Why Building Permits—Depression Remedy—Bland Has Good One—Invest At Home—

A FINE of $15 for failure to secure a building permit, as recently assessed in corporation court, is none too heavy for those who forget this duty. The building permit fee is too small to be a burden, and the information secured from permits is of vital importance to the city.

Accurate building information is not only necessary in the city's control and supervision of construction, but is the index of growth and prosperity upon which innumerable commercial transactions are based.

"QUIT thinking and talking about hard times and go to work," J. M. Bland advises in an address to the Real Estate Board as the remedy for business depression.

Mr. Bland might have added that this rule holds good in any business, large or small. Periods of depression are in a large part at least due to psychological reasons.

A business man hears that there is a "depression" in some other industry, he immediately becomes over-cautious in his own affairs; he exudes pessimism; and soon he has convinced other business men that "times are hard." All this to the detriment of his own and general business conditions.

Such periods of depression would continue without end if there could not be found men in all communities who follow Mr. Bland's advice to "quit thinking and talking hard times and go to work."

And when men quit thinking and talking hard times, and go to work building up business, there is almost as if by magic the end of "hard times."

IF The Record News understands correctly the provisions and possibilities of the new banking law under which the First National company of Wichita Falls has been organized, the new act will be of wide benefit to investors, as well as to banks and financial institutions.

The number of persons with bank accounts, with savings, with accumulations in money and goods has shown a large increase during the last few years. Habits of thrift are becoming more general, with the result that savings have shown a huge increase both in amount and number.

It is natural for such people to seek safe and profitable investments for their money, and it is entirely likely that they will look first to their own bankers for such service. If the new law makes it possible to secure such investment service at home, then it's a good law for everybody.

SUPERINTENDENT MARRS has let it be known that the state apportionment for the next scholastic season will be $15 per child, "which will be the largest in the history of Texas." Of course the gasoline tax did it, and Superintendent Marrs places the credit where the credit belongs.

He has discovered that the increased tax and the increased gasoline consumption produced more money than was expected and will result in a balance of more than $1,000,000 on Sept. 1 to the credit of the available school fund.

ACCORDING to the state superintendent of education, the number of scholastics for the coming season is 1,360,000, and with the $15 state apportionment, Texas' expenditure on the schools will be $20,400,000, the largest ever made in the history of the state. If the figures are correct, and they clearly demonstrate that they are doing [illegible]

Wichita Farmers Tell Visitors Success Of Irrigation

MANY NEW CROPS

Wichita Falls, Burk, Vernon, Electra, Iowa Park Men On Trip

Possibilities of irrigated farming, proof of profit from diversification and variety of crops and small farm products were demonstrated in a thorough and highly satisfactory manner to approximately 100 farmers and business men of Northwest Texas Wednesday, on a tour of the Wichita irrigated valley headed by J. A. Kemp, the originator of the project.

A motor caravan of 23 cars transported the investigators from Vernon, Electra, Burkburnett, Iowa Park and Wichita Falls over about seven representative areas of the district—and into a new enthusiasm for the potential development of similar lands in the Pease river vally.

Visitors Impressed

The tour was made in the interest of this Pease river project, now under consideration of residents of Vernon, Electra, Burkburnett and surrounding communities, and it is believed that the visual proof of value in the investment will offer a tangible influence in furthering its consumption. Each of the men on the trip, both enthusiasts and skeptics, were obviously impressed with the prosperous condition of the farms vis-

ARRESTS MAY SOLVE SERIES OF BURGLARIES

Prisoner Who Smashed City Jail Held On New Charge

WARRANTS ISSUED

Two Men Arrested In Oklahoma Face Cases Here

Frank Davis, charged with burglary in Wichita Falls and in Archer county, who escaped from the city jail here May 23, was brought from Waurika Wednesday and placed in the county jail by Special Officer Bill Louthian of the Fort Worth and Denver.

Davis was arrested early Tuesday by Waurika officers to whom he gave the name of J. G. Gordon. When arrested he was driving a car alleged to have been stolen Sunday night from Lotta Graham at Lake Wichita. Graham has identified the car as his.

Officers to Waurika.

Local police were notified by Waurika officials of the arrest and Night Captain James Glenn with Officer Noah Daves went to Waurika Wednesday morning. They did not recognize Davis, each having seen him only once previously when they arrested Davis and three other men at a cache of tools in the residence section here.

Davis escaped from the city jail the night following his arrest by knocking a hole in the plastered wall of his cell.

When arrested in Waurika he had in his possession more than $125, officers stated.

Davis refused to return to Wichita Falls with Officers Glenn and Daves and local police were taking steps to obtain requisition papers when Mr. Louthian arrived with the prisoner Wednesday night.

Mr. Louthian stated that he was in Waurika on other business and hearing that officers there held the man, asked to see him. He readily recognized Davis and persuaded him to come to Wichita Falls.

Requisition Sought.

County officers and police were speculating Wednesday as to the true identity of a man being held by police at Shawnee, Okla., who was said to have been driving an automobile stolen here from J. B. Lovejoy when arrested.

A warrant charging Frank Burnett, which name was given Shawnee officers by the man, with the theft of the automobile was mailed to Shawnee Wednesday afternoon. The man has refused to be returned to Texas and a requisition for his removal to this state will be made, according to Dick Morris, deputy sheriff.

Shawnee officers advised members of Sheriff W. G. Bralley's department that the man had in his possession, coin wrappers and a large sum of money when arrested.

May Clear Robberies.

Officers in the police and sheriff's departments were of the opinion Wednesday that robberies here Sunday night may be cleared up with the arrest of the two men.

More than $600 was taken from the safe of the Wichita Falls Laundry at 600 Austin street Sunday night when burglars entered the establishment through a rear window.

With a 10-year-old boy as his only passenger, E. B. Bouriand, Factory street car motorman, was held up and robbed by two unmasked men shortly after midnight Sunday morning.

Davis is under indictment in Archer county on a charge of burglarizing the Wichita Valley station at Dundee.

BLIND KITTY

Morgan Finds 200 Bottles Hidden Under Cat's Bed

In searching a house in the southern part of the city Tuesday night, Constable Frank Morgan and two deputies found a "live blind" for beer stores kept in the house.

The officers had located a small quantity of beer in a large ice box and were of the opinion that still more of the beverage was there if they could just hit upon its hiding place.

A deputy pulled a large box from under a bed and was surprised to find a cat and nine kittens in their night's repose. The box seemed too heavy to contain only the kitties and the papers on which they were sleeping so he picked up the papers. Under them were more than 200 bottles of home brew. The owner of the house was arrested.

Maitland Pilots Plane To Honolulu In Record Time Mark

By Universal Service.

HONOLULU, June 29.—Having enjoyed breakfast yesterday morning with his parents in Oakland, Lieut. Lester Maitland accompanied by his navigator, Albert Hegenberger, had their morning repast in Honolulu today following their 2406-mile non-stop flight from the Oakland municipal airport to this city in the remarkable time of 25 hours and 57 minutes.

They took off in their giant Fokker monoplane at 7:08 a. m., Pacific coast time, and landed at Wheeler field here at 9:05 a. m., coast time. The great plane made a perfect landing. The plane was in excellent condition when it arrived. The aviators said they had followed the radio beacon route most of the way.

The huge crowd which had waited patiently all night for the first signs of dawn and the possibility of an early morning landing, let go a mighty shout as Maitland and Hegenberger circled the field and came to a perfect stop.

Pilot Is Hungry

"I'm hungry," were the first words uttered by Lieutenant Hegenberger as he stepped from the little cabin of the plane.

Last Message From Byrd's Radio Tells Of Difficulty In Navigating Thru Fog

ROOSEVELT FIELD, New York, June 30. (Thursday) — (AP) — The Fokker monoplane America with Commander Byrd and his crew was going strong at 12:30 a. m., E. D. T., according to a message received here from the Chatham, Mass., station of the Radio Corporation of America, which reported that the automatic signals from the plane could be heard distinctly. It was estimated that the plane was about 1400 miles from the Chatham station.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, New York, June 29. (AP)—The station of the Radio Corporation of America at Chatham, Mass., sent the following message to the Byrd hangar at 10:30 p. m., E. D. T.:

"We are receiving the automatic radio signals from the America so loud that they would knock your hat off."

LONDON, June 30. (AP)—The government radio station at Malinhead, at the northern extremity of Ireland, reports that it heard a wireless signal from the trans-Atlantic plane America at 2:30 o'clock this morning (Greenwich mean time), but there were no particulars as to the progress of the flight. (This was 8:30 p. m. Wichita Falls time).

NEW YORK, June 29. (AP)—The French Cable company announced tonight that the trans-Atlantic plane America had been sighted by the steamer Chalutier, 200 miles east of St. John's N. F., according to a radio dispatch picked up by the company's station at Saint Pierre, Miquelon.

(By the Associated Press)

Diving into a perilous North Atlantic area of adverse winds and soup-thick fog, the monoplane America last night winged its way along the now well-blazed air trail from New York to Paris.

While Honolulu in the far Pacific acclaimed two other intrepid American fliers who had waved California goodbye barely a day earlier, Commander Richard E. Byrd started upon the second, and more dangerous lap of his own effort to make aviation history. It comprises about 1860 unbroken miles over the blustery Atlantic.

Weather conditions prevented a positive check of the coastal point where the America left the misty Newfoundland coast, but members of the flight staff at Roosevelt field, New York, estimated the plane was at least 160 miles at sea by 8:20 p. m. (Eastern daylight time).

The last direct communication from Byrd up to that time noted the meeting with dense fogs which made it "impossible to navigate" (to accurately chart bearings). Byrd reached the St. Johns coast, a dispatch from that town said, around 6:42 p. m. (E. D. T.), or about 12 hours after his departure from New York.

Even the fact that slight trouble was being experienced on board the monoplane became instantly known by means of radio from the plane. At 8:14 Byrd reported that compass trouble was being occasioned by the extra gas tanks. Again when gas was to be pumped the radio was stilled to avoid possibility of a spark igniting the fuel, but before the pumping was begun Byrd informed radio stations what was in progress so that there might be no alarm occasioned by the ensuing silence.

The America is the first transAtlantic plane from which it has been possible to conduct communication tests as both Charles Lindbergh and Clarence Chamberlin forebore carrying radio sets.

The flight got under way this morning with a suddenness in striking contrast with the many delays which held up a start during the month and a half the plane had been waiting at Roosevelt field.

At midnight last night there was an announcement that continuing bad weather made a takeoff impossible for today. And barely an hour later a counter-announcement was made that the hop would be taken at dawn.

James H. Kimball of the weather bureau revealed today that the abrupt change was occasioned by discovery of an error of 0.15 of an inch in a ship's barometer off Cape Race. The barometer indicated a low pressure area which led the weather man to advise against a takeoff, but later wireless information showed the barometer to have been at fault and the low pressure area to have cleared up.

CONGRATULATIONS!

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 29. (AP)—Complying with a request from the America, Grover A. Whalen, vice-president of the America Trans-Oceanic company, backers of the Byrd flight, today sent the following message to the army fliers who flew to Honolulu:

"Commander Byrd, U. S. N., commanding the America, while in flight to Paris learned by radio of your own epochal accomplishment and has asked me to congratulate you by cable."

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 29.—The America, carrying Commander Richard Byrd and his three associates in a non-stop flight from New York to Paris, tonight was battling heavy fogs over the open Atlantic. Radio messages from Byrd, relayed from Lewisburg, Nova Scotia, confirmed the reports of bad weather conditions on the Newfoundland coast was carried in earlier dispatches from Universal Service correspondents in Newfoundland.

Commander Byrd's message was received at 6:39 o'clock p. m., New York D. S. T., and read:

"Dense fog covers all Newfoundland. Getting above it. Have had bad adverse winds, impossible to navigate. Can hardly see the wing tips. Running into another one now. Byrd."

ST. JOHN'S N. F., June 29. (AP)—The America passed over Bellevue near Whitburne, at 6:42 (E. D. T.) headed east.

Whitburne is about 40 miles southwest of St. Johns, indicating that the fliers probably would pass out to sea at a point near this city, instead of over Cape Race, as a message from Byrd's plane had forecast.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., June 29. (AP)—The America passed over Garnish in the Fortune Bay district at 5.35 (E. D. T.) headed in a southeasterly direction, according to advices received tonight.

Weather conditions off this coast which were improving early this afternoon turned bad again late in the day, fog and mist driving on shore when the wind hauled to the northeast. Visibility was poor here and Cape Race reported similar conditions.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 29. (AP)—Commander Richard E. Byrd wirelessed the following message to the Trans-Oceanic company at 5:12 p. m., eastern daylight time, today:

"Crew in good condition. Head winds are bothering us. Cape Race is the last station we will raise on this coast. Regards to all the hangar crew."

PARIS, June 29. (AP)—Instructions from Commander Richard E. Byrd have been received by the air union chief of the French commercial airline to have 4400 liters (about 960 gallons) of gasoline waiting for him at LeBourget, leading to the belief here that he intends to return to the United States by air.

"Last Word" Not Yet Said in Police Controversy; Says Dr. Packard

"The public is entitled to have the facts, and I agree with Mr. Carter on that score," Dr. Paul Henry Packard, pastor of the Highland Heights Christian church, said Wednesday when asked by The Record News if he would have any other statement to make.

"I have not yet had my last word, however, and while Mr. Carter may consider the case closed, I may have facts also which the public is entitled to," Dr. Packard declared.

Dr. Packard, who severely criticized the administration of the police department by Mr. Carter in a sermon two weeks ago, declared he will resume discussion of police affairs at the services at his church Sunday night.

Just what Dr. Packard's procedure or subject will be Sunday night could not be learned. He declined to say whether he would elaborate on charges previously made against Mr. Carter's administration, or would merely reply to the statement issued by the police commissioner at the meeting of the city council Monday night.

In issuing his statement to the council, Mr. Carter said he would have no other comment to make in the controversy, unless he considered subsequent statements to be erroneous.

State Engineer Here To Supervise Work

PAY FOR FISHING

Ever get paid to catch fish?

Somebody is going to have this opportunity, according to S. G. Garrett, superintendent in charge of new construction work for fish hatcheries under the fish and game commission of Texas.

"Yes, sir, we are going to actually pay men to fish," Mr. Garrett said.

"When the fish hatchery ponds at the Diversion lake are completed, which we hope will be at an early day, we are going to employ some fishermen to catch fish at the Diversion lake to be placed in these ponds. Of course there will also be brood fish shipped in from other points."

S. G. Garrett, chief engineer for the fish, game and oyster commission of Texas, is in Wichita Falls and will remain here until the ponds for the fish hatchery at the Diversion lake are constructed. He will superintend the construction work.

Bids are now being advertised for the construction work and will be opened in Austin on July 9. The work is to be completed just as quickly as possible for the work to be done. There are to be 12 ponds, each 200 by 250 feet. They will be entirely of concrete and will be located about 800 feet below the dam, on the north bank of the Wichita River.

Mr. Garrett was in conference Wednesday with Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce. The local organization was instrumental in having the hatchery located at the Diversion dam.

Mr. Garrett announced that the bids for the construction work will be opened July 9, and immediately thereafter the work will start.

Hawaii Gives Fliers Welcome

first request of Lieutenant Maitland, as he stuck his blonde head from the pilot's compartment with a great grin.

