Sand Hills Moved To Make Farms

While science is exploring outer space in hopes of solving the earth's population and food problems, a "down to earth" farmer is doing his "own thing" right here on earth...near Olton.

Harold Smith, along with his two grown sons, Danny and David, have undertaken the task of "moving mountains" in order to make land in the sand hills into farms which will produce as well as any of the other land on the South Plains.

Smith and his sons began their awesome task back in December of 1973. Bulldozers came in first, knocking down trees and moving them into corners of the designated plot of ground that was to be cleared and leveled. The land is cleared in circles, because of a circular sprinkler system which is installed.

"As high as 15 tractors have been in here working since we started this," Smith relates. "We have a total of 1400 acres here, but won't get it all leveled this year."

In explaining how the hills were actually moved, Smith said, "The moving was done with Eversman Scrapers, which work like an oil well pump, letting the motor pull up as well as down. By climbing up the steep sand hills, this gave them enough traction to load these scrapers when they come off the hills and the tractor was pulling both directions."

"This is strictly an experimental thing this year," Smith said, "We have some beautiful crops of potatoes growing here now, which is something that would have seemed impossible a few years ago. But with heavy equipment that we now have at our disposal to use to move the sand hills and then the sprinkler system to use as irrigation, these farms may prove to be as productive as any farm in the area."

"After we get the hills knocked down," Smith continued, "We go in with a scraper which is made at Lubbock Christian College. Students help in the construction of these scrapers, which are called Lubbock Scrapers. This gives these boys an opportunity to learn to do something rather than all just 'book learning.'"

"After the land is smoothed down more by the Lubbock Scrapers, then it is leveled off with a land leveler, followed by the application of barn yard manure, which is then plowed into the land along with commercial fertilizer."

"Some of these acres are costing as high as $2500 per acre to get ready to start farming!" Smith remarked.

When Smith Farms are completed there will be eight sprinkler systems with 1400 acres in cultivation, which will be potatoes, corn and milo as a starter.

The farms are located south of Olton just at the north edge of the sand hills and reach two miles west into the hills and run one mile along the highway.

Smith has built a hard bed road, also taken from the hills, by digging past the sand and into suitable soil for roads.

All the vehicles that the Smiths drive are four wheel drive and with that type of pickup, they can go just about anywhere. The vehicles are equipped with radios as are the tractors, however, just in case the vehicle gets stuck in the sand.

Beautiful crops of potatoes are now covering the leveled acres, where just one short season ago, was a desolate, brush covered sand hill.

If Smith's dreams come true with his farm the sandhills may become a beautiful farm land.

HAROLD SMITH digs into his potatoes growing on the farm which he "created" down in the sand hills south of Olton. Lush crops of potatoes are growing and Smith expects to grow corn and milo. Fourteen hundred acres of sand hills will eventually be planted by Smith and his sons, Danny and David, all of Hart.

MOVING THE HILLS -- After knocking down the steepest part of the hills, tractors pulling Lubbock Scrapers, which augers the sand up into a loader, comes along and finishes leveling off the hills. Behind the scrapers, a land leveler comes and puts the final touches of leveling before the fertilizer is added.

About Motel Business

Owner May 'Write A Book'

"Some day I may write a book about running a motel," says Mrs. Madaline Spurlin, who with her husband, operates Olton Courts. Madaline and James purchased the motel in August, 1961 from the Cherrys and moved here from Farwell with their infant son, Randy. A daughter, Nina, was born after their move here.

Operating a motel was "something we always wanted to do," Madaline says. The vocation has brought incidences which could easily fill the book she threatens to write. It has also brought friendships with persons they might never have met in another work.

Located in a small agricultural town so near much larger cities on U.S. 70 means few tourists at Olton Courts. Their clientele is, instead, seasonal and is primarily people coming for part time employment and persons whose employment requires travel.

