Shelby Coker, a former Snyder businessman and former President of the local Chamber of Commerce, was in town the other day and at about the same time some material arrived here at the newspaper office from the U.S. Department of Agriculture concerning the compulsory Food Stamp program which will become effective this fall for eligible recipients.

It brought to mind an incident that occurred several years ago when Coker was serving on the county welfare board here. He overheard a woman complaining that she had seen someone purchasing candy and tobacco products at a local grocery store with welfare food stamps. This got Coker's attention immediately and he asked for complete details.

Yes, the woman was certain that she had seen someone using food stamps for illegal purchases. Coker then identified himself as a member of the welfare board and advised that Scurry County was not in the food stamp program and never had been.

He never did find out, however, what the alleged violator was using to purchase candy and cigarettes. He suspected it was plain money, but the incident served as an example of the ease with which people often mis interpret what happens in front of their own eyes.

Also arriving by recent mail was another issue of the Borden Citizen, the lively publication of the Borden County Historical Survey Committee. It has an item about the relationship between an early-day settlement in New Mexico and Borden County.

The little settlement of Puerto, N.M., located about 30 miles southeast of Tucumcari, was founded by people who found Borden County too crowded and elected to push on westward to claim free land, we are told. Borden County had not exactly turned into a buzzing metropolis, of course, but there were enough people already there to cause some late-comers to look farther west for land they had hoped to acquire, since most of the Borden County land already had been claimed. It was another step in the process which eventually settled this country from coast to coast.

Nothing New Seen In Talk

Enrollment Decreases Slightly

First-day enrollment figures for Snyder Public Schools this year show a decline of 112 pupils from comparable figures at last year's school opening.

School officials were not disturbed by the figures, however, since they had predicted 150 fewer enrollees and historically there has been a marked increase in late enrollment after Labor Day.

Kindergarten accounted for the discrepancy between the projected and actual figures. While school officials were pleased over this, it also caused some first-day problems and some shifting of kindergarten attendance zones is anticipated to relieve the unexpected excess at that level.

On the basis of pre-registration last spring, administrators had predicted 148 for the kindergarten enrollment, but 195 actually showed up on the first day of school.

Only three schools showed increases in enrollment the first day. These included North Elementary, which increased from 235 to 275, Central from 356 to 362 and East from 303 to 326.

The overall enrollment the first day totalled 3,547, compared to 3,659 in 1972.

Other comparisons by schools, with this year's figures first, followed by 1972: High school, 771 and 808; Lamar Junior High, 468 and 483; Travis Junior High, 399 and 405; West, 343 and 407; Northeast, 241 and 276; Stanfield, 288 and 309; special education, 74 and 77.

NIXON MEETS NEWSMEN—President Nixon answers a newsman's question as he held his first news conference in months, outside his office at the San Clemente Western White House today. (AP Wirephoto)

Probe To Continue

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon's first responses in five months to direct questions about Watergate and his declaration that the scandal is "water under the bridge" apparently will not succeed in stemming the Senate Watergate investigation.

"I shall not resign," Nixon told a news conference Wednesday as he gave explanations for his Watergate conduct which conceded no personal negligence.

And in the latest of his attempts to put Watergate behind him, he insisted it is time to get on with the "business of the people."

But Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the Senate panel which has probed the scandal for months, said "I don't think any more light was shed than has been shed before." And he said he would not allow the investigation to rest until the committee is satisfied that it has exhausted every avenue.

Committee hearings are to resume Sept. 10. Most other members of the committee were traveling or declining to comment, though Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M., said he thought Nixon "has again dispelled any expectation that he will surrender the tapes" of recorded presidential meetings.

With Congress in recess, there was little reaction to the Nixon news conference, though supporting statements did come from Republican National Chairman George Bush and Sen. John Tower, R-Tex. Congressional reaction, though often along predictable party lines, is one standard barometer of a President's success in making his point.

Polls show Nixon's prior statements and speeches of Watergate innocence were unconvincing to many. So the President sought this time to regain public confidence by answering questions at a news conference, a move urged by many of his political friends.

Nixon's replies during the 50-minute event outside the Western White House contained few new disclosures to add to the mountain of often contradictory Watergate detail produced by investigations and statements.

But they provided the President's view of how certain events struck him and why he reacted to them as he did. And though there was not time for many of the lingering Watergate questions to be raised or answered, Nixon, by holding the news conference, could now say he had made himself available to answer any of those questions.

Nixon opened with the announcement that William P. Rogers is resigning as secretary of state and will be succeeded by Henry A. Kissinger.

But the preoccupation with Watergate showed strikingly when reporters asked not a single question about that top-level change, which in more normal times would have produced a barrage of inquiries.

Instead, when questioning did veer from Watergate, it moved to another area of rumored scandal, the Maryland political payoff probe involving Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

Nixon expressed confidence in his two-time running mate and, as Agnew did Tuesday, voiced outrage at leaks to news media from sources close to the case.

In another cover-up area touched at the end of the session under hot California sunshine, the President said he had no apology for ordering bombing in neutral Cambodia during 1969. The bombing was a secret until recently and had been covered up by false military reports. Nixon said it helped save American lives.

Utilizing a question about whether he considered resigning, Nixon spelled out the corner he hopes to turn with his latest defense on Watergate.

Fires Set By Storm

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An overnight lightning storm that struck Idaho and Montana cast new gloom over the Western forest fire situation today.

The nation's major forest and range fire control center at Boise estimated the storm could have set as many as 300 new blazes, possibly reversing steady progress made against infernos in over a week of dogged effort.

Early reports indicated that six new fires started by the storm were blazing in Idaho and three in western Montana. The extent of the blazes could not be immediately determined.

Another Price Surge Is Seen, But A Bit Softer

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers can expect another surge in food prices after Sept. 12, but the administration says it shouldn't be as bad as the last big increase.

The Cost of Living Council Wednesday released its proposed new Phase 4 food price controls scheduled to take effect Sept. 12.

The council said the controls basically will put the food industry under the same restrictions on price increases as the rest of the economy.

Officials said the controls will require "a substantial cost absorption on the part of food wholesalers and retailers will keep prices below what they might otherwise be.

Council director John T. Dunlop said "some price increases at the consumer level are expected" when the regulations go into effect. But he predicted consumers would not be as hard-hit as they were when the price freeze was lifted from food on July 18.

At a news briefing today, Dunlop declined to go along with a prediction attributed to Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz that food prices probably would increase no more than five per cent next year.

"That's the first time I've seen numbers of that sort, so I don't know about them," Dunlop said.

But, he added, they are "iffy numbers to me" since it is not yet known how big a harvest there will be in 1974 and since the weather could be a major factor in crop production.

The Cost of Living Council has declined to predict how much food prices will rise in the future.

Food prices have been increasing at an annual rate of more than 17 per cent so far this year. But Dunlop said that increase could provide incentives to farmers to produce more, which in turn could mean an easing of prices.

"I agree that all reasonable people can estimate—given the price incentives and removal of all limitations on acreage—that there should be enormous expansion of output" next year, Dunlop said.

Butz was reported to have made his prediction at a breakfast meeting today.

Administration economists have acknowledged that post-freeze price increases were higher than expected.

KISSINGER'S ASCENSION

Shift At State Should Enhance Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger's ascension to the role of secretary of state should improve the Nixon administration's ability to conduct foreign policy.

By nominating Kissinger to replace William P. Rogers, Nixon took the one dramatic step many diplomats and U.S. officials felt could break the stagnation that was beginning to envelop diplomatic maneuvering.

One State Department source said Kissinger as secretary of state would show the world that Nixon is determined to conduct foreign policy on the fullest possible scale.

"There was always the doubt that Kissinger would leave or, at the least, become demoralized by Watergate and his association with involved (White House) staffers," the source said.

"This had some foreign powers not only doubting Nixon's ability to exercise authority over Congress, but fearing he would lose the most impressive man in the administration concerning foreign affairs," the source added.

Because Kissinger will combine being secretary of state with his current job as national security adviser, he will become probably the most important nonelected figure the nation has ever experienced in foreign affairs.

This power should remove any concern about Kissinger's leaving the government anytime soon. It also should go a long way toward enhancing the administration's position in Congress.

A congressional source said Kissinger is well thought of by key Senate and House members, many of whom felt Rogers spoke with very little authority or knowledge when he appeared on Capitol Hill.

As secretary, Kissinger will be in much closer contact with the Senate and House and should be more effective than Rogers in arguing administration positions.

In addition, the fact that he remains a special adviser to the President will underline both his ability and his authority to discuss foreign policy and speak for Nixon.

An even brighter outlook concerns the reaction of other governments. Diplomats serving in Washington expressed pleasure on hearing of Kissinger's appointment.

