unwed mother, but we can't get married unless Bobby takes a blood test, and he has flat-out refused.

What should I do? Don't suggest that Bobby see a shrink. He's been seeing one for five months about another problem, but he refuses to tell his shrink about his fear of needles.

NO MRS. IN MANHATTAN

DEAR NO MRS.: An ultimatum is in order. Tell Bobby that if he doesn't tell his "shrink" about his needle phobia and how it is affecting his life and yours, you will. Has that "beautiful, caring man" ever considered hypnosis for a painless blood test? Suggest it.

DEAR ABBY: Help! I, too, need to "get out of the closet." My secret? My sin? I hate dogs! I must confess, I despise dogs! All kinds. When I see a dog lick the hands or face of a child, I get ill just thinking about where that dog's nose has been. And when I see a grown person walking a dog, then stop and stand there while the dog deposits a filthy mess — always on someone else's property — I wonder how that person can look in a mirror.

I could never hurt an animal, but I would gladly sterilize every dog in this world. Just imagine, a world free of dog filth, free of barking, yelping, growling — free of the stench of dog urine! Our children could play on the grass without stepping into a foul mess.

And please don't tell me that a dog is man's best friend, Abby. Is that the best man can do?

DOG-TIRED

DEAR DOG-TIRED: There's not enough space on this page to report how much pleasure, companionship, comfort, safety and service dogs have given man over the years.

If a dog is a nuisance for any reason — blame the owner, not the dog!

"Fledgling Raven" lived in Mobeetie

By MYRA HARGRAVE McILVAIN
Texas Historical Commission

The eighth and youngest child of Sam Houston and Margaret Lea Houston seemed to sense the legacy that he carried — and he enjoyed it with the same bent to showmanship that his father had demonstrated.

When Temple was born, Sam Houston was 67, and he died when the boy was only two years old. Temple was seven when his mother died of yellow fever. An ardent story - teller, he must have grown up relishing the tales about his father — Sam Houston living with the Cherokee Indians and being named "The Raven;" Sam Houston leading the Texans into victory at San Jacinto and serving as president of the new Republic; and the final chapter when Sam Houston stepped down as governor rather than compromise his belief against secession.

After graduating from Baylor University and attending Texas A&M, Temple began practicing law in the thriving riverboat community of Brazoria. It was not long, however, until the 21 - year - old accepted an appointment as district attorney in the new Panhandle district at Mobeetie.

He managed to charm the residents despite his blonde curls, Prince Albert coat and pin - striped trousers and was elected to the State Senate a year before he reached the required age of 26. He further endeared himself to his constituency with his legislation that supported the Panhandle settlers and defended their rights.

Despite pleas to run for governor or the U. S. congress, Temple preferred to defend the underdog, often without compensation. He had an uncanny understanding of human nature and it served him well in the courtroom. In 1893 he moved his wife and four children to Oklahoma and continued his brillian career as a lawyer and orator. The fledgling, a title he enjoyed, died at age 45 in Woodward, Okla.

He paints vans with air brush

SOUTH MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Bill "Kandyman" Penny is among the artists whose elaborate and colorful creations have transformed motor vans into art on wheels.

