ATC strike —

Reagan seems to be in control

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring air safety "our overriding objective," the Reagan administration turned Friday to rebuilding the nation's flight system after claiming it had rendered moot the strike by unionized traffic controllers.

Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis said the administration considers the illegal strike over since the participants were fired on orders from President Reagan.

"It's taken 200 years for this democracy to develop and it's developed on a system of law, and we just can't see that deteriorate based on a few people that just want to make more money," Lewis said.

At an afternoon briefing, Lewis reiterated that striking controllers will not be allowed to return.

"None of these people will be permitted to come back. We don't want these people back," he said, adding that "my job right now is to rebuild the system."

Lewis did say that controllers who can show they were harassed into staying away from work by striking colleagues would be permitted to return.

The firings and refusal to take back striking controllers led U.S. District Judge Marvin Aspen in Chicago to throw out contempt findings and heavy fines against two locals of the controllers' union and eight of their officers.

"I cannot hold an individual in contempt of court for not returning to work if the employer won't take the person back to work," Aspen said in vacating $750,000 in fines that would have been levied Friday against the locals and $750 in fines against each of the eight.

Like many other federal judges, Aspen earlier issued a temporary restraining order against the strike, and he let that order stand until a hearing scheduled for next Thursday.

Lewis said that so far, 5,163 dismissal letters have been sent out and that he expects word early next week on the final count.

As part of the rebuilding program, he announced that the towers of 17 airports have already closed, seven in California, five in Massachusetts, two in Connecticut and Texas and one in Nevada. Lewis said at least 40 more will be closed in the near future.

The Professional Air Traffic Control Organization persevered, nonetheless, refusing to withdraw its picket lines and continuing its push for a resumption of contract negotiations with the Federal Aviation Administration.

The 13,000-member union insisted the administration was endangering people's lives by refusing to settle with the controllers and alleged that the FAA was turning to amateurs to police the flightpaths.

Approximately 12,200 of the union controllers remained on strike, by PATCO estimates. All of them were fired for defying Reagan's back-to-work ultimatum, which expired Wednesday.

PATCO President Robert E. Poli said "There's overwhelming support we're receiving around the country from different unions offering us financial support, help on our picket lines ..."

Most striking controllers will not be able to draw unemployment checks.

Only two states, New York and Rhode Island, permit strikers to draw unemployment. They have to wait eight weeks in New York and seven weeks in Rhode Island, said Labor Department spokesman Jack Hashian.

Meanwhile, Poli said, "The insensitive, fascist tactics against our union will only make our resolve stronger."

"PATCO endorsed this administration and they put us in shackles," he said, referring his union's backing of Ronald Reagan's presidential candidacy last fall.

Lewis said that "unfortunately, it's too late now" for the striking controllers to return to work, adding:

"As far as we're concerned, this is a non-strike situation and we're rebuilding the system ... it's over with."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes, briefing reporters in Santa Barbara, Calif., where Reagan was vacationing, said 8,497 controllers — 40 percent of the pre-strike work force — were on the job.

This includes 4,997 civilian professionals who either did not strike, were not in the union, or returned to work because of Reagan's dismissal threat, 3,000 supervisory personnel and 500 military controllers.

Speakes said flight schedules will be frozen until Sept. 8 along the lines that have existed since the strike began Monday. Three-quarters of normal flight schedules are being kept at all but the nation's 22 largest airports, where flights are operating at only half strength.

2 controllers back on job

Two of Midland's 18 Professional Air Traffic Controllers returned to work Friday, The Reporter-Telegram has learned.

According to Bill Hill, chief control tower supervisor, the two men reported to the Midland Regional Airport for their regular shifts.

"Two personnel, who have previously been on strike, have returned to work," Hill said.

When Col. Wilson Banks, director of aviation at Midland Regional Airport, was contacted about the controllers, he said one had returned to work in the morning and the other in the afternoon.

"I have no idea whether they did or did not participate in the strike," Banks said.

Tommy Urps, secretary-treasurer of PATCO local 428 and one of the striking controllers from Midland, confirmed that Michael Janssen and Michael Fiddes left the other 16 striking PATCO members to resume their duties as air traffic controllers.

"Off and on, we've had 15 striker-controllers in Lubbock (union headquarters) and one in Abilene," he said. "Janssen and Fiddes stayed in Midland."

When contacted by The Reporter-Telegram, Janssen's wife said her husband will "not comment on his job — whether he's there or not."

Hill said the controllers abandoned the nationwide PATCO strike and returned to their scheduled shifts before President Reagan's firm deadline.

"Neither of these men have missed an assigned shift since the 11 a.m. (EST) Aug. 5 deadline established by President Reagan," Hill said.

On Thursday, according to Urps, two non-union controllers from Lubbock International Airport were brought to Midland airport to work the tower. Hill said these controllers "were previously controllers in Midland." Counting the two controllers from Lubbock and the two from Midland who returned to work Friday, Midland's tower crew now is up to eight, Hill said.

"There is also a consideration for four military personnel being assigned here," he said.

Flag causes a flap

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

It was about 2:30 a.m. Thursday when a security guard for Executive Office Park spotted four persons attempting to steal a huge American flag from a 70-foot lighted pole on company property at the westside intersection of Illinois Avenue and Dewberry Street.

The guard notified police, who, according to an EOP spokesman, arrived in time to see a man being boosted up the pole by his companions.

A foot chase ensued, and three young men — along with a juvenile boy — were arrested. The three adults were charged with misdemeanor attempted theft and were released on bond. The juvenile case is "under advisement" by the county attorney's office.

The Old Glory bandits apparently struck again late Friday night. According to Midland police, four individuals were spotted attempting to steal the flag at Executive Office Park. Two of the suspects were apprehended after a foot chase, police said. Additional details were not available by press time.

Thursday's incident marked the fourth time someone has tried to steal the flag since EOP opened last Labor Day. On two of those occasions, thieves got away with the $500, 20-by-30 foot flag, prompting the company to hire a security guard. And there was one other aborted attempt where the culprits got away.

While company officials surmise that the flag's impressive size and beauty are responsible for drawing such unwanted attention, it may just be that there's a contract out on Old Glory because of her propensity for disturbing neighborhood residents by going thump, thump, thump in the night.

"It flaps all the time, and is magnified at night like you wouldn't believe," said a woman who lives just across the street. "It's not too bad now because we keep a fan on in the summer. But we're not looking forward to when the weather cools and the fan isn't needed.

"The flag is very beautiful and striking, but not everyone has to live next to it like we do. I'd have preferred that (EOP) had put it in the middle of their complex, rather than next to the street."

When the company first installed the flag, neighbors complained of ropes that slapped disconcertedly against the pole. EOP quickly remedied that situation by wrapping a plastic cord — candy cane style — around the ropes and securing them to the pole, thereby silencing the noise.

"They were very cooperative," noted the woman.

Thumps in the night, however, may be something neighbors will have to get used to. Said an EOP spokesman Friday: "That's her property and this is ours. If she wants to file a suit against us, that's her right."

Old Glory flutters in the breeze at Executive Office Park in west Midland. The huge flag has been the victim of four theft attempts in the last year — although some say there may be a contract out on the stars and stripes.

Kenneth Ray Deamon of Dallas escaped with only minor injuries Friday night as his 80-Freightliner semi-tractor trailer rig slid along Interstate 20 and his cab went sideways, dangling the rig over U.S. Highway 80. The mishap occurred at 6:45 p.m. on a rain-slick road. Deamon was treated and released from Midland Memorial Hospital.

Watt delaying decision on offshore oil leases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary James Watt announced Friday that because of a legal dispute, he is delaying until at least 1983 a decision on whether to permit offshore oil and gas drilling in four scenic areas off the Northern California coast.

The decision gave conservationists, who had complained about the dangers from possible oil spills, at least a 17-month reprieve. Watt said the earliest the sale could be rescheduled would be 1983.

Watt said the delay was not due to political pressure, but was because of his concern over an adverse ruling a federal judge issued last month concerning a fifth Pacific Ocean lease sale in California.

U.S. District Judge Mariana Pfaelzer blocked the sale of 31 tracts off Santa Barbara after ruling that Watt violated the spirit of the leasing law by giving only "minimal" considerations to state objections.

The suit was filed by California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. Brown also opposed the Northern California leases and promised to sue if Watt went ahead with those sales.

Watt said that since a suit on the four northern lease areas was virtually certain to go before the same judge, he had decided to await a ruling by the Supreme Court before making a decision on those leases.

"Proceeding with a lease sale would only subject the government to unrealistically low bids an- to the prospect of long and expensive court battles," Watt said.

In Los Angeles, Brown called Watt's announcement "a retreat and a backdown from the misguided policy of desecrating our pristine California coast."

Brown termed Watt's reasoning for the delay "a legal cover for a political decision."

Environmental groups also hailed the action as a victory, saying they felt the Supreme Court would uphold Judge Pfaelzer's ruling that state objections had to be given greater weight by the federal government.

"Secretary Watt has been forced to his knees on this issue by massive public protest," Douglas Scott, director of federal affairs for the Sierra Club, said in San Francisco. Since April, he said, the club had collected almost 1 million signatures protesting Watt's policies.

House panel sends bill on redistricting to floor

AUSTIN (AP) — The House redistricting committee sent a congressional remap bill to the floor Friday after a strategy dispute among loyalist Democrats ended the delays that had idled representatives for five days.

The House convenes at 2 p.m. today to resume the redistricting fight that was interrupted Monday when the loyalists won a decision to send the remap bill back to committee.

Today's debate was set up when the House redistricting committee voted 10-2, with six "present but not voting," to send a new bill to the floor. Republicans and conservative Democrats who opposed the plan voted for it to get a bill before the House.

The bill is favored by the loyalists and probably would deprive Republicans of any gains in the Texas congressional delegation, which increases from 24 to 27 next year because of the 1980 census.

But Speaker Bill Clayton also is collecting votes for his own plan, which he said would give Republicans six seats — one more than Republicans now hold — plus a seventh "toss-up" district where Congressman Jack Fields, R-Houston, lives.

"If my (count of) votes indicates anything, we'll pass it," said Clayton.

Earlier he had given the diehard Democrats an ultimatum — get a bill, any bill, out of committee or he would take it away from the redistricting committee and let his handpicked Calendars Committee do the job.

Gov. Bill Clements might have given Clayton a little help by submitting 13 additional issues to the special legislative session, some of them badly wanted by certain representatives.

"If he (Clements) had his votes, he would not be getting all these bills out," Bush said. "... You put the candy out there for the children, and they will try to get a piece if they can."

"I don't think opening the call makes any difference, myself. He just wanted a plan on the floor before he opened it up," Clayton said.

Clayton said his plan would resemble the bill passed by the Senate, which gave Republicans seven seats, an increase of two. The Dallas lines are "exactly like the Senate bill," which transformed the district of liberal Democrat Jim Mattox into a Republican district.

Cooler temperatures, chance of rain in Midland forecast

Midlanders will experience another cooler day today with a 20 percent chance of rain, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

There is a slight chance of showers or thundershowers today and tonight. The high today and Sunday will be near 90 with the low tonight in the mid-60s.

Friday's high of 90 was a far reach from the 104 record high set in 1964.

Winds are traveling 5-10 mph from the north to northeast.

A cold front spread showers across the South and the Ohio Valley on Friday, and thunderstorms traveled across the Great Lakes.

Thundershowers soaked much of the Gulf Coast region, with 0.6 inch of rain at Birmingham, Ala., and 0.75 inch at Anniston, Ala. Temperatures along the coast climbed into the 90s.

Strong thunderstorms uprooted trees near Erie, Pa.

The season's fourth tropical storm, Dennis, was gaining power from the warm water of the eastern Atlantic and forecasters said it could reach hurricane strength during the weekend. The storm was many days away from land.

Skies over the West were sunny, with temperatures in the 80s over the northern Plains and the northern Rockies. The Pacific Northwest had highs in the 70s, while the Southwest deserts hit 100 degrees.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 p.m. EDT ranged fr9m a low of 58 at Arcata, Calif., to a high of 106 degrees at Blythe, Calif.

For Saturday, thunderstorms were forecast over the northern Plains and the eastern half of the country, with continued sunny skies over the West.

Highs in the 70s were predicted from the Dakotas to New England, near 100 in the Pacific Northwest, in the 90s along the Gulf Coast and near 110 in the West and southern Plateau.

27 claims to estate rejected

HOUSTON (AP) — The same judge who ruled that billionaire Howard Hughes died without leaving a will or any immediate survivors Friday threw out the petitions of 27 people seeking a portion of Hughes' vast fortune and claiming to be distant relatives of the eccentric tycoon's mother.

The claims were part of the second phase of hearings being held here to divide the Hughes estate.

In the first phase, held last month, Probate Judge Pat Gregory ruled there was no will and declared that when Hughes died in 1976, he left no surviving parents, wives, children, brothers or sisters.

Gregory's ruling came despite the claims of three women — including actress Terry Moore — who each said they were Hughes' widow.

The second phase, which will determine heirs on Hughes' mother's side of the family, will be held beginning Monday without a jury. But during a pretrial hearing Friday, all but the so-called "known heirs" were removed from the proceeding.

None of the 27 purported cousins showed up in court Friday. Their attorney, George Parnam, argued that all were remotely related to Hughes' great-grandparents or great-great-grandparents.

Gregory complained they had failed "to prove or present evidence that their claims were equal or superior to" the known maternal heirs who are descendants of Hughes' mother's two sisters and brother.

The known heirs — 17 maternal relatives and five from Hughes' father's family — agreed in 1976 to split the estate among themselves, but a series of hearings was ordered to give other claimants a chance to try to prove they were related to the reclusive magnate.

The hearings were not held until now because Gregory wanted to allow time to search for a will. Several purported wills were presented, but each one has been rejected.

The ruling means that Monday's hearing will be little more than a ceremonial showing of birth certificates by the known maternal heirs to prove they are who they say they are.

But a battle is expected later this month, when the third and final phase — determination of the paternal heirs — gets under way.

Besides the five "known" paternal heirs are claims by about 500 people who are seeking a share of Hughes' estate on grounds they are distant relatives of Hughes' father.

U.S. air controllers getting European support

LONDON (AP) — European air traffic controllers began refusing to handle some American-bound flights and aircraft belonging to U.S. carriers Friday in a show of support for the controllers striking in the United States.

Controller groups in France, Italy, Norway, Sweden and Finland took varying degrees of protest action. Future action was being contemplated in Britain, the Netherlands, Denmark and Switzerland.

Most of the flights affected were U.S.-bound, but slowdowns in Italy, Norway and Portugal also delayed incoming planes from the United States.

In Washington, Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Fred Farrar said international flights by U.S. carriers were being delayed up to 1½ hours, but denied any delays amounting to eight hours or more.

The Dutch national airline KLM has said it was experiencing delays of up to eight hours on U.S. flights.

In many countries, the show of solidarity took the form of a refusal to aid flights beyond the controllers' jurisdiction.

French controllers were assisting aircraft "only to the limit of our zone of operations — the mid-Atlantic for U.S. flights," said Daniel Zuckerman, spokesman for France's National Union of Air Traffic Controllers.

Norwegian controllers boycotted flights of American-registered airlines for a time Friday morning, then staged a 15-minute strike beginning at noon in sympathy with their American brethren, union officials said. Later, they were giving clearance for all flights only as far as the American border.

In Finland, controllers' union chairman Tapio Moilanen announced his members had stopped giving assistance to direct flights to the United States and would continue withholding their service until the American strike ends.

Some Italian air traffic controllers staged a slowdown, adding between 15 and 30 minutes to delays of several hours in both departures for and arrivals from American cities.

Sweden's Air Traffic Controllers Association board recommended its members not clear any flights to the United States, but the civil service union which represents most controllers said it did not support the action. No flights had yet been affected.

Officials of the International Federation of Air Traffic Controllers Associations said the protests were motivated by a concern for the safety of passengers in American airspace, where military controllers in some cases are directing flights.

"We have a policy in the Federation that we should not clear across into airspace within which some substitute air traffic control service is provided," said Bjarne Nillsen, IFATCA's European region vice president, in Oslo.

"We think airlines should be very much concerned about flying into airspace which controllers worldwide feel is unsafe," he said.

Nillsen explained that normal practice is for controllers to clear a plane all the way to its destination, "implying that air traffic control service is guaranteed all the way." This, he said, was no longer possible.

In Washington, FAA spokesman Farrar said the administration had expected delays in the international flights of U.S. airlines because of the strike.

