FGE presentation made to citizens

New power plant on track to begin construction in the fall of 2013

POWER PLANT PRESENTATION - Emerson Farrell of FGE Power LLC gives the crowd gathered at the Civic Center an idea of what the plant will look like.

Emerson Farrell of FGE Power LLC, along with company representatives from all factions of the power plant construction and operation, held an informational presentation Monday night at the Civic Center.

Over 150 people attended the meeting where information was shared about the upcoming construction and operation of the power plant which will be built near Westbrook. Farrell said that FGE Power plans to achieve economically and environmentally sustainable power with the creation of the plant.

According to statistics presented at the meeting, the power plant will employ 350-400 workers over a two to three year period and 25-30 employees for long term operations. The plant will use "next generation technology of clean gas" to produce power. Brackish water will be used for cooling and all blow down or exhaust water will be recaptured and sold to oil companies for use in oil production.

Farrell said the plant will be permitted at the lowest emissions levels of any power plant and will also operate as efficiently as any. Plans are for the plant to produce 726 megawatts, and he plans to begin the permitting process for two "sister plants" soon.

Transmission lines which will be erected near the plant will transmit energy west toward Midland-Odessa, south to Houston and east to Dallas.

For those concerned about the noise that might be caused by operations, Farrell said that silencers would be installed during construction and the sound emitted would be no louder than a dishwasher.

Alstom is the company whose technology will make the plant possible. Close to 25% of the world's power production capacity depends on Alstom technology and services. According to Alstom representative Carlos Lange, components for the plant will be manufactured in Chattanooga, Tennessee, and Connecticut. Alstom currently has 52 units in operation, 10 of which are in Texas.

SNC Lavalin is the company that will do the actual building on site, putting in the components developed and manufactured by Alstom. Mike Obert spoke on behalf of SNC Lavalin, informing the crowd that the company has a wide breadth of Several new businesses have signed contracts and are beginning the preliminary phases of construction in Mitchell County and Colorado City. Existing businesses are also expanding, in anticipation of the Cline Shale oil development.

According to County Judge Ray Mayo, Cobblestone Inn and Suites has started clearing land on the north side of the Interstate where a Cobblestone hotel will be built. The location of the planned-hotel is near the cement plant west of town. An RV park is also slated to be put in close to the hotel.

As previously reported, A.J. Patel, owner/operator of the Days Inn, is busy with construction planning for a new motel north of Subway. He said he hopes to break ground on the new structure in July.

The new project has come to fruition quickly since the sewer/water infrastructure already exists in that area of town. Patel said that construction should progress quickly once ground is broken on the project.

Paul Johnson, owner of The Medicine Place pharmacy, expressed his excitement over the possibility of getting to move into his new building just off the South Service Road of I-20. "It's looking good," he said.

According to Johnson, he's hoping to begin the moving process in three to four weeks. The new facility will provide just over twice the space as the old pharmacy on Hickory Street. The prescription filling area will be much bigger, providing more room for organization, making the pharmacy more efficient.

Among other things, Johnson said he's looking to expand the medical supply and natural remedies sections of the store. There will also be room for snacks and drinks, along with gift items and health and beauty aids.

The digital photo kiosk that sits in the Hickory Street location will be moved to the new place. The pharmacy will still be making deliveries and a drive-through will also be available to customers.

A new street has begun to be paved, connecting the Western Suites hotel with The Medicine Place. A Golden Chick restaurant is planned to be constructed in between the two businesses.

Mason wins CISD run-off election

Incumbent Larry Mason was re-elected to serve on the Colorado Independent School District's Board of Trustees in a special run-off election held Saturday, June 15th.

Mason faced Frank Martinez in the election for Place 3. Both candidates received the same amount of votes in the regular election held in May, so a special election for the run-off was called.

Mason held a small lead following early voting, receiving 15 votes to Martinez's 12. During the election Saturday, 13 voters cast ballots for Mason with Martinez getting four votes.

The official canvass of the election will be conducted Monday, June 24th at a special meeting of the CISD board.

DULY DEDICATED - The Mitchell Masonic Lodge performed a cornerstone leveling ceremony for the new law enforcement center last Thursday. Dan Smith and Ernie Kariainen Jr., Past Masters, were on hand to assist with the dedication.