Kissinger's appointment also will have a major impact on the State Department apparatus, which has been seriously impaired under Rogers and not only by Watergate.

A major cause of the low morale of the department has been Kissinger's independence and superiority in outlining most major foreign policy decisions.

He acknowledges a lack of administrative ability and he has been criticized for failing to allot responsibility to aides.

Department officials say they hope Kissinger will delegate routine and administrative matters to others and concentrate his and the agency's basic talents on policy matters.

"That's the only way he's going to whip this place," said one middle-level State official.

4 More Counts In Slayings

HOUSTON (AP) — A Harris County grand jury returned four new indictments today against two youths charged in the sex-torture slayings case in which 27 bodies have been recovered.

The action brought to eight the combined number of formal criminal allegations against Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, and David Owen Brooks, 18.

The grand jury, acting without additional witness testimony, submitted the new indictments to visiting District Court Judge Jack Pierce of Nacogdoches after meeting with prosecutors in its third session since the case broke.

Henley now has been named in four indictments, Brooks in four. Arraignments for the youths have been postponed until next month but their lawyers have indicated their clients will enter pleas of innocence.

Hopkins To Fill New College Post

Rex Hopkins, business manager at Western Texas College since construction of the new institution began in August, 1970, has been selected to fill the position of director of public service programs for WTC, it was announced today by Dr. Robert Clinton, president.

A graduate of West Texas State University in 1960, Hopkins served as business manager at Howard County Junior College from 1960 until 1966 and business manager at Odessa College from 1966 to 1968. Before accepting the business manager position at WTC, he was teacher-coordinator for Vocational Office of Education at Permian High School in Odessa.

In making the decision to accept the new position, Hopkins commented, "I have always been interested in this phase (occupations and technology) of the community college curricula. My interests and background have motivated me to accept this opportunity and challenge, and I feel that I can continue to make a worthwhile contribution to WTC and the educational community."

Hopkins, a native of Missouri, was graduated from Gallup High School, Gallup, N.M. He is a Korean War veteran, having served in the United States Air Force as an Air Traffic Controller.

Hopkins and his wife Mary, an elementary school teacher, reside at 2900 Thirty-fourth. The couple has a son, John, Lamar Junior High School student, and a married daughter, Mrs. Neal Starnes, the former Judy Morris.

Couple's dinnertime visits your own fault

By Abigail Van Buren

c 1973 By Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A nervy couple we know drops by unexpectedly several times a week—and always at dinnertime, so we have to invite them to stay for dinner. They are breaking us in the food department. They finish off everything so we never have any leftovers. Also, they drink coffee [which isn't cheap] by the gallon. When one pot is empty the wife gets up and makes another pot, just like she's in her own home.

They invited us to dinner at their place twice, and both times they served rice while they bragged that they had a whole cow in their freezer!

Don't suggest that we tell them we ate already when they come over. We tried that once and they said: "So did we," came in and sat until midnight and everybody's stomach was growling so loud we could hardly hear ourselves talk.

So how do we tell this couple not to come for dinner without hurting their feelings? STUCK

DEAR STUCK: What feelings? If you permit unwelcome guests to impose on you, look for sympathy under "S" in the dictionary.

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorced woman of 43 who has been dating a 50-year-old bachelor for two years. I'd like to know if I'm wasting my time. I cook him a full hot meal at least four nights a week, and how that man loves to eat! He is so sweet and affectionate to my two daughters, who are 10 and 12, but he never kisses me unless I practically force myself on him. The first time he kissed me I was boarding a bus to go visit my mother and I said: "Aren't you going to kiss me goodby!" So he kissed me.

Do you think there is something wrong with a man his age who can hardly keep his hands off 10 and 12-year-old girls but never makes a move toward a mature woman?

Also, he never says a word about our future. Should I bring it up? I would like to know where I stand.

TIRED OF WAITING

DEAR TIRED: Don't waste any more time on him. But to be sure you aren't passing up a likely prospect, ask him how he feels about marriage. I'll bet he disappears in a hurry, which will be a break for you.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's mother keeps telling me that a man's wife is nothing—his mother is the most important person in his life because a man can have 10 wives, but he can have only one mother.

I have the impression that she would like nothing more than to break up my marriage so she could have her son back home. She is twice-divorced.

My husband is a kind and gentle man, but he refuses to enter into any kind of controversy where his mother is concerned.

She thinks that because she attends church regularly and knows the Bible backwards and forwards she is a "good" woman.

Since my husband refuses to take my part against her, how can I defend myself? HURT

DEAR HURT: Tell her to refer to her Bible: "Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife." [Genesis 2, 24]

Private Dinner Follows Speech

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon followed up his televised news conference with a private dinner for some family and friends at the Western White House.

Attending the dinner were longtime Nixon adviser Bryce Harlow and Mrs. Harlow; the President's daughter, Julie Nixon Eisenhower; and his old friend, C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

A spokesman for Mrs. Nixon said the First Lady was visiting a friend, Helen Drown, in the Los Angeles area and was not on hand for the dinner.

Search On For Bodies In Flood

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The search for bodies continued today in flood-devastated Irapuato, in central Mexico, as the government poured emergency supplies and reconstruction funds into the area.

Ten persons were killed and more than 100 were missing when waters from flooded rivers and a ruptured dam washed over Irapuato Sunday. At least 15 more persons died in floods in other parts of Guanajuato state, bringing the two-week flood toll to at least 65 dead, with 250,000 persons homeless.

Damage to the cities and farmlands of Guanajuato was unofficially estimated at $800 million.

President Luis Echeverria toured the area Wednesday and ordered a massive aid package including funds for rebuilding homes. He promised to return to Irapuato on Sunday to see how the relief effort was progressing.

A presidential aide said medical supplies, 492 tons of food and powdered milk, 8,000 blankets and 5,000 temporary roofs had been brought to the city.

Meanwhile, authorities in Ciudad del Carmen, on Mexico's southeast coast at the base of the Yucatan peninsula, said 16 Mexican and 14 Cuban trawlers capsized Monday night when Hurricane-Brenda churned into the area. One of the trawlers sank but its crew was rescued.

Four persons were killed in homes that the storm smashed in the little town of Victoria, 50 miles west of Carmen. Flooded homes and other property damage were reported in dozens of communities in Campeche and Tabasco states.

Big Chains May Be Set To Slow Beef Purchases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many large food chains may be slowing down their purchase of beef through custom slaughter arrangements as the time nears for removal of the government's price lid on Sept. 12.

Last week brought the first decline in prices of live cattle in nearly two months, the Agriculture Department reported Wednesday. The decline was attributed partly to a reluctance by retailers to continue heavily in the custom slaughter practice.

"The chain stores and other secondary processors, which had been the prime movers in the live cattle market under custom slaughtering arrangements, suddenly became very selective in their buying," the department said in a weekly review of the livestock market.

Price lids on food except for beef were lifted July 18. Retailers frequently have used custom slaughtering to get beef for store counters.

Under the government's lid, retailers and wholesale packers cannot pass along higher costs. That has produced, in effect, a ceiling on live cattle prices which technically are exempt from control.

Consequently, many large supermarket chains have bought cattle directly from producers and then have had them slaughtered on a custom basis.

Cattle prices have edged upward to new records for many weeks since grocery chains have been willing to pay to keep beef on the counter.

The report, published by the department's Agricultural Marketing Service, said that the average market prices of live cattle began to break downward about the middle of last week.

Even so, the average for the entire week was another record price high, with steers selling at the major markets for $55.74 per 100 pounds on the hoof, up $1.84 from the previous week and $20.47 more than a year earlier.

The sale of dressed beef carcasses through regular channels continued "almost nonexistent" as it has recently, the report said. That indicated that custom slaughter still was very much in the picture.

Another factor has been the apparent growth of consumer resistance to the high price of beef, even at the ceiling levels.

One USDA spokesman said Wednesday that the possibility of food chains turning away from custom slaughter could result in a more severe beef shortage than now unless producers are willing to sell cattle at lower prices offered by packers in regular channels.

4 Mishaps Are Logged

City Police investigated four motor vehicle mishaps Wednesday involved in minor damage.

Officers said an unidentified motorist fled the scene after his vehicle was in collision with the parked 1964 Model Ford of E.P. Gonzales, 2208 Avenue T, on the parking lot of the Medical Arts lab at 3 p.m.

The next mishap occurred in the 2900 block of College Avenue at 5:14 p.m. Involved were the 1969 Model Pontiac of Peter Anton Nikias, College Park Apartments, and the 1963 Model Ford of Jack Allard Nesbit, 2805 Forty-seventh Street.