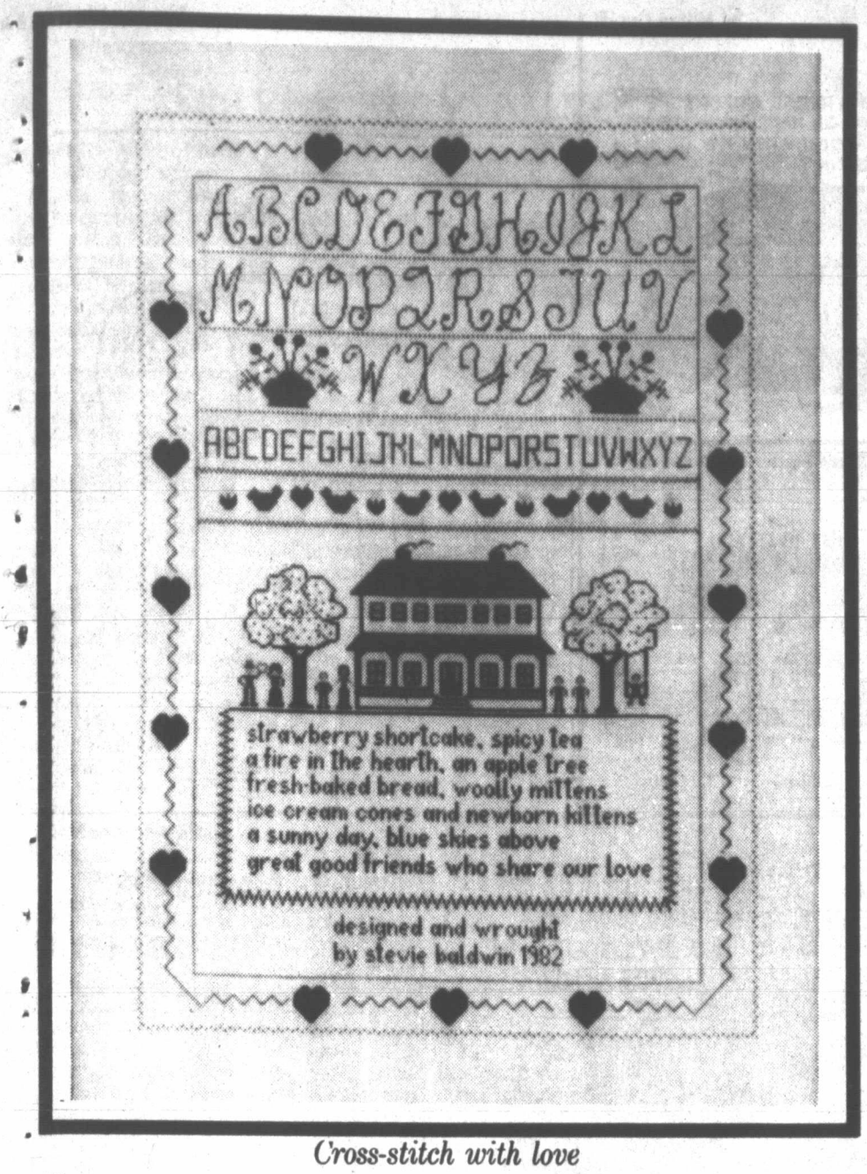

Penny differs from most of his nouveau colleagues, however, in that he performs with an air brush.

"It's not easy. It's not like using crayon or a brush," says Penny as he explains the workings of a small paint gun.

The difficulty with working with an air brush, he emphasizes, is that as one draws, the air pressure and the amount of paint passing through the air brush must also be controlled by the artist's hand.

In recent years, the once plain - looking van, a vehicle made basically for deliveries and repair crews, has been transformed into compact motor homes, bachelor "pads."

F'ormer mental patients aided in adjusting to outside world

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — After shuttling from one mental hospital to another for most of her life, Sandra Kolesnik is learning to control her schizophrenia and live on her own.

Ms. Kolesnik, 40, says she has been hospitalized 28 times. "I broke the record, I think," she says, laughing. But that is behind her now. She is studying philosophy and hopes to write a book.

While many ex - patients wander the streets or eke out a living in rooming houses, Ms. Kolesnik is modifying her behavior and becoming part of society in a program called New England Fellowship for Rehabilitation Alternatives. She lives in a restored Victorian house with eight former mental patients. Three dozen other members of the program live on their own in apartments.

The non - profit organization helps adults discharged from mental hospitals find food and housing and adjust to the real world. It was started with state bond money in Providence, R.I., in 1975, and now operates in Cranston and West Warwick, R.I., as well as Worcester.

Departments of mental health in each state provide the bulk of the funding. The rest comes from fees paid by members out of their disability checks or other income.

In the past decade, thousands of mental patients across the country have been released from institutions under the theory that many could learn to behave like other people if they had a chance to live among them.

Since 1960, the number of patients in Massachusetts mental hospitals has plummeted from more than 20,000 to fewer than 2,000. Although some patients went into community programs, many found they had no place to go.

As the number of homeless people has grown, questions have been raised about deinstitutionalization. A special Massachusetts Senate committee began examining the policy after a fire killed eight former mental patients at a rooming house in Worcester last April.

Joe Dziobek, a social worker who directs Ms. Kolesnik's program, says the fault is not with the policy but the fact that many states didn't give much thought or money to helping patients released from state hospitals.