He acknowledged the delays were attributable to support of PATCO by international controllers, saying "there is a lot of verbal harassment (of pilots), but beyond that there's no incidences of refusing to clear flights."

He said some controllers are warning pilots about flying to U.S. airspace controlled "by unqualified people." Farrar said this message is being given to pilots by controllers in Europe and Canada as well.

Many foreign unions — including the Norwegians and French — were considering an all-out boycott of U.S.-bound flights and aircraft belonging to American carriers.

British controllers were planning to meet next week to discuss possible action.

DEATHS

Mrs. Bizzell

Services for Mrs. T.E. Bizzell, 89, of Route 4, Midland, will be at 11:30 a.m. today in the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Ross Payne, pastor of Cotton Flat Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Mrs. Bizzell died early Thursday morning in her home following an illness.

She was born on March 23, 1892, in Arkansas, moved to West Texas in the early 1900s, and was married to T.E. Bizzell in 1911. They lived in Colorado City until 1922, when they purchased land and moved to south of Midland. Her husband, a stock farmer, died in Midland in 1955. Mrs. Bizzell was a member of the First Baptist Church.

Survivors include three sons, T.E. Bizzell Jr. of Las Lunas, N.M., and Bennie Bizzell and Delma Bizzell, both of Midland; 10 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Iranian warns France against not returning terrorists

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — France will have its "snout rubbed in the dust" and its embassy in Tehran seized unless ex-President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr and leftist leader Massoud Rajavi are returned for trial, a key Iranian clergyman threatened Friday.

"If you are not prepared to return these terrorists to Iran, then the Iranian nation will do to you the same that has been done to America, when with clenched fists and the 'God is Great' slogans !merica's snout was rubbed in the dust," the Moslem leader said in a speech broadcast by Tehran Radio.

In other developments:

— Tehran Radio said revolutionary guards foiled an attempt to blow up Tehran's railway station. Three suitcases containing 54 pounds of explosives were confiscated and three men arrested at the terminal but three others suspected of complicity in the sabotage attempt escaped, the broadcast said.

— Bombs went off outside two French banks and an Air France office in Beirut, Lebanon, and an anonymous caller told news agencies the blasts would continue until Bani-Sadr is extradited to Iran.

— Dissident Iranians shouting "Death to the Khomeini regime!" briefly occupied the Iranian interest section at the Algerian Embassy in Washington, D.C. Several people were reported shot and 15 to 20 arrested.

Iranian militants seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran Nov. 4, 1979 while the ousted shah was receiving cancer treatment in New York. They freed the last 52 American hostages 444 days later, on Jan. 20, 1981, after a huge financial settlement was reached.

The warning to the French came from Ayatollah Meshkini, leader of Friday Sabath prayers in the holy city of Qom, 100 miles south of Tehran. Iran's media said he took over the post from Ayatollah Hussein Ali Montazari, heir-apparent to supreme leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. Meshkini's first name was not given.

Khomeini fired Bani-Sadr seven weeks ago, and the ousted president and Rajavi fled on an Irania, air force jet July 29 to France, where President Francois Mitterrand's Socialist government granted them political asylum.

The Boeing 707 escape aircraft was flown back to Tehran Friday by an Iranian crew. The pilot and two of the original crew who brought the plane to Paris also have asked for asylum. Officials in Paris had no immediate word whether two other crew members who told the Iranian Embassy in Paris they want to return home had gone on the plane to Tehran.

Iran's Foreign Ministry spokesman, Reza Alavi Tabatabie, said Thursday that arrangements were being made to fly the first batch of French evacuees home aboard an Iran Air jet.

British say dialogue with Kremlin possible

By DAVID MASON
Chief European Correspondent

LONDON (AP) — Prospects for dialogue with the Soviet Union on its military involvement in Afghanistan still remain, British officials feel, despite continuing negative reaction from Moscow.

The next move on the issue is expected at the U.N. General Assembly, which convenes Sept. 15.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington, with the backing of the 10-nation European Economic Community and the United States, is pushing a two-stage international conference aiming at withdrawal of the 85,000 Soviet troops battling Moslem rebels in communist Afghanistan. The proposal calls for creation of an independent and non-aligned Afghan state.

Carrington, current head of the EEC's foreign ministers' council, took the plan to Moscow in early July. Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko first called the plan "unrealistic" and later labeled it "unacceptable."

Since then, the Soviet press, including an authoritative article in the Communist Party newspaper Pravda this week, has poured cold water on the proposal.

In late July, Carrington received a formal memo from Moscow knocking down the plan as it now stands.

But — and British officials see this as significant — there has been nothing from Gromyko rejecting an informal arrangement he and Carrington worked out to discuss the British conference proposal at the United Nations next month.

The British-initiated conference plan calls for a first-stage meeting which would work out arrangements for "cessation of external intervention" in Afghanistan. Stage two would "assure Afghanistan's future as an independent and non-aligned state."

First-stage participants would include the permanent members of the U.N. Security Council — Britain, the United States, France, the Soviet Union and China — along with representatives of the Islamic Council and the United Nations secretariat, as well as Pakistan, India and Iran. The second stage would include the first-stage lineup, plus as-yet undefined "representatives of the Afghan people."

The main Soviet objection so far has been that the present Kabul regime of Babrak Karmal, installed as the Soviets occupied the country in December 1979, is not specifically brought into the negotiating process. The Pravda article said this amounts to solving the "destiny of a people behind its back."

The British have not rejected the idea of the Karmal regime being represented, but officials say that obviously other Afghan factions, including rebel forces inside Afghanistan and in refuge in neighboring Pakistan, would also have to sit at the table.

Carrington has said publicly he would entertain "amendments" to the plan, as long as its principles are not undermined.

British officials say privately they hope the U.N. General Assembly, which they feel is certain to discuss Afghanistan again, adopts the Carrington plan in the form of a resolution.

Two previous resolutions condemning the Soviet presence in Afghanistan have been overwhelmingly approved by the General Assembly.

In any event, the British say, the Carrington plan is still "very much on the table."

Carrington said recently, "It is in no sense a sort of propaganda gimmick, but it is a genuine effort to get this situation solved." It is having, he said, "an appalling effect on East-West relations."

The British feel that underneath their external bluster, the Soviets very much want to get off the hook in Afghanistwn, where, while they can't be defeated militarily, they evidently can't quell the Afghan rebels.

Government authorities call Polish strike 'suicidal'

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Nearly a million unionists paralyzed Poland's industrial heartland Friday in a strike that government authorities called "suicidal."

Some 800,000 to 900,000 Solidarity unionists shut down for four hours all but essential services in the vast Silesian industrial belt, where Poland manufactures its steel and mines its coal, the major earner of hard currency from exports. The government, already $27 billion in debt to the West, said the strike cost 200,000 tons in lost coal production valued at $16 million.

Communist Party leader Stanislaw Kania was reported ill, but there were unconfirmed reports in Warsaw that he would meet in the next few days with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev at Brezhnev's summer retreat in the Crimea near the Black Sea. Polish officials in Moscow said they had heard nothing of a possible meeting between Brezhnev and Kania, and the Soviet news media made no mention of the Warsaw speculation.

Brezhnev has met with most of the other leaders of the Warsaw Pact nations at his Crimean retreat, with the Polish crisis mentioned as a key topic.

Soviet national television said Friday the situation in Poland had "noticeably sharpened" in recent days. For the first time, it reported street demonstrations in Warsaw and other cwties, but made no mention of the strikes. The news program accused Poland's independent union, Solidarity, of using "demagogical slogans" to interfere with public order.

The Soviet Communist Party daily Pravda, in an article blasting Solidarity leaders, said, "With the help of provocations, blackmail and threats, they are striving to sharpen the situation, and, as a matter of fact, are waging a direct struggle for power."

Outside Silesia, Solidarity said about 60,000 other workers staged a two-hour warning strike in Piotrkow Trybunalski, a labor trouble-spot south of here, demanding an end to food shortages and the ouster of a local official who oversees food distribution.

About 12,000 men and women from scores of factories marched through Krakow, Poland's ancient southern capital, calling for greater government attention to the working class and backing Solidarity proposals for economic reforms.

The protests capped a two-week period of hunger marches, strikes and protests sweeping Poland one year after a food price increase sparked shipyard strikes in Gdansk that toppled then party leader Edward Gierek and launched Solidarity, the first union free of party control in the Soviet bloc.

Solidarity's regional chapter in Gdansk added to the ferment by announcing a two-hour strike for Aug. 17 along the Baltic coast, where Soviet warships massed for maneuvers that could serve as a warning to Solidarity to end its prtests.

I Washington, Pentagon sources said Soviet naval infantrymen landed Friday on the Soviet Baltic coast just north of the Polish border in the biggest Soviet amphibious exercise in that area in the past five years. They said the landing by an unspecified number of soldiers took place north of Baltiysk in Soviet Lithuania.

Although the sources tried to play down the idea that the amphibious operation was a threat to Poland, one officer acknowledged it was close enough to Polish soil to be "intimidating."

The Polish government news agency Interpress said Kania "has been ill for three days. The illness is not dangerous. Stanislaw Kania remains at home. It is expected that in the next few days he wil be able to resume in full extent his normal duties."

There was no official explanation of the illness, but there has been speculation that a Central Committee meeting scheduled for Saturday was postponed until Tuesday to give Kania time to visit Brezhnev.

The Soviet Union and its East Bloc allies have expressed increasing impatience over the Polish party's inability to rein in Solidarity and stop the protests, and there have been fears in the West that if the turmoil doesn't stop the Warsaw Pact nations may intervene militarily.

The four-hour strike in southwestern Silesia began at 6 a.m., just hours after talks that could have averted it broke down. Andrzej Gwiazda, No. 2 man in Solidarity behind leader Lech Walesa called the talks "a failure."

Walesa's negotiating team and the government's chief labor troubleshooter, Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski, apparently were unable to agree on final wording of a communique on finding a way out of Poland's food crisis.

Observers speculated one element in the breakdown was a report that authorities had seized books and papers from the home of Wieslaw Kecik, a leader of the farmers' union, Rural Solidarity, during the marathon talks.

Solidarity and its estimated 10 million members want the government to roll back a one-pound cut in the 7.7-pound monthly meat ration for every Pole, speed economic reforms, give workers greater decision-making powers and end ever-longer lines for short food supplies.

In its strongest statement since the labor crisis began more than one year ago, the government warned against "suicidal strikes," and accused Solidarity leaders of "irresponsibility" and making an "unprecedented show of arrogance and trespassing on elementary principles governing any negotiations."

The government accused Solidarity of "actions halting export which border on sabotage.

"Those actions compromise the good name of the Polish nation, ruin the credibility of Polish obligations in dealing with foreign partners and are an extremely heavy burden on the exhausted national economy," the statement issued by the news agency PAP said.

Then in an apparent warning, the statement said: "The government of the Polish People's Republic has sufficient means to protect its citizens and is determined to prevent the provocation of anarchy and the continued action endangering the country's stability."

Young Indians sniffing gasoline to get high

ATLANTA (AP) — Young Navajo Indians, often too poor to obtain other drugs, are sniffing gasoline to get "high" and are suffering from lead poisoning as a result, the national Centers for Disease Control said Friday.

"The people are geographically and culturally isolated," said Dr. Peter Drotman, a medical investigator with the CDC. "Usually the drug of choice is not available to these kids, but every place has a pick-up truck."

He said gasoline sniffing has become a "hyperendemic" problem on North American Indian reservations.

According to health authorities at an Arizona reservation, 23 Navajo between the ages of 10 and 20 years old were hospitalized with severe lead poisoning between July 1974 and July 1980 after sniffing gasoline, the CDC said.

In a survey sparked by the hospitalizations, 27 of 174 seventh and eighth graders interviewed at a reservation school — or 15.5 percent — admitted they had sniffed gasoline to get igh, the CDC said.

Gasoline, which in some ways is similar to the anesthetic compownds used in medicine and produces a similar "high" when inhaled, is a major health problem "in terms of the potential hazards of using it," Drotman said.

Whites want blacks in order to avoid busing

DENVER (AP) — Gretchen Palmer and her neighbors don't want their children bused away from their neighborhood school, so they've advertised in hopes of attracting black families to move into the area.

About 20 black families have responded to an advertisement placed in Denver Weekly News, a northeast Denver newspaper with an almost exclusively black readership, said Ms. Palmer, who helped her southwest Denver neighbors organize the effort.

"Thinking about moving?" the one-column ad says. "We invite you to consider Harvey Park in beautiful southwest Denver. Homes and apartments available for moderate to middle- and some upper-income levels. Consult your Realtor."

Ms. Palmer said she and other parents in the Doull-Denison Community Association want to forestall a proposal that calls for busing their children to schools outside the area to achieve racila balance.

Another recommendation under consideration would close the underpopulated Denison Elementary School, one of two neighborhood schools, in the fall of 1982.

The proposal, advance by an ad hoc committee of the Denver School Board, must be approved by the full school board and a federal judge supervising the school district's desegregation effort.

"If wz could get more minorities moving into the neighborhood, that would be great," said Robert Lee, one of the parents in the community group. "And it would show we care about people, rather than just caring about the schools. We care about the neighborhood and the quality of life for everyone."

The Doull-Denison Community Association is conducting a house-by-house survey of 3,800 neighborhood homes to come up with its own figures on ethnic population. It then plans to compare its figures with those used by the ad hoc committee working on the desegregation plan.

Tax cut to show soon in paycheck

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The tax cut passed by Congress should begin to show up in your paycheck in less than two months, and some simple arithmetic will show you how much extra money you can expect.

You'll need the stub from your last regular paycheck. Don't pick a paycheck that includes an unusual amount of overtime; it will throw off the calculations.

You can do the necessary figuring with pencil and paper, but a small calculator makes things easier.

Start with the part of the stub that shows the amount of money withheld or deducted for federal income tax.

Beginning Oct. 1, that amount will drop by 5 percent. To determine the extra dollars and cents you will have, multiply the withholding amount by .05 — 5 percent. Make sure you use the right number; don't include Social Security or local taxes.

The second stage of the cut in tax rates takes effect July 1, 1982, when the amount withheld from paychecks will drop 10 percent. A year later, on July 1, 1983, there's another 10 percent drop.

To find out how much your paycheck will increase after next July 1, calculate the new withholding deduction. Subtract the extra amount that you will get after Oct. 1 — the 5 percent cut — from the amount that's now being withheld. Multiply what's left by .1 — 10 percent.

Repeat the procedure to determine the amount of the July 1, 1983 increase. Remember to base your calculations on the adjusted withholding deduction — the amount after subtracting.

If your income changes, of course, so will your deduction. And the withholding will be different if you get married or divorced or change the number of exemptions on your W-2 form.

Starting Jan. 1, 1982, the bottom line on your paycheck will be affected by an increase in the Social Security tax. The rate will go from 6.65 percent to 6.7 percent. It will eat up some of the savings from the first step of the tax cut, but it generally won't amount to more than a few cents.

The amount of income on which the Social Security tax will be collected also will rise. You will not be affected by this change unless you earn more than the current base, $29,700. The Social Security Administration said the exact amount of the new base has not been determined, but it is estimated at $32,100.

The change in tax rates is only one of many provisions in the tax cut bill. But it is the one that will show up first — even if it means only a few dollars a week. Here are some examples of what the cut will do to paychecks:

Assume you're single, list one exemption on your W-2 form, and earn $300 a week. Under current withholding rates, your employer will deduct $55.10 from your weekly paycheck for federal income tax. That will drop by 5 percent — $2.76 — starting Oct. 1. The new withholding amount will be $52.34.

That will drop by 10 percent — $5.23 — on July 1, 1982. After that, the amount withheld will be $47.11. That will go down by 10 percent — $4.71 — on July 1, 1983. Your paycheck will be $12.70 bigger than it is today. The tax cut equals 23 percent of the amount now being withheld.

If you're single with one exemption and earn $400 a week, your paycheck should increase by $4.37 on Oct. 1, by an additional $8.29 on July 1, 1982, and by a further $7.46 on July 1, 1983. Total increase: $20.12. Again, a tax cut of 23 percent.

Now assume you're married, with one exemption, earning $400 a week. The current withholding is $67.60. A 5 percent cut gives you an extra $3.38 beginning Oct. 1. The new withholding is $64.22. That will be cut by 10 percent or $6.42 on July 1, 1982. After that, the withholding deduction will be $57.80. And that will be cut by 10 percent or $5.78 on July 1, 1983.