"They put in coffee and sandwiches, just before we started, but we couldn't find them," Hegenberger explained.

"Congratulations my boy," General Edward Lewis, commander of the department of Hawaii, said to Maitland as he clambored from the plane.

"That's fine, thanks," responded Maitland, "but give me a cigarette."

Army, navy and civilian officials extended the aviators their welcome and congratulations for adding a new chapter to a man-made bird conquest of the air.

Gov. Wallace Farrington, Major Charles Arnold, Admiral John McDonald, General Edward Lewis, of the department of Hawaii and fellow officers were first to pay their homage to the intrepid fliers who had conquered the vast expanse of the Pacific ocean from the mainland to these tiny islands.

It was a genuine home-coming for Lieutenant Maitland, for seven years ago, he was stationed here and had then predicted that an airplane would conquer the trackless wastes of the Pacific. In fact he had expressed a wish that he would be the first to do it.

"We had a fine trip," the fliers chorused as officials hung lies over their heads and escorted them to the platform for their official welcome.

Both aviators were enthusiastically welcomed by their buddies to whom they confided that their "type E" compass was the only one that functioned on the trip.

Fliers Are Happy

They looked cheerful and happy as they walked to the platform amid cheers. Neither indicated in appearance the great strain they must have been under during the trip.

"You have made this a great day for yourselves and your country," said Gov. Wallace Farrington in extending his official welcome to the Territory of Hawaii, when they reached the platform.

DEAD RECKONING USED ON HAWAIIAN FLIGHT.

WHEELER FIELD, ISLAND OF OAHU, Hawaii, June 29. (AP)—Here's the story of the Hawaiian flight as told by Lieutenants Lester J. Maitland and Albert Hegenberger:

"We made the flight by dead reckoning with the aid of a few celestial observations.

"The radio beacon worked for the first hour after we took off from Oakland and then went off. It came on again for a short time last night, however.

"When we landed we had enough gas left for an additional eight hundred miles of flying. There were more than 250 gallons left.

"We fought unfavorable weather conditions all the way. During the night we flew at an altitude of 10,000 feet in order to get above the clouds so we could see the stars.

"During the daylight hours virtually all our flying was at a height of 300 feet to be under the clouds.

"We did not always know our location, but we didn't get lost."

The aviators said they had motor trouble about midnight in the center motor of the big plane, but it was functioning perfectly when the fliers landed.

"My Plane and I—

FROM THE LIPS OF LINDY HIMSELF"

(When Col. Charles Lindbergh landed at LeBourget Field, Paris, after his epochal flight from New York, William Hillman, Universal Service writer, was waiting for him. They met and never separated until New York's great reception for the Atlantic ace. To Hillman, Lindbergh told his story intimately as friend to friend. Hillman is now writing under title "My Plane and I From the Lips of Lindy Himself," a 60,000-word story for The Wichita Falls Record News and associated newspapers in Universal Service. The 12th chapter of this story appears in today's issue.)

BY WILLIAM HILLMAN
(Copyright 1927, By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

LINDY CAME TO PARIS IN THE SPRING

Chestnut blossoms were shedding their petals along the Champs Elysees. Pink and white flowers were filling the Bois De Boulogne with their perfume. The boulevards were gay with increasing number of visitors. There was laughter in the streets, and up in Montmartre the night lights were beginning to twinkle gayer than at any time for a year.

To be in Paris in the spring is to ask for no greater holiday.

"Rich Americans go to Paris while they live, good Americans go to Paris when they die," is an old saying.

If that is true, Lindy will have to see most of Paris when he dies, if he does not get another chance to return. Lindy saw less of Paris in a week than an American school "marm" sees in 24 hours on her tour of Europe in two weeks, six hours and 40 minutes, exactly to the schedule to permit her to catch the train in New York for Minnehokum, somewhere in the Middle West.

Lindy could give you a fairly good design of the interior of the American embassy, how the chamber of deputies and various government buildings look, how some of the streets crowded with thousands appear. But Lindy never walked the streets of Paris alone, never walked along the boulevards or sat at a terrace table to drink a glass of coffee as Parisians do, even without prohibition.

He saw the champs Elysees speeding in an automobile. He got a close view of the Arc de Triomphe as he flew low over it early one morning when he stole away from the embassy several hours before Ambassador Herrick was up.

He saw the Eiffel tower from the air only, once when he flew above it on the night of his arrival from New York, twice subsequently when he piloted a French plane over the city and once when he flew to Brussels.

"I've seen the Eiffel tower from above," Lindy lamented, "but I'd like to go up it and look down on Paris from the top."

But Lindy was not so fortunate. He could not even see Montmartre where Americans go to be dazzled by the artificial sophistication of this world capital.

He Saw Paris From Air.

"Gee," Lindy complained, "I'd sure like to walk along these Paris boulevards I've heard so much about. But I never got a chance. I'd like to be able to get about Paris without having someone rush up to me and ask me for an autograph or ask me about my flight. They say Paris is a beautiful city, I guess it is. But I haven't been able to see it. I expected to have a good time in Paris."

On the third morning of his stay in Paris, Lindy was smuggled into an automobile and driven out to Versailles to see the magic palace of the kings of France. He slipped away unnoticed accompanied only by two members of the embassy staff.

He was thrilled by the ride and the sight of Versailles.

"A great sight," he said. "It would be fine if I could see all of Paris that way."

But that was his first and only trip in Paris unobserved.

"Have you seen anything of the night life of Paris?" Lindy was asked.

"Only from the air," was Lindy's quick response. "When I flew over it just before landing at Le Bourget. Guess that isnt seeing much of the night life."

Much fantastic nonsense has been written about Lindbergh's arrival in Paris. Writers, stirred by the madness and the tears of the crowd that greeted him at Le Bourget, unconsciously colored the words of Lindbergh with the dramatic quality of his welcome.

Lindy did not say:

"I am Charles Lindbergh."

That would have smacked too much of the dramatic from so modest a lad.

Nor did he say:

"Is this Paris?"

He knew where he was.

Lindy's first words were as realistic and direct as all his life and all his plans had been.

He Wants Water.

"Does anyone seak English?" he asked. "I'd like some water."

But he got no chance to say more. He could not hear the few of us who could speak English and who were right by his side offering to help him. We were as powerless as he was as the frenzied mob hoisted him to their shoulders, yanked at his arms, showered him with kisses, shouted and wept and spoke to him in a language of which Lindbergh did not know a word.

And from that moment on, Lindbergh was destined to be swept off his feet and deprived of his liberty. He had counted on being alone. Was he so naive as some would suspect because he brought letters of introduction with him?

Perhaps. But he was realistic!

"Naturally I expected my flight would arouse some attention," he told me. "I hoped aviation would get some further recognition as the result of a successful New York to Paris flight. But I did not expect such a welcome."

And what man could have predicted it?

"I though that a few days after my arrival," Lindy continued, "I could get settled down and go about my plans to do some flying in Europe. I had no intention of imposing on anyone without the proper credentials. I did not expect to be a guest of the American ambassador."

Lindy attempted nothing haphazard, not even to the extent of going about Europe with any lost motion.

But when Lindy awoke Sunday morning after ten and a half hours of sound refreshing sleep, he realized his plans were shattered.

Paris was en fete. The American flag was flying side by side with the French tri-color over all government buildings. Lindbergh's name was on everyone's lips.

They Call For Lindy

Thousands gathered around the American embassy and waited for hours calling on Lindbergh to appear on the balcony.

"Au balcon, au balcon," was the cry that went up, a cry that was to be repeated daily in Paris and in Brussels and to be translated into its English equivalent in London "to the balcony."

It was late afternoon when Lindbergh, bare-headed, smiling, unassuming appeared on the balcony of the embassy with the ambassador. He was clad in the borrowed suit which hung loosely on him, giving him a slightly gawky appearance. But his radiant smile transformed him into a handsome god.

It was raining when Lindbergh stepped out on the balcony but suddenly the sun burst through and the rain stopped.

"Lindbergh luck" someone whispered. "It can't rain when he's around." It did look as if the elements were staging things for Lindy.

Lindy stood nervously with his hands resting on the balcony railing. His sandy hair blew in the wind. He lifted his hand in his now famous salute, a cross between a fascist salute and an ordinary hand wave, in which he brings his hand to the level of his head, waves it once or twice, then holds it aloft for a second or two.

"Vive Lindbergh, vive Lindbergh" the mob shouted.

"What are they saying," asked Lindy.

"They are shouting 'long live Lindbergh'," Ambassador Herrick told him, and Lindy's face flushed to the very roots of his hair.

The ambassador brought out a French flag and Lindy and he held it while the mob went in frenzy.

"The American flag. The American flag," the crowd shouted and as Lindy and the ambassador held the stars and stripes tears were flowing freely in the street.

Then the tide of visitors and messages began to pour into the embassy. The French press hailed Lindy as it had not hailed anyone since the heroes of the World war were lauded.

"I had no reason to believe anything like this would happen to me," Lindy said. "It was great. I want the French people to know how much I appreciate it. I know America would have given Nungesser and Coli as great an acclaim."

Five days of strenuous rounds of receptions and banquets and speeches followed. Lindy, a smiling bashful boy became a serious faced man.

How earnest he appeared when speakers addressed him in French. He would look straight at the speaker as if he understood every word that was being spoken.

"I've been able to learn only two French words," Lindy said after listening to many speeches. "They are 'incroyable' and 'formidable.' I certainly hear them often enough."

"Incroyable' means 'unbelievable.'

'Formidable' means formidable, as in English.

Kisses Feaze Him

Only one thing Lindy could not accustom himself to and that was being kissed on both cheeks when greeted or decorted by prominent men.

"It's funny, isn't it," he said. "It's kind of hard to get used to."

When he was kissed by Bleriot, first aviator to fly across the English channel, Lindy squirmed a bit and a shy smile was on his lips. He was embarrased when photographers asked him to pose a minute and Bleriot kissed him again.

"Those photographers would drive you crazy," said Lindy after. "They'd make you mad if you gave them a chance."

And after a second's thought, added: "The French people are emotional, aren't they?"

(Next chapter—Lindy at the foot of the staircase—deal with Lindy's interviews in Paris, Brussels and London).

CAMP FIRE GIRLS RETURN

Craterville Camp Held "Best Ever"

After spending two happy weeks of work and play at Craterville Park, Okla., Wichita Falls district Camp Fire Girls returned to their homes Wednesday. The two weeks living out of doors proved of much benefit to the girls and all declared it to have been the most successful camp this year.

On Friday evening, 31 girls from the camp went on an overnight hike, carrying with them all necessary articles and after choosing a shady place, were soon busy passing requirements in camp craft necessary to obtain the camp craft hiking honor. This honor is especially for out-door activities.

Girls On Watch.

During the "watch," each girl was sentry 13 minutes, the last girl waking the entire camp at 3:30 a. m. when the party went on a moonlight hike which ended two hours later upon the highest peak on vesper rocks with an early morning inspirational service.

On Sunday evening after an afternoon of sleep and rest, the girls went on a treasure hunt. Four trail-blazers left the camp ahead of the others and blazed a trail through the trees which finally ended at Cannon Ball mountain, a historic old Indian spot. The treasure was found by Mrs. Nelle Jones after a long search, and proved to be a real treasure, a pair of miniature beaded Indian moccasins for each girl.

On Sunday morning a joint Boy Scout and Camp Fire Girl Sunday school was held in the oak grove behind Bush Inn at Craterville Park when about 90 Boy Scouts from El Reno, Okla., district, together with the girls, participated in the service.

"Making the Best of Things" Sounds Trite But It's Not a Bad Medicine

Counting the Blessings of a Poor Sick, Worn-Out Mother — Is There Any More Harm in Playing Cards Than Playing Checkers? —Should the Girl Who Petted Before Her Engagement Tell Her Fiance?

Dear Dorothy Dix:—I am fed up on people who are sitting pretty in this world, with all the good things thereof, who have the nerve to advise those of us "to make the best of things" when we are straining every penny to make both ends meet. When you have had the walking grip for several weeks and had to go on with your work because there was nobody else to do it; when your doctor tells you that you must take a day's rest and you can't do it because there is nobody to take care of your little children; when you are shabby, although all of your former friends are dressed well, wouldn't it get your goat to have a wealthy neighbor tell you "to make the best of things?"

ONE OF YOUR READERS.

Answer: It certainly would. It surely does make us want to throw things at those who stand on the sideline and bear our misfortunes so philosophically.

It's always so easy for the well and strong to tell the sick how patiently they should bear their sufferings. So easy for those who ride in limousines to point out to the pedestrians how good walking is for their health. So easy for the rich to perceive the blessings of poverty.

But, after all, dear lady, the great secret of happiness is to be found only "in making the best of things" as they are, now and here.

For happiness is an illusive thing that has no fixed time, nor abiding place, nor condition of being. No one may say with certainty, "I will be happy five years from now or twenty years from now," or "I will be happy when I have such and such a thing, and can live in such and such a way."

For when the hour strikes that we have set for happiness and we have achieved the things that we were so sure would bring up happiness, something may have happened that will make happiness impossible. The spirit may have gone out of us, the joy of life be dead within us, or we may have lost the one without whom there can be no happiness for us in this world.

So we have to make our happiness as we go along by making the best of what we have and squeezing every drop of pleasure out of it. This is a hard thing to do when one is sick and tired and overworked and lacks for the luxuries for which one's very soul craves. But we make things better, or worse, by our attitude toward them and you can get a lot of pleasure out of even adverse conditions if you will.

As long as you do not suffer actual want you can get happiness out of poverty, especially when you are young and you and your husband are working up together. You are too close to it now to see it, but you are living the great American romance. For there is no story more dramatic, more full of thrill than that of the poor young couple who fight shoulder to shoulder, sharing each other's every thought and plan and hope.

You have your husband as no rich woman has her husband. You are necessary to him as no rich woman is to her husband. Your life is fuller and far more interesting than the life of any millionairess.

I have heard many a rich woman say that the best years of her life were those in which she sewed and washed and cooked and pushed her own baby perambulator and walked twenty squares to find a cheaper butcher when she was helping her husband get his start in the world.

Nobody will deny that it is nerve-racking to take care of little children, but whether motherhood is a curse or a blessing depends entirely on how you take it. You can make the best of it. You can find joy in your children's little arms around your neck. You can find interest in watching their little minds develop. You can enjoy them now instead of waiting for them to grow up.

You have your youth, you have a husband who loves you, and little children. The gods have been good to you. Enjoy your blessings.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix:—As far back as I can remember mother has always instilled superstitious thoughts in us and they make me very miserable at times. Can you suggest a cure? What do you think of a Christian playing cards in a sociable way? I don't see why card playing is any more harm than checkers if played for entertainment and not for money.

PERPLEXED.

Answer: The remedy for superstition is simple. It consists in using a little common sense.

Just ask yourself why you should be any more likely to meet with an accident on Friday the 13th than on Thursday the 21st, or Saturday the 14th; or how a black cat running across your path could possibly affect your life, or how tea leaves in a cup could indicate whether you are going to make a rich marriage or not, and you will laugh at yourself for your folly.

Superstition is the offspring of ignorance and it melts away like snow in the sun when you turn the rays of intelligence upon it. Don't worry over signs and portends. They mean absolutely nothing except what you make them mean by your fears.

