Only miracle can prevent his nomination

Ford in GOP driver's seat

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — President Ford appeared firmly in control of the 1976 Republican National Convention as the delegates prepared to choose the party's presidential nominee tonight. He established his dominance with a clear-cut victory on an issue chosen by challenger Ronald Reagan.

With the climatic confrontation toward which Ford and Reagan have moved for nine months only hours away, supporters of the former California governor saw little hope for a political miracle in the balloting tonight.

"Unless Mr. (John) Sears (Reagan's campaign manager) can pull a rabbit out of the hat, we'll be in trouble when they vote on the nomination," said Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina. "And I haven't seen any rabbit hutches around Reagan headquarters lately."

"I would say the President may win by a couple of hundred votes," said Warren McPherson, a Reagan supporter who is chairman of the Washington state delegation.

Ford was buoyant. A source close to his campaign said the President has narrowed his list of vice presidential prospects to five. Another source said the list was down to four names.

Ford stopped by his campaign office today and told reporters, "I feel great. I'll feel better tonight."

Then the President went to a meeting with Republican governors to discuss party unity and the vice presidency.

Reagan continued to visit delegation caucuses in search of the miracle he needs to turn the convention around.

As for the vote rejecting his bid to force Ford to name his vice presidential choice before tonight's voting, Reagan said, "This is one time I disagree with the majority."

Reagan told Kansas delegates that the convention delegates "had not been hearing the truth ... Several individuals have been named at the various delegate caucuses as vice presidential candidates, and they know that only one of them can get there."

After the defeat of Reagan's bid to force Ford to name his running mate this morning, attention turned to the remaining men on Ford's list of prospects, said by one source to number only five now.

Ford was described as delighted with the outcome of the first test of strength at the convention.

A Reagan spokesman said the former California governor still expects to win the presidential nomination. He described Reagan as "disappointed but not completely surprised." But Reagan's campaign director acknowledged that it would be an uphill battle.

After a decisive 1,180-1,069 victory in the first major test of this 31st GOP convention, Ford's strategists worked out a compromise that avoided another floor fight over the foreign policy plank in the party platform.

Backers of both sides arrived at the convention hall Tuesday knowing that before the session ended they would have a clear indication of which man had the strength to prevail. It was an emotional night. The noise and the politics had escalated from the opening day sessions on Monday. The demonstrations when Mrs. Ford and then Mrs. Reagan arrived in the hall were louder and longer than they had been the night before.

Speakers were interrupted as partisans for both candidates tried to shout each other down.

Support for Reagan unwavering

Lone Star delegates still hope

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Suddenly Texas delegate David Keller, a Houston longshoreman, lunged and grabbed the blue President Ford sign tacked up on the wall beneath the row where Betty Ford was sitting.

Keller, one of the devoted 100-member, Ronald Reagan-pledged delegation, wadded the sign up in his hands Tuesday night as President Ford supporters all around him yelled angrily on the floor of the Republican National Convention.

The episode occurred shortly before Texas voted all its delegates for a Reagan-backed rule forcing President Ford or any nominee to name his vice presidential choice by 9 a.m. today. The rule later lost.

As Keller crumpled up the sign, delegation aide Coby Piepper appeared quickly and tried to calm him down, saying "a scene" could hurt Reagan's image.

Keller said he pulled down the sign "in retaliation" because convention security yanked down a sign backing Reagan, the former California governor, the night before.

When the vice presidential vote was over and the tension on the floor had eased somewhat, Ray Barnhart, the delegation chairman, said the rule defeat was definitely a "setback. But the battle is not over yet."

Earlier in the day, state Sen. Betty Andujar of Fort Worth echoed the same sort of never-say-die sentiment when she said:

"The Reagan people are tuned out to anything but victory..."

She and several other Texas delegates disputed media tallies showing Ford could now claim the nomination as his own.

Asked by reporters if the Texas delegation would unite behind Ford if he were the victor, she said: "Yes, they must. The common enemy is the Democratic party."

But emotions in the Texas delegation were still far from friendly toward the Ford forces.

Betty Culver, a Midland county judge, said the Ford strategy to win over delegates could be described as "Santa Claus is coming to town."

"Do you want a judgeship, an Air Force base, a defense contract or whatever they've had to offer," she said. Asked if she knew if anyone in the Texas delegation had been offered a bribe, she said no.

Did someone tell her that was the Ford strategy? "No one has told me that," said Mrs. Culver with a wide grin. "I figured that out myself."

Barnhart also alluded to the Ford forces' strength when he told the Texas caucus during an afternoon meeting that Reagan forces faced an "uphill battle" that "might very well be doomed to defeat."

The Houston businessman, who quickly said he still thought Reagan could win, told the delegation: "I don't estimate the force of an incumbent White House."

In a speech reminiscent of a revivalist minister's preaching to his congregation Barnhart in a loud, strong voice told the delegates Reagan could carry the convention and confound the experts, just as he did in the Texas primary with his win there.

Shortly after the night session began, the delegation heard from another speaker it was familiar with — John Connally, whom they cheered on with shouts of "Big John" and placard waving.

"Connally gave a good talk. Connally always makes a good talk. Unfortunately, I couldn't hear much of it," said Ernest Angelo, the Midland mayor who was co-chairman of Reagan's Texas campaign.

Angelo was referring to the noise and confusion around the Texas delegation, which is seated far to the side and back of the convention floor.

Meanwhile, a six-member grievance committee appointed by Barnhart continued collecting Texas delegates' complaints about the convention's handling. Barnhart has said Ford forces favored their own rooms, convention guest passes and floor seating.

Shout long and loud for Reagan

Texans in cowboy hats fail to rope attention at KC

(Special to the Herald)

"Ole' and Vive.' We have absolutely hollered ourselves hoarse here in Kansas City," Mrs. Dorothy Hall, national alternate Republican delegate said in a telephone call to the Big Spring Herald today.

Bill Sheppard, delegate, and Winston Wrinkle and Mrs. Hall, alternates, were among those in the very loud and long Reagan demonstrations during the long night Tuesday at the GOP convention in Kansas City.

The Texas delegation, placed back in the far corner of the hall where it is apparently deemed that all Reagan supporters belong, got on national television only briefly. Midland Mayor Ernie Angelo and Ray Hutchinson, outgoing and incoming state committeeman, were shown for a moment as they said "Texas votes 100 Aye on the amendment." One of the two men then added, "Ay-Yi-Yi" and doffed his cowboy hat.

"One Democrat delegate in New York may have gotten attention wearing a cowboy hat, but the entire Texas delegation wore cowboy hats on the floor Tuesday night to no avail," Mrs. Hall added.

"Since we were right in front of Walter Cronkite and the National CBS crew, we did get tacky notes sent down on a regular basis asking us to remove our hats and hold our signs down along the floor," she laughingly added.

The delegation stayed until the bitter end at 2:30 a.m. today. "Along toward morning, we won some planks in the platform on morality and saw the Ford camp's amendment to approve abortion fail," the local alternate added. "We stayed. They told us to take a nap if we needed to, but keep our bodies present for the vote," she recalled.

The group was up at 8 a.m. and trying to find out what happened to the man who jerked out Rockefeller's telephone. They were hoping that if he went to jail that somebody had made bail.

Mrs. Hall said they had invitations to a $1,000 a plate luncheon being hosted by Rockefeller for both Ford and Reagan, but had decided to skip that and go to the 6 p.m. Reagan rally in the center.

"We have not given up. There are still many rumors that some states will release their unit rule and that there may be more votes for Reagan than there were for the amendment," Mrs. Hall added.

She related that Big Spring's Bill Sheppard was discouraged but had not given up. "Whether we can come home and work hard for Ford if he is the nominee may depend on the vice presidential nominee. Howard Baker is being talked about, but nothing would surprise us," she added.

Mrs. Hall said that she personally felt strongly about the amendment asking for disclosure of the vice president candidate prior to the vote on the candidate for president. "I wish that we had approved it for 1980 if it was too late to do this time," she ended.

Sex offenses quiz scheduled

The Air Force Thursday is reconvening a hearing for investigating charges of sex offenses said committed in the Philippine Islands by an officer presently stationed at Webb Air Force Base.

Maj. Harold Roy Freeman has been indicted through the state court system on accusations of family sex crimes said to have happened in his Sand Springs home.

Meanwhile, District Court Judge Ralph W. Caton has entered an order specifying the Texas Department of Public Welfare as having custody of two stepchildren of Freeman. The boy and girl were named as victims of the alleged crimes.

County Commissioners Court has declined to pay for foster care of the children, and the district court order enables the foster parents to receive funds from the federal government.

Fishermen 'hooked' for $731

Moss Creek Lake visitors shelled out $671 in July

The City of Big Spring received $671 in entance fees at Moss Creek Lake during July, the first month fees were charged motorists.

Issued were 1,342 daily, 50-cent permits for carloads of picnickers, swimmers, fishermen and others, Tom Ferguson, city finance director, said.

Ferguson counted 27 annual individual fishing permits sold during the month for a total of $135. Residents of the city may obtain these $5 annual fishing permits or a $10 family fishing permit.

The city waives auto permits for those with annual fishing permits.

Through collection for 1,193 daily fishing permits the city received $596.50. These are sold for 50 cents.

Meanwhile, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department realized $5,740 in receipts at the Big Spring State Park during the first 11 months of the fiscal year.

Collected between Sept. 1, 1974, and Aug. 31, 1975, here was $6,667.

Most of this revenue comes from the 50-cent fee, a state official told the Harte-Hanks news bureau representing the Herald.

For $12, annual permits for all state parks may be purchased. A yearly permit restricted to the Big Spring State Park costs $5.

Donation from First Baptist Church perks up Bible drive

A $400 donation from the First Baptist Church, together with three gifts of $100 each, served to propel the Howard County Ministerial Alliance's Bible Fund past the $3,000 mark this morning.

The campaign is still not within 50 per cent of its $6,500 objective, however, and time is getting short — what with school just around the corner.

The money raised in the drive goes to underwrite expenses for Bible courses taught in high schools at Big Spring, Coahoma and Forsan. Tax money cannot be used to pay such an expense.

Two gifts were erroneously reported Tuesday and should have read: Philathea Class, First Methodist Church, $50; Questers Sunday School Class, First Baptist Church, $25.

30,000 homeless in Philippines

Quake, tidal wave claim 5,300 dead or missing

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — The official toll of dead and missing in the earthquakes and tidal waves in the southern Philippines soared to more than 5,300 today, with nearly 30,000 reported homeless.

Relief officials said many bodies were floating in the waters off the stricken southern coast of Mindanao and that many of the missing, washed away by giant waves, would probably never be found.

The National Disaster Coordinating Center said 3,103 deaths had been confirmed and there were at least 2,282 missing, 688 injured and 28,716 homeless following Tuesday's catastrophes.

Col. Prudencio Ver, the center's deputy chief, said most of the dead and missing were caught by tidal waves.

A television station reported that 400 to 600 paratroopers training in the southern Philippines were among those swept away by the waves, but there was no immediate confirmation of the report.

The casualties were concentrated in the towns and cities along Mindanao island's 500 miles of coastline around the Moro Gulf, on the northern side of the Celebes Sea.

The Philippine Air Force was shuttling tons of medicine, food and other supplies to Cotabato, on the eastern shore of the gulf, and Zamboanga, across the gulf at the tip of the Zamboanga peninsula. They were among the hardest hit cities.

Navy ships stationed in Zamboanga were ferrying relief goods to other stricken areas along the coast.

President Ford sent President Ferdinand E. Marcos a message expressing sorrow and offering U.S. aid.

Casualties were reported in the provinces of North and South Zamboanga, Basilan, North and South Lanao, Cotabato and Misamis Oriental, and the cities of Zamboanga, Basilan, Cagayan de Oro and Cotabato.

Other provinces in the central Philippines and on southern Luzon Island also felt the tremors, but there were no reports of casualties in those areas.

The first quake struck shortly after midnight Monday, while the people of Mindanao were sleeping. It was centered in the Celebes Sea between Mindanao and Indonesia's Celebes island and sent 24-foot-high tidal waves crashing ashore, carrying away fishermen's stilt shacks as far as 100 yards inland.

The first quake was followed by the usual aftershocks, and shortly after noon Monday another major tremor hit. But by then the survivors of the first quake had moved into the streets and other open spaces, and it was not likely that there were more casualties.

The National Geophysical Observatory said the first quake registered 7.8 on the Richter Scale while the U.S. earthquake center in Golden, Colo., got a reading of 8.0. The second quake registered 6.8 on U.S. seismographs in Honolulu.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion, and every increase of one whole number means the ground motion is 10 times greater. A tremor registering 6 indicates severe damage; a reading of 7 is a major quake, capable of widespread, heavy damage, and 8 is a "great" quake, capable of tremendous damage. The San Francisco earthquake of 1906 registered 8.3.

Meanwhile, Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency, reported that the major earthquake in the mountains of central China Monday night caused only slight damage because it had been predicted and officials had taken precautions. It occurred about two hours before the first Philippine quake about 700 miles southwest of Peking and registered 7.9 on the Richter Scale, Hsinhua said.

Withdrawal on the way

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian forces have moved back from the mountain town of Hammana to clear the way for Palestinian withdrawal from Christian towns and villages along the mountains east of Beirut, Christian spokesmen said today.

Palestinian leaders and commanders of the Christians' Phalange militia have been negotiating quietly to arrange such a withdrawal, but so far the Palestiniansand their leftist Lebanese Moslem allies have refused to budge unless the Christians' Syrian allies pull back their invasion army.

Leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt vowed Tuesday not to "withdraw as much as one iota." He said the Moslem forces would defend their positions in the mountain area "because it is for us a battle for survival."

Christian and Palestinian forces on the western slopes of the mountains have been trading increasingly heavy artillery fire since the Christian capture of the Palestinians' Tal Zaatar camp last week. The mountain front overlooks the Christian enclave north of Beirut.

The Christians said the Syrians remained deployed in positions just above Hammana, with their artillery commanding the main supply routes to the leftists. They said the Syrians pulled back to open the paved road through Hammana so the Moslems could retreat to Beirut, 18 miles to the west.

Meanwhile, Beirut's residential areas were rocked by heavy shelling by both sides during the night. The Phalange radio said the exchange was one of the fiercest in the 16-month-old civil war. Shells were still falling on the Hamra shopping area late this morning.

On foreign policy

Ford concedes platform plank

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Republicans are trying to close ranks for the coming presidential campaign after adopting a platform amended to soothe the Ronald Reagan wing of the party.

At the end of a convention session stretching into the early morning hours today — the day the GOP presidential candidate will be nominated — President Ford's supporters conceded a major point to his challenger by accepting Reagan's addition to the foreign policy section of the platform.

Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller told reporters he had spoken personally to the President by telephone from the convention floor as the decision was made to accept the Reagan amendment. Ford supporters earlier had fought it hard, saying it implied criticism by Republicans of the conduct of foreign affairs by a GOP administration.

The desire for party unity prevailed when the showdown came, and the Ford forces offered no fight. Reagan had been stung earlier in the evening by a sharp defeat of his attempt to force Ford to name in advance his choice of a vice presidential running mate.

Another potential dispute, not one between the presidential camps, had been defused when the convention voted to retain platform language supporting the efforts of those seeking a constitutional amendment "to restore protection of the right to life for unborn children," despite Supreme Court rulings limiting anti-abortion laws.

Reagan, probing for weaknesses in Ford's support, sent to the convention floor an amendment to the foreign policy plank entitled "Morality in Foreign Policy" that implicitly criticized the way Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger conduct the nation's international relations. It contained much of the critical language used by Reagan during the primaries.

The amendment cautioned against undue concessions in the interest of detente with the Soviet Union, praised dissident author Alexander Solzhenitsyn, who was not invited for a White House visit when he was being feted by others, and warned against neglecting the interests of Soviet-dominated East European countries.

Negotiations went on for hours between the Ford and Reagan camps, seeking to remove any implied criticism of the administration, but the Reagan forces stood firm on the original language and the Ford negotiators finally gave in.

But Rockefeller rejected the suggestion that the amendment was critical of the administration, saying, "This is, in fact, the basis on which the Republican administration has conducted its foreign policy for the past eight years."