But with the right help, he says, many patients can enjoy a large measure of independence. The program teaches former patients basics like cooking and personal cleanliness, which some have forgotten and many never learned.

"People come out of the hospital and fads have changed, clothing doesn't fit," Dziobek said. "Unkempt hair, for example. That's sort of normal in the hospital. When you come out you've got to learn all over."

Ms. Kolesnik, who is working toward a liberal arts degree at Quinsigamond Community College, said she had to start from scratch.

"I had to learn how to function normally around the house, doing laundry, ironing, cooking ... rather than this fantasy life I was leading."

In the hospital, she said, "You get up in the morning, march down for your oatmeal, then you march back and the doors clang and you sit until lunch. It goes on and on."

Family Crafts

Cross-stitch reminds of bygone days

By JANET BECKETT

It's my feeling that fall and cross - stitching go together like bacon and eggs or cream and coffee or peanut butter and bread or ... well, you get the picture. I love to sit down on a cool fall evening and do cross - stitching.

I get this rather nostalgic feeling as I sit there, imagining all the women who centuries before me have done this very same thing. Many an hour has been spent using cross - stitch to create practical things for the family as well as beautiful decorative objects for the home.

Traditionally, a cross - stitch sampler accomplished both these things. A typical sampler consists of drawings, a message (perhaps from the Bible), and at least one alphabet. Mothers would use the alphabet to teach their children how to read.

It was with these things in mind that I designed the cross - stitch sampler shown here. It measures 21 by 27½ inches, including the unstitched border. On this particular design I included two alphabets, one in script and one in block letters.

I made a house similar to my own and around it I placed tiny figures to represent the members of my family. You could modify my design to represent your own family.

Beneath the house I cross - stitched a simple message: "strawberry shortcake, spicy tea; a fire in the hearth, an apple tree; fresh - baked bread, woolly mittens; ice cream cones and newborn kittens; a sunny day, blue skies above; great good friends who share our love."

I decorated the sampler with trees, flowers and hearts; but, again, you could design your own motifs.

For those of you who have never done cross - stitching before, counted cross - stitch is simplay a series of x - shaped stitches placed one right next to another.

Each cross - stitch is actually two straight stitches, one crossed over the other. To cross - stitch a design, simply follow the graph, counting each stitch as you work. Always begin in the center, so that the finished design will be properly positioned.

There are several kinds of cross - stitch cloth. Usually, the warp and weft (vertical and horizontal) threads are even, and there are obvious holes at the intersections. In cross - stitch, the tapestry needle is inserted into the holes between the threads, not through the threads themselves.

Be sure that the legs of adjacent stitches share the same holes; do not leave a space between stitches unless one is indicated on the graph.

Cross - stitch may be worked in any direction you like; up and down, side to side, or diagonally. Some people prefer to do a row of bottom stitches, and then work backwards across the row, crossing each bottom stitch with a top stitch. Others prefer to do one complete cross - stitch at a time. Choose the technique that feels best to you.

The colors you use are entirely up to you. I used green for the alphabets; red for the hearts, house and message, with accents of blue.

When finished, we stretched the sampler over ¼ - inch plywood and glued it to the back. The frame was made from standared pine 1 x 4. The boards were put together with half - lap joints. The frame can either be painted or stained before inserting the sampler.

We've put together a stitching graph and step - by - step instructions in case you need more detailed information than is provided here. If you would like to order, please specify Project No. 418-2 and send $3.95. Mail your order to Family Crafts, Dept. 79065, P.O. Box 52000, Tulsa, Okla., 74152.

Secrectaries want more work

NEW YORK (AP) — Many secretaries want more responsibilities than their bosses are willing to assign them, according to a national survey of secretaries and managers.

While both secretaries and managers agree secretaries are capable of taking on more duties in the office than they now have, 40 percent of the bosses responding to the poll by Honeywell Inc. believe their secretaries are too busy.

