MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

By H. N. F.

Mexico has been the pawn of Fate since the coming of Cortez, the Spanish adventurer, who invaded the halls of Montezuma who made chattels of the proud Aztecs and robbed them of their golden treasure. God Almighty made Mexico a land of sunshine, a treasure house of the world, and a veritable paradise. What man has done for Mexico has been graphically portrayed by Prescott as well as latter day historians and chroniclers. Now Herbert Hoover says, following a survey of the world crude oil situation, that Mexico will soon dominate the world's supply of petroleum. He says that Mexico will supplant the United States and mark you, the United States today is the dictator of the universe when it comes to oil. Herbert Hoover avers American oil reserves are beginning to play out. Director George Otis Smith predicts the oil reserves of the United States will be exhausted at the end of another quarter of a century. More than 600,000,000 barrels of crude oil were produced in this country last year or 70 per cent of all the gravity petroleum used throughout the world. All the modern ships of the seven seas are oil burners. American oil is not a fuel oil. Mexican oil is a fuel oil. All thinking men agree that the nation that has the largest merchant marine and bases of supply will eventually control the commerce of the world, for the owners of the ships that cover the seven seas of the world will be masters of the situation. Mexico produced last year 100,000,000 barrels of crude petroleum. Mexico drills 300 new wells a year. In this country the operators are sinking new wells at the rate of 18,000 a year. There are no pumpers in Mexico. There are hundreds of pumpers in the United States. Mexican wells average 2,000 barrels a day; American five barrels a day. Mexico is the producer of fuel oil. Mexico, geologists and other experts say, has a supply that will last fifty years. If so, Mexico should become the dominant nation in a petroleum sense, as Mexico will furnish the fuel for the ships of the seven seas as she is today supplying the natives of the United States and England with their fuel oil supplies. Japan has the third largest navy in the world. Japan has been shut out of the oil fields of Europe; Japan has been shut out of Palestine. Japanese statesmen know that the "open door" practically shuts them out. They know that the Chinese look upon them as robbers. Japan is the mistress of the Pacific and the flag of Japan flies at the mast head of the great ocean liners and freight carriers everywhere in Far East. Mexico owes a foreign debt of $500,000,000. Woodrow Wilson, as president, refused to recognize Mexico and his Mexican policy was the weakest of all the policies of his administration. Warren G. Harding, his successor, refuses to recognize Mexico, and the Harding policy is as mysterious and as weak and as unjust to President Obregon and his people as the Wilson policy which had its critics in all factions of the two great political parties. Mexico should be one of the first nations of the earth. Mexico has the latent wealth, the smallest debt and the most amazing possibilities of all the lesser nations or weak tribes of mankind. According to consular agents exports of petroleum from the port of Tampico during the month of September were almost three times as great as the exports of crude during the month of August. Here are the figures: September 16,637,182.38 barrels; August 5,582,000 barrels. Experts say that exports for the year of 1921 will exceed those of the year of 1920 by 50,000,000 barrels. Total amount exported from Mexico in 1920 was 153,797,036 barrels, while the exports for the first nine months of 1921 approximate 130,000,000 barrels. According to the statisticians about 80 percent of the Mexican oil was shipped to the United States. They say that October will show the largest exports of any month of the year 1921 or more than 20,000,000 barrels and that November and December are certain to be record breaking months. Petroleum is the greatest game in the world; petroleum is the most fascinating game in the world; petroleum is a game that financial Fitians are playing today and it goes without saying or contradiction that the nation that controls the petroleum supply of the world will control the ships of the seven seas and the nation that controls the shipping will control the commerce of the universe. Mexico is on the map. Mighty nations and all powerful individuals with billions behind them, are working the wires, (the wires invisible), behind the scenes.

"In and on the irrigation systems there are at least six important things to be taken into consideration to make a success on an irrigation truck farm. These are plenty of water, how to irrigate, when and how to plant and how to prepare and sell," said P. A. Berry of R. F. D. 2, box 15. "With nine years experience in the work I cannot say that I know it all; however, I cannot complain of my condition and circumstances. While some of them do better and some not so well, we need not expect in this life to find all men equal in business transactions or in working facilities. I will have to be shown and see something yet that I have not seen bef, I am induced to speak a word against the irrigation project which is now in preparatory stage in the sections of Wichita Falls. I have often been asked, will this irrigation system, if

Bureau Chief and Tax Rate Favored In Early Trials

But Clockers at Government Track Say Harding, Although a Slow Starter, Finishes Strong and Hell's Bells Has Made Remarkable Showing in Trials.

By HERBERT COREY.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Starters in today's race:

Bureau Chief, Hell's Bells, Tax Rate and Harding.

The clockers at the government's track say that Hell's Bells has made a remarkable showing in private trials lately, but that on public form Bureau Chief seems to be justified as the favorite. Tax Rate, by Extravagance out of Taxpayer, is a dark horse and getting darker, but the really dangerous starter is Harding.

"Watch Harding," the clockers say. "He is a slow starter but he finishes like a row of army huts afire in a west wind."

This is recondite and allusive stuff. Getting down to the bone, it means that General Charles Gates Dawes, master of the budget, and inventor of that neat and snappy phrase which has led the populace to refer to him as "Hell's Bells," is having the time of his life with Washington's bureau chiefs. If he wins, the cost of running the government goes down and the tax rate may, after a cov delay, be expected to follow. If he loses, it is up to President Harding to handle the bureau chiefs.

Bureau Chief's Record.

"I've been in Washington since the Second Battle of Bull Run," said a pessimistic employe of the government, "and I have never yet seen the bureau chiefs defeated."

The country is filled with warehouses in which goods bought by the government during the recent war are stored. These goods are of every sort and description. The catholicity—so to say—of the original buyers is shown by a despatch from Paris not long ago, in which it was stated that among the items sold by the American government to France were 2,000,000 pairs of handcuffs. Every Yank in France could hook himself up in his own private handcuffs if that statement was correct. General Dawes has been trying to sell some portion of these goods. The country needs the money.

But the Dawes budgetary plan goes a bit further. He has devised a comprehensive scheme of co-ordi-

NEW EARLY TAX COLLECTION RECORD SET

Despite protestations of 'tight money' citizens of Wichita Falls paid into the treasury of the city a total of $73,247.07 during the month of October, according to the report Monday evening of City Tax Collector H. J. Anderson.

"This sum is by far the largest amount of city taxes ever collected during the first month of tax collection periods and is a splendid example of civic pride and patriotism on the part of citizens who answered the appeal for early payments," Mr. Anderson declared.

At the close of the first month of the 1920 period the books showed that only $4,921.53 had been paid, a sum only approximately one-fifteenth of the collections of this year.

Of the first month's collections, $22,619.40 was school taxes and $50,627.67 city taxes.

ENTHUSIASM MARKS FIRST DAY OF MEET

Address by Foreign and American Military and Public Leaders on Opening Day Program.

Foch and Pershing Arrive in Time for Parade Today in Which 40,000 Will Participate.

By Associated Press.

CONVENTION HALL, Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 31.—The national convention of the American Legion tonight brought the opening day's session to a close after receiving Admiral Earl Beatty, commander of the British grand fleet, and selecting Nest Orleans as the 1922 convention city. During the day the convention heard addresses by General Armando Diaz of the Italian armies; General Baron Jacques of Belgium, and Vice President Coolidge, who brought to the meeting a message from President Harding.

Tomorrow the convention will hear Marshal Foch, of France, and General John J. Pershing, and later participate in a parade in which officials estimate there will be forty thousand marchers.

By Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 31.—The American Legion went into action here today, launching an offensive against a program tacticians said would require three days to occupy and consolidate.

As the zero hour approached the convention hall sector was choked with thousands of restless veterans, all eager for the word to "go over the top."

Watching the drive closely were General Baron Jacques of Belgium and Vice President Coolidge, who is representing President Harding.

The proceedings began with songs by Mme. Schumann-Heink, whose voice cheered American boys far from home during the darker days of the war.

Then John G. Emery of Grand Rapids, Mich., national commander of the legion, called the convention to order and the invocation was pronounced by the Rev. John W. In sr of Chattanooga, national chaplain of the legion. Addresses of welcome were made on behalf of Kansas City and responses given by legion officials after which committee reports were requested.

Prolonged cheers greeted Commander Emery's charge that congress had been forced to bow to the will of the executive in the matter of delaying legislation for soldier compensation. The national commander asserted that President Harding held a conference with a group of anti-compensationists and then went before congress to urge that the legislation be re-committed.

More cheers followed Mr. Emery's declaration that the legion was in the compensation fight to stay and that it would make its stand known to the world in unmistakable terms without consideration to party politics.

Vice-President Calvin Coolidge arrived at the hall and the colors of the Vincent B. Costello post, American Legion, Washington, D. C., were presented him.

Coolidge Cheered.

The convention arose and cheered to the echo as the vice-president entered and was escorted to the platform.

Greetings from Marshal Foch of France and General John J. Pershing, en route to Kansas City to attend the legion convention, were read by National Commander Emery. The message from Marshal Foch read:

"To my brave comrades of the American Legion: Today you are assembled in your third annual convention. I send you greetings that come from the heart of one soldier to another as you begin your deliberations. My prayers go up not only for all men and women who did their duty in the world war, but for those who, having returned to the pursuits of peace, have banded themselves together to preserve these traditions of liberty, truth and justice for which we fought. It will be an added inexpressible pleasure soon to be with you."

General Pershing sent the following message:

"Greetings to the American Legion on the opening day of its convention and congratulations upon its spirit which is to stand always for those things for which we fought."

Tribute to Galbraith.

The Legion paused in its convention near the noon hour to pay tribute to the memory of Colonel Frederick W. Galbraith, Jr., late national commander, who died in the service of the organization.

Ceasing every movement, the thousands of legion delegates and visitors that crowded the great convention hall stood in bowed silence for three minutes out of respect to their dead comrade.

At the afternoon session General

VICTOR AND LOSER IN NORTH DAKOTA POLITICAL FIGHT

NESTOS' LEAD OVER FRAZIER IS DWINDLING

By Associated Press.

FARGO, N. D., Oct. 31.—Returns from twenty-nine additional precincts today made a further cut in the majority of R. A. Nestos, independent gubernatorial candidate in Friday's recall election, 1,857 out of 2,086 precincts in the state giving Nestos 106,976 and Governor Frabier, nonpartisan, 98,151.

This represents a total of 205,127 votes tabulated out of an estimated total of 220,000, in which Nestos' majority stands at 8,825. In the 2,113 additional returns received today, Frazier made a net gain of 457, or led at a ratio of about 3 to 2.

LLOYD GEORGE IS VICTORIOUS OVER CRITICS

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The government obtained its expected mandate from the house of commons tonight to proceed with the Irish negotiations. The unionists motion censuring the government for initiating the Irish negotiations, was voted down 439 to 43.

The premier also achieved another of his oratorical victories before an expectant audience. So far as the movement of protest was designed to draw information as to the proceedings of the conference, it failed; the premier gave no information as to what has been decided or is being discussed regarding Mr. DeValera's claim to independence and the rumored attempts to arrange concessions from Ulster for a united Ireland. These remain in the realm of speculation.

One piece of information the premier did give. It was that unless something happens within a few days, presumably in the conference to solve the unsettled status of Ireland's two governments, steps would be taken to give Ulster parliament the powers necessary to make it a real government.

GLAD STRIKE WAS AVERTED SAYS HOBBY

If Had Come, Would Have Aroused Public Against Group Responsible, Tells Kiwanians.

Public Will Not Stand for Anyone Tying Up Its Railroads, Former Governor Declares.

"I am glad the railroad strike was averted," said Ex-Governor W. P. Hobby, in a talk before the Kiwanis club Monday noon, "but if it had come I am sure that the entire nation would have followed the example of what Texas did on one occasion. It is unalterably opposed to the principles of this commonwealth that one group of men, whether they be operators or employees, should interfere with the good of the people as a whole."

Former Governor Hobby's talk expressed an optimistic outlook on business and affairs of state, both national and international, he commenting on the oil industry, the railroad situation, the disarmament conference. In touching the oil industry he took occasion to congratulate Wichita Falls on its resources and said he believed the mineral wealth of this section, and of the entire state has only been partially developed.

Sees Better Times.

"I think the valley of the shadow has been passed and that we are facing the greatest era of prosperity in the history of the country," he declared.

Alluding to the present status of the Texas-Oklahoma boundary dispute, he humorously remarked that, during his term of office as governor, he at least kept Oklahoma off of Texas. He expressed the opinion that a few Texas rangers would do more in this respect than the United States courts.

At the conclusion of his talk, Ben Neal, acting as chairman for the day, thanked the former executive, who is an honorary member of the Beaumont and the Fort Worth clubs, for his remarks.

A dainty dance number to the tune of "Ain't We Got Fun," given by Miss Ruth Smith, accompanied by Miss Louise Clark, was well received.

Buster Brown, a living reproduction of Outcault's famous funny paper character, who is representing a brand of shoes by that name was a guest at the luncheon. He briefly thanked the club for the honor of being a visitor and congratulated the members on having such a club.

The attendance prize, a hat donated by Jim Waggoner, was won by J. T. Gant. Silent boost were cigars given by Dr. McClory.

Neff Attends Hearing at Which His Representative Drastically Denounces Supt. King.

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 31.—Instead of reading his recommendations as to the charges of cruelty and brutality to the inmates of the juvenile training school before the board of control today, Governor Neff merely sat in the hearing as his personal representative, Judge H. E. Bell of Gatesville, denounced Superintendent C. E. King and charged him with neglect of his duty and utter disregard of the laws of Texas.

It was announced this morning that the governor would read his recommendations to the board.

Judge Bell charged that Superintendent King had grossly violated the laws of the state establishing the institution which provide that all cor-

Harding Issues Thanksgiving Proclamation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—President Harding issued a proclamation tonight designating Thursday, November 24 as a day of thanksgiving, devotion and prayer and urging the people to give thanks "for all that has been rendered unto them" and to pray "for a continuance of the divine fortune which has been showered so generously upon this nation."

MISS ONITA WHITE, KEMP BOULEVARD, IS VICTIM OF TRAGEDY

Auto Crashes Into Hallowe'en Party on Iowa Park Road; Seven Others Injured; Police Searching for Driver and Are Said to Have Number of Car.

Crushed by a five-passenger touring car which crashed into a party of Hallowe'en picnickers on the Iowa Park road, about two miles this side of Iowa Park, Miss Onita White, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. White, 1611 Kemp Boulevard, Monday night at 10:30 o'clock sustained injuries from which she died an hour later at the Wichita General Hospital. Miss White was unconscious when rescued from beneath the car and, despite the efforts of physicians, died without being revived.

The party was almost entirely composed of high school students, all dressed in Hallowe'en costumes and were driving over the country in a large truck.

Miss Juanita Prince, 16-year-old daughter of Mrs. Maud Prince, 904 Austin, was at the Wichita General Hospital Monday night, where she was removed for treatment for injuries received in the crash. At a late hour physicians declared Miss Prince's injuries were not so serious as first feared.

Six others were reported to have received minor injuries, among them Will Pardo, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Pardo, 1208 Eighteenth street. Names of other injured parties could not be obtained Monday night, friends declaring them not seriously hurt.

According to the reports given out by returned members of the party, something had gone wrong with one wheel of the car and all had grouped themselves about the side of the truck and across the road. No definite report of the speeding being made by the driver of the car which caused Miss White's death could be ascertained, some maintaining that the machine was making 40 miles per hour and some saying not quite so fast.

Members of the party declared that when the car came to a halt by the aid of the brakes and absolutely blocked by the mass of flesh and bone which was piled up beneath and in front of it, the occupants jumped out and ran. They then asserted that the occupants came back, got in the car and drove away.

The number of the automobile was given to the police by Dr. Joe Frank Clark of Iowa Park, who accompanied the stricken girl to Wichita Falls. Reports were out Monday night that two men and one woman were in the car which struck the crowd.

The accident was reported to have occurred on a clean stretch of road and it was impossible to learn here if the truck and party was in a place of sufficient light to have been easily seen.

Arrangements for the funeral of Miss White will be completed Tuesday, according to announcements from a local undertaking establishment, where the body was removed.

INJUNCTION TO RECEIVERS OF I. & G. N. ROAD

By Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 31.—Restraining and enjoining all interference with the receivers of the International and Great Northern railway in the operation of the road, an ancillary decree was issued Judge Duval West in federal court here today, on petition of the Central Union Trust Company of New York, joined in by the International and Great Northern and the trustees of the late Jay Gould. By authority of the decree, the United States court of the western district of Texas can punish any persons violating the original decrees in the receivership proceedings issued in the district court for the southern district of Texas, August 10, 1914 and July 8, 1916.

With the claim that the amount of freight moving on the line is increasing daily, it was announced today by J. R. Jones, superintendent, that additional non-union trainmen are being employed. Brakemen are running on all trains, he said.