On domestic issues there were no deep divisions between Ford and Reagan. Most had been ironed out in five days and nights of work by the platform committee and spokesmen for both candidates had said they could run on the platform.

As adopted, the platform continues the 36-year Republican tradition of endorsing the Equal Rights Amendment, a goal long-sought by feminists and now before the states for ratification. Opponents of the endorsement were not able to muster enough support to fight it on the floor.

City offered trade, land for water

RENNER, Tex. (AP) — The City of Dallas is prepared to provide water and sewer service to the tiny suburb of Renner if it would disannex half of its 6,000 acres on its west side so Dallas can annex it, Mayor Bob Folsom says.

The Dallas mayor added in a speech at Renner's First Baptist Church Tuesday night that Dallas' city council also would probably agree to a complete annexation of Renner if it wants to disincorporate completely.

Folsom faced an overflow crowd of 120 of the town's 500 residents at the church to answer questions about water and sewer service.

Renner, north of Dallas, has been beset with financial problems and political infighting in recent months. It eliminated its police department last spring because of budget problems and the municipal water supply is not fit to drink, according to the state health department.

Two city commissioners resigned last week because of a disagreement with the mayor of Renner.

Folsom said the Dallas city council has not yet appoved the annexation proposal or water and sewer service to Renner, but he said he believes council members would be receptive to the idea. But he said Dallas would not consider providing water and sewer service unless Renner agreed to cede about 3,000 acres to Dallas.

HC trustees 'staired' in face with problems

Bids for seats, platforms in new coliseum awarded

By MARJ CARPENTER

Howard College board of trustee members awarded bids for the seats and platforms in the new coliseum to Hussey Manufacturing Company, Inc. in North Berwick, Maine, when the board met in regular session Tuesday afternoon.

Board members studied 10 alternatives, attempting to keep within their budgeted figure on the seating and platforms. They were "staired" in the face with special problems and finally deleted part of the stairs and one small floor section of the bleacher complex.

One recommendation to leave out telescopic bleachers on the ends called for an additional eight sets of stairs. The way up into the bleachers became a major problem as the discussion lasted over an hour.

The deletions eliminated costs of $25,219 making the total for the project $166,885. Seats to be installed include a small section of reserved upholstered seats, a majority of plastic armchair seats and seats without arms in the foldout section of the stands.

The board accepted the lowest of four bids for the project. They first discussed the possibility of putting in all of the alternatives. However, Jimmy Taylor, board member, urged the board to watch the corners of the budgeted figures, stating, "We need to be careful not to go over on different phases of the project."

Roll out stairs will be constructed in lieu of the telescopic stairs deleted from the original plan at the ends of the coliseum.

Board members kept getting up from the board table and going around to try out the different available seats as they carefully tried to pick the most comfortable and most practical for the project.

The low bid was also awarded on the floor surfacing to Southwest Floors Inc. for pro-turf at a cost of $44,358. This firm headquarters in Dallas and operates out of Lubbock.

The board, after calling for a public hearing, approved a budget of $2,474,867 for the coming year. Last year's budget, which was revised and approved, started out at $2,227,307 and ended at $2,336,392. It was a balanced budget with averages in both expense and income.

The tax rate was againt set at 70 cents on the dollar with 14 cents going to the sinking fund and 56 cents for maintenance.

Board members also approved hiring Don Stevens as girl's basketball and tennis coach and hired Jim Rackley of Burnett as data processing instructor, replacing the late Don Box.

Dr. Charles Hays, in his report to the board, pointed out that the food service had operated $1,000 in the black last year in contrast to running $2,500 in the red the previous year.

Trustees approved building a small dinner room on the northside of the college cafeteria to be used for meetings. It will have outside entrances.

The board also approved changing four rooms in the men's dormitory into married apartments.

It heard a presentation by Mrs. Troy Jarvis on the proposed Town Meeting slated for September and endorsed the project.

Dr. Hays also reported that junior colleges were hopeful that this year the legislature will eye funding programs of the community colleges. "They have helped the public schools and the senior colleges, but we still do not have adequate contingency funds at our level," he added.

The board authorized Dr. Hays to set up a foundation board that will accept donations and funding of special needs at the college. The trustees will give final approval to foundation board members at a later date.

All board members were present with Dr. Charles Warren presiding and those attending included Dr. P.W. Malone, Harold Davis, K.H. McGibbon, James Barr, Don McKinney, Dr. Warren and Taylor.

Administrators attending included Dr. Hays, Dean Ben Johnson, Dr. Bobby Wright, Mrs. Johnnie Lou Avery and Mike Bruner.

Hunt for motel 'skipper'

Local police spent a relatively quiet Tuesday.

The most expensive crime perpetrated was reported from the Desert Sands Motel, 2900 West Highway 80.

According to reports, the occupant of room 16, last seen Monday, skipped out on a $99.98 bill. The bill included $52.50 in rent, $20 for a broken window, $13.08 for a long-distance phone call, $2.40 for local calls, and $12 for cleaning the carpet.

Howard Smith of Hobbs, N.M., reported the burglary of a CB radio from his car which was parked at the Sandra Gale Apartments. Value of the CB has not been estimated.

Mrs. G. W. Martin, Box 116, reported the theft of her purse Tuesday afternoon. According to reports, Mrs. Martin placed the purse on the floor of the Montgomery Wards store, Highland Shopping Center, to look at some merchandise. When she turned around the purse was gone. Purse and contents were valued at $45.

Bryant Neff of Big Spring collided with a welding truck near Coahoma High School while driving a motorcycle around 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. He was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital where he is in good condition with a broken ankle.

The fender benders continue.

Cars driven by Nelda P. Pascual, 904 Nolan, and Sherri A. Bertran, 3903 Dixon, collided in the parking lot of Malone-Hogan Hospital, 7:37 a.m. Tuesday.

Cars driven by Wallace J. Stage of San Antonio, and Esther F. Hughes, 1610 W. 3rd, collided at 8th and Gregg, 12:01 p.m. Tuesday.

Cars driven by Joe D. Barnes of Ackerly (parked), and Barbara E. Holman, 2911 West Highway 80, collided at 83rd and Runnels, 11:25 a.m. Tuesday.

Popsicle is not meal

BOSTON (AP) — A Superior Court judge has decreed what parents have told youngsters for years — a Popsicle is not a meal. The ruling came Tuesday from Judge Joseph S. Mitchell Jr., whose decision means that the Commonwealth of Massachusetts cannot slap its 8 per cent meals tax on the frozen treats. The legal fight erupted because a 17-year-old Newton ice cream truck driver decided he did not want to start charging his customers extra for Popsicles.

Unmanned craft on moon

MOSCOW (AP) — Luna 24, an unmanned Soviet spacecraft, made a successful soft landing on the moon today, the Soviet news agency Tass announced. Tass said all equipment aboard the lunar capsule was functioning normally. Luna 24 was launched Aug. 9 and was put into orbit around the moon five days later. The announcement said it landed in the southeastern part of the Sea of Crises at 9:36 a.m. (2:36 a.m. EDT).

Not enough detente

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — Leaders at the nonaligned summit conference say Soviet-American detente is fine as far as it goes, but it doesn't go far enough. Prime Ministers Indira Gandhi of India and Sirimavo Bandaranaike of Sri Lanka and President Tito of Yugoslavia all told the delegates from 85 nations that detente should spread from Europe to the rest of the world.

Housing in tailspin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The housing industry has taken a midyear tailspin and one expert thinks it is now virtually impossible for the industry to mount a solid recovery this year. The Commerce Department reported Tuesday that the number of new housing unit starts in July fell by 9.2 per cent to an annual rate of 1.387 million after seasonal adjustment. The July figure was 14.9 per cent above a year earlier, but only half the 30 per cent rise the Ford administration had predicted the industry would attain in 1976.

T38 crash kills pilot

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — A T38 training jet crashed about three miles north of Reese Air Force Base here shortly after midnight today, killing the Massachusetts pilot, an air force spokesman said.

The victim was identified as 2nd Lt. Donald G. Taylor of Darcut, Mass.

The spokesman said Taylor was on a routine solo training flight when the plane crashed at about 12:30 a.m. He was found about 50 yards from the wreckage.

A board of air force officers was to convene later today to investigate the crash.

Taylor is survived by his widow, Paula Taylor.

Trimming trees in demilitarized zone

Two U.S. officers killed in Korean clash

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — About 30 North Korean guards armed with axes and metal pikes killed two U.S. Army officers and wounded four American enlisted men and five South Koreans during a clash in the demilitarized zone today, the United Nations Command announced.

Military sources said three North Koreans were also believed killed, but there was no confirmation of that.

The U.N. Command said the two American officers were "brutally murdered in an unprovoked assault."

North Korea, however, said its guards acted in self defense after "U.S. aggression troops" armed with lethal weapons beat them.

The Pentagon in Washington said the identities of the slain men would be released after their families were notified. A Pentagon spokesman said he could not predict when the names would be made public.

A pike, generally used in prebayonet times, is a long wooden shaft with a metal head, sometimes with a pick on the side.

The U.N. Command gave this account of the attack:

The two American officers, a South Korean officer and several American enlisted men were escorting five Korean service corps workers who were trimming trees in Panmunjom, the truce village in the center of the buffer zone between North and South Korea.

Two North Korean officers and several North Korean guards came to the area in midmorning as the South Koreans were "routinely trimming branches" from a tree in the joint security area. The tree was about 35 to 40 yards from a U.N. Command checkpoint at the south side of the Bridge of No Return, over which prisoner exchanges took place after the Korean armistice.

After some discussion during which one of the North Korean officers expressed objection to the tree trimming, the North Koreans demanded that the South Koreans stop the work.

Shortly after, a North Korean vehicle brought additional guards, and one of the North Korean officers was heard to tell them to "kill" the Americans and South Koreans. The attack followed.

The two Americans died from massive head injuries and stab wounds, a Pentagon spokesman said in Washington.

The identifications of the dead and wounded Americans were withheld until their families could be notified.

The U.N. Command called a meeting of the Military Armistice Commission Thursday to protest the attack, but it was not learned immediately if the North Koreans agreed.

It was the second violent incident in the demilitarized zone this month. On Aug. 5, the U.N. Command reported a six-minute exchange of fire between North and South Korean troops, but no casualties or damage was reported. Each side accused the other of shooting first.

Widow still waits for husband's body

CUMBERLAND, Ky. (AP) — Kathy Hackworth, widowed at 27, plans to take her 10-month-old son out of the coal country and go home to Ohio — just as soon as her husband gets "a proper, decent burial."

But it has been five months since her husband died and she despairs of knowing when that burial will be.

Her husband was one of 11 men whose bodies have been entombed since an explosion March 11 in Scotia Coal Co.'s No. 1 mine at Oven Fork. A recovery operation is under way and the company says it will bring the bodies out next month.

But Mrs. Hackworth says she is "very bitter" about the recovery operation and does not believe what the company says. And she is alone.

"I don't have any relatives down here," she says. "After it's all over, I guess we'll probably go back home to Ohio."

She met John Hackworth back home in Wilmington, Ohio, when he was living with a brother there. His home was in Cumberland and he moved back. Eventually, they married. They had a son. Then, at 29, he died.

The blast that killed him was the mine's second in 60 hours. The first killed 15 men whose bodies were recovered. Then Hackworth and 12 others went in to make repairs. Only two of them escaped the second blast. Officials deemed it too dangerous to recover the dead.

The mine stayed sealed until July 14. Federal, state and company officials said then that it would take 60 days to bring out the bodies.

Now the tedious operation is under way, and Ralph Dye, a vice president of the Scotia parent firm, Blue Diamond Coal Co., insists it is on schedule. But Mrs. Hackworth pointed Tuesday to a letter she said she and other widows received from Blue Diamond, saying the recovery is "one-third through."

"That means it will be the middle of October," she said.

Dye does cite figures that show recovery teams one-third of the way toward the bodies: they have repaired 5,000 feet of the mine — about one mile — and are about two miles from the bodies. But he says that means a mid-September recovery date. He adds, though, that "a lot of unknowns" could delay things.

Nixon will be on talk show next year

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — David Frost will probably interview Richard M. Nixon in December at the former president's seaside villa for four syndicated television programs next year, according to a Frost spokesman.

Frost has said Nixon will respond in four, 90-minute interviews to questions about his career, his presidency and the Watergate scandal that drove him from office.

The interviews are scheduled to be aired beginning next February and March, prior to publication of Nixon's memoirs, said Wayne Baruch, vice president of Syndicast Services Inc. of New York, which is marketing the show. They will be shown on stations that have individually purchased the syndication rights, he said.

"Nobody will know what these telecasts contain until they go on the air," Baruch said. "There will be a tremendous amount of security."

Weather

Most of state fair and warm

A few light showers in West and South Texas and over the Gulf of Mexico broke the hot and monotonous summer weather pattern today, but most of the state still had fair skies and warm temperatures.

Middle and high clouds covered much of the Coastal Bend and parts of South Central Texas. Precipitation was reported from Corpus Christi to south of San Antonio to south of Austin, but the showers were light.

Other showers were reported during the night between Lubbock and Midland in West Texas and in the gulf offshore from Brownsville.

Temperatures near dawn ranged from 64 at Dalhart and 66 at El Paso to 79 at Corpus Christi along the coast. Most readings were in the 70s.

Tuesday's maximum in the state was 100 degrees at Wichita Falls. The mercury got only to 85 at Marfa and Alpine.

College Station and Palacios both recorded over one-half inch of rain.

Why are U.S. assurances needed?

One confusing question about the Nuclear Fuel Assurance Act is why government assurances are necessary for private companies to go into the uranium enrichment business.

Critics have questioned why private companies are asking to go into the enrichment area, previously a government monopoloy, and yet request government guarantee of loans to construct the plant and government assurances on uranium prices.

The answer is basically simple.

THE GOVERNMENT controls and will continue to control the nuclear business in all of its aspects.

A change in government policy could destroy a $1 billion private investment with the stroke of a pen. The government has much regulation over the construction of nuclear power plants which use the enriched uranium. The government has total control over the price of uranium from its present enrichment plants. The government has total control over foreign sales of enriched uranium.

Even if private companies do get into the enrichment business, they will be entirely in a government controlled market. So it is not unreasonable for potential investors to want to know that the government will not change some policy which would wipe out the investment.

Tom Roy, the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce industrial manager, returned last week from a Washington trip to work in behalf of the proposed act.

HE BROUGHT back a fact sheet which deals with the question of why it is so difficent for the enrichment business to become commercial. Some additional reasons are:

—The gas centrifuge uranium enrichment process is unproven on a commercial scale.

—The gas centrifuge process has been developed by the U.S. government under a complete veil of secrecy.

—An enrichment plant is highly capital intensive, requiring more than $4 investment for $1 sales generated.

—The amount of capital required for a single project is unusually large, about $1 billion.

—No financial history is available to the investment community, and plant licensing criteria are undefined and untested.

—There are no alternative uses for the plant, and thus, it would have a very low salvage value.

Then why not let the government do all enrichment?

The government has looked at that possibility, and it recommends the private approach because it would save taxpayers billions of dollars for new plants to be built with investment dollars rather than taxpayer ones.

The most important point is that steps must be taken to begin expanding our nuclear enrichment capability, or this nation will be short on enriched uranium to operate nuclear power plants which are now planned and which are necessary for a continued supply of energy.

IF WE LAG behind in enrichment demand, other nations may attempt to gain the technology. Should this happen, nuclear proliferation would not be just a problem, it would be a certainty.

This nation must face its energy problems right now. Otherwise, the little "energy crisis" of 1973 will be only a sneak preview of things to come.

Sorry, you flunk

Around the rim

Candy Smith

Unless you've been a journalism major and taken a few mass media courses, you probably believe that what you see on TV is there to entertain you.

Some people innocently imagine it like this. All the producers of all the shows get together, after weeks of gathering scripts, to decide which are really the best. They may haggle a little over price but quality is the main thing. They want the new. The different. The surprising.

THEY ARE willing to take a chance. Moving pictures did not take years to develop in order to produce the mediocre.

Sorry, no. You flunk. As a matter of fact, in all but the public broadcasting station, who are not dictated to by advertising, the mediocre is exactly what they want.

Nothing really bad because, then you wouldn't watch it. But nothing really good, either, because there's always that jerk out in downtown Burbank that will be offended, raise cain and eventually have the show thrown off the air.