The 1973 Model Chevrolet of John Melvin Newton, 2711 Avenue F, and the 1969 Model Pontiac of Steve Eugene Robertson, 2710 Avenue K, were in collision at Twenty-fifth Street and Avenue T at 7:15 p.m.

There was a one-car mishap at Avenue J and Thirty-fifth Street at 10:17 p.m. Involved was the 1967 Model Dodge of Melvin Lee Jackson, 1012 Thirty-second Street.

Man Sentenced To 999 Years

HOUSTON (AP) — Jerry Leonard Farris, convicted of murder in the 1969 shooting death of a motel operator, has been sentenced to 999 years in prison.

A district court jury deliberated only 20 minutes Wednesday on the penalty.

Farris, 38, stood trial for a second time in the slaying of Willie Nash Bell after the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ordered a new trial May 16.

His first conviction in 1971 brought a 60-year prison sentence.

"The jury wanted to convey a message," said prosecutor George Karam, who had asked for 100 to 200 years.

Bell, 58, was killed and his wife wounded in a shootout during a robbery attempt, police said.

Farris, from Dallas, was one of three men charged.

Suspect Reveals 'Counter-Move'

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) — One of the men named with convicted Watergate burglar Frank Sturgis in a Florida indictment has spoken of a 1972 "counter move" against Sen. George McGovern and a plot to invade Cuba.

Jerry Buchanan of Harlingen says he was approached in early 1972 to take part in such moves against the eventual Democratic presidential candidate. He declined to say who approached him.

Buchanan, Sturgis and four other men are accused in a federal grand jury indictment at Miami of conspiring to run stolen cars into Mexico.

Buchanan spoke Wednesday to Lee Harr of KGBT—TV in Harlingen and The Associated Press while steering clear of federal authorities until he gets his personal affairs in order. Then, he says, he will surrender.

Buchanan said he believes the indictment is an attempt by the government to pressure Sturgis into talking about the burglary of the Democratic national headquarters. Sturgis pleaded guilty without revealing his actual role in the break in. He is serving a 40-year provisional sentence at a federal prison in Danbury, Conn.

The indictment charges the men were involved in the stolen car conspiracy in 1968 and 1969.

"Why, after five years, do they bring up these charges?" Buchanan asked.

"We are innocent. Frank, myself and the other people never planned to do anything against the people of the United States."

The Harlingen man said that the persons he talked with about McGovern told him they feared that the South Dakota Senator, if elected president, would diplomatically recognize Cuba.

Buchanan refused to say if the persons to whom he talked were later involved in the actual Watergate break in.

He said he has been involved in anti-Castro operations since 1960 and told of a plot to set up a training camp for a Cuban invasion in 1968. Buchanan said on several occasions he helped to land supplies and anti-Castro fighters on the coast of Cuba.

Buchanan acknowledged that most of the men named in the indictment had attended meetings at which plans to establish a training camp for anti-Castro Cubans in the mountains of Mexico and an invasion of Cuba were discussed.

The group planned eventually to invade Cuba by way of Honduras, he said, with the landing force to strike "on the back side of Cuba near the Isle of Pines."

Denying that the men planned to finance those operations with money obtained from selling stolen cars in Mexico, Buchanan said the operation was to be paid for "with money from the Cuban people in Miami."

Of those named in the indictment, Buchanan said John Lettieri never attended the meetings, adding, "He was just a good friend."

In addition to Sturgis, Buchanan and Lettieri, the indictment named Max Gonzalez, Frank Leslie Merritt and John Spinella.

More Women Enter Medical Practice

By Jeanette Johnson
For The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Women currently compose fewer than 10 per cent of practicing physicians in the United States, but their number is slowly increasing.

Estimates are that approximately 19 per cent of students entering medical school this fall are women, compared with 16.8 per cent in 1972, 13.7 per cent in 1971 and 11.1 per cent in 1970.

At Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn, one of the nation's largest colleges of medicine, with an enrollment of more than 800 medical students, women will make up 21.8 per cent of this fall's entering class. Dr. Jerome Parnell, chairman of the committee on admissions, says the increase in the percentage of medical students represents a sharp increase in the number of women applying for admission to medical schools.

Figures compiled by the Association of American Medical Colleges indicate that, in 1972, 16 per cent of all medical school applications came from women and in 1971, 12.8 per cent.

The upsurge in admission of women to medical schools comes little more than a century after Elizabeth Blackwell became the first woman to graduate from a school of medicine in the United States.

Random interviews with several of Downstate's women graduates suggest that one would be hard put to make generalizations about women physicians, whose motivations, talents and personalities are as varied as those of their male colleagues.

Dr. Dorothy Bocker was Downstate's first woman student. She was graduated in 1919 and recently retired from practice. Today she is 89 and lives in Daytona Beach, Fla.

Dr. Iris Slater was one of nine women who graduated in 1961 in a class of 135 students. An ophthalmologist, she has a private practice in Manhattan, appointments at Flower and Fifth Avenue hospitals and New York Medical College, where she is involved in research in glaucoma. She says she does not feel she encountered any particular problems in medical school because she was a woman, but feels she was treated differently when trying to obtain a residency.

"The interview at one of our more illustrious institutions really turned me off. The chairman did not ask me once about my medical interests," she recalls, "but he did spend a great deal of time on my social life."

Dr. Marie Zeterberg, class of 1954, chose pediatrics, the specialty that is by far the most popular among women physicians. "Pediatrics is a natural field for women. You feel very much at home here," says Dr. Zeterberg, who maintains a practice in Brooklyn.

Dr. Barbara Delano, class of 1965, says that her husband influenced her decision to study medicine. "I was always interested in medicine, and for a while I thought about being a nurse. I didn't want to give up the opportunity to be a wife and mother to be a doctor, but my boyfriend in college, who's now my husband, encouraged me, and made me realize that I could be a physician as well as a wife and mother."

Until July 1, when she completed her training and relocated to a hospital near Los Angeles, Dr. Jacqueline Struthers, class of 1965, was chief resident in cardiac and thoracic surgery at the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center. She was the first woman accepted for the medical center's surgical training program, and, obviously, the first to finish.

Dr. Struthers concedes that she has made sacrifices for her career. Recently married to a helicopter pilot, she says she wanted very much to get married when she was an intern, but waited six more years because she did not feel she could handle marriage and surgical training at the same time. Also, she says she does not plan a family.

Dr. Struthers feels that women patients will seek her out because she is a woman, and can establish better rapport with them. With male hospital patients, she generally waits a day or two to let them know her before she reveals that she will be their surgeon.

"They're generally a little doubtful at first. Then they start thinking, 'Gee, if she's the only woman surgeon here, she must really be good.' The first thing you know, they're bragging about having a woman surgeon."

One of two Downstate graduates who specialized in neurology, Dr. Iris Fletcher Norstrand, class of 1941, an attending neurologist at the Brooklyn Veterans Administration Hospital, says her career has been "a struggle every inch of the way."

Her parents bitterly opposed her plans, and refused to help finance her medical education. Her sister, playwright Lucille Fletcher, put her through medical school.

"A woman has to be three times as good as a man to get the job a man gets," says Dr. Norstrand. "Promotionwise, I believe I've had an extremely difficult time. One has to spend so much energy fighting that should be spent taking care of patients and teaching and doing research."

Dr. Norstrand has taken out some of her frustrations in writing. She is looking for a publisher for a novella she finished about a woman physician.

Wodehouse Promises Laughter

THE PLOT THAT THICKENED. By P. G. Wodehouse. Simon & Schuster. 221 Pages. $6.95.

What can you say about a writer like P. G. Wodehouse?

Well, for openers, he's remarkably prolific. His credits in this book, his latest novel, come to 79 books, which, while it may not be hay, is one big, big pile of words. Secondly, while Wodehouse's brand of humor may not be for everyone, for those who do dig it he is consistently funny. Which is not a bad talent to have.

And Wodehouse puts it to his usual good use in "The Plot That Thickened," a title that describes the book exactly. Wodehouse starts with a basically simple thesis: Monty Bodkin, a wealthy British idler, has fallen in love for some unknown reason with a rather outsize girl who plays on the All England women's hockey team. They are unable to marry, however, because the girl's father, a devious sort, insists that Monty be gainfully employed for a year before he can have the girl's hand.

From there, everything gets terribly complex as well as terribly funny. Monty does get a job, by blackmailing his employer. He works for a year but still doesn't get the girl because her father insists the way he got the job negates their agreement. So Monty gets another job — with the same employer, of course — and during the course of his second year he gets involved with jewel thieves who steal fake jewels; falls in love with another girl but won't marry her because a gentleman doesn't break his engagement even if he no longer loves the girl; and narrowly misses being arrested for drinking in an after-hours joint, a seemingly insignificant but vital point. When things get so tangled that it seems they never will straighten out, Wodehouse steps in, of course, and with a few masterly strokes sets everything to rights — but not before he's given the reader plenty of laughs.