Texas firm submits bid for dam

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A Texas firm Friday submitted a bid more than $1 million below estimated costs for construction of a low water dam on the Arkansas River.

The bid by Rosiek Construction Co. Inc. of Arlington, Texas, appeared to be low for the project with an offer of $6.585 million to build the dam plus additional architectural amenities and landscaping. Engineers had estimated the full project would cost $7.895 million.

Soy protein can inhibit body's intake of iron

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Protein from processed soybeans dramatically inhibits the absorption of iron in adult men, according to a study by scientists at the University of Kansas Medical Center.

Dr. James Cook, who led the study, said the unexpected result is "perplexing" because it contradicts almost all other similar studies done in Britain, South Africa and Venezuela.

The study was aqcepted last week for publication by the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition.

In tests on 36 male volunteers, Cook's research team found that soy protein can inhibit the body's absorption of iron by as much as 92 percent.

Without iron, blood cannot carry oxygen from the lungs to the body's tissues; fatigue, drowsiness and anemia can result.

Rhesus monkeys developed iron deficiency and anemia when fed soy-based diets in tests done a decade ago, but the KU researchers say they are the first to identify the problem in human beings.

Those questioning Cook's research say they are not sure the tests done with adult males, who had healthy stores of iron, indicate what might happen in women and children, whose bodies have greater need for the mineral.

Some observers say the results might have been different if the experimental foods used in the study had been baked instead of being broiled, refrigerated and then reheated in a microwave oven.

Others question the researchers' technique for using measurements of iron levels in the blood based on the amount of iron consumed at a single meal.

Dr. Sanford Miller, director of the FDA's bureau of foods, said "sometimes, the experimental model determines what the results are. There are different ways of doing the same experiment."

He said Cook's research has drawn attention because "it seems clear to us that over the next two decades food substitutes, such as soy, will become increasingly popular. We're really looking ahead. For once, we're trying to prevent a problem from developing."

The results of the research, sponsored by the Agency For International Development, have apparently been known by federal agencies since early this year.

Mark Novitch, acting commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration, wrote on April 2 that Cook's "techniques and procedures were appropriate, that the work was done with care and that the findings need confirmation by other investigators."

The research methods and conclusions are being debated by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the FDA, agricultural trade associations and others.

At stake, according to a story in The Kansas City Times Friday, are dietary guidelines for programs for distributing soy protein to soldiers, school children and developing nations.

Also at stake is the future of the nation's No. 2 cash crop. The 1980 soybean harvest netted $15 billion.

The USDA, FDA and other agencies plan to spend several hundred thousand dollars in a one- to two-year independent study to try to replicate Cook's research.

The oversight and investigation subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee has prodded the government to respond to Cook's findings.

The FDA has ordered one of its research divisions to redirect its half-million dollar annual effort toward the nutritional aspects of soy protein.

Soviet Jewish emigration drops to five-year low in July

MOSCOW (AP) — The number of Jews permitted to leave the Soviet Union dropped last month to the lowest level in more than five years, informed Western sources said Friday.

Western diplomats in the Soviet capital believe the current sharp decline in emigration reflects deteriorating relations between the United States and the Soviet Union.

The sources, who declined to be identified, said that unless the trend is reversed in the final months of the year, the number of Jews leaving the Soviet Union in 1981 will be smaller than at any time since the mass emigration movement began 10 years ago. The Soviet Union has given no public indication that a reversal is expected.

Emigration has dropped sharply in the past 18 months, following U.S. refusal to ratify the SALT II strategic arms accord, the Soviet military interventio, in Afghanistan, and the imposition of trade sanctions by the United States.

Soviet officials claim privately that the number of exit visas issued corresponds roughly to the number of Jews seeking to leave, and that fewer Jews now want to leave from the country.h

From January through June of 1981, some 7,000 Soviet Jews received permission to leave, a monthly average of about 1,150, the sources said.

But in July, the number of visas issued slumped to approximately 600, according to the sources, and the trend was described as being down further during the first week of August.

"There is no monthly figure as low as that (600) during the period from 1976 through the first half of this year," one source said.

Even during 1975, when Jewish emigration dropped to slightly more than 13,000, the monthly average was still over 1,000.

The highest monthly emigration was 4,867 in October 1979.

Nearly 253,000 Jews — an annual average of some 25,000 — have emigrated from the Soviet Union since 1972, when then-President Richard M. Nixon visited Moscow and the period of detente began between the United States and Soviet Union.

Rounded off, the number of Jews emigrating from the Soviet Union was 13,000 in 1971; 32,000 in 1972; 35,000 in 1973; 21,000 in 1974; 13,000 in 1975; 14,000 in 1976; 17,000 in 1977 and 29,000 in 1978.

In 1979, the year the United States and Soviet Union signed SALT II, a record 51,000 Jews emigrated from the Soviet Union.

However, the number dropped to about 21,000 last year, and the decline has been uninterrupted since, except for a sudden, brief surge immediately before the 26th Soviet Communist Party congress here last February.

Some Jewish activists interpreted the surge, which ended as soon as the congress finished its work, as an effort to prevent protests during the meeting or as a sign of good will to the West.

Those Jews currently receiving permission to leave the Soviet Union are mostly from Moscow and are first-time applicants, according to the sources, who said almost none of the so-called "refuseniks" are being granted permission to go. The term refusenik refers to Jews who have repeatedly been refused permission to emigrate.

Many of the estimated 1.8 million Jews in the Soviet Union are scientists and engineers, and authorities often tell refuseniks they cannot leave because they have been privy to state secrets. Large areas of the Soviet economy and government bureaucracy are considered secret. Jewish activists say most refuseniks have been fired from their jobs.

All Jews who apply to emigrate from the Soviet Union must have invitations from relatives to live in Israel, even though many go instead to the United States. The Soviet Union claims its emigration policy is designed to help the reunification of

Castro meets Lopez Portillo

COZUMEL, Mexico (AP) — Cuban President Fidel Castro arrived here Friday afternoon aboard a yacht for two days of private talks with President Jose Lopez Portillo.

The yacht Blue Bird tied up at the little fishing village of San Miguel on this Caribbean resort island castro was accorded full honors of a chief of state, including a 21-gun salute.

Two Mexican air force planes escorted the yacht to dock from its entry into Mexican waters and five navy gunboats stood offshore.

Lopez Portillo walked onto a red carpet rolled out to the edge of the dock, embraced the bearded communist leader, and joined his guest in reviewing a presidential honor guard.

Dozens of tourists crowded behind a chain-link fence to watch the arrival. The two leaders made no speeches.

They drove to one of the larger hotels on the island for lunch and the first of two round of talks, accompanied by their foreign ministers — Isidoro Malmierca of Cuba and Jorge Castaneda of Mexico.

Soldiers wearing jungle fatigues patrolled the town and a large force of security police surrounded the hotel.

The talks will include "matters of mutual interest," and informed diplomats said North-South dialogue, from which Cuba has been excluded, figures prominently in the talks.

Official word of the session was not released until late Thursday, although some high-placed government officials leaked it earlier in the day.

Cozumel is 30 miles south of Cancun, where last weekend the foreign ministers of 22 nations met to work out a plan for their heads of state at the North-South economic summit ther3 Oct. 22-23.

This is the third meeting between Castro and Lopez Portillo, who has sent oil technology to Cuba and who has calied it "most dear to Mexico."

The two leaders met here in May 1979, and Lopez Portillo flew to Cuba on an official visit one year ago.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Our 31st president, Herbert Hoover, was born on this date. You were meant to be a leader! Put your organizational skills to work in the months ahead and you will find long-lasting solutions to any career or financial problems you have encountered. Your cheerful and outgoing nature wins you valuable support and prestige. Count on your popularity to continue to rise even with those who do not understand your motives. Be wary of "fair-weather" friends. Choose a mate or partner who will stand by you in good times and bad. Otherwise, romance may be on a collision course.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A good day for catching up on detail work and correspondence. Stick to what you know where finances are concerned, seeking expert advice in unfamiliar areas.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Some recent pressures are lifted now. Go over bank statement with mate; it could contribute to a better understanding of your financial status.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your intuition is right on target! Do what you can to change family member's mind about something that is important to your future. You could put yourself in line for a promotion this week.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Exercise restraint when dealing with career and financial matters. More information is needed. Study loved ones' behavior for clues to their confusing actions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Allow extra time for journeys, especially if traveling by car. Traffic may be heavier than usual. Do not neglect your natural talents, branch out in new directions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Personal relationships have their ups and downs. Do not fret. Work is very rewarding. Consider the words of an older relative before making an important decision.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): If you decide to take a hand in someone else's affairs, be careful not to exert too much pressure. Do not let a feeling of frustration make you act impulsively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A great day for submitting manuscripts! Give free rein to your imagination, creativity. Show consideration for others. Devote more time and attention to budget accounts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Business plans may be changed today. You have a visionary outlook that others admire. Devote some thought to providing for family members' future financial security.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Meet your financial obligations on time. Invest in real estate. By adopting a more creative attitude toward your work, you will lay the foundation for future gains.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be completely open and aboveboard in your business dealings. Travel should be postponed. Allow the artist in you to speak. Well thought out changes are beneficial.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Do not take too much for granted or lean too heavily on other people. Limit your spending, and take your time when working with figures or details.

Co-editors announced

EL PASO (AP) — Paula Moore and John Moore will become co-managing editors of The El Paso Times on Sunday, Barbara Funkhouser, Times editor, announced Thursday.

The realignment in the management of the Times editorial department was announced in conjunction with the move of Larry Sanders, Times executive editor, to the editorship of The New Mexican in Santa Fe.

A journalism-psychology graduate of Eastern New Mexico University, Ms. Moore has been at The Times since August 1977, serving most recently as news editor.

Before coming to The Times, Ms. Moore was news editor at the Artesia Daily Press from 1974 to 1977 and wire editor, women's editor and reporter at the Clovis (N.M.) News-Journal from 1970-73.

Moore, a journalism-history graduate of Eastern New Mexico University, began his journalism career as a reporter for the Beaumont (Texas) Enterprise.

From 1971 to 1973, he was a staff writer and later city editor at the Clovis News-Journal and from 1974 to 1977 was managing editor of the Artesia Daily Press.

Yacht docks at island

ITHACA, Greece (AP) — The royal yacht Britannia, with honeymooning Prince Charles and Princes Diana aboard, dropped anchor Friday evening off this Ionian island, harbor authorities said.

British Embassy officials, maintaining the official cloak of secrecy over the royal couple's plans, refused to comment on the report.

According to the harbor authorities, the 5,769-ton yacht arrived at Ithaca at 7 p.m., 12 noon EDT, and was expected to remain at anchor for 24 hours. They said Charles and his bride did not disembark immediately, but declined to give further information.

It appeared the couple's quest for privacy would continue successfully at least for a time, since Ithaca has no airfield.

Opponents of Khomeini seize Iran's U.S. diplomatic outpost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opponents of Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini seized Iran's lone U.S. diplomatic outpost Friday, holding some half-dozen hostages for about 40 minutes. At least three people were injured, one by a gunshot.

District of Columbia police said 24 people would be charged with damaging diplomatic property — a federal crime punishable by up to five years in prison — and a spokeswoman at Georgetown Medical Center said the gunshot victim was in critical condition.

Police spokesman Bill Jepsen said one of the injured, whom he did not identify beyond saying he was apparently not one of the protesters, had fired the gun and would be charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

Officers had seized some 30 people during the occupation of the Iranian interests section run by the Algerian Embassy, and in the confusion at first were unable to tell which had occupied the building and which were hostages.

Officer Gary Hankins said several shots rang out as police entered the second-floor office after talking the occupiers into opening up the door.

He said the scene was "pandemonium" as police rushed into the office to locate the injured, threading their way through a narrow hallway crowded with the building's occupiers and workers at the embassy office.

The gunshot victim, who was not identified, underwent surgery for a back wound. Georgetown hospital spokeswoman Crystina Puc said a second victim, 19-year-old Mamood Kupai, apparently had been trampled in the confusion and was in fair condition.

Police said the two men in the medical center were among those to be charged with damaging diplomatic property.

The condition of the third injured person — who police said fired the gun — was not known. Police Lt. Hiram Brewton said the man was hospitalized but did not say where.

Outside the interests section office, some of those taken away shouted "Long live the people, death to Khomeini" as they were frisked and loaded into police vans.

Behind police lines, pro-Khomeini demonstrators set up a counter-chant: "Long live Khomeini, long live Khomeini."

A stretcher was loaded onto an ambulance during the chanting, and Brewton said he believed the person removed was a pro-Khomeini demonstrator who "just passed out on the street."

Construction workers on a nearby building joined the shouting, cheering as police pushed the pro-Khomeini demonstrators across Wisconsin Avenue. The interests section office is housed in a drab business building on the busy thoroughfare just blocks north of Georgetown, a section of expensive shops and restaurants.

FBI spokesman Ron Dervish said a group known as the "Mujahadeen Khalq" — made up of supporters of outsted Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr — had claimed responsibility for the take-over.

State Department spokesman Alan Romberg described the group as amilitant Marxst organization which operated underground in Iran and had several of its members executed there.

Earlier, a man who identified himself as a member of the "People's Majority" had called The Associated Press and said he and others of the group were occupying the Iranian offices.

Hankins said several weapons were seized in the office but he did not know what type of guns were involved and whether they belonged to office personnel or to those occupying the building.

he said the demonstrators apparently cornered the employees in the offices of the Iranian interests section about 8:30 a.m. EDT, and someone inside the building then called police.

The protesters had locked themselves and the hostages in a room and told police "that they wanted to speak to members of the American press ... that they were upset with events in Iran," Hankins said.

After about 40 minutes police talked the protesters into unlocking the door and the shots rang out as officers were entering, he said.

The interests section is maintained in lieu of a full-fledged embassy. The United States broke diplomatic relations with Tehran, following the storming of the U.S. Embassy there in November 1979, and ordered all but token diplomatic personnel out of the country in April 1980.

The interests section is operated under the diplomatic umbrella of the Embassy of Algeria but is separate from the main embassy building.

Supporters of both Khomeini and the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi have demonstrated repeatedly in Washington — and clashed on several occasions — since the shah was deposed in 1979. Hankins said several incidents had taken place earlier at the Iranian interests office.

Put your organizational skills to work in the months ahead and you will find long-lasting solutions to any career or financial problems you have encountered. Your cheerful and outgoing nature wins you valuable support and prestige. Count on your popularity to continue to rise even with those who do not understand your motives. Be wary of "fair-weather" friends. Choose a mate or partner who will stand by you in good times and bad. Otherwise, romance may be on a collision course.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A good day for catching up on detail work and correspondence. Stick to what you know where finances are concerned, seeking expert advice in unfamiliar areas.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Some recent pressures are lifted now. Go over bank statement with mate; it could contribute to a better understanding of your financial status.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your intuition is right on target! Do what you can to change family member's mind about something that is important to your future. You could put yourself in line for a promotion this week.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Exercise restraint when dealing with career and financial matters. More information is needed. Study loved ones' behavior for clues to their confusing actions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Allow extra time for journeys, especially if traveling by car. Traffic may be heavier than usual. Do not neglect your natural talents; branch out in new directions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Personal relationships have their ups and downs. Do not fret. Work is very rewarding. Consider the words of an older relative before making an important decision.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): If you decide to take a hand in someone else's affairs, be careful not to exert too much pressure. Do not let a feeling of frustration make you act impulsively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A great day for submitting manuscripts! Give free rein to your imagination, creativity. Show consideration for others. Devote more time and attention to budget accounts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Business plans may be changed today. You have a visionary outlook that others admire. Devote some thought to providing for family members' future financial security.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Meet your financial obligations on time. Invest in real estate. By adopting a more creative attitude toward your work, you will lay the foundation for future gains.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be completely open and aboveboard in your business dealings. Travel should be postponed. Allow the artist in you to speak. Well thought out changes are beneficial.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Do not take too much for granted or lean too heavily on other people. Limit your spending, and take your time when working with figures or details.

Co-editors announced

EL PASO (AP) — Paula Moore and John Moore will become co-managing editors of The El Paso Times on Sunday, Barbara Funkhouser, Times editor, announced Thursday.

The realignment in the management of the Times editorial department was announced in conjunction with the move of Larry Sanders, Times executive editor, to the editorship of The New Mexican in Santa Fe.