What's really amazing though is the advertiser-producer's opinion of what's offensive. It's definitely not violence as represented by blood and murder. Look at your TV guide tonight. I'll bet you can't go a half-hour without seeing someone get shot, stabbed or strangled. (That's intrique for you. You never know which one it's going to be.)

Seven o'clock, "Mission Impossible." Someone always gets knocked off there. Eight o'clock, Baretta. Guide says, "Baretta's lead to a baby-selling racket is murdered forcing him . . ."

Nine o'clock, "Hawk." If for some reason Hawk's in a passive mood, you've always got "Starsky and Hutch" or a movie called the "Priest Killer."

The movie's guaranteed. The murderer is psychotic so it's going to be one of those multiple killing deals. Ten o'clock is the news, but between "Lassa fever" and the "Legionnaire's disease" we may have another victim.

10:30, another movie, "The Burglars." with jewel thieves and a crooked cop, somebody will get it for sure.

WELL, IF YOU can't stand the violence, you still have a few choices. How about "Little House on the Prairie." Guide says, "After a hurricane damages their home, ruins the crop, and kills some of the livestock . . ." Not much of an improvement, but never fear.

You have now hit on rule two of TV. No matter what happens, everything will turn out OK. After "Little House on the Prairie," we have "Family Affair."

Last week Buffy lost her doll and Uncle Bill dug through the trash cans of New York City to find it, which naturally he did. Rule three of TV. Avoid the realistic. Your audience wants to escape from real life, not be reminded of it.

When Uncle Bill returned with Buffy's doll and tries to get out of the house for a little dancing, little brother has lost his turtle. "Ho, ho, ho" says Uncle Bill, not in the least ticked off, "we'll find it."

If I had ever put my father through that sort of goose chase, he would have stepped on the turtle when he found it.

Let me end with a hint. Due to the fact that public broadcasting stations are supported by their viewers and not advertisers, rules one, two and three do not apply.

Enter Buckley

William F. Buckley, Jr.

The Ford people were displeased by Senator Buckley's annoucement that he would permit his name to be placed in nomination. So were the Reagan people. And maddest of all was Mr. Richard Rosenbaum, who is the chairman of the New York State Republican Party, and who sometimes mistakes himself as being rather the Party's master than its servant, a habit he picked up from Nelson Rockefeller over the years.

BRIEFLY EXAMINED, the fear in the Ford camp is that Senator Buckley will deprive President Ford of nomination on the first ballot. I have the most enduring respect for Senator Buckley, issuing out of extra-biological considerations — but even so I am constrained to comment that if the junior senator from the State of New York, who achieved his own election by nomination not of the Republican Party but of the Conservative Party, and has been in the Senate for only a single term, can manage to wrest the Presidency away from an incumbent who has operated out of the White House for two and a half years, commands the movements of the army, navy, and air force, dines with the Queen of England, and sends bills back to Congress with strongly worded intimations of imperial displeasure — if Senator Buckley's humble suggestion that he might permit his own name to be placed in nomination threatens the security of the President, then that security is disastrously insecure.

What Mr. Ford's agents are saying in effect — using the Aesopian language of the politician — is that they cannot run the risk of losing a handful of delegates; that they fear that if they do not achieve the nomination in the first ballot, they will not achieve it at all.

Well, let us concede that is indeed their fear; and that the fear is objectively rather than neurotically based. If that is the case, one understands why Ford's legions are so upset over Senator Buckley's modest proffering of himself in order to break the deadlock. But who else should be upset? If the scaffolding under President Ford is that creaky, do we really want to be upset by a man who volunteers to pull the drapes aside permitting us to see the straw on which Ford rests?

As for Governor Reagan, one suspects that his lieutenants' concern is, really, rather thoughtless. It could only be based on the delusion that the Reagan nomination would be won on the first ballot save for the intervention of Senator Buckley. That is not likely to happen, unless President Ford between now and Wednesday runs off with Bobby Fischer. So that if enough votes from the uncommitted and the indecisive were to result in a first ballot that went neither to Ford nor to Reagan, the contest would move into the second ballots: and there, the contribution of Senator Buckley would transpire.

WHAT WOULD happen after the first ballot is a contest substantially freed from the synthetic impositions of first-ballot laws and folkways. These of course differ from state to state. But taking only New Hampshire and California, one sees the nature of the anti-democratic beast. In New Hampshire, President Ford barely defeated Governor Reagan — but he walked off with a hundred per cent of the delegates.

"Either of you gentlemen seen some platform planks I left lyin' around here?"

Seek an answer to bed-wetting

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My six-year-old son has been a bedwetter. I've had him examined and the doctor finds nothing wrong, and notes that he is a sound sleeper. I accept this explanation and don't punish him or make him feel guilty.

But when he goes to his father's to spend six weeks in the summer, his father and his new wife punish him for bedwetting, either by putting diapers on him or making him stand in a corner. If he doesn't wet they give him candy, etc. Please send me two copies of your booklet on bedwetting. Also, could you possibly write to my husband and explain the problems that can come from this type of punishment? — G.M.

Can't write to him, or I'd spend my time writing to callous fathers all over the country. You can clip this item and send it along. He and his wife are wrong.

Ridicule, punishment (or rewards) can be psychologically damaging, or at the very least confusing to the little guy. Your ex-husband needs more technical understanding of the problem. I hope one of the booklets you ordered is for him and his wife.

You say the boy has been examined. I'm wondering how extensive the examination was. Has he been to a urologist to see if there are defects in the urinary tract, an allergy to certain foods, a defect in the urethra (which would not necessarily show up in a simple examination) or any other condition that can cause bedwetting? Tests can be made to measure his bladder capacity, for example.

Waiting for a child to "outgrow" such a problem can be a mistake, especially when it begins very early in life. You don't say when he started bedwetting. The sooner the child starts the less likely the chances are of emotions being a factor.

Bedwetting is a particularly cruel affliction for youngsters to suffer, especially in summer when so many opportunities spread out before them for new enriching experiences — camp, visits to friends, etc. I wish the notion that all bedwetting stems from personality traits such as laziness, stubbornness, etc., would be squashed and proper treatment sought.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am an 18-year-old boy with an ambition to join the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. They will not accept anyone who does not meet rigid requirements. The minimum height is 5 feet, 8 inches. At present I am 5 feet, 7½ inches. Are there any exercises to stretch the extra half inch? — K.L.

No exercises I am aware of. Chances are fair that you may put on the needed half inch before the time you take the physical. How tall are your parents, grandparents? Heredity usually rules in this.

At 18 you are pretty close to your maximum height, for once the long bones fuse (set) very little further height is expected. Tip: if you measure yourself immediately on arising in the morning you will find an extra bit of stature — perhaps even a half inch. But I don't know if the R.C.M.P. would approve of such a measurement. Another tip: be mindful of an erect posture, which could also add a bit of height.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Does bronchitis show on a chest X ray? Also, would it show up on a lung function test taken at a hospital on a machine used for that purpose? Could one still have chronic bronchitis if the lung function test showed absolutely nothing wrong, and, in fact, was very good in every way? — J.J.

Bronchitis is inflammation of the bronchial tree, the network of tiny air passages (bronchi) in the lungs. A mild infection could clear up and not show any changes later in X rays or breathing function tests. However, a chronic form (continuing infection) would certainly show lung deficiency measured by the device you mention. X rays would also reveal lung changes, such as scarring.

It is unlikely that you would have completely normal lung function tests if you had chronic bronchitis. And it is doubtful you would have completely clear X-ray pictures.

Bedwetting can be a frustrating problem but it can be controlled. To learn how, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "Bed-Wetting: Ways to Stop It." Enclose a long, self-addressed stamped envelope and 25 cents.

What are ulcers? How can you help yourself get rid of ulcers and stay rid of them? Read Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "How to Heal Peptic Ulcers." For a copy write to him in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

We Hold These Truths...
A Chronicle of America

August, 1776:

Early this month, American General Philip Schuyler, in a treaty session at German Flats, New York, prevails on the Indians to remain neutral. But almost immediately, the British begin to undo Schuyler's diplomacy. In early September, Henry Hamilton, the lieutenant-governor of Detroit, urges — in his words — "chiefs and warriors from the Ottawas, Ojibwas, Wyandots, and Pottawatomies," with the Senecas, to "fall on the scattered settlers on the Ohio." And in early October, Joseph Brant — a pro-British Mohawk chief — returns from England to the upstate New York Iroquois village of Onoquaga. Brant rages against the German Flats treaty, and immediately begins mobilizing the Indians to do battle with the Americans.

Road from Damascus

Jack Anderson, Les Whitten

KANSAS CITY — The conversion of Ronald Reagan, like the experience of the Apostle Paul on the road to Damascus, was a sudden awakening. One friend, fellow actor-turned-politician George Murphy, can even cite the moment that Reagan saw the light. Not long afterward, the crusading liberal of the 1940s became a militant conservative in the 1950s.

THE YOUTHFUL Reagan, who was later to inveigh against student activists, himself led a student protest at Illinois' Eureka college in his freshman year. With all the zeal of Paul, he also began persecuting the corporations that he would later embrace. He became a union activist, quick to take the stump in behalf of the workers.

In Hollywood, he became better known as the ardent, articulate president of the Screen Actors Guild than as a "B"-picture actor. Entertainer Sheila MacRae, who worked with Reagan in the Hollywood of the 1940s, described him as "the Warren Beatty of his day." Beatty is devoted to liberal causes.

Assigned to an Army motion picture unit during World War II, Reagan regularly assailed his fellow soldiers with his leftist views. He became associated with several left-leaning groups, including the American Veterans Committee.

In 1950, he supported Helen Gahagan Douglas against Richard Nixon in the classic Senate campaign that Nixon won by smearing her as the "pink lady." But two years later Ronald Reagan startled Hollywood by backing the Dwight Eisenhower-Richard Nixon ticket.

What had turned Reagan into a sudden Republican? Former Sen. George Murphy, R.-Calif., told us it was Reagan's dread of Communism. "We had discussions about the Communists," Murphy said, He warned Reagan that left-wing radicals were infiltrating Hollywood's craft unions.

"Ronnie didn't believe me at first," recalled Murphy. "But finally one night, when he was booed off the stage while giving a speech, he saw the light."

There was another new influence on Reagan. He married Nancy Davis, a young actress from an arch-conservative family, in 1952. Knowledgable sources told us she is a strong-willed person who helped pull Reagan to the right. But other sources close to the family minimized her political influence on her husband.

In 1954, the former labor agitator signed on with General Electric. He not only became GE's mouthpiece on television but also lectured company workers across the country on the virtues of free enterprise and the rewards of capitalism.

REAGAN INTIMATES say his GE experience, which lasted eight years, helped to shape his political views. Recalled one source: "It was as though he underwent a religious conversation. From extreme liberalism, he made a strong shift to the right. He felt he had to prove that he was a true believer in the conservative cause."

Another important influence, according to several sources, was Sen. Barry Goldwater, R.-Ariz., who ironically has turned against Reagan in the showdown with President Ford. Reagan was so impressed with Goldwater's political writings that he pushed them on friends.

Whatever the causes of Reagan's political transformation, a campaign spokesman preferred to attribute it to a "long process of education and political maturity."

MOST PEOPLE who know Reagan, including those who dislike his politics, agree that he is a likable guy. He has an all-American quality — the easy grin, the engaging sincerity, the open manner.

He has always been quick to mount the soapbox, to stand up and speak up about the issues. "Ronnie is the kind of guy who, if you ask the time, will tell you how to build a watch," Art Linkletter told us. But he has always found Reagan practical — a "realist," not a "dreamer," said Linkletter.

Others called Reagan "shallow" and "superficial." He looks for "easy answers to complex problems," said one acquaintance. Novelist Irving Wallace said Reagan gleaned most of his information in capsulated form from the Readers' Digest. The two served together in the Army.

Reagan also studied the Army maps and followed the war closely. He was deeply interested in world affairs, an interest that still occupies him, an intimate said.

Reagan likes to limit his working hours from nine to five, with plenty of rest. He tends to get cranky when he's tired and detests the long campaign grind. Some cited this as evidence that he is lazy. Others said he is well organized and sees no reason for putting in overtime.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I know the Bible speaks of a "crown of rejoicing." But where did this idea come from that we'll have some sort of "star" in our crown for every one we win into Christ's kingdom? — S. R.

DEAR S. R.: Paul loved all of his children in the faith. The "crown of rejoicing" you mention is from his writings in I Thessalonians 2:19. He thought so highly of these believers at Thessalonica that he equated the rewards of God at the end of his life with their response to his ministry.

Perhaps the idea of "star in our crown" comes from several Bible references. One would be the reward promised for an effective witness of our faith. Daniel 12:3 suggests that "those who are wise — the people of God — shall shine as brightly as the sun's brilliance, and those who turn many to righteousness will glitter like stars forever" (Living Bible).

And then there's the statement in 2 Timothy 4:8 that "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness." Add to these the counsel of John in Revelation 3:11, "Hold that which thou hast, that no man take thy crown." I understand the "crown" as figurative language for a tangible commendation God will give for being an effective steward and witness. So it appears that the Christian life will not involve a deliverance from the presence and power of sin, but the extra bonus of trophies reflecting faithful service here on earth. How good is God!

Full-size models shrinking

Detroit automakers think smaller for '77

DETROIT (AP) — Consumers shopping for new cars this fall will discover the theme from Detroit for 1977 is "think smaller."

In the prior two model years, the auto companies displayed a "think small" strategy which produced a bevy of little autos. But most of them flopped in 1976 because of customer disinterest. The emphasis this time is on hot-selling big cars, which will be shorter, lighter and sleeker.

General Motors unveils a new generation of standard-size cars — as much as a foot shorter and 1,000 pounds lighter than their 1976 counterparts.

At Ford, the luxury Thunderbird has been sleekened, reversing a 20-year trend during which the car grew from a little sports car to a huge landcruiser. Next spring, Ford will unveil a new "baby" Lincoln Continental to go after the small Cadillac Seville.

Small-car specialist American Motors is debuting a station wagon version of its unique wide-bodied Pacer.

And Chrysler joins the action in the spring when it debuts as 1977 models two small luxury spinoffs of its compact models.

In addition, a number of smaller engines will be unveiled to power the slimmed-down cars, and there will be a host of name changes.

Particularly, several familiar mid-size cars carried over from 1976 will bear names previously reserved for full-size models, apparently to make it easier for the companies to drop their biggest cars in future years without losing consumer name recognition.

Overall, 1977 may go down as the most sweeping model changeover in history as Detroit continues an unprecedented multibillion-dollar program launched in 1975 to revamp its entire car fleet by 1980 to meet government fuel economy improvement standards.

Federal officials say the industry's 1977-model fleet will show a 6 to 13 per cent fuel economy gain over its 1976 cars.

But most of the fuel gains, which are measured by comparing the average mileage of all the 1977 cars against that of the 1976 models, result from the fact that cars will be smaller overall this fall.

In the case of any one car which is unchanged from 1976, there likely will be a slight drop in fuel economy because of tighter emissions controls which take effect for 1977.

One thing that changes every year, though, is price, and the 1977 models will be no exception. Despite a robust sales recovery that has sent industry profits soaring to record levels, the companies say price hikes are unavoidable because of steady cost increases.

The industry has not announced new prices yet, but it has hinted that customers can expect to pay as much as 6 per cent more this fall, or about $300 to $350 a car on the average.

Here is a company-by-company rundown on what you'll find in dealer showrooms for 1977:

GENERAL MOTORS: New model changes at auto giant GM are the most ambitious in the industry. Nearly all of GM's full-size cars have been made smaller, narrower, higher and boxier in appearance, like the Seville which debuted a year ago.

GM's strength traditionally has been in the big-car end of the market, and the firm has taken pains to shorten its cars on the outside — to about the size of its carry-over intermediates — while preserving most of the interior space of the 1976 standard models.

Affected by the changes are the Chevrolet Impala and Caprice, Pontiac Catalina and Bonneville, Buick LeSabre and Electra, Oldsmobile Delta 88 and Ninety-Eight, will come in two-door sedan, four-door sedan and wagon versions, but hardtop models will be dropped as part of an industry effort to simplify product offerings.