You Can "Can" For The Fair

Canning is no longer a lost art; as food costs increase many families have discovered that home canned vegetables and fruits, home made pickles and relishes, jams and jellies not only save money but they also taste good. There's a special bonus in them, too. For many homemakers its a real sense of accomplishment in seeing the family food supply stack up.

It is easier to freeze food than to can it and for many years the home freezer had just about supplanted the trusty old pressure canner. For several years now increasing numbers of homemakers are canning some foods to supplement the freezer supply.

The canned foods exhibited at the Scurry County Fair have been consistently good quality, and each year's exhibit has been an attractive array of a wide variety of foods.

Look over your supply of canned foods and select some of your prettiest jars to enter. Every year some one says, "Oh, I don't can mine to enter in the fair. I just can for my family, so I couldn't enter mine."

The judges will be looking for foods your family would enjoy. Check for these points as you look at your jars. Is the jar a good "pack" or is it half full of water? Are the products fairly even in size and stage of maturity? Are they a pretty color typical of that product? These are all practical things to watch for in canning for your family, but they are what the judges will look for at the fair.

The judges are likely to be prejudicial against "fancy pack" jars that take a lot of time and add nothing to the product. One seeming contradiction to this would likely be in canned peach or pear halves, where the practical pack has the appearance of fancy pack. Place a half cut side down against the bottom of the jar and fill the jar by lapping more halves, cut side down over it. Bounce the jar against the palm of one hand while you hold it covered with the other hand to pack them as tight as you can without mashing them. You'll get more fruit in each jar and it makes a very pretty pack besides.

Mrs. Walter Stirl and Mrs. Forest Hess are superintendents of the canned food division and they'll be looking forward to registering some of your products the afternoon of September 13.

Check the list of rules and products to enter for suggestions in the 1973 Scurry County Fair Rule Book.

A small amount of sugar is usually added to non-sweet yeast breads because the sugar hastens the working of the yeast.

Save your chicken backs, gizzards, hearts, necks and wing tips — appropriately covered — in the freezer. Then when you have a good quantity of them use them for making chicken broth.

CANNING FOR THE FAIR—Maxann Preston, Ira 4-H Club member is getting ready to enter some of her canned products in the Scurry County Fair September 13-15 at the Coliseum. Maxann has entered canned food in the Junior Canned Food Division for the past two years and has won a "Best Product" award rosette and one or more boxes of canning jars each year.

Fresh Food Markets Holding Their Own In Rio

By JANET HUSEBY

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Old-fashioned fresh food markets are holding their own in this modern South American city of 4.3 million people. Despite inconvenience, government pressure to get rid of them and increasing competition from flashy supermarkets, the old outdoor markets still attract most Rio housewives.

The markets — the Brazilian word for them is feiras — are each composed of around 80 rickety wooden booths. They are set up and dismantled in the same day, usually in the middle of a street. Shoppers have their pick of 160 different locations a week.

On the fashionable South Side, where the famous Copacabana neighborhood is, the feiras stick to fruits, vegetables, fish and flowers. On the poorer North Side they sell everything from shoes to spaghetti.

In addition to licensed salesmen at the one or two-man booths, thousands of illegal hawkers work Rio's feiras. From trays hung around their necks or small cloths spread on the ground they sell toothpicks, wooden spoons, spices, lace, ingredients for black magic spells cocoanut candy and combs.

Hundreds of women jam between the feira booths. They either drag their own grocery carts or hire street urchins with home-made wooden carts on roller skate wheels to follow them around as they make their purchases.

The feirantes, as the insistent and loud booth owners are known, rely on the hard-sell technique. If a shopper stops in front of a fruit booth, a sliver of watermelon is immediately cut for her to taste or an orange is peeled.

Unlike supermarkets, where many products are wrapped in cellophane and touching is frowned upon, feiras encourage customers to pinch and squeeze all they want.

Cleanliness is not one of the feira's selling points. Booth owners toss unappealing or bruised fruit on the ground, and customers add to the mess as they pick and choose their ways through the displays.

Antonio Fioravante Fraga, the city official in charge of outdoor markets, estimates that 70-80 per cent of Rio's fresh fruits and vegetables are bought at the 24 daily feiras.

"Feiras will never die," he said. "First, because of tradition — housewives like the action and the chance to get together with their friends. Second, because the produce is often cheaper and better than in the supermarkets."

When a feira opens in the morning, its prices are about the same as in local supermarkets. But as the day goes on, the feirantes start cutting their prices. By closing time, feirantes simply dump their leftovers on the street and let beggars from hillside slums carry them away.

The feirantes start setting up their booths at 4 a.m., usually waking up most of the people in the neighborhood. All traffic is stopped until the feira closes down around 12:30 p.m.

A large part of each feirante's $7 monthly tax goes to the city Sanitation Department, which sends in squads of workers to clean up after each feira. But, despite such efforts, streets remain pretty messy following a feira.

Because of objections from residents in feira neighborhoods, the city does not openly encourage the expansion of outdoor markets. The number of licensed feirantes has been set at 9,000, and no new permits are issued.

Britain has fewer public holidays than nearly all other European nations.

Ira Bulldogs Could Win District Crown

"I may be going way out on a limb, but I think we have a good chance to win it," declared Coach Patrick Sadler, in his second season at the helm of the Ira Bulldogs.

Sadler did right well in his first year at Ira. The Bulldogs tied Hermleigh and Bula for the District 4-B Six-Man football crown. Their only two losses last season were to Hermleigh and to O'Brien in bi-district.

And, with five returning starters from last year's team, including four lads who made the All-District team, the Bulldogs will have plenty of first team strength.

The four who made all district are Randy Sterling, 210-pound senior nose guard or defensive center; Dale Wiggins, 140-pound senior running back; Perry Kruse, 185-pound senior offensive center; and, Tom Daves, 210-pound junior defensive end.

Sadler has one big problem. He's got to find a new quarterback.

"I think we'll try Tom Daves at quarterback this year," he said, adding, "He's quick enough. Tom didn't have any experience at the position last season and this will be his first year to throw passes."

"I hope he can develop into a passer," Sadler said, hopefully.

Tom's brother, Richard Daves, a 170-pound senior running back, is the other returning starter. He has great natural ability and Coach Sadler said he was the most outstanding player in the bi-district game. He feels Tom didn't make all-district because he didn't start as many of the games as the other regulars.

Four other Bulldogs saw spot duty last year. They include Bobby Haddox, 185, senior, defensive and offensive end; Tom Murphy, 135, senior, offensive end; Carl Smith, 170, senior, defensive end; and, Myron Calley, 150, sophomore, offensive end.

Only one other sophomore and four freshmen are on the squad. The soph is Hank Chenoweth, 140, a running back and safety who has good speed. The freshmen are Randy Perkins, 130, Royce Corbell, 145, Eddy Woolsey, 135, and Joe Sanchez, 180.

"Our strong point is experience, but our weakness is a lack of speed and depth," Coach Sadler pointed out.

If he improves on last year, the Bulldogs could win it outright. However, Coach Sadler is expecting Southland and Union Terry to be strong this year.

The Bulldogs have only one scrimmage scheduled. They tussle with Water Valley at 6:30 p.m. Friday, Aug. 31, in Ira.

The schedule includes eight games, including four district tilts.

The schedule:
Sept. 7—Hobbs
Sept. 14—Trent
Sept. 21—At Union Terry
Sept. 28—At Christoval
Oct. 5—Union Terry X
Oct. 26—Southland X
Nov. 2—At Hermleigh X
Nov. 9—At Bula X
(X—Denotes district games which begin at 7:30 p.m.; non-district games begin at 8 p.m.).

WTC Plans Sneak Preview

The affair will consist of a tour of the new athletic building with its swimming pool, basketball court, and physical education facilities and a tour through the new student centers' cafeteria, book store and recreation areas.

New coaches will be introduced and a snack will be served. All contributors to the recent WTC athletic scholarship drive are urged to attend this event at the WTC campus.

Pokes, Oilers Vie Tonight

HOUSTON (AP) — Instead of calling it the Texas pro football championship game, tonight's Dallas Cowboy-Houston Oiler exhibition football game might more aptly be named the reunion.

The Cowboys, like visiting kin, are anxious to see what Oiler general manager Sid Gillman has accomplished since he left the Cowboy family as assistant coach last season to rebuild the Oilers.

The Cowboys' visit may be a little premature. Although Gillman has made strides forward, it may take him awhile to get the house in order.