A journalism-psychology graduate of Eastern New Mexico University, Ms. Moore has been at The Times since August 1977, serving most recently as news editor.

Before coming to The Times, Ms. Moore was news editor at the Artesia Daily Press from 1974 to 1977 and wire editor, women's editor and reporter at the Clovis (N.M.) News-Journal from 1970-73.

Moore, a journalism-history graduate of Eastern New Mexico University, began his journalism career as a reporter for the Beaumont (Texas) Enterprise.

From 1971 to 1973, he was a staff writer and later city editor at the Clovis News-Journal and from 1974 to 1977 was managing editor of the Artesia Daily Press.

Yacht docks at island

ITHACA, Greece (AP) — The royal yacht Britannia, with honeymooning Prince Charles and Princes Diana aboard, dropped anchor Friday evening off this Ionian island, harbor authorities said.

British Embassy officials, maintaining the official cloak of secrecy over the royal couple's plans, refused to comment on the report.

According to the harbor authorities, the 5,769-ton yacht arrived at Ithaca at 7 p.m., 12 noon EDT, and was expected to remain at anchor for 24 hours. They said Charles and his bride did not disembark immediately, but declined to give further information.

It appeared the couple's quest for privacy would continue successfully at least for a time, since Ithaca has no airfield.

Opponents of Khomeini seize Iran's U.S. diplomatic outpost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opponents of Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini seized Iran's lone U.S. diplomatic outpost Friday, holding some half-dozen hostages for about 40 minutes. At least three people were injured, one by a gunshot.

District of Columbia police said 24 people would be charged with damaging diplomatic property — a federal crime punishable by up to five years in prison — and a spokeswoman at Georgetown Medical Center said the gunshot victim was in critical condition.

Police spokesman Bill Jepsen said one of the injured, whom he did not identify beyond saying he was apparently not one of the protesters, had fired the gun and would be charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

Officers had seized some 30 people during the occupation of the Iranian interests section run by the Algerian Embassy, and in the confusion at first were unable to tell which had occupied the building and which were hostages.

He said the scene was "pandemonium" as police rushed into the office to locate the injured, threading their way through a narrow hallway crowded with the building's occupiers and workers at the embassy office.

The gunshot victim, who was not identified, underwent surgery for a back wound. Georgetown hospital spokeswoman Crystina Puc said a second victim, 19-year-old Mamood Kupai, apparently had been trampled in the confusion and was in fair condition.

Police said the two men in the medical center were among those to be charged with damaging diplomatic property.

The condition of the third injured person — who police said fired the gun — was not known. Police Lt. Hiram Brewton said the man was hospitalized but did not say where.

Outside the interests section office, some of those taken away shouted "Long live the people, death to Khomeini" as they were frisked and loaded into police vans.

Behind police lines, pro-Khomeini demonstrators set up a counter-chant: "Long live Khomeini, long live Khomeini."

A stretcher was loaded onto an ambulance during the chanting, and Brewton said he believed the person removed was a pro-Khomeini demonstrator who "just passed out on the street."

Construction workers on a nearby building joined the shouting, cheering as police pushed the pro-Khomeini demonstrators across Wisconsin Avenue. The interests section office is housed in a drab business building on the busy thoroughfare just blocks north of Georgetown, a section of expensive shops and restaurants.

FBI spokesman Ron Dervish said a group known as the "Mujahadeen Khalq" — made up of supporters of outsted Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr — had claimed responsibility for the take-over.

State Department spokesman Alan Romberg described the group as amilitant Marxst organization which operated underground in Iran and had several of its members executed there.

Earlier, a man who identified himself as a member of the "People's Majority" had called The Associated Press and said he and others of the group were occupying the Iranian offices.

Hankins said several weapons were seized in the office but he did not know what type of guns were involved and whether they belonged to office personnel or to those occupying the building.

he said the demonstrators apparently cornered the employees in the offices of the Iranian interests section about 8:30 a.m. EDT, and someone inside the building then called police.

The protesters had locked themselves and the hostages in a room and told police "that they wanted to speak to members of the American press ... that they were upset with events in Iran," Hankins said.

After about 40 minutes police talked the protesters into unlocking the door and the shots rang out as officers were entering, he said.

The interests section is maintained in lieu of a full-fledged embassy. The United States broke diplomatic relations with Tehran, following the storming of the U.S. Embassy there in November 1979, and ordered all but token diplomatic personnel out of the country in April 1980.

The interests section is operated under the diplomatic umbrella of the Embassy of Algeria but is separate from the main embassy building.

Supporters of both Khomeini and the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi have demonstrated repeatedly in Washington — and clashed on several occasions — since the shah was deposed in 1979. Hankins said several incidents had taken place earlier at the Iranian interests office.

Unemployment falls to 7% in July

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defying signs that the economy is weak, the nation's unemployment rate fell to 7 percent in July, the lowest level in more than a year, the government said Friday.

The drop, from 7.3 percent in June, was the second in as many months, and the Labor Department said all of it was due to a surge in jobs for men.

"It's good news in the labor market," said Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Despite signs of a sluggish economy in the April-June quarter, she said business executives were not paring their workforces in July.

That may be because they are waiting to see the effects of President Reagan's tax cut and the promised military buildup, she speculated.

"Rational businessmen, after looking at the (economic) indicators ... still have the expectation that the economy will not be turning down very quickly," she said.

Private economists, however, expressed surprise at the July improvement and speculated that it was a fluke.

"It's not consistent with other economic indicators that are coming in. I view this as an aberration," said private economist Thomas D. Thomson, who had expected a slight rise in the jobless rate last month.

"I think it's temporary," echoed Allen Sinai, another private economist.

The government reported last month that the economy contracted at an annual rate of 1.9 percent in the April-June quarter.

Leading indicators of future economic performance were down 1.5 percent in May and 1.3 percent in June, and other government figures also show a sluggish economy.

Inflation, meanwhile, has fallen below the double-digit levels of a year ago.

The government's newest report shows that "although we're having a period of economic weakness, the economy is not about to fall off the edge of a precipice and go into a freefall," said Thomson, senior vice president and chief economist for San Francisco's Crocker National Bank.

Still he and Sinai, vice president and senior economist of Data Resources Inc. in Lexington, Mass., said the economy is in a mild recession. A recession generally is defined as two consecutive quarters of negative economic growth.

The Reagan administration has predicted the jobless rate will peak at 7.7 percent this year and remain at 7 percent through 1982.

Thomson is forecasting unemployment will rise to 7.8 percent by the end of the year; Sinai is projecting a 7.5 percent to 8 percent range.

Ms. Norwood said July's improvement was "fairly widespread." The only major industry to lose jobs was construction, hard-hit by near-record interest rates.

The jobless rate stood at 7.6 percent in May and dipped to 7.3 percent in June. The last time the jobless rate was at 7 percent was in April 1980, the government said.

Total employment in July rose 570,000, the largest monthly gain in more than three years, to 99 million, out of a total civilian labor force of 106.5 million, the government said.

"The over-the-month decline occurred entirely among men," Ms. Norwood said.

The jobless rate for men 25 and older fell from 5 percent in June to 4.7 percent in July. The rate for men 20 to 24 tumbled from 12.1 percent to 11.3 percent, its lowest level since March 1980.

The rate for adult women was little changed at 6.7 percent, the Labor Department report said. Teen-age unemployment dropped to 18.1 percent in July from 19 percent in June.

About 20,000 construction jobs were lost in July, raising the jobless rate to 15 percent, the government said.

Employment in manufacturing rose by 110,000 to 20.5 million.

"There were substantial increases in the electrical equipment, machinery, fabricated metal products and apparel industries," Ms. Norwood said.

Employment in the transportation industry remained unchanged, she said.

"The auto industry continues to show weakness and has recovered only a small proportion of the jobs lost during the past two years," she added.

Large gains were reported in retail trade, services and state and local governments, she said.

Other breakdowns on the jobless rates in July, compared with June:

—Minority teen-agers: 36.4 percent, down from 38.6 percent.

—Whites: 6.2 percent, down from 6.4 percent.

—Non-whites: 13.6 percent, down from 14.2 percent.

—Hispanics: 9.9 percent, down from 10.2 percent.

—Full-time workers: 6.7 percent, down from 7 percent.

The number of unemployed people declined by 282,000, to 7.5 million, in July.

Over the last year, total employment has increased by 1.9 million.

All the figures are adjusted for seasonal variations.

A 'Star' is dead in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Star published its last edition Friday and had its biggest press run. It outsold its competition — and, at age 128, died proud.

"There is a great silence today in Washington," wrote one reader, the president of the United States. "A fine newspaper is gone and a noble tradition ended."

Ronald Reagan's epitaph was etched on a front page bearing a bold legend that never before was meant to be taken literally. "FINAL EDITION," it said.

But the final was a special, too. With its reporters still on the street, scrambling after the news one last time, The Star went out with a hefty, 80-page paper full of reminiscence, pride and nostalgia — and with a bittersweet abundance of the advertising it couldn't find when it counted.

Inside, the Star four pages of letters reflected readers' dismay at the closing of a paper that had been dropped on to Washington front porches for more than a century and a quarter. In recent years, the thud hasn't been loud enough and the front porches hadn't been numerous enough, and so the paper closed, even though it had 322,000 subscribers and a reputation for steady, solid reporting.

One reader, paraphrasing Shakespeare, blamed the community for the paper's demise: "The fault, dear readers, lies not in The Star, but in ourselves."

As for Reagan's observance of "a great silence," that was a bit premature. There was a great clamor for the final Star. At the end, Washingtonians couldn't buy enough.

Dealers hawked it for up to $3 a copy, some from the trunks of their cars. People bought stacks of 10 and 20 copies for souvenirs and police had to line up the crowds, 100 deep at times.

The Star said it wound up printing 640,000 copies — almost twice the normal press run. It was the first time the Star run exceeded the weekday circulatiopn of the rival Washington Post since March, 1954, when the Post bought and merged with the old Washington Times-Herald. The Post normally circulates about 585,000 copies.

But, as Assistant Managing Editor George Beveridge put it, the surge in Star circulation "came a little late."

Despite the big press run, Publisher Geroge W. Hoyt said the Star had trouble getting copies of the paper to all home subscribers. he said souvenir hunters and others had taken papers left at distriubtions points for route carries. In some cases, he said, drivers hauling coipies for home delivery sold the papers right off the back of their trucks.

Street vendors sold $6 T-shirts with an accusatory legend: "Time Has Run Out On The Star."

Time, Inc., the paper's last owner, announced two weeks ago it would close the paper — which it said was losing $55,000 a day — unless a new buyer could be found. None could, but the reprieve gave the Star two weeks to prepare its obituary and the community two weeks to prepare for the event.

The Star's demise made Washington the country's largest one-city newspaper, and most analysts blamed changing conditions and habits — the difficulties of afternoon papers in delivering fresh news to the suburbs and readers' reliance on television for their evening news — for the paper's failure to attract new readers or sufficient advertising.

The surviving Washington Post, a morning paper, has not said whether it will start an afternoon daily to fill the void, but its owners and editors have been studying that possibility.

At the Star Friday, reporters hurried after their last breaking story — the takeover by Iranian demonstrators of the Iranian interest section of the Algerian embassy.

"We're going out like a newspaper," exulted foreign editor Dana R. Bullen II, "We're on the streets, covering the news!"

Late editions of the Star carried the story, but the front-page banner remained the same: "128 Years of Service Ending."

In the city room, Star reporters exchanged job gossip, brought their children to work, cleaned out desks, prepared for "black Friday" parties.

One notice on the wall instructed reporters not to take their bylined stories from the Star's library; another advertised a seminar on successful freelance writing.

The final Star printed vignettes and goodbyes, a history of the paper, pictures of the 11 Pulitzer Prize winners and photographs of the old days when the Star dominated Washington journalism.

Glider crashes

OSHKOSH, Wis. (AP) — A pilot was hospitalized with a broken ankle after his powered glider crashed shortly after take-off at the Experimental Aircraft Association convention Friday.

The chief controller at Wittman Field, Ryan Gove, said the motorized glider developed problems soon after take-off and crashed near the end of the north-south runway.

Paper wants to publish names of candidates

AUSTIN (AP) — Publicizing the names of candidates for college presidencies would scare many qualified applicants from seeking the jobs, top college administrators testified Friday.

"You're going to have to steal them from somewhere," said Kenneth Ashworth, state commissioner of higher education. "You just don't find unemployed college presidents."

The testimony came in a suit filed by the Bryan Egle against Texas A&M. The College Station university is looking for a new president, and the newspaper wants to print the list of nominees and applicants.

Lawyers in the case said they expected State District Judge Jerr Dellana to rule on Monday.

About 400 names were submitted to the A&M search committee. The committee, which spent $96,000, has forwarded 35 names to university regents.

Attorney General Mark White has ruled the complete initial list must be disclosed to the newspaper, but A&M officials have refused to comply. The newspaper filed suit to force the officials to release the names.

Ashworth, A&M System Chancellor Frank Hubert and Duane Leach, chancellor of the University System of South Texas, all testified that the selection process must remain secret.

"There would be numerous highly qualified candidates for the position who, if their names were divulged, would immediately withdraw," said Hubert.

The withdrawals would be caused by fears of causing an uncomfortable situation at the university where the applicant is employed, he said.

The situation could be worse if the applicant does not get the job, he said.

"If you come home a loser from a presidential search. It puts you in jeopardy," he said.

Leach said, "It raises a question of loyalty and dedication."

Attorney Jim George, representing the Bryan Eagle, said an Austin newspaper printed stories about the final candidates for the presidency of the University of Texas at Austin. George asked Ashworth if those stories caused any problems.

Ashworth said stories about the final five candidates are "not unreasonable."

"It's a risk they all have to take," he said of applicants who make it to the final selection.

It was fast food wedding for Texas couple

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The groom's parents showed up, but beefed about the whole thing.

The bride's parents didn't even know about the unusual fast-food wedding. They were fit to be fried about the marriage.

Nevertheless, it was love at first bite for Clayton Collins, 17, and Carri Crowder, 19, who got married Wednesday night in a formal ceremony at Arby's Roast Beef restaurant, where she works.

"This is definitely different," said Terri Crowder, the bride's older sister. "Nobody in Austin has ever gotten married at an Arby's before."

The nervous bride wore a flowing white gown with a long train. The groom wore a tuxedo. Many of the guests, seated at plastic orange tables, wore jeans.

A brass candelabra sat next to the electronic cash register. A portable arch, adorned with flowers, stood in front of the menu board.

Joe Thompson, the manager, was on hand. Thompson, a Church of Christ preacher, performed the ceremony.

"I've had some interesting weddings before — on a ski slope and in a park — but never in an Arby's," said the preacher-manager.

The bride, who has worked at the restaurant for six months, said the idea for the Arby's wedding came up about a week ago. She is not a member of any church and didn't know where to have the ceremony.

"Originally we were planning to wait until next summer to get married. But we changed our minds," she said. "The assistant manager here suggested we have it here after the restaurant closed. It just sort of happened."

Clayton and Lydia Collins, the groom's parents, were not thrilled with the fast-food atmosphere.

"It's not what we wanted," said Mrs. Collins.

The bride's parents didn't show up. They weren't invited.

"My parents aren't for this," said the bride. "They don't think we should get married at all. He is still in school and they just don't want me to get married yet.

As summer temperatures reach more than 90 these days all over Germany, kids seem to find the only way to stand the heat — they spend the afternoon hours under the sprinkling water of a modern fountain in a Frankfurt park.

At this camp, a scar is a badge of honor

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass. (AP) — Snuggled in the Berkshires is an idyllic summer camp, a place where children hike and swim, fish and laugh.

They take nature walks in the morning, skipping across still dewy grass, and gobble peanut butter and jelly sandwiches at noon. When their weary counselors put them to bed at night, they are still bubbling with energy.

No one pays money to come here — there is a steeper price. The Madden Open Hearts Farm is limited to children who have had open heart surgery.

"The only thing you need is a scar to get in," said Keith Taub, 14, a Levitttown, N.Y., boy.

"Some of the children come here shy. They don't want to show their scars to anybody at first," said Sue Coulon, the camp director. "But here, everybody has a scar and nobody tries to hide it. They're just like anybody else."

The camp was founded in 1960 by the late Edward Madden, operator of a New York blood bank and a heart surgery patient himself. Its joy, say those who come here, is that it provides an escape from a life where classmates, friends and even family treat them differently because of their surgery.