The cars will be 6 to 12 inches shorter and 700 to 1,000 pounds lighter. Inside, shoulder and hip room has been reduced slightly, but head and leg room has been increased and trunk space enlarged.

The cars also will come with smaller standard engines, and the biggest powerplants now offered as optional equipment will be dropped. The Chevy Impala, for example, will offer a standard 250-cubic-inch, 6-cylinder engine in place of the current 350-c.i., V-8.

The full-size Buick Riviera and Cadillac Fleetwood Brougham and Seventy-Five have been restyled, but not shortened, while the luxury Oldsmobile Toronado and Cadillac Eldorado are unchanged.

For 1978, GM's intermediates undergo the same kind of treatment the big cars got for this year, and the firm's compacts will be made smaller for 1979.

Also, Oldsmobile is developing a new diesel engine for its passenger cars and some GMC light trucks. The engine may debut by mid-1977 if the government relaxes pending 1978 emissions standards which GM says the diesel currently cannot meet.

FORD: The nation's No. 2 automaker, taking a cautious route for 1977, is waiting to see how the public receives GM's new standard cars before deciding when and how to redesign its big models. Thus, most of its emphasis for the new year has been spent on redesigning current models and repositioning them in the market.

The Thunderbird, which Ford has marketed in recent years as an $8,000 plus luxury car to compete against GM's top luxury models, will be an intermediate in both size and price for 1977.

Currently a spinoff of the Mark IV, the T-Bird has been made about nine inches shorter, 700 pounds lighter and reportedly as much as $2,000 cheaper. Ford officials are hoping the moves, which pit the car against the hot-selling Chevy Monte Carlo and Chrysler Cordoba, will triple sales.

Ford also is dropping its current Torino, Elite and Montego mid-size car nameplates. All Ford Division intermediates have been renamed LTD II — the standard Ford is called LTD — and the Mercury counterparts will use the Cougar name. The intermediates have been restyled and feature rectangular headlamps, first introduced by GM in 1975.

The Pinto gets a facelift for 1977. The luxury Lincoln Mark V — successor to the Mark IV — also has been redesigned, as has the Lincoln Continental, which inherits the Mark IV front grill.

Next spring, Ford unveils two new small cars — a minicar for the economy market and a luxury model for the top-of-the-line segment.

The minicar is the German-built Fiesta, which is to arrive in April. The front-wheel drive auto, nearly identical in dimensions and appearance to the Volkswagen Rabbit and Chevrolet Chevette, will come with a 1,600-cubic-centimeter, 4-cylinder engine. Ford plans to import up to 100,000 Fiestas in its first year.

The new Lincoln, to be named the Versailles, is a stretched version of the compact Granada. It is expected in March to compete with the Seville and popular small luxury imports like Mercedes Benz.

CHRYSLER: The Big Two's smaller sister has no all-new cars for the fall, but has redesigned and renamed some of its current offerings.

The compact Plymouth Valiant and Dodge Dart, the firm's mainstays for more than a decade, have been scrapped for 1977 because of the successful debut last year of the Volare and Aspen compact models.

The intermediate Dodge Coronet inherits the Monaco name from the full-size Dodge, which has been redubbed Royal Monaco. The move parallels that made by Plymouth last year, when the mid-size Satellite was renamed Fury and the full-size model became Gran Fury.

The company is expected to offer its new computerized "lean-burn" engine system on a greater number of its powerplants. The system, designed to maximize fuel efficiency, was introduced earlier this year on Chrysler's largest engines only.

The firm will step up its drive in the small luxury market next spring when its introduces the Chrysler LeBaron and Dodge Diplomat. Like Ford's small Lincoln, the new Chrysler cars will be offshoots of current compact models.

AMERICAN MOTORS: The smallest of the companies, still mired in a sales slump while the other makers are in the midst of sales.

Circumcision account assailed

Textbooks draw criticisms at hearings

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Eleanor S. Hutcheson of Fort Worth was sued two years ago for her criticisms of proposed textbooks, but that hasn't slowed her down any.

She spent Tuesday morning tearing into several publishers' offerings for such things as an account of a ritual circumcision.

That selection appears in a volume on Kenya in "People of the World," a set of six thin books published by Scott, Foresman & Co. for use in high school world history classes.

It is a young Kikuyu tribesman's account of his circumcision at age 16 as a rite of passage to manhood.

When it was over, he said, "I was now a grown up Christian Kikuyu."

"There is no connection between this kind of custom and Christianity. I don't feel it is necessary to go into detail. Y'all can read it yourself," Mrs. Hutcheson told the 15-member State Textbook Committee. The committee will vote on proposed texts next month, picking up to five in each of several subjects. The State Board of Education will make the final adoptions in November.

Mrs. Hutcheson was one of three protesters sued for libel in 1974 by the Economy Co., which failed to get a contract for its sets of seventh and eighth grade readers. She filed a countersuit, contending her remarks were protected by the constitutional right of free speech. The suits are still pending, with no trial setting, she said Tuesday.

She criticized Allyn & Bacon's "Action Biology," a text for high school students who read below grade level, because of a set of "agree or disagree" statements designed for possible class discussion.

Statements offered for student response in the "Let's Rap" selection included: "Sex should wait for marriage;" "Masturbation is bad for your health; it can even make you insane;" and "It is all right for men to 'play around' but not for women."

These subjects could lead to unguided debate since they are not covered in the text itself, Mrs. Hutcheson said.

Richard Carroll of Boston, an Allyn & Bacon vice-president, said the "Let's Rap" worksheets are optional and can be used only if the teacher decides to take them up.

He said the book, while "designed for low level, under-achieving high school students," meets nationally accepted standards for the material covered.

"A World History," published by Webster-McGraw-Hill, drew Mrs. Hutcheson's ire because, she said, it gives little mention to Christianity in a 30-page section on world religions.

"One has to search to find even a few passages that mention, much less describe, the Christian religion," she said.

'I think a good job is being done'

Justice delayed in district court, Hamby says

The criminal docket in Big Spring's district court is so far behind that it would take "years" to try all the cases even if no new ones were being filed, the Big Spring Rotary Club was told Tuesday.

Rick Hamby, who is unopposed on the November ballot for the position of district attorney, made the statement as he fielded questions from Rotarians.

THE QUESTION time followed a brief talk by the Big Spring attorney in which he appealed to citizens for understanding of a district attorney's problems.

Hamby, who will begin as the special investigator for the DA's office on Sept. 1 and assume the DA position next January, said that the backlog of cases that he will inherit will be "considerable."

On July 31, the Howard County District Clerk's Office counted 1,347 civil suits and 214 criminal indictments pending. The 118th Judicial District includes Martin and Glasscock Counties also. These statistics are for Howard County cases only.

Hamby said he was not apologizing for the District Attorney's Office.

"I think a good job is being done," he said, "and I hope a good job can continue to be done when I take over."

Hamby noted that District 118 is the largest, or one of the largest, in the state with only one attorney in the DA's Office.

In response to another question, Hamby said he hopes to seek dismissal of a large number of cases after he takes office which obviously can never be tried.

Hamby will succeed Bob Moore, who did not seek reelection as DA.

In outlining some of the problems as district attorney faces, Hamby said that the DA's Office is the punishment arm of the law, the place where information is compiled to see if certain basic necessities are there in each case to go to trial.

The task of gathering these basic necessities, he noted, is not an easy one.

"Many barriers must be overcome by an overworked police department," he said.

THESE BARRIERS include not only finding the criminal but also being careful not to overstep the constitutional restraints which courts have placed on enforcement officers, Hamby said.

As an example of these restraints, Hamby cited the "very narrow" guidelines under which a proper search can be conducted.

One miscue, he said, and the case can be untriable.

The Texas Tech graduate said these restraints place a near impossible burden on the police department, but the cases are filed, "warts and all," and the docket grows.

A district attorney, in addition to taking care of all of the day-to-day duties of new cases and grand juries, must sort out marginal cases that do not contain these basics and assign priorities to which of the time-consuming cases he can prepare, Hamby said.

Hamby noted that the district judge's time also is at a premium since he also faces a heavy load of civil cases as well as the criminal ones.

"I firmly believe in an active prosecution," he said, "and I believe that can help curb some of these problems."

Once in office, Hamby said he hopes to pursue the possibility of getting an attorney as an assistant, perhaps through a government grant.

Hamby, who was raised in Big Spring, said he hopes that he can overcome some of the hard feelings which have developed in the past between the DA's Office and police and sheriff.

He said he hopes tc put aside the old wounds and start over with the aim of working together.

Benefit dance set Thursday

The event will be held at the Starlite Club, 703 W. 3rd featuring Jim King and the Starlite Cowboys.

Dr. J. Gale Kilgore of Eyeball Records also will be featured. All local talent is welcome and the public is urged to support this project, according to Howard Dodd, president of the local Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Write-in opposition appears

Yarbrough action due Sept. 1

HOUSTON (AP) — A State Bar of Texas grievance committee says it will decide by Sept. 1 if actions should be taken against Donald Yarbrough, a Houston attorney and Democratic nominee for the State Supreme Court.

The committee met for the third time Tuesday in Houston to hear testimony against Yarbrough in some 30 complaints, many of them coming from a June civil court trial in which the Democratic candidate was found to have engaged in fraud and gross negligence.

The committee could refuse to take any act on, recommend that Yarbrough be reprimanded, disbarred, or segral things in-between.

Yarbrough won the Democratic nomination to the Supreme Court and faces no Republican opposition in November. He has insisted he will stay in the race.

However, two write-in candidates have announced they will oppose the Houston attorney in the general election.

State Dist. Court Judge Sam Houston of Denton announced in Austin Tuesday he would go for the write-in vote, using his famous Texas name and a campaign aimed at telling voters how to use the write-in as his major weapons.

Judge Houston, 41, is a former mayor of Lewisville in North East Texas and later was appointed to the district court bench by Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Earlier, Houston lawyer Tom Larance said he would be a write-in candidate.

Some political observers have said Yarbrough won the Democratic nomination because many voters associated his name with those of Donald Yarborough, former gubernatorial candidate, and one-time U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough. even tough there is an "O" difference in the names.

Chief Justice Joe Greenhill of the Texas Supreme Court was in Houston Monday but refused to discuss Yarbrough's minus the "O", situation with newsmen.

Greenhill did say it "would be very difficult" for a disbarred lawyer to become a judge in Texas, but as far as the state Constitution is concerned, "the quest on is virtually an unexplored territory."

Contour plowed fields on Mars?

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — New pictures of Mars' northern regions reveal mysterious patterns resembling contour plowing on the planet's red surface, and scientists say they are hard pressed to find a natural explanation.

"We're getting some strange things. It's very puzzling," said Michael Carr, a member of the team interpreting pictures of Mars taken by the orbiting Viking 2.

The lander of Viking 2 is due to touch down Sept. 4 in the northern region of Mars.

Carr said Tuesday that the newest pictures of the target zone showed huge, striped patterns that resemble an aerial photograph of a farmer's field after plowing.

It is "hard to think of a natural cause, because the stripes are so regular," he said.

The geologist said there are some stripe-like patterns in the Sahara desert, caused by the wind creating rows of dunes that are very regular and evenly spaced.

"But generally, these dunes don't change directions like the ones we're seeing on Mars," Carr said.

Meanwhile, life-searching experiments aboard Viking 1 continued the second-phase of testing, repeating earlier tests to verify results.

Those tests gave hints as to the possible existence of life on the red planet, but scientists said the seemingly positive results could be the products of life-mimicking chemical processes on Mars.

U.S.-Canadian ties subject of talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fishing rights and relations with the Third World are on the agenda for Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's talks with Canadian Foreign Minister Allan J. MacEachen.

The discussion on a variety of international and economic issues were scheduled to begin today in advance of a MacEachen trip to Asia.

On Tuesday night, at a black-tie dinner in MacEachen's honor, both men spoke openly of strains in the U.S.-Canadian relationship.

"Inevitably, we grate on each other," Kissinger acknowledged at the dinner. But he said the two neighbors have parallel interests and must be "mature enough" to understand that they also have differences.

MacEachen, taking a cue from his host, said the United States and Canada "remain two nation-states of unequal power and at times in conflict." But, he said, they have worked together "very constructively" in world forums.

While generally in agreement on Western defense and strategy toward the Soviet Union, the two countries have developed differences that stem partly from Canada's concern with the influence of U.S. corporations and Canada's more sympathetic political stance toward Communist China and the developing nations.

Cash, Clark cohost show

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Johnny Cash and Roy Clark will cohost the nationally televised 10th Annual Country Music Association Awards Oct. 11.

The program will be carried live by CBS Television from the stage of the Grand Ole Opry House. Highlighting the show will be the announcement of the newest members elected to the Country Music Hall of Fame.

The winners will be chosen from two categories — living and deceased. Finalists in the living categories are Johnny Cash, Grandpa Jones, Vito Pellettieri, Hank Snow, Merle Travis and Kitty Wells.

Rod Brasfield, Paul Cohen, Cowboy Copas, Vernon Dalhart and the Delmore Brothers have been nominated from the deceased category.

Mrs. Penn challenges incumbent

Baird, Wichita Falls women seek SDEC post

Mrs. Pauline Penn, Wichita Falls, an alternate delegate to the Democratic National Convention in New York in July, has announced that she will challenge incumbent state Democratic committeewoman Mrs. Marguerite Snyder, Baird.

Mrs. Snyder recently announced she would seek her third term as committeewoman representing the 30th Senatorial District Democrats.

Mrs. Penn, a longtime worker in Democratic politics, pledged to try to get more women involved in the democratic process by organizing a Democratic women's organization in each county of the 30th District.

Wichita County is the only county which has such an organization in the district at this time.

She is a member of the Wichita County Democratic Executive committee, is precinct chairman and election judge of voting precinct 52 and is past present and board member of the Wichita County Democratic women's organization.

Mrs. Penn and her husband, John, live in Wichita Falls where he owns a general insurance agency.

Mrs. Snyder is bidding for her third two-year term.

She feels she has accomplished much while a member of the State Democratic Executive Committee. She has served as executive vice chairman of the state rules subcommittee for the SDEC and as chairman of the rules committee at the State Convention in Austin in 1974.

She has served on several convention committees during her term in office.

Mrs. Snyder is married to a rancher, James, and lives near Baird.

The State Democratic Executive Committee for 1976-78 will be selected at the Democratic State Convention Sept. 17 and 18 in Fort Worth.

Man charged with delivery of LSD goes on trial Tuesday

District Judge Ralph W. Caton Tuesday afternoon scheduled a jury trial for a man charged with delivery of LSD.

Steven C. Sigmon, 23, has been indicted for delivery of LSD to an undercover agent for the Texas Department of Public Safety (DPSL) Jan. 16. His trial is to start 10 a.m. Tuesday in 118th District Court.

A county jail inmate since his arrest March 16, Sigmon told the Big Spring Herald earlier he had committed himself to God while in jail. His story was told in a front-page feature.

He was one of 19 drug-case defendants listed for peace officers to arrest in the March 16 dragnet here. Sigmon is the first of the group to be tried by jury. Wayne Basden is representing him.

The attorney for another arrested that day filed motions for continuances Tuesday. These were the first such delay motions filed for Robert Mendoza, 28, 1903 S. Monticello St. District Attorney Robert H. (Bob) Moore III said Mendoza is to be set for jury trial in October.

Mendoza is charged with delivery of drugs to a DPS agent on four occasions.

His attorney, Roger Brown, contended Mendoza was kidnaped and "unable to communicate with his attorney for a period of time."

If the disposition of the Sigmon case is negotiated before the trial date, one of 10 civil suits is to be tried by Jury Tuesday.

The suit brought by Flato Realty Investments over local property taxes on the Permian Building is third in the list of civil suits said ready for trial.

This Corpus Christi business trust is suing the City of Big Spring, Howard County and Big Spring Independent School District.

Campaign spending limits said unlawful

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas' limits on campaign expenditures by politicians are unconstitutional, Atty. Gen. John Hill has held.

Hill applied to Texas a U.S. Supreme Court decision that wiped out a federal ceiling on expenditures by candidates for national office.

Hill said the Texas limits were "an impermissible burden upon the right of free expression and are, therefore, unconstitutional."

The limits on expenditures by statewide candidates were 10 cents per voting age Texan in primary and general elections and four cents per voting age person in run-off primaries.