Masonic Lodge dedicates Law Enforcement Center

The Mitchell Masonic Lodge officially dedicated the new law enforcement center with a cornerstone leveling ceremony on Thursday. Several officials within the Mason organization were on hand to assist with the ceremony.

According to local Mason Dan Smith, the ceremony was just the eighth to be performed by the local order since the first one in 1884. The second courthouse ever built in Mitchell County was the first building to receive a cornerstone leveling by the Masons here.

The leveling services of the past were performed just before construction began, so as to make sure the first stone of the building was level and square. All other construction was based off of the cornerstone.

Now, the Masons perform the ceremony to dedicate a building that has already been constructed, but the words level, plum and square are still important. All three words refer to construction and also refer to symbols of integrity.

Past Grand Master Graham Childress of Ozona presided over the service. Childress also took part in the cornerstone rite for the Colorado City Fire Department in 1985.

Following the service, tours of the facility were led by Sheriff Patrick Toombs and Sheriff's Deputy Carolyn Jeter. The center will house the jail and also has offices for the game warden, district attorney, and the Department of Public Safety, including the driver's license office.

A large classroom that will be equipped with a smart board will be utilized for See CEREMONY, page 5

Westbound I-20 will be closed early in the morning on June 27 to allow crews to place beams on the new structure. All interstate lanes are expected to be open by June 28.

JUNETEENTH CELEBRATION — Don Emerson and his family members served barbeque plates to those attending the annual Juneteenth celebration held in Ruddick Park Sunday.

Juneteenth celebrated in traditional fashion

Don and Bernice Emerson, along with several of their family members, take the opportunity to serve others as a way of celebrating Juneteenth each year.

The Emersons held the annual Juneteenth barbeque in Ruddick Park on Sunday. The couple, along with their grown children, Kathy and Bobby Ray, were busy Sunday afternoon making plates to go and feeding those who wanted to eat in the park.

Kids attending enjoyed the bounce house that was provided. Those eating had complimentary things to say about the meal that was provided free of charge to a large group of people. Brisket, ribs, and chicken, along with beans and potato salad, was served to all who came to eat.

The group has come together for nine years to celebrate Juneteenth. The holiday was begun in Texas to mark June 19th as a day to remember when Union soldiers enforced the Emancipation Proclamation and free all remaining slaves in Galveston.

Although rumors of freedom were spreading through the country, actual emancipation was not announced in the last state practicing slavery at the end of the Civil War until almost two and a half years after President Abraham Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation.

OBITUARIES

Peggy Fenton 1939 - 2013

HERMLEIGH - Peggy Ann Taylor Fenton or the "Pegster" as we like to call her was, to say the least, a busy woman. This busy life of hers all started back on June 22nd, 1939 in Snyder. She was born to Orville and Roberta Taylor during the big flood of '39. Peggy grew up in the cotton fields of Ira, where she went to school, excelled on the basketball court and was the lead majorette.

Peggy was known for her good looks and athletic ability, and it was those traits that got the attention of L.D. "Bubba" Whitehead. The two met at San Angelo College in 1957 and were married in 1959. They spent some time in Lubbock and Alpine before settling down back at the Whitehead family ranch in Del Rio. It was here where she had and raised her two children, Taylor and Radell Whitehead. Peggy was a great mother, always putting her children and family first. It was in Del Rio where she began to recognize and develop her great entrepreneurial spirit and her love of art and antiques. Her first of several antique stores and art galleries was opened in Del Rio in the late 60s.

In the early 70s, the family made a move to Fort Davis where Bubba worked for the King Ranch and Peggy worked for the Fort Davis State Bank. As her love of art continued to grow, she opened her first art gallery here, Fenton-Whitehead. Peggy's ties to the King Ranch and her love of art opened a door to a long term relationship with the Cowboy Artist of America. As her relationship with the C.A.A. grew so did her galleries, as Fenton-Whitehead opened galleries in San Angelo and Ruidoso, New Mexico, in the mid to late 80s.

In the 90s, Peggy and her galleries prospered. She moved to Ruidoso and would become the town's unofficial mayor. She also made her business partner, Danny Fenton, her life partner as the two married in 1990. Peggy and Danny would go on to share great success in their business ventures. The two traveled the country buying and selling art and were well known amongst the western art community.

In the early 2000s, Peggy and Danny retired from retail and went back to their home in the fields of west Texas making Hermleigh their final stop. Peggy passed away Saturday, June 15th in Colorado City.