There is no harm in playing cards unless you do it to excess, or you gamble with them. You can make a vice of everything, no matter how innocent it is in itself.

Card playing in moderation is a pleasant way of entertaining one's self. Tallyrand advised us all to learn how to play a good game of whist in our youth in order that we might not spend a boresome old age.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix:—Before I became engaged to the most wonderful man in the world I was quite a necker and petter. I was very popular with the boys and kissed them all. Now my fiance has the idea that I was an earthly saint and that he is the first man who ever kissed me. Should I let him think it or tell him the truth?

EX-FLAPPER.

Answer: You probably exaggerate the optimism and credulous disposition of your fiance. Few men in this day are hopeful enough to believe that they are giving a girl her first petting party.

In former times a maiden saved her lips for the man she married. Nowadays her first kiss has gone to pay some callow youth for buying her a glass of ice-cream soda or taking her to the movies.

And why should men who make petting and necking the price of their attentions to girls and who expect to be permitted to kiss every girl they go with, demand an unkissed girl as a wife? Serves them right that they have damaged goods that has been pawed over until all the freshness and bloom has been rubbed off.

If your fiance asks you the point-blank question whether you ever kissed a man or not, tell him the truth and won't apologize for it. He knows it anyway, because if you had many beaux it is self-evident that you are not over-particular.

But if he doesn't ask you, don't volunteer the information. He would rather not know and prefers to give you the benefit of the doubt.

DOROTHY DIX.

Meteor Falls Near Cyclist

While people in all parts of England viewed the falling of a meteor recently, Reginald Harvey had a close view that was not expected or desired. Harvey was cycling near Oxfordshire when "a ball of fire the size of a cocoanut" shot past him, whistling, and hit the road 20 feet ahead of him. Rushing to the spot, Harvey could find only gray ashes strewn about the ground.

Synthetic Tobacco Liked

Germany, the country of substitutes, now has synthetic tobacco. Chemists there have perfected a method by which thin sheets of prepared paper are impregnated with chemically made nicotine. It is dyed and perfumed to resemble the real weed, and then made into cigars. The "chemical smokes" are said to burn evenly, and are becoming popular in Berlin.

MODISH MITZI — The Climate Is Also Different — By JAY V. JAY

It's all a matter of climate. Mitzi is really feeling this morning that she should buy herself just a few more summer clothes. You see—it's so different in Paris . . . that's where Mitzi bought her tailored plaid silk dressing gown, in case you'd like to know.

Mitzi must, she really must, have at least one of these smart short-jacket ensembles that are being made of printed linen or cotton.

Mitzi is sure she saw this one on the boulevards of Paris no more than three weeks ago and wishes she had bought it then.

Here's another. With a frock of plain green linen and a jacket of white linen with green coin dots sprinkled over it. There's no chance for argument or indecision, Mitzi must buy herself a linen ensemble as soon as she can get to the shops to see them.

She did buy one. Here it is. A white linen piped in red with a jolly little white and red hat to match. Being dressed in the newest style in her own native city and having ordered a tall glass of iced tea Mitzi feels completely acclimatized to America again!

Tomorrow—Hats from Paris and Elsewhere.

Speaking Of Lieutenant Governors

PAT MORRIS NEFF practically ignored Lynch Davidson while Pat was governor and Lynch was lieutenant governor. Lynch never became acting governor. T. W. Davidson was more fortunate. He officiated as acting governor when Pat was called out of the state.

Barry Miller was elected lieutenant governor when Ma Ferguson became governor of Texas. Barry never was given a chance to appear in the roll of acting governor. The Fergusons kept close to the throne. They did not venture beyond the borders of the commonwealth.

Now Barry has his inning. He remarked to a reporter in the city of Dallas before boarding a train for Austin, "Dan has given me his instructions; I'm going to sit tight."

In the closing days of the Wilson administration the friends of Barry Miller submitted his name to the president for a place on the federal bench. He had powerful backing. Charles A. Culberson was one of his backers. They had been life-long personal and political friends.

One man prevented the nomination of Miller. He was a member of the cabinet of Woodrow Wilson. He did not like Miller. He did not question the personal integrity or the legal qualifications of the man who is today acting governor of Texas. He made it a personal matter.

Woodrow Wilson turned down Culberson, his loyal supporter, and named another man. This is a bit of political history that has not appeared in print. If Charles A. Culberson had won his point it would be Federal Judge Barry Miller now and not Acting Governor Barry Miller.

This is one of the incidents in the life of a man who was a little page in the federal congress and who came to Texas at the age of 16 to study law and make a name for himself in Alamo land.

Free Pass Law Invalid

LAWMAKERS of the 40th sent a minister's free pass bill over the top in the senate and the house. Its caption declared it to be an act to permit railroads to issue free passes or free transportation to ministers of the gospel "as they see fit."

Now the discovery has been made that the free pass bill for the ministers is a meaningless jumble of words and the champions of the measure will have to appeal to another session for its reenactment.

James Stephen Hogg is responsible for the anti-pass law. He found it to be one of the crowning evils of politics and legislation. He crusaded against the free pass as attorney general, as governor and later as a private citizen, a leader of the people until he had smashed the practice.

He won but he had to carry his cause to the people after he had retired to private life. Now why a free pass?

Colquitt in the Spotlight

FORMER Governor Oscar B. Colquitt will not need a summer vacation. He is chairman of the state tax survey commission. He is for Governor Victor Donahey of Ohio for president in 1928. He has brought suit for $350,000 damages for alleged libel, naming Hon. Lynch Davidson as the defendant.

He is looking after his oil interest. He is digging into reports on taxation matters gathered from the 48 states and the capital at Washington.

Late in the winter months he declared his honorable intention of making the race for United States senator next year, "unless he changed his mind." This former governor must be an able body and persistent seeker for trouble—as well as for work.

Why Education Is High

IT is announced that the first school census of Dallas was taken in 1885 when the city had 3204 scholastics. In the closing months of 1926 another census was taken.

It disclosed the total number of children between the age of 7 and 17 years in the city of Dallas is 47,411, as compared with 46,476 for 1926, and there are men who growl because of the increased cost of education in Texas.

There are upwards of 1,500,000 children of scholastic age in the state. Thomas Jefferson insisted that it was the duty of the commonwealth to develop the brains and train the hands of all the children of all the people. Was he right?

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON ROSCOE

NEW YORK, June 29, (EFS)—Promenades of an impressionist: At Eighth avenue and Fifty-eighth street a vast crowd is attracted before a window shop in which a man is demonstrating a reversible shirt. There is pathos in this for three reasons: (1) Soiled linen is a handicap to a man looking for a job, (2) New York, which used to be a clean city, is so dirty now on account of the subway excavations and the building activities that a clean shirt and collar are soiled by noon and unpresentable by six at night, and (3) laundry charges are now a stiff item in the expenses of a man out of work and out of a job. But think of the guilty secret of one with soiled linen turned in on him!

Terence Holliday, the bookseller, asked half a dozen authors which book they read the oftenest. Arnold Bennett's "Old Wives Tale" and George Moore's "Hail and Farewell" appeared on three lists. Ben Hampton, the great promoter and motion picture organizer, told me today that if you told a publisher ten years ago that he could sell 5000 copies of a book on philosophy, the publisher would not merely think you were kidding, he would think you were a dangerous lunatic and would surreptitiously signal his stenographer to call up an insane asylum and have them send over half a dozen strong men to take you away. "The Story of Philosophy" has been bought by a quarter of a million people.

At Coney Island the greatest paying attraction is "The Pit," a house with moving stairways, convex and concave mirrors, floors that move up and down, sudden chutes in which the customers are sent plunging down an incline, and whirling floors. But the chief of these devices is a runaway over which the customers pass, and in the floor of the runway there are several holes through which sudden blasts of compressed air are released. This air blows the skirts of the girls above their heads. Near the runway is a gallery for spectators. The gallery is jammed with men, most of whom stay there for hours, watching the skirts go up. Two or three girls are employed by the management to cross the runway every so often, not only to satisfy the male customers but to lead other girls to do likewise. These "repeaters" employed by the management make little effort to hold their skirts down.

Coney Island, a large city devoted entirely to amusement, is a well policed and well-behaved community. It is the haven of the young proletarians out for a night of fun and excitement. Most of the amusement devices are designed to afford young couples an opportunity for a bit of necking, or to throw them violently into contact in such a way that the girl will have to throw her arms about the boy in fright or be tossed against him. But although girls in couples and threes parade the streets of that lighted city often until long after midnight, eating hot-dogs, drinking lemonade, getting their fortunes told and riding merry-go-rounds, they are safe from molestation and even from unwanted advances from men. The city swarms with plain clothes detectives who are on the lookout for mashers and their treatment of offenders is summary. Moreover courtesy is the rule in Coney Island. I have never seen attendants more obliging in giving information and directions. Gone is the old method of concessionaires, that of grabbing people by the arm as they pass by and almost making them spend money at the stand. If you inquire of a hot-dog emporium as to where you can get a hamburger, you are given directions politely instead of being collared and forced to eat a hot-dog instead. The militant commercialism of the place is gone and instead there is an atmosphere of politeness and good humor.

For ten years motion picture producers have tried to get George Bernard Shaw to permit his plays to be made into movies. They have tempted him with fabulous offers. But Shaw has steadfastly refused. It appears now that Horace Liveright, a publisher and play producer who has never been actively in the motion picture business, may induce Shaw to allow his plays to appear on the screen. Liveright has offered Shaw $100,000 or the motion picture rights to "The Devil's Disciple" and Shaw has gone so far as to agree with a counter condition that the rights in the film revert to him after five years. The film producers represented by Liveright have not yet agreed to this condition; but if they do, it will be a triumph for Liveright, for he will have succeeded where every magnate in Hollywood has failed.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

Phillip Wynne Tracy IV has had a childish engagement with Natlee Jones. Then he becomes interested in Lyra Hilliard, an old friend of his mother's and finds out he is falling in love with her.

The whole affair, however, sinks into nothingness because America enters the World war.

Phillip Tracy and Rodney Maxwell are the first to enlist.

Phil's regiment is sent to the front soon after arriving in France and Phil is detailed on an extremely dangerous mission. Returning with important information, he is wounded and Rod is killed trying to save his friend. Phil wakes in a hospital and is decorated for bravery.

While recovering in the south of French, armistice is declared. Phil is sent up to Coblenz, Germany. His mother, not having heard from him for months, decided to go to France to hunt him. Major Aukland, after vainly trying to persuade Anne Tracy to marry him determines to accompany her in search for Phil.

As Anne is leaving the war office in Paris with her passes to Germany, she comes face to face with her son. After the shock of the unexpected meeting, Phil finds himself so shaken that he seeks the quiet of his room to recover himself, and Anne, equally perturbed, decided to go on a clothes buying jag.

Here the story further unfolds—

"Do you think Phil will like me in it?"

CHAPTER XLIII

A SHOPPING JAG

"I'll come around and take you out to the theater tonight."

"But, John, I want you to go with me to the great dressmaking houses on the Rue de la Paix. I think they will interest you. If they do not, I am sure their models and mannikins will."

"Anne, I wonder what you would say if I should tell you that no woman, young or old, beautiful or clever—in short, no woman in all the world except yourself—would have the slightest interest for me? Dear, must I go through the years that the remainder of my life holds for me, alone?"

Mrs. Tracy did not answer until they were seated side by side on the velvet-covered bench behind a table at Ciro's.

Then, after the luncheon had been ordered, she turned to the man beside her and said:

"John, I am very fond of you. You have been kinder to me than any other man I have ever known, and yet I feel that it would not be fair to you to try and give you a place in my heart which you must have seen is entirely occupied by Phillip. I did not know how much I loved him until today. I did not know how utterly cheerless had been the months that have just passed without him.

"Do you know, John, when I came to myself and found that I had my arms about Phillip's neck, I had the same feeling that I had when he, a baby, was first placed in my arms? I realized that all the pain and heart sickness that had been mine ever since that day almost two years ago when he first told me he had enlisted had gone. I had my baby grown to be a man—but still my baby. It was as though I had borne him twice, once in my body's and once in my soul's travail.

John, few mothers' sons mean to them what Phillip means to me. I have been not only his mother, but I have stood in the place of his father whom he never saw. I really do not believe that I have any love left for anyone else. Perhaps in the future something might change my mind, but in the meantime it would not be fair to you to keep you waiting around for something that would be—even if by any possibility it should be given to you—not worth accepting."

John Aukland placed his hand over the small one which was lying on the table.

"The least you could give me, Anne, would be more than worth the taking. I know, dear, that I am almost impertinent to keep my affairs in the foreground at this moment, but I want you to remember — you must remember, dear girl, that I loved you long before you were the mother of this boy.

"Do you not know, dear, that however much he was stirred by this unexpected meeting, when he has time to adjust himself, both his mind and his heart will seek those of his own age?"

"Why do you torture me, John?"

"I do not mean to, Anne, but what I have just been telling you is life. It is inevitable. However, I will not worry you any longer. Come, I have never in my life been into a woman's shop.

"Truly the old order changeth!" The day passed much faster for Anne than she had thought possible. She found herself buying gowns and hats and wraps and negligees — for Phil. Would he like this? Would this be so becoming that he would think his mother was beautiful?

"This" was a cloth of gold evening wrap that Major Aukland, who had really become interested in the shopping, had admired extravagantly.

"You look like a goddess of the sun in that golden cloak, Anne," he said.

"Do you think Phil will like me in it?" said Anne, wistfully.

"I never heard him accused of not having good taste. I am sure he will admire you in it."

"I'll take the gold evening wrap," she said without hesitation.

It was 6 o'clock before they started for the hotel, and Mrs. Tracy insisted that the major should dine with her in her suite at the hotel.

After dinner they went for a ride along the Bois.

Almost sleepily Anne talked to John Aukland.

"Strange, isn't it, how different roads and places look when it is night. During the day this is an abode of fashin, but at night—or perhaps I should say 'at least tonight'—it is a velvety path over which we are gliding straight to happiness.

"Take me back to the hotel, John. I have changed my mind about nature. This night and this drive has filled me with a delicious calm. When I think to what, I looked forward this morning, I am absolutely filled with awe. I thought when I awakened that by night I would be mad with impatience and uncertainty; instead, I am sleepily content. Tomorrow I will awake to breakfast with Phil."

"I will not come to see you tomorrow, dear," said the major. You will have so much to talk over with your son that I would only be in the way."

If John Aukland had hoped that Anne would disclaim his being in the way, he must have been disappointed, for she said eagerly:

"Yes, dear John, but I know you understand that tomorrow anybody on this earth would be in the way."

He made no comment, as saying "Good night" again, he left the woman with whom he felt he was more in love than ever in a hopeless frame of mind. It humiliated him to think that the outcome of the devotion he had given Anne should be dependent on the whim or prejudice of a boy. It seemed to him a most untoward fate that the son of Phillip Wynne Tracy III should carry on the battle for Anne's love, which the father had commenced so long ago.

For the first time in 20 years John Aukland was ready to rail against the fate that had given Anne to Tracy instead of himself.

He told himself that her husband had never made her happy; that Phillip would probably marry and leave her in the next few years at most, and she would be alone.

Phillip's mother, however, had no such thoughts as that to trouble her as she prepared for bed.

All she could see in the future was a path of light which she would travel with her son by her side.