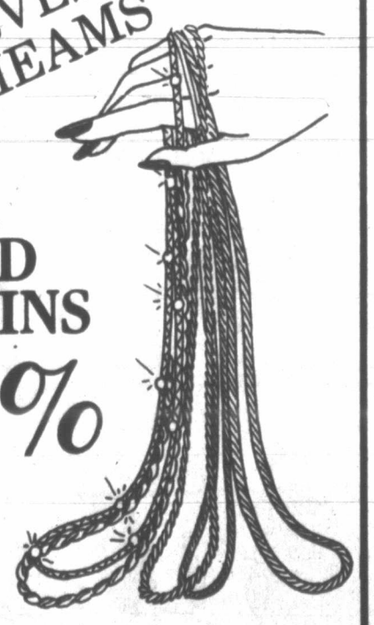

Secretaries, however, do not agree, the study found. Fewer than 25 percent report being too busy to take on extra chores while for percent say their manager sees no need to delegate work to them.

Braves stay alive in NL West

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Atlanta Braves Manager Joe Torre says his team has been "playing scoreboard" of late. And for a change, he liked what he saw.

One game away from elimination in the National League West race, Torre's team continued to hang on Thursday night with a 5-4 victory over the Houston Astros while Los Angeles was losing a doubleheader in San Diego, 7-1 and 4-1.

"Tonight was indicative of the way our season has gone," said Torre. "We've been watching the scoreboard all year."

Bob Watson drove in a run for Atlanta with a double in the eighth, and the Braves won it in the ninth on Randy Johnson's RBI single as the Braves came back from a three-run deficit.

"When we were behind 3-0 tonight, I wasn't watching the scoreboard," said Watson. "But I did when we went ahead."

In other NL action, San Francisco whipped Cincinnati 11-7 and Pittsburgh stopped New York 4-2.

Houston took a 3-0 lead after two innings on a run-scoring single by Bill Doran and two Atlanta errors. The Braves came back with two runs in the seventh on Claudell Washington's RBI double and Dale Murphy's sacrifice fly.

Atlanta went ahead 4-3 in the eighth on Watson's double before the Astros tied the score in the bottom of the inning on Harry Spilman's RBI base hit. Then the Braves scored the winning run in the ninth against Vern Ruhle, 8-5, on a single by Chris Chambliss, a walk to Albert Hall and Johnson's single.

Gene Garber, 4-5, earned the victory and Terry Forster secured the game's final three outs for his 13th save of the season.

"The fat lady is vocalizing, but she hasn't sung, yet," Torre said. "We don't want to back out of this thing. We want to make the Dodgers earn it."

Padres 7-4, Dodgers 1-1

In San Diego, Tony Gwynn's two-out RBI single and Kevin McReynolds' two-run hit keyed a sixth-run eighth inning to lead the Padres' first-game victory over the Dodgers.

Limited to four hits in seven innings by Dodgers starter Bob Welch, the Padres erupted for six runs off four Dodgers pitchers to break a 1-1 tie.

Andy Hawkins scattered seven hits in 8 2-3 innings and Terry Kennedy drilled a solo homer to lead the Padres in the nightcap.

Hawkins, a 23-year-old right-hander called up to the majors earlier this month, struck out a career-high 10 and walked four while giving up the Dodgers' only run on a two-out homer in the ninth by Jose Morales. Hawkins, 5-7, needed last-out relief help from Luis DeLeon, who posted his 13th save.

Giants 11, Reds 7

In Cincinnati, Chris Smith hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning to overshadow a two-run, pinch single by Johnny Bench in his final Cincinnati appearance and vault San Francisco over the Reds.

Bench, making his farewell appearance before 8,067 home fans, singled to ignite a five-run rally in the fifth inning that brought the Reds from a four-run deficit to a 7-6 lead.

But Smith's two-run homer then gave the Giants an 8-7 lead and they added three more in the eighth on a throwing error by Reds reliever Rich Gale, a single by Max Venable and a double-play grounder.

Pirates 4, Mets 2

In Pittsburgh, Rick Rhoden pitched a four-hitter for eight innings and contributed two hits as the Pirates defeated New York.

Homecoming Game

Harvesters host Levelland tonight

By L.D. STRATE
News Sports Editor

Nagging injuries, plus some of a more serious nature, have hampered the Pampa Harvesters this week while preparing for the District 1-4A opener with Levelland.

"We've had a good week of practice, except for the injuries," said Pampa head coach John Kendall.