Also struck down was a ceiling of $1,500 for State Board of Education candidates, who run in congressional districts.

Secretary of State Mark White and education commissioner Marlin Brockette sought the opinion.

Hill's opinion also wiped out a provision requiring candidates to control the amount spent on their behalf by political committees.

Funds asked to fight fire ants

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Agriculture Commissioner John White brought a $15.6 million request for 1978 and 1979 fund to budget examiners Tuesday, which includes $2 million annually to fight fire ants with Mirex, a controversial insecticide.

Mirex, which is being studied for safety by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), is to be sprayed in six East Texas counties beginning in September and may be used in other counties in the spring.

The pesticide hasn't been used widely in Texas since the spring of 1975, when production by Allied Chemical Co. in Mississippi was curtailed. The state of Mississippi is now operating the plant, and supplies of Mirex are already reaching Texas and being stored in Lufkin.

"WE THINK we're back in operation with a new label on Mirex," White told budget examiners. "They say it will work. I wasn't too enthused about the old one, but it's the only game in town."

Jack Blowmer, an herbicide specialist for the agriculture department, echoed White's views. "There is no alternative," he said.

Texas east of a line from Corpus Christi to San Angelo and north to the Red River, Blowmer said. They are spreading westward. White told examiners that the ants, which pack a ferocious bite for their size and build large mounds in fields, have reached "alarming proportions" in Texas.

CONTROLLING FIRE ants by spraying Mirex can't be planned on a long-range basis because no one is sure what EPA will do, Blowmer said. "Anything could happen," he added.

EPA is in the process of setting guidelines under the Nationwide Pesticide Control Act for all pesticides it considers potentially dangerous, but the guidelines have been a long time coming. "We were supposed to get them last year," Blowmer said.

White agreed with budget examiners that it might be advisable to limit spending state money for pesticides by all agencies until they find out what EPA regulations will be. "We don't see any point" in spending money under such uncertain circumstances, he said.

White said the agriculture department returned about $1 million in fire ant control money last year after the program was curtailed. About $200,000 may also be returned to the state treasury this year.

Blowmer said the demand for Mirex has been present all along, but the supply hasn't until recently. In the six counties to be sprayed in September — Polk, Angelina, San Augustine, Sabine, Shelby and Nacagdoches — people "have been rather impatient," Blowmer said. "they were ready for that service years ago." Cherokee, Houston and Trinity counties are scheduled to be sprayed in the spring.

SIGNED RELEASES by local governments are required to authorize Mirex spraying, and landowners who don't want to be sprayed don't have to be, Blowmer said. "If anyone wishes not to be treated, we make every effort not to."

Common practice, he said, is to leave a one-fourth mile buffer zone between treated and nontreated land. The same is done for major bodies of water. Mirex is not water soluble, Blowmer said, and will sink to the bottom of stock ponds and mix with mud.

How effective is Mirex? It won't eliminate the fire ant, but it can control it, Blowmer said. Depending on weather conditions, between 85 and 95 per cent of the ant population can be killed off, and the treatment should last up to two years.

SOME AREAS treated in the past such as the Navarro County (Corsicana) area have requested retreatment, Blowmer said. "There are some people that want it and some that don't, but there are more of them that do," he said.

Monitoring how much Mirex remains in soil, water and animals is done by both state and federal authorities. The EPA announced recently it had found traces of Mirex in human tissue in some Southeastern states, not including Texas. Blowmer said he hadn't seen enough details of the EPA findings to comment on their effect in Texas.

"They came out with that just when we were planning our fall treatment, though," he said.

Blowmer acknowledged that a problem with Mirex is its long half-life (a measure of its decomposition rate). It is similar to DDT in that respect, he said. Blowmer said Mirex had been found in soil samples in Texas 30 days after application, but not after that.

THE STANDARD method of applying Mirex in Texas is 1.7 grams per acre, which Blowmer said is a relatively small amount in net weight compared to other pesticides. Mirex kills ant colonies when worker fire ants forage for food and carry the poison back to the queen. Once a queen is gone, the colony dies out in about 30 days, depending on the weather.

Of the $2 million Texas fire ant program, about $100,000 annually goes to research at Texas A&M university for new control methods at Texas A&M. There is hope that pesticide can be developed for the future which will break down more quickly, but for now it is Mirex or nothing, Blowmer said.

Some "ego-cologists" want nothing, he said, but "They haven't been in the business."

Master of Agriculture degree program offered at Tech

LUBBOCK — A Master of Agriculture degree program will be offered for the first time at Texas Tech University this fall.

"The new program will permit students to gain advanced knowledge in any area of their interest, along with general agriculture," Dr. Anson R. Bertrand, dean of Texas Tech's college of agricultural sciences, announced.

The new degree is a 36-semester-hour program and students will be advised by faculty members on the selection of courses.

At present the college offers the Master of Science degree in 13 major fields and a Master of Education in agricultural education. The college has seven departments and two sections. They include: agricultural economics; agricultural education; agricultural engineering and technology; animal science; park administration and landscape architecture; plant and soil sciences, and range and wildlife management. The two sections are entomology and food technology.

The college has 175 graduate students at present and Dean Bertrand expects that at least 25 to 30 additional students will enroll for the new program.

Annual field day will be held Thursday north of Idalou

George Babcock, manager of Growers Seed Association, has invited area farmers and those engaged in agribusiness to the organization's annual field day to be held Thursday, Aug. 26, 10:30 a.m. The event will take place 2½ miles east on U.S. 82 and one mile north of Idalou at the Growers Seed Research farm.

"We're calling this 'Research in Action' because under the growers brand, we've developed a number of outstanding, high producing, varieties of hybrid sorghums, cotton, hybrid sunflowers and corn. We're hoping everyone involved in agriculture on the South Plains will join us — look us over — and compare what we have to any other brands," Babcock stated.

Direction signs will be posted where the motorists turns north off of U.S. 82 leading to the field day site. Lunch will be served to those attending.

Big hurdles stand in way of Ballinger reservoir

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A Runnels County delegation seeking help with a severe water shortage problem got a warm reception from the Texas Water Development Board Tuesday but still faces an uphill fight before there will be water behind a dam.

The board ruled unanimously that a proposed reservoir project or Elm Creek near Ballinger fits the eligibility requirements for state help.

But that still is a long way from the total $5,650,000 in state help the Runnels County Water Authority may have to seek.

W. E. "Buck" Tinsley, former Water Development Board member and now financial advisor for various water projects, led the Runnels County delegation and joked about how different things looked from the other side of the table. It was his first appearance before the board since he left office several months ago.

Tinsley said his appearance was unique for him and the project he represented was unique for the board. Most water project involve local sponsors asking the board for low-interest bonds from the water development bond fund.

But the Runnels County application is from people who can't handle all the financing by themselves, he said. "We probably will have to ask the board to build it for us," he said.

The Runnels County Water Authority has never existed except on paper, and the cost of building raw water lines to serve Ballinger and Winters probably will push the financing ability of those two towns to the limit, Tinsley said.

An initial proposal calls for $2,050,000 to be made available by the state through low interest bonds to pay for the water lines and other costs and $3.6 million to be paid directly by the state under a storage acquisition program.

The actual financing depends on several things. An application will be made to the Farmers Home Administration for a federal grant to help on the water line costs. Approval could mean more financing of the dam by the local sponsor through bond sales to the state.

Another unknown factor is mitigation — the federal requirement that extra land be set aside for fish and wildlife to mitigate for reservoir project effects.

The actual reservoir itself would cover 1,600 acres.

"It's pretty good farm land," Tinsley said. "So you can see why we shutter to think about mitigation."

Board vice chairman Robert B. Gilmore caused laughter when he mentioned with just a bit of sarcasm about "providing for jack rabbits and prairie dogs."

Homer Hodge, mayor of Winters, told the board the future of Runnels County will be determined by whether the reservoir proposal succeeds or fails. "There just simply is no water in Runnels County to speak of to serve our growing needs," he said.

In other action the board approved several applications for renewal of existing weather modification licenses for another year. One renewal was for Irving P. Krick, Inc., which has a project underway in the Abilene area, and another was for the Colorado River Municipal Water District of Big Spring.

The board issued a new schedule for public forums on revision of the Texas Water Plan. West Texas forums include: Sept. 13 in El Paso, Sept. 21 in Lubbock, Sept. 29 for Midland-Odessa, Oct. 27 in the morning in Abilene and later in the day at San Angelo. Specific times will be announced later.

Russia facing severe economic problems?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union's current five-year plan is called "unusually restrained and realistic" in a Central Intelligence Agency analysis that also says the plan could lead to serious economic problems in the 1980s.

The newly released study estimates that during 1976-80 the Soviet gross national product — total value of goods and services — will grow at an annual rate of about 4 per cent, lower than the 5 per cent growth rate projected by the Kremlin's five-year plan.

The Soviets' economic aims set by the plan, the CIA study noted, "will make the 1970s by far the lowest postwar growth decade."

But the report said that "despite the moderate projected growth, major targets still seem too ambitious. Another two years of poor harvests, highly possible, would again wreak havoc on the five-year plan."

Also, the analysis contended that the lack of any major planned reforms in the Soviet economy's organization and management "bodes ill for a rise in productivity substantially above the rates achieved in the last 10 years."

"The Soviet leadership appears to view its economic prospects as troubling but managable," said the CIA study, based on published Soviet statements about the five-year plan together with data and projections from unspecified intelligence sources.

However, it said that failure to adopt any "bold new strategies" during the current plan could lead to serious economic problems in the 1980s that "may force the leadership to reassess the need for systematic reform."

According to the CIA study, those longer-range problems may include a manpower shortage, diminished economic return on capital investment and inadequate growth in productivity.

School elections called illegal

MIDLAND — The Midland Independent School District has been informed that its method for electing people to the board of trustees is considered illegal by the U.S. Justice Department.

The Justice Department said, in effect, that the Midland voting procedures violated the Texas Voting Rights Statutes.

The board had adopted a policy of electing board members by place rather than at large.

$1.13 billion bid for Atlantic leases

NEW YORK (AP) — The oil industry has bid $1.13 billion — nearly twice what the Interior Department expected — to search for oil and natural gas off the Atlantic Coast for the first time.

Interior Department officials had estimated the Atlantic Coast tracts would bring between $400 million and $600 million in bids.

The oil industry has been waiting for years to search beneath Atlantic Coast waters. The bidding was to have started at 10 a.m. Tuesday, but had to wait until 6 p.m. when Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall denied a request to block the sale.

"The government is quite pleased with the results," Mike Basile, manager of Interior's Outer Continental Shelf Office in New York, said after the sealed bids were opened in the blue-carpeted ballroom of the Statler Hilton Hotel.

The 876,750 acres opened to bids are 45 to 90 miles off New York's Long Island, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

The Interior Department estimates 400 million to 1.4 billion barrels of oil are under the seabed there. But the companies, all of them American, were bidding without the guidance of previous drilling in the area.

The companies bid on only 101 of the 154 tracts. High bidder on each tract won the right to search for oil and natural gas.

Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil company, was an aggressive bidder. Company officials said Exxon offered about $348.5 million as apparent high bidder on 34 tracts. The highest bid for one tract was a $107.7 million offer by a group of companies led by Mobil Oil Corp.

The highest total ever bid for offshore leases was $2.09 billion in a 1974 Gulf of Mexico oil lease sale.

The last two sales of offshore leases had produced bids considerably lower than the government predicted. In December 1975, Interior Secretary Thomas S. Kleppe estimated that bids on California offshore leases would bring up to $2 billion. They totaled $438.2 million. And last April, offshore tracts in the Gulf of Alaska brought $560 million in bids after Kleppe had predicted up to $1 billion in bids.

The Interior Department must still approve the high bids after checking them against what it thinks each tract is worth. Whether actual drilling will be allowed depends on the outcome of a hearing next month in the U.S. Court of Appeals Court in New York.

That court, while allowing the sale to occur, said it will study the environmental issues raised by New York State, several counties and local environemental groups and oceanfront communities. They had asked Marshall to override the Appeals Court decision to allow the sale, which he refused to do.

If they are allowed to drill, it will take the oil companies four to six months to move rigs into the area, and it could be four years or more before the first oil is sucked from beneath the ocean floor.

Gas suit moves closer to court

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — San Antonio's $400 million suit against Coastal States Gas Corp. moved closer to court Tuesday when the company's president said there will be no improvement in the firm's latest out-of-court offer.

Harry Blomquist said in a letter to San Antonio City Council members that he would not recommend any changes in the current plan to the corporation's board of directors.

If an out-of-court agreement is not reached, the suit against Coastal States, its chairman, Oscar Wyatt Jr. and its Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. subsidiary is scheduled for trial Monday in 166th District Court here.

Council members received the letters as they arrived for a closed door meeting with trustees of the municipally-owned City Public Service (CPS) utility.

The meeting was called by Mayor Lila Cockrell to discuss what additional concessions the city might demand as part of an acceptable settlement plan.

The council last week unanimously rejected the current offer but left the door open for possible continued negotiations.

However, City lawyers are likely to seek a delay in the trial since they have been busy in recent months working on the settlement plan.

Monday, the city amended its suit to nearly double the amount of damages it seeks. Originally, the action asked for $210 million.

City lawyers also filed a motion to prevent the trial from being moved to Houston, which is headquarters for Coastal States.

The suit accuses the companies and Wyatt of breaching price agreements in a 20-year gas supply contract signed in 1961.

The amount of damages was amended to include alleged new damages suffered since the suit was filed originally.

Blomquist, in his letter to the council, said the current settlement offer is aimed at keeping Lo-Vaca financially stable so it can meet supply obligations to customers.

He said Coastal States would not be able to meet any concessions beyond those in the current settlement offer.

Officials of Lo-Vaca and Coast States have indicated that if no settlement is reached, Lo-Vaca will be forced into bankruptcy, a move which they say would jeopordize gas supply to all of Lo-Vaca's customers, mostly in South Texas.

Lo-Vaca earned $1.7 million during 1st half

HOUSTON (AP) — Lo-Vaca Gathering Co., a subsidiary of Coastal States Gas Corp. and troubled with lawsuits and utility hearings, had net earnings of $1.7 million during the first six months of 1976.

The report was released by Coastal States in a footnote to the detailed financial report mailed to security holders Aug. 3.

The footnote stated that Lo-Vaca's first half year earnings were the same as 1975.

Lo-Vaca revenues, including sales of natural gas liquids, were $464 million during the first six months of year, compared to $377 million a year earlier.

The report said, "Losses incurred by Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. on gas sales were offset by earnings from the sales of natural gas liquids. As a result, Lo-Vaca reported net income of $1.7 million, the same as last year."

Coastal States had net earnings of $29 million or $1.40 per share for the first half of the year and $13.3 million or 64 cents a share for the second quarter.

A year ago figures were $18.2 million or $1.35 a share for the first half and $12.8 million or 61 cents a share for the second quarter.

Finally! Tough slate for OSU

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A younger Woody Hayes treated nonconference football games as mere exhibitions preparatory for Big Ten Conference championship bids.

The stormy Ohio State coach, now silver-haired and 62 years old, has altered that philosophy. "You have to play for keeps right away now," he says. "Teams are so much better."

Perhaps the Big Ten power's schedule is the reason. The Buckeyes start with Michigan State, Penn State, Missouri and UCLA, the toughest in Hayes' 26 Ohio State seasons.