After her talk with Natlee, she was almost sure that her mind was torn between Jerome Kenyon and Phillip, and if Phil did not return to America for some time, Jerome would probably win her.

This did not worry Mrs. Tracy much, for she had in the back of her head that letter which she had sent to him just before the armistice.

She, like many other innocent minded women, had never realized that a man could love a woman devotedly and be untrue to her as often as time and place and circumstances permitted.

She did not know that most men can separate passion from love at will.

"We will stay in France," she said to herself, "until the end of Phillip's schooling and then we might travel for a year of two if he wishes."

She went to sleep, happy in these plans for her son's future, which mothers from time to time immemorial have made, only to see them crumble, because they have not yet learned that no one can plan another's life with the surety that it will be carried out.

It was a vigorous rap at her door early the next morning that wakened her. Jumping out of bed she ran in her night-dress to open it.

"Mother, it's Phillip," called a glad young voice.

She flung the door open wide and was gathered up in her son's arms.

Quickly he carried her across the room and seating himself in a low chair beside a window he held her on his lap while he turned her face up to him.

"Let me look at you, young lady. Aren't you ashamed of yourself to be so young and pretty and still be the mother of an old man like me?"

"You are very thin, Phillip," Anne said, as she ran her fingers through his hair.

"What do you expect when one lives on bully beef and goldfish? Besides, you know that a burned upper lung with a hole bored through it for good measure is apt to take the flesh off one's bones. Now, woman, where is something to wrap you up in?"

Phil picked his mother up from off his lap as he rose and, putting her back on the cushions, said: "Sit still until I find a lounging robe."

Never in her life had Anne Tracy been bullied and babied in just this fashion and she gave herself up to the joy of it.

She watched him pull out the dresses from the closet with such content that she did not realize that the robe he was looking for was on her bed.

He left the closet in a mess as he went into her sleeping room for the lounging robe.

The room seemed darker when he left it, but he soon came back, and he thrust her arms into the sleeves and wrapped the garment about her. Then he carried her over to a low cushioned divan in front of a grate where the "fagots" had been laid.

'Now are you comfy?" he asked as he pressed his hard young lips to hers.

She bowed her head. She knew if she spoke she would burst into tears.

After lighting the fire he came back, and dragging a floor cushion near, sat down with his head in her lap.

"Now tell me all about it," he demanded.

But a certain man named Ananias, with Sapphir his wife, sold a possession.

And kept back part of the price his wife also being privy to it, and brought a certain part, and laid it at the apostles' feet.

But Peter said, Ananias, why hath Satan filled thy heart to lie to the Holy Ghost, and to keep back part of the price of the land?

Whiles it remained, was it not thine own? and after it was sold, was it not in thine own power? why hast thou conceived this thing in thy heart? thou hast not lied unto men but unto God.—Acts 5:1-4.

100 ON TOUR OVER VALLEY

Iowa Park Host To Visitors At Luncheon

ited and the tremendous increase in acre production exemplified by the crops now in the ground.

J. A. Kemp, leading in the work of irrigation in Texas for the past 25 years, explained processes of water control, fertilization, diversification relays and various phases of proper development of watered land in answer to many questions asked. Farmers in the valley talked to the visitors with a contagious enthusiasm and interest in the work, and gladly offered any information asked.

Following a barbecue lunch served by the Iowa Park Business Men's club at Coleman park at 1 o'clock, Mr. Kemp was introduced by the Rev. R. A. Highsmith, president of the club, and gave a general address, explaining the purpose of the tour and speaking again on the necessity for realizing the value of the Pease river project for this section of the country.

Small Farms Succeed

"These fields we have seen and the others to be visited are a splendid demonstration of what we can do when we undertake farming intelligently," he said.

"We will do this by irrigating, taking proper care of the land, and by diversifying our crops which will mean an independent income and something paying each day of the year for every farmer who intelligently tries it."

Mr. Kemp told of the success of certain small farms in the Wichita area, stating that one 20-acre plot under irrigation for several years back now produced more than the average 640-acres farm in the county. He emphasized the need for more truck gardening on the intensive scale and more interest in the dairying and poultry industries, which he affirmed were combinations brought about by irrigation.

"I don't believe in cotton under irrigation, for you have got to diversify to get the highest value from your land," he told the men present.

"Cotton is too uncertain a crop; there are too many other places to raise it without irrigation, and too much will be produced—we must raise everything instead of the old one-crop cotton. Let it be orchards, vineyards, poultry, sheep, alfalfa, sweet clover, hogs, dairy cows—every crop and every other farming industry we know will be successful here. There is green pasture all the year 'round, and all we need to do is to make use of the possibility."

Following Mr. Kemp's address, Byron Johnson, manager of the Electra Chamber of Commerce, expressed appreciation of the tour, and of the excellent lunch served through the courtesy of the Iowa Park club.

The trip was started from Iowa Park shortly after 9 o'clock, with the first stop with Jim Greer on the farm south of town, owned and managed by C. Burk, Will George, E. C. Burk and Mr. Greer. The visitors were taken to the fields of long staple cotton introduced here by these men, and Mr. Greer, in charge of the fertilization of the land and seed improvement, explained fertilization methods.

Advice on Fertilizer.

After several years of experiment with land in this section, Mr. Greer told those gathered around in the field that the best fertilizer in his opinion to afford humus and organic life in the soil is a mixture of 90 pound of 18 per cent acid phosphate to 100 pounds of prime cotton seed meal. Five hundred pounds to the acre were advised, though this amount depends on the land and the experience of the farmer, he said.

"Every one of you can fertilize and get results," he declared. "The main thing is to learn the land, learn how to handle the fertilizer, and to get the best materials for the best results.

In answer to many questions, Mr. Greer told the group that as the humus and nitrogen is increased in the soil the cotton seed meal used can be cut down and the acid phosphate increased. Sweet clover or any of the legumes planted on the land will bring this about and will better the physical condition of the soil immeasurably, he said. The meal sells for about $24 per ton and the phosphate around $22.

The stand of cotton on the fields inspected was proof positive to the visitors of Mr. Greer's statements on the value of fertilization. There are about 500 acres of the finest long staple cotton in the country on this farm, now almost ready to bloom.

Inspect Kemp Ranch.

From here the caravan was taken to Mr. Kemp's Roller ranch where several crops and his fine herd of sheep were appraised. The potato fields were first visited where a sack of the Bliss Triumph variety was displayed as samples of the "City of Faith" brand potatoes as they were shipped this year. Mr. Kemp stated that he wished to help demonstrate the practicability of two potato crops per year, and that his fall crop would be planted about August 10.

"It will be one of the biggest money crops in this section when we get the land in shape," he said. Approximately 100 bushels to the acre were raised on this land this spring.

Sweet clover and sweet sorghum fields were shown to the visitors as samples of the success possible in both crops in this district. Mr. Kemp and others spoke in favor of sweet clover and alfalfa on every farm, which with the winter pasturage crops, allows green pasturage all the year round. The herd of sheep on the ranch were in fine condition and aroused the appreciation and enthusiasm of every man present.

At 2 o'clock, following the lunch, the caravan again turned south to the Agricultural Experiment farm and that of J. S. Bridwell, where several hundred acres of alfalfa were being cut and bailed. The heavy growth of the crop and the value to the soil as explained by those present seemed to make a significant impression on the visitors.

At the experiment farm the visitors saw the rice fields under irrigation, sweet clover fields and other crops, all in fine condition. The Kemp dairy was next visited, then the Tweedy vineyard and orchard a short way west of Wichita Falls, on the Iowa Park road. Here three-year-old peach trees astonished the investigators with their unusual growth, and all were struck with the success experienced by Mr. Tweedy in growing grapes, plums, berries and other orchard and truck garden products.

Concluding the trip, Mr. Kemp led the visitors to the farm northeast of town, managed by S. D. Johnson, where a drove of fine hogs, and fields of cotton, corn and other crops were inspected. Phenomenal success has been the result of irrigation on this tract of land.

Visit Melon Patch.

Before returning to their various homes the men looked over the pecan orchard and watermelon and cantaloupe vines on M. C. Clark's farm, near Mr. Johnson's, and passed through Wichita Falls for a hurried inspection of the fruit and truck sections east of town. A stop was made at the Kidd farm, where irrigation again offered its own proof in the garden crops in growth.

According to chamber of commerce officials and various business men and farmers from the visiting cities, all that is needed to make the Pease river project a reality instead of a dream is the whole-hearted support and enthusiasm of the people concerned. Such evidence of its worth as was demonstrated in the Wednesday tour will aid in no small way in awakening this "putting-the-punch-behind-it" spirit, and will eventually result in grasping for Texas one of the greatest irrigation areas in the world.

Among those making the tour are the following:

Facts and Figures On Byrd's Flight

(By The Associated Press)

Personnel: Commander Richard E. Byrd, U. S. N., who commanded first plane to fly over north pole, on leave from navy for present flight; Bert Acosta, flight pilot, holder with Clarence Chamberlin of the world record for endurance flying; George Noville, flight engineer, army war-time pilot and former head of the air mail; Bernt Balchen, passenger and relief man, associated with Roald Amundsen in preparation for Norge flight over north pole.

Route: Long Island Sound and southern New England coast, across Nova Scotia to New Foundland, then slightly south of Great Circle course across the Atlantic ocean to Ireland and thence to Paris. Distance roughly 3500 miles. Time, about 40 hours.

Purpose: Study of winds at various altitudes in an effort to chart general rules which may aid future trans-Atlantic fliers.

Plane: The America is a three motored Fokker monoplane similar to the Miss Josephine Ford in which Byrd flew over the north pole, but has greater wing spread. Thirteen hundred gallons of gasoline and 54 gallons of oil are carried. The engines are air cooled, Wright whirlwinds, the same as those used in the Ryan and Bellanca monoplanes that preceded Byrd to Europe.

Instruments: All the instruments carried by the Ryan and Bellanca planes and more besides. Commander Byrd will be able to take the magnetic compass and earth inductor compass such as the other planes had and will also be equipped with a sun compass, a recent invention which he used on his polar flight.

Food: Two roast chickens, 10 cheese and 10 turkey sandwiches. Emergency rations of hard tack and pemmican to last 30 days in case of emergency.

Communication: Whereas the Ryan and Bellanca planes carried no radio set the America has two. The large set will send continuous "all's well" signals and in case of a forced landing at sea a small set in the tail may be used for distress calls.

ENERGY-GIVING FOODS

By Dr. REED

Proteins Needed in Definite Amounts

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

IF you would maintain your energy you must eat articles of food that contain protein. There is no article of food that is made up exclusively of protein, this invaluable constituent exists in varying proportions with other constituents in something like a hundred different articles. Some of these are very low in protein while high in starches and sugars. Those, however, which contain the largest proportion of protein and are therefore known as protein foods are meat, fish and eggs. They comprise the so-called animal proteins and are rated by the biologists as first-class proteins. It seems, however, that even among the first-class proteins there is a variation in energy-giving quality, so much so that the system may receive from ordinary helpings of food anywhere from thirty to 100 grams during the day. While 100 grams of protein is recognized as the average normal allowance for an adult, under conditions of actual labor, a woman or a child over ten would be satisfied with eighty-three and a child under ten with fifty. Man, woman and child alike, however, need their minimum of thirty grams of first-class protein every day. Therefore, says Bond (Journal the Royal Sanitary Institute), in judging a diet we should think in terms of thirty grams of first-class protein and know what this means in food. The following amounts of various animal foods yield thirty grams of first-class protein:

CHARLES A.L.REED,M.D

Cheese, 4¼ ounces; smoked herring, 5¼ ounces; lean beef, 5½ ounces; lean lamb, 7 ounces; fresh herring, 7¼ ounces; lean ham, 7½ ounces; pork, 8 ounces; cod, 10 ounces; eggs, 4 to 4½ ounces; milk, 1.65 pints; mutton, 7½ ounces.

It is not likely that anyone will take all his thirty grams of first-class proteins in the form of any one of these foods. But if these figures are remembered it is possible to tell whether a diet consisting of small amounts of them together contains sufficient of the valuable animal proteins.

Of course, as values now go, these are the more expensive articles of food considered from the viewpoint of quantity. With an understanding of their protein content and their consequent energy-producing value it can be seen that a smaller quantity of these articles is required to produce satisfactory nutritional results. You can see, therefore, that a proper understanding of this phase of the natural law of nutrition leads directly to money-saving results.

There is, however, a second class of porteins that occurs in vegetables. They have less energy-giving value and for this reason alone are rated as second-class. The energy that they do transmit is just as good energy as that derived from the animal proteins. Energy is energy and is not spoken of in terms of quality. A number of these protein-bearing vegetables enter into every well-balanced diet and, on careful computation of values, are to be given full credit for their worth. They are to be figured up in the protein aggregate.

The one vegetable that is richest in protein is corn, ordinary maize, which makes it so valuable as a food for horses and other work-animals. It likewise carries with its protein high proportions of both fats and starches, together with a high vitamin content. It can be seen, therefore, that corn of itself comes nearer representing a balanced diet than any one article of food. In spite of this fact, however, it is found that the people of the Southern States who live almost exclusively on a corn diet develop the most serious of nutritional diseases. It follows, therefore, that even corn, with its great element of worth, may be used only as a constituent of a broader, more comprehensive and well-balanced diet. Other protein bearing vegetables are wheat (whole), beans and peas. Any of these vegetables consumed when green have little protein but high vitamin value.

These are pivotal facts to be kept in mind when purchasing articles of food for their real energy-giving values.

ROMANCE and roses—they are June's own. For however fair other brides may be, the June bride outshines them all.

Because old Mother Nature herself puts forth her very best efforts to bedeck the bride in June. She lends the happy girl all of the many enchantments at her disposal. The perfume of roses, the intoxication of warm, soft breezes, sunlight and languor—these are June's gifts.

And what bride could fail to be beautiful and divinely happy in this atmosphere of love? When the wedding bells peal out their joyous song into the balmy air of June, all the world smiles a glad little smile of sympathetic joy. Happiness is in the air in the perfect days of June.

Does Wide Reading Broaden Your Mental Outlook?

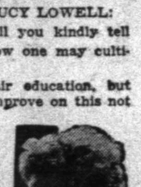

By Lucy Lowell.

"DEAR LUCY LOWELL:

"Will you kindly tell me how one may cultivate the mind?

"I have a fair education, but should like to improve on this not only so that I may be more interesting to others, but because I would like wider interests for myself.

"Do you think reading many books helps, and do you think mastering some one subject is better than gaining a knowledge of many subjects.

LUCY LOWELL

"I should like your opinion.

"MRS. E. M. S."

Of course, reading books is one excellent way of broadening the mind, for each really good book opens up a new and wonderful vista to the thoughtful.

I do not believe, however, that there is so much to be gained from many books read as they must be, hastily, as from a few gone through carefully and with a great deal of thinking over each.

The function of the worth-while book is not so much to inform as to stimulate thought. Anything that can do this, whether it be a book or a mountain or a speck of dust, broadens the mind.

Whether one would be more benefited by a thorough knowledge of one subject than a smattering of many subjects depends upon the object he wishes to attain.

This is an age of specialization; one who has a definite goal set for himself saves time and energy by eliminating from his thought everything which does not directly help progress toward that end.

But the person who wishes merely a contact with wider interests has a different sort of goal; a little knowledge of many things.