Two-way lineman Bill Fritz is the most serious of the injured. He's been out all week with a sprained ankle.

"Fritz, I think, will be our only question mark for tonight," Kendall added. "We don't want him to re-injure his ankle."

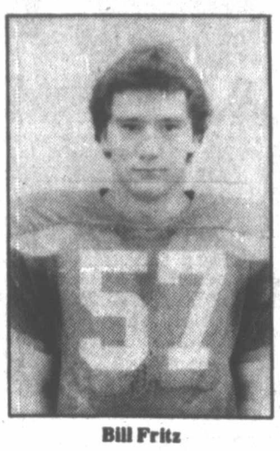

Linebackers Danny Sebastian and Dennis Kuempel, who sparked Pampa's defense in last week's 26-9 win over previously-unbeaten Perryton, have also been hobbled by injuries. Defensive tackle Dean Birkes has also missed two days of practice.

"These three guys will probably be able to go," Kendall said. "That's the big thing right now, keeping healthy."

Levelland enters tonight's homecoming game with same 1-2 record as the Harvesters. The Lobos opened the season with a 20-6 win over Lamesa, then lost to Muleshoe, 14-7, and Big Spring, 23-0.

Pampa and Levelland fought to an 8-8 tie a year ago.

"Levelland will have the same backfield they had last year, and they're a lot like Perryton in the line," Kendall said. "They don't have a Roger Bocox (Perryton's star back), but I feel like they have more of a balanced attack than Perryton. They've got four good backs.

"They've probably got the district's best linebacker (Paul Issacks, 205-pound senior), and they've got pretty good overall size. They'll be bigger than we are," Kendall said.

Senior tailback Anthony Scott emerged to the forefront of Pampa's ground game after rushing for 228 yards and scoring two touchdowns last week against Perryton. Scott's outstanding game made the Associated Press Schoolboy Honor Roll. Smith has now rushed for 289 yards in three games while junior fullback Eugene Smith has 104.

Going into district play, Kendall is concerned with the Harvesters' lack of depth.

"I knew our depth wasn't going to be too good when the season first started," Kendall said. We're down to ten offensive linemen now. The big thing this time of year is to try and keep everybody free of injury."

How does Kendall see the district race?

"I've got to go with Lubbock Estacado. They've only lost one district game in five years. They're the definite favorite, but after that it's the team that really gets with its program that takes second."

Tonight's kickoff is at 7:30 p.m. in Harvester Stadium.

(Pride will win out over pain. Homecoming will help. Pampa 12, Levelland 0.)

Oakland rookie hurls no-hitter

By BEN WALKER
AP Sports Writer

Two rookie pitchers came close to making the Hall of Fame this season.

Oakland's Mike Warren made it.

Warren, a 22-year-old right-hander who began the season in Class AA, became the first rookie to pitch a no-hitter in more than a decade Thursday night when he shut down the American League West champion Chicago White Sox 3-0.

"All of sudden I thought, "Hey, I haven't given up any hits all night,'" said Warren, who couldn't recall when he first realized he had a no-hitter in progress. "Then I just tried to keep it going by getting three outs at a time."

Twice this season rookies had gotten close — Pittsburgh's Jose DeLeon came within one out and Philadelphia's Charlie Hudson got within two outs.

Warren's gem, which will result in a game ball being sent to the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y., made him the first rookie to pitch a no-hitter since Texas' Jim Bibby did it against Oakland on July 30, 1973. He's the 13th rookie to accomplish the feat since 1900.

It was also the first no-hitter for Oakland since Vida Blue, Glenn Abbott, Paul Lindblad and Rollie Fingers combined on one in 1975. The game marked the first time Chicago had been no-hit since Boston's Bill Monbouquette mastered the White Sox in 1962.

And, it was the second no-hitter in the major leagues within a week. St. Louis' Bob Forsch no-hit Montreal 3-0 on Monday. New York's Dave Righetti no-hit Boston on July 4 this season.

Only once did the White Sox come close to getting a hit as Warren, 5-3, relied on his curveball and changuj. ith two outs in the eighth inning, pinch hitter Mike Squires belted a long drive to rehhcmit Mike Davis — inserted into the game that inning as a defensive replacement — caught at the wall.

"I thought for sure it was off the wall," said A's catcher Mike Heath.