The decree granted by Judge West is as follows:

"The defendant, International and Great Northern railway company, and the officers, directors, agents, attorneys and employes of said railway company, and all other persons claiming to act by virtue of or under said railway company, and all other persons, firms and corporations whatsoever and wheresoever situated, located or domiciled, be and they are hereby restrained and enjoined from interfering with, attaching, levying upon or in any manner whatsoever disturbing any portion of the property and premises of which receivers are hereby appointed, or from taking possession of or in any way interfering with the same or any part thereof, or from interfering in any manner to prevent the discharge by said receivers of their duties or the operation of said property and premises under orders of this court."

FILM DISTRIBUTOR AND ALLEGED THIEF NABBED IN TEXAS

By Associated Press.

SWEETWATER, Texas, Oct. 31.—Morris Titus, film distributor, said to be wanted in New York on a charge of theft of feature pictures from the United Artists Corporation, was apprehended here today. Advices from New York say that $500 reward has been offered for his arrest. Titus is said to have admitted his identity when shown a picture of himself.

WHITE WOULD REMAIN CHIEF OF DEMOCRATS

Party Chairman Declares He Has no Intention of Resigning Unless in Interest of Harmony.

By Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 31.—Democratic national committeemen, here tonight for the first committee meeting tomorrow since the disastrous campaign of a year ago were limiting their discussion almost solely to prospects of Chairman George White of Marietta, Ohio, being succeeded by another.

Chairman White today issued a formal statement in which he said he has no idea of submitting his resignation at this time, "unless all elements of the party can agree upon some one to succeed me."

"There will be a harmonious reorganization of the committee," said John E. Costello, committeeman from the District of Columbia. He would not predict who would be selected.

Neither Senator Carter Glass of Virginia nor Thomas B. Love of Texas would comment on the reorganization move. Asked if it were true that the opposition to Mr. White's controlled three-fourths of the voting strength of the committee, Senator Glass would make no direct answer. He would not anticipate developments, asserting it best to wait for those in the meeting tomorrow, adding "I have understood that Mr. White would resign." Supporters of Chairman White say the Virginia senator has a "whole pocket full" of proxies. They declare that they have no idea of the strength of the opposition.

Harrison Backs White.

Chairman White's supporters are counseling for harmony. Among the foremost of these Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, asserted that Chairman White's report to the committee tomorrow would be an "eye-opener" and intimated it would have a tendency to allay much of the opposition to the chairman. However, Senator Harrison, it is understood, is ready to put up a strenuous fight for Mr. White in case attempt is made to unhorse him.

Committeeman Clark Howell of Georgia said he did not predict an attempt would be made at reorganization. "There must not be and will not be any friction in the Democratic party," he said. "You will find that while there is considerable talk of changing chairmen, nothing will come of it. Members of the committee to whom I have talked since my arrival are almost of one mind that there must be nothing done at this meeting that will cause discord."

Whether Chairman White's supporters would agree to Daniel C. Roper, former internal revenue commissioner as the incumbent's successor has not been definitely indicated.

E. H. Moore of Youngstown, Ohio, Governor Cox's manager before his nomination for the presidency at the San Francisco convention, had not arrived early tonight, though he is expected here in time to join the chairmen's ranks tomorrow, should a fight develop.

completed, be a success?" My answer is always in the affirmative. I only speak from experience on a small scale. I went at it without solicitation or experience and I am headed for more of it instead of less. Give me water and more water and in a few years we will see one of the most beautiful and prosperous sections in the state. My son and I have run about eight acres in growing stuff this year and we are willing to compare figures with any two men in this country who have run 160 acres dry farming. While unimproved lands under irrigation are selling from $500 to $800 per acre, dry lands sell for $30 to $40 per acre. Some fail to say to increase the irrigation fields would cause, on overproduction and create a glutted market. I answer this by saying that there is more produce shipped to this market than we raise here. I am in favor of putting a stop to this business by raising enough to supply the demand and furnish the wholesale produce man with enough home-grown products to slip to other parts. There is only one class who should be expected to kick against the irrigation system at Wichita Falls and that is those who live in other fields and are using this market to dispose of their stuff. Let us get on the line with J. A. Kemp and help to pull the project over the top to a success and cement Wichita Falls, Iowa Park and Holliday together while we look over the blooming fields of prosperity. Yours for good roads and irrigated lands; yours for carrying filled baskets and sacks to town instead of bringing them from town. Let us give the consumer of our market the benefit of the profits instead of letting the railroads get them. Let us prepare to ship produce away from here instead of having it shipped in here. Let us bring that money back that we have sent away from here. Let us not look back and say, 'it can't be done' but look forward and say, 'it can be done.' You can raise all kinds of stuff and more stuff than you think you can raise. Hearing a thing rattle, some one tells you what it is. It is only a historical belief. To see it your self, is a fact."

SOME OF GREATEST OF WAR HEROES ATTENDING LEGION CONVENTION

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 31.—Thirty-two of the World War heroes who won the highest citation—the Congressional medal of honor—are attending the third annual national convention of the American Legion in this city.

Special plans have been made to entertain these heroes of America, and they will head the Legion parade of 40,000 marching men on the afternoon of the second day of the convention.

Congress awarded but seventy-eight medals for heroism in the World War. Some of the awards were posthumous. Only fifty-five of the heroes are living today.

These men, more than anyone else, established in the eyes of foreign armies the reputation of the American soldier. Their brave deeds were a pattern for recruits, and an assurance to the folks at home that America's soldiers would not quail under fire.

Here is the citation of Louis Van Iersal, of Passaic, N. J. It is noteworthy in view of the fact that he is entitled to wear thirteen United States and foreign decorations:

"While a member of the reconnaissance patrol, sent out at night to ascertain the condition of a damaged bridge, Sergeant Van Iersal volunteered to lead a party across the bridge in the face of heavy machine gun fire and rifle fire from a range of only seventy-five yards.

"Crawling alone along the debris of the ruined bridge, he came upon a trap which gave way and precipitated him into the water. In spite of the swift current, he succeeded in swimming across the stream and found a lodging place among the timbers on the opposite bank. Disregarding the enemy fire, he made a careful investigation of the hostile position by which the bridge was defended, and then returned to the other bank of the river, reporting this valuable information to the battalion commander."

These honor men accepted the convention committee's invitation to attend the convention:

LEGIONNAIRES ENTHUSIASTIC AT CONVENTION

Baron Jacques of Belgium and General Armando Diaz of Italy, two of the nation's and legion's guests of honor from abroad, entered amid the blare of bands and were escorted to boxes at opposite sides of the stage. The crowd cheered wildly and it was several minutes before the men, both smiling broadly at the demonstration could take their seats.

General Diaz received oration when he was escorted to the stage. He was introduced by National Commander Emery, who paid tribute to the patriotism of the Italians in America, and hailed the general as the savior of his country.

Italy's Message

General Diaz gave his address in Italian.

"Italy remembers and appreciates," was the word he brought from the Italian government and people to the people of the United States. "The war is over," General Diaz said, "from it must arise not war, but peace, labor and progress. This Italy desires."

The great crowd rose and gave the biggest demonstration of the day when Lieutenant General Bacon Jacques was escorted to the platform. The Belgian general smilingly waved while the crowd applauded.

When Commander Emery introduced General Jacques, the hero of Liege, where, Commander Emery said, civilization was saved to the world, the crowd went wild again.

General Jacques arose and began to deliver his address in English with an accent and this brought more cheering. Apologizing for his inability to speak English plainly, General Jacques was interrupted by a doughboy on the floor who shouted, "Aftabuy."

The convention cheered again as the Belgian general concluded.

John L. Berry of Tennessee, speaking as the official representative of the American Federation of Labor, told the convention that the federation stood shoulder to shoulder with the legion in its loyalty to American ideals of government and in opposition to "sovietization" of the United States and to direct action as a means of settling industrial disputes.

He was cheered wildly and immediately upon the conclusion of his speech, the convention passed a resolution conveying to the American Federation of Labor its appreciation of the attitude expressed by Mr. Berry.

Mr. Berry said his message to the legion came straight from Samuel Gompers, president of the federation.

Sweet Bill Discussed

Gilbert Bettman of Cincinnati, Ohio, chairman of the national legislative committee of the legion, presented an outline of the work of the committee in behalf of the Sweet bill providing for adjusted compensation to veterans of the war.

"We must give serious consideration to any arguments of the administration and to the president's address to the senate," declared Mr. Bettman. "We must listen and consider and then reaffirm the justice of our claim for adjusted compensation. But let us go no further. Let us attack no one personally. Let us do nothing which has the slightest political complexion."

Mr. Bettman said he spoke not as a Republican or a democrat but as a member of the legion.

BITTER ATTACK MADE ON HEAD AT GATESVILLE

poral punishment shall be inflicted in his presence, when he delegates that authority to certain employees of the school. Judge Bell referred particularly to H. G. Twyman, former drill master, now facing a charge of murder for the death of Dell Thames, 14 year old inmate which brought about the injury by the board of control.

Judge Bell also charged that Mr. King had violated other minor laws of the state and institution. In speaking of the death of young Thames he said emphatically that "directly H. G. Twyman is held responsible for his death but indirectly somebody else." He also made other charges against Mr. King in reference to what was done after the boy's death. Judge Bell admitted that he was done after the boy's death. Judge Bell admitted that he was prosecuting Mr. King, citing Governor Neff's letter appointing him as his representative.

Charges made by two San Antonio boys recently that the death of another boy had been caused at the school sometime ago by cruel treatment were groundless, Judge Bell Bell said, declaring that he had investigated them and that the boy in question died in his father's presence of natural causes. These charges were presented in affidavits to the board by Senator Harry Herizberg of San Antonio recently.

Clay McLellan of Gatesville, representing Mr. King said in his argument that the law cited by Judge Bell could not be enforced and that it was also impossible to enforce the other minor laws. He merely touched on various testimonies adduced at the inquiry defending Mr. King's action in delegating authority to Twyman and placing confidence in him. He cited the testimony of Twyman's successor the present drill master, who had testified that "he could easily see how Twyman may have been driven to an excess in his desire for discipline."

Following the arguments the board members announced that they would announce their conclusion within the next few days. A. R. Johnson said he was ready to render his decision as to the brutality charges right now."

MIKE GIBBONS IS AWARDED DECISION OVER LITTLETON

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 31.—Mike Gibbons of St. Paul was given the decision over Harry Littleton of New Orleans in a 10 round boxing bout here tonight. Gibbons was said to have clearly the better of the fight on points, although he was knocked down twice and toward the close was hissed by the crowd.

Gibbons weighed 160½ and Littleton 160 pounds. In the first round, Gibbons was floored and took a count of nine. He was knocked down again in the twelfth, putting a claim of foul, which was disallowed. In the opinion of local sport writers, Littleton had the better of the in-fighting. The bout was marred by constant wrangling over technicalities.

BUREAU CHIEF AND TAX RATE ARE FAVORED

nation by which the country is divided into areas in which the buying and selling for all government agencies is to be handled by the budget agents. Some departments have goods that other departments need. In the past the departments that needed goods would go into the market and buy. The department that had goods very rarely, if ever, sold them. If the scheme works out the country's business will be conducted on the plan by which any mercantile house manages its affairs. It is as simple as eggs.

More About Bureau Chiefs.

Not all bureau chiefs, of course. And every now and then a bureau chief is caught out in the open and General Dawes has a little interview with him and that particular bureau chief ceases to oppose. As a broad, general, goat-getting proposition, however, they are fighting the master of the budget in precisely the manner in which bureau chiefs have fought unwelcome suggestions for change or reform ever since the government was founded. They "yes" him to death. They look at him with bright unwinking eyes. They say:

"Yes, sir. We'll go do that very thing, sir."

And then they do not do it. There are more reasons for delay to be found by skilful bureau chiefs than there are bugs in Honduras. There are not enough clerks, or they have run out of forms, or they cannot find the goods or they are conducting an investigation, or there are other more immediately pressing matters in the way. They never refuse. In the end they do what they are told, if the man who does the telling doesn't wear out, or die or go crazy, or forget.

There is no doubt that General Dawes is making headway with his sales of government goods and his plans for co-ordinating the government's buying and selling. Neither is there any doubt that he is meeting with exasperating opposition on the part of the bureau chiefs. It is the more exasperating because it doesn't sound like opposition. It sounds like an earnest effort to help the master of the budget in every possible way.

But the help only comes when a bureau chief is slipped into the duck press.

Budget Scheme Savings Immense.

The savings being effected by Dawes and the budget scheme are immense, but not all of the savings will ever appear in the record. Perhaps the greater part will consist of schemes for money spending, which have been suffocated before they ever reached the open air. Little by little the co-ordinating scheme is being hammered into operation, too, but the job of making it tick is probably harder than any one suspected at the outset. Every bureau chief is thoroughly familiar with the laws and rules—and by-passes of his particular bureau. When he doesn't want to co-operate it is hard to make him.

GEORGE HARVEY LAUDS PURPOSE OF ARMS MEET

Great Britain's Delegates to Washington Conference Addressed by American Ambassador.

Armament Meeting Heralded as an Ordeal Not of Battle But of Faith, by Col. Harvey.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—George Harvey, the American ambassador, speaking tonight at the dinner given by the Pilgrims Society to the British delegates to the Washington armament conference, heralded the coming conference as "an ordeal not of battle, but of faith," the underlying purpose of which was no more a challenge to the League of Nations than it was to the Monroe doctrine.

Ambassador Harvey reviewed the action of the American congress respecting the limitation of the army and the reduction of naval appropriations which he said gave conclusive evidence of the American government's confidence in the outcome of the conference.

"The real question confronting the conference is not whether the nations of the earth can be brought into agreement upon all things, but whether they can reach an understanding with respect to anything," he said. "It is to be a great test, not of the sincerity of the people but of the capacity of existing governments to satisfy the universal longing for peace, prosperity and happiness."

Ambassador Harvey opened his address by alluding to the circumstances in which the invitation to the Washington conference was accepted by the British.

"Never can or would I forget that peaceful Sunday afternoon in July when I found Mr. Lloyd George seated under the spreading branches of the trees on his country place engaged in animated conversation with the premiers of the dominions. Quietly he asked: 'What is it?'

"I drew a cablegram from my pocket and held it toward him.

"'Read it,' he said. He did so, slowly and carefully. It was the message from the secretary of state announcing the intention of the president to summon a conference of nations and asking if such a move would meet with the approbation of the British government.

"In a flash the premier was on his feet.

"'We accept,' he almost shouted. 'We accept gladly; we accept gratefully. I do not need to read the telegram. It is alright. We will do everything in our power to make the conference a great success.'

"That is the pledge he gave and which he has kept to this evening, when, his heart is heavy from apprehension that the performance of a more urgent duty may prevent him from affording at the beginning the helpfulness of the great and unexampled prestige which can be fully rendered only through the actual presence of so vivid a personality."

The ambassador told of the delivery of the invitation to the conference to Lord Curzon, the minister of foreign affairs, and the ambassador's call for the reply which had been drafted with the conventional opening:

"The British government confirm their acceptance," etc.

"Lord Curzon," said Colonel Harvey, "read the answer and remarked: 'This does not suffice,' then he wrote in: 'With the greatest satisfaction.'

Sentiment Reflected.

"What is true of these two heads of the British government," the ambassador went on, "is equally true of all British statesmen, irrespective of their political or partisan proclivities."

He quoted King George's message to President Harding and the latter's reply, and added:

"Back of all their statesmen and publicists stand in wistful hope the entire peoples of our common race.

"Our own position is plain," he continued, "America does not fear war. Why should she? Geographically she is self contained in self-supporting in all respects.

"Her long coast lines are inadequately protected. Some of her most splendid cities appear as tempting targets to the warriors of the seas. But the circumstance is relatively trivial. The greatest guns in the world could not create the havoc of an earthquake such as that, from which San Francisco rose like a phoenix from its ashes, more resplendent than ever, in a bare score of months.

"It is a matter of most casual observation that we rebuild New York every thirty years. And back of the cities and the coast lines lies a great country which constitutes the real America with a registered total of more than 24,000,000 men between the ages of 17 and 45 capable of bearing arms.

Position Impregnable.

"To pronounce such a land unconquerable is to utter the merest truism. No, America does not fear war; she simply hates it.

"But the security of the United States does not rest upon her physical resources alone. Her moral position is impregnable. Not only will she never seek additional territory by conquest; she would not accept it as a gift.

"Within her borders lie unoccupied lands sufficient to sustain a population treble that she now has. Well indeed may she rest content—a friend to all nations and, so far as her people are aware, without an enemy in the world.

"The mere conference, therefore, presages no arbitrament of the sword. It is an ordeal not of battle but of faith."

Discussing the argument in congress whether the army should comprise 100,000 or 150,000 officers and men, Ambassador Harvey repeated the observation of a British statesman that "its only excess is in its moderation."

One Way to Disarm.