And this one, I should say, ought to send his thought in every direction, gathering in all the knowledge possible of as many things as it may touch upon.

This may be done through reading, meeting many people, seeing plays and hearing concerts and operas. But, above all, by thinking.

The objective thing the mind reaches is no more than a seed which requires long, subjective processes for growth and fulfillment.

Folly's Daughter

A Thrilling Mystery of New York Night Life

By Ann Lisle

A Day with Tony

TONY SAVELLI wanted to know if Jill would enjoy a day in the country.

"I don't have to be at Beppo's till seven," he told her over the telephone. "And a friend of mine has gone on his vacation and left me his tin gas wagon. I thought maybe we could start at nine and have a good day. How does it sound to you?"

ANN LISLE

"It sounds wonderful," Jill told him.

She would get away from herself, from the dingy room, from the thoughts that were choking her, from the ache of longing that made her afraid of herself and what she might do if it got any worse.

"Want to bring a few sandwiches?" Tony asked. "Sometimes it's fun to camp somewhere and snatch a bite."

"Would hard boiled egg sandwiches do?" she asked after a moment of terror.

"Swell. Bring 'em along."

So she couldn't get away from the eggs after all! But she could get away from herself—from her ache of longing for the man who had made her love him and then had actually flung her out of his rooms and his life....

Jill wore the blue serge Mac didn't like. She put it on defiantly, though it was really much too warm. But she liked showing herself that MacNeil Shannon and his tastes and preferences didn't matter.

It was a sultry day of oppressive heat. The little car made a breeze as Tony sped out toward the Bronx Parkway.

"We can go thirty-five an hour there," he told her. "You wait and see this little buggy make the miles fly. We'll go up by way of the Croton Lakes—maybe come back along the Hudson or the Sound, which ever you like. Glad I thought of you, baby?"

"Gladder than you'll ever know," Jill told him fervently.

"As glad as that!" he laughed triumphantly and put his hand over her for a moment.

She didn't stir. She hardly knew that Tony Savelli was touching her. She didn't see the warm red of his avid lips, the soft brown of his dreamy eyes. She didn't know that the young orchestra leader was supposed to be irresistible and that her indifference piqued him as the eagerness of the older women who came to Beppo's just to see him had never done.

The car sped along. Jill's thoughts sped too. Mac. The Shannon. His wonderful apartment. The star-shine out on the balcony and the moment when he had lifted her face to his and set his lips on hers. The thrill of it shook her.

"Going some—eh?" Tony asked.

"We certainly are," she shouted back over the roar of the wind as the little car chugged along at its full thirty-five miles an hour.

The parkway was beautiful. The little Bronx River flowed along so placidly as they whirled by. And there were bridges that looked utterly peaceful. Then waterfalls, rises where the bluff across the way came lurching out bearing a smoke-feather from a passing train. The beauty of it began to lull Jill to quiet.

When Tony drove her up a sharp turn and around a curve and out to the top of the reservoir, the beauty of it almost choked her.

"I didn't know it could be so lovely near the city," she said.

"You don't know anything yet," he boasted.

After a time he slowed down, curving around into a panorama of lake and stream and hill that grew lovelier each moment as they wound in and out.

"Hungry?" he asked after a time.

"I didn't eat any breakfast," she confessed.

"I didn't give you much time," he laughed. "I'll tell you what we'll do. Turn back toward the Hudson. There's a gorgous place way up beyond Tarrytown where you can eat out over the river. We'll have our dinner there. Say about three."

"Did you forget the eggs?" she asked shyly.

"I should say not. I'm going to turn off here and drive up to a field I discovered once. And with your sandwiches and the ginger-ale or sarsaparilla I'll pick up at a stand on the way, we'll have a nifty little lunch. They we'll laze around for a couple of hours, drive back to the river, dine and whirl into town in good season for Beppo's at seven. Right?"

"You're kind," she said fervently.

He couldn't know how kind! His gentleness was balm for her wound. She was forgetting that Mac Shannon had dismissed her almost the way Beppo had done. And when Tony's hand found hers again after lunch, she no more withdrew from his caress than a stray dog withdraws from the gentle touch of a hand that has fed it. And when his arm went around her and he drew her against him as he leaned against a tree-trunk, she relaxed and sank against him drowsily, smelling the clover, listening to the hum of the bees, giving herself to the warmth of the sun.

At last she slept. Tony's kiss woke her.

It was the first time a kiss had ever wakened her. She smiled at him gratefully. She held out her hands and as he pulled her to her feet and took her into his arms, she nestled against him instinctively.

"Like me a little?" asked Tony Savelli.

"I like you a lot."

"You'll never have a better friend than I am."

"I know it. You came just when I needed you—Tony."

"You sweet baby, I said you needed a lot of loving. Don't you worry, honey, you'll get plenty. I was hoping you'd wake up. I didn't dream it would come this fast. Listen—" he shook her angrily and a flare of jealousy came into his voice: "Did some guy come along and wake you? Has anybody been—poaching in my preserves? Are you the same Jill I took home a week ago—or ain't you?"

To Be Continued.

Our Rhyming OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

OH, for a tonic, a potent draught, bringing fresh life when the glass is quaffed, filling the spirit with hope anew, strengthening and stirring one, through and through Oh, for a drug that could make man see only life's beauty and majesty, only the sheen of its myriad flowers, only the joy of its hasting hours. Not in the phials of a dusty shelf lies the drink that can quicken a gladder self; rather it waits where the skies are blue, flooded with sunray's golden hue. Something of wonder must ever be under the arch of a splendid tree, something of rapture must wait always out where the high lands are wrapped in haze This is the tonic that brings man bliss: touch of the wind and the sun's warm kiss, glimmer of gold where the daisies swing, glimpse of the sky on a bluebird's wing!

Household Hints

When boiling a suet pudding, put three or four pieces of orange peel in the water. They will collect all the grease; the pudding will boil more quickly and will be much lighter.

A good preservative for linoleum can be made by mixing one gill of methylated spirit and one ounce of shellac. Let the latter dissolve thoroughly, then apply to the linoleum with a soft flannel.

Tiled hearths should never be washed, as this causes the enamel and glaze to split. Rub the tiles with a cloth dipped in turpentine, then polish with a soft dry cloth.

When baking small cakes or buns, flour the tins instead of greasing them. The cake will not stick to the tins and will bake quite as well.

Fashion Fads and Fancies

By Mildred Ash

CHANGEABLY Chic is the sleeveless dinner gown, which is worn with its removable chiffon jacket, but which makes an equally chic evening frock when the jacket is dispensed with.

Around the Camp Fires where serge or flannel middy blouses have reigned supreme for many Summers, the young girls will be more prone to wear wool jersey sweaters or jumpers. In solid, striped and compose effects these little sports garments are fast replacing the ever popular blouse of naval inspiration.

"Fishing in Shallow Waters" is a very well-known expression for those seeking flattery from an unlikely source. The new knitted sports suits have jumpers with the very flattering type of collar known as "fisherman's neck," which fits tightly around the throat and folds over so as to achieve a double thickness.

Shrugging Your Shoulders is a gesture that but accentuates the flexible charm of the latest shoulder pins, which are showers of graduated pearls, connected with bars of glittering strass.

Rain Will Not Stain nor will mud mar the new waterproof silk hose that English women are so strongly favoring. Prepared by a special method, which does not change their appearance, these hose show no rain marks; when splashed with mud, a damp sponge will easily remove the damage.

Chaining Attention just below the knee, the new gold chain bracelets are worn in that position on the left leg. So that this latest bit of frivolity may not pass unnoticed, accompanying dresses are slightly shorter at the left side.

Do You Know?

Bank holidays are usually held on Mondays because the festivals are of church origin, the day before the Festival Sunday being a fast and the day after one of relaxation.

The Devil Dance is held in the Spring in China, on the occasion of the festival of the Lama Church. It is directed against the "Evil Spirit" in the land. Those taking part wear hideous masks, and are attired in rich costumes.

When Manners Are Correct

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The Announcement.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am resigning my position soon to get married. I have worked in this office four years. My home is in the West. I am going home, and then we expect to make our home in the southwestern part of the United States.

1. Is it correct to send announcements to my friends here, including one to the office? Or, is it best to just tell each one personally and tell those in the office why I am resigning?

2. If such an announcement should be sent, how should it read? My parents are both living.

A READER.

WHY not do both? I should think it would be more natural for you to tell your coworkers that you are to be married, and that you are resigning, and if you are sending formal announcements, you would certainly send them announcements, if you do not send them invitations to your wedding.

2. Wedding announcements should be engraved and should be formally worded like this:

Mr. and Mrs. (Bride's parents)
Have the Honor to Announce
The Marriage of Their Daughter
Mary
to
Mr. Robert Davis
Monday, the tenth of June,
One thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven,
in Washington, District of Columbia.

These announcements should be all ready—engraved, addressed, sealed and stamped—so that they may be sent out directly after the ceremony has been performed.

Formal Wedding Clothes.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

For a Catholic Church wedding—10 o'clock in the morning—the bride wearing a veil, two bridesmaids and maid of honor, what is the proper dress for the groom, best man, and ushers?

2. Would you suggest the "Lohengrin" wedding march entering and the Mendelshon wedding march leaving the church?

L. C.

SINCE the bride is wearing a veil, she establishes her wedding as a formal wedding, and, therefore, to honor that formality, the gentlemen of the wedding party wear formal clothes—cutaway coat and dark striped trousers.

2. These are the traditional weddings marches.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

Ask Permission to Call

IT often happens that a young man who is universally popular is quite as puzzled and at sea as the shyest "dumbdate" when it comes to winning the One Girl. Self-confidence that shines in the ball-room or athletic field, vanishes when faced with the possibility of losing her favor.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I am confronted with a problem not of mathematics, but of love," writes a student.

"I am twenty and am considered handsome and an all-around athlete. I have been attending college for the past two years, at the same time taking part in social and athletic activities.

"My main sport is wrestling and in the social field, dancing. It is not hard for me to get a girl for a dance or party, as I know plenty.

"On Saturdays, I work as a clerk in order to make a little extra money. At the store I met a very nice girl, whom I admire and respect. We often talk about games between different schools or colleges. But she never talks about dancing. Whether she dances, I do not know.

"I have asked her to go to two dances with me. Each time she refused. I often wonder whether she tries to avoid my inviting her out. I will appreciate it very much if you will tell me how to win her.

A STUDENT.

POSSIBLY the girl you admire, does not dance. She may have religious scruples against it, as many worthy persons have. Had you thought of that? Some day when you are chatting together, why do you not ask her whether she approves of dancing and dances.

Or it may be that she would prefer entertaining you at her home, introducing you to her parents, before going about with you. I suggest that you ask her whether you may call at her home, some evening, or Sunday afternoon. If she is not engaged, is free to cultivate your companionship and wishes to do so, her consent will start your friendship on the right basis.

If she refuses, you will at least understand better just where you stand and will not of course try to force a friendship which for some reason may be uncongenial to her.

RICH GAS STRIKE AT 1370 FEET IN TEST NORTH OF THALIA

ROXANA TEST GASSING AGAIN

Boilers Moved Back Before Drilling Further

With a well making an estimated flow of 3,000,000 cubic feet of wet gas daily, Foard county seems assured of its first oil well within a few days.

The well is Roxana Petroleum corporation and Fain-McGaha's No. 1 Matthews, located two miles north of Thalia and 10 miles northwest of Crowell. The gas is said to be very wet, indicating that oil is there. Oil men believe that gas so rich cannot come from a pure gas sand.

The well is now shut down at 1370 feet while the boilers are being moved back to eliminate possibility of igniting the gas. At 855 feet this well encountered a gas sand which is yielding approximately 1,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily and which was bradenheaded and is being used for fuel in the boilers.

No guage has been made of the new flow and the most conservative estimate is "more than a million feet." Amount of sand drilled has not been determined and will not be known until drillers put the tools back into the hole.

Since the first gas showing about three weeks ago, this well has been the most interesting test drilling west of production in the Wichita Falls district. Geologists have predicted that it would make a producer.

The location is 900 feet from the south line and 150 from the west of the east 80 of the north 160 of the south 320 acres of section 3, G. C. &S. F. survey, abstract 117. It is four miles south of Pease river and about 20 miles southwest of the South Vernon field, nearest production.

Third Pipeline To Pecos County Field

NEW YORK, June 29.(AP)—The Illinois Pipe Line company will lay a third line from Yates pool, Pecos county, West Texas, 100 miles southeast to the Southern Pacific railroad connections at Comstock and Del Rio, it was announced today.

The Youngstown Sheet and Tube company is shipping 20-inch pipe for a gas line from Amarillo to Wichita, Kan. The contract for about 300 miles of line was shared by National Tube company and Republic Iron and Steel.

DUMAS DISTRICT.

The Douglas Oil company plans a deep test in the area south of Dumas, in Moore county. Its No. 1 Beauchamp, in section 112, block 44 of H. & T. C. survey, was drilling yesterday at 3835 feet and will be sent to 4500 feet unless oil, gas or water is found at shallower depths.

WEST OF PAMPA POOL.

The Texas company in No. 1 J. B. Barrett in section 130, block 3 of I. & G. N. survey, due west of the Pampa pool in Gray county, made 253 barrels the first 24 hours of 45 gravity oil from granite wash at 3145 to 3160 feet.

ROSWELL DISTRICT.

Buffalo-Roswell Oil company in No. 1 State, in 25-11-27e, near Roswell in Chaves county, New Mexico, was drilling below 4183 feet in a very hard limestone.

STOVALL AREA.

Panhandle Refining company shot its No. 20 McCluskey in the J. Tobin survey, South Young county, with 60 quarts in the pay at 4216-50 feet and the well swabbed 41 barrels in the first two hours.

Rummage Sale July 2nd. Next door to city hall. 822 Ohio.—Adv.

Wilbarger Well Blows In For 250 Barrels Wednesday

Consolidated Oil company Wednesday brought in a Wilbarger county well spraying between 200 and 250 barrels oil daily behind a flow of 1,000,000 cubic feet of gas, the second such well completed by this company within a month.

The new producer is No. 6 Waggoner, located in section 57, block 4, H. and T. C. survey, in the western part of the county. The sand was topped at 1317 feet and 200 feet of the rich pay was drilled.

The well is 300 feet north of No. 5 Waggoner which came in in a similar manner about three weeks ago, spraying 125 barrels initial and increasing steadily until now it is spraying 150 barrels per day and making 1,000,000 cubic feet of gas.

When No. 6 was drilled into the pay Wednesday it blew oil up into the derrick, "greasing" the drillers and the machinery. Oil men who witnessed the spray declared that nothing is prettier.

News Of The Field

NORTHEAST YOUNG.

Panhandle Refining company has spudded in at a wildcat location for its No. 1 Mrs. G. L. Joyner, one mile northwest of Farmer in Young county. The location is 1320 feet west and 450 feet north of the southeast corner of the Joyner land in the J. A. Zinn survey, abstract 1862.

After testing two shallow sands showing considerable oil, Stafford and Hayes have abandoned as dry their No. 1 Dyer in the Hardin survey, three miles south of Farmer, at a depth of 742 feet. The best showing was at 592-603 feet and the second was at 630-36 feet.

WEST OF KMA.