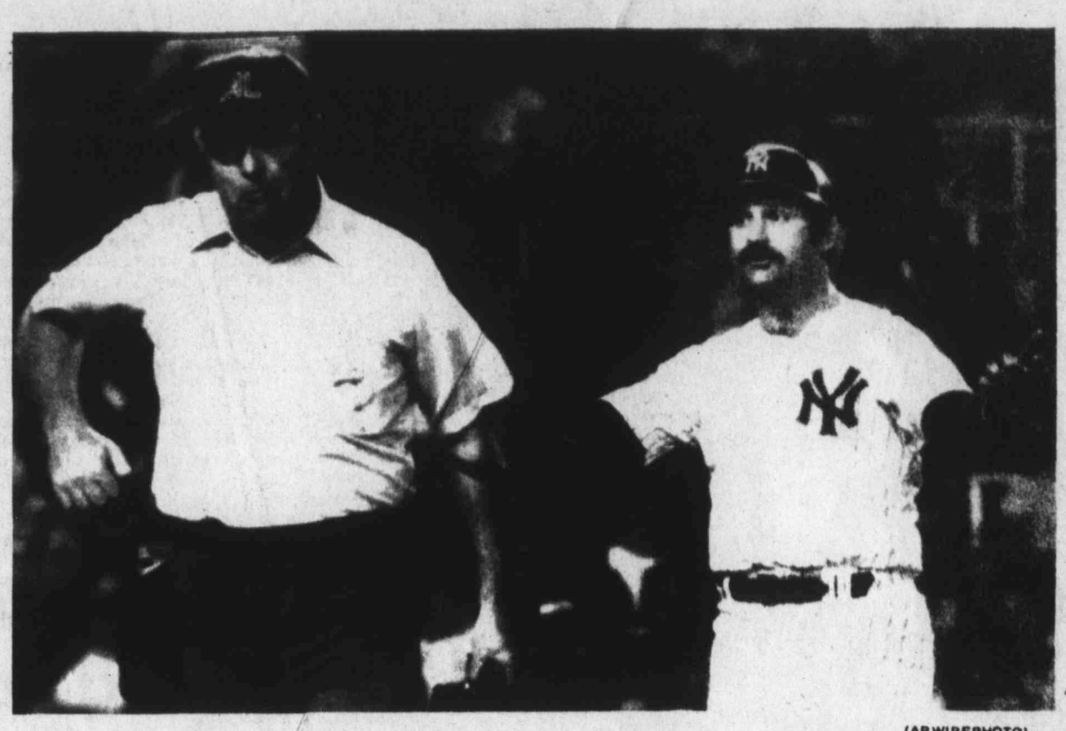

He has taken teams to five of the last six Rose Bowls, losing all but one. In most cases, the defeats cost Hayes that coveted national title. The most upsetting was last January when unheralded UCLA torpedoed the Buckeyes 23-10, dropping the Big Ten champions from first to fourth in the final poll.

"I haven't discussed the Rose Bowl and I won't," said the disciplinarian who has turned out a 213-63-8 record in 30 college seasons.

The Buckeyes, 11-1-0 last season, lost eight of 11 offensive starters and 12 of 22 overall.

The biggest departees were tailback Archie Griffin, the only two-time Heisman Trophy winner; quarterback Cornelius Greene; wingback Brian Baschnagel; offensive tackle Scott Donnelley, and safety Tim Fox.

Still, Hayes refuses to discuss any team weaknesses, preparing for a controversial home opener with Michigan State Sept. 4. The Michigan State campus newspaper, in a series of preseason stories, charged the Buckeyes with recruiting violations.

Ranger Boggs down after third defeat

NEW YORK (AP) — In his fifth major league outing, young Tommy Boggs pitched a complete game. Now he'd like a win.

The youngster held the hardhitting New York Yankees to seven hits Tuesday night. Unfortunately, the seventh one came on his first pitch in the bottom of the ninth inning. Graig Nettles hit it into the right field seats, giving the Yanks a 2-1 triumph and Boggs an 0-3 record and teaching the 20-year-old right-hander a lesson the hard way.

"The difference between Class AAA and the majors is you can't make any mistakes up here," Boggs said. "They make you pay for them. I came out in the ninth determined to throw hard and I put it right dead pipe in the middle of the plate and he hit it."

Boggs held the Yankees hitless until Oscar Gamble hit his 12th home run with two out in the fifth. The Yanks were impressed.

"Boggs had a good curve, but he didn't use it on me," said Nettles. "I hit a fast ball. I felt when I hit it that I hit it good. When I'm in a hot streak I look in the zone, and I'm in a hot streak now. I guessed right on the fast ball."

Landry: 1st round pick for long-gone Longley

DALLAS (AP)—Clint Longley is apparently long—gone as far as the Dallas Cowboys are concerned despite a telephone conversation with Coach Tom Landry.

Longley called Landry Sunday to discuss the reserve quarterback's request to be traded following round two of a training camp feud with starting quarterback Roger Staubach.

Asked if he would take a contrite Longley back, Landry hinted Tuesday that he wouldn't.

"I'm leaning a certain way but it wouldn't be fair to say which way," said Landry. "I'm not sure at this point. I don't know what will happen. There is no time table. Hopefully, something will happen during the week."

Landry said Longley "felt bad about the embarrassment the incident had caused the Cowboys. His loss has been a great blow to our football team."

The Cowboys have received a lukewarm reception in the trade marts for Longley, who came off the bench as a rookie to stun Washington two years ago in a nationally televised Thanksgiving Day game.

Dallas is believed asking a first-round draft choice for Longley who was running No. 2 behind Staubach before feelings between the pair exploded into fisticuffs last week at the team's Thousand Oaks, Calif., training camp.

Staubach was pulled off Longley after the first encounter. Three days later Staubach said Longley tagged him with a cheap shot in the dressing room while Roger the dodger had his arms up putting on his shoulder pads. Staubach reeled into the training room scales and it took nine stiches to close the cut.

Longley said he was provoked and left camp in a huff with Staubach looking for him. Since then Longley has challenged Staubach to a bout in Memorial Auditorium.

Landry dismissed the first fight because "It happened on the field" but considered the dressing room punch a different matter.

"I was shocked when I heard what happened," said Landry. "Clint still wants to be traded."

'Bird' antics contagious, battery-mate goes balmy

By The Associated Press

The Detroit Tigers' rookie bounded around the bases with his arms raised, jumping for joy all the way.

Mark "The Bird" Fidrych, right? Wrong!

"I'm always excited when I do something great and I don't do something great very often," said a bubbling catcher Bruce Kimm, who helped fellow rookie Fidrych to his 14th victory in 18 decisions with an eighth-inning home run off Frank Tanana — his first in the majors — that gave the Tigers a 3-2 triumph over the California Angels.

It was Kimm's night ... and Fidrych knew it. "Hell, yeah, I'm happy," said the young pitching sensation, "but not as happy as Bruce Kimm is."

Fidrych fell behind 2-0 as Ron Jackson homered for California in the fifth, but the Tigers tied it in the sixth on a walk to Kimm, Ron LeFlore's triple and Alex Johnson's sacrifice fly. Kimm then walloped a Tanana fast ball into the upper deck two innings later.

Royals 4, Indians 3

Brett stole home with two out in the bottom of the 10th. He singled with one out, stole second and continued to third on a wild throw by catcher Rick Cerone. With Dave Nelson at bat, Brett broke for the plate and was two-thirds of the way home before reliever Dave LaRoche noticed him and he slid safely under the pitch.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Royals and enabled them to remain eight games ahead of second-place Oakland in the AL West.

A's 5, Brewers 4

The A's stole four more bases to make 266 thefts, the most by a major league team since 1913. They're taking aim at the record of 347 by the 1911 New York Giants.

Trailing 4-3, Phil Garner walked with one out in the seventh, stole second and scored on Bill North's single. North took second on the throw to the plate and came home with the winning on a single by Bert Campaneris.

Orioles 10, Twins 3

Lee May drove in five runs with a homer, triple and single as Baltimore won its fourth in a row. May cracked a three-run homer in the first inning off Tom Johnson, who was making his first big league start.

MARK FIDRYCH

White Sox 2-7, Red Sox 1-11

Boston's Bob Montgomery drove in five runs with a threerun homer and a two-run double in the nightcap while Rick Burleson had seven hits in 10 at-bats during the twin bill. However, Chicago won the opener as Pat Kelly singled home one run and then doubled in the ninth and scored on a single by Bill Stein.

Baseball's Big Four

By FRED BREWER

As it looks now, this will be the first baseball season in the last seven not to have three of the Big Four participating in the post-season frays.

Who are the Big Four? Oakland, Cincinnati, Baltimore and Pittsburgh, the four teams that have won all but a few of baseball's most prized titles in the seventies.

The Big Four (one-sixth of the Major League's 24 teams) have chalked up 18 of the 24 divisional crowns, nine of the 12 pennants and all six of the World Series.

Their accomplishments in review:

1970 — BALTIMORE beat the Reds in five games to win the World Series after knocking the Minnesota Twins out of the picture three-zip in the American League Play-off. Cincinnati also won their league crown in three straight versus the Pirates.

1971 — PITTSBURGH, after becoming the first team to lose a play-off game and still going on to win the crown (it lost its first game to the San Francisco Giants and then swept the next three), edged the Orioles in seven games to win the series.

Baltimore had eliminated the Athletics in three straight, extending its play-off game victory skein to nine in a row.

1972 — THIS WAS the first year, since the pennant play-offs began in 1969, that a team had to go the full five games to win the crown and, as odds would have it, it occurred in both leagues.

The A's and Detroit Tigers became the first teams, other than Baltimore, to win an AL Play-off game, but (despite the suspension of Bert Campaneris in a celebrated bat-throwing incident) the A's won one more than the Tigers.

Oakland also won one more than the Reds in a seven-game series, after jumping out to a three-game lead at the beginning.

Cincinnati had rallied, both in games and in the decisive fifth game, to edge Pittsburgh for the NL crown. This was the first time in baseball history 17 post-season games had to be played to decide the championship.

1973 — FOR THE second year in a row, a full slate of post-season games were needed before Oakland could reclaim its throne. The A's, who were becoming experts at winning no-tomorrow games, took the Orioles in five and then edged the New York Mets in seven.

The Mets barely won the NL East — they had to win a make-up game that had been rained out to decide it. New York upset Cincinnati in five, but they fell one game short of matching the "Miracle Mets" of 1969.

1974 — THINGS WERE a little less hectic for Oakland this year. The A's knocked off the Orioles in four games and then wrapped up their third straight World Series in just five games over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Even though the Pirates handled the Dodgers with ease during the regular season, LA won the play-offs in four games.

1975 — AFTER LOSING their last three World Series — in '61, '71 and '73 — the Reds finally won their first championship in 36 years by edging the Boston Red Sox in seven games.

Cincinnati sluffed off the Pirates in three straight to win the NL Pennant and the Red Sox took care of the A's just as easily in their loop.

In summary, the Orioles, Pirates and Reds made the play-offs in 1970; Pirates, Orioles and A's in '71; A's, Reds and Pirates in '72; A's, Orioles and Reds in '73, A's, Pirates and Orioles in '74 and Reds, Pirates and A's in '75.

But, this season Cincinnati appears to be the only member with a shot at the play-offs. However, the fact that it is the other members of the Big Four trailing the leaders in the other three divisions, may be causing more consternation among those leaders than teams usually feel with such huge leads.

Baltimore, for example, came from way behind to beat out the Yankees in '73 and the Red Sox in '74 and it put a lot of pressure on Boston last season before losing out. The Orioles have been the best September team in baseball for the past three years.

The Pirates have come from further back than 10 games to win and they've come from behind at the end to win, but they've never done both at the same time. Could this be the first time?

The Pirates will be aided in their quest by the media. Philadelphia's enigma, the 1964 collapse, still follows the Phillies, thanks to constant questioning by the press.

Even though Dick Allen and Tony Taylor, who've both played elsewhere since, are the only Phillies who played on the '64 squad that blew an 11-game lead, the shadow of the event may hurt this year's team. They may mistake a normal slump for the beginning of the end.

And, of course, how can the Kansas City Royals help but worry about the A's. The team that has won their division the past five years.

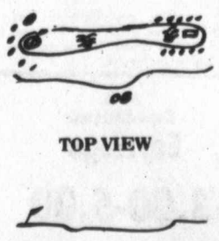

When Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid couldn't shake the posse being led by the man with the white hat, they kept asking, "Who are those guys?"

The Yankees, Phillies and Royals don't have that problem. They know who those guys are.

HOLE 11

341-YARDS FOR MEN

310-YARDS FOR WOMEN

Par four, 341-yard, hole 11 has a row of trees on either side of the tee-box, an out-of-bounds area all the way up to the green beyond the left fairway, a cart-path along the right fairway and a dip about 100 yards in front of the tree-encircled green.

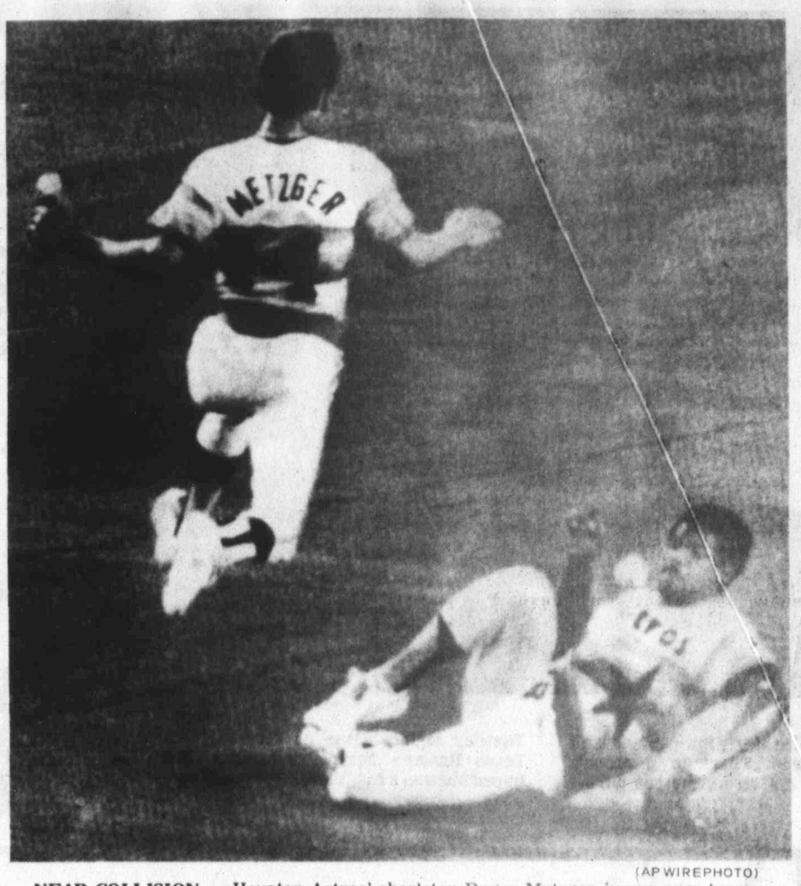

This is usually one of the easiest holes on the course, but a crosswind can make it tricky, especially if its blowing toward the OB area to the left.

Most of the better golfers aim there drive for the cart-path. If the ball is hit just right, it will roll to within a three-quarter wedge-shot of the green.

In any event most good golfers have a nine-iron or wedge approach shot, while the average golfers use a five or six iron.

Occasionally the wind blows in the golfer's face necessitating a four or five-iron approch shot for the better golfers and up to a three-wood shot for the average ones.

Remember the trees lining both sides of the tee-box and try to play the cart-path for distance.

NEAR COLLISION — Houston Astros' shortstop Roger Metzger jumps over teammate Cesar Cedeno, who just missed on a pop fly by Chicago Cubs' Joe Wallis. Wallis was credited with a single on the play at Houston Tuesday night.

Monday spoils shutout

Richard whips Cubs 8-1

HOUSTON (AP) — J. R. Richard had his rhythm going, his teammates scored eight runs for him and the result was that he picked up his 14th victory of the season.

Richard silenced the Chicago Cubs on five hits while striking out nine Tuesday night as the Houston Astros won 8-1.

Roger Metzger drove home Houston's first two runs off loser Steve Sloan with a fourth inning single before Jose Cruz singled home a run in the Astro fifth, giving Richard a 3-0 lead.

A two-run triple by Enos Cabell and Cesar Cedeno's run-scoring single in the sixth widened the margin, with Bob Watson's two-run double in the eighth bringing home Houston's final runs. Rick Monday's solo homer in the ninth spoiled the shutout bid by Richard as the Astros broke a five-game losing streak.

"I wanted the shutout real bad," said Richard, 14-12. I felt super and my concentration was a bit better than usual."

The only serious Cub threat came in the sixth when singles by Rob Sperring and Monday put runners on first and third with one out. But, Richard got out of the jam by retiring Jose Cardenal on an inning-ending double play.

"I almost lost my rhythm in the sixth inning," Richard said, "but I corrected myself and that is the mark of a good pitcher."

Astro pitching coach Mel Wright believes that Richard has improved a great deal.