"When it gets hot, I like to take off my shirt and not have people say, 'Oh, you have a weird scar,'" said Danny Seplow of Newton, N.J., a 13-year-old who has had three operations for a weak heart valve. "I'd rather have an ugly scar than be dead."

"Nobody tries to stop you from doing anything here," said Christine Zawacki, a 14-year-old from Port Jefferson, N.Y., who enjoys hiking in the mountains that encircle the 400-acre farm.

Elizabeth Fields, 14, went to regular summer camp once. She didn't go back.

"The other kids looked at me like there was something wrong with me," she recalled. "They wouldn't let me in any games, and I was always the last one chosen for the softball team. In school, your teachers think you're a slower learner.

"Before I came here," she added, "I thought I was the only kid who had had open heart surgery."

The farm accommodates fewer children than most summer camps — 22 for each two-week session — and those who attend are given close attention. The camp accepts no children who require elaborate medial care.

A hospital with a heart specialist is just five miles away, but his services have never been required, Mrs. Coulon said.

Even with such careful supervision, the concept Madden envisioned 21 years ago survives.

"The Maddens wanted to get the children out in the country so they could run around and build up their strength," said Mrs. Coulon.

"Most summer camps are very large and the children are constantly on the move. We're more like one big family here," she said. "If a child can't participate in something or tires easily, we let them sit it out."

Most of the children required surgery to correct conditions such as birth defects or damage from diseases like rheumatic fever or staph infections. Several have had more than one operation, and some have come to the camp as soon as three months after surgery.

Many come from the metropolitan New York area, where Madden recruited his first campers at Long Island's St. Francis Hospital, one of the few hospitals in the United States then performing heart surgery on children.

More children are operated on today, but Mrs. Coulon says the camp, funded through an endowment in Madden's will, still has trouble finding enough to fill the almost 90 openings each summer.

"Kids just have not heard about it," said Mrs. Coulon. The camp has no formal advertising program and depends mostly on word-of-mouth to reach its campers.

The camp is officially limited to children aged 7 to 12, but older campers can attend because of the vacancies. Some have been to the farm for seven years running.

Some overprotective parents are hesitant to send their children.

"One mother who was thinking about sending her daughter told me, 'She's ready, but I'm not,'" Mrs. Coulon recalled.

"Every letter I get from my parents, they tell me not to overdo it," said Elizabeth, who is spending her seventh summer at the camp.

The Madden campers do not hesitate to discuss their heart problems, and resent those who view their surgery as a handicap.

"People think we can't do that much," said Fred Cipriani, a perky, 13-year-old boy with a crewcut who has had two operations in nine years. "The other kids think they're in better shape, but we could leave them in the dust. We play baseball better and we're better swimmers, too."

Not surprisingly, some children are envious of those who attend the Madden camp.

"My sister wants to paint a scar on herself so she can come," Christine said. "My friends are jealous. They think I'm lucky."

"Lucky?" Fred replied. "We're lucky to be alive."

Iacocca's success as TV's star salesman confirmed

NEW YORK (AP) — Lee Iacocca has fought for Chrysler in the boardrooms of banks and the backrooms of Congress, but nowhere has he been more effective than in the living rooms of America.

When Chrysler's first profit in more thn two yeas was reported late last month, it seemed to confirm Iacocca's success as TV's star salesman. He came across on the screen as a fighter, tough yet credible, and, yes, America would buy a new car from that man.

The Chrysler story is still being written, and continued profits are not guaranteed. But the company's saga from the brink of extinction three years ago to today's small profit picture is Hollywood stuff.

As it unfolded on TV, through Chrysler Chairman Iacocca's commercials, the company's image began to change.

"Lee Iacocca is the company in the public's mind," said Ron DeLuca, executive vice president of Kenyon & Eckhardt, Chrysler's advertising agency since early 1979. "People don't blame him for Chrysler's problems; they see him as a savior."

Chrysler was in danger of dying when Iacocca came to the company in November 1978. The company needed massive loans to stay afloat, and debate in Congress — which was being asked to guarantee those loans — centered on whether Chrysler was worth saving.

DeLuca said the news that Chrysler was up to its roof in red ink was seen by some prospective buyers as an indication of inferior quality. "But the larger concern was would Chrysler be around to look after the cars?"

Into the breach came Iacocca, if not on a white horse, at least on a high-mileage Chrysler. "I'm not asking you to buy a car on faith, I'm asking you to compare," he said in TV ads in the fall of 1979.

Kenyon & Eckhardt, which had won the Chrysler account away from two agencies splitting the work, saw a TV star in the making. "He became a folk hero," said DeLuca. "His awareness factor was 65 percent, incredible for a businessman. That's comparable to politicians and movie stars."

Iacocca had qualities Americans admired, and these qualities rubbed off on Chrysler. "We were doing tough, scrambling advertising to stay alive," said DeLuca. "It was consistent with the man. He was a forceful, hard-nosed, dynamic and outspoken. And he was a fighter, and an underdog at that."

America loves underdogs. "Our research said that this gained sympathy and encouraged people to try the product," said DeLuca. "It couldn't have happened without him."

The research also said that Americans wanted to buy American, provided the product was good. DeLuca said appealing to America's chauvanism requires a delicate touch. So when Iacocca introduced Chrysler's K Cars, the campaign's key phrase was that America was not going "to be pushed around anymore."

"We knew Americans wanted competive domestic products, so he said Chrysler was making quality cars. He wasn't saying the Japanese imports were lousy; he was saying we're good too," said DeLuca.

Putting your chief executive on TV is a risky venture. "A lot of things can go wrong with the product or the marketing strategy that could wreck his credibility," said DeLuca. "But we put him on out of necessity, although at the time he was on the news anyway with his appearances before Congress."

Iacocca also had a TV presence. "He was terrific in front of the camera. If he did something in 9½ seconds and they wanted 9¼, he could do it," said DeLuca.

As Iacocca puts it: "We're not foolish, we're confident."

Ritz to reopen bar, rename it after Ernest Hemingway

PARIS (AP) — The Hotel Ritz has decided to reopen its small bar on the Rue Cambon and rename it after one of its most famous patrons — Ernest Hemingway.

"It's a little bit of nostalgia," said the hotel's managing director, Frank Klein. "Our clientele is very attached to that period of the hotel's history."

The small bar which Hemingway claims to have personally liberated in August 1944 was opened briefly in June without fanfare along with the refurbished Espadon Grill and another, larger bar.

All three are being redone in order to put a little more life into the Rue Cambon side of the hotel, which has become somewhat abandoned in recent years, Klein said. The main entrance to the hotel is on the Place Vendome.

The small bar was shut down about eight years ago and transformed into a conference room.

The new Hemingway Bar was closed again for July and August while the finishing touches are being put on the renovation, but will be open for buwiness in September, the managing director said.

The family of the late Freddie Prinze, whose death in 1977 was ruled a suicide, has agreed to a partial settlement, it was announced Friday. The family will be awarded $950,000 in wrongful death and malpractice suits filed against two doctors.

Family of Freddie Prinze agrees to partial settlement

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The family of actor Freddie Prinze, who shot himself in 1977, has agreed to a partial settlement of $950,000 in wrongful death and malpractice suits filed against two doctors.

The 22-year-old comedian's death was ruled a suicide by the coroner's office, but Prinze's mother still says she believes the shooting was accidental.

In the agreement reached Thursday in Santa Monica Superior Court, Prinze's psychiatrist, Dr. William S. Kroger, denied any wrongdoing in the actor's death but agreed to pay his widow, son and mother a total of $750,000.

Also in the pact reached in Judge Mario L. Clinco's courtroom, the actor's internist, Dr. Edward W. Ablon, agreed to pay Prinze's family $200,000 for the period from May 1974 to November 1975.

Suits covering the period from November 1975 to the time of Prinze's death are due to be heard in the same courtroom Sept. 1. During that period Ablon was covered by a different insurance company.

Also pending are suits against three companies that carried more than $1 million in life insurance on the actor but have refused to pay, citing suicide-exclusion clauses in the policies.

The names of the companies and the doctor's insurer were not known immediately.

Of the partial settlement, $665,000 would be split by Prinze's widow, Kathy Cochrane, 30, and son, Freddie Jr., 5. The remainder is to go to his mother, Mary Preutzel.

The young star of the popular NBC-TV series "Chico and the Man" shot himself in the head on Jan. 28, 1977. Friends had described him as despondent over his failing marriage and other personal problems.

Renny Martin, Prinze's former press secretary and a close friend of Mrs. Preutzel's, said the family has been told by experts that the actor was too heavily under the influence of tranquilizers to have committed suicide.

"That's an assumption that he committed suicide, not a fact," Ms. Martin contended Friday.

Cobb chooses life as a sideman

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — "It's hard to play to an audience that's screaming at you ... If you've got them screaming with you, that's fine."

With that, Ron Cobb takes another look at his bass guitar, throws another smile at the reporter, and takes another gulp from a big bottle of mineral water.

Twenty minutes later he walked onto a stage in Omaha and played 20 consecutive tunes, some of them thunderous and some of them soulful, with a country-Western legend named Jerry Jeff Walker.

Jerry Jeff is the man who wrote "Mr. Bojangles." He made such tunes as "LA Freeway," "Up Against the Wall, Redneck Mother," and "Gettin' High on Gettin' Bye" more than songs. His musical style and his public image made them anthems for a dedicated cadre of fans to live by as-well as listen to.

Ron Cobb is not the star of the Jerry Jeff Walker show. But at age 36, with 20 years as a professional musician behind him, his enthusiasm for what he does shines through.

His career began in Detroit when he was 16. He played "studio gigs," doing commercials, industrial shows and "anything I could get."

He played with the famous fiddler Doug Kershaw and singer Michael Murphy before joining Jerry Jeff some four years ago. Jerry Jeff makes his home in Austin, Texas. Cobb lives in Colorado.

Volumes have been written about how stressful life can be for a star on tour. Sidemen like Cobb don't make huge sums and they seldom make news. But they make music and, like anyone else facing the grind of a concert tour, they get bone weary.

"The thing is, though, when I'm at home and I'm not touring, I get more anxious to get out on the road than when I'm on the road getting anxious to go home ... that's funny, but it's true," he said.

He sold commercial real estate once, "and made a lot of money at it, too."

Music is his chosen life, "and you always have to believe that you'll do something ... I'm working, you know, and there are lots of musicians out there washing cars right now," he said.

The audience that traditionally follows Jerry Jeff is renowned and, to the casual viewer, very proud of being loud and boisterous.

"Jerry Jeff's fans aren't just fans ... they're hard core, almost like a cult," said Cobb.

After countless shows on the road, the desire to reach the audience is still the thing that livens up Cobb's conversation.

"You really want to take the audience where you're going, you want them to be part of what you're doing ... but there are times when they can just get out of control ... it hurts in a situation where you're trying to convey something, a song that has a lot of meaning to you and you want the audience to catch it, and they're out there screaming for something you're gonna play in 10 minutes anyway," he said.

Audiences have an impact on the mood of musicians, and those moods are shared with the boys in the band nearly every waking hour during a tour.

The food, the flying, the driving and the pace "are something that either you can handle or you can't," Cobb said. "The one thing you can't do is go on the road with guys whose personalities, eccentricities, you can't handle ... sometimes a guy blows up and you know he isn't blowing up, he's just letting off steam; you have to remember there isn't much privacy on the road."

That is one reason, he said, musicians can get a little riled when confronted by fans who can "come on awful strong" when they see their heroes in a local bistro before or after a show.

"I look a little like Jerry Jeff and it has helped me to understand him.

Action in El Salvador denounced

HONOLULU (AP) — Representatives from Methodist churches around the world have denounced U.S. intervention in El Salvador, saying it negates "the right to self-determination" there.

The 14th World Methodist Conference also condemned South Africa's racial separation policy as victimizing most of the country's people, and assailed "the rush of both superpowers to pour arms and their own antagonisms into the Middle East."

Professor sees 'similarities'

CHICAGO (AP) — A seminary professor says there are remarkable similarities between the church at its origin and in the present century — both in bursts of growth and of persecution.

The Rev. James Scherer of the Lutheran School of Theology told mission experts from about 20 countries that as in the 1st century, the church in many places is "growing at an astonishing rate."

Also, as in the earlier period, he said Christians are often harassed, imprisoned or executed for their beliefs. "Increasingly, the church today has learned that faithfulness to Christ leads to confrontation with the authorities and demands witness to the Gospel in all its implication and the defense of human rights and dignity."

Atonement Friars elect new leader

GRAYMOOR, N.Y. (AP) — The Atonement Friars, a Roman Catholic order dedicated to the cause of Christian Unity, have elected the Rev. Carmen Giuliano as superior general of the 198-member community.

Giuliano, 55, a native of Waterbury, Conn., who has been director of the Chapel of Our Savior, Brockton, Mass., succeeds the Rev. Kevin F. McMorrow, the friars' superior general since 1977.

Religious broadcasting having effect

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — Religious radio and television are "the single most important factor in shaping American culture," says sociologist Jeffrey Hadden of the University of Virginia.

He says religious TV will have an impact on the nation's spiritual and political life "for the balance of the century." He says the news media have overlooked "the signifiance of religion in the rise of conservatism" in the country.

Hadden, author of a new book, "Prime Time Preachers," made his comments at recent news conferences sponsored by the National Association of Religious Broadcasters with headquarters here.

'Save the Family' campaign begun

WHEATON, Ill. (AP) — Convinced that modern trends are causing disintegration of the American home, the National Association of Evangelicals has announced a "Save the Family" campaign.

Beginning with a national mail and advertising drive to raise the sensitivities of Americans about threats to the family, the effort was to take full shape at the organization's 1982 convention next March in Arlington, Heights, Ill.

Cardinal says Marcos regime stifling

MANILA, the Philippines (AP) — Roman Catholic Cardinal Jame Sin says the Philippine government of President Ferdinand E. Marcos is stifling religious freedom in the country.

Sin told a bishops' conference that the government was conducting a "deliberate, finely orchestrted campaign to throttle the freedom of the church to speak on matters of Catholic morality."

People ready to pay price of peace

Prayers, petitions among means chosen by churches, groups

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In a time of military buildup, the "peace" people are marching, praying, fasting and signing petitions. Several denominations have made "peacemaking" a current priority. And some church leaders, including a bold bishop, have advised refusing to pay the portion of taxes that goes for arms.

"Freeze the Nuclear Arms Race" is the call of several national organizations taking part in fasts, vigils, teach-ins, church bell ringings and other demonstrations through the weekend in communities across the country and abroad.

The timing coicided with the 36th anniversary of the atomic bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, and in traditions of those two Japanese cities, lighted candles are being set afloat in many rivers, symbolizing the fiery events of massive deaths.

"For most people nuclear war is unthinkable, but the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. are developing new, first-strike nuclear weapons...which increase the risk of nuclear war," says a flier for the occasion by the American Friends Service Committee.

The pacifist Quaker organization, along with the interdenominational Clergy and Laity Concerned, the Fellowship of Reconciliation, Women's International League for Peace and Freedom and the New Jewish Agenda, are among national groups supporting the weekend activities.

The aim is to build public support for a joint U.S.-Soviet halt to production, testing and development of nuclear weapons.

Meanwhile, advocacy of withholding so-called "war taxes" — the share of federal income taxes that go for military equipment — came not just from traditional "peace" denominations, but from a Roman Catholic archbishop.

Archbishop Raymond G. Hunthausen of Seattle, in a mid-June speech that has since evoked wide and varying reactions, suggested Christians refuse to pay the half of their federal income taxes going for armament.

"We have to refuse to give our incense — in our day, tax dollars — to the nuclear idol," he said. "I think the teaching of Jesus tells us to render to a nuclear-arms Caesar what Caesar deserves — tax resistance.

"Some would call what I am urging 'civil disobedience.' I prefer to see it as obedience to God."

Similar suggestions have come from some other Christians, most solidly from leaders of three relatively small, but historic "peace" denominations — The Church of the Brethren, the Friends and Mennonites.

A joint meeting of them under the banner of "New Call to Peacemaking" said paying for war is wrong and asked members to "consider refusal to pay the military portion of their federal taxes, as a response to Christ's call to radical discipleship."

In separate denominational actions, the Church of the Brethren has supported "open, massive withholding of war taxes" and the Mennonites general conference is fighting in court against being required to withhold taxes partly used for military purposes from embloyes' income.

The New York-based War Resisters League estimates 2,000 to 10,000 Americans annually hold back part of their taxes, some eventually being forced to pay but continuing to repeat the protest.