Peggy's look was notorious as she generally sported her big hat, boots and jewelry. To say the least, she wore it well. When you saw or met her for the first time, you knew that you had just met someone very special.

She is survived by her loving and caring husband, Danny Fenton; her children, Radell and Taylor Whitehead, Shea Kellams and Dana Hall; a brother and sister-in-law, Lawton and Pat Taylor; grandsons, Ian Whitehead and James Montgomery; and very special family members, Mike, Tara and Bailey Jones.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests that donations be made to the charity of your choice. Online condolences may be posted at www.bellykperyscale.com

WELCOME NEW RESIDENTS Morenos make C-City home

CALLING IT HOME - Lola (far left) and Bert Moreno (far right) have enjoyed living in Colorado City in the past few weeks. They are seen here with their daughters, Clarissa and Maliyah.

Bert and Lola Moreno and their daughters, Maliyah, age 8 and Clarissa, age 5, moved to Colorado City earlier in the spring from Hobbs, NM after he was transferred to this area. The family has flourished here and all say they like living in Mitchell County.

"The girls like it here," Lola said, conveying her happiness with the community and schools.

Bert is employed as a field supervisor with Enterprise Crude Oil. His company buys and transports oil from the tank batteries to their facilities in China Grove. Enterprise also has a dump station and office in Ira.

The couple sees similarities in what Colorado City is expecting through the oil boom and Hobbs that experienced a boom a few years ago. Bert was sent here to help his company take advantage of the growth that is imminent in this area.

Enterprise currently employs 19 drivers and expects to hire an additional 31, along with contracting numerous more. Bert said that Enterprise stresses to drivers that they should practice patience and safety at all times when they are on the road.

During the time the Morenos lived in Hobbs, the population doubled from 25,000 to 50,000, and the city continues to grow. The couple say that they can see the changes in Colorado City. "There are already more people here," Lola said.

Because they like to ride bicycles, the family sees lots of activity along the streets. "There are lots of people fixing houses," Bert said.

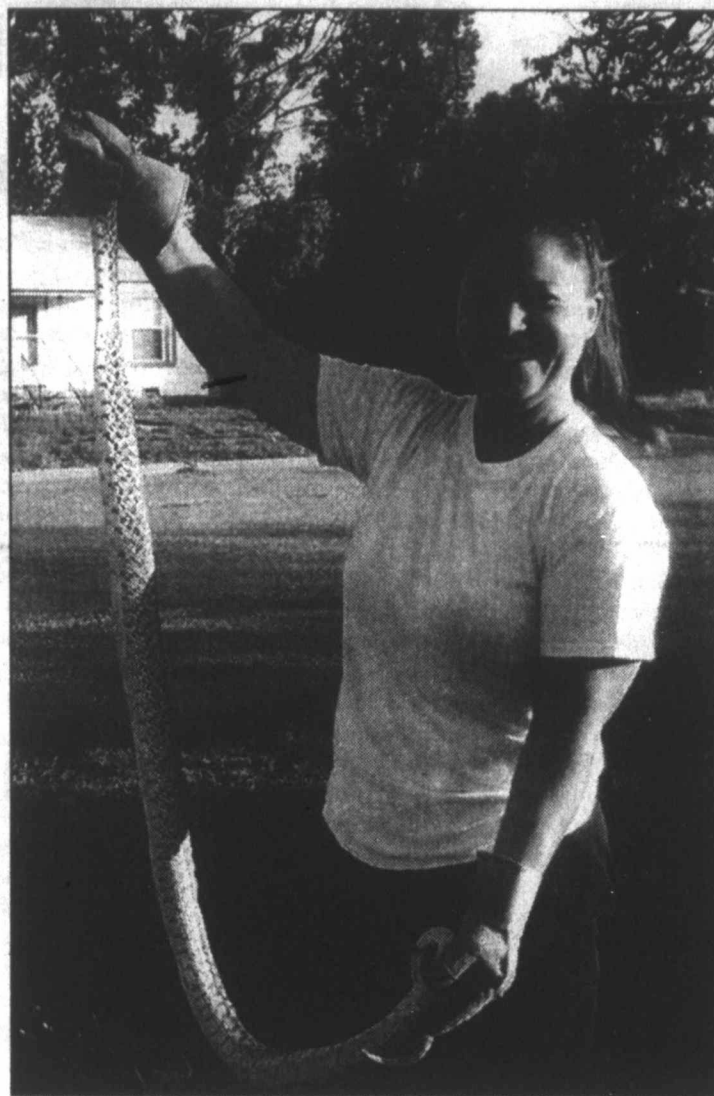

Both Bert and Lola expressed their satisfaction with the school personnel within the Colorado Independent School District. "Everything about the school district is awesome," Lola said. "They (school personnel) made an effort to get to know you."