"The president today," he said, "seems to say by his acts that the way to disarm is to disarm. Even so his clear vision is dimmed by no illusion. None knows better than he that the traditions of centuries cannot be swept aside overnight, none more fully realizes that to attempt too much is to jeopardize the prospect of any fulfillment."

"Whatever the outcome of the Washington deliberations," the ambassador declared, "conditions cannot remain the same. With the ending of the conference will surely come to the hearts of hundreds of millions either gladdening hope or deepening despair.

"The Washington conference marks only the blazing of the trail, only the beginning. Yet greater works are to follow in fulfillment of the common aspirations of all mankind pursuant we may well believe, to the design of Almighty God."

ARMS PARLEY PLANS REACH FINAL STAGES

Secretary Denby and Group of Naval Experts Confer With Delegates Regarding U. S. Proposals.

Harding Bestows Rank of Ambassadors on America's Representatives to Forthcoming Meeting.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—With the formal opening of the international conference on limitation of armament less than a fortnight in the future, preliminary preparations for the meeting swung into the final stages today.

Advance groups of two delegations already are here, the advisory delegation from China, having arrived last night. It was greeted formally by representatives of the state, war and navy departments and informally by thousands of citizens who waited at the station and lined the streets through which the visiting party passed.

Other delegations are scheduled to arrive during the week and officials in charge expected the work of organization to proceed rapidly.

Naval Experts Called

Secretary Denby, Admiral Coontz, chief of naval operation, and the group of naval experts working out the American proposals as to limitation of naval armament again met today with the American delegates to the conference. The meeting was called in Secretary Hughes' office, and the navy officials arrived armed with portfolios full of documents.

It was assumed that the general theory of limitation of naval armament which this government believed might be successfully applied had been completed and approved at the previous meetings of the naval experts with the delegates and subsequent discussions of this matter between President Harding and the delegates at a White House dinner. The naval problem, however, it is generally understood, is the most difficult one to come before the approaching conference.

Included in the consideration of naval establishment of the various powers necessarily is the question of bases, particularly in Pacific waters, and to some extent the fortifications that defend various points.

The rank of ambassador was given today to the American delegates appointed by President Harding to represent the United States at the forthcoming conference on limitation of armament and discussion of Pacific and Far Eastern questions.

The announcement of the president's action was made by Under-Secretary of State Fletcher, who explained that the four representatives of the United States were given ambassadorial rank so that they might sit in the conference on an equality with the delegates of the other invited powers. They will outrank ambassadors credited to foreign capitals.

The rank will apply to Elihu Root, Senators Lodge and Underwood and Mr. Hughes. The latter will sit in the conference not as secretary of state, but as head of the American delegation.

Pro Official At El Paso to "Get the Gate"

By Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 31.—J. H. Fleming, chief narcotic enforcement agent at El Paso, will be removed from office within a few days, United States Marshal Captain D. A. Walker announced here today on his return from Washington. Mr. Walker said he is not in a position just yet to say who will succeed Mr. Fleming.

"To accomplish the removal of Mr. Fleming was my real mission to Washington," Mr. Walker said. "Mr. Fleming is a brother-in-law of W. G. McAdoo and had boasted his position could not be touched. Coupled with that I had other reasons for visiting the national capital. It had been reported in other quarters I had gone after the job of another man who I do not even know personally."

BONUS FIGHT DELAYS ACTION ON TAX BILL

Reed Amendment Providing Adjusted Compensation Is Debated for Four Hours in Senate.

Majority Will Seek to Divorce Tax and Bonus Issues by Tabling Reed Measure, Says Penrose.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Renewal of the fight in the senate for passage of the soldiers bonus bill resulted in a further setback today for the tax revision measure. Republican leaders forced a night session, with the bonus issue undisposed of, there appeared to be doubt whether the tax bill could be brought to a vote before Saturday, if then.

There was a four-hour discussion today of the Reed amendment proposing to continue the excess profits tax and to seize the products to defray the cost of the five-way adjusted compensation plan.

This was followed by introduction of an amendment by Senators Simmons of North Carolina, and Walsh of Massachusetts, democratic members of the finance committee proposing payment of the bonds out of the interest on the nation's fore debt.

The latter amendment will not be moved formally for adoption in the senate, its author announced, until action has been taken on the Reed amendment. Meantime Senator Reed is delaying formal presentation of his amendment until there has been full discussion of the whole question.

Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, in charge of the tax bill said today it was the plan of the majority to move to table the Reed proposal on the ground that the soldiers bonus has no place in a tax measure. Majority leaders had not decided tonight, however, what would be done with respect to the Simmons-Walsh amendment, which the authors declared would "make the issue clearly one of bonus without raising the question of the condition of the public treasury, which has been the chief argument presented by opponents of the bonus plan."

Senator New, republican, Indiana, opened the bonus discussion today with the declaration that in his judgment the Reed amendment would be in conflict with the constitution in that it proposed to tax one class of citizens for the benefit of the other. This contention was denied by Senator Reed who declared a vote to table his amendment would be a "coward's vote." Attacking Secretary Mellon for recommending delay in action on the bonus measure, Senator Reed, declared the treasury head was connected with many oppressive and powerful financial and industrial institutions."

The senate was told by Senator Stanley that despite an overwhelming sentiment in congress for the bonus bill, President Harding had put "his foot on the measure" and ordered the republican congressional leaders to abandon it. He added that will Senator Penrose acting as undertaker and the other republicans as pall bearers, the bonus bill was dead.

Getting back to the tax bill the senate adopted a finance committee amendment which would exempt from taxation American corporations and citizens in the Philippines and Porto Rico, unless their income was sent to stockholders in the United States. The finance committee withdrew its proposal to exempt from taxation incomes derived from China by American corporations and citizens, 50 per cent of whose business was done in that Republic.

The senate adopted 32 to 30, an amendment to the capital stock section, which would permit holding companies, to deduct from their capital stock tax, the amount of such taxes paid by their subsidiaries.

Rangers Ordered To Murder Trial At Weatherford

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 31.—Adjutant General Barton announced late today that he had ordered a detachment of Texas rangers to be in Weatherford on November 4 to be present during the trial of three young men charged with the murder of Jimmie McNeal which starts on that date. General Barton said he was sending the Rangers at the request of the district attorney of that county.

COURT ENJOINS ACTIVITIES OF MINING UNIONS

Efforts at Unionizing Miners in West Virginia Held as Furthering Unlawful Conspiracy.

By Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 31.—An injunction directed at stopping the United Mine Workers of America from efforts to unionize the Williamson coal field in West Virginia, where miners have been on strike for more than a year, was issued today by Federal Judge A. B. Anderson on the ground that the union was seeking to restrain trade.

After Judge Anderson's announcement of the order some delay in its formal issuance was occasioned by a discussion between court and counsel as to the exact text of the order.

The court did not deny the right of workers to organize but held the miners efforts in West Virginia were in furtherance of a conspiracy with operators in organized union fields to shut off the competition of the non-union mined coal. In discussing with counsel the text of the order, Judge Anderson said he would not enjoin "peaceful efforts" of the union to organize West Virginia.

Further in the discussion the judge said: "I am holding the effort to unionize West Virginia is unlawful in itself because it is an effort to suppress competition." The judge also said he would enjoin the "check-off" system of operators deducting union dues from miner's wages.

WILL SEEK TO HAVE INJUNCTION DISSOLVED

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 31.—Application for dissolution of the temporary injunction issued by Federal Judge Anderson against the United Mine Workers of America in Indianapolis today will be made immediately to the United States circuit court in Chicago, according to Harold W. Houston, counsel for the United Mine Workers in West Virginia.

By Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 31.—W. P. Scott and Carey S. Hill, California bankers, who were arrested at Del Rio last Saturday while en route to New Orleans where they were to attend a bankers' conference, pleaded guilty in federal court today to charges of violation of the national prohibition laws. They were fined $100 each by Judge Duval West. Scott and Hill registered at a local hotel from Los Angeles, although at the federal building it was stated that they were from San Francisco.

NAME TEN FROM WHICH DIRECTORS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ARE TO BE CHOSEN AT 1922 ANNUAL MEETING

Ten nominations for places on the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, to fill the five vacancies which will occur the first of the year, were announced Monday by the nominations committee.

Five of those named will be elected at the annual membership meeting, which, according to custom, is held in January.

The ten names include the five, composing one-third of the board, whose terms expire this year, with five who have not heretofore served as such on the local board.

The five old members include the name of Mayor Walter D. Cline, who had asked not to be renominated and expressed the wish to retire from the board, in order that another might take his place and be interested in the work. The renomination was unanimous, however, as was that of the other four—W. S. Curlee, C. W. Reid, G. Clint Wood and W. W. Anderson.

The five new names are: J. C. Mytinger, W. B. Pyron, E. S. Goodner, H. A. Robbins and George Keith.

The new nominations include J. C. Mytinger, who has been successively vice-chairman and chairman of the business council during the two years of its existence, and who has been active in Chamber of Commerce work. At present he is head of the J. C. Mytinger Grain company.

Another of the new nominations, a name which was proposed in the list of each member of the committee, was Walter B. Pyron, third vice-president of the Gulf Production company, and who recently came to Wichita Falls through the removal of the North Texas headquarters of his company to this place. Unlike some big company oil men, Mr. Pyron has always been an indefatigable worker in the interest of the city in which his business has made his home, and has been prominent in the work of civic organizations. Before coming here he has successively been in charge of the Gulf headquarters in Shreveport and Fort Worth, in both of which he was one of the prominent workers in the Chamber of Commerce, president of the former, and a director in the latter.

E. S. Goodner, head of the wholesale grocer company which carries his name, has been a vigorous worker in all civic lines since throwing in his lot with Wichita Falls and Wichitans nearly three years ago. Horrace Robbins is head of the Robbins company, insurance and real estate brokers, is president of the Rotary club, and is a wholehearted civic worker.

George Keith is a leading produce man and stockman of this section, has been active in many organizations here, and was the first president of the Wichita Falls Rotary club.

The nominations were made by a committee headed by W. E. Norton, and composed of Burton Stayton, J. M. McFall, C. E. McCutcheon, W. Newton Maer, R. E. Penick and Chas. G. Manuel.

HOBBY TO MAKE DEFINITE STATEMENT OF INTENTIONS AROUND FIRST OF NEW YEAR

Former Governor William P. Hobby, in Wichita Falls Monday on a business mission, has not definitely decided whether he will be a candidate for the United States senate the coming year or not, he told friends and local newspapermen Monday.

"There is still plenty of time for that," Mr. Hobby said when approached in this connection. A definite statement, he said, would be issued by him about the first of the coming year. Since retiring from the governor's office, Governor Hobby has devoted the principal part of his time to his Beaumont newspaper interests.

While here Governor Hobby had little to say about the "open ports" law, passed by the legislature during his administration to give wider authority to the governor during strikes which threaten tie-ups to transportation, beyond expressing himself as glad that he had been instrumental in putting such a statute into effect, and as feeling that it would prove a serviceable instrument to the people of Texas in an emergency. He was frequently reminded by his friends here during the day, however, that he could claim this piece of legislation as a real accomplishment.

While here he spent a considerable portion of his time with J. D. Farnell, former representative in the state legislature from this district. While here he called on G. Clint Wood, W. D. Cline, Frank Kell, J. J. Perkins, L. C. Heydrick and a number of others.

He took occasion to pass frequent compliments on Wichita Falls, its appearance, its progress and its people.

He spoke of the oil business, and Wichita Fall's share in it, particularly, declaring that the oil industry, more than anything else, was making Texas the richest of any of the states.

JURY ORDERS OFFICERS TO RETURN CAR

After a several hour's trial Monday a jury in the county court at law awarded a Ford automobile to T. G. Benson after it had been in the possession of Tom Geisler and T. T. Ligon, chief of police and constable of Electra for several weeks. In addition, the two officers according to the jury's verdict will be compelled to pay a rental of $4 a day for the use of the machine since August 8.

According to the testimony introduced in the case the two officers found the machine abandoned near Electra in August. Benson claimed the machine at that time but according to the officers he failed to establish his ownership and they refused to turn it over to him. G. Keyes was an intervenor in the suit, also claiming ownership of the machine.

FORMER PASTOR OF WICHITA FALLS IS AGAINST DR. RICE

Taking the lead in the fight of Methodist churches against the text book, "The Old Testament in the Life of Today," Rev. W. L. Tittle, pastor of the Floral Heights Methodist church, offered a resolution before the North Texas Conference which was adopted asking that the board of trustees accept the resignation of Dr. John A. Rice, author of the book from the faculty of Southern Methodist University. The resolution was adopted.

The book has been disapproved by other conferences during the fall.

The resolution which Mr. Tittle and others submitted follows:

"We congratulate the church and Southern Methodist university on the recent announcement of the resignation of Dr. John A. Rice from the faculty of the theological department of said university.

"We earnestly urge said board of trustees of Southern Methodist university to accept said resignation at once.

"We urge the proper authorities to secure the early elimination of the book entitled 'The Old Testament in the Life of Today,' together with all other books setting forth the objectionable teachings from all courses of study required in all our schools."

NEWTOWN SCHOOLS CLOSED: EPIDEMIC DIPHTHERIA CAUSE

With several cases of diphtheria in the vicinity the schools at Newtown have been closed indefinitely according to information received Monday by Burl Bryant, county superintendent of schools, from O. D. White, principal of the schools. According to the information received several of the pupils are confined to their homes and also one teacher.

The Newtown schools employ six teachers. So far as known at the county superintendent's office there are few cases of diphtheria in other parts of the county.

KATY ROAD HEAVY USER FUEL OIL

Conversion of coal burning locomotives on the Katy lines to oil burners, expected to be completed on all passenger engines in all divisions except between St. Louis and Parsons, by January 1, will draw upon the Mid-Continent field and to a large extent upon the Wichita Falls district for over 200,000 barrels of fuel oil a month, according to an estimate made Monday by Division Superintendent F. W. Grace, of the Katy here.

To take care of the storage of the enormous amount of fuel oil which will be required by the conversion, Mr. Grace says, in addition to the former storage, there have recently been completed three 55,000 barrel tanks at Kansas City, one at Muskogee, one at Oklahoma City, one at Denison and one at Wichita Falls.

At the present time conversion has been finished on all the M. K. & T. railways of Texas, passenger engines, between Kansas City and Denison, between Parsons and Junction City, and on all freight engines in Oklahoma with the exception of the Cherokee division. The remainder of the equipment will be converted by January 1.

YESTERDAY

TODAY

"THEY WILL HAPPEN HERE AS THEY HAVE IN OTHER PLACES"

By FRANK S. REID.

A party said to me the other day: "I hope you will be with us to see the day when your eyes shall gaze on the irrigation reservoir full of water." I am basing my hopes on that statement; I have visions, and I am not so sure but what these visions will be a realization before a great while. I can say that I have tread the ground floor of that wonderful reservoir which nature has so kindly given, situated in the hills of Baylor county, some 65 miles from here. As I stood upon the crest of that reservoir I could not help but wanting to thank the Great Omnipetent for what he has provided and that perhaps after all this great nature reservoir was absolutely made for the Wichita Valley irrigation project, and meant for it, when years ago it was created. Nature did a good deal, but she didn't do it all. She left something for those vitally interested in this project to do.

There are the engineers who will construct the dam at the outlet of this reservoir and who will lay out the main ditches and construct other parts of the work, but the one vital thing is up to those people who will eventually participate in its perpetuality; the ones who will make it for success or failure; by their own individual efforts.

I am so glad it has been my good fortune to have passed through a period of years in connection with irrigation work, when I stood upon the raw ground and had some visions passed to the realization when the desert was made to bloom like a rose; when beautiful homes sprang up; when fields were dotted with the golden grain; when everything connected with farming was laid out in one grand picture of reality.

These things did happen.

They will happen here as they have in other places, but like everything else, do not come with mere talking about it, but by real effort and hard work and planning, not by misrepresentation upon the part of anyone, but honest-to-goodness sincerity and belief in the undertaking. At best there will be hard things to overcome, prejudices to overcome. I have heard remarks made against the project and these parties are perfectly sincere in their belief, but the majority of people have indicated their desires in the matter, so it looks as though but just the sale of the bonds prevents the immediate beginning of work. At best, anyone's belief should be respected, yet at the same time if opposed to the scheme, should look upon the efforts of those who think and dream this project.

Chief Engineer Thompson's statement that "The project is a meritorious one" should not go unnoticed for he is a man of reliability along engineering lines. Then we have local men who have realized ambitions in their efforts and planning.

Since my residence here I have not met but one man who has passed through the same visions into realization, that I have, as it pertains to irrigation. I am sure there are others who have been through the practical work and can appreciate what it means. Why not let us hear from you, brother.

Irrigation and its relation to farming is so full of interesting things, and its stability to a city like Wichita Falls so marked, that every honest effort should be put forth, to make it the success that it so richly deserves.

I am wondering if the visions I see will be a realization in a short time. I believe indications point that way. I am hopeful.