Said Davis: "I was playing shallow at the time. When he hit it, I thought it might have a chance to go out. I got to it shaky-like. I was prepared to do anything to catch that ball."

Warren ran halfway to the mound to start his warmups in the ninth as the crowd of 9,058 cheered on the cold and windy night in Oakland.

The first batter in the ninth was pinch hitter Jerry Hairston, who had broken up a perfect game bid by Detroit's Milt Wilcox with two outs in the ninth inning earlier this year. Hairston walked on a full-count pitch, Warren's third walk of the game.

Pinch hitter Greg Walker flied out and Rudy Law struck out swinging on an 0-2 pitch, Warren's fifth strikeout of the night.

That brought up Carlton Fisk, who had struck out twice and flied out in his previous three at-bats. Earlier this season, Fisk blasted a three-run homer off Warren.

This time, on Warren's 112th pitch of the night on a 2-1 count, Fisk hit a lazy fly ball that left fielder Rickey Henderson caught for the final out.

"For a split-second, I was thinking about what would happen if I dropped it," Henderson said. "But there was no way."

"The last pitch was a good one," Fisk said. "I'm happy for him."

Warren, who spent last year in Class A and began this season with Albany, N.Y., of the Eastern League, was called up to the majors on June 8 and made his debut on June 12, against Chicago. His first pitch in the big leagues was a wild pitch with the bases loaded.

"I think I'm even now," said Warren, who accepted congratulations from White Sox owner Eddie Einhorn in the Oakland clubhouse.

Warren, who faced 29 men, two over the minimum, was sent down to Class AAA Tacoma in June, but was recalled by Oakland on Aug. 8.

"My wife's out there waiting for me," Warren said after the game. "I'm going to hug her like crazy."

In other AL games, it was Minnesota 2, Texas 0; Detroit 9, Baltimore 4; New York 4, Boston 3; Cleveland 4, Milwaukee 2; and Seattle 5, Kansas City 4.

Tigers 9, Orioles 4

Enos Cabell smacked a three-run homer during a five-run first inning to help Detroit complete a three-game sweep in Baltimore. Cabell's fifth homer came as the Tigers erupted against Mike Flanagan, 12-4.

Rick Leach belted a two-run homer in the ninth off Baltimore reliever Tim Stoddard.

Yankees 4, Red Sox 3

Don Mattingly slapped an RBI single past a drawn-in infield with one out in the bottom of the ninth, capping a two-run rally that lifted New York.

Unbeaten Raiders are underdogs

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Raiders are unbeaten. Still, they're listed as a slight underdog against the slightly erratic Redskins Sunday in Washington.

Go figure.

Jim Plunkett seems to find a way each weekend to get the Raiders into the end zone a sufficient number of times to win comfortably, and the defense has given up only 37 points in four games, by far the fewest in the National Football League.

So it would seem logical, from this vantage point at least, to take the Raiders plus 2½ over WASHINGTON.

Like the Raiders, Dallas' record is unblemished heading into Minnesota, where Tony Dorsett set an NFL record last season with a 99-yard run from scrimmage. Dorsett may have a cast on his right wrist Sunday, but that won't slow him down appreciably. Besides, the Cowboys, who have found a different way to win — coming from behind — the first four weeks, should do things differently this time, starting ahead and staying there. Take Dallas minus 4 over MINNESOTA.

Two teams remain winless after four games, Tampa Bay and Houston.

Bucs' quarterback Jack Thompson showed poise and strength against his former Cincinnati teammates in a losing cause. Against the Packers' defense — or lack of it — he could get the Bucs their first victory. Take Tampa Bay plus 6½ over GREEN BAY.

Houston's another matter. The Oilers' winless streak has reached 11 games and there's no reason to expect it to come even close to ending against the Steelers. Take PITTSBURGH minus 11 over Houston.

In other games (home teams capitalized), take:

CINCINNATI minus 6 over Baltimore

LOS ANGELES RAMS minus 4½ over Detroit

Packers, Raiders win games

The Packers blanked the Colts, 33-0, Thursday night as the Tiger Football League opened its season at Optimist Park.

The Raiders defeated the Rams in the other game, but no final score was available.