She also said that every concern brought to the teachers and other personnel has been addressed. Both said they were glad Colorado City voted to build a new campus, and they think the town will need it, after experiencing the expected growth in population.

In Hobbs, the couple saw many areas of the town descend into crises from a swelling population. The schools, housing and hotel industries were not ready for the influx of people. Any steps this area can take to plan ahead, the better. "You can make it the way you want it," Bert said.

Through their experience, the Morenos have observed what happens when oil booms hit. They say that Colorado City has a lot of potential and look forward to living here for years to come.

LUCKY FELLOW - Kelsey Rivera and her husband, Fletcher, did a good deed for a neighbor recently. This big bull snake was found on the front porch of the home of Tim and Donna McCallay at 962 E. 16th Street, and Rivera came to the rescue by catching the snake and taking it out of town to release.

OPINION & COMMENTARY

TUMBLEWEED SMITH Roy's adventures on the Midway

Roy Hobbs grew up at Murchison, a small community just outside Athens. He had four brothers, two younger and two older. "I wore hand me downs or hand me ups, so all my clothes were either too big or too small."

Roy didn't participate in sports while he was in school. "I wasn't good at sports or anything else for that matter," he says. "I was excellent at playing hooky, though. I could do that just as good as anybody."

His daddy made syrup. "It was the best syrup you ever tasted in your life. We'd get 25 cents a gallon for it."

Murchison is about eight miles from Athens and Roy and his buddies would sometimes hitchhike to or from town. Once, one of Roy's friends got a ride back to Murchison with a most conservative driver. He told his passenger, "Now I'm gonna slow down and you jump out when I tell you to. I don't want to wear my brakes out."

One day Roy put a nickel in a marble machine. "I hit the jackpot for 45 cents. That's nine nickels. I had friends, you wouldn't believe how many. I spent all of it but one nickel. I went back to that same machine and hit the jackpot again for nine more nickels. I bought lots of soda pop and candy."

Every fall, a carnival came to town and Roy and a friend ended up in the boxing ring. "We didn't have any money, but we'd go for the entertainment and try to get in something free. They had these boxers and wrestlers out on this stage and they were trying to draw a crowd by putting kids up there and getting them to holler real loud. They picked me and Davy Jones because we were hollering louder than the rest of them. They invited us to box and we did. We put the gloves on and got after it. He caught me on the chin in the first round and the next thing I knew I heard the referee say 'three.' I didn't hear one or two. I gave him a pretty good fight for the rest of the time and the crowd threw in nickels and pennies and dimes. We gathered it up and I headed for the hot dog stand and bought one for a nickel. It was in a napkin and when I pulled the napkin back to get me a bite, I couldn't open my mouth. I was injured a lot worse than I thought I was from that lick on the chin. Anyway, I had to give that hot dog away and that was a low period in my lifetime."

Once Roy hopped on a freight train to take him to a tomato harvest in Arkansas. "We woke up the next morning in Poplar Bluff, Missouri. We finally got to where we wanted to go and found out there had been a drought and there was no crop. If we had been able to pick tomatoes, we would have made 15 cents an hour."

Roy lives in Big Spring now and keeps his 91-year old body in shape by working out in a gym three mornings a week. After his workout, he sits down with some of his friends and tells them about things. He has made and given away about 300 fancy birdhouses that resemble houses from fairy tales. He also makes walking sticks with saw handles. His faithful dog Hagar is his constant companion.

Celebration complete when you add "serving others"

By Stephanie Perez
Editor

Definition of the word celebrate: To observe with ceremonies of respect, festivity or rejoicing; To perform; To extol or praise; to make widely known.

According to the dictionary, the word celebrate has many definitions, and I think I have one of my own to add. I didn't come up with it all by myself. I actually experienced it this weekend when I attended the local Juneteenth celebration in the park.