Varsity Club to Hear Kay and Musicians

Vocal duets by Miss Ruth Chandler, soprano, and Charles Angle, baritone, to consist of rendition of the popular "Barefoot Trail" and Chauncy Olcott's recent hit "The Click of the Brogans," will feature the program arranged for the regular weekly luncheon of the University club Tuesday noon at the Wichita club rooms.

Judge John Kay was to make the talk of the day on a subject of his own choosing.

The high standard of entertainment provided and the fame of Judge Kay as an after dinner speaker are expected by club officers to draw a record attendance. Every member is invited to bring guests.

CONGRATULATIONS, CITIZENS OF WILBARGER!

Progressive citizens of Wilbarger county went over the top by an overwhelming majority in their $600,000 road Bond election. Progressive citizens of Wilbarger county placed their county on the map. They are for advancement; they are for development; they are for modern public highways; they are for modern churches, colleges and schools; they believe in building; they do not take kindly to the examples set them by "the man who stood still." By the way, Mr. R. E. More is a resident citizen of Vernon county. Was he for or "agin" the proposiiton? Is he of the opinion that the sun stands still? Has he been convinced that the world is flat? If not, why not?

ON THE FIRING LINE.

According to the Fort Worth correspondent of the Dallas News, more than $1,000,000 worth of stock of the Agricultural Livestock Finance Corporation has been placed and subscriptions are awaiting the call of the executive committee when applications for the charter is to be made. Fort Worth business men have subscribed $700,000 of the $1,500,000 of the capital stock and the remainder has been subscribed by outside interests. The Record News felt sure that the Hon. S. B. Burnett, Mr. W. T. Waggoner and Mrs. Winfield Scott would go to the rescue of the enterprise if it were whispered in their ears that the hour of decisive action had rolled in. Congratulations. Only game fish swim up the stream.

Woodrow Wilson will be 65 years old on December 26 and those who are closest to him say that he is out of politics, that he is not planning to take hand in the disarmament conference, that he will write no book and that he prefers to let history judge for itself his share while he was the chief figure on the stage of action in the bloodiest and most costly conflict the world has ever known. Woodrow Wilson will be given his place in history among the few immortals who are not born to die. His niche has been carved in the hall of fame and it will be found near the apex of that venerable institution.

A London correspondent says "English hopeful but not excited." He was writing of the disarmament conference. Now why should the English be excited? Not long ago their parliament voted 25,000,000 pounds sterling for new battleships, but their financiers never said a word about the interest overdue on American loans.

WALLOP FOR NON-PARTISANS.

Governor Lenn Frazier of North Dakota, head of the non-partisan leaguers, has been recalled by a majority of 5,000 votes. He was defeated by Statesman Nestos, who is a governor-elect. Frazier was serving his second term. He is the idol of the Non-Partisan political farmers of his state. Nestos had the backing of the republican and democratic state machines; he had the backing of the leading newspapers of North Dakota; he had the backing of the banking and commercial interests; he had the backing of the corporations of North Dakota. In fact, he had the backing of all citizens regardless of politics opposed to the so-called socialistic program of the Non-Partisan party. A majority of 5,000 is a very meagre victory for the independents of North Dakota. They should have rolled up a majority of 50,000. A two-third vote was cast. If there had been a full vote, the Townsley gang of politicians would have retained their grip of the state. These are facts, so why not print them?

I bow to the judgment of colleagues in the House.—Congressman Thomas L. Blanton. Of course he bowed. The vote against him was unanimous. A democratic leader penned the resolution of censure and democrats who failed to vote for the adoption of the resolution dodged the issue or ran away. There were only eighteen or twenty of the dodgers and runners.

"Mayor W. D. Cline of Wichita Falls says the oil industry needs a heart and he has a plan in mind for putting a heart in it," editorializes the South Bend Derrick. "He wants geology, production and distribution methods taught in the higher institutions of learning and would have speakers of national importance, who are recognized as authorities in the various branches of the oil and gas industry. Mr. Cline says the plan is to give students an intelligent and comprehensive idea, not only of the magnitude of the industry in Texas, but of its importance as a national industry. He would give them detailed statistics and would probably acquaint them with all oil problems and troubles. We trust Mr. Cline will succeed in this most laudable undertaking."

Government finance is a great game, which reminds the Record News that the Federal Reserve Bank at Dallas has more than four hundred employes. Business is business.

Charles M. Schwab, the steel king, makes the prediction that tremendous boom in trade is coming. Charles is an optimist as well as one of the most successful captains of industry that the American world has ever known.

BLACK PUSSY MISSES A GOOD BREAKFAST

Black Pussy was out very early hunting for her breakfast. Not that she needed to hunt for her breakfast: Oh, my, no! Black Pussy didn't need for a single thing. Every morning Farmer Brown's boy filled a saucer with warm fresh milk for her, and every day she had all the meat that was good for her; so there wasn't the least need in the world for her to go hunting. Black Pussy was just like all cats. Lying before the fire in Farmer Brown's house, blinking and purring contentedly, she seemed too good-natured and gentle to hurt any one, and all Farmer Brown's family said that she was, and believed it. They knew nothing about the empty little nests in the joyful springtime—empty because Black Pussy had found them and emptied them and broken the hearts of little father and mother birds.

You see, Farmer Brown's folks really didn't know Black Pussy. But the little forest and meadow people did. They knew that Black Pussy was just like all cats—fierce and cruel down inside, and they hated Black Pussy, every one of them. They knew that down in her heart was the love of killing, just that same love of killing that is in the heart of Shadow the Weasel, and so they hated Black Pussy. If she had had to hunt for a living they wouldn't have minded so much, but she didn't have to hunt for a living, and so they hated her twice as much.

This particular morning Black Pussy had chosen to have a look along the old stonewall on the edge of the Old Orchard. Many times she had hunted Striped Chipmunk there. She didn't know enough about the ways of the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows to know that this cold weather had sent Striped Chipmunk down into his snug bedroom underground for a long sleep, so she sneaked along from stone to stone hoping that she would surprise him. She had gone half the length of the old wall, without a sign of anything to catch, when she heard voices that put all thought of Striped Chipmunk out of her head. Crawling flat on her stomach to keep out of sight, she softly worked nearer and nearer, until, peeping from behind a big stone in the old wall she could see Chatterer the Red Squirrel, Peter Rabbit, and Sammy Jay talking so busily, and so much excited, that they didn't seem to be paying attention to anything else.

Sammy Jay was safe because he was sitting in an old apple tree, but Chatterer was on the old wall, and Peter was on the ground. Which should she catch? Peter would make the biggest and best breakfast, but Black Pussy hadn't forgotten the terrible kick he had once given her when she had caught little Miss Fuzzytail up in the Old Pasture, and she had great respect for Peter's stout hindlegs. She would be content to catch Chatterer this morning. She hated him anyway, for he had been very saucy to her many times. He would never make fun of her or call her names again.

More slowly and carefully than ever Black Pussy stole forward. Her eyes grew yellow with excitement, and fierce and cruel. At last she reached a place where one good jump would land her on Chatterer. Carefully she drew her feet under her to make the jump. The end of her black tail twitched with eagerness. Just as she got ready to spring there was a shrill scream from Sammy Jay. He had caught sight of the moving tip of that tail, and he knew what it meant. Black Pussy sprang, but she was just too late. Chatterer had dived headfirst down between the stones of the old wall at the sound of Sammy's scream, and Peter had dived head first into Johnny Chuck's house, on the doorstep of which he happened to be sitting.

Black Pussy looked up at Sammy Jay and snarled at him in a terrible rage. Sammy shrieked at her just as angrily. Then when her head was turned for just an instant he darted down and actually pulled a tuft of hair from her coat and was safely out of the way before she could turn and spring. Then Black Pussy thrust a paw down between the stones where Chatterer had disappeared. She pulled it out again with a yowl of pain, for sharp little teeth had bitten it. Slowly and suddenly Black Pussy turned and limped back toward Farmer Brown's house. She suddenly remembered that saucer of milk, and that that was really all the breakfast she wanted.

ITS PERFECT WORK

By DR. FRANK CRANE

(Copyright, 1921, by Frank Crane.)

Perhaps partisanship, before it shall become discredited by the American people, must have its perfect work.

Mr. Lloyd George said in one of his speeches that one effect of war which might be considered advantageous is that it compels nations to recognize facts.

There is some truth in this. Perhaps the only way a gigantic delusion can get itself exploded is to go on swelling and swelling until it bursts.

The American people have fully accepted the appalling theory that political parties are necessary to democratic government.

At the close of the war the United States undoubtedly had the moral leadership of the world, and if it could have mustered up any sort of unity of action it might have assisted the shattered nations of the earth toward that co-operation which is the genius of the American spirit.

Unfortunately, Mr. Wilson, the elected head of the Republic, was considered the leader of the democratic faction, which swung into power on the moral reaction after the war.

Mr. Harding and his advisers, finding themselves in control of the situation, necessarily see the world problem essentially as Mr. Wilson did. That is to say, that it is necessary for the United States to get into some kind of co-operative harmony with other nations.

For this purpose Mr. Harding has called the Disarmament Conference, and that vast mass of intelligent citizens who supported Mr. Wilson's effort toward world unity are giving equal support to Mr. Harding's effort.

But partisanship looms up again. According to the report of the Washington correspondent, Frank H. Simonds, the probability is that the Washington conference, instead of being an affair in which all Americans will drop their differences and participate for the good of humanity, is to be made a matter of party politics.

"It is evident," says Mr. Simonds, "that the minority means to make the Washington conference an issue in democratic politics and that it is prepared to find fault at every stage of the game.

"The republicans frankly did all they could to weaken Mr. Wilson's hands while he was in Paris. The democrats are now getting ready to return the compliment.

"It is needless to say that President Harding has now to face a disagreeable situation. If his policy seems or can be made to seem too conciliatory, either to the British or the Japanese, then he will have to expect that the democratic party will seize upon these facts and seek to gain political support, both from the anti-Japanese States on the Pacific Coast and in the Eastern States where the Irish have very important voting strength."

The republicans of the senate and of the party organization who opposed America's first adventure into the sea of internationalism now find themselves on the defensive. Of course, some internationalism is absolutely imperative, but just how a nation that can never rise above party issues and must always subordinate the interests of humanity to the interests of job holders can ever take its place in the councils of the world it is difficult to see.

The great mass of the people of the United States are unquestionably in favor of some form of an international association to prevent war. They do not care a tinker's dam whether it is engineered by republicans or democrats, and can only feel humiliation that they are unable to secure leaders who will put the interests of humanity and of their country above the interest they have in the next election.

Rippling Rhymes

By WALT MASON

THE SINFUL MINORITY

You'd think, from reading scarehead tales about the carnival of crime, that all are headed for the jails, and few men tread the paths sublime. It's always pleasing to reflect that where one fellow wields a gun, a thousand men, with aims correct, are plying bucksaws in the sun. Where one goes forth on stealthy feet to croak a stranger for his wad, a thousand gents are threshing wheat, or plowing up the virgin sod. The gunman makes the breezy tale that gives pale moralists the blues; the thousand farmers in the vale don't draw a sentence in the news. Wrong is the reader who believes that all the world is on the blink because some libertines and thieves are figuring in crimson ink. A lot of us still go our way without a sandbag or a gun, and try our best, from day to day, to see some worthy action done. A lot of us still live our lives as though there were a moral law; we jog along with our own wives, and sanely use the wage we draw. A lot us still go to church, and bank upon the good and true, nor flinch if officers would search our cellars for a home made brew. The rascals kick up lots of dust, and they are insolent and bold; but all the time the good and just outnumber them a thousand fold—Copyright by George Matthew Adams.

EAT AND GROW WILD MENU

HYENA'S EARS ON TOAST

Highly recommended to all people suffering from nervous debility, listlessness, lowered vitality, and loss of intelligence. The hyena's ears should be clipped off close to the head, and, preferably, when the hyena isn't looking. Boil the hyena, or rather, the ears—in sweet spirits of nitre until the sense of hearing is destroyed. Roll in sweetbreads, and serve on toast. Eminent physicians disagree as to the value of the hyena's ears, but they are in accord that toast has great medicinal properties. Apply as a poultice until you reach a ripe old age.

Tydol Gasoline

It has just been announced by the medical board of the North American Institute for Advanced Feeding that a gallon of gasoline a day with meals will lubricate stiff joints, grease the intellectual valves and enable a human being to lead a fast pace—say of from 45 to 60 miles per hour—until he has reached the age of 145.

The theory is that since a gallon of gas will make a flivver go on and on even though in a state of complete exhaustion, it should, taken internally, enable a man to hit the high spots just so long as he keeps his tank filled.

African Lions' Manes

This dish properly prepared is guaranteed to grow hair on a bald head, or your money back. Ask your druggist for a lion.

In selecting a lion great care should be paid to its vigor and vim. Unless it is a young, healthy, full-of-pep specimen its mane will prove useless. The way to determine this is to stick your head in the lion's mouth. If he does what you expect he's a healthy lion and you're a healthy goof.

This point being determined the lion should be taken to a barber for a hair cut. The mane should then be gathered up tenderly (the barber can be gathered up later) and made into a doily. The doily should be tacked onto the scalp of the patient with ordinary carpet tacks.

Sea Lions' Ulna Bones

Highly recommended in all cases where a patient has lost interest in life, is easily bored and seems at a loss for diversion. These bones, prepared with potpies, and taken before and after drinking will have an astounding influence upon a consumer. After the first few luncheons the patient, who has been sitting listlessly in a chair, will flop across the floor, jump onto a couch and begin to sway from the shoulders from left to right. At about the fifth treatment the patient will begin to hold his head high in the air and take great delight in balancing lamps, conical hats, and toy balloons on the end of his nose.

From this time on nothing will give him as much happiness as a mackerel tossed to him between tricks.

Modern Surgery

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Twenty years ago, a lady of my acquaintance had to undergo an operation for fibroid tumor. It was only a small fibroid, and the surgeon operating ranged high in his profession.

Nevertheless, convalescence was slow and painful. Post-operative complications kept the patient abed many weeks. And, as the event proved, the operation had not been quite as thorough as it should have been.

For, ten years later, symptoms developed indicating that another fibrous growth had appeared in the same organ. Various reasons led the attending physician to deem operation inadvisable, and in this opinion sundry other medical men concurred.

The expectation—at all events, the hope—was that on middle life being reached the fibroid would cease giving trouble. This expectation was not realized. On the contrary, after a long period of quiescence, the growth became markedly enlarged.

And now, when resort was once more made to the operating room, it was found that an extensive condition of disease was present.

Not only was a seven-pound fibroid to be reckoned with, but the gall-bladder was badly infected, the appendix seriously diseased, and there was an intestinal "kinking."

The surgeon who on this occasion had the case in charge did not hesitate. The "kink" was straightened, the fibroid, appendix and gall-bladder were removed, two large incisions being necessary. That is to say, an operation far more extensive than the first was performed, when the patient was nearly twenty years older.

One would naturally expect convalescence to have been both more difficult and more protracted. Actually the patient within less than a month was able to walk unassisted to the automobile that took her home from the hospital.

Nothing, it seems to me, could illustrate more impressively the marvellous progress of surgery during the past few years.

Formerly sepsis was one of the overhanging menaces of operations. Today it is rare. Formerly post-operative pains and discomforts of an extreme sort were looked for as well-nigh inevitable. Today surgical technique is able in a marked degree to avert these.

So that the decision "You will have to be operated upon" need not, and should not, be deemed equivalent to "You must suffer martyrdom and then may not survive." To deem it thus equivalent is, indeed, to increase the operative risk. Whenever fear rules, the vital powers are lessened.

Foolish especially are they who, informed that they have a developing cancer which only surgical intervention can cure, hesitate from a mistaken dread of the suffering surgery may impose on them.

Plucking up their courage, facing the surgical ordeal bravely, they are likely to find it infinitely less taxing than they had imagined. And the chances are all in favor of their life being prolonged as could not be the case if they gave the surgeon no chance to check the cancerous growth that has attacked them.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

By M. JESSIE LEITCH

WHEN SILENCE IS GOLDEN

"I'd just love to go and stay with Aunt Margaret till the nurse comes, but I never know what to do for a sick person."

And the tall girl, who might have been a very great help, indeed, stood helplessly by while in the house across the street her aunt, suddenly stricken, tossed in a raging fever. The tall girl's mother, in spite of her own burdens, had to go and stay with her until the nurse came from the city.

It was during the convalescence of her Aunt Margaret that the tall girl began to manifest an interest in the sick room.

"I'm tired of just being an 'outsider,'" she said one day, when she had been permitted to visit her sick relative. "I want to do something besides take flowers to a sick person, and I want to know what one says and does when one goes into a sick room."

Every Woman Not a Born Nurse

Her aunt, appraising the girl's strong arms, her straight body, her vivid face, and her ready smile, said: "I wish you would learn, dear. We used to think that every woman was a born nurse, but I've discovered that every woman is not a born nurse. In fact, it's only the occasional woman who really knows how to turn a pillow."