Pampa seventh graders are still undefeated

Pampa's seventh-grade Blue team remains unbeaten after rolling past Canadian, 38-8, Thursday.

Carey Brown and Mike Bradshaw led Pampa's rushing attack.

Pampa seventh graders, now 3-0, hosts Dumas at 4 p.m. next Tuesday.

Pampa Red used touchdowns by Chris Evans and Alex Casel, to defeat Highland Park, 14-0, in an eighth-grade game yesterday.

Pampa Blue, however, lost a 30-8 decision to Canadian. Pampa's only score came on quarterback Michael Landers pass to Darrell Morlan.

Pampa Red, 2-1, travels to Canyon next Thursday.

Pampa Blue, 1-2, hosts Dumas at 4 p.m. Thursday.

Next week's games are all district contests.

News in brief

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau says the number of people over age 65 will double by the year 2020 and will account for more than 21 percent of the nation's population by the year 2030.

The elderly, who made up 11.3 percent of the population in 1980, is the fastest growing age group in the nation, according to a study released Thursday. The report predicted that people over 65 will make up almost 14 percent of the population by 2010 as members of the post-World War II baby boom mature.

There were 25.5 million people age 65 or older in 1980 compared to 16.6 million in 1960. The report projected there would be 64 million elderly people in the year 2030 out of a nationwide population of 304 million and 67.1 million out of 308.9 million by 2050.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal appeals court has heard arguments that the Navy's policy of discharging homosexuals unconstitutionally discriminates against a large segment of the nation's population.

Marcos appoints new Aquino investigation head

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Hundreds of riot police broke up an anti-government protest with tear gas today, and Pesident erdinand E. Marcos replaced the chairman of the commission investigating the murder of opposition leader Benigno Aquino.

The man who had headed the commission, Supreme Court Chief Justice Enrique Fernando, was accused by opposition leaders of lacking the necessary impartiality to determine who assassinated Aquino as he returned to the Philippines on Aug. 21 from three years of self-exile in the United States.

Marcos, who has denied charges of government complicity in the killing, today announced Fernando's resignation and named Assemblyman Arturo Tolentino, 73, as the new commission chairman.

In Manila's suburban financial district of Makati, meanwhile, police reported "a number of arrests" as riot squads broke up a demonstration begun by several hundred office workers.

The protesters entered the elegant Rustans department store, crowding the aisles and escalators but not buying anything. Opposition groups claim the store is secretly owned by first lady Imelda Marcos, but she denies it.

The protesters were dressed in yellow, wore yellow ribbons or carried yellow flowers — displaying the color adopted to celebrate Aquino's short-lived homecoming.

As the crowd grew to an estimated 3,000, gathering around a main intersection in the high-rise district, confetti began pouring out of high windows, cars honked horns and people shouted for Marcos' resignation.

More than 200 riot police moved in with tear gas, breaking up the crowd, but many office workers and some executives remained on the streets, dodging police and continuing protests.