After attending the celebration at Ruddick Park, I must add "serving others" to my definition of celebrating.

Don Emerson, his wife, Berniece and their children gather together each year, pool their resources and raise funds to provide generous plates of barbecue and all the trimmings at no cost to anyone attending the Juneteenth celebration.

Not only do they prepare the food, they also serve the plates and drinks for people they don't know. Everyone is welcome to attend, and no one goes home hungry.

I'm impressed by the unselfish spirit that I witnessed on Sunday. There were countless hours of preparation that went into the meal, not to mention the large sum of money it took to purchase the brisket, chicken, ribs, beans, and potato salad ingredients.

Juneteenth is the holiday celebrating the freeing of Texas slaves after the Civil War. The holiday has actually been an African American tradition since the late 19th century. In 1997, the U.S. Congress officially passed legislation recognizing Juneteenth as "Juneteenth Independence Day" in America.

Maybe it can also be a holiday to start a new tradition: serving others.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Letter to the Editor:

I have a few questions to ask of people who have been elected as mayor or city council members.

When does a person become the mayor? Is it right after the canvassing of the votes? This is what I was told by city hall. But since I'm not sure, I really would like someone to answer that question for me.

After all, when I call the election board they said it was after I took the oath of office. (Which I never took.)

I'm also confused because on the agenda for the city meeting, after the canvassing of the votes, a certificate was to be issued to the elected mayor, then the administration of the oath of office. None of this was done.

I was called to city hall during that meeting to resign from the office of mayor. An office I did not hold.

How can a person resign from an office they don't hold?

I'm also interested in what you think about voting. It seems to me that voting doesn't have anything to do with a person being elected. All that matters, is who gets appointed to the office.

Why do we vote? Those in office will find a way to nominate the one that they want in office.

I sure would like the answers. I hope someone knows.

Thank you,
Lydia Hale

BUSINESSES

Franchise owner John Hagan is bringing in some management and plans to hire the rest and begin training soon, according to Board of Economic Development Director Sue Young.

Dave McSpadden, CEO of Integra Hospitality, LLC, is negotiating a land deal, as he is a franchise owner of Microtel Inn & Suites and Holiday Inn Express.

Young said she had heard talks of a Cracker Barrel restaurant and possibly a Huddle House moving into the area. She is also talking to a restaurant brokering company that works with about 60 restaurants, some of which are looking to start businesses in Mitchell County. A representative of the brokering firm has visited Colorado City twice and is serious about suggesting this area to her clients, according to Young.

A land development company is also looking to put in some retail businesses in a type of strip shopping center. The location for that project is still unknown.

Wendell Prewitt, longtime insurance adjuster and land developer, has purchased several lots of land in Colorado City. He plans to construct a 24-unit apartment complex on Dallas Street, south of Westpoint Avenue.

"Everything is sitting on go,"

Prewitt said. The land has been purchased and rezoned to allow for the construction of multi-family dwellings.

Plans are also being made to construct up to a 42-unit apartment complex at the corner of 7th and Waco Streets, and the possibility of constructing four to five houses is being explored by Prewitt. Financing for the projects is readily available due to the wide-spread publicity on the Cline Shale oil play.

Obstacles arising for developers include a three-fold increase in real estate prices in the last few months, as well as a lack of construction materials and workers in the area. However, Prewitt said that he has found city and county officials helpful to the development process.

experience and employs experts from all over the world.

According to Obert, SNC Lavalin is a large company that concentrates on safety. "We care," is the company's slogan and Obert said his company is looking forward to partnering with the people in Mitchell County.

Ted Kowalski represented CAMS, the business that will operate the facility once construction is complete. "We will be in the community for the life of the project," Kowalski said.

CAMS has won several awards, including two Best of the Best awards in their industry for best industry practices. The company is currently operating over 30 facilities, including ones in Victoria, Sabine, Borger and Hobbs, New Mexico.

The nature of creating power causes FGE Power LLC to be subject to many permitting applications by both the EPA and TCEQ. SWCA is the company that is overseeing the permitting process for the plant. Bill Jamieson was at the meeting representing SWCA.

Jamieson said that the permitting process sometimes takes as long as three to five years, but this project has seen a "remarkably quick process." Jamieson credits the low emissions for the quick application process. SWCA also assesses the impact on cultural resources and people and wildlife as the construction process progresses.