Houston has lost all three of its exhibition games, extending the Oilers' losing string to 14 straight, including last season's 1-13 record, worst in pro football.

The Cowboys have continued to prosper without Gillman and come into the game with a 2-1 exhibition record, including last week's 24-14 victory over New Orleans.

A standing room only crowd will watch the game in the Astrodome as the two Texas teams battle for the Governor's Cup, symbol of the state title.

The Cowboys have won five out of six of these duels, being shot down 37-21 in 1970.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry will start Roger Staubach at quarterback and Coach Bill Peterson will counter with Dan Pastorini for the Oilers.

Kickoff is 8 p.m.

Horned Frogs Switch To I

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Citing two good reasons, Texas Christian is partially scuttling its Wishbone attack this year in favor of the "I" formation.

The reasons: quarterback Kent Marshall and running back Mike Luttrell.

"By going to the I formation, we can take better advantage of Luttrell's running ability," explained head coach Billy Tohill.

"He doesn't have the blazing speed to get outside . . . but inside the ends he can depend on his size, strength and balance to get a lot of yardage.

"Kent can run and throw well so we've chosen a formation where he'll have the opportunity to do both."

Luttrell, a sophomore sensation a year ago, and Marshall, a potential star sidelined much of last season with a broken collarbone, are two of the bright spots in an offense torpedoed by graduation.

Fullback Ronnie Webb and flanker Steve Patterson give the Horned Frogs the illusion of a devestating attack, since both also are returning starters.

But it is only an illusion, since they must operate behind a line virtually stripped of experience. Only center Leon Bartlett is a veteran.

Southwest Conference scribes, detecting the absence of proven linemen, plus a hole or two in the defensive secondary, relegated the Horned Frogs to last place in preseason forecasts.

"Personally, it don't really impress me where we're picked," drawled Tohill. "It's where we finish that matters."

Tohill, fighting back from a near fatal car accident, admits that he's got some holes to plug if TCU is to survive a schedule that includes Ohio State and Tennessee as well as SWC champion Texas.

"But we're going to be a lot better than some people think we are," he vowed, noting that eight defensive veterans are returning to the fold.

They are ends Ed Robinson and Rusty Putt, tackles Charlie Davis and Tommy Van Wart, linebackers Dde Terveen and Gary Whitman, rover Chad Utley and safety Terry Drennan.

Davis looms as the top candidate for All America honors, and, says Tohill, "He can be as good a football player as he wants to be—he's got all the ability in the world."

Actually, in the final analysis the Frogs appear stronger in virtually all areas but the offensive line. It appears that senior lettermen Sidney Bond and Merle Wang are the leading tackle prospects there.

The top hands at guard are junior college transfer Terry Champagne and junior squadman John McWilliams.

Tohill says all are capable of doing "adequate" jobs and, with a little success in the first couple of games, could improve immensely with added confidence.

With Berl Simmons already the most prolific field goal kicker in TCU history, and ace punter Greg Anderson back, the Frogs kicking game is sound.

Last Call For Physical Exams

The last call for physical examinations for all male athletes in Snyder Public Schools has been sounded for 7 a.m. Friday.

The physicals will be given at the Travis Junior High School Gymnasium, and they are for athletes who are competing, or plan to compete, in all sports, and who missed the physicals given earlier.

The physical examination is required of each athlete before he can compete in the public school athletic program.

Chief Defense Will Be Tough

By ROBERT MOORE
Associated Press Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Hank Stram, the only coach the Kansas City Chiefs have ever had, seems to be trying a new approach this National Football League season, but the goal is the same ... another world championship.

Stram is playing more players than ever in this year's exhibition games, even, it appears, at the risk of coming away second best. He let his old standby quarterback, Len Dawson, sit on the bench in the opening test with New Orleans, won by the Chiefs 12-6.

Instead, Stram went with Mike Livingston, Dawson's understudy, and Dean Carlson, a second-year pro from Iowa State. Dawson played only the final six minutes in a 17-16 defeat by Detroit. Pete Beathard, another veteran quarterback, directed the Chiefs the rest of the way.

Stram inserted a barrage of rookies and reserves into both games.

"We have to see if we can win with these people as well as our regulars," Stram explains. "We are fortunate to have experienced people who have played in the NFL playing behind our regulars at almost every position. We will continue to play a lot of people in this preseason."

Still, when the Chiefs, who won the Super Bowl in 1970, open their regular campaign against the Los Angeles Rams Sept. 16, it's a pretty safe bet that most of the old hands, including Dawson, will be around for the first kickoff.

One notable exception might be Willie Ellison, a veteran running back acquired from Los Angeles. The Chiefs, lacking in running offense the past couple of years, went all out to obtain new rushers during the off-season, and one of them is Ellison. If Ellison doesn't get the call, Stram may lean toward Jeff Kinney, in his second year, or Wendell Hayes.

Ed Podolak, Kansas City's leading rusher each of the last three seasons, is certain to be one running back. Otis Taylor, a crack receiver, will be at flanker if he recovers from a leg injury in time.

The offensive line, possibly the Chiefs' biggest question mark because of its age, likely will have Jack Rudnay at center, Ed Buede and Mo Moorman at the guards, Jim Tyrer and Dave Hill at the tackles, Elmo Wright at split end and Willie Frazier or Morris Stroud at tight end.

The Chiefs will present a rugged defense, as usual, and probably have the NFL's top set of linebackers in Bobby Bell, Willie Lanier and Jim Lynch. The defensive backfield is tough with Mike Sensibaugh and Jim Kearney at the safeties and Emmitt Thomas and Jim Marsalis at the cornerbacks.

Four veterans man the defensive line positions: Marvin Upshaw, Curley Clup, Buck Buchanan and Wilbur Young. Stram has another tested veteran for a backup role, George Seals.

Kansas City's kicking game is among pro football's best. Jerrel Wilson, the NFL leader in 1972, will do the punting and Jan Stenerud, who has kicked at least 20 field goals in each of his six previous seasons, the placekicking.

Gilmore Wins 3000th Race

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — William (Budy) Gilmour is the fifth harness driver in history to drive 3,000 winners. He accomplished his feat July 16 at Yonkers Raceway.

Other drivers with 3,000 wins are Herve Filion, William Haughton, Del Insko and Joe O'Brien. Gilmour is a native of Lucan, Ont., but now lives in Westbury, N.Y., near Roosevelt Raceway.

Cornhuskers Have New Head Coach

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — There might be tougher acts to follow, but Tom Osborne would be hard put to think of one this fall when he takes over as head football coach of the Nebraska Cornhuskers.

In his first head coaching job, Osborne, 34, succeeds Bob Devaney, who retired as head coach following last season to devote full time to duties as Nebraska athletic director.

In his 11 years as head coach, Devaney logged a 101-22 record with nine bowl games and seven Big Eight titles.

The Cornhuskers have been particularly strong the past four years, rolling to a 42-4-2 record, three straight Orange Bowl victories, two national championships followed by a fourth place finish in last year's final Associated Press poll. The Huskers were 9-2-1 in 1972.

Besides Devaney's retirement, slotback Johnny Rodgers and middle guard Rich Glover, the two brightest stars of last year will both be missing, having graduated to the pros.

But Devaney left the cupboard far from bare, with 39 lettermen returning, including five offensive starters and four first-string defenders.

Chief among the returnees is quarterback David Humm, the lefthanded ace from Las Vegas who threw for 2,259 yards and 18 touchdowns during his sophomore season last year.

Although Humm can no longer throw to Heisman Trophy winner Rodgers, there are plenty of fleet receivers, including split end Bob Revelle, who caught 41 passes a year ago, and Frosty Anderson, who caught 15.

The running attack, one of last year's few weak spots, should be improved by a pair of highly touted sophomores, Tony Davis and John O'Leary. Maury Damkroger, a strong blocker, holds down the fullback spot in the Husker formation.

Defensively, tackle John Dutton, a 6-7, 248-pound product of Rapid City, S.D., is being talked about as a strong candidate to become the third straight Husker to win the Outland Trophy as the nation's outstanding lineman, following Glover last year and Larry Jacobson in 1971.

The Husker "blackshirt" defense will be put to a strong test early when Nebraska opens the season Sept. 8 in Lincoln against UCLA, one of the nation's best wishbone teams and the club which snapped the Husker 23-game winning streak last year with a 20-17 victory.

Legion First Round Held

LONGVIEW, Tex. (AP) — Mississippi, Texas and Tennessee posted first round victories in the Mid-South American Legion Baseball tournament here Wednesday night.

Mississippi swept to a 9-4 victory over Louisiana in the initial game of the 5-day tourney.

The Jackson-based team collected 10 hits off Louisiana pitching, while their hurlers netted 11 strikeouts.