Sanford and Pruitt ran the Le-Bus tester to a sand t 1878-82 feet in their No. 1 Hamilton, three miles west of Kemp City in South Wichita. The test showed salt water and some gas, which is unusual for that territory. The test is now drilling deeper. A showing at a higher level tested dry. The well is in the L. C. Gibbs survey.

WICHITA PRODUCER.

L. P. Hammond et al. No. 1 Munger in block 31, Kemp Wichita Valley land, drilled out the plug in the sand at 1758-59 1-2 feet and swabbed 50 barrels of high grade oil in the first five hours, going on record as the best completion in Wichita county in several weeks.

NEAR MEGARGEL.

J. S. Barbee of Megargel has made location to drill his No. 2 R. S. Campbell, 150 feet out of the northwest corner of the southeast 40 acres of block 1, Meade Pasture subdivision, Archer county.

SOUTHWEST ARCHER.

F. C. Grebin and associates are spudding in at No. 1 J. A. Bell, located 150 feet out of the northwest corner of section 13, block 5, Clark and Plumb survey of Archer county.

SOUTHWEST OF ARCHER CITY.

Texas Company has made location to drill No. 1 Abercrombie as a diagonal southeast offset to Consolidated Oil company's No. 1 Abercrombie producer in block 12, J. W. Harris subdivision of Archer county. The Texas company will drill 1456 feet from the south and 1211 from the east lines of block 12.

Flier's Family

Underwood & Underwood

It is nothing unusual for these three folks to know that the man of their house is up among the clouds some place. Mrs. Bert Acosta, whose husband is a member of Commander Byrd's transatlantic crew, is the center figure, besides her, her two children, Bert Jr., and Allyn.

Morton Drills More Oil Pay

AMARILLO, June 29.More pay has been found in the Morton and Company's No. 1 R. W. Roeder, in the southwest of the northwest of the northeast of section 191, block 3T, of T. and N. O. survey, northeast of Dumas, in Moore county, and the Panhandle field's most interesting wildcat test today.

Late yesterday it was 3408 1-2 feet and the last drilling appeared to pick up some dolomite in the lime, and the additional oil seemed to be coming from this formation.

A. D. Morton, president of the Morton and Company, is enthusiastic about his well, and declared he believed it would make 1000 to 1500 barrels, if squibbed. It is now 33 1-2 feet in sandy lime, lime and lime pay.

Monday night at 5 p. m., when it attained a depth of 3406 feet, and until 8 a. m. Tuesday, it produced 112 barrels, one of the best records the Morton well has made to date. It added an extra head at 6 p. m. Monday, putting slightly more than 60 barrels into the tank, and the rest of the guage was from the other two heads.

The northeastern Moore, northwestern Hutchinson, southwestern Hansford and southeastern Sherman area is being given a more intensive geologizin now as a result of the Morton showing, but lease salesmen report that there is a slump in demand for acreage until a more definite knowledge is had of what the Morton well will do.

City Tax Board Ends Assessment Hearings

Following the final adjournment Wednesday of he city board of equalization, Ralph Hyer, city tax assessor and collector, announced that the staff in his office would immediately start compiling the city tax assessment roll including the adjustments made by the board.

Due to the fact that the board made very few adjustments in the preliminary tax assessment roll prepared by Mr. Hyer before the board convened, the length of time necessary to compile the final roll will be short, Mr. Hyer said.

Approximately 400 tax payers in Wichita Falls appeared before the members of the board, A. L. Huey, J. M. Baber and J. N. Prothro, during the time they were in session.

After Mr. Hyer has completed compiling the final roll it will be presented to the city council for approval and for the setting of the 1927 tax rate.

The city tax rate in 1926 was $1.30 whether the council will make a change in the rate depends on the total assessment value of property in the city and the amount necessary to meet the city budget requirements.

New High Mark of 416,000 Barrels Reached by 557 Seminole Wells

TULSA, Okla., June 29.—Seminole field's production reached the new peak of 416,000 barrels in the 24 hours ended Tuesday morning, this being from 557 wells. This excels the former high peak of Saturday by 2490 barrels, and is an increase over Monday morning's total of 5392 barrels.

The Bowlegs pool total, which included the production of the new well in 1-7-6, was 187,657 barrels, an increase of 6947 barrels, the previous day's production being 180,710 barrels. This is due to the new extension well.

The Earlsboro pool shows an increase of 2646 barrels, its total being 94,394 barrels. The Seminole city pool which made but 99,928 barrels declined 2564 barrels in 24 hours; Searight pool's output was 34,021 barrels, this pool showing a decrease of 1409 barrels.

The new well which is responsible for the big climb in production, Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company's No. 1 House, NW corner of 1-7-6, two and one-half miles to the south of the Bowlegs pool, is one of the two monster producers in the Seminole field. It was flowing 135 barrels per hour with the Wilcox sand barely touched at 4017 feet, Monday, and when deepened three and one-half feet to 4020 1-2 feet on that day, it increased to 248 barrels per hour. Later in the day it was drilled two and one-half feet further into the Wilcox, to 4023 feet, and from 6 to 7 p. m. flowed 419 barrels, and from 10 to 11 p. m. it made 468 barrels. Its total production for the 24 hours ended Tuesday morning was 7000 barrels. It was making 125 barrels per hour Tuesday.

Seminole's other big well, Empire Gas and Fuel company's No. 1, Edmundson, SE corner, SE, SW of 3-9-5, Earlsboro pool, made 9648 barrels in the 24 hours ended Tuesday morning. This well, which is producing from the Wilcox sand topped at 4255 feet, and drilled but six feet into a total depth of 4261 feet, produced over 10,000 barrels daily its first five days. It was brought in June 17.

Prairie Oil and Gas company has a new producer in the Earlsboro pool in its No. 3 Ruth Stidham, SW corner, SE NE of 11-9-5, which topped the Wilcox sand at 4275 feet, and into 4288 feet, made 190 barrels its first hour, 120 and Tuesday afternoon, was flowing 100 barrels per hour.

WICHITA FALLS IN 1893

Far from the modern girl is the picture we are given of Miss Wichita Falls in 1893.

No woman was considered dressed without hip pads or bustles of cotton or wire. She stood as though she were leaning forward, and her skirts trailed out behind her, swishing as she walked.

Her hair was brushed and piled over pompadour rats, and coiled in thick rolls in back. Black ribbons added charm.

Sleeves were long and skirts were longer. Very little make-up was used, except a dainty film of powder.

YES, NO

First thing you know, these other teams are going to accuse the Spudders of carrying Umpires Barr and Christian around just to help 'em win.

Christian was charged with mayhem and larceny the other day in Waco. Barr had to have police protection in Beaumont Wednesday.

As wild and wooly as some of the raspberry boys have sounded in the Wichita Falls park, there has been no show of mob violence or anything else as near unsportsmanlike. Umpires, no matter how incompetent Wichita Falls fans may believe them to be, are not assaulted by gangs and do not need to call out the cops.

LaFayette shot at the moon yesterday and scored six targets in six tries. Yessir, baseball's hero Wednesday was your own Froggy who cracked six safeties in as many trips up.

JONES LOOKS ALIVE

If any of our outfielders step out and go up at the end of the current scramble, it looks like we've got a first-class piece of fielding furniture with which to replace one of 'em. Bill Whitman, former Cub scout and now manager of the Pittsfield club where Prez Gardner sent Sam Jones with strings attached at the start of the season, has only terms of praise for the erstwhile Dallas high school youngster. Whitman declares, "Jones has developed undoubtedly into one of the best fly-chasers in baseball today and after several weeks of morning stick-work against curve-ball pitching is improving rapidly in his batting." Jones did not look so good with the willow when be joined Bill's club, according to Whitman, but after ambitiously taking on a wad of extra batting practice and coaching, appears to be developing speedily with the bludgeon.

DOAK, HOW COULD YOU?

If you want to take it from one Fort Worth sports writer, the umpires, not the opposition clubs, put the Cats in the cellar.

* * *

Zero in sports: The alibi artist.

Buddy Lewis, the youngster purchased by the Gardner interests for a whack at breaking in on the Spudder infield, appears to be a versatile athlete. Last summer with the Blackwell club of the now defunct Southwestern league, Lewis played short, second base, third base and in the outfield. During the winter months, Lewis picks up snap coin around Memphis and nearby towns fighting preliminary bouts on the various biff programs, Gardner says. Shades of Lou Kraft, the socking slabman, perhaps several of the league's "tough" boys will pipe down now. Not indicating, however, that Lewis will come into the league looking for trouble, but, you know, there is no influence more dampening to the ardor of the average rough guy than the thought that the fellow across the way is not only rough, too, but perhaps a little smarter.

Getting lots of battlers on the club. Petey Turgeon is a scrapper of some note, the little devil. Johnny Mann, a big-fisted boy, himself, is full of fire and they say the Swedish Mr. Swenson doesn't need much persuasion.

* * *

Habits of great men: "Gus" Barnes, theologian, putting reverse English to the evolution theory by trying to make a monkey out of a police commissioner.

YUS

Also in Waco, if you want to believe the scribes, they say it this way:

First fan—Who's going to win the game today?

Second fan—Dumbell! Why ask me? I'm not the umpire!

* * *

Waco scriveners have quit announcing the starting pitchers. They name the umpires instead. It runs something like this: If Mr. Christian does the indicating, the visiting team wins. If Mr. Griggs, the home club cops, etc., etc., etc. That is, taken from an unbiased translation as possible of daily passages on the noble umps erupted by the Brazos village type ticklers.

The unusual in sports: Any morning anybody around Spud headquarters can tell you who will do the pitching that afternoon.

TIGERS 9, BROWNS 3.

DETROIT, June 29. (AP)—Detroit swept the four-game series with the St. Louis Browns by winning the closing contest here today, 9 to 3.

The Tigers made their runs in clusters, scoring four in the sixth with the aid of only one base hit and five more in the eighth on four hits, all of which were for extra bases.

Fothergill started the second rally with a home run over the left field fence. Doubles by Bassler and Garner and a triple by Gehringer followed his example. The score:

SPUDDERS WIN SLUG CARNIVAL

Umpires Catch It In Neck During Loose Battle

BEAUMONT, June 29. — Wichita Falls took a loosely played 15 to 11 slugfest this afternoon in the first game of the series. Sam Ross was knocked out of the box in the first inning and Buck Freeman who followed him fared but little better. Caldera, who finished, had a chance to win the game but his support went to pieces behind him, three errors permitting the winning runs. Galloway his his 16th home run of the season in the fifth inning, Edington and Claude Robertson also getting home runs.

Umpires Barr and Christian were obliged to be escorted to their hotel by police following Barr's conduct toward Galloway in the eighth inning when the umpire refused to permit the Exporter manager to dry his hands in the dust while at bat.

Barr ordered Estell to continue pitching calling a strike before the skipper could return to the plate.

LaFayette led off the first inning attack with a single to center. Turgon drew a walk. Fitzgerald attempted to sacrifice but forced LaFayette at third. Lamb singled to left, scoring Turgeon and sending Fitzgerald to second. Jenkins went out pitcher to first and both runners advanced. Benton singled to right scoring Fitzgerald and sending Lamb to third and taking second on the throw in. Swenson tripled to left scoring lamb and Benton. Freeman went on the hill and was greeted by Lapan who doubled to right scoring Swenson. Fussell walked. LaFayette singled to center scoring Lapan and sending Fussell to second. Turgeon forced LaFayette at second.

Beaumont came right back to score two runs. Turgeon tossed out Dorman. Dunning walked. Connolly tripled to left scoring Dunning. Edington grounded to LaFayette unassisted and Connolly scored. Miller walked, but Fitzgerald handled Galloway's fly.

Fitzgerald opened the second inning with a double to center, went to third on Lamb's infield out and scored on Jenkin's fly to center.

Tied in Third.

Beaumont tied the score at 7-all in the last half of the third inning. Dunning beat out an infield to second and Connolly repeated the performance. Edington hit a home run over the right field wall scoring Dunning and Connolly ahead of him. Fussell heaved out Miller. Galloway singled to right. Robertson hit one to center field that bounced over Fitzgerald's head for a home run. Estell then went to the hill and Capes fanned. Estell tossed out Freeman.

LaFayette singled to center and went to third when Turgeon doubled to right. Fiazgerald flied to right and LaFayette scored after the catch. Caldera then went on the hill for Beaumont and Jenkins and Benton flied to center.

Four more runs were rushed over the platter in the fifth inning. Swenson walked and stopped at second when Lapan singled to center. Estell sacrificed and all hands were safe when the throw to third was late to get Swenson. LaFayette singled to center, scoring Swenson and Lapan and sending Estell to second. Turgeon forced Estell, Caldera to Dorman. Fitzgerald went out, pitcher to first and both runners advanced. Lamb hit to Dorman who threw wild to first, scoring LaFayette and Turgeon. Jenkins flied to left.

Shippers Threaten

Beaumont rushed in three runs in the fifth inning when Edington singled to right, Watkins walked and Galloway lined one over the right field fence for a home run, scoring Edington and Watkins ahead of him.

After Estell had rolled out, LaFayette opened the seventh with a double to right. Turgeon walked and both runners advanced on Fitzgerald's infield out. Watkins muffed Lamb's fly to center and LaFayette and Turgeon scored. Jenkins tripled to left, scoring Lamb. Benton rolled out.

Beaumont scored once more in the seventh. Galloway singled to center. Robertson was hit by a pitched ball. Capes flied to Fitzgerald. Caldera walked, filling the bases. Dorman flied to Lamb and Galloway scored after the catch. Dunning rolled out to Estell.

Father Time can be kidded for just so long, then he has his way. Stanley Coveleskie and "Bullet" Joe Bush, two names that will live long in the memories of present day baseball fans, have finally joined parade of passings veterans. Their exit is made after having given the old gent with the long white whiskers the run around for a couple of seasons.

Bush lost his famous fast ball years ago but went about developing a so-called fork ball that kept him going long after his arm had failed him. Coveleskie was through at Cleveland three years ago, then went to Washington and led the league in pitching his first year there with 20 victories and five defeats.

Now, Bush at 35 and Coveleskie at 36 are through. Bush saw 16 years of major league service and Coveleskie 13. Bush's name is listed with the no-hit pitchers of the national game. He held Cleveland hitless and runless in 1916 when he was toiling with Philadelphia. Coveleskie will be remembered for many feats but his most notable performance, perhaps, was his pitching for Cleveland in the 1920 world series, when he won three games and lost none. He turned in 3-1, 5-1 and 3-0 victories over Brooklyn to bring Cleveland its world's title, and in scoring his triumphs allowed exactly five hits in each game. Only three other pitchers —Christy Mathewson in 1905 and Jack Coombs in 1910 nave scored three victories against no defeats in one series.

The passing of Coveleskie leaves baseball with only five active members of that fast-fading group of spitball pitchers. It will only be another couple of seasons and the last of these will have passed along for all are well up in years and none are improving with age. The remaining moist ball twirlers in the American league are Jack Quinn of Philadelphia, who is 42; Red Faber of Chicago, 39, and Urban Shocker of New York, 35. The National league has but two left. They are Burleigh Grimes of the Giants and Clarence Mitchell of the Phillies. Mitchell, the game's only southpaw spitballer, is 36 and Grimes 34.