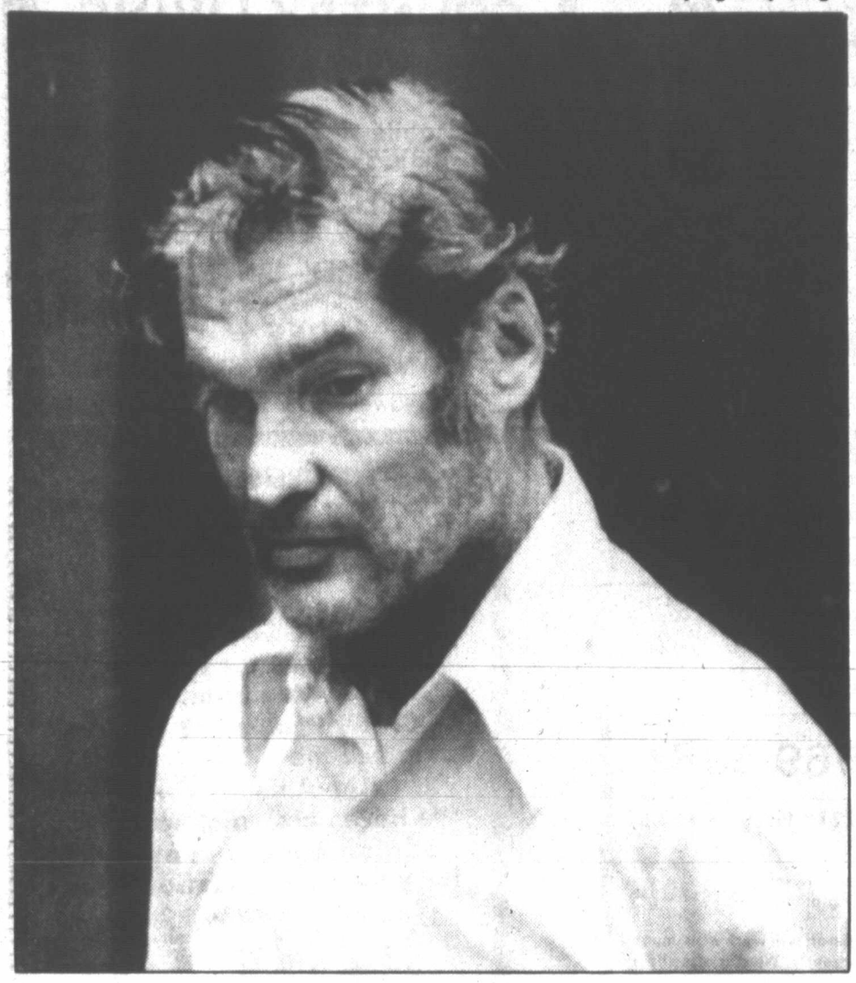

The confetti turned to cans, bottles and scraps of wood as people taunted police from their windows. Some officers drew pistols, firing warning shots into the air.

Students staged a separate demonstration in front of the main post office in downtown Manila, condemning the "tight political repression in the country" and the violent suppression of earlier anti-Marcos protests.

Fernando stepped down from the Aquino investigation commission in the face of opposition lawsuits challenging his acceptance of the post while remaining head of the high court. The suits, still pending before the Supreme Court, also accused the original commission members of subservience to Marcos.

The new chairman, Tolentino, was senate president under the U.S.-style system dismantled by Marcos a decade ago.

He has a reputation as a skilled constitutional lawyer not afraid to disagree with the majority.

IN COURT — Robert Thom, 51, of Pasadena, Calif., stands in a Los Angeles courtroom Thursday where he was to have been arriagned on murder charges in connection with the death of Hollywood mystery writer Muriel Davidson. The arraignment has been postponed until Oct. 18 and Thom will remain in custody. (AP Laserphoto)

Reagan swerving to the middle

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forget the rhetoric, Ronald Wilson Reagan is swerving toward the middle.

He is trying to get an agreement with the Soviet Union to limit nuclear weapons. And he is going to China next April.

That's not the kind of foreign policy one might have expected from candidate Reagan. He blasted the SALT II agreement as "fatally flawed" and he was Taiwan's best friend among the candidates.

But stumping for president and working in the Oval Office are two very different things. Even the shooting down of the South Korean jetliner hasn't caused Reagan to scrap the 1979 strategic arms limitation agreement and break up the Geneva negotiations.

"The door to an agreement is open," he informed Moscow this week in a speech to the United Nations General Assembly. "It is time for the Soviet Union to walk through it."

In April, he'll be raising his glass in a toast to his hosts in Peking, pledging U.S. friendship for the world's largest communist country. Setting the stage for the visit, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said his own talks with Chinese officials "will mature into, and very quickly, the actual transfers of weapons systems if that's what the Chinese want."

It might be said that Reagan is playing the China card — cementing ties with China in order to make the Soviets nervous. But it's probably having that effect on Taiwan and on his old right-wing friends who expected Reagan to slow down — or even reverse — the process Richard Nixon began with his 1972 journey.

In office, Reagan concluded the Chinese government cannot be wished away. And he recognized the United States has to live with the Soviet Union, and work with it to reduce the threat of nuclear war.

Reagan has vigorously condemned Moscow for shooting down the Korean airplane. But the punishment he meted out was mild, and he signaled as furiously as he can that he doesn't want the arms talks to suffer.

The U.S. position in the European missile negotiations has been modified, probably not enough to break the deadlock but in a way that may elicit matching concessions. If the two sides get into the habit of swapping concessions they may wind up with an agreement after all.