The time frame for ground breaking will depend on permits, but plans are to begin construction in the fall of 2013. Completion of the project is set for spring of 2016.

He credits city secretary Donna Madrid and city manager David Hoover, tax assessor/collector Sylvia Clanton and personnel at the appraisal district for his success with property development so far.

Because Prewitt lives at Lake Colorado City, he has a vested interest in improving the community, as well as his pocketbook. He said he would like to see even more development in the future in order to increase the tax base and improve the way things look around Colorado City.

Opportunities abound for businesses looking to locate in Mitchell County, and more developers come in every day. Watch the Record for more up-to-date information on the increasing growth in the area.

may be made available to other law enforcement entities as well.

Bullet proof glass and concrete ceilings are just two of many security features which are prominent in the new complex. Part of the added security includes lots of state-of-the-art technology, such as intercoms, cameras and computerized locks which can all be operated in a central control room.

Visitation will soon take place through glass windows, as visitors will be completely separated from the offenders. Currently, visitation occurs with only bars as separation which could potentially allow for the passing of contraband and weapons.

Brand new kitchen and laundry equipment will provide clean clothes and linens and hot food to the offenders which will be housed in the 72-bed jail.

Toombs said that the local jail is now housing 20 offenders and plans have been made to accept 14 more from other counties once the move has been made to the new detention center.

According to Toombs, another major improvement is installed behind the scenes. The new pipe chases, which are areas where wiring and pipes can be repaired, are much bigger than then ones at the jail. The new repair areas are large enough to fit maintenance workers, and the old ones barely have enough room for tools.

Cells have been set up in wings, with male and female prisoners to be housed in separate areas. There are cells to house two, four, six, eight and 12 inmates at a time. Three meals a day will be delivered through "bean holes" slots.

An indoor/outdoor recreation area has been constructed to allow for sunlight and fresh air, without the possibility of security breach. All offenders are allowed recreation.

The 1,000-gallon diesel generator can provide power to the jail for 10 days before being refilled. It produces enough electricity to power a quarter of the homes and businesses in Colorado City, according to Toombs.

Before ending the tour, Toombs had this to say of the new place, "We know there will be growing pains, but we're anxious to get moved over here."

Personnel from the Mitchell County Sheriff's Office will be serving hotdogs and hamburgers to those attending the law enforcement center's open house on Friday, June 21, starting at 11 a.m. Tours will also be given at that time.

Local men take on opponents in ring

Jeff Potter and Homer Matlock share lots of things in life. They share family members, the love of working out and staying fit, and they love training for mixed martial arts competitive fighting.

Both Matlock and Potter took advantage of an opportunity to compete at the Premier Fight Night 5 in Abilene on Saturday. The event was held by the Premier Fight Association.

Potter, 39, fought in the 145-pound weight class and defeated his 24-year-old opponent in the second round by submission with a rear naked choke hold.

The memory of the fight brought on a smile from Potter. He said he was able to follow through with the hold, something he had been unable to do in past fights.

The two men train and spar, readying themselves for competition at Premier Martial Arts in downtown Colorado City. "We grapple and spar all the time," Potter said.

Matlock fought competitively for the first time this weekend. He went all three rounds with his opponent but lost by decision. Competing in the 195-pound division, Matlock dropped a significant amount of pounds to make weight. He first planned to compete at 245 pounds.

According to Potter, Matlock suffered an adrenaline dump during the fight. Adrenaline is pumping as the fighters begin the competition, but the body is unable to sustain adrenaline levels throughout the whole three rounds. Therefore, when the energizing natural chemical runs out, there is little any athlete can do to reverse the effects.

"Your hands feel like they weigh 50 pounds each, and it feels like your legs are stuck in quicksand," Potter said.

"I hope he does it again," he said, hoping Matlock will take on another fight.

Potter, who has been training for four years, doesn't have another fight planned for the immediate future. He and his family are going on vacation to Hawaii next month. Training and fighting take a toll on family life, and when done properly, training requires extensive time.

Beyond the time it takes to train as an MMA fighter, the actual experience of watching a fight can be more intense than family members care for it to be. "They know (family members) how it is, to expect it to leave marks, but it's tough to see their husband, or dad, get hit," Potter said.