Just in case there may still be some doubt in your mind as to whether golf remains our most inconsistent sport, the following might be brought to your attention: Tommy Armour, who scored 76, 73, 76, 76, to tie for the National Open and then showed consistency by winning the playoff with another 76, went out on a course probably four strokes easier in his very next start and took an 80 for the first round in the Shawnee Open. And Johnny Farrell, one of the favorites for the big play at Oakmont, who stubbed his toe on the first round with an 81, went on to set the pace with an excellent 68 in the same tourney in which Armour took his 80.

City Loop Champs Ready for Play-Off With Panhandle

The Scotland Plumbers, winners of the first half championship of the city league which merged recently with the twilight league, haven't broken into the win column yet in twilight play, but they gave notice Tuesday of trouble in store for the rest of the league, playing the tough Conoco team to a 1-0 score. The Plumbers mix it up with the winner of the twilight second Municipal Gas company club Friday and tackle the Panhandle Longhorns Sunday.

Some time in the near future Bert Dimock's aggregation is going to battle Panhandle in a private set-to for the inter-league championships of the first halves of the two leagues to decide the twilight club that is to play the half for the city championship.

Clete Kauffman, hailing from the former home of Dutch Mantell and said to be just as rough as Dutch when he wants to be, expects to outspeed the Mexican Pete Brown with Pete's bag of jui jitsu tricks, according to Promoter Ross.

There will be plenty of action, Ross assures, when Kauffman goes after the spectacular Spik and fandom, who for the first time in many months is confronted with a card on which is not included a single one of the old favorites such as Grip, Matsuda, Reynolds, Mantell, Yaqui Joe and others of similar ilk, will cotton right up to Kauffman on his initial appearance here, Ross says.

Kauffman has been chasing Grip, Ross says. Ran Charley out of Dallas and now proposes to keep Charley out of Wichita Falls unless the Lithuanian agrees to a match.

Wade and Carpenter take up tonight a match which went to no falls here last week. Each athlete is anxious to finish it and both have been training carefully, according to the promoter.

There will be action aplenty in the Dummy-Robinson set-to, both contestants aver. The boys will fight for the unofficial black welter championship of the southwest. Tonight's winner will claim the title and be open to challenges.

BEARS 7, STEERS 4.

SAN ANTONIO, June 29. (AP)—Alex McColl had a 3 to 1 lead until the sixth inning when Harry Brown started the attack with a two-bagger, and before the inning was over the Bears had a three-run lead to beat the Dallas Steers in the opening game of the series here Wednesday, 7 to 4. Tiny Owens relieved McColl only to help the Bear cause, after which Lefty Dick Shuman took the hill.

Bob Hargrove, recently obtained from Kansas City, made his first appearance on the Bear slab here and held the Steers despite an unfavorable start due to errors by his teammates to give the Steers two runs.

The Steers threatened a ninth inning rally when they scored one run with the bases full, but it was cut short when Moose Woeber sent a line drive to Frank Philbin for a double play, ending the game. The score:

RESERVE 'EM NOW

The Spudders play a double header in Fort Worth next Monday, July 4, as every close follower of the Texas league knows.

Wichita Falls fans who wish to attend the game can make reservations this week at Spudder headquarters. Secretary Guy Airey will be in the lobby of the Texas hotel Monday morning with tickets.

Spuds Purchase Laredo Infielder

Deal was closed Wednesday for Buddy Lewis, shortstop from "Sunny Tennesee" who is playing his second year of professional baseball, by the Spudder management with Laredo of the Texas Valley league, announced President Alvin Gardner. Lewis is to join the Wichita Falls team in Beaumont Thursday, Gardner said. Joe Bill Bullock, Olney semi-pro infielder, has been sent to Laredo to take Lewis' place in that team's lineup, according to Gardner.

Lewis batted .317 last year with the Blackwell club of the Southwestern league. He was hitting .390 at the close of the first half of the present Texas Valley season. He has driven out 14 home runs so far this year, is comparatively fast, according to Gardner, and weighs in the vicinity of 160 pounds.

CHICAGO 5-6, CLEVELAND 0-8.

CHICAGO, June 29. (AP)—Chicago and Cleveland broke even in a double-header today, the Sox winning the first game, 5 to 0, and the Indians taking the second, 8 to 6.

Blankenship was in great form in the opener, the White Sox bunching hits off Levsen and Smith for an easy victory. In the second game, Miller was driven off the hill by the Sox in the fifth but Red Faber was unable to hold the lead and wilted in the sixth, each team driving in five runs. Errors by Crouse and Hunnefield prevented Lyons from retiring the side. Another attack on Lyons in the eighth inning in which pinch-hitter Uhle cracked out a double, paved the way for the Cleveland victory. The score:

SPORTS 1, BUFFS 0.

HOUSTON, June 29. (AP)—Manager Dugan Phelan's Shreveport Sports Wednesday fielded in miraculous fashion behind Williamson's classy twirling and blanked the Buffs, 1 to 0, in a game that required just one hour and twenty minutes. It was a tough game for Carlton to lose, as the lanky right-hander allowed five bingles. Roy Moore and "Chink" Taylor shared honors with Williamson, who is generally conceded one of the best twirlers in the loop. In the sixth, Taylor singled to center, and scored on Moore's double against the left field boards. The score:

Odell McDuffy was wild and Joel Randolph came to the rescue in the sixth inning with the bases full and one out and fanned Allison and Thornton to retire the side. Randolph held the opposition scoreless the rest of the way and Panhandle defeated Jackson Tires Wednesday at Katy park in twilight league play, 5 to 2.

The feature of the game was the way Randolph was pitching in the strikes. He came right back in the seventh after fanning two men with two straight strikeouts over Ross and Lawson to make it four straight. Buss then broke the string by getting an infield hit to short and then Joe bore down on Pinch-Hitter Shipley and fanned him.

A single by Maddox and a double by Rawls gave the Panhandle club a one-run lead in the first inning.

Tires Two in Third.

The Tiremen scored two runs in the third inning off McDuffy. Allison collected the only base hit off McDuffy when he beat out an infield hit to deep short. Thorn walked. Both runners moved up when Ross laid down a sacrifice bunt. Lawson hit McDuffy who threw late to the plate for Allison. Thorn went to third on the play. McDuffy tried to catch Lawson off first base and Thorn stole home. Rawls throwing too late to get Thorn on the slide. Buss hit to second and McMahon tried to force Lawson but the throw was late. Corson hit in front of second. Hinds took the play and tagged Buss as he came in to the bag. Corson stole second and Levine struck out.

Panhandle tied the score in the last half of the third on a walk to McMahon, an error at second when Mac assayed to steal and a single by Maddox bringing home the needed tally.

Win in the Fourth.

Walk to Hinds, a triple by Graves and a single by McDuffy scored two runs for the Longhorns in the fourth stanza. Thorn made a sweet catch on Connally in this round, taking a mean drive to right center at a dead gallop.

Panhandle wound up its scoring in the sixth. Connally got on base when Corson let his roller trickle through. Graves sacrificed him to second. Randolph hit to third and Levine fumbled, Randolph going to second and Connally scoring.

Payne Probable Mound Selection

Spudders Tie In Beaumont Again Thursday

The Spudders go after the Shippers again Thursday afternoon over in Beaumont, apparently none the worse for the rough-and-ready slug festival and race carnival they indulged in yesterday with Jeems Galloway's gang.

Our nine may be all out of breath today after the way it ran around yesterday, but the Exporters ought to be tired, too.

Wichita Falls stands one-up on Beaumont by virtue of that 15-11 victory Wednesday.

Manager Carl Williams probably will fall back on George Payne for mound work this afternoon, although he has been threatening to start Herb Cobb ever since the youngster turned in that sweet piece of relief work in Waco the other day. The staff is more or less in a turmoil following the wreckage wrought in the Houston series and yesterday's wild wrangle.

NEW YORK, June 28. (AP)—Led by Mayor James J. Walker, a movement to pay tribute to John McGraw at the Polo Grounds July 19 in celebration of his silver anniversary in charge of the New York Giants was gaining support today "from all around the town."

LaFayette Shows How With Stick

George LaFayette, Spudder first baseman, connected for six safe hits in six times at bat Wednesday in Beaumont. George drove out a double and five singles. Unless memory fails, the Spudder player is the first in the Texas league to clout this many times in succession so far this year.

LaFayette combed his hits on the delivery of Ross, Freeman and Caldera.

Only two players in the Texas league got six hits in six times up last year. One of them, incidentally, was a Beaumont player, Tom Oliver, who plunked Owens and Wilson of the San Antonio team for six safeties August 10. Homer Peel of Houston got six hits August 13 against Shuman, Sutherland and Conley of Dallas.

Ten players got five hits in five times up last year. One of these five-timers was Pete Turgeon, Spudder keystone guardian. Pete slugged Gleason and Ogden of Shreveport September 7 for five base blows.

Delmont To Judge Wichita Dog Show

Alf Delmont of Wynnewood, Pa., big eastern authority on canines, dog judge and dog fancier, was selected Wednesday night in session of the Wichita Falls dog show scheduled for this fall.

The show is to be staged October 3-4-5 at the Texas-Oklahoma fair if satisfactory arrangements can be made with fair officials, it was said. If not, the show is to be held in the city on those days anyhow.

Columbia Cops Rowing Classic

REGATTA COURSE, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 29. (AP)—The Columbia eight, dark horse in the annual four-mile varsity rowing classic on the Hudson, whipped Washington by a length today in a thrilling climax of historic rowing events.

Navy, favorite in the event, won by Washington last year and co-sharer of honors with the western crew in the last six annual races, was a poor fourth.

The big blue oarsmen trailed the leaders throughout and never could pull into a really challenging position.

Cornell, failing to better her position at any part of the race, finished fifth with Syracuse sixth and Pennsylvania a bad last.

The winner's time was 20 minutes and 57 seconds, over two minutes poorer than Cornell's record for the course, 18:53 1-5, made in 1901.

The remaining times were announced as follows:

California 21:12 2-5; Navy 21:21 1-5; Cornell 21:34; Syracuse 21:24; Pennsylcania 22:10.

GRAINS DROP IN PRICE LIST

Final Prices Show Sag In Day's Trading

BY CHARLES J. LEYDEN.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, June 29.—Lacking aggressive support the wheat and corn markets today developed a reactionary tendency and sagged steadily. Finaly prices were on slight decovery fro mthe bottom. Oats and rye also were weak. Claims that the Kessinger bill would be taken up by the house before adjournment facilitated realizing, although other messages asserted the bill had no chance.

Weather conditions over the harvest belt of the southwest were favorable and with export trade limited bulls took things easy. Longs in July wheat showed a disposition to sell out and reinstate n the September. The nearby month has about lost its premium over the deferred.

July wheat opened at $1.42¾, reached $1.42, dipped to $1.40⅝ and closed at $1.41⅛. September opened at $1.42⅛, firmed to $1.42⅝, broke to $1.40½ and closed at $1.40⅞@1.41. September corn opened at $1.05½@1.08, dipped to $1.06 and closed at $1.06¼@1.06⅜.

Not more than 250,00 bushels of wheat was believed to have been worked. The Liverpool market finished ⅝ to ⅝ pence highr.

Locally what closd 1¼ to 1⅜c lower, corn 2@2¼c lower, oats ⅝ to 1c off and rye 1½ to 2¼c down.

Corn sold off sharply at the opening, but met good support on the break. The higher temperatures over the belt led to the realizing.

July liquidation in oats was on tap early and prices sagged with other grains.

July rye had a break of around 1c on moderate liquidation but recovered half of its loss before the finish.

Drop in Call Money Rate Brings Good Undertone to Trading On Wall Street Stock Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, June 29.—A drop in the call money rate from 5 to 4 1-2 per cent brought about some improvement to the undertone in the stock market today. Trading was rather small and with few exceptions prices showed little change from the previous market.

The speculative atmosphere in Wall street has been considerably clarified the past week in the cleaning up of the stale loan situation. The undigested loans on stocks that have had big breaks and not in the hands of the public have been taken up by strong interests. The latter, however, have taken over the good stocks and left the participating syndicates with the second-grade issues.

Th's accounts for the decline in brokers' loans, which may be duplicated this week, taking up of these loans is regarded as a constructive development marketwise.

The Italian lire went lower in foreign exchange trading and the Spanish Peseta higher. All commodities were down in the day's transactions.

New York, Chicago & St. Louis (Nickel Plate) ran up five points on small transactions. Strength was based on reports of the possibility of the interstate commerce commission issuing a ruling in time to allow the Chesapeake & Ohio to take up its option on Pere Marquette stock at 110. The option expires on July 1. In other quarters it was thought that the rise was based on the fact that the option could not be exercised. The Nickel Plate, it will be remembered, has refused to extend the option beyond July 1. If the C. & O. must allow the option to expire on account of no action by the I. C. C., it is expected in the financial district that the renewal will be made on the basis of 126 for Pere Marquette. This would increase the equity behind the Nickel Plate stock.

New York Central sold off following the announcement that it would offer approximately $40,000,000 stock at 100. This would give the rights a value of approximately $4.50 a share which was not up to expectations and caused the lower close for the shares. Southern Pacific went higher. This stock is believed to be selling out of line with earnings and dividend prospects. Western Pacific closed higher despite the decision of directors to defer dividend action. Trading in New Haven was on a fairly large scale and at practically unchanged prices. The New York Central issue has acted as a check to speculation in the rails and accounts for the recent backwardness in that group.

A drive was made against Baldwin following announcement that the company would operate at 10 per cent capacity. Baldwin at one time was down four points from the opening but recovered in the late transactions. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe continued higher on operations attributed to the "old crowd" in the stock. Pipe has been quiet for several weeks. Should the tariff be raised on Foreign Cast Iron Pipe, it would be bullish on American pipe companies.

Steel common held around 120. Buying of steel has not been noticeable in the price recently but orders are understood to be coming in for the stock from Wilmington. Colorado Fuel sold off slightly but its sponsors expect to see it sell much higher on the current move. Fuel has not paid a dividend in six years but this year earnings are such, it is said, as to justify a payment.

Some of the specialties come in for attention. This was true of Wright because of the recent successful performances of the company's motors used in international air flights. Erie Steam Shovel experienced speculative buying. Earnings are running at a satisfactory rate and plans are said to be under way for retirement of the preferred stock.

Speculation is understood to have started in Safety Cable. Earnings last year were far in excess of dividend requirements. The company is a large producer of electric wires and cables and is said to have received some large orders in Florida following the tornado damage.

CHICAGO MARKET REVIEW.

CHICAGO, June 29. (AP)—High temperatures bringing about rapid growth of corn led to lower prices today for every kind of grain. Values were also depressed by revival of chances that the Illinois legislature may put under drastic control of state officials all grain exchange transactions of a future delivery character.

Closing quotations on corn were heavy, 1⅝ to 2⅝c net lower, with wheat 1⅛ to 1⅝c down, oats ½ to 1 cent off and provisions varying from 10c decline to a rise of 17 cents.

Most deliveries of provisions were lower chiefly asa result of grain weakness.

COTTON SEED OIL.

NEW YORK, June 29. (AP)—Cotton seed oil was less active today. Although prices were irregular, the general undertone was steady on covering and buying by refiners and spot interests. The close was 3 points higher to 6 pct. lower on active positions, with the december position the only month showing any declines. ESales 7900 barrels. Prime crude nominal; prime summer yellow spot 9.10; July closed 9.13; September 9.65; October 9.85, December 9.96; January 10.01.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, June 29. (AP)—Prospects of favorable weather in the belt caused the cotton market to lose 11 to 15 points durng today's trading and the close was 13 to 14 points below that of yesterday.