Reliefer Bob Sanders was credited with the Mississippi victory after relieving starter Bob Towery in the sixth. Randy Miller absorbed the loss after he replaced Louisiana starter Steve Mura in the fifth.

Aaron Moves Step Closer

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Hank Aaron has moved one step closer to Babe Ruth's all-time home run record.

The 39-year-old Atlanta Braves outfielder hit the 705th home run of his major league baseball career Wednesday night. It was his 32rid home run of the season.

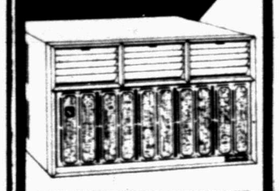

Aaron hit the bases-empty homer with two out in the sixth inning.

Ruth, the legendary New York Yankee star, hit 714 home runs during his career.

British Steel Building A Pollution-Free Mill

ROTHERHAM, England (AP) — Britain's state-owned steel corporation is building this country's first pollution-free steel mill, a plant designed to erase the grimy and noisy image of heavy industry.

The $67.5 million mill has been specially designed to eliminate air and water pollution and to minimize noise in the River Don Valley of Yorkshire.

The British Steel Corp.—BSC—boasts it will be as technically advanced as any in Europe. It will be built to specifications laid out by Lord Melchett, the BSC head until his death in June and a strong advocate of environment protection.

Preparation of the mill site, near Rotherham in northern England, started in May. Production is expected to begin in mid-1975, with the mill producing 400,000 metric tons of high quality steel bars annually by 1977.

The mill will be part of British Steel's Aldwarke and Roundwood steel-making complex. It will be known as the Thrybergh Bar Mill.

Close attention has been paid by its designers to eradicating pollution from the production process.

A BSC spokesman said: "As far as air pollution is concerned, the crucial stage of the operation, which is the reheating furnace, will use a low sulphur fuel.

"This will result in no visible emission and the stack height will be so arranged to ensure effective dispersal and negligible contamination of the atmosphere."

The plant will take its water supply from the Don. The spokesman said: "Steps have been taken to ensure the water, used for cooling, will probably be cleaner when it is put back into the river than it was when we removed it."

He added: "The main noise problem comes toward the end of production when the finished bars are rattling about. We are doing as much as possible to damp this down."

The mill is being built on ground only half a mile from the village of Thrybergh which lies on the main Rotherham to Doncaster road.

A natural incline will hide most of the plant from view but additional landscaping is being included in the project to ensure that mili buildings do not interfere with the visual surroundings.

Bridge Bashed By Army Tank

FT. SILL, Okla. (AP) — A tank from Ft. Sill has demolished a Texas bridge, Army officials report.

A Ft. Sill spokesman said the tank was being transported Monday to Ft. Benning, Ga., on a truck. The tank's gun ripped out four steel and concrete supports on a farm road overpass crossing U.S. 69 at the west edge of Whitewright, Tex.

Officials said the gun also punched a hole in the overpass pavement. Chains holding the tank on the truck snapped and the tank was dumped on the highway under the overpass.

A spokesman at Ft. Sill said the barrel of the gun was turned skyward for the trip, and the truck driver apparently failed to take its height into consideration when he approached the 13-foot, 6-inch clearance.

Soviet Satellite Disintegrates

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The North American Air Defense Command (NORAD) reported a Soviet communications satellite disintegrated on re-entry into the earth's atmosphere Tuesday night in the skies near Great Bend, Kan.

Canadian Maj. Dale Northrop said NORAD was told about the re-entry by the Soviet government before the satellite reentered the earth's atmosphere about 11 p.m.

Miller's Band Still Popular

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly 29 years after his death, the name and fame of bandleader Glenn Miller remain greatly alive, a musical legend that defies the changing years.

The orchestra he founded in 1937 still bears his name and is still at the forefront of America's few big dance bands.

It had become the most popular organization of its kind when Glenn, a trombonist, put down his baton to take up another as a captain in the U.S. Army. Promoted to major, he was reported missing on a routine flight over the English Channel on Dec. 15, 1944. Neither the plane nor his body were ever found.

Although the United States is a hurry-up country with its attention on the future, not the past, nostalgia often finds a ready cash register here. So it has turned out with the Glenn Miller story. The fans still wanted his music.

Revived by the musician's estate after the close of World War II, the Glenn Miller Orchestra slowly worked its way back to the top.

In its third postwar director, Buddy DeFranco, the band has found a talent which rivals that of the founder himself. Tall, blue-eyed and friendly, Buddy started playing at the age of 9, and for 15 years has been many times rated in musicians' polls as the No. 1 clarinetist in the nation.

"I only met Glenn briefly," he recalled during a break at the St. Regis Roof, where the band is concluding a successful engagement. "He was quite strict, but always a gentleman."

Explaining the band's enduring appeal, DeFranco said:

"Few bands really have their own identifying sounds. Among those that do are Herb Alpert's, Duke Ellington's, Count Basie's and Guy Lombardo's. Benny Goodman, Artie Shaw and Tommy Dorsey were more soloists.

"Miller was never a soloist. He was a skilled orchestrator and devised the new sound that made his band famous. It is a reed sound, based around the clarinet and four saxes. It is more than merely nostalgic. It is a romantic sound, and therefore has a fresh appeal to each generation."

The band still has 18 members, as in Miller's day, the same theme song, "Moonlight Serenade," and about 75 per cent of its numbers is the music Miller played, including such hits as "In the Mood," "String of Pearls," "A Serenade in Blue," and "Tuxedo Junction."

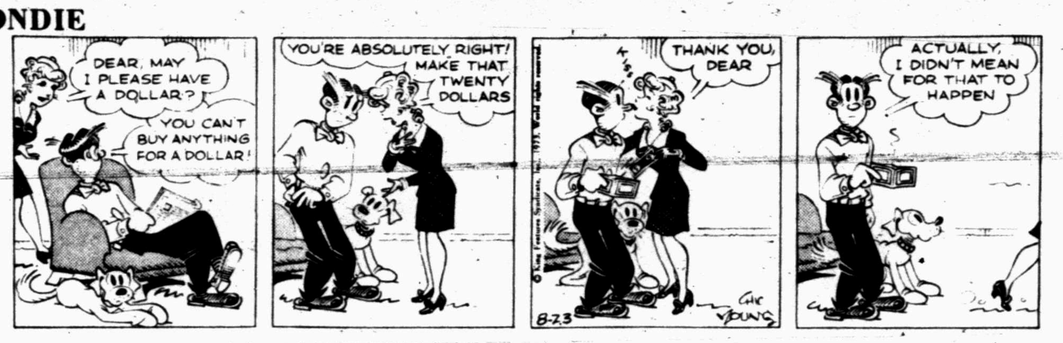

"But we play a lot of the new stuff, too, just as Glenn would if he were still here. You have to. We now appeal to the young fans as well as the 40 and up group."

Junior Editors' Quiz on THE GLASS SNAKE

QUESTION: What is a glass snake and where is it found?

• • •

ANSWER: The glass snake is really a lizard. It has no legs and for this reason, it has been mistaken for a snake. The fact that it is limbless makes it somewhat snakelike in appearance. The ear openings, eyelids and many rows of belly scales show that it is a true lizard. The head is unlike that of a snake.

A glass snake is about 2 feet long, and the tail is more than twice the length of the body. The word glass has been associated with this lizard because of the brittleness of the tail. When pursued by an enemy, the glass snake sheds its tail, which continues to wriggle and holds the interest of the enemy. After using this diversion, the lizard makes its escape. It grows a tail which is smaller than the original one. The long tail is so fragile, it may break off when the animal is captured or roughly handled. The glass snake is found in southeast Europe and in the southeastern and central part of the United States. It feeds on insects, worms, slugs, spiders and small snails. It may bite when handled.

Fear Of Russia Seen In Meet Of China Leaders

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

China's Communist leaders have just held some sort of important meeting in Peking, and whatever was on the agenda it's a good bet that fear and suspicion of the Soviet Union is inspiring the regime to get its political house in order.

With Moscow pouring on the heat, Peking probably considers it no longer advisable to continue—as it has for two years—without a defense minister, with gaping holes in upper levels of the military establishment, with gaps in the upper party strata and without fixed guidelines for the succession to aged Mao Tse-tung.

All this year the Russians have been carrying on a propaganda campaign against the pragmatists under Premier Chou En-lai, who have been running China. While the Chinese have been answering back, their retorts have seemed less violent than the attacks.

Even while the big meeting was in session in Peking last week, Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet party chief, went out of his way to make serious charges against the Peking regime.

He accused it of a policy "founded on fanatical anti-Sovietism and subversive activity against the socialist countries," and, in fact, of interfering in those countries' affairs.