Some of the memorable events which have happened have involved tourists who preferred the accommodations of larger cities. One unforgettable happening about 1:30 a.m. when Madaline was awakened with the ringing of her doorbell by a potential customer.

"He asked how far it was to Muleshoe and when I answered he said he believed he'd just go on."

Madaline remembers that today and, with a wry grin, says "I wish I'd been awake enough to have told him he'd have to go back to Plainview and take a different highway to get to Muleshoe."

Another occasion which brought exasperation and deserved anger happened during the construction period when Highway 70 was widened. Heavy rain had turned the highway into a muddy terror and one evening, past bedtime, the ringing bell called Madaline to the door.

The caller asked if she'd call someone to come get him unstuck and to inquire what it would cost. When she relayed the information to the waiting man, he replied it was "too much" so they'd spend the night.

Madaline remembers the man had a heart condition so she, the man's wife and small son pushed the car from its mired spot in the road. "Then he said he believed since they had the car unstuck, they'd just drive on to Muleshoe!"

The confining demands of the business do not bother Madaline who says simply, "I don't mind being tied down. I like to be home."

Much of the cleaning is done by Madaline although she says they do have cleaning help. James does the small up-keep chores of the business that "always has something that needs to be fixed."

Olton Courts were built in the late summer of 1952 by Witt and Hazel Lacewell. They began with seven rooms complete with car ports in the era when motels were expected to furnish a protected area for cars.

Before long, the Lacewells enclosed the car ports, making additional rooms. Later they built small furnished apartments in connection with the motel.

Even from the beginning, the courts were a seasonal business with peak capacity during the harvest seasons of grain, cotton and cucumbers when they came to the area. Traveling salesmen were frequent customers, too.

Rooms in the courts early days were three dollars a night for one person; four dollars for two.

Hazel recalls one potential customer inquiring the cost and when told "three dollars" answered with, "I didn't want to buy it."

Lacewell had been a partner in Olton Auto Supply and had sold his interest. He laughingly says, today, that putting in a motel was "just one of my crazy ideas."

The Lacewells began operating the courts by doing all the work themselves. Hazel did the laundry except for sheets which were sent to a commercial laundry and picked up and delivered twice weekly. Witt became carpenter-plumber-electrician and handyman all rolled into one. When TV came to Olton, he installed sets in each room. He also became very adept at helping clean the rooms and was a more particular bed maker than she was herself, Hazel says.

One of the most vivid memories the Lacewells have of their days as motel operators was during the

The office of Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture issues an invitation to all persons interested in making a trip to Palo Duro Canyon, via charter bus, for a performance of "Texas"... let it be known:

A list is being compiled at the Chamber office, 285-2292 of those interested in such a trip. Should the number be justifiable, inquiry will be made with all proper officials, and a date will be set.

Everything But The Kitchen Sink

BY MOZELLE TROTTER

Thousands of eyes were glued to the Astro-turf field of Jones Stadium recently when Lubbock once again hosted the Coaches All America Football Game but the biggest show of the night was the gay array in the stand.

Fifth Avenue's Easter parade could not surpass the Stadium crowd's fashion display. Fashion was there that night ranging from the chic and elegant to the mod and barely-there. See, too, were the myriads in between.

Even a few "pigskin-holics" were momentarily distracted from the brusing action of the sweaty-not-per-spiring contenders. That distraction came inevitably when a scrap of material which might have been utilized in a handy pot holder was, instead, put into service as a halter top by one of the feminine gender making up the part of the bleachers' study flow of humanity.

The crowd that night came to see and be seen. The latter, just for good measure, found it necessary to make repeated trips to and fro -- destinations not pertinent to the entertained hordes in the seats.

Speaking first hand as one of the "five dollar army," they came also that evening in faultless attire -- milady in pantsuits styled for simple elegance to modist and plain; monsieur was to be found in suit and in shirt sleeves.