Opening one point down to 1 up, the market soon eased off 10 to 11 points. The decline, however, attracted trade buying and all of the loss was soon recovered. The market turned easy again after publication of the weekly weather report which reported excellent weather. Later there was a 5 to 7 point rally on covering which was succeeded by another slump, October trading down to 16.88 and December 17.10. The close was at or near the lows.

Liverpool was about as due or two penny points better. Exports for the day were 6224 bales.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, June 29. (AP)—The cotton market lost part of yesterday's advance in today's trading under realizing combined with local and southern selling apparently based on a more favorable view of weather conditions. October contracts, after selling at 17.15 early, declined to 16.97, closing at that figure. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 10 to 16 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of four ponits to a decline of four points. There was some further covering by near month shorts, but later months were sold on the relatively easy Liverpool cables and more favorable weather reports.

After showing net losses of about 8 to 12 points, the market rallied slightly on covering in advance of the weekly report of the weather bureau. This, however, proved rather more favorable than expected, and offerings increased after its publicaton, while there may also have been some selling of private crop reports pointing to a condition above the ten-year average. Indicated yield figures as given by these reports seemed low compared with last year's crop, or estimates oft his season's world's consumption, which probably tended to modify any bearish view of the condition figures, and afternoon trading remained quiet. Slight bulges seemed to meet offerings from one source or another, particularly above the 17-cent level for October, and last prices were the lowest of the day on nearly all positions. July sold off to 16.69 and December to 17.19, while January declined to 17.23.

Three private reports were issued, with condition figures ranging from 74 up to 77.1. Two gave figures o nthe indicated acreage, with estimates of the decrease ranging from 8.9 to 11.8, and there were also two reports on yield indications, the figures ranging from 14,544,000 up to 14,852,000 bales.

Exports today 6224, making 10,775,390 so far this season. Port receipts 5280; U. S. port stocks 1,311,258.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, June 29. (AP)—Price movements in today's stock market were rather inconclusive, due to the extensive month-end and pre-holiday shifting of speculative accounts. The market was forced to contend with a fairly large quota of unfavorable trade news which was offset to some extent by a lowering of the call money rate from 5 to 4½ per cent. Trading was relatively dull, total sales falling well below 1½ million shares.

Steel shares were heavy on publication of the weekly trade reviews, emphasizing the fact that buying was only for the barest needs and that prices were again lower. Sloss Sheffield broke 11 points to a new low at 113, but recovered part of its loss, and Gulf States Steel and Youngstown reached new low ground at 46½ and 81¾, respectively. U. S. Steel common closed fractionally lower at 119½.

Heaviness of the motors was believed to reflect the announcement of lower prices on Nash cars, and fears of further price cuts by other manufacturers as a result of increasing competition. Hudson, General Motors, Pierce Arrow preferred and Yellow Coach preferred sold down a point or so, and Willys Overland common touched a new low at 17, and Jordan at 14⅛. Tire stocks were slightly firmer on areported stiffening in the railroad group, particularly by tained a new peak at 27½, but lost all of its gain.

Despite the recent falling off in freight traffic, some sharp gains were recorded in th erailroad group, particularly by "Nickel Plate" common, and Pittsburgh and West Virginia, each up over five points. New York Central yielded about a point on the announcement of a few common stock offering at par.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were heavy, but except for a drop of 12 points in Japanese yen to 47.18 cents and a six-point drop in Italian lire to around 5.56 cents, the recessions were small. Demand sterling ruled around $4.85 3-16 and French francs around 3.91½ cents.

KNOW WHAT THE A-A-A MEANS TO THE MOTORIST

1—Membership in the American Automobile Association which gives you full membership privileges in 856 A. A. A. Clubs in all parts of the U. S., Alaska, Honolulu and the Canal Zone. (Limited exclusively to A. A. A. members.)

2—Affiliation with the Texas State Automobile Association, Inc., the state organization of A. A. A. Clubs, which is fighting the battles of motorists in the state legislature and elsewhere.

3—The Bureau of Tours and Transportation carefully maps out trips for members and arranges for their comfort and convenience en route. Every necessity of touring may be obtained through this bureau. Foreign trips and the shipping of cars to distant points are also arranged.

4—Free Maps and Tour Books, accurate road maps, detailed road information and tour books are available to our membership (as often as needed) at our Touring Bureau. We will have several thousand road maps, tour books, directories, camp site manuals, to be distributed to our members free during the touring season.

5—A. A. A. Tour Book. The official A. A. A. Tour Book of the South Central U. S., extending north to Colorado Springs, Kansas City and St. Louis; east to Memphis and New Orleans; west to Albuquerque, New Mexico, and El Paso, Texas; south to Mexico and the Gulf, will be distributed free to the entire membership.

6—Foreign Department. Will arrange for the shipping of cars to Europe and attend to the issuing of Triptyque: for members without charge for service.

7—Free Emergency Road Service. This service includes roadside repairs to the extent of thirty minutes within a radius of five miles of an official garage for a car unable to proceed under its own power, or if the car cannot be started, or roadside repairs are impossible, towing to the nearest service station, and even changing tires for women or for men unable to do so. A telephone call to the nearest service station in case of emergency brings a prompt response any time, day or night. Gas will be delivered to members in same radius of official stations, without cost for service. Complete list of stations and rules of operation will be supplied members.

8—Legislation deemed detrimental to motorists is opposed by the Club through the Texas State Automobile Association, Inc. It also sponsors laws for the protection of motorists and represents them generally in all legislative matters, local, state and national.

9—Free Legal Service is rendered to members in case of illegal arrest or unwarranted prosecution.

10—Good Roads for Texas as well as our own territory will ever be the aim of the club. Will constantly work for the elimination of danger points, the reconstruction or repair of highways needing attention, and the proper marking of roads.

11—The Club Headquarters are located in the lobby of the Holt Hotel, Wichita Falls, Texas.

12—Territory—The club holds the A. A. A. franchise for the counties of: Archer, Baylor, Clay, Hardeman, Jack, Wichita, Wilbarger and Young.

13—The Emblem of the Club, bearing the letters A. A. A. is loaned to members. This emblem secures national recognition, being the standard design adopted by the A. A. A. Clubs in the United States. "Carry an A. A. A. Emblem and it will carry you through," has become a national slogan, as well as "The badge of a good motorist."

14—Police Bail Bond. Membership card is recognized and accepted in lieu of cash deposit in traffic violation arrests.

15—Municipal and Safety Problems affecting motorists are carefully considered by the officers and board of directors of the club, and recommendations made that present the motorist's angle on such questions as traffic control and highway safety. Our club is fortunate in this territory by having a live wire Safety Council known as Wichita Falls Safety Council which we cheerfully cooperate with in all matters pertaining to safety work.

16—Automobile Owner, this is your organization. Help to make it bigger and stronger. It's not a question—Why you should join? But why you shouldn't.

Some automobile owners say "They don't do any touring, therefore don't need the A. A. A." Nevertheless in Washington, D. C. the A. A. A. club answered 16,326 emergency calls just in and around the city during 1926, and a large majority of these calls were business men going to and from their homes, or going to the theater, parks or general business about the city which proves absolutely that aside from maps and tour books you need it infinitely more at home than you do on tours, for this reason—when you are contemplating a trip you put your car in a garage and have it thoroughly overhauled, and many things cared for which you neglect ordinarily.

To the Board of Directors of the Wichita Valley Auto Club, Inc., Headquarters Holt Hotel, Wichita Falls, Texas.

Gentlemen:

I do hereby make application for membership in the Wichita Valley Auto Club, Inc., and do agree, if elected to membership, to conform to and comply with its by-laws, and to further in every way possible the objects and purposes of its incorporation. I do further agree, in the furtherance of the interests of said organization, to abide by and comply with all state laws and city ordinances governing and controlling traffic on the public highways in the state and the streets and highways in the cities and to co-operate with and assist public officials in every manner possible in compelling the proper enforcement of said laws. This application is made with the understanding that my membership is to be renewed each year unless I send a letter of resignation on or before the date of expiration. It s also understood that I am to be loaned a radiator plate for my car which I agree to return any time I cease being a member.

MUST ACCOMPANY THIS APPLICATION

The club is endeavoring to secure more members in order to give more service to the members. The most rigid economy is used in conducting the affairs of the club in order to give service and more service. This is one civic organization which compensates you for your cooperation by offering you more for ten dollars than any organization in the United States and probably in the world, for your annual membership dues of ten dollars. We loan you an A. A. A. emblem to put on your car. We sometimes call it a theft plate on A. A. A. cars for your protection. We conceived the idea that if a thief came along and saw that plate on your car, and realized that there is a big organization in back of it, he is more liable to pass it by.

KING URGES COURT REFORM

Optimist Club Told Of Amendments

The proposed constitutional amendment for reorganization of the Texas appellate courts, one of four amendments to be voted on August 4, was strongly advocated in an address by Bert King, Wichita Falls attorney, before the Optimist club at the luncheon Wednesday.

Mr. King spoke briefly on three of the four proposed amendments which would raise salaries of the governor and legislators, abolish the fee system among county officials, abolish commission of appeals and create a supreme court with nine judges, allowing district judges to sit in trials outside of their districts.

Courts Swamped.

The speaker pointed out that owing to Texas' growth one abendment was passed to allow reorganization of the appellate courts and declared that growth since that time and devlopment promised warranted increased court facilities. No court of appeals should have to pass on more than 105 cases per year, he said.

Mr. King made a strong plea for the passage of the amendment which would provide higher salaries for the governor and legislators.

"It is a shame that we send a fine young man down there to the governor's mission on a salary of $4000 a year," declared Mr. King with the result that the club encored heavily.

Salary Increase.

"A man who spends $15,000 or $20,000 to be elected governor must do one of three things. To live in the environment of the governor's mansion he must either go heavily into debt, spend his own money or turn to graft. Cost to the state in increasing the governor's salary would be negligible," he declared.

Claude Miller pointed out that at present the governor's salary costs each citizen one-tenth of one cent per year and if the governor's salary was raised to $50,000 the cost per person would be only one cent.

The amendments affecting the fee system and taxation were briefly mentioned.

Joel MacGregor gave the club another "work out" on the songs to be sung at the Optimist convention at Denver July 6 to 9. Thirteen members of the local club have signed up to make the trip, Mr. MacGregor announced.

Pardon Board Gets Application Of Pastor

AUSTIN, June 29.(AP)—No final action had been taken by the state pardon board here today on application for furlough for A. A. Davis, Williamson county Baptist preacher, facing a two-year perjury term for testimony in the alleged ku klux klan flogging cases of 1922.

Davis, refused rehearing by the court of criminal appeals Saturday, sought furlough pending hearing on and final disposition of an application for a pardon, claiming ill health.

Bandit and Bombproof

A peculiar manifestation of our civilization is this, the latest device to make it possible to safely transport large payrolls, and other valuable cargoes through crowded city streets. Designed and built at Los Angeles the armored car is equipped with bullet-proof windows, a revolving turret mounting a machine rifle, sponge tubed puncture-proof tires, and electrically charged armor designed to severely shock unauthorized persons who touch it.

To bring to those millions who have no concrete conception of the stupendous working of nature which occur in that vast area of 600,000 square miles, known as Alaska, was the purpose of the trip undertaken by Captain Jack Robertson and Arthur H. Young, champion big game archer of the world, in "Alaskan Adventures" which comes today to the Olympic theater. To gaze upon the awe-inspiring spectacle of the breaking up of the Yukon, to journey through the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes, to scan the heavens illusmined by the rays of the midnight sun and to witness the birth of the giant icebergs were the main objectives.

Into this wilderness, Robertson and Young carried nothing but bows and arrows for weapons. They lived off the land and their pursuit of Alaskan sheep, the giant moose and the great Kodiak bear, the largest carnivorous animal in existence, furnish many additional thrills in this thrilling of thrilling pictures.

Their journey from southern Alaska over the mountains down the Yukon, along the bleak shores of Siberia and then back down the coast was filmed with a fine sense of the dramatic and with a careful attention to detail.

"Alskan Adventures" is a true picture of that country Robert Service so aptly described as a "land where the mountains are nameless and the rivers run—God knows where." It is a gripping saga of the northland where nature's moods are sternest and where change is ushered in with cataclysmic ferocity.

Judge Grants New Trial In Burglary Cases

On a plea of recently discovered evidence not presented at hearings, motions for new trials filed by Hoyt Taylor and Frank Elmore, convicted and sentenced to one year each for the robbery of the Neal Bottling works, were granted Wednesday by Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court.

Attorneys for the two men presented to the court evidence to the effect that since Taylor and Elmore were convicted that witnesses, who will testify to the effect that the accused men were in Oklahoma at the time of the robbery, have been discovered.

Judge Martin transferred the cases to the 30th district court, before Judge E. G. Thornton and set the hearings for the week of July 11.

More herrings are being caught off the Irish coast this season than in any year since 1913.

County Must Act Quickly in Plan To Reduce Amount of State Tax

If the county assessments of property are to be reduced and the tax rate increased in 1927 in order to reduce the amount paid for state taxes in Wichita county, action will have to be taken Tuesday by the county commissioners court due to the fact that Wednesday, July 6, is the final adjournment day of the county tax equalization board, according to statements made Wednesday by county officials.

That a petition would be filed to decrease the county assessments and raise the tax rate was revealed Tuesday to the Record News.

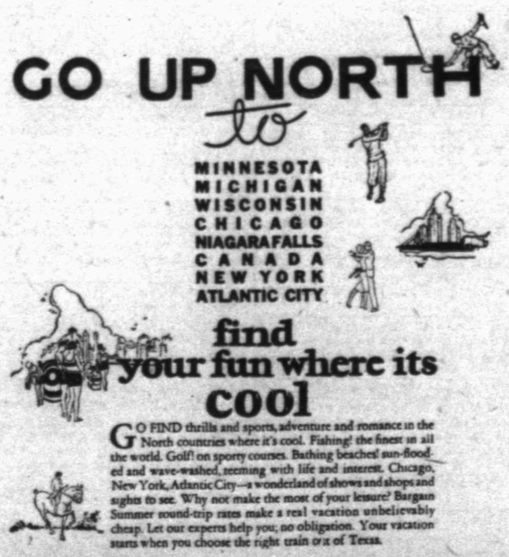

As the county equalization board is the only body empowered to change assessment values and as the board adjourns for the year July 6, it will be necessary for the county commissioners court to either authorize Tuesday or decline to authorize the board to consider the petition.

E. P. Walsh, county auditor, anticipating the filing of the petition with the county commissioners court is preparing a county tax financial statement for presentation to the court.

If the assessments are reduced and the county tax rate raised, tax payers will not pay more or less county taxes than in previous years, however, state taxes will be materially reduced.

The Pavement for Progressive Communities,

ECONOMICAL to build and maintain, distinguished-looking always, concrete pavements are the overwhelming choice of far-seeing communities.

The surface is rigid and unyielding at all times. It is smooth for riding comfort, yet gritty enough to grip the tires when brakes are applied.

Every dollar expended for portland cement concrete streets in your city is a dollar invested in permanent driving safety and comfort.