This was the same Moscow regime which laid down the doctrine that it had a right to intervene with force in any situation where "socialism" was endangered.

The Chinese illuetrated on Tuesday how aware they are of the possibilities in that attitude. On the fifth anniversary of the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, China's United Nations mission circulated a paper entitled, "The longer the occupation, the tighter the noose."

It said Moscow had increased its occupation troops in Czechoslovakia and was still ruthlessly suppressing the Czechoslovak people. Peking has made no secret of its fear that Moscow might try one day to apply that doctrine to China, perhaps with a "surgical" strike against China's developing nuclear weapons system.

Meanwhile, there's a lot of patching to be done. The purges following the downfall of Lin Piao, once successor to Mao Tse-tung, left not only the defense ministry vacant, but also top army and navy posts and key aviation and logistics ones. In the ruling party Politburo, only 13 members remain of the 21 named in 1969, and only half a dozen are really active. The Politburo's inner circle "standing committee" of five now has only three—Mao, Chou and Kang Sheng. Mao, nearing 80, is receding more and more to the background and Kang, 73, has been ailing. That leaves the 75-year-old Chou practically alone in the exercise of political power.

If the party now is preparing to fill the gaps and perhaps ready the National People's Congress that was derailed by the Lin purge, it can be taken as an indication that Chou's people have carried the day against their critics and achieved some political stability. They may now want to move fast, if only because of the Soviet attitude.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. What's the difference between a regular IRS audit and your "unallowable items" program?

A. Under the IRS "Unallowable Items Audit Program," certain errors on Federal income tax returns are identified and corrected during return processing at IRS Service Centers. The items corrected are the ones that are clearly not deductible and are unallowable by statute, such as dividend exclusions in excess of the amount allowed by law or failure to reduce medical expenses by one and three percent of adjusted gross income. A regular audit involves an examination of the taxpayer's books or records, while the correction of an unallowable item is simply a step in the processing of returns.

However, a taxpayer who is contacted by an IRS Service Center concerning an unallowable item has the same appeal rights available to him as under other audit procedures.

Q. My son is a full-time student and is earning a lot of money from his summer job. If he earns more money than I spend for his support, will I lose his dependency exemption?

A. The "support" test of the dependency rules is not keyed to how much your dependent earns or how much income he has, but to how much he spends on support items. For example, if your son banked his earnings instead of spending them on support items, they would not count towards his support. Likewise, if your son spent his earnings on a non support item, such as a car, that amount would not count towards his support.

These considerations and others are explained in IRS Publication 501, "Your Exemptions for Dependents." Your son can plan his finances so that you will not lose his dependency exemption. The booklet is available by mail from your Internal Revenue district office at no charge.

Q. I subscribe to a daily financial newspaper to keep an eye on my investments in the stock market. Is the cost of the subscription deductible?

A. Yes, such fees are deductible as income-producing expenses on your return if you itemize.

Nixon Says His Support Of Agnew Is Continuing

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon has declared his continued strong support of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and has personally asked the Justice Department to investigate news leaks about a criminal investigation in which Agnew is involved.

Nixon's request for an investigation was relayed to Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson on Wednesday by White House Chief of Staff Alexander Haig, said a Justice Department spokesman in Washington.

The spokesman, John Hushen, added that Richardson would take "every reasonable step" to plug the leaks.

At a news conference here Wednesday, Nixon said he welcomed the chance to respond to reports that he no longer fully supported Agnew now that the vice president is involved in a Baltimore grand jury probe of alleged kickbacks and political corruption.

"I want to set the record straight," Nixon told newsmen in his first personal, public statement on Agnew's legal troubles. "I had confidence in the integrity of the vice president when I selected him as vice president...My confidence in his integrity has not been shaken. In fact, it has been strengthened by his courageous conduct and his ability..."

Nixon said he felt it improper to comment on specific allegations against Agnew because the matter is before a grand jury which legally conducts its business secretly. He also declined comment on whether Agnew would be asked to resign if indicted. Nixon called such speculation inappropriate.

Nixon made his statement less than 24 hours after Agnew had publicly accused unnamed Justice Department officials of leaking investigative information in a deliberate smear campaign aimed at affecting the grand jury's deliberations.

Richardson has said there is no evidence of such tactics at this time.

George Beall, the U.S. attorney in Baltimore who is heading the probe, notified Agnew Aug. 2 that he was under investigation for possible violations of tax, extortion, conspiracy and bribery laws in connection with allegations that Maryland contractors paid off politicians for favored treatment in job awards.

Agnew has flatly denied all allegations against him.

In another development, the committee which sponsored the "Salute to Ted Agnew Night" fund raising dinner last year was named in an indictment charging violations of Maryland election law. The 19-member committee was accused of falsifying financial reports involved in the event.

Two Singers And Director Robbed

DETROIT (AP) — Police say two former singers with the Temptations and the singing group's director were robbed by two armed men.

More than $800 and several pieces of clothing and jewelry belonging to singers Eddie Kendricks and David Ruffin and director Cornelius Grant, were reported taken by the robbers Wednesday.

The three men were in Detroit to attend the funeral on Friday of Paul Williams, also a former singer with the group.

Williams was found dead last Sunday of gunshot wounds in what police said was an apparent suicide.

Air Standards May Be Eased

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency soon may ease its tightest air quality standards to allow power plants to continue burning coal, an administration source says.

An announcement of the move could come as early as today or Friday, the source said.

The source indicated EPA was considering an easing of its secondary standard limiting the permissible concentration of sulfur oxides in the air.

But there would be no tampering with the federal primary standards designed to protect human health, the source insisted.

Both the primary standards and the more stringent secondary standards, designed to protect plants, animals, property and the environment, were set by EPA on April 30, 1971.

Under federal law the primary standards for clean air must be achieved by mid-1975, but the law provides that each state may set its own deadline for meeting the secondary standards.

Twenty-two states have adopted mid-1975 as their deadline for secondary standards.

Administration officials say the clean air standards, especially the secondary standards, are causing fossil-fueled power plants to begin switching from sulfur-laden coal to low-sulfur oil.

And that increases the strain on the nation's already tight supplies of oil and gas, they contend.

For the past few months, EPA and other administration spokesmen have been suggesting that the states postpone application of secondary standards for three or four years, and allow power plants and other industrial buildings to continue using coal while devices to clean up coal-smoke are brought into the market.

It was not clear whether the administration's forthcoming announcement would revoke the annual-average limit, or change existing standards to permit higher levels of sulfur oxide.

Japan Has A Water Shortage

By MITSUO KIMURA
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — When employes of Tokyo's Imperial Hotel went to work this week, they found this notice on the bulletin board:

"Use only two out of three bathrooms. Hot water cannot be supplied. Cooks and night shift staff are urged to take showers only once, either late at night or early in the morning, instead of twice as usual."

Similar notices urging Japanese to conserve water went up in other hotels, offices and public buildings.

The reason is that Japan, which has filled the world with its products, is having trouble filling its own water tanks. A dry spell has left most of the country short.

No one is going thirsty. But except for the islands of Okinawa in the south and Hokkaido in the far north, the Japanese and their industries are being told to think twice before turning on the faucet.

"We are hoping for a typhoon," joked an official of the Tokyo waterworks.

At the start of the week, Tokyo authorities cut water supplies by 20 per cent to about 224 power plants, factories, railway stations, hotels, department stores, schools and hospitals.

The cuts hit institutions that consume more than 500 tons of water a day, particularly factories.

The water supply to Tokyo's 2.5 million homes was reduced Wednesday by 7 per cent. So far, the cuts in Tokyo do not produce dry taps. They just lower the water pressure.

The Central Meteorological Agency said the last measurable rain in Tokyo and the surrounding Kanto Plain fell Aug. 1. Officials added that July rainfall in the area measured 1.7 inches, a sharp decline from the normal average of 7.2 inches for that month. The forecast is for more dry, hot weather.

Catskills Has Deer Hunts

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — After a lapse of one year, party permits for deer hunters will be available this fall in the Catskill region of New York State. There will be 14,650 permits available in seven deer management units in the Catskills. Last year's moderate winter and the preceding winter have permitted a significant increase in the size of the deer herd.

Party sizes vary from three to six members for regular permits and from two to four members for landowner permits. Applications must be submitted by Sept. 15. No fee is necessary but the application must be accompanied by the party member's big game license stub.

Task Force Of Indians In Riot Training

LOS FRESNOS, Tex. (AP) — A task force of American Indians is being trained in riot control procedures near this South Texas town.

But Bill Walker, training coordinator for the Bureau of Indian Affairs, said Tuesday only about nine of 43 American Indian volunteers who started the course about five weeks ago will complete it Friday.