Jeff is married to Stephanie Matlock Potter and they have two children, Grace and Kaden. Homer and his wife, Tia, have two children also, Parker and Zoe.

The two families are part owners of Premier Martial Arts, on 2nd Street in Colorado City. Stephanie and Tia also enjoy working out at the facility, along with their kids.

Besides Matlock and Potter, there are other local men that are currently training for MMA fighting at Premier Martial Arts.

Curbside pickup available to help with storm clean-up

The public works department of the City of Colorado City is working to remove trees and debris from city streets, following the recent rains. Since city employees cannot enter private property to remove debris or broken limbs, citizens of Colorado City have some options to deal with broken limbs:

For limbs three inches in diameter or smaller, the fenced area at Ruddick Park, south of the girls' softball field, can be utilized seven days a week. This is only for limbs and they must be cut to five feet or shorter. Do not take construction debris or any form of garbage to the park.

The pit at the landfill will be closed until it dries enough for vehicles to operate. However large diameter limbs can be taken there provided they are not longer than five feet.

Curbside pickup will be held the week of July 1st - 5th. Limbs may be placed curbside at any time in the next two weeks provided they are cut to five feet or less in length. Any items for curbside pickup must be next to the curb in the right of way. That is 40 feet from the center of the street in most parts of town.

For more information or help disposing of unwanted storm debris, contact city hall by calling 728-5331.

ROUGH RIDER – The Texas Forest Service recently donated this truck to the Colorado City Fire Department. The military truck will be fitted as a water carrier and will assist firemen in fighting fires in rural areas.

Sales tax rebates still rising in area cities

Several areas within the Cline Shale oil play area showed significant gains in sales tax rebates, which is reflective of April sales.

Mitchell County takes top billing on the list, increasing its sales tax rebate over 136% from last year's payment during the same period. The county has received over $95,000 more in sales tax receipts through 2013, when compared with payments received during the same time last year.

Loraine's sales tax receipts also took a sharp hike, with the city receiving almost $1,000 for April sales. This compares to $495 received in June of 2012. Westbrook also saw a significant increase. The rebate of $3,177 is more than an $1100 increase over the same period last year.

Colorado City's payment was up over 15% from last year, and the city has seen growth in sales tax rebates of over 10% on the year. Sweetwater and Big Spring saw upsurges of over 20% in rebates received for April. Sterling City's payment rose by 120%.

It has been speculated that the rise in the majority of rebate payments is due to growth stemming from oil expansion in the Cline Shale region. Statewide, the latest tax collection totaled $2.26 billion, 7.9 percent above the same period last year.

"Growth in state sales tax revenue was led by collections from the information services and construction sectors," State Comptroller Susan Combs said. "Restaurants also showed notable growth, while oil and natural gas-related activity remains a major source of strength."

More jobs ahead!

HOUSTON, June 17, 2013 / PRNewswire -- Hiring managers in the oil and gas industry plan to boost hiring in the second half of 2013 in the U.S., according to a national survey conducted by Rigzone, the leading online resource for oil and gas information, data and talent recruitment.

Citing current market or economic conditions, nearly half of U.S.-focused hiring managers (48%) plan to boost hiring in the next six months. That compares to just eight percent of respondents who had a less favorable view of the market sparking a decrease in their hiring plans.

"The results are encouraging for oil and gas professionals who've seen new jobs created in the first part of the year, but at a slower pace than we've enjoyed in the past few years. While the overall hiring environment may be described as tempered, rather than description up several notches to flat-out, unbridled optimism for engineers," said Paul Caplan, President of Rigzone.

Engineering positions dominate the list of new positions hiring managers are planning to recruit for in the second half of this year. The top ten positions are:

- Mechanical Engineers
- Design Engineers
- Petroleum Engineers
- Electrical Engineers
- Reservoir Engineers

Pipeline Engineers
Health, Safety & Environmental Managers
Finance & Accounting talent
Production Engineers
Process Engineers
Nearly half of hiring managers (48%) said they are not seeing an increase in the number of candidates applying for positions, as compared to six months ago. At the same time, professionals who are interested in new positions are upping their demands. More than half (54%) of hiring managers and recruiters said candidates are asking for more money than they were just six months ago.

Companies are balancing the need to attract and retain talent. On the question of counteroffers, hiring managers were nearly split, with 39 percent saying - yes - they are seeing or making more counter offers than six months ago and 40 percent stating that is not the case.