"But why" persisted the girl.

"I have a theory," said the aunt who had been ill so many times in her life that health and strength were usually just around the corner, "I have a theory that the chief qualifications of a good nurse are silence, and gentleness, and understanding."

"Silence? But how does one know what to do for a sick person if one may not speak?"

The woman in the bed said thoughtfully:

"It's a curious thing. I don't know. But silence is golden. A nurse may have all the diplomas in the world, but if she pulls a pillow out from under one's head without supporting the head in her hands, and thereby bumps the head that is aching, her murmured regrets do not help the head.

"Then, too, rather than explain where one feels uncomfortable, one is too often tempted to suffer in silence, especially when one is not quite sure where the pain is."

And the sick woman smiled whimsically.

The tall girl went out of the room thoughtfully. But she went about collecting notes, and reading books, and asking questions.

And she discovers that the average sick person does believe silence to be a golden thing.

Things That Concern the Nurse

She discovered that the nurse who concerned herself with the temperature of the room, with annoying lights and noises, with obscure wrinkles in the sheet and straying crumbs of food which lodge in crannies in a sick bed and annoy the patient, was the nurse who said little and found much to do. She was, almost invariably, the nurse who pleased and comforted her patient. There are little things, such as the weight of the bed clothes on one's toes, that annoy a patient, though the patient may not know why she is being annoyed. A good nurse discovers. She makes many discoveries. She asks few questions. But she explains why she does certain things to make a patient more comfortable, instead of causing the patient to ask questions. For even asking questions may tire a sick person.

And there came a time when the tall girl was no longer helpless when illness came unexpectedly to the house across the street.

The Daily Story

STRAWBERRY APPLES

Copyright, 1921, by W. Werner

All night Harriet Fancher heard the drip of the dense fog from the leaves and the frequent thump of an apple falling into the grass. She lay awake because her heart was heavy and her stomach empty. Very thin toast and weak tea are not sustaining. The addition of a dish of apple sauce would have been welcome, but Harriet had no apples. Yet when morning came and she looked out of her window through the fog she found the grass on her side of the fence strewn with the rosy strawberry apples she had heard falling all night.

Harriet went out. The fog was like rain. It obscured her small, straight form from any eyes that might be observing her through the windows of the next house. Anyway, Mal Lawler, her next door neighbor, did not rise early, being a man of leisurely habit.

Into the drenched grass Harriet probed her thin fingers and brought up apple after apple and dropped them tenderly on the other side of the fence. It took all her courage to do it. She was tempted to keep one, but an old-fashioned pride upheld her.

When she had restored the last apple to its owner she returned to her own house. The kitchen was chill and fireless. There was a little wood in the box and she made a fire and set the tea-kettle on. Then she went to the cupboard and stood staring at the neat bare shelves.

Suddenly her lips began to tremble, her throat to thicken with tears.

"It's one of two things—I've either got to rent part of my house or go to work in the factory" she said to herself.

She sat down by the stove, both crying and shivering. "I can't rent," she thought. "I can't let strangers come into my mother's house. She was so particular. And she made me promise that as long as I live here I would keep things just as she left them. Of course, it seems foolish to keep this house furnished, when I could be getting money enough from it to keep me comfortably, but a promise is a promise. She didn't say anything about my not renting it. But as long as I lived here I must keep it intact."

The fire had begun to blaze, but she still shivered, more from nervousness than cold. "Yes, it will have to be the factory," she decided, "because that's all I can do." She spread out her slim hands. "And may be I shan't be a success at that but I'll have to try. I don't know what mother would say. She was one of the proud Tuttles. But I've got to live. And I'm glad she died without knowing how much money her last sickness cost. She supposed that I would have plenty left to support me nicely, and that I'd marry Mal Lawler. She was just as peaceful! Sometimes I felt like a hypocrite, keeping things from her. For I knew that I wouldn't have anything left but the house after I paid up what I owed, and that Mal Lawler didn't think enough of me to ask me. But she didn't know, and even if I am a hypocrite, I'm glad for her sake."

The teakettle was boiling. Harriet got out her last loaf of bread and cut some slices for toast. She had no butter, but there was a little tea. She drew up a small table to the fire and ate slowly.

The fog lifted and sunshine came into the room. Harriet's pretty hair began to burn with a thousand lights. There were gray threads in it, and lines about her sweet eyes, and she was far too thin, but for all that she was charming in the faded blue of her gingham dress.

As she sat there drinking her second cup of tea, she heard a sound of whistle outside. She sprang up and peeped between the sash curtains.

Mal Lawler had come out of his house. He stood looking up at the laden apple tree. He was bareheaded and in his shirt sleeves, a slender, dark, vigorous man a few years older than Harriet. Presently he turned his gaze from the heavily-weighted tree to the ground underneath, and the apples.

"If I were old, Mrs. Pease," Harriet thought, he'd call me to come out with a pan and get some apples. But because I am Harriet Fancher, he wouldn't think of doing such a thing. Probably he knows that I've picked them all up and put them over the fence. Sometimes I feel that if I hadn't been a Fancher and a Tuttle combined and he just a Lawler he might have wanted me." She sighed. "Wonder what he'll think when I go to work in the factory? But what does that matter? It's three years since mother died, and if he ever cared for me he's got bravely over it."

Mal turned about and went back to the house. Immediately he reappeared with a ladder on his shoulder and a saw. He set the ladder against the tree and mounted it, higher and higher, till he was among the topmost boughs.

Harriet watched him dizzily. She felt as much anxiety for his safety as if she had the right. From the way her heart beat she might have been his wife or his acknowledged sweetheart. "I ought to be ashamed for caring so much when he doesn't care at all," she whispered into the knotted fingers she held against her mouth. "But if he should fall I guess the world would just end for me."

A sound which might have been made by the last cracklings of the fire caused Harriet to glance behind her. But another sound brought her eye quickly back to what was going on in the apple tree. This second sound was the crackling of a bough. It was the bough against which the ladder leaned. Stunned, Harriet saw the bough dip and fall, carrying the ladder with it saw Mal reach out to grasp something, and miss, saw him go down with the ladder among the apples with a thump that she would never afterwards be able to get out of her ears.

Next instant paralysis left her and she tore out of her house, squeezed through the broken place in the fence and was beside him. She tried to gather all of him in her arms in the wild impulse to carry him somewhere to safety. Then above his unconscious white face she screamed and screamed for help.

There was plenty of help to be had at that hour for most of the menfolk of the neighborhood were having breakfast. Half a dozen came running. But before they reached him Mal opened his eyes upon Harriet. She was holding his head near her breast, and her face expressed all that was in her heart. Life must have restored her terror and her love for he smiled as he again closed his eyes.

They carried him into his own house and two doctors came quickly. Harriet went home in an agony of suspense. It was Mrs. Thompson who came to tell her of Mal's condition. Mrs. Thompson helped Mal keep his house, going there two or three times a week to work and clean. She had done this ever since Mal's mother died. "He's got a broken rib and a twisted shoulder," she said. "He'll be kept in for some time."

That afternoon Harriet went over to the factory and got a job. She was to begin work the next morning. Then on the strength of it she went to Holcomb's grocery and got trusted for some fuel and eatables.

She had built a fire and was cooking her supper when Mrs. Thompson came again. "Here's a letter Mr. Lawler sent you," said the old woman. "He's been all afternoon a-writing it." She looked curiously at Harriet, who turned white as she took the letter.

Harriet waited until the old woman had gone before she opened it. The first line, the first word, told her what it contained. It was her first love letter, and in it Mal asked her to marry him and come and take care of him His pathetic "I need you," twisted her heart. He did need her. A lost sight of all save that. A moment later she was running toward his house.

They were married the next day. Long afterward Mal said to her: "Do you know, Harriet, you'd never have had me if I hadn't fallen out of the apple tree?"

"What makes you think so?" Harriet retorted.

"Because"—he pinched the cheek that was growing so full and rosy—"If I hadn't seen your face that minute my eyes were open I'd never have had the courage to ask you."

Watching the Parade

By JOHN PILGRIM

He hung to the next strap in the car last night. After I had worked through the sporting page and the comics I placed him. He was the youngster who came in the office last week to look for a job.

"I've got to get a job," he said. "What's more, I'm going to get one."

He couldn't talk job to me, for we have more men than we have jobs in our house right now. That's the case everywhere, it seems. All the employers I know are turning men away. But this kid was reading the evening paper as contentedly as could be. So I nudged him.

"Did you get that job," I asked him.

"Oh, hello," said he, recognizing me. "Sure I did. Anybody can get a job."

On my way to the car last night I had seen hundreds who had no jobs and apparently could not get jobs. Yet this kid had lauded in one right off the bat. He said he just goes out looking for a job when he needs one, and that happens often, for he is touring the country to see what town he'll consent to confer himself on for a permaneney. He doesn't worry too much about what kind of a job it is or what the pay is. The idea is to get to work. There is something fine and solid and substantial about a man who has a job which appeals to an employer. That sort of a man can get a better job much more easily than he could get a worse one if he had no job at all. My young man has driven mules and cranked street cars and sold ribbons and swung a pick

"But I never was out of a job two days after I needed one," he said. "I just go gittim. Anybody can. I go out and look for it and I take the first thing that comes. I can better my position later."

That may not be good philosophy. But it has this in its favor. It works.

Fashions for Americans

This Knicker Outfit Is Practical and Smart.

Whether or not women shall or shall not adopt the knicker costume for general street wear has displaced the skirt length question as a fashion headliner these days. There can be no possible doubt in regard to the practicability of the knicker suit for sports wear, which includes walking in the country and motoring as well as golf and other games. For wear in town on the street a tailored frock or suit with smart skirt of comfortable walking length will probably be generally preferred, and certainly such an outfit will be found more uniformly becoming than the knicker affair.

All women are not blessed with "limbs" that justify exposure to the public gize, and it has never been apparent why a great many women chose to wear the ultra short skirts that have prevailed for a season or two, or why, when in bathing shits, they spend so much time promenading the braches.

However, the knicker outfit for walking and general sports wear is very practical and some very charming models are offered this season. The one sketched, made of a soft worsted in a wide plaid, features knickers, belted coat, and detachable cape, and its designer offered also a smart plain skirt. The outfit is really a four-piece affair, with the skirt added of course, and may be worn in ever so many ways. Skirt and cape with sports shirt or blouse may be combined. The coat and skirt when worn together make up a suit sufficiently conventional for wear anywhere, and, of course, the knickers may be worn either with coat or cape.

Some of the knicker outfits feature a full length coat, which buttons snugly all the way down the front or side, so that when the coat is worn no suggestion of knickers is visible. Many materials have been pressed into service for the knicker costume, velveteen and corduroy being two of the newest comers.

RECIPES FOR A DAY.

Baked Chicken and Chestnuts en Casserole—One chicken (an old fowl can be used this way); one-half pound chestnuts, one onion, one small carrot, four tablespoons drippings, four tablespoons flour, salt and pepper. Cut the chicken into pieces of suitable size for serving. Wash and wipe dry. Dip the pieces in flour and let them brown well in the drippings. Remove to casserole and sprinkle in the chestnut meats, sliced onions and carrot. Season with salt and pepper. Put the flour with the drippings in which the chicken was fried and stir smooth. Then add a quart of boiling water and the giblets. When thickened, pour over the chicken and set in a slow oven for three or four hours.

Cabbage and Celery Salad—One-half solid cabbage, four or five stalks celery, one ripe sweet pepper and boiled salad dressing. Cut the cabbage very fine by cutting crosswise with a sharp knife. Cut the celery into short pieces and mix with the cabbage. Arrange a layer of cabbage and celery in a salad dish and cover with the salad dressing. Repeat the layers until the cabbage is used and garnish with strips of pepper which have been boiled two minutes in salt water and dipped in cold water.

Potato Puffs—Two cups mashed potato, one beaten egg, one teaspoon grated onion, one-quarter cup milk, salt and pepper. Beat the milk and egg into the potato and add the seasoning. Drop by the spoonful on a greased baking sheet. Bake in a quick oven until light and brown.

Tapioca Custard Pudding—Soak two tablespoons of tapioca in a pint of cold water and then add a pint of milk and cook for half an hour in a double boiler. Add two egg yolks beaten with half a cup of granulated sugar and cook until the eggs are smooth and creamy like custard. Add a little salt and a teaspoon of vanilla and pour into a buttered baking dish. Make a meringue out of the egg whites and two heaping tablespoons of granulated sugar and a pinch of cream of tartar. Pile on the pudding and brown in a moderate oven. Chill and serve.

Rock Cookies—One and one-half cups granulated sugar, three eggs, one-half cup lard, one and one-half cups nut meats chopped fine, one pound of dates, one teaspoon soda dissolved in little warm water, one teaspoon cloves, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon salt. Flour to roll. Roll very thin; cut and bake in moderate oven.

THIS YOUNG MOTHER

Tells Childless Women what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Her

Millston, Wis.—"I want to give you a word of praise for your wonderful medicine. We are very fond of children and for a considerable time after we married I feared I would not have any owing to my weak condition. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I have a nice strong, healthy baby girl. I can honestly say that I did not suffer much more when my baby was born than I used to suffer with my periods before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound years ago. I give all the credit to your medicine and shall always recommend it very highly."—Mrs. H. H. JANSSEN, Millston, Wisconsin

How can women who are weak and sickly expect or hope to become mothers of healthy children? Their first duty is to themselves. They should overcome the derangement or debility that is dragging them down, and strengthen the entire system, as did Mrs. Janssen, by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and give their children the blessing of a good constitution.

The Law Is Off of Deer at Last—A Happy Man Am I—I Cawn't Shoot, but My Friends Cawn—Thanks for the Venison Pie!

JERRY HOGAN, DISH WIPER, IS STUDENT BUT DUFFY AIN'T

And Argument Proves Some Men Can Milk a Cow Only Because They Had Practice in College With a Fountain Pen.

By "NICK" CARTER.

When business is dull in Dan Duffey's feed joint down by the railroad station then is the times what I like to eat there so's I can talk with Dan and his customers and maybe learn them a thing or two me being more of a student as you might say than what they are and so yesterday I was in Dan Duffey's and I mentions this to him and he gives a snort and says:

"Do you remember when we was students together in New York years ago?" and I says yes I remembered them good old days but what of it and he keeps on talking, saying:

"Well, they was one night which I never told you about which it was some time after midnight and you was still out playing the cafay circuit somewheres and a bird comes to the boarding house and knocks at the door and Mrs. Harrigan which was our landlady sticks her head out of the window and asks him what does he want and he asks does Nick Carter a student live here, and she gives a grunt and says yes, Nick Carter lives here but I didn't know he was no student, I thought he was a night watchman."

And so help me, Dan Duffey tries to laff himself sick thinking he has pulled a good gag on me but he quick shuts up when I pulls a cardboard sign out of his window which he has writ himself and looks him right in the eye and sticks my fingers on the last line of the sign which the sign says:

"Apples, Oranges, Nuts. Shop Now & Avoid the Rush. Remember the Early Bird Gets the Worm."

Dan Is No Student.

Anyways they is students and students and not all students has been through no university but any bird what is bright and snappy, in the bean and knows what is going on he is what I calls a student and if he is smart and don't let nobody slip nothing over on him and has a quick answer for whatever the other fella says then he is more of a student than the guy what can milk a cow the first time when maybe it comes natural to him because he has had practise in some university with a fountain pen. And whilst I was communicating my views on the subjeck to Dan Duffey it being a quiet Sunday and the curtain in one of the windows of the feed joint being pulled down Dan says to little Jerry Hogan what is the dish washer in the joint:

"Jerry, boy, run up that curtain," and quick as a flash Jerry comes back saying:

"Whatcha think I am, a squirrel?" and I says to myself Jerry Hogan is a student or I never saw none and then when I seen how Dan Duffey is flustered by the kid's quick tongue I thinks this is a good day to get even with Dan Duffey so I will high-tone him good and proper and so I says languid-like:

"Dan, would you mind passing the Review of Reviews" which Dan Duffey looks at me and says come again what was that and without batting an eye I remarks:

"I ast you to slip me the connecting link between the animal kingdom and the vegetable kingdom," and you can shoot me at sunrise if it didn't get through Dan Duffey's head this time and he grins and brings me another plate of hash.

Mrs. Dan Duffey Objects.

So then me and Dan gets chu again and starts to recalling old times and I am reminded of when him and me was thinking of taking up a homestead in Montana only we turned it down because Dan's wife says it was gambling and nothing we would say would make her change her mind and when Dan asks her what does she mean taking up a homstead is gambling she says taking up a homestead is when the government lets you 10 acres of land against $14 that you can't live on it five years without starving to death.