"On occasions he rushes himself, causing him to be too high with his pitches. But he maitained his rhythm tonight. He has progressed this season," he said.

The victory was Houston's fourth in the last 16 games.

Soviet defector going home

MONTREAL (AP) — Three weeks after his disappearance from the Olympic Village and apparent defection, Russian diver Sergei Nemtsanov has changed his mind and decided to return to his country after expressing concern for his grandmother in the Soviet Union.

An official at the Soviet consulate here said Tuesday that Nemtsanov was in the building but said he was "very tired and won't be in a position to make any comments."

The official would not say when the 17-year-old diver would return to the Soviet Union, but the next scheduled Aeroflot flight to Moscow from Montreal is on Thursday.

Although Nemtsanov made no public comments himself, two lawyers who acted for him said in a statement Tuesday that he had expressed concern in recent days about the grandmother who brought him up, and "accordingly wanted him to return."

Meanwhile, immigration department representative Eva Ludvig said Canadian officials had not tried to change Nemtsanov's decision.

"It was his choice to come here and his choice to go back," she said. "We had to respect his decision."

Another immigration department spokesman said that Nemtsanov had announced his decision to return home in a meeting with department officials Monday. But the youngster had said he wanted to "sleep on it" before meeting with Soviet authorities, the official said.

Nemtsanov met again with the immigration officials Tuesday afternoon and confirmed that he wanted to go home.

The officials, along with an interpreter and Toronto resident John Fleming — with whom the youth was staying while in Canada — then went to the coffee shop of a downtown hotel with Nemtsanov to meet with Soviet officials.

After talking for 15 minutes, he left with the officials from the Soviet consulate in Montreal.

Before reaching his decision, Nemtsanov is reported to have stayed for at least a week with Fleming and his family at a summer home in the Muskoka Lakes area north of Toronto.

This followed his stay with a young Toronto couple who cared for him for an unknown period of time after he left the Olympic Village July 29. Diver Skip Pheonix and his wife Mary initially went into hiding in the Montreal area with Nemtsanov, whom they had met at international competitions.

NFL attendance

Bills suffering, rest of loop O.K.

By The Associated Press

"It seems the National Football League preseason attendance is way, way down," someone in Buffalo said recently as he observed about 31,000 fans in 80,200-seat Rich Stadium for the Bills' exhibition game against New Orleans.

If he'd been in Washington last weekend, he'd have thought otherwise. The Redskins, who averaged about 22,000 for their exhibitions, drew better than 40,000 for their game, a loss to Pittsburgh. If he'd been in Chicago to see the Bears beat Baltimore, he'd have been in the company of 54,338 fans. Last year the Bears' top preseason crowd was 42,503.

If he'd been in Dallas, he'd have been one of 54,567 fans — about 10,000 more than last year — who saw the Cowboys lose to Denver.

Or maybe if he'd seen O.J. Simpson on the field with the rest of the Bills, he'd have seen a lot more people in the stands, too. They were there last year, better than 51,000 a game — but then, so was O.J.

With three of the six preseason weekends completed, attendance is, in fact, down a bit at NFL exhibitions — an average of about 39,500 this year compared to last year's six-week average of 42,000.

But to leave it at that is misleading.

As the regular season gets closer, attendance rises. Fans stay away from the early exhibitions on the theory they'll be seeing a plethora of rookies and free agents doomed to be cut from the squad. They attend the later games, when the lineups are more likely to have most of the season's starters in them.

The exhibitions started earlier this year. That meant it was hotter in some cities. Football came out second-best to a day at the beach or in the park. It is, after all, a winter sport. Or it's supposed to be.

In some cases, a club's exhibition tickets, which used to be a mandatory part of the season-ticket package, are now optional. And many fans aren't picking up the option.

And the NFL has a policy of spreading early games around at neutral, non-league sites like Oklahoma and Japan, games which generally draw smaller crowds than those played before the home folks.

Then there's the memory factor. A team that finished with a 4-10 record or worse in 1975 or started out by losing a few exhibitions in 1976 can't expect to find a line at the ticket booth.

And, of course, some ticket prices have gone up a buck or two or with inflation.

Big Spring students last chance physical

The final makeup physicals for boys and girls, who will take part in any athletics in Big Spring Public Schools, will be held Thursday, according to athletic director Don Robbins.

This will be the last chance for students in grades 7-12 who expect to play football, baseball, basketball, golf, tennis, volleyball or any sport during the coming school year. Each must have a physical.

Each student should bring a dollar to cover lab fees.

The physicals will be administered at 1:30 p.m. Thursday in the high school gym.

Tide tilts, 'Scare me to death,' Bryant

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Coach Bear Bryant says his Alabama football players ought to be saying prayers of thanks because of their schedule, but that he is scared to death.

The Crimson Tide, third in the nation last season after winning its first bowl game in 10 years, began the heavy work today for its 1976 season opener against rejuvenated Mississippi at Jackson Sept. 11.

In its quest for a sixth straight Southeastern Conference title — no other school has ever won more than two straight — Alabama must travel to Tennessee and Georgia as well.

In addition, Alabama goes to South Bend late in the season to take on a Notre Dame team whose two defeats of Alabama in recent bowls by a total of three points still bother Bryant.

"Our players ought to stay awake nights thanking the good Lord for the chance to play people like Notre Dame, Louisiana State, Auburn, Tennessee, Georgia and Mississippi," Bryant said. "But the coaches are scared to death."

Much of the fear is based on losses to graduation from the squad that went 11-1 a year ago, including a 13-6 victory over Penn State in the first Sugar Bowl played in the New Orleans Superdome.

Bryant lost eight starters off a team that held the best record in the nation against scoring — only six points a game. His offense lost quarterback Richard Todd, now trying to become Joe Namath's replacement with the New York Jets after directing Alabama for three seasons.

The Tide's strong points include defenders Bob Baumhower and Charles Hannah at tackle and Gus White at middle guard. "I wouldn't swap them for any three down linemen in the country," Bryant said, "but after that we don't have anybody who has worked up a sweat in a game."

WT site dates back 13,000 years ago

Uncovering traces of human culture

LUBBOCK — Breezy West Texas with its dry winds, 90 degree summers and blue norther winters, used to be quite a different place.

Thomas Stafford, geologist for the Texas Tech University scientific explorations now going on at the Lubbock Lake Site on the South Plains of West Texas, can map the terrain and describe the climate for eras as long ago as 20,000 years.

His ability to do that is the result of 104 trenches he has dug this summer at the Lubbock Lake Site and an intensive study of the sediments deposited there over the ages.

The Yellow House Canyon which meanders through the northern portions of the city of Lubbock was formed in the recent past — within the last 500,000 years, Stafford said. His primary interest in the Lubbock Lake Site dates back to 12,000 or 13,000 years ago, at a level where archeologists at the site are uncovering traces of human culture labeled Clovis.

But even before man began using the site as a butchering area for hunting trophies — mammoth, bison, horse and other animals large and small — the Yellow House Valley was being formed, with a width measuring from 60 to 250 meters (a meter being about 39.4 inches). This was 20,000 years ago, the geologist said.

Between that time and this, approximately 10 meters of sediment have filled the valley, and in most places this is now farm or range land.

In the time of Clovis Man, there may have been as much as 25 or 30 inches of rainfall per year, compared with 18 inches expected annually in the 1970s. The country might have looked much like the Texas-Louisiana border land today, with warmer winters and cooler summers than man now experiences.

After Clovis Man, the stream which had flowed at a fairly steady rate changed, and what is now the Lubbock Lake Site was indeed a lake.

"Some obstructions blocked the stream and caused the water to back up," Stafford said. This was the period of Folsom Man, 10,000 to 11,000 years ago, and it continued until the time of Plainview Man or the late Paleo Indian period, 8,000 to 9,000 years ago.

This happened all along the stream; so there were many lakes that were fed by springs and by rainfall.

Then came a prolonged drying sequence, and it was no ordinary drought.

Folsom Lake became a brackish or saline lake, and finally it dried up. This period is marked by an abrupt jump to a dry climate that lasted from about 6,000 years ago to about 3,000 or 4,000 years ago.

This is determined, Stafford said, partially by noting the high concentration of calcium in the soil strata for this period. If there had been heavy rains, the calcium would have been washed out.

Although there was human activity at the Lubbock Lake Site during this period, there appear to be fewer bone beds with the artifacts usually found in them.

Following this period, there is a gap with not enough sediment being deposited to leave any geologic clues to the climate, but another abrupt change took place starting in about 1250 A.D. and lasting almost to the present day.

The Yellow House stream bed became a swamp. While there was no standing water, the ground was saturated, fed by rain and underground springs. This marsh was about three feet thick and made the area a rich source for today's archeologists; for it is a massive bone bed with horse,antelope and modern bison among the remains most commonly encountered. There also are masses of cultural material — grinding stones, bone beads, pottery and projectile points.

At this time man was living on higher ground, leaving evidence of his life in pottery and hearth sites in the red sands on the uplands. Soil developed on the top of these sands, and it is on this soil that farmers grow today's crops.

The marshland still was evident in the early 1800s, and the springs were evident until the 1940s and 1950s when irrigation on the South Plains became so intensive that the underground water table was lowered, and the springs disappeared.

Lubbock Lake Site studies are funded this year by a $45,000 National Science Foundation Grant to Texas Tech University. Principal investigators are Dr. Eileen Johnson, project director and a zooarcheologist, and Dr. M. Elizabeth King, professor of museum science at The Museum of Texas Tech University and also an archeologist. The city and county of Lubbock also support the work.

Dawson gains discovery, wildcat eyed in Scurry

Dawson County gained a discovery and Scurry drew a location for a wildcat this week.

Skelly Oil Co., No. 1, H. G. Wright, Dawson County Fusselman discovery, ¼ mile north of a depleted Fusselman oil discovery, 1¼ miles northwest of the Olon Earnest (upper Spraberry field and six miles south of Lamesa, was finaled for 768 barrels of 42.8 gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio of 22-1.

Production was through a 24-64-inch choke and open hole at 11,612-660 feet.

The project, slated for 12,200 feet went "tight" when drilling reached 11,660 feet.

Location is 660 feet from the south and west lines of 43-35-5n-T&P.

The depleted discovery, Knigh and Miller Oil Corp., Midland, No. 1 Graham, was finaled Oct. 17, 1972 to pump 75 barrels of 39 gravity oil, plus 140 barrels of water, with gas-oil ration of 100-1, through perforations at 11,633-638 feet. It was re-entered by the same firm for tests of the Dean at 9,100 feet, but was abandoned again April 19, 1973.

Over in Scurry, Western Reserves Oil Co., Midland, will drill the No. 1 Johnson, a 7,300-foot Pennsylvanian reef wildcat in Scurry County, a location east offset to the depleted Strawn opener and lone producer of the Tonto, Northeast (5030 Cisco) field and nine miles northeast of Snyder.

Location is 1,650 feet from the north and 933 feet from the west lines of 263-2-H&TC.

The Strawn opener, the British-American Oil Producing Co. No. 1-Q C. M. Johnson, was finaled May 3, 1958, to pump 160 barrels of 37.5 gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio of 448-1 through perforations at 7,014-20 feet.

It topped the Tonto sand at 6,638 feet; Pennsylvanian reff, 7,003 feet and Mississippi, 7,484 feet on elevation of 2,273 feet. It became depleted in March 1959.

Petroleum Exploration and Operating Co., Midland, will drill the No. 1 Brooks as a ⅜ mile northeast stepout to the current three-well Tri-We (Pennsylvanian reef) field of Scurry County, six miles southwest of Snyder.

Location is 1,980 feet from the north 467 feet from the east lines of 188-97, H&TC. Contract depth is 6,800 feet.

Sophia Loren faces surgery

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (AP) — Actress Sophia Loren will undergo minor surgery later this year, causing the postponement of Jocasta, a film to be shot in British Columbia, according to the production manager for the film.

Bob Gray, the production manager, said Tuesday the surgery is elective and not serious, but he would not elaborate.

The surgery would delay the film's eight-week production schedule until winter so Paramount Pictures has postponed production until next spring, he said.

The film, a Western, is to star Miss Loren, Rip Torn and Donald Pleasance.

ON WAY TO CITIES — Tipping the scales at four pounds and two ounces is the more than 700 pages of detailed gas purchase information delivered this week to the various city governments throughout Pioneer Natural Gas Company's West Texas System. Weighing the voluminous materials are Pioneer employes, Billie Washington (left), and Doris Vivens. The packets contain company testimony and exhibits for Pioneer's hearing to be presented before the Texas Railroad Commission (RRC) in Austin Sept. 14. The tall stack of gas purchase contracts to the left will be available for public examination at the RRC hearing in Austin and at Pioneer's Amarillo headquarters.

Diboll solon to oppose Clayton for speakership

By SCOTT CARPENTER
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Two-term House member Arthur "Buddy" Temple III of Diboll says he is going to give Bill Clayton a run for the House speakership this year.

Temple long ago made it known that he wanted to be speaker and most thought he would wait until 1979 when Clayton would either have made a 1978 bid for lieutenant governor or be trying for his third term. No person has ever served three terms as speaker of the Texas House.

Clayton is thought to be unbeatable this year, and Temple's candidacy is seen more as an attempt to lock up support for a future race. Many observers feel that for Temple to try and fail this year will hurt his future chances.

"I'll do a whole lot better than people think," Temple vows. The race will have to be conducted out of public view, though.

There are few House members who are willing to have their name linked with Temple's in a race against the incumbent speaker. The speaker has life or death control over most legislation through his committees and through the double and sometimes triple tiered committee structure in the House.

Most legislators feel that they would have to give up their planned legislative package for the coming year in order to support the opponent of the incumbent. Temple feels that he doesn't have much of a chance for 1977 with Clayton in control and he really has nothing to lose.

His campaign is going to be based on recent Clayton-proposed rules changes that enhance the power of the speaker. Temple feels that the attempt to more centralize the power and the fact that Clayton's right-hand committee, the House Administration Committee, has ticked off most legislators will work in his favor.

Clayton won a tough race in 1975. After a long year of campaigning for the right to follow Price Daniel Jr., Clayton got the needed 76th vote when Rep. Fred Head of Palestine withdrew from the race in favor of Clayton, and released his pledges.

Temple had been Head's first lieutenant in that race. The third person, who remained until the last, was Rep. Carl Parker of Port Arthur. It is the hard core Parker supporters, those that backed Parker in the final balloting, that are said to be the leaders of the Temple campaign. Other announced as candidates in 1975 were not viewed as serious.

The 34-year-old Temple is a millionaire. His father was the owner of Temple Industries of Diboll, a massive corporation, until it was sold to Time Inc. The family's voting stock in Time approaches control.

Temple is the only one looking at a 1977 race. Others, though, are showing an interest in a race for the speakership in 1979 including Rep. Tom Schieffer of Fort Worth, the author of last year's presidential preference primary law; powerful House State Affairs Committee Chairman Tom Uher of Bay City, a key Clayton lieutenant, and Rep. Bill Sullivant of Gainesville, who led a defection of young moderates for the Head campaign in 1975 that resulted in Head's withdrawal from the speaker's race.

Ex-Big Springer resident manager

'Moving in' begins Saturday at UTPB

"Moving in" will begin next Saturday for the first students to live in on-campus housing at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin in Odessa.

Resident Manager Terry Wiethoff said final preparations are being made to have the 50 three-bedroom units ready on schedule. Fall semester registration is scheduled Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 23 and 24. Residents can move in over the weekend, he said.

Resident Manager Wiethoff is a 22-year-old Air Force veteran of Vietnam who attended Blackburn College, Ill., for a year, then spent four years in the Air Force as a Base career advisor. While stationed at Webb AFB at Big Spring he also attended Howard College there. Upon discharge he entered UT Permian a year ago and will receive his bachelor' degree in Economics in December. He plans to begin study in January on his Master of Business Administration degree. He and his wife Elaine have a son, Tony, who will be a year old in September.

Terry also works as a Veteran's Affairs Adviser in the VA office of the university. He is from Abilene as is his wife.

Landscaping and some other finishing touches will be completed after the move-in. There was some work delay caused by rains during the site development north and west of the library in the central campus.