They came, too, in captivating costumes -- halters categorized as cool and cute, brief, scant and "did you (GASP) see that?" Milady, however, did not far out-shine Mister. Shades of the 1940's! Does the "Zoot Suit" live again? Its equivalent was there in all its glory, including one show white model and another in colorful pink and blue plaid. The wide brimmed chapeau of the zoot suit era was also seen about the stadium (one of the more practical items of apparel for the sun-bathed game-goers).

Milady's (and Mister's) "crowning glory" was also displayed in a host of fashions, one of which defied belief -- a gigantic Afro adorneu with powdered-on silver-dollar sized polka dots.

Ah yes, it was fashion on parade!

Mr. Gregory-Miss Graham Pledge Double Ring Vows

Candlelight wedding vows were solemnized Friday evening, June 28, in the Church of the Nazarene for Miss Rita Fern Graham and John George Gregory.

Officiating was the Rev. Jim Womack of Mustang, Okla., brother-in-law of the bridegroom. Baskets of white gladioli with yellow and white mums and baby's breath were placed on columns. Three cathedral candelabras, a memory candle and prayer bench provided the setting for the exchange of double ring vows.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Graham and Mrs. Julia Gregory of Drumright, Okla., and Cletis Gregory of Freemont, Calif.

Ann Womack, sister of the groom, presented traditional nuptial selections and accompanied Neta Gary as she sang "Each For The Other" and "The Wedding Prayer." Jimmie Graham, sister of the bride, sang "Whither Thou Goest." Together, the bride and groom sang "Saviour Like a Shepherd Lead Us."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white polyester mist styled with fitted Empire bodice and full skirt. Fashioned of nylon Chantilly lace imported from France, the bodice featured bishop sleeves and wedding ring collar. Pearls enhanced the lace scallops of the neckline and cuffs.

A Juliet caplet of lace, encrusted with seed pearls and adorned with long pearl drops at each side, held her chapel length veil of silk illusion, edged with scalloped Chantilly lace. She carried a bouquet of yellow rosebuds and baby carnations atop a white Bible.

For the traditional "something old," the bride carried an Indian head penny in her shoe. Her gown was "new" and she "borrowed" a Bible from JoEllen Spain. She wore the traditional blue garter.

Sisters of the bride were attendants. Linda May was matron of honor. Debra and Jimmie Kay Graham were bridesmaids. Diana Graham was junior bridesmaid.

Candles were lighted by Pam and Greg Womack of Mustang, Okla., niece and nephew of the bridegroom. Carolyn Womack was flower girl and Kenny Womack, ring bearer.

Feminine attendants wore identical formal gowns of pastel green dotted nylon voile fashioned with fitted bodices with square necklines and double bell sleeves. Sashes of green picot-edged velvet ribbon accented the waistlines of their softly gathered skirts.

They wore sheer pastel green picture hats and carried white lace fans intertwined with yellow mums with yellow and green satin streamers.

Misses Carolyn and Pam Womack wore formal length dresses of pastel yellow dotted nylon voile in the same fashion.

Lt. Cletis Gregory Jr., stationed with the US Navy in Maine, was his brother's beat man. Groomsmen were Jack Vickers, uncle of the groom, Phillip Vickers, cousin of the groom, and junior groomsman, Steve Graham, brother of the bride.

Guests were seated by John Hatfield of Bethany, Okla., and Mike May, brother-in-law of the bride. Jeanne Cottom registered guests.

Male attendants wore white dinner jackets, pastel green and yellow shirts with black velvet bow ties and black trousers.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Graham chose a floor length dress of turquoise knit trimmed in chiffon and a corsage of yellow rosebuds. Mrs. Gregory wore a formal length dress of deep turquoise with yellow rosebud corsage.

A reception was held in fellowship hall. Garlands of greenery with white wedding bells and white doves provided decor above the bride's table. Laid with a white crystalline over green, the table was centered with the memory candle. Misses JoEllen Spain and Margaret Gallaway served the traditional three-tiered bridal cake and punch. Appointments were crystal and silver.