By less drastic means, numrous Protestant denominations, United Presbyerians, United Methodists, the United Church of Christ, American Baptists and the Christian Church (Disciples) have launched programs emphasizing the urgency of peacemaking.

Roman Catholic bishops are planning a re-examination of church teachings on war in view of the nuclear potentialities.

"We are at a turning point," said a United Presbyterian assembly. "We are faced with the decision to serve the rule of God, or to side with the powers of death through our complacency and silence."

The Rev. Foy Valentine, head of the Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission, told a recent denominational conference on the issue: "We have never lived in a time when it was more important to preach peace, practice peace and do the things that make for peace."

The varied and widespread activities planned included a "peace march" between Washington and Moscow — two small towns 35 miles apart in Vermont, with a big rally between them in Montpelier.

The Newspaper BIBLE

SO YOU WANT TO LIVE TO BE 100?

I bless the holy name of God with all my heart. Yes, I will bless the Lord and not forget the glorious things he does for me. For he knows we are but dust, and that our days are few and brief like grass, like flowers, blown by the wind and gone forever.

But the loving kindness of the Lord is from everlasting to everlasting, to those who reverence him; his salvation is to children's children of those who are faithful to his covenant and remember to obey him. (Psalm 103:1-2, 14-18)

The voice says, "Shout!" "What shall I shout? I asked.

"Shout that man is like the grass that dies away, and all his beauty fades like dying flowers. The grass withers, the flower fades beneath the breath of God. And so it is with fragile man. The grass withers, the flowers fade, but the Word of our God shall stand forever." (Isaiah 40:6-8)

"How frail is man, how few his days, how full of trouble! He blossoms for a moment like a flower--and withers; as the shadow of a passing cloud, he quickly disappears. If a man dies, shall he live again? This thought gives me hope, so that in all my anguish I eagerly await sweet death!" (Job 14:1-2, 14)

For you have a new life. It was not passed on to you from your parents, for the life they gave you will fade away. This new one will last forever, for it comes from Christ, God's ever-living Message to men. Yes, our natural lives will fade as grass does when it becomes all brown and dry. All our greatness is like a flower that droops and falls; but the Word of the Lord will last forever. And this message is the Good News that was preached to you. (I Peter 1:23-25)

Church members burn records, books, tapes

DARDANELLE, Ark. (AP) — Assembly of God church members have roasted about $2,000 worth of rock 'n' roll albums and other "works of the devil," according to the Rev. Bob Huie.

"We just did this for the glory of God and the kids," Huie said Thursday. "We have no qualms or apologies to make for our stand."

He said about 60 people, mostly from Assembly of God churches in the Dardanelle area about 100 miles northwest of Little Rock, also burned country-western albums, T-shirts, calendars, playing cards, tapes, magazines and books.

Huie said the burning began spontaneously after the group listened to a taped sermon about the hazards of rock 'n' roll music.

"It was not church-planned or prepared. It was not something I suggested," he said.

If church members request it, Huie said, another batch of the offensive items will be burned. "There were some who couldn't come Monday night," he said.

"I used to listen to that stuff before I got saved," said 19-year-old Gary Grimes, after burning part of his record collection.

Grimes, who said the music can have a hypnotic effect on listeners, suggested that other young people join him in burning their albums.

"They will want to get rid of them anyway, if they are Christians," he said.

Huie said country-western music is almost as bad as rock 'n' roll.

"It's different but it certainly deals with immorality, drinking, fornication and divorce," Huie said. "It certainly doesn't glorify the Lord. There's no redeeming value to it.

"It's very vexing to the Christian, I feel," the minister added.

Head of Jesuit religious order hospitalized, Vatican reports

ROME (AP) — The Rev. Pedro Arrupe, the leader of the Jesuit religious order, was hospitalized Friday with a blood clot in the brain that partially paralyzed his right side, Vatican Radio reported.

Arrupe, 73, was admitted to Rome's Salvator Mundi Hospital, where doctors described his condition as "serious but stable."

Is Biblical inerrancy really an issue?

By ROBERT DI VEROLI
Copley News Service

Southern Baptists are arguing over the Bible again in a dispute that seems to have been promoted by a vocal, fundamentalist minority.

The argument this time is over inerrancy, or whether the Bible is error-free not only in religious, but scientific, historical and other matters as well.

The inerrantists charge that some Southern Baptists, primarily some professors in the six Southern Baptist seminaries, are liberals who deny inerrancy and other basic doctrines.

Other Southern Baptists claim the overwhelming majority of Southern Baptists accept the Bible as God's true, inerrant word, and that the inerrantists are outside the mainstream of Southern Baptist life and belief.

Many seem to feel that the inerrancy issue has been vastly exaggerated to the point where it is undermining more important business.

"Most of our ministers and people accept the Bible as the inerrant word of God.

"This whole thing's been blown way out of proportion," said the Rev. Robert Maddux of Clairemont Southern Baptist Church in San Diego.

"The whole thing is a smoke screen for some people's political ambitions because 99 percent of all Southern Baptists believe the Bible is God's inspired word and adhere to the Bible as their authority, although they don't all interpret it 100 percent the same," said James L. Young, editor of the Rocky Mountain Baptist Church in Denver.

"The real struggle is over who controls the key committees, boards and agencies, not inerrancy," Young said.

Even the Rev. Dr. Harold Lindsell, militant inerrantist and author of "The Battle For The Bible," admits that "90 percent of all the people in the pews believe in the Bible."

Lindsell and other inerrantists are worried, however, that the Southern Baptists go the way of mainline, liberal Protestant churches unless they check "liberal influences" in their seminaries.

Adds the Rev. William Powell of the Baptist Faith and Message fellowship in Buchanan, Ga.: "All six Southern Baptist seminaries have teachers who deny the Bible is the infallible word of God."

Asked to be more specific, Powell said some professors deny that Adam and Eve were real persons, teach that Moses was not the sole author of the first five books of the Bible, deny that Isaiah was sole author of the Book of Isaiah, suggest that the Book of Daniel was written after the events prophesied in them took place and reject the doctrine that Christ died to atone for man's sins.

It is not, however, easy to find Southern Baptists who are persuaded their denomination, one of the most conservative of all Christian bodies, operates seminaries which are hotbeds of liberalism.

"I don't believe they're as liberal as some people make out," said the Rev. Wade McKinley of Calvary Southern Baptist Church in San Diego.

"We've had men who had liberal tendencies, sure, but not in denying basic tenets of the faith, and I think now there's actually a conservative trend in our denomination," McKinley added in an interview.

The Rev. Bryant Wilson, a 1980 graduate of Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, Texas, says the liberal influence at his school was minimal.

"I heard more about liberal professors from people outside the seminary than I saw in the seminary," Wilson, pastor of Hilltop Southern Baptist Church in Chula Vista, Calif., said in an interview.

"I didn't have any liberal professors except maybe one I might have felt uncomfortable at all with so far as Scripture was concerned. In fact, I came away from seminary with an even firmer conviction that the Bible is the inspired word of God than I went there with."

Many Southern Baptists, known as champions of a creedless faith, also resent what they regard as the inerrantists' attempt to impose a binding definition of inerrancy on the entire denomination.

"Southern Baptists have no creed or confessions of faith and I'm against this attempt to say there's a set creed or set of agreed ideas and doctrine all Baptists must believe," said the Rev. Donald Dilday of Navasota, Texas.

SPECTACULAR RANCH

Durango, Colorado

1½ miles of Animas River rushes through a box canyon. Four lakes, numerous springs, waterfalls, meadows and rugged trails. The varied and spectacular scenery has been used for numerous movie locations. Hunting, excellent fishing and wildlife. All the ranch has been purposely left wild and is the last privately owned land in the Animas Valley. Beautifully located 12 miles from Durango and 12 miles from Purgatory Ski Area and 5 miles from Tammarron Resort with golf and tennis available. Owner and guest house -- several out-buildings. A rare opportunity (should be a National Park). SUB-DIVIDABLE.

Murphy maintains grip on PGA

DULUTH, Ga. (AP) - Bob Murphy returned from a storm delay to finish off a 69 that enabled him to retain a 1-shot lead Friday in the weather-plagued and — again — unfinished second round of the 63rd PGA national golf championship.

"I'm a happy leader," the chunky veteran said after posting a 135 total, five strokes under par on the storm-lashed 7,070-yard Atlanta Athletic Club course. "I'd sure rather be leading by one than trailing by two."

And, even though the formidable figure of Jack Nicklaus was in position to make a move, Murphy was cheerfully considering his prospects over the last two rounds of this, the last of the year's Big Four events.

"I have a good feeling about things," said Murphy, who scored the last of his four tour victories six years ago. "I'm doing enough things right. And I'm making some putts. I'm particularly pleased about my putting. That's been my problem over the past two years."

Murphy, in fact, was on the backswing of his putt on the 15th green when the siren blared, signalling another storm delay, calmly continued his stroke and made the putt. Strangely enough, the time was 3:50 p.m., the precise time that play was held up in Thursday's round. And the suspension was for the same duration, 55 minutes.

And, just as in Thursday' play, another, later wave of storms prevented completion of the round. Play was called for the day at 6:57 p.m. EDT. Twenty-three players were stranded on the course and will come back at 8 a.m. Saturday to complete their rounds before the start of regularly scheduled third round play.

The overnight suspension left in doubt where the cutoff point for the final two rounds would fall. But it was certain that Masters champion Tom Watson would not make it. Watson, Player of the the Year for the past four seasons, hit into the water on the final hole and made a double bogey that completed a 73 and a 148 total.

Even though the cut has not been established, players with scores of 148 or higher will not make it.

"No excuses," he said. "I just didn't do anything well. I scored about as high as I could. I just couldn't make anything happen."

The siren that signalled the first delay didn't disturb Murphy, even though he was near the midpoint of his stroke.

"I knew what I was going to do, so I just went ahead and knocked it right in the middle of the cup," he said.

That gave him a share of the lead. And, after the rain and wind and lightning had scoured the course, he came back with a 6-iron shot to eight feet and birdied the 16th to take the lead alone.

Sharing second, a single stroke back at 136, were Larry Nelson and a pair of non-winners, Bob Eastwood and long-hitting Dan Pohl. Nelson, from nearby Acworth, Ga. and the winner of four tour titles, used crisp efficiency with his irons to set up a 66. Eastwood shot a 69 and Pohl, whose vast length off the tees enabled him to birdie both of the par-5s, had a 67.

Andy North, a former U.S. Open champion who has finished second in his last two starts, shot a 69 that left him alone at 137.

Fuzzy Zoeller, a former Masters champion, steady Tom Kite and Vance Heafner were next at 138. Heafner matched par 70, Zoeller shot 68 and Kite, who has been seventh or better in 10 of his last 11 starts, shot a 67.

"This is an excellent course for me," Kite said. "It's so long, it forces everybody to hit driver. And I know I can hit it in the fairway."

Nicklaus — the defending champion, seeking an 18th major professional crown, generally regarded as the finest player this ancient game has produced — was in a menacing position to make a run at a record sixth PGA national title. He shot a 2-under-par 68 that included no bogeys, 16 pars and two birdies and ended the day at 139.

And, he said, it was just what he needed.

"I needed a 68 to get myself in position to win the golf tournament," said Nicklaus, who now has played the last 27 holes five under par.

"I'm playing well," Nicklaus said. "I'm driving the ball well, putting reasonably well."

Nicklaus birdied the 12th with a little pitch to eight feet and stroked an 8-iron some four feet from the cup on the 14th. He saved the round with a good, scrambling par from a bunker on the 16th.

He was tied with Jerry Pate, who won the 1976 U.S. Open title on this same, long, difficult course. Pate had a 68 that he said "should have been better; but should-haves don't count. I could have had a 62 or 63."

Bruce Lietzke, a 3-time winner this year, topped a group at 140 after another 70. Ray Floyd also had a 70 but was another stroke back at 141.

Cubs back in first

Midland explodes for 18-1 win

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Regardless of what happens in tonight's final game of the showdown series for first place in the Texas League West Division, no one is going to walk away with a stranglehold on the lead. And the way things have been going, one wonders if anyone is going to walk away, period. The litters are waiting in the wings for the casualties.

The Midland Cubs squared the series at 2-2 with an 18-1 pummeling of the San Antonio Dodgers before an umbrella-huddling, beer-sipping turnout of 1,320 at Cubs Stadium Friday night to regain a one-game lead over the Dodgers. That sent the Cubs over 90,000 (90,167) paid admissions for the season and gives the club a shot at its first 100,000-paid season ever with 11 dates left.

Midland's win sets up a rubber-game showdown between the Dodgers' Rick Rodas, 12-3, and Cubs' lefty Craig Lefferts, 11-9, at 7:30 p.m. tonight. Amarillo then comes to Cubs Stadum for five games.

MIDLAND pounded three San Antonio pitchers for 18 hits, scoring seven times in the eighth. When reminded that the 18-1 margin partially atoned for that 34-8 stoning at the hands of the Dodgers early in the year, most of the Cubs had already forgotten.

Jack Upton, Joe Carter and Randy LaVigne each knocked in four runs apiece. Carter hit a three-run homer in the sixth and Upton poled a two-run job in the ninth. Carter also made the defensive play of the night, coming in fast and to his right to make a one hand, diving, rollover catch to rob Steve Sax of a hit in the ninth.

Fritz Connally had two doubles among his three hits while shortstop David Pagel fattened his average with a 4-for-5 night.

The oddity was that for most of the game, the flag in center hung limp, which in high dry West Texas is a signal that the pitchers will dominate.

WHILE THE Cubs hit the Dodgers hard, Henry Mack, salvaging something from a season in which spring training and the first two months were lost to injury and knee surgery, handcuffed the Dodgers on three hits while reliever Rob Blyth surrendered the other hit in the ninth.

Mack worked 7⅔ innings and had a shutout going into the eighth when Myron White spoiled it with a double after Mack had walked a couple. That brought Blyth out of the bullpen.

"I can't remember when I pitched that long," Mack said. "It's the longest I have pitched this year. I wasn't really tired, but in the last couple of innings I was just pitching, not bearing down hard like I was earlier. White's a good low ball hitter and you've got to keep the ball away from him. I made a good pitch, but he just hit it."

WHITE almost cost Mack his shutout in sixth after a couple of one-out walks. White pulled one over the right field fence, but foul, and wound up striking out.

"Henry pitched a good game in his last start at Arkansas, although he went only 5⅔ innings. They stacked their lineup with six or seven left-handed hitters and they have that short right field porch," Manager George Enright related. "This is two strong games in a row and things are looking good for Henry."

Both Enright and roving pitching coach Jim Napier agreed the key to Mack's success that he was coming inside with his fastball.

BRUIN BREWIN'S—Javier Fierro made a big play in the first after singling home Pagel. He took second on Mel Hall's fly out to center, so when Upton grounded to second there was no double play and it left the door open for a four-run inning...

Managers have new strategy factor

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — Major league baseball's 50-day strike and the resulting split season will leave managers with a new factor they will have to calculate into their strategies.

In the past, clubs that are assured of a playoff berth have been accused of laying back a bit in late-season games to prepare for the stretch run at the World Series.

Now, the split season approved by the owners Thursday guarantees four teams a place in the mini-playoffs that will precede the regular end-of-season ritual.

The four teams assured of seeing postseason play are the Los Angeles Dodgers and Philadelphia Phillies in the National League and the New York Yankees and Oakland A's in the American League. The four sat atop their respective divisions on June 12 when Season I was settled by the beginning of the strike.

Should any of them win the second-half crown, their opponent would be the divisional team with the next-best record for the entire season.

"That means if we don't win the second half, we'll be pulling for the Dodgers to win," said Cincinnati's George Foster in reacting to the owners' decision Thursday to establish the second-best criteria in the event the first-half winner repeats.

Suppose the Dodgers had a one-game lead over the Houston Astros and the Reds were another five games behind. Because they were 7½ games better than Houston in the first half of the season, the Reds would hold a 2½-game edge in the second-best race while being six games behind the Dodgers.

Since being 2½ games up is healthier than being six down with two weeks remaining, Cincinnati could benefit from a loss because the Reds would have two games remaining with Houston and no more chances to beat the Dodgers. A Cincinnati victory would help the Astros in their bid to win the second half and close out the Reds.

"We win the second half, and we win nothing," A's Manager Billy Martin said in his critique of the plan.