The project was authorized because the Odessa housing shortage generally had priced many students out of the market for living space while attending the university. On-campus housing is provided for 150 students in 50 units. Furnished apartments for married students and parking for automobiles is provided.

Each unit has three bedrooms (two private and one to be shared by two persons), two full bathrooms, a living area, and a kitchen area.

Wiethoff said some prospective residents had been confused as to what the "monthly" cost of the different accomodations is, because the rental is paid in lump sum for the semester at registration, unless prior arrangement is made.

To clarify, here is the total cost (including flat-rate charge for electricity) on a semester basis, with the cost prorated also to the monthly amount. In each instance, the accomodation includes shared use of the living room and kitchen-dining room areas:

Double occupancy large bedroom with shared bath is $200 per person per semester, plus $25 per person for electricity — $225 per semester ($50 a month).

Private bedroom with shared bath is $260 per semester, plus $25 for electricity — $285 per semester (63.33 per month).

Single occupancy of the large bedroom (which has two built-in clothing chests and larger closet) and private bathroom is $400 per semester plus $50 electricity — $450 per semester ($100 per month).

Single occupancy of two private rooms and a private bath is $520 per semester plus $50 electricity — $570 per semester ($126.70 a month).

Rental of an entire housing unit (3 bedrooms, two bathrooms, kitchen, living room) is $920 per semester plus $100 electricity — $1,020 per semester ($226.70 per

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, AUGUST 19, 1976

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when many are apt to be in a critical and nervous frame of mind. You will need to make a conscious effort to use self-control to sidestep getting involved in an unfortunate situation.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Use utmost care in travel, especially while driving. Helping another with communications can also prove to be worthwhile for you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Taking risks where monetary position is involved could prove to be most unwise now. Make certain that reports and statements are correct. Curtail expenses wherever possible.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are feeling out of sorts and could make mistakes that could prove costly. Be more tactful at social affairs and don't start arguments.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get rid of those frustrations early in the day and then you can function well and get much accomplished. Don't criticize others.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't bother a good friend to go along with your ideas today since that individual has many problems to handle. Avoid the social which could prove to be rather trying at this time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Observe every rule and regulation that applies to you and take no risks. Handle career matters precisely and conscientiously.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Work on those promises you made; then delve into the new which is on your mind and get good results with both. Avoid one who bickers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You want to back out of some obligation but this would only make more trouble for you in the future. Avoid an argument with a loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You think that by changing plans you have made with a partner you will be ahead of the game, but this is not so. Study how to have a better image with the public in general.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You want to go off somewhere instead of taking care of obligations. Be wise and carry through instead. A co-worker could prove to be difficult, but smile and placate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Delve only in that recreation that will not tax your pocketbook so much and which is tried and true. Show more kindness toward loved one for satisfying results.

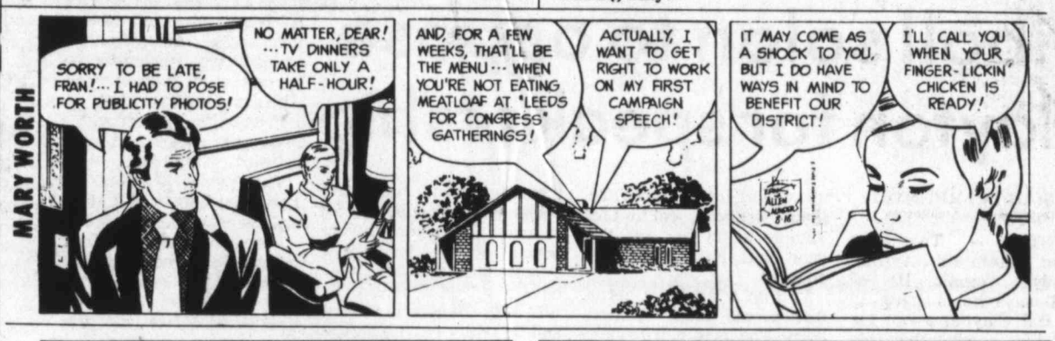

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Do not antagonize those at home. Make an effort to ease the tension that might arise there. Not a good day for starting new projects.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will like to stir things up for the fun of it and to show ability at solving problems. Teach early to use energy in right ways. Slant education along trouble-shooting lines, since there is fine coordination of mind and body here. Give spiritual training early.

Big Springers gain degrees

Some 1,400 students, candidates for degrees or diplomas from the University of Houston for the 1976 summer semesters, celebrated their graduation at commencement ceremonies last Saturday in Hofheinz Pavilion on the UH Central Campus.

Dr. Philip G. Hoffman, president of UH, presided and conferred degrees and diplomas.

Candidates for degrees or diplomas include the following from Big Spring; Marshall Wayne Horn, B.S. political science; and Martha Dawes, M.Ed. curriculum and instruction.

Three bound for prison

The Texas Department of Corrections bus today left for prison with three convicted in Howard County, the sheriff's office reported.

They are David Edward Inman, 20, who was sentenced to five years for theft; Garry Homfeld, 28, sentenced to five for revocation of probation; and Ronny E. Harry, 41, sentenced to six for burglary.

Evans receives Sul Ross degree

ALPINE — Bobby Gene Evans of Forsan was one of 246 students receiving degrees from Sul Ross State University last Friday during commencement exercises.

Evans received his MED degree. Keynote speaker for the ceremonies was Dr. Kenneth Ashworth, commissioner of Higher Education of the Coordinating Board, Texas University System.

Ridin' fence

Offshore drilling

with Marj Carpenter

Now you know when offshore drilling is mentioned that I'm getting kind of far away from the fence.

But far away from the fence is where I've been for the past two weeks on vacation. I kind of fooled the reader a little bit by leaving 15 columns here to be run while I was far away.

However, it's great to be back and I received some nice letters from several of you while I was gone and a couple of calls since I'm back with good column ideas that I plan to get around to in the near future.

But while I was in New Orleans, I got to take a tour of offshore drilling facilities and I thought oil people around here might be interested.

I'm not acting, pious, by saying I went to New Orleans and simply toured the offshore drilling. That was the second day of our two-day stay.

The first day, I enjoyed Bourbon Street and the jazz bands and Pat O'Brien's and the early morning coffee and doughnuts like everyone else.

I sailed down the Mississippi in a paddle boat, ate drum fish, oysters and shrimp and did most of the things tourists try to do in New Orleans. I loved it.

But Ed Lilley, who used to be with Getty Oil over in Andrews was our host and we got a little extra bonus by seeing offshore drilling.

Janie, Ed and their two lovely children live on the West Bank of the Mississippi so that Ed won't have to cross that durned Mississippi River bridge every day when he goes to work. He's production superintendent on the Venice Peninsula. It's properly named. Both Venice and the Venice Peninsula have lots of water.

Look at your map. That area south of New Orleans, which barely looks like land, is a big oil producing area. The big explosion down in there at the Tenneco plant occurred the night after we left last week and we were sorry to hear about it.

At those offshore rigs, it costs $30,000 a day to bring that oil out. Late one night, Ed got a call about trouble on some rig and he had to make a fast decision about getting out. Time costs money.

The companies have rigs with landing pads for helicopters to bring the crews in for the job. They hire a boat to stand by at all times with a person ready to assist if anybody falls into the water.

It's hard to believe how complicated and costly those rigs are — when you see those, you firmly realize that that it is getting more and more expensive to produce oil.

Very few of the workers live down around on the peninsula. They used to, but a hurricane about five years back struck down there and broke the levees and a lot of fine brick homes were washed away.

The homes for the company officials had been constructed high off the ground with carports underneath so that water wouldn't get to everything.

However, the force of the storm and the water literally tore the homes apart, and when the residents returned, they simply saw splinters and mud. The homes were gone. That was Hurricane Camilla.

So nowadays, most of the workers live in Gretna or New Orleans.

I've always had nothing but admiration for oil people. Oilfield work is tough at best and there usually aren't too many welfare-types hanging around working in the oilfields. When they qualify for unemployment, they want it to be from something easier than that.

But offshore drilling looks particularly tough, and I, for one, would like to say, "Hats off to oil production people and oilmen in the fields everywhere."

That's what I thought about, when I was ridin' fence last week around the offshore drilling south of New Orleans.

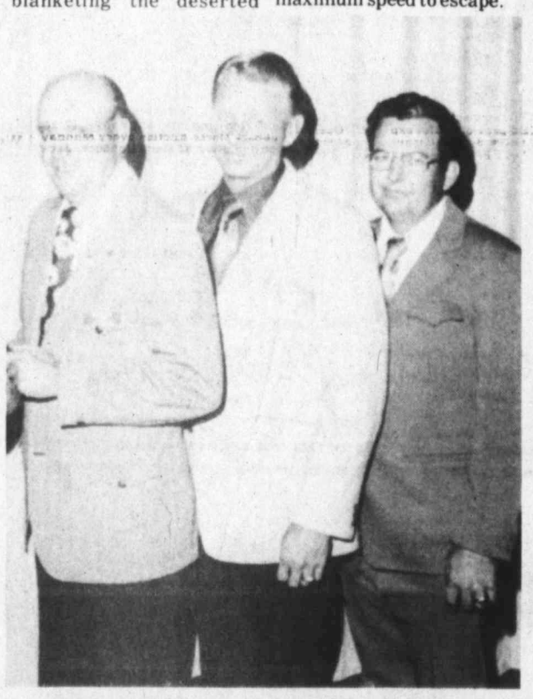

Volcano continues spewing gas, ashes

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (AP) — The Soufriere volcano continued to pour out clouds of deadly sulphur gas and ash today, and the scientists observing it said they still believed a catastrophic eruption was coming. But they were unable to predict when it would happen.

After helicopter flights Tuesday around the 4,813-foot peak on Gaudeloupe's western island, Prof. Robert Brousse of the University of Paris reported dense clouds of sulphur and ash blanketing the deserted towns of St. Claude and Baillif and partially covering Basse-Terre, the capital, which also has been evacuated.

Winds from the northeast were moving the clouds out to sea, but La Soufriere was replacing them continuously.

The outpouring of gas, steam and ash covered the top of the volcano and prevented the scientists flying over the crater. One helicopter was nearly caught by the spreading cloud, and the pilot had to use maximum speed to escape.

Thank-you notes mean thankless honeymoon

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to BORED ON MY HONEYMOON did nothing but perpetuate the male-performance-oriented approach to sex. You said people might think there is something wrong with the husband if his wife spent all her time writing thank-you notes on their honeymoon. Why put all the pressure on the male in sexual relations, while the woman sits back and waits for his move?

I get the same thing from the girls I take out. They all call themselves "liberated," but do you think they'd ever initiate anything? No.! I've got to kiss them first and make all the first moves. Then they're supposed to say, "No," when I go too far. (At least, the first time.)

Who made up the rules for this game anyway?

SINGLE MALE

DEAR SINGLE: You're either playing with an old set of rules or some very old players. The truly liberated woman doesn't wait for the man to make the first move or say, "No," when he goes to far—if he's appealing.

The honeymoon scene is another matter. If the bride spends most of her time writing thank-you notes, it's assumed she has no choice.

DEAR ABBY: A reader submitted "Lectori Salutem" as a practical, non-sexist salutation for a business letter, explaining that it meant, "Hail to the reader!"

You replied "Hail no! Most Americans have enough trouble with English!"

Abby, if in your view Americans are that incompetent, why not open all correspondence with, "Hi, Dummies!"?

CORRY'S DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: I don't consider myself a "dummy," but since I've never studied Latin, "Lectori Salutem" would be Greek to me.

DEAR ABBY: I was a widow and he was a widower. We were both lonely and decided that marriage would be a better way of living for both of us.

I have my own income and Herbert has his, but we do share living expenses, so there's no problem there.

On my birthday Herbert bought me a bicycle. I was thrilled with it because it was the first gift he ever gave me.

I ride the bicycle occasionally, but apparently I don't ride it enough to suit Herbert, because he keeps threatening to sell it if I don't ride it more.

Please comment on this, Abby. I am 67 and Herbert is 77.

HURT IN FLORIDA

DEAR HURT: Perhaps it's Herbert's way of trying to get you to exercise more—for your own good. However, regardless of his motivations, when he gave you the bicycle it became your property, and he has no right to sell anything that is yours.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WANTING A BABY: MONEY NO OBJECT": What you are suggesting is clearly illegal. I recommend that you deal only with an authorized adoption agency.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Accounting still offers good opportunities for graduates

Students seeking a field where jobs are available should consider accounting.

According to a recent article in the Wall Street Journal, government regulations have enhanced the need for accountants.

Even though the need for accounting talent was lower during the recession, it faired better than many other jobs.

The article says that a recent survey showed that at the bachelor's degree level "accounting, for the first time in the history of the study (College Placement Council, Inc., Bethlehem, Pa.) attracted more offers than any other academic discipline."

Prelaw students should also take accounting. The pre-legal education section of a catalogue of a Texas School of Law includes the following:

"Two items deserve special mention. A student will find it helpful to have some preliminary work in accounting as background for the courses in business entities and taxation. Typing skills will prove useful not only in the preparation of briefs and memoranda, but also for daily preparation and examinations."

Pharmacy majors are also required to take six hours of accounting.

The Business Division of Howard College offers a complete two-year program in accounting.

Accounting courses on the fall schedule include accounting principles, intermediate accounting, income tax accounting, and applied accounting. Registration for these courses will be August 26 and 27 in the Anthony Hunt Library on the campus of Howard College. For more information call 267-6311, ext. 70.

The Business Division of Howard College will offer a two-year program for medical secretarial training.

Registration for a new class will be August 26 and 27 in the Anthony Hunt Library on the campus of Howard College.

The first year of medical secretarial training will consist primarily of the basic secretarial skills with a course in applied anatomy-physiology and one in medical terminology. The second year will be a continuation of the basic secretarial skills with emphasis in the medical field.

Big Spring has long been considered the medical center of this area. The large number of hospitals and doctors in the Big Spring areas creates a great need for specialized secretaries. This need can best be met by a complete two-year course in medical secretarial training according to a college spokesman.

Normal vision possible

HOUSTON (AP) — A University of Houston professor of optometry believes it is possible for an individual with myopia, or near-sightedness, to some day soon have normal vision without the use of contact lenses or eye glasses.

Dr. Sami El-Mage, a native of Lebanon and a graduate of the University of Paris, is beginning a research project to end this eye disease that affects millions of persons throughout the world.

El-Hage, along with assistants David Schultz and Ken Lane, will launch the study as soon as enough persons with myopia are available for the study.

The professor said short-sightedness is caused by the cornea, the transparent part of the eyeball covering the iris and the pupil, is out of shape, moving in an outward or convex shape.

El-Hage said in a recent interview with The Associated Press that by using contact lenses, with a slowly increasing amount of pressure, the curve of the cornea could be corrected, placed back into a normal position resulting in near perfect eye-sight.

"It is much the same as the orthodontics who puts on braces to repair faulty teeth. The braces slowly push the teeth into proper position. Once the teeth are straight, the braces are removed," the professor said.

McIlvain honored at shower

Miss Betty Lu McIlvain, bride-elect of Carl Lynn Rodgers, was the honoree at a bridal shower given Saturday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Russell Tidwell.

The bride's chosen colors of blue and yellow were carried out in the centerpiece of yellow cannas and greenery. The arrangement was centered around blue taper candles on a cutwork tablecloth.

Hostesses were Mrs. Gene Perry, Mrs. L. G. Adkins, Mrs. W. R. Posey, Mrs. T. E. Newman, Mrs. James Moore, Mrs. Waymon Etchison, Mrs. A. J. Stallings, Mrs. Neil Fryar and Mrs. Sage Free.

Les Girls discuss stocks

The Les Girls Investment Club met in the VA Conference Room Monday evening, August 16, and heard reports from Luene Robinson on Pennsylvania Engineering, Ruth Bennett on Tracor, Inc., and Louise Hamilton on Microfilm Data.

Also, the group discussed El Paso Company, Augat, Inc., and Great Lakes Chemical, and voted to invest in El Paso Company this month.

Stocks recommended for study next month are Telemed Corporation on the American Stock Exchange, and Transam on the New York Stock Exchange.

The members voted to add the names of Marie Carlsson, Patricia Powell, and Bonnie Burchett to the membership waiting list.

The next meeting will be on September 20 at 8:00 p.m. in the VA Conference Room.