The groom's table was laid with beige linen and centered with a beige candle and brown candelier. Appointments were china and silver. Presiding were Bonnie Gregory and Mary Lou Nava.

Members of the houseparty were Mmes. D.A. Bass, Wallace Mathews, Jewell Long and James Landtroop.

For a wedding trip to the Dallas area, the bride chose a two-piece ensemble of blue and white with white accessories and a corsage of yellow rosebuds lifted from the bridal bouquet.

The newlyweds will be at home after July 7 at 4708 N. Central, Apt. 2, Bethany, Okla.

A 1971 graduate of Olton High School, ranking third in her class, the bride is a senior at Bethany Nazarene College where she is majoring in elementary education.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Olive High School in Olive, Okla. He is employed with Honeywell Corporation of Oklahoma City.

Out of town relatives attending were Mrs. David Cottom of Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. Cletis Gregory Jr. of Maine; Jack and Phillip Vickers of Oklahoma; Mrs. Ruth Perry, Jennifer and Quinto Lea of Austin; Mrs. Letha Landtroop of Floyd, N.M.; Mrs. Willard Henderson and Terri of Bethany, Okla.; Mrs. Doyce James, Ray and Joyce of Palmdale, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. James Landtroop and Becky of Plainview and Doug Yates of Fort Worth.

MRS. CARROLL FREEMAN

Cook Of The Week

Fishing in deep waters off the Gulf is a rare treat and one thoroughly enjoyed by our Cook of the Week, Mrs. Carroll Freeman. Nancy and Carroll love to fish and go camping with their two small children.

The Carrolls moved from Canyon to Olton in February when they began a new business here, Yard Boy Drilling. Both grew up in Muleshoe and both attended West Texas State University.

Nancy also attended the University of Texas at Arlington, a second choice from SMU where she had longed to go.

Jarrett, three, will celebrate his fourth birthday later this month. Nikki is two.

Making a garden, along with her regular tasks as housewife, mother and help-mate, leave Nancy little time for hobbies. She does like to sew and cook.

The Carrolls are Presbyterians.

Engisn And Mrs. Selman Feted In Raymondville

A wedding reception Friday, June 21, in the Judson Savage home in Raymondville, honored Ensign and Mrs. James Derward Selman III.

Assisting in hosting the event were Mr. and Mrs. Carol Conley, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Handshaw and Mr. and Mrs. Norris McGee.

Receiving guests with Mr. and Mrs. Savage were the honorees and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Derward Selman, Jr. A floral arrangement with figurines depicting newlyweds decorated the entrance.

Registering those in attendance was Miss Claire Conley. Background music was provided at piano by Mrs. Shirley French of Gonzales, aunt of the groom.

The bride's table was laid with an embroidered Madeira linen cloth. A spring floral arrangement in a silver epergne, featuring Talisman roses and candles, centered the table.

Further accenting the bride's colors of yellow and orange, Talisman rosebuds formed corsages for ladies in the receiving line.

Mrs. McGee served the bride's cake, a lemon confection iced in white. Frosted fruit punch was ladled from a silver bowl by Mrs. Hanshaw and Mrs. Conley. Mrs. James Light and Miss Carla Conley alternated at the coffee service.

A second serving table, reflecting a German theme, was placed on the lighted patio. There German sausage, potato salad, smoked turkey, ham, rolls, coffee and lemonade were served. A large basket of multi-colored spring flowers decorated the patio.

Burning torches lighted the lawn and hurricane lamps outlined the shrubs and flower bed. Guests were seated at picnic tables covered with yellow and orange checked cloths.

A Mariachi band serenaded guests throughout the evening with Mexican, German and other musical selections.

Special guests were the groom's maternal grandmother, Mrs. W.B. Terrell, his aunt, Mrs. Shirley French, and cousins Joe Clements and David French all of Gonzales.