"In other words, I should root for Seattle to win — root for a team you can beat. I suppose it means every time we play Seattle or Toronto, I should use my second-line pitching and save my starters for teams I have to beat."

Phillies Manager Dallas Green said of the setup, "We're not going out there to lose. But there may come a time when I'll manage a little differently."

Baseball's labor peace is still evasive

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Even though the players strike is over, major league baseball is finding labor peace somewhat evasive. Now American and National League officials are battling with the umpires.

By adding a new tier of playoffs with the split-season concept, the two leagues must negotiate new terms with the umpires. Richie Phillips, counsel for the Major League Umpires Association, says the two sides are "light years apart," from any agreement.

ACCORDING TO Phillips, the league presidents want four-man umpiring teams for the mini-playoffs and are offering $4,000 per man. Phillips said four umps would be fine, if the teams use only seven players apiece. He wants six umpires assigned, the same as League Championship and World Series crews and he wants them paid $6,500 plus 10 percent of the gross revenues from the first three games of each series.

He bases those demands on the players' mini-series package which he said provides for game salaries plus 60 percent of the gate for the first three games. "I want the umpires on equal footing with the players for this series," Phillips said.

Also still being negotiated is how much the umpires will lose in salary as a result of the players' strike. They received full paychecks for both July and August with the understanding that some money might have to be given back to the leagues when a settlement is reached.

Originally, it was understood that the umps would not be paid beyond 30 days of the strike. Subsequent negotiations between Phillips and league presidents Lee MacPhail and Chub Feeney have narrowed the gap. At the moment, the leagues are arguing that the umps should lose a total of three days pay for the players' strike. Phillips has said he will accept one lost day.

Phillips said earlier reports out of San Diego that the umpires might boycott the All-Star Game were "almost certainly" untrue. He indicated he would meet with the umpires on Saturday and that he expected them to work Sunday's All-Star Game in Cleveland.

The umps weren't baseball's only problem heading into the All-Star showcase Sunday in Cleveland. Several clubs and players were still bristling over the split-season concept adopted Thursday.

UNDER THE plan, when regular-season play is resumed Monday, the balance of the schedule will be treated as a second season. All teams will begin even and second-half division winners will meet the division leaders as of June 12 in mini-playoffs leading up to League Championship Series and eventually the World Series. The addition of an extra tier of playoffs has moved the postseason schedule back one full week and creates the possibility that, barring any rainouts,, the seventh game of the World Series would be played in the decidedly autumn weather of Oct.28.

"It stinks," snapped John McNamara, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, whose team was just one-half game behind Los Angeles in the National League West when the strike hit.

If the same team wins both halves, it would play the division team with the next best season record. That didn't please New York Yankee Manager Gene Michael, whose club finished first in the Amerian LeagueEast pre-strike standings.

"There should be a bye," he said. "If you win both halves, you should be in the final playoffs. There's not enough of an advantage for a team that wins both halves."

Some players questioned the incentive for teams which finished first in the pre-June 12 season and clinched mini-playoff berths. Will they give more than cursory effort in second-half games, preferring to prepare themselves for the playoffs instead?

"Any of the Yankees who don't put out will read about it on the front page," warned often-volatile New York owner George Steinbrenner.

CARL YASTRZEMSKI of the Boston Red Sox thought the split-season plan would give the Yankees a huge advantage in the remaining seven weeks of the season.

"Now they can gear everything they do to the playoffs," Yastrzemski said. "They have nothing at stake in the second half."

Billy Martin, manager of the Oakland A's, another first-place club and automatic mini-playoff participant, ripped the split-season concept.

"I think it's stupid," he said. "If we win the second half, we win nothing. In other words, I should root for Seattle to win — root for a team you can beat. I suppose it means every time we play Seattle or Toronto I should use my second-line pitchers and save my starters for teams I have to beat. That's whatthey're telling me, aren't they?

"I can see it now: 'Now playing in the World Series, the Chicago Cubs and the Seattle Mariners.' I guess they're taking care of the teams that didn't do well. The new rules help out the other clubs, not ours. But I guess this is going to sound like sour grapes, isn't it?"

In 1972, when a 13-day strike at the start of the season wiped out 86 games, the American League East title was decided by one-half game with Detroit beating Boston.

Moerschell to Davis act burns Oklahoma, 27-3

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Highhland Parks' Rob Moerschell threw touchdown passes of 14 and 48 yards to Dallas White's Dirk Davis to lead Texas to a 27-3 victory over Oklahoma Friday night in the 44th annual Oil Bowl charity football game.

Moerschell, who rushed for 117 yards on 19 carries and threw for 124 yards, was named the outstanding offensive player of the game. North Garland's Bill Heathcock was named the top defensive player.

After Moerschell's first touchdown pass gave Texas a 7-0 first quarter lead, Oklahoma tallied its only points on a 26-yard field goal by Sallisaw's Craig Benson just minutes before the first half ended.

Texas broke it open with three touchdowns in the final period.

McKinney's Mike Sessons kicked three extra points for Texas.

Leading defensive players for Texas were Heathcock and Plano's Kenneth Shead.

Oklahoma's defense was led by Putnam City West's Phil Wilson and Muskogee's Jeff Lee.

Texas now leads the all-star classic 28-7.

The proceeds from the annual charity event benefit crippled children in a two-state area.

Redskins rip Chiefs, 16-10

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Redskins combined a stingy defense and three field goals by Mark Moseley to give new head Coach Joe Gibbs a 16-10 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs Friday night in the National Football League exhibition opener for both teams.

The Redskins's lone touchdown came on a third-period interception by Redskins linebacker Monte Coleman.

Coleman stepped in front of a Bill Kenney pass and ran it in 28 yards for the touchdown and a 10-3 Redskins lead.

Kenney entered the game in the second quarter when starting quarterback Seve Fuller injured his right knee while attempting to avoid a pass rush.

The Redskins took a 3-0 lead at itermission, with Moseley connecting on a 39-yard field goal on the final play of the half.

Moseley connected twice in the last quarter, from 36 and 28 yards, to close out the Washington scoring.

Jets maul Denver, 33-7

DENVER (AP) — Richard Todd tossed a 31-yard scoring pass to Johnny "Lam" Jones and Pat Leahy kicked four field goals to lead the New York Jets to a 33-7 rout of the Denver Broncos in the opening National Football League pre-season game for both teams Friday night.

The loss spoiled the head coaching debut of Denver's Dan Reeves.

The Jets thoroughly dominated, generating 191 total yards in the first half, compared with Denver's 37 yards, and taking a 13-0 lead at intermission.

Leahy capped two time-consuming drives in the third quarter with two field goals sandwiched around Denver's only score — a 68-yard bomb from rookie quarterback Mark Herrmann to wide receiver Larry Brunson. It was Herrmann's first pass as a professional.

Astros thump Rangers, 5-1

HOUSTON (AP) — Cesar Cedeno's run-scoring triple and Harry Spilman's two-run double carried the Houston Astros past the Texas Rangers 5-1 in an exhibition game before 25,888 cheering fans Friday.

Jose Cruz drew a two-out walk off loser Doc Medich in the fourth inning and came home on Cedeno's triple down the right field line. The run earned the win for Vern Ruhle, the second of five Houston hurlers.

Gary Woods' RBI-single to right in the sixth made it 2-0. Tony Scott had singled and moved to second on Dickie Thon's sacrifice before Woods' hit.

The Rangers got four hits off Bobby Sprowl in the seventh but managed only one run. Billy Sample and Larry Cox led off with singles, but Sample was thrown out trying to go to third on Cox's hit. Mario Mendoza's double put runners on second and third and Cox scored on pinch-hitter John Ellis's groundout. Mickey Rivers then lined a single to center, but Woods threw out Mendoza at the plate to end the inning.

Houston jumped on Steve Comer for three runs in the eighth. Denny Walling doubled, Thon singled and both scored on Spilman's double to left-center. Spilman went to third on Woods' groundout and scored on Dave Roberts' sacrifice fly to left.

Admission to the game was free. It was the final tuneup for both clubs prior to the opener of the second half of the strike-interrupted season.

Houston third baseman Art Howe, the National League's leading hitter who was selected as an alternate to the National League's All-Star team, received a standing ovation when he came to bat in the second inning, and responded by singling to the left side of the infield.

Fan record is in jeopardy

CLEVELAND (AP) — Back in early June, there was no question that major league baseball's 1981 All-Star Game in Cleveland would lay claim to the record for the largest attendance in the history of the summer classic.

But the strike by major league players and seven weeks of on-again, off-again contract negotiations caused a postponement of the July 14 game, eventually rescheduled to Monday. And more than a few All-Star Game fans were dismayed.

On July 14, 15,000 irritated baseball fans gathered at a park near the city's Municipal Stadium for one, large, united boo.

Had the strike not occurred June 12, the game likely would have been a sellout. The official seating capacity of the 50-year-old stadium is 76,685.

"We put the grandstand tickets on sale on May 4, and they all sold within a few days," said Jerry Waring, Cleveland Indians ticket director. "At the time of the strike, we still had about 500 (of 9,000) bleacher seats open."

The attendance record for a major league All-Star Game is 69,831, set in a 1935 game at the stadium in Cleveland. The second-best mark is 68,751, set in the same stadium in 1954.

Waring, who worked in the New York Yankees' ticket office before coming to the Cleveland organization four years ago, said Friday that because the game was rescheduled, ticket holders have been permitted to seek refunds. Normally, tickets for baseball games are non-refundable.

In the past week, thousands of refund requests have come into Waring's office. Thousands of the returned tickets have been resold to fans who were shut out the first time.

The tickets for the game go for $20 for a box seat, $15 for reserved seating and $8 for a bleacher seat.

"I can't say exactly how many refunds there have been, but it's substantial," Waring said. "The office has been busy. The refunds so far are outpacing the demand for tickets. Some of the people coming in for refunds have been disappointed and disgusted at the strike, but that's understandable.

"Right now, we have from 6,000 to 7,000 tickets available. We're accepting refunds up until 4 o'clock on Saturday," he said.

Waring doubted that there would be any late rush of refunds or sales, and if the attendance is about 7,000 less than a sellout, the crowd total would be within a few hundred of the record.

Small crowd sees Braves lose

ATLANTA (AP) — Ben Oglivie and Gorman Thomas drilled consecutive second-inning home runs to power the Milwaukee Brewers to a 4-1 exhibition baseball victory over the Atlanta Braves Friday night.

A small crowd of 2,937 came out to watch the Braves' first scheduled game since the 50-day baseball strike was settled last week. Adults were admitted for $2.50 and children under 12 paid $1. Braves officials said a regular-season Friday night game in August would normally draw between 12,000 and 15,000 people.

Oglivie opened the second inning with a line drive off loser Gaylord Perry that barely cleared the 330-foot sign in right field. One pitch later Thomas slammed a towering 400-foot drive over the left field fence.

The two combined again in a two-run third inning against Perry. After Charlie Moore and Cecil Cooper singled, Oglivie drilled a run-scoring single to center and one out later Cooper came home on Thomas' grounder.

The Braves opened the scoring in the first inning off starter Jim Slaton when Ed Miller singled and came home on a triple by Claudell Washington.

The Brewers defeated Atlanta 5-4 Thursday night in the first game of the home-and-home exhibition series.

Bradenton stuns big brothers

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Castro and George Frazier, a pair of former major league pitchers trying to battle back from the minors, scattered five hits in seven innings Friday night as the Bradenton Yankees of the Gulf Coast League, a rookie circuit, blanked the parent New York Yankees 2-0 in an exhibition baseball game.

An announced crowd of 10,200 in 57,545-seat Yankee Stadium, mostly youngsters, greeted the Yankees warmly in their first game in exactly eight weeks. There was no admission charge and the Yankees gave away 7,000 team calenders for the first of two exhibitions against Bradenton before the second half of the split season gets under way Monday night.

The only player who was jeered at all was slugger Reggie Jackson, who batted .199 in the first part of the season. Jackson, who normally receives a mixed reception, went hitless, striking out twice and popping out twice.

Longshots surprise at Ruidoso

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — The longshots got the upper hand in Friday's renewal of the $11,600 Futurity Prep Stakes at Ruidoso Downs when Mickey Mac — a 25-1 outsider — zipped to a surprisingly easy 1 1-4 length win.

The Prep Stakes covered 5½ furlongs and Mickey Mac was clocked in 1:10 2-5 seconds.

The Right Exit, a gelding carrying 43-1 odds, got in second. Third was taken by Big Bad Tune, a colt carrying odds of 6½ to one.

The 6-5 favorite, Luckily Smashed, started well on the moisture-laden track, but steadily faded. He wound up seventh.

Mickey Mac stormed out of second place and overtook the pacemaker, Huge What, at the turn for home.

Mickey Mac opened up easily at the midway point of the stretch.

Mickey Mac collected $6,960 for his efforts and dished out mutuel payoffs of 52.69, 22.60 and 10. The Right Exit was good for a place price of 26.80 and a show return of 8.60.

Despite the fat odds on the top two finishers, a quiniela ticket on those two was worth $365 - well under the seasonal high of $809.60.

Big Bad Tune returned 4.40 to show.

Stacy stands tall at Wheeling top

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Hollis Stacy, enjoying what she said was a rare good opening round, shot a 4-under-par 68 Friday to grab a 1-shot lead in the $125,000 West Virginia LPGA Classic.

Stacy, a two-time U.S. Open champion, played aggressively on the hilly Speidel golf course, which several of the golfers said is one of the most demanding courses on the LPGA tour.

She had five birdies and one bogey and had a near miss hole-in-one on the par-3 11th hole, when her tee shot landed just six inches from the cup.

"I'm not used to starting with a good first round," said Stacy, who has played in all eight Wheeling LPGA tournaments. "I'm used to starting out 74, 75 then working my way up. I managed to put it all together today."

Stacy holds a 1-shot edge over Kathy Postlewait, who broke out of a 12-way logjam at 2-under-par 70 with an 18th hole birdie that gave her sole possession of second place. She ended with a 3-under 69.

Former tournament champions Susie McAllister and Debbie Massey are among the 12 golfers at 70. Also tied are Sue Fogleman, Marlene Floyd, Beverley Davis-Cooper, M.J. Smith, Mardell Wilkins, Vicki Singleton, Marty Dickerson, Dot Germain, Cathy Morse and Pat Bradley, the second leading money winner on the tour this year.

Bunched at 1-under 71 are six golfers: Barbara Barrow, Mary Mills, Janet Alex, Barbara Moxness, Marlene Hagge and Penny Pulz.

Zimmer is without freedom of mind

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Major league baseball returned to Texas with free admission and free parking Thursday night.

And Don Zimmer climbed back into uniform without full freedom of mind.

Zimmer still hasn't been told whether he will be retained as the Texas Rangers' manager next year.

There has been no word on his 1982 status although the Rangers finished just a game and a half behind Oakland before the strike.

In fact, if the Rangers hadn't blown a 3-0 lead to Milwaukee in their final game they would have finished percentage points ahead of the A's.

"It doesn't bother me but I would like to know by the middle of September if they want me," said Zimmer shortly before his Rangers took the field against the Houston Astros in an exhibition game.

Zimmer came to the Rangers after seven years with the Boston Red Sox on a make-good, one-year contract.

"I had to wait until November last year and the Rangers' job was the only one open," he said. "All my chips were on the table with them."

Zimmer said a new contract hasn't even been discussed with club vice president Eddie Robinson.

Midland girls gain finals

HOBBS, N.M. — Midland's Division IV softball team remained alive Friday by defeating Virginia, 7-4, to gain a berth in the finals here of the United Girls Softball Association National Tournament.

Three home runs paced Midland to its victory. Lori Breeding and Suzanne McGaha each connected for two-run round-trippers while Susie Terrazos added a solo shot.

Janice Littlefield pitched Midland to the win with Tracy LaMarr suffering the loss.

Midland, so far unbeaten in the double elimination tournament, will face Virginia for the second time today in the championship game. Virginia kept it's tournament hopes alive by defeating Big Spring in a loser's bracket elimination game.

Today's game is scheduled for 11 a.m. with a second game, if needed, scheduled for approximately two hours after the first.

One-eyed back wins test

READING, Pa. (AP) — A one-eyed running back won his first court battle Friday against Columbia University in his bid to be allowed to play on the school's football team.

U.S. District Court Judge E.Mac Troutman issued a temporary restraining order that prohibits Columbia from keeping Joseph Wright, 19, of Frackville, Pa., off the playing field.