Dan Duffey and I has a good laugh together over that one and also over the time when I am in New York and Dan is trying to get back there to join me and he goes down to Galveston and begs the skipper of one of them Morgan line steamships to give him a free trip and the skipper was a good-hearted guy and says sure, go and get your luggage and come aboard, so Dan says:

"All, right, I only got fifty-four pieces of luggage a-I'll go get 'em," and so the skipper yells hold on there young feller I ain't running no freighter which the same Dan Duffey what is broke and pretty much in rags just grins at him and says:

"Don't get excited, captain. Them fifty-four pieces is a pair of socks and a deck of playing cards" and after that Dan Duffey could of had pretty near anything on the boat which proves that sometimes you can make good friends if you have a line of stuff what is snappy and in them days I ain't denying that Dan Duffey was a pal which throwed a wicked line of talk and had the nerve to ask for anything what he wanted which the same as I have often told him he reminds me of a minister in my old home town what would pray so good that I'm here to tell you some times he would ask the Lord for things what them other preachers didn't even know He had.

More Affairs Than Anatol.

Anyways to get back to the subjeck me and Dan Duffey goes back over the trail quite a long ways and we gets to talking about some of our old sweethearts which just then Mrs. Duffey comes in from the kitchen of the feed joint and we quick shut up because whilst I ain't the kind of a bird what likes to brag about no conquests they was a time when me and Dan Duffey had more affairs than Anotol and so I pays my check and heads for the door and Mrs. Duffey says:

"What is you gents talking about?" and so I says I was telling Dan how he had changed in the last ten years and Mrs. Duffey says no, Dan is just about the same as he always was, which then I give Dan the wink and says:

"Mrs. Duffey, they is as much difference between your husband today and Dan Duffey when he wasn't your husband as they is between a horse chestnut and a chestnut horse."

And then I shuts the door from the outside and goes jaffing up the street me thinking how much truth I had said and her not knowing it neither!

"ONE SWEET END," OPPOSITION CALLS STAR OF PURDUE

E. J. Birk

"Colonel" E. J. Birk, end and tackle on the Purdue gridiron squad, is "one sweet end," as stated by the coach of one of the opposing teams. Birk, who came to Purdue from Owensboro, Ky., high school, is playing his third year of conference football. He has been on the all-state team the last two years and many writers placed him on the all-western team.

WALT CLINE ET AL TO RAVAGE KERR COUNTY

Ten days from today all animal life will be extinct in Kerr county. In all that great range of territory there will be living not one deer, not a wild turkey, not a squirrel, not a crow; the birds of the air, the creeping, crawling, running things of the earth, yea, and the fish of the Guadaloupe river—they will be as extinct as the diplodocus and the dinosaur, the dodo, the New Hampshire ippus and the Brazilian whimpus.

For today fifteen nimrods of Wichita Falls, in comparison with any one of whom Paul Rainey appears as merely a squirrel shootin' barefoot boy, are heading far to the south to sweep against the animal life of Kerr county as Attila the Hun swept human life away y'ars ago y'ars ago in Europe. Now, of course, that's sorta rubbing it in to compare our local citizens with Mrs. Attila's notorious son, but we didn't mean it that way. What we are trying to say is that these fifteen Wichitans, or Wichita Fallsans or however you condense it, are bound on a ten-days hunting trip on the ranch of Walter Cline, Clint Wood, et al.

Those making up the party, in addition to Walter and Clint, are W. M. McGregor, W. E. Norton, M. D. Rowe, P. J. Lee, W. Daniel, T. B. Noble, B. J. Shaw, N. B. Chenault, Roy B. Jones, R. O. Harvey, Fred Gates, L. H. Cullum and W. J. McAllister. They will pull out of Wichita Falls today in four loads, the automobiles being provided by Shaw, Gates, Rowe and Lea.

Rules have been carefully drawn up in advance for the guidance of all members while in camp, the rules saying careful attention to "camp etiquette"—but owing to the unfortunate fact that many of these rules have a very distinctive personal flavor, the sporting editor of the Record News deems it wise to omit their publication.

Lo, many deer shall be stricken, and the wild turkeys shall fall in numbers countless as the rain-drops. Hot dawg! Betcha (wistfully) them guys have fun.

WISDOM and WORSE

By C. F. C.

Do you like to puzzle your wits over difficult questions? Then answer this one, and win the handsomely upholstered electric chair—where should a Wichita Falls sporting writer seek information regarding the Wichita Falls baseball team of the Texas league? You give it up? I knew you would, though the answer is simple—he should seek his information from Houston, St. Louis, Detroit; anywhere, in fact, except at the office of the Wichita Falls Baseball association.

Am I sore? Not at all; I'm merely amused. Some time back I made a fair-sized story out of the reported sale of Danny Clark to the St. Louis Browns. Did I get it from officials of the baseball association? I did not, for one of the biggest of them all denied there was anything to it. Then why did I use the story, why did I publish it as a fact? Oh, merely because Walter Salm TOLD DANNY CLARK HE HAD BEEN SOLD TO ST. LOUIS—and if anyone doesn't believe that, I'm willing to prove the truth of it at any time.

Whence came the story of Clark being drafted by Detroit? From the local baseball association? No, brother, from a sporting paper published in St. Louis, Missouri.

"Red" Josefson and Danny Gross have been sold to the Houston Buffs, I am told. But who told me? Did some official of the Wichita Falls Baseball association waste a few seconds of his valuable time calling up any sporting writer in the city that authentic news concerning Wichita Falls players might be given out to Wichita Falls fans? And the answer is in the negative—for the story came out of Houston.

Yesterday I played fifteen holes of golf with Will Gray, secretary of the baseball association. Will didn't know a thing about Josefson, Gross or Clark, more than I know or more than you, a good loyal fan, knows. I asked him where Skipper Salm was heading, and he didn't know; nor did he know whether Salm was on business connected with the ball club or on pleasure bent. Will might confirm a few stories occasionally if he were able, but he isn't; he might spring a few new ones now and then, but he don't know any. He didn't say this to me; I'm just saying what I think he might do if the local baseball association did not shroud all its affairs, many of which are whole on in part the public's affairs, in such impenetrable secrecy.

And yet time and again the sporting writers of Wichita Falls have bowed graciously to the request of officials of the baseball association that such and such a piece of news be "kept out of the paper just now," with the promise that something "big" might be released later—but the something big seldom materialized into news. Now, how about the baseball association adopting a policy of loosening up when some transaction takes place that concerns the Spudders? That stuff can't be kept under cover forever; it's bound to "break" sooner or later—why should Wichita Falls be the last city to learn the news of its own ball club?

Some of the yearning for a return football game between Wichita Falls high school and Electra that I have put into this column recently has drawn an answering fire from my good friend H. A. Stroud of Electra, who sent me the following letter yesterday:

"I note in your sport column from time to time comment on the Electra high school football team in which it is intimated that Wichita Falls is not completely satisfied with the 7 to 0 defeat that Electra handed them in the early part of the season and that the fans of that city would be glad to see a return game.

"Of course much of this is paper talk and at the present time Electra has been compelled to pass up the challenges that have been issued because we have had our hands full trying to bring a district championship to Wichita county and from the way things look now we may have our hands full for some time trying to cop the state championship.

"Wichita Falls has a good football team, which has probably improved since they met Electra, but those who have seen the improvement in Electra's lineup are not optimistic enough to believe that Wichita Falls could ever hold them again as they did before. A comparison of the two squads against other teams through the season does not show good for Wichita Falls.

"Electra defeated Henrietta, 55-0, the first of the season before they had developed their strength and Wichita Falls was only able to pile up two touchdowns last Saturday. Bowie played Wichita Falls to a scoreless tie, while Electra gave them a 48 to 7 drubbing without using a trick play and but for one forward pass during the entire game and Bowie was only able to score after Electra had run in six or eight second string players. Wichita Falls barely defeated Burkburnett 7 to 0, while Electra piled up a score of 55 against the neighboring oil town.

"In the game between the two teams in which Electra won by a single touchdown, Wichita Falls put up the stiffest fight of the season and the boys were content to play on the defensive after making a touchdown rather than hit the field, which is covered with grass burs. Under no condition would Electra play at Athletic field again unless a drag is used to remove the sand burs.

"But Electra is willing to meet Wichita Falls again, providing they lose out in the championship race. But it would be folly for them to consider a team that they have once defeated and one that is as far out of the running as is Wichita Falls. And when they meet again Wichita Falls will again be defeated unless the Electra team should all have broken necks after the Fort Worth game and be out of condition.

"It is generally believed here that Wichita Falls is far outclassed, but the fans want to see the neighboring warriors on the local gridiron and the coaches are willing to play them at a later date and thus eliminate all lingering doubts that Wichita Falls has a chance with the Edens machine."

"I'll gladly grant that on a comparative scores basis Electra looks better than the red and black eleven. But the fans here want to see the two teams clash again, and Stroud admits that Electra fans feel the same way—and, by golly! I'm just a fan myself when it comes to that, and I sure want to see those two fightin' high school elevens go to the mat once more!

When you start to select a coach in advance for the local high school baseball quintet this winter and begin singing the praises of Harry Viner, don't overlook Harry's brother, Bill. For said William Viner was a regular shooting star at that particular game. I know that Harry was a bearcat at it himself, but don't overlook the fact that Bill Viner, of Wichita Falls, played a guard on the famous Lowe and Campbell quintet when that aggregation of Kansas City ball eaggers in 1913 WON THE CHAMPIONSHIP OF THE UNITED STATES!

WILL WISCONSIN GO THROUGH SEASON WITHOUT DEFEAT? TEAM HAS CHANCE

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 31.—When the curtain falls on the western conference football season late next month, students of the University of Wisconsin believe that Coach Richard's eleven will have completed its schedule without a defeat. This sentiment was strengthened in the fans who saw the Badgers win by a three touchdown margin over Coach Zuppke's always dangerous Illinois machine.

Wisconsin's only fear is the contest with Chicago November 19 and the Cardinal followers are far from conceding a victory to the Chicago University team which humbled the Princeton Tigers 9 to 0. In the games so far, Coach Richards has demonstrated that he has welded together a powerful, smooth working machine, one worthy of consideration by any team in the west.

Sundt Main Cog

Capt. Guy M. Sundt, fullback, playing his last year of conference football, is one of the main cogs in this driving machine, which held Northwestern and Illinois scoreless in the encounters this season. Alvah Elliott, halfback of all-western caliber, is the line plunger of note and is a ten-second man when he is called upon to skirt the ends for yardage. Rollie Williams, his running mate, completes Richard's trio of veteran athletes who scintillate at running, passing and plunging, and who are sure tacklers on the defense, once the opposition pierces the forward wall.

James Brader, playing left tackle, is not only a demon on the defense but is responsible for opening the gaps which permit his backfield performers to get under way. Brumm, who plays the other tackle, is playing a spectacular game this year. It was he who broke through the Illinois forwards to block Mohr's punt for a touchdown in the contest October 22. Brumm is a rangy man of powerful strength and a dead-sure tackler. Bunge, at center; Nelson, right guard; Christianson, left guard; Gould, left end, and Tebell at the other flank, complete the Cardinal line.

Have Capable Quarter

Gibson is proving himself an able field general and though it is his first year in the pilot position, his remarkable ability to run back punts has assured him of that berth. Gould is a utility man, playing a stellar game at either end or half. Williams, shifty halfback, is also a capable leader of the team and stands ready to step into Gibson's shoes at a moment's notice. Captain Sundt, in addition to being a line plunger of no little ability, is one of the best punters in the conference.

MYLES GOES TO FINALS IN GOLF CUP TOURNEY

Albert E. Myles, rotund Rotarian and genial c. p. a., battled his way into the finals of the Golfers' Magazine cup tournament yesterday by annihilating Lloyd Weaver, baseball super-fan and automobile shark, over the links of the Wichita Falls Golf and Country club. A. E., the C. P. A., "accounted" for everything, pouring it on his surprised fair-haired opponent to the disastrous tune of 7 and 6.

On his last start before tackling Weaver, Myles had traveled 72 holes without rest and he was, therefore, rather doubtful of the outcome of the cup match when he wended his way to No. 1 tee. Last night, however, he was seriously considering a light workout of 72 holes as the proper training to take immediately before starting his final joust for the nig trophy.

Myles' opponent in the finals is still unknown, as the lower bracket of the tournament has been moving slowly. Today Will Gray is slated to battle W. U. McCutcheon, while "Doc" Burleson and H. J. Robbins also should shed false modesty and go bravely forth into the field. The two winners in this quarter will then become embroiled, and the winner in turn will meet C. J. Moton in the semi-finals of the lower bracket—and then whoever still survives will fight tooth and nail, driver and brassie, midiron and jigger, mashie and mashie niblic, niblic and putter, bag and caddy, against A. E. Myles for the cup.

Although there have been many upsets in the "dope" thus far in the tournament, and many of the club's best players have been eliminated, the handicap system has worked out in splendid fashion—proof of which lies in the fact that practically all of the handicap matches have gone close to home before the ending. Myles and Weaver met yesterday on an even footing. Myles, Gray and McCutcheon are all handicap-18 men, while Burleson, Robbins and Norton have each a handicap of eight.

Sued Dead Loves Estate.

A marriage license taken out in Salem, Mass., over forty years ago, which was never used, will be part of the evidence submitted in the suit brought by a woman shoe-worker in Danvers, Mass., against the estate of her fiance, who died last year. She asks $20,000 damages for the failure to marry her and claims that she had been "keeping company" since in the and body.

YALE HAS EDGE ON BOTH CRIMSON AND TIGERS THIS YEAR

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Yale, so far undefeated in her 1921 gridiron campaign appears strongest of the "big three" as the dates for the annual "big three" engagements approach. Harvard and Princeton, both of which have squirmed out at the small end of the football horn this season, will clash next Saturday. The following week, the Tigers meet Yale and on November 19 Eli faces the Crimson.

In six games the Bulldog has scored 158 points against their opponents' 14. Their hardest fight was against the army, a game they won 14 to 7.

Harvard and Princeton both have failed in intersectional games. Harvard's defeat came Saturday at the hands of Centre. Harvard has scored 84 points against opponents' 34.

The Tigers hoped and fully expected to win from Chicago, but the Maroon eleven demonstrated an efficient attack and won, 9 to 0. Princeton has 74 points against their opponents' 29.

AFTER SEVEN YEARS SMITH LEAVES CITY

Monday was a busy and a sad day for Henry Smith, second assistant chief of the local fire department, for on that day he ended his connection with the department after over seven years service. His resignation was tendered to Chief J. L. McClure some days ago, and was announced only after the chief had made an unsuccessful effort to retain him.

Smith finished his preparations Monday afternoon and expected by sunrise Tuesday to be well on his way toward Estancio, New Mexico, where he will make his home with his aged parents. He will go by automobile.

Smiley Turner, former captain, stationed at the central station, will succeed to the position held by Smith, effective Tuesday morning, it was announced some days ago by Chief McClure.

BIG TEN FANS LOSE FAITH IN IOWA AS CONFERENCE CHAMP

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Four undefeated Big Ten teams retained their places last Saturday in the conference, three by victories over opponents and one, Ohio State, by not playing. Wisconsin defeated Minnesota, Chicago won from the University of Colorado, a non-conference aggregation, and Iowa won from Purdue.

Big Ten fans are inclined to eliminate Iowa as a possibility when the season has become more advanced.

The Chicago and Ohio State teams began training today for their struggle next Saturday, which will mark the first step in the elimination of the large contenders.

Wisconsin will rest this week-end, but will meet Michigan November 12.

Notre Dame became the champion of Indiana by taking Indiana university into camp with a score of 28 to 7. This annual contest forms one of the most important games for the Indiana teams and a hard fight is made each year for the state championship.

"PRAYING COLONELS" AND DETROIT MAY MEET ON GRIDIRON

DETROIT, Oct. 31.—Efforts are being made to arrange a game between the University of Detroit and Centre college football elevens in Boston on Thanksgiving day.

After Falling Into Well and Thirsting and Fasting Period Nineteen Days, Cow Unharmed

After nineteen days without food or water, a cow belonging to Paul Backus, who lives on a five-acre irrigated farm just outside the city limits on the Petrolia road, was found in the bottom of an old unused well that has been dry for several years.

The cow disappeared nineteen days ago, and after repeated searches, Mr. Backus had given her up as having probably been stolen and driven away, until one of his neighbors passing the old well and looking in saw the cow which was afterwards found to be sound and well, despite her experience.

Fewer Insane

Dr. Davis Weeks, superintendent of the State Village for Epileptics at Skillman, N. J., and Dr. Henry A. Cotton, medical director of the New Jersey State Hospital for the Insane at Trenton, gave it as their opinion that more than a quarter of a century will have to pass before the effects of prohibition, reducing the number of defectives and delinquents admitted to state institutions will be apparent. Dr. Cotton also reports that while he number of alcoholic cases admitted to his institution has decreased from 21 per cent to 2 per cent admission for other types of mental diseases have increased greatly during the past few years. He refuses to state whether it is because of prohibition that other and even more dangerous practices have brought about the increases.