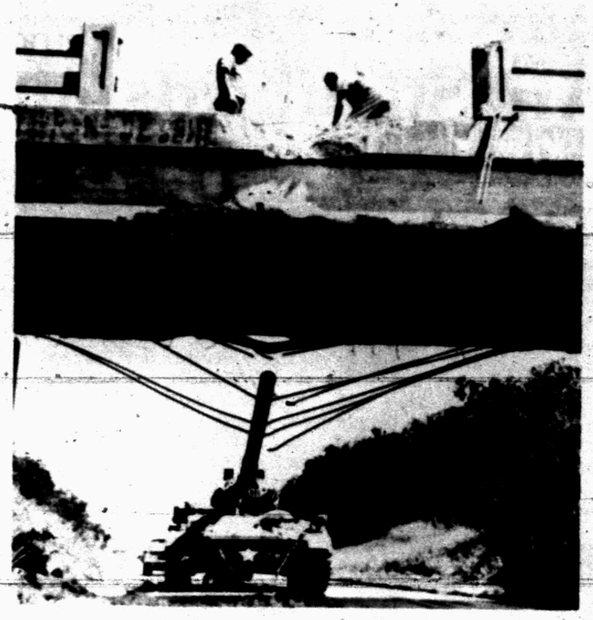

U.S. Marshals are in charge of the training program being conducted at the U.S. Border Patrol Academy.

The purpose of the program is to form a task force of trained men to be sent to the scene of civil disorders involving Indians, according to Eugene Suarez, chief of law enforcement for the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Upon completion of the program, the men will return to various tribal reservations where they have been law enforcement officers. Suarez said the men will be on call for use in future disturbances such as the one earlier this year at Wounded Knee, S.D.

The goal of the program, Suarez said, is to get 48 men trained. Officials said many of those who started the intense course were at Wounded Knee during the civil disorder.

The men were being trained Tuesday in riot and crowd control, using both physical and psychological methods. Marching in cadence with their night sticks in front of them, the men practiced maneuvers used in breaking up crowds.

CANNON KNOCKS OUT BRIDGE WITHOUT FIRING A SHOT—This old overpass on Highway 69 at Whitewright, Texas, was wrecked Monday when a Ft. Sill, Okla., 175mm howitzer rammed its long barrel through the 12-inch-thick concrete floor. The 30-ton gun was being hauled on a low-boy trailer to Ft. Benning, Ga., with its barrel slightly elevated as a safety precaution to rear-end traffic, but not accounting for the lower elevation of the Whitewright bridge. (AP Wirephoto)

Ex-Astronaut Is Burned In Crash

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Former astronaut Fred W. Haise Jr. suffered critical burns Wednesday night in the crash of a World War II training plane he was trying to land at an airport here.

Haise, 39, was admitted to a Galveston hospital. Doctors said he had second degree burns over 50 per cent of his body with patches of third degree burns on his legs.

The former astronaut was flying a BT13, a World War II basic trainer, when "the engine quit," officials quoted him as saying.

Haise attempted to crash-land the single-engine craft on a shoreline but a landing gear failed to lower properly, he said. The airplane cartwheeled, tore off one wing and burned.

When he tried to get out of the wreck, Haise said, the canopy jammed. He kicked his way free and was able to walk away.

"When he got here, he was alert," said a hospital spokesman, who described Haise's condition as "critical, but stable."

Officials said the plane Haise was flying belonged to the Confederate Air Force, an organization of aircraft buffs. It was painted to resemble a Japanese torpedo attack fighter.

Haise was ferrying the airplane from Angleton Airport, southwest of Galveston, to an airport in this island city.

In his only space flight, Haise was the lunar module pilot on the ill-fated Apollo 13 moon mission in 1970.

An oxygen tank on the Apollo craft exploded while Haise and astronauts James W. Lovell and John L. Swigert were on their way to the moon. They were forced to take refuge in the attached lunar module until the crippled spacecraft could return to earth.

Haise resigned the astronaut corps earlier this year and was named a technical assistant in the space shuttle development program at the Johnson Space Center near Houston.

He and several other astronauts are members of the Confederate Air Force, a group of pilots who collect, fly and exhibit World War II type aircraft.

May Restore Latin Hymns

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP) — Pope Paul VI says he's considering reinstating Latin as the mandatory language for hymns in the Roman Catholic Mass.

The pontiff said Wednesday at his weekly public audience that "many are asking that the Latin and Gregorian singing of the Gloria, Credo, Sanctus and Agnus Dei be preserved in all countries. May God let it be so. Study can be resumed to see how this can be done."

Vatican sources said many favored reinstating Latin as a symbolic gesture of unity for the world's Roman Catholics.

Latin has been abolished as the mandatory language of Roman Catholic services for about six years.

Double Duty Seen For Panel

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A proposed commission to set legislators' salaries possibly could double as an enforcer of newly passed ethics, lobby control and campaign finance laws, Speaker Price Daniel says.

Daniel failed during this year's regular legislative session to win passage of bills creating an ethics commission.

He asked the House Subcommittee on Ethics in a letter released Wednesday to look at other states' experiences with pay commissions and report its findings well before the legislature meets Jan. 8 as a constitutional convention.

A new constitution might leave open the possibility of the pay commission receiving other duties from the legislature, Daniel said.

"In other words, the legislature at some future session might assign other responsibilities to the commission such as administration and enforcement of the ethics, campaign finance disclosure and lobby control laws enacted by the 63rd Legislature," the speaker said.

Subcommittee chairman Larry Bales, D-Austin, also said the committee intended to look into the possibility of using the pay commission for other duties.

He said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who opposed creation of an ethics commission, would have a chance "to make vocal their reasons for opposition to an ethics commission."

Governors Of Mexico To Visit

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe said Wednesday the governors of the Mexican states of Nuevo Leon, Jalisco and Yucatan will be his guests here Sept. 11 after attending the opening of the Mexican Trade Fair in San Antonio.

Briscoe also will attend the opening on Sept. 10.

The five-day fair is sponsored by the Mexican Institute of Foreign Trade, the City of San Antonio and the Greater San Antonio Chamber of Commerce.

It is part of Mexico's program of expanding exports to the United States and enlarging the number of articles manufactured for sale outside its boundaries.

During the Sept. 11 visit here, the governors and their official parties will visit with Briscoe and tour various points of interest here.

Federation Says Strike Unnecessary

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Federation of Teachers (HFT) says the recent one day teachers' strike was unnecessary.

"The strike was a show because it did not have informed support," an HFT council statement said.

John Cheesman, HFT president, read the council's statement at a Wednesday news conference.

"The strike was a failure because it was unplanned, unorganized and unacceptable to teachers who believe in substance, not show," the statement said.

Some 1,400 teachers struck the Houston Independent School District Monday but decided to return to classes Tuesday and resume negotiations. They are asking for higher pay and better working conditions.

The strike was called by the president of the Houston Teachers Association (HTA). The HTA represents the district in consultations on conditions of employment.

Cheesman, a junior high school teacher, declined to reveal how many teachers belong to the HFT.

"Less than 1,000 would be a good way to put it," he said.

"If teachers are going to strike then we should strike to win," the HFT statement said.

Mississauga, Ont., created by the amalgamation of the Toronto suburbs of Cooksville, Clarkson and Malton, is the largest town in Canada.

Bison Reunion Set For Sept. 3

Residents and former residents of the Bison Community in Southwestern Scurry County are making plans for their annual reunion scheduled for Sept. 3, Labor Day. It will be held at the Knapp Community Center.

The Bison Community Reunion was organized 12 years ago by J.W. Key, and it has been held each succeeding year on Labor Day.

This year, the hours will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and special entertainment has been planned, which will include fiddlers from Gail and other points who will provide music of the type early-day residents of the area will recognize. Those who desire, are being encouraged to dress in pioneer-day costumes. However, all are urged to attend and bring covered dishes for the meals of the day.

Mrs. J.E. Sorrells, a long-time resident of the community, noted that 27 of the group attending the first Bison reunion 12 years ago have passed away. These include Nolan von Roeder, Ben Weathers, Aubrey Huddleston, Mrs. Walker Huddleston, Ross Huddleston, Homer Huddleston, Hugh Huddleston, T.J. Sterling, C.V. Thompson Sr., Albert Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller, LaVerne Miller, Claude Miller, Bill Burney, Travis Burney.

Also, Roy Lockhart, Dewey Engle, Mrs. F.L. Sorrells, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Marr, Robert Warren, Wiley Martin, Mrs. Andy Trevey, Mrs. J.W. Key, Mrs. Earl Cary, Rudie Richter and Walter Weathers.