From May 21 to May 24, 2013 Rigzone surveyed hiring managers and recruiters who primarily recruit for U.S. energy professionals. Covering upstream, midstream, downstream, corporate and college recruiting, 183 responded to the survey, with 30 percent representing companies that have more than 5,000 employees.

Rigzone is a leading online resource for the oil and gas industry delivering content, data, advertising and career services.

Wreck is no hit and run

What began as a case of hit and run, quickly transformed into something much more sinister for officers of the Colorado City

Police Department last week.

Officers were called to the scene of an accident at the intersection of 5th and Hickory, and they found a 1999 BMW with a smashed rear door and quarter panel. The incident was first thought to be a hit and run accident, but after talking to witnesses, it became apparent that the damage may have been intentional.

According to witness accounts, Kinji Johnson, 28, was turning his BMW east onto 5th Street from Hickory when Rogelio "Roy" Beltran, 28, accelerated and swerved the black pickup he was driving into the BMW. Beltran then left the scene of the accident.

The wreck happened Wednesday morning, and Beltran came to the police department later in the week. He was arrested and charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, a second degree felony. Beltran denies that he intended to hit the other vehicle.

Bail has been set for Beltran at $7,500.

OUCH! Kinji Johnson was turning onto 5th Street from Hickory when Roy Beltran allegedly swerved the pickup he was driving into Johnson's 1999 Kawasaki green BMW. Beltran has been charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon.

Celebrate the other anniversary

By Monte Wike

Every year we celebrate two anniversaries; the day we met and the day we married. I always remember the wedding anniversary, but June 8 just sort of slips in until I get a sweet note from Noma.

We met on the mission field in California June 8, 1953 at the gathering of all the student missionaries who would soon fan out over the entire state to conduct Vacation Bible Schools. Those brown eyes just caught me, and I guess my blue ones lit up, too. That was 60 June's ago. We were married on January 24, 1954 in her home church of Wetumka, Oklahoma and this coming one will be number 60.

Every December we go to Fuller's and get three calendars, one for the kitchen, one for my desk and one for hers. She sits down and by memory writes in all the birthdays of the five children, their spouses, their anniversaries and all the grandchildren and great-grands. Near the last of each month we make a trip to Dollar General and get all the cards needed for the next month.

It does not cost much to buy or mail a card, but the effect of remembering is priceless. People and family members like to know they are thought of and included. Noma still has every card, letter, or note I ever sent or gave her. She likes to remember. We have laughed about the mess the kids will have when we are no longer here to horde them.

Little acts of kindness pay big dividends. It may be as simple as a smile, allowing someone ahead of you in line, a note or a rose from the garden. But when you make it special and personal, it is greatly appreciated.

Whatever it takes to jog your memory, to remember the special days, it is worth the effort. Celebrate the big events and the small ones. Spread happiness and cheer. They are like mirrors that reflect back to you.

THANK YOU!

I would like to thank everyone who supported me in the run-off election for Colorado ISD school board.

I will continue to serve the students and parents, faculty and administrators of the school district as I have the last 15 years.

Thank you,
Larry Mason

Winner!

She said it best when she said, "Sherlock Holmes ain't got nothin' on me!" Darlene Moore tracked down the hidden object in record time.

Our flag was hidden at the Mitchell County Hospital's veteran memorial; a fitting place in deed.

Congratulations to Mrs. Moore who won the $100 again. She said this was her third time to find the object.

MAMA plans concert, festival

The Mexican American Music Association has tentatively scheduled a concert and festival to be held in Colorado City on August 10th to celebrate the 45-year anniversary of the organization.

Pete Salmeron, president of MAMA, sees many benefits of bringing this event to Colorado City, and he is seeking financial help to promote this event. Salmeron said that businesses that sponsor the event will get name exposure during the planning and execution of the event, and they also will receive the satisfaction of making an impact on the local community.

Salmeron said he plans to display posters for up to a 100-mile radius in communities all around Colorado City, and he welcomes help of any kind.

The Mexican American Music Association is an organization that provides opportunities for exposure for talented and aspiring musicians and vocalists to be heard and/or seen in the surrounding areas.

Anyone wishing to donate to the event can contact the Chamber of Commerce by calling 325-728-3403.