Peter Repented.

The rector was sitting in his study hard at work on the following Sunday's sermon when a visitor was announced. She was a hard, muscular looking woman, and when the minister set a chair for her she opened fire somewhat brusquely: "You are Mr. Jenkins, ain't you?"

"I am," replied the good man.

"Well, maybe you'll remember o' marryin' a couple of strangers at your church a month ago?"

"What are the names?" asked the clergyman.

"Peter Simpson and Eliza Brown," replied the woman, "and I'm Eliza."

"Are you, indeed?" asked the minister, "I think I remem—"

"Yes," interrupted the visitor, "I'm her all right, an' I thought as how I ought to drop in an' tell you that Peter's escaped."—Edinburgh Scotsman.

AUTHORIZE TAX COLLECTOR TO SUE FOR TAXES

Every Other Method to Collect Delinquent Taxes Has Been Tried, Anderson Tells Council.

Action on Fitts' Recommendation for City Meter Reader Passed for Bonner's Recommendation.

The city council in a brief session Monday night authorized City Tax Collector Anderson to instigate suits where necessary to collect delinquent taxes. The action was taken after Mr. Anderson said that he had used every effort to collect the back taxes. He estimated the delinquent rolls for city and school taxes would total approximately $70,000.

According to the records of his office, Mr. Anderson said, no systematic effort had been made in recent years to collect the delinquent taxes and as a result there were some properties in the city on which no taxes had been paid for as long a period as 20 years.

Action On Ordinance Passed Up

Action on the proposed ordinance providing for the appointment of a city inspector of gas and electric meters proposed by Commissioner Fitts was postponed after it had been ascertained that the ordinance had not as yet been considered by Public Utilities Commissioner Bonner under whose department the proposal would properly come.

Mayor Cline explained that pursuing his usual policy in such matters he would want a recommendation made by Judge Bonner before being acted upon by the council as a whole. Commissioner Fitts said that he had expected that Commissioner Bonner would be present at the meeting and was willing that action be postponed until he had made a recommendation regarding it. Judge Bonner is out of the city but is expected to return the middle of the week.

Accept Paving Bid

The council accepted the bid of the L. E. Whitham Construction company for the paving of Front street. The bid was $3.74 per square yard for the paving and 65 cents for the curb. The bid was conditional on property owners concerned signing up for the pavement within ten days.

A higher bid was made in case the property owners did not sign up and the contractor who is now paving Indiana street, was compelled to move back his equipment to do the work at a later date. It was stated at the meeting that one property owner would not pave 216 feet frontage on the street.

Although no action was taken in the matter the concensus of opinion of members present was that this paving should be done under the state paving law. Members agreed with an Indiana avenue property owner who said that it would injure that street if the paving was not completed the entire length of Front street.

Dan Hardy brought up the matter of the city guaranteeing the Plains Paving company the cost of paving the frontage of the Fort Worth and Denver railroad lots pending the settlement of the city's difficulties with the railroad company. No action was taken following City Attorney Mann's statement that certain disputes between the city and the railroad were now being adjusted.

Commissioner Reed said that he had received bids for constructing curbs at Lamar Park but that he would not recommend their acceptance because the cost was prohibitive. He was authorized to make a recommendation as to whether the city would purchase a device for lowering caskets into graves at the cemetery.

American Legion Court Martial to Pack Real Punch

A court martial, which one member remarked he expects will be funnier than any he ever attended, will be staged at a joint gathering of the Pat Carrigan Post of the American Legion and the Woman's Auxiliary Tuesday evening at the legion hall.

Brief business meetings will precede the "Court Martial" and the social session of the joint bodies. The "get together" feature of the meeting will be stressed and refreshments will be served by the legion auxiliary.

An invitation to all wives of legion members, whether they are members of the woman's branch or not, has been extended.

A delegation of twenty-three members of the Pat Carrigan post of the American Legion, and their dependents are representing this city and county at the national convention at Kansas City. The party made the trip up in a special car.

The list is as follows:

The last two are from Burkburnett.

TRADE CONDITIONS IMPROVED BY FAST SALE OF PRODUCTS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Stimulated activity in important industries resulting from rapid marketing of agricultural products during October, made noticeable the beginning of improvements throughout the country, the federal reserve board declared tonight in its monthly review of general business and financial conditions.

Higher prices realized by farmers for tobacco and cotton and heavy sales of cereals abroad, the review asserted, has brought them into the market for purchases of seasonable goods with a corresponding benefit to trade in the producing regions.

"Some distinctly encouraging elements" are to be noted in the general business situation, the review continued. The outlook in the textile industries was said to be better, for, while uncertainty of the future of cotton prices has led some textile manufacturers to hold off, buying has been more pronounced during the last week.

Except in a limited degree, the review declared, basic manufacturing and structural industries have not shown the influence of reviving demand, although increases both in production and in unfilled orders in iron and steel was regarded as "of first rate importance, as marking the turn from the low point."

Prices apparently had attained a substantial degree of stability, the review stated.

A fairly general increase in the number of men employed was noted, although unemployment was reported as continuing as a serious element in the existing industrial situation.

The large amount of unemployment prevailing, according to the board, has had its effect on the retail trade, purchases for the most part being confined to essentials.

TRIAL OF CASES IN 78TH COURT BY AGREEMENT

No cases will be set from the regular docket for the week beginning November 14, according to an announcement Monday by Judge Ed Napier of the 78th district court. The week will be set aside for the trial of cases set by agreements of the parties conderned, Judge Napier said.

He asked that all attorneys desiring to have cases tried during that week to make arrangements with him today. Cases from the regular docket have been set for trial until that date.

MARTIN WANTS ATTORNEYS TO "PUT UP" FEES

Attorneys filing civil suits either in district or county courts will be required to furnish a deposit or make a cost bond at the time the suit is filed to cover all possible costs in connection with the disposal of the case if the recommendation to be made by Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court is acted on favorably by the other judges of the district and county.

Judge Martin estimated Monday that such a requirement would save the county several hundred and possible thousands of dollars annually. According to Judge Martin there are numerous cases filed and finally settled out of court in which the county does not receive the costs allowed by law.

This is particularly true he said in cases which are never tried in court and which are finally dismissed from the docket by order of the judges. In many of these cases only costs have been paid which will cover the actual fees of county and district officials. In addition to these fees he said the county is entitled to certain costs which because the cases are dismissed by the court are seldom collected.

Under his plan the litigants would be required to make a deposit large enough to cover all possible costs or furnish a cost bond, at time suit was filed.

Magazine Tells Of Road Work in Wichita County

Wichita county roads improvements constitute the subject of a several column article appearing in the current issue of the Engineering News Record copies of which were received here Monday. The article is illustrated with several photographs and sketches of various phases of the road improvement program under construction.

The article follows a recent inspection here of the roads by a staff correspondent of the periodical which is published in New York City and is considered one of the leading publications of its kind in the United States.

A history of country road improvements is given the article however being primarily concerned with a detailed and technical discussion of the methods used in constructing the concrete roads.

Commenting on the work as a whole the writer states "The plant is high class. The cost is materially lower than the original prices bid and the speed of construction has been greater than the average for similar operations."

ST. LOUIS MEN LEASE PLANT OF BANKERS PET. CO.

St. Louis men have leased the plant of the Bankers' Petroleum and Refining Co., on the Iowa Park road, and will begin operations Tuesday, according to the announcement of W. T. Coleman, president and manager of the company.

Mr. Coleman, who recently returned from Mexia, also announced that he had been approached by representatives of a large oil company concerning the establishment of a refinery in the field there and one near the Gulf Coast. He expects to return to Mexia in the near future.

NEGRO FINED $30 AFTER WILD RACE

A fine of $30 was assessed against Clive Waldrip, negro in the city police court Monday morning on a charge of reckless driving. A call for fire fighting apparatus and a wrecked machine was said by spectators to have resulted Sunday afternoon from an attempt of Waldrip to pass another car on South Ohio street. Another negro by the name of Bennet, who was in the car with Waldrip, sustained minor cuts from flying glass.

Some Chest-Nuts

Mrs. Smith engaged a new housemaid and was annoyed to find that the girl persisted in addressing her as Mrs. Smith. She remonstrated and suggested that she should address her in the same way as the other maids did.

"Well," said the girl, thoughtfully. "I can't call you ma'am or mum; I always call mother that. But I don't mind calling you auntie, if you like."

A minister told the story of a strapping fellow who brought his demure young bride to the manse for matrimonial purposes.

"According to my custom, I turned to the bridegroom at a certain part of the ceremony and said: 'John, this is your lawfully wedded wife.'

"In the excitement of the occasion John turned in the direction of his newly acquired partner and stammered, 'I'm pleased to meet you.'"

Little Eleanor gazed long and thoughtfully at the young man who was calling on her grown-up sister Kate. "May I climb up on your knee, Mr. Brown?"

"Yes, of course, dear," smiled the young man who wanted to make a hit with the family. "Want to pull my hair, eh?" "No, I want to see if I can find that word." "Word? What word?" asked the puzzled visitor. "I heard our Kate say this morning that if ever a man had the word 'idiot' written all over his face it was you."

He was giving his new airplane a trial, and all went well until he found himself directly over a football field where a game was in progress.

There was a sharp report and a moment later he was lying on the ground with a group of officials bending over him.

As he slowly opened his eyes the club secretary, with a sigh of relief, touch him gently on the shoulder.

"Ah," he murmured, "I'm glad you've come round! I don't think you paid your admission, did you?"

"There's been a murder and a scandal in my home," said an excited woman, "but I can prove an alibi. I want to retain you as my lawyer. It ought to be a very simple matter; I was in another city when it happened."

"A simple matter!" returned the lawyer. "Good lord, no! Why, before the newspapers get through you'll need the best legal talent in the country to handle your film rights, vaudeville contracts, and all that."

BADLY MATED.

RAZOR WRINKLES.

Numerous inventions have been devised with a view to lessening the agony of shaving.

Yet none of them will help as much towards giving an easy shave as a little ointment or cream applied to the face before lathering. Any cream of the greasy variety will do, but every little should be used, or difficulty will be found in making the soap lather.

For those with tender skins, cold or luke-warm water is recommended. By all means dip your razor in warm water—but use cold water for lathering.

Use cold water for sponging the face after shaving, as this closes the pores of the skin.

Strop your razor AFTER use, and then let it rest for several days. This is arranged easily in connection with a safety razor, by making a small box with partitions to hold a separate blade for each day of the week. The blades shave much easier, and each blade lasts longer.

Not many years ago Argentina had to import its flour. Today it sells wheat to the world, the value of the annual harvest amounting to more than $500,000,000.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—There was no change in the local raw sugar market today with duty free centrifugals quoted at $4.06, while Cubas were held at 2 1-2 cents cost and freight, equal to $4.11 for centrifugal. There were sales of 45,000 bags of Cubas to local refiners by the committee at 2 1-2 cents cost and freight equal to $4.00.

The raw sugar futures market was firmer early on covering and scattered buying by commission houses, but after showing advances of 2 to 5 points eased off under increased offerings from trade interests and closed 3 points lower to 2 net higher. December closed at 2.54; March 2.39; May 2.49, and July 2.58.

The market for refined was unchanged at 5.20 to 5.30 for fine granulated but the demand was less active although refiners were pretty well filled up and behind on deliveries.

Refined futures were nominal and without transactions, closing prices were unchanged to ten points net lower with December at 5.40 and March and May at 5.50.

CHICAGO PRODUCE

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Butter lower; creamery extras 44½c. Eggs firm; receipts 5,550 cases; firsts 49@51c.

Poultry alive, higher; fowls 14@22½c; springs 20½c; turkeys 29c, roosters 14c.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—There was continued buying of December contracts in the market for coffee futures today which sent the price it to new high ground for the season. Other months were rather slow in following the advance. Closing prices were withing 3 or 4 points of the best, showing a net advance of 11 to 32 points. Sales were estimated at about 140,000 bags. December 8.49; January 8.39; March 8.20; May 8.13; July 8.19; September 8.14.

Spot coffee was quiet but firm at 8 5-8 to 8 3-4 for Rio 7's and 11 3-4 to 12 3-4 for Santo's 4's.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Cotton goods and yarns steady today with trading less active than Friday and Saturday. Wool goods manufacturers reported quiet demand with some unsettlement caused by threats of a strike in local garment manufacture centers.

Stocks

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Fluctuations in the stock market today were confusing, issues of the same description frequently moving in opposite directions. Dealings were fairly large but again subject to the manoeuvers of professional traders.

Money rates furnished an excuse for the market's unstable course. Call loans opened at 5 1-2 per cent, relaxed to 5 per cent at midday and suddenly hardened to 6 per cent in the final hour.

Independent steel producers were reported to be contemplating lower prices for structural steel and other fabricated materials and substantial cuts were announced by manufacturers of motor trucks and rubber tires.

Among market leaders Mexican petroleum was heaviest at an extreme decline of nearly 8 points, the stock being under greatest pressure in the last hour and unsettling the entire list.

Rails lapsed into dullness. Motors and food shares were heavy. Wilson and Company, common and preferred, made gross declines of 5 to 15 points. Officials of the company were quoted as being unable to account for the weakness of those issues. Sales amounted to 700,000 shares.

Foreign exchanges were irregular, the French rate being the only important remittance to display strength. German Scandinavian and Central European rates were variably lower. Trading in bonds was moderate with an uneven tone. Liberty issues closed mostly at slight gains, rails were unsettain and mixed changes ruled among internationals. Total sales par value $14,375,000.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, Oct. 31.—With exceptionally small receipts here today salesmen expected an advance in cattle rates, but to the contrary, packers were bidding 25 to 50c lower on steers and cows, with the intention probably of forcing a 25c decline. The market was a slow, peddling affair, therefore. Calves were disposed of to a broad demand at an advance of 25 to 50c, several small drafts notching 7.25. Receipts amounted to 2,500 head of cattle and 3,200 calves.

Sales of hogs were around 25 to 30c higher and the market was active on that basis. An outside buyer paid $7.90 for one car and packers made purchases up to $7.75. Bulk sales ranged from $7.50 to $7.75. Only 1,000 head were available. Pigs sold steady to higher, the run clearing at $7.50 to $7.75.

A blank was drawn in the sheep division. Quotations:

Grain

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Notwithstanding a substantial decrease in the United States visible supply total, the wheat market today underwent a slight decline owing chiefly to imports of duty paid Canadian wheat. Prices closed easy 1-8 to 1-2 net lower with December 1.07 3-4 to 1.08 and May 1.12 3-8 to 1.12 1-2. Corn finished a shade to 1-4 off, oats unchanged to 1-4 lower and provisions varying from 2 1-2c decline to 12c advance.

At first the bulls in wheat appeared to have some little advantage on account of correct anticipations of the changed domestic visible supply figures, but demand failed to broaden out and the upturns in price seemed to be a signal for selling on the part of houses with northwestern connections. In the end, the prevailing sentiment was rather bearish, the outstanding factor being news that millers at Buffalo and other eastern points were acquiring wheat from Canada and that Canadian visible supply total had been heavily enlarged. Besides, expert inquiry continued to be sluggish and there was no stimulus in private estimates of farm reserves, the estimates proving similar to the government report of October 1.

Absence of aggressive support tended to weaken corn and oats.

Provisions averaged higher in line with hogs.

Cotton

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—An early advance in the cotton market was followed by declines under liquidation accompanied by talk of a disappointing trade demand and increased southern selling. January contracts broke from 18.8 to 1.15 and closed at 18.20 compared with 18.60 at the close of last week with the general market closing steady at a net decline of 23 to 43 points.

The market opened firm at an advance of 17 to 3 points on the higher Liverpool cable and covering. No general or aggressive demand developed, however and the market soon turned easier under liquidation by early buyers and a renewal of western Wall street and southern selling.

Offerings seemed to grow heavier as prices worked over and the market was weak and unsettled during the afternoon, selling off from 18.98, the early high level to 18.50 for December and from 18.75 to 18.08 for March, or about 35 to 45 points net lower on the general list. Last prices were only a few points up from the lowest on covering. There was a little trade buying in the market here on a scale down, but it appeared to be outweighed by increased southern hedge selling and the market was unsettled by a continuation of near month liquidation. A preliminary estimate by a Chicago firm placing the crop at 6,621,000 bales of 500 pounds net weight and the percentage of the crop picked at 93, attracted no special comment and failed to check the afternoon decline.

MKTS—CHANGES SHOWN—3—.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The visible supply of American grain shows the following changes:

Wheat decreased 1,354,000 bushels.
Corn decreased 732,000 bushels.
Oats increased 961,000 bushels.
Rye increased 469,000 bushels.
Barley increased 169,000 bushels.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 31.—Early trading in cotton today brought advances over last week's close of 21 to 26 points but after December touched 18.40 cents a pound, selling pressure appeared and during much of the remainder of the session it was felt. In late trading prices were driven 40 to 45 points under the previous close and last prices were 40 to 44 under. December fell to 17.75 and closed there.