Also, Ensign Harmon Camp, USN, Midland; Lt. Dale Pugh, USMC, Salina, Kan., Ensign Bruce Cavey, USN, Kalamazoo, Mich., and Missy Camp, Corpus Christi.

Other members of the houseparty were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Krueger, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Dreyer, Kenny Haynes, Mrs. Chester Fry and Bill Selman.

Ensign and Mrs. Selman, who recently visited in the city in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne Wilks, are enroute to Pensacola, Fla., where he will undergo flight training and she will attend the University of Florida.

Too Many Vitamins Not Helpful - But Harmful

"If a few vitamins are good, then lots of vitamins must be better" has been said more than once.

"It's just not true," one foods and nutrition expert says. "too many vitamins don't make you healthier—they might even be harmful."

She's Sally Springer, foods and nutrition specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.

"Fat-soluble vitamins A, D, E and K are stored in the body and excess amounts taken for an extended time may be toxic," the specialist warned.

Because of this danger, the Food and Drug Administration has limited the amount of vitamins A and D supplements sold across the counter, she added.

"If a person restricts his diet to specific foods and takes supplemental vitamins over an extended time, toxic symptoms of certain vitamins may appear," she continued.

Water-soluble vitamins C and B-complex do not stockpile in the body—so excess amounts of these do neither good nor harm. The body simply doesn't use them.

"Good nutrition in our 'age of supernutrition' comes from eating a wide variety of foods every day. Excess vitamins don't help your health," the specialist concluded.

MOST PEOPLE

Most people have acres of possibilities but only a small patch under cultivation.

"I don't like the way our vacation is starting out!"

Camp Operator Charged With Camps Provisions

Among the guides used in setting up regulations were the Texas Water Safety Act, a manual on Fire Safety for Suburban Areas Texas, Food and Drug Laws already enforced by the Health Department, and environmental health practices falling under the Health Department.

In the Act is a licensing clause requiring that each camp be inspected and found to conform with provisions of the Act.

Each camp operator is charged with providing each camper with "safe and healthful conditions, facilities and equipment free from recognized hazards which cause or may tend to cause death, serious illness or bodily harm."

Some 400 applications for licenses were received by the State Health Department prior to May 1, date sent for licensing.

Heaviest concentrations of the camps is in the Dallas-Fort Worth area. Among these applications were 21 Girl Scout camps in the Dallas area alone. Next heaviest concentrations of camps is in East Texas, followed by the Hill Country section near Kerrville.

Helping sponsor the new Youth Camp Safety and Health Act was an organization of Texas youth camp operators, the Camping Association for Mutual Progress (CAMP). CAMP was looking for more uniformity in its safety and sanitation practices.

The Advisory Council on Youth Camp Safety has worked with the State Health Department in drawing up proposed rules to be tried out this summer. Later, public hearing will be held on the regulations before they are submitted to the State Board of Health for adoption.

Serving on this advisory council are representatives of the different classes of camps, plus two members with broad camp experience. These camp types include: private non-sectarian, church-related, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Campfire Girls, YMCA, YWCA, camps for the handicapped, and civic organization camps.

Members include Miss Alice H. Mulkey, Raymond B. Bean and Armin F. Luehrs of Dallas; Miss Louise Fargher of Fort Worth; Silas B. Ragsdale Jr. of Hunt; Tom Manison, Friendswood; Olen Miles, Driftwood; and Hugh Hornsby, Rodney J. Kidd, Mrs. Garza A. Boggs and Paul Beisenherz, all of Austin.

SELECT CARPET

Select carpeting with an eye to adjacent outside areas-dark carpeting for living area next to white sand outside would be unwise, Patricia Bradshaw, housing and home furnishings specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System, advises. A white carpet would be less practical than a colored one for children's rooms or kitchens, she added.