Wright did not play last season at Columbia because of an Ivy League rule barring freshman from playing on varsity football teams. In his complaint, he said his plans to play this season were being blocked by the school.

Wright, blind in his right eye since an accident when he was 7-months-old, claimed the school was "treating him like a second-class citizen" in not letting him play.

Roberto Duran to resume fighting career

CLEVELAND (AP) — On Sunday, about four hours before the major league All-Star Game marks a resumption of the strike-halted baseball season, Roberto Duran, once all-world in two weight classes, resumes his fighting career.

Between 3:30 p.m. and 3:45 p.m., CDT, Duran will meet 22-year-old Nino Gonzalez in a scheduled 10-round junior middleweight bout, which will be televised live by CBS. The site is the 9,000-seat Public Auditorium not far from the stadium where the All-Star Game will be played.

The fight will be Duran's first since he quit in the eighth round and lost the World Boxing Council welterweight chamtionship to Sugar Ray Leonard last Nov.25 at the New Orleans Superdome.

Immediately after the career-damaging loss, the Panamanian called "Hands of Stone" announced his retirement.

"At the time I was going to retire I meant it," said Duran, who was heavily criticized in the media and by many fans after he told the referee in New Orleans "no mas (no more), no mas." He said he could not continue because of stomach sickness and maintains he would do it again under similar circumstances.

"I'm very happy," Duran said about his treatment by the media. "He really isn't," interjected an interpreter, making sure Duran's sarcasm did not escape listeners.

"That's sports," added Duran with a shrug.

Should the 30-year-old Duran beat Gonzalez, it could lead to a shot at Wilfred Benitez for the WBC 154-pound title. Promoter Don King has already offered Benitez $1 million to fight Duran, and Jimmy Jacobs, Benitez' manager, says the offer is being considered seriously.

"If that opportunity comes, I'll take it," Duran said of a chance to win a third world title. He ruled the lightweight division (135-pound limit) for most of the 1970s before becoming welterweight champion (147 pounds) by outpointing Leonard at Montreal June 20, 1980.

But the true goal of Duran's comeback is a fight against Leonard, who has said he will not meet Duran again. Leonard, who will fight Thomas Hearns for the universal welterweight championship Sept.16, also holds the World Boxing Association 154-pound class title.

Hambletonians face a busy day

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Arnie's Aim and Banker Barker head the field for Saturday's richest and biggest Hambletonian Trot ever, in what figures to be a long afternoon at the Meadowlands.

Twenty-four 3-year-olds, split into two divisions of 12 each, will test their speed and stamina over the mile track. Before the Hambletonian winner is determined, it could take four heats.

A crowd of about 45,000 is expected for harness racing's most prestigious event, which was first run in 1926. Since 1957, the Hambletonian has been held at the state fairgrounds in DuQuoin, Ill.

Arnie's Aim is listed as the 3-1 early-line favorite for the first division, while Banker Barker is rated at 3-1 for the second division.

Trainer-driver Archie McNeil said of Arnie's Aim, winner of five of 16 starts this year, including the Historic Cup here: "He was hard to handle but he can run wicked fast. He's very competitive, the best I've ever had."

The son of Arnie Almahurst-Picture Dart was purchased for $19,000 by owner H.B. Willis, a potato farmer from Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island.

Arnie's Aim's chief rivals in the first division figure to be Smokin Yankee, driven by Stanley Dancer who has won three Hambletonians; Super Juan, and Exceptional Way. Completing the first division are Graf Zepplin, Nathan Lobell, Santa Ana, Tuneful Contest, Armbro Wellwood, Olaf, Day Care and Red Coach Pride.

Banker Barker, a bargain buy for $9,000 by three Pontiac, Mich., businessmen, has posted eight triumphs, including five in a row, in 13 starts this year. The son of 1971 Hambletonian winner Speedy Crown has lifetime earnings of less than $80,000 for M.A. Benson, who owns a lumber yard, and Paul and Jim Felice, supermarket owners.

COM swimmers losing a coach

By DORIAN MARTIN
Staff Writer

The City of Midland swim team is losing another coach. Gary Ilman has stepped down from the coaching duties, but the job has already been filled.

According to Jerry Green, president of the board of directors of the COM Swim Team, former Midland resident Hank O'Neill will assume coaching responsiblites Sept. 1.

Ilman explained, "I'm getting out of coaching. You could say I'm burned out."

His resignation was made because he didn't want to have the COM program suffer because of his lack of enthusiasm.

Ilman, who has been involved 22 years in swimming both as an athlete and a coach, has been coaching the COM swim team for one year.

Before that, he was the swim coach for Colorado State University. The California native was forced to leave when CSU "axed all non-revenue sports to the football and basketball programs going." In retrospect, he said, "I should have gotten out of this (coaching) then."

He has also coached the Greece national team as well as teams in Montreal and Alabama.

Ilman's future job is still up in the air, but he thinks he might like to become a sales representative. He explained, "I can't get into anything too technical because I don't have the background."

O'Neill's appointment was made by the COM swim team's Board of Directors.

Besides having competed as a swimmer, O'Neill assisted former COM coach Terry Gathercole in Australia. He was also an assistant coach in Reno, Nev. O'Neill is currently finishing his duties as head coach for a swim team in Alameda, Calif.

Ilman thinks his successor will do a good job. "He's only been coaching for 6 years so he's got a lot of enthusiasm."

Starr has had more luck beating Dallas as player

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys tonight host the Green Bay Packers and Coach Bart Starr, who had more luck beating Dallas as a player than he has coaching.

This National Football League exhibition game in Texas Stadium annually revives painful memories for the Cowboys' followers.

The Packers won eight exhibition games against the Cowboys when the late Vince Lombardi was the coach.

Starr lost to the Cowboys 17-14 last year in the annual charity Salesmanship Club game, the first time the Packers had played in the game since 1970.

He is 1-2 against the Cowboys during the regular season.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry has won four exhibition games and is 3-8 lifetime against the Packers during the regular season which included close NFL title game losses twice in the late 1960s.

Starr was the winning quarterback in each of the championship victories over Dallas.

He is 31-57-2 overall for the Packers as a coach and was 5-10-1 last year.

Both teams are expected to flood Texas Stadium with rookies and the regulars certainly shouldn't mind. Temperatures for kickoff at 8 p.m. were expected to be in the 95-degree range.

The game is certainly an important one for two Dallas safeties, Charlie Waters and Randy Hughes, who are making comebacks after offseason surgery.

"The only way I can tell if my knee is sound is in a game," said Waters, the strong safety who played with a knee brace last year. "It's been feeling OK during training camp but you don't make the torque-type moves in practice that you do in a game."

Waters' right knee collapsed on him five times last year but he still played.

Hughes' dislocated his shoulder twice last August in what he called "a nightmare experience."

He returned in November and was knocked out again. He underwent surgery for a second time in December.

"I guess I'll be a little shaky about tackling people for awhile," said the Cowboys' free safety.

The Cowboys' were expecting some 10,000 fans less than the capacity of 65,000 for the first exhibition game of the year for the two teams.

Earl Campbell gives Nielsen firm vote of team confidence

HOUSTON (AP) — Earl Campbell says Gifford Nielsen is going to be all right.

Nielsen is the former Brigham Young star who suddenly became quarterback for the Houston Oilers after playing second fiddle four years behind Ken Stabler and Dan Pastorini.

Calling his own plays, Nielsen was in command most of the way Thursday night as the Oilers, with Ed Biles as the new head coach, opened their exhibition season by defeating the Philadelphia Eagles, 13-10.

Nielsen completed 15 of 25 passes for 156 yards and had no interceptions.

"The kid is going to be all right," said Campbell, who carried 12 times for 45 yards and a touchdown.

"He's going to make me look good," said the All-Pro running back. "He has a lot of determination. He learned a lot, like I did my rookie year, and he's going to keep on learning."

Jim Shofner, who worked with Brian Sipes at Cleveland before Biles picked him as his offensive coordinator, was impressed with Nielsen's confidence and skill at gathering information quickly as a play develops.

"Gifford started off real well. He can run the game. He can do that. He's smart," Shofner said.

"I think you'll see him even better when we have a game plan for him. I think his forte will be learning the game plan for the week and using it on Sunday. I think you will see him improve as we start honing in on the other teams."

Nielsen said he also wanted to prove that Houston could throw successfully on first down in that "everybody knows we have Earl Campbell and everybody knows we like to use Earl on first down."

Option holders have until Friday

Season ticket option holders for high school football games will have until Friday to renew their options.

Non-option holders may buy season tickets from the available list now and through Aug. 28.

A book of tickets for Midland High School games, six tickets, will cost $18 and a book of tickets for Midland Lee will cost $12 for four. Office hours are Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. including the lunch hour.

Investigation asked for stalled jury

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Oakland Raiders attorney Joseph Alioto said the National Football League antitrust case jury, which began its ninth day of deliberations today, probably is stalled by one holdout and should be investigated.

The 10-member panel, which received the case at noon July 29, resumed its deliberations at 7:25 a.m. today.

Alioto said a note to the presiding judge from the federal court jury's forewoman Thursday — suggesting that each juror be interviewed if the trial ends without a decision — was a "clear call for an investigation."

"Obviously she is saying there is something in here that warrants an investigation by the court," Alioto said outside court Thursday. He speculated that one juror, or possibly two, is holding up the verdict.

The note from the jury forewoman led to Pregerson rereading part of the instructions he gave to the jury last week. He also urged them to rise above "friction or strong feelings" that could be expected at this point.

Jaeger meets Ruzici in Clay Court finals

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Top-seeded Andrea Jaeger and No. 2-seed Virginia Ruzici turned back early challenges Friday, then easily defeated their opponents in their concluding sets to advance to Saturday's championship round for women in the U.S. Open Clay Court tennis tournament.

The men's singles, down to the quarterfinal round on Friday, will be played Sunday.

Top-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia beat Jose-Luis Damiani 6-2, 6-4 Friday to reach the men's semifinals opposite No. 3 Guillermo Vilas. Vilas advanced by beating unseeded Ricardo Cano 6-3, 6-1.

Jaeger, the pig-tailed, 16-year-old schoolgirl from Lincolnshire, Ill., who lost to Chris Evert Lloyd in the women's finals a year ago, dispatched third-seeded Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia 6-3, 6-1 in their semifinal match.

Ruzici, never this far in five previous appearances in the Clay Court event, struggled to a 7-6 first-set victory before defeating No.4-seed Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia 6-0 in the second set.

First prize for the women will pay $27,500 out of a purse of $350,000. The men's finalists will play for $32,000.

Tom Paciorek will find his way to All-Star game

SEATTLE (AP) — Named as a reserve outfielder on the American League squad for Sunday's baseball All-Star game, Seattle Mariner Tom Paciorek is hitting the road for Cleveland to represent his team.

Not even the air controllers strike will stand in his way.

"I'll get there if I have to walk," Paciorek said Thursday after learning the news.

"I'm really elated," said the 34-year-old veteran released by Atlanta three years ago, then rescued by the Mariners. "This All-Star thing is something I never thought possible, especially in my waning baseball days. I truly feel great."

British reject guerrillas' new offer to end hunger strike

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The British government rejected a new offer by jailed Irish nationalists Friday to end their hunger strike in exchange for prison reforms. One faster, Tom McIlwee, was reported in serious condition on his 61st day without food in the Maze prison.

The British minister for Northern Ireland, Sir Humphrey Atkins, said in London the new statement from the Maze prisoners did not change their position. Atkins said he could see "nothing to suggest that they have understood the government's reasons for refusing to concede their five demands."

He said the government would not agree to prison rules for the guerrillas different from those for other prisoners and "certainly not on the ground that some of them claim that the serious crimes they committed were politically motivated."

Another official, who declined to be identified, said, "We have offered changes in prison conditions in broad areas," but none would take effect until the hunger strike was called off.

Police said a group of rioters threw a gasoline bomb at a police vehicle Friday in Roman Catholic West Belfast, but accidentallyo hit a woman who was passing by, 67-year-old Cahryn Mulln. Officers doused the flames with a fire extinguisher and took her to a hospital for trzatment of leg injuries.

"Obviously the swift action by our men saved the woman," a spokesman for the Royal Ulster Constabulary said. "The rioters who threw the petrol bomb did not care who they hit."

The families of the Maze prisoners were meeting in Belfast later Friday amid indications some of the families want the hunger strikes ended. This feeling was reported to have grown since the mother of one prisoner, Paddy Quinn, authoried doctor to save his life July 31 after he fell into a coma.

Eight convicted nationalists have died since the fast was launched March 1 in a bid to force the British government to give hundreds of jailed guerrillas special privileges that London says amount to prisoner of war status.

The six current hunger strikers and 420 other nationalist prisoners waging cell-block protests in the Maze claimed in a statement smuggled from the prison that they are not seeking "elitist or preferential treatment" and urged the British to meet them "half way."

They declared again they will not wear prison clothes or do penal tasks and insisted on "freedom of movement" within the 25-cell wings of the Maze's H-shaped cell blocks during the day. They also made clear that if Britain does not make some concessions the hunger strike will go on until London stops "réfusing to act sensibly, humanely and realistically."

Irish newspapers hailed the prisoners' statement as conciliatory because it made no mention of "political status" or demands the British meet the hunger strikers face to face to negotiate. But Sinn Fein, the Irish Republican Army's political front, stressed that the statement was "in no way a dilution of the demands the Republican prisoners have consistently sought."

The predominantly Roman Catholic IRA is fighting to push the British out of Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland and reunite it with the overwhelmingly Catholic Irish Republic.

Sinn Fein said McIlwee, 23, was "extremely weak and is having kidney problems." It said McIlwee's one good eye has become infected. The IRA man lost his right eye when a firebomb he was carrying exploded prematurely in October 1976 on the raid during which he was captured by police.

McIlwee is a first cousin of IRA guerrilla commander Francis Hughes, the second man to die on the hunger strike. McIlwee is serving life for a firebombing that burned a woman to death.

Police noted that the level of violence has more than doubled this year in Northern Ireland, mainly because of the hunger strikes. A spokesman said 51 people have been killed since March 1, twice the total for the corresponding period last year. More than 1,000 persons have been injured, four times the March-August figure last year.

Bunya bunya trees bomb area

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Baaaarooomm! That's the sound of a 10-pound bunya bunya cone dropping onto a car. If you know what's good for you, you won't park under a bunya bunya tree. You won't walk by, either.

"You hear a dull thud when one of them hits the ground," said Lonnie P. Mount, who works at an engineering firm located in an old house near a bunya bunya tree.

The lawn is littered with cones, some the size of bowling balls. No one has been brained by the prickly green bombs since the office opened eight years ago, but the company is taking no chances: The front entrance is blocked and a sign directs clients to a side door.

On the southeast corner of Orange and 13th streets in Riverside stands a venerable bunya bunya — a somewhat rare species that resembles a pine tree. This particular bunya bunya drops 10-pound cones from as high as 60 feet.

The tree has dropped more than 50 cones in the past week and they'll continue to fall for another two or three weeks, said Oscar Clarke, a naturalist who recently retired as a museum scientist at the University of California at Riverside.

"These trees should all have those signs during the month of August," said Clarke. "After the cones have all fallen, they can take the signs down."

The bunya bunya — or, more properly, araucaria bidwillii — belongs to "a family of plants that replaces the pine family in the southern hemisphere," according to Clarke.

In prehistoric times, said Clarke, large birds and mammals buried bunya bunya cones to eat at a later time. Cones that weren't eaten sprouted roots and grew into a new generation of trees.

The engineers in Riverside don't depend on birds to remove cones from the lawn. But they do use mammals — they keep a box full of cones nearby and passersby help themselves.

"I have no idea why people would want to take them home, but they do," said Mount.

But Clarke says the cones have edible nuts the size of an apricot "and they're pretty good. I've eaten many of them.

"They taste like high-quality sawdust. The first taste doesn't sound that great, but you get used to them — really."

Official says firm still ahead

ROCKPORT, Texas (AP) — An explosion of a test rocket has set back a private firm's assault on space by about six months, but the company is still far ahead of any U.S. competitors, officials said Friday.

"In the U.S. there are individuals thinking about forming companies, but right now they have no financing or plans to produce an orbital system," said Gary Hudson, president of the California firm that engineered the rocket for Houston-based Space Services Inc.

The 53-foot rocket, Space Services' first, blew up on its Matagorda Island launching pad Wednesday during an engine test. It was scheduled for a brief sub-orbital flight Aug. 12.