On opening values were helped by a better Liverpool and favorable opinion of weekly textile trade reviews but after their effect wore off offerings became heavier on the lack of any special trading in the spot department. As the market fell away considerable liquidation came from the long side and much of this, to all appearances, was due to the holiday hour tomorrow in observance of all saints day.

During the course of the decline the market had its small upturns but none of them was sustained for any length of time, nor did the market run into any real support after early trading was over, although much bullish comment was aroused by a private crop estimate of $6,621,000 bales, accompanied by the claim that the crop was 93 per cent picked.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Cottonseed oil ruled irregular with narrow price limits. Nearby oil was heavy in the absence of trade demand while forward months averaged higher on buying by refiners and demand from local shorts. Closing bids were two points to 3 net higher. Sales 15,000; tenders 200. Crude markets were firmer; prime crude $7.25@7.50; prime summer yellow spot $8.38@8.75; December $8.82; March $9.18; May $9.39, all bid.

PRYOR APPLIES TO COURT FOR REINSTATEMENT

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Oct. 31.—W. G. Pryor, former prison commissioner, who was temporarily suspended from office by Judge Cooper Sansom of Travis county district court on proceedings brought by the state, seek immediate reinstatement on the commission in mandamus proceedings started today in the Texas supreme court.

Through his attorney, John N. Mathis of Houston, Pryor asks permission of the supreme court to file the mandamus proceedings reinstating him and also an injunction restraining Walker Sayles, appointed in his place, from further serving as commissioner.

Pryor contends in his petition that Judge Sansom acted without legal authority in suspending him from office. He was suspended under the provisions of a law passed at the first called session of the legislature last July, the law being recommended by the penitentiary investigating committee.

APPROVE PLANS FOR HOSPITAL

After a few minor changes had been approved the county commissioners' court and city council in joint session Monday afternoon approved the plans of C. J. Pate, local architect, for the construction of an addition to the Wichita General Hospital and authorized the county clerk to advertise for bids for the construction to be opened on November 28.

The two governing bodies also acted favorable on the request of local physicians and appointed Dr. M. M. Walker, county health officer and Dr. Q. B. Lee on the building committee of the hospital to serve with W. N. Bonner, city commissioner, Louis Jernigan, county farm superintendent, and Will Daniel, local oil operator.

Provided the bids received are acceptable it is expected that work on the construction of the long delayed addition to the local hospital for which the county and city each voted $75,000 bond issues several months ago, can begin before the first of the year.

According to the plans approved the city and county will have what is termed a "standard" hospital when the addition is completed. The standard plans were urged by local physicians several of which were in attendance at the joint meeting. Several benefits were pointed out, including the fact that when standard requirements are complied with student nurses can be trained here with the same rating as that received at any of the larger hospitals in the state.

Complying with one of the standard requirements the hospital will have in excess of 100 beds. According to present plans this will be obtained by 37 private rooms, with single beds; 6 rooms of two beds; 4 rooms of three beds; 2 wards of 4 beds; 2 wards of five beds, and 2 wards of six beds. In the basement there will be three rooms of three beds each for negro and Mexican patients.

In addition there will be separate rooms for babies. A cell will be provided for the care of persons under arrest with specially prepared rooms for the care of insane patients.

In the basement rooms have been provided for dental and medical clinics of all kinds. A new kitchen and laundry are among the other features to be incorporated in the building when completed. The heating plant will be enlarged.

Including the basement the building will be four stories high. Built of brick with tile floors throughout every precaution against fire is provided for in its construction.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS GIVEN FREE RIDE IN CITY PATROL

Nine youths, all asserting that they were students at the Senior High school, were brought to the city police station Monday night about 12 o'clock in the patrol wagon, charged with attempting to put a cow in the high school building. The youths were apprehended by a night watchman on duty at the building.

After giving them a sound lecture the boys were dismissed, one at a time, by Night Chief Lee McDonald. Their names, however, were taken by the officers, to be turned over to school authorities.

TREMENDOUS POSSIBILITIES OF NEXT TWO YEARS CAUSE OF OPTIMISM BY C. H. CLARK

C. H. Clark is of course one of the leading local oil men, but he is also an arithmetician—or at least he did a sum Monday which provides food for thought for every Wichitan.

"Just take a pencil and figure the money which will be turned loose in Wichita Falls and vicinity during the next two years," he said.

"First there is the irrigation project, which is moving to realization each day—there is $4,500,000, the most of which will go for labor. Then there is the land in the irrigation district—I believe at least 100,000 acres of this will change hands, at an average price of $100 per acre—which is $10,000,000 more.

With manufactures at their normal pitch, another $10,000,000 will be turned loose in the form of increased values through manufacture, all of which will go into wages, salaries, compensation for services, interest and dividends.

On top of this the oil will bring in $40,000,000 during that time, even if there were no more than ordinary development in site.

Here is a total of $64,500,000 of money brought into Wichita Falls and vicinity in the next two years—aside from the usual business life of the town, and not taking into account the tremendous things which will go with these things—values created by the services rendered by the retailer, professional man, banker, laborers in other lines than manufacture, and the host of others whose services are needed to round out the town—and whose numbers and the consequent values created will increase as these other things grow.

"Many have had a hard time the past few months, some may have a hard time in the immediate future. But we can all look into the future and see that Wichita Falls can not help but have a tremendous growth, with consequent opportunities for all of its people."

UNITED DRIVE COMMITTEE TO MEET THURSDAY

Another meeting of the general committee which is to direct the united drive for all local charitable institutions, beginning November 21, is to be held Thursday night, at which time complete campaign committee assignments will be announced, according to a statement issued following Monday night's meeting of the general committee.

C. H. Clark, chairman of the general committee, will be general chairman of the drive. Detail work in connection with the drive will be handled through the offices of the local Chamber of Commerce under the supervision of Hubert Harrison, general manager.

Mrs. Crozier Leaves Today

Mrs. S. B. Crozier, for eighteen months night travelers aid at the Union Station, and in addition to her Y. W. C. A. appointment, a member of the police force, with full authority to make arrests and investigations, left this morning at 5 o'clock for Washington, Okla., for an extended visit with her daughter, Mrs. Crozier's resignation handed in a couple of weeks ago became effective this morning.

Secured for night travelers aid by the Y. W. C. A. during the height of the oil boom, Mrs. Crozier became Wichita Falls's first, and so far only policewoman, in order that the salary could be borne by the city, the commissioners feeling that the need for a night aid at the station was great.

Throughout her connection with the Y. W. C. A. and the police department of the city, there has been much praise for her efficiency and loyal service, the police department officers on numerous occasions telling of the intelligent co-operation she had always given them. Much regret has been expressed by all with whom she came in contact in her work that she was leaving Wichita Falls. Her personal friends also will feel her loss keenly.

Mrs. Crozier will also spend some time with her son, Harry B. Crozier, young newspaper man who is a staff writer on the Dallas News.

Finty Favors Repeal Texas Homestead Law

Repeal of the homestead law in Texas, as a means of facilitating street paving work in cities of the state, suggested by Tom Finty Jr., of Dallas, in a talk before the state convention of the American Society of Civil Engineers in session in Dallas, met with the approval of the great majority of those present, according to City Engineer Julian Montgomery, who returned Monday from the convention.

An amendment to the state constitution, which will be necessary before the homestead law can be repealed, was urged by the speaker as necessary so that this branch of public improvement work as well as others can go on.

Other legislation which the speaker favored was the raising of the restrictions from cities of over 10,000 population enabling them to raise their tax rates above $2.50 a hundred. The talk by this well known newspaperman was a highlight of the meeting, Mr. Montgomery said.

Exchange of ideas and consultations on important and perplexing questions as well as lectures by big men who have made important contributions to engineering of all branches, went toward making this meeting profitable as well as enjoyable, Mr. Montgomery said.

TEXAS STATE BANKS WILL PLAY PART IN WAR FINANCE PLAN

FORT WORTH, Oct. 31.—State banks in Texas may act as intermediates between borrowers and the war finance corporation in subscriptions to stock in the Agricultural-Livestock Finance corporation, Ed Hall, state banking commissioners, announced today, according to a local newspaper. The banks may grant borrowers credit, the loan to be passed on to the war finance corporation, Hall is quoted as saying, when the banks endorsing the notes or assuming any obligation.

SICK A-BED IS WHIRLWIND OF FUN MAKING

Lewis-Worth Production for This Week Proves No Place for 'One With Week Constitution.

Realistic Farce Comedy Described as Bit Human Nature Dished Up With Laugh.

If the majority of the audience at the Lewis-Worth presentation of the farce comedy hit, "Sick-a-Bed," which opened Monday at the Wichita theater, were like the writer, situated directly behind a lady of rather ample dimensions, who shook violently and often as her sense of humor responded, they went home as sore in the sides as if they had taken setting up exercises from a strong lunged sergeant. The only word of warning to people who consider it undignified to smile for fear of looking pleasant had better stay home and read the "Undertakers' Gazette." Faces easily cracked by too much laughter, also take notice.

Gene Lewis as Reginald Jay, who converts to be sick to help an old friend out of a difficulty, Joseph Remington, as Weems, and Miss Olga Worth as the nurse, live their parts in such a manner as to move the stage closer and to make the happenings on the other side of the lights seem a part of real life. Miss Lee Smith, as Mrs. Weems, the romantic young wife, continued to win admirers with her altogether darling manner.

Cast Admirably Selected

In fact the whole cast was selected admirably for the parts which were assigned to them. The quack doctors, Flexner and Wiener, played by Klock Ryder and Ted Brackett, were good take-offs on one particular kind of the profession. There is, however, nothing in their work that could be considered a reflection upon the medical fraternity, the spirit of the whole being purely in fun and not intended to teach any great moral.

The Jap servant, so prevalent in modern plays, played by Charles J. Lammers, disports himself in accepted fashion, with quaint and unexpected crimes against the king's English and general "dumbellity." Jack Doty as Chalmers and the janitor, who is Jack Emmerson, who played the rube so well in "Turn to the Right," have good comedy parts, and make the most of them.

Miss De Roy as the night nurse is a burlesque of a hard boiled type of nurse. Edward Reach, although on the stage only a short time as Dr. Robert Macklyn, the specialist, is a conventional and sedate characterization of the up town specialist.

Dished Up With a Laugh

The plot of the play, which has delighted audiences all over the country, including long runs in New York and Chicago, is not greatly involved, nor does it depend on unusual turns to hold the interest. However, it is enough of a plot to give a touch of human nature dished up with a laugh. Like a number of current New York successes it has a bed room scene but not the kind of the Every Hopwood so called "bed room" farces.

Following the play, in accordance with an announcement, presentation of one $10 prize for the handsomest Halloween costume to Miss Mary Austin, and of $5 to Albert Wallace for the funniest was made by Manager Dave Heileman. Miss Olga Worth made the selection. Miss Austin wore a Colonial garb, while Wallace had on a rube makeup. The cast were guests of the Arcadia after the performance at the Halloween masked dance.

To Hold Reception

Ladies of this city who desire to meet the cast personally will be given an opportunity to do so after the Wednesday matinee, Mr. Lewis announced in a curtain speech Monday night. So many patrons of the show have expressed the desire to meet the cast, Mr. Lewis said, that this opportunity will be given at that time. Wonder if the men can meet the ladies of the outfit too? Page Boy, Mrs. Weems.

The same play, which is one of the most rollicking farce comedies on the stage today, will be presented all week.

LARGE CROWD HEARS SERMON MONDAY NIGHT

Despite the counter attraction of Halloween festivities a large crowd heard Dr. James T. McKissick speak Monday night on the subject, "The Way of Life Made Plain."

Directing his attention first to the query box Dr. McKissick Monday night found the question, "Why do you not preach the practice of foot washing?"

Dr. McKissick's reply was as follows. "In John 13:14 Jesus said to his immediate disciples 'Ye also ought to wash one another's feet,' but in John 14:26 he said, 'The Comforter would teach them all things and bring to remembrance whatever He had said unto them.' But one more reference is made after this (1 Tim. 5:10) and we must conclude that it was only temporary, like the greeting with the holy kiss. Not so with Baptism and the Lord's supper, which is repeatedly enjoined.

Special music for the evening was furnished by Mrs. R. L. Clark. The services continue each evening beginning at 7:30 o'clock and a cordial invitation for the public to attend is issued.

Masked Pleasure Seekers Storm Downtown Streets Monday Night; Young Hoodlums Mar Pleasures

It was a wild crowd that took possession of the downtown streets of Wichita Falls Monday night and although the spirits of the controlling Saints may have walked, police declare that many seemed controlled by the spirit of St. Nick himself. Young hoodlums, as usual, entered into many affairs marring the pleasure of masked seekers after innocent amusement. Old time peace officers declare the demonstrations of Monday night the wildest and noisiest they had ever witnessed in Wichita Falls.

Two false fire alarms, thought to have been maliciously turned in by boys and a broken window on Eleventh street were the only reports of law violations brought to the attention of the police shortly before midnight.

The masked parraders in choosing their garments showed considerable variation, the clown costume claiming the greatest number. Whether it was an outgrowth of the modern feminist movement or whether it was a regular idea for seeking adventure is not known, but the most noticeable costume was declared by all to have been the members of the fair sex who ventured forth in "brother's other suit."

Two dressed in such costumes were seen to enter a prominent down town drug store, and confectionery store, where in a blase manner, they purchased cigars and attempted to smoke them in masculine fashion. They nearly succeeded. Ready masculine hands, offering lighted matches, however, gave them evidence of their defeat and then went unconcernedly forth, puffing their "smokes" as they walked.

Another lass, dressed in clown costume; bearding the lion in its den, visited the city hall, armed with a can of talcum and going through it like a veritable whirl wind left three policemen and one reporter gasping for breath and white as snow banks.

Hundreds of others crowded the streets in automobiles, many of them masked watching the throngs on the sidewalks and in the streets. The traffic was at all times crowded and at times seemed hopelessly jammed.

Police, however, reported at a late hour that no accidents had occurred. Two automobiles were reported stolen from their parking place during the early evening. Officers expressed a belief that hoodlums had stolen the cars for a night of joy riding.

To prevent property damage, Chief Morgan Monday announced that he had special officers on duty and several regular men assigned to mingle with the crowds at all times. Watchmen were also on duty at the school houses.

Petrified Head Of Serpent Is Found Near Here

An unusual specimen of an ossified or petrified serpent, with the head preserved in a remarkable state was exhibited around town Monday by W. Shoopman, of this city, who said he found it near the Wichita river about 20 miles from Seymour, last week.

Every detail of the serpent's head, which is about 4 inches across and 6 inches long, is as if it has been carved out of stone. The snake, which has been broken into several pieces, in all is about 3 feet in length, the size of the head indicating that part of the body and tail of the ossified reptile were not found.

A suggestion by one man that it had perhaps been carved out by some ancient tribe of Indians does not seem logical to the writer because of the presence of a backbone in the stone cross section.

The young man showed the curio to W. S. Curlee who arranged for the finder to show it to Lee Clark, city superintendent of schools. The finder said he had refused an offer of $75 for the pieces.

D FOR WIDOW ... AS SOON AS NEWS ARRIVES

The big heartedness of Wichita Falls people knows no equal, is the belief of at least one local woman.

An appeal was recently made through the Record News by Mrs. C. E. Ousley, secretary of the welfare council, for $50 to build a room so a widow might earn a living for herself and children by selling lunches. The widow asked the money as a loan.

Forbidding the use of their names but insisting that they be permitted to loan the money, two business men called Mrs. Ousley by telephone before they had eaten their breakfasts. The money was accepted from one.

Later in the day a message was received from a well known local woman, with a check for $50 accompanying it. She insisted that a woman striving against such obstacles as this one was should accept the money as a gift. The gift was accepted and the money returned to the business man.

MORE BOYS THAN GIRLS AT JUNIOR HI

The girls are going to have to look to their scholarship laurels, if the monthly report of Junior High school is an indication of the general conditions. Ordinarily, according to H. A. Glass, principal of the school, by the time students arrive at the seventh and eighth grades, the girls begin to assume the controlling vote in point of numbers in all classes and to increase their comparative numerical strength in each higher grade.

However, in the Junior High school report for the second month of the current term it is shown that 195 boys are enrolled against a total of 192 girls, giving the boys the controlling vote in this educational institution by a scant three.

An average attendance of 96.6 per cent was maintained during the second month of the current scholastic year by students of the Junior High school, according to the monthly report made Monday by H. A. Glass, principal of the school.

While the average attendance maintained in such schools is 92.3 per cent, Mr. Glass and many of the students were disappointed in the showing of this month. It fell just four-tenths of one per cent below the report of the first month and they had all hoped to beat it.

One cause for the lost ground, however, was reported to have been caused by fifteen children being withdrawn, whose names the teachers were forced to carry for three days after their departure.
